18 number of weeks (the maximum benefit entitlement),
19 or the average weekly benefit amount, of regular 20 compensation which will be payable during the pe-
21 riod of the agreement (determined disregarding any 22 Federal Pandemic Unemployment Compensation)

23 not entitled, the State shall require such individuals
24 to repay the amounts of such Federal Pandemic Un-
25 employment Compensation to the State agency, ex-

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1 cept that the State agency may waive such repay-
2 ment if it determines that—
3 (A) the payment of such Federal Pandemic

5 shall be made, until a determination has been 6 made, notice thereof and an opportunity for a
7 fair hearing has been given to the individual,
8 and the determination has become final.
9 (4) REVIEW.—Any determination by a State

21 "(i) may file such request, if the re-
22 quest includes information specified under

7 "(B) DRUG DESCRIBED.—A drug de-

24 to such request has a verifiable history of 25 being marketed and safely used by con-

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1 sumers in the United States as a non-
2 prescription drug under comparable condi-
3 tions of use;
4 "(ii) if the drug has not been pre-
5 viously marketed in the United States as a
6 nonprescription drug, information suffi-

8 the drug was marketed and safely used
9 under comparable conditions of marketing
10 and use in a country listed in section
11 802(b)(1)(A) or designated by the Sec-
12 retary in accordance with section
13 802(b)(1)(B)—
14 "(I) for such period as needed to 15 provide reasonable assurances con-
16 cerning the safe nonprescription use
17 of the drug; and 18 "(II) during such time was sub-
19 ject to sufficient monitoring by a reg-
20 ulatory body considered acceptable by 21 the Secretary for such monitoring
22 purposes, including for adverse events
23 associated with nonprescription use of 24 the drug; or

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1 "(iii) if the Secretary determines that
2 information described in clause (i) or (ii) is 3 not needed to provide a prima facie dem-

6 such other information the Secretary deter-
7 mines is sufficient for such purposes.
8 "(D) MARKETING PURSUANT TO NEW

11 subject to such request may be resubmitted for 12 filing only if—

19 application approved under section 505;
20 and
21 "(ii) during such period, 1,000,000
22 retail packages of the drug, or an equiva-

3 "(E) RULE OF APPLICATION.—Except in 4 the case of a request involving a drug described
5 in section 586(9), as in effect on January 1,

10 "(7) PACKAGING.—An administrative order
11 issued under paragraph (2), (4)(A), or (5) may in-

14 quirements may include unit dose packaging, re-
15 quirements for products intended for use by pedi-
16 atric populations, requirements to reduce risk of 17 harm from unsupervised ingestion, and other appro-
18 priate requirements. This paragraph does not au-

7 section.
8 "(B) MONOGRAPHS DESCRIBED.—For pur-

14 subsection (a); and
15 "(ii) represents the most recently pro-
16 mulgated version of such conditions, in-17 cluding as modified, in whole or in part, by 18 any proposed or final rule.
19 "(C) DEEMED ORDERS INCLUDE HARMO-20 NIZING TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—The 21 deemed establishment of a final administrative 22 order under subparagraph (A) shall be con-
23 strued to include any technical amendments to 24 such order as the Secretary determines nec-
25 essary to ensure that such order is appro-

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1 priately harmonized, in terms of terminology or
2 cross-references, with the applicable provisions
3 of this Act (and regulations thereunder) and 4 any other orders issued under this section.
5 "(c) PROCEDURE FOR MINOR CHANGES.—
6 "(1) IN GENERAL.—Minor changes in the dos-

8 (1) or (2) of subsection (a) or the subject of an 9 order issued under subsection (b) may be made by 10 a requestor without the issuance of an order under 11 subsection (b) if—
12 "(A) the requestor maintains such infor-
13 mation as is necessary to demonstrate that the 14 change—
15 "(i) will not affect the safety or effec-
16 tiveness of the drug; and
17 "(ii) will not materially affect the ex-
18 tent of absorption or other exposure to the 19 active ingredient in comparison to a suit-
20 able reference product; and 21 "(B) the change is in conformity with the 22 requirements of an applicable administrative 23 order issued by the Secretary under paragraph 24 (3).
25 "(2) ADDITIONAL INFORMATION.—

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1 "(A) ACCESS TO RECORDS.—A sponsor

4 704(a)(4), within 15 business days of receiving 5 such a request, or such longer period as the 6 Secretary may provide.
7 "(B) INSUFFICIENT INFORMATION.—If the
8 Secretary determines that the information con-
9 tained in such records is not sufficient to dem-
10 onstrate that the change does not affect the 11 safety or effectiveness of the drug or materially
12 affect the extent of absorption or other expo-
13 sure to the active ingredient, the Secretary—14 "(i) may so inform the sponsor of the 15 drug in writing; and 16 "(ii) if the Secretary so informs the 17 sponsor, shall provide the sponsor of the 18 drug with a reasonable opportunity to pro-
19 vide additional information.
20 "(C) FAILURE TO SUBMIT SUFFICIENT IN-
21 FORMATION.—If the sponsor fails to provide
22 such additional information within a time pre-
23 scribed by the Secretary, or if the Secretary de-

25 not demonstrate that the change does not—

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1 "(i) affect the safety or effectiveness
2 of the drug; or
3 "(ii) materially affect the extent of
4 absorption or other exposure to the active
5 ingredient in comparison to a suitable ref-
6 erence product,
7 the drug as modified is a new drug under sec-
8 tion 201(p) and shall be deemed to be mis-
9 branded under section 502(ee).
10 "(3) DETERMINING WHETHER A CHANGE WILL
11 AFFECT SAFETY OR EFFECTIVENESS.—
12 "(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall
13 issue one or more administrative orders speci-
14 fying requirements for determining whether a 15 minor change made by a sponsor pursuant to 16 this subsection will affect the safety or effective-
17 ness of a drug or materially affect the extent of 18 absorption or other exposure to an active ingre-
19 dient in the drug in comparison to a suitable 20 reference product, together with guidance for 21 applying those orders to specific dosage forms.
22 "(B) STANDARD PRACTICES.—The orders
23 and guidance issued by the Secretary under 24 subparagraph (A) shall take into account rel-
25 evant public standards and standard practices

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2 take into account the special needs of popu-
3 lations, including children.
4 "(d) CONFIDENTIALITY OF INFORMATION SUB-
5 MITTED TO THE SECRETARY.—
6 "(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2),
7 any information, including reports of testing con-
8 ducted on the drug or drugs involved, that is sub-
9 mitted by a requestor in connection with proceedings
10 on an order under this section (including any minor 11 change under subsection (c)) and is a trade secret
12 or confidential information subject to section
13 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code, or section
14 1905 of title 18, United States Code, shall not be 15 disclosed to the public unless the requestor consents
16 to that disclosure.
17 "(2) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY.—
18 "(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in 19 subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall—
20 "(i) make any information submitted
21 by a requestor in support of a request

23 public not later than the date on which the 24 proposed order is issued; and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1 "(ii) make any information submitted
2 by any other person with respect to an
3 order requested (or initiated by the Sec-
4 retary) under subsection (b), available to 5 the public upon such submission.
6 "(B) LIMITATIONS ON PUBLIC AVAIL-
7 ABILITY.—Information described in subpara-
8 graph (A) shall not be made public if—
9 "(i) the information pertains to phar-
10 maceutical quality information, unless such 11 information is necessary to establish stand-
12 ards under which a drug is generally rec-
13 ognized as safe and effective under section
15 "(ii) the information is submitted in a
16 requestor-initiated request, but the re-
17 questor withdraws such request, in accord-
18 ance with withdrawal procedures estab-
19 lished by the Secretary, before the Sec-
20 retary issues the proposed order;
21 "(iii) the Secretary requests and ob-

1 "(iv) the information is of the type
2 contained in raw datasets.
3 "(e) UPDATES TO DRUG LISTING INFORMATION.—
4 A sponsor who makes a change to a drug subject to this 5 section shall submit updated drug listing information for 11 of such requestor) shall submit updated drug listing infor-

12 mation on or before the date when the drug is first com-
13 mercially marketed.
14 "(f) APPROVALS UNDER SECTION 505.—The provi-
15 sions of this section shall not be construed to preclude a 16 person from seeking or maintaining the approval of an ap-
17 plication for a drug under sections 505(b)(1), 505(b)(2),
18 and 505(j). A determination under this section that a drug
19 is not subject to section 503(b)(1), is generally recognized
20 as safe and effective under section 201(p)(1), and is not 21 a new drug under section 201(p) shall constitute a finding 22 that the drug is safe and effective that may be relied upon
23 for purposes of an application under section 505(b)(2), so
24 that the applicant shall be required to submit for purposes
25 of such application only information needed to support any

3 "(g) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF ADMINISTRATIVE OR-
4 DERS.—The Secretary shall establish, maintain, update
5 (as determined necessary by the Secretary but no less fre-

16 sources permit, for issuance of proposed orders
17 over a 3-year period.
18 "(h) DEVELOPMENT ADVICE TO SPONSORS OR RE-
19 QUESTORS.—The Secretary shall establish procedures
20 under which sponsors or requestors may meet with appro-
21 priate officials of the Food and Drug Administration to 22 obtain advice on the studies and other information nec-

2 under this section.
3 "(i) PARTICIPATION OF MULTIPLE SPONSORS OR RE-

17 supersedes regulations establishing general require-
18 ments for nonprescription drugs, including regula-
19 tions of general applicability contained in parts 201,
20 250, and 330 of title 21, Code of Federal Regula-
21 tions, or any successor regulations. The Secretary

3 "(A) The provisions of section 310.545 of 4 title 21, Code of Federal Regulations, as in ef-
5 fect on the day before the date of the enact-
6 ment of this section, shall be deemed to be a
7 final order under subsection (b).
8 "(B) Regulations in effect on the day be-
9 fore the date of the enactment of this section, 10 establishing requirements for specific non-
11 prescription drugs marketed pursuant to this 12 section (including such requirements in parts

14 lations), shall be deemed to be final orders
15 under subsection (b), only as they apply to 18 or (4) of subsection (a); or 19 "(ii) otherwise subject to an order

20 under this section.
21 "(3) WITHDRAWAL OF REGULATIONS.—The

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1 Regulations (as in effect on the day before the date
2 of the enactment of this section), or make technical
3 changes to such regulations to ensure conformity
4 with appropriate terminology and cross references.
5 Notwithstanding subchapter II of chapter 5 of title
6 5, United States Code, any such withdrawal or tech-
7 nical changes shall be made without public notice
8 and comment and shall be effective upon publication
9 through notice in the Federal Register (or upon such 10 date as specified in such notice).
11 "(l) GUIDANCE.—The Secretary shall issue guidance

2 as in effect on the day before the date of the 3 enactment of this section).
4 "(3) PRESERVATION OF AUTHORITY.—

6 construed to preclude or limit the applicability
7 of any provision of this Act other than this sec-
8 tion.
9 "(B) Nothing in subsection (a) shall be 10 construed to prohibit the Secretary from issuing

25 ner; and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1 (E) whether the administrative orders ini-

Good evening!!!! I hope that you were able to find some time to relax and recharge this weekend. I finally got some fresh air- I walked 8.8 miles on Saturday to the grocery store and back and then from my apartment in Ballston (Arlington) to the Tidal Basin to take a quick picture of the Cherry Blossoms. I left due to not being able to practice social distancing. There is true beauty in DC in spite of what we are currently experiencing! I know that many of you are putting forth extra effort during this time to both address the needs of your families and work responsibilities. I am so appreciative of all of you. I want you to have the information you need.

This weekend, the Department issued a supplemental fact sheet addressing the risk of COVID-19 in preschool, elementary and secondary schools while serving children with disabilities (https://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/frontpage/faq/rr/policyguidance/Supple%20Fact%20Sheet%203.21.20%20FINAL.pdf?utm_content=&utm_medium=email&utm_name=&utm_source=govdelivery&utm_term=). The fact sheet makes clear that ensuring compliance with IDEA, 504, Title II should not prevent any school from offering educational programs through distance instruction.

Also, as I'm sure you have read, Congress is considering providing the Secretary with waiver authority. The legislation is being referred to as the "McConnell bill." We are not publicly discussing the proposal. However, I want to be clear with you that we are not proposing to waive the delivery of early intervention services or the provision of FAPE. The Secretary would use the waiver authority to provide relief for specific regulatory requirements, like timelines during a period when school buildings are closed because of COVID-19.

I understand that timely communication is critical to ensuring that OSEP is able to achieve its mission and to ensure that you have the information needed to complete your responsibilities. I am committed to that. Starting tomorrow, I will send an email each morning to provide you with information to start your day. I also want to address your specific questions. Please send your questions in an email to me with a cc to Becca and I'll do my best to provide you with an answer.

Again, thank you for your continued dedication to our work!!!!

Happy Friday!
What a week it has been! Here is my latest news- Two workers here with a big plastic tarp separating my kitchen from my living room. They will be tearing up the kitchen floor and taking apart sections of two walls. They hauled in four big fans that will need to run for the rest of the weekend to dry everything out. Then next week they come back and put in a new floor and new walls. I am hoping for nice weather so I can get out of here, take a walk, get some fresh air and not have to listen to fans humming. I just keep telling myself this too shall pass!!! Take out orders will be my go to this weekend. Excited about some good food that I don't have to prepare!!!

In November, OSEP partnered with OPM's Human Resources Solutions to conduct an organizational climate assessment using a focus group process. The goals of the assessment were to evaluate OSEP's current organizational climate in 10 dimensions (teamwork and communication, customer orientation, training, resources, flexibility and innovation, rewards, supervision, strategic management, employee support, ethics) and to identify the needs and preferences of OSEP employees. 43% of OSEP employees (28 non-supervisory employees and 6 supervisory employees) participated in at least one focus group.

Focus group participants indicated concern about what would happen to the results of the organizational climate assessment, and to the extent possible, also voiced a desire to collaborate with leadership to address the concerns and suggestions for improvement. In that spirit, I have attached the full climate assessment summative report submitted by the OPM team. Take the opportunity to read the report and formulate your ideas. I'd like to begin our work to meaningfully address these concerns and make changes for the future with a discussion during our next monthly conversation on April 29th.

Hope you have a relaxing, enjoyable weekend! Stay safe and stay healthy! I appreciate all of you!!!!

Executive Summary

In November, 2019 the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services, Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) partnered with the U.S. Office of Personnel Management's Human Resources Solutions (OPM) to conduct an organizational climate assessment.

The goals of the assessment were to evaluate the current organizational climate within OSEP along 10 specific dimensions and to identify the needs and preferences of OSEP employees. OSEP requested OPM facilitate five focus groups with employees and leaders throughout the organization and prepare a single summative report. This report describes the methodology of the data collection process and the results, conclusions, and recommendations derived from the OSEP climate assessment.

Several conclusions may be drawn from these results. Employees would like to participate in more content-specific training related to their profession in order to stay at the forefront of innovation and better support their customers. They would like physical workspace more conducive to productive and efficient work and greater autonomy and flexibility in completing that work. Supervisors and non-supervisors acknowledge the need for supervisory training to improve communication, interpersonal skills, and supervisory duties such as performance evaluation and mentoring. The organization would benefit from an increase in staffing, which is already occurring, and more transparency and equity in how leaders hire, promote, and notify employees of decisions. Employees would also benefit from a clearer understanding of the organization's vision and short- and long-term goals. Finally, OSEP should quickly and decisively address employee concerns regarding mental health and physical safety in the workplace.

Employees indicated concern about what will happen to the results of this assessment. They requested OSEP leadership share the results and make known what steps the organization plans to take to address them. To the extent possible, employees also voiced a desire to collaborate with leadership in forming a path forward. They offered meaningful and pragmatic recommendations for improvement and engaged in the assessment with a positive attitude. Their comments and strong desire to fulfill the organization's mission suggest a willingness to engage further and to assist in making organizational improvements. This indicates future investments by the organization to improve OSEP's culture and climate will likely be met with success.

Introduction

In November, 2019 the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services, Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) partnered with the U.S. Office of Personnel Management's Human Resources Solutions (OPM) to conduct a climate assessment in order to identify the organizational needs and preferences of employees. OSEP requested that OPM prepare a single summative report explaining the results, conclusions, and recommendations derived from the climate assessment.

OSEP's mission is to improve results for infants, toddlers, children and youth with disabilities ages birth through 21 by providing leadership and financial support to assist states and local districts. The organization is comprised of 80 supervisory and non-supervisory employees. These employees are knowledgeable on an expansive number of topics and must keep abreast of changing complexities within their profession.

The goals of the current assessment were to assess the organizational climate within OSEP along 10 specific dimensions and to identify the needs and preferences of OSEP employees. These goals were accomplished by conducting a series of five focus groups with employees and leaders throughout OSEP. The purpose of this report is to describe the methodology of the data collection process and the results derived from the assessment. Conclusions and recommendations based on those results are also provided. Information contained in this report will allow OSEP to make strategic programmatic decisions to both meet employees' needs and achieve OSEP's mission.

Methodology

OPM psychologists, in partnership with OSEP leadership, developed two focus group protocols to collect data from non-supervisory employees and members of leadership. Both protocols asked questions covering a variety of aspects of organizational climate. These protocols can be found in Appendices A and B.

A total of five OSEP focus groups were conducted in person January 14 -16, 2020. For maximum inclusiveness, OSEP requested that all employees be invited to participate. Supervisory employees were separated from non-supervisory employees and placed in a single focus group. Non-supervisory employees were placed at random in one of four focus groups. Individuals were moved to different groups by request to allow for scheduling conflicts. Participants were invited to attend the focus groups via an email from OPM. The text of this email can be found in Appendix C.

Each session was two hours in length and facilitated by two OPM psychologists – one who facilitated the discussion and one who took notes. A total of 34 employees participated in the five groups for a 43% participation rate. Specific information concerning focus group participation for these groups is shown below.

OSEP Focus Group Dates, Supervisory Status & Participation

| Focus Group | Date | Supervisory Status | Participation (n) |

| Focus Group #1 | January 14, 2020 | Non-Supervisors | 6 |
| Focus Group #2 | January 14, 2020 | Supervisors/Leaders | 6 |

Results

A variety of factors affect organizational climate and the extent to which employees are satisfied and able to be productive within their organizations. Ten of these factors were discussed with OSEP focus group participants. The results of these discussions can be found below, including recommendations for improvement.

Teamwork & Communication

Participants across focus groups were asked if they feel employees collaborate to get the job done and how teamwork and communication within OSEP might improve. Nearly all participants indicated there are examples of both good and bad teamwork within OSEP. One person indicated the organization has "extremes" such that "when teams work well, they work very well. When they don't do well, it is extremely bad."

Many individuals noted differences between the Research to Practice (RTP) and Monitoring and State Improvement Planning (MSIP) divisions. Several commented RTP "works better," has higher engagement than in the past because of new employees coming onboard, has "good comradery" and "more fluid, organic teams." Those in MSIP noted they have a more complex, matrixed structure that can, at times, lead to a lack of clarity concerning who is taking the lead in interactions with states. One person commented SOPs have been created in the past to help with this issue but have not succeeded. MSIP employees also stated concern with decreasing flexibility and autonomy in choosing teams. Most felt this has been a negative change.

Several participants discussed collaboration across the two divisions. They stated there are few mission-related opportunities for RTP and MSIP colleagues to work together on teams, but instances in which this has occurred have been very positive and beneficial to both groups. One person did comment, however, leadership often highlights differences in education, grade level, and "importance" between the two groups, which is perceived as driving a wedge between employees that should be thought of as a single team of valued experts.

Focus group participants described some examples of "bad" teamwork. They conveyed issues including competitiveness between team members, lack of communication and information sharing, sub-grouping and pairing off, and inequity in the amount of effort and work team members contribute. Several stated many of these behaviors are unintentional and not "mean-spirited." Rather, they indicated conditions such as a lack of time, lack of staffing, having too many working groups, too much mission-related work, complicated team structures, and a lack of a clear goals as contributing to less-than-optimal team collaboration and communication. One participant noted it is "sometimes easier to have one or two people just run with an idea to get it over with" so they can go back to their regular work. Another commented most communication issues are due to employees simply not "closing the loop" or moving too fast to include everyone who should be included.

However, participants made clear there are team behaviors that are intentionally bad. Individuals noted there are "doers and watchers" in the organization and certain employees are "purposefully lazy" and either won't volunteer or won't contribute on teams to which they are assigned. One person indicated some of these employees have the skills to do the work and just "don't feel like it," while others don't have the necessary skills, and are not interested in educating themselves to obtain them. Several participants noted frustration that members of leadership are aware of these people and "do nothing" to either reprimand or compel them to acquire needed skills. It was felt by many that leaders are "afraid," don't want to be sued, or don't want to become involved for fear of retaliation. Employees noted they don't want to "call people out" with whom they must continue to work, and don't have time to deal with interpersonal problems that may ensue. One stated it is easier to "work around" teammates who won't contribute, but this simply leads to greater inequity and frustration for those who consistently perform.

Many participants agreed breakdowns in communication and teamwork make employees' jobs harder and increase burnout and frustration. They also noted that poor teamwork results in less mentoring and poorer quality training for new employees. Finally, one employee conveyed that OSEP's "low trust" environment makes employees "assume the worst" by interpreting even unintended breakdowns in communication and teamwork as intentional and hurtful.

Recommendations

Participants provided a number of recommendations for improving teamwork and communication within OSEP. Employees within RTP stated their preference to maintain current team structures as they are. For MSIP, participants recommended making another attempt at clarifying SOPs for how matrixed teams work and who takes the lead in various scenarios. They also requested increased input about team structure and which teams they may join. If they cannot be allowed to choose their own team participation, it is recommended leadership more clearly articulate the rationale for structuring teams and assigning team participants and give advance notice and opportunities to provide feedback before implementing team changes.

Participants from both divisions recommended creating time and space to allow for cross-collaboration between RTP and MSIP when it makes sense. Several also noted members of leadership need to be more careful in the way they communicate the importance of each group. Leaders should seek opportunities to focus on the positive contributions of each division and emphasize the "one team" mentality.

As noted above, many communication and teamwork issues result from understaffing and a lack of time. However, steps may be taken to improve these issues outside of increasing staff and decreasing individual workloads. Leaders should work to make participation on project teams more equitable. Participants recommended expectations concerning equity be clearly communicated and individual contributions tracked. They noted employees should feel comfortable discussing lapses of equitable participation with supervisors and supported in a professional manner during those discussions. Supervisors should discuss performance issues with employees in private and work to ascertain whether the employee simply won't do the work or does not have the skills to accomplish it and respond accordingly. Supervisors should also train or encourage employees to complete the work given to them and minimize reallocating work to other employees. If supervisors lack the skills to have these discussions or hold poor performers accountable, they should be provided training. Supervisors should also be supported by higher-level leadership when they attempt to take corrective action against poor performers.

Additional recommendations for improvement concern communication between teammates and members of leadership. Participants requested that leaders make team goals and guidance clear and empower team members to ask clarifying questions instead of "making something up" to move forward. They also recommended that communications include all necessary information and all members of the team. Sub-grouping and communications between sub-portions of teams should be dissuaded. Meeting notes or project logs may also be instituted.

Finally, it was recommended by two participants that OSEP consider using high-functioning teams as models for other teams throughout the organization. One person suggested several high-performing teams provide best-practices in writing or in an open forum so others can choose elements to improve their own team functioning. Another suggested members of leadership identify high-performing teams and replicate their structure throughout OSEP. Both employees noted the importance of maintaining some flexibility to allow for different team sizes, missions, and preferences, but strongly encouraged the use of best-practices to improve team functioning across the organization.

Customer Orientation

OSEP employees were asked if the organization has a focus on customer service and if it empowers employees to help customers in the way they need. Participants discussed a wide range of internal and external customers, noting their "ultimate stakeholders" are children with disabilities. Several discussed the complex relationship employees have with the states they service because of their dual role of providing customer service while conducting oversight and monitoring. Overwhelmingly, employees describe themselves and OSEP as highly dedicated to customer support and feel empowered by the organization to help customers. Members of leadership noted there has been a recent push to increase employees' professional development opportunities and customer service skills, which may be contributing to their positive perspective.

MSIP employees noted they are not always able to do what customers want because of the rules and regulations to which they must adhere. This is seen by many as frustrating to customers and, at times, OSEP employees as well. However, one individual commented they sometimes feel as though OSEP "bends too much" to meet the needs of customers, which takes away valuable time for other efforts.

Although participants had an overall positive perspective about customer orientation, they noted several specific issues impacting their ability to provide customer service. Several stated reduced staffing has led to "thinner" teams that struggle to meet customer needs. One added there is a lack of planning for transitioning customers to new employee points of contact when retirements or turnover occurs. This leads to lower quality customer service during staff transitions. A different participant stated yearly internal changes to monitoring protocols makes consistent customer service more difficult, as does a lack of communication about monitoring changes and other important information.

As previously mentioned, one person noted MSIP service suffers when there is confusion about who is taking the lead with a customer, which results in frustration, redundancy of effort and delay. Another participant stated they do not always have the most current information available to share with customers because they are not allowed to attend professional conferences to update their knowledge and skills.

One member of leadership indicated an issue exists concerning the three-person internal customer service team and state team leads. They commented state leads want customer service team members to handle more incoming issues without referral. However, members of leadership feel customer service team members may not have the necessary skills to handle many of the issues and therefore refer them to the state leads with high frequency.

Another group participant discussed recent changes in risk management procedures within the agency. This person indicated such changes have led to slower processing time and more difficulty "getting the work out." They commented there is not enough "push back" and advocacy from higher-level leadership to compel faster or fewer risk management reviews.

Several other participants identified technology limitations that impede customer service. Specifically, they noted firewalls limit access to platforms for conducting outreach and customer webinars. Additionally, they indicated OSEP has no means by which to collect feedback or suggestions from customers. One RTP employee noted having to personally purchase a survey software in order to ask customers relevant improvement-related questions.

Focus group participants spoke more broadly about their ability to obtain feedback from customers on their service. Confusion exists among employees concerning what feedback mechanisms are available and the information they collect. Several employees stated the Department has a "state survey" that collects customer feedback, but they were unclear about the content of the assessment and who sees the results. One person indicated their group does see results but noted feedback is rare and "trickles down" through leadership and supervisors. Another participant commented "employees don't get complaints often" but "aren't sure which parts work for customers and which don't."

Finally, participants in one group indicated an overall change in OSEP's relationship with customers "since January of 2017." They noted "prior to that date [they] took a lot of suggestions, collaborated with external partners, and worked with them." One employee stated that "has all stopped now" because of a lack of trust and a feeling that OSEP employees are "here to break down education." Participants also commented that in recent years states have become "defiant of the laws" because they feel OSEP "doesn't have any teeth anymore" and will not withhold money for non-compliance. One person indicated states "say we don't know what we are doing," noting they have received an increase in complaints from customers stating the Department isn't "implementing things they should under the law."

Recommendations

A number of recommendations concerning customer orientation were offered by group participants. Several requested additional staffing. Others recommended OSEP create protocols for transitioning customers to new OSEP points of contact when employee turnover occurs. One employee stated the need for more complete and timely communication of changes to monitoring processes and other information necessary for effective customer interactions. Another suggested a "24-hour response rule" to ensure all customer contacts are addressed – even if it is only to acknowledge their contact – in a timely manner.

Concerning the customer service team, OSEP leadership should identify the skills needed for team members to be more autonomous and successful at providing service without referring issues to state leads. Members of the team should be better trained or replaced with those who have the necessary skills. If this can't be accomplished, supervisors should better communicate the expectation for each role and which issues should be referred to state leads. Additionally, leadership may want to examine the current risk management procedure and explore ways to expedite or eliminate the most arduous aspects of the process. If nothing can be done, leadership should better communicate to employees the Department's rationale for keeping the procedure in place.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Group participants recommended OSEP work with the Department's IT group to seek better approaches for customer outreach and webinar use that are conducive to platform security. Several employees also requested access to customer service assessment tools in order to collect feedback with which to improve services. If customer feedback results already exist, members of leadership should work to disseminate them to front-line employees so they may improve service and respond to customer requests.

Finally, participants indicated that negative changes in relationships with customers resulting from Department policy changes will be difficult to ameliorate. It is recommended employees increase and maintain consistent, open communication, receptivity to suggestions, clear explanations of policy changes, and displays of empathy and interest in customer needs.

Training

Employees were asked if they are given the training they need, if leadership supports participation in training, and if the content and quality of training is adequate for their needs. Participants discussed a number of issues associated with this topic. Several non-supervisory employees noted training has improved in recent years and with new leadership in some areas. However, many still had pressing concerns. Among the most prominent is the amount of time they have to participate in training. There was near universal consensus that employees don't have time to train because of under-staffing and high workloads. Several also indicated they don't have time to research training opportunities for the same reason. One person noted "if I'm doing that, I'm not doing my work, and I can barely keep up with my work as it is." Participants stated they receive little-to-no guidance from supervisors concerning their career paths, areas in need of development, or courses in which to participate. Members of leadership commented they generally support training and "never deny training requests" but acknowledged they don't provide guidance to employees concerning their training needs. Many supervisors asserted they would be willing to do this, but don't have the time to research training themselves and, in some cases, don't have the skill to guide these types of conversations.

Employees also commented training sessions are often "repeated 20 times" to ensure attendance because of busy staff schedules. One person noted this wastes both time and money for the agency. Another asserted the organization could and should record training sessions, but noted employees still need time to go back and watch the training. Others commented on the frustration of having to multitask while attending training (e.g., reading and answering emails, stepping out to take calls). Several participants indicated these issues would only be resolved by higher-level leadership "protecting their time," "acknowledging the importance of training and making accommodations for it," and "setting expectations" for training.

Focus group participants spoke to a number of other aspects and types of training. Two people noted grants monitoring training is useful and well-executed. One person commented some employees and members of leadership lack basic technical skills (e.g., letter writing, using Outlook calendars, setting up Skype). This person added no accountability exists to ensure these skills are acquired or maintained.

Members of leadership made a distinction between training on processes and training on content, noting they feel OSEP does a "good job" training on new or changed processes. However, a number of employees felt otherwise. One stated training on new software is often inadequate or non-existent, leading employees to avoid using software installed on their computers. Another noted new laptops were provided with a single page of instructions "set on top," causing significant learning-curve delays and work slow-downs for employees who had to figure out new systems on their own. A third employee stated quality training was not provided for a new data submission platform which, again, slowed employees' ability to get their work done.

Most focus group participants agreed content training in areas of expertise is what is most lacking. There was wide consensus among employees and members of leadership that not enough outside training opportunities exist. Further, those that do exist are not customized enough to the work OSEP does.

Employees were vocal about their desire to attend professional conferences, describing these venues as the "most valuable" opportunities to gain content expertise, update their knowledge about new trends in their field, network with other experts, and gain understanding of new concepts that would lead to innovation in the organization. Supervisors strongly agreed with these assertions and indicated their support for conference attendance. However, several noted their "hands are tied" because of rules created by higher-level leadership limiting conference attendance and requiring those who attend to present. Employees discussed confusion and a "lack of transparency and equity" concerning who attends conferences and how they are chosen. Some discussed a lack of travel or training funding (or both) while others indicated leadership "lets certain favorite people go even if they are not presenting." Several individuals noted having to pay for their own hotel or paying conference registration fees while also taking annual leave to attend. They describe these experiences as "demoralizing" and commented they don't feel valued as professionals with expertise in their field.

Participants voiced confusion concerning training funding as well. One non-supervisory employee stated "they tell us they have funds, then they say they don't, but we don't know why." Another noted leadership asks for training budget forecasts for the year before they know what training is available, who may want to participate or how much it will cost. One member of leadership clarified the training funding cycle is complex and often dictated by the overall Department budget and continuing resolutions. Added to this is the timing of conferences, the announcement of training events and employees' workloads that fluctuate at different points in the year.

Participants also discussed the concepts of internal and informal training. One person indicated another group has had success bringing trainers in-house to instruct an entire group of employees at the same time. This was seen as beneficial because it saved both travel time and training funds for the organization. Another employee commented the agency is "wasting talent" by not using the internal expertise they have and conducting in-house training for one-another. Others noted it takes time for employees to create internal training and attendance would still be questionable if voluntary. One person stated their group has tried internal training in the past but "overcomplicated things" by setting up "laborious processes" associated with brown bag sessions, making them "not worth the effort."

Members of leadership also discussed limitations surrounding supervisory training. They noted new supervisor training and supervisory skills "maintenance training" is mandatory. However, one person indicated quality is lacking and most supervisors simply "click their way through" training to acquire the requisite number of hours. Another person stated options for content are limited and not what supervisors in OSEP feel they need.

Finally, employees discussed outcomes of participating in training. One participant commented even if they attend training, "nothing happens" afterward. Others agreed, stating there is no follow-up from their supervisor or colleagues asking what they learned or if it was beneficial. There is no attempt to integrate new skills learned and no time for employees to explore integration on their own. One person added there is “no reward” for attending training – it is not seen as “a positive” and not considered in bonuses or performance evaluations.

Recommendations

A number of recommendations to improve training within OSEP were provided. Employees want higher-level leaders to support training, communicate its importance to the agency, and “leave room” for employees to attend. They recommended setting clear expectations for setting aside time to participate in training that can trickle down to front-line supervisors and employees. They also recommended tracking training participation to indicate its importance and ensure it doesn’t get pushed aside.

One of the strongest recommendations offered was for supervisors to become more involved in assessing employee training needs and guiding their training participation. Participants requested supervisors hold discussions with employees concerning their career paths and tying their training to the mission of the organization. Employees want supervisors to identify areas in which they feel employees need development and recommend specific types of training and even specific training events. In order for this to happen, supervisors also need to be given time and training. One participant recommended supervisors hold formal training and career path meetings with individual employees and consider using individual development plans (IDPs) to document a path forward. However, these tools must be used carefully and with training, so they don’t become “empty exercises” that add more work without any real benefit to the employee or the organization.

Participants also offered recommendations on a number of other training aspects. One participant suggested using technology to record training and considering virtual training options as a way to save time and allow for greater flexibility. Another requested supervisors set and communicate expectations for “basic skills” (e.g., written communication, use of common software), hold those who don’t meet those expectations accountable and train them to meet standards. Employees also recommended creating clear, high-quality training for every new system or process within OSEP.

Concerning training on technical expertise, and specifically conference attendance, employees recommended more transparency about who is attending, and the criteria used to determine participation. The overwhelming majority also requested they be allowed to attend more conferences and for leadership to understand the importance and benefits of conference attendance. Employees also recommended leadership attempt to better forecast the training funding cycle. One person suggested improvements in tracking when workload is heaviest and when conferences and other training opportunities are going to be held. Better communication and lead time about training funding and opportunities would also support employee training. This person noted these efforts would be made easier by having a dedicated training expert or group of employees who are focused on OSEP training needs.

Other employees suggested bringing more relevant, customized training into the organization for groups of employees to attend and asking employees for suggestions about relevant training content. Participants also recommended exploring easy, flexible ways for employees to share professional expertise without oversight or undue burden. For all of these opportunities to be successful, however, employees must have both time and leadership support. One person suggested “shutting down” for an hour, half-day, or day of training to indicate the value of training and allow everyone to stop what they are doing and focus on developing skills without others in the organization moving forward or needing their attention.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ED-20-0731-A-007278

Members of leadership recommended supervisory training content be improved. Specifically, supervisors want training on how to deal with conflict resolution and poor performers and how to conduct effective performance evaluations. It is also recommended they be trained on how to support employee development, as previously noted. Supervisory training should be interactive and at a high-enough level to engage and challenge supervisors, not allowing or encouraging them to simply "click-through."

Finally, there are many steps OSEP may take to make the outcome of employee and supervisory training more meaningful. Training attendance should be recognized and possibly rewarded. Supervisors should ask for feedback on training attended. This may be done in informal meetings with supervisors, all-hands or staff meetings, or written submissions via email or newsletters. Employees may be asked to share what they have learned, how they intend to use it, and their thoughts about the training they attended as a review for others. They may also be asked to share information in a train-the-trainer format if they are comfortable. These steps will hold employees accountable for learning, propagate further learning by others through information sharing, and show employees their efforts and knowledge acquisition is valued by the organization.

Resources

Focus group participants discussed the resources they feel they need to get their jobs done including technology, workspace, staffing, and other needed and desired resources. Most employees agreed OSEP technology has improved in the last year with the acquisition of new laptops. Members of leadership indicated they feel "tech is fine now." However, non-supervisory focus group participants noted several areas in need of further improvement. One person commented phones "fail regularly," causing employees to rely on their personal cell phones for work-related calls. Another noted the organization mandated the use of Skype - instead of Zoom or other similar products - which does not allow recording. Employees agreed this function would be useful to them. Screen sharing and other desired capabilities were noted, but participants indicated these are limited because of firewalls and other IT security limitations.

One employee stated the new laptops also "have issues." They described problems with docking, PIV cards that lock, corrupted files, and multiple calls to the help desk. Others indicated the G5 system "only works sometimes" and employees must load notes into the system one page at a time. Participants commented this is a "waste of a GS-14 salary" and slows more meaningful work. One person indicated employees must always have a "plan B" in case technology doesn't work, and stakeholders see OSEP as "less effective" because of technical limitations.

The most prominent topic of discussion concerning resources was physical workspace. Employees indicated the agency recently made physical work "cubes" smaller and closer together. There was unanimous agreement that the current cube configuration does not make for a productive work environment. Non-supervisory employees clarified they work with clients and data and need a quiet, private environment in which to work. One member of leadership supported this, indicating "writing, reading and phone calls comprise most of what we do. Cubes are not conducive to any of those work duties." Another stated supervisors "couldn't be productive" in a cube environment either and that they have offices with doors in which to get their work done.

Employees described being able to "hear 20 people" speaking, eating and talking on the phone while they attempt to work. One participant noted people routinely "drop in" on her and her nearest colleagues, creating frequent interruptions. Another stated she and others commonly hear employees "talking crap" about colleagues and indicated she overheard a mean-spirited conversation about herself taking place near her cube while she attempted to work.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Participants further described not being allowed to take conference calls at their desk but stated they do not have enough conference space for everyone who needs it. One employee commented they have taken work-related phone calls in a storage closet. Others noted that moving to conference spaces still causes interruption because employees must "pack up" their work and computer throughout the day and computers "don't always connect" when employees are away from their workspace. One person indicated they had to schedule eight one-hour sessions in various conference rooms because they needed quiet space to write a report and were denied the ability to telework for the day.

Many employees discussed the assigning of cube space by seniority, grade and step. Several commented the handling of cube assignments had "created animosity" among employees. One participant noted being told to move after years in the same cube because someone of a higher grade was hired and being placed in the cube they occupied. The employee expressed anger and embarrassment at being "made to move down." Another agreed, stating "you are made well aware of the pecking order and who is important." Some confusion was noted in one group when a participant indicated a member of high-level leadership "put people" where they wanted them based on how much the leader liked them. Finally, one participant commented they spoke to leadership about moving cubes but were denied while others "simply got up and moved." This person felt their attempt at professionalism was punished while those who sidestepped the rules were rewarded with the cube space they wanted and suffered no repercussions.

Staffing was another resource discussed by participants. One person commented MSIP is "grossly understaffed" due to hiring freezes, attrition, and retirement. Another described staffing across all of OSEP as the "biggest need right now." Members of leadership clarified the hiring freeze has ended and OSEP has begun the hiring process for several positions. However, they note the process within the larger organization is a slow, lengthy one and they are "doing their best." Supervisors indicated they "have the staff they need to get the job done and done well," but employees are "missing out on other things" like innovation, collaboration and training because of their workload. Employees expressed a more negative perspective, commenting "supervisors keep going to the best staff and asking them to take more and more in an unsustainable way." Several employees agreed this has lowered morale and led to employee burnout. One member of leadership added it also forces supervisors to be "in the work," lessening their ability to conduct supervisory work and support employees.

Employees discussed other resources they feel are lacking or are of poor quality. One indicated there are not enough office supplies and if employees "aren't friends with the person who holds the supply cabinet key [they] can't get what they need." Many people discussed a recent decision to make employees remove plants from the building. One participant stated "they can't even get their rationale right – they think we are stupid." This person noted some supervisors told them it was building policy, even though other floors still have plants, while other supervisors said it was "because of poor air quality" or "a new Departmentwide rule." One participant described it as an example of the "constant chipping away at morale." Others described the way it was handled as "dehumanizing" – that leaders "went from cube to cube to check for contraband like they do in jail cells."

Participants also stated staff were promised noise-cancelling headphones over a year ago but have not been supplied with them. One person noted there is insufficient lighting over employee cubes. Several participants commented there aren't enough support staff and that OSEP is "paying GS-14 salaries for people to copy and collate."

Finally, participants voiced frustration over the suggestion box in the office, stating it makes them feel like they are "in middle school." One person added the box is not accessible to everyone and emailing suggestions would not be anonymous and does not make employees comfortable. Several people added that other types of reasonable accommodations are not handled correctly, even when employees work through proper channels with documentation of their case. One employee described bias in how their accommodation case was handled, stating several other employees had the same accommodation but they were told it would "set a bad precedent" if it were allowed for them.

Recommendations

A number of resource-related improvements were recommended. Employees suggested OSEP work with the IT group to obtain recording technology and screen-sharing ability. One person requested software for merging emails and PDF documents correctly. Others recommended leadership seek out a single, dedicated IT point-person to work with and consider assigning an internal "tech-savvy" OSEP employee to work with IT on all technology-related issues. Leaders should further investigate G5 issues and limitations and work with the point-of-contact for the G5 system on increasing capability. If no changes to the system can be made, OSEP may want to consider assigning mundane tasks (e.g., loading notes into the system) to a student intern or lower-graded administrative support person.

Participant feedback strongly indicates the current workspace configuration is not allowing for a productive work environment. OSEP supervisors and members of leadership are viewed by employees as empathetic to concerns about the workspace. It is also understood that options for improvement are limited because of higher-level leadership mandates. However, employees did recommend steps that may be taken by OSEP to improve conditions within the current parameters. Leaders should explore ways to access more conference and collaboration space for telephone calls, writing, and other tasks that require privacy or quiet. Ensure all technology within conference and collaboration spaces works, and stock them with supplies to make them more functional for employees working away from their own desks. Explore whether lighting may be adjusted or "softened" in certain areas of the workspace. Employees also recommended leadership review the process for cube assignments and consider taking suggestions on how best to allocate spaces. One person also suggested leaders more clearly communicate the rationale for why the current system was used and attempt to limit future relocations to minimize disruption.

Increasing staffing levels will clearly benefit all members of the organization and is already in process. It is recommended leaders and direct supervisors frequently communicate progress on hiring. This will increase morale and remind staff that leaders are working hard on a daily basis to address this concern.

Employees requested OSEP make office supplies easily available to staff. If supplies are already available, communicate how to access them. In addition, leaders should either clarify why plants were removed from the office or return the ability to have plants to employees. If possible, OSEP should purchase and disseminate quality noise-cancelling headphones to support employees need for quiet. One employee also suggested creating some type of protocol for alerting colleagues when staff in nearby cubes cannot be interrupted (e.g., a sign on the cube opening, the wearing of headphones, etc.).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ED-20-0731-A-007281

Other recommendations from participants include considering options for increasing administrative staff and moving administrative work away from higher GS-level employees. Employees in one group also requested the removal of the office suggestion box. Finally, it is recommended supervisors and mid-level members of leadership be retrained on the accurate handling of reasonable accommodation cases. A system for oversite of these cases should also be created if one does not currently exist.

Flexibility & Innovation

Focus group participants were asked if they feel the organization can adapt to change and if they would describe it as innovative. Most participants agreed OSEP employees "do a good job" of adapting to change and that "only a small number of people are not flexible." One employee in MSIP noted their group is "constantly changing" to add new functionality. This person noted, however, that training and technology limit their ability to change at times. Other participants noted OSEP employees are "forced to change," and referenced changes to telework, workspace, and having plants in the office. One person commented they "have no choice – either adapt or leave." Several others commented they are so committed to the OSEP mission they "tolerate a lot" and are "flexible to the point of breaking." They noted however, no matter how committed they are to the mission, some days forced changes stifle their motivation, resulting in an "oh well" mentality with one employee stating they often wonder "why am I still here?"

Non-supervisory employees commented there is a culture of "dropping things on them without planning" and that OSEP often "builds the plane while flying." One example given to support this is the need for multiple changes to telework based on parallel changes to workspace. Several participants stated when forced or disorganized changes occur, there is "no empathy or support" from OSEP leadership or direct supervisors. One person noted "leadership says it has no control over anything and we all just have to put up with it, but there are things like communication they can control." Others agreed, noting their desire for OSEP leadership to "push back harder" on higher-level leadership changes.

Members of leadership also indicated some frustration with change. While several noted OSEP has a long history of adaptability, requests for change in recent years have come from senior leaders without technical knowledge. One person stated these leaders don't ask for advice from technical experts in the field and instead "just push change," leading to "learned helplessness" among those who do have technical expertise.

Employees and leaders had a similar message when asked about innovation. One member of leadership stated if OSERS wanted to increase innovation, decision-making would "need to go back to the solution areas." The same leader commented OSEP was "amazingly innovative" in the past but now must "sneak innovation in" because the organization has become a "culture of no." This has led employees to feel as though they must "prove their technical credibility all the time." Others commented innovative ideas are "shot down" by leadership or "fizzle out" at higher levels. There was general agreement this leads employees to be less motivated and less likely to innovate in the future.

Another member of leadership commented work shouldn't require "so much leadership scrutiny," and that employees should be "treated like the professionals they are." This person further indicated there is too much "institutional micromanaging" and employees are not given the autonomy to own their work product.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ED-20-0731-A-007282

Finally, members of MSIP indicated innovation is "not natural" in their group. Another employee commented MSIP has tried to create new roles but "staffing impeded these plans." They noted MSIP is now "stuck between two visions and is executing both of them poorly."

Recommendations

Few recommendations for improved flexibility were offered by participants. Employees suggested OSEP attempt to use more advance planning and coordination prior to making sweeping changes that must be changed again within a short timeframe. Several individuals noted their understanding that this is challenging for OSEP leadership when they are also given immediate directives and little advance notice from higher levels in the agency. Others requested more communication and transparency concerning changes that will occur and to be "brought in" earlier, even if they will not be part of the decision-making process. One person also recommended employees be given more opportunity for feedback when possible, particularly in changes that directly affect them.

Several group participants requested leadership offer more empathy and have more respect for employees in the way they communicate change. One suggested certain office members and supervisors be trained on more effective oral and written communication skills. Employees widely agreed there is room for improvement in how leaders communicate and that many, having been told this before, lack the ability to improve without outside help.

Non-supervisory employees recommended supervisors and OSEP leadership "push-back" more on higher-level leadership to "fight for their employees." One participant also stated if leadership is pushing back, they would "like to hear more about it and what is being said." This person indicated even the perception that leadership is fighting for employees would "go a long way" to improve morale and trust.

Finally, participants recommended leaders find ways to value employees' technical expertise and "showcase" or honor innovation at the local level. One person indicated this would be difficult because of time constraints but would make employees feel more trusted and professional. Others recommended offering employees more trust by giving them greater ownership of their own work product, more autonomy, and less oversight, even if this can only occur at the OSEP level of the organization.

Rewards

Focus group participants were asked how they feel about how the organization rewards employees, if awards are allocated fairly and if they feel rewards are motivating. Employees across groups had differing opinions concerning the fairness of awards. Several people indicated "allocation of rewards is fair" and there is a "fair distribution based on inputs." One person stated "those who complain [about rewards] are the ones who don't step up to go above and beyond." However, others indicated "rewards are based on favoritism" and they don't know if rewards are fair but know "they are not transparent."

Participants also commented the fairness of rewards depends on the supervisor for which an employee works. One person noted some supervisors are "open to discussion and managing up." Another stated "some managers are good at assessing strengths and weaknesses and rewarding them – some aren't and develop a strong like for certain people instead." Others similarly discussed rewards coming down to the "luck of the draw on supervisors."

Employees discussed various types of rewards available in OSEP. Most focused on performance evaluations and year-end performance awards. One person commented employees used to receive a reward only for "going above and beyond," and "now every satisfactory performance rating gets a reward." This person likened this approach to giving "participation trophies." A member of leadership supported this notion, commenting there aren't many poor performance evaluation ratings given to employees, resulting in little variation in end-of-year bonuses. One participant expressed their feeling that "appreciating staff is not giving everyone a reward." Others within the group agreed.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Participants also discussed promotions within the organization. One supervisor commented that, despite attempts to clarify, misunderstandings about how promotions are given are still widely prevalent among employees. This person clarified OSEP does not create positions with automatic grade advancement - that "all promotions must be applied for competitively." Non-supervisory employees across groups did express confusion on that point. While some insisted colleagues have been given non-competitive promotions, others countered their claims. Several employees noted promotions are "predetermined" regardless of their competitive status. One participant stated "you can tell who will get promoted based on how many times they have applied in the past." This person went on to say members of leadership give some promotions because they fear employees will complain or sue for being "passed over."

Supervisors also expressed frustration over the elimination of "increase-in-duty" promotions. They indicated higher-level leadership now insists they reduce staff duties rather than promote an employee based on the level of work they are asked to do. Members of leadership noted this is particularly problematic in their current staffing situation because they do not have the ability to stop employees from doing necessary, mission-related work and instead must ask them to do it without begin promoted to the level that aligns with that work.

Some participants noted rewards and promotions are determined by how work is assigned by supervisors, which is not entirely under the control of employees. One stated "if you are given a high-profile assignment you are more likely to see rewards from that, but others are working just as hard on what they do." Another participant commented that even when allowed discretion to pick assignments, it can be difficult for employees to step outside the division to gain skills and participate in growth opportunities. This person noted "it causes hurt feelings and problems with peers in the division" and "is a burden because we are already understaffed."

Employees discussed a number of other rewards available in the organization and how they are perceived by staff. Spot cash awards are "well liked" and used by some supervisors routinely. One supervisor described an informal event where "fake, funny" awards were given, indicating it "boosted staff morale and they seemed to enjoy it." Several participants discussed OSERS peer awards, which were described as "not used often." While supervisors noted these are also "nice morale boosters" other employees commented peers don't have time to write up rewards, so it "comes down to who has time to write you up." Others agreed, stating "if you get written up, you will probably get an award."

Two ways in which employees are informally recognized were also discussed. Members of leadership noted there are "staff shout-outs" in the bi-weekly newsletter. These are infrequent and supervisors "struggle to get input." One person also voiced concern that the "same people get recognized all the time," which may be off-putting to other employees. Finally, one supervisor described writing emails to employees' supervisors to give positive feedback and copying the employee, so they know it occurred.

Recommendations

Few recommendations were offered for improving rewards and recognition. Participants would like more transparency and communication about how the performance appraisal and end-of-year bonus process works. Several also recommended greater differentiation of employees instead of giving all employees similar ratings and bonuses. Employees who viewed performance rewards and promotions as dependent upon which supervisor a person works for recommended better training for supervisors and more standardization of the process to eliminate bias.

Additional clarity about the competitive status of promotions is also needed. It is unlikely perceptions of favoritism will ever be entirely eliminated, but members of leadership can lessen this by communicating the status of each promotion, emailing job postings, discussing the promotion process for each specific position, and highlighting the adherence to proper hiring procedures. Higher-level leadership should examine closely any instance in which these standards cannot be met to ensure fairness. Concerning distribution of high-visibility work, supervisors should track who is receiving these types of assignments and consider asking for volunteers to allow fair opportunities for all employees.

Employees recommended continuing and expanding the use of spot-cash awards and making sure all supervisors are using them equally. Employees should be urged to use the OSERS peer award and newsletter shout-outs to reward one-another. Supervisors may assist by communicating the steps in the award process or asking employees to take turns writing up peers to ensure balanced participation.

Participants liked the idea of having an informal award event, noting it would be fun and bring people together. They recommended leadership host and provide decorations and basic food or desserts instead of asking employees to bring food and "create the party themselves." It was felt that a small show of good-will, without a great deal of expense, would make employees feel more valued and show effort on behalf of leadership.

Supervision

Focus group participants were asked how they feel about supervision within the organization, and if supervisors provide useful performance feedback and clear guidance and expectations for their work. There was variation in how employees feel about their direct supervisors. Several participants indicated their direct supervisor is "transparent and able to talk with us," and they "trust them," with one noting "supervision in RTP and OSEP is great."

Many participants were not as positive about supervision within OSEP, focusing on managers' supervisory and interpersonal skills. These participants indicated skill "varies widely" depending on the supervisor and the division. One person stated when issues are brought to supervisors' attention they are not addressed or dealt with appropriately, and that one second-line supervisor is "notorious" for "pacifying those in leadership and letting perpetrators get away with it."

One employee commented "new leaders come in with no supervisory skills, social skills or personality to do the job." Another stated "managers don't know how to manage – they don't have knowledge, expertise, or people skills." A third commented there is a difference between managers and leaders, and OSEP has "managers…timekeepers…turn-it-in-on-time people" who spend their day verifying where employees are and if they are working. One participant agreed many supervisors lack leadership skills, but also pushed back, noting "they are stretched really thin – they don't have time to lead. They barely have time to manage because they are in meetings all day."

Participants focused on several other specific aspects of supervision they would like to see improved. Several commented supervisors' "attitudes are degrading and disrespectful" and they "won't treat others the way they would want to be treated." One stated "they are working with highly educated national experts but don't treat people as adults or professionals and won't listen to our opinions or advice." Another took issue with the concept of "seat-time" – tracking when individuals are in their seats to begin work – calling it "ineffective and demoralizing." They went on to say seat-time sends a message that "sitting down at a certain time is more important than the quality of our work" and shows distrust. Another participant agreed, noting it is "not the way to treat white-collar professionals." A third stated "we are not children in grammar school, and this is not an 1800's factory."

Participants in one group also discussed gossip about employees between managers, noting it was unprofessional and employees "know" it occurs. Others spoke about needing a protocol for how supervisors talk to one-another about staff members not under their direct supervision. One person commented they felt 'blind-sided and embarrassed" when their own supervisor came to them with a complaint about their behavior from another supervisor who had never spoken to them directly.

Employees across groups discussed interactions with their supervisors during the performance evaluation process. Members of leadership noted OSEP staff have annual evaluations with specific performance elements that are adapted to employees individually. Non-supervisory employees clarified they have both mid-year and year-end review sessions, and most agreed they have monthly conversations with supervisors as well. One participant commented they find their performance review "useful" and another described the monthly conversation with their supervisor as "strategic." This person added their supervisor asks how they can support the employee in their year-end evaluation and that this is "important" to them. One person stated they feel their performance plan is "too generic" and should be further individualized through discussions with their supervisor. Another indicated they have received some helpful feedback, but at times they feel "spoken down to" by a supervisor who "lacks social skills" and whose communication is "brash."

Focus group participants were also asked if there is a distinction between how they feel about their direct supervisors and higher-level leadership within the Department. When discussing higher-level leadership, one supervisor stated there are "two types of leaders: people-focused, who will fight for the will of the people, and business-focused who don't care how decisions affect us. Business-focused leaders always win out and that is what we have." Others voiced frustration about decision making at the highest levels of the Department, with one person stating leaders have "no knowledge but very strong opinions." Another commented mid-level and front-line supervisors are "made to do things that lack face validity and make no sense," adding they are not involved in decisions made for their staff and are simply told what they must pass along. This person elaborated, saying this creates an "odd middle-man role" in which they cannot justify decisions to staff and may not agree with them.

At the OSERS level, employees noted they don't have consistency in leadership. One person commented this is due to multiple SES moves in recent years. Several participants indicated a preference for a career person who "understands the ins and outs of our work and stays longer."

Members of leadership discussed other specific barriers to effective supervision and leadership within the organization. One person noted the confusion created by GS-15 employees supervising other GS-15s. Another added some GS-15s supervise as many as 40 employees, while others are "given technical 15's" with the same pay but don't have to supervise anyone. This person indicated this causes hostility and frustration among supervisors, particularly when it is not clear how or why certain individuals obtained technical GS-15 positions. Finally, one supervisor indicated there is too much oversight, offering the example of regulations surrounding letter writing protocols. They noted "nine people are involved in editing, proofing, reviewing and approving," resulting in a "waste of time" and "overkill." This person also stated these processes reinforce a feeling of distrust among employees and members of lower-level leadership.

Participants spent a considerable amount of time discussing other leadership communication issues as well. One person said it is often difficult to determine if work is being allocated to them by their first- or second-line supervisor, which creates confusion. Others commented communication frequently happens within certain groups without "considering the ripple effect" of how decisions affect other areas of the organization. Another noted many decisions feel like "one-offs" that don't consider next steps, leading managers to "overcorrect in the other direction." One employee gave an example of a funding decision made hastily that greatly affected their work. They noted "unless you have a conversation at the water cooler you don't hear about it or see how it affects you." Finally, employees voiced frustration about leaders who use a "command and control" style of impersonal communication that lacks empathy or respect.

Participants also discussed what they termed "leadership through sidebar," indicating decisions are often made outside of formal meetings and without all stakeholders present. One person stated decisions shouldn't be made "at the water cooler between two people." Others voiced frustration that decisions are often made at "non-mandatory" meetings, noting "if you aren't at the meeting you miss a lot of information – don't call it non-mandatory if there are going to be discussions that staff must be a part of or should hear." One person stated some groups are good at taking notes and keeping meeting minutes, but not good at "pointing people to them."

Participants discussed two other topics specific to supervision. The first concerns the role of program leads within RTP. One person stated program leads "run people but don't have any authority." They went on to say they cannot tell staff where to be or direct any of their work. Another indicated program leads are expected to act in the role "indefinitely without authority, incentive to continue, or reward."

Finally, employees discussed supervisory responsibility for mentoring current and new employees. One participant commented new employees start with a single mentor and then "branch out" as they progress. However, several employees noted OSEP "lacks a culture of mentoring" that must come from supervision. Members of leadership agreed, saying they lack time to coach and mentor employees. One cautioned they are not certain all supervisors would have the skills to effectively perform those duties even if time allowed.

Recommendations

Focus group participants offered many recommendations for improvement in the area of supervision. Foremost, they indicated supervisors and second-line managers need more, and more effective supervisory and interpersonal skills training. In addition, they must be given time to practice these skills when they return from training and be monitored and coached by leaders above them to ensure best practices are being used. This will help to eliminate degrading and inappropriate communication styles used by certain supervisors and support others in taking decisive action when the situation warrants.

Several people recommended leaders discuss ways to lessen or eliminate micromanagement of employees and focus oversight and scrutiny on those who have proven themselves untrustworthy. One person asked that leadership not "punish the many for the sins of the few" and instead deal with individuals who abuse privileges privately instead of sending email directives or creating new rules for everyone. Similarly, employees recommended OSEP leadership evaluate concepts like "seat-time" and making employees "prove" where they have been. Participants felt this would improve morale and trust in leadership.

One participant suggested devising a better system for communicating information about an employee to their supervisor. For example, calling a meeting or writing an email including both the employee and their direct supervisor if something about them needs to be discussed, rather than the supervisors speaking first without the employee's knowledge. This would eliminate embarrassment and surprise on the part of the employee and allow them to provide an explanation of the situation from their perspective.

Several recommendations were made specific to performance evaluations. One person asked that supervisors be given specific guidance on how to conduct a performance evaluation and focus on their "tone" during the meeting. Others asked that performance plans be made more individualized and less generic. One supervisor recommended "revamping performance elements" and linking them to capacity development and training opportunities so supervisors can articulate to employees what they need to accomplish to reach each level of development. Finally, one employee suggested adding mentoring to supervisors' performance plans to ensure that it is valued and rewarded.

Few recommendations were offered for managers who are "stuck" between higher-level leadership and their direct reports. Although frustrating, this is by no means a unique experience for mid-level leaders. Managers can only communicate as much information as possible, frequently and with empathy. One employee recommended leaders "start with the assumption that employees are adults who are motivated to accomplish the mission" and include non-supervisory experts in discussions and decision-making. Several others suggested using more face-to-face communication with employees, especially when discussing difficult topics. One member of leadership supported this, recommending managers make more of an effort to "reach out and spend time with employees." They indicated this would have an impact on how supervisors are perceived by employees and would "go a long way toward a cultural shift."

One person stated supervisors should share more information with employees and increase transparency, noting "don't tell us to just be flexible and roll with it – share as much as you can. It would make a big difference." They also recommended providing truthful rationale for decisions, even if it is to say "I don't know why." This was seen as strongly preferable to managers "making up stories" and spreading distrust.

Concerning equity among leadership positions, one employee suggested examining the number of employees supervised by GS-15s and possibly rewarding those who carry a greater supervisory load. Similarly, it was recommended that OSEP leadership examine the position of program leads within RTP. One person suggested either granting greater authority to program leads to make the job easier or offering rewards to those who take on the role.

Participants acknowledged higher-level leadership oversight and protocols are likely to remain unchanged. However, they recommended leadership reduce the number of editors and levels of work product review to the extent possible. It was felt this would allow employees greater ownership of their work product, indicate greater trust in their expertise, and reduce redundancy and inefficiencies that cost the organization valuable time.

Finally, employees recommended improvements to communication within and across working groups. They suggested supervisors and non-supervisors pause to consider the ramifications of decisions being made on other work groups and funding streams. One recommended creating a system for tracking decisions and making sure meeting minutes are created and people know where to find them. Another highlighted the importance of including all necessary parties in key discussions and stated there should be "no side-bars" or informal discussions between small groups in which important decisions are made "on the fly."

Strategic Management

Employees were asked if they feel they understand the mission, vision, and values of the organization and if they are clearly communicated to them. Participants across all groups stated they understand OSEP's mission, can articulate it clearly, and frequently discuss it with customers and stakeholders. Several participants went further, saying employees are "tied to the mission and are passionate about it," that it is "in our DNA," and is the "employees' mission, not just the organizations." One person summed it up by stating "I have a clear personal mission and vision for doing this work."

Participants felt less clear about the vision of the organization. One person noted "in the past the vision statement has been vast and convoluted" and attempts to simplify it have been 'useless." Another participant commented OSEP "had a vision, and now the vision is gone," asking "so what is the new vision?" A third commented "no one articulates the vision or why things happen."

Other comments concerning mission, vision and values pertained to OSEP's alignment with higher-levels within the Department. One participant stated OSEP was created because of a "historical neglect of kids with disabilities and is different from every other division within the Department. This person further noted the OSEP mission "sometimes conflicts with the messages from current high-level leadership." Others agreed, adding "diversions from our mission or attempts to create barriers are offensive" both professionally – and for many – personally. Non-supervisory employees spoke of being "at the mercy of the whims of the political system," being "too malleable and politically based," and "having no buy-in outside of OSEP." Members of leadership agreed, commenting this "complicates our work" and causes issues for OSEP leadership because they are caught in the middle.

Recommendations

Participants did not have many recommendations to offer in this area. It is clear OSEP employees have no difficulty understanding the organization's mission and many have made it their own. However, they recommended leadership more clearly articulate the vision of the organization and "be clearer about how they see the next year." One person suggested voicing a goal for the next 1-3 years so employees "know what they are aiming at." Another requested leadership communicate how organizational decisions are linked back to OSEP's mission and vision.

Employee Support

Focus group participants were asked if the organization cares about its employees and if it has family-friendly attitudes and policies. Many employees indicated there is support for employees at the local OSEP level of the organization but not at higher levels. One stated "those at OSERS and the Department level care less-so than lower levels." One employee indicated "OSEP leadership 100% cares about staff" while others stated OSEP employees support one-another and direct supervisors support employees. A member of leadership agreed, noting "care about family issues within OSEP has always been there but we have to work within the constraints imposed from above."

However, several participants stated employee support and treatment "depends on who your supervisor is." They noted some supervisors are family-friendly and flexible while others are not. One person indicated family-friendly support is dependent on higher-level OSEP leadership, stating "our leader is awesome, which trickles down to my supervisor."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Some discussion was offered concerning reasonable accommodations given to employees. One person commented it "takes forever" to be granted an accommodation. Another voiced frustration about a supervisor "calling them out" for behaviors that fall under the employee's accommodation. This person stated they feel "a schizophrenic does my plan" because the same person granted the accommodation and yet denigrates the employee and scrutinizes their behavior. Similarly, other employees discussed being criticized for taking sick leave for legitimate, provable reasons. One person commented on the "lack of humanity and empathy" a supervisor exhibited in one instance, noting they felt "targeted" for something within their rights and beyond their control.

The most widely discussed topic concerning employee support was the telework policy. While employees noted OSEP leaders are "sympathetic" to flexibilities being removed, most stated the organization "used to be a much more family-friendly place to work," that current telework policy is a "high-level policy forced down on us" and "isn't family friendly at all." One added the reduction in telework amounts to "essentially a pay cut and a stressor." Several participants noted first- and second-line supervisors want to be more accommodating but can't because "their emails track what they allow and don't allow." A member of leadership agreed that the new telework policy does not "send a message that we care about employees."

Participants went on to discuss ramifications of the telework policy. One person noted they "feel like I have to be in DC unnecessarily." They went on to say this creates more stress and employees get less done, "setting them up to fail." Another commented the policy affects female employees with children disproportionately because they are most often the ones that need flexibility and have to take family members to appointments. A supervisor gave an example of an employee who teleworks on Monday but needed to bring a child to an appointment on a Tuesday. This person was not allowed to switch telework days and take two hours of leave under the new policy, which resulted in the employee taking an entire day of sick leave because they live at a distance. The supervisor noted with frustration "reasonable requests must be denied based on policy." Another non-supervisory employee commented the policy "doesn't even make sense" because it forces employees to take off more time even though the group "can't keep up with work because of staffing."

Some participants commented on being asked to change their telework schedule on short notice. One employee explained families with disabilities, and others, schedule therapy and meetings on afternoons they do not have to commute. This person noted employees are "locked in to our telework days without flexibility, but the expectation is that we can change it on a moment's notice for meetings and other non-essential organizational events." Others agreed, stating it creates "havoc and terrible stress" to rearrange appointments, find babysitters, and rely on family and friends unexpectedly."

Many group participants said they "take [the telework policy] personally" because "there is no reasonable rationale." One employee described it as "family hostile," while others stated the policy was implemented "solely to reduce the Department." They further indicated a departmental email concerning the results of a telework survey indicated "everyone hates the new telework policy." However, one person commented the Departmental leaders "don't care" and made clear "the beatings will continue until morale improves."

Employees stated they follow the new rules but have "lost [their] loyalty to the organization." Others indicated employee "motivation and engagement has gone way down" and "people are so tired and sick of everything – morale is so low we don't do any of the fun things we used to do." One person stated the telework policy shows a "complete lack of respect" and that OSEP has "lost lots of good people because of it."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Focus group participants were also asked if they feel physically safe when they are at work. They noted their OPM Federal Employee Viewpoint Survey (OPM FEVS) results stated employees don't feel safe from physical threats. One member of leadership voiced concern that employees are not screened by security when entering the building. They noted this had been brought to the attention of the head of building security, but nothing was done. A non-supervisory employee added there is only one entrance and exit for the building and it would be difficult for people to get out in an emergency. Another person commented an employee in a wheelchair was left behind during a fire drill, noting protocols are inadequate. Employees voiced frustration that high-level leadership "knows all these things – they are just waiting for something to happen."

Employees across focus groups also shared concerns about individual employees making them feel unsafe. One person noted they experienced someone making them feel unsafe and a supervisor "addressed it in the best way they could." However, they felt the actions taken were ineffective and were "left feeling scared." Other participants commented "When you hear about mass shootings, one person comes to mind" and "people talk, and the same person's name comes up every time."

Employees further discussed the emotional state of colleagues, indicating "they don't have a recourse to keep safe." One person chillingly stated "we have people talking about escape routes and where to hide if one of our colleagues starts shooting people. What kind of way is that to live and come to work every day?" Another inquired how the organization is treating mental health and struggling employees, stating "the organization will be responsible if something happens to that person or any of us."

Recommendations

Employees offered several recommendations to improve employee support. Participants suggested family-friendly flexibilities be offered as frequently as possible and consistently across supervisors to ensure fairness. They asked that requests for accommodations be acted upon more quickly and that supervisors not exhibit retribution or a lack of professionalism when handling accommodation-related issues or legitimate requests for leave. One employee also suggested training for supervisors in how to discuss these issues with empathy.

One employee summed up the collective requests of many by stating "give me my telework back." Participants acknowledged there is little to be done about the Departmentwide telework policy. However, they asked that supervisors bend to the extent possible, particularly when telework requests directly benefit mission-related work such as report writing or allow employees to take less leave and accomplish more work. Others recommended supervisors give more lead-time when requesting employees change their telework days and limit these requests to essential events that require face-to-face interaction.

Leadership should also work to increase building and individual employee safety. Participants recommended high-level members of leadership work to ensure screening of all individuals entering the building and improve emergency evacuation protocols. Most critically, employees urged leadership to take precautionary steps to reduce the threat of individual employees harming themselves or others and to take seriously the need for mental health support and accommodations.

Ethics

Employees were asked if the organization creates an ethical environment for them to work in and if they are treated fairly. Employees agreed front-line employees are ethical and remind each other, particularly new employees, what can and cannot be done according to law and regulations. While one person noted the OPM FEVS results indicate employees question higher-level staff ethics, career staff "have it figured out" when it comes to ethical work behavior.

However, many participants noted perceptions of inequality and favoritism by OSEP supervisors. One person commented certain employees are repeatedly given opportunities to attend conferences, training and onsite visits while others are denied. Another called it "blatant" and a member of leadership supported this, noting "there have been issues with the same people being given opportunities."

As previously noted, participants also voiced concern over inequity in hiring and promotions within OSEP. One employee stated they can "almost predict who will be the next manager by who hangs out with certain people." Another indicated "I was explicitly told a position was created for a specific person." Others said they have not seen this personally but had heard of it occurring. One employee corrected another, commenting they "knew for a fact" a position was competed fairly. Similarly, a member of leadership acknowledged employees' perceptions but noted a FOIA request "showed documents supporting a fair hiring process."

Participants noted other behaviors they consider to be unethical, including "bullying and gossiping" by leadership. One person described receiving an inappropriate message from a leader through private communication which they reported to management. The employee stated there was no apology offered or acknowledgement of wrongdoing. Another described hearing inappropriate jokes in a lunch area, stating "when I called them out on it, they just doubled down on the joke, knowing they wouldn't get in any trouble with leadership." Another participant noted leaders often gossip unprofessionally behind employees' backs and model such behavior for staff. Others agreed, indicating a "complete culture shift is in order." A third employee explained two individuals within OSEP are married to one another, stating this is "inappropriate, if not unethical" and voicing concerns about the employees sharing confidential information in a private setting.

Finally, participants were asked if the organization values diversity. One participant responded the organization "wants the appearance of valuing diversity" but they are "not sure they really care." Others noted OSEP does not have "sustained conversations" about diversity, and behavior doesn't always reflect valuing diversity. One employee commented "we have bursts of conversation about things but then it goes away." Another agreed but commented the organization doesn't have time to address issues, stating "why open a can of worms without the effort and time to deal with it?" A third participant commented "they do some training and then walk away."

Others noted inconsistencies between the work they do and the way OSEP employees are treated. For example, one person stated deaf employees consistently needs to schedule their own interpreters for meetings because the organization fails to do it for them. Another noted blind employees require assistance starting their computers daily because of a silent screen prompt that has not been changed. And a third commented wheelchair access to the building is "not great." One employee summed it up by stating "we are the Office of Special Education Programs – you would think they would try harder."

Recommendations

Employees offered few specific recommendations for improvement. They reiterated leadership needs to ensure no favoritism or bias exists in offering rewards, travel or promotions within the organization. If perceptions of bias are erroneous, members of leadership should make fair practices that follow ethical and legal guidelines clear and advertise instances of equitable treatment to reinforce employees' understanding. Second-line leaders must also not allow supervisors to gossip, bully or engage in other unprofessional behavior, and must hold supervisors accountable in instances where these behaviors occur. Participants again recommended supervisors speak directly to employees, instead of about them, and maintain a professional tone. They also suggested training for behavioral issues and removing repeat offenders from leadership roles.

Finally, employees strongly recommended OSEP be more attentive to special needs and diversity issues. One person suggested creating points-of-contact within groups for employees to contact. Another noted, however, leaders must act on issues that are brought up and follow through beyond short-term discussions or training events.

Conclusions

As with any comprehensive organizational analysis, it is difficult to make broad, generalized conclusions for the group as a whole. Inherent to any organization is the need to offer unique experiences that meet the needs of many different types of employees. However, there are some important conclusions to be drawn based on the results of this organizational assessment.

Quality of teamwork and communication within and across OSEP divisions varies widely. Overall, employees within RTP described better communication and higher functioning teams than those in MSIP. Employees describing poorly functioning teams indicated more staffing, reduced workloads, and greater clarification about matrixed team structures would help. However, supervisors must also hold under-performers accountable, ensure equitable contributions across employees, and make certain staff members have the skills they need or receive training. Supervisors who cannot accomplish these tasks may need training themselves.

OSEP employees describe themselves and the organization as strongly dedicated to customer support. Most also feel the organization empowers them to help customers in an effective way. There are many things that can be done to further support customer orientation, including increased staffing, better planning for customer transitions, and updating employee skills and professional knowledge. In addition, OSEP may benefit from enhancing technology associated with customer outreach and creating a better customer feedback system to identify and address customer issues. This may also increase trust and reinforce customer relationships employees feel have been strained in recent years.

Training is a topic that consumed a great deal of participants' attention. Employees indicated a desire for training but no time to participate. They want more assistance from supervisors in identifying their skill deficits, creating career paths and providing guidance and recommendations for training opportunities. Supervisors require more time and higher-quality training themselves in order to meet those needs. Better training on basic skills and processes in the organization would increase productivity and allow employees more time for mission-related work and professional development. In addition, increasing conference attendance would offer numerous benefits including increased innovation, enhanced customer service, improvements in employee satisfaction and engagement and reductions in staff turnover intention. Finally, tracking, recognizing and rewarding training participation would hold employees accountable for learning and incentivize them to participate in the future. Most of this cannot occur, however, without messages from high-level leadership that make clear the organization values training and supports a culture of learning.

Employees acknowledge improvements in IT resources since receiving new laptops but offered many technology-related suggestions for further improvement. Several of these may be easy to implement once explored and would offer increased productivity and an obvious sign of improvement to employees. Similarly, suggestions such as improving access to supplies, purchasing headphones, and giving employees their plants back are relatively simple ways to improve morale. The physical space employees must work in represents the largest resource challenge OSEP faces and was reported to contribute significantly to employee dissatisfaction and loss of productivity. The organization would likely see great benefit from improving "cube spaces" and increasing the availability of conference and collaboration space. In addition, OSEP should closely examine its handling of reasonable accommodations, both to ensure empathy and fairness to employees and to avoid stepping outside the law and putting the organization at risk.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ED-20-0731-A-007294

There is a great desire among OSEP employees to be treated fairly and with respect for their professionalism and technical expertise. When discussing flexibility and innovation, employees voiced their willingness to adapt to change and their desire to innovate to achieve and advance OSEP's mission. Yet they describe change in the organization as something done to them, not in collaboration with them, and in absence of communication and planning. Similarly, employees and members of leadership describe innovation as suppressed, hidden, micromanaged, and shot-down. While OSEP leadership is frequently caught between their employees wants and the demands of higher-level leadership, they would benefit from seeking ways to reward innovation and initiative and from treating employees as respected technical experts within their field. It appears most employees are ready and willing to rise to the occasion and respond with professionalism and high levels of engagement in return.

Rewards and recognition were not of primary importance in focus group discussions. Although employees offered opinions about performance awards and promotions, they appeared more concerned about their daily work environment and treatment. Many did request greater transparency in reward and promotion processes. Most also indicated a desire for greater differentiation of performance, both in end-of-year ratings and the bonuses attached to them. Other opportunities to reward employees, such as use of spot-cash awards, informal praise, and award events may be quick, easy and visible ways to boost employee satisfaction and motivation.

Employees appeared to understand it is not OSEP's role to alter the protocols and directives of higher-level leadership within the Department. However, most felt changes to mid-level and front-line supervision would greatly improve many areas of concern throughout the organization. OSEP supervisors need more and better training on conducting performance evaluations, communicating with staff, decision-making, and mentoring, among other topics. They also need support and coaching from those above them, time to train and practice leadership skills, and accountability for lapses in professional behavior.

Supervisors recommended performance evaluations be reviewed and linked to capacity development and training. Employees also want leadership to reduce oversight and micromanagement across the organization and improve protocols for effective decision-making. While these recommendations are broad and may take considerable effort to implement, the improvements they offered to leadership and organizational functioning make them a priority for consideration.

Employees' clear understanding of OSEP's mission and their passion for the work they do is a strength for the organization and has kept many employees from leaving despite other perceived hardships. However, they warn of a limit in their ability to endure. They also indicated a need for a clearer vision of the organization's short-term and long-term future. Employees want to know what organizational goals they are aiming to achieve and how decisions that are made directly tie to these goals.

Changes to the telework policy have led to greater stress and dissatisfaction, increased leave-taking and a loss of productivity among employees. Participants indicate the change has directly resulted in a less family-friendly environment. The policy, in concert with changes to physical workspace and a perceived absence of rationale for both, has left employees feeling demoralized and suspicious that the organization is intentionally making things harder for employees in the hope that they will leave.

OSEP leadership should also be aware there is a prevalent and strong perceived threat to physical safety in the organization. Although employees did not specifically identify the threat as imminent, many made clear that they believe it to be real and urgent. Leaders should consider immediate steps to ameliorate possible threats. Such steps may include providing accommodations, mental health support, and empathy to employees in need, and pushing for physical safety measure such as building entry screening.

Finally, it appears most employees believe their colleagues to be ethical. However, they noted a number of behaviors that fall under the category of inappropriate, if not wholly unethical. These include favoritism by leaders and offensive language and behavior. OSEP should do more to limit these behaviors and also increase awareness, training, and, most critically, action surrounding diversity.

OSEP has a large number of technically skilled, dedicated employees who are struggling under the weight of organizational parameters and restrictions. The result, as described by OSEP focus group participants, is an environment of mental and emotional exhaustion, anxiety and fear of other employees' mental states and behavior, demoralization and lessening engagement, inability to optimally support the OSEP mission, and an increased threat of turnover for the organization.

Overall, OSEP is comprised of an educated workforce that conducts sophisticated and important work. Employees care about the mission of the organization and want to contribute in meaningful ways. They require respect and support in order to be effective. By addressing the needs identified in this assessment, OSEP will ensure it has the culture needed to hire and retain employees that are satisfied with their work and excel at what they do.

Appendix C. Climate Assessment Invitation Email Text

Good morning:

My name is Jennifer Hartenstine – I am an organizational psychologist in HR Solutions within the Office of Personnel Management. Your organization has hired us to conduct a series of employee focus groups to allow employees to voice opinions on what is working and not working within your organization, and to offer suggestions for improvement. This is an opportunity to speak directly to senior leadership in your own words. You have the full support of your leadership and direct supervisor to attend this meeting, and there is nothing you need to prepare in order to participate.

We will be taking notes during the focus group, but we will not be taking notes on who is speaking during the discussions. We are interested in what you have to say but will not identify who said it. All results will be combined into a summative report provided to your leadership in February.

Your focus group will be held at the following location, date and time:

- Location: Room 5170

Sorry for the late update! Busy day and a broken value in my refrigerator that soaked the outside hallway! Men in masks came in to repair and my landlord came by tonight. My sterile apartment became not so sterile today. That does not make me happy since I have been in isolation and trying so hard to keep myself safe. On a positive note great conversations today with staff as well as external stakeholders. Talked to the NASDSE board today and listened to their concerns as well as success stories. Gathering stories of where there are positive, innovative, collaborative practices with parents and school personnel across the nation. While we as a nation have a lot of challenges ahead with instructional supports and related service provision options for our infants, toddlers, children and youth with disabilities there are some amazing efforts by parents, staff and administrators. Let's focus on all the positive relationships we are helping to build as well as the positive results for our students we are supporting. I am amazed daily at the work you are doing, what the OSEP funded TA centers are producing and our mission and vision to move forward in the mist of this pandemic. You make me proud! Please let me know if you need anything! Thanks for your continued commitment! Stay safe and stay healthy!!!

Service Obligations Under Special Education—Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children With Disabilities

AGENCY: Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services, Department of Education.

ACTION: Final regulations.

SUMMARY: The Secretary issues final regulations governing specific provisions of the Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities program authorized under part D of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, as amended (IDEA or Act). The regulations are needed to implement changes made to IDEA, as amended by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act of 2004.

DATES: These regulations are effective July 5, 2006.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Louis C. Danielson, U.S. Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW., Potomac Center Plaza, room 4160, Washington, DC 20202–2641. Telephone: (202) 245–7371.

If you use a telecommunications device for the deaf (TDD), you may call the Federal Relay System (FRS) at 1–800–877–8339.

Individuals with disabilities may obtain this document in an alternative format (e.g., Braille, large print, audiotape, or computer diskette) on request to the contact person listed under FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: These regulations implement specific provisions of part D of the IDEA. On June 21, 2005, we published a notice of proposed rulemaking (NPRM) in the Federal Register (70 FR 35782) (NPRM) to amend the regulations governing the Assistance to States for the Education of Children with Disabilities Program; Preschool Grants for Children with Disabilities Program; and Service Obligations under Special Education—Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities. The proposed regulations for Service Obligations under Special Education—Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities in 34 CFR part 304 are described on pages 35817 through 35818 of the preamble to the NPRM. The text of the proposed regulations can be found on pages 35890 through 35892 of the NPRM.

In the preamble to the NPRM, the Secretary discussed the major changes proposed in that document to implement the provisions of the Service Obligations under Special Education—Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities program, as specified in section 662(h) of the Act. These included the following:

- Clarifying in §§ 304.21 and 304.22 that stipends are not included in the cost of attendance and are not limited by the cap in § 304.22(b).
- Clarifying in § 304.30 that the Secretary is responsible for ensuring that scholars comply with the service obligation requirements.
- Describing in one section—§ 304.30—all of the requirements a scholar must meet.

As more fully explained in the Analysis of Comments and Changes section of this notice, these final regulations for part 304 contain several changes from the regulations proposed in the NPRM.

Major Changes in the Regulations

The following is a summary of the major substantive changes in these final regulations from the regulations proposed in the NPRM:

1. Eligible employment options for scholars have been expanded (§ 304.30(e)(3)).
2. The number of additional years allowed to fulfill a scholar's service obligation has been increased from three to five years (§ 304.30(f)(1)).

Analysis of Comments and Changes

In response to the Secretary's invitation in the NPRM, five parties submitted comments on the proposed regulations for the Service Obligations Under Special Education—Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities (Personnel Development Program). An analysis of the comments and of the changes in the regulations since publication of the NPRM follows. We discuss substantive issues under the section to which they pertain. References to sections in this analysis are to those contained in the final regulations. The analysis generally does not address minor changes, including technical changes made to the language published in the NPRM, suggested changes the Secretary is not legally authorized to make under applicable statutory authority, or comments that express concerns of a general nature about the Department or other matters that are not directly relevant to these regulations.

Assurances that Must be Provided by Grantee (§ 304.23)

Comment: None.

Discussion: Upon further review, the Department has determined that, at the time of exit from the program, the grantee should provide the scholar with a list containing all of the scholar's obligations under § 304.30, and the scholar should certify that this list of obligations is correct. We believe that this requirement should be added because it clarifies that the grantees, which have the best access to this information, are responsible for sharing this information with the scholars.

Change: We have deleted the requirement contained in § 304.23(c) that the grantee must "establish policies and procedures for receiving and maintaining records of written certification from scholars." We have modified § 304.23(c) by adding new §§ 304.23(c)(1) and (2), which require the grantee to provide information to the scholar and specify that, upon receipt of this information, the scholar must provide written certification to the grantee that this information is correct.

Requirements for Scholar (§ 304.30(e))

Comment: A few commenters stated that the "majority of children" and the "majority of time" requirements in § 304.30(e)(1) and (2) cause hardship for some scholars. The commenters stated that scholars who provide direct services in early intervention and adaptive physical education are most impacted by these requirements because early intervention and adaptive physical education positions involve working primarily, or exclusively, in settings in which scholars provide educational services, but not necessarily special education services, to students with the full range of abilities and disabilities in a general education setting. The commenters recommended eliminating the current "majority of children" and the "majority of time" requirements in § 304.30(e)(1) and (2) and instead requiring only that scholars "provide special education and related services to children with disabilities * * *" consistent with section 662(h)(1) of the Act.

Discussion: The Department supports the provision of special education and related services and early intervention services in settings with nondisabled children. However, the Department believes that the limited funds available for the Personnel Development Program should be targeted to support and train scholars who, following completion of training, will be employed in positions (other than supervisory, postsecondary faculty, research, policy, technical assistance, program development, or administration) that meet the ''majority of time'' or the ''majority of children'' requirements in § 304.30(e)(1) and (2) to ensure that the need for qualified special education personnel can be met. The Department believes that these majority requirements are necessary to ensure that there are sufficient numbers of qualified personnel to provide the most effective special education, related services, and early intervention services to infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Changes: None.

Comment: None.

Discussion: Upon internal review, the Department has determined that it would be helpful to define more precisely the term ''majority,'' as it is used in § 304.30(e).

Changes: We have modified the language in § 304.30(e) to substitute the term ''51 percent'' for the term ''majority'' throughout this section.

Comment: A few commenters stated that the range of employment options to satisfy the service obligation requirements in § 304.30(e)(3) through (5) is too restrictive and should be expanded. The commenters stated that scholars should be allowed to satisfy their service obligation through work in other areas, such as policy, administration, professional development, technical assistance, and program development related to special education, related services, and early intervention services.

Discussion: The Department agrees that there may be situations in which an individual can fulfill his or her service obligation in a position that is not described in § 304.30(e), including positions involving policy, technical assistance, program development, or administration, when the individual spends at least 51 percent of his or her time performing work related to the training for which a scholarship was received.

Changes: We have deleted § 304.30(e)(4) and (5), and modified the language in § 304.30(e)(3) to clarify that, in addition to positions involving supervision, teaching at the postsecondary level, and research, a scholar may fulfill the scholar's service obligation in a position involving policy, technical assistance, program development, or administration when the scholar spends at least 51 percent of his or her time performing work related to the training for which a scholarship was received under section 662 of the Act.

Comment: A few commenters stated that recent Federal education policy, as articulated in the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 and the 2004 reauthorization of IDEA, focuses on addressing the needs and performance of children with disabilities within programs, policies, and procedures of the general education system. The commenters recommended that the Department expand the eligible employment options to include, under limited circumstances, employment that addresses the needs of children with disabilities within the broader context of prevention and intervention initiatives in the general education system that are designed to accommodate the needs of a wide range of children.

Discussion: The purpose of providing scholarships under the Personnel Development Program is to ensure that there are sufficient numbers of qualified personnel to provide special education, related services, and early intervention services to infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities. While scholarships under this program may be used to provide support for training and professional development on topics leading to the identification of children with disabilities (e.g., progress monitoring and response to intervention), we do not believe scholars should be permitted to satisfy their service obligation in positions that focus primarily on nondisabled students or nondisabled students who may be at risk of having a disability.

Changes: None.

Time Period (§ 304.30(f))

Comment: A few commenters suggested changing the length of the service obligation in § 304.30(f)(1) so that scholars who are unable to satisfy the ''majority of children'' or the ''majority of time'' requirement in any single year would either automatically be subject to one extra year of service, or, upon request, receive a deferral of up to two years.

Discussion: Section 304.30(f)(1) requires scholars to complete at least two years of service obligation for every academic year for which assistance was received and to complete their service obligation in not more than the sum of the number of years required plus three additional years. The Department recognizes that some employment circumstances may make it difficult for scholars to fulfill their service obligation, as defined in § 304.30(e), within this time period. While implementing the commenters' recommendations would be too complex and burdensome to administer and monitor, we believe it would be appropriate to expand the number of years that scholars will have to fulfill their service obligation.

Changes: We have revised § 304.30(f)(1) to allow all scholars five, instead of three, additional years to fulfill their service obligation.

Comment: A few commenters expressed concern that, when scholars who are qualified service providers before they enter an academic program (e.g., teachers returning to school for a masters degree) do not complete one academic year of study because of personal or professional reasons, they must repay their scholarship. The commenters stated that these scholars, who are already qualified to provide special education, related services, or early intervention services to children with disabilities, should be permitted to satisfy their obligation through service, rather than repaying the cost of the scholarship, even though they have not accumulated one year of academic credit, as required in § 304.30(f)(2).

Discussion: The Department believes that scholars are unlikely to make substantial gains in their knowledge and skills in less than one year such that they would be able to provide improved special education, related services, or early intervention services to infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Changes: None.

Executive Order 12866

These final regulations have been reviewed by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) as a significant regulatory action in accordance with Executive Order 12866. Under the terms of the order we have assessed the potential costs and benefits of this regulatory action.

The potential costs associated with the final regulations are those resulting from statutory requirements and those we have determined to be necessary for administering this program effectively and efficiently.

In assessing the potential costs and benefits of these final regulations, we have determined that the benefits of the regulations justify the costs.

Summary of Potential Costs and Benefits

Service Obligation Tracking Burden

The statutory change incorporated in these final regulations, which shifts the burden for ensuring that scholars comply with their service obligation from grantees to the Secretary, was not specifically addressed in the Summary of potential costs and benefits section contained in the NPRM because this change does not impose any additional burden on grantees, and will not result in any significant additional costs or benefits.

We include additional discussion of potential costs and benefits in the section of this preamble titled Analysis of Comment and Changes.

Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995

The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 does not require you to respond to a collection of information unless it displays a valid OMB control number. The collection of information in these final regulations has been approved by OMB under OMB control number 1820–0622. We also display this OMB control number in these final regulations at the end of the affected sections of the regulations.

The clarification of the written certification requirement from the scholar in § 304.23(c)(2) was not discussed in the NPRM but has been added to the final regulations. This imposes a new information collection requirement, however, it does not fall under the Paperwork Reduction Act's definition of ''information'' as explained in 5 CFR 1320.3(h).

Intergovernmental Review

This program is subject to the requirements of Executive Order 12372 and the regulations in 34 CFR part 79. The objective of the Executive order is to foster an intergovernmental partnership and a strengthened federalism by relying on processes developed by State and local governments for coordination and review of proposed Federal Financial assistance.

In accordance with the order, we intend this document to provide early notification of the Department's specific plans and actions for this program.

Assessment of Educational Impact

In the NPRM we requested comments on whether the proposed regulations would require transmission of information that any other agency or authority of the United States gathers or makes available.

Based on the response to the NPRM and on our review, we have determined that these final regulations do not require transmission of information that any other agency or authority of the United States gathers or makes available.

(iii) Any date on which the scholar discontinues enrollment in the course of study under § 304.30(a).

(5) The scholar must make payments to the Secretary that cover principal, interest, and collection costs according to a schedule established by the Secretary.

The purpose of this meeting is to follow-up on the 8:00 AM call today to discuss what a process would look like for dealing with current COVID-19 related issues that cut across multiple programs.
I hope that by the end of the call we will have consensus on a process such that the cross-cutting issues will then be able to be addressed consistently in guidance and in a coordinated manner.
Please let me know if questions in the meantime, (b)(6)

Secretary DeVos Announces New Federal Deadline Flexibility for Career and Technical Education Leaders, Allowing Them to Focus on Serving Students During the COVID-19 Outbreak

WASHINGTON – U.S. Secretary of Education Betsy DeVos announced today new flexibilities for career and technical education (CTE) leaders who are required to submit their local CTE plan for FY 2020-2023 under the Strengthening Career and Technical Education Act for the 21st Century Act (Perkins V) by April 15, 2020.

Following up on feedback she received from town hall meetings between the Department and state CTE directors, the Secretary has decided to use transition authority to provide an extension for states that need additional time to submit their Perkins V state plans, allow states and local Perkins recipients to receive their first installment of Perkins V funds on time—even if they need an extension, and allow states to provide funding recipients additional time to complete their applications.

"The 12 million students in career and technical education programs today are tomorrow's first responders, nurses, and medical assistants—those who are right now on the front lines of the fight against the coronavirus," said Secretary DeVos. "They are also those who will help rebuild and grow our economy. This Administration's commitment to CTE programs is unwavering, and the flexibilities provided today will help to ensure their critical work continues."

Information on the new flexibilities was provided to local leaders through a new Q&A document which can be found here.

Perkins V plans allow state and local education agencies and institutions of higher education to receive federal support for CTE programs that develop more fully the academic, technical, and employability skills of secondary and postsecondary students. These programs are designed to expand opportunities for every student to explore, choose, and follow career pathways to earn credentials of value.

Subject: Release of Q&As Regarding Perkins and COVID-19

Dear Colleagues –

State agencies and local CTE program providers alike have been impacted by the COVID-19 outbreak. During our recent Town Hall Webinar and via emails with you and your team members, we have learned of shifting State staff priorities to address the outbreak, as well as widespread closures of local CTE programs that require hands-on learning under the direction of skilled instructors or workplace mentors.

At the same time, State directors identified as their immediate need flexibilities in the submission dates for full State and local plans, covering Fiscal Years (FY) 2020-23, which are required this year under the

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Perkins V statute. Last year, for FY 2019, the first year after passage of the Act, the Secretary used the transition authority in the statute to enable States and local CTE program providers to submit one-year plans. This year, for FY 2020, States and local CTE program providers are expected to submit full plans that meet the requirements of the Act. This first set of questions and answers (Q&As), attached for your convenience and posted to the Perkins Collaborative Resource Network (PCRN) Website at https://cte.ed.gov/grants/covid-19-information, respond to these much-needed flexibilities.

OCTAE continues to remain in close contact with you and your team, and will provide on-going support through additional FAQs, if needed, and technical assistance during the COVID-19 outbreak.

Wishing health and safety for you, your family, and your staff in these unprecedented times -

Thank you!

I just saw the invitation go out from OCTAE to Adult Education State Directors and their staffs for a "Shop Talk" COVID-19 briefing call this Thursday afternoon. What are you looking to convey on that call that will be different from the one on Friday? In theory, wouldn't you want the Adult Education State Directors to participate in your briefing call on Friday and then you address everyone at the same time or are there two different purposes?

Hey Susan,

Your timing was perfect! This afternoon we were able to post the first set of approved FAQs for Perkins. They are specifically focused at flexibilities for State Chiefs.

The FAQs are available at: https://s3.amazonaws.com/PCRN/docs/20-0086.FAQs_Perkins.pdf and on the Department's main Coronavirus site.

Let me know if you have questions.

Good afternoon Scott,

CCSSO (Chief Staff School Officers) reached out to me and asked me if there was any information that I could provide them in writing to be shared with their members regarding the Perkins deadline related to challenges that states MAY have related to meeting them or extension requests.

Is there anything I can share with them?

Susan Falconer

Liz and Jordan,

The Perkins FAQ document is through the final stage of clearance. The final copy is attached. My team is working to create the 508 compliant version of the document for posting and will send the link to OCO (Sally and Ryan) for posting this afternoon.

We are developing talking points for the social media team and working with Eli on a press release.

I will keep you updated on the estimated time of posting when it is available.

Let me know if you have questions.

Hey Sharon,

As Braden shared, the approved document has arrived! (Pause for celebration here!)

Please work to create a 508 compliant version asap. I will send this document on to OLCA for congressional notification and OCO for background. Our posting and emailing time will be contingent on the 508 readiness. As soon as you have a timeline on that, please let me know.

Thanks to all!

Good morning

I wanted to let you know that we have developed a second set of waivers based on the CARES Act. Most of them are fiscal issues relevant only to ESEA. I did want to draw your attention to the Tydings waiver though. Under the CARES Act (Sec 3511(b)(1)(B)) your programs can allow an extra year beyond the Tydings year. We discussed whether to include OSERS and OCTAE programs in this second waiver but decided it was your program office decision.

We hope this will go into ED clearance this morning and issue later today or tomorrow.

Mark and Laurie – I'm also asking questions about waivers for service obligation. The CARES Act included a waiver option related to TEACH grants and I'm wondering if it makes sense to ask for something related to our Indian Ed professional development program. Figured you might be interested in doing the same for OSEP and RSA PD programs. I'm just asking questions right now. Not clear it's an option or necessary but don't want to pass it up if it would be useful.

Happy to discuss if it would be helpful.

Good morning OGC!

OCTAE would like to have both Perkins and Adult Ed included in the Tydings waiver section of the OESE waiver template if possible and applicable. We have 29 Adult Ed and 35 Perkins recipients that are the State Education Agency. I wanted to first confirm that the Cares Act Tydings waiver extended to both of OCTAE's programs.

In addition, as we discussed this question this morning, we also wanted to confirm that this latitude would also be extended to our eligible recipients that were not the State Education Agency, like those that are housed in community college systems and with workforce boards. If that is correct, we will need your assistance in expeditiously creating a similar waiver request form for those entities.

We look forward to your guidance and input.

Let me know if you have questions.

Scott and Sharon-
Two questions from BOD members of ACTE – (one aggie to another, BTW)

1. Professional development funds that were targeted for Spring 2020 regional conferences – this fiscal year – The conferences are postponed to Fall 2020. Is there a waiver to allot those funds between fiscal years for the same activity?

2. Looking forward: Currently states are ceasing mandatory testing for state assessments for THIS year. The concern is that schools/students are going to need more than one year to recover from this pandemic (in academic achievement). Will the Dept provide waivers for state assessments in the outgoing years?

In case you are wondering: My update amounted to sharing the website: https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus?src=feature And, told them I was hopeful the Perkins V FAQs will be posted early next week. Also, said the Dept is providing as much flexibility as possible. Also, told them they can always submit questions to cte@ed.gov. And, finally, I added the CTSO definition from Perkins V legislation in the chat box, because JROTC gave a presentation and advocated to be recognized as a CTSO. And, I got the question (naturally). ED's position is state and locals make the determination of what constitutes an integral CTSO in a CTE program.

Over and out. 10-4 Good Buddies. -Robin

Liz, I assume that we will follow normal protocol where each program office does the posting (timing to be coordinated with you) to their respective web sites (tomorrow) and then they send to you the links for purposes of also putting on the COVID-19 page?

Thanks Scott, Mark, Phil.

Hey Kent, Jordan, and Angela,

Mark and I connected this morning and agreed that we would like to distribute our concurrent guidance at 1 pm today. Our thought is that 1 pm will allow time for OLCA to notify congress and for OCO to prepare to post it on the COVID-19 site.

Here is a proposed timeline for consideration.

|---|---|
| 10 AM | OLCA – Congressional Notification |
| 1 PM | OCATE/OSERS – Email distribution to State leaders for Adult Education and Vocational Rehabilitation and post on OCTAE/OSERS websites |
| 1 PM | OCO – Post on Ed.Gov COVID-19 website |
| TBD | OCTAE and OSERS work with OCO (Angela) for social media messaging |

Mark and I look forward to your feedback. We also would be happy to jump on a call this morning if it would be helpful.

The two guidance documents were approved by OMB, Jim Blew, and Nate, in addition to the approvals by others earlier in the process.

I have attached WORD and pdf versions of each.

I recommend we have a conf call with Liz first thing tomorrow morning to quickly talk through timing and sequencing of posting it, and how to best equip her to handle any questions that reporters or others may have once the docs are published.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Liz, I assume that we will follow normal protocol where each program office does the posting (timing to be coordinated with you) to their respective web sites (tomorrow) and then they send to you the links for purposes of also putting on the COVID-19 page?

Thanks Scott, Mark, Phil.

Please let me know if questions.

Hey Phil,

Thank you for all of your efforts to help move the Adult Ed FAQs forward today. My fingers are crossed that the CTE/Perkins FAQs will be able to move on the same way tomorrow.

In the meantime, I will be representing OCTAE on the Higher Education call on Tuesday. OCO asked that presenters have their remarks reviewed by OGC prior to the call. My draft remarks are attached. They reflect abbreviated versions of the FAQ answers that are through or working their way through clearance. Daniel recommended reaching out to you for the review. If you would rather I start with Rachel, Jess, Lisa and Soren, I will be happy to reach out to them first thing tomorrow morning.

I look forward to your guidance.

Hey Daniela,

My question is whether you want me to send them through OCTAE program attorneys for Perkins and Adult Ed or if you had a person in mind that I needed to have review them. Let me know when you have a moment and I will send them on for review.

Hey Kent,

Thank you again for all of your help today! Chris Pope just sent me the OSERS formatted document which will be the companion to the Adult Ed document. As noted below, Mark has approved it.

Where it has the same information as parts of the Adult Ed document we believe it would make sense for it to go to OMB for review at the same time.

Let Mark or I know if you have questions.

Hey Jessica,

I confirmed with Susan Falconer yesterday afternoon that the Department is planning to stand up a site to connect State and local education leaders to resources to assist with the transition to online learning. I would recommend that we thank Mr. Heppelmann for ptc's and NAM's commitment to helping America's learners continue to learn during this unprecedented time. Inform him of the Department's intent to provide information like this to K-12 and postsecondary leaders across the nation through an organized process. And, assure him that we will be in touch to request additional information as needed for dissemination of the information.

Let me know if you need additional information.

Hi Secretary DeVos:

I'm the CEO of a large ($1.4B) Boston-based public software company with a compelling offer of gratis help for the education community. I know you get a lot of mail, particularly now as national education efforts are being disrupted by the COVID-19 crisis. It is my hope you will personally read the attached letter as I'd like to offer the help of my organization to you and the education community during this time, and explore with you how we can work together in future.

Behind PTC, we have the support of Blake Moret, CEO of Rockwell Automation, Jay Timmons, CEO of the National Association of Manufacturers (VP Pence briefed the NAM on Friday) and others. We also have strategic relationships and work closely with many large companies in your backyard like Stryker, Steelcase, Whirlpool, Haworth, Herman Miller, etc.

With your permission, I will work through Jessica to schedule a virtual call to explain further how PTC can support the DOE during this unprecedented time.

Respectfully yours,

Ms. Utz:

I hope you are doing well.

I wanted to reach out to you to see if you might have any suggestions for us or if there are ways we could work with the Department in the future. For your background, the American Bakers Association (ABA) represents the wholesale baking industry. ABA represents more than 1,000 baking facilities and baking company suppliers. During the COVID-19 outbreak the US government declared our members to be critical infrastructure, in order to ensure the food supply of the country. We recently surveyed our membership on job openings and did an announcement, we currently have over 700 temporary jobs and 2,500 permanent jobs throughout the country. One position that our members are in critical need of is maintenance mechanics, this is where we thought career and technical schools might have students that are looking for employment – which we understand during this outbreak it would be a scary period of time to be graduating.

We wanted to reach out and see if you might have any suggestions of how we can better connect with those candidates during this crisis and moving forward.

Hello Colleagues:

I am writing to let you know that, to assist while teleworking, the Quarterly Performance Review (QPR), Quarter 2 data call will open early – on tomorrow, Thursday, March 26. This early opening is intended to give extra time for data entries.

If you have not yet done so, please gather data on your accomplishments. It's important to include the work of the range of offices across the Department that support your goal and its strategic objectives.
For this data call, you need to convey information on what was accomplished during Quarter 2 (January 2020 through March 2020). This is an opportunity to acknowledge the work performed and discuss plans as well as challenges and other events that may affect the outcomes for this fiscal year. For example, as appropriate, include an analysis of the impact of the coronavirus (COVID-19) and the closure of schools across the nation on metrics, strategic objectives and goal performance.

Objective Self-Assessment:
The Department must report to OMB on how the Department is progressing in meeting each of its 16 strategic objectives in FY 2020. At the end of Quarter 2, each strategic objective must be assessed – including those whose metrics have annual-only data.

Give your opinion: On the main PIO webpage, on the left-hand side of the page, DoubleClick the tab labeled "Objective Assessments." In the assessment column click where it says, "No Current Assessment". This will reveal a dropdown menu and then, click the drop-down arrow for options:

- Area of Noteworthy Progress
- At Expected Progress
- Below Expected Progress
- Area of Focused Improvement

Add an evidence-based justification for the self-assessment.

Please review the information provided in this email and on the PIO's Data Call Homepage to re-familiarize yourself with the schedule and expectations. A summary is provided below.

Schedule:

March 26 through April 8: Contributors log activities on the Narrative Update Page and provide data updates on the Metric Data Update Page.

- Contributors nominate the narrative information to include on metric slides using the Metric Slide Selection Page.

April 9 through April 15: Goal leaders and coordinators review slide content.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Suggest metrics for discussion during the QPR meeting and suggest content for the goal slides using the Goal Slide Selection Page.
- When suggesting content for the goal slides, please nominate material that represents significant activities your team has accomplished to advance the goal and each of its strategic objectives – even if metric data is not available for a strategic objective.
- The goal page is available for teams to discuss activities that are not related to specific metrics. Information provided on the goal pages should not be discussed on a metric page and vice versa.
- April 15, 5 p.m.: Access to the SharePoint site will be closed to allow PIO team members to finalize slide decks.
- April 28, 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.: The QPR will be held in the Secretary's Conference Room. Slide decks will be sent to goal leaders and coordinators prior to the QPR.

Guidelines:

Do not limit narrative content to metrics. For additional guidance, please refer to the PowerPoint presentation given on March 11 regarding data entries. A copy of this presentation has been placed on the External Documents page of the PIO SharePoint site, and can be accessed here: https://share.ed.gov/teams/ODS/Offices/IO/PIO/WebsiteHelp/Powerpoint%20Review%20of%20Quarterly%20Performance%20Review%20and%20Data%20Entry%20Process.pptx.

Reach out with questions, comments and concerns. The PIO's team is here to provide guidance and assist everyone through this process. Contact us at any time throughout this Data Call. We cannot hold the QPR without your contributions and are happy to be of whatever assistance we can throughout this process.

For users who experience trouble using the site, please contact Stephen Heister, Stephen.Heister@ed.gov, 202-377-4021 for technical support.

Thanks Casey. Let's definitely reconnect in a couple of weeks. Will the virtual MOA conference hosted by OCR be available to me? I am assisting a number of states on restructuring the MOA.
On an unrelated matter, one of the questions that surfaced last week during the Town Hall was the authority for LEAs/colleges to carry over unobligated funds past July 1. As you know, Section 133(b) prohibits such practice, and GEPA does not authorize a waiver. Inasmuch as all districts/colleges will face a "funding cliff" on July 1, 2020 due to the double whammy of substantially reduced state/local revenues and significantly increased expenditures, it is critically important that they be allowed to protect whatever reserves they now have due to school closures. So hopefully Congress might consider in one of the upcoming supplemental bills a waiver authority of Section 133(b).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Hello All,
I wanted to follow-up with all of you. At this point it makes much more sense to conduct the May 5 webinar from the confines of your own home rather than our offices. We'll be using www.webinato.com and it will be entirely audio along with a PowerPoint. It would be very helpful if you could let me know of your availability for that date from 1:00 to 2:30 P.M. The issues which I set forth in my March 16 email to Casey below deal generally with OCTAE monitoring and technical assistance under Perkins V. I would also to discuss your views on state monitoring of locals for 1) Perkins programmatic matters, 2) UGG financial management of federal funds, and 3) civil rights/MOA compliance. We would not target administrative flexibilities under coronavirus inasmuch as Scott Stump indicated in the Town Hall last week that such guidance will be posted as soon as it is issued. All states, however, will be very interested to hear what Andy has to say about the process OCTAE has used in the past to consider waivers for maintenance of effort.
Stay safe,
Michael

Great to hear from you Michael. I have May 5th held on my calendar. Just to flag the date for you, it overlaps with the MOA conference sponsored by OCR. We're still holding on that to decide if it's moving online. But I imagine a number of the people we want to reach will be attending the OCR conference either in person or virtually that same date.

I know Marilyn is planning on the NACTEI conference. We'll stand by for more information. If the Department cancels trips through May because of COVID-19 we'll need to participate virtually instead of in person.

Talk to you soon,

Hi Casey/Sharon/Marilyn

I wanted to follow up with you from our communications last week. No one knows when this public health emergency will end, and so I wanted to suggest to you Tuesday, May 5, from 1:00 to 2:30 PM (EDT) as a possible date to conduct a virtual training (e.g. Zoom) from our offices. As of this moment, the NACTEI conference to take place the following week in May has not been cancelled because the Gaylord Hotel has been inflexible. I suspect their position will change in light of the National and State declared emergencies.

The major subjects I would like to moderate at the May 5 virtual training would be 1) the types of technical assistance that OCTAE will be providing to states under Perkins V, 2) what consideration is being given to on-site versus virtual monitoring, and 3) a general discussion of how states might strategize their own monitoring requirements under the UGG and new MOA. We will have the capacity to take questions from the field as well.

Please let me know if this arrangement might work.

Stay safe,
Michael

MSSC Announces Partnership with ProctorU to offer Certification Tests from Home in Response to Coronavirus

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MSSC's Authorized Assessment Centers can place orders for their test takers to take assessments from their own home or remote location

Details on this and related actions the MSSC has taken to enable students to secure MSSC training and assessments at home are detailed below

In response to the Coronavirus crisis, the Manufacturing Skill Standards Council (MSSC) has strengthened its capacity to offer a fully online learning and testing solution that will enable prospective certificants to secure the full suite of MSSC certifications.

Online Testing

Until now, most students had to take MSSC certification tests only at MSSC Authorized Assessment Centers. MSSC has just contracted with the remote proctoring service, ProctorU, that will enable students to take MSSC assessments from home.

This vendor will require a period of time to upload all tests related to each MSSC certification into their system and to train more proctors, but we are pleased to report that this online testing will be available no later than May 15.

This will apply to all modular assessments needed for the high stakes, in-demand MSSC Certified Production Technician (CPT) and Certified Logistics Technician (CLT). The Certified Forklift Technician (CFT) online pre-qualification assessment will be available for remote testing, but to earn the Full CFT certification the hands-on training and assessment must be conducted with your center's local forklift dealership.

We are offering this valuable and innovative service at the current rate of $63 per/assessment for Post-Secondary Centers & $54 per/assessment for Secondary Centers for 60 days, i.e., until mid-July.

Online Courses

Until now, most courses were delivered in a classroom in a blended learning environment, i.e. part direct instructor training plus computer-based learning under direct supervision by an instructor.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MSSC has just sent guidance to all of its instructors to how to work with students online to mentor them through the fully online MSSC courses that they can take at home. Follow this link to view the guidance paper.

Course orders will continue to be placed through educational or training institutions in which the student is enrolled.

Online Instructor Training

Most CPT Instructor Training was delivered by a Master Trainer either at the Mid-America Science Park in Indiana or by a Master Trainer traveling to a remote site that required a minimum number of six MSSC instructor trainees for three-day training at $2200 per Instructor trainee.

Now MSSC Instructor trainees can take the CPT & CLT Instructor Training from the comfort of their home. Each training provides 180-day access to the online e-learning materials for instructors to review in a self-guided manner, includes registration and assessments, course syllabi, etc.

Instructors can select from the following options for either CPT or CLT Instructor Training:

- CPT Instructor Training E-package- Self-paced, purely online Instructor Training option- $600 per Instructor
- CPT Online Instructor Training- Includes 3 hour webinar with a MSSC Master Trainer- $1500 per Instructor
- CLT Online Instructor Training- $275 per Instructor

MSSC will continue to require that education and training institutions must have a MSSC-trained CPT &/or CLT Instructor available before ordering courses.

Benefits of Home Study Now

Since most students and many workers will be working from home during the Coronavirus crisis, this is an ideal time to use this time to secure MSSC's industry certifications in both the manufacturing and distribution-logistics industry.

In the manufacturing arena, the increasing fragility of the global supply chain will require an increase in re-shoring in domestic manufacturing. On the logistics side, the explosion of eCommerce will increase the demand for qualified workers in the distribution and fulfillment centers.

Good morning

We are convening a small group to begin working on the Ed programs in the Emergency Appropriations package. Although it's not yet been passed into law, we hear from Budget Service and OGC that it is highly likely to be enacted. Please see pages 94-103 on the attached which is what we are working from at the moment. We have 30 days from enactment to get out applications for $20 bil split between several programs, including higher ed.

Frank asked me to reach out to you to see if you would like to designate someone to join our workgroup which is being led by Meredith Miller. We currently have several OESE staff, as well as representatives from OGC, OPEPD and Budget Service. We have a planning call today at 1:00 and would be happy to have someone from your team join. I know everyone is stretched thin right now and we are committed to keeping everyone updated as this moves forward.

Good morning Cheryl and Sharon,

First and foremost, thank you for the leadership you exhibited this week in hosting the conversations with our State leaders. Over the two days we were able to connect with and listen to nearly 500 individuals who are eager to receive answers to their questions.

Yesterday we walked through the process. In short …

1. Combine common questions
2. Prioritize critical and most timely questions
3. Work with OGC on most critical questions to secure approval on response
4. Provide questions to Scott for quick review
5. Scott will send to Department Working Group for review and approval
6. When working group approves, FAQs will be sent to OMB for review and approval
7. With final approval, we will send to OCO to post on Ed.Gov Coronavirus site and email to State Directors of Adult Ed and CTE

We will then repeat the process for lower priority questions and new questions as they arrive.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

My ask of you and your teams is that we have the first set of critical questions ready for my review by the end of today if possible. I know that may not be feasible. If that is the case, please let me know when you believe the first set of questions will be ready for my review.

Please stay in touch and let me know how I can be of assistance.

Sharon,

I am not sure if you are the correct person on this issue but like the PWDA, I work with several state workforce development associations and many of them are navigating this COVID 19 crisis on the ground. We have many questions from our adult and CTE education partners in terms of what to expect with flexibility under WIOA Title II. This is something before this outbreak that we had discussed with Assistant Secretary Stump.

Is there any federal guidance currently as there are questions about distance learning and reimbursements if there are not people physically in seats during this time.

Appreciate any thoughts/insight you have on this.

Thank you very much,

Good Morning Scott and Richard,

I have an update based on our fluid, constantly-changing environment.

I had initially planned to come into the office at least one day per week. Given the Secretary's email below, and her push for us to telework through April 10th; unless there is an urgent need to not do so, I will plan for 100% telework. I am happy to come into the office, as needed, however; don't want to discount the warnings and cautions that are encouraged.

Please let me know if you need anything from me. I am fully accessible, including via email and phone, and for virtual meetings.

Thank you for your support.

Dear Department of Education Family,

These, no doubt, are challenging times for you, for your families, and for our nation's students and educators. Each day, we are presented with new information and new reasons for concern. Yet our duty remains constant — to fulfill the Department's mission and to support the education of our nation's students.

Thank you for your continued efforts to help the rising generation succeed. They are counting on you — on all of us — to keep our work going, to provide needed information and resources, and to approach new challenges as opportunities to demonstrate flexibility, ingenuity, and creativity.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In order to continue to serve the public, our team must remain healthy. To that end, I'm asking each of you in an eligible position, unless it is absolutely critical for you to report to the office, to telework through April 10, 2020.

By maximizing the use of telework during this emergency period, we can reduce the risk for everyone, while ensuring ED's continued operations. As we approach April 10, we'll continue to monitor the health of our team and remain watchful of Office of Personnel Management directives and guidelines.

Even though we will not be at our desks, it is important to continue to operate effectively. During this time, I ask each of you to work with your supervisor and team to stay engaged, seek clarification when necessary, remain in communication with your manager, and meet deadlines. I also ask that you bring forward ideas that could help improve our services or better meet the needs of our schools and students.

With school and childcare facility closures, I understand that you may not be able to work your normal schedule. Please contact your supervisor to discuss different work schedules that allow for greater flexibility during this emergency telework period.

It's also important that we all do our part to slow the spread of COVID-19. The White House and CDC released the following helpful guidance yesterday that encourages:

- Listening to the directions of state and local authorities;
- Staying home if you feel sick;
- Keeping children who are sick at home;
- Keeping your entire family at home if someone in your household has tested positive for COVID-19;
- Staying at home if you are over 60 or have underlying health conditions;
- Working from home;
- Avoiding social gatherings;
- Avoiding bars and restaurants (instead use delivery or pick-up options);
- Avoiding discretionary travel;
- Practicing good hygiene; and
- Staying away from nursing homes or long-term care facilities unless providing critical assistance.

Please continue to follow the CDC guidance regarding COVID-19 to prevent illness and recognize symptoms: https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-nCoV/index.html.

Thank you for your continued support and dedication to the work that we do for students and schools. We'll get through this by working together and come back stronger than ever.

Wishing you all good health,
Betsy

Not specifically. We are referring them to the general guidance that applies to all schools right now. Here is the "standard language" being used to communicate with them when they inquire.

Please refer to the March 5 EA which provides guidance that applies to schools (including those participating in the Second Chance Pell experiment as well). In that announcement, the Department provides broad flexibility for the institution to 1) change the modality of the course to an online format; or 2) suspend classes temporarily and make changes to the length of the term later to accommodate students (without concerns about making the program nonstandard term or nonterm). However, if the institution ultimately determines that it must cancel classes and will be unable to restart those classes, it must consider the students withdrawn for the term and perform R2T4 calculations accordingly.

A Message to Lumina's Partners About COVID-19

Lumina's Work Continues

A lot has changed rapidly since the emergence of COVID-19, including the declaration of state and national emergencies, international travel restrictions, the cancellation of events locally and nationally, and a sudden and widespread emphasis on working from home to slow the spread of this harmful new virus.

I am writing to assure you the work of Lumina Foundation goes on even as we exercise caution amid the coronavirus pandemic to protect our employees and the people we come into contact with. Our offices in Indianapolis and Washington, D.C., are closed, and we are working remotely. We also are postponing or canceling meetings and convenings until further notice. However, we remain available through email, phone calls, and video conferences even as we refrain from in-person contact.

We want to assure you we will continue to make timely, uninterrupted payments to grantees and contractors, although some processes and procedures for doing so could change.

We know the COVID-19 pandemic has placed unexpected stresses, financial and otherwise, on the organizations we work with. And we want to let you know we are here and plan to help in the following ways:

- We can talk about adjusting, delaying, or waiving terms and timelines of any grant or contract (including interim and final reports) so that you can put your focus where it needs to be right now. We will do what's best for you and the work to ensure the continued strength of our partners—and the best outcomes.
- We will continue to consider new grants and contracts advanced by Lumina's employees.
- To ensure Lumina's partners maintain sufficient cash flow, we can accelerate payments under already-approved grants, based on an organization's circumstances. This includes payments scheduled for later in 2020 or in 2021. For example, if you have a second grant payment due in the fall or even in 2021, we could make this payment earlier.

- We can work with you on events and gatherings, large and small, that are part of your work with us and are likely to be postponed or canceled. This flexibility includes exploring with you how your grant or contract allocations might be repurposed.

In the weeks and months ahead, your Lumina officers or directors will be your primary points of contact. You should contact them about any of these matters or other issues you want to bring to Lumina's attention.

We value you and your work, and we want to demonstrate the empathy, flexibility, and responsiveness this public health crisis demands. We also know that this situation will cause enormous financial stress on many organizations, so we are also exploring ways that we can help our partners and communities who are particularly vulnerable, and we welcome your thoughts and suggestions on how best to do so.

Greetings Team OCTAE,

With this morning's OFO email we enter a new phase of our Business Continuity Plan (BCP). I hope that each of you are reading this email from a place that you feel safe and secure! As noted, we will continue to provide service to our learners, systems, and stakeholders via telework through Friday, April 10. As you prepare for this period of extended telework, below are a few helpful information technology reminders that will help maximize our collective effectiveness. For your convenience, please also refer to the outline of IT telework resources in the OCIO document attached.

- Please forward your work phones to a designated telephone number where you can be directly reached. You can forward your work phone from Here. As per Jimmy's guidance, when designating the telephone number to forward, please be sure to put 9 and then your area code and telephone number. Please also ensure that your telephone number is included in your email signature line.
- Please use the Department's virtual capabilities, such as Skype, and Microsoft Teams for meetings and on-line collaborations. SharePoint and One-Drive can also support virtual collaborations.
- Please, as much as possible, defer to virtual options when disseminating materials or other items that may require printing, as there will be limited persons in the office to assist with printing and mailing items.

I know that many of you have received questions from state leaders and others regarding the formula and discretionary grants we manage. I would ask that you share those questions with your direct supervisor and Division director so that we can maintain consistency of responses across OCTAE and Department as necessary. Sharon, Cheryl and Braden are working with other leaders across the Department to update a shared guidance document for grant recipients that will be going through clearance later today.

You should have already received an invitation to virtual, weekly OCTAE All Staff Meetings. These meetings will provide a place and space for updates and Q & A as we journey together through the next few weeks.

Thank you for your flexibility and continued commitment to each other and the learners we serve. Richard Smith (It is good to officially welcome him back to OCTAE!), Casey and I plan to be in the office this week. Please reach out if there is anything you need.

Importance: High

Distribution List: All ED Employees

Dear ED Family,

Your health and safety are of the utmost importance to me. Your families, communities and all our nation's students depend on you and the work you do here at the U.S. Department of Education. During this unprecedented time, in order to keep our workforce healthy, and so that we can continue to serve students, I am directing everyone who is in a position that is deemed telework eligible to begin telework immediately. This directive is in accordance with the new CDC and OMB guidance issued yesterday and is in the best interests of our federal workforce.

All Department telework eligible employees should begin teleworking to the extent possible, through Friday, April 10. This timing will be assessed continually, and we will inform you of any changes. Please coordinate with your supervisor if you are in a telework-eligible position.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Employees who are in telework eligible positions, but not telework ready, must come into the office to gather their government-furnished equipment and other items that may be needed for them to telework. To the maximum extent possible, supervisors are to identify opportunities to shift work assignments of staff who are currently in non-telework-eligible positions to telework- eligible status by identifying portable work for them to perform.

By taking these social distancing measures, we hope to reduce the risk for everyone while continuing ED's operations and the accomplishment of ED's mission.

Additional Flexibilities

We recognize that the closing of local schools may present challenges for those of you with children at home and that, as a result, you may not be able to work your normal schedule. However, ED's Telework Program permits telework eligible employees to telework with children and/or elders at their approved alternate work locations provided employees account for work and non-work hours (i.e., time spent providing care or carrying out other personal responsibilities) and take appropriate leave to account for time spent away from normal work-related duties due to dependent care. Employees should work with their supervisors regarding their specific circumstances. Information on emergency backup care can be found at Worklife4You.com or you can call (800) 222-0364.

Supervisors may also allow staff to temporarily use different work schedules that allow for greater flexibility in the performance of their duties.

High Risk Staff

We recognize that there may be staff who are in positions that are not telework eligible but are at a higher risk for serious complications from COVID-19. Vulnerable populations include older adults and individuals who have chronic health conditions, such as high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, lung disease, or compromised immune systems. Currently, individuals who are at high risk need to take additional measure to protect themselves.

Weather and safety leave may be granted for a "condition that prevents the employee or group of employees from safely traveling to or performing work at an approved location." Please work with your supervisor if you fall in this category.

Health and Safety

Please continue to follow the CDC guidance about COVID-19 to prevent illness and recognize symptoms. If you are sick, stay home, or go home immediately if you are at work, and call your healthcare provider for medical advice.

Contacts

Thank you for your continued dedication to ED's mission. If you have a specific safety question or concern please contact the Department's Safety Officer, Curtis Wolridge at Curtis.Wolridge@ed.gov or (202) 401-1301.

If your office needs guidance related to workplace flexibilities, please email benefitsandwork/life@ed.gov.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

If you have general questions regarding COVID-19 and agency operations, please email Employee_Communications@ed.gov.

Thanks Scott,
Will you please add the March 19-20 rural community college convening. It was supposed to be in Denver at the Community college of Denver. There were 80 attendees.
And the OCT MOA conference in Florida May 5-8 doesn't look like it's on the list yet.

I don't know if it belongs on our list, but we're a partner with Commerce for SelectUSA June 1-3.

CONFERENCES. In follow-up to the Coronavirus Working Group call this morning, I am developing a complete inventory of certain (see below) upcoming conferences for the balance of March and for all of April.

In that vein, please review the attached spreadsheet of conferences and let me know of (1) any other conferences for that time period that your office is sponsoring or cosponsoring with others that does not appear on the spreadsheet (and please also include the details indicated by the headings on the columns in the spreadsheet); and (2) any other conferences for that time period where a third party is conducting a conference for your office and that is not captured by # 1 above (and please also include the details indicated by the headings on the columns in the spreadsheet). I think the spreadsheet is fairly complete, but I want to be sure.

Please provide the information no later than 2:00 PM, Sunday, March 15, and please feel free to reach out to me should you have any questions (b)(6) This will be an item of discussion early Monday morning when the Working Group meets again.

SUMMER PROGRAMS. Summer programs are another item of follow-up from the Working Group from the morning call. The issue of summer programs arose in the context of whether they should continue to go forward and what communications would be prudent for us to get to the field. As above, we are seeking an inventory of summer programs—those that we run or grantees operate, and those that contractors operate where we have involvement. Examples of summer programs for the purpose of this email: Foreign language and Area Studies program (summer fellowships), https://www2.ed.gov/programs/iegpsflasf/index.html and 21st Century Community Learning Centers (summer activities), https://www2.ed.gov/programs/21stcclc/index.html

For summer programs, all I need is the name of the program and then a sentence or two about what happens during the summer, when the program starts, and its approximate duration.

Please provide the information by no later than 2:00 PM on Sunday, March 15.

Please let me know if questions, (b)(6)

Many thanks.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Members of the OCTAE family,

Thank you for sharing with your supervisors and me your questions and concerns related to this evolving situation. Please know that OCATE's leadership team is working to answer those questions and respond to our collective needs as expeditiously as possible.

As Deputy Secretary Zais noted, OCTAE has updated our Continuity of Operation Plan (COOP). If we need to activate it, please know that you will receive notification both through Send Word Now and the OCTAE call tree to ensure that everyone is reached with the relevant information.

As we move through the next few days and weeks, I would ask everyone's assistance in keeping the 11th floor as clean as possible. The department has asked the GSA cleaning crew to make sure that the shared space is clean and the hand sanitizer dispensers are full. Please let Trina know when one becomes empty so that it can be refilled as soon as possible.

Please note that our cleaning agreement does not include wiping our office surfaces or conference room tables. Trina and her team are working to order supplies to keep in each meeting room but due to lack of availability, those supplies will not arrive for a few weeks. In the meantime, OCTAE's leadership team has volunteered to bring in disinfecting wipes to put in each meeting room so that the tables can be wiped down daily or as needed. My hope is that each of us will keep our offices, and most importantly, our shared spaces (meeting rooms, pantries and printers) as clean as possible.

In addition, I wanted to reinforce a couple of items from the Deputy Secretary's Wednesday email.

1. Be telework ready. Take your computer home each evening.
2. Visit with your supervisor relative to upcoming conferences and travel.
3. Discuss with your supervisor the use of episodic Telework in cases where it may be unadvisable for you to report to the workplace.

Given the closure of schools across the DMV, I anticipate that there will be additional guidance coming out shortly.

One final thought. Uncertain times are the most critical time to let our values shine. To help us all get through this situation, remember to: put people first, respect those around you, seek excellence and collaboration, and remain committed to the purpose that brings us together.

Subject: Coronavirus/COVID-19 Staff Update

The following provides updated information regarding matters related to the Department of Education's (ED's) COVID-19 response along with health and wellness actions you can take.

ED's leadership team is committed to keeping you updated and informed as we work toward implementing the best solutions to protect the health and safety of our workforce and move forward with carrying out the important work of fostering educational excellence and ensuring equal access.

Here's what ED is doing

In addition to working closely with the Office of Management and Budget, the Office of Personnel Management, and other Federal partner agencies to implement best practices and ensure that we have timely, accurate, useful information to share with you, we have taken several internal actions since our last update to you, including the following:

- We have coordinated with offices on updating their Business Continuity Plans to ensure that staff are prepared to continue essential services should the Department need to activate its Continuity of Operations Plan.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- We are working with the General Services Administration (GSA) and their supply vendors to make sure that offices are as clean as possible, hand sanitizer is readily available in all ED facilities, and that informative posters on protecting yourself from the virus are on available and on display in all ED facilities.

- We are reminding all supervisors that the current Telework Policy provides authority for the use of episodic Telework in cases where it may be unadvisable for the employee to report to the workplace. Examples include employees with a potentially communicable illness that does not impact their ability to carry out their duties or where they need to care for family members who are ill, but still have hours where they are not providing care and are available to work remotely. Employees on 4-10 alternate work schedules can participate in episodic telework if they are on an episodic telework agreement.

- We are working with Office Heads on reviewing upcoming conferences and travel schedules and identifying opportunities to host electronic forums where it makes sense. More information will be forthcoming on this topic.

What You Can Do

Employees can take these actions to maintain situational awareness and prepare for office closures as a result of the virus.

1. Stay Abreast of Federal Guidance.
    a. The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) released updated COVID-19 guidance for Federal employees which includes a list of Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) - https://www.opm.gov/policy-data-oversight/covid-19/

    b. Continue to monitor the Center for Disease Control website at: CDC.gov/covid19

2. Be Telework Ready. Employees eligible to telework, but who do not have a Telework Agreement should submit a request for situational purposes (https://share.ed.gov/teams/employeeservices/HRServices/Teleworkportal/SitePages/Home.aspx). Please complete the Telework for Government Employees training in FedTalent.

Effective immediately, take your laptop home nightly to ensure you can work from an alternate location (e.g., ensure you know how to connect to the network through the VPN) if and/or when necessary. Please note that in a COOP situation, all employees in Telework eligible positions will be required to work.

Again, first-line supervisors have authority to approve episodic telework on a case-by-case basis, but you must be ready and prepared should you need to work remotely.

3. Business Travel.At this time, mission critical travel can continue at the discretion of Principal Operating Component (POC) leadership - decisions will be based on mission needs, location of travel, and specific risk factors for employees. Personal travel, of course, is at your discretion. We encourage you to research your destinations and travel related information to determine if there is any mandatory, or recommended, self-monitoring or assessment required upon your return. Please also inform your supervisors of any planned personal travel, as it is important for ongoing communication to occur.

4. Make Smart Decisions. We continue to strongly encourage everyday disease prevention strategies in the workplace and staying up to date on COVID-19 guidance. The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) has updated its fact sheet on the coronavirus/COVID-19 and steps to protect yourself (CDC fact sheet). This includes: washing your hands often with soap and water; using an alcohol-based hand sanitizer containing at least 60% alcohol if soap and water are not available; avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth with unwashed hands; avoid close contact with people who are sick; and social distancing (i.e., avoid large crowds, mass gatherings, etc.) when possible.

Employees feeling sick should request approval for leave from their supervisor and contact their healthcare provider. If employees begin feeling sick at work, please request leave with your supervisor and contact your healthcare provider.

5. Know Your Risk Level. While the risk to average Americans remains low, and most cases will be mild, seniors and persons with underlying health conditions may need to take additional precautions:

   - Older adults and people with severe underlying health conditions should be taking specific steps to limit their risk – avoiding contact with others who are sick, washing hands often, paying attention to symptoms, avoiding crowds and places where people gather together in groups, especially in poorly ventilated spaces. Also, supervisors have the authority to approve episodic telework, as needed.

ED is monitoring this evolving situation closely to ensure the safety of our employees and continuity of operations. Please know that we will be monitoring news and updates from local, State, and other Federal offices and are committed to sharing as much information as quickly as possible. And while we do our part to keep you informed, we encourage all of you to stay on top of your local news for information on any school or office building closures, or air travel disruption in your immediate area.

Thank you for your continued dedication to ED's mission. If you have a specific safety question or concern please contact the Department's Safety Officer, Curtis Wolridge by email at Curtis.Wolridge@ed.gov or by telephone at (202) 401-1301.

If your office needs guidance related to workplace flexibilities, please emailbenefitsandwork/life@ed.gov.

If you have a general question regarding COVID-19 and agency operations, please send your inquiry toEmployee_Communications@ed.gov.

The federal government has a strong and resilient workforce. We will get through this together.

Subject: Fwd: Coronavirus/COVID-19 Staff Update

Hey Leadership Team,

Here is a draft of an email I would like to send to all of the OCATE team later today. Please review and let me know if you have any suggestions for improvement.

Members of the OCTAE family,

Thank you for sharing with your supervisors and me your questions and concerns related to this evolving situation. Please know that OCATE's leadership team is working to answer those questions and respond to our collective needs as expeditiously as possible.

As Deputy Secretary Zais noted, OCATE has updated our Continuity of Operation Plan. If we need to activate it, please know that you will receive notification both through Send Word Now and the OCTAE call tree to ensure that everyone is reached with the relevant information.

As we move through the next few days and weeks, I would ask everyone's assistance in keeping the 11th floor as clean as possible. The department has asked the GSA cleaning crew to make sure that the shared space is clean and the hand sanitizer dispensers are full. Please let Trina know when one becomes empty so that it can be refilled as soon as possible.

Please note that our cleaning agreement does not include wiping our office surfaces or conference room tables. Trina and her team are working to order supplied to keep in each meeting room but due to lack of availability, those supplies will not arrive for a few weeks. In the meantime, OCTAE's leadership team has volunteered to bring in disinfecting wipes to put in each meeting room so that the tables can be wiped down daily or as needed. My hope is that each of us will keep our offices, and most importantly, our shared spaces (meeting rooms, pantries and printers) as clean as possible.

In addition, I wanted to reinforce a couple of items from the Deputy Secretary's email.

1. Be telework ready. Take your computer home each evening.
2. Visit with your supervisor relative to upcoming conferences and travel.
3. Discuss with your supervisor the use of episodic Telework in cases where it may be unadvisable for you to report to the workplace.

One final thought. Uncertain times are the most critical time to let our values shine. To help us all get through this situation, remember to: put people first, respect those around you, seek excellence and collaboration, and remain committed to the purpose that brings us together.

Reach out if you have any questions.

Scott

Subject: Coronavirus/COVID-19 Staff Update

The following provides updated information regarding matters related to the Department of Education's (ED's) COVID-19 response along with health and wellness actions you can take.

ED's leadership team is committed to keeping you updated and informed as we work toward implementing the best solutions to protect the health and safety of our workforce and move forward with carrying out the important work of fostering educational excellence and ensuring equal access.

Here's what ED is doing

In addition to working closely with the Office of Management and Budget, the Office of Personnel Management, and other Federal partner agencies to implement best practices and ensure that we have timely, accurate, useful information to share with you, we have taken several internal actions since our last update to you, including the following:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- We have coordinated with offices on updating their Business Continuity Plans to ensure that staff are prepared to continue essential services should the Department need to activate its Continuity of Operations Plan.

- We are working with the General Services Administration (GSA) and their supply vendors to make sure that offices are as clean as possible, hand sanitizer is readily available in all ED facilities, and that informative posters on protecting yourself from the virus are on available and on display in all ED facilities.

- We are reminding all supervisors that the current Telework Policy provides authority for the use of episodic Telework in cases where it may be unadvisable for the employee to report to the workplace. Examples include employees with a potentially communicable illness that does not impact their ability to carry out their duties or where they need to care for family members who are ill, but still have hours where they are not providing care and are available to work remotely. Employees on 4-10 alternate work schedules can participate in episodic telework if they are on an episodic telework agreement.

- We are working with Office Heads on reviewing upcoming conferences and travel schedules and identifying opportunities to host electronic forums where it makes sense. More information will be forthcoming on this topic.

What You Can Do

Employees can take these actions to maintain situational awareness and prepare for office closures as a result of the virus.

1. Stay Abreast of Federal Guidance.
   a. The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) released updated COVID-19 guidance for Federal employees which includes a list of Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) - https://www.opm.gov/policy-data-oversight/covid-19/

   b. Continue to monitor the Center for Disease Control website at: CDC.gov/covid19

2. Be Telework Ready. Employees eligible to telework, but who do not have a Telework Agreement should submit a request for situational purposes (https://share.ed.gov/teams/employeeservices/HRServices/Teleworkportal/SitePages/Home.aspx). Please complete the Telework for Government Employees training in FedTalent.

Effective immediately, take your laptop home nightly to ensure you can work from an alternate location (e.g., ensure you know how to connect to the network through the VPN) if and/or when necessary. Please note that in a COOP situation, all employees in Telework eligible positions will be required to work.

Again, first-line supervisors have authority to approve episodic telework on a case-by-case basis, but you must be ready and prepared should you need to work remotely.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3. Business Travel.At this time, mission critical travel can continue at the discretion of Principal Operating Component (POC) leadership - decisions will be based on mission needs, location of travel, and specific risk factors for employees. Personal travel, of course, is at your discretion. We encourage you to research your destinations and travel related information to determine if there is any mandatory, or recommended, self-monitoring or assessment required upon your return. Please also inform your supervisors of any planned personal travel, as it is important for ongoing communication to occur.

4. Make Smart Decisions. We continue to strongly encourage everyday disease prevention strategies in the workplace and staying up to date on COVID-19 guidance. The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) has updated its fact sheet on the coronavirus/COVID-19 and steps to protect yourself (CDC fact sheet). This includes: washing your hands often with soap and water; using an alcohol-based hand sanitizer containing at least 60% alcohol if soap and water are not available; avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth with unwashed hands; avoid close contact with people who are sick; and social distancing (i.e., avoid large crowds, mass gatherings, etc.) when possible.

Employees feeling sick should request approval for leave from their supervisor and contact their healthcare provider. If employees begin feeling sick at work, please request leave with your supervisor and contact your healthcare provider.

5. Know Your Risk Level. While the risk to average Americans remains low, and most cases will be mild, seniors and persons with underlying health conditions may need to take additional precautions:

   - Older adults and people with severe underlying health conditions should be taking specific steps to limit their risk – avoiding contact with others who are sick, washing hands often, paying attention to symptoms, avoiding crowds and places where people gather together in groups, especially in poorly ventilated spaces. Also, supervisors have the authority to approve episodic telework, as needed.

ED is monitoring this evolving situation closely to ensure the safety of our employees and continuity of operations. Please know that we will be monitoring news and updates from local, State, and other Federal offices and are committed to sharing as much information as quickly as possible. And while we do our part to keep you informed, we encourage all of you to stay on top of your local news for information on any school or office building closures, or air travel disruption in your immediate area.

Thank you for your continued dedication to ED's mission. If you have a specific safety question or concern please contact the Department's Safety Officer, Curtis Wolridge by email at Curtis.Wolridge@ed.gov or by telephone at (202) 401-1301.

If your office needs guidance related to workplace flexibilities, please emailbenefitsandwork/life@ed.gov.

If you have a general question regarding COVID-19 and agency operations, please send your inquiry toEmployee_Communications@ed.gov.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
Employee Communications

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Dear colleagues,

In order to ensure that the Department is providing clear, accurate and consistent communications to the community, the Department is instituting a new process for the intake of higher education coronavirus related questions that will be managed by the Office of Postsecondary Education (OPE). Employees are directed NOT to provide substantive responses to any coronavirus related questions until the question has been logged into our system, and an answer has been drafted and vetted by the appropriate staff. The only exception is if you are simply forwarding coronavirus communication that has already been posted by the Department. It is critical that all employees abide by these instructions, so the Department can effectively and consistently manage these issues. To the extent possible, OPE would like to provide answers to inquiries on these matters within 48 hours. Please follow the following steps after receiving a coronavirus related question:

Instructions for intake of coronavirus related questions:

1. When an employee receives a coronavirus related question that has not been addressed in previous communication posted by the Department, they should respond to the inquiring party acknowledging receipt of the question and informing them that the Department will respond as soon as possible. Please note that if it's unclear whether the question has been addressed by previous Department communication, employees should err on the side of sending the inquiry up the chain.
2. The employee should email the inquiry to their first line supervisor.
3. The first line supervisor should then forward the inquiry to Shaina Hilsey (Shaina.hilsey@ed.gov) and Jack Cox (jack.cox@ed.gov) who work within OPE, and copy leadership from their POC. Supervisors are encouraged to develop a suggested response to the inquiry, if practical. However, they should forward the question to Ms. Hilsey and Mr. Cox before developing the response and should indicate in the email to them if they plan to develop a response or would recommend another staff person develop a response. All draft responses should be forwarded to Shaina and Jack BEFORE the response is published or given to the source of the question or inquiry. Other POCs are permitted to develop alternative internal POC procedures at the discretion of their leaders, however, OPE would encourage that such processes ensure that we are notified as quickly as possible after an inquiry has been received.
4. Shaina and Jack will log all inquiries into our data base, then work with relevant subject matter experts and senior leadership in developing a response. They will then share the approved response with the relevant supervisors, who can then direct the responses to the individual source of the inquiry, and with OLCA and the Departmental Communication (OCO) site that is being established for these specific purposes.

Instructions for questions that you have already received

Please send all communications you have already received related the Coronavirus using the instructions above. If an employee has already responded to the inquiry, please attach the email that you sent to the inquiring party.

INTERNAL FSA PROCESS

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FSA Instructions for intake of coronavirus-related questions that call for policy judgments or interpretations from the financial aid community:

1. When an FSA employee receives a coronavirus-related question from the financial aid community, that has not been addressed in previous communication posted by the Department, the FSA employee should respond to the inquiring party acknowledging receipt of the question and informing them that the Department will respond as soon as possible. Please note that if it's unclear whether the question has been addressed by previous Department communications, FSA employees will follow the process outlined below.
2. The FSA employee will email the inquiry to
- their first line supervisor,
- copy their deputy chief operating officer (COO), and
- send the email to the following mailbox – federalstudentaid@ed.gov.

This mailbox will be monitored by FSA's Strategic Communications team (Strat Comms). This team will identify a subject matter expert(s) for each question(s), only when appropriate. The SME may be asked to draft a proposed response for the Office of Postsecondary Education's (OPE) review.
3. Strat Comms will forward immediately the initial inquiry to OPE, including the identified SME, and whether the SME is drafting a proposed response. In the event a draft response is provided to Strat Comms by the SME, Strat Comms will forward the proposed response to OPE for review.
4. For all FSA inquiries, OPE will log them and work with relevant SMEs, which may be identified by Strat Comms, and senior leadership in developing a final response. OPE will then email federalstudentaid@ed.gov and provide the approved response.
5. Strat Comms is responsible to provide the approved response to the original FSA employee who initiated the inquiry, their first-line supervisor, and their deputy COO.
6. The FSA employee who initiated the inquiry is responsible to provide the approved response to the requestor.

Dear Scott,

We are so grateful for your willingness to take part in our world-class program for our 2020 ASU+GSV Summit. After much consultation with our partners at the Hyatt and other key stakeholders, we have concluded that the best option to protect our community and to have a truly productive convening is to postpone the ASU+GSV Summit to Tuesday, September 29th - Thursday, October 1st in San Diego when we assume that the Coronavirus will have abated.

We will be sending an announcement to the entire ASU+GSV community in the next few hours, but wanted to share this information with our program participants first to answer any questions you may have.

We appreciate your patience and support as we have faced the very serious Coronavirus issues and their impact on the ASU+GSV Summit and its community. We hope that you will be able to participate with the new dates and will be reaching out to confirm shortly. We recognize everyone's busy schedules and are looking forward to seeing you share your insights and expertise on our stage.

We cannot wait to see this world-class program live in a few months. Please reach out to one of us or any other members of the team with thoughts and comments.

All the best,

Deborah, Michael and Dana

Hello, Trina! I surely hope you are well! This email is most disturbing, and I have been trying to figure out what my next steps will be in light of this information. Is it possible for leadership to meet with staff around this issue…with all team members-better, a Skype meeting for Q&A. It seems that agencies/offices may have some discretion around how these items are handled, and it would be excellent to determine what flexibilities are available for ED, in light of the message below.

I am certainly a woman of faith, and I am also being watchful and alert. I have a niece with stage 4 cancer, who I am responsible, along with her mother and my family, of taking care of on a daily basis. Her white blood cell count is extremely low due to the chemo and other treatments for her cancer—she cannot afford to even catch a serious cold. Her employer, at the Smithsonian Institute, has taken every precaution to keep her safe. I feel I must do the same.

It seems that we are being put in a position to take leave instead of being offered telework in such situations—if there are certain flexibilities, then I would like to know what they are and how to take advantage of them. The contractor in question could have travelled to multiple buildings for meetings, lunch, etc., and, therefore, like the traveling salesman, we have not an idea of how many people could have been impacted, especially since we have not idea of the exact spread-cause of the virus.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Thank you for your attention to this matter—please, feel free to share with others who could help us figure out next steps, especially Scott, who's messages and emails have been of great care and concern for our health and safety, and I greatly appreciate him for his "proactive approach" to taking care of his team!

Thank you!

Dear FSA Family,

I am writing you at this late hour because I was recently informed that a contracted employee came in contact with an individual who has tested positive for COVID-19, commonly known as coronavirus. The contractor worked in Union Center Plaza (UCP) from Monday, Feb. 24 through Friday, March 6, and now, has developed flu-like symptoms.

This evening, the contractor went to be tested for COVID-19. As we await those test results, we are aggressively researching the contractor's movements throughout UCP and the surrounding area and contacting specific individuals who we know interacted with the contractor.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

As we continue to seek answers to this rapidly developing situation, I am putting your health and safety first. Therefore, out of an abundance of caution, I am authorizing UCP-based employees or anyone from a regional office who worked in UCP during the timeframe noted above to take unscheduled telework on Tuesday, March 10. At my request, the deputy chief operating officers have initiated calls to all employees to provide the information in this email.

I will continue to provide you with updates on this situation as I receive them. If you have questions, please contact your deputy chief operating officer.

Respectfully,

Rosemary,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In the weekly update circulated by the Department of Ed, they had a brief blurb about the National Campaign.

1) Wanted to alert you so that they don't get ahead of Ivanka's launch on the 16th.
2) Also call out that they described the campaign using the old messaging which was driving "post secondary education and training alternatives to a four-year degree". Leaving aside that only 10.1% of attendees at public institutions receive a Bachelor's degree within 4-years, the higher education and states in the AWPAB are opposed to messaging that describes the campaign as an alternative rather than some version of additional pathways. After WGU and Indiana had the same reaction to the draft website, Wes was good enough to suggest some language that was consistent with our goals, without creating the conflict. We thought the language was helpful. The edit will not affect the video, and is just an edit to the website and some of the other creative. The edit will hold the education and state AWPAB support while driving the additional pathways.

His Suggested website language was something like "the old rules say there's only one path to career success. But today, there are new rules. There are many pathways to where you want to go — [and then it lists are normal set of pathways]

The old website language was The old rules may no longer apply. Going to a university with the goal of getting an office job isn't for everyone. Many pathways, like community college . . .

COVID-19 INFORMATION

The Department recently launched a COVID-19 (Coronavirus) information and resources web page for schools and school personnel. This page, which will be regularly updated, features the most current information on COVID-19 (primarily from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [CDC]), as well as guidance and resources for everyday disease prevention strategies. Any questions for the Department may be directed to COVID-19@ed.gov.

ON THE ROAD AGAIN

Last week, Secretary DeVos traveled to Tennessee to highlight the Administration's Education Freedom Scholarships proposal. The visit was a follow-up to her April 2019 roundtable discussion with Governor Bill Lee and more than 30 families, educators, stakeholders, and elected officials at the State Capitol concerning the policy proposal. While in the state, in celebration of Career and Technical Education (CTE) Month, she also toured Tennessee College of Applied Technology (TCAT) Nashville, which is strategically investing federal Perkins V funding in students and their futures (CTE visit video).

About the same time, the Secretary shared via Twitter that surveys are showing bipartisan support for education freedom policies, especially "among families with the most at stake," and directed followers to an op-ed by former New Mexico Secretary of Education Christopher Ruszkowski expounding upon the data.

Meanwhile, Deputy Secretary Mitchell Zais traveled to the Texas, stopping by Texas Wesleyan University in Fort Worth and Blanson CTE High School in Houston; Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary for Elementary and Secondary Education Aimee Viana visited Liberty High School in Bealeton, Virginia, witnessing multiple CTE offerings; Director of Special Education Programs Laurie VanderPloeg traveled to Illinois for a training conference and toured an elementary school and an early learning center in Springfield; and Assistant Secretary for Career, Technical, and Adult Education Scott Stump visited Mill Run Elementary School in Ashburn, Virginia, observing teacher cadets from nearby Briar Woods High School provide classroom instruction.

BETTER SERVING BORROWERS

On February 24, the Department's Office of Federal Student Aid (FSA) announced transformative upgrades to StudentAid.gov. The updated web site now features new tools, providing students with detailed information about the grants and loans they have received and guiding them to a personalized recommendation for a loan repayment plan. FSA also launched a pilot that allows a subset of borrowers, for the first time ever, to make loan repayments directly on StudentAid.gov (press release and blog post).

These updates complement the President's budget request, which includes calls to simplify student loan types, amounts, and repayment options and provide customers with access to an online portal with tailored information to help them easily understand their options and make informed decisions throughout the financial aid lifecycle.

The Aid Summary feature allows borrowers to see specific information for each grant and loan they have received, including type, date received, repayment plan, and interest rate. Borrowers can use this tool to track their remaining eligibility for federal Pell Grants and Direct Loans. They will also be able to see their progress toward repaying their loans, receive alerts about their account, and track the number of qualifying payments they have made toward Public Service Loan Forgiveness.

The Loan Simulator helps borrowers chart a course to successful repayment by allowing them to compare options. The tool combines information entered by a customer, like earnings and family composition, with loan data provided by FSA to develop a personalized repayment strategy. Borrowers can use this tool to compare repayment plans and test-drive which plan provides them with the lowest monthly payment, fastest payoff term, or lowest amount paid overall.

Also, borrowers whose federally managed loans are in repayment and assigned to either Great Lakes or Nelnet can participate in the Make a Payment pilot. This pilot program allows borrowers to schedule upcoming monthly payments right on StudentAid.gov. Eventually, all Direct Loan customers will be able to repay their loans through StudentAid.gov.

Separately, FSA launched the myFSApay pilot program for students as the University of California-Riverside, the University of Georgia, Purdue University, and Jackson State University. This pilot allows students at the participating schools to choose to receive their financial aid refunds -- after expenses, such as tuition, fees, and room and board, are paid -- on a pre-paid card with a linked online account accessible through the myStudentAid mobile application. There is no cost for students or schools to participate in the pilot, and schools will be added throughout 2020 (press release).

COMBATTING SEXUAL ASSAULT

On successive days last month, Secretary DeVos announced major actions regarding Title IX protections.

First, on February 26, the Secretary announced a new Title IX enforcement initiative, led by the Department's Office for Civil Rights (OCR), to combat the troubling rise of sexual assault in K-12 public schools. This effort will enhance OCR's enforcement of Title IX in elementary and secondary public schools and strengthen the ability of schools to respond to all incidents of sexual harassment and assault. It also builds on the Department's work to implement the "Pass the Trash" provisions of the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA), which prohibits schools from simply moving employees who have committed acts of sexual misconduct.

OCR's initiative will include the following activities:

- Compliance Reviews. OCR will conduct nationwide compliance reviews in schools and districts, examining how sexual assault cases are handled under Title IX, including sexual incidents involving teachers and school staff. OCR will work with districts to identify and correct compliance concerns.
- Public Awareness and Support. OCR will focus on raising awareness of the issue of sexual assault in schools, including making information available to educators, school leaders, parents, and families.
- Data Quality Reviews. OCR will conduct data quality reviews (DQRs) of the sexual assault/offenses data submitted by districts through the Civil Rights Data Collection (CRDC). As part of conducting DQRs, OCR will partner with the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) and work with districts to ensure that incidents of sexual assault/offenses are being accurately recorded and reported under the CRDC.
- Proposed CRDC Data Collection. OCR has proposed, for the 2019-20 data collection, to collect more detailed data on sexual assault. The proposed data collection includes incidents perpetrated by school staff or personnel. If adopted, the inclusion of this data would make the CRDC collection the first universal collection to gather such data systemically by school.

Then, on February 27, the Secretary announced that OCR will require the University of Southern California (USC) to make sweeping changes to its Title IX procedures after finding that the institution failed to protect students from Dr. George Tyndall, formerly employed as a gynecologist at USC's student health center, since as far back as 1989. As a result of the systemic failures at USC, the Department is requiring the institution to overhaul its Title IX processes, conduct a formal review of current and former employees to determine if they responded appropriately to notice of possible sexual discrimination, and permit OCR to monitor its compliance for three years. The Resolution Agreement also requires USC to make reasonable efforts to contact the nine patients who complained of misconduct by Dr. Tyndall and notify current and former students, and current and former institution employees who may have interacted with him, to offer to remedy the harm done. Remedies may include academic accommodations and counseling.

Under the leadership of Secretary DeVos, OCR has moved aggressively to investigate schools that fail to protect students from sexual misconduct and bring them into compliance with civil rights laws. Notably, the Department has required sweeping reforms to protect students in Chicago Public Schools and at Michigan State University.

FROM THE FEDERAL REGISTER

Just in case you are not visiting the Federal Register on a daily basis, below are a few items of note.

A February 26 notice announces the existence and location of the Department's Guidance Portal. This portal is designed, pursuant to Executive Order 13891, to make it easy for education stakeholders and other interested parties to find the agency's guidance documents. The Department will not retain in effect any guidance document without including it in this portal, nor shall it, in the future, issue guidance without including it in the portal.

A March 2 notice announces opportunities for individuals to participate in the Department's peer review process for reviewing applications for competitive grant funding. The notice spotlights specific needs of the Office of Elementary and Secondary Education (OESE), the Office of Postsecondary Education (OPE), and the Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services (OSERS). The Department will accept submissions on a rolling basis, although requests should be submitted at least four weeks prior to a program's application deadline. (Note: The Department has also issued a toolkit titled "How to be considered as a Peer Reviewer for programs administered by the Department of Education.")

A March 4 notice provides information to parties on submitting written comments for accrediting agencies currently undergoing review for purposes of recognition by the Secretary of Education.

ODDS AND ENDS

- The Ad Council is set to launch a national advertising promotion for postsecondary education and training alternatives to the four-year college degree.
- During Statistics in Schools Week (March 2-6), classrooms have been taking part in engaging activities that underscore the importance of responding to the 2020 Census and counting everyone, especially children. At the end of the week, teachers will distribute a take-home flyer to every student. This flyer, available in English and 12 other languages, is intended to help the adults in students' homes on the Census. (Note: The material on the Census Bureau's web site is being provided for convenience as a potential resource for schools and educators. It was not developed by the Department, and the Department does not control or guarantee the accuracy, relevance, timeliness, or completeness of the information. Furthermore, the inclusion of any hyperlinks and the content presented is not intended to convey their importance, nor is it intended to endorse any views expressed or products or services offered. The Department does not control, direct, or encourage any information in a curriculum. The use of Census Bureau materials or other materials by a school or educator is strictly a state and local matter.)
- The Department's latest "Annual Report to Congress on the Implementation of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA)" shows the number of students receiving special education services is on the rise: more than 6.1 million students across the U.S. ages 6 to 21, or 9.2% of all students, were served under IDEA in 2017, up from 8.6% in 2008.
- On February 25, OSERS Acting Assistant Secretary Mark Schultz moderated a panel discussion of transition services experiences, which has been added to the resources (including Success Stories) on the Vocational Rehabilitation 100th anniversary page.
- New from NCES: information about state-level revenues and expenditures in the nation's public K-12 education system for the 2016-17 school year and Fast Facts on Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs).

QUOTE TO NOTE

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

"I think the President would respect any decisions that are made at the state and local level…. Those are decisions that governors, in consultation with local health officials, will make as they deem that necessary. But, other than in areas where there are individuals that have been infected with the Coronavirus, people need to understand that, for the average American, the risk does remain low. We're ready."

-- Vice President Mike Pence (3/1/20), from an interview with Chuck Todd on "Meet the Press," when asked about closing schools due to the spread of COVID-19.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Among other observations, March is Women's History Month.

The Department's Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) will livestream its "Attract, Prepare, and Retain: OSEP National Summit on Improving Effective Personnel for Children with Disabilities" on March 19 from 1 to 5 p.m. Eastern Time.

Registration is now open for the third in a series of convenings designed to help rural community colleges identify, plan, and design critical projects for federal grant applications. This convening, co-hosted by the Department and the American Association of Community Colleges, will be held March 19 and 20 at the Community College of Denver and cover the same content as past offerings in Racine, Wisconsin, and Gulfport, Mississippi.

In recognition of the 20th anniversary of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act, the Department is holding a webinar -- the second in a series during 2020 -- on March 25, from 3 to 4:15 p.m. ET, discussing anti-trafficking strategies at the state, district, and school level. The event is designed to provide school-level administrators, teachers, and instructional staff with strategies, rooted in trauma-informed and survivor-centered approaches, for preventing students from falling prey to trafficking activity.

Subject: OCATE Update

Good afternoon OCATE,

As I mentioned to many of you yesterday, when kicking off our shared State Plan (WIOA and Perkins) approval season, your health and safety are of top concern to me and every leader in OCTAE and the Department.

Please know that OCTAE has updated it's Agency Continuity of Operations Plan (COOP) to include the recommended elements necessary to protect OCTAE employees and operations from the potential risk of COVID-19 which, at this time remains low.

Today, you may have received an email from a colleague which contained personal recommendations which are not part of our COOP. According to the CDC Prevention and Treatment website, CDC does not recommend that people who are well wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19.

The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. However, as a reminder, CDC always recommends everyday preventive actions to help prevent the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoid close contact with people who are sick.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth.
- Stay home when you are sick.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Cover your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then throw the tissue in the trash.
- Clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.
- Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom; before eating; and after blowing your nose, coughing, or sneezing.
    - If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty.

As Dr. Zais noted in yesterday's email, the Department will continue to provide guidance as it becomes available from OPM and CDC. In the meantime, you and your family can stay up to date on activities and guidance to help contain and prevent the spread of COVID-19 via the links below.

Liz and Denise,

Here is the draft email that I propose sending to OCTAE in response to the prior email of the day. After visiting with Denise, I we will not plan to collect the masks from the individuals who have already received them. Please let me know what changes I need to make and additional actions I need to take.

Dear USG Colleagues:

In light of the evolving COVID-19 (coronavirus) situation, and to ensure the health and safety of everyone involved, USAID has made the difficult decision to reschedule the 2020 Global Education Conference.

We are currently exploring options for holding the conference at a later date. I will let you know as soon as a new date is identified.

Please see the attached FAQs for answers to some questions we expect you might have. In addition, you will receive an official notice later today to all participants and attendees from USAID.
While we are disappointed by this development, we know that it is the right decision. Thank you again for your understanding.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
February 4, 2020

EMBARGOED FOR RELEASE UNTIL CONCLUSION OF REMARKS

PRESIDENT DONALD J. TRUMP'S STATE OF THE UNION ADDRESS
Remarks as prepared for delivery

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

Madam Speaker, Mr. Vice President, Members of Congress, the First Lady of the United States, and my fellow citizens:

Three years ago, we launched the great American comeback. Tonight, I stand before you to share the incredible results. Jobs are booming, incomes are soaring, poverty is plummeting, crime is falling, confidence is surging, and our country is thriving and highly respected again! America's enemies are on the run, America's fortunes are on the rise, and America's future is blazing bright.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The years of economic decay are over. The days of our country being used, taken advantage of, and even scorned by other nations are long behind us. Gone too are the broken promises, jobless recoveries, tired platitudes, and constant excuses for the depletion of American wealth, power, and prestige.

In just 3 short years, we have shattered the mentality of American decline, and we have rejected the downsizing of America's destiny. We are moving forward at a pace that was unimaginable just a short time ago, and we are never going back!

I am thrilled to report to you tonight that our economy is the best it has ever been. Our military is completely rebuilt, with its power being unmatched anywhere in the world -- and it is not even close. Our borders are secure. Our families are flourishing. Our values are renewed. Our pride is restored. And for all these reasons, I say to the people of our great country, and to the Members of Congress before me: The State of our Union is stronger than ever before!

The vision I will lay out this evening demonstrates how we are building the world's most prosperous and inclusive society -- one where every citizen can join in America's unparalleled success, and where every community can take part in America's extraordinary rise.

From the instant I took office, I moved rapidly to revive the United States economy -- slashing a record number of job-killing regulations, enacting historic and record-setting tax cuts, and fighting for fair and reciprocal trade agreements. Our agenda is relentlessly pro-worker, pro-family, pro-growth, and, most of all, pro-American. We are advancing with unbridled optimism and lifting high our citizens of every race, color, religion, and creed.

Since my election, we have created 7 million new jobs -- 5 million more than Government experts projected during the previous administration.

The unemployment rate is the lowest in over half a century.

Incredibly, the average unemployment rate under my Administration is lower than any administration in the history of our country. If we had not reversed the failed economic policies of the previous administration, the world would not now be witness to America's great economic success.

The unemployment rates for African-Americans, Hispanic-Americans, and Asian-Americans have reached the lowest levels in history. African-American youth unemployment has reached an all-time low.

African-American poverty has declined to the lowest rate ever recorded.

The unemployment rate for women reached the lowest level in almost 70 years -- and last year, women filled 72 percent of all new jobs added.

The veterans' unemployment rate dropped to a record low.

The unemployment rate for disabled Americans has reached an all-time low.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Workers without a high school diploma have achieved the lowest unemployment rate recorded in United States history.

A record number of young Americans are now employed.

Under the last administration, more than 10 million people were added to the food stamp rolls. Under my Administration, 7 million Americans have come off of food stamps, and 10 million people have been lifted off of welfare.

In 8 years under the last administration, over 300,000 working-age people dropped out of the workforce. In just 3 years of my Administration, 3.5 million working-age people have joined the workforce.

Since my election, the net worth of the bottom half of wage-earners has increased by 47 percent -- 3 times faster than the increase for the top 1 percent. After decades of flat and falling incomes, wages are rising fast -- and, wonderfully, they are rising fastest for low-income workers, who have seen a 16 percent pay-increase since my election. This is a blue collar boom.

Real median household income is now at the highest level ever recorded!

Since my election, United States stock markets have soared 70 percent, adding more than $12 trillion to our Nation's wealth, transcending anything anyone believed was possible -- this, as other countries are not doing well. Consumer confidence has reached amazing new heights.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

All of those millions of people with 401(k)s and pensions are doing far better than they have ever done before with increases of 60, 70, 80, 90, and even 100 percent.

Jobs and investment are pouring into 9,000 previously-neglected neighborhoods thanks to Opportunity Zones, a plan spearheaded by Senator Tim Scott as part of our great Republican tax cuts. In other words, wealthy people and companies are pouring money into poor neighborhoods or areas that have not seen investment in many decades, creating jobs, energy, and excitement. This is the first time that these deserving communities have seen anything like this. It is all working!

Opportunity Zones are helping Americans like Army Veteran Tony Rankins from Cincinnati, Ohio. After struggling with drug addiction, Tony lost his job, his house, and his family -- he was homeless. But then Tony found a construction company that invests in Opportunity Zones. He is now a top tradesman, drug-free, reunited with his family, and he is here tonight. Tony: Keep up the great work.

Our roaring economy has, for the first time ever, given many former prisoners the ability to get a great job and a fresh start. This second chance at life is made possible because we passed landmark Criminal Justice Reform into law. Everybody said that Criminal Justice Reform could not be done, but I got it done, and the people in this room got it done.

Thanks to our bold regulatory reduction campaign, the United States has become the number one producer of oil and natural gas in the world, by far. With the tremendous progress we have made over the past 3 years, America is now energy independent, and energy jobs, like so many elements of our country, are at a record high. We are doing numbers that no one would have thought possible just 3 years ago.

Likewise, we are restoring our Nation's manufacturing might, even though predictions were that this could never be done. After losing 60,000 factories under the previous two administrations, America has now gained 12,000 new factories under my Administration with thousands upon thousands of plants and factories being planned or built. We have created over half a million new manufacturing jobs. Companies are not leaving; they are coming back. Everybody wants to be where the action is, and the United States of America is, indeed, where the action is.

One of the single biggest promises I made to the American people was to replace the disastrous NAFTA trade deal. In fact, unfair trade is perhaps the single biggest reason that I decided to run for President. Following NAFTA's adoption, our Nation lost one in four manufacturing jobs. Many politicians came and went, pledging to change or replace NAFTA -- only to do absolutely nothing. But unlike so many who came before me, I keep my promises. Six days ago, I replaced NAFTA and signed the brand new United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA) into law.

The USMCA will create nearly 100,000 new high-paying American auto jobs, and massively boost exports for our farmers, ranchers, and factory workers. It will also bring trade with Mexico and Canada to a much higher degree, but also to a much greater level of fairness and reciprocity. This is the first major trade deal in many years to earn the strong backing of America's labor unions.

I also promised our citizens that I would impose tariffs to confront China's massive theft of American jobs. Our strategy worked. Days ago, we signed the groundbreaking new agreement with China that will defend our workers, protect our intellectual property, bring billions of dollars into our treasury, and open vast new markets for products made and grown right here in the United States of America. For decades, China has taken advantage of the United States, now we have changed that but, at the same time, we have perhaps the best relationship we have ever had with China, including with President Xi. They respect what we have done because, quite frankly, they could never believe what they were able to get away with year after year, decade after decade, without someone in our country stepping up and saying: Enough. Now, we want to rebuild our country, and that is what we are doing.

As we restore American leadership throughout the world, we are once again standing up for freedom in our hemisphere. That is why my Administration reversed the failing policies of the previous administration on Cuba. We are supporting the hopes of Cubans, Nicaraguans, and Venezuelans to restore democracy. The United States is leading a 59-nation diplomatic coalition against the socialist dictator of Venezuela, Nicolás Maduro. Maduro is an illegitimate ruler, a tyrant who brutalizes his people. But Maduro's grip of tyranny will be smashed and broken. Here this evening is a man who carries with him the hopes, dreams, and aspirations of all Venezuelans. Joining us in the gallery is the true and legitimate President of Venezuela, Juan Guaidó. Mr. President, please take this message back to your homeland. All Americans are united with the Venezuelan people in their righteous struggle for freedom! Socialism destroys nations. But always remember, freedom unifies the soul.

To safeguard American Liberty, we have invested a record-breaking $2.2 trillion in the United States Military. We have purchased the finest planes, missiles, rockets, ships, and every other form of military equipment -- all made in the United States of America. We are also finally getting our allies to help pay their fair share. I have raised contributions from the other NATO members by more than $400 billion, and the number of allies meeting their minimum obligations has more than doubled.

And just weeks ago, for the first time since President Truman established the Air Force more than 70 years earlier, we created a new branch of the United States Armed Forces, the Space Force.

In the gallery tonight, we have one of the Space Force's youngest potential recruits: 13-year-old Iain Lanphier, an eighth grader from Arizona. Iain has always dreamed of going to space. He was first in his class and among the youngest at an aviation academy. He aspires to go to the Air Force Academy, and then, he has his eye on the Space Force. As Iain says, "most people look up at space, I want to look down on the world."

Sitting beside Iain tonight is his great hero. Charles McGee was born in Cleveland, Ohio, one century ago. Charles is one of the last surviving Tuskegee Airmen -- the first black fighter pilots -- and he also happens to be Iain's great-grandfather. After more than 130 combat missions in World War II, he came back to a country still struggling for Civil Rights and went on to serve America in Korea and Vietnam. On December 7th, Charles celebrated his 100th birthday. A few weeks ago, I signed a bill promoting Charles McGee to Brigadier General. And earlier today, I pinned the stars on his shoulders in the Oval Office. General McGee: Our Nation salutes you.

From the pilgrims to our Founders, from the soldiers at Valley Forge to the marchers at Selma, and from President Lincoln to the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Americans have always rejected limits on our children's future.

Members of Congress, we must never forget that the only victories that matter in Washington are victories that deliver for the American people. The people are the heart of our country, their dreams are the soul of our country, and their love is what powers and sustains our country. We must always remember that our job is to put America first!

The next step forward in building an inclusive society is making sure that every young American gets a great education and the opportunity to achieve the American Dream. Yet, for too long, countless American children have been trapped in failing government schools. To rescue these students, 18 States have created school choice in the form of Opportunity Scholarships. The programs are so popular, that tens of thousands of students remain on waiting lists. One of those students is Janiyah Davis, a fourth grader from Philadelphia. Janiyah's mom Stephanie is a single parent. She would do anything to give her daughter a better future. But last year, that future was put further out of reach when Pennsylvania's Governor vetoed legislation to expand school choice for 50,000 children.

Janiyah and Stephanie are in the gallery this evening. But there is more to their story. Janiyah, I am pleased to inform you that your long wait is over. I can proudly announce tonight that an Opportunity Scholarship has become available, it is going to you, and you will soon be heading to the school of your choice!

Now, I call on the Congress to give 1 million American children the same opportunity Janiyah has just received. Pass the Education Freedom Scholarships and Opportunity Act -- because no parent should be forced to send their child to a failing government school.

Every young person should have a safe and secure environment in which to learn and grow. For this reason, our magnificent First Lady has launched the "Be Best" initiative -- to advance a safe, healthy, supportive, and drug-free life for the next generation, online, in school, and in our communities. Thank you, Melania, for your extraordinary love and profound care for America's children.

My Administration is determined to give our citizens the opportunities they need regardless of age or background. Through our Pledge to American Workers, over 400 companies will also provide new jobs and education opportunities to almost 15 million Americans.

My Budget also contains an exciting vision for our Nation's high schools. Tonight, I ask the Congress to support our students and back my plan to offer vocational and technical education in every single high school in America.

To expand equal opportunity, I am also proud that we achieved record and permanent funding for our Nation's Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

A good life for American families also requires the most affordable, innovative, and high-quality healthcare system on Earth. Before I took office, health insurance premiums had more than doubled in just 5 years. I moved quickly to provide affordable alternatives. Our new plans are up to 60 percent less expensive. I have also made an ironclad pledge to American families: We will always protect patients with pre-existing conditions -- that is a guarantee. And we will always protect your Medicare and your Social Security.

The American patient should never be blindsided by medical bills. That is why I signed an Executive Order requiring price transparency. Many experts believe that transparency, which will go into full effect at the beginning of next year, will be even bigger than healthcare reform. It will save families massive amounts of money for substantially better care.

But as we work to improve Americans' healthcare, there are those who want to take away your healthcare, take away your doctor, and abolish private insurance entirely. One hundred thirty-two lawmakers in this room have endorsed legislation to impose a socialist takeover of our healthcare system, wiping out the private health insurance plans of 180 million Americans. To those watching at home tonight, I want you to know: We will never let socialism destroy American healthcare!

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Over 130 legislators in this chamber have endorsed legislation that would bankrupt our Nation by providing free taxpayer-funded healthcare to millions of illegal aliens, forcing taxpayers to subsidize free care for anyone in the world who unlawfully crosses our borders. These proposals would raid the Medicare benefits our seniors depend on, while acting as a powerful lure for illegal immigration. This is what is happening in California and other States -- their systems are totally out of control, costing taxpayers vast and unaffordable amounts of money. If forcing American taxpayers to provide unlimited free healthcare to illegal aliens sounds fair to you, then stand with the radical left. But if you believe that we should defend American patients and American seniors, then stand with me and pass legislation to prohibit free Government healthcare for illegal aliens!

This will be a tremendous boon to our already very-strongly guarded southern border where, as we speak, a long, tall, and very powerful wall is being built. We have now completed over 100 miles and will have over 500 miles fully completed by early next year.

My Administration is also taking on the big pharmaceutical companies. We have approved a record number of affordable generic drugs, and medicines are being approved by the FDA at a faster clip than ever before. I was pleased to announce last year that, for the first time in 51 years, the cost of prescription drugs actually went down.

And working together, the Congress can reduce drug prices substantially from current levels. I have been speaking to Senator Chuck Grassley of Iowa and others in the Congress in order to get something on drug pricing done, and done properly. I am calling for bipartisan legislation that achieves the goal of dramatically lowering prescription drug prices. Get a bill to my desk, and I will sign it into law without delay.

With unyielding commitment, we are curbing the opioid epidemic -- drug overdose deaths declined for the first time in nearly 30 years. Among the States hardest hit, Ohio is down 22 percent, Pennsylvania is down 18 percent, Wisconsin is down 10 percent -- and we will not quit until we have beaten the opioid epidemic once and for all.

Protecting Americans' health also means fighting infectious diseases. We are coordinating with the Chinese government and working closely together on the Coronavirus outbreak in China. My Administration will take all necessary steps to safeguard our citizens from this threat.

We have launched ambitious new initiatives to substantially improve care for Americans with kidney disease, Alzheimer's, and those struggling with mental health challenges. And because the Congress funded my request, we are pursuing new cures for childhood cancer, and we will eradicate the AIDS epidemic in America by the end of the decade.

Almost every American family knows the pain when a loved one is diagnosed with a serious illness. Here tonight is a special man, someone beloved by millions of Americans who just received a Stage 4 advanced cancer diagnosis. This is not good news, but what is good news is that he is the greatest fighter and winner that you will ever meet. Rush Limbaugh: Thank you for your decades of tireless devotion to our country. Rush, in recognition of all that you have done for our Nation, the millions of people a day that you speak to and inspire, and all of the incredible work that you have done for charity, I am proud to announce tonight that you will be receiving our country's highest civilian honor, the Presidential Medal of Freedom. I will now ask the First Lady of the United States to please stand and present you with the honor. Rush, Kathryn, congratulations!

As we pray for all who are sick, we know that America is constantly achieving new medical breakthroughs. In 2017, doctors at St. Luke's hospital in Kansas City delivered one of the earliest premature babies ever to survive. Born at just 21 weeks and 6 days, and weighing less than a pound, Ellie Schneider was born a fighter. Through the skill of her doctors -- and the prayers of her parents -- little Ellie kept on winning the battle for life. Today, Ellie is a strong, healthy 2-year-old girl sitting with her amazing mother Robin in the gallery. Ellie and Robin: We are so glad you are here.

Ellie reminds us that every child is a miracle of life. Thanks to modern medical wonders, 50 percent of very premature babies delivered at the hospital where Ellie was born now survive. Our goal should be to ensure that every baby has the best chance to thrive and grow just like Ellie. That is why I am asking the Congress to provide an additional $50 million to fund neo-natal research for America's youngest patients. That is also why I am calling upon the Members of Congress here tonight to pass legislation finally banning the late-term abortion of babies.

Whether we are Republican, Democrat, or Independent, surely we must all agree that every human life is a sacred gift from

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

God!

As we support America's moms and dads, I was recently proud to sign the law providing new parents in the Federal workforce paid family leave, serving as a model for the rest of the country. Now, I call on the Congress to pass the bipartisan Advancing Support for Working Families Act, extending family leave to mothers and fathers all across the Nation.

Forty million American families have an average $2,200 extra thanks to our child tax credit. I have also overseen historic funding increases for high-quality child care, enabling 17 States to serve more children, many of which have reduced or eliminated their waitlists altogether. And I sent the Congress a plan with a vision to further expand access to high-quality childcare and urge you to act immediately.

To protect the environment, days ago, I announced that the United States will join the One Trillion Trees Initiative, an ambitious effort to bring together Government and the private sector to plant new trees in America and around the world.

We must also rebuild America's infrastructure. I ask you to pass Senator Barrasso's highway bill -- to invest in new roads, bridges, and tunnels across our land.

I am also committed to ensuring that every citizen can have access to high-speed internet, including rural America.

A better tomorrow for all Americans also requires us to keep America safe. That means supporting the men and women of law enforcement at every level, including our Nation's heroic ICE officers.

Last year, our brave ICE officers arrested more than 120,000 criminal aliens charged with nearly 10,000 burglaries, 5,000 sexual assaults, 45,000 violent assaults, and 2,000 murders.

Tragically, there are many cities in America where radical politicians have chosen to provide sanctuary for these criminal illegal aliens. In Sanctuary Cities, local officials order police to release dangerous criminal aliens to prey upon the public, instead of handing them over to ICE to be safely removed.

Just 29 days ago, a criminal alien freed by the Sanctuary City of New York was charged with the brutal rape and murder of a 92-year-old woman. The killer had been previously arrested for assault, but under New York's sanctuary policies, he was set free. If the city had honored ICE's detainer request, his victim would be alive today.

The State of California passed an outrageous law declaring their whole State to be a sanctuary for criminal illegal immigrants -- with catastrophic results.

Here is just one tragic example. In December 2018, California police detained an illegal alien with five prior arrests, including convictions for robbery and assault. But as required by California's Sanctuary Law, local authorities released him.

Days later, the criminal alien went on a gruesome spree of deadly violence. He viciously shot one man going about his daily work; he approached a woman sitting in her car and shot her in the arm and the chest. He walked into a convenience store and wildly fired his weapon. He hijacked a truck and smashed into vehicles, critically injuring innocent victims. One of the victims of his bloody rampage was a 51-year-old American named Rocky Jones. Rocky was at a gas station when this vile criminal fired eight bullets at him from close range, murdering him in cold blood. Rocky left behind a devoted family, including his brothers who loved him more than anything. One of his grieving brothers is here with us tonight. Jody, would you please stand? Jody, our hearts weep for your loss -- and we will not rest until you have justice.

Senator Thom Tillis has introduced legislation to allow Americans like Jody to sue Sanctuary Cities and States when a loved one is hurt or killed as a result of these deadly policies. I ask the Congress to pass the Justice for Victims of Sanctuary Cities Act immediately. The United States of America should be a sanctuary for law-abiding Americans -- not criminal aliens!

In the last 3 years, ICE has arrested over 5,000 wicked human traffickers -- and I have signed 9 pieces of legislation to stamp out the menace of human trafficking, domestically and around the globe.

My Administration has undertaken an unprecedented effort to secure the southern border of the United States.

Before I came into office, if you showed up illegally on our southern border and were arrested, you were simply released and allowed into our country, never to be seen again. My Administration has ended Catch-and-Release. If you come illegally, you will now be promptly removed. We entered into historic cooperation agreements with the Governments of Mexico, Honduras, El Salvador, and Guatemala. As a result of our unprecedented efforts, illegal crossings are down 75 percent since May -- dropping 8 straight months in a row. And as the wall goes up, drug seizures rise, and border crossings go down.

Last year, I traveled to the border in Texas and met Chief Patrol Agent Raul Ortiz. Over the last 24 months, Agent Ortiz and his team have seized more than 200,000 pounds of poisonous narcotics, arrested more than 3,000 human smugglers, and rescued more than 2,000 migrants. Days ago, Agent Ortiz was promoted to Deputy Chief of Border Patrol -- and he joins us tonight. Chief Ortiz: Please stand -- a grateful Nation thanks you and all the heroes of Border Patrol.

To build on these historic gains, we are working on legislation to replace our outdated and randomized immigration system with one based on merit, welcoming those who follow the rules, contribute to our economy, support themselves financially, and uphold our values.

With every action, my Administration is restoring the rule of law and re-asserting the culture of American freedom. Working with Senate Majority Leader McConnell and his colleagues in the Senate, we have confirmed a record number of 187 new Federal judges to uphold our Constitution as written. This includes two brilliant new Supreme Court Justices, Neil Gorsuch, and Brett Kavanaugh.

My Administration is also defending religious liberty, and that includes the Constitutional right to pray in public schools. In America, we do not punish prayer. We do not tear down crosses. We do not ban symbols of faith. We do not muzzle preachers and pastors. In America, we celebrate faith. We cherish religion. We lift our voices in prayer, and we raise our sights to the Glory of God!

Just as we believe in the First Amendment, we also believe in another Constitutional right that is under siege all across our country. So long as I am President I will always protect your Second Amendment right to keep and bear arms.

In reaffirming our heritage as a free Nation, we must remember that America has always been a frontier nation. Now we must embrace the next frontier, America's manifest destiny in the stars. I am asking the Congress to fully fund the Artemis program to ensure that the next man and the first woman on the moon will be American astronauts -- using this as a launching pad to ensure that America is the first nation to plant its flag on Mars.

My Administration is also strongly defending our national security and combating radical Islamic terrorism. Last week, I announced a groundbreaking plan for peace between Israel and the Palestinians. Recognizing that all past attempts have failed, we must be determined and creative in order to stabilize the region and give millions of young people the change to realize a better future.

Three years ago, the barbarians of ISIS held over 20,000 square miles of territory in Iraq and Syria. Today, the ISIS territorial caliphate has been 100 percent destroyed, and the founder and leader of ISIS -- the bloodthirsty killer

Al-Baghdadi -- is dead!

We are joined this evening by Carl and Marsha Mueller. After graduating from college, their beautiful daughter Kayla became a humanitarian aid worker. Kayla once wrote, "Some people find God in church. Some people find God in nature. Some people find God in love; I find God in suffering. I've known for some time what my life's work is, using my hands as tools to relieve suffering." In 2013, while caring for suffering civilians in Syria, Kayla was kidnapped, tortured, and enslaved by ISIS, and kept as a prisoner of Al-Baghdadi himself. After more than 500 horrifying days of captivity, Al-Baghdadi murdered young Kayla. She was just 26 years old.

On the night that United States Special Forces Operators ended Al-Baghdadi's miserable life, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Mark Milley, received a call in the Situation Room. He was told that the brave men of the elite Special Forces team, that so perfectly carried out the operation, had given their mission a name -- "Task Force 8-14." It was a reference to a special day: August 14th -- Kayla's birthday. Carl and Marsha, America's warriors never forgot Kayla -- and neither will we.

Every day, America's men and women in uniform demonstrate the infinite depths of love that dwells in the human heart.

One of these American heroes was Army Staff Sergeant Christopher Hake. On his second deployment to Iraq in 2008, Sergeant Hake wrote a letter to his 1-year-old son, Gage: "I will be with you again," he wrote to Gage. "I will teach you to ride your first bike, build your first sand box, watch you play sports and see you have kids also. I love you son, take care of your mother. I am always with you. Dad." On Easter Sunday of 2008, Chris was out on patrol in Baghdad when his Bradley Fighting Vehicle was hit by a roadside bomb. That night, he made the ultimate sacrifice for our country. Sergeant Hake now rests in eternal glory in Arlington, and his wife Kelli is in the gallery tonight, joined by their son, who is now 13 years old. To Kelli and Gage: Chris will live in our hearts forever.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The terrorist responsible for killing Sergeant Hake was Qasem Soleimani, who provided the deadly roadside bomb that took Chris's life. Soleimani was the Iranian Regime's most ruthless butcher, a monster who murdered or wounded thousands of American service members in Iraq. As the world's top terrorist, Soleimani orchestrated the deaths of countless men, women, and children. He directed the December assault on United States Forces in Iraq, and was actively planning new attacks. That is why, last month, at my direction, the United States Military executed a flawless precision strike that killed Soleimani and terminated his evil reign of terror forever.

Our message to the terrorists is clear: You will never escape American justice. If you attack our citizens, you forfeit your life!

In recent months, we have seen proud Iranians raise their voices against their oppressive rulers. The Iranian regime must abandon its pursuit of nuclear weapons, stop spreading terror, death, and destruction, and start working for the good of its own people. Because of our powerful sanctions, the Iranian economy is doing very poorly. We can help them make it very good in a short period of time, but perhaps they are too proud or too foolish to ask for that help. We are here. Let's see which road they choose. It is totally up to them.

As we defend American lives, we are working to end America's wars in the Middle East.

In Afghanistan, the determination and valor of our warfighters has allowed us to make tremendous progress, and peace talks are underway. I am not looking to kill hundreds of thousands of people in Afghanistan, many of them innocent. It is also not our function to serve other nations as a law enforcement agency. These are warfighters, the best in the world, and they either want to fight to win or not fight at all. We are working to finally end America's longest war and bring our troops back home!

War places a heavy burden on our Nation's extraordinary military families, especially spouses like Amy Williams from Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and her 2 children -- 6-year-old Elliana and 3-year-old Rowan. Amy works full time, and volunteers countless hours helping other military families. For the past 7 months, she has done it all while her husband, Sergeant First Class Townsend Williams, is in Afghanistan on his fourth deployment to the Middle East. Amy's kids have not seen their father's face in many months. Amy, your family's sacrifice makes it possible for all of our families to live in safety and peace -- we thank you.

As the world bears witness tonight, America is a land of heroes. This is the place where greatness is born, where destinies are forged, and where legends come to life. This is the home of Thomas Edison and Teddy Roosevelt, of many great Generals, including Washington, Pershing, Patton, and MacArthur. This is the home of Abraham Lincoln, Frederick Douglass, Amelia Earhart, Harriet Tubman, the Wright Brothers, Neil Armstrong, and so many more. This is the country where children learn names like Wyatt Earp, Davy Crockett, and Annie Oakley. This is the place where the pilgrims landed at Plymouth and where Texas patriots made their last stand at the Alamo.

The American Nation was carved out of the vast frontier by the toughest, strongest, fiercest, and most determined men and women ever to walk the face of the Earth. Our ancestors braved the unknown; tamed the wilderness; settled the Wild West; lifted millions from poverty, disease, and hunger; vanquished tyranny and fascism; ushered the world to new heights of science and medicine; laid down the railroads, dug out canals, raised up the skyscrapers -- and, ladies and gentlemen, our ancestors built the most exceptional Republic ever to exist in all of human history. And we are making it greater than ever before!

This is our glorious and magnificent inheritance.

We are Americans. We are the pioneers. We are the pathfinders. We settled the new world, we built the modern world, and we changed history forever by embracing the eternal truth that everyone is made equal by the hand of Almighty God.

America is the place where anything can happen! America is the place where anyone can rise. And here, on this land, on this soil, on this continent, the most incredible dreams come true!

This Nation is our canvas, and this country is our masterpiece. We look at tomorrow and see unlimited frontiers just waiting to be explored. Our brightest discoveries are not yet known. Our most thrilling stories are not yet told. Our grandest journeys are not yet made. The American Age, the American Epic, the American Adventure, has only just begun!

Our spirit is still young; the sun is still rising; God's grace is still shining; and my fellow Americans, the best is yet to come!

Thank you. God Bless You. God Bless America.

Casey,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Thank you for checking and doing the presentation for the TACC. The only item I might add would be to direct those of them that are Adult Ed providers to the guidance released last week on program performance, competitions and distance learning flexibilities.

Other than that, I think your thoughts are ready to send on to Reed for review and input.

Hi Casey,

Susan shared with me a request you received from a Texas community college group to speak with them regarding COVID-19. We have a very rigorous process when participating in stakeholder calls on COVID-19. The following will need to happen if you are to give remarks to associations/organizations. As you will see this takes time and coordination, so the more time you have to plan/prep the better as there are a lot of things going through clearance.

- You will need to draft your scripted remarks for the call and receive approval from your POC leader;
- Once you complete your remarks please email them Reed Rubinstein for OGC review, please cc me on the email to Reed;
- When OGC returns your script, please make any changes that are advised/directed by OGC;
- After you incorporate OGC edits please send the remarks back to me;
- I will then forward to Senior Leaders for final approval;
- When final approval is given on your script I will get it back to you.

Please let me know if you have questions.

Tom,

Thank you for your email. I hope you are also well and safe in these unprecedented times.

I want to start by thanking you and UiPATH for your commitment to preparing tomorrow's workforce and helping America's learners continue to learn during this unprecedented time. The Department intends to provide information like this to K-12 and postsecondary leaders across the nation through an organized process. The process and protocols are still under development. We will keep you updated on our work to disseminate opportunities like yours to learners across the country.

Please stay in touch with questions.

Hi Scott,

I hope you are fairing well with our latest health challenge.

I am reaching out to see if there is something we should do together. When watching President Trump on Sunday, he mentioned the country needing to focus on distance learning. We are ready to help! This is what we do best in one of the hottest tech segments in the market. Our RPA market continues to grow, but continues to have a huge skills gap. This is our opportunity.

The discussions we've had regarding Robotic Process Automation and 'free' eLearning just became much more important. Our (my) challenge is awareness. Too many prospective American workers are unaware that RPA exists and could be a great career for them. This is true in both federal and commercial markets.

Approximately 70 Federal agencies are our customers so they are very familiar with RPA and have taken our eLearning. We have a majority of the F500 companies as customers. We have 500 universities leveraging our courses as part of our Academic Alliance (60 in the US). And, we have over 550K subscribers to UiPath Academy globally, so we know the demand is there. We just need to accelerate the awareness in the USA.

We continue to target 750K Americans trained in 5 years. Our growth rate continues to increase each month. So there is a lot of good news. However, there is an opportunity to reach much larger audiences such as our veterans, armed forces, non-profits, healthcare, community colleges, and others that the US Government can reach.

If you would like to discuss, I am always available. I am happy to discuss some of the things we are doing to increase awareness.

Thanks, Tom

Thank you for the update and representing out programs and learners well.

Now for a process question, Braden, will this need to go back through clearance or now that the internal Ed issues have been resolved is it ready to go to OS and OMB?

I was able to come to agreement with OGC on the assessment issue. Took some foot stomping and a lot of rewording, but we are all comfortable now. States will have what they need. We are no longer "increasing flexibility" (they actually lined through our sentence saying that we are allowing additional flexibility) and no longer giving them the option to "suspend testing". We are now "recognizing that local programs may not be able to conduct in person testing." Here is the language we will use.

Q7. What flexibilities will OCTAE allow in terms of assessment, as it relates to education practices? Will States be given the option to conduct virtual pre/post-assessment testing?

OCTAE recognizes that local programs may not be able to conduct in-person testing of students enrolled in distance learning programs during program closures due to the COVID-19 outbreak. If local programs are unable to conduct in-person testing, States may be able to report measurable skill gains (MSG) using other measures available to AEFLA programs under the MSG indicator, such as credit completion or high school completion. The inability to test distance learning students may adversely impact the number of MSGs a State would report in the NRS. States that are experiencing declines in testing rates should put procedures in place to identify students who were not tested due to an inability to conduct in-person testing, so that the impact of the COVID-19 outbreak can be appropriately tracked.

Additionally, States may choose to develop procedures to implement virtual test proctoring. States that choose to use this flexibility must have procedures to ensure the student who is testing can be properly identified, that any approved test (i.e., any test determined suitable for use in the NRS) that is used is properly secured, and that the virtual proctor can properly administer the test. Test security measures would require that only secure electronic versions of a test are administered by a virtual proctor and are deemed secure by the test publisher.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Good morning, Scott. I pray this finds you and yours safely navigating these challenging waters.

I wanted to ask if you had information or confirmation regarding reports that the Federal Government is stepping in to provide reimbursement grants for Districts that provide online or virtual services during the Covid-19 closure. States are varying in their response to District shutdowns…some a few weeks, many have 'quasi-closed' for the remainder of their school year.

I realize this is outside your specific oversights in (OCTAE) …as it is more a K-12 question at this time, but was wondering if there any official policy (that is public information) that you could share that would be helpful.
MindPlay has lowered its price by as much as 85% during this time of national need (as low as $5.00 per student

Hi, Scott. As we may have shared with you before, we have more funds than we need to make continuation awards to Native American and Native Hawaiian grantees this year—an excess of about $750k for Native American and $250k for Native Hawaiian. We have these additional funds because the appropriation for the formula grant increased in FY 2019 and funding for these programs is generated by a percentage setaside of the formula grant appropriation.

DATE and PRES recommend that we offer these funds as supplemental awards to the grantees to pay for any unforeseen expenses related to the COVID-19 pandemic and associated events, or other unforeseen expenses associated with implementing the projects described in their approved applications. Robin has heard from some grantees that are trying to continue instruction through online learning, for example, and others may be looking at extending the duration of their programs or offering them in the summer. Because both the Native American and Native Hawaiian programs are entering the third and final year of their project periods, we do not think it makes sense to make new awards. A draft OPEPD memo circulated this week encouraged POCs looking at supplements to think about focusing them on COVID-19 costs. We would expect the supplemental awards to be up to about $25k per grantee.

If you are comfortable with this general direction, we will seek concurrence from the Grants Policy Office, as well as OGC. If it would be helpful to have a conversation about this strategy, please let me know and I will ask Doug to find time for us to talk. Thank you!

This is great stuff! We are working on developing one or more webinars that feature the kinds of programs and tools that various distance learning providers are making available to students. As you might expect, my focus is on postsecondary but there is a parallel effort focused on K-12 and we've had discussions about merging the two (or at least elements of the two) since some post-secondary providers might be able to assist K-12 schools as they try to serve students. This is good information and we will make sure you are looped into the planning effort. In addition to the event, we have talked about developing resource lists, so if you can share contact information or URLs to demonstrations that could be included on such a list, that would be great! Good morning,

This is a follow-up to the earlier request for SEL based lessons and activities we can share with parents and teachers, as well as short videos, that we encourage a group like this to share.

We have to anticipate we won't be back to school probably the rest of the school year, like colleges are doing. This is going to put increasing pressure and levels of stress and anxiousness on students and parents alike, and I imagine many are already feeling like they are drinking from the proverbial fire hose with the flood of resources educators have been putting online. Parents are beginning to feel overwhelmed by having TOO MANY options, and with a lack of explanation and advice for what works best for their child.

This is where a short (1-3 minute) video that either accompanies a lesson to show how to do it or why it is useful to do, or gives practical advice and encouragement to a stressed out parent, can be helpful and welcome.

So think about statements of advice and guidance for parents, who are now forced into the role of teacher for their children. If you have a lesson you think is great for distance learning please share - and consider a video for what is the purpose and big idea of the lesson, and what is the best approach to deliver the lesson to the child. Just some advice for the parents, who likely have some self-doubt about their ability to teach their child.
Or think PSA: A short video with advice about best practices of keeping a child mentally and physically healthy during this period. Children may be isolated from friends and classmates for a couple months for all we know...how do we keep each other mentally and emotionally healthy, so we can still be learning and having a productive, happy life? So the SEL type of advice and activities we know work with children are going to be vital as far as resources parents will need to be aware of. See Ed's suggestions in his response to the original email (thanks, Ed).

If you have anything online that you would like to share, please just send any links to files and/or videos to this email address or mvondracek@comcast.net, and we can begin to put them on the NCSS and LifeChanger websites and social media platforms.

I hope this helps clarify the purpose and goal. We could use any number of videos anyone wants to produce and share. We would like to form a small library of these on all sorts of topics and issues and lessons, to help parents who are in different circumstances. And we can say, "Here is some advice from a nationally/globally recognized educator..." which will carry some weight and legitimacy. For VTAs, we may be doing something similar soon on a global scale...stay tuned.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

THANK YOU for everything you continue to do to help your students and society as a whole!!

Hi everyone,

First, I hope everyone is doing well, and that things are going as well as possible for you and your families.

As things have been professionally crazy for all of us these past few days, one thing has become obvious as I have been in contact with numerous educators across the country and globally - with an estimated 400 million students now being at home and experiencing some form of distance learning, parents are now in an unprecedented position to deal with, long term, the academics, SEL issues/concerns and special needs requirements for their children, that their schools largely handle through experts such as yourselves. While some schools have the means and planning in place to still help students, parents and families, we all know this is not the norm at many other schools and communities around the country and the world. And help, guidance and advice for the parents is too often largely lacking.

One service NCSS can offer, and would like to begin immediately, in partnership with the National Life Group (NLG) and their LifeChanger of the Year Program, is to get top recommended resources and bits of advice from top experts in their fields that are useful for parents. These will be used in posts on various social media platforms that will go through a variety of national and global networks. I wanted to be sure to offer the opportunity to you, if you have anything you think is essential for parents to know and be aware of should they be in an unfortunate position of no longer having sufficient support through their school. It could be general resources and advice, or something specific in your field. These carry extra weight when we can say it comes from nationally and globally recognized educators!

There is an additional service we plan on producing along with recommended resources - short (2-4 minute) videos of experts talking through a recommended resource, issue, technique, lesson, or whatever it is you think is essential for parents to know as they work with their children. Just providing links to resources is fine, and many individuals and organizations are doing this, but what is largely missing are explanations and directions for how to best use a resource that parents can understand. If you are willing to make such a brief video, please let me know in a separate email (mvondracek@comcast.net). Any videos will also be distributed both nationally and globally.

If you would like to share something you think is useful and vital for parents to know, related to your field of expertise and experience, please share in the Google Sheet, https://docs.google.com/spreadsheets/d/1zL0voupsxAaFRNGcLoDrJcazeccP_ULKYaog6vYCrbk/edit?usp=sharing. There is one sheet for teachers, and a second sheet for student support services such as counselors, psychologists and social workers. We will begin sharing out as soon as tomorrow afternoon or evening, once the messaging is finalized.

Thank you so much for your consideration to share vital information and resources! I hope you take the few minutes to share something we can get out to parents - and even better if you might take a few minutes to create a helpful video for parents who are in a bind!!
Here's to good health during these next days, weeks and months -

Friday, the President said they were suspending payments and interest on all Federally held loans for 120 days. Since the Perkins Loan is not federally held, the payments and interest accruals are to continue as normal.

Can you verify that for me please? We have borrowers sending emails saying that they are do not have to make the payments based on the President's declaration.

Hello,

All of the guidance we currently have related to Perkins Loan collection is contained in DCL GEN-17-08, now in effect as a result of the President's declaration of national emergency. I have copied the relevant section below.

Federal Perkins Loan Program
Reporting Student Enrollment Status (§674.16(j)). If an institution is unable to report a student's enrollment status to NSLDS under the established schedule as a direct result of a disaster, it must contact NSLDS Customer Service at 1-800-999-8219 to modify its reporting schedule. An institution using the National Student Clearinghouse or another third party servicer should contact its servicer to see if its enrollment data submission schedule needs to be adjusted. If an institution receives a warning letter from NSLDS regarding missed reporting deadlines, it should contact NSLDS Customer Service to ensure that reporting schedule modifications have been made.
A Borrower's Loan Status (§674.31). If a Perkins Loan borrower who was in an "in-school" status on the date the borrower's attendance at the institution was interrupted due to a disaster, the institution should continue to report that borrower's status to NSLDS as "in-school." The institution should continue the borrower in that status until the borrower withdraws or fails to resume attendance on at least a half-time basis in the next regular enrollment period, whichever is earlier. The institution should then change the borrower's status from "in-school" to "in grace," effective as of the withdrawal date or the day prior to the first day of the next regular enrollment period, as applicable. (A borrower who resumes at least half-time enrollment in the next regular enrollment period would continue in an "in-school" status.)
For example, assume a borrower begins attendance on September 5. On September 30, the institution temporarily closes due to a disaster. The institution reopens October 25 but the borrower (who has not withdrawn) does not return until the start of the next semester in January. The borrower's status should be reported as "in-school" throughout the fall semester.
In a different situation, assume that the borrower does not return to the institution at all after it temporarily closes on September 30. The borrower's status should be reported as "in-school" throughout the fall semester. If the institution determines that the borrower has not returned for the spring semester in January, the institution would report the borrower's status as "in-grace," effective as of the last date of the fall semester.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Borrowers in Initial or Post-Deferment Grace Periods (§674.42). The appropriate School Participation Division will address any concerns about borrowers in initial and post-deferment grace periods, on a case-by-case basis.
Borrowers in Repayment (§674.33). The Department authorizes institutions to grant forbearance, for a period not to exceed three months, to a Federal Perkins Loan borrower who is in repayment at the time of a disaster and who is unable to make payments due to the disaster.
Interest accrues during any period of forbearance. A borrower may request this forbearance orally or in writing, and is not required to submit documentation to be considered eligible for this forbearance. An institution must document the forbearance in the borrower's file. To receive forbearance beyond the three-month period, the borrower must make a request to the institution and provide supporting documentation. (At the expiration of the three month period, the institution should examine the borrower's situation to determine potential eligibility for an economic hardship deferment or unemployment deferment, as appropriate.) This period of forbearance is counted toward the 3-year maximum limit on the number of years of forbearance that may be granted to a borrower.
Collection of Defaulted Loans (Part 674, Subpart C—Due Diligence). The institution may stop collection activities for three months upon notification by the borrower, a member of the borrower's family, or another reliable source that the borrower has been affected by a disaster. Collection activities must resume at the end of the 3-month period. The institution must document in the loan file why it suspended collection activities on the loan, and is not required to obtain evidence of the borrower's status while collection activities have been suspended. The appropriate School Participation Division will address any additional concerns about required billing and collection activities on a case-by-case basis.
*Satisfactory Repayment Arrangements on Defaulted Loans (§674.2). Is there any guidance for Campus Based Perkins loans due to COVID – 19?

Some of our concerns are listed below:
Payments mailed to LSU while personnel are working remotely and do not have access to mail
Processing credit bureau reporting that may be inaccurate due to not posting payments timely due to personnel working remotely
Continue to charge interest on the loans since it is not held by the Federal government
Situations where the borrower has lost all sources of income and cannot make the payment
NSLDS monthly processing

I wanted to alert you that this document will go into ED clearance late Monday or early Tuesday with a short turnaround. We are generally keeping responses as is, with conforming changes related to COVID-19 being substituted for disaster. Let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Waivers that we anticipate being valuable to states as they respond to COVID 19 include:

1. Section 133 (b) that requires local recipients to return any unexpended funds at the end of the academic year to the eligible agency for redistribution in the following year. (The concern is that locals will not be able to expend Perkins funds by the end of this year for activities and purchases planned but postponed.)
2. Section 211 (a) That requires funds made available under this Act for career and technical education activities shall supplement, and shall not supplant, non-Federal funds expended to carry out career and technical education activities. (In this difficult time, investments of Federal dollars may be needed cover costs to deliver services or secure resources that historically were covered with state or local dollars. There is a concern that State and local actions may be seen as supplanting.)

How about this language …

Hi. Regarding waivers, OCTAE only has the authority to waive the maintenance of effort requirements in Sec. 211(b) for eligible agencies that are unable to meet the fiscal effort requirements due to the uncontrollable circumstances related to the COVID-19 national emergency. The Secretary waived MOE requirements in the past, most recently for Puerto Rico following Hurricane Maria in 2017.

As referenced on the phone call yesterday, we have heard from many States about meeting the April 15 deadline to submit state plans. OCATE will provide broad flexibility on the submission timeline and not penalize states for submitting after April 15. The Department will also work diligently to avoid delays in reviewing plans and issuing Perkins V grant awards on schedule on July 1.

In addition to the state plan submission timing, OCTAE is also hearing from States that their local recipients will have a difficult time submitting complete local applications based on the required Comprehensive Local Needs Assessment (CLNA) by June 30, which may delay LEA access to funds. The Department plans to use the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to enable States to provide a three-month extension to the timeline for local recipients to submit their local applications for approval.

We also heard from States about a number of issues on the call yesterday that we are working to address through FAQs soon, for example related to data requirements and timelines. Other issues that were raised we do not have authority to waive, such as redistribution of unexpended funds and supplement not supplant.

That appears to be what the Murray staff is asking but since we haven't provided this before to Alexanders we should stick to broad waiver authority would be helpful.

Could we rephrase it as something we heard from States yesterday that they may need but we don't have current authority to provide? Would that be ok? Confirming w/Molly and Jordan.

Hi Linda, I'm the new workforce staffer for the HELP Dems. Obviously, things are moving and shifting very quickly with agencys' response to COVID. I was able to dial in for a little bit during the townhall yesterday. But I'm reaching out to try and get a better sense of where OCTAE sees needs around waivers. Particularly anything that may fall out of the scope of the current transition authority the secretary has (till June 30th, correct?) via the implementation of Perkins V.

We're trying to negotiate on waivers presently, so I hate to pressure you (especially in my first email) but if you all have needs can we discuss asap?

For Perkins V, we also need waiver authority of Supplement/Not Supplant. We do not need new authority to delay the April 15th, 2020 state plan deadline, but may need flexibility on the requirement that ED must obligate funds by July 1st, 2020 should applications not yet be received. Local plans based on local needs assessment must be substantially approvable, as defined by states, before the local entities may draw down funds, which may require statutory flexibility.

Hey Jordan,

Thank you for sharing. OCTAE would definitely like the two acts that we administer also included in the Section 10 National Emergency Educational Waivers list.

They are:
Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act of 2006
Adult Education and Family Literacy Act

Let me know if you have questions.

Also, section 10 does not cover several ED programs, such as McKinney-Vento, Perkins CTE, and Adult Ed. Should we ask them to add them?

What are you hearing from the field in the way of creative solutions? Are relevant licensing bodies engaged in this conversation yet? We've heard from AAMC about medical schools and related licensure, but what about other fields?

Hey Nate, Kent, McKenzie, Liz, Diane, Bob, and Jim,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This email is in response to Nate's suggestion from Monday that we consider where the Department may need additional waiver authority to assist State and local recipients in administering their CTE and Adult Ed programs during this evolving situation. In addition, Yesterday we received questions from the HELP committee and a follow-up email today, both of which asked for insight into these specific short-term issues with CTE, as well as any additional suggestions we might have that could be included in the appropriations package. We recommend the following actions to secure the flexibility State and local education agencies will need to continue operations in the short-term and be best set up for success in the long-term.

We look forward to your questions, recommendations and guidance on next steps.

Requires No Legislative Action

Problem

First and foremost, there is an issue in some states will their ability to submit their state plans in by April 15 due to the State Board not meeting in March or April.

Potential Solution(s)

1. We have let states know that we will commit to reviewing and approving their plans by June 30 even if they are submitted after April 15.
2. If for some reason a State cannot submit a State approved prior to July 1, we are confirming with OGC that we could use the Transition Authority in Perkins V to extend the Transition year end from June 30 to September 30. This action would allow states to continue to operate and receive funds under their already approved Transition Plan.

Problem

LEAs have reported that they will have difficulty completing the stakeholder engagement required under the new Perkins V Comprehensive Local Needs Assessment and Local Application Process prior to July 1. If they do not have a substantially approvable application submitted July 1, they are not allowed to receive funds as a subgrantee.

Potential Solutions

1. We are also confirming with OGC that if we use the Transition Authority to extend the Transition Year for the state by 3 months, could that also extend the Transition Year for the local recipients. This would allow funds to flow based on already approved local plans.
2. States also have the existing authority to define what is a "substantially approvable" plan. We could encourage them to use that flexibility to approve local plans (most likely still in progress) on June 30, and use the fall to work with LEAs to complete the local application process.

Requires Legislative Action

In addition to these key short-term issues, the long-term issue is the funds not being expended this spring due to school closures. Currently, no waiver authority exists for the Secretary to allow states to retain unspent funds beyond 27 months like in ESSA. In addition, no carryover authority exists for LEA's who have unspent funds in a given year. We propose the Department recommend technical amendments that could allow the Secretary to waive targeted fiscal requirements in Perkins and WIOA in the case of exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances.

1. The Secretary could be given the authority to grant waivers that extend the availability of Perkins and AEFLA funds for obligation and liquidation beyond the 27 months allowed by GEPA. Under ESEA, the Secretary is granted the authority to waive these "Tydings" requirements for ESEA programs due to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances, such as a natural disaster or national emergency. This authority does not exist in Perkins or AEFLA.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. Equip Perkins and AEFLA with the "Carryover and Waiver" flexibilities in ESEA Title I, Part A, which allows LEA's to carry over and extend the availability of unexpended funds into the next fiscal year.

   ESSA - SEC. 1127. [20 U.S.C. 6339] CARRYOVER AND WAIVER.

   (a) LIMITATION ON CARRYOVER.—Notwithstanding section 421(b) of the General Education Provisions Act or any other provision of law, not more than 15 percent of the funds allocated to a local educational agency for any fiscal year under this subpart (but not including funds received through any reallocation under this subpart) may remain available for obligation by such agency for one additional fiscal year.

   (b) WAIVER.—A State educational agency may, once every 3 years, waive the percentage limitation in subsection (a) if—

   (1) the agency determines that the request of a local educational agency is reasonable and necessary; or

   (2) supplemental appropriations for this subpart become available.

   (c) EXCLUSION.—The percentage limitation under subsection (a) shall not apply to any local educational agency that receives less than $50,000 under this subpart for any fiscal year.

Non-Regulatory Guidance on Flexibility and Waivers for Grantees and Program Participants Impacted by Federally Declared Disasters

U.S. Department of Education

September 2017

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ED-20-0731-A-007609

Introduction

The U.S. Department of Education (Department) is issuing this guidance to help Department grantees and program participants restore teaching and learning environments and resume services following Federally declared disasters[1] (including Hurricanes Harvey, Irma and Maria) that impact the 2017–2018 academic school year. We recognize your challenges and want to express our concern and extend our support during this process of recovery and resumption of normal business operations.

This document generally discusses waivers and other forms of relief from Federal requirements in order to provide schools, State educational agencies (SEAs), State lead agencies (LAs), local educational agencies (LEAs), local early intervention service (EIS) programs and providers, State Vocational Rehabilitation (VR) agencies, the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Indian Education -funded schools,[2] Tribes, and postsecondary institutions with the operational flexibility necessary to continue operations as they recover from extended school or program closures due to a disaster. The guidance addresses flexibility on reporting deadlines, timelines for grant-funded activities, and maintenance of fiscal effort or matching requirements, where applicable; proposes potential alternatives and strategies for providing program services after disruption; and suggests methods for ensuring continuity of services and communication with program participants. In addition, the document covers a variety of topics specific to various program areas.

We strongly encourage all interested parties to contact the Department with any requests for assistance beyond the scope of this document. We are committed to collaborating with impacted parties, as well as other Federal, state and local agencies, to remove barriers and expedite the work necessary to respond to and recover from the recent hurricanes. As necessary, we will update this guidance with answers to additional questions.

It is important to emphasize that this guidance addresses only Federal requirements and flexibilities, and that only State and local officials can address State and local requirements and flexibilities.

[1] The phrase "Federally declared disaster" or "Presidentially declared disaster" means a disaster declared by the President to be a major disaster or emergency under section 401 or section 501, respectively, of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5170, 5191). Throughout this guidance, we use the term "disaster" to refer to "Federally declared disaster," which includes, for example, Hurricane Harvey, Tropical Storm Harvey, Hurricane Irma, and Hurricane Maria.

[2] The BIE has assumed the duties of an SEA under the ESEA with regard to the BIE-funded schools, and may request waivers under section 8401 of the ESEA. BIE-funded schools may submit waiver requests to the BIE as LEAs do under section 8401. Under section 611(h)(2)(A) of Part B of the IDEA and its implementing regulation in 34 CFR § 300.708, the BIE and BIE-funded schools assume the responsibilities of an SEA and LEA, respectively. Thus, references in this document to SEAs and LEAs include BIE and BIE-funded schools as they relate to programs under the ESEA and Part B of the IDEA.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A. General Discretionary and Formula Grant Issues

This section discusses the waivers and other forms of relief that the Department may provide to grantees and grant applicants regarding Federal grant requirements following a disaster.

A-1. How will the Department provide flexibility to entities applying for discretionary grants?

To the greatest extent possible, the Department will postpone discretionary grant competitions and extend application and other filing deadlines for institutions affected by a disaster when permissible under the law. Appropriations Acts generally provide funds for specific programs, purposes, and activities. The Department has very limited authority to redirect funds appropriated for one program or purpose to another program or purpose. The Department will:

- Ensure that any funds that have been statutorily authorized for relief efforts are awarded to eligible recipients; and
- Determine on a program-by-program basis whether a regular grant competition schedule should be suspended.

A-2. How will an extended closure due to a disaster affect a grantee's receipt of funds?

Until a Department official has obligated Federal program funds to a grantee, no binding commitment exists with regard to these funds. If delays in Federal obligations are caused by a disaster, the Department staff will work with grantees on the obligations to the extent permitted by law, and warranted by the conditions and effects of the disaster, and consider using the "pre-award period" to negotiate a delay of the grant start-up date, and to authorize pre-award costs.

A-3. Will a grantee be able to draw grant funds to pay for grant activities during the recovery period following a disaster?

The Department is committed to making every effort to have its existing electronic infrastructure available so that grantees can continue to draw funds for allowable grant expenditures that are consistent with their progress on the project. Grantees are cautioned that they should draw down grant funds only at the rate that they are able to carry out grant activities. Grantees should refer to 2 CFR § 200.305 for further information.

A-4. What if a grantee has difficulty fulfilling grant activities because it is affected by a disaster?

During the recovery period from a disaster, grantees are expected to notify the relevant Department program office as soon as they are aware that they may have difficulty fulfilling grant activities. The Department is committed to working with its grantees to provide them with the maximum flexibility in making changes to project activities and timelines that might become necessary as a result of a disaster. For example, discretionary grantees that have partners or participants in areas affected by a disaster should alert the program offices as quickly as possible to make changes to the project activities and timelines. Additionally, with regard to formula grant programs, State VR agencies and grantees should contact their Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services (OSERS)/Rehabilitation Services Administration (RSA) State liaisons to address issues resulting from the disaster to renegotiate and/or redirect the scope of their work plans, as needed. LEAs should work through their SEAs to renegotiate and/or redirect the scope of their work plans, as needed. Grantees should refer to 2 CFR § 200.308 for further guidance.

A-5. Generally, is another entity allowed to perform activities related to a grantee's project, if the grantee is unable to do so?

The Department may allow another entity to perform activities for a grantee in some situations. As a part of their response and recovery efforts, grantees are encouraged to develop a backup plan for the operation of their grants that includes sharing project responsibilities and activities with other entities in the event that the grantee is not able to perform them. When the backup plan needs to be invoked, the grantee should seek approval from the Department to revise the grant in accordance with 2 CFR § 200.308. Grant backup plans might include, for example:

- Entering into arrangements and agreements with other organizations in the region to ensure the continuity of grant operations during recovery, including sharing or loaning of staff, facilities, space, materials, and supplies (contracting work to a third party has to comply with the procurement requirements set out in 2 CFR §§ 200.316 to 200.326);
- Shifting various activities and responsibilities to other members of an already approved partnership or consortium; or
- Transferring an entire grant to another entity (such a transfer has to be approved by the Department and implemented according to Department policies).

For more specific information regarding the transfer of State-administered grants and discretionary grants, see questions A-6 and A-7 below.

A-6. For State-administered grants, is another entity allowed to perform activities related to a grantee's project, if the grantee is unable to do so?

Yes, but States and their subgrantees, when applicable, will continue to be legally responsible for the administration of the grants and subgrants, as well as the monitoring of contracts. States have some discretion to make changes to their grants without prior approval by the Department under 2 CFR § 200.308. If a change requires prior approval, however, 2 CFR § 200.308 sets forth the procedures States follow to request prior approval from the Department. The Department will consider these requests on an expedited basis and will generally approve those that are consistent with the State plan or application that was filed and approved by the Department and reasonable in light of the specific circumstances of a disaster.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A-7. May a discretionary grant be transferred to another eligible entity if the grantee is unable to perform project activities due to a disaster?

Yes, in limited circumstances a discretionary grant may be transferred from one entity to another. The transfer, however, requires formal approval by the Department, and the grantee must follow procedures to ensure that the grant continues to serve the same or a very similar population, and is of the same scope and meets the objectives as approved by the Department. The entity to which a grant is transferred must be an eligible recipient. To ensure that proposed changes are within the scope and objectives of the grant as approved, amendments to grant awards require formal approval by the Department under 2 CFR § 200.308.

A-8. Must a grantee follow the various administrative requirements related to a grant (e.g., meeting reporting deadlines and obtaining administrative approvals) if it is affected by a disaster?

Generally, yes, but the Department understands that grantees may need to make administrative changes to grant projects if they are affected by a disaster. Grantees have flexibility under 2 CFR § 200.308 and 34 CFR § 75.261 to make some changes without Department approval. Any relief from regulatory requirements provided to all grantees during the recovery period will be posted on the Department's website.

A-9. In the event that grant-related activities are not being implemented because schools or program offices have been closed or staffing resources are not available, will the Department provide relief from meeting evaluation requirements?

Yes, in such cases, the Department will consider modifying the project evaluation requirements, if appropriate; however, once grant activities resume, a proper evaluation of the project will need to be completed.

A-10. If a grantee is required to provide services to partners, how can these partners receive grant management and grant administrative information needed to maintain their grant-related activities?

Grantees are encouraged to establish communication systems with partner organizations, such as contractors and consortium members, and develop strategies based on the impact and estimated recovery period. Such planning may require establishing a backup strategy that will be operational throughout the recovery period. Grantees should coordinate such planning with their partners to make sure all affected entities have access to grant-related information.

Grantees can view examples of local plans at the following web address: www.ed.gov/admins/lead/safety/emergencyplan/pandemic/sampleplans/index.html.

A-11. If a grantee is required to provide equitable services to private school students and teachers, how will private schools be notified of the availability and delivery of such services during the recovery period?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Grantees should, during the required consultation process with private school officials under sections 1117(b) and 8501(c) of the ESEA and under section 612(a)(10)(A)(iii) of the IDEA, establish procedures and strategies, including a communication process, that the entity will implement in the event of an extended school closure. Planning for this effort may require establishing a backup strategy that will be operational throughout the recovery period. Grantees should coordinate such planning with private school officials to make sure that all appropriate private schools have access to information related to Federal education equitable services provided to their private school students and teachers. Grantees and private school officials may also consider enlisting the assistance of the designated ESEA State ombudsman regarding ESEA equitable services assistance. See questions B-4 and C-7 in this guidance for additional program-specific guidance on the provision of equitable services.

A-12. Discretionary grantees have specific performance targets that are approved in their applications. Will the Department renegotiate performance targets due to delays in project implementation, school closings, or reduced staff capacity?

Yes. In general, the Department expects grantees to strive to achieve performance targets as stated in their approved grant applications; however, the Department understands that grantees may experience delays in achieving performance targets as the result of a disaster. If necessary, grantees may request approval from the Department to adjust project timelines so that approved performance targets can be met, but at a later date than originally planned. In addition, grantees may exercise the administrative flexibility in 34 CFR § 75.261 and initiate a one-time extension of up to one year without prior approval to complete unfinished project activities, and thereby meet approved performance targets in accordance with revised project timelines.

A-13. What does the Department expect with regard to the treatment of institutional employees who are supported by Federal higher education grants or other employees paid with Federal education program funds?

Institutional employees who are supported with Federal grants awarded by the Department, including grants authorized by the Higher Education Act (HEA), and the other programs discussed in this guidance such as the IDEA, and Title I of the ESEA, should be treated the same as similarly situated employees of the institution. In the case of programs serving K-12, Federally funded employees should be treated the same as similarly situated State and locally funded employees. This means that if the institution's policy or State and local law and policies provide for similarly situated employees to be paid during an extended closure due to a disaster, those supported with Federal grants would also be paid. These employees should return to the duties for which the grant funds were provided as soon as possible and, to the extent practicable, should work on project activities during the time the school is closed. Employees supported with Federal grant funds who are intended to provide direct services to students may maintain contact with students during the recovery period, through appropriate methods such as telephone, videophone, and email.

B. Elementary and Secondary Education Issues - The Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA)

This section discusses potential legal issues that school administrators may face when responding to and recovering from extended school closures and otherwise addresses disruption in elementary and secondary educational services funded under the ESEA. Specifically, this section discusses waivers and other forms of relief from elementary and secondary (K-12) Federal education requirements and other flexibilities the Department may provide.

B-1. May the Department provide flexibility to SEAs, LEAs, and Indian Tribes with regard to Federal K-12 requirements governed by the ESEA in response to a disaster?

Yes, to the extent permissible under law, the Department may provide SEAs (as well as LEAs and schools through their SEA) and Indian Tribes with flexibility as necessary to appropriately address the impact a natural disaster has had upon the normal functioning or delivery of educational services. Section 8401 of the ESEA (20 U.S.C. § 7861) permits the Secretary to grant waivers of most ESEA requirements to SEAs, (as well as LEAs and schools through their SEA) and Indian Tribes that receive ESEA funds and that request such waivers. Specifically, if warranted due to the impact of a disaster that impedes functioning or delivery of educational services in a State, LEA, or school, the Department may, upon request by SEAs or Indian Tribes, grant waivers as it determines appropriate of most ESEA statutory and regulatory requirements.

B-2. Which entity/entities is/are responsible for requesting a waiver related to Federal K-12 requirements or deadlines?

Only SEAs and Indian Tribes that receive funds under a program authorized by the ESEA may request a waiver, consistent with the provisions in section 8401. If an LEA would like to request a waiver, section 8401 requires that it submit a waiver request to its SEA, which may then submit it to the Department if the SEA determines the waiver to be appropriate. Similarly, an elementary or secondary school may submit a waiver request to its LEA, which may then submit it to the SEA if the LEA determines the waiver to be appropriate. The SEA may then submit the request to the Department, if the SEA determines the waiver to be appropriate. To clarify this process, SEAs may choose to provide guidance and a process for LEAs and schools to submit a waiver request to the SEA.

If an SEA or Indian Tribe believes a waiver may be needed, the Department requests that, if possible, the entity contact the Department to receive technical assistance before requesting the waiver. The Department will then assist the SEA or Indian Tribe in requesting a waiver.

B-3. What is the general process for applying for a waiver of ESEA requirements?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

To obtain a waiver, the ESEA requires that an SEA, LEA (through its SEA), Indian Tribe, or school (through its LEA and SEA or Indian Tribe) submit a request to the Secretary. Section 8401(b) of the ESEA requires an SEA (on behalf of the SEA or on behalf of, and based on the requests of, LEAs in the State) or Indian Tribe (on behalf of schools operated by the Tribe) to include in its waiver request a plan that:

- Identifies the Federal program(s) affected by the requested waiver;
- Describes which Federal statutory or regulatory requirements are to be waived;
- Describes how the waiving of such requirements will advance student academic achievement;
- Describes the methods the SEA, LEA, school, or Indian Tribe will use to monitor and regularly evaluate the effectiveness of the implementation of the waiver;
- Includes only information directly related to the waiver request; and
- Describes how schools will continue to assist the same populations served by the program for which the waiver is requested.

Before submitting the waiver request to the Department, an SEA must:

- Provide the public and any interested LEA in the State, to the extent the request impacts the LEA, with notice and a reasonable opportunity to comment and provide input on the request in the manner in which the SEA customarily provides similar notice and opportunity to comment; and
- Submit the comments and input to the Department with a description of how the SEA addressed any comments and input. (Section 8401(b)(3)(A) of the ESEA).

An SEA may also describe what may occur if it does not receive a waiver.

In the case of a waiver request submitted by an LEA, the request must be reviewed and approved by the SEA in accordance with section 8401(a)(2) before being submitted to the Secretary. The LEA must also provide notice and a reasonable opportunity to comment on the waiver request to the SEA and the public in the manner in which the LEA customarily provides similar notice and opportunity to comment to the public. (Section 8401(b)(3)(B) of the ESEA). Any comments received from the SEA and public must accompany the request when submitted to the Department.

The Department encourages any SEA, LEA, school, or Indian Tribe that intends to seek a waiver to review section 8401 of the ESEA, which may be accessed at the following web address: https://www2.ed.gov/documents/essa-act-of-1965.pdf.

Affected agencies or schools may also contact the Department's Office of Elementary and Secondary Education with questions about ESEA waivers by calling (202) 401-0113.

B-4. If an LEA is required to provide equitable services to private school students under an ESEA program, how should the LEA communicate with officials of these private schools during an extended school closure due to a disaster?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Department suggests that an LEA, during the required consultation process with private school representatives or officials under sections 1117(b) and 8501(c) of the ESEA, establish a communication process for use throughout a closure necessitated by a disaster. For example, the LEA may establish an emergency call tree to ensure any needed information can be shared within the LEA and from the LEA to private schools, as needed. The LEA may also establish procedures for how equitable services will be impacted in the case of closure due to a disaster and share those procedures with the private school representatives or officials. It will be helpful for LEAs to coordinate such planning with appropriate private school officials to make sure that they have access to information related to equitable services for their eligible students and, as applicable, their teachers and families. Grantees and private school officials may also consider enlisting the assistance of the designated State ombudsman regarding ESEA equitable services matters. As noted under the answer to B-7, the equitable participation of private school students and teachers may not be waived under section 8401(c) of the ESEA.

B-5. Does the ESEA allow for any flexibility with respect to meeting maintenance of effort (MOE) without waiver approval?

Yes. There is some flexibility in the MOE provisions in the ESEA.

It is important to understand the delay in when the current year's expenditures are taken into account for MOE determinations. For example, expenditures in school year 2017-2018 (fiscal year (FY) 2017 funds) will not affect MOE determinations until school year 2019-2020 (FY 2019 funds). In 2019-2020, the "preceding fiscal year" for MOE determinations will be expenditures for school year 2017-2018; likewise, expenditures in school year 2017-2018 will be the "second preceding fiscal year" for MOE determinations for school year 2020-2021 (FY 2020 funds). Under the MOE provisions in section 8521(b)(2) of the ESEA, an LEA that does not maintain effort during school year 2017-2018 (i.e., based on expenditures during the July 1, 2017 to June 30, 2018 period) would not be penalized with a reduction in Federal FY 2019 (school year 2019-2020) ESEA funds unless the LEA also failed to maintain effort in one or more of the five fiscal years preceding July 1, 2017. If an LEA faces a reduction in FY 2019 ESEA funds, the LEA (or the SEA on the LEA's behalf) may request an MOE waiver under section 8521(c)(1), which gives the Department the authority to waive the MOE requirements in the case of a natural disaster or another exceptional or uncontrollable circumstance.

Finally, we note that, under 34 CFR § 299.5(d)(2)(i), an SEA excludes from an ESEA MOE determination supplemental expenditures of State and local funds made as a result of a Presidentially declared disaster. Therefore, if an LEA's expenditures increase significantly in school year 2017-2018 due to increased spending in response to such a disaster, the SEA will exclude these expenditures from MOE calculations, which will decrease the possibility that a one-time increase in school year 2017-2018 expenditures will cause an LEA to fail to maintain effort in school year 2018-2019 (affecting allocations for the 2020-2021 school year) when expenditures from school year 2018-2019 are compared to school year 2017-2018 expenditures.

B-6. How should SEAs and LEAs identify and serve students who may be residing in homeless situations as a result of a disaster?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Education for Homeless Children and Youth (EHCY) program is authorized under Title VII-B of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11431 et seq.) (McKinney-Vento Act). The purpose of the McKinney-Vento Act is to ensure that homeless children and youth have equal access to the same free, appropriate public education as provided to other children and youth. (See section 721 of the McKinney-Vento Act). Under section 725(2)(A) of the McKinney-Vento Act, a child or youth is considered homeless if he or she lacks "a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence." This includes children and youth who are sharing the housing of others due to loss of housing, economic hardship, or a similar reason; are living in motels, hotels, trailer parks, or camping grounds due to the lack of alternative adequate accommodations; are living in emergency or transitional shelters, cars, parks, public spaces, abandoned buildings, substandard housing, bus or train stations, or similar settings; or have a primary nighttime residence that is a public or private place not designed for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation for human beings. (Section 721(b) of the McKinney-Vento Act).

Under the McKinney-Vento Act, each SEA has a State Coordinator for the Education of Homeless Children and Youths (EHCY). (See section 722(f) of the McKinney-Vento Act). In addition, each LEA also has a staff person who is designated to serve as the local liaison for homeless education. (See section 722(g)(1)(J)(ii) of the McKinney-Vento Act). In the event of a disaster, State Coordinators and local liaisons will want to work together to coordinate and facilitate services to children and families made homeless by the disaster.

To facilitate identification of homeless students, local liaisons may choose to display posters or distribute brochures on McKinney-Vento rights in places where people affected by the disaster are likely to assemble. Local liaisons should also notify social services, housing, and other types of agencies working with individuals and families affected by the disaster to assist with identification.

Local liaisons can be proactive in preparing schools to enroll displaced students and arranging for additional staff to assist with the identification and enrollment process. The McKinney-Vento Act requires homeless students to be immediately enrolled in school, even if the student is lacking documentation normally required for enrollment or has missed enrollment deadlines during any period of homelessness. (Section 722(g)(3)(C) of the McKinney-Vento Act). The LEA and school must also allow a student to remain in his or her school of origin (i.e., the school in which he or she was last enrolled or that he or she attended when permanently housed) if it is in the student's best interest to remain in that school and ensure that the student is provided transportation to and from that school if requested. (Sections 722(g)(3)(A) and 722(g)(1)(J)(iii) of the McKinney-Vento Act).

B-7. Are there certain Federal K-12 requirements under the ESEA that may not be waived in response to a disaster?

Yes. Section 8401(c) of the ESEA restricts the requirements for which the Department may consider waivers under section 8401. The requirements for which the Department may not grant waivers under this section include:

(1) The allocation or distribution of funds to States, LEAs, Indian Tribes, or other recipients of funds under the ESEA;
(2) Maintenance of effort (as noted below, section 8521 of the ESEA gives the Department the authority to waive this requirement under certain circumstances);
(3) Comparability of services;
(4) Use of Federal funds to supplement, not supplant, non-Federal funds;
(5) Equitable participation of private school students and teachers;
(6) Parental participation and involvement;
(7) Applicable civil rights requirements;
(8) The requirement for a charter school under Part C of Title IV of the ESEA;
(9) The prohibitions—
    (A) In Subpart 2 of Part F of Title VIII of the ESEA;
    (B) Regarding use of funds for religious worship or instruction in section 8505 of the ESEA; and
    (C) Regarding activities in section 8526 of the ESEA (prohibited uses of funds); and
(10) The selection of a school attendance area or schools under subsections (a) and (b) of section 1113 of the ESEA, except that the Department may grant a waiver to allow a school attendance area or school to participate in activities under Part A of Title I if the percentage of children from low-income families in the school attendance area or who attend the school is not more than 10 percentage points below the lowest percentage of those children for any school attendance area or school of the LEA that meets the requirements of subsections (a) and (b) of section 1113.

In addition, the section 8401 waiver authority does not apply to the Impact Aid Program (Title VII of the ESEA).

C. Elementary and Secondary Education Issues- Part B of the IDEA, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act (Section 504), and Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)

Following a disaster, once schools resume, elementary and secondary schools must ensure equal access to educational opportunities for students with disabilities, and provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE). Under IDEA, LEAs where private elementary schools and secondary schools are located must also ensure the provision of equitable services to eligible students with disabilities enrolled by their parents in those private schools. (34 CFR §§ 300.130-300.144). The Department currently has no legal authority to waive IDEA requirements, except for the requirement to maintain State financial support for special education and related services, as explained in question C-9 below. Therefore, the following questions primarily address best practices for SEAs, LEAs, and schools when addressing extended school closures as a result of a disaster.

C-1. Is an LEA required to continue to provide FAPE to students with disabilities during a school closure caused by a disaster?

The IDEA, Section 504, and the ADA do not specifically address a situation in which elementary and secondary schools are closed for an extended period of time because of exceptional circumstances, such as a disaster.

If an LEA closes its schools because the functioning or delivery of educational services is disrupted, and does not provide any educational services to the general student population, then an LEA would not be required to provide services to students with disabilities during that same period of time. Once school resumes, the LEA must make every effort to provide special education and related services to the child in accordance with the child's individualized education program (IEP) or, for students entitled to FAPE under Section 504, consistent with a plan developed to meet the requirements of Section 504. The Department understands there may be exceptional circumstances that could affect how a particular service is provided. In addition, an IEP Team and, as appropriate to an individual student with a disability, the personnel responsible for ensuring FAPE to a student for the purposes of Section 504, would be required to make an individualized determination as to whether compensatory services are needed to make up for any skills that may have been lost because of an extended school closure.

If an LEA continues to provide educational opportunities to the general student population during a school closure, the school must ensure that students with disabilities also have equal access to the same opportunities, including the provision of FAPE. (34 CFR §§ 104.4, 104.33 (Section 504) and 28 CFR § 35.130 (Title II of the ADA)). SEAs, LEAs, and schools must ensure that, to the greatest extent possible, each student with a disability can be provided the special education and related services identified in the student's IEP developed under IDEA, or a plan developed under Section 504. (34 CFR §§ 300.101 and 300.201 (IDEA), and 34 CFR § 104.33 (Section 504)).

C-2. In the event of a school closure due to a disaster, how might educational services be provided to students with disabilities?

Schools should consider ways of ensuring that continuing education activities (i.e., services provided during a school closure) are accessible to students with disabilities when they are provided to the general education population. Technology may afford students, including students with disabilities, an opportunity to have access to high-quality educational instruction during an extended school closure, especially when continuing education must be provided through distance learning. If schools are providing educational opportunities to the general student population, SEAs and LEAs are required to provide the services and accommodations needed for students with disabilities to have an equal opportunity to participate in a distance-learning program. (34 CFR § 104.4, 104.33 (Section 504) and 28 CFR § 35.130 (Title II of the ADA)).

C-3. What must a school do if it cannot provide services in accordance with a student's IEP or Section 504 plan?

If a school continues to provide instruction to the general school population during an extended closure due to a disaster, but is not able to provide services to a student with a disability in accordance with the student's IEP, the student's IEP Team determines which services can be provided to appropriately meet the student's needs. The IEP Team may meet by teleconference or other means to determine if some, or all, of the identified services can be provided through alternate or additional methods. Appropriate personnel responsible under Section 504 must take similar actions regarding a student who has a Section 504 plan. Additionally, under IDEA, eligible students enrolled by their parents in private schools who have services plans would need similar consideration and actions. If there has been an extended school closure, once school resumes, a student's IEP Team, or appropriate personnel under Section 504, must determine whether, and to what extent, compensatory services are needed consistent with the respective applicable requirements. (See Q&A C-5). (34 CFR §§ 300.320-300.324 (IDEA) and 34 CFR §§ 104.33-104.35(c) (Section 504)).

C-4. In the event that a school is closed for an extended period of time due to a disaster, would an IEP Team be required to meet? Would an LEA be required to conduct an evaluation of a student with a disability?

IEP Teams are not required to meet in person while schools are closed. IEP Teams may continue to work with parents and students with disabilities during such school closures and offer advice, as needed. If an evaluation of a student with a disability requires a face-to-face meeting or observation, the evaluation would need to be delayed until school reopens. Evaluations and reevaluations that do not require face-to-face assessments or observations may take place while schools are closed, if the parent consents. These same principles apply to similar activities conducted by appropriate personnel for a student with a disability who has a plan developed under Section 504 or who is being evaluated under Section 504.

C-5. What steps must be taken to serve a student with a disability who may have lost skills as a result of an extended absence from school due to a disaster?

The student's IEP Team (or appropriate personnel under Section 504) must make an individualized determination as to whether, and to what extent, it may be necessary to provide compensatory education. (34 CFR §§ 300.320-300.324 (IDEA), and 34 CFR §§ 104.33-104.35 (Section 504)).

Compensatory services may be necessary when there is a decline in the student's skills that occurred as a result of a student not receiving services during an extended closure due to a disaster.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The student's IEP Team also must review the student's IEP and determine whether any other changes to the IEP are needed as a result of the extended absence from school. (34 CFR § 300.324(b)(1)). An IEP Team may consider using informal assessments to determine whether there have been changes in a student's performance. Similarly, the appropriate personnel under Section 504 must also review the student's plan developed under Section 504 to determine whether any other changes are needed as a result of a prolonged absence from school. (34 CFR § 104.35(c)).

C-6. What steps must a school district unaffected by a disaster take in order to serve a student with a disability who relocates to that school district? What if the child's family does not have a copy of the child's current IEP in this situation?

During such a difficult time, as schools attempt to locate or preserve records and work to rebuild school facilities, the Department recognizes the challenges associated with serving students who are displaced from their current school as a result of a disaster. For children with disabilities, the requirements under the IDEA related to student transfers do not contain specific exceptions due to disasters or situations where a school is unable to provide educational services to students. IDEA contains specific provisions governing IEPs and services for students with disabilities who transfer to a new school district within the same State or a different State in the same school year. (34 CFR § 300.323(e)-(g)). While different requirements apply to within-State and out-of-State transfers, students with IEPs must receive FAPE through the provision of services comparable to those described in the child's IEP from the previous public agency until, in the case of an in-State transfer, the new school district implements an IEP for the student. In the case of an out-of-State transfer, the new school district conducts an evaluation if determined necessary and implements a new IEP, if appropriate. The new school district must take steps to attempt to obtain the child's records from the previous school district, if such records exist, and the previous school district must attempt to promptly respond to the records request. (34 CFR § 300.323(g)). If a child's family relocates to a new school district in a different State, and the new school district believes that the child has a disability, but the parents cannot provide a copy of the child's IEP or the previous school district has not provided a copy of the child's IEP, the new school district may provide the child with special education and related services through a temporary IEP, subject to the parent's agreement. Recipient LEAs also are responsible for providing FAPE consistent with the requirements of Section 504 to students with disabilities who are in the jurisdiction of the LEA.

C-7. Is an LEA required to provide equitable services to parentally placed private school students with disabilities during an extended school closure due to a disaster? How should the LEA communicate with these private schools?

LEAs with students with disabilities parentally placed in private schools should have, during the required consultation process with private school officials under section 612(a)(10)(A)(iii) of the IDEA, established procedures and strategies, including a communication process that will be implemented in the event of an extended school closure. Planning for this effort may require establishing a new strategy to be employed during the extended closure. LEAs should coordinate such planning with appropriate private school officials to make sure that they have access to information related to equitable services for their eligible students.

C-8. How should a State impacted by a disaster report data on its FFY 2017 IDEA Part B SPP/APR?

The Department recognizes the damaging effects of disasters on impacted LEAs and their impact on LEAs' ability to report data. In developing the State's FFY 2017 IDEA Part B SPP/APR (which covers the period July 1, 2017 through June 30, 2018), the State should include for each indicator that it is relevant to, information that discusses the extent to which any LEAs that were affected by a disaster were unable to meet applicable timelines or where the collection of valid and reliable data was not possible. Please include any other relevant information for the Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) to take into account.

C-9. Does the Department have the authority to waive the requirement to maintain State financial support for special education and related services due to a disaster?

Yes. The Secretary may waive, one fiscal year at a time, the requirement under Part B of the IDEA that States not reduce the amount of State financial support for special education and related services for children with disabilities if doing so would be equitable due to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances, such as a disaster or unforeseen decline in the financial resources of the State. (34 CFR § 300.163(c)(1)). A State that wishes to seek such a waiver would contact its State Lead in OSEP for technical assistance.

D. Issues Related to Services for Infants and Toddlers under Part C of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA)

Part C of the IDEA provides funds to the State LA to make early intervention services available to all eligible infants and toddlers with disabilities and their families living within the State. These services are provided in a variety of settings, including the child's home, daycare, preschools, and community centers. The following questions and answers primarily address the best practices for the State LA and its local EIS programs and providers when faced with unforeseen programmatic circumstances due to a disaster.

D-1. Are the State LA or EIS program or provider required to continue providing early intervention services to infants and toddlers with disabilities under Part C of the IDEA if the offices are closed due to the impacts of a disaster?

If the offices of the State LA or the EIS program or provider are closed, then services under Part C of the IDEA would not need to be provided to infants and toddlers with disabilities and their families during that period of time. If the LA's offices are open but the offices of the EIS program or provider in a specific geographical area are closed due to public health, flooding and/or safety concerns as a result of destruction in the area, the EIS program or provider would not be required to provide services during the closure.

If the local EIS program or provider's offices remain open, but IDEA Part C services cannot be provided in a particular location (such as in the child's home) by a particular EIS provider, then the LA should take reasonable steps to identify alternatives for continuing services. For example, services may be provided in an alternate location, using a different EIS provider, identifying other parent or community resources, or through alternate means, such as through teleconference or consultative services to the parent (if feasible).

D-2. What steps must be taken if early intervention services are not provided for an extended period of time to an infant or toddler with a disability under Part C of the IDEA?

Once the offices re-open and/or EIS programs and providers are able to provide services, the service coordinator and EIS providers for each child must resume providing the services on the child's Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP) as soon as possible. (20 U.S.C. 1435(a)(4) and 1436; 34 CFR § 303.342(e)). For children who did not receive early intervention services for an extended period of time, once services resume, the service coordinator and EIS providers must determine if the child's service needs have changed, determine whether the IFSP Team should review the child's IFSP to identify whether any changes are needed, and consider whether compensatory services are needed. (20 U.S.C. 1436; 34 CFR § 303.342(b)). The IFSP team may meet by teleconference or other means to review the IFSP if conditions warrant or if the family requests a periodic review. Id.

D-3. What steps can be taken to resume the provision of early intervention services after a family has been displaced and has relocated, and what can be done if early intervention records cannot be located or accessed?

The Department recognizes the disruption to families and challenges to providers in continuing to provide early intervention services to families who are in a new location as a result of a natural disaster. Once early intervention services can be provided, if a family is in a new location, the first step is to contact the EIS program or provider where the child was receiving IDEA Part C services to obtain a copy of the child's early intervention record and most recent IFSP (with parent consent, if needed under 34 CFR § 303.414). If the child's records cannot be located or accessed due to circumstances relating to a disaster, a State may provide IDEA Part C services if parental consent is obtained by using an interim IFSP under 20 U.S.C. 1436(c) and 34 CFR § 303.345, until such time as the records establishing eligibility and the child's IFSP are available or, in the case of no records being available or a new family initially referred to IDEA Part C, such time as an evaluation and assessment can be conducted to determine eligibility.

D-4. Does IDEA allow for flexibility in meeting the 45-day timeline for conducting a child's initial evaluation, assessment, and IFSP meeting?

While the Department does not have the authority to waive the IDEA Part C 45-day timeline requirement in 34 CFR § 303.310(a), this timeline includes two allowable exceptions. These exceptions apply if the child or parent is unavailable due to exceptional family circumstances or a natural disaster; or if the parent has not provided consent despite documented, repeated attempts by the LA or EIS provider to obtain parental consent. (34 CFR § 303.310(b)). Both of these exceptional circumstances may apply in situations where a family has been displaced as a result of a disaster. In these situations, the LA or EIS program or provider must document application of the exception in the child's early intervention records. (34 CFR § 303.310(c)(1)). In situations such as a natural disaster, when families and providers are displaced and when offices are closed, delays can be expected. States must complete the initial evaluation, assessment, and IFSP meeting as soon as the exceptional family circumstance no longer exists and parental consent is obtained. (34 CFR § 303.310(c)(2)). As mentioned in question D-3, if appropriate, an interim IFSP may be put into place with parent consent under 34 CFR § 303.345 to provide IDEA Part C services before the evaluation or assessment is completed.

D-5. How should the State report data on its Federal Fiscal Year (FFY) 2017 State Performance Plan/Annual Performance Report (SPP/APR) for IDEA Part C?

The Department recognizes the damaging effects of recent natural disasters on EIS programs and providers and the infants and toddlers and families who are served by those programs. In developing the FFY 2017 SPP/APR (which covers the period July 1, 2017, through June 30, 2018) under Part C of the IDEA, the State should include for each indicator that it is relevant to, information that discusses the extent to which any EIS programs that were affected by the recent hurricanes, were unable to meet applicable timelines or where the collection of valid and reliable data was not possible. Please include under Indicators 1, 7, and 8 any documented exceptional family circumstances and other relevant information for OSEP to take into account.

E. Adult Education and Career and Technical Education Program Issues

E-1. May States receive a one-year waiver of their maintenance of effort (MOE) requirements for adult education and career and technical education programs if a disaster causes a disruption in services?

Yes. Section 241(b)(4) of the Adult Education and Family Literacy Act (AEFLA) authorizes the Secretary to waive a State's MOE requirement for not more than one fiscal year if "the Secretary determines that a waiver would be equitable due to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances, such as a natural disaster." Similarly, section 311(b)(2) of the Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act of 2006 (Perkins IV) allows the Secretary to waive a State's MOE requirement due to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances (such as Hurricane Harvey, Hurricane Irma or Hurricane Maria) that affect a State's ability to meet such requirements.

E-2. May States and local recipients renegotiate their agreed-upon performance levels for career and technical education programs if there are extended closures due to a disaster?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Yes, if the devastation from a disaster makes it excessively difficult to meet performance goals. Section 113(b)(3)(A)(vii) of Perkins IV provides the Secretary with the authority to renegotiate annual performance goals if certain unanticipated circumstances arise. (See the Office of Career, Technical, and Adult Education's Questions and Answers Regarding Perkins IV Non-Regulatory Guidance, Version 3 (Questions B-40 through B-45), https://s3.amazonaws.com/PCRN/docs/Compiled_List_of_QAs-8-8-16.docx).

E-3. Will a State be subject to a financial sanction if it is not able to submit its performance report, as required under the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA), by the report due date because of a disaster?

No. In accordance with WIOA's implementing regulations at 34 CFR § 463.185(b), a State will not be subject to a financial sanction if it does not submit a complete performance report by the report due date as a result of exceptional circumstances outside of the State's control, including a disaster.

In the event that a State is not able to submit a complete performance report by the report due date, the State must notify the Secretary of Labor or Secretary of Education as soon as possible, but no later than 30 days prior to the established deadline for submission, of a potential impact on the State's ability to submit its performance report in order to not be considered failing to report. In circumstances where unexpected events occur less than 30 days before the established deadline for submission of the performance report, the Secretaries of Labor and Education will review requests for extending the reporting deadline in accordance with their Departments' procedures. (See 34 CFR § 463.185(c)).

F. Postsecondary Education Issues Generally

This section discusses the waivers and other forms of relief the Department may provide to postsecondary institutions and other postsecondary program participants regarding Federal education requirements during an extended school closure as a result of a disaster, such as a hurricane, that disrupts the functioning or delivery of educational services. For additional information, see the guidance posted at the following Web address: https://ifap.ed.gov/ifap/disaster.jsp.

F-1. What should institutions do if a disaster disrupts the delivery of educational services?

Institutions should have alternatives for the delivery of educational programs for use during an extended closure due to a hurricane or other disaster. These alternatives could include creating or expanding distance learning opportunities, either through existing institutional capacity or through agreements with other institutions. Any written agreements with other institutions should be put in place as soon as possible so that they are available to address the needs of students, including students with disabilities. The requirements for these types of agreements for purposes of Federal Student Aid (FSA) programs can be found in 34 CFR § 668.5.

Because the ADA and Section 504 also prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability, institutions that receive Federal financial assistance or that are covered by the ADA must ensure that students with disabilities have equal access to educational opportunities. This includes plans for distance learning. Institutions should prepare strategies to ensure that students with disabilities have equal access to these programs. These include strategies for providing reasonable accommodations such as auxiliary aids and services and modifications to academic requirements where necessary to enable these students to access distance learning programs. (34 CFR § 104.44; 28 CFR §§ 35.130(b)(7) and 35.160).

Institutions should have plans ready to serve all students residing on campus, or to perform other functions if the campus itself is used for other purposes by the State or local community. Emergency preparedness and emergency response programs must also be accessible to individuals with disabilities. For additional information, see "An ADA Guide for Local Governments: Making Community Emergency Preparedness and Response Programs Accessible to People with Disabilities," available at the following website: http://www.ada.gov/emergencyprepguide.htm.

F-2. What should an institution do if it is unable to properly administer its Federal student assistance programs under Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (HEA) due to a disaster?

If an institution determines that it is, or will be, unable to properly administer its Title IV programs (including continuation of its educational programs) as a result of a disaster, it should immediately contact the FSA School Participation Division in the Department for further guidance. The contact information can be found at the following web address: https://ifap.ed.gov/ifap/helpContactInformationDetailedList.jsp?contactname=School%20Participation%20Division.

F-3. What steps should institutions take if incoming students are unable to complete high school graduation requirements due to extended closures caused by a disaster and its disruptions to the functioning or delivery of educational services?

Under institutional eligibility requirements for the Department's Federal student financial aid programs (34 CFR §§ 600.4(a)(2), 600.5(a)(3), and 600.6(a)(2)), institutions participating in those programs must admit as regular students only persons who have a high school diploma, have the recognized equivalent of a high school diploma, or are beyond the age of compulsory school attendance in the State in which the institution is physically located. Accordingly, institutions are strongly encouraged to consult with the high school the student was attending to best address a plan for the student to receive the high school diploma or its equivalent. The Department recognizes this may be a difficult task, particularly for students attending high school in a different State from the State in which the institution is located; however, officials at the high school will be the most aware of any modifications or waivers provided by the SEA or LEA.

F-4. What if an institution's accreditation is up for renewal during an extended closure due to a disaster and the accrediting agency cannot complete its work on time?

The Secretary urges accrediting agencies to establish reasonable written policies (if they do not already have such policies) to extend accreditation or pre-accreditation if an institution is closed as a direct result of a disaster. Generally, the Department will consider policies granting extensions of accreditation or pre-accreditation due to expire within three months of a disaster or the deferral of already-pending accreditation actions as reasonable and consistent with good practice. For institutional eligibility purposes, the Department will accept reasonable extensions of existing accreditation or pre-accreditation even if granted by an agency that lacks a plan for extended closures.

F-5. What if an institution's application to be recertified to participate in the FSA program is not submitted timely because of a disaster?

The Department will consider extending the institution's Program Participation Agreement if the institution has been impacted by a disaster. Institutions that need an extension should contact the School Participation Division of FSA.

G. Issues Related to the Administration of the Federal Student Aid Programs

G-1. What if an institution closes for several weeks during an academic year and it is not possible to reschedule instructional time?

If, as a result of a disaster, an institution is temporarily closed for an extended period of time that impacts the length of its academic year, the Department, through the FSA School Participation Division, will assist the institution to determine the continued eligibility of its programs and its students for HEA Title IV assistance. The Secretary may permit institutions with academic years of 30 weeks or longer to shorten their academic years to not less than 26 weeks, on a case-by-case basis under section 481(a) of the HEA, and 34 CFR § 668.3.

G-2. What can an institution do to mitigate the impact that a disaster may have on the financial aid that students receive?

To reduce the potential impact of a disaster on student financial aid, the Department suggests the following:

- Professional Judgment: Section 479A of the HEA specifically provides the financial aid administrator (FAA) the authority to use professional judgment to make adjustments to the cost of attendance or to the values of the items used in calculating the Expected Family Contribution (EFC) to reflect a student's special circumstances. The Secretary encourages FAAs to use professional judgment to reflect more accurately the financial need of students and families affected by a disaster. The use of professional judgment is discussed in the Department's FSA Handbook, which can be accessed at: https://ifap.ed.gov/ifap/byAwardYear.jsp?type=fsahandbook&awardyear=2016-2017.

- Refunds and Re-Enrollment: The Department strongly encourages institutions to provide a full refund of tuition, fees, and other institutional charges, or to provide credit in a comparable amount against future charges, for students who withdraw from school as a direct result of a disaster. The Department also urges institutions to consider providing easy and flexible re-enrollment options to such students.
- Satisfactory Academic Progress: When a student fails to meet the institution's satisfactory academic progress standards due to a disaster, the institution may apply the "other special circumstances" exception provision in 34 CFR § 668.34(a)(9)(ii).
- Return of Title IV Funds: If a student withdraws from school because of a disaster, the institution must perform the return of HEA Title IV funds calculations in accordance with 34 CFR § 668.22, as it must for any student who withdraws. Institutions should not include the days the school was not offering classes due to the disaster in either the numerator or denominator of the calculation.
- Late Disbursements: The Department's disbursement regulations allow, under certain conditions and within certain time frames, for a late disbursement of Title IV funds when the late disbursement was not the fault of the student. These regulations would permit a disbursement of Title IV funds to accommodate students affected by a disaster (see 34 CFR § 668.164(j)).

G-3. What relief from the requirements in the Student Assistance General Provisions regulations may the Department provide to institutions, and how may institutions go about requesting this relief?

If appropriate, the Department may provide the following relief to institutions:

- Cash Management: The Secretary will work with institutions affected by a disaster to address specific problems arising from regulatory requirements regarding credit balances, notices and authorizations, excess cash, and the handling of Direct Loan Fund Proceeds (see 34 CFR part 668, subpart K). Please contact the FSA School Participation Division for assistance.
- Campus Security Report and Equity in Athletics Disclosure Report: If an institution is unable to provide the Department with its crime and fire statistics or its Equity in Athletics Disclosure Report by the established deadlines because its administrative capability is directly impacted by a disaster, the Department will consider adjusting the reporting deadlines (see 34 CFR §§ 668.41, 668.46, and 668.47). This also includes the dissemination of an Annual Security Report to the school's community by October 1 of each year. Please contact the FSA School Participation Division for assistance.
- Enrollment Reporting: If an institution is unable to report enrollment information to the National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS) according to the established schedule as a direct result of a disaster, it must contact NSLDS Customer Service at 1-800-999-8219 to modify its reporting schedule.

G-4. What administrative relief can the Department provide to institutions regarding campus-based programs?

Section 413D(d) of the HEA penalizes institutions for underutilization of their campus-based funding. Section 413D(d)(2) of the HEA, however, authorizes the Secretary to waive this penalty for an institution if enforcing the reduction would be contrary to the interest of the program. The Secretary will consider the failure of an institution to expend funds due to a disaster as an appropriate basis for granting a waiver (see 34 CFR § 673.4(d)(3)).

The HEA also requires an institution to use at least seven percent of the total amount of its Federal Work Study (FWS) allocation to compensate students employed in community service (42 U.S.C. 2753(b)(2)(B)). The Secretary may waive this requirement if the Secretary determines that enforcing it would cause a hardship for students at the institution. The Secretary will consider the failure of an institution to expend at least seven percent of its FWS allocation for community service due to a disaster that disrupts the functioning or delivery of educational services as an appropriate basis for a waiver (see 34 CFR § 675.18(g)).

In addition, the Secretary will consider extending the Fiscal Operations Report and Application to Participate reporting deadlines on a case-by-case basis if a disaster affects an institution's ability to meet these required reporting deadlines. To receive such consideration, institutions may contact the FSA School Participation Division.

G-5. What administrative relief can the Department provide to institutions regarding enrollment reporting requirements?

Any borrower who maintains an "in-school" status but who is unable to complete course requirements or enroll in classes because of an issue caused by a disaster will be considered to have maintained his or her "in-school" status during the relevant period of nonattendance until the borrower withdraws or re-enrolls in the next regular enrollment period (whichever is earlier). The relevant period of nonattendance should not require a borrower to enter or use any of his or her grace period.

This guidance does not affect the way an institution should report a borrower's enrollment status.

G-6. What administrative relief will the Department provide to institutions regarding the Direct Loan program?

Generally, institutions are required to submit the Direct Loan promissory note, loan origination record, and initial disbursement record for a loan to the Secretary no later than 15 days following the date of the initial disbursement of the loan. If an institution is severely affected by a disaster, however, the Secretary, through the appropriate FSA School Participation

Division, will take steps to address an institution's concerns about meeting these deadlines on a case-by-case basis (see 34 CFR § 685.301(c)).

G-7. What administrative relief can the Department provide to institutions regarding the Federal Perkins Loan program?

In the event that services are severely disrupted or disrupted for an extended period of time due to a disaster, the Secretary, through the appropriate FSA School Participation Division, will consider addressing concerns about the billing and collection activities required on a case-by-case basis (see 34 CFR Part 674, Subpart C). If an institution contracts with a third-party servicer for this activity, that billing and collecting service of prior year borrowers should continue. The Secretary, through the appropriate FSA School Participation Division, will also consider addressing, on a case-by-case basis, concerns about borrowers in initial and post-deferment grace periods (see 34 CFR § 674.42).

The Secretary will consider authorizing the institution to grant forbearance, for a period not to exceed three months, to a borrower who is in repayment, but is unable to continue to repay the loan due to the disaster. A borrower may request this forbearance orally, or in writing, and is not required to submit documentation to be considered eligible for this forbearance. This period of forbearance will be counted toward the three-year maximum limit on the number of years of forbearance that may be granted to a borrower. In order to receive forbearance beyond the three-month period, the borrower must make a written request to the institution and provide supporting documentation (see 34 CFR § 674.33).

G-8. What administrative relief can the Department provide to loan holders regarding enrollment status requirements for Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL)?

In accordance with the Department's regulations, loan holders may grant an administrative forbearance to FFEL borrowers who have been adversely affected by a disaster. The holder may grant forbearance for up to three months and must document the reasons why it granted the forbearance, but does not need to obtain supporting documentation or a signed written agreement from the borrower (see 34 CFR §§ 682.211(f)(11)). The Secretary believes that it is in the best interest of the student loan programs to consider each Federal Stafford or PLUS loan that is in an "in-school" or in an "in-school" deferment status on the date the borrower's attendance at the institution was interrupted due to a natural disaster to be in an "in-school" status. Each loan should continue in that status until the borrower withdraws or re-enrolls in the next regular enrollment period, whichever is earlier. This period of nonattendance due to a disaster should not result in a borrower entering or using any of his or her grace period on the loan (see 34 CFR §§ 682.209(a) and 682.210).

The Secretary will treat Direct Loan borrowers in accordance with the administrative forbearance guidance discussed above.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

G-9. What administrative relief can the Department provide institutions regarding the Federal Pell Grant and Iraq-Afghanistan Service Grant disbursement records?

Normally, an institution must submit to the Department a Federal Pell Grant and Iraq-Afghanistan Service Grant disbursement record for a student not later than 15 calendar days after the institution makes a payment to the student. In addition, if the institution becomes aware that a previously reported payment or expected payment for a student is no longer accurate, the institution must submit an accurate disbursement record for that student to the Department not later than 15 calendar days after becoming aware of the need to make the change. The Secretary will consider revising these deadlines for institutions affected by a disaster (see 34 CFR § 690.83).

H. Vocational Rehabilitation (VR) Program Issues

This section discusses the forms of relief the Department may provide to State VR agencies, as well as recommendations to ensure the continuity of services during an extended agency/office closure as a result of a disaster that disrupts the program's functioning or delivery of VR services.

H-1. What flexibility can the Department provide regarding program and fiscal reporting?

Understanding that case management systems may be impacted, OSERS' Rehabilitation Services Administration (RSA) fiscal and data staff can assist grantees impacted by disasters by providing flexibility in the reporting of program and fiscal data. VR agencies should contact the OSERS/RSA Fiscal and Data units as issues arise.

H-2. Will a State be subject to a financial sanction if it is not able to submit its performance report, as required under WIOA, by the report due date because of a disaster?

No. In accordance with WIOA's implementing regulations at 34 CFR § 361.185(b), a State will not be subject to a financial sanction if it does not submit a complete performance report by the report due date as a result of exceptional circumstances outside of the State's control, including a disaster.

In the event that a State is not able to submit a complete performance report by the report due date, the State must notify the Secretary of Labor or Secretary of Education as soon as possible, but no later than 30 days prior to the established deadline for submission, of a potential impact on the State's ability to submit its performance report in order to not be considered failing to report. In circumstances where unexpected events occur less than 30 days before the established deadline for submission of the performance report, the Secretaries of Labor and Education will review requests for extending the reporting deadline in accordance with their Departments' procedures. (See 34 CFR § 361.185(c)).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

H-3. What should VR agencies do if a disaster disrupts the delivery of VR services?

The Department recognizes the challenges associated with serving individuals and youth with disabilities who are displaced as a result of a disaster. As VR agencies attempt to continue to serve individuals with disabilities, including youth with disabilities, who have been displaced, we recommend that VR agencies identify alternative means for delivering VR services for use during an extended closure due to a disaster. These alternatives can include consolidating or expanding responsibilities of local VR offices in order to effectively serve program participants and communicating with community rehabilitation providers to ensure that the VR service needs of individuals with disabilities are not unduly or unnecessarily delayed.

H-4. Does the Department have the authority to waive the maintenance of effort requirement under the State VR program due to a natural disaster?

Yes. A State may request a waiver or modification of the maintenance of effort requirement if it fails to meet that requirement because of certain specific circumstances, such as natural disasters. The Secretary may grant a waiver or modification of the maintenance of effort shortfall when an action would be an equitable response to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances affecting the State. A State that wishes to seek such a waiver should contact its State liaison in OSERS/RSA for technical assistance.

H-5. Does the Department have the authority to waive the match requirement under the VR State program?

No. Without a legislative change by Congress, the Department is unable to waive the VR match requirement.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

March 26, 2020

The Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services' Rehabilitation Services Administration (RSA) issues this Questions and Answers document to outline its plans for implementing performance accountability provisions under title I of the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) as State Vocational Rehabilitation (VR) agencies seek to provide continuity of operations for individuals with disabilities in the current COVID-19 environment.

In the near future, RSA plans to issue additional Questions and Answers related to the VR program and State Supported Employment Services program to respond to other questions that State VR agencies have recently asked. State VR agencies should contact their RSA State Liaison with additional questions. Additional information specific to the COVID-19 pandemic may be found online at https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus.

WIOA Performance Accountability

Q1. What steps will RSA take to account for a decrease in State performance in Program Year (PY) 2019 because of extended program closures during the pandemic? Will States be penalized for performance issues?

The U.S. Departments of Education and Labor (Departments) will not make any determinations of performance success or failure based on PY 2019 performance data, submitted by October 1, 2020. RSA did not establish performance levels with VR agencies for PY 2019. Therefore, without this data, we will not have the requisite data to determine whether a State has met its performance levels. The Departments will take the effect of the COVID-19 outbreak into consideration in reviewing PY 2019 data. RSA encourages State VR agencies to remain in contact with RSA related to the impact of COVID-19 on service delivery and performance outcomes.

RSA Technical Assistance Circular 20-02[1] states that the first year for which performance success or failure can be determined for some indicators applies to PY 2020; this data is reported by October 1, 2021. The Departments will continue to closely monitor the effect of the COVID-19 outbreak and its impact on services and performance outcomes.

Q2. Will RSA consider delaying performance negotiations, as State offices may be closed for an unspecified period of time?

At this time, the U.S. Department of Education (the Department) anticipates that the negotiations process will proceed, and we will conduct negotiations with States. The Department anticipates negotiated levels of performance will be included in the approved Unified or Combined State Plans for the four-year period covering PYs 2020 through 2023. The Department is aware that some State offices are closed, and some States have implemented remote work. The Department is also aware that State agency leadership and management staff may be involved with COVID-19 response efforts. As a result, the Department will be as flexible as possible in conducting negotiations, including scheduling meetings at times that meet States' needs.

FEDERAL OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FOH Publication 15.3598

Dear Chief State School Officer:

The President recently signed into law the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act), which provides substantial relief to children and educators who have been profoundly affected by the Novel Coronavirus Disease (COVID-19). In addition to providing an influx of Federal funds to help Governors, State educational agencies (SEAs), and local educational agencies (LEAs) address some of the devastating effects of COVID-19 on the learning environment, this Act authorizes the Secretary to provide additional flexibility through waivers of specific requirements. As you know, on March 20, 2020, Secretary DeVos provided flexibility with respect to certain requirements in Title I, Part A of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (ESEA) regarding statewide assessments, accountability and school improvement, and some reporting requirements for the 2019-2020 school year due to the unprecedented challenges you are facing due to COVID-19. In light of this on-going national emergency declared by the President under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act, and to help you in your planning for how to resume education, today I am writing to offer additional flexibilities under the CARES Act.

Pursuant to the authority under the CARES Act, I am inviting you to request waivers of the following provisions:

- Section 1127(b) of Title I, Part A of the ESEA so that your SEA may waive, more than once every three years, if necessary, the 15 percent carryover limitation in ESEA section 1127(a) for FY 2019 Title I, Part A funds.
- Section 421(b) of the General Education Provisions Act (GEPA) to extend the period of availability of FY 2018 funds for programs in which your SEA participates under its approved consolidated State plan until September 30, 2021, and the period of availability of FY 2019 funds for these same programs until September 30, 2022.
- Section 4106(d) of Title IV, Part A of the ESEA related to LEA needs assessments for the 2019-2020 school year.
- Section 4106(e)(2)(C), (D), and (E) of Title IV, Part A of the ESEA with respect to content-area spending requirements for the 2019-2020 school year.
- Section 4109(b) of Title IV, Part A of the ESEA with respect to the spending limitation for technology infrastructure for FY 2018 and FY 2019 Title IV, Part A funds.
- Section 8101(42) of the ESEA, which defines "professional development," for activities funded for the 2019-2020 school year.

Through these waivers, your SEA would be able to approve an LEA to carry over more than 15 percent of its Title I, Part A funds, even if the LEA had received approval to exceed this limitation in the past three years. Your SEA would be able to extend for itself and its subgrantees the period of availability of programs included in your consolidated State plan to allow additional time to obligate those funds. Your SEA would also be able to permit LEAs and consortia of LEAs to use their Title IV, Part A funds to best meet their needs without regard to content-area spending requirements, spending limits on technology infrastructure, or completing a needs assessment. Finally, by waiving the definition of professional development, your SEA and subgrantees would be able to conduct time-sensitive, one-time or stand-alone professional development focused on supporting your educators to provide effective distance learning.

I want to continue to thank you for the work you are doing to help ensure learning continues for all your State's students in this difficult time. The U.S. Department of Education is committed to supporting you with every tool at our disposal and extending all flexibilities within our control.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

If you are interested in receiving one or more of these waivers on behalf of your SEA and its subgrantees, please submit your request to OESE.Titlei-a@ed.gov. I am enclosing a streamlined template for your convenience that includes a checklist to designate the waivers you desire. My staff is committed to providing a response within one business day to any SEA that submits a waiver request using this optional waiver template. I recognize that you have many questions and will need additional supports, including the possibility of additional waivers, as you deal with the COVID-19 national emergency.

If you have additional questions or concerns regarding these waivers, contact us at OESE.Titlei-a@ed.gov. If you have general questions regarding COVID-19 and how the Department can best support you, please contact COVID19@ed.gov. I encourage you to continue to monitor information regarding COVID-19 from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention at www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/ and at our website, www.ed.gov/coronavirus.

Thank you for your continued commitment to our nation's students during these extraordinary circumstances.

Distance Learning Tools for Learners in CTE

As we've entered this uncharted territory in education students, educators, and parents have done incredible things overnight in the space of online learning and instruction. One of the challenges we've heard about here at the Department is about how do to take career and technical education and work-based learning online? Here are some examples of non-governmental organizations and companies that are providing assistance in this space.

TechforLearners.org, a new resource for educators, administrators, and public officials who are turning to online learning as coronavirus response disrupts the school year. TechforLearners.org is a searchable online database of education technology tools that facilitate online classrooms and teaching, allowing educators to search for free and discounted tools and services by grade level, product type, and subject matter. ## APPENDIX H: CORONAVIRUS PLAN

NOTIFICATION PLAN

If it is necessary to contact all employees to provide them emergency instructions, the Department's Send Word Now automated emergency notification system and OCTAE's established call tree protocols will be used. Once the Coronavirus Plan is initiated by the Assistant Secretary or his/her designate, every supervisor will be contacted and will, in turn, contact each member of his/her staff. Based on the Assistant Secretary's guidance, supervisors would provide information to staff on future communications concerning work activities and general welfare issues.

CONVENE STAFF VIA REMOTE ACCESS

If necessary, OCTAE staff will be placed on approved telework agreements to work at alternate locations such as their homes. A central location (or several) such as a hotel meeting room, community hall or school may be used to serve as an area where employees may meet, exchange information, receive work assignments, and perform work if the situation permits. If it is not possible for employees to convene in this manner, employees will work from their homes.

FLEXIBLE AND SCALABLE RESPONSE

The BCP is a flexible and scalable plan that can be used to address the full spectrum of implementation of staff in telework arrangements at levels of 30%, 60%, 80%, and 100%. The plan may be activated fully or partially, depending on the nature and impact of the spread of the virus.

The OCTAE Principal Officer has the authority to activate the plan and to order the response actions taken, as discussed in Section 3.3.

This template is an example that may be used for the submission of a request for waivers of the requirements noted below. Note that the Department will accept, process, and approve any appropriate waiver request; for assistance please contact OESE.Titlei-a@ed.gov. However, the Department plans to respond in one business day to a State educational agency that follows the example and provides all necessary information in an accessible way.

The Honorable Frank T. Brogan
Assistant Secretary for Elementary and Secondary Education
Office of Elementary and Secondary Education
U.S. Department of Education
400 Maryland Avenue, SW
Washington, DC 20202

Dear Assistant Secretary Brogan:

I am writing to request waivers, pursuant to section 3511 of Division A of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act, P.L. 116-136 (H.R. 748), 34 Stat. 281 (Mar. 27, 2020)), of the requirements enumerated below on behalf of the State educational agency (SEA) and its subgrantees (e.g., local educational agencies (LEAs)).

State:

Please check all that apply:

- ☐ Carryover limitation in section 1127(b) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (ESEA) for Federal fiscal year (FY) 2019 Title I, Part A funds (i.e., the Title I, Part A funds that will become carryover funds on October 1, 2020): the requirement that limits an SEA's ability to grant to its LEAs a waiver of the 15 percent Title I, Part A carryover limitation in section 1127(a) more than once every three years.

Period of availability in section 421(b) of the General Education Provisions Act (GEPA): to extend the period of availability of FY 2018 funds[1] for programs in which the SEA participates under its approved consolidated State plan until September 30, 2021, and the period of availability of FY 2019 funds for these same programs until September 30, 2022. The programs are (check all that apply):

[1] If an SEA has already obligated all of its FY 2018 funds for a program and checks the box for that program, the Department will interpret the request as applying to FY 2019 funds only.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- ☐ Title I, Part A of the ESEA (Improving Basic Programs Operated by LEAs), including the portions of the SEA's Title I, Part A award used to carry out section 1003 school improvement and Title I, Part D, Subpart 2
- ☐ Title I, Part B of the ESEA (State Assessment Formula Grants)
- ☐ Title I, Part C of the ESEA (Education of Migratory Children)
- ☐ Title I, Part D, Subpart 1 of the ESEA (Prevention and Intervention Programs for Children and Youth Who Are Neglected, Delinquent, or At Risk)
- ☐ Title II, Part A of the ESEA (Supporting Effective Instruction)
- ☐ Title III, Part A of the ESEA (English Language Acquisition, Language Enhancement, and Academic Achievement)
- ☐ Title IV, Part A of the ESEA (Student Support and Academic Enrichment Grants)
- ☐ Title IV, Part B of the ESEA (21st Century Community Learning Centers)
- ☐ Title V, Part B, Subpart 2 of the ESEA (Rural and Low-Income School Program)
- ☐ McKinney-Vento Education for Homeless Children and Youth Program

The following requirements in Title IV, Part A of the ESEA for the 2019-2020 school year (check those that apply):

- ☐ Needs assessment requirements in section 4106(d).
- ☐ Content area spending requirements in section 4106(e)(2)(C), (D), and (E): the requirements to use a minimum percentage of Title IV, Part A funds for activities under sections 4107, 4108 and 4109.
- ☐ Spending limitation in section 4109(b): the 15 percent limit on the use of funds under section 4109 to purchase technology infrastructure for FY 2019 and any available FY 2018 carryover funds.

- ☐ The definition of professional development in section 8101(42) of the ESEA for the 2019-2020 school year.

I am requesting these waivers because it is not possible to obligate funds on a timely basis as originally planned due to extensive school closures in the State. In addition, my State needs increased flexibility in the use of Title IV, Part A funds to support continuity of services due to these school closures. The school closures also present unique needs with respect to professional development for educators to meet the immediate needs of children whose education has been severely disrupted by school closures. These closures are in response to extraordinary circumstances for which a national emergency has been duly declared by the President of the United States under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act and will protect the health and safety of students, staff, and our communities.

In seeking these waivers, I assure that:

- ☐ The SEA will use, and ensure that its subgrantees use, funds under the respective programs in accordance with the provisions of all applicable statutes, regulations, program plans, and applications not subject to these waivers.

- ☐ The SEA will work to mitigate, and ensure that its subgrantees work to mitigate, any negative effects, if any, that may occur as a result of the requested waivers.

- ☐ The SEA will provide the public and all LEAs in the State with notice of, and the opportunity to comment on, this request by posting information regarding the waiver request and the process for commenting on the State website.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

[CHIEF STATE SCHOOL OFFICER]

March 24, 2020

Dear State CTE Directors:

I first want to acknowledge the unprecedented challenges that each of you are facing in response to the COVID-19 pandemic and commend you on the steps you have taken, and continue to take, to ensure the health and success of your students. Over the past few weeks, via emails and Town Hall conference calls, we have heard the many questions and issues you are facing regarding your Perkins-funded State formula and discretionary grant programs in the current environment.

Below, we begin by answering the most critical questions that center around the forthcoming State and local application submission and approval flexibilities. We will update this document with additional questions and responses as quickly as we can. And, at any time you have a new and emerging question, please reach out to your State's Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRC) or send an email to our career and technical education (CTE) mailbox at cte@ed.gov. Thank you for your commitment to the over 12 million CTE students we serve!

Sincerely,

Scott Stump

1. Is the Department providing additional time for States to submit their Perkins V State Plans, which are currently due on April 15, 2020?

   Yes. While, we encourage States that are prepared to meet the original April 15 application deadline to do so, we recognize that a number of Perkins eligible recipients (States) may have difficulty submitting their Perkins V State Plans, covering fiscal years (FY) 2020-23, by that due date as a result of the challenging circumstances surrounding the novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19). For example, some States may need additional time to secure State Board approval and/or provide an opportunity for Governor review and joint signature.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Accordingly, we are providing the following flexibilities for States that need additional time to submit their Perkins V State Plans.

- If the State is able to submit its State plan by June 15, 2020, OCTAE expects to complete review and approval of the Plan by June 30, 2020, and provide the State its first installment of FY2020 Perkins funds on schedule on July 1, 2020.

- If the State is unable to submit its State plan by June 15, 2020, the Department will use the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to extend the duration by three months, through September 30, 2020, of the State's One-Year Transition Plan, covering FY 2019-20 (July 1, 2019 – June 30, 2020). For such State, OCTAE will issue the first installment of FY 2020 Perkins funds on schedule on July 1, 2020, and provide a condition on the State's July 1 grant award that the State will submit its full Perkins V State Plan by September 15, 2020. The September 15 date will allow time for OCTAE to approve the State's plan prior to making the State's supplemental FY 2020 Perkins award on schedule on October 1, 2020. These States may continue to seamlessly administer their Perkins V grants, including issuing FY 2020 Perkins subgrants to local recipients.

We ask that States needing these flexibilities keep their Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRC) up to date on the status of their State plan submission. Our office commits to working diligently to review and approve State plans as quickly as possible.

2. May a State award a Perkins V grant to a subrecipient without having fully approved its local application for funding?

Under CFR § 76.708, a State may authorize an applicant (local recipient) for a subgrant to obligate funds on the later of the following two dates: (1) the date that the State may begin to obligate funds; or (2) the date that the applicant (local recipient) submits its application to the State in substantially approvable form. While the State always has the authority and flexibility to determine what constitutes a substantially approvable application, the State may further refine its definition in light of the unprecedented impact of COVID-19 on local recipients.

3. May a State provide local recipients additional time to complete their local applications, covering FY 2020-23, due to the impact of COVID-19?

For local recipients that are unable to submit a substantially approvable application to their State for approval by the State's due date for local applications (July 1, 2020 for most States), the Department is using the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to enable States to extend the duration of the local recipient's One-Year Local Application, covering FY 2019-20, by three months. For such a local recipient, the State will issue its FY 2020 Perkins subgrant on schedule to enable the local recipient to continue to seamlessly administer its Perkins V programs and services. States should inform their Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRCs) as soon as possible of the revised due dates for the submission of local applications.

PROGRAM MEMORANDUM OCTAE 20-3

DATE: March 26, 2020

TO: State Directors of Adult Education

FROM: Scott Stump /s/
Assistant Secretary

RE: Adult Education and Family Literacy Act and COVID-19 – Frequently Asked Questions

Purpose

The purpose of this memorandum is to provide clarification, flexibilities, and supports to State Adult Education Offices as States seek to provide continuity of operations for adult learners in the current COVID-19 environment.

Performance/Negotiations

Q1. What steps will the Office of Career, Technical, and Adult Education (OCTAE) take to account for a decrease in State performance in Program Year (PY) 2019 because of extended program closures during the pandemic? Will States be penalized for performance issues?

The U.S. Departments of Education and Labor (Departments) will not make any determinations of performance success or failure based on PY 2019 performance data, submitted by October 1, 2020. OCTAE did not have sufficient data available to develop and apply the statistical model required by the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act[1] (WIOA) at the time PY 2019 performance targets were established for each State. Therefore, without this data, we will not have the requisite data to determine whether a State has met its performance levels.

The Departments will take the effect of the COVID-19 outbreak into consideration in reviewing PY 2019 data. OCTAE encourages State adult education agencies to monitor the effect of the outbreak on its performance and address the impacts in its annual narrative report submitted in December 2020.

OCTAE Program Memorandum 20-2[2] states that the first year for which performance success or failure can be determined for some indicators applies to PY 2020; this data is reported by October 1, 2021. The Departments will continue to closely monitor the effect of the COVID-19 outbreak and its impact on services and performance outcomes.

Q2. Will OCTAE consider delaying performance negotiations, as State offices may be closed for an unspecified period of time?

At this time, the Department of Education anticipates that the negotiations process will proceed, and we will conduct negotiations with States. The Department anticipates negotiated levels of performance will be included in the approved Unified or Combined State Plans for the four-year period covering PYs 2020 through 2023. The Department is aware that some State offices are closed, and some States have implemented remote work. The Department is also aware that State agency leadership and management staff may be involved with COVID-19 response efforts. As a result, the Department will be as flexible as possible in conducting negotiations, including scheduling meetings at times that meet States' needs.

Scheduled Grant Competitions

Q3. For States with requests for proposals currently out for July 1 award, what options will be available to States to prevent a gap in service delivery? (i.e., can states extend current contracts for a short period of time to prevent a gap in service delivery? Can states extend the closing date of the grant competition? With the current disruptions, it would be difficult to have applications reviewed and approved by July 1).

Yes, because of the potential for broad impact of COVID-19 on both State administration of Adult Education and Family Literacy Act (AEFLA) programs and service delivery by eligible providers, an AEFLA State eligible agency may modify its plans for competitions involving Fiscal Year (FY) 2020 AEFLA funds. While the "direct and equitable access" requirement in section 231(c) of WIOA would generally preclude extensions of AEFLA grants and contracts, under these difficult and unique circumstances related to COVID-19, States may (1) suspend FY 2020 competitions and extend current eligible providers' grants and contracts for a one-year period, or (2) adjust competition timelines, delaying the award of grants or contracts to successful AEFLA applicants until a later date than planned and extending current grants and contracts accordingly.

State eligible agencies should follow State procedures in notifying current grantees, current applicants, and potential applicants of such changes, ensuring that all current and potential applicants receive information about these changes in the same way the notice of availability of funds was made public.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Given that the very purpose of either postponing competitions for a year or adjusting current competition deadlines would be to help prevent disruptions in service delivery, States should work to ensure that any changes in FY 2020 competition plans do not result in a gap in service delivery.

Q4. Is a State required to request approval from OCTAE to extend current grants/contracts if a competition is suspended or delayed?

No, States are not required to request approval from OCTAE if a competition is modified or postponed. In accordance with 2 CFR 200.407, OCTAE is providing States with prior approval to make changes to their scheduled AEFLA competitions because of disruptions and other effects of COVID-19. While States need not seek this approval from OCTAE, States must notify their Area Coordinators of any changes in competition plans, including plans to extend current eligible providers' grants or contracts.

Distance Learning

Q5. Will OCTAE provide flexibility regarding the reporting of hours for distance learning? What types of instruction can States allow programs to report as instructional hours or seat time, and how do we track these virtual learning hours on these various platforms?

States may, but are not required to, report in the National Reporting System (NRS) the time that participants spent on distance learning activities. Recording hours is useful for determining when a post-test should be administered. The NRS Technical Assistance (TA) Guide[3] helps States that record distance learning hours by providing options for reporting "proxy hours" rather than classroom instructional hours. States that wish to record proxy contact hours may do so using one of the following models:

- Clock Time Model, which assigns contact hours based on the elapsed time that a participant is connected to, or engaged in, an online or stand-alone software program that tracks time;
- Teacher Verification Model, which assigns a fixed number of hours of credit for each assignment based on teacher determination of the extent to which a participant engaged in, or completed, the assignment; or
- Learner Mastery Model, which assigns a fixed number of hours of credit based on the participant passing a test on the content of each lesson. Participants work with the curriculum and materials and, when they feel they have mastered the material, take a test. A high percentage of correct answers (typically 70%–80%) earns the credit hours attached to the material.

The NRS TA Guide further advises that the State should use the proxy contact hour model appropriate for the distance education curricula being used.

[3] The National Reporting System Technical Assistance Guide is available at https://nrsweb.org/policy-data/nrs-ta- guide.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Q6. Is it possible to waive the requirement of 12 hours of "actual contact" for distance education for reporting purposes for the remainder of the 2019-2020 program year?

All eligible individuals receiving services under AEFLA must complete at least 12 hours of instruction to be considered a "participant" under 34 CFR 463.150. Program closures due to COVID-19 have resulted in placing students in distance learning settings, and those students may be in various stages of completing the initial 12 contact hours needed for them to be considered a participant.

One category of students who have been transferred from classroom-based instruction to distance learning services have already completed the initial 12 contact hours needed to be considered a participant. These individuals do not need to complete another 12 contact hours, as they have already met the 12-hour threshold.

Another category of students who have been transferred from classroom-based instruction to distance learning services have not yet completed the initial 12 contact hours needed to be considered a participant. These individuals may continue to accrue the required 12 contact hours through telephone, video, teleconference, or online communication, where participant and program staff can interact and through which participant identity is verifiable.

Students newly enrolled in distance learning programs and who were not receiving classroom instruction before COVID-19-related program closures must meet the 12-hour requirement before being considered an AEFLA participant. The 12-hour enrollment requirement for distance learners can be met by accruing contact hours through telephone, video, teleconference, or online communication, where participant and program staff can interact and through which participant identity is verifiable.

Q7. What flexibilities will OCTAE allow in terms of assessment, as it relates to education practices? Will States be given the option to conduct virtual pre/post-assessment testing?

OCTAE recognizes that local programs may not be able to conduct in-person testing of students enrolled in distance learning programs during program closures due to the COVID-19 outbreak. If local programs are unable to conduct in-person testing, States may be able to report measurable skill gains (MSG) using other measures available to AEFLA programs under the MSG indicator, such as credit completion or high school completion. The inability to test distance learning students may adversely impact the number of MSGs a State would report in the NRS. States that are experiencing declines in testing rates should put procedures in place to identify students who were not tested due to an inability to conduct in-person testing, so that the impact of the COVID-19 outbreak can be appropriately tracked.

Additionally, States may choose to develop procedures to implement virtual test proctoring. States that choose to use this flexibility must have procedures to ensure that (1) the student who is testing can be properly identified, (2) any approved test (i.e., any test determined suitable for use in the NRS) that is used is properly secured, and (3) the virtual proctor can properly administer the test. Test security measures would require that only secure electronic versions of a test are administered by a virtual proctor and are deemed secure by the test publisher.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Q8. For States that did not have online learning options in place in their WIOA contracts with local programs, can the State give permission to local programs to provide online learning to students in lieu of classroom instruction on a short-term emergency basis?

What flexibilities do States have to change their existing distance learning policies?

Yes, consistent with a State's grant administration policies, a State may allow currently funded AEFLA grantees to administer distance learning programs, even if the State does not have an established State distance learning policy in place. However, OCTAE urges States to put a policy in place (or change current policy) as soon as feasible. Statewide distance learning policies help address how the State intends to collect instructional hours (if it chooses to do so), as well as convey its policies on student assessment. State policies may also convey important information about distance learning curricula that local programs can use to provide distance education.

Q9. Can the State pay teachers for this online instruction?

Yes, States can use AEFLA funds to pay teachers delivering distance learning programs if such programs deliver adult education and literacy activities allowable under AEFLA.

Dear Chief State School Officer:

The President recently signed into law the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act), which provides substantial relief to students and educators who have been profoundly affected by the Novel Coronavirus Disease (COVID-19). I understand that many of you have questions about the CARES Act, especially available funding, and the U.S. Department of Education (Department) will be providing additional information to you as soon as possible. In the interim, you are welcome to submit questions by e-mail to CARES-ACT-questions@ed.gov.

The CARES Act authorizes the Secretary of Education to grant waivers requested by State educational agencies (SEAs) of section 421(b) of the General Education Provisions Act (GEPA), often referred to as the "Tydings Amendment," to extend the period of availability of State formula grant funds authorized by the Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act (Perkins Act) and the Adult Education and Family Literacy Act (AEFLA). We understand that the disruptions caused by COVID-19 may make it difficult for SEAs and their subgrantees to obligate their Fiscal Year (FY) 2018 and 2019 funds within the 27 months provided by section 421(b) of GEPA. If this is a concern for your State, I invite you to request a waiver or waivers to extend the availability of these funds for obligation by sending your request to AskOCTAE@ed.gov. I am enclosing a streamlined template for your convenience that you may use to request these waivers. My staff is committed to providing a response within one business day to any SEA that submits a waiver request using this optional waiver template.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

I want to thank you for the work you are doing to help ensure learning continues for all your State's students in this difficult time. The Department is committed to supporting you with every tool at our disposal and extending all flexibilities within our control.

If you have additional questions or concerns regarding these waivers, contact us at AskOCTAE@ed.gov. We are also interested in your input on other requirements related to the Perkins Act or AEFLA for which you anticipate a need for a waiver that are not currently covered by the CARES Act. If you have suggestions, please submit those to AskOCTAE@ed.gov. If you have general questions regarding COVID-19 and how the Department can best support you, please contact COVID19@ed.gov. I encourage you to continue to monitor information regarding COVID-19 from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention at www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/ and at our website, www.ed.gov/coronavirus.

Thank you for your continued commitment to our nation's students during these extraordinary circumstances.

Sincerely,

4. Is the Department providing additional time to States for submission of Perkins V State Plans, which are currently due on April 15, 2020?

We recognize that a number of Perkins eligible recipients (States) may have difficulty submitting their Perkins V State Plans, covering fiscal years (FY) 2020-23, by the April 15 deadline as a result of novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19). For example, some States may need additional time to finalize their plan, secure State Board approval and/or provide an opportunity for Governor review. As a result, we are providing flexibility for States that need additional time to complete and submit their Perkins V State Plans.

In light of the challenging circumstances related to COVID-19, OCTAE is offering following options for State Plan submission:

- A State that has completed its Perkins V State Plan and would like early review and approval by the Department, may submit its plan by the April 15, 2020 deadline.
- A State that is unable to meet the April 15, 2020 deadline, should submit its State Plan as soon as possible.
  - If the State is able to submit by June 15, 2020, OCTAE expects to complete review of the Plan by June 30, 2020 in order to provide the State its initial Perkins FY2020 installment on July 1, 2020.
  - If the State is unable to submit by June 15, 2020, the Department will use the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to extend by three months, through September 30, 2020, the duration of the State's One-Year Transition Plan. For such a State, the Department will issue the first installment of its FY 2020 Perkins V grant award on July 1 based on the approval of the One-Year Transition plan and a condition on the July 1 award that the State will submit its full Perkins V State Plan by September 15, 2020. These States may continue to seamlessly administer their Perkins V grants, including issuing FY 2020 subgrants to local recipients.

We ask that States inform their Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRC) as soon as possible of the date they anticipate submitting their State Plan. Our office will work diligently to avoid any delays in reviewing plans and to issue Perkins V grant awards on schedule on July 1.

5. May a State extend the duration of a local subrecipient's One-Year Transition Plan beyond June 30, 2020 if the local subrecipient needs additional time to complete its local Perkins V plan due to the impact of COVID-19?

The Department is using its transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to enable States to provide a three-month extension to the timeline for local recipients to submit their local applications for approval. States should inform their PRC as soon as possible of the revised deadline for the submission of local applications.

This template is an example that may be used for the submission of a request for waivers of the requirement noted below. Note that the Department will accept, process, and approve any appropriate waiver request; for assistance please contact AskOCTAE@ed.gov. However, the Department plans to respond in one business day to a State educational agency that follows the example and provides all necessary information in an accessible way.

U.S. Department of Education
400 Maryland Avenue, SW
Washington, DC 20202

Dear Assistant Secretary Stump:

Pursuant to section 3511 of Division A of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act, P.L. 116-136 (H.R. 748), 34 Stat. 281 (Mar. 27, 2020)), I am writing to request a waiver, on behalf of the State educational agency (SEA) and its subgrantees (e.g., local educational agencies (LEAs), institutions of higher education) of section 421(b) of the General Education Provisions Act (GEPA) to extend the period of availability of Fiscal Year (FY) 2018 funds for programs in which the SEA participates as the eligible agency until September 30, 2021, and the period of availability of FY 2019 funds for these same programs until September 30, 2022. The programs are (check the programs for which the waiver is requested):

- ☐ State grants authorized by Title I of the Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act of 2006
- ☐ State grants authorized by Title II of the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act, the Adult Education and Family Literacy Act

I am requesting this (these) waiver(s) because it is not possible to obligate funds on a timely basis as originally planned due to extensive school and program closures in the State. These closures are in response to extraordinary circumstances for which a national emergency related to the COVID-19 pandemic has been duly declared by the President of the United States under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act, P.L. 100-707, and will protect the health and safety of students, staff, and our communities.

In seeking these waivers, I assure that:

(1) The SEA will use, and ensure that its subgrantees use, funds under the respective programs in accordance with the provisions of all applicable statutes, regulations, program plans, and applications not subject to these waivers;

(2) The SEA will work to mitigate, and ensure that its subgrantees work to mitigate, any negative effects, if any, that may occur as a result of the requested waiver(s); and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(3) The SEA will provide the public and all subgrantees in the State with notice of, and the opportunity to comment on, this request by posting information regarding the waiver request and the process for commenting on the State website.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

[CHIEF STATE SCHOOL OFFICER]

The Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services' Rehabilitation Services Administration (RSA) issues this Questions and Answers document to outline its plans for implementing performance accountability provisions under title I of the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) as State Vocational Rehabilitation (VR) agencies seek to provide continuity of operations for individuals with disabilities in the current COVID-19 environment.

In the near future, RSA plans to issue additional Questions and Answers related to the VR program and State Supported Employment Services program to respond to other questions that State VR agencies have recently asked. State VR agencies should contact their RSA State Liaison with additional questions. Additional information specific to the COVID-19 pandemic may be found online at https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus.

WIOA Performance Accountability

Q1. What steps will RSA take to account for a decrease in State performance in Program Year (PY) 2019 because of extended program closures during the pandemic? Will States be penalized for performance issues?

The U.S. Departments of Education and Labor (Departments) will not make any determinations of performance success or failure based on PY 2019 performance data, submitted by October 1, 2020. RSA did not establish performance levels with VR agencies for PY 2019. Therefore, without this data, we will not have the requisite data to determine whether a State has met its performance levels. The Departments will take the effect of the COVID-19 outbreak into consideration in reviewing PY 2019 data. RSA encourages State VR agencies to remain in contact with RSA related to the impact of COVID-19 on service delivery and performance outcomes.

RSA Technical Assistance Circular 20-02[2] states that the first year for which performance success or failure can be determined for some indicators applies to PY 2020; this data is reported by October 1, 2021. The Departments will continue to closely monitor the effect of the COVID-19 outbreak and its impact on services and performance outcomes.

[2] RSA TAC 20-02: Negotiations and Sanctions Guidance for the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) Core Programs is available at: https://www2.ed.gov/policy/speced/guid/rsa/subregulatory/tac-20-02.pdf

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Q2. Will RSA consider delaying performance negotiations, as State offices may be closed for an unspecified period of time?

At this time, the U.S. Department of Education (the Department) anticipates that the negotiations process will proceed, and we will conduct negotiations with States. The Department anticipates negotiated levels of performance will be included in the approved Unified or Combined State Plans for the four-year period covering PYs 2020 through 2023. The Department is aware that some State offices are closed, and some States have implemented remote work. The Department is also aware that State agency leadership and management staff may be involved with COVID-19 response efforts. As a result, the Department will be as flexible as possible in conducting negotiations, including scheduling meetings at times that meet States' needs.

6. Is the Department providing additional time to States for submission of Perkins V State Plans, which are currently due on April 15, 2020?

   We recognize that a number of of Perkins eligible recipients (States) may have difficulty submitting their Perkins V State Plans covering fiscal years (FY) 2020-23. by the April 15 deadline as a result of novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19). For example, some States may need additional time to finalize their plan, secure State Board approval and/or provide an opportunity for Governor review. As a result, we are providing flexibility for States that need additional time to complete and submit their Perkins V State Plans.

   In light of the challenging circumstances related to COVID-19, OCTAE is offering following options for State Plan submission:

- A state that has completed its Perkins V State Plan and would like early review and approval by the Department, may submit its plan by the April 15, 2020 deadline;
- A State that is unable to meet the April 15, 2020 deadline, should submit its State Plan at the earliest possible date.
  - If the State is able to submit by June 15, 2020, OCTAE expects to complete review of the Plan by June 30, 2020 in order to provide the State its initial Perkins FY2020 installment on July 1, 2020.
  - If the State is unable to submit by June 15, 2020, the Department will use the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to extend by three months, through September 30, 2020, the duration of the State's One-Year Transition Plan. For such a State, the Department will issue the first installment of its FY 2020 Perkins V grant award on July 1 based on the approval of the One-Year Transition plan and a condition on the July 1 award that the State will submit its full Perkins V State Plan by September 15, 2020. These States may continue to seamlessly administer their Perkins V grants, including issuing FY 2020 subgrants to local recipients.

We ask that States inform their Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRC) as soon as possible of the date they anticipate submitting their State Plan. Our office will work diligently to avoid any delays in reviewing plans and to issue Perkins V grant awards on schedule on July 1.

7. May a State extend the duration beyond June 30, 2020 of a local subrecipient's One-Year Transition Plan if the local subrecipient needs additional time to complete its local Perkins V plan due to the impact of COVID-19?

   The Department is using its transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to enable State to provide a three-month extension to the timeline for local recipients to submit their local applications for approval. States should inform their PRC as soon as possible of the revised deadline for the submission of local applications.

Career Technical Education Priorities for the Relaunching America's Workforce Act

On behalf of the Association for Career and Technical Education (ACTE), the nation's largest not-for-profit association committed to the advancement of education that prepares youth and adults for career success, and Advance CTE, the nation's longest-standing not-for-profit that represents State Directors and leaders responsible for secondary, postsecondary and adult Career Technical Education (CTE) across all 50 states and U.S. territories, this memo summarizes input we have gathered from our memberships related to their emerging and forecasted needs as a result of the COVID-19 (Coronavirus) pandemic.

This pandemic is taxing and testing our nation's educational, digital and technology infrastructure. The CTE community, which is the talent pipeline for many of our nation's skilled workers, is not immune to these challenges. The following recommendations include suggestions for new investment priorities, as well as needed waivers or flexibilities in federal statute or policy.

New investments priorities

- Distance Learning: With widespread closures of educational institutions across the country, whether temporary or for the remainder of the instructional year, distance learning is being relied on as the primary means for delivering all instruction, including CTE. Based on discussions with our members, we know there are significant discrepancies among states and local communities with regard to their experience, expertise, digital and physical infrastructure to successfully carry out distance education. In addition, the delivery of lab-based or hands-on CTE courses can be extremely difficult to operationalize in a distance learning environment. In general, postsecondary institutions have more experience and infrastructure to transition to online delivery of instruction. The challenge for postsecondary systems is to deliver at scale and across content areas, both now in the state of emergency and to prepare for the forecasted, significant influxes of students seeking reskilling. Most secondary education is delivered in person. As such, the shift to online instruction has had a more significant short-term impact on secondary schools. Secondary schools have been working tirelessly to put in place the equipment and online curriculum and instruction platforms to deliver instruction, and to find creative solutions to applied tasks. A major focus of any new investment must support this massive systemic shift in educational delivery to include professional development of instructors and ensuring equitable access to curriculum, laptops and broadband access by learners.

- Digital and Physical Infrastructure: The necessary digital and physical infrastructure to provide CTE programs via distance education at scale does not exist in our country and is especially lacking in rural communities and for low-income populations. Challenges to be addressed include ensuring that every learner has a computer (or digital device) and access to reliable internet access sufficient to support synchronous online instruction. At a systems level, investments are needed to expand existing online learning platforms or invest in new platforms, ensuring that these platforms are secure and protect student privacy. To meet the current and future demand, an infusion of new funding is needed to expand online classrooms to reach every secondary, postsecondary and adult CTE student, regardless of zip code.

- Professional Development: The rapid shift to delivering instruction via distance education has placed an immediate burden on the shoulders of secondary and postsecondary instructors. Many are making this shift with limited experience or expertise. Widespread and extended professional development is needed to ensure that instructors are able to successfully utilize digital learning tools and platforms to provide learners with CTE instruction and educational experiences to meet the competencies defined in state and industry standards. Further, to retain those new to the teaching profession, ongoing support and mentoring is needed.

- Equity and Access: The Coronavirus has shined a light on the nation's digital divide, which has only expanded in the past few weeks given the growing reliance on online delivery of education. It is imperative that states and local communities have the resources to ensure that every school system and postsecondary institution is equipped to provide a high-quality education to each learner. Flexibilities in the existing Perkins funding formula can ensure rural areas and others in need are able to obtain the funding necessary to expand access.

- Work-Based Learning: Work-based learning is one of the key components of high-quality CTE programs. The full impact of the pandemic on our nation's economy has not yet been calculated. Based on historical experience, we know work-based learning placements are more difficult during a recession. Investments are needed to incubate innovation in the delivery of virtual work-based learning; to expand equitable access to and scaling of workplace simulations; and to provide subsidies for employers and students to incentivize and support these experiences. Note: Perkins funds currently cannot be used for subsidies, nor are employers eligible grantees.

Requested statutory flexibility or waivers

Establish a Redistribution waiver (Perkins): One of the emerging challenges for local school districts and postsecondary institutions relates to the allocation of their remaining FY 2019 Perkins funds before the fiscal year ends on June 30. Many recipients had planned to use funds for activities near the end of the school year or in early summer. For example, funds may have been budgeted for Career and Technical Student Organization conferences, or professional development for educators. These activities have been cancelled or postponed until later in the summer or fall, leaving schools with additional funds remaining, but no real opportunity to spend those funds at the current time in ways that meet the original goals. Current Perkins law requires that any funds remaining at the end of the year be returned to the state and added to the formula for distribution among all recipients in the following year. Additional flexibility is needed to allow local recipients to keep this funding so that needs can still be met once school resumes, professional development is rescheduled, or other purchases can be made. Providing the Secretary the authority to waive Perkins Section 133(b) for one year would provide this needed flexibility.

Extend National Emergency Education Waivers to all Perkins eligible agencies (CARES): The CARES Act provided flexibility for national emergency education waivers to states (section 3511). This broad waiver authority was intended to cover all educational programs, including Perkins. However, the construction of the language extends the authority to state education agencies (SEA) and Indian tribes but excluded some agencies that administer Perkins. Currently, 13 states (CO, HI, ID, IN, KS, LA, MN, MT, ND, OK, WA, WI, WV), have selected a state agency other than the SEA to administer the state's Perkins funds. In order to have this flexibility extended to all state agencies that administer Perkins, a minor amendment is needed to this language or an additional waiver needs to be added to a future stimulus bill to extend the waiver flexibility to these agencies with regard to their oversight of Perkins. There are two places where the Perkins eligible agency should be added to the CARES legislative language, as noted below.

SEC. 3511. NATIONAL EMERGENCY EDUCATIONAL WAIVERS.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(a) In General. – Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary may, upon the request of a State educational agency, Perkins eligible agency or Indian tribe, waive any statutory or regulatory provision described under paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (b), and upon the request of a local educational agency, waive any statutory or regulatory provision described under paragraph (2) of subsection (b), if the Secretary determines that such a waiver is necessary and appropriate due to the emergency involving Federal primary responsibility determined to exist by the President under the section 501(b) of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5191(b)) with respect to the Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID–19).

(c) State And Local Requests For Waivers. –

(1) IN GENERAL. – A State educational agency, Perkins eligible agency, local educational agency, or Indian tribe that desires a waiver from any statutory or regulatory provision described under subsection (b)(2), may submit a waiver request to the Secretary in accordance with this subsection.

Rescind supplement not supplant provisions for one year (Perkins): Given the challenges facing states and locals in meeting the rapidly changing needs of learners, providing the Secretary of Education the ability to waive section 211(a) of Perkins, supplement not supplant provisions, for one program year would allow the flexibility to spend federal funding on identified and emergent needs without concern of violating this provision.

Expand pooling flexibility (Perkins): As states and local communities are creating solutions to support high school seniors in securing required credits, clinicals and competencies to successfully complete high school and transition to postsecondary education, flexible collaboration between secondary and postsecondary institutions will be necessary. States are looking at CTE-related "bridge" programs, expanding dual enrollment programs to allow high school students to participate in postsecondary CTE online offerings, etc. To provide for additional collaboration among the systems, we recommend expanding the pooling option allowed for in section 135(c) of Perkins , which is currently restricted to only pooling funds for professional development (the reference to subsection (b)(2). This could be accomplished by simply modifying the clause below by striking the (2).

(c) POOLING FUNDS.--An eligible recipient may pool a portion of funds received under this Act with a portion of funds received under this Act available to one or more eligible recipients to support implementation of programs of study through the activities described in subsection(b)~~(2).~~

Thank you for your support of CTE and for your consideration of these recommendations. If you have any questions, please feel free to reach out to Kimberly Green, Advance CTE's Executive Director at kgreen@careertech.org or Alisha Hyslop, ACTE's Director of Public Policy at ahyslop@acteonline.org.

Dear State CTE Directors:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

I first want to acknowledge the unprecedented challenges I know each of you are facing and commend you on the steps you have, are continuing to take to ensure the success of your students. Over the past few weeks, we have heard from you via emails and Town Hall conference calls the questions and issues regarding Perkins-funded State formula and discretionary grant programs in the current environment.

Below, we begin by answering the most critical questions which center around State Plan and local application submission and approval flexibilities. We will update this document with additional questions and responses as quickly as we can. And, at any time you have a new and emerging question, please reach out to your State's Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRC) or send an email to our CTE mailbox at cte@ed.gov. Thank you for your commitment to the over 12 million career and technical education students we serve!

This template is an example that may be used for the submission of a request for waivers of the requirements noted below. Note that the Department will accept, process, and approve any appropriate waiver request; for assistance please contact OESE.Titlei-a@ed.gov. However, the Department plans to respond in one business day to a State educational agency that follows the example and provides all necessary information in an accessible way.

The Honorable Frank T. Brogan
Assistant Secretary for Elementary and Secondary Education
Office of Elementary and Secondary Education
U.S. Department of Education
400 Maryland Avenue, SW
Washington, DC 20202

Dear Assistant Secretary Brogan:

I am writing to request waivers, pursuant to section 3511 of Division A of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act, P.L. 116-136 (H.R. 748), 34 Stat. 281 (Mar. 27, 2020)), of the requirements enumerated below on behalf of the State educational agency (SEA) and its subgrantees (e.g., local educational agencies (LEAs)).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

State:

Please check all that apply:

- ☐ Carryover limitation in section 1127(b) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (ESEA) for Federal fiscal year (FY) 2019 Title I, Part A funds (i.e., the Title I, Part A funds that will become carryover funds on October 1, 2020): the requirement that limits an SEA's ability to grant to its LEAs a waiver of the 15 percent Title I, Part A carryover limitation in section 1127(a) more than once every three years.

Period of availability in section 421(b) of the General Education Provisions Act (GEPA): to extend the period of availability of FY 2018 funds[4] for programs in which the SEA participates under its approved consolidated State plan until September 30, 2021, and the period of availability of FY 2019 funds for these same programs until September 30, 2022. The programs are (check all that apply):

- ☐ Title I, Part A of the ESEA (Improving Basic Programs Operated by LEAs), including the portions of the SEA's Title I, Part A award used to carry out section 1003 school improvement and Title I, Part D, Subpart 2
- ☐ Title I, Part B of the ESEA (State Assessment Formula Grants)
- ☐ Title I, Part C of the ESEA (Education of Migratory Children)
- ☐ Title I, Part D, Subpart 1 of the ESEA (Prevention and Intervention Programs for Children and Youth Who Are Neglected, Delinquent, or At Risk)
- ☐ Title II, Part A of the ESEA (Supporting Effective Instruction)
- ☐ Title III, Part A of the ESEA (English Language Acquisition, Language Enhancement, and Academic Achievement)
- ☐ Title IV, Part A of the ESEA (Student Support and Academic Enrichment Grants)
- ☐ Title IV, Part B of the ESEA (21st Century Community Learning Centers)
- ☐ Title V, Part B, Subpart 2 of the ESEA (Rural and Low-Income School Program)
- ☐ McKinney-Vento Education for Homeless Children and Youth Program

The following requirements in Title IV, Part A of the ESEA for the 2019-2020 school year (check those that apply):

- ☐ Needs assessment requirements in section 4106(d).
- ☐ Content area spending requirements in section 4106(e)(2)(C), (D), and (E): the requirements to use a minimum percentage of Title IV, Part A funds for activities under sections 4107, 4108 and 4109.
- ☐ Spending limitation in section 4109(b): the 15 percent limit on the use of funds under section 4109 to purchase technology infrastructure for FY 2019 and any available FY 2018 carryover funds.

- ☐ The definition of professional development in section 8101(42) of the ESEA for the 2019-2020 school year.

[4] If an SEA has already obligated all of its FY 2018 funds for a program and checks the box for that program, the Department will interpret the request as applying to FY 2019 funds only.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

I am requesting these waivers because it is not possible to obligate funds on a timely basis as originally planned due to extensive school closures in the State. In addition, my State needs increased flexibility in the use of Title IV, Part A funds to support continuity of services due to these school closures. The school closures also present unique needs with respect to professional development for educators to meet the immediate needs of children whose education has been severely disrupted by school closures. These closures are in response to extraordinary circumstances for which a national emergency has been duly declared by the President of the United States under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act and will protect the health and safety of students, staff, and our communities.

In seeking these waivers, I assure that:

- ☐ The SEA will use, and ensure that its subgrantees use, funds under the respective programs in accordance with the provisions of all applicable statutes, regulations, program plans, and applications not subject to these waivers.

- ☐ The SEA will work to mitigate, and ensure that its subgrantees work to mitigate, any negative effects, if any, that may occur as a result of the requested waivers.

- ☐ The SEA will provide the public and all LEAs in the State with notice of, and the opportunity to comment on, this request by posting information regarding the waiver request and the process for commenting on the State website.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

[CHIEF STATE SCHOOL OFFICER]

COVID-19 PANDEMIC: ROUND #2 QUESTIONS FROM THE FIELD REGARDING PERKINS V

I. Perkins V Formula Grants

A. State Plans

8. Is the Department providing additional time for States to submit their Perkins V State Plans, which are currently due on April 15, 2020? (Answered in Round #1 – 3-25-2020)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

9. Is the Department providing additional time for States to submit their Perkins V State Plans, which are currently due on April 15, 2020?

Yes. While, we encourage States that are prepared to meet the original April 15 application deadline to do so, we recognize that a number of Perkins eligible recipients (States) may have difficulty submitting their Perkins V State Plans, covering fiscal years (FY) 2020-23, by that due date as a result of the challenging circumstances surrounding the novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19). For example, some States may need additional time to secure State Board approval and/or provide an opportunity for Governor review and joint signature. Accordingly, we are providing the following flexibilities for States that need additional time to submit their Perkins V State Plans.

- If the State is able to submit its State plan by June 15, 2020, OCTAE expects to complete review and approval of the Plan by June 30, 2020, and provide the State its first installment of FY2020 Perkins funds on schedule on July 1, 2020.

- If the State is unable to submit its State plan by June 15, 2020, the Department will use the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to extend the duration by three months, through September 30, 2020, of the State's One-Year Transition Plan, covering FY 2019-20 (July 1, 2019 – June 30, 2020). For such State, OCTAE will issue the first installment of FY 2020 Perkins funds on schedule on July 1, 2020, and provide a condition on the State's July 1 grant award that the State will submit its full Perkins V State Plan by September 15, 2020. The September 15 date will allow time for OCTAE to approve the State's plan prior to making the State's supplemental FY 2020 Perkins award on schedule on October 1, 2020. These States may continue to seamlessly administer their Perkins V grants, including issuing FY 2020 Perkins subgrants to local recipients.

We ask that States needing these flexibilities keep their Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRC) up to date on the status of their State plan submission. Our office commits to working diligently to review and approve State plans as quickly as possible.

B. State Administration and Fiscal Responsibility

10. May a grantee or subgrantee continue to pay the salary and fringe benefits of an employee supported with Federal education funds during the period the employee is unable to work because his or her organization is closed due to COVID-19?

11. May a State cancel its on-site monitoring visits to local recipients for the current year?

Yes, States have considerable flexibility in how to structure monitoring cycles. Under 2 CFR § 200.331, a State has responsibility to monitor the activities of its local recipients as necessary to ensure that the subaward is used for authorized purposes, in compliance with Federal statutes, regulations, and the terms and conditions of the subaward; and that subaward performance goals are achieved. While a State could accomplish this through on-site monitoring, a State could, instead, monitor its local recipients remotely by reviewing financial and performance reports and providing training and technical assistance on program-related matters. In addition, a State could consider postponing upcoming monitoring events during a specified period of time (e.g. period of greatest impact of COVID-19 ), and subsequently include the entities that had monitoring postponed in the next year's cycle. A State always has full flexibility to determine how best to provide oversight, but especially in unforeseen times.

12. May a State extend its traditional academic year so that local Perkins recipients may continue to expend their funds?

    Yes. A State has the authority to define its academic year; Perkins V does not impact this local education issue. A State may extend its academic year to meet the needs of its local recipients consistent with relevant State law and policy.

13. If a conference, training, or other activity related to a Federal education grant is cancelled due to COVID-19, may Federal education funds be used to reimburse nonrefundable travel (e.g., conveyance or lodging) or registration costs that were properly chargeable to the Federal grant at the time of booking?

    Yes. A State and its local recipients must first seek to recover nonrefundable costs (e.g., travel, registration fees) associated with a Federal education grant from the relevant entity that charged the fee (e.g., airline, hotel, conference organizer). Some businesses are offering flexibility with regard to refunds, credits, and other remedies for losses due to the COVID-19 outbreak. If a State or local recipient is unable to recover the costs, the State or local grantee may charge the appropriate Federal education grant for the costs, provided the costs were reasonable and incurred in order to carry out an allowable activity under the grant.

C. Local Applications

14. May a State award a Perkins V grant to a local recipient without having fully approved its local application for funding? (Answered in Round #1 – 3-25-2020)

    Yes. Under CFR § 76.708, a State may authorize a local recipient applying for a subgrant to obligate funds on the later of the following two dates: (1) the date that the State may begin to obligate funds; or (2) the date that the local recipient submits its application to the State in substantially approvable form. The State has the authority and flexibility to determine what constitutes a substantially approvable application.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

15. May a State provide local recipients additional time to complete their local applications, covering FY 2020-23, due to the impact of COVID-19? (Answered in Round #1 – 3-25-2020)

For local recipients that are unable to submit a substantially approvable application to their State for approval by the State's due date for local applications (July 1, 2020 for most States), the Department is using the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to enable States to extend the duration of the local recipient's One-Year Local Application, covering FY 2019-20, by three months. For such a local recipient, the State will issue its FY 2020 Perkins subgrant on schedule to enable the local recipient to continue to seamlessly administer its Perkins V programs and services. States should inform their Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRC) as soon as possible of the revised due dates for the submission of local applications.

16. Does section 134(d) of Perkins V require a local recipient to conduct in-person consultation with a diverse body of stakeholders in order to complete the required comprehensive local needs assessment (CLNA)?

No. While we recognize the value of in-person consultation, given the circumstances surrounding COVID-19, we encourage local recipients to consult with stakeholders remotely, to the extent possible, in order to conduct their CLNAs and develop their local Perkins applications.

D. State Determined Performance Levels

11. How would a State revise the State Determined Performance Levels if there are no data to establish a new baseline?

Each State has the authority to develop its processes and procedures for establishing its baseline levels as it fully implements Perkins V for the first time for its State Determined Performance Levels (SDPLs) for the section 113 core indicators of performance. In the event that no data are available, a State may estimate a baseline using data from similar core indicators under the prior Perkins IV statute or any other valid and reliable data source.

Moreover, pursuant to section 113(b)(3)(A)(iii), if unanticipated circumstances arise in a State or changes occur related to improvement in data or measurement approaches, the eligible agency, at the end of a program year, may revise the State determined levels of performance.

E. Performance Data

12. Is there any flexibility with regard to the submission of performance data if schools are closed, students cannot complete the academic year, States cannot obtain data from closed school district offices, or similar problems impact performance data?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Department recognizes that State and local recipients may not be able to gather and report data on each of the section 113 Perkins core indicators of performance for the 2019-20 academic year. In those instances, the State and local recipients would report -1 in those data cells, indicating that data are not available.

II. Perkins V Discretionary Grants

A. Payment of Stipends

1. May a Native American Career and Technical Education Program (NACTEP) (discretionary) grantee continue to issue student stipends even as the college postpones or cancels classes and labs?

   Program Requirement 3 in the Notice Inviting Applications (NIA) for New Awards for fiscal year 2018 for the Native American Career and Technical Education Programs (NACTEP) provides that—(1) To be eligible for a stipend a student must—(i) be enrolled in a CTE project funded under this program; (ii) be in regular attendance in a NACTEP project and meet the training institution's attendance requirement; (iii) maintain satisfactory progress in his or her program of study according to the training institution's published standards for satisfactory progress; and (iv) have an acute economic need that—(A) prevents participation in a project funded under this program without a stipend; and (B) cannot be met through a work-study program. The regulation further stipulates that the amount of the stipend is calculated based on the number of hours the student actually attends CTE instruction. See Requirement 3(4). Because the stipend is directly tied to participation in the program, a stipend may continue to be issued only if the classes or labs are held remotely.

2. May a discretionary grantee, or its approved contractor(s), continue through the COVID-19 pandemic its project activities via remote or distance learning?

   Yes. The Department encourages schools to offer educational programs through distance instruction to all students including, students with disabilities, consistent with guidance issued by the Department.

3. What flexibilities exist for a discretionary grantee to carry over funds due to the cancellation or postponement of project activities?

   Pursuant to 2 CFR § 200.308(d) and EDGAR § 75.253(d)(1), unexpended funds at the end of one budget period may be used in the next budget period without any action by the Department or the grantee unless restricted by a condition of the award. If there is a large available balance, the Department may require a written explanation from the grantee, unless the balance can be explained by the budget.

OCTAE Proposed Talking Points for Higher Education Stakeholder Call
Presenter: Scott Stump, Assistant Secretary for Career, Technical, and Adult Education
5 Minutes
Thank you, Daniela! I want to echo the thanks of the Secretary and my colleagues for your commitment to putting the safety and futures of your students and faculty first when faced with unprecedented decisions. Over the past few weeks, via emails and Town Hall listening sessions, we have heard from State Career, Technical, and Adult Education leaders, and community college presidents. You have raised important questions and issues you are facing regarding Perkins and AEFLA-funded CTE and adult education programs. We will address all the questions gathered so far through sets of frequently asked questions on the Department's website at ed.gov/coronavirus. I will address some of the most critical questions you've asked today on this webinar. But definitely encourage you to look at our COVID-19 resources online for more detailed responses.
A number of you have asked questions about career and technical education specifically about Perkins V State plan and local application submission and approval dates. You have asked, will there be flexibility with the State plan and local application due dates? The answer is yes. While, we are encouraging States that are prepared to meet the original April 15 application deadline for Perkins V to do so, we recognize that a number of States may have difficulty submitting their plans by that due date. For example, some States may need additional time to secure State Board approval or to provide an opportunity for your Governor to review the plan. Accordingly, we are providing the flexibility for States that need additional time to submit their Perkins V State Plans while ensuring that States can receive their first installment of FY2020 Perkins funds on schedule on July 1, 2020.
Our office has also heard concerns from colleges and school districts, that they may not be able to complete their local application in time to receive Perkins funds when they become available

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

July 1. For local recipients that are unable to submit an application to their State for approval by July 1, the Department is using the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to enable States to extend the duration of the local recipient's One-Year Local Application, covering FY 2019-20, by three months. In that way, the State can issue its FY 2020 Perkins subgrant on schedule to enable the local recipient to continue to seamlessly administer its Perkins V programs and services. Our intent is to provide the flexibility needed for Perkins resources to be able to flow to State and local recipients as needed on July 1 and to allow colleges time to fully complete the local application including the comprehensive local needs assessment process in July, August, and September

For those of you who offer Adult Education programs supported by the Adult Education and Family Literacy Act funds, we have heard the concerns regarding state requests for proposal competitions that are currently underway and potential performance data issues due to extended program closures.

The U.S. Departments of Education and Labor (Departments) will take the COVID-19 outbreak into consideration in reviewing PY 2019 data. And will not make any determinations of performance success or failure based on PY 2019 performance data, submitted by October 1, 2020.

For States with Adult Education requests for proposals out and competitions currently under way. The Department has informed States that they may modify plans for competitions involving Fiscal Year (FY) 2020 AEFLA funds. Under these difficult and unique circumstances, States may (1) suspend FY 2020 competitions and extend current eligible providers' grants and contracts for a one-year period, or (2) adjust competition timelines, delaying the award of grants or contracts to successful AEFLA applicants until a later date than planned and extending current grants and contracts accordingly.

Thank you to the community college leaders on the call. Due to your unique role and mission, your institutions have prepared the vast majority of nurses, first responders, medical assistants and others who are on the front line of this pandemic. Please know that the Department and our office stand willing and ready to work with your staff and State leaders to provide the flexibility and assistance necessary to make our way together through this uncertain season.

Questions (and answers)

1. Can CTE programs with PPE (Healthcare, construction, cosmetology) donate these supplies to the healthcare system in our area even if it was purchased with federal funds?
    a. (Insert answer under development from OGC here)
2. Have you seen/heard of any best practices in teaching CTE content online or through distance education modalities?
    a. We've seen a number of colleges and systems getting creative. Kansas has shared several resources through their Board of Regents including leveraging help from industry providers that have started to offer their content for free in this transition period, UiPath, NC3 and Lincoln Electric for example.
3. How do we deal with our state licensing boards that may not allow students to use online instruction and still sit for licensure?
    a. We've started to see some states waiving some of those requirements, like SC. Still others have said they are exploring gubernatorial executive orders to allow students, particularly in the critical field of nursing, use online instruction and still be eligible to sit for licensure.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

4. As unemployment is skyrocketing, what can community colleges do to help position themselves to train the workforce needed to help America?
    a. Partnerships with business and industry and strong relationships that you have with your local workforce boards will serve your current and future students well as we look to the future and think about what will need to happen to retrain workers.

Under section 3511(d)(4) of the CARES Act, the Secretary is to submit a report to Congress with recommendations for additional needed waivers. On that note, OGC is compiling a Department-wide list of additional needed waiver authorities to submit to Congress in the Secretary's report.

The Secretary, through the Office of Career, Technical, and Adult Education, seeks authority to waive the following provisions (listed in priority order) in the two acts below:

Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act of 2006 (P.L 88-210)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1. Section 133(b)(1) requires that, in any academic year that an eligible recipient does not expend all of the amounts, the eligible recipient is allocated for such year under section 131 or 132, such eligible recipient shall return any unexpended amounts to the eligible agency for reallocation to local recipients. OCTAE is concerned that local eligible recipients will not be able to expend Perkins funds by June 30, 2020 and potentially, June 30, 2021 for activities and purchases planned but delayed or postponed.

2. Section 3511(a) and 3511(b)(1) of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act should be expanded to include other State agencies that serve as the Perkins eligible agency, in addition to the State education agency. This would provide the Secretary with the authority to grant "Tydings" waivers to all Perkins eligible agencies and extend the availability of FY 2018 Perkins funds for obligation and liquidation beyond the 27 months required by section 421(b) of the General Education Provisions Act (GEPA).

3. Section 211(a) requires that funds made available under the Act for career and technical education activities to supplement, and not supplant, non-Federal funds expended to carry out career and technical education activities. In this difficult time, investments of Federal dollars may be needed cover costs to deliver services or secure resources that historically were covered with state or local dollars. There is a concern that State and local recipients may be hesitant to expend funds on the most critical needs out of fear of supplanting.

The Adult Education and Family Literacy Act (AEFLA) (Title II of the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act) (P.L. 113-128)

1. Waiver authority allowed in Section 3511(a) and 3511(b)(1) of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act should be expanded to include State agencies that serve as the AEFLA eligible agency, in addition to the State education agency. This would provide the Secretary with the authority to grant "Tydings" waivers to all AEFLA eligible agencies and extend the availability of FY 2018 AEFLA funds for obligation and liquidation beyond the 27 months required by section 421(b) of the General Education Provisions Act (GEPA).

2. Section 222(b) requires the eligible agency to provide a 25% non-federal contribution (12.5% for outlying areas) in order to be eligible to receive a grant from the Secretary of Education. Waiving this requirement would allow the Department to continue to provide AEFLA grants to States that could not provide its non-federal share due to economic hardship as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.

3. Section 222(a) requires the eligible agency to use specified percentages of its state grant funds on administration, state leadership, and local grants or contracts. Waiving this requirement would allow greater state flexibility by removing spending minimums and maximums during the pandemic to be responsive to shifting programmatic and administrative needs.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

4. Section 241(a) requires that a state eligible agency use AEFLA funds to supplement other state and local funds, rather than to supplant those funds. Waiving this requirement would provide needed flexibility to States to redeploy resources to address pandemic related expenditures. There is a concern that State and local recipients may be hesitant to expend funds on the most critical needs out of fear of supplanting.

5. Title I-A section 107(d)(11) pertains to functions of the local boards. It requires local boards to coordinate with education agencies, in part by reviewing applications to provide adult education and literacy services under Title II to determine if such applications are consistent with local plans and to make recommendations to the eligible agency to promote alignment with the local plan. Further, 34 CFR 463.21 requires the eligible agency to have processes in place to determine the extent to which a local application is aligned with a local plan. Waivers to statutory and regulatory requirements would relieve burden on States who are competing funds during the pandemic, by streamlining the application review process and reducing the time and burden associated with a local board review.

6. Section 223(a)(1) requires eligible agencies to use state leadership funds on four required activities. Waiving this requirement would allow eligible agencies greater flexibility to invest in leadership activities that are responsive to the adult education needs in each State.

7. Section 225(c) requires an eligible agency to give priority to serving individuals who are likely to leave the correctional institution within 5 years of participation in the program. Waiving this priority would accommodate early release practices due to the pandemic and allow institutions to serve those individuals who will remain incarcerated and may be more than five years from release.

Dear State CTE Directors:

I first want to acknowledge the unprecedented challenges that each of you is facing in response to the COVID-19 pandemic and commend you on the steps you have taken, and continue to take, to ensure the health and success of your students. Over the past few weeks, via emails and Town Hall conference calls, we have heard the many questions and issues you are facing regarding your Perkins-funded State formula and discretionary grant programs in the current environment.

Below, we begin by answering the most critical questions that center around the forthcoming State and local application submission and approval flexibilities. We will update this document with additional questions and responses when they become available. And, if at any time you have a new and emerging question, please reach out to your State's Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRC) or send an email to our career and technical education (CTE) mailbox at cte@ed.gov. Thank you for your commitment to the more than 12 million CTE students that we serve!

Sincerely,

/s/

Scott Stump

17. Is the U.S. Department of Education (Department) providing additional time for States to submit their Perkins V State Plans, which are currently due on April 15, 2020?

    Yes. While we encourage States that are prepared to meet the original April 15 application deadline to submit their State Plans by that due date, we recognize that a number of Perkins eligible recipients (States) may have difficulty submitting their Perkins V State Plans, covering fiscal years (FY) 2020-23, by that due date as a result of the challenging circumstances surrounding the novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19). For example, some States may need additional time to secure State Board approval and/or provide an opportunity for Governor review and joint signature.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Accordingly, we are providing the following flexibilities for States that need additional time to submit their Perkins V State Plans.

- If the State is able to submit its State plan by June 15, 2020, the Office of Career, Technical and Adult Education (OCTAE) expects to complete review and approval of the Plan by June 30, 2020, and provide the State its first installment of FY 2020 Perkins funds on schedule on July 1, 2020.

- If the State is unable to submit its State plan by June 15, 2020, the Department will use the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to extend the duration by three months, through September 30, 2020, of the State's One-Year Transition Plan, covering FY 2019-20 (July 1, 2019 – June 30, 2020). For such a State, OCTAE will issue the first installment of FY 2020 Perkins funds on schedule on July 1, 2020, under the condition that the State will submit its full Perkins V State Plan by September 15, 2020. The September 15 date will allow enough time for OCTAE to approve the State's plan prior to making the State's supplemental FY 2020 Perkins award on schedule on October 1, 2020. These States may continue to seamlessly administer their Perkins V grants, including issuing FY 2020 Perkins subgrants to local recipients.

States needing these flexibilities should keep their PRCs up to date on the status of their State plan submission. OCTAE commits to working diligently to review and approve State plans as quickly as possible.

18. May a State award a Perkins V subgrant to a local recipient prior to fully approving its local application for funding?

    Yes. Under 34 C.F.R. § 76.708, a State may authorize a local recipient applying for a subgrant to obligate funds on the later of the following two dates: (1) the date that the State may begin to obligate funds; or (2) the date that the local recipient submits its application to the State in substantially approvable form. The State has the authority and flexibility to determine what constitutes a substantially approvable application.

19. May a State provide local recipients additional time to complete their local applications, covering FY 2020-23, due to the impact of COVID-19?

    Yes. For local recipients that are unable to submit a substantially approvable application to their State for approval by the State's due date for local applications (July 1, 2020, for most States), the Department is using the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to enable States to extend the duration of the local recipient's One-Year Local Application, covering FY 2019-20, by three months. For such a local recipient, the State may issue its FY 2020 Perkins subgrant on schedule to enable the local recipient to continue to seamlessly administer its Perkins V programs and services.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services' Rehabilitation Services Administration (RSA) issues this Questions and Answers document to outline its plans for implementing performance accountability provisions under title I of the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) as State Vocational Rehabilitation (VR) agencies seek to provide continuity of operations for individuals with disabilities in the current COVID-19 environment.

In the near future, RSA plans to issue additional Questions and Answers related to the VR program and State Supported Employment Services program to respond to other questions State VR agencies have recently asked. State VR agencies should contact their RSA State Liaison with additional questions. Additional information specific to the COVID-19 pandemic may be found online at https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus.

WIOA Performance Accountability

Q1. What steps will RSA take to account for a decrease in State performance in Program Year (PY) 2019 because of extended program closures during the pandemic? Will States be penalized for performance issues?

The U.S. Departments of Education and Labor (Departments) will not make any determinations of performance success or failure based on PY 2019 performance data, submitted by October 1, 2020. RSA did not establish performance levels with Vocational Rehabilitation (VR) agencies for PY 2019. Therefore, without this data, we will not have the requisite data to determine whether a State has met its performance levels. The Departments will take the effect of the COVID-19 outbreak into consideration in reviewing PY 2019 data. RSA encourages State VR agencies to remain in contact with RSA related to the impact of COVID-19 on service delivery and performance outcomes.

RSA Technical Assistance Circular 20-02[5] states that the first year for which performance success or failure can be determined for some indicators applies to PY 2020; this data is reported by October 1, 2021. The Departments will continue to closely monitor the effect of the COVID-19 outbreak and its impact on services and performance outcomes.

Q2. Will RSA consider delaying performance negotiations, as State offices may be closed for an unspecified period of time?

At this time, the U.S. Department of Education (the Department) anticipates that the negotiations process will proceed and we will conduct negotiations with States. The Department anticipates negotiated levels of performance will be included in the approved Unified or Combined State Plans for the four-year period covering PYs 2020 through 2023. The Department is aware that some State offices are closed and some States have implemented remote work. The Department is also aware that State agency leadership and management staff may be involved with COVID-19 response efforts. As a result, the Department will be as flexible as possible in conducting negotiations, including scheduling meetings at times that meet States'

Dear Secretary DeVos:

In response to the rapidly evolving situation around COVID-19 and the rapid response to deliver 100% distance learning among our 30 sub-grantees, the Georgia Office of Adult Education plans to postpone the April 1, 2020 deadline for the FY20 Competitive Grant until late fall of 2020. The new timeframe would allow external review from late fall/early spring. Programs would be notified of award in late April/early May of 2021. Programs that have already begun their application will not be penalized, because the application will not materially change during this time. Existing programs that are currently funded with federal and state AEFLA dollars will carry-over funds as allowable under the 27 month term.

If our plan meets with your approval, the Office of Adult Education will share information about the postponement with all current and potential applicants in a variety of modalities (email, website, and notice in the local organ of each county in Georgia) as early as this week.

Sincerely,

Dear State CTE Directors:

I first want to acknowledge the unprecedented challenges that each of you is facing in response to the COVID-19 pandemic and commend you on the steps you have taken, and continue to take, to ensure the health and success of your students. Over the past few weeks, via emails and Town Hall conference calls, we have heard the many questions and issues you are facing regarding your Perkins-funded State formula and discretionary grant programs in the current environment.

Below, we begin by answering the most critical questions that center around the forthcoming State and local application submission and approval flexibilities. We will update this document with additional questions and responses when they become available. And, if at any time you have a new and emerging question, please reach out to your State's Perkins Regional Coordinator (PRC) or send an email to our career and technical education (CTE) mailbox at cte@ed.gov. Thank you for your commitment to the more than 12 million CTE students that we serve!

Sincerely,

1. Is the U.S. Department of Education (Department) providing additional time for States to submit their Perkins V State Plans, which are currently due on April 15, 2020?

   Yes. While we encourage States that are prepared to meet the original April 15 application deadline to submit their State Plans by that due date, we recognize that a number of Perkins eligible recipients (States) may have difficulty submitting their Perkins V State Plans, covering fiscal years (FY) 2020-23, by that due date as a result of the challenging circumstances surrounding the novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19). For example, some States may need additional time to secure State Board approval and/or provide an opportunity for Governor review and joint signature.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Accordingly, we are providing the following flexibilities for States that need additional time to submit their Perkins V State Plans.

- If the State is able to submit its State plan by June 15, 2020, the Office of Career, Technical and Adult Education (OCTAE) expects to complete review and approval of the Plan by June 30, 2020, and provide the State its first installment of FY 2020 Perkins funds on schedule on July 1, 2020.

- If the State is unable to submit its State plan by June 15, 2020, the Department will use the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to extend the duration by three months, through September 30, 2020, of the State's One-Year Transition Plan, covering FY 2019-20 (July 1, 2019 – June 30, 2020). For such a State, OCTAE will issue the first installment of FY 2020 Perkins funds on schedule on July 1, 2020, under the condition that the State will submit its full Perkins V State Plan by September 15, 2020. The September 15 date will allow enough time for OCTAE to approve the State's plan prior to making the State's supplemental FY 2020 Perkins award on schedule on October 1, 2020. These States may continue to seamlessly administer their Perkins V grants, including issuing FY 2020 Perkins subgrants to local recipients.

States needing these flexibilities should keep their PRCs up to date on the status of their State plan submission. OCTAE commits to working diligently to review and approve State plans as quickly as possible.

2. May a State award a Perkins V subgrant to a local recipient prior to fully approving its local application for funding?

   Yes. Under 34 C.F.R. § 76.708, a State may authorize a local recipient applying for a subgrant to obligate funds on the later of the following two dates: (1) the date that the State may begin to obligate funds; or (2) the date that the local recipient submits its application to the State in substantially approvable form. The State has the authority and flexibility to determine what constitutes a substantially approvable application.

3. May a State provide local recipients additional time to complete their local applications, covering FY 2020-23, due to the impact of COVID-19?

   Yes. For local recipients that are unable to submit a substantially approvable application to their State for approval by the State's due date for local applications (July 1, 2020, for most States), the Department is using the transition authority in section 4 of Perkins V to enable States to extend the duration of the local recipient's One-Year Local Application, covering FY 2019-20, by three months. For such a local recipient, the State may issue its FY 2020 Perkins subgrant on schedule to enable the local recipient to continue to seamlessly administer its Perkins V programs and services.

Senior Leaders,

Attached you will find updated Q&As that will be posted to StudentAid.gov/coronavirus for students, parents, and borrowers. These Q&As are related to tomorrow's interest waiver and forbearance announcement. In fact, the press release directs people to visit StudentAid.gov/coronavirus for more information. Therefore, it is critical to get final approval on the words to have them live on our website before the press announcement.

For your convenience, two versions of the same document are attached.

- Document #1 (v06 w Comments) is a clean version of the updated Q&As with the answers to questions that were posed in the margin yesterday.

- Document #2 (v06) is the clean version of the updated Q&As without comments. If the responses in document #1 are acceptable, document #2 is ready to be forwarded to OMB for clearance.

Additionally, please find the updated wording for the loan servicers' websites. As a reminder, it is standard practice for FSA to provide uniform wording. This, too, is ready to move to OMB for expedited clearance to meet our obligations to be ready for tomorrow's announcement.

> Federal Student Aid's coronavirus (COVID-19) information page is located at StudentAid.gov/coronavirus. The page includes information for student, parents, and borrowers about the interest rate waiver announced by President Trump and availability of administrative forbearance authorized by Secretary DeVos to provide student loan relief to borrowers during the national emergency. Please visit the page regularly for updates as the pandemic evolves.

If you have specific questions about wording in these documents, please let me know. In the interest of time, feel free to contact April Jordan, who is coordinating these items at FSA.

Respectfully,

Mark

Dear Michelle,

In an effort to support continuity of operations during the novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) national emergency, the U.S. Department of Education (Department) Office of Federal Student Aid (FSA) has determined that federal loan servicers and other FSA contact centers provide essential services. Federal loan servicers and contact centers have a material impact on the accomplishment of the FSA mission. Specifically, federal student loan servicer and contact center operations are critical to the Department's ability to implement federal government relief measures for more than 40 million federal student loan borrowers and aid recipients impacted by the COVID-19 outbreak. This work is absolutely essential to meet the needs of fedral student loan borrowers during this unprecedented national emergency.

Given the Department's critical need for the services provided by federal loan servicers and contact centers in direct support of the federal response to the national emergency, it is expected that individuals providing such services will be afforded the freedom of movement necessary to operationalize student aid related relief efforts and access all systems and facilities supporting the Department's ability to operate in a timely and accurate manner.

As contact centers and loan servicers continue to operate, the Department urges those entities to adhere to all federal, state, and local guidelines, to the maximum extent possible, regarding social distancing, bans on public gatherings, and other safety precautions put in place to ensure the health and safety of their staff. Further, loan servicers and contact centers should continue to expeditiously develop and implement remote operating solutions.

Sincerely,

This work is absolutely essential to meet the needs of fedral student loan borrowers during this unprecedented national emergency.

Given the Department's critical need for the services provided by federal loan servicers and contact centers in direct support of the federal response to the national emergency, it is expected that individuals providing such services will be afforded the freedom of movement necessary to operationalize student aid related relief efforts and access all systems and facilities supporting the Department's ability to operate in a timely and accurate manner.

As contact centers and loan servicers continue to operate, the Department urges those entities to adhere to all federal, state, and local guidelines, to the maximum extent possible, regarding social distancing, bans on public gatherings, and other safety precautions put in place to ensure the health and safety of their staff. Further, loan servicers and contact centers should continue to expeditiously develop and implement remote operating solutions.

Mark Anthony Brown

Yes, it would be great to connect with the Deputy Secretary's office. I'm keeping a running list of questions from institutions, including:

- Will the Department offer any R2T4 relief for students in education abroad programs who have to withdraw?

- Any continuity plan to ensure Title IV grants and student aid will continue to be disbursed in the event of a mass scale quarantine.

I can do coffee the week of March 9 (assuming we aren't all quarantined by that time). Could you do morning of 3/10 or 3/11? I can come meet you at the starbucks across from headquarters.

Attachments: Aug 1 Customer Comms 2020-07-30_For Awareness.docx

Senior Leaders,

Background

Federal Student Aid (FSA) has developed a communications plan to inform borrowers about the student loan benefits provided by the CARES Act—including the suspension of payments and a 0% interest rate on ED-held loans—and the fact these temporary benefits are scheduled to end Sept. 30, 2020. FSA will communicate with customers through multiple channels, including FSA and loan servicer website, email, social media, and contact centers. Additionally, FSA will utilize other digital channels, including paid media and its Aidan[SM] virtual assistant to directly reach customers.

Communications began in March highlighting the benefits provided by the CARES Act. FSA created a special page on StudentAid.gov—StudentAid.gov/coronavirus—which included a Q&A section that has been updated regularly. In addition, FSA shared information via Facebook and Twitter and continues to respond to questions posed on those platforms.

Additionally, loan servicer notifications—as required by the CARES Act—confirmed actions were taken to place borrower accounts in administrative forbearance and apply the 0% interest rate or in a stopped collections status.

In July, FSA emailed borrowers to remind them that their loans currently are in administrative forbearance and encouraged them to visit Loan Simulator on StudentAid.gov to determine the best repayment plan for them based on their current financial situation.

On Aug. 1, FSA will update the StudentAid.gov home page banner and the feature box on StudentAid.gov/coronavirus to highlight the fact that administrative forbearance and the 0% interest rate will end Sept. 30. FSA will post content on Twitter and Facebook with the same messaging. The Aug. 1 communications push will continue throughout early August and will be complemented by providing the following for loan servicers and private collection agencies (PCAs):

- website banner text to post on their sites, and
- notification for contact center customer service reps about the Aug. 1 communications and key messages.

The attached document illustrates the current language and the updates that will appear Aug. 1.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Aug. 1 communications will serve as the lead up to the first of the six communications required by the CARES Act, which will begin Aug. 15. You will receive more detailed information about the six required communications and key messages in each. As a reminder, these communications are part of the customer communications plan, which we briefed in June. Our plans include our standard coordination with OCO and OLCA.

Thank you,

Mark

We at the U.S. Department of Education (ED) office of Federal Student Aid are actively monitoring the new coronavirus/COVID-19 outbreak.

On March 27, 2020, the president signed the CARES Act into law, which, among other things, provides broad relief for federal student loan borrowers. Below we have answered questions about several provisions of the Act. Questions that have been added or updated are identified with "NEW" or "UPDATED" before each question.

If you're concerned about your studies or loan repayment, we can help you understand what to do in certain circumstances. We'll be adding information for students, borrowers, and parents to this page on a regular basis, so please check back frequently.

Your payments will automatically stop from March 13, 2020, through Sept. 30, 2020.

To provide relief to student loan borrowers during the COVID-19 national emergency, federal student loan borrowers are automatically being placed in an administrative forbearance, which allows you to temporarily stop making your monthly loan payment. This suspension of payments will last until Sept. 30, 2020, but you can still make payments if you choose. Read the borrower Q&As below to learn more.

Dear Juan,

In an effort to support continuity of operations during the novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) national emergency, the U.S. Department of Education (Department) Office of Federal Student Aid (FSA) has determined that federal loan servicers and other FSA contact centers provide essential services. Federal loan servicers and contact centers have a material impact on the accomplishment of the FSA mission. Specifically, federal student loan servicer and contact center operations are critical to the Department's ability to implement federal government relief measures for more than 40 million federal student loan borrowers and aid recipients impacted by the COVID-19 outbreak. This work is absolutely essential to meet the needs of fedral student loan borrowers during this unprecedented national emergency.

Given the Department's critical need for the services provided by federal loan servicers and contact centers in direct support of the federal response to the national emergency, it is expected that individuals providing such services will be afforded the freedom of movement necessary to operationalize student aid related relief efforts and access all systems and facilities supporting the Department's ability to operate in a timely and accurate manner.

As contact centers and loan servicers continue to operate, the Department urges those entities to adhere to all federal, state, and local guidelines, to the maximum extent possible, regarding social distancing, bans on public gatherings, and other safety precautions put in place to ensure the health and safety of their staff. Further, loan servicers and contact centers should continue to expeditiously develop and implement remote operating solutions.

Sincerely,

Good evening Everyone,

In an effort to slow the COVID-19 community spread, OMB just issued updated telework guidance for federal agencies. We are preparing an updated employee communication which will be distributed tomorrow, but wanted to quickly make you aware of the upcoming changes.

Also, the media is now broadcasting a CDC alert asking organizations to temporarily suspend gatherings of 50 people or more. We will discuss this update tomorrow as well.

Thank you for your patience as we continue to adapt to the changing landscape.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES

FROM: Russell T. Vought
Acting Director

SUBJECT: Updated Guidance for the National Capital Region on Telework Flexibilities in Response to Coronavirus

In light of the evolving situation concerning the coronavirus ("COVID-19") and the National Capitol Region (NCR) experiencing community transmission, the Administration wants to ensure that department and agency leaders assertively safeguard the health and safety of their workforce while remaining open to serve the American people and conduct mission critical functions.

All Federal Executive Branch departments and agencies within the National Capital Region (NCR), consistent with OMB's recent guidance (OMB M-20-13), are asked to offer maximum telework flexibilities to all current telework eligible employees, consistent with operational needs of the departments and agencies as determined by their heads. In addition, we encourage agencies to use all existing authorities to offer telework to additional employees, to the extent their work could be telework enabled. If employees are not eligible for telework, agency heads have the discretion to offer weather and safety leave, or the agency's equivalent, including for employees who may not have been considered "at higher risk" under OMB M-20-13. Furthermore, agency heads should develop an operational plan that maximizes resources and functional areas to most safely and efficiently deliver these mission-critical functions and other Government services (including but not limited to staggered work schedules and other operational mitigation measures).

It was a nice gesture for President Trump to suspend interest on student loans, but it is not nearly enough.

This coronavirus crisis is going to create the biggest economic depression of the last 100 years. Most young people I know already are saying they're going to default on their student loans just so they can buy food and medicine.

Here is what all young conservatives, we know, are saying needs to be done:

- An automatic 18 month deferment on all student loans for everyone. I mean everyone. And it's automatic. All people are given an 18 month deferment without even applying for it. (If they want, they can opt-out, but the default is a deferment without even applying for it.)

- Wipe out 1/2 of all the current student loan debt currently held by each American. In other words, each American's student loan debt is cut in half.

Please, we beg you, do the above. It's time to put America First.

By Juan Perez Jr.

03/06/2020 12:31 PM EST

The University of Washington will hold classes and final exams remotely until March 20, school officials announced today after a UW worker returned a "presumptive positive" test for the coronavirus that has upended commerce and travel across the globe — and landed especially hard on the Pacific Northwest state.

UW classes will no longer meet in person starting Monday, university President Ana Mari Cauce said in a message to the campus community. Instructors have been asked to conduct classes and exams remotely, but UW campuses will remain open — including hospitals, clinics, dining services and residence halls.

"Our goal is to make sure that your academic work is fairly recognized and that any disruption does not present any disadvantage to your future academic progress, including admission to your preferred major in the months or years to come," Cauce wrote.

The university president said the system plans to resume normal operations on March 30, the beginning of the spring quarter, "pending public health guidance." Facilities crews will use the dormant time on campus to clean UW classrooms, auditoriums, bathrooms and other public spaces, she said.

he plan to scrap in-person classes at the state's flagship university comes as a Seattle-based staff member received what officials described as a "presumptive positive" test for Covid-19. That employee is in self-isolation at home, officials said.

The Roosevelt Commons East building, just west of UW's Seattle campus, has been closed. The staff member was last in the building on Feb. 24, 27 and 28, but is believed to have had "limited contact" with anyone outside of the individual's immediate office floor.

"Because of the circumstances, the risk to the broader Seattle campus community from this case is believed to be low," officials said in a message to the university system.

Meanwhile, public health officials in Los Angeles are testing three UCLA students for the coronavirus, campus Chancellor Gene Block announced.

The students are self-isolating off campus, Block said, adding that no one at the enormous California campus has tested positive for Covid-19.

Classes and campus operations will continue to proceed as normal for the time being.

"We are actively monitoring and responding to the situation and will continue to follow the guidance of public health agencies," Block said in a message to campus.

The Los Angeles County Department of Public Health "has committed to expediting these tests for UCLA," Block said, and any potential impacts to the school will be announced once the results are returned.

Dear Dan,

In an effort to support continuity of operations during the novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) national emergency, the U.S. Department of Education (Department) Office of Federal Student Aid (FSA) has determined that federal loan servicers and other FSA contact centers provide essential services. Federal loan servicers and contact centers have a material impact on the accomplishment of the FSA mission. Specifically, federal student loan servicer and contact center operations are critical to the Department's ability to implement federal government relief measures for more than 40 million federal student loan borrowers and aid recipients impacted by the COVID-19 outbreak. This work is absolutely essential to meet the needs of fedral student loan borrowers during this unprecedented national emergency.

Given the Department's critical need for the services provided by federal loan servicers and contact centers in direct support of the federal response to the national emergency, it is expected that individuals providing such services will be afforded the freedom of movement necessary to operationalize student aid related relief efforts and access all systems and facilities supporting the Department's ability to operate in a timely and accurate manner.

As contact centers and loan servicers continue to operate, the Department urges those entities to adhere to all federal, state, and local guidelines, to the maximum extent possible, regarding social distancing, bans on public gatherings, and other safety precautions put in place to ensure the health and safety of their staff. Further, loan servicers and contact centers should continue to expeditiously develop and implement remote operating solutions.

Dear FSA Family,

I am writing you at this late hour because I was recently informed that a contracted employee came in contact with an individual who has tested positive for COVID-19, commonly known as coronavirus. The contractor worked in Union Center Plaza (UCP) from Monday, Feb. 24 through Friday, March 6, and now, has developed flu-like symptoms.

This evening, the contractor went to be tested for COVID-19. As we await those test results, we are aggressively researching the contractor's movements throughout UCP and the surrounding area and contacting specific individuals who we know interacted with the contractor.

As we continue to seek answers to this rapidly developing situation, I am putting your health and safety first. Therefore, out of an abundance of caution, I am authorizing UCP-based employees or anyone from a regional office who worked in UCP during the timeframe noted above to take unscheduled telework on Tuesday, March 10. At my request, the deputy chief operating officers have initiated calls to all employees to provide the information in this email.

I will continue to provide you with updates on this situation as I receive them. If you have questions, please contact your deputy chief operating officer.

Respectfully,

Background
Now that the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act) was signed into law, Federal Student Aid (FSA) has updated existing Q&As at StudentAid.gov/coronavirus and added new Q&As as appropriate. To help readers understand what may have changed online, the web copy now notes what's "UPDATED" and what's "NEW." Additionally, Q&As have been further categorized by topic, such as "Questions About the Interest Waiver" and "Questions About the Forbearance."

It is important for borrowers to have the right information about the relief being extended to them. We are already seeing comments on social media and through our other feedback channels. The schedule of requested actions reflects this sense of urgency.

Today's Requested Actions
- Pre-clearance by OUS, OGC, OPE, OS, and OCO by noon.
- Expedited clearance by OMB with simultaneous expedited formal ED clearance by 2 p.m.
- Expedited clearance by chief of staff by 4 p.m.

Bob, Phil, and Jed:

Thanks to the efforts of Budget Services, FSA, and OUS, we are ready to return comments to OMB related to a Q&A for StudentAid.gov/coronavirus about suspended payments, Public Service Loan Forgiveness, and qualifying repayment plans.

(b)(5)

For our convenience, here's the language from the CARES Act:

> (c) CONSIDERATION OF PAYMENTS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1001 et seq.), the Secretary shall deem each month for which a loan payment was suspended under this section as if the borrower of the loan had made a payment for the purpose of any loan forgiveness program or loan rehabilitation program authorized under part D or B of title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1087a et seq.; 1071 et seq.) for which the borrower would have otherwise qualified.

At Kent's request, I am returning the response to OMB first to you for your review; the revised Q&A and margin response have been approved by Diane. With your approval, Kent will be in a position to return the document to OMB.

Thank you,

Hello General Brown, I hope this email finds you in good health.

At your convenience, I would like to request a brief meeting with you to update you on our progress towards the COVID – 19 response, what we have in place as far as the MAXIMUS team, including our partners and share some thoughts of activities as we return to collection activities. But mostly I would like to hear from you about how things are going and what else we could possibly do to support the mission.

I would like to bring by manager, Harry Sundberg, Sr VP of Federal Civilian Agencies. He and I both work for Tom Romeo, so I would like you have the opportunity to meet him virtually as well.

I realize that you are very busy, but as one of your major partners, I think it is important that we reach out and make sure we are doing all we can.

Thankyou,
bob

Gen. Brown-

After yesterday afternoon's meeting with Diane and Jed regarding treatment of payment suspension for the purposes of PSLF and IDR forgiveness, Diane asked that I draft a response to OMB's comments in the original Q&A document and send it to her to review. I have added the response to the OMB comment in the attached. My plan is to send it to her with the following note. Let me know if you have any questions or concerns with this approach. I will wait for your guidance before responding. Thanks

Diane-

As a follow up to yesterday's conversation regarding payment waivers for purposes of PSLF and IDR forgiveness under the CARES Act, attached are OMB's original comments on the 2 Q&A's in questions. Per your request, I drafted up a response to OMB's comment and am providing it to you for review. Please let me know how you'd like us to proceed. Thanks

The email that accompanied the SSS to the DCOOs last Friday:
Executive leaders-

Attached is the Staff Summary Sheet to coordinate awareness of the current Risk Assessment of the Implementation of President Trump's COVID-19 Student Loan Relief Directive. The assessment also includes a Risk Register that shows a comprehensive Risk Portfolio associated with the implementation. This is to provide transparency into the risks, implications should those risks manifest, key risk mitigation activities operationalized to reduce risk, Key Risk Indicators (KRIs) to measure the efficacy of the risk mitigation activities, and the assessment of the risks in the COVID-19 Risk Portfolio. This was a collaboration between the ERMO, SEAD, EPIC, and OIO. Thank you to everyone for helping pull this together!

Next week, a dashboard will be delivered to highlight key risks and KRIs to effectively track our performance against the goals set forward by President Trump and Secretary DeVos.

The Risk Assessment, Risk Portfolio, and dashboard will continue to evolve as the President and the Secretary continue to announce opportunities to help borrowers as the US responds to the current pandemic.

Be well!
Kathy

As for the banner, we already have a banner on SA.gov for information on coronavirus. We produced Q&As over the weekend (to include on our coronavirus page) to explain the Presidents' announcement including the points you raised. Those questions have not yet made it through the review process yet but should do so early this week.

I will resend the directive with defaulted borrowers included.

I am asking for your approval to post the attached Coronavirus q and a's on IFAP today. These were the q and a's shared with NASFAA yesterday and they were approved by the Department and OMB (see below). Posting these will facilitate our responses to the financial aid community as these responses will answer many of the outstanding questions.

Subject: March 5th guidance document

Hi everyone,
OPE and FSA have created a Q&A document that provides technical assistance to institutions based on the questions we have received in response to the March 5th guidance. Many of you say that draft last night, and it was finalized just an hour or so ago (and circulated by me to many of you on this email). Therefore, I am asking for permission for us to add a link to the March 5, 2020 document (noting that we are adding that link today) that would take the viewer to the Q&A document, which will be posted on IFAP. This Q&A document can be a living document that continues to answer incoming questions that we receive on already-issued guidance. The IFAP Q&A document would not need OMB approval since it would be TA based on guidance already cleared and posted. Is it okay with everyone if we add a new link to the March 5th document (linking to the IFAP Q&A document) that is posted on the COVID-19 website? In addition, would it be okay to add to the list of higher education guidance documents the new Q&A document (which we could call Technical Assistance Based on Previously Issued Guidance or something like that). Then, people can keep referring back to the Q&A document, which will continue to grow as new questions come in? We can divide the Q&A document into sections so that people can go right to the questions they want to review about a specific topic.

In addition, we will probably need to issue a new guidance document that responds to the declaration of a national emergency. That is an effort that is separate from the Q&A document, and will likely require OMB approval since the national emergency provides some additional regulatory relief related to TIV/R2T4. That will move separately and we will keep you in the loop as it is developed.

If you have any concerns, please let me know.
Diane

Good morning,

I am an employee in the San Francisco regional office. California just declared a state of emergency regarding the Coronavirus and has stated for employees to work remotely. I have grave concerns as I take public transportation to get to work. I am deeply concerned about my risk and exposure to the Coronavirus in mass transportation. I have a family and I also do not want to get sick and infect my children.

I would like to obtain the approval to work from home remotely until California's state of emergency is lifted. At this time I do not feel comfortable going in to the office to work as this is a serious and deadly virus. This would not hinder my ability to complete my assignments as I work online using share drive and I do not work in a customer facing environment. I am also currently working detail until April and I work remotely reporting to headquarters in DC.

Distribution List: All Employees

As you continue to undertake the important work you do on behalf of students, families and educators across the country, your health and safety are of top concern to me and every leader of this Department. Yesterday, the U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) released extensive guidance regarding the 2019 Novel Coronavirus, also known as COVID-19. In order to keep employees updated, I have provided a link to OPM's guidance below. OPM is closely coordinating with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to educate the Federal community on COVID-19. The CDC continues to remind the American public that the immediate health risk from COVID-19 remains low at this time. The President has directed the White House Task Force to take all steps necessary to ensure the health and well-being of the American people.

As you read through the OPM guidance you will note emphasis on Agency Continuity of Operations Plans (COOP). Please know that the Department of Education's (ED) COOP Team has already incorporated the recommended elements necessary to protect ED employees and operations. We will notify employees if we determine a need to activate the Department's COOP.

As you discuss business continuity planning, please consider the following:

- Confirm your emergency contact information is accurate and up to date for your office call trees.
- Test your ability to remotely connect to the network and to required applications.
- Test your ability to join Skype video calls.
- Assess your short- and long-term records management requirements for paper-based manual processes.
- Identify processes that require U.S. Postal Service mail delivery and courier deliveries.

Also, please continue promoting everyday health and wellness strategies in the workplace:

- If you are sick, stay home.
- Avoid close contact with those who are already sick.
- Cover your nose and mouth when coughing or sneezing with a tissue. If you don't have a tissue, cough or sneeze into your upper sleeve.
- Wash your hands often with soap and water.
- Avoid touching eyes, nose, or mouth.

OPM will continue to provide updated information on COVID-19 to Federal agencies. As guidance becomes available for distribution, we will provide updates to all employees. In the

General Brown –

Kent Talbert is correct. The Department does not have a coronavirus specific phone number. Schools are contacting us through an email provided to them in the OPE Electronic Announcement posted on March 5. Today, if a student calls with a coronavirus question to the Federal Student Aid Information Center, or FSAIC for short at 1-800-4-FED-AID (1-800-433-3243), students are told to call their schools. Borrowers are told to call their servicers.

Please let me know if you have more questions or if I can provide more detail.

Yes I understand. What I mean by not a "show stopper" is that this is what they will see tomorrow:

"First, we update the Coronavirus banner (already exists) on the homepage of SA.gov to reference forbearance and add content on the page that will provide immediate guidance to students who come to our site looking for information. We expect to get this content completed tomorrow morning and submitted to the formal coronavirus info clearance process. If we can get that quickly cleared, we can get SA.gov updated tomorrow"

The phone call is about the Q&As that you all cleared earlier today and that if OMB clears we need OMB support to get on the website.

Sorry for "show stoppers" lingo. It simply means we have this including the numerous changes under control.

Hi Nate,

I want to get a tick-tock going on the higher ed and k-12 announcements happening tomorrow. Any word from WH on what time the POTUS briefing is or what his remarks will contain—both or just one of the announcements? I know we have a lot of moving parts between servicers updating their websites, our press release and social content on the higher ed side, and the letter to the field, the stakeholder call, social content and the press release on the k-12 side (on top of not stepping on POTUS's toes).

Dear Margie,

In an effort to support continuity of operations during the novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) national emergency, the U.S. Department of Education (Department) Office of Federal Student Aid (FSA) has determined that federal loan servicers and other FSA contact centers provide essential services. Federal loan servicers and contact centers have a material impact on the accomplishment of the FSA mission. Specifically, federal student loan servicer and contact center operations are critical to the Department's ability to implement federal government relief measures for more than 40 million federal student loan borrowers and aid recipients impacted by the COVID-19 outbreak. This work is absolutely essential to meet the needs of fedral student loan borrowers during this unprecedented national emergency.

Given the Department's critical need for the services provided by federal loan servicers and contact centers in direct support of the federal response to the national emergency, it is expected that individuals providing such services will be afforded the freedom of movement necessary to operationalize student aid related relief efforts and access all systems and facilities supporting the Department's ability to operate in a timely and accurate manner.

As contact centers and loan servicers continue to operate, the Department urges those entities to adhere to all federal, state, and local guidelines, to the maximum extent possible, regarding social distancing, bans on public gatherings, and other safety precautions put in place to ensure the health and safety of their staff. Further, loan servicers and contact centers should continue to expeditiously develop and implement remote operating solutions.

Dear FSA Family,

In our effort to be as prepared for the continuity of FSA's critical mission in light of the rapidly evolving scenarios generated by the coronavirus, telework-ready staff should immediately begin bringing government laptops homes on a daily basis, if not already doing so. Additionally, to proactively identify and correct any potential connectivity issues with government furnished laptops, telework-ready staff should test the government laptop VPN connectivity from their home network. In the event any FSA staff is without a government laptop, there are other options available through FSA Citrix. I highly encourage FSA staff physically connect to the ED network through two methods (VPN and Citrix). To proactively assess FSA's readiness to execute continuity of operations, I've asked senior leadership to collect the data on your ability to connect and/or any issues you may have connecting. Testing these connections will only take a minimal amount of time. If it takes any longer than just a few minutes you should contact the following:

- ED Customer Service Desk by phone at 202-708-HELP (4357) or via e-mail at OCIOEnterpriseHelpDesk@ed.gov or
- FSA Citrix connection questions, contact the FSA NGDC Helpdesk (fsan-svd@uspsector.com) or by phone at 1-844-829-4469 or
- For all general questions concerning remote access email: FSAITServiceRequest@ed.gov.

FSA Enterprise Technology Office will provide webinar training to FSA staff by the end of this week on connecting via all of these methods. (meeting invite and details forthcoming).

We currently estimate approximately 90% of FSA staff is telework-ready. If you are not currently telework-ready, the links below are for training, creating an agreement as well as Q&A's.

1. Telework Training: See link below. Once completed. You should save your training certificate in PDF form to your computer (please be mindful as to where you save it). You will need to retrieve it later when you are in the Telework (aka Flexiplace) portal preparing the agreement. https://edfedtalent.ibc.doi.gov/enrol/index.php?id=11242

2. Telework Agreement: To initiate the process, click on the link below which will take you to the Department's Telework Program portal where you will find the automated telework agreement. https://share.ed.gov/teams/employeeservices/HRServices/TeleworkPortal/SitePages/Home.aspx.

3. Telework Program Frequently Asked Questions. https://connected.ed.gov/Pages/Telework-Program-Changes.aspx

Finally, as a reminder, Telework Policy HCP 368-1 states situational telework ("unscheduled telework") is what employees will be offered during emergency situations declared by OPM, or as integral part of ED's plans for Business Continuity Plans (BCP) allowing the Federal Gov't to remain responsive to the nation at all times. If a program participant (employee) declines to participate in the situational telework then the employee must take leave for all or any portion of the day that the employee ceases to be telework-ready. Additionally, but more importantly, if a disruption in government operations requires activation of our Business Continuity Plan at a region or HQs, employees at those locations who are telework ready and in telework eligible positions will be required to work. If the employee isn't telework ready, they can request leave. The supervisor has the authority to approve/deny leave.

My sincere thanks!

Subject: West Penn Hospital School of Nursing

To whom it may concern,

West Penn Hospital School of Nursing is looking for recommendation as to best practices/protocol in regards to Title IV aid. We are a nursing school that is affiliated with Allegheny Health Network. Allegheny Health Network is no longer allowing nursing students at the clinical sites due to the COVID-19 outbreak. We have 4 terms in our academic year. The students just finished their 3rd term and have one week break before they are due to come back on March 23rd. We are discussing the option of offering online course work for the theory portion of the course. We are trying to plan what to do for the clinical aspect. For our first year students they can do clinical simulations within our SIM lab but we are worried about our 2nd year students. The 2nd year students will be taking their transition to the nursing practice and is 80/20 in regards to clinical/theory. We are planning to have the students complete most of their theory for the first portion of the course. Our question is what if they will not be able to complete their clinical portion? We can offer them a leave of absents correct? But what if they will not be able to come back to the clinical site before the term was suppose to end? What would your recommendations be?

Sincerely,

Good afternoon,

We have two questions as it relates to the information provided below
030520Guidance4interruptionsrelated2CoronavirusCOVID19, Posted Date, March 05, 2020
Author, Office of Postsecondary Education, regarding the information provided in this electronic announcement:

1. The decision has been made to move all of our classes to on-line effective March 21st. What is the guidance for handling Federal Student Aid funding for room & board if students are not on /or returning to campus due to the COVID-19? What should we do about refunds to students for room & board?

2. In reference to the Department of Education guidance for when institutions of higher education can pay students using federal Title IV funds. Can we assume that work study students whose activities are impacted by Coronavirus (COVID-19), either directly being affected or indirectly because the student can no longer participate in working because the institution has asked them temporarily not to report to duty, will be paid for their regular shifts?

3. If so, how do we determine how much we should pay work-study students? For example, if the maximum hours weekly is 20, do we pay them for the aforementioned hours?

Please advise.

Best,

Guidance for interruptions of study related to Coronavirus (COVID-19)
This electronic announcement addresses concerns expressed by higher education leaders regarding how they should comply with Title IV, Higher Education Act (HEA) policies for students whose activities are impacted by Coronavirus (COVID-19), either directly because the student is ill or quarantined, or indirectly because the student was recalled from travel-abroad experiences, can no longer participate in internships or clinical rotations, or attends a campus that temporarily suspended operations. This information provides flexibilities for schools that are working to help students complete the term in which they are currently enrolled.
These instructions do not contemplate accommodations for students who have not yet enrolled or whose term has not yet begun, with certain exceptions. We will continue to monitor the situation and make a later determination of what accommodations may be necessary should longer-term interruptions become likely. We will continue to provide updates to this information as appropriate.

We encourage institutions to visit the Department's Coronavirus webpage, https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus?src=feature, on this topic frequently, as we will post updates as they become available. In addition, the Department's webpage has links to guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, including for how Institutions of Higher Education should manage human health risks associated with Coronavirus.
We address five potential student and campus scenarios: that may prompt an institution to have questions about how to comply with Title IV, HEA requirements if the Coronavirus impacts a student or a campus:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- A student was enrolled or was supposed to begin a travel-abroad experience and either the student has been called back to the U.S. or was never able to begin the travel abroad experience;
- A student was enrolled in a program and met the requirements for full-time enrollment; however, due to the COVID-19, one or more classes – such as an internship, a clinical rotation, student teaching or fieldwork – have been cancelled and now the student has fallen below the 12 credit hour minimum and is no longer considered to be a full-time student;
- A student is quarantined and misses class or a student is incapacitated due to COVID-19 illness;
- A campus temporarily stops offering ground-based classes in order to prevent the spread of COVID-19;
- A foreign school that serves U.S. students who participate in title IV programs temporarily suspends operations due to COVID-19.

We offer information below about options we are making available to institutions under our current statutory authority to provide as much flexibility as possible so that you can continue to serve students. In some instances, we have been asked to consider providing flexibilities that are beyond our statutory authority. As a result, we cannot provide those flexibilities. If you have questions about the information provided in this electronic announcement, or you are encountering a scenario that we have not addressed, please email the Department at COVID-19@ed.gov.
We recommend that institutions document, as contemporaneously as possible, any actions taken as a result of COVID-19, including those actions described in this document.

Accommodating Students Whose Enrollment is Disrupted by Coronavirus
Our goal is to work with institutions and find ways to enable you to accommodate students and help them continue their education despite interruptions caused by COVID-19. For many institutions, online education will provide a viable option for continuing to teach students through COVID-19-related interruptions. In some instances, students enrolled in ground-based programs at campuses that must temporarily close could participate in distance education for a period of time and then resume ground-based attendance when the campus reopens. In other instances, an institution may provide online learning opportunities for a student who was recalled from a travel-abroad program but the student is too late into the semester to enroll in other classes offered by the home campus, or the student who arrived in a foreign country intending to complete a travel abroad experience finds that the program has now been cancelled or temporarily suspended. We are providing the following flexibilities to institutions to help them understand what options they can make available to students and remain in compliance with Title IV requirements.

Approval to Offer Distance Education
The Department is providing broad approval to institutions to use online technologies to accommodate students on a temporary basis, without going through the regular approval process of the Department in the event that an institution is otherwise required to seek Departmental approval for the use or expansion of distance learning programs. This flexibility only applies to a program during a payment period that overlaps the date of this electronic announcement or the following payment period. If an institution chooses to continue offering a new program or use distance education in a manner requiring the Department's approval after that point, it must seek approval under the Department's normal process.
We are also permitting accreditors to waive their distance education review requirements for institutions working to accommodate students whose enrollment is otherwise interrupted as a result of COVID-19. We currently are limiting that permission to distance learning opportunities developed for the purpose of serving students who were already in attendance, but whose attendance was interrupted by COVID-19. Please note that this flexibility is not available for clock-hour courses that lead to licensure if the licensure body will not accept distance learning courses or hours or give credit for them toward the number of hours a student must complete.

We want to make clear to institutions that for Title IV, HEA purposes, distance learning does not require the use of sophisticated learning management systems or online platforms, though accreditors may have additional standards included in their review of distance learning programs. We are, however, permitting accreditors to waive those standards for schools implementing distance learning programs solely for the purpose of allowing currently enrolled students to complete a term that is interrupted by COVID-19 closures. To meet the Department's requirements for providing distance education, an institution must communicate to students through one of several types of technology – including email – described under 34 CFR § 600.2, and instructors must initiate substantive communication with students, either individually or collectively, on a regular basis. In other words, an instructor could use email to provide instructional materials to students enrolled in his or her class, use chat features to communicate with students, set up conference calls to facilitate group conversations, engage in email exchanges or require students to submit work electronically that the instructor will evaluate.

Institutions may provide distance learning temporarily to accommodate students as a result of a COVID-19 interruption, including in cases where students began attendance in classes offered in a brick-and-mortar setting but were transitioned to a distance education format in the middle of the term. In these cases, we will accept the accreditation and state authorization of the institution for the programs in which those students were enrolled prior to the interruption due to COVID-19 to enable students to complete the current term.

Institutions may also enter into temporary consortium agreements with other institutions so that students can complete courses at other institutions but be awarded credit by their home institution. In addition, in instances where accrediting agencies require students to complete a final number or percentage of credits in residence at the institution, accrediting agencies may waive that requirement for students impacted by COVID-19 without objection by the Department.

The Department will permit students who wish to take an approved leave of absence for COVID-19-related concerns or limitations (such as interruption of a travel-abroad program), to take such leave, even if the student notifies the institution in writing after the approved leave of absence has begun. In such a case, the institution may retain those Title IV funds to apply when the student continues enrollment. If the student does not return to complete their program within 180 days, the school would then be expected to perform the Return of Title IV funds calculation based on the date on which the leave-of-absence began. Note that in term-based programs, if a student takes an approved leave of absence from a term-based program, the institution must ensure that the student is permitted to complete the coursework he or she began prior to the leave of absence.

Finally, because we understand that some students may have been recalled from travel abroad programs or canceled-out of experiential learning opportunities after the semester began, institutions may offer courses to those students on a schedule that would otherwise be considered a non-standard term, if doing so enables those students to complete the term. These flexibilities will also be provided to institutions, or their additional locations or programs, that must temporarily close as a result of COVID-19.

Foreign Schools

We cannot extend flexibility regarding the use of distance learning to foreign schools since the Higher Education Act does not permit foreign schools to provide distance learning to U.S. students who participate in Title IV, HEA programs. We continue to consider if there are any other flexibilities we could extend to foreign schools that temporarily close due to COVID-19.

Federal Work Study (FWS)

Federal law includes a provision allowing an institution to make FWS payments under certain limited circumstances to disaster-affected students who are unable to continue working. Given the unique nature of this situation, it is unlikely that an entire region would be declared a Federal disaster area, yet to students enrolled at a campus that must close temporarily, the loss of this important form of financial aid can be devastating. The impact may be magnified if the institution accommodates students by providing alternative instructional opportunities and the student is required to continue paying tuition, but the student loses FWS as an important part of their financial aid award. For students enrolled and performing FWS at a campus that must close due to COVID-19, or for a FWS student who is employed by an employer that closes as a result of COVID-19, the institution may continue paying the student Federal work-study wages during that closure if it occurred after the beginning of the term, the institution is continuing to pay its other employees (including faculty and staff), and the institution continues to meet its institutional wage share requirement. Students who were prevented from beginning a term at the institution as a result of a COVID-19-related disruption would not be eligible for Federal Student Aid for that term, and therefore could not be paid FWS wages for hours they did not work. Graduate students who are paid FWS wages on salary may continue to be paid for the remainder of the term if the institution is also paying its faculty and staff during that period. In these instances, institutions should document (as contemporaneously as feasible) that the COVID-19 disruption was the reason the student received FWS funds without documentation of hours worked.

Length of Academic Year

The Department is authorized under 34 CFR § 668.3 to approve a reduced academic year. If at any point an institution determines it will close as the result of a campus health emergency, it may contact the School Participation team to request a temporary reduction in the length of its academic year.

Professional Judgement

Financial aid administrators (FAA) have statutory authority to use professional judgement to make adjustments on a case-by-case basis to the cost of attendance or to the data elements used in calculating the EFC to reflect a student's special circumstances. The use of professional judgement where students and/or their families have been affected by COVID-19 is permitted, such as in the case where an employer closes for a period of time as a result of COVID-19. In making professional judgement determinations, FAAs must obtain documentation and retain it in each student's file. This documentation must substantiate the reason for any adjustment. Institutions are reminded that, regardless of how broadly an event may affect its student population, professional judgement determinations must be made and documented on a case-by-case basis.

Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP)

An institution's SAP appeal policy (34 CFR § 668.34(a)(9)) must, among other things, describe the basis on which a student may file an appeal: the death of a relative, an injury or illness of the student, or other special circumstances. Circumstances related to an outbreak of COVID-19, including, but not limited to, the illness of a student or family member, compliance with a quarantine period, or the general disruption resulting from such an outbreak may form the basis of a student's SAP appeal even if not specifically articulated in the institution's SAP policy.

Students Who Did Not Begin Attendance

We are aware that many U.S. students enrolled in eligible foreign institutions and in study abroad programs offered by domestic institutions have already been affected by local outbreaks of COVID-19 and the measures taken by institutions in response. Of immediate concern are those students who travelled to overseas destinations but were unable to begin classes due to school closures. There may also be instances where students at domestic institutions are similarly affected and unable to begin classes. Because these students did not begin attendance in a payment period or period of enrollment, 34 CFR § 668.21 (rather than Return of Title IV Funds) applies. In such a situation, the institution must return all Title IV grant funds disbursed for the payment period or period of enrollment and all Direct Loan funds that were credited to the student's account at the institution for that period. The institution must also return Direct Loan funds in the amount of payments made directly by or on behalf of the student to the institution for the period, up to the total amount of the loan funds disbursed. The institution is not responsible for returning Direct Loan funds that were disbursed directly to the student in the form of a credit balance as long as the institution was not aware that the student would not attend prior to the disbursement, and students will be able to repay those funds as a part of their educational loans. In these circumstances, institutions are permitted, but not required, to return all of a student's Direct Loan funds, including the amount comprising the credit balance.

Normally institutions, once aware that a student will not begin or has not begun attendance, must notify the loan servicer which results in issuance of a final demand letter to the borrower. However, we have determined that in the case where a student was unable to begin attendance due to a COVID-19-related school closure, the provisions of 34 CFR § 668.21(a)(2)(ii), requiring the institution to notify the servicer of that student's failure to begin attendance, do not apply because the option for the student to begin attendance did not exist. Accordingly, the institution should not notify the servicer that the student did not begin attendance. He or she will be permitted to repay any Direct Loan funds received under the terms of the promissory note. This will also prevent a student from being required to enter repayment within six months of withdrawing if the student withdrew as a result of a Coronavirus-related interruption.

Enrollment Status Changes

We do not have the authority to waive the requirement to award or disburse Title IV funds based on a student's actual enrollment status. For example, assuming an institution defines full-time enrollment as 12 credit hours, when a full-time student enrolled for 12 credit hours drops or withdraws from three credits, that student is now enrolled at three-quarter time status. However, we remind institutions that for Direct Loans, the institution must only confirm at least half-time enrollment status as of the time of disbursement. It is not necessary to recalculate a student's Direct Loan eligibility based on changes in enrollment status that occur after the institution originates a Direct Loan. For enrollment status changes that occur after an institution's established Pell Grant recalculation (census) date, we do not require recalculation. Note that the student must have begun attendance in all courses comprising the enrollment status on which the Pell Grant payment was based.

Return of Title IV Funds

Even in the case of a disruption from COVID-19, an institution must return any Title IV funds for which it is responsible in accordance with the provisions of 34 CFR § 668.22 when a student withdraws. Currently, we do not have the authority to waive the statutory requirement for the return of unearned Title IV funds in the case where a student (who receives Title IV assistance) withdraws from an institution during a payment period or period of enrollment after having begun attendance. However, the guidance provided below explains the requirements for performing Return of Title IV Funds calculations in situations where an institution has temporarily ceased operations as a result of a COVID-19 disruption.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Definition of a Withdrawal Date

If an institution ceases operation during a payment period and fails to reopen by the end of that payment period, its students are considered no longer in attendance and must be considered withdrawn for that payment period or period of enrollment, and would be subject to Return of Title IV funds requirements. Similarly, if an institution closes and subsequently reopens during a payment period, any students who began attendance during that payment period but failed to return when the institution reopens must be considered withdrawn for that payment period. If the institution is required to take attendance, the withdrawal date is the last day of documented attendance prior to the closure. If the institution is not required to take attendance, the institution can use any applicable option under 34 CFR § 668.22(c), including the midpoint of the payment period or period of enrollment under 34 CFR § 668.2(c)(1)(iii) or, because the closure was a circumstance that the student could not control under 34 CFR § 668.22(c)(1)(iv), the date that the institution ceased operation. When determining the number of days in the payment period or period of enrollment (the denominator of the calculation), the institution should include all the days that the student was scheduled to attend during that period on the date of the withdrawal. For a clock-hour program, an institution should not include as "scheduled hours" any hours on days that it was closed.

Date of Determination and Timeframes for Returns

Normally, if a student does not provide notification to an institution of his/her withdrawal, the date of determination that the student has withdrawn is the date that the institution becomes aware that the student ceased attendance. This is, in most cases when an institution closes for reasons beyond its control, the date of the closure. Therefore, the timeframes for completing Return of Title IV Funds calculations and making the appropriate returns or post-withdrawal disbursements begin on that date (e.g. 30 days to perform the calculation, 45 days to return the funds, etc.).

Reentering the Same Payment Period

If an institution that has closed subsequently reopens during the same payment period or period of enrollment, and permits students to continue coursework that they were taking at the time of the closure, students that return to class at that time are considered to have reentered the same period and retain eligibility for Title IV aid that they were otherwise eligible to receive before the closure. If a student in this situation subsequently withdraws, the institution must exclude the number of days that it was closed (if the closure was for at least five consecutive days, in combination with weekends or other scheduled breaks) from both the number of days the student completed and the total number of days in the payment period or period of enrollment. If the institution altered the number of days in the payment period or period of enrollment following the closure (e.g. if it adds days to the term to make up for the time when it was closed), the institution should use the new number of days in the student's Return of Title IV funds calculation.

NSLDS Enrollment Reporting

In general, when a student withdraws during a payment period, the effective date for the withdrawn ('W') status for enrollment reporting purposes is the withdrawal date used by the institution in accordance with 34 CFR § 668.22(b) or (c). However, notwithstanding the requirement that the institution perform a Return of Title IV funds calculation for students when an institution unexpectedly ceases operation during a payment period and fails to reopen during that payment period, we permit an institution to defer reporting an affected student's enrollment status as "withdrawn" in these circumstances when the institution has a reasonable expectation that—

1. The institution will reopen at the start of a payment period that begins no later than 90 days following the closure; and
2. The student will resume attendance when the institution reopens.

In these cases, the institution should continue reporting the most recent enrollment status that it reported for the affected student prior to the closure. If the student does not resume attendance as expected, the institution must change the student's enrollment status to "withdrawn" using the student's actual withdrawal date as the enrollment status effective date.

While the coronavirus threat to the American public remains low, we encourage school communities to take all steps to ensure the health and well-being of students, faculty, and staff. We established the website, https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus?src=feature, to provide general information and guidance for school communities, including links to information posted by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. We appreciate your cooperation and welcome any additional questions at COVID-19@ed.gov.

Good afternoon,

We have two questions as it relates to the information provided below
030520Guidance4interruptionsrelated2CoronavirusCOVID19, Posted Date, March 05, 2020
Author, Office of Postsecondary Education, regarding the information provided in this electronic announcement:

1. What is the guidance for handling Federal Student Aid funding for room & board if students are not on /or returning to campus due to the COVID-19? Beginning Saturday, March 21 classes are scheduled to transition to online classes as opposed to face-to-face.

2. In reference to the Department of Education guidance for when institutions of higher education can pay students using federal Title IV funds. Can we assume that work study students whose activities are impacted by Coronavirus (COVID-19), either directly being affected or indirectly because the student can no longer participate in working because the institution has asked them temporarily not to report to duty, will be paid for their regular shifts?

3. If so, how do we determine how much we should pay work-study students? For example, if the maximum hours weekly is 20, do we pay them for the aforementioned hours?

Please advise.

Best,

Guidance for interruptions of study related to Coronavirus (COVID-19)
This electronic announcement addresses concerns expressed by higher education leaders regarding how they should comply with Title IV, Higher Education Act (HEA) policies for students whose activities are impacted by Coronavirus (COVID-19), either directly because the student is ill or quarantined, or indirectly because the student was recalled from travel-abroad experiences, can no longer participate in internships or clinical rotations, or attends a campus that temporarily suspended operations. This information provides flexibilities for schools that are working to help students complete the term in which they are currently enrolled.
These instructions do not contemplate accommodations for students who have not yet enrolled or whose term has not yet begun, with certain exceptions. We will continue to monitor the situation and make a later determination of what accommodations may be necessary should longer-term interruptions become likely. We will continue to provide updates to this information as appropriate.

We encourage institutions to visit the Department's Coronavirus webpage, https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus?src=feature, on this topic frequently, as we will post updates as they become available. In addition, the Department's webpage has links to guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, including for how Institutions of Higher Education should manage human health risks associated with Coronavirus.
We address five potential student and campus scenarios: that may prompt an institution to have questions about how to comply with Title IV, HEA requirements if the Coronavirus impacts a student or a campus:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- A student was enrolled or was supposed to begin a travel-abroad experience and either the student has been called back to the U.S. or was never able to begin the travel abroad experience;
- A student was enrolled in a program and met the requirements for full-time enrollment; however, due to the COVID-19, one or more classes – such as an internship, a clinical rotation, student teaching or fieldwork – have been cancelled and now the student has fallen below the 12 credit hour minimum and is no longer considered to be a full-time student;
- A student is quarantined and misses class or a student is incapacitated due to COVID-19 illness;
- A campus temporarily stops offering ground-based classes in order to prevent the spread of COVID-19;
- A foreign school that serves U.S. students who participate in title IV programs temporarily suspends operations due to COVID-19.

We offer information below about options we are making available to institutions under our current statutory authority to provide as much flexibility as possible so that you can continue to serve students. In some instances, we have been asked to consider providing flexibilities that are beyond our statutory authority. As a result, we cannot provide those flexibilities. If you have questions about the information provided in this electronic announcement, or you are encountering a scenario that we have not addressed, please email the Department at COVID-19@ed.gov.
We recommend that institutions document, as contemporaneously as possible, any actions taken as a result of COVID-19, including those actions described in this document.

Accommodating Students Whose Enrollment is Disrupted by Coronavirus
Our goal is to work with institutions and find ways to enable you to accommodate students and help them continue their education despite interruptions caused by COVID-19. For many institutions, online education will provide a viable option for continuing to teach students through COVID-19-related interruptions. In some instances, students enrolled in ground-based programs at campuses that must temporarily close could participate in distance education for a period of time and then resume ground-based attendance when the campus reopens. In other instances, an institution may provide online learning opportunities for a student who was recalled from a travel-abroad program but the student is too late into the semester to enroll in other classes offered by the home campus, or the student who arrived in a foreign country intending to complete a travel abroad experience finds that the program has now been cancelled or temporarily suspended. We are providing the following flexibilities to institutions to help them understand what options they can make available to students and remain in compliance with Title IV requirements.

Approval to Offer Distance Education
The Department is providing broad approval to institutions to use online technologies to accommodate students on a temporary basis, without going through the regular approval process of the Department in the event that an institution is otherwise required to seek Departmental approval for the use or expansion of distance learning programs. This flexibility only applies to a program during a payment period that overlaps the date of this electronic announcement or the following payment period. If an institution chooses to continue offering a new program or use distance education in a manner requiring the Department's approval after that point, it must seek approval under the Department's normal process.
We are also permitting accreditors to waive their distance education review requirements for institutions working to accommodate students whose enrollment is otherwise interrupted as a result of COVID-19. We currently are limiting that permission to distance learning opportunities developed for the purpose of serving students who were already in attendance, but whose attendance was interrupted by COVID-19. Please note that this flexibility is not available for clock-hour courses that lead to licensure if the licensure body will not accept distance learning courses or hours or give credit for them toward the number of hours a student must complete.

We want to make clear to institutions that for Title IV, HEA purposes, distance learning does not require the use of sophisticated learning management systems or online platforms, though accreditors may have additional standards included in their review of distance learning programs. We are, however, permitting accreditors to waive those standards for schools implementing distance learning programs solely for the purpose of allowing currently enrolled students to complete a term that is interrupted by COVID-19 closures. To meet the Department's requirements for providing distance education, an institution must communicate to students through one of several types of technology – including email – described under 34 CFR § 600.2, and instructors must initiate substantive communication with students, either individually or collectively, on a regular basis. In other words, an instructor could use email to provide instructional materials to students enrolled in his or her class, use chat features to communicate with students, set up conference calls to facilitate group conversations, engage in email exchanges or require students to submit work electronically that the instructor will evaluate.

Institutions may provide distance learning temporarily to accommodate students as a result of a COVID-19 interruption, including in cases where students began attendance in classes offered in a brick-and-mortar setting but were transitioned to a distance education format in the middle of the term. In these cases, we will accept the accreditation and state authorization of the institution for the programs in which those students were enrolled prior to the interruption due to COVID-19 to enable students to complete the current term.

Institutions may also enter into temporary consortium agreements with other institutions so that students can complete courses at other institutions but be awarded credit by their home institution. In addition, in instances where accrediting agencies require students to complete a final number or percentage of credits in residence at the institution, accrediting agencies may waive that requirement for students impacted by COVID-19 without objection by the Department.

The Department will permit students who wish to take an approved leave of absence for COVID-19-related concerns or limitations (such as interruption of a travel-abroad program), to take such leave, even if the student notifies the institution in writing after the approved leave of absence has begun. In such a case, the institution may retain those Title IV funds to apply when the student continues enrollment. If the student does not return to complete their program within 180 days, the school would then be expected to perform the Return of Title IV funds calculation based on the date on which the leave-of-absence began. Note that in term-based programs, if a student takes an approved leave of absence from a term-based program, the institution must ensure that the student is permitted to complete the coursework he or she began prior to the leave of absence.

Finally, because we understand that some students may have been recalled from travel abroad programs or canceled-out of experiential learning opportunities after the semester began, institutions may offer courses to those students on a schedule that would otherwise be considered a non-standard term, if doing so enables those students to complete the term. These flexibilities will also be provided to institutions, or their additional locations or programs, that must temporarily close as a result of COVID-19.

Foreign Schools

We cannot extend flexibility regarding the use of distance learning to foreign schools since the Higher Education Act does not permit foreign schools to provide distance learning to U.S. students who participate in Title IV, HEA programs. We continue to consider if there are any other flexibilities we could extend to foreign schools that temporarily close due to COVID-19.

Federal Work Study (FWS)

Federal law includes a provision allowing an institution to make FWS payments under certain limited circumstances to disaster-affected students who are unable to continue working. Given the unique nature of this situation, it is unlikely that an entire region would be declared a Federal disaster area, yet to students enrolled at a campus that must close temporarily, the loss of this important form of financial aid can be devastating. The impact may be magnified if the institution accommodates students by providing alternative instructional opportunities and the student is required to continue paying tuition, but the student loses FWS as an important part of their financial aid award. For students enrolled and performing FWS at a campus that must close due to COVID-19, or for a FWS student who is employed by an employer that closes as a result of COVID-19, the institution may continue paying the student Federal work-study wages during that closure if it occurred after the beginning of the term, the institution is continuing to pay its other employees (including faculty and staff), and the institution continues to meet its institutional wage share requirement. Students who were prevented from beginning a term at the institution as a result of a COVID-19-related disruption would not be eligible for Federal Student Aid for that term, and therefore could not be paid FWS wages for hours they did not work. Graduate students who are paid FWS wages on salary may continue to be paid for the remainder of the term if the institution is also paying its faculty and staff during that period. In these instances, institutions should document (as contemporaneously as feasible) that the COVID-19 disruption was the reason the student received FWS funds without documentation of hours worked.

Length of Academic Year

The Department is authorized under 34 CFR § 668.3 to approve a reduced academic year. If at any point an institution determines it will close as the result of a campus health emergency, it may contact the School Participation team to request a temporary reduction in the length of its academic year.

Professional Judgement

Financial aid administrators (FAA) have statutory authority to use professional judgement to make adjustments on a case-by-case basis to the cost of attendance or to the data elements used in calculating the EFC to reflect a student's special circumstances. The use of professional judgement where students and/or their families have been affected by COVID-19 is permitted, such as in the case where an employer closes for a period of time as a result of COVID-19. In making professional judgement determinations, FAAs must obtain documentation and retain it in each student's file. This documentation must substantiate the reason for any adjustment. Institutions are reminded that, regardless of how broadly an event may affect its student population, professional judgement determinations must be made and documented on a case-by-case basis.

Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP)

An institution's SAP appeal policy (34 CFR § 668.34(a)(9)) must, among other things, describe the basis on which a student may file an appeal: the death of a relative, an injury or illness of the student, or other special circumstances. Circumstances related to an outbreak of COVID-19, including, but not limited to, the illness of a student or family member, compliance with a quarantine period, or the general disruption resulting from such an outbreak may form the basis of a student's SAP appeal even if not specifically articulated in the institution's SAP policy.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Students Who Did Not Begin Attendance

We are aware that many U.S. students enrolled in eligible foreign institutions and in study abroad programs offered by domestic institutions have already been affected by local outbreaks of COVID-19 and the measures taken by institutions in response. Of immediate concern are those students who travelled to overseas destinations but were unable to begin classes due to school closures. There may also be instances where students at domestic institutions are similarly affected and unable to begin classes. Because these students did not begin attendance in a payment period or period of enrollment, 34 CFR § 668.21 (rather than Return of Title IV Funds) applies. In such a situation, the institution must return all Title IV grant funds disbursed for the payment period or period of enrollment and all Direct Loan funds that were credited to the student's account at the institution for that period. The institution must also return Direct Loan funds in the amount of payments made directly by or on behalf of the student to the institution for the period, up to the total amount of the loan funds disbursed. The institution is not responsible for returning Direct Loan funds that were disbursed directly to the student in the form of a credit balance as long as the institution was not aware that the student would not attend prior to the disbursement, and students will be able to repay those funds as a part of their educational loans. In these circumstances, institutions are permitted, but not required, to return all of a student's Direct Loan funds, including the amount comprising the credit balance.

Normally institutions, once aware that a student will not begin or has not begun attendance, must notify the loan servicer which results in issuance of a final demand letter to the borrower. However, we have determined that in the case where a student was unable to begin attendance due to a COVID-19-related school closure, the provisions of 34 CFR § 668.21(a)(2)(ii), requiring the institution to notify the servicer of that student's failure to begin attendance, do not apply because the option for the student to begin attendance did not exist. Accordingly, the institution should not notify the servicer that the student did not begin attendance. He or she will be permitted to repay any Direct Loan funds received under the terms of the promissory note. This will also prevent a student from being required to enter repayment within six months of withdrawing if the student withdrew as a result of a Coronavirus-related interruption.

Enrollment Status Changes

We do not have the authority to waive the requirement to award or disburse Title IV funds based on a student's actual enrollment status. For example, assuming an institution defines full-time enrollment as 12 credit hours, when a full-time student enrolled for 12 credit hours drops or withdraws from three credits, that student is now enrolled at three-quarter time status. However, we remind institutions that for Direct Loans, the institution must only confirm at least half-time enrollment status as of the time of disbursement. It is not necessary to recalculate a student's Direct Loan eligibility based on changes in enrollment status that occur after the institution originates a Direct Loan. For enrollment status changes that occur after an institution's established Pell Grant recalculation (census) date, we do not require recalculation. Note that the student must have begun attendance in all courses comprising the enrollment status on which the Pell Grant payment was based.

Return of Title IV Funds

Even in the case of a disruption from COVID-19, an institution must return any Title IV funds for which it is responsible in accordance with the provisions of 34 CFR § 668.22 when a student withdraws. Currently, we do not have the authority to waive the statutory requirement for the return of unearned Title IV funds in the case where a student (who receives Title IV assistance) withdraws from an institution during a payment period or period of enrollment after having begun attendance. However, the guidance provided below explains the requirements for performing Return of Title IV Funds calculations in situations where an institution has temporarily ceased operations as a result of a COVID-19 disruption.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Definition of a Withdrawal Date

If an institution ceases operation during a payment period and fails to reopen by the end of that payment period, its students are considered no longer in attendance and must be considered withdrawn for that payment period or period of enrollment, and would be subject to Return of Title IV funds requirements. Similarly, if an institution closes and subsequently reopens during a payment period, any students who began attendance during that payment period but failed to return when the institution reopens must be considered withdrawn for that payment period. If the institution is required to take attendance, the withdrawal date is the last day of documented attendance prior to the closure. If the institution is not required to take attendance, the institution can use any applicable option under 34 CFR § 668.22(c), including the midpoint of the payment period or period of enrollment under 34 CFR § 668.2(c)(1)(iii) or, because the closure was a circumstance that the student could not control under 34 CFR § 668.22(c)(1)(iv), the date that the institution ceased operation. When determining the number of days in the payment period or period of enrollment (the denominator of the calculation), the institution should include all the days that the student was scheduled to attend during that period on the date of the withdrawal. For a clock-hour program, an institution should not include as "scheduled hours" any hours on days that it was closed.

Date of Determination and Timeframes for Returns

Normally, if a student does not provide notification to an institution of his/her withdrawal, the date of determination that the student has withdrawn is the date that the institution becomes aware that the student ceased attendance. This is, in most cases when an institution closes for reasons beyond its control, the date of the closure. Therefore, the timeframes for completing Return of Title IV Funds calculations and making the appropriate returns or post-withdrawal disbursements begin on that date (e.g. 30 days to perform the calculation, 45 days to return the funds, etc.).

Reentering the Same Payment Period

If an institution that has closed subsequently reopens during the same payment period or period of enrollment, and permits students to continue coursework that they were taking at the time of the closure, students that return to class at that time are considered to have reentered the same period and retain eligibility for Title IV aid that they were otherwise eligible to receive before the closure. If a student in this situation subsequently withdraws, the institution must exclude the number of days that it was closed (if the closure was for at least five consecutive days, in combination with weekends or other scheduled breaks) from both the number of days the student completed and the total number of days in the payment period or period of enrollment. If the institution altered the number of days in the payment period or period of enrollment following the closure (e.g. if it adds days to the term to make up for the time when it was closed), the institution should use the new number of days in the student's Return of Title IV funds calculation.

NSLDS Enrollment Reporting

In general, when a student withdraws during a payment period, the effective date for the withdrawn ('W') status for enrollment reporting purposes is the withdrawal date used by the institution in accordance with 34 CFR § 668.22(b) or (c). However, notwithstanding the requirement that the institution perform a Return of Title IV funds calculation for students when an institution unexpectedly ceases operation during a payment period and fails to reopen during that payment period, we permit an institution to defer reporting an affected student's enrollment status as "withdrawn" in these circumstances when the institution has a reasonable expectation that—

1. The institution will reopen at the start of a payment period that begins no later than 90 days following the closure; and
2. The student will resume attendance when the institution reopens.

In these cases, the institution should continue reporting the most recent enrollment status that it reported for the affected student prior to the closure. If the student does not resume attendance as expected, the institution must change the student's enrollment status to "withdrawn" using the student's actual withdrawal date as the enrollment status effective date.

While the coronavirus threat to the American public remains low, we encourage school communities to take all steps to ensure the health and well-being of students, faculty, and staff. We established the website, https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus?src=feature, to provide general information and guidance for school communities, including links to information posted by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. We appreciate your cooperation and welcome any additional questions at COVID-19@ed.gov.

Good afternoon,

We have two questions as it relates to the information provided below 030520Guidance4interruptionsrelated2CoronavirusCOVID19, Posted Date, March 05, 2020, Author, Office of Postsecondary Education, regarding the information provided in this electronic announcement:

1. The decision has been made to move all of our classes to on-line effective March 21st. What is the guidance for handling Federal Student Aid funding for room & board if students are not on /or returning to campus due to the COVID-19? What should we do about refunds to students for room & board?

2. In reference to the Department of Education guidance for when institutions of higher education can pay students using federal Title IV funds. Can we assume that work study students whose activities are impacted by Coronavirus (COVID-19), either directly being affected or indirectly because the student can no longer participate in working because the institution has asked them temporarily not to report to duty, will be paid for their regular shifts?

3. If so, how do we determine how much we should pay work-study students? For example, if the maximum hours weekly is 20, do we pay them for the aforementioned hours?

Please advise.

Guidance for interruptions of study related to Coronavirus (COVID-19)
This electronic announcement addresses concerns expressed by higher education leaders regarding how they should comply with Title IV, Higher Education Act (HEA) policies for students whose activities are impacted by Coronavirus (COVID-19), either directly because the student is ill or quarantined, or indirectly because the student was recalled from travel-abroad experiences, can no longer participate in internships or clinical rotations, or attends a campus that temporarily suspended operations. This information provides flexibilities for schools that are working to help students complete the term in which they are currently enrolled.
These instructions do not contemplate accommodations for students who have not yet enrolled or whose term has not yet begun, with certain exceptions. We will continue to monitor the situation and make a later determination of what accommodations may be necessary should longer-term interruptions become likely. We will continue to provide updates to this information as appropriate.

We encourage institutions to visit the Department's Coronavirus webpage, https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus?src=feature, on this topic frequently, as we will post updates as they become available. In addition, the Department's webpage has links to guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, including for how Institutions of Higher Education should manage human health risks associated with Coronavirus.
We address five potential student and campus scenarios: that may prompt an institution to have questions about how to comply with Title IV, HEA requirements if the Coronavirus impacts a student or a campus:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- A student was enrolled or was supposed to begin a travel-abroad experience and either the student has been called back to the U.S. or was never able to begin the travel abroad experience;
- A student was enrolled in a program and met the requirements for full-time enrollment; however, due to the COVID-19, one or more classes – such as an internship, a clinical rotation, student teaching or fieldwork – have been cancelled and now the student has fallen below the 12 credit hour minimum and is no longer considered to be a full-time student;
- A student is quarantined and misses class or a student is incapacitated due to COVID-19 illness;
- A campus temporarily stops offering ground-based classes in order to prevent the spread of COVID-19;
- A foreign school that serves U.S. students who participate in title IV programs temporarily suspends operations due to COVID-19.

We offer information below about options we are making available to institutions under our current statutory authority to provide as much flexibility as possible so that you can continue to serve students. In some instances, we have been asked to consider providing flexibilities that are beyond our statutory authority. As a result, we cannot provide those flexibilities. If you have questions about the information provided in this electronic announcement, or you are encountering a scenario that we have not addressed, please email the Department at COVID-19@ed.gov.
We recommend that institutions document, as contemporaneously as possible, any actions taken as a result of COVID-19, including those actions described in this document.

Accommodating Students Whose Enrollment is Disrupted by Coronavirus
Our goal is to work with institutions and find ways to enable you to accommodate students and help them continue their education despite interruptions caused by COVID-19. For many institutions, online education will provide a viable option for continuing to teach students through COVID-19-related interruptions. In some instances, students enrolled in ground-based programs at campuses that must temporarily close could participate in distance education for a period of time and then resume ground-based attendance when the campus reopens. In other instances, an institution may provide online learning opportunities for a student who was recalled from a travel-abroad program but the student is too late into the semester to enroll in other classes offered by the home campus, or the student who arrived in a foreign country intending to complete a travel abroad experience finds that the program has now been cancelled or temporarily suspended. We are providing the following flexibilities to institutions to help them understand what options they can make available to students and remain in compliance with Title IV requirements.

Approval to Offer Distance Education
The Department is providing broad approval to institutions to use online technologies to accommodate students on a temporary basis, without going through the regular approval process of the Department in the event that an institution is otherwise required to seek Departmental approval for the use or expansion of distance learning programs. This flexibility only applies to a program during a payment period that overlaps the date of this electronic announcement or the following payment period. If an institution chooses to continue offering a new program or use distance education in a manner requiring the Department's approval after that point, it must seek approval under the Department's normal process.
We are also permitting accreditors to waive their distance education review requirements for institutions working to accommodate students whose enrollment is otherwise interrupted as a result of COVID-19. We currently are limiting that permission to distance learning opportunities developed for the purpose of serving students who were already in attendance, but whose attendance was interrupted by COVID-19. Please note that this flexibility is not available for clock-hour courses that lead to licensure if the licensure body will not accept distance learning courses or hours or give credit for them toward the number of hours a student must complete.

We want to make clear to institutions that for Title IV, HEA purposes, distance learning does not require the use of sophisticated learning management systems or online platforms, though accreditors may have additional standards included in their review of distance learning programs. We are, however, permitting accreditors to waive those standards for schools implementing distance learning programs solely for the purpose of allowing currently enrolled students to complete a term that is interrupted by COVID-19 closures. To meet the Department's requirements for providing distance education, an institution must communicate to students through one of several types of technology – including email – described under 34 CFR § 600.2, and instructors must initiate substantive communication with students, either individually or collectively, on a regular basis. In other words, an instructor could use email to provide instructional materials to students enrolled in his or her class, use chat features to communicate with students, set up conference calls to facilitate group conversations, engage in email exchanges or require students to submit work electronically that the instructor will evaluate.

Institutions may provide distance learning temporarily to accommodate students as a result of a COVID-19 interruption, including in cases where students began attendance in classes offered in a brick-and-mortar setting but were transitioned to a distance education format in the middle of the term. In these cases, we will accept the accreditation and state authorization of the institution for the programs in which those students were enrolled prior to the interruption due to COVID-19 to enable students to complete the current term.

Institutions may also enter into temporary consortium agreements with other institutions so that students can complete courses at other institutions but be awarded credit by their home institution. In addition, in instances where accrediting agencies require students to complete a final number or percentage of credits in residence at the institution, accrediting agencies may waive that requirement for students impacted by COVID-19 without objection by the Department.

The Department will permit students who wish to take an approved leave of absence for COVID-19-related concerns or limitations (such as interruption of a travel-abroad program), to take such leave, even if the student notifies the institution in writing after the approved leave of absence has begun. In such a case, the institution may retain those Title IV funds to apply when the student continues enrollment. If the student does not return to complete their program within 180 days, the school would then be expected to perform the Return of Title IV funds calculation based on the date on which the leave-of-absence began. Note that in term-based programs, if a student takes an approved leave of absence from a term-based program, the institution must ensure that the student is permitted to complete the coursework he or she began prior to the leave of absence.

Finally, because we understand that some students may have been recalled from travel abroad programs or canceled-out of experiential learning opportunities after the semester began, institutions may offer courses to those students on a schedule that would otherwise be considered a non-standard term, if doing so enables those students to complete the term. These flexibilities will also be provided to institutions, or their additional locations or programs, that must temporarily close as a result of COVID-19.

Foreign Schools

We cannot extend flexibility regarding the use of distance learning to foreign schools since the Higher Education Act does not permit foreign schools to provide distance learning to U.S. students who participate in Title IV, HEA programs. We continue to consider if there are any other flexibilities we could extend to foreign schools that temporarily close due to COVID-19.

Federal Work Study (FWS)

Federal law includes a provision allowing an institution to make FWS payments under certain limited circumstances to disaster-affected students who are unable to continue working. Given the unique nature of this situation, it is unlikely that an entire region would be declared a Federal disaster area, yet to students enrolled at a campus that must close temporarily, the loss of this important form of financial aid can be devastating. The impact may be magnified if the institution accommodates students by providing alternative instructional opportunities and the student is required to continue paying tuition, but the student loses FWS as an important part of their financial aid award. For students enrolled and performing FWS at a campus that must close due to COVID-19, or for a FWS student who is employed by an employer that closes as a result of COVID-19, the institution may continue paying the student Federal work-study wages during that closure if it occurred after the beginning of the term, the institution is continuing to pay its other employees (including faculty and staff), and the institution continues to meet its institutional wage share requirement. Students who were prevented from beginning a term at the institution as a result of a COVID-19-related disruption would not be eligible for Federal Student Aid for that term, and therefore could not be paid FWS wages for hours they did not work. Graduate students who are paid FWS wages on salary may continue to be paid for the remainder of the term if the institution is also paying its faculty and staff during that period. In these instances, institutions should document (as contemporaneously as feasible) that the COVID-19 disruption was the reason the student received FWS funds without documentation of hours worked.

Length of Academic Year

The Department is authorized under 34 CFR § 668.3 to approve a reduced academic year. If at any point an institution determines it will close as the result of a campus health emergency, it may contact the School Participation team to request a temporary reduction in the length of its academic year.

Professional Judgement

Financial aid administrators (FAA) have statutory authority to use professional judgement to make adjustments on a case-by-case basis to the cost of attendance or to the data elements used in calculating the EFC to reflect a student's special circumstances. The use of professional judgement where students and/or their families have been affected by COVID-19 is permitted, such as in the case where an employer closes for a period of time as a result of COVID-19. In making professional judgement determinations, FAAs must obtain documentation and retain it in each student's file. This documentation must substantiate the reason for any adjustment. Institutions are reminded that, regardless of how broadly an event may affect its student population, professional judgement determinations must be made and documented on a case-by-case basis.

Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP)

An institution's SAP appeal policy (34 CFR § 668.34(a)(9)) must, among other things, describe the basis on which a student may file an appeal: the death of a relative, an injury or illness of the student, or other special circumstances. Circumstances related to an outbreak of COVID-19, including, but not limited to, the illness of a student or family member, compliance with a quarantine period, or the general disruption resulting from such an outbreak may form the basis of a student's SAP appeal even if not specifically articulated in the institution's SAP policy.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Students Who Did Not Begin Attendance

We are aware that many U.S. students enrolled in eligible foreign institutions and in study abroad programs offered by domestic institutions have already been affected by local outbreaks of COVID-19 and the measures taken by institutions in response. Of immediate concern are those students who travelled to overseas destinations but were unable to begin classes due to school closures. There may also be instances where students at domestic institutions are similarly affected and unable to begin classes. Because these students did not begin attendance in a payment period or period of enrollment, 34 CFR § 668.21 (rather than Return of Title IV Funds) applies. In such a situation, the institution must return all Title IV grant funds disbursed for the payment period or period of enrollment and all Direct Loan funds that were credited to the student's account at the institution for that period. The institution must also return Direct Loan funds in the amount of payments made directly by or on behalf of the student to the institution for the period, up to the total amount of the loan funds disbursed. The institution is not responsible for returning Direct Loan funds that were disbursed directly to the student in the form of a credit balance as long as the institution was not aware that the student would not attend prior to the disbursement, and students will be able to repay those funds as a part of their educational loans. In these circumstances, institutions are permitted, but not required, to return all of a student's Direct Loan funds, including the amount comprising the credit balance.

Normally institutions, once aware that a student will not begin or has not begun attendance, must notify the loan servicer which results in issuance of a final demand letter to the borrower. However, we have determined that in the case where a student was unable to begin attendance due to a COVID-19-related school closure, the provisions of 34 CFR § 668.21(a)(2)(ii), requiring the institution to notify the servicer of that student's failure to begin attendance, do not apply because the option for the student to begin attendance did not exist. Accordingly, the institution should not notify the servicer that the student did not begin attendance. He or she will be permitted to repay any Direct Loan funds received under the terms of the promissory note. This will also prevent a student from being required to enter repayment within six months of withdrawing if the student withdrew as a result of a Coronavirus-related interruption.

Enrollment Status Changes

We do not have the authority to waive the requirement to award or disburse Title IV funds based on a student's actual enrollment status. For example, assuming an institution defines full-time enrollment as 12 credit hours, when a full-time student enrolled for 12 credit hours drops or withdraws from three credits, that student is now enrolled at three-quarter time status. However, we remind institutions that for Direct Loans, the institution must only confirm at least half-time enrollment status as of the time of disbursement. It is not necessary to recalculate a student's Direct Loan eligibility based on changes in enrollment status that occur after the institution originates a Direct Loan. For enrollment status changes that occur after an institution's established Pell Grant recalculation (census) date, we do not require recalculation. Note that the student must have begun attendance in all courses comprising the enrollment status on which the Pell Grant payment was based.

Return of Title IV Funds

Even in the case of a disruption from COVID-19, an institution must return any Title IV funds for which it is responsible in accordance with the provisions of 34 CFR § 668.22 when a student withdraws. Currently, we do not have the authority to waive the statutory requirement for the return of unearned Title IV funds in the case where a student (who receives Title IV assistance) withdraws from an institution during a payment period or period of enrollment after having begun attendance. However, the guidance provided below explains the requirements for performing Return of Title IV Funds calculations in situations where an institution has temporarily ceased operations as a result of a COVID-19 disruption.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Definition of a Withdrawal Date

If an institution ceases operation during a payment period and fails to reopen by the end of that payment period, its students are considered no longer in attendance and must be considered withdrawn for that payment period or period of enrollment, and would be subject to Return of Title IV funds requirements. Similarly, if an institution closes and subsequently reopens during a payment period, any students who began attendance during that payment period but failed to return when the institution reopens must be considered withdrawn for that payment period. If the institution is required to take attendance, the withdrawal date is the last day of documented attendance prior to the closure. If the institution is not required to take attendance, the institution can use any applicable option under 34 CFR § 668.22(c), including the midpoint of the payment period or period of enrollment under 34 CFR § 668.2(c)(1)(iii) or, because the closure was a circumstance that the student could not control under 34 CFR § 668.22(c)(1)(iv), the date that the institution ceased operation. When determining the number of days in the payment period or period of enrollment (the denominator of the calculation), the institution should include all the days that the student was scheduled to attend during that period on the date of the withdrawal. For a clock-hour program, an institution should not include as "scheduled hours" any hours on days that it was closed.

Date of Determination and Timeframes for Returns

Normally, if a student does not provide notification to an institution of his/her withdrawal, the date of determination that the student has withdrawn is the date that the institution becomes aware that the student ceased attendance. This is, in most cases when an institution closes for reasons beyond its control, the date of the closure. Therefore, the timeframes for completing Return of Title IV Funds calculations and making the appropriate returns or post-withdrawal disbursements begin on that date (e.g. 30 days to perform the calculation, 45 days to return the funds, etc.).

Reentering the Same Payment Period

If an institution that has closed subsequently reopens during the same payment period or period of enrollment, and permits students to continue coursework that they were taking at the time of the closure, students that return to class at that time are considered to have reentered the same period and retain eligibility for Title IV aid that they were otherwise eligible to receive before the closure. If a student in this situation subsequently withdraws, the institution must exclude the number of days that it was closed (if the closure was for at least five consecutive days, in combination with weekends or other scheduled breaks) from both the number of days the student completed and the total number of days in the payment period or period of enrollment. If the institution altered the number of days in the payment period or period of enrollment following the closure (e.g. if it adds days to the term to make up for the time when it was closed), the institution should use the new number of days in the student's Return of Title IV funds calculation.

NSLDS Enrollment Reporting

In general, when a student withdraws during a payment period, the effective date for the withdrawn ('W') status for enrollment reporting purposes is the withdrawal date used by the institution in accordance with 34 CFR § 668.22(b) or (c). However, notwithstanding the requirement that the institution perform a Return of Title IV funds calculation for students when an institution unexpectedly ceases operation during a payment period and fails to reopen during that payment period, we permit an institution to defer reporting an affected student's enrollment status as "withdrawn" in these circumstances when the institution has a reasonable expectation that—

1. The institution will reopen at the start of a payment period that begins no later than 90 days following the closure; and
2. The student will resume attendance when the institution reopens.

In these cases, the institution should continue reporting the most recent enrollment status that it reported for the affected student prior to the closure. If the student does not resume attendance as expected, the institution must change the student's enrollment status to "withdrawn" using the student's actual withdrawal date as the enrollment status effective date.

While the coronavirus threat to the American public remains low, we encourage school communities to take all steps to ensure the health and well-being of students, faculty, and staff. We established the website, https://www.ed.gov/coronavirus?src=feature, to provide general information and guidance for school communities, including links to information posted by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. We appreciate your cooperation and welcome any additional questions at COVID-19@ed.gov.

Good morning,

I'm trying to follow guidance in the March 5 EA, and from the San Francisco School Participation team who asked me to use this email address for my questions. Thanks in advance for your help.

1. We are planning to start Spring quarter a week later than scheduled. That change gives us a 33-week academic year instead of the scheduled 34-week academic year.

2. The change to Spring quarter puts our scheduled disbursement date 1 day outside the allowed 10 day period before the start of the payment period. Will schools get temporary relief from that requirement, or will we need to change all of our disbursement dates and aid program records?

Again, thanks for all that you're doing.

Can you please provide guidance on the following questions?

- If the university makes a decision to reduce an institutional fee such as a non-resident surcharge for the term (example: as a result of moving to an online environment) does the cost of attendance need to be adjusted accordingly?

- Term calendar changes: If a spring break is extended from 5 to 10 days in the middle of the term, and the end date of the term is extended to maintain almost the same number of days of instruction, does the calendar change need to be reported and require approval from the Department of Education?

Thanks for clarification! We appreciate the assistance as we continue to navigate institutional impacts of COVID-19. Vicki

Good morning,

I am the Financial Aid Coordinator for the Lee County Technical Colleges: Fort Myers Technical College and Cape Coral Technical College. These are CLOCK HOUR schools. Based on decisions made by the Florida Department of Education and our local school district, that we are a part of, our school will be shut down until March 30th. Our school is on our regular scheduled spring break this week, March 16-20. However, the closure next week, March 23-27 is my concern, as it was not planned. I have read the documentation available on ifap regarding this. However, due to the fact that we are a clock hour school, is there anything different we need to do? Will distance learning be accepted for clock hours? Should we, instead, make up the time upon the students return?

I know that you must be overwhelmed with questions. I appreciate your assistance.

Melissa, Patrick, & COVID-19 response:

I wanted to summarize a call I had with John Payne (Deputy Superintendent, Division of Federal Programs, Accountability and School Improvement, South Carolina Department of Education) today, 3/16:

I (Evan Skloot) spoke with John Payne on the phone on Mon, 3/16. We discussed SCDE's plan to suspend all spring assessments and hold harmless all school identification from the previous year; accordingly, he wanted to know what the protocol and logistics would be for waivers. SCDE had reached out to Deputy Secretary Zais earlier in the day, but had not heard back from him yet. I pointed him to our current COVID-19 guidance and explained that this was just a starting point, and that we were working to answer more questions and provide more guidance as the situation evolves. I noted that the Department is looking at ways to provide statutorily allowable flexibility, and understands that the needs will vary by State. I recommended that John send all questions as he has them to the COVID-19@ed.gov mailbox and copy me and the Title I mailbox, so that we can keep track of all questions and see what the FAQs are. John also noted that the State Superintendent was exploring sending formal correspondence to the Department about SCDE's decision to suspend spring assessments and its intent to seek a waiver, and asked who to address it to. I noted that although this is not required at this time, it is the State's prerogative to do so, and could be sent to Assistant Secretary Brogan with the COVID-19 email copied. Additionally, John mentioned that he was receiving requests from several districts to speak directly with ED about needing waivers. I confirmed that SCDE should speak directly with ED about assessment-related waivers, as any potential waivers would most likely be on the State level. John thanked me and said the reassurance that ED plans to work with States on necessary flexibility, as possible, is what the SEA and the Governor were hoping to get to ease anxieties on both the local and State level.

To whom it may concern,

My name is Kaley and I receive US federal aid for my law degree at the University of Sydney. I am being told that my loan money will stop if classes are moved online due to COVID-19. That is illegal. In the face of an international crisis, you are going to stop providing funding to students for circumstances that are beyond their control? This has to stop. Something needs to be done now to change this rule as the way things are heading, it looks like all universities will be shut down sooner rather than later. This is unacceptable behaviour from the government to not take care of its citizens in a crisis. I am appalled that you could even think to do this to helpless people who are working day and night to get their degrees just to be told that because the government has decided to quarantine people and shut down schools, they can no longer receive funding. I do not want to be told I have to take out additional loans at this time. This is YOUR responsibility. I refuse to accept that the law cannot be changed in this regard. This needs to end, now.

Sincerely,

Hi,
I wanted to check if Department of Education plan to shutdown Pre-schools/daycares?
The schools like Genius kids sent email saying "our centers are not under the jurisdiction of the school district and if the school district closes the schools, this does not require us to close. We are mandated by the Department of Education, Department of Health and Department of Social Services. If and when they require us to close, that is when we will follow those instructions and act accordingly." .
They also require parents to give 15 days notice if we want to pull out kid from school. We do not want to pull kid out of school but want to keep them home till COVID is under control. We do not want to pay the school while we worry if our kids are safe. No one can take full responsibility of kids safety.
I feel like the schools are acting greedy in this sensitive situation.

I as a parent of pre-schooler, request Department of Education and Department of Health to order pre-school/daycare closure like jurisdiction of school district ordered the closure of public schools.

These questions are for the Office of the Under Secretary or Office of Postsecondary Education.

On March 5, 2020, ED published an electronic announcement titled Guidance for interruptions of study related to Coronavirus (COVID-19).

This guidance explains ED's broad approval for institutions of higher education participating in the Title IV programs to use online technologies to accommodate students on a temporary basis without going through ED's regular approval process. However, as noted in the March 5 guidance, this flexibility only applies to a program during a payment period that overlaps the date of the March 5 electronic announcement or the following payment period.

Several of our member schools have expressed growing concern that limiting the ability to offer online courses to the payment period that overlaps the date of the March 5 electronic announcement or the following payment period and maintain Title IV eligibility will significantly impede the ability to enroll new students. As you know, many career schools offer short-term programs that start every few weeks. Without the ability to enroll and fund new students using online technologies during this unprecedented time, many small career schools' financial positions will be adversely impacted.

National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases Director Anthony Fauci told lawmakers last week that, "Things will get worse than they are right now." See: https://www.washingtonpost.com/health/coronavirus-forecasts-are-grim-its-going-to-get-worse/2020/03/11/2a177e0a-63b4-11ea-acca-80c22bbee96f_story.html. Dr. Fauci's statement suggests that institutions of higher education need longer-term flexibilities beyond those provided for in the March 5 electronic announcement, including the ability for schools to enroll new students using online technologies and maintain Title IV eligibility.

Is ED working on guidance that will extend the ability for institutions of higher education to enroll new students using online technologies and maintain Title IV eligibility? If so, when does ED hope to publish this guidance? If not, does ED have a process to expediate the review and approval of distance education for those institutions not currently approved for online delivery?

We recognize this pandemic is rapidly evolving, and ED staff are working tirelessly to help mitigate the impact to institutions and students. We thank you for your service during these uncertain times and your response to these questions.
