Good afternoon,

Attached is emergency order #8, this updated order maintains the ban on gatherings of 10 or more people and indefinite school closures, but includes some important changes and clarifications:

- * Treats bars and restaurants are the same. Bars will be able to have carryout sales of alcohol and food, if allowed by local ordinances and state law. This will help ensure thousands of establishments can stay in business during this unprecedented health emergency.
- * Media and news organizations can remain open to provide the public with vital information.
- * Laundromats may remain open.
- * Banks, credit unions, and other financial institutions may remain open if they practice social distancing.
- * All parts of the food delivery system – from farms to stores – may remain open.
- * Clarifies that cafeterias in healthcare facilities may remain open to serve our healthcare workers.
- * Allied health professions, such as acupuncturists, are unaffected by the mass gathering ban.
- * All parts of our transportation system can continue to serve our economy.
- * Any facility used for in-person absentee voting or as a polling location may remain open for voting, except for sites at long-term care and assisted care facilities.
- * Hair salons, day spas, nail salons, barber shops, tattoo parlors, body art establishments, and tanning facilities must close effective 5 pm on Fri., March 20, 2020.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

All gatherings that bring together or are likely to bring together 10 or less people in a single room or confined space, whether inside or outside, at the same time must preserve social distancing and follow all other public health recommendations issued by DHS or the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Voluntary cancellation, closure, or limitations on the size of gatherings beyond the requirements of this order are permitted and encouraged.

Please find attached a letter from the Disability Service Provider Network (DSPN) regarding the COVID-19 legislation being drafted and under consideration from our new CEO, Lisa M. Davidson and Board of Directors President, Elizabeth Filter.

On behalf of Disability Services Providers across Wisconsin, we want to thank you for recognizing the needs of providers, participants, and their families during this public health emergency. DSPN members are prioritizing continuity of services for participants and their families; however, Long-Term Care providers are facing a significant crisis in recruiting caregivers causing unprecedented labor costs during this pandemic. Relief is needed now for these vital Long-Term Care organizations.

To avoid further disruptions for participants and their families, we ask that any COVID-19 legislation include the following:

- * Clarifies the definition of "provider" to ensure all Long-Term Care providers, including licensed and 1-2 bed certified Adult Family Homes, are eligible for financial relief and liability protection
- * Allows for participants to maintain choice of their provider of service

Mark,

Thank you for reaching out on this. I can only imagine how dealing with the pandemic and shuttered your everyday routines. Thank you for everything you are doing, and please let me know if there is anything you'd like to discuss outside of this issue over the coming days. Over the years, nursing homes in my district have continued to close, so I know how crucial it is that we keep this type of living around.

In the meantime, I will contact the Governor's office with your request.

Dear Representative Felzowski,

My name is Mark Ruvel. I operate the Champion Care network, with 1 skilled nursing facility (The Bay at Eastview) and 1 assisted living center (The Bay at Garden View) located in your district. In these facilities, I have approximately 75 residents and 90 staffers that are on the frontlines of the fight against Covid-19.

Under the recently passed Families First Coronavirus Response Act, Congress appropriated approximately 580 Million dollars for Wisconsin to fight the Coronavirus pandemic. Congress also passed the CARES Act, which appropriates another $150 billion dollars for state and local governments through a yet to be determined formula. I recognize that there are many competing priorities for the best way to fight the virus, but I want you to realize that our facilities are running critically low on the Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) and staffing needed to keep our residents safe.

To that end, I'm asking that you please reach out to Governor Evers and the Wisconsin Department of Health Services to urge them to allocate at least 20% of any Congressional funding be used specifically to help the long-term care facilities in the state. We will use these funds to engage new staff, retain existing staff and obtain PPE that is essential in containing the spread of the infection.

If you have any questions or need more facts regarding the situation on the ground, please reach out to me at (347) 409-9617 or via email at mark@championhcare.com.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) regulates the vapor pressure of ga etail stations during the summer ozone season to reduce emissions and reduce the effects of ozone-related health problems.

Michael,

Thank you for your email. I understand where you are coming from. I think you'd be surprised to hear how many people reached to me wanting to vote in person, even though they knew they could vote absentee. I got a lot of really encouraging feedback Tuesday and yesterday about the polling places in our area. Thanks to everyone who decided to vote absentee (currently over 1 million people!), a majority of polling places had a manageable amount of people come through during the day with no lines, certainly not the crowds we normally see on Election Day. I heard from others that their polling place was clean, run well, and had the necessary social distancing in place, and that they ultimately felt safe.

I can promise you that the decision to not delay with anything but simple and it was not an easy choice. I was really conflicted about it over the last several weeks, and I know a lot of my colleagues felt the same. You mentioned logistics, and that was just one of 1000 new issues that would arise from extending the election. I understand why people wanted it, and really do, but at the end of the day moving it created more problems than it solved. I can go into more detail about why I don't think it was a feasible option if you are interested. If you are not, understand. I am so grateful to all of our clerks that did such an amazing job on Tuesday. I will be reaching out to them over the next week to see what they thought went well, and what they think needs to go better the next time around.

I hope you are well and that you have a good Easter weekend,

Representative Felzkowski,

I am writing you today to tell you how disappointed I am that today's election was not postponed.

The announcement from Vos and Fitzgerald mentioned the millions of voters that are voting absentee. But, what about the risk to the rest of the voters? What about the risk to the clerks?

This Coronavirus situation needs to be taken seriously. It should have been a simple decision to delay the vote so that logistics could be put into place to allow everyone to vote by mail or online.

I won't be voting for you or anyone else that didn't try to delay the election and put appropriate

Hey Carol,

Thank you for your email on this. I appreciate you giving me this background and helping me refresh my mind a little bit on the issue overall. I guess the short answer is that I'm torn. I support businesses having as much information as possible when hiring, but I am also wary of creating new unfunded mandates for businesses and local governments. I think ultimately, Governor Evers would never sign legislation for e-verify, so it's something we can take a look at, dig into more to learn how it could work in the state, and possibly pursue under a Republican governor.

I don't think your email made you seem like you don't have a kind heart. I understand where you are coming from on it. Thank you for getting involved and for being an advocate. Ultimately, it's how things get done.

Subject: E-verify

Dear Rep. Felzkowski:
Congratulations on your decision to run for Senate in the 7th District. I was at the meeting in Antigo last evening where you made your speech. I had not met you before and in reality am new to the grassroots politics and the Republican Party. I am a recovering Democrat.

When you asked if there were questions, I asked you about your stand on E-Verify. You said you did not know what I E-Verify was but your staff said it was a federal program.

Actually, it is not merely a Federal program.

E-Verify is the law in 11 states. It could be the law in Wisconsin. That would be great.
E-Verify may have saved Molly Tibbits because her accused killer would not have been working on the dairy farm down the road from where he attacked her. He was an illegal alien working fraudulently with a stolen social security number. E-Verify connects with ICE to help locate and remove illegal aliens.

Illegal aliens are not the kind of people I want around me and my family because they have already broken our law coming here. We have enough of our own citizen criminals to deal with, we don't need to promote human trafficking from other countries. People cross our border and "disappear". E-Verify could help track them. E-Verify could be used to cross match for voter fraud, medicare fraud, food stamp fraud, housing fraud and help local authorities apprehend and detain criminal illegal aliens for ICE and eventual deportation.

I seem like I do not have a kind heart, but I do. I realize that people live in poverty in other countries. I feel bad for them. I am blessed to be an American. I understand that people want to come here to live. If they come here illegally, they have already broken our laws and should not be here. They have jumped ahead of people who have applied for legal immigration status. That is unfair to those who are legally working their way through the system. My son in law is from Malaysia. He came here legally. He is now a proud American. It took years and years for the process but he is now part of his own American Dream. He resents illegals who did not follow the rules and are now on welfare using up resources that should go to our elderly, military vets, poor, sick and downtrodden. We obviously have enough of our own Americans who fit those categories. If we stop the flow of free stuff, stop the flow of freeloaders and stop the flow of illegal invaders, our country would be so much better off.

So, those are my views on E-Verify. I do hope if you really do not know what it is, you will research it. Everyone I speak to is for E-Verify. In this day and age of electronics, it is simple to get the program up and running. I researched it on Google. Maybe you could find out how the 11 states that have E-Verify as a state wide program got that to happen.

It would be a very welcome cause to champion and I believe it would actually help your campaign and successful election. Nobody in Northern Wisconsin wants illegal aliens in their community unless, perhaps,they are getting a kickback for human trafficking them into the area or are involved in drug smuggling. After all, Mexican Cartels move drugs across the border on or in people and make billions of dollars doing that. Our Sheriff, Westen stated that Langlade Co has a major drug problem with meth coming from Mexico. It didn't get shipped up on UPS trucks from Amazon. I am afraid that if this is not stopped, our whole country will be destroyed from the inside out. I want to leave my children and grandchildren a wonderful, safe country. Help me do that, ok?

Sincerely,
Carol McDougal

Regarding the upcoming election this Tuesday April 7 in Wisconsin:

This should be the most common sense vote you will ever make in your legislative career, and one you should be THE most proud of, and that is keeping YOUR Wisconsin people safe. People are dying by the hundreds and thousands every day because of this deadly virus that is EVERYWHERE. Orders are out in almost every state to stay home, avoid public places, social distancing - we all know the rules by now, particularly SAFER AT HOME!

Yes you can say people should have asked for absentee ballots, and many did. But now because of the daily escalation of this deadly virus, those who wanted to vote at the poll, may very well choose to be smart and safe and not even vote! Past poll workers are smart and know to stay home! And right now we supposedly could be in the worst 2 weeks of the spread. YOU SEE THE NUMBERS GROW EVERY DAY!

So WHY then, with all that we know, and all that is being learned almost hourly now, would you knowingly make the CHOICE to put your Wisconsin people in the most harm's way any American has ever seen.

Think of your own family members, maybe especially the older ones who have always been so proud to go and vote. Do you want them to go to the poll and vote this Tuesday, April 7?

Please be smart, as you are asking all of us to do, and vote for an ALL-MAIL ELECTION. This is not a Republican or Democrat issue. It is an issue of keeping all Wisconsin people SAFER AT HOME.

Thank you for keeping the safety of all of us, my loved ones and yours, in mind as you make this very important vote.

P.S. I'd go further to say that to ensure all ballots get returned quickly and timely, do not require a stamp on the return!

Dear Mary and Tom,
I don't understand why you would want to risk your voters lives by gathering at the polls in the midst of this pandemic. I have been a poll worker and know the proximity of voters and workers, staff and other voters. It is inevitable that the spread of a virus would take over with coughing, sneezing and even breathing going on at close quarters. Why would the Republican politicians want to spread the virus? Do you think only Democrats get sick ? Really, I would like to know…

A federal judge had previously rule that the legislature could and should pass an emergency bill to temporarily extend the terms of the officials affected. Other states have done so. But you and your Republican colleagues chose not to work with Governor Evers and pass an emergency bill to postpone the election the bill would have passed without opposition and the Governor would have signed it. There would not have been any litigation. Isn't it time for you and your colleagues to start doing the right thing instead of the republican thing?

But your party has put your agenda ahead of the safety and welfare of the citizens in Wisconsin. Shame on you. Your party leaders have said that postponing the election would have taken away the privilege of voting from the people of Wisconsin. That is a lie, the election was not being cancelled just postponed. So, you are important but the rest of Wisconsinites are not? I hope that you are proud of yourself for putting the people of Wisconsin in harms way. Subject: RE: Election

Greg,

Thank you for reaching out to me. I totally understand where you are coming from, especially because in our area, there is a much larger elderly population, and our polling places already have fewer people to run the polls. You are right that Governor Evers refuses to move that date, has said so repeatedly, and has encouraged everyone to vote absentee when at all possible, and there's really nothing I can do to force his hand. The fact of the matter is that the law/his emergency powers do not actually allow for him to change or postpone that date on his own. This, at least, does give me some comfort, because it means that one politician cannot take away our constitutional rights to vote just on a whim. These are certainly extraordinary circumstances, for sure. One big concern with moving this election so close to the date is that there are already 100,000 absentee ballots out there that have been returned to the clerks to be counted. On those ballots are votes for local positions all over the state. If Governor Evers were to move the election date, many, many local positions would remain vacant during that time, sometimes crippling a local government's ability to make moves to respond to the public health emergency we are currently in. It's also difficult to say when that date should be postponed to because we do not yet know how long the public health emergency will be in place. The deadline to register online has been extended by a federal judge until March 30th, so with people being able to access absentee ballots until April 2nd, I'm really hoping everyone who does not want to leave their house uses that option.

The federal government is close to passing a federal stimulus package that will have some funds available to aid local governments. This will allow more flexibility for clerks to be able to do what they need to to make sure this election is as safe as possible for all, including for poll workers. It is the Election Commission's job to work with all municipal clerks to ensure that this happens, and that all clerks have the resources they need to make that possible. I have heard that some locations are looking at purchasing pens so that every voter can use their own pen to sign the book and vote with it, and then take it with them.

Coronavirus and the fall out has created some really impossible situations, and this is one of them. If you are uncomfortable going to the polls to work or to vote, I think you have every right to stay home, and to vote absentee. I know some clerks (and the elections commission) are working on recruiting college students and non-essential employees out of work to work the polls in place of those who don't feel comfortable. If you're wanting to avoid getting sick, I'd talk to your municipal clerk about it and see what parameters they are putting into place to make the day as safe as possible.

As we've seen over the last two weeks, this situation can change drastically from day to day, so I will continue to keep you in the loop if anything changes. Thank you again for your time and sharing your thoughts with me,

Mary

Hey Lindy,

Thank you for reaching out. I know municipal clerks are working with the Elections Commission on the guidance for April 7th. Governor Evers has stated continuously that he doesn't believe we can move the election date, especially now that absentee ballots are already out there. The other concern is that, if the election date is postponed, you will have vacancies all over the state for local government positions. In a public health emergency, we need to make sure we have people serving in those positions so local governments can vote and make decisions for their area. I would reach out to your municipal clerk to learn more about what they are learning from the Elections Commission. Some of the ideas I've heard include spreading out the voting booths themselves to ensure adequate spacing between people, and some are purchasing pens so that each voter can take the pen with them, rather than having to share pens, as is usually done. I have also heard that the elections commission is also considering training college students who are interested in working at the polls so that some of our more elderly poll workers can stay home if they want to.

With Governor Evers' Stay At Home order coming out later this afternoon, we may learn more on this front, but as of right now, I have heard that nothing is changing for the election. Please let me know if you have more questions I can look into after you speak with the clerk. I'm also attaching a document I received from the Elections Commission.

Thank you and stay safe!

Chuck,

Thank you for your email. I have never said that anyone should work at the polls who is not comfortable. I have been contacted by a lot of people in district that are 1. Interested in voting in person and 2. Interested in working the polls. If anyone feels unsafe or uncomfortable doing so, they should stay home and vote absentee. My comment about people getting the virus no matter what is based on what we are hearing from experts, many of which are saying that 60-80% of people will become infected with COVID-19, no matter what social distancing is put in place. The goal is to reduce the amount of people that get it at one time so that our health care system isn't overwhelmed at any given time. You are absolutely entitled to your opinion about the situation, and I absolutely respect that. At the end of the day, Governor Evers knows the election cannot be moved safely with three days notice. He has given many reasons over the last two weeks as to why the election cannot and should not be moved. You can make up your own mind about why he changed his mind, but what I know is that part of what he is asking for is unconstitutional, something the legislature has told him. The polls will be staffed, partially with volunteers, paid workers, and 2,434 National Guard men and women who are being deployed to support polling places today and tomorrow. My polling place is doing drive thru voting, to minimize almost all person to person interaction.

On voter turnout, you are actually incorrect there. In last year's spring election, just over 1.2 million people voted total, including in-person and absentee ballots. This year, over 1.3 million voters have requested their ballot absentee! So we are possibly going to see more people voting just absentee this year than we had total voters in the last election, which was another high profile supreme court position.

I hope you have a good day,

I just listened to your interview on WRJO. you think SOCIAL DISTANCING MEANS? None of your comments are fact based, let alone true. Did you even go to school? You also said "the Gov. has flip flopped, and flip flopped, and flip flopped". He did one time recently because the situation is fluid, and after realizing the number of cases are still on the rise, but mostly because there are numerous precincts and polling places saying they have no employees to man the booths - HELLO, NO EMPLOYEES ARE WORKING. "We need a leader to lead". He's trying to lead, but the Mensa's on your team know better. We also need representatives that can process data and think. We are headed for the lowest voter turnout possibly in history, but that's ok because I'm sure you can then find a way to blame that on the Governor too because after all, he's on the opposing party. Grow up, it's no wonder why people/voters are fed up with politicians.

Hey Chuck,

Even though you did not include any comments, my guess is that you believe Speaker Vos should not be wearing PPE? Thank you for reaching out on this. Speaker Vos' polling place required all poll workers to wear what he was wearing. He would not have been allowed to volunteer if he had refused. Objectively, a person working the polls for 15+ hours has a higher chance of contracting COVID than someone who is at the polls to vote for a few minutes, so it makes sense that poll workers across the state were erring on the side of caution and wearing PPE equipment. I sure am grateful to all of them working spending a whole day making sure our elections were safe.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- It makes sense that there were more voters in 2016 than in 2012 because both Republicans and Democrats were electing their party's presidential candidate. It's more likely that we will see numbers closer to 2012 because only one party has a primary for their party's presidential candidate.

- The 2008 presidential primary numbers also support the trend that there is lower turnout in general when only one party is choosing their presidential candidate.

- So with over 1.3 absentee ballots already requested this year, we are definitely on track to have a typical amount, if not an elevated level, of turnout for this presidential primary election.

I can see that are you are not interested in having an open conversation, so I will just say thank you for reaching out to my office and sharing your opinions. I understand where you are coming from.

Your comment on college kids stands as stated, there was no qualifier for "not comfortable" mentioned in your interview. No traveling and distancing are proven to be effective, and currently the only weapon we have. The Governors effort, be it late, to postpone would have allowed more to file for the extended absentee voting, but that idea was dashed. Wonder what party will be benefit from lower voter turnout - hmmm? I believe it's the largest populated areas that are now the Governors concerns like Milwaukee and Madison. Drive thru would be a big hit down there and the National Guard, all winners, what can go wrong? The election can't be "moved safely in 3 days", compared to what? The legislature could have voted to do so this weekend. You gave him less than 3 minutes to hear his argument. 15 states have postponed their primaries, 11 have not, but what do they know? My reference to "worst turnout" is to a presidential primary year, not an off year, my error for not stating, but most don't vote in off year elections so it's not an apples to apples comparison. I can find no source "expert" or otherwise, let alone "many", that predicts 261 million (80%) US citizens will be infected. Of course using your scientific logic and decisions we can probably get there. It's dangerous to site statistics, when you don't site sources. I am impressed you quickly responded to my email, thank you. No need to respond further as I think we both know your position at this point. Thank goodness. The election is scheduled for Tuesday!

I am very concerned about Governor Evers using executive power illegally. I don’t believe he understands the Wisconsin Constitution and the laws of our great state. Please keep a watch over him, check his power at the door, and stay conservative. Wisconsin has no need for these liberal Milwaukee/Madison politicians. Because they like to spend our money which is really not theirs. And I am concerned about his socialist tendencies anyway.

Thanks for listening.

Hi Mary,
We are going to make this short and to the point because discussion on our election set for tomorrow has already been way too extended. We want you to know that holding an "in person" election with the pandemic raging is totally and completely wrong and irresponsible. People should not have to risk infection to vote. That makes no sense and is a treat to our democracy. Poll workers should also not be expected to work under such conditions. To allow the process to take place through the mail would be an acceptable option. To postpone is questionable because we have no idea how long this pandemic is going to keep us all in shelter.

We have voted by absentee ballot and returned our ballots days ago via the U.S. mail. We did what we thought best. Not everyone has done that. Please do not expect people to show up tomorrow in person and risk the spread of infection in our state. I do not know how in good conscience this should be allowed.

We just had to send these thoughts to you this morning as the special session of the Legislature is convening. You need to hear from constituents.

Hey Steve,

Thank you for the email. We are still trying to figure out what our ability is here. We do not believe Governor Evers has the constitutional right to do what he has done today, but it's also impossible for us to meet today in session to pass anything to override it. Also, anything that we pass would have to be signed by Governor Evers himself, so it's pretty complicated. Please know what we are working on this and are doing whatever we can to make sure that the Governor must uphold the law.

Thank you for your time,

Mary

Mary,

I am asking that you and the publican party step in and over ride governor Evers decision to postpone the elections. As Fourth district alderman of Merrill WI, I am asking for the constituents in my district to be allow to vote. This is against my constituents constitutional rights. This is illegal and this is Communism at its finest.

Hey Tracy,

I just wanted to let you know that we are hearing from a lot of counties and local clerks with the same concerns. It's just not feasible to put something like this in place and the legislature will not be pursuing it. We all care about making sure this election is safe and runs smoothly, and I think a Mail-in ballot system at this point in the election goes in the opposite direction. The items that you mentioned you have no problem with are some items that legislators are currently reviewing.

Thank you again for your time and all the work you are putting in to help this election continue,

Good Afternoon,
I received the attached email from Jamie Kuhn, Director of Outreach for Governor Evers, this afternoon. I am very concerned with the Governor's request to Legislature to make changes to elections laws this close to an election. I sent a response to Mr. Kuhn and wanted to send my concerns to you. I hope that I can convey my thoughts in a way that impresses upon you the need to stop moving forward with trying to send absentee ballots to every voter in Wisconsin. Mr. Kuhn stated in his email that the Governor has asked the Legislature to pass legislation for three items.

- Allow absentee ballots postmarked the day of the election to be counted. I have no major issues with this, however, I think the legislation should state they would still need to arrive by the Friday after the election. It was done this way in the past and is doable.
- Extend the time period to give clerks extra time to count the influx of absentee ballots. I have no major concerns with this one either as long as the extended timeline doesn't interfere with the Counties ability to complete the Board of Canvass on time.
- Allow voters the opportunity to vote from home by sending an absentee ballot to every registered voter. This raises a number of large concerns for my office and a number of the municipal clerks in the county that I have heard from. In Oneida County we have approximately 24,000 registered voters. In the 2016 April General Election (which is the election that most closely resembles this one) we had 15,492 voters vote. This was the number that I and the municipal clerks used when determining how many ballots to order and have available for April 7. We do not have ballots available for every voter. We do not have envelopes available to mail a ballot to every voter. We do not have the time it would take or the staff that it would take to mail a ballot to every voter. I don't envy the Governor the position that he finds himself in right now with COVID-19 or with this election. I think that you would find that Clerks feel very strongly about making sure that every voter has the opportunity to vote, however, sending ballots to every voter is not the way to do it with less than 2 weeks before the election. In Oneida County we have 21 municipalities and only 3 of those are staffed by full-time clerks. The other 18 of those are part-time clerks, many of whom have other jobs. They are already overwhelmed, overworked and overbudget due to the high volume of absentee requests. To expect them to somehow miraculously get ballots out to every elector is shortsighted, it can not happen. I listened to an interview with the Governor this afternoon and a reporter from our area asked him how Clerks were going to accomplish getting a ballot to every elector when there aren't supplies available to do that. The response from the Governor was that it wouldn't be easy. That is a very flippant response for such a large task that may be asked of our clerks. The interview then went to Ryan from the SEOC (I think that's what he said) and Ryan said that the WEC and SEOC has procured over 600,000 ballots for clerks across the state. That isn't accurate. They ordered and supplied over 600,000 envelopes to clerks and that was amazing, however, that isn't even a fraction of what will be needed if we have to mail a ballot to every elector. In Oneida County I received 7000 envelopes (I am so appreciative of those), however, we have 24,000 voters. In order to mail a ballot to an elector it costs $1.00 per voter. That's $24,000 that our municipalities will have to come up with to send the envelopes. I urge our Legislators to rethink making any law changes that would require an absentee ballot be sent to every voter.

Thank you for taking the time to read my email.

Today, the Governor asked the legislative leadership to work together on behalf of those performing their constitutional duty to administer the elections and those who are trying to exercise their constitutional right to vote—with the safety of our people as the top priority.

While we cannot mitigate every challenge with the upcoming April election, the Governor believes we can work together to put some measures in place to protect the safety of the people of Wisconsin.

Kim,

Thank you for your email. Per usual, the Governor is choosing to decimate this information via social media, and not directly to our leadership team. Also per usual, there are no details included, especially on who would be required to send a ballot to everyone. I am already getting calls from town clerks on this and, as always, really appreciate your input.

We'll stay on top of this,

Happy Friday Everyone!!

I think it goes without saying that you all know how I feel about these suggestions from the governor. Not only would this be a gross violation of the law requiring photo ID to vote, they would be a logistical nightmare for our municipal clerks. Clerks are already working around the clock to fulfill absentee ballot requests, to ask them to now send a ballot to every registered voter with just over a week to go before the election, would be downright impossible.

I am not AS opposed to his points 2 and 3, simply because the clerks are inundated with so many legitimate requests for absentee ballots that it is going to be a challenge to get them out in a timely fashion for the mail to deliver them by April 7.

An alternative that would provide some relief is to allow clerks to start processing absentee ballots on April 4 for those who have tens of thousands of ballots to process.

Thanks for all you do!!

You probably have to tell it to show images. This was the text:

Our staff cannot recall a time in the last two decades where we have received as many phone calls and emails as in the last 10 days. Out of the hundreds of questions and concerns, a great number have pertained to the election. Every single person that has called our legal hotline with an opinion about elections has asked for them to be postponed. They have cited, among other things, severe lack of poll workers, mental stress, and obvious physical dangers. Yesterday, one town had all 9 poll workers quit in mass. That town currently has none.

I have personally spoken with several of you who are currently in fine shape. You have plenty of poll workers and feel your town can adequately address the need to protect mental and physical health while ensuring nobody is disenfranchised. Unfortunately, this is likely the anomaly.

Our election system is only as strong as the weakest link. For reasons outside of their control, many towns have serious doubts about the viability of an April 7th election. If even a few towns falter, the whole system's integrity is in jeopardy.

At the request of the Board of Directors, I am offering you the opportunity to sign a letter that will be delivered to the Governor, Senate Majority Leader, and Assembly Speaker. Hey Davina,

I apologize that I missed your call today. It's been crazy with tons of calls and emails coming in about the election. Senator Tiffany's office did let me know that you called them as well. I know their office was able to contact with your son and that he appreciated the call. The issue that occurred will certainly be something we flag in the event that the National Guard needs to be mobilized in a similar fashion again. Let's hope that is not needed. I will say this would be a great opportunity for both of you to request your absentee ballots for the May 12th election now so this same thing doesn't happen from that perspective too!

Thanks again, have a great evening.

Hi Elisabeth

Thank you for your response. I have reached out to every Senator & Representative in the State and have received little to no response or actionable information. In my role as Director of the Pool and Hot Tub Alliance, I am not only lobbying for my company but for all of those that I represent throughout the State of Wisconsin. A little clarification would go along way to helping us all keep things together and minimize the impact of the new Executive Order. If you have a source for which I could attain the requested information it would be greatly appreciated. I await your response.

Representative Felzkowski

I currently serve as Director of the Midwest Chapter of the Pool and Hot Tub Alliance (PHTA), the world's oldest and largest association representing swimming pool, spa, and hot tub manufacturers, manufacturers' agents, builders, designers, distributors, suppliers, installers, retailers, and service technicians. Our chapter represents the states of Wisconsin and Illinois.

As more information on COVID-19 is being disseminated by the federal, state and local governments, there has been a push to classify industries as essential or non-essential. Those deemed as essential can continue to operate as quarantines and restrictions are put in place.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), there is no evidence that COVID-19 can be spread to humans through the use of pools and hot tubs. Proper operation, maintenance, and disinfection (e.g., with chlorine and bromine) of pools and hot tubs should remove or inactivate the virus that causes COVID-19. Additionally, the World Health Organization states that controlling water quality is necessary to prevent the transmission of infectious diseases.

PHTA firmly believes the companies that supply pool sanitization and disinfection materials (through manufacturing, distribution or retail stores), the companies that manage the maintenance of swimming pools, hot tubs and other artificial bodies of water and the companies currently constructing inground pools and spas are essential to preventing the transmission of infectious diseases, helping maintain community health, and ensuring public safety.

Without proper pool and hot tub maintenance (which includes circulation and treatment of water) various pathogens can grow, such as Pseudomonas, Cryptosporidium, E.

Coli, Shigella, etc. It can also create a breeding ground for mosquitoes, other pests and the diseases they may carry, which presents a risk not only to bathers but to the entire community at large.

Additionally, it is critically important that active inground pool and spa projects be completed. Unfinished projects pose significant public safety risks as potential issues such as cave-ins and pool popping, as well as the dangers resulting from an active construction site. And, the impact of long-term exposure to the elements may result in the community health issues noted above.

As children and families across the country are being asked to reduce outside contact or even shelter at home, and with gyms and other public facilities closing, the backyard pool, spa or hot tub provides the ideal way for families to focus on their health and well-being. These pools and hot tubs should be properly maintained to ensure proper sanitation measures are taking place.

Working with our industry partners in New York, Governor Cuomo issued an executive order, No. 202.6 on March 18, 2020, classifying our industry as essential stating 'Effective on March 20 at 8 p.m.: All businesses and not-for-profit entities in the state shall utilize, to the maximum extent possible, any telecommuting or work from home procedures that they can safely utilize. Hey Tony,

Thank you for the letter. Before I reach out to the Governor's office, can you tell me if you've had conversations with WEDC? Per the Governor's direction, they have been in charge of deeming businesses essential or non-essential, and have been dealing with the businesses who appeal the decision. The first thing I imagine the Governor's office will do when I send them the letter is to ask if you've already gone through this process with them. If you have, I'd like to include that in the email I send. If you have not yet, please let me know and I can get you in touch with WEDC.

Here is the website to fill out the form! https://wedc.org/essentialbusiness/. It should be at the bottom of the page. I was using Chrome when I first tried to see it and I couldn't, so if you have a hard time seeing the form, switch to a different browser. When you submit your claim here, it goes directly to WEDC's attorney team. Once they get back to you, please let us know!

Hey Brandon,

Here is the order. I agree with you that I don't see a specific reference to this. I've attached a copy of the order for you. I am going to direct you to the WEDC website for essential business. Ultimately, WEDC is making final determinations on what businesses will be deemed essential or non-essential. After looking over the website, if you are unsure, there is a phone number you can call to clarify with them as to whether you are or are not.

Please let me know if you have any issues with this process and need any help from me.

Hello Everyone,

With the passage of the Governor's "Safer-at-Home" order creating some confusion within the business community, we have been trying to get additional guidance regarding what businesses are considered essential.

Many offices have forwarded to our office specific businesses they would like clarity on. We've been working with the Governor's office and WEDC to provide that clarity.

While I continue to wait on a couple of determinations, I thought that it might be helpful to everyone to know the determinations I've already received. I have placed this information in a google doc. I will update it as I receive more information.

If offices have received clarifications from the Governor's office or WEDC on their own, I hope that you would be willing to share it with the caucus. If you can forward the email response you received, I will add it to the list.

If you continue to receive essential business questions, please forward them to our office.

If you have questions, please let me know

Don,

Thank you for your email on this, especially if it is your first time emailing! As you can imagine, I've received a lot of similar correspondence, and I agree with your sentiment. At the end of the day, Governor Evers currently has emergency powers that give him the power to do every single thing he has done. Please know that, while we in the legislature are doing the best we can to work with his office and work bi-partisanly, we are pushing back behind the scenes, especially when we don't believe decisions are being made with science-based/fact-based data. My first and main goal during this time is to continue getting information to the people who need it, help constituents connect with their government meaningfully, and hopefully help to get all of us through this in on piece.

The Governor has these powers for 60 days. After that, he needs approval from the legislature to continue. He has asked for his powers to be extended indefinitely, which is not something I think a lot of my colleagues would support. I think the state is best led in these situations with one leader at the helm to make sure information and decisions are funneled appropriately with the lowest opportunity for confusion and chaos. However, be rest assured, the legislature will continue to demand answers for our constituents, and will be the check on the Executive Branch we need to be.

Thank you again for your thoughts, I really appreciate your time. Please let me know if you have any specific questions that I can answer for you.

Dear Representative,

The business shutdown order tramples our right as citizens. I have an association a small legal office that prepared a safe plan whereby only one of the staff members is manning the office and keeping the servers going while everyone else is set up with home computers. This is order is nuts.

What about our logging operations where the operators and drivers never get within 20' of anyone else.

This order is imperiling all of the employees but endangering the survival of many small businesses. The Governor apparently has not a clue how businesses survive on the thinnest of margins.

I'm disgusted. These actions will create problems far more serious than the virus itself.

This is the first time I've been so motivated to write you,

Governor Evers, Senator Tiffany, and Representative Felzkowski:

I have been made aware of Governor Evers request to hold a Special Session (Executive Order #73) on Saturday, April 4, 2020 to take up changes to the upcoming Spring election. This would allow an all-mail election with provisions to send ballots to all registered voters by May 19th if they have not already requested one. I am asking you NOT to vote for this action. There are a number of reasons for this.

First, municipalities lists of registered voters are not always up-to-date because people do not always think of registering at their new address to vote when they move until an election they are interested in is held.

Second, how can ballots be mailed to every registered voter and still keep the integrity of the election with no requests and no photo IDs being filed. Well over a million voters have already followed the correct process and requested ballots and provided the required ID. Voters should be responsible for requesting a ballot and following the required guidelines if they want to vote absentee.

Third, sending ballots to all registered voters will result in extreme unexpected, unbudgeted additional expenses for municipalities for the cost of all the extra postage, supplies (envelopes, ballots, etc.), and overtime expenses for staff. I do not think I am overstating that 100% of the municipalities will not have enough ballots and/or envelopes to be able to do this without even taking into consideration the expense of it. Would we even be able to get the necessary supplies? There has already been an issue with envelope supplies.

Fourth, if this election is extended into May what happens with all the required Council Reorganizational meetings to be held the third Tuesday of April? What do Councils do in the interim without a full Council?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Fifth, what happens to the May 12th Special Election for the 7th Congressional District that we have already mailed a huge number of ballots for?

I urge you NOT to approve Executive Order #73 requiring ballots to be mailed to all registered voters or to extend the spring election into May.

Thank you for your consideration.

Subject: Expand early voting in Florida before March 17!

I'm writing to voice my concerns—with the support of All Voting is Local—regarding lack of access to early voting in our county for the upcoming Presidential Preference Primary (PPP) on March 17, in the August Primary election, and the 2020 General Election.

As your office is surely aware, early voting has been instrumental throughout Florida in expanding voter participation. As many as 869,453 voters cast their ballots early in 2016, not an insignificant number.

This year, we can expect record turnout. We must be prepared—especially given the chaos we saw on Super Tuesday. At a polling location at Houston's historically black university Texas Southern University, one man waited for six hours to cast his ballot.

All Floridians remember the long lines at the polls that have burdened voters in past cycles. In 2011, Governor Rick Scott signed into law significant cuts to early voting. The result? Floridians waiting hours to cast their ballot in the 2012 presidential election. More than 200,000 voters left the polls without voting.

I demand that you offer the maximum number of days and hours of early voting allowed under Florida law, which is especially important for voters of color, students, and voters with disabilities.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Restore opportunities to vote early so that every eligible voter in Florida can make their voice heard. Remember, this responsibility lies with you. Thank you in advance for protecting our democracy.

This might be a shot in the dark, but does LFB have any more information on unemployment for self-employed people? This was the blurb in the NCSL summary:

- 360 million for Department of Labor to invest in programs that provide training and supportive services for dislocated workers, seniors, migrant farmworkers and homeless veterans. Includes funding for implementing new paid leave and unemployment insurance benefits.
- Expands unemployment insurance from three to four months, and provides temporary unemployment compensation of $600 per week, which is in addition to and the same time as regular state and federal UI benefits.
  - Part-time, self-employed and gig economy workers now have access to UI benefits.
  - Allows employers to receive an advance tax credit from the Treasury instead of having to be reimbursed on the back end.

Hey Mike,

Our office is sending each "essential" request we receive directly to the Governor, so I will include this in one of the requests I'm sending. If the loggers can also email individually, that would likely help the Governor's office feel the impact. We would love to pass all of those on as they come in.

Rep. Felzkowski, Rep. Quinn, Rep. Mursau, Rep. Swearingen, Rep. Stafsholt, Senator Tiffany, and Senator Petrowski:

I'm writing to ask that if you all can help to make sure forestry is exempted in the order that would be helpful. We're getting calls from up north that depend on tourism and forestry and they are very worried that not exempting forestry will result in more economic fall out than is necessary. The loggers tend to work alone or in 2 person teams so they are already social distancing and with the same person daily. With the storms from last year, there are billions of board feet that need to get cleaned up by early summer or the wood fiber will be useless, causing even more economic harm to landowners who were counting on that logging check coming in. The mills would hopefully remain open as well since they must process the wood in a timely manner. I know you all understand that wood spoils, much like milk spoils, but few in Madison likely understand this.

Thanks for any help you can provide.

Jeff,

According to Governor Evers' order, insurance is deemed essential. It's on page 12:

1. Financial institutions and services. Banks, credit unions, and other depository or lending institutions; licensed financial service providers; insurance services; personnel necessary to perform essential functions at broker dealers and investment advisor offices.

WEEKLY E-UPDATE

CORONAVIRUS UPDATE

Details regarding the coronavirus in our state continue to change on a daily basis. I wanted to provide you an update with some information you may not have seen in the last couple of days:

- * As of 5pm today, Governor Evers has issued another order that stipulates all hair salons and barber shops will have to close indefinitely. If a location is selling products, they can continue to do so.
- * If your Driver's License or CDL is expiring during the public health emergency, it will be extended automatically for 60 days. This will be noted on your file for law enforcement to see.
- * Rest stops are open in Wisconsin! There has been a rumor running around out there that Wisconsin has closed its rest stops. This is not true! They remain open, especially for our vital trucking industry who need these stops to stay well rested and healthy.
- * If you're looking for help from the Department of Workforce Development (DWD) for yourself or your employees, please navigate the websites FIRST to see if your question can be answered there before calling. They have received an exponential increase in calls for unemployment insurance, so we want to make sure that everyone can get the answers they need in a timely manner.

- * The Department of Natural Resources announced that Wisconsin State Parks and Trails will remain open. While these properties are open to the public, property buildings (with the exception of restroom facilities) will be closed. Admission fees will be voluntary at self-registration stations or electronic kiosks. All DNR campsites will be closed through April 30th.

- * There is a rumor that the Wisconsin National Guard has been called up in Wisconsin to close Wisconsin borders and shut the state down. This is NOT true. Where possible, we need to do everything we can to shut down false information trails, so don't be afraid to reach out and ask if you're not sure about something.

If you have any specific questions not covered here, please reach out and my office will do everything we can to get you the answers you need!

You Can Still Buy Local!

As you all know, Governor Evers closed restaurants and bars at 5:00pm on Tuesday evening of this week. However, restaurants are still able to provide delivery and take out.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

So what are you and your family having for dinner tonight? My office has compiled a list of all the restaurants in my district that are currently offering delivery, carry out, or both. If you as a restaurant are open and not on this list, please reach out to my office and we will add you!

Please help our local small businesses weather the storm by buying a meal out when you can. Also, share this link so as many people as possible in our area can use it.

April 7th Election

With the April 7th election fast approaching, I wanted to provide you with more information about absentee voting. Social distancing recommendations will be harder to follow on election day – so absentee voting is a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that in order to request an absentee ballot, voters must already be registered. As a reminder, the deadline for online registration has passed – to register, voters will need to contact their local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

April 7th Election

With the April 7th election fast approaching, I wanted to provide you with more information about absentee voting. Social distancing recommendations will be harder to follow on election day – so absentee voting is a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that in order to request an absentee ballot, voters must already be registered. As a reminder, the deadline for online registration has passed – to register, voters will need to contact their local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

Stephen,

Thank you for reaching out on this. I reached out to the Department of Health Services to see if they have processed the data in the ways you've described, rather than just by county. I will let you know what they say when they get back to me.

Have a great day,

Mary

Dear Representative Felzkowski:

This is the second time I've written but the message is the same: Thanks for the great job you are doing. It helps to think our local Representative is involved and on top of things.

I have a small suggestion as well. Namely, as we move forward it would be helpful to know a bit more about the people who have contracted the virus. For each category (tested, tested positive, recovered and fatality) it would be helpful to know things like:

- * The age groups in each category;
- * Number of hospital admissions vs in-home for people who have tested positive;
- * Any treatment regimens that are gaining wide acceptance (Zpack, etc); and,
- * Number of people in each category (especially fatalities) with an underlying health condition.s

While I am sure there is a balance between patient confidentiality and public awareness, I am hopeful that people might even agree to some information about them being included in general statistics.

Last night, my brother-in-law called to say that his brother-in-law Gary knew one of the state's Covid-19 fatalities. It was particularly unsettling to hear that people had talked to the person in the morning and he said things we fine — only to pass away that evening. Given that Gary has had contact with the victim (who was on an Egyptian cruise), are left to speculate if there are any lessons to be learned.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Again, thanks for the fine work.

Best regards,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Details regarding the coronavirus in our state continue to change on a daily basis. I wanted to provide you an update with some information you may not have seen in the last couple of days:

- * As of 5pm today, Governor Evers has issued another order that stipulates all hair salons and barber shops will have to close indefinitely. If a location is selling products, they can continue to do so.
- * If your Driver's License or CDL is expiring during the public health emergency, it will be extended automatically for 60 days. This will be noted on your file for law enforcement to see.
- * Rest stops are open in Wisconsin! There has been a rumor running around out there that Wisconsin has closed its rest stops. This is not true! They remain open, especially for our vital trucking industry who need these stops to stay well rested and healthy.
- * If you're looking for help from the Department of Workforce Development (DWD) for yourself or your employees, please navigate the websites FIRST to see if your question can be answered there before calling. They have received an exponential increase in calls for unemployment insurance, so we want to make sure that everyone can get the answers they need in a timely manner.
- * The Department of Natural Resources announced that Wisconsin State Parks and Trails will remain open. While these properties are open to the public, property buildings (with the exception of restroom facilities) will be closed. Admission fees will be voluntary at self-registration stations or electronic kiosks. All DNR campsites will be closed through April 30th.
- * There is a rumor that the Wisconsin National Guard has been called up in Wisconsin to close Wisconsin borders and shut the state down. This is NOT true. Where possible, we need to do everything we can to shut down false information trails, so don't be afraid to reach out and ask if you're not sure about something.

If you have any specific questions not covered here, please reach out and my office will do everything we can to get you the answers you need!

You Can Still Buy Local!

As you all know, Governor Evers closed restaurants and bars at 5:00pm on Tuesday evening of this week. However, restaurants are still able to provide delivery and take out.

So what are you and your family having for dinner tonight? My office has compiled a list of all the restaurants in my district that are currently offering delivery, carry out, or both. If you as a restaurant are open and not on this list, please reach out to my office and we will add you!

Please help our local small businesses weather the storm by buying a meal out when you can. Also, share this link so as many people as possible in our area can use it.

April 7th Election

With the April 7th election fast approaching, I wanted to provide you with more information about absentee voting. Social distancing recommendations will be harder to follow on election day – so absentee voting is a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that in order to request an absentee ballot, voters must already be registered. As a reminder, the deadline for online registration has passed – to register, voters will need to contact their local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

John,

There has been no indication that anything on in person voting has changed. I would recommend reaching out to your municipal clerk to see what they have to say. At this point, Governor Evers has indicated that April 7th will continue to be the election date, so it is up to the polling places to make sure they are doing what they need to for social distancing and safety.

Please let me know if you need any other information after speaking with the clerk! Thank you,

Mary

Mary,

Thank you once again for your pro-active leadership. If the people of Wisconsin don't continue to act in a panic mode we can get through this with no problem. Shop as you usually do and the stores won't run out of product. Keep up the good work that you do.

Thanks,

Greg

Hey Louise,

Your first email actually referenced rest stops, so I reached out to DOT on that point specifically because WIsDOT controls the rest stops, where many truckers choose to sleep overnight. The truck stops are currently closed to dine in, but are still able to provide take out food. My office reached out to the ones in my district last week and many are currently offering take out at this time. Hopefully truckers continue to use the rest stops for sleeping and bathroom breaks.

Thank you again for reaching out, I really appreciate you looking out for those that may not have the ability to reach out to me!

I didn't write to you about the rest stops. I wrote to you about the restaurants closing..... the truck stops.....where all folks can go to eat. I hope that was clear. I know nothing first hand. Louise

April 7th Election

With the April 7th election fast approaching, I wanted to provide you with more information about absentee voting. Social distancing recommendations will be harder to follow on election day – so absentee voting is a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that in order to request an absentee ballot, voters must already be registered. As a reminder, the deadline for online registration has passed – to register, voters will need to contact their local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

Dr. Sandra and Kevin South,

Thank you for your email on this. As you can imagine, I've received a lot of similar correspondence, and I agree with your sentiment. I think a lot of the response has been knee jerk, especially the stay at home order. Rather than treating Wisconsinites like adults, Governor Evers decided to put restrictions on every aspect of our lives. At the end of the day, Governor Evers currently has emergency powers that give him the power to do every single thing he has done. Please know that, while we in the legislature are doing the best we can to work with his office and work bi-partisanly, we are pushing back behind the scenes, especially when we don't believe decisions are being made with science-based/fact-based data. My first and main goal during this time is to continue getting information to the people who need it, help constituents connect with their government meaningfully, and hopefully help to get all of us through this in on piece.

The Governor has these powers for 60 days. After that, he needs approval from the legislature to continue. He has asked for his powers to be extended indefinitely, which is not something I think a lot of my colleagues would support. I think the state is best led in these situations with one leader at the helm to make sure information and decisions are funneled appropriately with the lowest opportunity for confusion and chaos. However, be rest assured, the legislature will continue to demand answers for our constituents, and will be the check on the Executive Branch we need to be.

Has your daughter heard anything more about how her loss of rotation will affect her graduation? I know a lot of ceremonies have been cancelled, which is tough enough, but having that date extended all together would be much more difficult.

On the elections, this is something that the Legislature tried to make more uniform, by giving all municipalities the same amount of time to early vote, two weeks. I agree with you that rural communities are definitely at a disadvantage here, which is why we tried to put that in place. Unfortunately a judge struck that provision down.

Thank you again for your thoughts, I really appreciate your time,

Mary Felzkowski

Enough of the stupid virus-adults should be able to make their own decisions-a clear example of the ' 1 size fits all ' failure.
how is this going to this going to end? By adding more time, extending weeks beyond, or is this the new normal and we should just expect this every 6-8 years? Won't there be more damage from bankruptcies, suicides, and Government created poverty, (where none existed) than deaths from Covid-19?? And don't insult my intelligence by saying Gov. will make payments or loans---we know where the money comes from in the first place...

My oldest daughter just had her last rotation cancelled-she is besides herself since she does not know how this could affect her May graduation from Pharmacy school....still waiting to hear if Graduation will be canceled-A true lifetime milemarker...

I'd rather you work on getting lazy town clerks opening for early voting, like, say, here in Nokomis!!! Why can lefties in Madison and Milwaukee have weeks of voting, while we are only offered absentee or election day!! That's what I prefer you contact me and work on-it's a fundamental disadvantage to rural living!!

WEEKLY E-UPDATE

CORONAVIRUS UPDATE

Details regarding the coronavirus in our state continue to change on a daily basis. I wanted to provide you an update with some information you may not have seen in the last couple of days:

- * As of 5pm today, Governor Evers has issued another order that stipulates all hair salons and barber shops will have to close indefinitely. If a location is selling products, they can continue to do so.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- * If your Driver's License or CDL is expiring during the public health emergency, it will be extended automatically for 60 days. This will be noted on your file for law enforcement to see.

- * Rest stops are open in Wisconsin! There has been a rumor running around out there that Wisconsin has closed its rest stops. This is not true! They remain open, especially for our vital trucking industry who need these stops to stay well rested and healthy.

- * If you're looking for help from the Department of Workforce Development (DWD) for yourself or your employees, please navigate the websites FIRST to see if your question can be answered there before calling. They have received an exponential increase in calls for unemployment insurance, so we want to make sure that everyone can get the answers they need in a timely manner.

- * The Department of Natural Resources announced that Wisconsin State Parks and Trails will remain open. While these properties are open to the public, property buildings (with the exception of restroom facilities) will be closed. Admission fees will be voluntary at self-registration stations or electronic kiosks. All DNR campsites will be closed through April 30th.

- * There is a rumor that the Wisconsin National Guard has been called up in Wisconsin to close Wisconsin borders and shut the state down. This is NOT true. Where possible, we need to do everything we can to shut down false information trails, so don't be afraid to reach out and ask if you're not sure about something.

If you have any specific questions not covered here, please reach out and my office will do everything we can to get you the answers you need!

You Can Still Buy Local!

As you all know, Governor Evers closed restaurants and bars at 5:00pm on Tuesday evening of this week. However, restaurants are still able to provide delivery and take out.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

So what are you and your family having for dinner tonight? My office has compiled a list of all the restaurants in my district that are currently offering delivery, carry out, or both. If you as a restaurant are open and not on this list, please reach out to my office and we will add you!

Please help our local small businesses weather the storm by buying a meal out when you can. Also, share this link so as many people as possible in our area can use it.

Rep. Felzkowski, I have a grandson who was chosen to represent the State of Wisconsin in a High School band made up of High School Students from our state. The trip has been canceled because of the COVID-19 outbreak, which is bad enough, but when they wanted to get there down payment back each student was charged $1900.00. I think this is outrageous. There are students that had to raise the money themselves and now they want to keep $1900.00 from each of them. Please advise.

WEEKLY E-UPDATE

Tuesday, April 7th Spring Election

Good evening everyone,

I know there has been a lot of confusion today so I wanted to provide all of you with information so you are prepared for tomorrow.

The April 7th Spring Election will be happening tomorrow and polling places will be open.

If you need information about where your polling place is located, please go to the following site, or let me know what your address is and I can send you the location. https://myvote.wi.gov/en-US/FindMyPollingPlace

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Municipal and county clerks have been working around the clock to make sure each polling place is safe and adheres to social distancing. I know a lot of polling places are doing drive-thru voting, which will allow for voters to stay in your car and avoid person-to-person contact. If you feel most comfortable wearing Personal Protective Equipment, like gloves, or a mask, or a scarf, I encourage everyone to do that.

For those of you that received an absentee ballot but have not yet returned them to your clerk, your absentee ballot needs to be postmarked by tomorrow, April 7th.

COVID-19 has been a really trying time for everyone, and I think we can all agree that this is not an optimal situation. Although frustrating, we can do this. I will be driving around polling places tomorrow in my area just to see if there is any help I can give. If you have thoughts or concerns, I am available tonight, tomorrow, or at any time. Please reach out to me.

Thank you and have a good night,

Mary Felzkowski

Mary,
The bathroom facilities have been closed because of the total disregard for the bathroom facilities. So much debris and garbage had been dumped into the toilets we were unable to hire a septic pumper to pump facility. They smell so bad we needed to close them. Also the maintenance cost increased dramatically. So the Highway Committee followed suit with WisDOT and closed the bathrooms.

Mary, I read in your email that rest areas are open and it made me think of something I would like to know but don't know who to contact. Hoping you can help me. I am wondering why the wayside at Hwy 8 and Cty A just north of Tomahawk has been closed for a few years? They put in the parking lot for trailer for ATV's and snowmobiles to unload and then closed the bathroom. This didn' make much sense to me. People are going to need a restroom after traveling her and also before loading up and heading home. Thank you for all the info you provide in your emails. Dorothy Jorgensen

Hey Jody,

Yes there is a petition to reopen golf courses, but only with certain parameters in place, like allowing people to self-pay so there's not a need for people to interact. So it would essentially be a mechanism to allow for people to get some exercise, use their own equipment, and still social distance. I don't believe that the use of carts would be a part of that either. So if it were to happen, I don't think an open golf course pre-COVID would look the same as an open golf course during COVID.

Just wanted to clarify what I've been hearing and why I signed a letter supporting it. I agree with you completely that every business and worker is essential in one way or another, so if we can be thoughtful about how businesses operate, or don't, during this pandemic, we can hopefully continue protecting Wisconsinites, both from getting the illness, and by promoting good mental health, which is also important. If we can do that, we can also reduce the amount of economic fallout that we will all have to deal with together after the outbreak passes.

Thank you again for your thoughts. Please let me know if you have anything else you'd like to discuss! Hope you have a good day,

Good morning,

This morning April, 3rd the Greenbay channel 11 news had a story about golf courses and they wanted to open now that it is spring.
They said the golf course association has a petition going around so that golf courses are listed as "essential".
I a furious to say the least!

I do not think I should risk dying so someone can go play golf.

One course owner said she has been in business for 55 years and is not ready to give up. Well there are an awful lot of businesses closed and loosing their incomes now, she would not be alone if she can not open.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

If you let golf courses open then all business should open, all businesses are essential to one degree or another!

Jody,

I understand what you are saying, and I am absolutely not saying that people should not social distance. They should be because we need to get to the other side of this. However, what your friend is doing and the suggestion to open golf courses aren't really the same thing. The thing with golf courses is that there's really very little risk of spreading the virus if you're out, walking the course, and using your own equipment. People are cooped up in their own homes going a little (or a lot!) stir crazy, and this would be just one thing people can look forward to that will not negatively impact our ability to fight the outbreak. It's the same reason Governor Evers and the DNR have left all of the State Parks open (and have waived fees!), so that people can get out and about without interacting with each other. I see no problem with that, and actually think it's a good thing.

I am so disappointed in your decision to sign.
Have you been out and about? People are not practicing distancing, go to any store that is open, watch the people. I even have a friend who called and invited us over for steak dinner this Saturday to help them celebrate their anniversary. We have not left the house in weeks and will not go to their house, they don't get it.
People don't get it, and people need the direction that has come down.
Golfing will be there, April is pretty iffy for golfers anyway, why can't they wait until May?
Those who are following the safer at home orders are waiting.

I don't believe that the use of carts would be a part of that either. So if it were to

Just wanted to clarify what I've been hearing and why I signed a letter supporting it. I agree with you completely that every business and worker is essential in one way or another, so if we can be thoughtful about how businesses operate, or don't, during this pandemic, we can hopefully continue protecting Wisconsinites, both from getting the illness, and by promoting good mental health, which is also important. If we can do that, we can also reduce the amount of economic fallout that we will all have to deal with together after the outbreak passes.

Thank you again for your thoughts. Please let me know if you have anything else you'd like to discuss! Hope you have a good day,

Good morning Rick,

First off, I hope you and Myra are staying safe and taking care.
You hit the nail right on the head with the election situation. This is an unprecedented, difficult time and we understand everyone is trying to do the right thing, but we cannot compromise the integrity of our elections. Additionally, many of our local clerks have reached out incredibly concerned because the mail-out option the Governor suggested is simply not physically feasible.

It is great to hear that you have already voted absentee. My office and the rest of the Legislature are now focused on getting as much information out there as possible about absentee voting and making sure everyone's voice is heard. People need to exercise this fundamental right, even during times like these.

Prime rib is always a great choice- thanks for supporting the local restaurants. That's how we'll all get through this.

Have a great week,

Thanks for your email today. It was nice to see the proverbial friendly face amongst many others that are less than happy with the way things have gone today. COVID-19 has created so many less than ideal situations, so we all just need to find a way to make it to the other side. I agree with you that everyone who wanted to vote had the ability to do that. It's just a really tense situation that I expect to continue hearing about for a long while. Glad you both are able to make it out four wheeling. That has to help with the sanity of being kind of stuck. Fries and I are definitely looking forward to the warmer temps hopefully coming soon.

Roger and Lee Ann,

You are 100% right about the special session. Coming in at the last minute to try to change the election 3 days before it happens it not logistically feasible, and I think Governor Evers knows that. We will not be convening as a full body tomorrow to take up his legislation. I've already heard from 5 of the clerks just in my district pleading that we don't support this plan. It would put all of them in such a terrible position, and would cause so much confusion and chaos, that I cannot, in good conscience, support any of it. Right now, clerks have more time to count and receive ballots. With over 1 million ballots requested, I really don't expect the polls to be what they normally are. A lot of polling places are switching to drive thru voting, which will really cut down on the amount of face to face interaction required to vote in person. We can get through this if we work together. My husband and I are hoping to volunteer at the polls to help things along if they need it.

Thank you again for your email and your thoughts. I appreciate your time as always.

Good Afternoon Mary, Tom. I guess I really should have seen this coming when Nancy Pelosi started agitating for all mail-in voting as part of the insane spending bill just signed by President Trump. What an obscene bill that was agreed to. Now San Fran Nan is saying she wants that on the "next" series of bills they want (but shouldn't be needed) to battle the Wuhan virus. It boggles the mind.

The reason I'm reaching out to both of you today however is because our useless Governor must have been just waiting and waiting to spring this "Special Session" on you and Lee Ann and I are imploring you to not take the bait regarding the governors plans. We have been bombarded with suggestions to vote absentee on TV and Radio while we have been mostly staying at home. My choice was and will always be to show up at my polling place and vote on the special day we set as a state and country for our elections. This time however, given the possible health concerns, and to satisfy Lee Ann that this one time we should vote by mail even though we are here now, both Lee Ann and I secured our ballots and we have completed them and sent them in. Judge Conley already went a step way beyond what I'd care to see happen by extending the time to get in an absentee ballot but I don't really know what can be done about that at this late date so perhaps that was all part of the plan to bugger up our election.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

When you show up tomorrow for the session the governor has called we know you are in a difficult position and while we hope there is not an official extension for the vote, we would like to say that under NO circumstance should you agree (as our representatives) to moving all voting to mail ballot. There will be no hiding from the pushback from people like Lee Ann and me.

Thanks for your consideration.

Tracy,

Thank you for your email. I totally understand the frustration, and I think it's something a lot of people, especially in the north, are feeling. I wanted to send you the updated outbreak information from today: https://www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/outbreaks/index.htm. We are currently at 707 positive tests, with 37 counties currently impacted. The last two days, there has been a jump of 120 positives each day. Ultimately, I agree with you that treating the whole state the same when there are not positive tests in the North can be really frustrating and seemingly unfair. Unfortunately, Governor Evers has chosen to make the stay at home order statewide, and there is nothing the legislature can do to impact that because he has emergency powers to issue these orders. My main goal at this point is to be an information source for my district and make sure that everyone who is impacted can make it to the other side of this situation intact. I hope I can help anyone who is having trouble getting connected with an agency, or finding the answers they need.

Thank you for your email, and I hope that you and your family are doing okay,

Dear Representative Felzkowski,

I am against the extended Safer at Home order that Governor Evers forced on us Wednesday March 25th at 8:00am which will extend until April 24th. I am following the 15 day Stay at Home order the President has issued - this was sensible and smart. Now I feel that we need to GET BACK TO WORK as soon as possible - especially in areas that are not seeing a spike in Covid 19 cases.

WE are not the State of New York! To date we have 5 deaths in the Great State of Wisconsin from Covid-19 and, as of today we have 457 confirmed cases. We have tested 8237 Wisconsinites and if my calculations are correct 94.5% of the the people who were tested DO NOT HAVE THE VIRUS.

Data from the CDC in 2017 shows we lost 11,680 lives to Heart Disease, 11,318 to cancer, Accidents took 3,746 lives. To compare "Apples to Apples" we lost 974 lives to the Flu/Pneumonia in 2017. As of Feb 24th we lost 17 people to Snowmobiling - are we going to outlaw snowmobiles? I feel it is tragic that we lost those 5 lives but what will be the cost of lives when people lose their JOBS and our economy crashes? At some point our employers will not be able to continue to keep us on the payroll - of course all of you in the legislator will continue to get a check. What about the people who work in the service industry - Bartenders, Waitstaff, Retail Employees, Sales Personnel, Salon Workers, etc. Currently a lot of these people are already out of a job! How will these people take care of their families in the long term?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

We have approximately 44 Counties who have not seen 1 COVID-19 case as of today. We have 5.7 million residents in the State of Wisconsin and of that 457 have been identified with the Covid-19. How does this justify shutting down our whole state to business and our right to work?

The State of South Dakota is using a County by County order which seems reasonable to me. You can not compare Milwaukee County with Counties who do not even have a single case of this virus.

I am a law abiding citizens that wants to GET BACK to WORK within reason. I expect our Governor to treat us as ADULTS and not Children who need direction. I can make informed decisions and act responsible!

I was lucky to meet you last year at a "Town Hall" and felt that you are a common sense Legislator and we really need to you to help us be heard with our Governor. He has over reacted and needs to get Wisconsin back to work using common sense. For the record my county still does not have one case of Covid-19.

Respectfully.

Hey Steve,

Thank you to your wife for helping our elections run smoothly. With the election on April 7th, Governor Evers has stated time and time again that he will not be moving the election, and he doesn't actually have the power to do it on his own. Neither does the Elections Commission. He most recently asked the Legislature to institute a totally mail-in ballot initiative. In our state, this just not a feasible option for several reasons:

1. There is no way to secure the vote. Mail in ballots would require eliminating voter ID.

2. It would eliminate same day registration as only registered voters as of the time the ballots went out would be allowed to vote.

3. The current registered voter list includes 200,000 voters who the Elections Commission suspects have moved. If those ballots are sent, anyone at those addresses could fill them out and return them.

4. The Elections Commission themselves say they don't have the infrastructure necessary to conduct an election this way.

5. Washington state, who does handle elections this way, has warned against trying to move to this system in haste.

6. I have already heard from several clerks just in my district who have said they simply do not have the time or resources before April 7th to mail ballots to all registered voters. Most of them are already spending their nights and weekends as it is trying to send out ballots to those that have already requested them.

I wish the Governor had consulted with the Elections Commission before asking the legislature to move in this direction. They could have provided him with valuable information on why this isn't feasible right now, with the election less than a week and a half away. I totally understand where you are coming from and also want to make sure that our election is as safe as possible for everyone involved. We need to do everything we can to protect voters and also protect the integrity of the election itself. I will be sending out information later today encouraging low risk, healthy adults (like college students currently back at home) to become poll workers, so that those who don't feel comfortable going to the polls can stay home and vote absentee. The Elections Commission is also offering COVID-19 specific online training for clerks on how to keep their polling places safe.

If you are worried about your safety at the polls (or your wife is), I would encourage you both to request your ballot, vote absentee, and stay home. You have every right to protect yourselves if you are worried about exposure. That deadline ends April 2nd. You have until the end of the day today to register online if needed. Thank you again for your email,

Dear Mary:

Thanks for your response. It is good just to feel that we've been heard at times like these.

As I mentioned in my last email, my wife is a poll worker. At 64, she is by far the youngest poll worker in our town. I would like to ask for your help postponing the upcoming election as it (1) exposes some of the most at risk in our population to life threatening social contact and (2) is clearly in conflict with the Governor's Safer at Home order. Either we have a health problem or we do not. Like many throughout the state, I call on the Governor to act consistently and avoid the appearance of putting partisan politics above the safety of the very citizens who give most of their time to support our democracy.

For whatever it is worth, my wife and I would definitely be AGAINST an infinite extension of Ever's emergency powers and would definitely challenge the constitutionality something like that.

As always, thank you for your fine support.

Best regards,

Steve Balow

I think a lot of the response has been knee jerk, especially the stay at home order. At the end of the day, Governor Evers currently has emergency powers that give him the power to do every single thing he has done. Please know that, while we in the legislature are doing the best we can to work with his office and work bi-partisanly, we are pushing back behind the scenes, especially when we don't believe decisions are being made with science-based/fact-based data. My first and main goal during this time is to continue getting information to the people who need it, help constituents connect with their government meaningfully, and hopefully help to get all of us through this in on piece.

The Governor has these powers for 60 days. After that, he needs approval from the legislature to continue. He has asked for his powers to be extended indefinitely, which is not something I think a lot of my colleagues would support. I think the state is best led in these situations with one leader at the helm to make sure information and decisions are funneled appropriately with the lowest opportunity for confusion and chaos. However, be rest assured, the legislature will continue to demand answers for our constituents, and will be the check on the Executive Branch we need to be.

Thank you again for your thoughts, I really appreciate your time,

Dear Representative Felzkowski:

How does Governor Evers justify the “Safer at Home" order?

While I understand the Governor's Emergency Powers are very broad, as a resident I expect some explanation — both of the rationale behind his decision and the economic support the state will provide to mitigate the extreme damage such an order will obviously cause. Many explanations that have been offered by pundits (but not by the Governor himself) fall far short of being convincing. For example:

- * Comparing Wisconsin to New York seems unrealistic as there are many significant differences between the states;
- * Treating the state as a homogenous mass also seems unrealistic as there are many differences between urban areas such as Madison / Milwaukee and Langlade county; and,
- * Applying the order to all population groups seems unrealistic as the virus seems far more deadly to people in selected groups.

Without understanding the Governor’s rationale, I am sure many residents will begin to explore avenues of recourse — including but not limited to, the case for negligent conduct on the part of the Governor as it appears the “Safer at Home” order may have breached the Governor's duty of care.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

To date, we have 5 deaths in Wisconsin from Covid-19 and, as of this moment, 457 cases based on 8,237 tests (94.5% of the people who were tested do not have the virus). Compared to Wisconsin data from the CDC site for 2017, there seem to be many other health issues or activities that cause death in Wisconsin in far greater numbers:

<image001.png>

Based on current numbers, driving a car is 74,920% more dangerous to Wisconsin residents than exposure to the Covid-19 virus — yet Governor Evers has not forbidden residents to drive. Even with exponential spread, it seems unlikely that the Covid-19 virus could be anywhere near as dangerous as driving in this state. Furthermore, many people wonder how many deaths that have been attributed to Covid-19 could have been caused a multitude of other contributing factors including respiratory disease, heart disease and flu.

I also encourage you to consider the deaths from depression related cause (drug overdose, suicide, firearms and homicide). Should these numbers spike in 2020, it would seem very likely that Governor Ever's order would have had a material effect.

My wife and I are law abiding citizens and we try to support the civic needs of our community. For example, my wife has been an election judge for many years. Like many residents we are concerned about the Covid-19 virus and want to do whatever we can to avoid its spread. However, we expect to be treated like adults as opposed to subjects. I hope the Governor will share his rationale and that it is compelling enough to mitigate or overwhelm the massive damage his order will cause.

Respectfully,

Steve Balow

Below is a link to the order:
https://wedc.org/…/2020/03/Health-Order-12-Safer-At-Home.pdf
I am still reviewing it, but here are details of the order:

- * It directs all individuals to stay at their place of residence, with limited exceptions (like going out for essential supplies and exercise).
- * All non-essential business and operations must end. If you are wondering about your employer or business, please read through the order above for the definition of "essential")
- * All public and private gatherings of any number of people that are not part of a single household or living unit are prohibited. The order does spell out limited exemptions for this.
- * Duration: The order is effective at 8am Wednesday, March 25, 2020 and will remain in effect until 8am Friday, April 24, 2020.

What do you do if, after reading through the order, you're not sure if you are considered essential or not?

After reviewing the order, if a business still has a question or is not exempted but believes their business is doing essential work, WEDC will be reviewing those cases. If this applies to you:

1. 1. Your first step should be to visit https://wedc.org/essentialbusiness for more information.
2. 2. At the bottom of that page, there is a contact number for WEDC. Call them and talk through what your business situation is and why you believe your services are essential. You may need to try a few times to call because many businesses are likely going to be calling with the same questions.
3. 3. If you cannot get through, reach out to me and I will see what we can find out on our end.

My main goal is to help everyone in my district navigate this storm as easily as possible. If you have any questions at all, please, please reach out to me and my office and we will do everything we can to get you the right information.

April 7th Election

Governor Evers has continued to signal that there will be no change to the April 7th Election Date. I wanted to provide you with more information about absentee voting. Social distancing recommendations will be harder to follow on election day – so absentee voting is a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that, as of right now, online voter registration remains open until March 30th. You can also register by contacting your local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

Hey Vicki,

Thank you for reaching out to me. I totally understand where you are coming from, especially because in our area, there is a much larger elderly population, and our polling places already have fewer people to run the polls. You are right that Governor Evers refuses to move that date, has said so repeatedly, and has encouraged everyone to vote absentee when at all possible, and there's really nothing I can do to force his hand. I agree that it does give out mixed signals that everyone must stay home, but let's have a lot of people in the same place for voting. The fact of the matter is that the law/his emergency powers do not actually allow for him to change or postpone that date on his own. This, at least, does give me some comfort, because it means that one politician cannot take away our constitutional rights to vote just on a whim. These are certainly extraordinary circumstances, for sure. One big concern with moving this election so close to the date is that there are already 100,000 absentee ballots out there that have been returned to the clerks to be counted. On those ballots are votes for local positions all over the state. If Governor Evers were to move the election date, many, many local positions would remain vacant during that time, sometimes crippling a local government's ability to make moves to respond to the public health emergency we are currently in. It's also difficult to say when that date should be postponed to because we do not yet know how long the public health emergency will be in place. The deadline to register online has been extended by a federal judge until March 30th, so with people being able to access absentee ballots until April 2nd, I'm really hoping everyone who does not want to leave their house uses that option.

The federal government is close to passing a federal stimulus package that will have some funds available to aid local governments. This will allow more flexibility for clerks to be able to do what they need to to make sure this election is as safe as possible for all, including for poll workers. It is the Election Commission's job to work with all municipal clerks to ensure that this happens, and that all clerks have the resources they need to make that possible. I have heard that some locations are looking at purchasing pens so that every voter can use their own pen to sign the book and vote with it, and then take it with them.

Coronavirus and the fall out has created some really impossible situations, and this is one of them. If you are uncomfortable going to the polls to work or to vote, I think you have every right to stay home, and to vote absentee. I know some clerks (and the elections commission) are working on recruiting college students and non-essential employees out of work to work the polls in place of those who don't feel comfortable. If you're wanting to avoid getting sick, I'd talk to your municipal clerk about it and see what parameters they are putting into place to make the day as safe as possible.

As we've seen over the last two weeks, this situation can change drastically from day to day, so I will continue to keep you in the loop if anything changes. Thank you again for your time and sharing your thoughts with me,

Mary

Kathleen,

Outdoor activity is essential travel, so yes! Fishing is absolutely allowed. Everyone doing outdoor activity must still utilize social distancing and stay at least 6 feet from anyone not in their household. There is no limit to how far you can travel for outdoor activity. The DNR is simply suggesting staying closer to home, but you can drive over county lines to fish. I think there is a concern that a lot of people may travel to their second homes to congregate, which can create new issues, so the order technically states that you must stay within your primary residence. Having said that, if you travel back to your primary residence after fishing, I don't think any violations of the order have occurred.

Thank you for reaching out! Please let me know if you run into any issues with this or anything else.

Hi,
We can't seem to determine if one is able to go fishing as far as this Safer at Home order. It seems the DNR is advising people can go fishing but stay close to home. Most are traveling a distance to go fishing. Can you confirm the details as it seems unclear?
Thank you,

Hey, thank you for reaching out. I absolutely think this counts as outdoor activity and is allowed under the order, as long as you are social distancing from everyone that is not in your household (so staying 6 ft away).

Thanks for the question!

Kevin and Patti,

Thank you for your email. I totally understand the frustration and I share it. Unfortunately, the Governor has the statutory authority to create all of the orders he's given. My main goal at this point is to make sure that everyone affected has all of the information they need, and that we can all hopefully weather this storm together. One silver lining is that the Governor cannot extend the public health emergency past 60 days without legislative approval.

I am happy to hear you'll be moving to Tomahawk, we will be happy to have you!

I have rights, and this empty suit of a governor is not going to infringe on my freedoms!!!

My family and I will follow national guidance for the Wuhan virus, but this clown governor I simply ignore. He's governor due to voter fraud in Dane and Milwaukee county, and due to a Pot referendum! He's illegitimate as far as I'm concerned!!!

will be harder to follow on election day – so absentee voting is a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that, as of right now, online voter registration remains open until March 30th. You can also register by contacting your local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

Hey Randy,

The order technically prohibits all travel except for travel on the "essential travel" list, so it would depend on why you are going to cities near where you live.

According to the order, this is what it says about travel on page 4:

Prohibited and permitted travel. All forms of travel are prohibited, except for Essential Travel as defined in this Order. Individuals riding on public transit must comply with Social Distancing Requirements to the greatest extent possible.

Then on page 15, it explains what Essential travel means:

15. Essential Travel. Individuals engaged in any Essential Travel must comply with Social Distancing Requirements to the extent possible. For the purposes of this Order, Essential Travel includes:
a. Any travel related to the provision of or access to Essential Activities, Special Situations, Essential Governmental Functions, Essential Businesses and Operations, or Minimum Basic Operations.
b. Travel to care for elderly, minors, dependents, persons with disabilities, or other vulnerable persons.
c. Travel to or from educational institutions for purposes of receiving materials for distance learning, for receiving meals, or any other related services.
d. Travel to return to a place of residence from outside the jurisdiction.
e. Travel required by law enforcement or court order, including to transport children pursuant to a custody agreement.
f. Travel required for non-residents to return to their place of residence outside Wisconsin. Individuals are strongly encouraged to verify that their transportation out of Wisconsin remains available and functional prior to commencing such travel.

I hope this information is helpful. Please let me know if you have any questions. I have also attached a copy of the order for you.

Governor Evers' Stay At Home Order

Governor Evers has released the details of his "Safer at Home" emergency order and I wanted to get you the information as soon as possible.

Below is a link to the order:
https://wedc.org/…/2020/03/Health-Order-12-Safer-At-Home.pdf
I am still reviewing it, but here are details of the order:

- * It directs all individuals to stay at their place of residence, with limited exceptions (like going out for essential supplies and exercise).
- * All non-essential business and operations must end. If you are wondering about your employer or business, please read through the order above for the definition of "essential")

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- * All public and private gatherings of any number of people that are not part of a single household or living unit are prohibited. The order does spell out limited exemptions for this.

- * Duration: The order is effective at 8am Wednesday, March 25, 2020 and will remain in effect until 8am Friday, April 24, 2020.

What do you do if, after reading through the order, you're not sure if you are considered essential or not?

After reviewing the order, if a business still has a question or is not exempted but believes their business is doing essential work, WEDC will be reviewing those cases. If this applies to you:

1. 1. Your first step should be to visit https://wedc.org/essentialbusiness for more information.

2. 2. At the bottom of that page, there is a contact number for WEDC. Call them and talk through what your business situation is and why you believe your services are essential. You may need to try a few times to call because many businesses are likely going to be calling with the same questions.

3. 3. If you cannot get through, reach out to me and I will see what we can find out on our end.

My main goal is to help everyone in my district navigate this storm as easily as possible. If you have any questions at all, please, please reach out to me and my office and we will do everything we can to get you the right information.

REMEMBER: You Can Still Buy Local!

Governor Evers' Stay At Home Order does NOT shut down restaurants and bars that are providing carry out or delivery. You still have the ability to eat local!

I'm keeping the list below updated as businesses reach out to me to be added.

Sorry, one more thing, in case this is not being corrected yet.

The reference on the Order under 13 x. i., is 12b., 12d., and 12e.

There is no 12b., 12d., and 12e on the Order. I think the correct reference is supposed to be 13b., 13d., and 13e.

12 must have been added afterwards, and the reference not corrected. I had two questions from operators on that already.

Governor Evers' Stay At Home Order

Governor Evers has released the details of his "Safer at Home" emergency order and I wanted to get you the information as soon as possible.

Below is a link to the order:
https://wedc.org/…/2020/03/Health-Order-12-Safer-At-Home.pdf

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

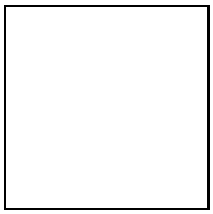
I am still reviewing it, but here are details of the order:

- * It directs all individuals to stay at their place of residence, with limited exceptions (like going out for essential supplies and exercise).
- * All non-essential business and operations must end. If you are wondering about your employer or business, please read through the order above for the definition of "essential")
- * All public and private gatherings of any number of people that are not part of a single household or living unit are prohibited. The order does spell out limited exemptions for this.
- * Duration: The order is effective at 8am Wednesday, March 25, 2020 and will remain in effect until 8am Friday, April 24, 2020.

What do you do if, after reading through the order, you're not sure if you are considered essential or not?

After reviewing the order, if a business still has a question or is not exempted but believes their business is doing essential work, WEDC will be reviewing those cases. If this applies to you:

1. 1. Your first step should be to visit https://wedc.org/essentialbusiness for more information.
2. 2. At the bottom of that page, there is a contact number for WEDC. Call them and talk through what your business situation is and why you believe your services are essential. You may need to try a few times to call because many businesses are likely going to be calling with the same questions.
3. 3. If you cannot get through, reach out to me and I will see what we can find out on our end.



My main goal is to help everyone in my district navigate this storm as easily as possible. If you have any questions at all, please, please reach out to me and my office and we will do everything we can to get you the right information.

I am so sorry. I accidentally sent that to you. I must have hit reply instead of forward and I sent it before realizing my error. I meant to send your email to my husband so he could also follow the link to request an absentee ballot like I did. Thank you for inquiring. I was kind of hoping maybe it would just never get to you.😁

Hi,

I gave Tony a call and talked to his business associate. They are concerned that their business will not qualify as essential under the EO, and they wanted more clarification. I recommended that they take a look at the WEDC page regarding essential businesses to see if they could fall under a mentioned essential service, and if not then they should make a designation inquiry on the WEDC page.

Subject: Greenhouses - Essential Business Update

Hello Everyone,

With the switch by the federal CISA list to include landscapers as essential, it has had an effect on greenhouses as well.

Before this week, greenhouses were allowed to only sell ag production products. These would include fruit or vegetable seeds or plants. They were also allowed to "maintain" their nursery stock, which would include watering and other activities to keep the plants alive.

With the change in classification of landscapers, I asked for more clarification for greenhouses. Under the information I received, greenhouses/nurseries will now be able to operate to supply professional landscapers and other "essential services." Some of these essential services could include construction, pesticides and forestry services.

For residential customers, greenhouses would be able to mail them products out of their place of business.

While this isn't a full shift into the essential category, it does allow additional revenue sources for these businesses that make the bulk of their sales in the spring.

If you have questions, please let me know.

Rick and Myra,

Thank you for reaching out. You are so right that life today is much different than life even a week ago. I'm hoping the weather will improve so people can still distance themselves while getting some fresh air. I think this situation is definitely stressful for all involved, but I think the response has been generally good, especially since most governments, local, state, and federal, have never dealt with something like this before. It's an ever-changing thing, but I think we'll all get through it.

Stay healthy, stay sane!

Hey Mike,

I also need Delores' address.

I totally understand the frustration. Wisconsin has experienced unprecedented numbers of UI claims filed in recent weeks. From Sunday, March 15, when we began to see the effects of Governor Evers' declared public health emergency, to yesterday, March 30, 222,271 initial claims for benefits were filed. You are right that you do not need to look for a job right now to be able to file, one because a lot of people will be returning to their jobs, and two, because employees at DWD are needed to answer the massive call log and cannot go through the paperwork required for job search confirmation. Dolores in turn did not complete the resume part on the application expecting to return to work when given all clear by employer. This held up her benefits when she needed this money to pay bills. Mary,

Thank you so much for getting back to me so quickly. I truly appreciate it. I understand that these are difficult and unprecedented times and we appreciate you taking the time to help us. Thank you for your kind words of congratulations we are very happy to have her home.

As far as the federal refund I will contact Senator Ron Johnson with my concerns. The irs website and app have said the same thing for 43 days now. It reads " Your tax return is still being processed. A refund date will be provided when available." . Thank you for pointing me in the right direction as to who to contact in that matter.

After speaking with my mom shortly after sending the last email it was brought to my attention that we have actually met. Although it was what feels like a lifetime ago. I was a teenager and a completely different person than I am now. It is funny to look back and see how things change. I do believe you still know my parents though, Rick and Jan Arends.

Thank you again for all your efforts and help. I look forward to hearing back from you.

Thank you for your email and letting me know what you are struggling with. Congratulations on your new baby! That is very exciting, but also an added stresser on top of an already unprecedented situation here in Wisconsin. I will reach out to the department and see if I can have someone reach out to you on the unemployment.

Regarding the federal tax refund, that unfortunately is not a state issue, so I don't have a contact for you at the IRS. You could contact Senator Ron Johnson on that. What does the website say when you check on the status of your refund? https://sa.www4.irs.gov/irfof/lang/en/irfofgetstatus.jsp

Congratulations again and I will see if I can get someone from DWD in touch with you. Unfortunately, the current situation has caused an enormous increase in the amount of people trying to file claims, so the staff at DWD are doing everything they can to keep up with the very large volume of calls that come in each day. I know they are also working on issues that arise with the website.

I will be in touch!

Dear Mary,

I was referred to you and given your e-mail in regards to my husband having an extremely hard time getting through to unemployment. We are now on day three of attempting to talk to someone. We started the process online as suggested but then towards the end of setting up his account he was told he needed to call and speak to someone to verify his account. We have been trying for days now and we can't get through. We just brought our premature baby home after a nearly 10 week stay at the NICU. She is on oxygen and part of the high risk category for this virus and every virus. We were starting to struggle before but had almost gotten our feet back underneath us when he got laid off from work this week. We need to get through in order to start to file weekly claims online and each day we can't file is another day closer to this having a severe and lasting impact on us. An impact that could be almost if not impossible to come

I'm sure you can understand how scary, frustrating and stressful this all is especially with an new preemie baby. Any help or advice you can give us is beyond appreciated. Thank you so much for your time and efforts.

Hey Betsy,

I did reach out to DWD, and was told they are about one day behind on messages they are receiving and giving calls back because there are so many, but that's actually really comforting, because the backlog was a lot longer when the stay-at-home order was first released. They will give you a call directly, hopefully in the next day. I know this is not ideal, but it's better than you having to waste a bunch of time trying to get ahold of them on the phone. If you don't hear from them by tomorrow afternoon, please let me know and I will follow up to see why that hasn't happened yet.

Thank you!

Thank you so much for getting back to me so quickly. I truly appreciate it. I understand that these are difficult and unprecedented times and we appreciate you taking the time to help us. Thank you for your kind words of congratulations we are very happy to have her home.

As far as the federal refund I will contact Senator Ron Johnson with my concerns. The irs website and app have said the same thing for 43 days now. It reads " Your tax return is still being processed. A refund date will be provided when available." . Thank you for pointing me in the right direction as to who to contact in that matter.

After speaking with my mom shortly after sending the last email it was brought to my attention that we have actually met. Although it was what feels like a lifetime ago. I was a teenager and a completely different person than I am now. It is funny to look back and see how things change. I do believe you still know my parents though, Rick and Jan Arends.

Thank you again for all your efforts and help. I look forward to hearing back from you.

The Senate and Assembly knew only they had the power to do something with the election. You knew how to change the date or provide a safe way to conduct the election weeks before today. You knew how contagious and deadly this virus is. You have undermined the effective social distancing tactics the Governor had imposed for the last several weeks and introduced an event that will likely create many more cases of the virus. You have weaponized a health scare to influence an election when many options to carry it out safely and comprehensively exist. You are disenfranchising voters all across the state and encouraging virus spread to those who do go to their polling locations. You have abandoned your morals, ethics, and the lives of your constituents.

Nice to see Gary being honored for his work with snowmobiling. He deserves it. Too bad he supports/rides a foreign made brand of snowmobile (Ski-doo) that is working diligently to put our two American snowmobile brands (Arctic Cat & Polaris) out of business.

There are so many other snowmobile club members (myself included) that volunteer countless hours and personal resources with little or no recognition. Snowmobiling is an important part of Wisconsin's economy. I feel it's long past time that people who demonstrate a dedicated commitment to the building and maintenance of the trail system deserve something more than just a plaque and a pat on the back. Without us the entire sport and the industry as a whole will collapse.

Thank you for your continued good work, Mary.

WEEKLY E-UPDATE

Rep. Felzkowski's March 12th E-Update

Honoring Gary Hilgendorf

Last month, I had the incredible honor of presenting Gary Hilgendorf of AWSC - Association of Wisconsin Snowmobile Clubs with a citation for his countless contributions to the sport of snowmobiling in our state.
With 6 decades of achievements, there are too many to list. Gary had a prestigious racing career, racing at the World Championship Track in Eagle River. He is a master trail groomer taking home the title of International Groomer of the Year in 2011. He was one of the leaders of the Badger State Games Torch Rides and was instrumental in bringing the tradition back this year for the first time in 30 years.

Gary has served on the Governor's Snowmobile Council, as President of the Knight Owls Snowmobile Club and currently serves as Lincoln County Snowmobile Council President.

Wisconsin State Senator Tom Tiffany and I were proud to present him with a citation congratulating him on his immense contributions to the sport.
Thank you Gary!

COVID-19 Update

Earlier today, Governor Evers declared a public health emergency in the state of Wisconsin over the spread of the corona virus, COVID-19.
It is important to take precautions to prevent the spread of the virus in our state.
The CDC states that the best way to prevent illness due to exposure to the virus is to limit person-to-person contact as much as possible.
Here are a couple tips to follow:
-Wash your hands often, for at least 20 seconds
-Stay home if you are sick
-Cover coughs and sneezes
All levels of government are working cohesively to prevent the spread of this virus. The state's health department and the CDC will be providing updates at the following links:

Rural Camp Bills Signed into Law

Earlier this month, Governor Evers signed several bills I authored regarding regulations that govern overnight recreational camps.

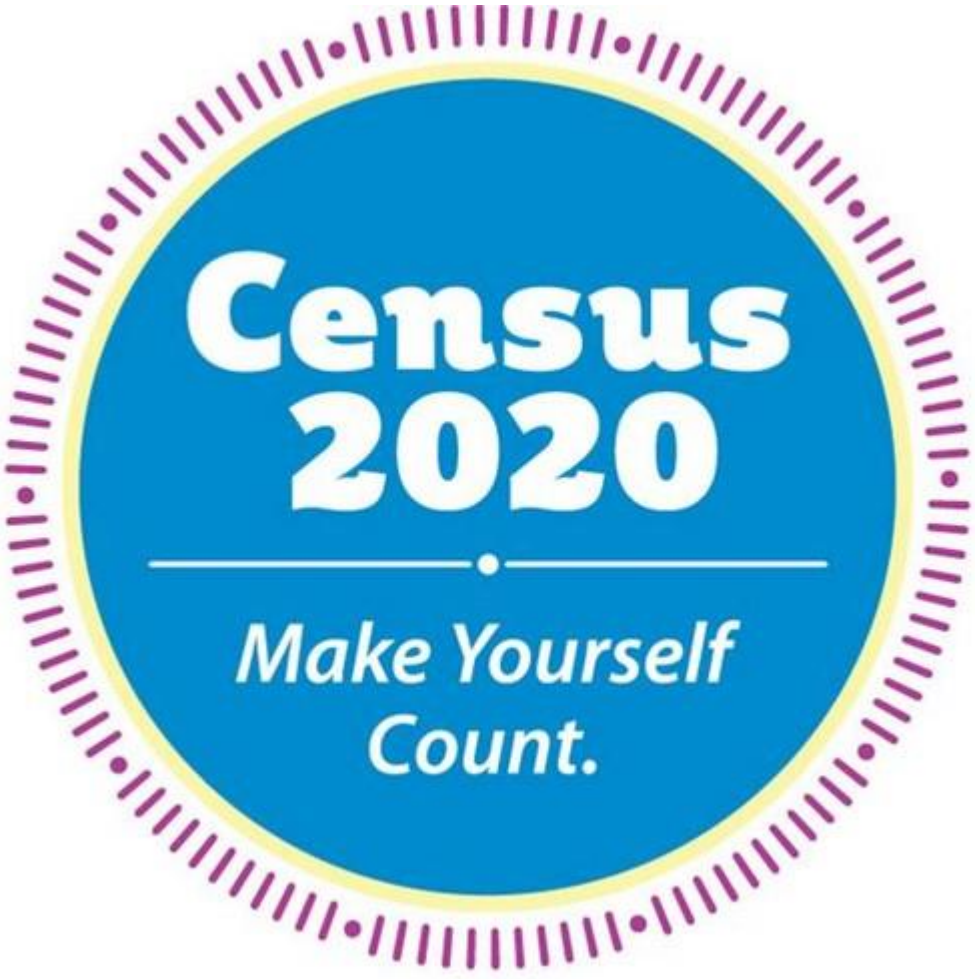
Some of the Northwoods' best hidden gems are recreational camps tucked throughout rural Wisconsin that bring campers from dozens of countries here to experience our beautiful natural resources and grow fond memories of Wisconsin that last a lifetime.

These camps not only teach children independence, social skills, and love of the outdoors, they also bring in millions of dollars in rural tourism revenue and employ hundreds of local residents.

The package of bills we created alleviates the duplicative and burdensome regulations these camps undergo, ensuring their continued success

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

One of the bills signed addresses onerous commercial building code regulations and the other bill allows for camps to use electronic record-keeping for health records, removing an antiquated bound-book requirement that they currently have to follow.



2020 Census

Every 10 years, states are constitutionally required to participate in the national census.

The 2020 Census will likely be arriving on your doorstep next week. It is crucial to fill out all the requested information.

Remember that the census data determines how much funding our region receives from the federal government and how many congressional representatives our state gets.

I reached out to my polling station, who said they did not need more help. So then they reached out to several others for me to see where else my husband and I could go. All of them indicated they didn't need help, but I will be visiting the polls tomorrow just to see if there is anything I can do to be helpful.

Thank you for your email,

Hey Kathy,

Thank you for your email and reaching out! I appreciate you thinking about this. The Department of Health Services finally added to their website with the percentage of positive cases that are currently hospitalized, but I do not believe that is being broken down by county at this time. I did just receive some helpful information from the Wisconsin Hospital Information that includes some of what you are getting at, and I've attached that to this email here: this infographic. WHA is expecting to see more detailed regional information in the coming days. If you click around this site, DHS has added new data today that breaks it down by more than just county, including age bracket, sex, and others. https://www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/outbreaks/index.htm

Regarding respirators, masks, gowns, etc. Yes all of that data is being tracked by the Department of Health Services, although it's more difficult to release the information because it changes so rapidly. Many companies have stepped up to manufacture masks and respirators, so as they produce more, Wisconsin will have more in stock. There is also a statewide effort to collect these types of materials from people and businesses that are willing to donate them. I also know that people at home are allowed to sew masks for hospitals as long as it follows an approved pattern. I also know the Governor just moved to spend several hundreds of millions of dollars on more of the items you listewd. So, rest assured, the tracking is happening on that front, it's just a hard number to get out there.

I hope this is helpful! Thank you again for reaching out. I really appreciate it.

I see many Governors talking stats about preparedness, but cannot find much information on Wisconsin. I know the websites that show cases & deaths by county etc., but what are the numbers as far as hospital beds, respirators, masks, gowns, gloves etc.? Does anyone actually know or are we sticking our heads in the sand (inside our homes, of course) and riding this out blind?
A lot of people are looking for this info.. I think many would take it more seriously if they knew how many/few ICU beds were available. I live in Merrill, we haven't had any recorded cases....yet, but the stats would be good if only because it shows someone is actually counting. We here about people in other areas who were told they are "probably positive" but haven't been tested so their families are still going out to the store etc.. That's crazy! We should be better than this.

Is there a resource? If not can you find someone who knows and get them to share?

Jane,
Over the last three weeks, Governor Evers had said publicly over and over that he would not move the election, and legislative leaders tried to work with him and support his decision, as the leader during this public health crisis. Fast forward to last Friday, the governor does a complete 180, and asks the Legislature to come into special session, with no notice, and with no time or ability to draft anything, agree to anything, or work anything through the legislative process. The Senate and the Assembly have never had to come into session virtually before, so both houses are frantically working to figure out how to do so safely, efficiently, and so that every member can be present or virtually present, to represent their constituents. That infrastructure was not in place for Saturday, which means we would have been calling everyone back to the Capitol, creating more chaos and risk. In addition to that, Governor Evers called for the special session on Friday, and then we didn't even receive a copy of what legislation he wanted us to pass until 2pm on Saturday, on the very day we were supposed to be passing it. I understand what it looks like, but it just was not possible on the timeline the Governor was asking for.

As to why I opposed his order on Monday, the answer is that, regardless of whether or not the election should be moved, and I totally understand why people were hoping for that, the Governor circumvented state law and the constitution with his order. I do not believe that any elected leader should be able to break the law, regardless of the circumstances. I don't believe that there is any good reason for one person to have the power to temporarily suspend our rights. The constitution is what our society is built on, even more important during a global pandemic, not less. Elections are our constitutionally protected way of holding our governments accountable. Allowing for those in that government to mess with that, even in a time of crisis, is so dangerous. I can understand if you disagree, but it's how I feel, and it wouldn't change based on who is serving in an given position.

I can tell you that when we do convene, which will be in the next few days, if we are allowed to be in Madison, that's where I'll be. I am grateful for all the positive stories I've heard over the last couple days about the polls in our area. People have told me that they were clean, professionally run, social distancing was in place, and they felt safe.

Thank you,

Mary

Jane,

I understand where you are coming from, and believe it or not, it's just as frustrating for some of us that want to get something done. The good news is that, despite what has occurred over the last few weeks, over 90% of legislation we pass and work on in the legislature is bipartisan. The media likes to focus on the negative because it sells papers, but there is a lot more working together on a normal basis than meets the eye. COVID has been frustrating for everyone involved because we are all operating without a map.

Thanks for reading,

Fast forward to last Friday, the governor does a complete 180, and asks the Legislature to come into special session, with no notice, and with no time or ability to draft anything, agree to anything, or work anything through the legislative process. The Senate and the Assembly have never had to come into session virtually before, so both houses are frantically working to figure out how to do so safely, efficiently, and so that every member can be present or virtually present, to represent their constituents. That infrastructure was not in place for Saturday, which means we would have been calling everyone back to the Capitol, creating more chaos and risk. In addition to that, Governor Evers called for the special session on Friday, and then we didn't even receive a copy of what legislation he wanted us to pass until 2pm on Saturday, on the very day we were supposed to be passing it. I understand what it looks like, but it just was not possible on the timeline the Governor was asking for.

As to why I opposed his order on Monday, the answer is that, regardless of whether or not the election should be moved, and I totally understand why people were hoping for that, the Governor circumvented state law and the constitution with his order. I do not believe that any elected leader should be able to break the law, regardless of the circumstances. I don't believe that there is any good reason for one person to have the power to temporarily suspend our rights. The constitution is what our society is built on, even more important during a global pandemic, not less. Elections are our constitutionally protected way of holding our governments accountable. Allowing for those in that government to mess with that, even in a time of crisis, is so dangerous. I can understand if you disagree, but it's how I feel, and it wouldn't change based on who is serving in an given position.

I can tell you that when we do convene, which will be in the next few days, if we are allowed to be in Madison, that's where I'll be. I am grateful for all the positive stories I've heard over the last couple days about the polls in our area. People have told me that they were clean, professionally run, social distancing was in place, and they felt safe.

Thank you,

Mary

It was the Wisconsin legislature who refused Governor Evers's request to delay the election as in Ohio. The Republican governor of Ohio is given praise for considering the health of his constituents over politics. I am ashamed of the republican legislators that I voted for in Wisconsin.

Thank you for your email on this. The responsibility for what is laid out in the story you provided rests completely on the City of Milwaukee's shoulders. I agree that 5 polling places in Milwaukee is unacceptable. This was a decision made by the Mayor of Milwaukee. Yes, there were poll workers all over the state that decided to stay home (as I recommended to anyone who felt uncomfortable going), but there was an influx of new people wanting to volunteer, in addition to over 2400 National Guardsmen and women that were deployed to help run the polling places on Monday and Tuesday. The City of Milwaukee chose to close all but 2% of their polling places, even though there would have been help there for them if they had wanted to keep more of them open. Even 10 would have been better than 5. The same situation occurred in Green Bay. The Mayor declined helped from the National Guard, and only kept two polling stations open. Meanwhile, Madison was able to keep 75% of their polling places open, and did not experience the lines or the wait times in the two other locations. I totally understand the frustration here, but these were entirely local decisions.

I understand your frustration, and I know where you are coming from here, but I don't agree with your take on this. Everyone I know and work with has been encouraging everyone to vote absentee for weeks now, and Rep. Vos has been one of the biggest proponents of that. Regardless of whether someone believes the election should be moved (and I understand why people were hoping for that), Governor Evers simply did not have the power to issue the order he did yesterday. In all times, but especially in a pandemic, we all need to work together. No one person should be able to knowingly break the law or circumvent the constitution, no matter what the reason. Do I wish Governor Evers would have had conversations with us early on about moving the election? Absolutely I do. He had been saying over and over that he was not going to move the election, so the legislature tried to support him in that and move forward with making polling places as safe as possible.

Please let me know if you'd like to talk about this further. The media likes to paint a certain picture per usual, but I can assure you that everyone is trying to do their best with the information they have at the time.

Dear Representative Mary J. Felzkowski,

As you may know, Wisconsin Assembly Speaker Robin Vos has been one of the most vocal supporters of forcing Wisconsin residents to vote in person during this pandemic. Speaker Vos's actions are putting millions of voters at risk, and infringing on our democratic process.

What you may not know is that Robin Vos is also the president of the National Conference of State Legislatures. It's clear to me that any lawmaker who would actively work to force their constituents to choose between either risking their health or exercising their right to vote is not someone who is qualified to lead the NCSL.

I'm calling on you, as my legislature, to ask for Robin Vos's resignation from NCSL. Please reach out to Caroline Carlson at NCSL (caroline.carlson@ncsl.org) and urge her and her staff to ask for Speaker Vos's immediate resignation.

Governor Evers has been relatively proactive in trying to mitigate the impact of the pandemic in this state. This insistence on holding in-person voting, especially in Milwaukee with FIVE polling locations open will negate any gains we have made, risk thousands of lives and reduce the likelihood of maintaining hospital capacity. It will also likely draw out the length of time our economy will be down.

Surely a one month delay with time for Residents to get mail in ballots is a simple measure that could alleviate a lot of risk.

There is absolutely no evidence that this is anything other than a massive voter suppression tactic, as if we don't already have enough voter suppression, voter purges and gerrymandering.

You Republicans are really at a point that you cannot get elected without cheating.

I am disgusted by your behavior, your pure disregard for the lives of WI citizens.

This Supreme Court seat in this absolutely illegitimate election at all costs shows us all who you are.

We are almost beyond ability to vote you despicable people out of office due to your level of cheating and corruption of our political process and courts. I think I'll be leaving this state that I have lived in all my life.

Hey Tyler,

Thank you for your email. I just wanted to respond to let you know that people are already allowed to vote via mail, and I have absolutely been encouraging everyone to do this if they don't feel comfortable going to the polls. No one who is at risk or doesn't feel comfortable should go, and I encourage everyone to stay home if that's what they want to do. Thankfully, so many people in Wisconsin have chosen to do that by voting absentee. With over 1.3 million absentee ballots mailed out, we have actually surpassed the total voter turnout from 2019, as well as the 2012 presidential primary total voter turnout already. This is wonderful! So many people are tuning into this election and trying to do so safely. I personally am so grateful that Wisconsin gives its citizens the ability to vote absentee if they need to. I have also heard from a lot of people in my district that really want to vote in person, and really want to work at the polls, despite the risk. With Governor Evers' new executive order today, we are still trying to figure out what that means tomorrow and the future. I hope to provide an update later tonight if we learn more that will be helpful for district constituents to know.

I appreciate your time and your opinion. I know these are scary, unprecedented times and we are all sort of operating without a map. Please let me know if you would like to discuss this further.

Dear Representative Mary J. Felzkowski,

In today's Milwaukee Journal Sentinel*, the editorial take a very clear position on whether Wisconsin should continue putting people at risk and running an election with too few poll-workers or poll locations. Namely, we should't. And I agree. I urge you to not put people's lives at risk by encouraging them to vote in person; voters and poll-workers like myself alike. This election will forever live with the memory that turnout was too few, not because people aren't doing their civic duty to vote, but because they ARE doing their civic duty to protect others through social distancing.

Please, delay this election and let us vote by mail!

COS CONVENTION of STATES ACTION

Dear Representative Mary Felzkowski,

My name is Coreen Wendorf and I live in Merrill.

Almost everyone knows that our federal government is on a dangerous course. The unsustainable debt combined with crushing regulations on states and business is a recipe for disaster.

What is less known is that the Founders gave state legislatures the power to act as a final check on abuses of power by Washington, DC. Article V of the US Constitution authorizes the state legislatures to call a convention for proposing needed amendments to the Constitution.

Citizens for Self-Governance has launched the Convention of States Project to call an Article V convention to propose only amendments that would impose fiscal restraints on the federal government, limit its power and jurisdiction, and impose term limits on its officials and members of Congress.

I support this approach. I want our state to be one of the necessary 34 states to pass a resolution calling for this kind of Article V Convention. You can find a copy of the model resolution and the Handbook for Legislators and Citizens (which explains the process and answers many questions) here: https://conventionofstates.com/handbook_pdf

I ask that you support the Convention of States Project and consider becoming a co-sponsor of the resolution.

Please respond to my request by informing the national COS team of your position, or sending them any questions you may have: info@cosaction.com or (540) 441-7227.

I forgot to mention a few other bits of information that might be helpful to people:

- * Trend lines (we see daily case counts but it's hard to remember what yesterday, much less the beginning of the week looked like);
- * Comparisons to other geographies (is the US more like China or Italy);
- * Comparisons to other health hazards (is this worse than the flu or H1N1).

Not that I think there is someone in our district that should be doing this … but, perhaps in the state or even at the University?

I am happy to provide assistance if there was an interest in providing such information.

Dear Representative Felzkowski:

This is the second time I've written but the message is the same: Thanks for the great job you are doing. It helps to think our local Representative is involved and on top of things.

I have a small suggestion as well. Namely, as we move forward it would be helpful to know a bit more about the people who have contracted the virus. For each category (tested, tested positive, recovered and fatality) it would be helpful to know things like:

- * The age groups in each category;
- * Number of hospital admissions vs in-home for people who have tested positive;
- * Any treatment regimens that are gaining wide acceptance (Zpack, etc); and,
- * Number of people in each category (especially fatalities) with an underlying health condition.s

While I am sure there is a balance between patient confidentiality and public awareness, I am hopeful that people might even agree to some information about them being included in general statistics.

Last night, my brother-in-law called to say that his brother-in-law Gary knew one of the state's Covid-19 fatalities. It was particularly unsettling to hear that people had talked to the person in the morning and he said things we fine — only to pass away that evening. Given that Gary has had contact with the victim (who was on an Egyptian cruise), are left to speculate if there are any lessons to be learned.

Again, thanks for the fine work.

CORONAVIRUS UPDATE

Details regarding the coronavirus in our state continue to change on a daily basis. I wanted to provide you an update with some information you may not have seen in the last couple of days:

- * As of 5pm today, Governor Evers has issued another order that stipulates all hair salons and barber shops will have to close indefinitely. If a location is selling products, they can continue to do so.
- * If your Driver's License or CDL is expiring during the public health emergency, it will be extended automatically for 60 days. This will be noted on your file for law enforcement to see.
- * Rest stops are open in Wisconsin! There has been a rumor running around out there that Wisconsin has closed its rest stops. This is not true! They remain open, especially for our vital trucking industry who need these stops to stay well rested and healthy.
- * If you're looking for help from the Department of Workforce Development (DWD) for yourself or your employees, please navigate the websites FIRST to see if your question can be answered there before calling. They have received an exponential increase in calls for unemployment insurance, so we want to make sure that everyone can get the answers they need in a timely manner.
- * The Department of Natural Resources announced that Wisconsin State Parks and Trails will remain open. While these properties are open to the public, property buildings (with the exception of restroom facilities) will be closed. Admission fees will be voluntary at self-registration stations or electronic kiosks. All DNR campsites will be closed through April 30th.

- * There is a rumor that the Wisconsin National Guard has been called up in Wisconsin to close Wisconsin borders and shut the state down. This is NOT true. Where possible, we need to do everything we can to shut down false information trails, so don't be afraid to reach out and ask if you're not sure about something.

If you have any specific questions not covered here, please reach out and my office will do everything we can to get you the answers you need!

You Can Still Buy Local!

As you all know, Governor Evers closed restaurants and bars at 5:00pm on Tuesday evening of this week. However, restaurants are still able to provide delivery and take out.

So what are you and your family having for dinner tonight? My office has compiled a list of all the restaurants in my district that are currently offering delivery, carry out, or both. If you as a restaurant are open and not on this list, please reach out to my office and we will add you!

April 7th Election

With the April 7th election fast approaching, I wanted to provide you with more information about absentee voting. Social distancing recommendations will be harder to follow on election day – so absentee voting is a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that in order to request an absentee ballot, voters must already be registered. As a reminder, the deadline for online registration has passed – to register, voters will need to contact their local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

Myra,

Thank you for your email. No one is asking voters to vote in person, in fact, we've been heavily encouraging everyone to vote absentee. There are some who really want to vote in-person, and it is their right to do so if they choose. With over 1 million absentee ballots requested, our polling places will not look like they do on normal election days because a large majority of people will be staying home. Thankfully, that has made it a lot easier for our clerks to put parameters in place promote social distancing and really limit face to face interaction, like drive thru voting. After Governor Evers' announcement today, I had five clerks reach out to me right away telling me they absolutely don't support his plan to move the election, or to do a mail-in ballot system. It simply isn't feasible and would cause a mass amount of chaos and confusion. I really encourage anyone who is worried about their health to vote from home, no one should go to the polling place that doesn't want to be there. My husband and I are hoping to volunteer at the polls if we are needed so we can help the day run smoothly.

Thank you and please have a good weekend,

Mary

It is unconscionable to ask voters and volunteers to risk their safety just to exercise their constitutional right to vote durning this pandemic. In-person voting must be suspended and the timeline to request and mail-in absentee ballots must be extended. With out doing this Wisconsin is not only actively putting residents' heath at risk and adding to the spread of this virus, but also we are suppressing the votes of hundreds of thousands. This is unconscionable.

Hello,
I wanted to reach out and introduce myself as Dan's new CRC.
I am fairly new to Dan's case (but have met with several/regional managers and previous IDT staff to better grasp member and this case).
I have worked for many years as a Community Resource Coordinator and am quite experienced with our PD/mental health members, that is part of why we were assigned to work with Dan.

Just wanted everyone to have my contact information. I have also added Dan's HWC/RN and her contact information.

Dan,

I have not spoken to anyone at Inclusa since the hearing. My understanding is that Inclusa offered the 12 hours through an Agency and you declined. If you feel you did not decline this service and/or want an agency to provide SHC services I would clearly indicate that to your new team. The letter indicated that after 12 hours were started; an evaluation would be done to see if more were needed.

My boss has gotten three calls today regarding State Patrol pulling people in our district over to ask what they are doing/where they are going. Liz, Correct, that is the direction we gave and continue to give as it relates to the "Safer at Home" order with not only the State Patrol but all state law enforcement.

I will flag this both for DOT and the SEOC.

Hey Zach,

My boss has gotten three calls today regarding State Patrol pulling people in our district over to ask what they are doing/where they are going. For one of the calls, the person said that the officer told her "If you are going five over, I am going to pull you over and ask you where you are going, and I will fine you." Rep. Felzkowski wanted me to reach out to you on this because Governor Evers said in his press conference last week that state patrol would not be pulling people over to ask them where they were going.

Thank you!

Ms. Felzkowski:
With respect, we are writing to let you know that we've become aware of Wisconsin statutory language that allows the legislature to pass a joint resolution revoking any/all of the governor's recent executive orders. In other words, we the people are not at the mercy of the governor's orders - i.e., they do not need to stay in place for at least 60 days unless he personally revokes them. The legislature is a co-equal branch of state government along with the executive and judicial branches and we the people need you to stand up for us to revoke the governor's orders that have shuttered our businesses, stripped us of our right to freely assemble, and seriously jeopardized our overall physical and mental health. These orders are actually far more damaging to far more people in the state than the virus will ever be - please watch this scientific analysis for proof of that: https://bit.ly/2JOD3xg – and we believe such joint resolutions could easily pass. But we need leadership from Speaker Vos now to make that happen. We have written to him and to Senator Fitzgerald asking them to put forth a joint resolution, and we're now writing to you – as an Assembly leader – to urge you to impress upon Mr. Vos how important this is. Please stop "waiting" and start acting. If states like South Dakota and countries like Sweden can adequately protect their most vulnerable citizens from infection by the virus without locking down the entire population, Wisconsin can too. You showed active leadership in standing up to the governor's attempts to circumvent today's election; please stand up to the executive orders – all of them related to this virus situation - as well.

Dear Senator Tiffany and Representative Felzkowski,

I'm writing to you today to ask for your assistance with passing some kind of legislation — or executive action or SOMEthing — to protect hospitals and healthcare workers from liability for making necessary and proper triage decisions during a surge of patients due to the coronavirus crisis.

Here at ALH, we have been creating guidelines with our Aspirus system partners for how to allocate potentially scarce resources (hospital beds, ICU beds, ventilators, etc.) when the demand exceeds our supply. These guidelines are similar to those that have previously been published by states (New York, Utah, Michigan), and they're similar those of nearly every other hospital and healthcare system everywhere. Part of my role at ALH has been to ensure that all of these guidelines are in conformity with Catholic moral thought. They are. God help us that we ever reach the point of having to put these guidelines into play.

I want to emphasize this: we sincerely desire to continue to care for our patients and families the very best way that we can. I'm not asking you for unreasonable protection---several other states have provided this kind of protection within their states for folks who are acting in good faith according to established guidelines. These are difficult times, with professionals legitimately worried about having enough PPE, bringing infections home to their families, having to work longer hours in less than optimal conditions. I'm just asking you to lighten the load by removing the threat of potential lawsuits against professionals operating in good faith. The Journal of the American Medical Association, too, Is advocating for these kinds of protections.

Thank you for your consideration and your advocacy.
Thanks, too, for visiting us here in Antigo back in December. I trust that you know that we're doing good work here for the good people of Wisconsin.

Hi Liz,

Because Oneida County has declared a state of emergency , it has the power to act under s. 323.14 (4) (a), Stats., which states that:

> "The emergency power of the governing body conferred under s. 323.11 includes the general authority to order, by ordinance or resolution, whatever is necessary and expedient for the health, safety, protection, and welfare of persons and property within the local unit of government in the emergency and includes the power to bar, restrict, or remove all unnecessary traffic, both vehicular and pedestrian, from the highways, notwithstanding any provision of chs. 341 to 349."

Pursuant to s. 323.14 (4) (b), Stats., if the governing body is unable to meet because of the emergency, the chief executive officer can also exercise the above power by proclamation.

I think that normally when a local government exercises the power to restrict highway traffic, it is in response to a flood or storm rather than for the purpose of public health, but the statute itself doesn't limit the authority to that purpose.

Note that the statute requires the local government to adopt an ordinance, resolution, or proclamation in order to exercise its power under a state of emergency. I cannot find anything online that shows that Oneida County has adopted an ordinance or resolution (or that the county executive has issued a proclamation) ordering that the county borders be closed. Without that kind of formal action, the county would not be able to order that its borders be closed.

Because the language of the statutes is so broad, the limits to a local government's authority to adopt such an ordinance, resolution, or proclamation would be based mostly on constitutional considerations such as due process. If there was a legal challenge, a court would look at whether the emergency is significant enough to warrant the restrictions imposed by the local government.

We will also see what new restrictions are ordered by the governor later today.

Hi Liz,

I'm writing to follow-up on our previous discussion about local emergency orders. As I mentioned in my last email, there are some questions about whether local government authority to impose emergency measures has been limited by the "safer at home" order issued by DHS in Emergency Order #12.

The safer at home order specifically states that it "supersedes any local order that is in conflict with" it. Two questions arise related to that provision: (1) Is the supremacy provision in Emergency Order #12 legally enforceable, such that conflicting local orders are indeed preempted?; and (2) If so, what local orders "conflict" with Emergency Order #12? State statutes do not directly address those questions, but based on relevant statutes and case law, the likely answers appear to be: (1) yes, conflicting orders are likely preempted; and (2) whether a particular local order would be found to conflict with Emergency Order #12 would be subject to some interpretation.

Recent Wisconsin court decisions have generally held that a local regulation that imposes a more stringent regulation than what a comprehensive statutory scheme imposes is preempted. However, in the emergency management context, the statutes allow for broad local authority concurrently with state authority, so there is an argument that a "conflict" only arises where a local order regulates a matter in a less stringent manner or in a way that cannot feasibly be enforced in conjunction with Emergency Order #12, and not in a situation where a local order regulates a matter more stringently. So, while the law is not completely clear, there is an argument that a local government has authority to impose a more stringent order than the state-issued safer at home order.

I'm happy to provide a more in-depth legal analysis if you'd like. Hope you are doing well!

Steve,
Thank you for the email. We are still trying to figure out what our ability is here. We do not believe Governor Evers has the constitutional right to do what he has done today, but it's also impossible for us to meet today in session to pass anything to override it. Also, anything that we pass would have to be signed by Governor Evers himself, so it's pretty complicated. Please know what we are working on this and are doing whatever we can to make sure that the Governor must uphold the law.

Thank you for your time and for your service,

The Wisconsin governor just canceled/postponed indefinitely our right to vote tomorrow.

They told us we were fighting the Vietnam war for freedom and to halt communism. Well we vets banged our head against a wall about that. Well, here we are locked in in our homes, no free elections and everybody get free money. Fix this! I am so mad.

I want to sincerely apologize for how long it has taken me to get back to you. We had a huge influx of calls and emails come in on Monday and Tuesday, and I was unable to reach others. I wanted to check in with you and let you know that I got a lot of really encouraging feedback yesterday about the polling places in our area. Thanks to everyone who decided to vote absentee (currently over 1 million people!), a majority of polling places had a manageable amount of people come through during the day with no lines, certainly not the crowds we normally see on Election Day. I heard from others that their polling place was clean, run well, and had the necessary social distancing in place.

Thank you for your time,

Hello Sen. Tiffany and Rep. Felzkowski,

At Marshfield Clinic Health System we have submitted several 1135 waivers related to the current COVID pandemic. I know the state has been bombarded with these requests and Tony Langenohl will soon be submitting to JFC members a consolidated list of the submissions we have made to DHS and CMS so far. Most all of these relate to ensuring we can meet the potential capacity of hospital beds that will be needed when COVID becomes more prevalent in our area of the state.

One item that I wanted to particularly bring to your attention is our request relating to opening up our new hospital in Minocqua. We have been scheduled to open up on May 1st but believe we could open up in April if we get the proper state and federal regulatory sign offs. Given the concern about people heading to their cabins or second homes from other areas, it could potentially place more healthcare needs on a more rural area that doesn't have as many health care services. These extra beds could potentially be a big help at this time. Any help you are able to provide in getting this approved is much appreciated. I am happy to answer any questions you may have. I have attached our request that was submitted to the state.

Thank you for all the tireless work that you and other state employees have put in during this time. Please know that it is appreciated and we look forward to working with you.

Absolutely… the two main hurdles is getting the hospital licensed, which DHS has complete control over and can get expedited and they have been willing to do once the general contractor says it is ready to go (which is hopefully imminent) and getting certified, which we are told won't happen through the normal process because the Joint Commission accreditation team is not travelling now. So we are working with CMS, DHS and federal delegation to get CMS to recognize the DHS license (once given) as a temporary accreditation during the pandemic so they can be paid by Mediciad and Medicare.
Will keep you updated.

Telehealth might be where need help too. We are pursuing approval for phone-based mental health services approved for a similar degree of payment compared to face-to-face or telehealth services. This is urgent issue for MCHS behavioral health team because in the MCHS system given the volume of low income patients they care for and volume of elderly patients– both populations being highly vulnerable to mental health issues at this time and are unable to access these services via approved platforms.

We have been busily sending waiver requests to DHS as quick as they have been identified, and are trying to catch up now on making sure you all are informed too. Will do a better job going forward and will keep you in the loop where we could use some additional assistance, but will definitely keep you better informed.

Since situation appears to residential rental but commercial rental it's out of our authority, but it appears they have a period tenancy based on a month-to-month rental agreement (verbal agreement). We would believe that a tenant would still owe rent until one of them gave notice that the agreement was going to be terminated. Given the EO, there are no terminations during this time period, so it would appear the tenant would need to continue to pay rent per their agreement.

We are encouraging all parties to work together during this time to try and reach mutual agreements.

Hey Bradford,

Not sure if this would technically be DATCP from the landlord perspective, but I thought I'd ask. I know evictions are on hold, but Governor Evers did say at his press conference about that that everyone is who is renting should still be making payments. Does that apply for those who literally can't access what they've rented? My guess is yes, but wanted to double check.

Question: A hairdresser renting a spot/chair in a beauty salon was locked out from her rented spot, as mandated, 10 days before the end of March. Rent is on a monthly basis, all verbal, no lease or contract. The landlord is asking each to again pay rent April 1st, while they are unable to use the location to work and generate income. Is a tenant required to continue to pay rent, with no opportunity to use the shop to generate income during this mandatory shutdown, or risk being terminated as current tenant? Subject: RE: Mary, Question for you

Hey Nancy,

I totally understand where you are coming from. Just to give you another scenario, landlords are not allowed to terminate contracts or evict anyone who cannot pay their rent because of lost income or whatever happens due to COVID, so the order can go both ways. Governor Evers has said that all those who can continue to pay their rent should, just as all landlords must keep their tenants, no matter what, right now, regardless of whether rent is paid. The other avenue available for you is to apply for an SBA loan, so that during this time, you are still able to pay your bills, like rent. Also, on the federal level, the federal stimulus bill was just passed and signed by President Trump. In that legislation, I believe those who are self employed are temporarily allowed to apply for unemployment. We are waiting on a Legislative Fiscal Bureau document that will help us Wisconsin legislators confirm that or not. But I'm guessing that would also be an avenue for you to help with funding while things are shut down?

Again, I totally understand what you are saying, and how, especially in your circumstances, it seems totally unfair. This is happening in a lot of different fields right now. For example, I know a lot of day care centers that have closed are still requiring their families to pay full tuition, even though the kids are not going to the center. The center says they need to keep that income so that there is a day care center to open when this is all over, but for those families, I'm sure they feel it is unfair (which I totally understand). The families have the ability to pull their kids' contracts with the centers so they don't have to pay, but then they also lose their spots for their kids when they day care opens, as a lot of them have waitlists. This kind of the same as your situation. You could decide with the landlord to pull your contract, but then you could lose your spot after things open up again. This is ultimately why DATCP is encouraging people to come to agreements together. Has anyone talked to the landlord about cutting rates while closed? That way, you are not paying the full amount, and they are also not taking a full loss.

COVID is causing a lot of impossible situations for people all over. I wish there was an easier answer. Please let me know if you have additional thoughts,

Mary

Mary,

Thank you for your response and the time you took to look into this matter for us. It would be commercial rental. If this does not fall under the jurisdiction of the DATCP, what agency would govern commercial rentals in the same manner as residential?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

My understanding of your response is, a tenant would be required to continue paying rent for a property that they cannot access, or use to generate income, per the rental agreement. They would be fulfilling their part, while the owner would not. The landlord would then be able to pay expenses and maintain their building, while the tenants would be unable to produce any income to pay their own expenses, in addition to being required to pay for something they have no access to. Given that no one knows how long the mandated closure will last, it could turn out to be a substantial loss / hardship for a single parent raising a family and maintaining a home to meet financial obligations. It is not my intention to submit an argument, but to ask if there is another avenue available to address this issue.

Thanks again,

Nancy Teal

kLubm-wnALDFA Trump Admin Roadblocking Seniors, People with Disabilities and Veterans From Receiving Their $1200

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
April 1, 2020
Contact: Linda Benesch, lbenesch@socialsecurityworks.org
(Washington, DC) — The following is a statement from Nancy Altman, President of Social Security Works, in response to the recently released IRS guidance indicating that Social Security beneficiaries, SSI recipients, and veterans receiving pensions can't get their $1200 CARES Act payments without filing a tax return:
"This is outrageous. The $1200 payments could easily be added automatically to the benefits these people already receive every month. The CARES Act specifically gives the Treasury Department the authority to do so.
Instead, the Trump Administration is throwing up an unnecessary barrier that will make it harder for seniors, people with disabilities, and veterans to get the payments they desperately need. In the middle of a pandemic to which they are most vulnerable, the groups can't afford any delay.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In 2008, 3.5 million Social Security beneficiaries and veterans never received a stimulus payment that they were owed. They were blocked by the nonsensical requirement that they file a tax return, even though they owed no taxes. The same will happen now; indeed, it is highly likely it will be worse due to the chaos of the pandemic.

Millions of people who need these payments won't get them. At best, the payments will be delayed – even though the federal government pays these people benefits right now, each and every month.

The Trump Administration must reverse course immediately and make a clear public statement that all Social Security beneficiaries, SSI recipients, and veterans receiving pensions will get their $1200 payments without filing a tax return. And then the government should pay — without delay — what it owes."

Hey Peggy,

Sorry I'll try to clarify! The way you worded this paragraph is what has me questioning:

I should also note that there is another statutory provision that requires the special election to occur four weeks after the special primary. [s. 8.50 (2) (b), Stats.] However, this requirement is preempted by federal law, which requires that ballots be sent to military and overseas voters at least 45 days before a federal law.

Based on the way you phrased this, it sounded like the special election would need to occur 4 weeks after the special primary, meaning it could not go past the four weeks. So I guess my question is, does state law require that the election cannot be held until four weeks have passed since the primary, or that the election must happen before the 4 weeks elapses? Same question with the 45 days on the federal level. Is federal law that absentee ballots need to be mailed AT LEAST 45 days before the election, or beginning at 45 days before the election, meaning that the most space between a primary and the election would be 45 days.

Does that help? I'm trying to figure out if there would be anything other than the August date you mentioned that would prevent the May 12th date from being moved to a later date in summer.

Hi,

The federal law states that ballots must be sent out 45 days ahead of an election; the state law that is pre-empted is the requirement that special primaries be held 4 weeks before special elections. The state law would leave just 28 days between the special primary and the special election, making it impossible to send ballots out 45 days before the special election. Therefore, that portion is preempted. Does that clarify things?

Hey Peggy,

Thank you for this! Just one follow up question. If federal law preempts state law on the 45 days, does that mean that the most allowable would be the 45 days, or does it completely negate the state statute.

Let me know if that question was confusing and I'll try to rephrase. ☺

Thank you again!

Hi Liz,

Thank you for your question regarding the special election. Section 8.50, Stats., governs special elections. That statute does impose some limits on the timing between the governor's order and the special primary, but the only limit on setting the date for the special election currently scheduled is that it may not be held after August 1, 2020. [s. 8.50 (intro)] I should note that under that statutory provision it is, theoretically, possible to schedule the special election to take place after the general election, but that would be logistically unfeasible.

I should also note that there is another statutory provision that requires the special election to occur four weeks after the special primary. [s. 8.50 (2) (b), Stats.] However, this requirement is preempted by federal law, which requires that ballots be sent to military and overseas voters at least 45 days before a federal law.

Hi,

Yes, that helps! Thank you; I hope this clarifies the interplay between the state and federal statute:

1. The statutory provision stating that the special election is held 4 weeks after the special primary is the statute that is preempted by federal law. That's because the federal law requires ballots to be mailed 45 days before the election. Having just 4 weeks between a primary and an election makes it impossible to get ballots out to the military/overseas voters at 45 days before the election (ballots can't be printed with the final candidates until after the primary)

2. The 45 day requirement is an AT LEAST requirement; it does not place an outer limit at 45 days for the election to be held.

Therefore, there is nothing preventing the rescheduling at any date, so long as it is scheduled before August 1, 2020.

Helpful?

Thank you for putting this together! It's super helpful.

On Friday, we may want to do "Good Friday" instead of the national wildlife. We'll have to see what comes up.

Regarding April 14th, I would like to send out an eupdate letting everyone know that because of the 50 piece rule, we are not able to send out eupdates anymore, even during the public health emergency. Because of that, we encourage everyone to still reach out to our office for anything and everything, we just can't send more than 50 of one thing at a time. We will still be able to respond to constituents as normal.

Something similar for FB.

I talked to Kit about this because she's been trying to push for an extension on this. She told me that it may be solved with the legislation currently being worked on. If it's not, we need to operate as if April 15th is still the date.

We will actually be closed on April 3rd actually for staff training. Our staff will be heading over to the Fox Cities for a regional training. We have activities Monday - Thursday that week, if she happens to come back to district early we would love to have her stop by.

Thank you so much and hopefully we can connect with Mary soon.

Hello Stamena:

Thanks for your reply. Please be aware that, even if the additional $15 million were included, it represents a drop in the bucket across the state in relation to the need, and we likely still would have received nothing. Even if there have been minor incremental increases recently in the annual state road aids, they have not kept up anywhere near the cost of road construction over the past 20 years. Nowhere near. We need to look at other ways to get dollars to our roads. If we receive authority to explore PRAT, we won't be at the mercy of the status quo that is not enabling us to keep up with road construction and maintenance needs.

I would be very pleased to meet with Rep. Felzkowski. I am generally in the office every weekday, so perhaps it would be easiest for you to look at her schedule and determine a convenient date to meet as my availability here is pretty good. Best dates for me are WED-THU-FRI, between 10am and 1pm, but other days/times could be arranged also.

Again, thanks for your reply and I look forward to a continued dialog..

The bill would have allowed Minocqua and Tomahawk to move forward and become premier resort areas. We advocated for a public hearing but unfortunately the bill did not move forward this session.

The MLS funding announcements this morning were a disappointing reminder that Governor Evers vetoed $15 million in local road aids that we put into our budget.

I can assure you that funding for local roads will remain a top priority for Rep. Felzkowski next session. We would be very interested, if you are available, to arrange a sit down with you and Rep. We are very frustrated with the State Legislature withholding from the Town of Minocqua the ability to explore a Premier Resort Area Tax in our town. There has been no valid reason whatsoever provided by the legislature for closing the door on Minocqua even exploring the idea, when many other communities similar to ours are utilizing this tool successfully. Our town residents already approved the concept in a referendum. We watch as our roads crumble and are denied the tools available to fix them.

I would love to discuss this with you, as I believe you are the likely next Senator for the 12th Dist. You may already have some familiarity with Tomahawk's exploration of PRAT. Looking forward to hearing your thoughts on moving this forward..

Hi Stamena: We're doing our best to comply with recommendations to reduce the spread of Coronavirus. Our offices are closed except for voter services by appointment only. It looks like the safer at home recommendations will continue on the national and state levels at least through the end of April. With this in mind, I suggest we postpone the meeting until a later date. Finding ways to rescue our roads is essential, but our meeting can wait until we see some light at the end of this thing. How about if we reconnect sometime in the first full week in May to re-assess? Thanks for checking, and stay well...

I am attaching a number of documents that may be of interest regarding the current health emergency.

- There are two fiscal bureau memos that cover the federal legislation passed last week. One memo I have already circulated but I am including again with the second memo which covers the changes made to the legislation before signed. The first is titled 'FB memo on House bill' and the second is 'Mods to 6201'. Taken together, these two memos cover the most recently passed federal bill related to the COVID-19 crisis.

- There is a LC memo on constitutionality questions, both federal and state, in regard to actions taken during this health emergency.

- There is a Word document that covers questions on unemployment.

- There is an LRB memo on whether/how voting can be changed in this emergency, and a memo from the Elections Commission providing guidance to clerks for the election.

- Finally there is an updated (as of 3/18) pdf from the Education Commission of the States with information about responses in other states.

Please let me know if you have questions.

Hey Steve,

I appreciate you providing this information and taking the time to send me the screen shots as well. That's really helpful. You and I have already talked through this a bit, but I'm hoping I can help explain why people are hesitant to move the election.

- Moving the date in the middle of voting and especially so close to the election date creates so much unmanageable chaos.
- Over 1 million absentee ballots have already been sent out, and the deadline to request one is not until tomorrow, so I am sure we will see that number grow even more. The question becomes, what do we do with all of the absentee ballots that have already been sent and already turned in?
- Here are just some of the other questions that come up when discussing moving the election:
    - How long do we extend the election? Some people have mentioned the May 12th special election date and I totally understand wanting to use that date. What if we are still under social distancing, and have to consider moving the date again?
    - What if something happens between now and then and voters demand they be given the chance to change or re-cast their vote?
    - What do we do for the local government positions that are going to be vacant while we wait for the new election date? What if local governments can't respond to this or another crisis because decision makers aren't in place to make those decisions?

Ultimately, everyone has a fundamental right to respond to their government by voting in elections. I totally understand where everyone is coming from on postponing. Our reality is that the Governor has said the date is not going to move and the legislature cannot move it without him. The Elections Commission has said the date is not going to move, and now the court is signally today that they are not going to order the date to move. Knowing this information, my number one goal and my job right now is to help our amazing clerks run their polling places safely and efficiently, so that everyone can get in to vote, and get out quickly. We have been encouraging anyone and everyone who does not feel safe going out to vote absentee and thankfully so many people are choosing to do that. This means that all of those people are going to stay home on Election Day, making it so much easier to social distance and avoid the spread. The National Guard will be helping man the polls that day, and the Elections Commission is providing extra supplies to clerks, as well as extra COVID specific training. There is also funding included in the federal stimulus package to help with the increase costs of administering the election. If we all continue to work together, we can make sure that voting on April 7th is done safely.

Thank you again for your emails. I know you are reaching out because you care about the safety of everyone in Wisconsin, and I really respect that.

Dear Representative Felzkowski:

Last night the University of Wisconsin live streamed a broadcast recording Covid-19 which featured Dr. Nasia Safdar whose qualifications are summarized below:

During the broadcast, Dr Safdar presented the following chart:

I'd like to point out two things:

- * As you can see from the cluster diagram on the right hand side of the chart, early in the outbreak people were not practicing social distancing which made it difficult for medical workers to identify and isolate people who were exposed and could transmit the virus. However, with social distancing this problem has become much less dangerous and our health care professionals are finding they can spend more time on treatment and less time on tracking. This has obvious advantages. However, holding an election with open polling places will put the state back into the early more dangerous cluster model. Given this understanding, holding an election presents an obvious increase to the risk of the public and the health care system which is both irresponsible and intolerable.
- * The broadcast was widely watched with over 5,500 live views. This number will increase substantially as the broadcast is available for replay and was first seen only 16 ours ago. You have the opportunity to do the right thing and avoid what is likely to be a crisis of public confidence in our elected officials.

Do the right thing. Reschedule the election.

Dear Mary Felzkowski ,

I can only imagine the number of calls and questions the office is getting about COVID-19 and financial assistance. In times of uncertainty, people often seek financial security. Unfortunately, the pandemic has resulted in numerous scams. The National Association of Insurance and Financial Advisors (NAIFA) is working with the National Business Emergency Operations Center (NBEOC) to assist the interagency crisis action task force. With members in every Congressional district, NAIFA is uniquely situated to help with situational intelligence and deliver credible resources.

NAIFA's consumer site provides individuals and businesses with information to avoid scams, tips on who to contact regarding health claims/questions, as well as how to find licensed, knowledgeable, ethical professionals to assist with financial security planning. Please feel free to send consumers to https://security.naifa.org/covid-19 or to one of the many NAIFA members licensed in the state. This is a difficult time and we can hopefully provide reliable information to constituents and reduce fear. Please let NAIFA State Chapter Director Julie Harrison, or me, know how else NAIFA can help.

Stay healthy and thanks for your leadership during this challenging time.

Best,

I understand your frustration, and I know where you are coming from here, but I don't agree with your take on this. Everyone I know and work with has been encouraging everyone to vote absentee for weeks now, and Rep. Vos has been one of the biggest proponents of that, so to say that he was one of the most vocal supporters of forcing residents to vote in person is disingenuous. Everyone had the power to vote absentee, and I've been providing that information to my district for weeks now. Regardless of whether someone believes the election should be moved (and I understand why people were hoping for that), Governor Evers simply did not have the power to issue the order he did on Monday. In all times, but especially in a pandemic, we all need to work together. No one person should be able to knowingly break the law or circumvent the constitution, no matter what the reason. Do I wish Governor Evers would have had conversations with us early on about moving the election? Absolutely I do. He had been saying over and over that he was not going to move the election, so the legislature tried to support him in that and move forward with making polling places as safe as possible.

Please let me know if you'd like to talk about this further. The media likes to paint a certain picture per usual, but I can assure you that everyone is trying to do their best with the information they have at the time.

Dear Representative Mary J. Felzkowski,

As you may know, Wisconsin Assembly Speaker Robin Vos has been one of the most vocal supporters of forcing Wisconsin residents to vote in person during this pandemic. Speaker Vos's actions are putting millions of voters at risk, and infringing on our democratic process.

What you may not know is that Robin Vos is also the president of the National Conference of State Legislatures. It's clear to me that any lawmaker who would actively work to force their constituents to choose between either risking their health or exercising their right to vote is not someone who is qualified to lead the NCSL.

I'm calling on you, as my legislature, to ask for Robin Vos's resignation from NCSL. Please reach out to Caroline Carlson at NCSL (caroline.carlson@ncsl.org) and urge her and her staff to ask for Speaker Vos's immediate resignation.

Judy,

Thank you for your follow up. Yes, you are right that the Governor suggested and all mail-in ballot system, but it was not on March 23rd, it was on March 27th, ten days before the election. There were many reasons my colleagues and I did not support this plan when it was presented.

1. There would have been no way to secure the vote. Mail-in ballots would require eliminating voter ID. It also would have also eliminated same-day registration as only registered voters as of the time the ballots went out would be allowed to vote. So I've heard a lot that we wanted to "suppress the vote." Allowing for voting in person on election day does far more for allowing all voters to vote than this system if we had agreed to it. Mail in ballots don't allow for registration after the ballots have been mailed, so that is several days for people who cannot contact their clerk to get registered.

3. The current registered voter list includes 200,000 voters who the Elections Commission suspects have moved. If those ballots are sent, anyone at those addresses could fill them out and return them.

4. The Elections Commission themselves say they don’t have the infrastructure necessary to conduct an election this way. The Commission spoke with other states who do this and heard from each of them that it's not something you can implement in less than two weeks.

6. Almost immediately after the Governor released his plan, I heard from several over my local clerks who have said they simply did not have the time or resources before April 7th to mail ballots to all registered voters. Most of them were already spending their nights and weekends as it was trying to send out ballots to those that had already requested them.

I hope this helps. Thank you for your emails,

Mary

Evers asked for an all-mail election on March 23rd. Did he get any support on that? Does he ever get any support on anything from your party? And Mary, how many people requested absentee ballots and never got them? There are buckets of them sitting at post offices in various cities. So what were those voters supposed to do? I hope you would agree that the best plan for the health of WI residents was to delay the election - not ask the voters to risk going to the polls during this pandemic - Evers gave them an out - even though it was at the 11th hour. And what did the Republicans do? Thhey ran to the courts. They apparently still had time to go to the courts to have his executive order squelched so there was time to delay the election. And they also squelched the accommodations that had been made for extending the absentee voting. Regardless this in-person election should never have gone on and you know that, Mary. Your party going to the courts and their ultimate decision - sadly, from jurors who cast their votes remotely because THEY didn't want to be exposed - was reckless and ridiculous.-

In all times, but especially in a pandemic, we all need to work together. No one person should be able to knowingly break the law or circumvent the constitution, no matter what the reason. Do I wish Governor Evers would have had conversations with us early on about moving the election? Absolutely I do. He had been saying over and over that he was not going to move the election, so the legislature tried to support him in that and move forward with making polling places as safe as possible.

Please let me know if you'd like to talk about this further. The media likes to paint a certain picture per usual, but I can assure you that everyone is trying to do their best with the information they have at the time.

Thank you,

Mary

Dear Representative Mary J. Felzkowski,

As you may know, Wisconsin Assembly Speaker Robin Vos has been one of the most vocal supporters of forcing Wisconsin residents to vote in person during this pandemic. Speaker Vos's actions are putting millions of voters at risk, and infringing on our democratic process.

What you may not know is that Robin Vos is also the president of the National Conference of State Legislatures. It's clear to me that any lawmaker who would actively work to force their constituents to choose between either risking their health or exercising their right to vote is not someone who is qualified to lead the NCSL.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

I'm calling on you, as my legislature, to ask for Robin Vos's resignation from NCSL. Please reach out to Caroline Carlson at NCSL (caroline.carlson@ncsl.org) and urge her and her staff to ask for Speaker Vos's immediate resignation.

Sincerely,
Judy Leggett

Good evening Dick,

I apologize for my late response, I've been trying to respond to everyone tonight. I can certainly understand your frustration and your thinking on this. I know this is an unprecedented time and we are all operating without a map here. I actually reached out to my local polling place to see if they need help. They told me they didn't need me or my husband, and then they reached out to about a dozen other locations for us, and everyone said they were adequately staffed. Even so, I will be visiting the polls tomorrow to see if there is any help I can give. Regarding your question, I would say that every single legislator spent the last several weeks encouraging people to vote absentee if they didn't feel comfortable going to the polls. I am one of those people. I firmly believe that absolutely no one who feels unsafe or uncomfortable should be at the polls tomorrow. I am so grateful that voters in Wisconsin have the option to vote absentee for any reason. It really gives our citizens options in situations like this. I also heard from people that just don't want to vote absentee. They want to vote in person and work the polls, and it is their constitutional right to do so.

I have so much respect for everyone who works so tirelessly to make sure our elections run efficiently and smoothly, and I have heard from them a lot over the last couple weeks. Most were reaching out to let me know that a mail-in ballot system just would not work in Wisconsin, and that they were doing everything in their power to make their polling place as safe as possible with social distancing parameters in place. A lot of them are offering drive-thru voting, which will really minimize person to person interactions. With over 1.3 million absentee ballots sent out to voters, the polls won't be nearly as crowded as we've seen in the past. Thankfully, many voters have chosen to stay home and vote absentee, so that the rest who choose to vote in person can do so at a safe distance.

COVID has created a lot of really impossible situations. I think clerks and the Elections Commission have done an amazing job preparing for tomorrow, and keeping people safe will not be impossible.

If you would like to discuss this further, please let me know. I am available tomorrow,

Mary

I usually disagree with Governor Evers' stand of most issues but I support his decision to delay the April 6, 2020 election to June. I believe every legislator, lawyer and judge who worked to revers that executive order should be required to spend a minimum of 6 -12 hours sitting at a polling station as will be required of pole workers. It would be interesting to know how many of those same legislators, lawyers and judges took advantage of absentee ballots or encouraged their family members to vote absentee so they would not potentially be exposed to the virus at a polling place. These folks are showing no respect and clearly don't appreciate the work that some of our citizens are doing to make the election process work.

Good afternoon Jim,

Yes, you should be covered by the order on Page 12:

Critical trades. Building and Construction Tradesmen and Tradeswomen, and other trades including but not limited to plumbers, electricians, carpenters, laborers, sheet metal, iron workers, masonry, pipe trades, fabricators, finishers, exterminators, pesticide application, cleaning and janitorial staff for commercial and governmental properties, security staff, operating engineers, HVAC, painting, moving and relocation services, forestry and arborists, and other service providers who provide services that are necessary to maintaining the safety, sanitation, and essential operation of residences, Essential Activities, Essential Governmental Functions, and Essential Businesses and Operations.

If you are still in doubt, you should reach out to WEDC who is making "essential" determinations, but the order seems to specifically cover you.

Thank you!

Hi Karen,

I understand that is a very frightening and frustrating situation. The Department is not violating any laws or executive orders. They have implemented a number of changes at their facilities (including eliminating large group dining) to protect against the spread of the virus. The details can be found here:
https://doc.wi.gov/Pages/COVID19(Coronavirus)/FAQS/COVID19FAQs.aspx

They do not have the authority to release individuals before their mandatory release date and at this time there is no discussion of amending that. The Department is taking care of individuals in their custody and as of this morning, no one in their care has tested positive for COVID-19.

It must be very difficult to be apart from your son at a time like this. The Department has worked with CenturyLink to set up 2 free weekly 15 minute phone calls for every individual during the length of this crisis and I hope you are able to connect with him.

Please let me know if the website does not answer all your questions and my staff and I will work with the Department to find more information.

Thank you,

Mary Felzkowski

HI,

Please refer your constituent to our website that is updated daily: www.doc.wi.gov/COVID19. There is detail on what we are doing to reduce the spread of COVID19 in our facilities. There are also FAQs, a list of confirmed cases, and a dashboard on testing.

Thanks,

Hey Paulina,

I hope things are going well and you're staying safe! I was wondering if you would be able to provide me with some details on how DOC is handling the COVID-19 pandemic in our state's prison facilities. A constituent reached out to us and wants more information than I was able to provide her with (see email chain below). Is there a sheet you have put together on measures DOC is taking to protect staff and inmates that I could reference? I apologize if it's already been sent out and I missed it in all the chaos.

Hope you're staying safe!

Things are still shaking out, but here is how I understand it as of today after the passage of the bills in Congress. (USDOL and DWD have not provided final guidance). So don't quote me :)

Even if she is working, she can still qualify for UI. Under current law someone can get partial UI check if they work less than 32 hours a week or earn less than $500. Seems like she would qualify.

https://my.unemployment.wisconsin.gov/Apps/BenefitCalculators/PartialBenefitsCalculator

According to DWD and the data below, assuming she worked 40 hours a week for $9 for the last 4 quarters, and her hours were cut in half, she would get a partial UI check for $86 a week plus her wages of $180. (This assumes a lot of things, but a good showing that it makes sense to apply).

I don't know if that $500 limit will change with the new $600 per week add-on stipend the feds just passed, or if she would get the $600 with a partial filing, that is all up in the air.

Also under the new law passed by congress, any UI charges incurred because of COVID-19 are not to be charged to employers. But guidance on that is TBD.

But bottom line, she should apply if she lost hours because of the Governors order. The worst they tell her is no. Her employer cannot deny her claim, only UI can do that based on the facts of the case. The burden of proof to deny the claim is on the employer to show that they did in fact not reduce her hours.

Hope that helps.

Hey! Before I bother anyone else, I figured I'd ask you. I only have a vague understanding of how unemployment insurance works. Employers pay in... but I'm not sure who is "taking the hit" during the pandemic.

Thanks for answering a dumb question!

Dear Mary,

My daughter is a bartender for a local bar/ supper club. She’s applied for unemployment but her employer told her he would deny it because she could come work & take orders for pick up & she could clean However this would be only 4 hours a day at $9. An hr. Hardly what she was making working.
Are employers being penalized during this virus .shut down by employees signing up for unemployment?

Thank You,

Tammy,

I feel TERRIBLE. I had reached out to someone with some Department of Workforce Development background to ask about your daughter's case, and then we've gotten so many calls and emails in the last two days that I did not follow up with you. I am so sorry. The answer I received is that her employer cannot deny her claim, only Unemployment Insurance at DWD can do that based on the facts of the case. The burden of proof to deny the claim would be on her employer to prove that he DID NOT reduce her hours, which he has done. The advice was to apply for UI, the worst that would happen is that they deny it. There are still some unanswered questions in relation to the federal legislation, but it's looking like that, even if she is working, she can still qualify for partial UI. Under current law someone can get partial UI check if they work less than 32 hours a week or earn less than $500. Based on what you are saying it seems like she would qualify.

I hope this is helpful, and again I apologize for taking so long to get back to you!

Sue,

I totally understand and I don't want to lose anyone either. Thankfully, Lincoln County is one of only 10 other counties that doesn't have a positive test yet. I'm not saying we don't have any at all, but it is encouraging that we have stayed off the official map for so long.

Have a great weekend,

Mary

Mental health is very important. My worry with the drive in church service is the possibility of people rolling their windows down to greet each other. I know I sound alarmist and overprotective, but I worry about people. You know Tomahawk probably better than I do because this is your home town. I don't want this community to lose anyone.

We have such a great area here. Thank you for listening to me.

Hey Sue,

Thank you for your follow up email. Regarding funding, Wisconsin will see $2.3 billion from the federal stimulus package for all of the priorities you mentioned. I have no doubt we will be purchasing a lot more equipment. Thankfully the Wisconsin Hospitals Association has provided an online portal for tracking access to that kind of thing, and we seem to be doing well, at least for now. As to the religious gatherings, churches are actually getting creative here. Many are doing drive-up services where everyone is gathered in the parking lot in their cars, listening to the sermon through the radio. For a lot of people, I think church is a lot more than just the sermon, so feeling closer to the congregation, even if everyone is in their own cars, helps people mentally. I think we are all kind of forgetting about protecting our mental health too during this process, so it's something I keep encouraging.

I agree that knowing about the antibodies will help, especially as we look for ways to slowly start restarting the US economy. Have a wonderful Easter weekend,

Mary

Thanks for replying Mary. I do appreciate your efforts. The mess that was Tuesdays election was a huge miscommunication from everyone involved. We as a state can do better. Don't forget the Wisconsin motto "Forward" we need to look at what the future holds and try to anticipate needs. We are only as strong as our weakest members.

We need to do our best for them. I encourage you to use your position to embrace more progressive solutions. This isn't a call from me to be fiscally irresponsible, it is a call to allocate funds to places where it will do the most good.

For example in my household I need to prioritize things. Protecting my family means seeing to their health. I need to keep them fed. I need them to have shelter and heat. So when spending money those are the things I prioritize. Things that go by the wayside include things that don't fit those categories.

In government public health needs to be prioritized. We need funding for healthcare. Protective equipment, ventilators, more money spent keeping people safe. More elected officials saying people need to stay home.

There are people pushing religious gatherings for Easter, it's so dangerous.

I worry for the future. If people get too restless and too complacent. The reason stay at home works is because it is cutting off people from those who could be infected.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

We need widespread testing not just for those who show symptoms but for everyone. We need to find out if those who recovered might have antibodies. Everyone should be tested for both. Because if that happens we might be able to relax the stay at home orders.

Thank you for listening

Stay safe!

Susan,

Thank you for your follow up. My point in what I said yesterday was that there were over 2400 National Guardsmen and women deployed on Monday and Tuesday. Yes, Milwaukee did use some, but they had access to more that they did not use. They could have decided to keep more of their polling places open, where lines and wait times would have been far less of an issue. They absolutely did know National guardspeople were being deployed, those conversations were happening with the Governor.

Regarding funding, I read yesterday that families should start seeing federal stimulus money yesterday. I have not heard from anyone that has seen it yet, but that is what I read.

We need relief, immediately. Bills piling up with no money coming in will sink many families. What happens when, if this emergency ends? Will families have to pay for energy bills? Water bills? Will it be retroactive? Or will those necessities be forgiven because there is no income for people whose jobs are not seen as essential?

There is a lot of work to be done I think you need to speak to more people who dont fit the usual profile. Speak to those who dont like what has been happening in state government. Listen to them.

Mental health is very important. My worry with the drive in church service is the possibility of people rolling their windows down to greet each other. I know I sound alarmist and overprotective, but I worry about people. You know Tomahawk probably better than I do because this is your home town. I don't want this community to lose anyone.

We have such a great area here. Thank you for listening to me.

Hey Sue,

Thank you for your follow up email. Regarding funding, Wisconsin will see $2.3 billion from the federal stimulus package for all of the priorities you mentioned. I have no doubt we will be purchasing a lot more equipment. Thankfully the Wisconsin Hospitals Association has provided an online portal for tracking access to that kind of thing, and we seem to be doing well, at least for now. As to the religious gatherings, churches are actually getting creative here. Many are doing drive-up services where everyone is gathered in the parking lot in their cars, listening to the sermon through the radio. For a lot of people, I think church is a lot more than just the sermon, so feeling closer to the congregation, even if everyone is in their own cars, helps people mentally. I think we are all kind of forgetting about protecting our mental health too during this process, so it's something I keep encouraging.

I agree that knowing about the antibodies will help, especially as we look for ways to slowly start restarting the US economy. Have a wonderful Easter weekend,

Mary

Thanks for replying Mary. I do appreciate your efforts. The mess that was Tuesdays election was a huge miscommunication from everyone involved. We as a state can do better. Don't forget the Wisconsin motto "Forward" we need to look at what the future holds and try to anticipate needs. We are only as strong as our weakest members.

We need to do our best for them. I encourage you to use your position to embrace more progressive solutions. This isn't a call from me to be fiscally irresponsible, it is a call to allocate funds to places where it will do the most good.

For example in my household I need to prioritize things. Protecting my family means seeing to their health. I need to keep them fed. I need them to have shelter and heat. So when spending money those are the things I prioritize. Things that go by the wayside include things that don't fit those categories.

In government public health needs to be prioritized. We need funding for healthcare. Protective equipment, ventilators, more money spent keeping people safe. More elected officials saying people need to stay home.

There are people pushing religious gatherings for Easter, it's so dangerous.

I worry for the future. If people get too restless and too complacent. The reason stay at home works is because it is cutting off people from those who could be infected.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

We need widespread testing not just for those who show symptoms but for everyone. We need to find out if those who recovered might have antibodies. Everyone should be tested for both. Because if that happens we might be able to relax the stay at home orders.

Thank you for listening

Stay safe!

Susan,

Thank you for your follow up. My point in what I said yesterday was that there were over 2400 National Guardsmen and women deployed on Monday and Tuesday. Yes, Milwaukee did use some, but they had access to more that they did not use. They could have decided to keep more of their polling places open, where lines and wait times would have been far less of an issue. They absolutely did know National guardspeople were being deployed, those conversations were happening with the Governor.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Regarding funding, I read yesterday that families should start seeing federal stimulus money yesterday. I have not heard from anyone that has seen it yet, but that is what I read.

Thank you again for your time,

Mary

Your Name: Susan Stefanich

Phone Number:715 966 2063

Your Question:

We spoke on the phone today. You said something that bothered me, so I looked it up. You are incorrect in thinking that Milwaukee didn't have National Guard members at the election on Tuesday. There were 50 guard members for each of the 5 polling places. Had the people in Milwaukee known that the guard members were coming they could have opened more polling places. This is a link to CBS58 news in Milwaukee. If you don't trust the link, look it up and read it for yourself.

https://www.cbs58.com/news/its-almost-embarrassing-milwaukee-city-leaders-pin-blame-on-all-sides-for-election-day-chaos

I will stress again we need mail in voting. We need absentee ballots to actually get to the people who request them. Everyone should vote no obstacles.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

We need relief, immediately. Bills piling up with no money coming in will sink many families. What happens when, if this emergency ends? Will families have to pay for energy bills? Water bills? Will it be retroactive? Or will those necessities be forgiven because there is no income for people whose jobs are not seen as essential?

There is a lot of work to be done I think you need to speak to more people who dont fit the usual profile. Speak to those who dont like what has been happening in state government. Listen to them.

Notification to Employees: Confirmation of COVID-19 in the Workplace

A person in the Legislature has become ill with COVID-19. The following is advice from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and Wisconsin Public Health Officials about what information to provide employees:

If you are not experiencing flu-like symptoms (fever (100° F or higher), cough or sore throat, headache or body aches, and in some cases diarrhea and vomiting) or symptoms of respiratory illness (fever (100° F or higher), cough, and shortness of breath) and are otherwise healthy, you do not need to take any additional action at this time.

Employees who have flu-like symptoms (fever of 100 degrees Fahrenheit or higher, cough or sore throat, headache or body aches, and in some cases diarrhea and vomiting) or symptoms of acute respiratory illness (fever of 100 degrees Fahrenheit or higher, coughing, and shortness of breath) should stay home and not come into work until they are free of fever, signs of a fever, and any other symptoms for at least 24 hours, without the use of a fever-reducing or other symptom-altering medicine. People remain contagious even after they are feeling better; as such, these measure help prevent passing on the flu to others. Employees should notify their supervisor of any work absences and contact their healthcare provider as necessary.

Employees who are sick with COVID-19 or suspect they are infected with the virus that causes COVID-19 will self-quarantine for 14 days and may not return to work until the quarantine has concluded and the employee is no longer considered infectious. Employees should notify their supervisor and the Legislative Human Resources Office (LHRO) Director (amanda.jorgenson@legis.wisconsin.gov) regarding work absences for these purposes. In addition, employees should call their healthcare provider immediately BEFORE going to the clinic or emergency room. Employees should also follow the steps identified by the CDC to help prevent the disease from spreading to people in your home and community.

Employees with chronic illness such as asthma or diabetes, a weakened immune system, or are pregnant, should consult with your health care provider to determine if additional actions are needed.

The CDC advises that the best way to prevent infection is to avoid being exposed to the virus that causes COVID-19. The following are simple everyday actions everyone can take to help prevent the spread of this virus:

- Avoid close contact with people who are sick.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth with unwashed hands.
    - Stay home when you are sick.
    - Cover your cough or sneeze with a tissue, and then throw the tissue in the trash.
    - Clean/disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces.
    - Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds.
    - Use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer that contains at least 60% alcohol if soap and water are not available.

Wisconsin's COVID-19 Resource page may be found at: https://www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/disease/covid-19.htm This page includes information about the illness, its symptoms, and precautions you can take to keep yourself healthy.

NOTE: Individuals who test positive for COVID-19 and/or have flu-like symptoms should not be harassed, discriminated, or retaliated against. Negative behavior of this sort will not be tolerated.

Hello Representative Felzkowski,

The underlined statement is what Sue Kolve the Owner of the Salon Professional Academy in Onalaska experienced yesterday.
I too have made many calls and sent email with no response.
Shawn Raukman from PHD Academy in Eau Claire has only heard from the EAB which oversees Massage and they granted emergency online approval.
Can you help us with our Cosmetology, Esthiology and Nail Technology Programs?

I reached out to the DSPS yesterday and I was directed to Licensing and Credentials. I am trying to get Temporary Approval of Distance Education. This is the first step in this process. Once we complete this process with the State we are able to move forward with our Accreditors and the Department of Education.
I asked to speak directly to Secretary Crim, Deputy Secretary Trammell, or Assistant Deputy Secretary Hereth....I was told I could only be transferred to a department . I did leave a message have not heard from anyone. Sent email , no response called back and receptionist assured me that she would pass my contact information on to Sam...the Supervisor and he would get this in the hands of the right person. Still no word from anyone.
If you can help me in anyway.....the Governor has ordered all schools to close today at 5pm.With State Approval I am confident that we will be able to continue teaching our students. The theory portion of our curriculum and a little of the practical portion of our curriculum can be taught online. There are 2 textbook companies that provide online formats for the programs we offer. Pivot Point and Milady both offer Cosmetology and Esthetics online curriculum.
This link will take you to a spreadsheet that will show the progress each State has made . I would like to add our State Approval to this sheet!

Hey Andi,

I just received this from DSPS. Please let me know that you received it and whether this addresses your concerns. If not, let me know!

Good afternoon,

Due to the disruptions to higher education caused by the COVID-19 (Coronavirus) the Wisconsin Distance Learning Authorization Board (DLAB) is honoring the U.S. Department of Education's guidance stating that it is "providing broad approval to institutions to use online technologies to accommodate students on a temporary basis." Please see the Department's guidance in its entirety for more information.
https://ifap.ed.gov/electronic-announcements/030520Guidance4interruptionsrelated2CoronavirusCOVID19

Therefore, institutions not approved for participation in the State Authorization Reciprocity Agreement will have the ability to accommodate students using online technologies on a temporary basis with no repercussions from the DLAB. This special accommodation will remain in place until May 31, 2020 and will be reconsidered at that time to determine if an extension to that timeframe is necessary.

Additional information will be posted on the Department website later today regarding this issue.

Thank you.

Mike

Hello Representative Felzkowski,

The underlined statement is what Sue Kolve the Owner of the Salon Professional Academy in Onalaska experienced yesterday.
I too have made many calls and sent email with no response.
Shawn Raukman from PHD Academy in Eau Claire has only heard from the EAB which oversees Massage and they granted emergency online approval.
Can you help us with our Cosmetology, Esthiology and Nail Technology Programs?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

I reached out to the DSPS yesterday and I was directed to Licensing and Credentials. I am trying to get Temporary Approval of Distance Education. This is the first step in this process. Once we complete this process with the State we are able to move forward with our Accreditors and the Department of Education.
I asked to speak directly to Secretary Crim, Deputy Secretary Trammell, or Assistant Deputy Secretary Hereth....I was told I could only be transferred to a department . I did leave a message have not heard from anyone. Sent email , no response called back and receptionist assured me that she would pass my contact information on to Sam...the Supervisor and he would get this in the hands of the right person. Still no word from anyone.
If you can help me in anyway.....the Governor has ordered all schools to close today at 5pm.With State Approval I am confident that we will be able to continue teaching our students. The theory portion of our curriculum and a little of the practical portion of our curriculum can be taught online. There are 2 textbook companies that provide online formats for the programs we offer. Pivot Point and Milady both offer Cosmetology and Esthetics online curriculum.
This link will take you to a spreadsheet that will show the progress each State has made . I would like to add our State Approval to this sheet!

Thank you for your feedback, please know I absolutely do know where you are coming from. The legislature will meet in the next few days to pass COVID related legislation, and I know there are some provisions in what the Legislature presented to the Governor that would help the legislature have more say as the pandemic continues. Please know that we are also pushing back on the Governor's office whenever we can. Just today, his administration was informing local public health departments that churches could not perform drive-in services. After a lot of very fast push back from me, other legislators, and some stakeholder groups, he has now changed his mind and said that churches can do drive-in services. I'm grateful that all of us can band together to be a voice, but I'm also frustrated that this kind of mobilization is even necessary. Jeff and Kristina,

I can tell you that there are definitely people looking at that statute and what is possible. You are also right that it's an nuclear option. I absolutely do not agree with everything Governor Evers is doing, and I agree with you that closing the parks is a rash and frankly reckless decision when we think about how people really need to get out for their own mental health. BUT for me, and I know other legislators feel this way, for better or for worse, Governor Evers was elected by a majority of the people in this state. In addition to that, it is far better for the state to have one person at the helm when going through a global crisis, rather than 132 legislators who certainly don't agree on everything. Please don't misconstrue my comments to mean that we are simply sitting back and letting him do whatever he wants. That is not the case and I can tell you that we will absolutely continue to watch everything he does, pushing back hard when it becomes necessary. What I don't want to do though is create a ton of chaos and panic when it's not clear where decisions are being made, who is making them, and if those decisions are enforceable. We have to be thoughtful about that process to make sure that all Wisconsinites are able to make it through to the other side of this. Please be assured that there are some things that we are working on, and we will not sit idly by.

Thank you for your reply; you are only one of two legislators who has shown us that respect.

We appreciate what you've said here; we really do. And the "allowing" of drive-in church services is a good thing. But, with respect, it's not enough. As he "allowed" drive-in church services, he simultaneously closed all state parks and yesterday threatened (the only word for it) to lock us down until mid-May as punishment (the only logical conclusion) for going out to exercise our right to vote on Tuesday; he is tightening the noose a little every day!

We know the legislature has the immediate power – via State Statute 323.10 – to actually rescind any/all orders related to this virus situation via a joint resolution rather than just "pushing back…wherever [you] can." Why isn't that being pursued? It might be the "nuclear option," but, frankly, we need it. Wisconsin will not survive much more of this.

Thank you again for hearing us; please don't take our additional questions as disrespect. We are just extremely frustrated and scared – not of the virus but of the loss of essential civil liberties and resulting chaos from that. We will pray for you by name – and others who are also doing at least something.

Dear Rep. Mary J. Felzkowski,

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, local governments are putting restrictions on businesses in order to prevent the virus' spread. In many cases this is appropriate, but it is equally important that essential businesses such as health food stores stay open. These stores carry products such as dietary supplements, healthy food options, products to replenish electrolytes, and many other such products that can help us stay healthy and boost our immune systems during the pandemic.

Our community needs these stores open. And because space is typically quite limited, community businesses would likely not meet or exceed gathering limits. While the spread of COVID-19 has brought this country to a stop, natural product stores across the country have a unique responsibility to their communities to remain open and provide products that support wellness.

Please allow these important stores to stay open!

Thank you for your email. I would encourage you to reach out to Governor Evers. His administration is solely in charge of what is considered essential or non-essential, and the legislature unfortunately does not have input on that list. I understand where you are coming from absolutely and know that supporting wellness could not be more important than it is right now when we are all cooped up inside.

Re: Please bring medical cannabis to our state

Dear Representative Felzkowski,

Seriously ill patients cannot afford to wait.

Medical cannabis offers relief to people suffering from cancer treatments, PTSD, multiple sclerosis, seizures, and a host of other debilitating ailments.

Thirty-three states have changed their laws to allow patients with serious medical conditions to safely access medical cannabis from state-regulated providers. Nationwide, 80% to 90% of voters are supportive, and voters have approved medical marijuana laws in some of the most conservative states, including North Dakota, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Utah.

Here in Wisconsin on Election Day 2018, voters approved advisory measures on medical cannabis. In all 11 counties and two cities where questions about allowing medical cannabis were on the ballot, they received between 67% and 89% of the vote.

Please let me know if you will listen to voters and support a carefully crafted, well-regulated medical cannabis bill.

Thank you.

Subject: Please Do Not Enact Executive Order #73 for the Spring Election

Governor Evers, Senator Tiffany, and Representative Felzkowski:

I was just made aware that Governor Evers has requested a Special Session (Executive Order #73) to be held Saturday, April 4, 2020 to take up changes to the upcoming Spring election. This would allow an all-mail election with provisions to send ballots to all registered voters that have not requested one by May 19th. I am asking very strongly for you not to vote for this action for many reasons:

1) The list of registered voters is not always up-to-date for many reasons such as: people have moved and planned to change their address at the polls so now they will get the wrong ballot for their current address, people have moved and never let us know, people have not voted in a few years and have no intention of voting, etc.

2) How does this protect the integrity of elections as photo ID would not be provided? 1.5 million voters have already followed the correct process and requested ballots and provided ID so I believe anyone that has wanted to cast an absentee ballot has had an opportunity to do so.

3) Sending ballots to all of these people will result in the additional postage costs that municipal budgets cannot handle.

4) Municipalities do not have anywhere near enough envelopes or ballots to mail these to everyone not to mention the cost if we are able to get more supplies.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

5) I have had phone calls from some voters making sure there will be the ability to walk in and vote on election day as they do not trust the absentee process.

6) Staff of the Clerk's office are working very hard to keep up with this election, are already overwhelmed with the mail process, have put off other duties to meet the deadlines, and would now have a very large additional process to implement.

7) Municipalities have already had considerable extra costs getting supplies such as; hand sanitizer, screens for the tables, training new election workers, etc., in order to make the election as safe as possible.

8) If this is extended, what happens to the May 12th Special Election for the 7th Congressional District that many of us are already in the midst of sending ballots for?

I urge you NOT to cancel election day and change to an all-mail ballot for all of the reasons listed above plus some I am sure I have not even thought of.

Kathy,

Thank you for reaching out to my office. As you mention in your email, this was an FCC decision made by the federal government. I represent our district in the State Assembly. While we are without a Congressman at the moment, Senator Ron Johnson's office handles the constituent concerns for our district regarding federal actions. You can reach his office at 202-224-5323. As to the state taking action, while some states have passed resolutions or enacted laws at the state level, a federal rule change which took effect on June 11, 2018 preempts states from enacting ISP network restrictions and places primary jurisdiction over internet service providers' network management practices under the Federal Trade Commission.

Net neutrality is the First Amendment of the Internet, essential to everyone's rights to connect and communicate online. Without net neutrality protections, phone and cable companies can block, throttle and otherwise interfere with our access to sites and services online - yet the FCC voted to take away these critical net neutrality protections. Hi Anne,

Thank you for reaching out to my office. As you mention in your email, this was an FCC decision made by the federal government. I represent our district in the State Assembly. While we are without a Congressman at the moment, Senator Ron Johnson's office handles the constituent concerns for our district regarding federal actions. You can reach his office at 202-224-5323. As to the state taking action, while some states have passed resolutions or enacted laws at the state level, a federal rule change which took effect on June 11, 2018 preempts states from enacting ISP network restrictions and places primary jurisdiction over internet service providers' network management practices under the Federal Trade Commission.

Thank you and have a wonderful afternoon,

Mary Felzkowski

Mary Felzkowski (Czaja),

Net neutrality is the First Amendment of the Internet, essential to everyone's rights to connect and communicate online. Without net neutrality protections, phone and cable companies can block, throttle and otherwise interfere with our access to sites and services online - yet the FCC voted to take away these critical net neutrality protections. As your constituent, I urge you to enact net neutrality legislation at the state level and defend the open Internet.

Good afternoon Walter,

All insurance companies have already been covering the costs of testing from very close to the beginning of the pandemic, United States-wide. I have not supported expanding badger care in the past, and do not think now is the time to do that. Those that would be covered by Badger Care expansion can currently receive heavily subsided care from the Federal Exchange. There is not a coverage gap in Wisconsin, so I am confident that access to care here in our state is already available. If you are hearing from people who are having trouble getting signed up, please let me know and my office can help them.

Thank you again for your email and your thoughts. Please feel free to send me your thoughts in the future,

Dear Representative Felzkowski,

Hello. I'm writing to encourage Wisconsin to expand Medicaid to help expand coronavirus care in three main ways:
1) We need to broaden eligibility,
2) Ensure that eligible residents are enrolled or do enroll in Medicaid, and
3) Submit additional waivers to CMS seeking greater flexibility in coverage and care access

As your constituent I implore our State Legislature to convene and quickly and bipartisanly act to pass full Medicaid Expansion up to 138% FPL.

Thank you.

Jill,

I want to sincerely apologize for how long it has taken me to get back to you. We had a huge influx of calls and emails come in on Monday and Tuesday, and I was unable to reach others. I wanted to check in with you and let you know that I got a lot of really encouraging feedback yesterday about the polling places in our area. Thanks to everyone who decided to vote absentee (currently over 1 million people!), a majority of polling places had a manageable amount of people come through during the day with no lines, certainly not the crowds we normally see on Election Day. I heard from others that their polling place was clean, run well, and had the necessary social distancing in place.

Thank you for your time,

Mary Felzkowski (Czaja),

As your constituent, I'm concerned about our state's current plan to move forward with in-person voting this Tuesday. Voters shouldn't have to choose between risking their health, and giving up their right to vote -- but that's exactly what they'll be forced to do.

Gov. Tony Evers has just called a special legislative session for tomorrow, Saturday April 4th, and is urging the legislature to take the necessary steps to protect public health and voters' rights.

I hope you will support the proposal to expand absentee voting until May 19th, provide every registered voter with a ballot, and provide safe in-person voting opportunities for voters with disabilities and others who are unable to vote by mail.

Jill,

Thank you for your reply. I disagree that I pulled people out of their homes to vote. I encouraged people all over my district for weeks to vote absentee. A lot of people I spoke to preferred to vote in person, rather than absentee. They made a choice, as the constitution affords them. I did not force anyone to do anything they did not want to do. If you disagree with that, that's your right, but it's the truth.

Have a good weekend,

Dear Rep Felzkowski,
This decision to oppose moving the voting date will likely have disastrous concequences for the state as a whole. Just because voting day went off well does not mean that people all over this state will not get sick because they went to vote. Even if your district currently has low virus numbers how can you justify pulling people out of their homes to vote during a "Safer at home" order during a pandemic? In 2 or 3 weeks when cases of COVID-19 GO up across the state I hope your conscience bothers you and all of those that pushed people out of their homes to vote. Their suffering and blood will be on your hands. Hope the political win was worth the stain it will leave for the voters... The people you claim to care about will not forget their losses.

Jill Wolff

Joe and Ellie,

I really want thank you to each one of you for the feedback. I understand everyone's concern surrounding COVID-19, and I'm hoping I can help explain why people are hesitant to move the election.

- Moving the date in the middle of voting and especially so close to the election date creates so much chaos.
- Over 1 million absentee ballots have already been sent out, and the deadline to request one is not until tomorrow, so I am sure we will see that number grow even more. The question becomes, what do we do with all of the absentee ballots that have already been sent and already turned in?
- Here are just some of the other questions that come up when discussing moving the election:
    - What happens for people who move to Wisconsin or to a different place in Wisconsin between now and some new, unknown date? Do we let them vote again, knowing they are likely voting in different jurisdictions for different people?
    - How long do we extend the election? Some people have mentioned the May 12th special election date and I totally understand wanting to use that date. What if we are still under social distancing, and have to consider moving the date again?
    - What if something happens between now and then and voters demand they be given the chance to change or re-cast their vote?
    - What do we do for the local government positions that are going to be vacant while we wait for the new election date? What if local governments can't respond to this or another crisis because decision makers aren't in place to make those decisions?

Ultimately, everyone has a fundamental right to respond to their government by voting in elections. I totally understand where everyone is coming from. Our reality is that the Governor has said the date is not going to move and the legislature cannot move it without him. The Elections Commission has said the date is not going to move, and now the court has signaled yesterday that they are not going to order the date to move. Knowing this information, my number one goal and my job right now is to help our amazing clerks run their polling places safely and efficiently, so that everyone can get in to vote, and get out quickly. We have been encouraging anyone and everyone who does not feel safe going out to vote absentee and thankfully so many people are choosing to do that. This means that all of those people are going to stay home on Election Day, making it so much easier to social distance and avoid the spread. I know a lot of polling places are going to be doing drive thru voting, so you never have to get out of your car to cast your ballot. The National Guard will be helping man the polls that day, and the Elections Commission is providing extra supplies to clerks, as well as extra COVID specific training. There is also funding included in the federal stimulus package to help with the increase costs of administering the election. If we all continue to work together, we can make sure that voting on April 7th is done safely.

If you have questions about anything in particular, please continue to reach out. I really appreciate the continued feedback.

With the social distancing that has been put in place, and the fact that far far fewer people will be voting in person on Election Day, we will continue to be able to suppress the spread and really minimize the amount of person to person interaction. Stephanie,

Thank you for reaching out to me. Legislative leaders are currently working with Governor Evers to talk about a legislative package that may be needed to address COVID-19. The federal government did just pass legislation that does extend paid family leave benefits as you suggest. Your emails talk about YMCAs in general, but do you know if the YMCAs in our area have closed?

Thanks,

Mary Felzkowski

Dear Rep. Felzkowski, I am writing to urge you to support a proposal to address the financial strain YMCAs across the state are currently experiencing due to the COVID-19 pandemic. As nonprofits, YMCAs are extremely dependent financially on the money received from their membership, programming and donations. YMCAs have been forced to either close their doors or reduce service capacity in order to help combat the spread of COVID-19. As stewards of healthy living and social responsibility, YMCAs want to open their doors again and continue to serve the local community during and after this crisis. However, many Ys might not be able to do so without substantial financial assistance. As such, I urge you to support a benefits package that calls for the State Government to allow: • Funding for YMCAs to operate during and in the wake of this pandemic; • Access to unemployment insurance when a YMCA exercises an NPI in response to the Governor's call for social distancing, but with some economic relief to the YMCA from the state towards the unemployment insurance costs since no revenue would be generated during the NPI period; and • Expansion of Paid Family Leave benefits to employees for themselves if they are exposed to, exhibit symptoms of, or have officially exposed to COVID-19. Thank you for your valued support! Stephanie Dahlquist 1398 Meister Stockley Rd, Pelican Lake, WI 54463,

Thank you for letting us know, Stephanie. It's on a list of things to consider as we look at legislation. I appreciate your input.

Do you know if you will be keeping the childcare open with the new stay-at-home order in place tomorrow? Thank you!

Subject: Poll worker safety

Rep Felzkowski -

I have been a poll worker for well over 16 years and I've been proud to serve my community and always assumed the government had our best interest at heart but with your reaction to Tony Evers call on Saturday for a special legislation meeting and the fact that most, if not all, conservative legislators refused to meet to the special meeting to postpone the April 7th election therefore putting many, many people's health at risk, then I sincerely have to wonder whose best interest is being served?

Pandemic experts in Washington are saying that the during next two weeks, people should not even think about grocery shopping or pharmacies because of the health risk that is continually getting higher and higher — yet the state legislators seem to think that we poll workers are expendable! This election could be postponed until the end of May if necessary, even June.

The majority legislators have shown their true colors and while I was a conservative, was a Republican, I no longer feel secure in their hands. I agree with Tony Evers in the fact that our state government needs to step up and show some concern for the residents, especially the poll workers of the state. Why do you feel this election is so Important that it is necessary to put so many peoples lives at risk? Selfish, inconsiderate, and above all foolish is how I feel about our current majority of legislators.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Since you are the head of the Senate portion, I would hope you will take this request of postponing the April 7thelection seriously and pass this message on to all legislators, including the Assembly, because so many who are ignoring this high risk event are definitely at the risk of not being reelected.

Sincerely

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

I was staying away from the training because people can actually help without actually doing the training and becoming sworn. For example helping with crowd flow, distancing, assisting the clerk, and perhaps helping outside if people are pulling up to do curbside voting (a non-sworn person just cannot handle ballots). I have done this on numerous occasions and never had to be sworn or do training.

BUT having said that…

I think for this audience we should stress that they won't have a huge training obligation.

I'll add a middle bullet:

- The April 7th election is proceeding, but many local clerks are struggling to find enough poll workers.
- Training is easy and fast – and you can get paid!
- If you are able to help on election day, please reach out to your local clerk.

Any benefit to including the link to the training? The thing I think might keep most people from doing this is they don't know how much time it will take. Elections Commission said that the longest training available is 2 hours, so this is something that is doable before election day. Might make sense for offices to mention that so more people participate if they are willing.

So all of the trainings are here:
https://elections.wi.gov/COVID-19/training-for-poll-workers

I told the elections commission that a simple one pager of what positions are needed, what their training requirements are, and a short position description would be really helpful to have. They were going to look into it, but maybe it's something the caucus can put together?

They told me that COVID specific training would be going out likely early next week, so depending on when we push this stuff out, that would be helpful to include.

Right! That's why the one pager from the elections commission on exactly what kind of jobs are needed would be really helpful. It'd include the ones that don't require training too. Our office can pursue that separately.

I was staying away from the training because people can actually help without actually doing the training and becoming sworn. For example helping with crowd flow, distancing, assisting the clerk, and perhaps helping outside if people are pulling up to do curbside voting (a non-sworn person just cannot handle ballots). I have done this on numerous occasions and never had to be sworn or do training.

BUT having said that…

I think for this audience we should stress that they won't have a huge training obligation.

I'll add a middle bullet:

- The April 7th election is proceeding, but many local clerks are struggling to find enough poll workers.
- Training is easy and fast – and you can get paid!
- If you are able to help on election day, please reach out to your local clerk.

Any benefit to including the link to the training? The thing I think might keep most people from doing this is they don't know how much time it will take. Elections Commission said that the longest training available is 2 hours, so this is something that is doable before election day. Might make sense for offices to mention that so more people participate if they are willing.

How's this?

Dear Member:

Please use social media and your e-updates to share this information with your constituents.

- Urging them to request an absentee ballot
- Urging young people and people looking for work to help out at the polls

For any legislator who plans on working at the polls themselves, be sure to point that out and ask people to join you in doing that in their home community

2 important things you can do to help ensure a fair election

For all voters: Request your absentee ballot today

- The easiest way to get an absentee ballot is to go online and request one at www.myvote.wi.gov and click on "Vote Absentee".
- Voters can also use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill It out, and mail it in.
- Voters can email (or fax) their local clerk and request a ballot.

All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM

For those looking for work and younger voters home from college: Sign up to work at the polls on April 7th

- The April 7th election is proceeding, but many local clerks are struggling to find enough poll workers.
- If you are able to help on election day, please reach out to your local clerk.
- Voters can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

Jim,

I can respect your points and appreciate you taking the time. I think you are right that lines are blurred, and right and wrong are kind of up in the air with the ever changing situation. So I wanted to address a couple of points just so you have all of the information.

Regarding the election, and the GOP fighting against Evers' Executive Order. I can see how it's easy to believe leadership is being petty and just doing what they can to foil his plans. That's an easy narrative for a lot of people to believe. Unfortunately, it's just not the truth. I can't tell you how many times I've been asked to work with Governor Evers. When he came out over and over and said, hey, I'm not moving the election, legislative leadership supported him publicly, and then continued to work with the Elections Commission and their local clerks to do everything possible to make this election safe and efficient. I'm going to include for you what Governor Evers was saying the day before he asked the Legislature to come into session:

Thursday, April 2, 2020
"Our democracy is essential, it must go on. Keeping people safe is the governor's top priority but we want people to participate in this election. We want as many people as possible to vote from home," Evers spokeswoman Melissa Baldauff told POLITICO.

She dismissed the possibility of the governor attempting to halt the election like DeWine did. "It's not going to happen," Baldauff said. "He doesn't want to do it and he also doesn't have the authority to do it."

https://www.politico.com/news/2020/04/02/tony-evers-wisconsin-democrats-primary-election-161423

He gave legislative leaders no notice, no time. We had no options. One of the many unprecedented issues that have occurred during this pandemic is that the Senate and the Assembly have never had to come in virtually to vote. Staff and legislators have been frantically working to put together that technological framework. It requires mailing technology to members so they can be virtually present at vote, it means putting in a lot of new administrative directives so people can still socially distance. Without knowing he was going to change his mind, there was no way for the legislature to come in as a full body on Saturday. When he made his announcement on Friday, he did not have legislation drafted for legislators to look at. We did not even see what he wanted us to pass until close to 2pm on Saturday, the very day we were supposed to have passed it.

In addition to that, the Wisconsin Elections Commission was told repeatedly by states that had done all mail-in-ballots, that we as a state should not try to do in 2 weeks what it has taken them years to setup in other states. I know it is easy to say that we were obstructionists, we didn't try to work with him, we sat on our hands. It's just not the case. We simply did not have the time or the ability to do what Governor Evers was asking. There were no good decisions here, but changing the election, and doing so in that manner, would have created 1000 new problems, without solving all of the old ones.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In the case of the absentee ballots, the deadline for counting is still extended to April 13th. The US Supreme Court ruled that ballots have to be postmarked by April 7th, today, which is still an actual extension of the election. Normally, ballots must be to the local clerk by election day. There was even a slip that arrived with a friend's ballot that said "allow for 5-8 days for ballot to reach the clerk." So the extension in place really is an extension for people to vote.

I understand that you want everyone to vote. I hope you can understand that I want everyone eligible to vote as well. People seem to think Republicans want to suppress the vote for some reason, but a good portion of my life of the last three weeks has been spent trying to get everyone the information they need to make their vote happen.

Thank you again for your willingness to hear me out. I understand that we will agree to disagree on some or all of this, but I at least appreciate your time.

Mary

Mary,

Thanks again for your message.

Though I enjoy hearing for you, we must agree to disagree.

I can believe that there is controversy on this issue. Everyone has a different view. Who's right, wrong? Is there a right or wrong? No. This is a situation we have never been in before and I hope we don't see again. I know you can't make everyone happy now a days.

First, shame on Governor Evers for not addressing this issue back in mid-March when he issued a "stay at home" order in this state. At that point he should have moved the election out. Yes, at that point. All business, schools and all events with 10 or more people were canceled or postponed, including church services. Does he have the authority to do all this? I am sure he did. Does he have the authority to postpone the election? I am not sure why he doesn't, but, I do not know the state constitution like you do. Does the constitution provide direction during a Covid 19 situation? I doubt it. So, our body of government should have worked together to get through this. Did the Governor waste time and delay the action? Yes. So what is the action of Republicans? Fight the Governor at every step, even though it was at the last minute. There, we'll show you. So, yes, shame on you, SenatorTiffany, and the Republican body. Even as the Republicans fight every step with court actions.

So, yes, all of you should have known then to postpone the election amid all the other cancelations. If it was bad enough to go into the "stay at home" order, it was bad enough to postpone the election.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In the case of absentee ballots. The deadline to send out ballots was extended until Friday, April 3rd. Why would one send out absentee ballots if the deadline wasn't also extended to tally them? So, what did the Republicans do? They fought the lower courts to stop the extension to count the ballots. I understand now that this is somewhat fixed. Though, not everyone that applied for a ballot on Friday will get them by today. So therefore their vote will not count as it will be impossible for them to return it or have it mailed by todays date if one doesn't receive it until tomorrow or later.

So, I hope the state constitution gets amended to include crisis situations like Covid 19 so the governor has power to do things that are not normal, but common sense, even if he did wait until the last minute as he and everyone has learned more about this issue. And I agree, that was a failure on his part. But, your failure was to fight his actions and not support him.

Yes, you said that there were issues in being at the legislature on Saturday. Welcome to the world of internet issues that we all deal with up here in the north woods. Teachers, students, and most anyone who works from home is dealing with internet issues. Some up here don't even have internet, and if they do, it's not the greatest. But, that is a whole other issue.

I understand that you are fighting this issue in every front, every view. But common sense has left the arena. Listening to the daily briefings from the White House would lead one to take this seriously. Stay home if at all possible, even do as little going to stores as possible. Wearing masks, though the President won't wear one, when going out. Leadership starts at the top.

I hear people around here still say things like, "this isn't a big deal". Not sure why we are being kept at home and why things aren't open and normal. Not sure why people still have these views, but they do. So, my only hope is that this virus stays a small deal around here and not what larger cities and areas are seeing. Though, Wisconsin seems much worse at this point than Minnesota, a neighboring state.

I don't understand why several states still don't have a stay at home order. I don't understand in states that do, why Churches still think they can stay open, or even some beaches. I don't understand why the President will say one thing one day and do a 180 the next as you said our Governor did. So, yes, people are reacting to this situation in so many ways and it changes daily. Leadership will steer us through this if everyone works together and not fight issues in the courts in this most unusual situation.

So, this is all moot at this point since today the polls are open. I do pray that everyone stays safe and the numbers of people getting the virus do not climb in 2 or 3 weeks.

Onto the next election next month. What will time do for that one? Will we wait for a last ditch effort to postpone it, or will it go on as scheduled?

By the way, I am a true believer in EVERYONE voting. So many people in history have given so much for that right. It should never be taken away for anyone. So, understand, my issues with the election is not to stop anyone from voting, but in keeping the public safe and healthy in this COVID 19 time we find ourselves in.

I know for all of you this is not easy. Now look at the medical field and see how easy it is for them to deal with the outcome of people not following the guidelines given by our medical Doctors on the Task force.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Thanks again for your time,
Be safe, Be healthy

Over the last three weeks, Governor Evers has said publicly over and over that he would not move the election, and legislative leaders tried to work with him and support his decision, as our leader. Fast forward to last Friday, the governor does a complete 180, and asks the Legislature to come into session, with no notice, and with no time or ability to draft anything, agree to anything, or work anything through the legislative process. The Senate and the Assembly have never had to come into session virtually before, so both houses are frantically working to figure out how to do so safely, efficiently, and so that every member can be present or virtually present, to represent their constituents. That infrastructure was not in place for Saturday, which means we would have been calling everyone back to the Capitol, creating more chaos and risk. I had clerks reach out to me immediately asking me not to support Governor Evers' plan because it was simply not possible.
> I don't disagree with you that the information we have right now, today, supports moving the Election date. It has not been along the way, and I don't believe the medical advice has been consistent over the last several weeks. The CDC has changed their rulings on whether COVID lives on surfaces, changed what the symptoms are, changed whether or not people should be wearing masks. As the CDC learns more about the virus, so do we as people. It certainly makes moving forward easier, but it definitely doesn't give us the ability to go back and change decisions already made. None of these situations or decisions are or have been easy, and I have to say that the suggestion I don't care about my own family or my constituents' health and well-being is just wrong. At the end of the day, the Governor changed his mind and asked for something when it was too late for the Legislature give it. Regardless of whether or not someone believes the election should be moved (and I totally understand why people are hoping for that outcome), what Governor Evers issued today was unconstitutional, meaning that his emergency powers do not give him the power to supersede state law completely on his own. He also does not have the ability to extend terms for those currently on the ballot. Republicans did not decide these things, the Constitution and the Supreme Court did. People are scared, so I understand wanting to blame, and see shadows, and call it "politics," I don't know any colleague of mine that has looked at this process from afar, shrugging their shoulders. We are all in the thick of it, talking to people like you, trying to do what is right.

I don't think it's a good idea for people who are at risk to be working the polls on Election Day, but I do support those who are healthy and low-risk taking on the task. The fact of the matter is that polling places are required by law to be open on Election Day, so I want to make sure our clerks have the help they need from those willing to give it. We didn't yet know what we were dealing with, and I know I was receiving a lot of negative feedback from my area on how things were being restricted unnecessarily and how the government and the universities were overreacting. And yet, at the same time, the Legislature and the Governor were somehow supposed to come together and move an election date, something I think many would see as a total nuclear option. Over the last three weeks, Governor Evers has said publicly over and over that he would not move the election, and legislative leaders tried to work with him and support his decision, as our leader. Fast forward to last Friday, the governor does a complete 180, and asks the Legislature to come into session, with no notice, and with no time or ability to draft anything, agree to anything, or work anything through the legislative process. The Senate and the Assembly have never had to come into session virtually before, so both houses are frantically working to figure out how to do so safely, efficiently, and so that every member can be present or virtually present, to represent their constituents. That infrastructure was not in place for Saturday, which means we would have been calling everyone back to the Capitol, creating more chaos and risk. I had clerks reach out to me immediately asking me not to support Governor Evers' plan because it was simply not possible.

I don't disagree with you that the information we have right now, today, supports moving the Election date. It has not been along the way, and I don't believe the medical advice has been consistent over the last several weeks. The CDC has changed their rulings on whether COVID lives on surfaces, changed what the symptoms are, changed whether or not people should be wearing masks. As the CDC learns more about the virus, so do we as people. It certainly makes moving forward easier, but it definitely doesn't give us the ability to go back and change decisions already made. None of these situations or decisions are or have been easy, and I have to say that the suggestion I don't care about my own family or my constituents' health and well-being is just wrong. At the end of the day, the Governor changed his mind and asked for something when it was too late for the Legislature give it. Regardless of whether or not someone believes the election should be moved (and I totally understand why people are hoping for that outcome), what Governor Evers issued today was unconstitutional, meaning that his emergency powers do not give him the power to supersede state law completely on his own. He also does not have the ability to extend terms for those currently on the ballot. Republicans did not decide these things, the Constitution and the Supreme Court did. People are scared, so I understand wanting to blame, and see shadows, and call it "politics," I don't know any colleague of mine that has looked at this process from afar, shrugging their shoulders. We are all in the thick of it, talking to people like you, trying to do what is right.

From the beginning, I truly have had the goal of helping my district. My email asking for poll workers was for the purpose of helping our clerks, some of whom reached out to me overwhelmed and needing assistance. It was also for the purpose of making sure that those who didn't feel safe working were able to stay home, while those who wanted to work were able to do so. This situation has been scary for all involved, and we do the best we can with what we have and know at the time. I hope you can understand that, but if not, then I'm happy to talk to you about it further.

Thank you, have a good night.

Hello, Mary,
Well, this morning I am wondering about your earlier email back to me in response for asking for additional poll workers.
I am VERY displeased in the Republican response to postponing the election here in Wisconsin even though our Governor has wanted to. On Saturday, yesterday, Gov. Evers had a special session regarding this issue. The Republicans dissed the issue in seconds. Shrugging their shoulders. Taking no action. Shame on them. Shame on you. Here's the heading "In a matter of seconds Republicans stall Evers' move to postpone Tuesdays election." That's from the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel. I am ashamed of you guys. When all other states have postponed elections during this time, only Wisconsin puts its people in danger of their health in favor of voting.
So much for the Republican "hard work" to protect the states people.
Shame, shame, shame.
So disappointed in the actions of the Republicans. So reckless. Politics at it's best, so shameful.

Jim,

I can respect your points and appreciate you taking the time. I think you are right that lines are blurred, and right and wrong are kind of up in the air with the ever changing situation. So I wanted to address a couple of points just so you have all of the information.

Regarding the election, and the GOP fighting against Evers' Executive Order. I can see how it's easy to believe leadership is being petty and just doing what they can to foil his plans. That's an easy narrative for a lot of people to believe. Unfortunately, it's just not the truth. I can't tell you how many times I've been asked to work with Governor Evers. When he came out over and over and said, hey, I'm not moving the election, legislative leadership supported him publicly, and then continued to work with the Elections Commission and their local clerks to do everything possible to make this election safe and efficient. I'm going to include for you what Governor Evers was saying the day before he asked the Legislature to come into session:

Thursday, April 2, 2020
"Our democracy is essential, it must go on. Keeping people safe is the governor's top priority but we want people to participate in this election. We want as many people as possible to vote from home," Evers spokeswoman Melissa Baldauff told POLITICO.

She dismissed the possibility of the governor attempting to halt the election like DeWine did. "It's not going to happen," Baldauff said. "He doesn't want to do it and he also doesn't have the authority to do it."

He gave legislative leaders no notice, no time. We had no options. One of the many unprecedented issues that have occurred during this pandemic is that the Senate and the Assembly have never had to come in virtually to vote. Staff and legislators have been frantically working to put together that technological framework. It requires mailing technology to members so they can be virtually present at vote, it means putting in a lot of new administrative directives so people can still socially distance. Without knowing he was going to change his mind, there was no way for the legislature to come in as a full body on Saturday. When he made his announcement on Friday, he did not have legislation drafted for legislators to look at. We did not even see what he wanted us to pass until close to 2pm on Saturday, the very day we were supposed to have passed it.

In addition to that, the Wisconsin Elections Commission was told repeatedly by states that had done all mail-in-ballots, that we as a state should not try to do in 2 weeks what it has taken them years to setup in other states. I know it is easy to say that we were obstructionists, we didn't try to work with him, we sat on our hands. It's just not the case. We simply did not have the time or the ability to do what Governor Evers was asking. There were no good decisions here, but changing the election, and doing so in that manner, would have created 1000 new problems, without solving all of the old ones.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In the case of the absentee ballots, the deadline for counting is still extended to April 13th. The US Supreme Court ruled that ballots have to be postmarked by April 7th, today, which is still an actual extension of the election. Normally, ballots must be to the local clerk by election day. There was even a slip that arrived with a friend's ballot that said "allow for 5-8 days for ballot to reach the clerk." So the extension in place really is an extension for people to vote.

I understand that you want everyone to vote. I hope you can understand that I want everyone eligible to vote as well. People seem to think Republicans want to suppress the vote for some reason, but a good portion of my life of the last three weeks has been spent trying to get everyone the information they need to make their vote happen.

Thank you again for your willingness to hear me out. I understand that we will agree to disagree on some or all of this, but I at least appreciate your time.

Mary

Mary,

Thanks again for your message.

Though I enjoy hearing for you, we must agree to disagree.

I can believe that there is controversy on this issue. Everyone has a different view. Who's right, wrong? Is there a right or wrong? No. This is a situation we have never been in before and I hope we don't see again. I know you can't make everyone happy now a days.

First, shame on Governor Evers for not addressing this issue back in mid-March when he issued a "stay at home" order in this state. At that point he should have moved the election out. Yes, at that point. All business, schools and all events with 10 or more people were canceled or postponed, including church services. Does he have the authority to do all this? I am sure he did. Does he have the authority to postpone the election? I am not sure why he doesn't, but, I do not know the state constitution like you do. Does the constitution provide direction during a Covid 19 situation? I doubt it. So, our body of government should have worked together to get through this. Did the Governor waste time and delay the action? Yes. So what is the action of Republicans? Fight the Governor at every step, even though it was at the last minute. There, we'll show you. So, yes, shame on you, SenatorTiffany, and the Republican body. Even as the Republicans fight every step with court actions.

So, yes, all of you should have known then to postpone the election amid all the other cancelations. If it was bad enough to go into the "stay at home" order, it was bad enough to postpone the election.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In the case of absentee ballots. The deadline to send out ballots was extended until Friday, April 3rd. Why would one send out absentee ballots if the deadline wasn't also extended to tally them? So, what did the Republicans do? They fought the lower courts to stop the extension to count the ballots. I understand now that this is somewhat fixed. Though, not everyone that applied for a ballot on Friday will get them by today. So therefore their vote will not count as it will be impossible for them to return it or have it mailed by todays date if one doesn't receive it until tomorrow or later.

So, I hope the state constitution gets amended to include crisis situations like Covid 19 so the governor has power to do things that are not normal, but common sense, even if he did wait until the last minute as he and everyone has learned more about this issue. And I agree, that was a failure on his part. But, your failure was to fight his actions and not support him.

Yes, you said that there were issues in being at the legislature on Saturday. Welcome to the world of internet issues that we all deal with up here in the north woods. Teachers, students, and most anyone who works from home is dealing with internet issues. Some up here don't even have internet, and if they do, it's not the greatest. But, that is a whole other issue.

I understand that you are fighting this issue in every front, every view. But common sense has left the arena. Listening to the daily briefings from the White House would lead one to take this seriously. Stay home if at all possible, even do as little going to stores as possible. Wearing masks, though the President won't wear one, when going out. Leadership starts at the top.

I hear people around here still say things like, "this isn't a big deal". Not sure why we are being kept at home and why things aren't open and normal. Not sure why people still have these views, but they do. So, my only hope is that this virus stays a small deal around here and not what larger cities and areas are seeing. Though, Wisconsin seems much worse at this point than Minnesota, a neighboring state.

I don't understand why several states still don't have a stay at home order. I don't understand in states that do, why Churches still think they can stay open, or even some beaches. I don't understand why the President will say one thing one day and do a 180 the next as you said our Governor did. So, yes, people are reacting to this situation in so many ways and it changes daily. Leadership will steer us through this if everyone works together and not fight issues in the courts in this most unusual situation.

So, this is all moot at this point since today the polls are open. I do pray that everyone stays safe and the numbers of people getting the virus do not climb in 2 or 3 weeks.

Onto the next election next month. What will time do for that one? Will we wait for a last ditch effort to postpone it, or will it go on as scheduled?

By the way, I am a true believer in EVERYONE voting. So many people in history have given so much for that right. It should never be taken away for anyone. So, understand, my issues with the election is not to stop anyone from voting, but in keeping the public safe and healthy in this COVID 19 time we find ourselves in.

I know for all of you this is not easy. Now look at the medical field and see how easy it is for them to deal with the outcome of people not following the guidelines given by our medical Doctors on the Task force.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Thanks again for your time,
Be safe, Be healthy

I think a commonality between everyone is fear. I think most people have never seen anything like COVID-19 in their lifetime and they are really terrified of the unknown. Jim,

First, thank you for your reply, I appreciate your candor and honesty. I know right now can be a really scary and impossible time. I totally support your mother staying home. I don't think that anyone who feels unsafe or at risk should be at the polls on election day. Governor Evers has said over and over that the election date will not be moving, so my main goal at this point is to help our clerks make sure this election runs as smoothly and safely as possible. I don't think it's a good idea for people who are at risk to be working the polls on Election Day, but I do support those who are healthy and low-risk taking on the task. The fact of the matter is that polling places are required by law to be open on Election Day, so I want to make sure our clerks have the help they need from those willing to give it. I TOTALLY support people voting absentee if they can or want to, and I have been encouraging this from Day 1. You may be surprised to hear that I actually have gotten a lot of calls from people who only want to vote in person, and really do not want to vote absentee, so there are people all across the spectrum on this issue. Our goal is to make sure that you can vote, no matter which way you choose to do it.

Regarding mail-in ballots, it's just not a feasible option, and is even less so for areas like ours where our clerks do not have as much help as larger communities. In our state overall, this just not a feasible option for several reasons:

1. There is no way to secure the vote. Mail in ballots would require eliminating voter ID.

2. It would eliminate same day registration as only registered voters at of the time the ballots went out would be allowed to vote.

3. The current registered voter list includes 200,000 voters who the Elections Commission suspects have moved. If those ballots are sent, anyone at those addresses could fill them out and return them.

4. The Elections Commission themselves say they don’t have the infrastructure necessary to conduct an election this way.

5. Washington state, who does handle elections this way, has warned against trying to move to this system in haste.

6. I have already heard from several clerks just in my district (and am still receiving emails as we speak!) who have said they simply do not have the time or resources before April 7th to mail ballots to all registered voters. This was the case on Friday, and it's the case now. Most of them are already spending their nights and weekends as it is trying to send out ballots to those that have already requested them. When Governor Evers was asked about this, he said "it wouldn't be easy." That's it. There was no plan to figure out how to help our clerks get it done.

I totally understand where you are coming from. COVID has created a lot of impossible situations, and this is one of them. We need to do everything we can to protect voters and also protect the integrity of the election itself. Thankfully, the Elections Commission is offering COVID-19 specific online training for clerks on how to keep their polling places safe, and offering online training for the poll workers like I mentioned yesterday.

Thank you for voting, and for again for your honesty and taking the time to email me.

Hi, Mary,
I am replying to your note asking for poll workers during this difficult time we currently find ourselves in. First, I am amazed the state hasn't gone to absentee votes only. I would NEVER go out to a poll place and vote. I have already completed my absentee vote and it's mailed back. Easy peezzy. Why hasn't the state gone in this direction? Are you willing to risk the health of the public while we do our civic duty and vote?
Also, my 82 year old mother is one of the polling workers in our township. Your township. There is no way in hell that we would let her go to the polls or anywhere actually. In fact, the entire election board in this township is an age group of high risk people. I feel the state has done an injustice to the voters of this state by not making absentee voting the ONLY way to vote during this unprecedented time we are in. Bob,
Thank you for reaching out to me. I totally understand where you are coming from, especially because in our area, there is a much larger elderly population, and our polling places already have fewer people to run the polls. You are right that Governor Evers refuses to move that date, has said so repeatedly, and has encouraged everyone to vote absentee when at all possible, and there's really nothing I can do to force his hand. I agree that it does give out mixed signals that everyone must stay home, but let's have a lot of people in the same place for voting. The fact of the matter is that the law/his emergency powers do not actually allow for him to change or postpone that date on his own. This, at least, does give me some comfort, because it means that one politician cannot take away our constitutional rights to vote just on a whim. These are certainly extraordinary circumstances, for sure. One big concern with moving this election so close to the date is that there are already 100,000 absentee ballots out there that have been returned to the clerks to be counted. On those ballots are votes for local positions all over the state. If Governor Evers were to move the election date, many, many local positions would remain vacant during that time, sometimes crippling a local government's ability to make moves to respond to the public health emergency we are currently in. It's also difficult to say when that date should be postponed to because we do not yet know how long the public health emergency will be in place. The deadline to register online has been extended by a federal judge until March 30th, so with people being able to access absentee ballots until April 2nd, I'm really hoping everyone who does not want to leave their house uses that option.

The federal government is close to passing a federal stimulus package that will have some funds available to aid local governments. This will allow more flexibility for clerks to be able to do what they need to to make sure this election is as safe as possible for all, including for poll workers. It is the Election Commission's job to work with all municipal clerks to ensure that this happens, and that all clerks have the resources they need to make that possible. I have heard that some locations are looking at purchasing pens so that every voter can use their own pen to sign the book and vote with it, and then take it with them.

Coronavirus and the fall out has created some really impossible situations, and this is one of them. If you are uncomfortable going to the polls to work or to vote, I think you have every right to stay home, and to vote absentee. I know some clerks (and the elections commission) are working on recruiting college students and non-essential employees out of work to work the polls in place of those who don't feel comfortable. If you're wanting to avoid getting sick, I'd talk to your municipal clerk about it and see what parameters they are putting into place to make the day as safe as possible.

As we've seen over the last two weeks, this situation can change drastically from day to day, so I will continue to keep you in the loop if anything changes. Thank you again for your time and sharing your thoughts with me,

Mary

Dear Rep. Felzkowski,

We know that coronavirus is infectious, with presymptomatic transmission. It is a simple fact that if voters are forced to gather in groups to vote, rather than being able to vote from the safety of their homes, both poll workers and voters will be at risk to contract coronavirus, and some of those infected will die.

You, and you alone, can prevent this by postponing the election, and sending ballots to all registered voters.

Please, please, put people's lives above party politics. You already have a majority on the state Supreme Court. Widening that lead is not worth killing people.

I totally understand you not wanting to risk your health. I've heard that from others and encouraged anyone who feels that way to vote from home and avoid the polls on election day. Thankfully we saw an unprecedented number of absentee ballots come in for a spring election and many polls were not busy for most of the day.

Thank you for your time and everything you do to make polling places run smoothly on election days,

Hey Vicki,

Thank you for your email. You are certainly entitled to your opinion, but making assumptions about the motives of others will only further the divide in our country, especially when you are wrong. I have spent the last three weeks doing everything I can to help all voters, regardless of politics, get the information they need to vote, whether it be in person yesterday or via absentee ballot. The City of Milwaukee CHOSE to close all but 2% of their polling stations, which was extremely reckless. Madison, in contrast, was able to keep 75% of their polling places open for voters. With over 2400 National Guardsmen and women deployed to help on Election Day, there was absolutely no reason for Milwaukee to do this. It was a local government decision that ultimately led to suppression of the vote. The same applies to Green Bay, where the mayor actually declined help from the National Guard altogether. The polling places in my area were fully staffed and ran smoothly all day.

I hope you are well and have a good evening,

Subject: Presidential Primary

I am a poll worker and have decided not to work the election and vote with an absentee ballot. I find that holding this election doesn't make common sense with the stay safe at home order due to the Covid 19 virus. The poll workers in my city are mostly in the at risk category. Why would we put them and the voters at risk? Why isn't the election being postponed or mail only?

Thank you.

Samantha,

I really want thank you to each one of you for the feedback. I understand everyone's concern surrounding COVID-19, and I'm hoping I can help explain why people are hesitant to move the election.

- Moving the date in the middle of voting and especially so close to the election date creates so much chaos.
- Over 1 million absentee ballots have already been sent out, and the deadline to request one is not until today, so I am sure we will see that number grow even more. The question becomes, what do we do with all of the absentee ballots that have already been sent and already turned in?
- Here are just some of the other questions that come up when discussing moving the election:
    - What happens for people who move to Wisconsin or to a different place in Wisconsin between now and some new, unknown date? Do we let them vote again, knowing they are likely voting in different jurisdictions for different people?
    - How long do we extend the election? Some people have mentioned the May 12th special election date and I totally understand wanting to use that date. What if we are still under social distancing, and have to consider moving the date again?
    - What if something happens between now and then and voters demand they be given the chance to change or re-cast their vote?
    - What do we do for the local government positions that are going to be vacant while we wait for the new election date? What if local governments can't respond to this or another crisis because decision makers aren't in place to make those decisions?

Ultimately, everyone has a fundamental right to respond to their government by voting in elections. I totally understand where everyone is coming from. Our reality is that the Governor has said the date is not going to move and the legislature cannot move it without him. The Elections Commission has said the date is not going to move, and now the court has signaled yesterday that they are not going to order the date to move. Knowing this information, my number one goal and my job right now is to help our amazing clerks run their polling places safely and efficiently, so that everyone can get in to vote, and get out quickly. We have been encouraging anyone and everyone who does not feel safe going out to vote absentee and thankfully so many people are choosing to do that. This means that all of those people are going to stay home on Election Day, making it so much easier to social distance and avoid the spread. I know a lot of polling places are going to be doing drive thru voting, so you never have to get out of your car to cast your ballot. The National Guard will be helping man the polls that day, and the Elections Commission is providing extra supplies to clerks, as well as extra COVID specific training. There is also funding included in the federal stimulus package to help with the increase costs of administering the election. If we all continue to work together, we can make sure that voting on April 7th is done safely.

If you have questions about anything in particular, please continue to reach out. I really appreciate the continued feedback.

Dear Representative Felzkowski,

I urge you to do what you can to try to postpone the upcoming Presidential primary. My household is filled with people who have conditions that could make them especially vulnerable to COVID-19. If the outbreak gets worse because of crowds on election day or otherwise, it could prove fatal for my loved ones. Please, take this seriously. God bless.

Marliss,

Thank you for reaching out. I think with the Governor's new executive order today, we are all trying to figure out what the new normal is. I know I have heard from a lot of clerks in my district that are not in favor of a total mail-in-ballot system, but I understand why people are suggesting we go that route. I appreciate your feedback and will continue to have conversations surrounding what the order today does.

Thank you again,

Good morning,

Please don't negate what the people of Wisconsin have done these past three weeks by exposing them them to large crowds at the polls, or put poll workers at risk. Vote to mail ballots to all Wisconsinites, who haven't voted via absentee ballot. Allow them to continue to Shelter in Place and avoid exposure to COVID19. Please allow us to continue to "flatten the curve".

Dear Rep. Felzkowski:

I just became aware of a recent court decision dangerously impacting waterfront property owners rights. I was pleased to learn there has been legislative action to restore waterfront property owners’ rights, especially for those who live along a flowage.

I strongly urge you to support AB 551/ SB 501 and help restore these rights for all property owners. We hold these rights sacred in Wisconsin, and your vote to support AB 551/ SB 501 will help ensure these rights are never infringed upon again.

We are so blessed in Wisconsin to have access to so many great waterways. Your vote in support of AB 551/ SB 501 will continue our grand tradition of protecting property rights.

Thank you in advance for your time, attention, and support in this matter.

Here is Evers apparently reiterating what is allowed, which now includes people in cars. Hi Bob,

Thank you for reaching out with your thoughts. I understand your point and I don't believe anyone has stated that we will not reach into our rainy day fund to support our communities, businesses and families during this public health emergency. The issue being discussed now is that the state's legislative fiscal bureau is working to analyze how much federal funding we will be getting, and we want to ensure that the funding the state puts in complements the federal funds and goes where it is most needed.

Thank you for your comments as always.

Hope you're staying safe,

Representative Felzkowski,
I see there is a debate going on about having enough money currently to support possible new programs to help business and workers in the state.
I'd suggest that denying the need for a program due to a shortage of money denies the fact that money has been put into the general fund or rainy day fund. I believe that the fund is very much for a situation that is developing due to the coronavirus.
Perhaps there is not a need currently, but I think possible scenarios should be developed in case the need for more help is needed. Look at the programs that might be needed and discuss a prudent amount that could be taken from the fund.
Thank you.

Thank you for clarifying, Walt. Polling places made these decisions on their own, it was not a state mandate. The elections commission made recommendations statewide and provided some forms of PPE to local clerks, but ultimately the polling place he worked at provided additional materials. I suspect that this had something to do with the fact that Milwaukee is the COVID hub for our state, so the likelihood of infection in that part of the state is higher than in our area.

Thank you,

Mary

Thank you, Walt. I appreciate your opinion. The one thing I do want to say is that the City of Milwaukee chose on its own, as did all municipalities, how many polling places to have open. There were over 2400 national guardsmen deployed yesterday and today to help local clerks run the elections, so closing all but five was an unnecessary, and frankly reckless decision. I know that there were some poll workers staying home, and they have every right to do that, but Milwaukee would have had the help they needed if they had chosen to keep more locations open.

Thank you again for your email yesterday and your call today. My staff, Liz, did tell me about the call and let me know how you feel. I hope your daughter's day with successful.

Tuesday, April 7th Spring Election

Good evening everyone,

I know there has been a lot of confusion today so I wanted to provide all of you with information so you are prepared for tomorrow.

The April 7th Spring Election will be happening tomorrow and polling places will be open.

If you need information about where your polling place is located, please go to the following site, or let me know what your address is and I can send you the location. https://myvote.wi.gov/en-US/FindMyPollingPlace

Municipal and county clerks have been working around the clock to make sure each polling place is safe and adheres to social distancing. I know a lot of polling places are doing drive-thru voting, which will allow for voters to stay in your car and avoid person-to-person contact. If you feel most comfortable wearing Personal Protective Equipment, like gloves, or a mask, or a scarf, I encourage everyone to do that.

For those of you that received an absentee ballot but have not yet returned them to your clerk, your absentee ballot needs to be postmarked by tomorrow, April 7th.

COVID-19 has been a really trying time for everyone, and I think we can all agree that this is not an optimal situation. Although frustrating, we can do this. I will be driving around polling places tomorrow in my area just to see if there is any help I can give. If you have thoughts or

Thank you and have a good night,

Walt,

I'm sorry, I responded to the other email before seeing that you had sent two. I feel like my answer to your very first email on this answers your question. Speaker Vos was required by his polling place to wear what he wore, or he wouldn't have been able to volunteer. Everyone at his polling place was required to wear the exact same thing. I don't believe it was a political stunt, nor was anyone wearing PPE on Election Day. It's now recommended that anyone leaving the house where masks, and that was the most common PPE worn on Election Day, in addition to gloves. I agree with you that the media coverage of election day was not great for Wisconsin, some of it fair, some of it not. I do not believe I am adding any spin to anything I have sent you. I have spoken from the heart and what I believe. I have been honest with you, and that is all I can be.

You stay safe too,

Your opinion would have been what you thought about using full protective gear in a political stunt and not saving it for the hospitals where it has a serious use. Wisconsin did not fare well in the eyes of the world as I am sure you are aware. This election should not have happened and no amount of spinning will keep it from being a republican fiasco. Is there any way to confirm if this is a legislator (we saw the news about Rep. Bowen) or a staff person? Notification to Employees: Confirmation of COVID-19 in the Workplace

A person in the Legislature has become ill with COVID-19. The following is advice from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and Wisconsin Public Health Officials about what information to provide employees:

If you are not experiencing flu-like symptoms (fever (100° F or higher), cough or sore throat, headache or body aches, and in some cases diarrhea and vomiting) or symptoms of respiratory illness (fever (100° F or higher), cough, and shortness of breath) and are otherwise healthy, you do not need to take any additional action at this time.

Employees who have flu-like symptoms (fever of 100 degrees Fahrenheit or higher, cough or sore throat, headache or body aches, and in some cases diarrhea and vomiting) or symptoms of acute respiratory illness (fever of 100 degrees Fahrenheit or higher, coughing, and shortness of breath) should stay home and not come into work until they are free of fever, signs of a fever, and any other symptoms for at least 24 hours, without the use of a fever-reducing or other symptom-altering medicine. People remain contagious even after they are feeling better; as such, these measure help prevent passing on the flu to others. Employees should notify their supervisor of any work absences and contact their healthcare provider as necessary.

Employees who are sick with COVID-19 or suspect they are infected with the virus that causes COVID-19 will self-quarantine for 14 days and may not return to work until the quarantine has concluded and the employee is no longer considered infectious. Employees should notify their supervisor and the Legislative Human Resources Office (LHRO) Director (amanda.jorgenson@legis.wisconsin.gov) regarding work absences for these purposes. In addition, employees should call their healthcare provider immediately BEFORE going to the clinic or emergency room. Employees should also follow the steps identified by the CDC to help prevent the disease from spreading to people in your home and community.

Employees with chronic illness such as asthma or diabetes, a weakened immune system, or are pregnant, should consult with your health care provider to determine if additional actions are needed.

The CDC advises that the best way to prevent infection is to avoid being exposed to the virus that causes COVID-19. The following are simple everyday actions everyone can take to help prevent the spread of this virus:

- Avoid close contact with people who are sick.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth with unwashed hands.
- Stay home when you are sick.
- Cover your cough or sneeze with a tissue, and then throw the tissue in the trash.
- Clean/disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces.
- Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds.
- Use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer that contains at least 60% alcohol if soap and water are not available.

Wisconsin's COVID-19 Resource page may be found at: https://www.dhs.wisconsin.gov/disease/covid-19.htm This page includes information about the illness, its symptoms, and precautions you can take to keep yourself healthy.

NOTE: Individuals who test positive for COVID-19 and/or have flu-like symptoms should not be harassed, discriminated, or retaliated against. Negative behavior of this sort will not be tolerated.

Hi Angel,

I appreciate that. However, it is procedure for us to ask so we can reach out to your representative and work with them on this as well. It is customary in the legislature to do this, since we all represent a different geographic portion of the state and your personal representative might have more information for developments in your area. I would greatly appreciate the opportunity to connect you with your legislator- and if that is something you have already done, communicate with them so we are not doubling up on work during this hectic time.

Hello!
I was recently added to a Facebook group discussing the recent freeze on evictions and foreclosures. There is a lot of anxiety surrounding what will happen to people who were unable to pay the bills when the freeze is over. Many are worried that the stimulus check will not be enough to cover their basic needs and housing costs if they are forced to come up with backpay.
Many people are calling to "cancel rent" and "give the houses to the tenants". Even as a renter myself, I find this unfeasible and see the potential to create a second blow to the economy as property managers are unable to pay their employees or hire anyone for needed maintenance, property owners unable to pay their property taxes, and so on down the line. I was wondering if you had anything related to this problem in the works, and would like to offer the solution that those of us not prone to socialist delusions and far-left rhetoric had come up with.
Perhaps the state government could work with property owners to cover up to a certain percentage of the backpay if they allow the tenants time to come up with the backpay without a late charge; also, perhaps we could negotiate with banks to tack missed monthly payments onto then expected end of the mortgage.
We know this solution isn't perfect, but we don't want to cripple our local and state economies. We hope this suggestion is the very least helpful in getting a discussion going and a brainstorming started.
Thank you for your time,
Angelica Sack

I understand your frustration, but that's just not the case. Federal law supersedes anything we would do on the state level, so it's important that we work in tandem as we address the needs of the pandemic head on. If we were to pass legislation without knowing what is in the federal bill, we would miss changes to current law that we would have needed to pass to make sure federal funding is accessible. A big one would be changes needed to access unemployment insurance benefits passed on the federal level. As you have been laid off, that will certainly impact you and we want to get it right. We have received the memo we were waiting for from LFB on the stimulus package, so we are currently working on finalizing a legislative package that we will pass in Wisconsin very soon.

I can also understand your frustration over being laid off but the legislature did not make the decision to close down your employer. Governor Evers did, and he did it entirely alone without legislator input.

Waiting for the Feds to act is ridiculous you and your colleagues should have been smart enough to act on your own. I was laid off along with 300 other employees and this was a big topic at our union meeting and you know how they vote and they don't forget.

I totally understand where you are coming from and wanted to let you know it's something that's being discussed for potential legislation from the legislature soon. The delay has occurred because we in Wisconsin needed to wait until the federal legislation was passed and signed. The Legislative Fiscal Bureau is currently working on a memo that goes into the federal stimulus in detail, and will tell us exactly where we need to amend state law to be able to adopt what the federal government has passed. Once we know, we can fold some or all of those suggestions into legislation that we will pass on the state level.

Subject: RE: Recent concerns about the election

Paulette,

Thank you for your email and for reading the articles my staff provided. Regarding the election, at the end of the day, there were no good options or easy choices there. I know it seems like a no brainer to move the election, but there were 1000 new issues that were created by moving it, and moving it didn't solve some of the old issues. In the end, my leadership team supported Governor Evers while he indicated for weeks that he would not move the election because of this. Again, it was not an easy choice to keep the date where it was. I know everyone is scared, and there are a lot of unknowns out there. In the end, with the amount of absentee ballots that were out, and the likelihood that the polling places would not be crowded, our local clerks worked really hard to make sure our polling places were safe. It was the least worst option was to keep the election on Tuesday.

Regarding what happened in the City of Milwaukee, I think the situation there was really unfortunate, and I do believe it was entirely avoidable. I agree that 5 polling places in Milwaukee is unacceptable. This was a decision made by the Mayor of Milwaukee. Yes, there were poll workers all over the state that decided to stay home (as I recommended to anyone who felt uncomfortable going), but there was an influx of new people wanting to volunteer, in addition to over 2400 National Guardsmen and women that were deployed to help run the polling places on Monday and Tuesday. The City of Milwaukee chose to close all but 2% of their polling places, even though there would have been help there for them if they had wanted to keep more of them open. Even 10 would have been better than 5. The same situation occurred in Green Bay. The Mayor declined helped from the National Guard, and only kept two polling stations open. Meanwhile, Madison was able to keep 75% of their polling places open, and did not experience the lines or the wait times like the two other cities. The unfortunate reality is that there were some bad local decisions made that don't really make a lot of sense.

Regarding your question about why Republicans challenged Governor Evers' executive order. The answer is that, regardless of whether or not the election should be moved, and I totally understand why people were hoping for that, the Governor circumvented state law and the constitution with his order. I do not believe that any elected leader should be able to break the law, regardless of the circumstances. I don't believe that there is any good reason for one person to have the power to temporarily suspend our rights. The constitution is what our society is built on, even more important during a global pandemic, not less. Elections are our constitutionally protected way of holding our governments accountable. Allowing for people in that government to mess with that, even in a time of crisis, is so dangerous. You are right that I am a public servant, and when I took the oath of office, I swore to uphold the law and the Constitution, and believe I did my job. I can understand if you disagree, but it's how I feel, and it wouldn't change based on who is serving in an given position.

Regarding your last question, the first thing I am doing over the next couple days is reaching out to some of the local clerks in my district to learn from them what they thought went well and what they thought did not go well. Once I get that feedback, it will be a lot easier to move forward. I know the Elections Commission is already in the process of investigating the reason for why there were so many absentee ballots that were not delivered. To me, we really need to figure out the answer to that question because it just should not happen. Many clerks are saying that the ballots were mailed, so the question is, why didn't the Post Office deliver them? August and November are still a really long ways away, so as we learn more about COVID, we will be in a different place next time around.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Thank you again for your contacts over the last few weeks and for talking with my staff. Giving your feedback is so important and I hope you will continue to do so.

Dear Elisabeth & Rep. Felzkowski,

I have recently been in contact with your office about my concerns on holding the primary election this week with the Coronavirus pandemic. I appreciate your apology from our last phone call Elisabeth. I too wasn't as civil as usual. This is a very emotional time especially with lives at stake, and I don't believe the partisan politics are helping anything. I also was appalled at what happened in Milwaukee with going from 180 polling places to five. Talk about extreme endangerment of their health & disenfranchising voters especially those of color! This vote will be far from accurate with so many people not voting, & I don't know how any legislator who allowed this to happen can feel they care about & represent fairly the people of this state.

I did read your articles on Governor Ever's actions & will call his office as I did before to discuss what happened.

When I called your office I wanted to ask why YOU failed to take action to prevent people from being put in harm's way. So many people put their own lives in danger by being out at the election & if exposed will now risk infecting every person in the community with whom they interact. There were people with signs of COVID-19 who went out to vote because they failed to get their absentee ballot on time & others who didn't take the risk & just lost out on their right to vote. You told me the governor broke the law by trying to postpone the election but how did 15 other states manage to do it? Yes, the Governor did change his position over time as the health crisis worsened, but he took what steps he believed were necessary to address the increasing danger to the public. He saw a problem (one the legislature was refusing to address) and he acted. You and your legislative colleagues not only failed to respond to his repeated calls for action, choosing to gavel in and out of special session instead of taking even one minute to discuss potential solutions to this grave problem, but you went so far as the Supreme Court to force the election to move forward in the height of this pandemic. How do you explain this? You are a public servant. Your job is to represent the people of Wisconsin, to use your power to protect our public health, safety, and welfare - to ACT, most especially in times of crisis. How do you justify your inaction? How do you justify forcing your constituents to risk their lives in order to exercise their right to vote?

I'd like to finish by asking what are you doing now to prepare for the August and November elections to ensure the problems with this week's election are not repeated? How will you ensure that all voters have safe access to vote if this health crisis persists?

Thanks for your time.

Hi Jon,

I hope you're doing well! Rep. Felzkowski had a research question that she thinks will affect multiple states and was wondering if this is something CSG would be able to look into for us.
Last week, she met with a coalition of rural superintendents who shared that they were incredibly concerned about the Higher Learning Commission's ruling on increased training hours for teachers. Our state, like many others in the Midwest and around the country, is struggling with a lack of individuals entering into the teaching profession. This problem is dually exacerbated for rural school districts who have an even more difficult time recruiting new teachers. Representative Felzkowski's question is this: How are other states reacting to the increased requirements and approaching what appears to be an undue burden on an already burdened profession?

Below is a portion of an email from one of the superintendents which might help kick-start your research (the attachment is also from the superintendent's email). Please let me know if you think this is something CSG will be able to look into for us.

Thank you!

work, contributing to the plight that is facing all public and private businesses and entities, and that's finding talent. I do not need to comment any further as to how this all ties together in the growth and progression of our state, you're well aware I know, as it's what you all strive to do in your work each day...to move our economy and society forward.

Coincidentally, this email just came from Midwestern Higher Education Compact - https://www.mhec.org/

The matter at hand as you can see is well beyond the borders of only Wisconsin, and I'm proud to say that Wisconsin is already ahead in this work due to the efforts of NEWERA (Northeast Wisconsin Educational Resource Alliance) - https://www.neweraonline.org/

NEWERA has already put a database/locator together for interested teachers, yet even with this, there are challenges, ESPECIALLY in math. Math content courses are far and few, very high-level and with minimal availability. My math teacher has been tirelessly trying to pursue courses, yet those available in his schedule are found out of state, and defer to those interested, or they are offered during his workday. Additionally, and it is what it is, the courses are very rigorous...he began on this past year and dropped after a week as it was consuming any and all of his time he had outside of teaching and the other roles he serves to the school and school-community.

Yet, to also put into perspective, what we're up against, are the following numbers completed by a survey of NWTC of its certified high school instructors at this time in their technical college region here in Northeast Wisconsin - I can assume you'll see similar in any other region throughout the state:

RIGHT NOW THERE ARE = 154 General Studies Transcribed credit teachers in NWTC's entire region of service

ONLY 18 currently meet HLC (only 12% of the teachers currently offering dual credit)

14 are undecided if they are pursuing HLC credentials

50 are not pursuing HLC credentials (so 1/3 aren't even interested in pursuing, even with free tuition - most schools have moved away from models of compensation that offer greater compensation solely based on credit attainment, hence why we're proposing an incentive model as shared in my previous email today)

32 will start pursuing HLC credentials

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

40 have not responded with their plan (I assume this means they're likely not interested in this matter, hence no reply)

So, based on the above, and making some fair assumptions, Northeast Wisconsin alone will likely lose more than one-half of it's currently accredited instructors that offer post-secondary coursework at the secondary level - CATASTROPHIC!!!

Hoping we can continue moving this conversation forward.

Best,

Ben

Thanks again for the email. I don't see anything on Les and Jim's website yet. Your list on the Merrill site is great. Is there any chance you already have that list in an excel sheet that you could send? I'm trying to compile all of this information quickly, so anything that will help me develop the document faster would be great. If you don't, no worries.

Subject: Rights Versus Wishes

Representative Mary Felzkowski:

Rights Versus Wishes by Walter Williams

Sen. Bernie Sanders said: "I believe that health care is a right of all people." He's not alone in that contention. That claim comes from Democrats and Republicans and liberals and conservatives.
It is not just a health care right that people claim. There are "rights" to decent housing, decent food, a decent job and prescription drugs.

In a free an Catherine Abercrombie ad moral society, do people have these rights? Let's begin by asking ourselves: What is a right?

In the standard usage of the term, a "right" is something that exists simultaneously among people. In the case of our U.S. Constitutional decree, we have the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Kyle T. Yamashita other than the duty of noninterference.

As such, a right imposes no obligation on another.

For example, the right to free speech is something we all possess simultaneously. My right to free speech imposes no obligation upon another except that of noninterference. Similarly, I have a right to travel freely. Again, that right imposes no obligation upon another except that of noninterference.

Sanders' claim that health care is a right does impose obligations upon others. We see that by recognizing that there is no Santa Claus or tooth fairy who gives resources to government to pay for medical services. Moreover, the money does not come from congressmen and state legislators reaching into their own pockets to pay for the service.
That means that in order for government to provide medical services to someone who cannot afford it, it must use intimidation, threats and coercion to take the earnings of another American to provide that service.

Let's apply this bogus concept of rights to my right to speak and travel freely. In the case of my right to free speech, it might impose obligations on others to supply me with an auditorium, microphone and audience.

It may require newspapers or television stations to allow me to use their property to express my views. My right to travel freely might require that others provide me with resources to purchase airplane tickets and hotel accommodations. What if I were to demand that others make sacrifices so that I can exercise my free speech and travel rights, I suspect that most Americans would say, "Williams, you have rights to free speech and you have a right to travel freely, but I'm not obligated to pay for them!"

A moral vision of rights does not mean that we should not help our fellow man in need. It means that helping with health care needs to be voluntary (i.e., free market decisions or voluntary donations to charities that provide health care.) The government's role in health care is to protect this individual right to choose. As Senator Rand Paul was brave enough to say, "The basic assumption that you have a right to get something from somebody else means you have to endorse the concept of theft."

Statists go further to claim that people have a "right" to housing, to a job, to an education, to an affordable wage. These so-called rights impose burdens on others in the form of involuntary servitude. If one person has a right to something he did not earn, it means that another person does not have a right to something he did earn.

The provision by the U.S. Congress of a so-called right to health care should offend any sense of moral decency. If you're a Christian or a Jew, you should be against the notion of one American living at the expense of another. When God gave Moses the Eighth Commandment — "Thou shalt not steal" — I am sure that He did not mean, "Thou shalt not steal — unless there is a majority vote in the U.S. Congress." Walter Williams, March 11, 2020

I am always willing to speak with everyone that reaches out to me, and I can certainly understand your frustration, but you are wrong about me and my feelings for my constituents. I have been doing nothing but trying to help everyone who reaches out to me over the last several weeks. I also have no idea how any of what has happened over the last three weeks would constitute a power grab. If you are talking about Governor Evers' attempt to circumvent state law and the WI Constitution, then you would be 100% right there.

Have a good night,

Jane,

I agree with you that the email could go back and forth so I am at least grateful for your willingness to have a conversation. I disagree completely with your assumption that I assumed people would stay home. I did not assume that, in fact the absentee ballots numbers were pointing to potential election turnout highs statewide. In our area, everyone I talked to said they were either voting absentee or voting in person because that's what they prefer. I have never once thought that people would just stay home, and I would never want that. I did everything I could in my district to get voters (of all persuasion) the information they needed to make sure their vote was counted in one way or another. I appreciate that you and I don't agree politically, but I think assuming the motives of someone else and attaching vitriol to that assumption doesn't help anything at all, especially when you're wrong. We can both have different opinions about how this went or should have gone without assuming that you or I had the evilest of intentions at the heart of every move. That has been one of the most frustrating things about the conversations I've had. So much hate, too little benefit of the doubt that this is an unprecedented time and everyone is just trying to do their best. But you know what, I am doing my best to remind myself that there are a lot of really scared people out there, and fear can cause a lot of anger, and confusion, and lack of feeling in control. I hope that all people can understand that we are feeling that way too in a lot of ways.

I feel like I've said this before but maybe it hasn't been to you. If Governor Evers was truly serious about moving the election, he wouldn't have tried to do it at the last minute. Going back to giving the benefit of the doubt, even if he was serious about moving it, what was wrong with that idea was that he was breaking the law and circumventing the constitution, something our elected leaders should NEVER do no matter what the circumstance. You don't have to agree with that, but it's 100% how I feel, and I would have felt the same way regardless of who sat in that seat.

My staff and I have been working to make sure everyone is answered in as timely a manner as we can, so thank you for your thanks in that regard. I truly wish you the best,

Mary

Good Morning Mary,
I recognize that this email could go back and forth because we don’t agree politically. The power grab I’m referring to is that by insisting that people go out and vote yesterday you could assume that people would not go because they were too scared. The republicans could then win the Supreme Court spot.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

If you watched the news and saw the voting in Milwaukee (where SO few polling places were available) that showed why insisting on an election yesterday was such a bad idea. Why would we bring people out during a world wide health crisis? Why did people have to make the choice between exercising their right to vote and preserving their health? Governor Evers could see that and tried to delay the vote until June- what was wrong with that idea?
I appreciate you getting back to me, not sure if it's really you or one of your employees in Madison.

Hello Mary,

We live in a rural area north of Antigo about 9 miles near Neva Lake Rd. Verizon is our cell phone provider and due to a lack of any hardwire internet service they also provide our internet through a hot spot. For the past several years we have experienced declining cell phone service and internet service that is also declining.

I raised this issue at least a couple of times to Tom Tiffany. He indicated he would look into the situation and perhaps he did but nothing has improved, in fact the service has gotten worse. At one of the town hall meetings he indicated that maps show the coverage has actually improved. Well, that's fake news!

There are over 50 residences in this area and many of us are experiencing the same phone and internet issues. We hear about how important internet service and cell phone is yet we continue to suffer from declining service. Anything you can do to work with cell phone and internet providers to improve our situation would be greatly appreciated.

Hello Representative Felzkowski,

Technical services from Verizon did follow up with me, unfortunately there isn't much they can do. Geographically our service will not improve according to them until a tower can be located to reach us. Our issue is that geographically we are in an area that is mainly wooded with rolling topography and with the nearest tower about 12 miles away we are apparently in a topographic hole. So, although maps may show that we have good coverage it doesn't look like our situation will improve in the near future. Signal boosters will not help the situation as I tried that already. With that in mind I do believe that WPS is considering running underground power at some point in this area due to the frequent power outages that occur. If and when this happens perhaps it would be a good idea for cable providers to consider running cable in conjunction with the underground power. I have heard rumour of that happening for the past 10 years but nothing has yet occurred.

Again, thanks for contacting Verizon, their representative was truly helpful in researching the problem even though there doesn't appear to be a solution that will occur in the near future. Ron Zalewski

Chad,

Thank you for your email on this. As you can imagine, I've received a lot of similar correspondence, and I agree with your sentiment. I think a lot of the response has been knee jerk, especially the stay at home order. At the end of the day, Governor Evers currently has emergency powers that give him the power to do every single thing he has done. Please know that, while we in the legislature are doing the best we can to work with his office and work bi-partisanly, we are pushing back behind the scenes, especially when we don't believe decisions are being made with science-based/fact-based data. My first and main goal during this time is to continue getting information to the people who need it, help constituents connect with their government meaningfully, and hopefully help to get all of us through this in on piece.

The Governor has these powers for 60 days. After that, he needs approval from the legislature to continue. He has asked for his powers to be extended indefinitely, which is not something I think a lot of my colleagues would support. I think the state is best led in these situations with one leader at the helm to make sure information and decisions are funneled appropriately with the lowest opportunity for confusion and chaos. However, be rest assured, the legislature will continue to demand answers for our constituents, and will be the check on the Executive Branch we need to be.

Thank you again for your thoughts, I really appreciate your time,

Mary Felzkowski

Who does the governor think he is??? God? So its necessary to shut down thousands more businesses and destroy peoples lives economically over a virus thats killed 4 people in the state? And then he has the gall to announce that he will "allow" us to still go outside to walk a dog? How gracious! Lord Evers says I can walk Fido. We're saved.

Use whatever power you have to tell Evers to go pound sand. We can fight this virus without forcing people to commit financial suicide. And the idea that government will save small business is horseshit. There is never any money for us. The big corps will get bailed out, and the best any small business can hope for is a loan they can't afford to pay back.

End this shit.

Hi Jerry,

Thank you for reaching out to my office on this. As I'm sure you know, last Monday, under Executive Order #72, the Department of Corrections suspended all admissions to the state's prisons and juvenile facilities. Additionally, the agency has suspended visits and says they are doing all they can to protect the inmate population. It is also my understanding they are working on setting up video chat abilities for inmates to still be able to continue to connect with their families.

As of last Wednesday, the Department of Corrections put out a statement saying that there are no known positive cases for any adults in their custody. The Department has not put out any new updates over the weekend.

I appreciate your compassion during this time and please let me know if you have any further questions.

Thank you,

Subject: Safety in Prisons & Jails During COVID-19 Pandemic

Dear Representative Felzkowski,

As the novel Coronavirus (COVID-19) impacts our community and state, it is vital that we act quickly for the protection and care of those around us. This includes those who are incarcerated and their families, as well as correctional officers and staff. Because of the devastating risk of spread of COVID-19 in prisons and jails, I am writing to ask that you allocate funding for prevention and response to the disease within correctional facilities and greater discretion for limiting the use of incarceration in certain circumstances.

As you can imagine, correctional environments are difficult to carefully sanitize, and close quarters make effective quarantine nearly impossible. Measures taken ought to include funding for preventative and responsive plans to the virus, increased free or low-cost phone and video credits, and, where possible, creative solutions to deploy both recidivism reducing programs and religious worship within facilities during this time of limited social interaction.

In addition, I ask that you consider how to alleviate other health risks to everyone involved in the justice system during this unprecedented time by:
• Discontinuing the use of pre-trial detention whenever possible for those who do not present a high risk of flight or danger to the community.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

• Increasing the use of alternatives to incarceration where appropriate, including expanded use of community corrections, for those convicted of new crimes.
• Increasing the use of existing elderly and compassionate release mechanisms, so that those who can safely be placed in home confinement or supervised release may serve their time in a safer and more supportive environment.
• Expediting decisions about those who merit parole, commutations, and clemency, using remote technology where necessary to continue requisite hearings.
• Lessening the frequency of in-person check-ins required by community corrections officials for those on probation or parole and instead utilizing digital means of supervision.

I appreciate the steps already taken to respond to this crisis, including those that protect those impacted by crime and incarceration. I respectfully request that you press on with boldness to provide hope, peace, and safety to those who live or work behind bars.

Thank you,

Jerry Ziegelbauer

Hey Mike,

I called and left you a message but wanted to also reach out via email. Mary said she heard from three businesses today who reached out to lenders on the list you provided. Many of them are saying that if the business has not had an account with them before February 2020, they cannot help the business. I'm guessing this is because they have such an influx coming in, so they need to help their customers first. Totally understandable. Mary wanted me to check in to see if you know of any lender that is not taking this stance because a lot of these businesses can't find lenders within their own communities. She heard that Associated Bank and Chase Bank are saying this companywide, so I'm not sure if there are more. She's wondering what we should tell constituents that call when they can't find a lender.

Thank you!!

This is what I found from the NCSL summary:

- 360 million for Department of Labor to invest in programs that provide training and supportive services for dislocated workers, seniors, migrant farmworkers and homeless veterans. Includes funding for implementing new paid leave and unemployment insurance benefits.
- Expands unemployment insurance from three to four months, and provides temporary unemployment compensation of $600 per week, which is in addition to and the same time as regular state and federal UI benefits.
  - Part-time, self-employed and gig economy workers now have access to UI benefits.
  - Allows employers to receive an advance tax credit from the Treasury instead of having to be reimbursed on the back end.
  - $260 billion investment into the unemployment insurance program.
  - Creates regulatory authority to implement the tax credit advances.

I'll see if I can find more information for our constituents on what it will actually look like.

Thank you for the question regarding self-employed ability to collect unemployment. We have asked the Legislative Fiscal Bureau for a detailed memo on the federal stimulus bill. I believe this is covered under that, but I don't want to provide you with false information until we know exactly. Once we get that memo, I will be able to follow up with you to get you the information you are looking for. In the meantime, here is a link to a summary of the bill from the NCSL website: https://www.ncsl.org/ncsl-in-dc/publications-and-resources/coronavirus-stimulus-bill-states.aspx.

Helen,

Thank you for your reply and your questions. I wanted to address a couple of things. 1. I totally agree with you on early voting. This is why, last session, we tried to make early voting uniform so that the whole state is treated the same. I agree with you that it is a disadvantage to our smaller communities who do not have the manpower to be open all the time, let alone on Saturdays and Sundays. Unfortunately, after we passed that bill, a judge struck it down and ruled it unconstitutional.

Regarding getting an absentee ballot twice, this is not likely because the clerks keep track of everyone who has requested a ballot. If you've already requested one, they are not going to send you another. The request also goes in the vote book. This prevents people from being able to vote absentee AND vote in person because it will say in the book that an absentee ballot was requested and sent back.

I know it's so frustrating. COVID has created a lot of impossible situations that are sometimes made even worse by the decisions of our Governor. Please know that you are not the only one who feels this way and he's got a LOT of eyes on him right now, watching every move he makes. The legislature will continue to be the check on the Executive branch we need to be, rest assured.

Thank you for getting back to me again. I know we are on the same page but I have to complain during this terrible injustice to the citizens of Wisconsin.
I am glad they said something to them. That may or may not help, the clerks are apparently making their own decisions.. Apparently Wisconsin has become a banana republic and the Democrats are making all the rules. I feel that we have no recourse and the election for April and most likely the Presidential election in November is a sham. It's not your fault Mary, I appreciate that you get back to me.
I was wrong about the 200005 voters who should already have been removed from the voter roles. It is actually more like 200009. In addition, Milwaukee and Madison have had 2 weeks to vote and they got to vote on SATURDAY AND SUNDAY too. Where are the rest of the state's citizens rights to do this, this is not fair. We should ALL have the same voting hours and rights. These tactics have disenfranchised everyone else in the state other than the Milwaukee and Madison areas, all while claiming they need more time so they aren't. This is terrible for the integrity of our elections.
Also, the mail in ballot requests are going to people who have already voted in person, what would be stopping a person from requesting a ballot and voting more than once? And...what about those who did not have to prove they are the person. What about all those who already voted? This is just a HUGE opportunity to cheat. Yep the Wisconsin supreme court election is lost.

The Governor of this state doesn't care about any people other than his union groups, the road builders, and the teachers. He is even worse than Doyle at least he didn't leave for the day at 1 PM. ...That we know of...I really miss Scott Walker, he was the best Governor the state ever had in my lifetime.
I have heard that some are floating it out that the entire national election should be by mail. If that happens we are LOST.

Thank You again,

Dear Representative Felzkowski,

I have heard that we will not be voting in person, and even if we can most small communities are not open for voting.

I would like an emergency order to move the election to a date that is safe from Covid-19 scare. The Governor or ANY clerks in the state of Wisconsin do not have the right to take away our voting rights. They also do not have the right to CHANGE the law to serve those who they support and disenfranchise the rest of the voters in the state of Wisconsin. No ballot harvesting should also NEVER be allowed.

Hey Helen,

Thank you for your email. I don't disagree with anything you are saying, which is why it is so important that we continue to encourage everyone to vote absentee, or vote in person on the day of if they feel comfortable doing so. We will also be encouraging low risk, healthy individuals to become poll workers so that those who don't feel comfortable can stay home. This will hopefully help local clerks continue to run this election smoothly and safely.

I agree with you that the mail in ballot suggestion is just not an option, and it is not something the legislature will be pursuing. I have already heard from several clerks who do not have the ability to mail out ballots to every person in the amount of time before April 7th. Apart from that, you are right that the voters who have moved would still receive ballots at the address on file, allowing for any voter at that address to send in that ballot. There is absolutely no way to secure the integrity of the election.

Thank you again for reaching out. I appreciate it!

Hi, I am hopeful that the Republicans at least trying to stand up to the shenanigans that the Democrats are bringing to us. I am sorry to say they have presented themselves as the party who lie, cheat, steal, and God knows what to get control of the Government. I really do think they are pulling together to steal the April 7th election. I am pretty sure you can quote me on this "there is a "bag" of uncounted damaged ballots we just found" that needs to be redone and added. ....:(

I would imagine the 205,000 voters who should have been removed from the roles have already absentee voted for the Democrat favorite. What good is the "law" if no one follows it? The latest idea of sending "every" registered voter a "mail in" ballot is just plain ridiculous. What about all the people who voted already? Our current Governor is an embarrassment. Is there anything the honest people in office can do about it? Is there anything us citizens who feel like our votes don't matter anymore can do? Honestly this is truly sad and this is how many of us really feel.

If you want a well constructed synopsis of the events that point to this with a time line check out Dan O'Donnell's fb page, he is a conservative millennial talk show host on WISN radio, he put together a report about it. It is worth a listen. His page has a post about it.

Anyway thank you for your consideration.

I wanted to check in with you and let you know that I got a lot of really encouraging feedback yesterday about the polling places in our area. Thanks to everyone who decided to vote absentee (currently over 1 million people!), a majority of polling places had a manageable amount of people come through during the day with no lines, certainly not the crowds we normally see on Election Day. I heard from others that their polling place was clean, run well, and had the necessary social distancing in place.

As an aside, an email from your email address came in yesterday and it looked like spam or like it came from a hacker. Have you heard that from anyone else? I hope everything is okay.

I 100% agree with you. On Friday, Governor Evers told the state and the legislature that he would not be instituting a stay-at-home order. Our leadership team asked for a breakdown of what essential vs. non-essential businesses would look like, and the Governor's office said they did not have a list like this because they were not considering shutting down businesses. Unfortunately, not three days later, he has changed his tune, and did so without informing the legislature first. I wish I had more information for you and the loved ones you speak of, but I am only learning about this through the news at this point. It will do irreparable damage to our economy. While I am fortunate enough to be able to work from home, many of my family members are not. They will almost certainly lose their jobs over this. I also strongly oppose the Governor’s orders as I see this as an abuse of power since he is dictating that private businesses close if they are not what he deems “essential.”

Hey Jody,

Thank you for your email. I've heard the Governor mention this many times in his briefings. It's also why his stay-at-home order requires people to stay within their primary residence. This is meant to cut down on the amount of people traveling to places they don't normal reside. Unfortunately, there really isn't any good way to prevent people from traveling to their own property, other than encouragement to avoid the behavior.

Good afternoon,

As a resident of central Wisconsin, specifically the Village of Birnamwood, I am concerned about the use of cabins by southerners and also very concerned about the return of the snow birds to Wisconsin.

I have a number of friends "down south" who plan on driving home soon.

These people are not mentioned in anything I have read or when the Governor specks. We can not take it for granted that any of these people will automatically self quarantine. Also we can not assume the people from southern Wisconsin or northern Illinois will stay home and not come up here to their cabins.

We need to get the word out how detrimental this could be to the central and northern part of our state.

I spoke with someone yesterday, who lives in Pewaukee, and is now working from home so he decided to pack up himself and the kids and go up to his folks house in Antigo for the week. He will be returning to his home with the kids this week. This is a prime example of the lack of common sense that not only he and his wife lack but I am sure many, many others lack the same common sense.

Please address this somehow, so that people understand "stay home" means your primary residence. Also "stay home" is not visiting grammas and grandpas.

Thank you,

Dear Representative Felzkowski,

None of us thrives unless all of us can thrive. That means access to basic health safety nets must be guaranteed to every citizen of Wisconsin.

My faith teaches me that we, as a community, have a responsibility to safeguard everyone's health, especially during a crisis like COVID-19.

We need to act swiftly to use every tool at our disposal to respond to this pandemic.

The federal government is making additional Medicaid funding available to states, if they take action by April 16. The Department of Health Services (DHS) needs legislative approval to make changes to BadgerCare, including suspending the new premiums for childless adults, in order for us to receive these funds. If the Legislature does not act in time, Wisconsin could be one of the only states to lose hundreds of millions of dollars for the fight against the coronavirus.

DHS also needs legislative approval to submit a waiver that would strengthen the ability of our health care providers to use Medicaid to prevent as many people as possible from becoming sick and dying from COVID-19. We cannot deny care to anyone without putting everyone at risk. For the safety of everyone, those who might wait to go to a doctor because of their limited financial resources must be able to get prompt testing and treatment.

Please take action now so that the legislature can convene in an Extraordinary Session and approve these actions, before it is too late.

Otherwise, we will lose the ability to prevent more of our friends, family members, and neighbors from becoming sick and dying of this disease.

Sincerely,

Rita Webb

Right now, I'm bunkered down because the Coronavirus pandemic is a real threat to myself and my community - and I'm worried. I have the right to make my voice heard in the Spring Election, but right now I don't want to choose between my right to vote and my health. And I'm far from alone with these feelings.

That's why we should do an all mail-in election. Gov. Evers wants to do the right thing. And make no mistake, you still have time to make these changes. You're not fooling anyone.

In this moment of crisis, don't make Wisconsinites choose between their health and their Constitutional right to vote.

Kaedi,

Thank you for your email. I'm a big supporter of Medical Marijuana and bringing it to Wisconsin. I am the author of the only Republican-led bill at this time. I will continue to fight for this policy in Wisconsin, because I believe it is vital for those who are suffering and looking for ways just to get back to some normalcy as they fight their illnesses.

Thank you for being an advocate for this! I really appreciate the support.

Mary Felzkowski (Czaja),

As your constituent, I'm writing to urge you to support efforts that seek to establish a medical marijuana access program in Wisconsin (AB 570 / SB 507).

Passage of this legislation will offer qualified patients state-sanctioned access to a therapy that may offer them significant benefits. Thirty-three states and the District of Columbia already offer similar patient protections.

Data from other states finds that the enactment of medical marijuana access is associated with lower rates of opioid abuse and mortality, and does not negatively impact workplace safety, teen use, or motor vehicle safety.

Legislation that sought to provide patients with legal access to cannabidiol, a single compound in the marijuana plant, is not sufficiently addressing patients' needs. Wisconsin patients deserve the option to legally access a botanical product that is objectively safer than the litany of pharmaceutical drugs it could replace.

The results of a recent statewide poll commissioned by Marquette Law School show that 83% of Wisconsinites support legalizing medical cannabis. It is time for our state laws to reflect the views of the majority of voters and to address the best interests of our patient community.

Hey Hans,

Thank you for your email. All insurance companies have already been covering the costs of testing from very close to the beginning of the pandemic, United States-wide. I have not supported expanding badger care in the past, and do not think now is the time to do that. Those that would be covered by Badger Care expansion can currently receive heavily subsided care from the Federal Exchange. There is not a coverage gap in Wisconsin, so I am confident that access to care here in our state is already available.

Thank you again for your email and your thoughts. Please feel free to send me your thoughts in the future,

Subject: Support affordable COVID-19 treatment for everyone

Dear Representative Mary J. Felzkowski,

Thank you for your decisive actions to help slow the spread of COVID-19. These actions will surely make a big difference in our state's ability to deal with this disease.

Now, however, we must turn our attention to ensuring no one avoids testing or treatment for COVID-19 out of fear of cost. The only way to stop this virus is to get everyone tested and to identify and treat everyone with the illness. This won't happen if people are afraid of the costs they'll incur if they get tested or seek medical help. We must make it crystal clear to the public that they will receive no medical bills from COVID-19 tests and treatment. This is the only way to assure that hard pressed working and middle class Wisconsinites are not deterred from testing and treatment for fear of medical costs.

That's why I'm asking you to support three things:

1) Using emergency powers granted by the federal government to use BadgerCare to guarantee that everyone has health coverage during the pandemic. These powers include removing all barriers to quick enrollment, cost sharing, and work requirements, suspension of cancellation, eliminating cost sharing and work requirements, and allowing medical providers to presume that uninsured people are eligible.

2) Immediately expanding BadgerCare. This would both cover at least 75,000 more people, and free up $340 million that can be immediately deployed in the fight to contain COVID-19, including Wisconsin getting its fair share of testing kits and critical medical supplies.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3) Mandating that health insurance plans pay fully for all treatment resulting from seeking medical attention for COVID-19. So far, Wisconsin has only recommended that insurers suspend copays and deductibles.

Thank you again for your leadership during this crisis. I ask you to continue that strong leadership by supporting these actions.

Sincerely,
Hans Breitenmoser

Good morning Crystal,

Thank you for reaching out to our office. You are absolutely correct that childcare facilities and childcare and early education providers are one of the backbones of our society- and this crisis has shone a bright light on that. We understand and fully appreciate that some of the directives and suggestions from DCF to the child care centers have been unrealistic, and know many child care workers are baffled on how they are supposed to make sure toddlers under their care are social distancing.

I can assure you that all of your suggested policy measures will likely be a part of the conversations the legislature and governor are having as we navigate how the state addresses this situation and assess our state's available resources for the response to COVID-19.

Still a driver of our economy, child care is now also the backbone to our state’s response to COVID19; how can essential workers provide health care and other emergency services without it? Early care and education programs must be financially supported now and in the future so that they are able to continue to serve Wisconsin families. Here’s what we are asking you to support:

1. A not less than $250/week “essential child care worker payment”, or hazard payment, over and above regular pay to serve as an incentive to recruit providers and support their valuable service.
2. Health care coverage for early childhood educators and child care providers who, often without adequate health insurance, are putting their own well-being in jeopardy in order to continue to care for children. Keep in mind that NO young child abides by physical distancing, and young children are NOT immune to the virus. While symptoms in children generally seem to be milder, they spread the virus in the same way adults do. And unfortunately, the first infant death due to COVID-19 was just reported on Sunday, March 29.
3. A temporary “license-exempt” status for an early childhood educator going into an essential worker’s home to care for their children in the event that the essential worker qualifies for Wisconsin Shares as a financial support for child care payment.
4. Grants to child care programs, based on March 1, 2020 enrollment, to make up for lost revenue and increased expenses as they ensure continued care for essential worker families and/or have temporarily closed due to COVID19.

Subject: RE: Take action now to ensure every voter can safely cast a ballot on April 7

Roger,
Thank you for your question and allowing me to explain why a total mail-in ballot election at this point is not a feasible option. The other two bullet points you listed are currently being discussed by legislators.

1. There is no way to secure the vote. Mail in ballots would require eliminating voter ID.

2. It would eliminate same day registration as only registered voters as of the time the ballots went out would be allowed to vote.

3. The current registered voter list includes 200,000 voters who the Elections Commission suspects have moved. If those ballots are sent, anyone at those addresses could fill them out and return them.

4. The Elections Commission themselves say they don't have the infrastructure necessary to conduct an election this way.

5. Washington state, who does handle elections this way, has warned against trying to move to this system in haste.

6. I have already heard from several clerks just in my district who have said they simply do not have the time or resources before April 7th to mail ballots to all registered voters. Most of them are already spending their nights and weekends as it is trying to send out ballots to those that have already requested them.

I wish the Governor had consulted with the Elections Commission before asking the legislature to move in this direction. They could have provided him with valuable information on why this isn't feasible right now, with the election less than a week and a half away. I totally understand where you are coming from and also want to make sure that our election is as safe as possible for everyone involved. We need to do everything we can to protect voters and also protect the integrity of the election itself. I will be sending out information later today encouraging low risk, healthy adults (like college students currently back at home) to become poll workers, so that those who don't feel comfortable going to the polls can stay home and vote absentee. The Elections Commission is also offering COVID-19 specific online training for clerks on how to keep their polling places safe.

If you are worried about your safety at the polls, I would encourage you to request your ballot and vote absentee. That deadline ends April 2nd. You have until the end of the day today to register online if needed. Thank you again for your email,

Mary Felzkowski

Dear Representative Mary J. Felzkowski,

Your constituents are currently navigating major priority shifts and mounting challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic – bills, child care, health care, uprooted schedules, and personal and family logistics that are challenging even in normal times.

With an unprecedented health crisis intensifying, no one should be forced to put themselves and others at grave risk just to cast a vote.

At this critical moment, I ask that you help your constituents safely exercise their most fundamental right by:

- Allowing voters the opportunity to vote from home by sending an absentee ballot to every registered voter
- Allowing absentee ballots postmarked the day of the election to be counted
- Extending the time period to give clerks extra time to count the influx of absentee ballots

I urge you to support these measures and implement them quickly.

Sincerely,

Hi Liz,
COVID is not causing any delays right now. We're still turning around returns at the same pace we usually do!

If you have names of the taxpayers or practitioners, I can have my team connect with them on the accounts.

Hey Ann,

Sorry for the déjà vu issue but it's come up again. We have a couple CPAs who have reached out saying that their clients are not getting their refunds like they have in the past. Normally, after submitting it takes about a week, maybe two. Now they are getting messages that it will take 6-12 weeks. I know the tagline is that any refund can take up to 12 weeks, but they wanted me to reach out to see if COVID is causing delays.

Thanks!

Hi Liz,

During the Wisconsin public health emergency declaration we are reimbursing for teledentistry services in Medicaid as long as they are covered services that can be delivered with functional equivalency to the face-to-face service. So things like evaluation and management and diagnostic services provided in real-time could qualify for tele-dentistry reimbursement but services that would require hands-on care would likely not qualify for reimbursement. Dentistry is obviously more limited in what they can do remotely but the FH update from 3/30 was sent to dentists enrolled in Medicaid.

I can't speak as much to the bill from Rep. Loudenbeck and Sen. Kooyenga as the DEB is under DSPS' purview.

Good morning,

I am writing to you in respect to the bill to address the lack of legislative recognition and guidance with respect to teledentistry. In this extraordinary time of social distancing, where most dental offices have been forced to close their doors to all but emergent cases and placing limits even on that, it is evident that the ability to provide patient evaluation, information, and arrange for appropriate therapy remotely would be extremely beneficial for business continuation, access to care and dental health. It would only be fitting that this be taken up as part of the COVID 19 response legislation now being considered. This would require little state funding and would only extend the already existing legislation that exists for the medical community. The software and hardware already exists and other states have already enacted legislation and are using this technology. I have attached the letter from Representative Loudenbeck and Senator Kooyenga from earlier this year that outlines the proposed legislation.
Thank you for your time and consideration in this matter.

Hello Rep. Felzkowski,

I am a Registered Dietitian Nutritionist certified in the State of WI. I work for Marshfield Clinic in Merrill, WI. Our clinic will be open 2 days per week beginning next week due to the COVID-19 crisis. I may be providing telehealth services from my home. Per State of WI Medicaid, I use an onsite provider as a "billing override or incident to" when billing for services. Because I will be working from home, I wonder if I will be able to provide telehealth services to this population during the State of Emergency declared by Govenor Evers, given there will not be a provider onsite.

Can you tell me if this Medicaid rule(to bill incident to)is still in place, or if due to the State of Emergency it has been liberalized?

Thank you for your assistance. I hope you are well.

I recognize the grave circumstances facing Wisconsin during the COVID-19 outbreak, and fully appreciate the work state and local officials have undertaken to protect the public from this pandemic.

However, as the April 7 primaries draw closer, and as state officials respond to protect the health and safety of Wisconsin residents, we cannot sacrifice free and fair elections. We MUST do everything in our power to preserve them. I'm asking you today to immediately:

- Mail every WI voter a ballot.
- Waive the rule to have a witness signature on absentee voting, especially since voters may need to self-quarantine.
- Extend the deadline for absentee ballots to be submitted.

This is an unprecedented situation. And it calls for election officials and legislative leaders to respond with a plan that works for all voters… particularly those who have long faced barriers to the ballot, including African Americans, low-income voters, voters with disabilities, and students.

I'm counting on your support right now. Thank you in advance for ensuring our democracy works for every single American.

Subject: Tell election officials, WI must expand voting options

I recognize the grave circumstances facing Wisconsin during the COVID-19 outbreak, and fully appreciate the work state and local officials have undertaken to protect the public from this pandemic.

However, as the April 7 primaries draw closer, and as state officials respond to protect the health and safety of Wisconsin residents, we cannot sacrifice free and fair elections. We MUST do everything in our power to preserve them. I'm asking you today to immediately:

- Mail every WI voter a ballot.
- Waive the rule to have a witness signature on absentee voting, especially since voters may need to self-quarantine.
- Extend the deadline for absentee ballots to be submitted.

This is an unprecedented situation. And it calls for election officials and legislative leaders to respond with a plan that works for all voters… particularly those who have long faced barriers to the ballot, including African Americans, low-income voters, voters with disabilities, and students.

I'm counting on your support right now. Thank you in advance for ensuring our democracy works for every single American.

Subject: RE: Tell election officials, WI must expand voting options

Victoria,

Thank you for your question and allowing me to explain why a total mail-in ballot election at this point is not a feasible option.

1. There is no way to secure the vote. Mail in ballots would require eliminating voter ID.

2. It would eliminate same day registration as only registered voters as of the time the ballots went out would be allowed to vote.

3. The current registered voter list includes 200,000 voters who the Elections Commission suspects have moved. If those ballots are sent, anyone at those addresses could fill them out and return them.

4. The Elections Commission themselves say they don't have the infrastructure necessary to conduct an election this way.

5. Washington state, who does handle elections this way, has warned against trying to move to this system in haste.

6. I have already heard from several clerks just in my district who have said they simply do not have the time or resources before April 7th to mail ballots to all registered voters. Most of them are already spending their nights and weekends as it is trying to send out ballots to those that have already requested them.

I wish the Governor had consulted with the Elections Commission before asking the legislature to move in this direction. They could have provided him with valuable information on why this isn't feasible right now, with the election less than a week and a half away. I totally understand where you are coming from and also want to make sure that our election is as safe as possible for everyone involved. We need to do everything we can to protect voters and also protect the integrity of the election itself. I will be sending out information later today encouraging low risk, healthy adults (like college students currently back at home) to become poll workers, so that those who don't feel comfortable going to the polls can stay home and vote absentee. The Elections Commission is also offering COVID-19 specific online training for clerks on how to keep their polling places safe.

Thank you again for your email,

Mary Felzkowski

Yep, I do that each time. But if there is no spot available, then they say that I have to pay for parking in a ramp or elsewhere. Because the paid spots are now being moved to one hour spots, there are going to be even fewer of them to use in this type of scenario, so I'm just anticipating that we are then going to need to pay for parking more often. Totally understand this isn't your fault! I just don't think we should have to pay for our spots in the event that other spots are not available.

Maybe it won't be an issue because fewer people will be downtown during that time because of COVID. We'll see what happens! Just wanted to ask the questions.

Thanks!

Hi Liz,

Yes, I know this happens and it can be very frustrating. Call the Capitol Police (non-emergency) 266-8797 and tell them someone is in your stall. They will usually tell you to park in an alternate one hour if they are available. Sometimes they let you also park uphill on Wisconsin (not that last stall). I wish I had a better solution, but that is the route they tell us to go.

Thanks,

Anne

Thanks for the heads up Anne. Totally not concerned for now because we won't be back in the building for a while, but what should we do when the one hours are taken? This is something that happens to me frequently because my spot is across from the post office, so people are parked on my stall a couple times a week. I often drive around the whole square and there are no spots available.

I understand. I have posed this question in the past to our Clerk's office for members who could not find a stall and I was told it was not reimbursable. I have made a plea for better no parking signs (as they are green just like the available parking signs) and really do not seem to deter people. Last I was told DOA was going to look into it. Wish I could do more help.

Yep, I do that each time. But if there is no spot available, then they say that I have to pay for parking in a ramp or elsewhere. Because the paid spots are now being moved to one hour spots, there are going to be even fewer of them to use in this type of scenario, so I'm just anticipating that we are then going to need to pay for parking more often. Totally understand this isn't your fault! I just don't think we should have to pay for our spots in the event that other spots are not available.

Maybe it won't be an issue because fewer people will be downtown during that time because of COVID. We'll see what happens! Just wanted to ask the questions.

Thanks!

Hi Liz,

Yes, I know this happens and it can be very frustrating. Call the Capitol Police (non-emergency) 266-8797 and tell them someone is in your stall. They will usually tell you to park in an alternate one hour if they are available. Sometimes they let you also park uphill on Wisconsin (not that last stall). I wish I had a better solution, but that is the route they tell us to go.

Thanks,

Anne

Hey Laura,

Thank you for your email. The legislature is not able to make executive orders, only the governor is. Have you reached out to Governor Evers to express your thoughts? I know that access to PPE materials like masks has been really tough for health care professionals, so I think a lot of people have avoided using them so that health care members have what they need. Knowing that people can technically make their own with a bandana is good to know.

I appreciate your time,

Representative Mary Felzkowski,

The CDC urges everyone to wear a cloth mask in public. That's because people are most infectious when they're first infected, when they have few or no symptoms. If those around me don't wear a mask, they put me and my family at risk.

FDA modeling estimates that if 80% of people in our community wear a mask in public spaces, we can stop this pandemic in its tracks. The science shows that when others wear a simple cloth face cover, my chances of catching covid-19 are dramatically reduced.

Americans should wear face masks as a way to help stop the spread of COVID-19. "If everybody does that, we're each protecting each other," said Dr. Anthony Fauci, who is helping lead the public health fight against the coronavirus pandemic.

Scott Gottlieb, Former U.S. FDA Commissioner, agrees: "everyone, including people without symptoms, should be encouraged to wear nonmedical fabric face masks while in public."

We need an executive order NOW requiring everyone to wear a (non-medical) mask in public spaces, such as stores and public transportation.

This is not a personal choice issue. My health and safety requires everyone in my community to mask up. Every day we wait results in more lives lost, more people sick, more jobs lost, and more damage to our economy.

Please act today. Every day counts.

We are not selling to restaurants since the shut down. We would use the grant money to feed the animals, pay utilities, buy fuel for tractors and other equipment and just keep the enterprise going. Some of the money we make helps support us.

The SBA website says "Applicant is not an agricultural enterprise (e.g. farm) other than an aquaculture enterprise, agriculture cooperation or nursery." This is why we believe we are not eligible.

Hey Diane,

I apologize that it has taken so much time for me to get back to you, I just heard back from DATCP today. He told me that from what they know right now, it appears that you are not eligible. Apart from the document I already shared with you, he is encouraging you both to reach out to the Farm Center with specific questions or concerns. https://datcp.wi.gov/Pages/Growing_WI/FarmCenterOverview.aspx

I'm sorry, I wish there was more that we could do right now. Please reach out to the Farm Center and let me know how that goes.

Thank you,

We are not selling to restaurants since the shut down. We would use the grant money to feed the animals, pay utilities, buy fuel for tractors and other equipment and just keep the enterprise going. Some of the money we make helps support us.

The SBA website says "Applicant is not an agricultural enterprise (e.g. farm) other than an aquaculture enterprise, agriculture cooperation or nursery." This is why we believe we are not eligible.

Thank you,

Diane

Hey Diane,

Thanks for your email. I wanted to ask a few more questions so I can better understand the situation. Are you currently not selling to restaurants right now that are still open to carry out orders? As far as the grants, are you hoping to use it to cover losses, pay administrative costs during COVID? What on the SBA website makes you think you are not eligible?

Thank you for the follow up! Once I have a better picture, hopefully I'll be able to send you in the right direction.

Thank you!

Good morning,
My husband and I have a small elk ranch in Merrill. We have no employees. Our animals are raised for meat sales. Much of which is sold to restaurants. Are there any grants available for entities like ours? I did check into the SBA Economic Injury Disaster website and it appears we are not eligible.
Thank you,

Hey Dan,

Thank you for your email. Today has been a really rough day. I've talked to people all over my district, some mad at the Supreme Court ruled Governor Evers' order unconstitutional, some mad at Governor Evers put the order in place in the first place, some just scared, or confused, or looking for reassurance. I think a commonality between everyone is fear. I think most people have never seen anything like COVID-19 in their lifetime and they are really terrified of the unknown. I can totally understand that. Some of afraid of losing their rights, losing their way of life, losing their freedoms. I can also totally understand that. Some just want to go back to life four weeks ago, and I am right there with them.

The truth is that there were no easy decisions here. We, both the Legislature and the Governor, have been operating with ever-changing information from all over the place. I've seen a lot of people say that we should have known weeks ago that this was necessary. I looked back to the data we had three weeks ago, and there were 32 positive cases at the time statewide. We didn't yet know what we were dealing with, and I know I was receiving a lot of negative feedback from my area on how things were being restricted unnecessarily and how the government and the universities were overreacting. And yet, at the same time, the Legislature and the Governor were somehow supposed to come together and move an election date, something I think many would see as a total nuclear option. Over the last three weeks, Governor Evers has said publicly over and over that he would not move the election, and legislative leaders tried to work with him and support his decision, as our leader. Fast forward to last Friday, the governor does a complete 180, and asks the Legislature to come into session, with no notice, and with no time or ability to draft anything, agree to anything, or work anything through the legislative process. The Senate and the Assembly have never had to come into session virtually before, so both houses are frantically working to figure out how to do so safely, efficiently, and so that every member can be present or virtually present, to represent their constituents. That infrastructure was not in place for Saturday, which means we would have been calling everyone back to the Capitol, creating more chaos and risk. I had clerks reach out to me immediately asking me not to support Governor Evers' plan because it was simply not possible.

I wanted to provide you with more statistics about previous elections. We are actually seeing some record breaking turnout when it comes to absentee ballots. Here's some Wisconsin election info. Keep in mind as you go through this that Wisconsinites already requested 1.3 million absentee ballots.

- 2008: In the 2008 presidential spring primary, there were a total of 1,524,360 voters statewide, in-person and absentee combined.
- 2012: In the 2012 presidential spring primary, there were a total of 1,088,102 voters, in person and absentee combined.
- 2016: In the 2016 presidential spring primary, there were a total of 2.1 million voters, in person and absentee combined.
- 2020: In this election, absentee ballots requested have already surpassed total voters in 2012, and are less than 700,000 people away from 2016 totals, just in absentee ballots requested.
- It makes sense that there were more voters in 2016 than in 2012 because both Republicans and Democrats were electing their party's presidential candidate. It's more likely that we will see numbers closer to 2012 because only one party has a primary for their party's presidential candidate.

- The 2008 presidential primary numbers also support the trend that there is lower turnout in general when only one party is choosing their presidential candidate.
- So with over 1.3 absentee ballots already requested this year, we are definitely on track to have a typical amount, if not an elevated level, of turnout for this presidential primary election.

Long story short here, we are not going to see low turnout in this election, and I have been telling everyone I know, Republicans, Democrats, Independents, to vote absentee.

I don't disagree with you that the information we have right now, today, supports moving the Election date. It has not been along the way, and I don't believe the medical advice has been consistent over the last several weeks. The CDC has changed their rulings on whether COVID lives on surfaces, changed what the symptoms are, changed whether or not people should be wearing masks. As the CDC learns more about the virus, so do we as people. It certainly makes moving forward easier, but it definitely doesn't give us the ability to go back and change decisions already made. None of these situations or decisions are or have been easy, and I have to say that the suggestion I don't care about my own family or my constituents' health and well-being is just wrong. At the end of the day, the Governor changed his mind and asked for something when it was too late to the Legislature give it. Regardless of whether or not someone believes the election should be moved (and I totally understand why people are hoping for that outcome), what Governor Evers issued today was unconstitutional. Republicans did not decide that, the Constitution and the Supreme Court did.

This situation has been scary for all involved, and we do the best we can with what we have and know at the time. I hope you can understand that, but if not, then I'm happy to talk to you about it further.

Thank you, have a good night.

Mary

Why is Wi the only state in the country that is holding an April primary election? Because the Republicans could care less about safety and more about the politics of a low voter turnout. The Republican party has become a calais disgrace to the american democracy. I was a Republican for years but the total disregard for the general public by the party has become so blatant that I no longer affiliate in any way with it. Shame on all of you ... America deserves a new conservative party ... like the party of Eisenhower that actually cared for the welfare of all.

Hi Liz,

The information has been communicated to Dan both in conversation with his team as well as in writing. All of the areas he lists have been addressed with Dan in one way or another. The team is finding it more and more difficult to effectively communicate with Dan due to his tendency to reach out to others rather than communicate with them directly.

Though I appreciate what you're doing in providing Dan an outlet and a listening ear, directing him back to his IDT would be the best course of action. They are working with Dan to identify his needs and outcomes. I can assure you there are no lack of attempts for them in trying to communicate with Dan.

Dan may also have other options as Family Care is a voluntary program. If Dan continues to be dissatisfied with the feedback provided by his team, he is able to seek out other options that may be available to him via the ADRC (Aging and Disability Resource Center).

Many thanks,

Hi Liz,

We would appreciate your assistance in having Dan continue to work with his team. We are in agreement with the guidance provided by Christy Daley. It is important Dan advocate for himself and do so via his team as they are the entity working directly with him to determine his outcomes and authorize supports. For those items outside of the benefit package, we will continue to be unable to fund the resources Dan is requesting.

Liz,

I have heard about more concerns than just the hours from this member and I have directed him to his Inclusa Team or the appropriate office to assist him. I do not feel comfortable discussing his list of past concerns due to the complexity of the situation. I insisted he self-advocate so that the communication is clear. I have advocated for him and feel that at this point he needs to have a conversation with his new team and discuss what his needs are going forward.

Thank you Krista.

I'm sure the answer is yes, but does Dan understand which items are outside his benefit package? From the very beginning, I don't have a strong understanding of what is allowed and what is not, so when he emails, we have nothing to say.

Thanks,

Hi Liz,

We would appreciate your assistance in having Dan continue to work with his team. We are in agreement with the guidance provided by Christy Daley. It is important Dan advocate for himself and do so via his team as they are the entity working directly with him to determine his outcomes and authorize supports. For those items outside of the benefit package, we will continue to be unable to fund the resources Dan is requesting.

Many thanks,

Liz,

I have heard about more concerns than just the hours from this member and I have directed him to his Inclusa Team or the appropriate office to assist him. I do not feel comfortable discussing his list of past concerns due to the complexity of the situation. I insisted he self-advocate so that the communication is clear. I have advocated for him and feel that at this point he needs to have a conversation with his new team and discuss what his needs are going forward.

Therefore, as I explained on 3/23 you need to specifically ask your new Inclusa Team for SHC through an agency as you are no longer eligible for the self-directed program for this service. Hey Diane,

Thanks for your email. I wanted to ask a few more questions so I can better understand the situation. Are you currently not selling to restaurants right now that are still open to carry out orders? As far as the grants, are you hoping to use it to cover losses, pay administrative costs during COVID? What on the SBA website makes you think you are not eligible?

Thank you for the follow up! Once I have a better picture, hopefully I'll be able to send you in the right direction.

Diane,

According to Governor Evers' Stay-At-Home Order released today, the following enforcement measures are in effect starting tomorrow morning:

ENFORCEMENT
17. Enforcement. This Order is enforceable by any local law enforcement official, including county sheriffs. Violation or obstruction of this Order is punishable by up to 30 days imprisonment, or up to $250 fine, or both. Wis. Stat. § 252.25.
18. Severability. If any provision of this Order or its application to any person or circumstance is held to be invalid, then the remainder of the Order, including the application of such part or provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected and shall continue in full force and effect. To this end, the provisions of this Order are severable.

19. Supremacy. This Order supersedes any local order that is in conflict with this order.
20. Duration. This Order shall become effective at 8:00 a.m. on Wednesday, March 25, 2020 and will remain in effect until 8:00 a.m. on Friday,
; April 24, 2020, or until a superseding order is issued.

Because his order prohibited non-essential travel, this section of his order would apply to you.

Please let me know if there is more information I can get for you,

Hey Krista,

Just wanted you to continue to be in the loop. My efforts to help him clarify his needs so that I can hopefully get those clarifications to you have not been going well. It really seems like Dan needs to be in Assisted Living for the amount of needs that he has for just day to day living. I'm guessing this has been discussed with him but he refuses, maybe because of his dogs? I wish there was more our office could do to help.

Dan,

I am happy to communicate with Christy as well. The reason I asked you for a list of your questions is so that there is a clear list that everyone understands and can go off of to respond to. I'm sure everyone is trying to figure out exactly what your needs are, so I'm just trying to help you clarify those needs in one list that the team can work off of. I'm not trying to make you duplicate work or anything, it's just nice to have it all in one place. I will continue to include Christy on the emails so that everyone is on the same page.

Thank you, I'm sorry you're not feeling well. That can be really debilitating day after day.

Hey Victoria,

I'm not 100% sure which polling place you'd be interested in if you'd like to help a different location, so here is the directory for you to look over to find a location.

Hey Victoria,

Thank you for the heads up! I reached out to the county clerk of Langlade County because they communicate with their local clerks on a regular basis, and I wanted to see if she's been having trouble getting ahold of your clerk. She said that your ballot was mailed out yesterday, and it may just be that your clerk does not need any volunteers. I know it's frustrating and it would have been helpful to just receive a call or email back from the clerk telling you that information. I think the clerks are all extremely swamped right now because they are receiving more requests for absentee ballots than ever before, and there is a lot of work to be done by each clerk to make sure polling places are safe and secure this year. I have asked the county clerk for more information about other polling places in your area so that you may be able to volunteer somewhere else. There are some jobs that's don't require you to live in the municipality, but only in the county, and so on. I'll reach out when I hear more from that county clerk!

Thank you SO much for your willingness to work at the polls on April 7th. You are truly helping keep our election system in place, and also helping those at risk say home.

Something I think you should be made aware of. It appears some of the small town clerks have went MIA. (overwhelmed?) I understand with this crisis we all need to do our part. Gov. Evers has stressed this spring election is going to happen. I personally gave our town clerk my information during the February primary to volunteer after one of the workers told me we were short handed for this season. (pre-Co19) Told she had one other name and would be in contact with us for the 2 hour training soon. Nothing. Now this could be a problem with the stay at home situation, totally understand. BUT, she is now totally MIA. Not returning phone messages as we attempted to get absentee ballots so I mailed the forms we received from a mass mailing with needed photo of ID's last week to her with no response. I bring this to your attention because after talking with voters in other small towns, this seems to not be an isolated situation. If widespread, this could have a huge impact on the outcome of some very important elections/issues, not to mention the legal can of worms this could open up.

Just thought you should know what's going on.

Praying for your safety and the well being of your loved ones,

Mary, I read in your email that rest areas are open and it made me think of something I would like to know but don't know who to contact. Hoping you can help me. I am wondering why the wayside at Hwy 8 and Cty A just north of Tomahawk has been closed for a few years? They put in the parking lot for trailer for ATV's and snowmobiles to unload and then closed the bathroom. This didn' make much sense to me. People are going to need a restroom after traveling her and also before loading up and heading home. Thank you for all the info you provide in your emails. Dorothy Jorgensen

Hey Robert,

Thank you for the question. If you are wanting to request an absentee ballot, you have until Thursday to do that. Here is the information I sent out in my e-update yesterday. Please go to the website to request your ballot. If you have trouble, please let me know!

You can still request your absentee ballot, last day for online registration!

Absentee voting is still a great option for those that would like to vote but also want to stay home. Please use this as a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that, TODAY, March 30th is the last day for online voter registration. You can also register by contacting your local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

Hey Judy,
I wanted to reach out to you with a concern I received from a constituent trying to get in touch with her clerk to help with the polls. I know the Elections Commission is running everything through the county clerks, so I wanted to see if you've been having the same issues getting ahold of the clerks in your county. I sent an email out yesterday encouraging people to be poll workers, and I plan to post it on

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Facebook today, so I want to make sure that if people are interested, they are actually able to touch base with the clerks they'd be working with. I'm sure the local clerks are swamped, so it's possible they are just bogged down in work.

Thank you for your thoughts!

Something I think you should be made aware of. It appears some of the small town clerks have went MIA. (overwhelmed?) I understand with this crisis we all need to do our part. Gov. Evers has stressed this spring election is going to happen. I personally gave our town clerk my information during the February primary to volunteer after one of the workers told me we were short handed for this season. (pre-Co19) Told she had one other name and would be in contact with us for the 2 hour training soon. Nothing. Now this could be a problem with the stay at home situation, totally understand. BUT, she is now totally MIA. Not returning phone messages as we attempted to get absentee ballots so I mailed the forms we received from a mass mailing with needed photo of ID's last week to her with no response. I bring this to your attention because after talking with voters in other small towns, this seems to not be an isolated situation. If widespread, this could have a huge impact on the outcome of some very important elections/issues, not to mention the legal can of worms this could open up.
Just thought you should know what's going on.

Jerry,

Thank you for your email on this. As you can imagine, I've received a lot of similar correspondence, and I agree with your sentiment,. Rather than being treated like adults, we are seeing restrictions we have never seen before. I think a lot of the response has been knee jerk, especially the stay at home order. At the end of the day, Governor Evers currently has emergency powers that give him the power to do every single thing he has done. Please know that, while we in the legislature are doing the best we can to work with his office and work bi-partisanly, we are pushing back behind the scenes, especially when we don't believe decisions are being made with science-based/fact-based data. My first and main goal during this time is to continue getting information to the people who need it, help constituents connect with their government meaningfully, and hopefully help to get all of us through this in on piece.

The Governor has these powers for 60 days. After that, he needs approval from the legislature to continue. He has asked for his powers to be extended indefinitely, which is not something I think a lot of my colleagues would support. I think the state is best led in these situations with one leader at the helm to make sure information and decisions are funneled appropriately with the lowest opportunity for confusion and chaos. However, be rest assured, the legislature will continue to demand answers for our constituents, and will be the check on the Executive Branch we need to be.

Thank you again for your thoughts, I really appreciate your time,

Mary Felzkowski

I hope that you can talk to Governor Evers and let him know that I and many neighbors don't like living in a communist nation. We don't approve of having everything shut down because some people might catch a cold and some people die. People die every year from the flu and we have never gone through this. I hope that things will get back to normal soon and businesses will be able to open again. The worst is that now we will have no Church because of Evers order. Unbelievable in a once free country.

Darlene,

Thank you for your email. All of the information we have at this time suggests that COVID is not airborne. Yes, we do know that it can be transmitted through the air from an infected person, say, through a sneeze. That is not the same thing as being an airborne illness, which would allow for COVID to be spread from person to person over long distances. We continue to learn new things about COVID, and I am committed to sharing those facts with my district as they become available. There are a lot of false information sources out there, so I am also committed to avoiding furthering hysteria. I have not seen anything concrete yet, including from the CDC, that would suggest this illness lives in the air. I absolutely agree with you that we need to take this seriously and take precautions. I spent a lot of my time on the radio this morning talking about how we can all do that. Nothing I said on the radio was suggesting we shouldn't be taking precautions, or that we should be ignoring pleas to social distance. I think we can do that without promoting panic.

Thank you for everything you are doing on the frontlines. I absolutely support our health care professionals. I wouldn't have made it through cancer twice without them.

Mary

I cannot say how appalling it was to hear you on WJJQ this morning saying Covid 19 is NOT airborne!! People are not isolating as it is! It is Airborne! That's why we as healthcare workers are wearing N95 masks and working in negative pressure rooms! It can remain airborne at least 3 hours. Get your facts straight. We need your support as nurses not your foolish statements. I'm asking you to talk to WJJQ and retract your statement.

Thanks Krista,

The problem is that Dan says he cannot print anything at home, and does not have the capability so sign such a form. He has asked in the past for other avenues to get that done. Do you know of a way we can do that? He emails us a lot, so I just want to make sure that we know the other side of the story so we can communicate with him on that. For example, in the past he has emailed us about Inclusa's unwillingness to clear his area of snow, but after talking to Inclusa, we got a lot of background information on that that enabled us to push Dan in the right direction, including ordering driveway salt on Amazon.

Just hoping to help out in any way we can. Thanks,

Liz

Hi Liz,

Our Interdisciplinary Team (IDT) assigned to Mr. Forss continues to work through the processes required by our Family Care contract with DHS. Per contract, the IDT also continue to monitor the services provided on a regular basis. Mr. Forss has been made aware of his appeal rights and other mechanisms for review if he disagrees with the decisions made regarding his care plan.

At this time, I can assure you the team working with Mr. Forss follows up with him frequently regarding the services he is currently receiving to ensure they are adequately meeting his needs and to ensure his health and safety needs are met.

If you require more detailed information, we would need to have a signed Release of Information (ROI)ROI from Mr. Forss allowing us to disclose his personal health information (PHI).

Hey Krista,

Thank you for the update. Dan mentioned particular items in his email that I forwarded where he is indicating Inclusa will not work with him (mowing, cook, clean, shop, etc). I'm guessing you are trying to work with him, so it'd just be helpful for me and Senator Tiffany's office to know what he is being told so we know both sides. Even more so if there are particular reasons why Inclusa cannot accommodate him on one of his asks. This was really helpful when he was telling us that Inclusa wouldn't plow his snow, but then we found out from you all that you would, you just couldn't access the driveway because of his vehicles.

Just helps us in our communications with him as we try to encourage him to work with you.

Thank you!

Thanks Krista,

The problem is that Dan says he cannot print anything at home, and does not have the capability so sign such a form. He has asked in the past for other avenues to get that done. Do you know of a way we can do that? He emails us a lot, so I just want to make sure that we know the other side of the story so we can communicate with him on that. For example, in the past he has emailed us about Inclusa's unwillingness to clear his area of snow, but after talking to Inclusa, we got a lot of background information on that that enabled us to push Dan in the right direction, including ordering driveway salt on Amazon.

Just hoping to help out in any way we can. Thanks,

Liz

Hi Liz,

Our Interdisciplinary Team (IDT) assigned to Mr. Forss continues to work through the processes required by our Family Care contract with DHS. Per contract, the IDT also continue to monitor the services provided on a regular basis. Mr. Forss has been made aware of his appeal rights and other mechanisms for review if he disagrees with the decisions made regarding his care plan.

Good afternoon Dan,

I reached out to Inclusa to ask about these particular items. They have responded that you have given our office a release of information so that I may speak with them. At the end of the day, it's really important that you continue to work with your team there, but I want you to know that we are here and we are listening.

Thank you,

Krista,
I totally understand. We've responded that he needs to continue working with Inclusa to him many times. Unfortunately, the more we say something like that, the more the perception is that we just don't want to deal with the situation. First and foremost, Rep. Felzkowski's job is to try to help facilitate on behalf of her constituents, so that's all that we are really able to do here, and part of that for Dan is making him feel heard.

Thank you for your help with this!

I will outreach to Dan with a release that can be completed via email and will ask for him to confirm his electronic signature on the ROI. In the meantime, we would appreciate if you would be able to provide a response that provides Dan's IDT the opportunity to continue to work with him. In this situation, the more people that are involved, the more difficult it becomes.

If you have the opportunity and you're comfortable doing so, we would appreciate your responding to Dan that working with his IDT is the best way for him to have his voice heard.

Many thanks and have a good night!

I am more than happy to follow Gov Evers orders to stay at home but totally oppose continuing to hold the election on April 7. That is absolutely ridiculous to put everyone that votes at high risk of contracting the virus. I am an election worker and will not work that day and will not vote.

The election must be postponed. the northern 1/2 of the state has a lot of elderly and people who do not have access to the internet to do the bullsh? for an absentee ballot. sounds like something the liberals want to get a liberal judge on the supreme count. This is about as crooked and partisan as it gets.

Rep. Felzkowski,

Thank you for the information regarding Governor Ever's safe at home directive.

I have a deep concern regarding the April 7 election. I don't understand why the governor refuses to postpone the election. Many other states have postponed elections until a later date in spring. If Wisconsin is in such dire straits that businesses must close, why continue with the election at this time? In my opinion, it reeks of political subterfuge.

I don't favor only voting absentee and I don't favor eliminating a photo ID.

Is there anything I can do to make sure Wisconsin has a fair election in April?

Yes, I have requested and received my absentee ballot and mailed it today.

Sincerely,
Patrice Flock

Here is the legislative website where you can type in the address of your restaurants to find who your legislator is and then can reach out to them. http://legis.wisconsin.gov/ There's a section near the top that says "Who are my legislators?"

Good morning John,

Thank you for your email and your question. All I can do is give you the information I am working with today. Governor Evers continues to signal that he will not be pursuing an Election Day change for April 7th. Polling places are statutorially required to be open, so based on that, yes, in-person voting should be an option. Everyone is encouraging absentee balloting to promote social distancing as much as possible. I do want to mention that, this morning. Green Bay sued the state of Wisconsin over the election, suggesting that the state needs to move to only mail-in ballots for April 7th. Theoretically, the judge overseeing the case could side with Green Bay and institute that, but there is no information at all to suggest that that will happen. I just wanted to mention it so you have all the information I have.

I hope this is helpful to you, please let me know if you need any help with absentee ballots.

Mary

Hey Diane,

I did want to follow up with you after learning of what Governor Evers said at his press conference related to this. He said that the State Patrol will not be pulling people over asking for proof of where they are going or what they are doing. They are hoping for voluntary compliance, but enforcement is essentially up to local law enforcement.

I hope this helps,

Mary

Diane,

According to Governor Evers' Stay-At-Home Order released today, the following enforcement measures are in effect starting tomorrow morning:

ENFORCEMENT
17. Enforcement. This Order is enforceable by any local law enforcement official, including county sheriffs. Violation or obstruction of this Order is punishable by up to 30 days imprisonment, or up to $250 fine, or both. Wis. Stat. § 252.25.
18. Severability. If any provision of this Order or its application to any person or circumstance is held to be invalid, then the remainder of the Order, including the application of such part or provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected and shall continue in full force and effect. To this end, the provisions of this Order are severable.
19. Supremacy. This Order supersedes any local order that is in conflict with this order.
20. Duration. This Order shall become effective at 8:00 a.m. on Wednesday, March 25, 2020 and will remain in effect until 8:00 a.m. on Friday, ; April 24, 2020, or until a superseding order is issued.

Because his order prohibited non-essential travel, this section of his order would apply to you.

Thank you Elisabeth. We received notices from 2 of our customers advising us that they are considered essential so we will need to keep supplying them. Armed with these notices, and I am sure there will be more, and the statement from Homeland Security, we will remain in production and hope this situation is over very soon.

Gov. Evers is closing all non-essential businesses starting March 24th. One of our business publications, Woodworking Network, has stated that wood products are considered essential by Homeland Security. Will we be allowed to stay open or do we need to close?

Many of our products are for the brush and broom industry which is vital for the cleanliness of other establishments.

I hope that you can talk to Governor Evers and let him know that I and many neighbors don't like living in a communist nation. We don't approve of having everything shut down because some people might catch a cold and some people die. People die every year from the flu and we have never gone through this. I hope that things will get back to normal soon and businesses will be able to open again. The worst is that now we will have no Church because of Evers order. Unbelievable in a once free country.

I do not understand why the legislature is opposed to delaying the April elections given the coronavirus pandemic situation. As an at risk person I can tell you there is no way I will go to the polls. What harm is there in having a mail in ballot due for return in May? Put your constituents health and safety before petty partisan politics!!!

Alan,

Thank you for reaching out to my office. As you mention in your email, this was an FCC decision made by the federal government. I represent our district in the State Assembly. While we are without a Congressman at the moment, Senator Ron Johnson's office handles the constituent concerns for our district regarding federal actions. You can reach his office at 202-224-5323. As to the state taking action, while some states have passed resolutions or enacted laws at the state level, a federal rule change which took effect on June 11, 2018 preempts states from enacting ISP network restrictions and places primary jurisdiction over internet service providers' network management practices under the Federal Trade Commission.

Thank you and have a wonderful day,

Subject: RE: Title Company issue

Hey Anna,

So the issue is that this constituent would like to sell his property. One of his neighbors is using an attorney, but she is only one portion of the ripple effect that has occurred from this issue. So he spoke to a surveyer who told him that, to get the whole issue fixed amongst all his neighbors, it would cost between $5,000-$7,000 to fix it in court. He is only trying to sell his property for $62,000, so understandably, he is not interested in spending 10% of his sale on fixing something that he didn't cause. He can't work it out between landowners because his issue is with the title company. The company will not give him a clean title to sell his property until the lines are situated. I just don't know much about this issue. Why has there been a move to using satellite imaging, and how can that trump what is in a current title?

Thanks,

Liz

Hi Elizabeth,

Apologies for the delayed response. Do you know whether the constituent has attempted to consult with a real estate attorney about this? I am aware that this sort of thing is happening more often as the technology becomes more available, but there really isn't any sort of direct statutory solution yet. My sense is that things are often getting worked out between adjoining landowners, e.g., by agreement. These boundary issues are very case specific, so it's hard to give general advice.

That probably wasn't very helpful. I'd be glad to talk by phone on Monday, if you'd like.

Hey Anna,

I have a constituent issue with a Title company using satellite imaging (or maybe it was the municipality?), that has since changed many of my constituent's property lines on a cottage his owns. He's trying to sell the cottage, but cannot get a clean title from the Title Company because of the changed property lines. I've never run into this before. Is this a common issue? If this is indeed in your issue area, let me know and I can give you more details. I'm not exactly sure what we can do for him, but he is saying that he has to get a surveyor to survey his property, and then pay a lawyer to prove to the court that his property lines are where his original title says they are. The surveyor he talked to estimated it would cost him $4000-$7000 to get it sorted out, which is way too much money for this constituent to afford. I'm hoping there is another way because this all seems crazy to me.

I should mention that this satellite imaging actually changed the property lines for several of his neighbors, so there was kind of a domino effect for each property that is causing multiple titles to be in question.

Thanks for your thoughts!

William,

Thank you for your email. I understand your frustration, and I totally understand your concerns. I do not believe Republicans put politics ahead of anything. The Supreme Court ruled against Governor Evers, who operated outside of his constitutional authority. Regardless of whether anyone believes the election should move, and I absolutely understand why people are hoping for that, Governor Evers just does not have the power as one person to move or delay or suspend the election. Republicans did not make that decision, the constitution and the Supreme Court did.

Regarding the polls, I have reached out to my polling place, who told me they did not need my or my husband's help because they were adequately staffed. They then reached out to a dozen different locations to see if anyone needed us, and none of them did. However, I'm going to travel to a few of them tomorrow just to see if there is anything I can do.

Thank you for your email, I hope that, if you are deciding to stay home (which I agree that everyone who is not comfortable should do), that you turned in your absentee ballot!

Thank you for your reply, and I do understand your thoughts. It's been a tough road trying to figure out what is right, especially because everyone involved has been receiving updated, new, or altered information weekly or daily. Hindsight is always 20-20, and I think if we had had more time, maybe moving the election could have been an option. The fact is that the legislature just did not have the mechanisms to do what Governor Evers asked on Friday. It has been a continuous rock and a hard place for everyone, and any move made creates 1000 other unintended consequences in other places. I am sorry that you feel the way you do about the process. Working with the colleagues I do, I know everyone is concerned about the health and safety of their constituents. It is why we have been encouraging everyone we can to vote absentee for the last several weeks. Thankfully, with over 1.3 million absentee ballots sent out, the polls are not going to be nearly as crowded as everyone envisions. I will be visiting the polls tomorrow to help in any way I can.

I hope you stay well too,

These are exceptional times, and exceptional thinking, and actions are needed. Today it was business as usual. When lives are at risk, and it can not be denied they will be, common sense and the love of mankind needs to be respected. Laws, regulations and rules are for the benefit of all, created by our cultural desire to safeguard and protection of all of us. These same mores that are designed to protect us are now being used against us, as evident of the actions of the Republicans and Supreme court. Again, exceptional thinking and actions were needed today, not politics and the pursuit of power.

Yes, I will be voting by absentee. I spent many years in the military protecting the rights of others. Voting without fear of illness or possible loss of life is part of our voting process. Actions taken today violates this right.

Hope you and yours stay well.

Hey!

I just got the following info from a constituent:

 Written by Sean, a local trucker ***

In all this craziness I want you take a minute and think about the American truck driver and pray for them as well in all this chaos! Hours of service rules have been lifted to let truck drivers run longer if hauling supplies directly impacted by covid-19. Yet the government is shutting down rest areas, truck stops are closing there bathrooms and showers. These truckers have no where to pull off to get rest, use a bathroom, or shower. Yet they are expected to do their best to deliver these products on time to make sure we have what we need and have our supplies for our bathrooms, showers, refrigerators etc. A truck drivers life on the road has always been hard, but now it is extremely harder! But as long as they're allowed, you can bet that they will still get the job done and keep America running! Please pray! Better yet call your representatives and demand some help for our truckers.

I've reached out to WisDOT to see if the rest areas are closed. If it is, I've asked them what they would recommend truckers do in the meantime. It would seem to make sense to at least keep them open for truckers to park to sleep. I could see closing the actual buildings because of the exposure issue, but to at least let them sleep? I guess I don't know then what they would do for bathrooms. Just wanted to pass this along in case it's something we can "fix."

Thanks!

Dan,

Thank you for your email. Robin was provided the equipment by his polling place, as was everyone else that worked at his polling place. He was required by his local clerk to wear it, or he would not have been allowed to volunteer. From what I've seen, all poll workers were wearing PPE Tuesday. Objectively, it is more likely that a poll worker working the polling place for 15+ hours will come into contact with COVID than someone who is voting for a few minutes, so the PPE makes sense just for an abundance of caution.

Over the last three weeks, Governor Evers has said publicly over and over that he would not move the election, and legislative leaders tried to work with him and support his decision, as our leader. Fast forward to last Friday, the governor does a complete 180, and asks the Legislature to come into special session, with no notice, and with no time or ability to draft anything, agree to anything, or work anything through the legislative process. The Senate and the Assembly have never had to come into session virtually before, so both houses are frantically working to figure out how to do so safely, efficiently, and so that every member can be present or virtually present, to represent their constituents. That infrastructure was not in place for Saturday, which means we would have been calling everyone back to the Capitol, creating more chaos and risk. I had clerks reach out to me immediately asking me not to support Governor Evers' plan because it was simply not possible. In addition to that, Governor Evers called for the special session on Friday, and then we didn't even receive a copy of what legislation he wanted us to pass until 2pm on Saturday, on the very day we were supposed to be passing it. I understand what it looks like, but it was just not possible on the timeline the Governor was asking for.

The legislature and the Governor are now working on finalizing a COVID legislative package that will positively impact Wisconsinites. Legislators were practicing the virtual session yesterday for those that won't actually be physically in Madison that day. We are all getting prepared to vote and pass what is needed.

Thank you again for your email.

t was amazing to see Robin Voss wearing & wasting PPE needed by our medical people on the news. If he thinks we should all utilize PPE to vote he is no leader. This is not the time for political games people are dying. What a terrible example of a leader. You know better and I ask that you put your best foot forward. Why did you not even show up for the special session that was requested to hold off the election. As an independent I see politics as usual in Wisconsin during a time when people are dying. We need leadership not games. I know you can lead and put you best foot forward. Make you district and your parents proud and lead.

WEEKLY E-UPDATE

POLL WORKERS NEEDED!

With the April 7th election only days away, our amazing local clerks are working around the clock to send out requested absentee ballots and do everything possible to make sure the day runs smoothly and safely. The Elections Commission recently provided local governments with a COVID-19 specific webinar that will help local clerks and poll workers ensure our polling places are safe. That webinar can be found here.
I am encouraging anyone who is low-risk and healthy to consider volunteering to be a poll worker on Election Day if you feel comfortable. As most of us know, our elections are able to run smoothly each year because we have so many dedicated volunteers. Many of our regular volunteers are those who are currently high-risk for the virus and need to stay home.

Volunteering to work at the polls is not as hard as you may think! There are a few different positions, some that require training/some that do not, and some that require residency/some that do not. Please look at the following document that goes through what each of these positions does. If you are interested in volunteering, let me know and I'll get you in touch with your local clerk OR you can search for them on your own by clicking here.

Election Worker and Volunteer Information

Looking to help out at the polls for the April 7, 2020 election? If so, there are several different ways you can assist your community in running the election.

There are several jobs on election day to choose from and they each have their own residency and training requirements. Some jobs, like the Chief Election Inspector, require residency in the Town, Village or City where you serve and several hours' worth of training while other roles can be filled by volunteers with no residency or training requirements.

Here are the different jobs you can do on election day:

- ✓ Polling Place Helper: You can volunteer to help out at a polling place by making sure voters are in the correct lines, assist with enforcing social distancing and making sure the polling place is properly cleaned throughout the day. Citizens who just want to help with these tasks on election day do not need to meet any training or residency requirements.
- ✓ Election Inspector: You can work as an election inspector at any polling place in your county helping voters get checked in, issuing ballots and helping voters register. All you need to do is receive some training which you can take online and be a resident of the county where you would like to work.
- ✓ Chief Election Inspector: The Chief Election Inspector serves as the lead election official at a polling place. In order to become a Chief Election Inspector, you would have to take required online or in-person baseline training which lasts roughly 2 hours. Chief Election Inspectors must be residents of the town, village or city where you live (in a pinch a Chief Inspector can be from the county).
- ✓ Greeters or Election Registration Officials: Each polling place can have one person appointed as an official Greeter who must be a resident of the county where they wish to serve. Greeters can also help at a polling place by making sure voters are in the correct line and assist with sanitization efforts. Election Registration Officials, or EROs, must be residents of the county in which they serve and help voters with registering to vote on election day. Both greeters and EROs must take some training about the job they will be doing before election day.

If you are interested in working at the polls on April 7, 2020, find your clerk by searching using your address here: https://myvote.wi.gov/en-us/MyMunicipalClerk. Just click on their email address to send them a message with "Poll Worker Applicant" in the subject line with a few words about your interest and your contact information!

Job	Training	Training Location	Residency
Helper	None Required	N/A	None Required
Election Inspector	Some	Online or In-person	County
Chief Election Inspector	Baseline Training (@2 hrs)	Online or In-person	Town/Village/City
Greeter	Some	Online or In-person	County
ERO	Voter Registration	Online or In-person	County

Federal Stimulus Package

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

We are currently waiting for the non-partisan Legislative Fiscal Bureau to put together their analysis of what the Federal Stimulus Package includes and what Wisconsinites can expect. Once we have that document, I will send another update to all of you. In the meantime, if you have a specific question about the stimulus, please reach out and we will do what we can to get you an answer.

For now, the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) has put together a summary document that you can see here.

You can still request your absentee ballot, last day for online registration!

Absentee voting is still a great option for those that would like to vote but also want to stay home. Please use this as a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that, TODAY is the last day for online voter registration. You can also register by contacting your local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

Hey Mike,

Thank you for reaching out. I totally understand where you are coming from, and I have heard from a lot of people who are afraid. I know this is an unprecedented time, and we are all learning as we work through it all. Have you received your ballot today? Before today, you have until April 13th to get your ballot to your local clerk. I absolutely believe you that you are a responsible voter, and I 100% believe in your right to vote, as I do for all those who are eligible. I wanted to get back to you about online registration. This actually isn't the case. For this election, all voters were allowed to register online until March 30th (which was extended by a federal judge, but the date before that was March 23rd). So everyone had until last Monday to register online. That can still be a hard thing for people in our area because of broadband issues, but everyone statewide broadly was able to do this.

We are all trying to figure out what is expected for tomorrow and the future now that Governor Evers has filed his new Executive Order today. I'm hoping to update the district via facebook and through my e-update once I learn more this evening.

Thank you again,

Mary Felzkowski

Mrs. Felkowski,

I'm afraid to go the polls, and I was not afraid until last week. I requested an absentee on Thursday that potentially will not arrive on time. Do you believe my vote shouldn't count? I'm a responsible voter.

There is the additional issue that has affected many voters (but not me). You cannot register to vote online within 20 days of an election. With so many having to suddenly turn to an absentee ballot that registration limit seems like it will disenfranchise a lot of voters.

Please write me back with your rationale for your views here so I can understand. I am worried about this.

Best,
Mike

Mary,

I am totally disappointed that, once again, you and your Republican colleagues have chosen to play politics during this current health pandemic! The Governor called a special session to postpone Tuesday's election, and you and your Republican-led legislature dismissed it all in a matter of seconds. Shame on your colleagues and shame on you!!

Despite the entire state being under a "stay-at-home" order, despite you yourself realizing the dire situation with poll workers backing out and your urgent appeal via email for more volunteers to replace them, you have chosen to go ahead and put peoples' lives at risk for a primary election that could—and should have been delayed.

Even worse is the Republican-led effort to block the ruling that would have allowed absentee ballots to be counted at a later date. Voters who requested their ballots by the legal deadline deserve to have their votes counted! What sense does it make to have extended the deadline for citizens to get absentee ballots when many won't get them in time to actually vote OR have their vote counted because they can't be mailed back by Tuesday?! The deadline for tallying absentee ballots could EASILY have been extended, but NO; Republicans had to move to block a lower court ruling that would have allowed this. Once again, playing politics! Whatever happened to looking out for the good of our democracy over partisan interests? Whatever happened to common sense?

I don't understand how in good conscience you could be a part of this. Several other states (I believe it's fifteen!) had the wisdom and foresight to postpone their primaries. Why not Wisconsin? Because the Republicans wouldn't allow it!

Sincerely,
Tom Backen

Hi Liz,
Thank you for reaching out. Everything you sent was great. I did in fact already know that. I was just hoping there was some type of help or relief for the self employed before mid to late April. By the time that gets figured out that's about 6 weeks after the mandatory shutdown that will be without pay. I do see they will back pay which is awesome. If anything comes up in the mean time please reach out to me. I know everyone is working as hard as they can to get things worked out.
Thanks again.

Repeal the one week waiting period for unemployment benefits. This action will make a difference for working families who are suddenly and unexpectedly facing job loss due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Working families need bold support from our leaders as we together face economic insecurity and health and safety danger amid the coronavirus public health emergency.

The Wisconsin Legislature must come together immediately to repeal the one-week unemployment insurance benefit waiting period.

This is one of the policies we are drafting as we discuss potential legislation to help Wisconsinites and small business weather this storm. There seems to be broad support for temporarily repealing the waiting period so that those trying to access unemployment benefits can do so, so I would expect to see this in the legislation the Legislature passes in the near future.

This is one of the policies we are looking at as we discuss potential legislation to help Wisconsinites and small business weather this storm. I appreciate your input and will make sure this is something discussed at length. Now that the federal stimulus package has been passed and signed, we are waiting for the Legislative Fiscal Bureau to finish preparing their memo on exactly what the package does, and if Wisconsin will need to change state law in any way. Unemployment insurance is one of the areas we are looking at closely to make sure Wisconsinites can access those federal benefits.

Hey Jane,

The legislative package was just presented to Governor Evers yesterday, so both sides are looking that over and will make final touches. We'll then be going into session in the next few days. Legislators were practicing using the virtual equipment yesterday so we would be all ready to go for those that are not attending in person.

Thank you!

Hey Melinda,

You are absolutely right that the Department of Workforce Development has be overrun with calls as businesses are forced to shut their doors. They did indicate to us that people will have an easier time if they apply online, so that the call lines can be kept open for more complex cases. If you know of people who are experiencing significant delays, have them reach out to me via email and I can check with DWD on my end. Unfortunately, with the increased flow of requests, the delay may be something we all need to be patient with, but I will absolutely call the department on their behalf if they reach out!

Thank you for letting me know about this. If this problem persists, I will put something in my next e-update about it.

Representative Felzkowski,

We have been contacted by Lincoln County residents who have had difficulty in accessing unemployment benefits there has been a significant wait times.

I was wondering if you had any suggestions on how to easily access unemployment? I know that the office must be inundated with requests and if there is any education we can provide on how to efficiently access benefits, we would be happy to do so.

It may also be an appropriate topic for your weekly update.

Thank you for all you do. Please take care.

Sorry to bother you with this! This guy just needs access to his password (he applied for unemployment back in 2008). He's tried to do it online, but 2008 was so long ago that his information is outdated. He's been calling the number in the screenshot below for 3 days with no success. Is there any way to get him in touch with someone so he can do the rest online?

Hi Liz,

So I have a question regarding unemployment. If I am laid off next week can I claim the weekly benefit this Sunday or do I have to wait till next Sunday?

Want to make sure I am doing it correctly. Either way I still have to get signed up to claim benefits.

And no call but like we said we are waiting.

Sorry to bother you with this! This guy just needs access to his password (he applied for unemployment back in 2008). He's tried to do it online, but 2008 was so long ago that his information is outdated. He's been calling the number in the screenshot below for 3 days with no success. Is there any way to get him in touch with someone so he can do the rest online?

Hi Liz,

So I have a question regarding unemployment. If I am laid off next week can I claim the weekly benefit this Sunday or do I have to wait till next Sunday?

Want to make sure I am doing it correctly. Either way I still have to get signed up to claim benefits.

And no call but like we said we are waiting.

Good afternoon John,

I hope you are all hanging in there with the increase load! We received a question from a constituent that I feel like I know the answer to but wanted to get a definitive answer from DWD:

Another question came up regarding unemployment; Do you have clarification on unemployment eligibility after April 2nd? Example; if a company is considered an essential company and stays open but an employee chooses not to come to work due to the COVID-19 executive order and they feel that the company is not an essential company, would they be eligible for unemployment under the bill that was passed?

Thank you for your help on this!

Hey Troy,

Thank you for reaching out on this. It's a question I expect to get frequently now that bars and restaurants have forced closure. We on the Assembly leadership team are working with the Senate and Governor Evers to hopefully put together a legislative plan that will help people all over Wisconsin. This is an idea we have all been asked about and I will make sure it is discussed today as we continue working toward a plan.

Hang in there, Troy. This whole crisis is putting everyone in a lot of impossible situations, and I sincerely hope that you are able to stay open through it all. Thank you for doing everything you can to do that will still being safe. Please reach out again if you have any additional questions in the meantime.

Hi Mary-

Taking a shot here, trying to lookout for our employees. Is there a way that legislature could discuss waiving the one-week waiting period for unemployment comp. We are running as long as we can during this time but in the drastic event of a government shutdown on industry a temporary waiver of the one-week period would help people out a lot. We are just trying to prepare for everything.

Have a good one Mary and stay safe!

Kristen,

Thank you for sending this email and letting me know how COVID is impacting you. This is one of the policies that is drafted and part of the legislative package that was presented to Governor Evers today, among other policies to help Wisconsinites and small business weather this storm. From what I know, there broad support for temporarily repealing the waiting period so that those trying to access unemployment benefits can do so, so I do expect to see this in the final version of the legislation the Legislature passes in the next couple days.

I appreciate your time and the information you shared. Please let me know if there is anything you need regarding this issue in the future and I can connect you with DWD. Stay safe,

Subject: RE: United Way's 211 - Referrals

Here is what Krista sent me yesterday. I'm sure she is so sick of our office's involvement. Ultimately, we are going to take the same tactic as you guys.

Hi Liz,

The information has been communicated to Dan both in conversation with his team as well as in writing. All of the areas he lists have been addressed with Dan in one way or another. The team is finding it more and more difficult to effectively communicate with Dan due to his tendency to reach out to others rather than communicate with them directly.

Though I appreciate what you're doing in providing Dan an outlet and a listening ear, directing him back to his IDT would be the best course of action. They are working with Dan to identify his needs and outcomes. I can assure you there are no lack of attempts for them in trying to communicate with Dan.

Dan may also have other options as Family Care is a voluntary program. If Dan continues to be dissatisfied with the feedback provided by his team, he is able to seek out other options that may be available to him via the ADRC (Aging and Disability Resource Center).

Many thanks,

Subject: RE: Up coming elections

Carol,

Thank you for reaching out to me. I totally understand where you are coming from, especially because in our area, there is a much larger elderly population, and our polling places already have fewer people to run the polls. You are right that Governor Evers refuses to move that date, has said so repeatedly, and has encouraged everyone to vote absentee when at all possible, and there's really nothing I can do to force his hand. The fact of the matter is that the law/his emergency powers do not actually allow for him to change or postpone that date on his own. This, at least, does give me some comfort, because it means that one politician cannot take away our constitutional rights to vote just on a whim. These are certainly extraordinary circumstances, for sure. One big concern with moving this election so close to the date is that there are already 100,000 absentee ballots out there that have been returned to the clerks to be counted. On those ballots are votes for local positions all over the state. If Governor Evers were to move the election date, many, many local positions would remain vacant during that time, sometimes crippling a local government's ability to make moves to respond to the public health emergency we are currently in. It's also difficult to say when that date should be postponed to because we do not yet know how long the public health emergency will be in place.

The federal government is close to passing a federal stimulus package that will have some funds available to aid local governments. This will allow more flexibility for clerks to be able to do what they need to to make sure this election is as safe as possible for all, including for poll workers. It is the Election Commission's job to work with all municipal clerks to ensure that this happens, and that all clerks have the resources they need to make that possible. In reference to the change you suggested, I have heard that some locations are looking at purchasing pens so that every voter can use their own pen to sign the book and vote with it, and then take it with them. Your suggestion is interesting, and would be something I'd bring up with your municipal clerk to see if they've talked to the elections commission about flexibility there. It may be that state law prohibits anyone but the voter from signing.

Coronavirus and the fall out has created some really impossible situations, and this is one of them. If you are uncomfortable going to the polls to work or to vote, I think you have every right to stay home, and to vote absentee. I know some clerks (and the elections commission) are working on recruiting college students and non-essential employees out of work to work the polls in place of those who don't feel comfortable. If you're wanting to avoid getting sick, I'd talk to your municipal clerk about it and see what parameters they are putting into place to make the day as safe as possible.

As we've seen over the last two weeks, this situation can change drastically from day to day, so I will continue to keep you in the loop if anything changes. Thank you again for your time and sharing your thoughts with me,

Mary

Mary, this is a cry for help. It is NOT political As you know, WI has an election scheduled for April 7. Our Governor is refusing to change that date. Banks, churches, restaurants,beauty and tattoo parlors are closed. Funerals and weddings are postponed. And yet, elections must go on all while using "best practices" .
Absentee ballots are encouraged. Wonderful! However, those absentee ballots still need to be processed by poll workers. The majority of poll workers are retirees. And I'm one of them. How can we do our work while practicing "social distancing" and keeping people out of our face?
Please, please let's just make one change. Allow me to simply check off the voter in the poll book. Waive the requirement that he sign the book. This simple change would keep the voter away from my face. A relative small best practice change!
Please don't force me to choose between my health and what I feel is my civic duty and something I enjoy.
Thanks for listening and anything you can do.

Kelly,

Thank you for your question and allowing me to explain why a total mail-in ballot election at this point is not a feasible option.

1. There is no way to secure the vote. Mail in ballots would require eliminating voter ID.

2. It would eliminate same day registration as only registered voters as of the time the ballots went out would be allowed to vote.

3. The current registered voter list includes 200,000 voters who the Elections Commission suspects have moved. If those ballots are sent, anyone at those addresses could fill them out and return them.

4. The Elections Commission themselves say they don't have the infrastructure necessary to conduct an election this way.

5. Washington state, who does handle elections this way, has warned against trying to move to this system in haste.

6. I have already heard from several clerks just in my district who have said they simply do not have the time or resources before April 7th to mail ballots to all registered voters. Most of them are already spending their nights and weekends as it is trying to send out ballots to those that have already requested them.

I wish the Governor had consulted with the Elections Commission before asking the legislature to move in this direction. They could have provided him with valuable information on why this isn't feasible right now, with the election less than a week and a half away. I totally understand where you are coming from and also want to make sure that our election is as safe as possible for everyone involved. We need to do everything we can to protect voters and also protect the integrity of the election itself. I will be sending out information later today encouraging low risk, healthy adults (like college students currently back at home) to become poll workers, so that those who don't feel comfortable going to the polls can stay home and vote absentee. The Elections Commission is also offering COVID-19 specific online training for clerks on how to keep their polling places safe.

Thank you again for your email,

Mary Felzkowski (Czaja),

Dear Representatives,

People will be UNNECESSARILY harmed or die because you don't want to pass this bill. This is not ok. Care about your constituents, whether they are Democrats or Republicans. You are being selfish by caring more about suppressing the vote in your favor by not passing this bill. For once, do the right thing!

We call on the state legislature to pass bipartisan legislation ahead of the April 7 Spring Election to:

• Automatically mail every registered voter an absentee ballot

• Count all absentee ballots postmarked by Election Day

• Give local election clerks more time to count absentee ballots

In this unusual election, Wisconsin voters and local election officials need to ensure every single voter can safely participate in our democracy.

We need the state legislature to act now.

Patrick,

He made this request last Friday, three days ago. At that time, clerks started reaching out to me immediately asking us not to do this because there was not feasible way for them to send ballots to everyone in their jurisdictions. This request was not more feasible then and it's not feasible now. However, the legislature is looking at extending the amount of time clerks have to count their ballots. It is also looking at allowing all ballots postmarked on election day to be counted.

I totally disagree with you that I don't want people to have the freedom to vote, and I am doing everything I can to help our clerks run this election smoothly. If you don't believe that voting at the polls on election day is safe, then I would suggest you vote absentee. You have until April 2nd to request your ballot.

Thank you for your service,

Its not feasible because you Republicans didn't work with Governor Evers when he first requested. You don't want people to have the freedom to vote without false barriers. Like Drivers License at voting poles, You should be ashamed of yourself.

I am a Vietnam Veteran , served my country and saw many a young man die for the freedom and right to vote. The Republicans have spent all their time trying to restrict that right.

I will be sending out information later today encouraging low risk, healthy adults (like college students currently back at home) to become poll workers, so that those who don't feel comfortable going to the polls can stay home and vote absentee. The Elections Commission is also offering COVID-19 specific online training for clerks on how to keep their polling places safe.

If you are worried about your safety at the polls, I would encourage you to request your ballot and vote absentee. That deadline ends April 2nd. You have until the end of the day today to register online if needed. Thank you again for your email,

Linda,

Thank you for your question and allowing me to explain why a total mail-in ballot election at this point is not a feasible option.

1. There is no way to secure the vote. Mail in ballots would require eliminating voter ID.

2. It would eliminate same day registration as only registered voters as of the time the ballots went out would be allowed to vote.

3. The current registered voter list includes 200,000 voters who the Elections Commission suspects have moved. If those ballots are sent, anyone at those addresses could fill them out and return them.

4. The Elections Commission themselves say they don't have the infrastructure necessary to conduct an election this way.

5. Washington state, who does handle elections this way, has warned against trying to move to this system in haste.

6. I have already heard from several clerks just in my district who have said they simply do not have the time or resources before April 7th to mail ballots to all registered voters. Most of them are already spending their nights and weekends as it is trying to send out ballots to those that have already requested them.

I wish the Governor had consulted with the Elections Commission before asking the legislature to move in this direction. They could have provided him with valuable information on why this isn't feasible right now, with the election less than a week and a half away. I totally understand where you are coming from and also want to make sure that our election is as safe as possible for everyone involved. We need to do everything we can to protect voters and also protect the integrity of the election itself. Like I told Tom Tiffany. You Republicans try and take away Health Care from those who need it. Support a President in your Party who Lies and is in competent.

Like I said 50,000 young men and women of all walks of life and nationality gave there lives so people like you could take away their rights. You are the Party of Lies and deceit.

I will do everything I can to make sure no one votes for you or Tom Tiffany. I do recall when Scott Walker and you Republicans supported a budget that attempted to eliminate Freedom of Information in the state. That way you could hide what you are doing. Also, you passed legislation that eliminated your requirement to disclose who you political contributors are.

Your Republican Hero from Wisconsin, Ron Johnson, Who believes that the Cure is worse than the problem. Meaning Money and Economy over Lives of the citizens who pay the bills. That is what Republicans stand for. Money over Liberty and Freedom.

He made this request last Friday, three days ago. At that time, clerks started reaching out to me immediately asking us not to do this because there was not feasible way for them to send ballots to everyone in their jurisdictions. This request was not more feasible then and it's not feasible now. However, the legislature is looking at extending the amount of time clerks have to count their ballots. It is also looking at allowing all ballots postmarked on election day to be counted.

I totally disagree with you that I don't want people to have the freedom to vote, and I am doing everything I can to help our clerks run this election smoothly. If you don't believe that voting at the polls on election day is safe, then I would suggest you vote absentee. You have until April 2nd to request your ballot.

Hi Liz,

Today Chancellor Blank announced that classes will remain online for the rest of the semester. Because of that, I have made the decision to not return to Madison this semester. That being said, I want to thank you for giving me the opportunity this semester to work alongside you and Stamena. I really enjoyed my time in the office and wish you all the best. Please thank Mary for me as well.

Thank you for everything,
Morgan

Hi Liz!

I honestly have no idea what my plans are yet when it comes to returning to campus. It's going to depend on how they are going to structure the classes online and if my middle of nowhere WI internet will be able to handle it. If I'm in Madison, then I would definitely like to continue to come in

I should know more before the end of spring break when they tell us how this is going to work. If it's okay with you, I will keep the office updated about if I'll be back right after spring break or not.

Hey!

With the news coming from UW Madison about the extension of spring break and moving to virtual classes, Stamena and I just wanted to check in with you to see what your plans are for the rest of the semester. If you need to stay at home, or would prefer not to come into the building, we certainly understand! Just planning out the rest the session/semester.

Hope your assignments are going well!

Thank you for the email. On the extension of absentee ballot return, it was and is still extended. Under current law, absentee ballots need to be received and counted by the local clerk by the end of Election night. Under the current situation, people were able to have their ballot counted as long as it was postmarked on election day. This extends when you can turn your ballot in by several days because, under normal circumstances, most people have to mail their ballots in the week before to make sure they arrive by election day. In addition to that, clerks have until April 13th to receive and count absentee ballots.

Thanks,

Mary

POLL WORKERS NEEDED!

With the April 7th election only days away, our amazing local clerks are working around the clock to send out requested absentee ballots and do everything possible to make sure the day runs smoothly and safely. The Elections Commission recently provided local governments with a COVID-19 specific webinar that will help local clerks and poll workers ensure our polling places are safe. That webinar can be found here.
I am encouraging anyone who is low-risk and healthy to consider volunteering to be a poll worker on Election Day if you feel comfortable. As most of us know, our elections are able to run smoothly each year because we have so many dedicated volunteers. Many of our regular volunteers are those who are currently high-risk for the virus and need to stay home.

Volunteering to work at the polls is not as hard as you may think! There are a few different positions, some that require training/some that do not, and some that require residency/some that do not. Please look at the following document that goes through what each of these positions does. If you are interested in volunteering, let me know and I'll get you in touch with your local clerk OR you can search for them on your own by clicking here.

Election Worker and Volunteer Information

Looking to help out at the polls for the April 7, 2020 election? If so, there are several different ways you can assist your community in running the election.

There are several jobs on election day to choose from and they each have their own residency and training requirements. Some jobs, like the Chief Election Inspector, require residency in the Town, Village or City where you serve and several hours' worth of training while other roles can be filled by volunteers with no residency or training requirements.

Here are the different jobs you can do on election day:

- ✓ Polling Place Helper: You can volunteer to help out at a polling place by making sure voters are in the correct lines, assist with enforcing social distancing and making sure the polling place is properly cleaned throughout the day. Citizens who just want to help with these tasks on election day do not need to meet any training or residency requirements.

- ✓ Election Inspector: You can work as an election inspector at any polling place in your county helping voters get checked in, issuing ballots and helping voters register. All you need to do is receive some training which you can take online and be a resident of the county where you would like to work.

- ✓ Chief Election Inspector: The Chief Election Inspector serves as the lead election official at a polling place. In order to become a Chief Election Inspector, you would have to take required online or in-person baseline training which lasts roughly 2 hours. Chief Election Inspectors must be residents of the town, village or city where you live (in a pinch a Chief Inspector can be from the county).

- ✓ Greeters or Election Registration Officials: Each polling place can have one person appointed as an official Greeter who must be a resident of the county where they wish to serve. Greeters can also help at a polling place by making sure voters are in the correct line and assist with sanitization efforts. Election Registration Officials, or EROs, must be residents of the county in which they serve and help voters with registering to vote on election day. Both greeters and EROs must take some training about the job they will be doing before election day.

If you are interested in working at the polls on April 7, 2020, find your clerk by searching using your address here: https://myvote.wi.gov/en-us/MyMunicipalClerk. Just click on their email address to send them a message with "Poll Worker Applicant" in the subject line with a few words about your interest and your contact information!

Federal Stimulus Package

We are currently waiting for the non-partisan Legislative Fiscal Bureau to put together their analysis of what the Federal Stimulus Package includes and what Wisconsinites can expect. Once we have that document, I will send another update to all of you. In the meantime, if you have a specific question about the stimulus, please reach out and we will do what we can to get you an answer.

For now, the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) has put together a summary document that you can see here.

You can still request your absentee ballot, last day for online registration!

Absentee voting is still a great option for those that would like to vote but also want to stay home. Please use this as a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that, TODAY is the last day for online voter registration. You can also register by contacting your local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

Hey Patti,

Thank you for your email and I apologize that it has taken me so long to get back to you. I have heard this concern from a few others in our area and I understand where you are coming from this. What is difficult about this situation is that preventing that kind of travel would be preventing people from being able to go to their own property. I did reach out to the Governor's office just to see what they are saying and what IL is saying on this.

I confirmed with IL State Police that their enforcement mirrors ours:

- Individuals do not need credentials to travel
- Law enforcement is not stopping motorists to inspect credentials
- Our state borders remain open for essential travel, but trips should be minimized
- Interstate travel between states is permissible, so long as individuals abide by respective state orders
- As always, law enforcement agencies ask for voluntary compliance with Safer at Home orders

Because the borders are open for essential travel between the two states, it would be very difficult to limit travel. It's something we are going to have to continue to monitor as this the situation evolves in Wisconsin. Thankfully we still do not have any confirmed cases in Lincoln and Langlade County, which is really encouraging.

Have a great night,

Mary

Marie,

People don't need to choose to vote or not, absentee ballots were readily available from local clerks for weeks. We have be pushing people in that direction from the beginning, and thankfully, so many people have chosen to go that route. We may see more voting in this election via absentee then we have seen in TOTAL voting for a primary in the past. I agree with you that no one should go to the polls if they don't want to. What I think many don't understand is that there are people who want to. I get calls from people who really don't want to vote absentee, they want to go to the polls on Tuesday and cast their ballot, so that is their choice.

I am really happy to hear you were able to vote and do so safely.

Mary

It is commendable, but foolish in my view, for you and your husband to expose yourselves. And people should not have to choose to vote or not because of this pandemic. I admire the guy from Potosi who quit and wants the polls shut until later. Why the rush? We are all in this waiting game together.Marie don't feel bad about saying home. Thankfully, over 1 million absentee ballots have been requested. For reference, the last two elections, the primary election didn't see more than 1.2 million voters statewide (both in person and absentee). So we aren't going to be seeing the lines and packed polling places like we would normally because, thankfully, most people have chosen to stay home and vote that way. I voted absentee, but my husband and I are trying to find a place to volunteer so we can help out. Please let me know if you know of anyone who is interested! Also, anyone who wants to stay home to protect themselves absolutely should.

Ps We voted absentee. It was handled very cautiously by ourtown of Bradley people.

CORONAVIRUS UPDATE

POLL WORKERS NEEDED!

With the April 7th election only days away, our amazing local clerks are working around the clock to send out requested absentee ballots and do everything possible to make sure the day runs smoothly and safely. The Elections Commission recently provided local governments with a COVID-19 specific webinar that will help local clerks and poll workers ensure our polling places are safe. That webinar can be found here.

I am encouraging anyone who is low-risk and healthy to consider volunteering to be a poll worker on Election Day if you feel comfortable. As most of us know, our elections are able to run smoothly each year because we have so many dedicated volunteers. Many of our regular volunteers are those who are currently high-risk for the virus and need to stay home.

Volunteering to work at the polls is not as hard as you may think! There are a few different positions, some that require training/some that do not, and some that require residency/some that do not. Please look at the following document that goes through what each of these positions does. If you are interested in volunteering, let me know and I'll get you in touch with your local clerk OR you can search for them on your own by clicking here.

Election Worker and Volunteer Information

Looking to help out at the polls for the April 7, 2020 election? If so, there are several different ways you can assist your community in running the election.

There are several jobs on election day to choose from and they each have their own residency and training requirements. Some jobs, like the Chief Election Inspector, require residency in the Town, Village or City where you serve and several hours' worth of training while other roles can be filled by volunteers with no residency or training requirements.

Here are the different jobs you can do on election day:

- ✓ Polling Place Helper: You can volunteer to help out at a polling place by making sure voters are in the correct lines, assist with enforcing social distancing and making sure the polling place is properly cleaned throughout the day. Citizens who just want to help with these tasks on election day do not need to meet any training or residency requirements.

- ✓ Election Inspector: You can work as an election inspector at any polling place in your county helping voters get checked in, issuing ballots and helping voters register. All you need to do is receive some training which you can take online and be a resident of the county where you would like to work.

- ✓ Chief Election Inspector: The Chief Election Inspector serves as the lead election official at a polling place. In order to become a Chief Election Inspector, you would have to take required online or in-person baseline training which lasts roughly 2 hours. Chief Election Inspectors must be residents of the town, village or city where you live (in a pinch a Chief Inspector can be from the county).

- ✓ Greeters or Election Registration Officials: Each polling place can have one person appointed as an official Greeter who must be a resident of the county where they wish to serve. Greeters can also help at a polling place by making sure voters are in the correct line and assist with sanitization efforts. Election Registration Officials, or EROs, must be residents of the county in which they serve and help voters with registering to vote on election day. Both greeters and EROs must take some training about the job they will be doing before election day.

If you are interested in working at the polls on April 7, 2020, find your clerk by searching using your address here: https://myvote.wi.gov/en-us/MyMunicipalClerk. Just click on their email address to send them a message with "Poll Worker Applicant" in the subject line with a few words about your interest and your contact information!

Hey Dave,

That's an interesting thought, unfortunately, like you said, it would need to be something the federal government would change, and not something I can impact here in Wisconsin. It may be something they looked at, but ultimately didn't pursue. I'm not sure. I would suggest reaching out to Senator Ron Johnson to see if he knows anything about that.

Thank you Dave! Have a great day,

Mary

With the April 7th election only days away, our amazing local clerks are working around the clock to send out requested absentee ballots and do everything possible to make sure the day runs smoothly and safely. The Elections Commission recently provided local governments with a COVID-19 specific webinar that will help local clerks and poll workers ensure our polling places are safe. That webinar can be found here.
I am encouraging anyone who is low-risk and healthy to consider volunteering to be a poll worker on Election Day if you feel comfortable. As most of us know, our elections are able to run smoothly each year because we have so many dedicated volunteers. Many of our regular volunteers are those who are currently high-risk for the virus and need to stay home.

Volunteering to work at the polls is not as hard as you may think! There are a few different positions, some that require training/some that do not, and some that require residency/some that do not. Please look at the following document that goes through what each of these positions does. If you are interested in volunteering, let me know and I'll get you in touch with your local clerk OR you can search for them on your own by clicking here.

Election Worker and Volunteer Information

Looking to help out at the polls for the April 7, 2020 election? If so, there are several different ways you can assist your community in running the election.

There are several jobs on election day to choose from and they each have their own residency and training requirements. Some jobs, like the Chief Election Inspector, require residency in the Town, Village or City where you serve and several hours' worth of training while other roles can be filled by volunteers with no residency or training requirements.

Here are the different jobs you can do on election day:

- ✓ Polling Place Helper: You can volunteer to help out at a polling place by making sure voters are in the correct lines, assist with enforcing social distancing and making sure the polling place is properly cleaned throughout the day. Citizens who just want to help with these tasks on election day do not need to meet any training or residency requirements.
- ✓ Election Inspector: You can work as an election inspector at any polling place in your county helping voters get checked in, issuing ballots and helping voters register. All you need to do is receive some training which you can take online and be a resident of the county where you would like to work.
- ✓ Chief Election Inspector: The Chief Election Inspector serves as the lead election official at a polling place. In order to become a Chief Election Inspector, you would have to take required online or in-person baseline training which lasts roughly 2 hours. Chief Election Inspectors must be residents of the town, village or city where you live (in a pinch a Chief Inspector can be from the county).
- ✓ Greeters or Election Registration Officials: Each polling place can have one person appointed as an official Greeter who must be a resident of the county where they wish to serve. Greeters can also help at a polling place by making sure voters are in the correct line and assist with sanitization efforts. Election Registration Officials, or EROs, must be residents of the county in which they serve and help voters with registering to vote on election day. Both greeters and EROs must take some training about the job they will be doing before election day.

If you are interested in working at the polls on April 7, 2020, find your clerk by searching using your address here: https://myvote.wi.gov/en-us/MyMunicipalClerk. Just click on their email address to send them a message with "Poll Worker Applicant" in the subject line with a few words about your interest and your contact information!

Thank you for the email. On the extension of absentee ballot return, it was and is still extended. Under current law, absentee ballots need to be received and counted by the local clerk by the end of Election night. Under the current situation, people were able to have their ballot counted as long as it was postmarked on election day. This extends when you can turn your ballot in by several days because, under normal circumstances, most people have to mail their ballots in the week before to make sure they arrive by election day. In addition to that, clerks have until April 13th to receive and count absentee ballots.

Thanks,

Mary

PLEASE do what it takes to temporarily change the laws to allow therapists to hold counseling sessions over the phone and for them to be billed to insurance.

Mental health crises are already at an all time high - people need to be to able to continue their services to avoid relapses in substance abuse, worsening depression, suicidal thoughts - I urge you for the safety of our therapists and their families to allow counselors to hold sessions over the phone or via Skype. Other medical professionals have masks and gowns that they can wear - therapists do not have that and are in a closed room with individuals who may be sick and yet still need mental health care.

Please be proactive and do whatever is necessary for people to continue to get the help they desperately need. Our legislators and insurance companies need to make this happen - it is not only everyone's physical health that is at stake, but also their mental health.

Thank you for your time,

Lin had stated she thought that her business had Frontier years ago but is receiving all billing from Verizon. She was unclear when change took place or what happened to Frontier as her husband had taken care of everything before he passed away in 2016. After discussing the issues it sounds like she may have landline service as well as cellular. Staff emailed her a complaint form and fact sheet regarding telecommunications so that she can file the complaint and we can address her concerns with Verizon.

Hi Brad,

Hope everything is going well for you!

We recently received an email from a constituent in Tomahawk, Lin Kenworthy, and I had a conversation with her on the phone as well. She contacted us because she says that she has been having trouble with Verizon over the last couple years, and that recently the issues have increased, with her Verizon telephone service dropping more calls over the last couple months. She said that other people have more having more and more problems with Verizon connectivity as well in her area. Lin has tried to contact Verizon on a number of occasions, and she says that they keep making up excuses as to why they can't assist her. She is hoping to get some answers and help with this issue.

Is there any chance that you would be able to have someone from your consumer protection department give Lin a call at some point to try and help her? Lin can be reached at tvcken@charter.net, or 715-453-8352. I appreciate any help that you can provide, and if you could keep me updated on how things are going once someone contacts Lin, that would be great.

I have had pretty good luck in the past when it comes to working with DATCP on these issues, but if you have a contact specifically with Verizon, then it probably wouldn't hurt to run both tracks. It does seem like Verizon's service has been going downhill a bit lately…

And yeah, I tried calling your office about Lin's issue before I sent the email to DATCP.

Subject: RE: vote

Good morning Earl,

Thank you for reaching out! I can certainly help you access an absentee ballot for sure. I apologize about you not being able to get ahold of anyone, it's been a crazy time for a lot of places as staff transition from the office to working at home. Here is the information I provided in my e-update that went out yesterday. Please look it over and let me know how I can help you with any of the steps. The easiest way to get your ballots is to go with #1.

Governor Evers has continued to signal that there will be no change to the April 7th Election Date. I wanted to provide you with more information about absentee voting. Social distancing recommendations will be harder to follow on election day – so absentee voting is a great way to slow the spread and keep ourselves and poll workers safe.

For those of you that have not have voted absentee before, absentee voting is easy and you can do it without leaving their home. There are 3 ways voters can request an absentee ballot. You can:

1. 1. Go online to request an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. This is the easiest method. Attached is a graphic you are welcome to use that outlines the step-by-step process for requesting an absentee ballot online – all you need is a photo of your ID to complete the request.

2. 2. Use the US mail to request an absentee ballot. Go to https://elections.wi.gov/forms/el-121-english and print off the absentee ballot request form, fill it out, and mail it in. Voters will need to know their local clerk contact information as well as enclose a copy of their photo ID with the mail in request.

3. 3. Request an absentee ballot by emailing or faxing their local clerk.

For mail, email, and fax requests (options 2 and 3 above), voters will need to find their municipal clerk contact information. A directory of municipal clerks can be found here.
All absentee ballot requests must be made by Thursday, April 2nd at 5:00PM for the April 7th election.

Please note that, as of right now, online voter registration remains open until March 30th. You can also register by contacting your local municipal clerk. They can use this form to find their local clerk's contact information.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

If you would like to be added to my e-update list, please let me know! Also, which library do you go to? I can reach out to them to see what their plans are so you have more information. I think everyone is just trying to figure things out as this is a really unpredecented situation for all of us.

Thank you!

Hi Mary!

My wife and I would like to vote on April 7th, but we do not know how to access the voter registration form and any other necessary information. I'm 83 and my wife is 79 and our children do not live close by to help us. Ron Johnson's office is difficult to access,too. We called Madison, but no return call has been placed to our address. We'll vote absentee if we can or will vote on site if that is possible. Can you help? Our number is715-453-4311

Also, we visit our library often and they do not even have a message that explains how we can access books or papers. At least they could have a message to let us know how they are handling this crisis. Thank you .....Earl and Sandra Hanson

We are requesting that you both vote to allow Voting by Mail for this election. It makes not sense to ask folks to go to the polls amidst this pandemic. We think we need to vote now, because the northern part of the state has not been represented in Congress in Washington DC since September.

We have already voted by Mail and it is quite easy to do so. Return envelopes should be postage free.

David,

Thank you for your email. Regarding why Governor Evers' order was challenged, the answer is that, regardless of whether or not the election should be moved, and I totally understand why people were hoping for that, the Governor circumvented state law and the constitution with his order. I do not believe that any elected leader should be able to break the law, regardless of the circumstances. I don't believe that there is any good reason for one person to have the power to temporarily suspend our rights. The constitution is what our society is built on, even more important during a global pandemic, not less. Elections are our constitutionally protected way of holding our governments accountable. Allowing for those in that government to mess with that, even in a time of crisis, is so dangerous. I can understand if you disagree, but it's how I feel, and it wouldn't change based on who is serving in an given position.

I hope you have a great weekend,

Your court action to stop the governor from postponing the election until a later date is appalling, given the fact that you made people choose between being exposed to a deadly virus and voting in a stated wartime situation (republican words not mine).

While your argument may be correct, that it was unconstitutional to do that, it is an unacceptable argument given current conditions. You guys are supposed to solve problems, your approach did not solve the problem. You should have worked with the governor to fix this issue.

Your job is to figure out a way to solve this problem and not just bull your way through it with an unconscionable constitutionality argument.

Your approach to this problem was not professional and should not have happened.

Going to court to stop the governor indicates you are either inept, incompetent, unqualified for the job, lack critical thinking skills, are just plain arrogant or some combination of the above.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Republican stance in the past has been pro-life, you can no longer use that as a viable argument since you did not care about the people voting.

Voss proved that republicans only care about their own well-being. He was in protective gear while those who drove past him were not. And he was more than 6 feet away from voters he was in protective gear. Yet he was saying it was safe to vote, while he was in protective gear. Republicans are an abomination and a disgrace.

You are an embarrassment and a stain on the district you represent, you are an embarrassment and stain on the state of Wisconsin, you are an embarrassment and a stain on the country and you are an embarrassment to humanity.

Your action indicates that you do not support the Constitution and only represent the wealthy. If your ideas are so good, you should not need to keep people from voting in a wartime environment.

The very fact that the president of the country and other Republicans have stated many times that if you let everyone vote Republicans can't win. I have also heard Republicans say that people don't understand their policies or arguments and therefore republicans must lie, cheat and gerrymander to win. It also tells me that your argument is no good since you can't explain it well enough so that people will vote for republican.

Republicans are like lemmings; all they can do is follow the ass in front of them. You have proved that by your actions. You cannot think independently nor can you act independently. You are a failure and enormous disappointment. Greed is not capitalism it is simply greed.

While I have always been an independent voter I leaned toward republicans. That is over I will not make that mistake again. I am pushing neighbors and relatives to vote democratic. Republicans have screwed this up every step of the way despite what Trump says. All the lying and happy talk in the world don't change facts.

Jim,

I certainly understand your frustration, I know a lot of people are feeling it. I am happy to hear you and your wife were able to vote absentee. I guess I'd have to disagree with you that the only options were to go in person and contract COVID, or to stay home and not vote. Everyone I know and work with has been imploring people to vote absentee for weeks now. There are people who genuinely want to vote in person, and I can't make those people stay home, but I provided information over and over again on how to apply for absentee ballots. We helped people do so over the phone and via email. I reached out to my district to try to help low risk people who wanted to volunteer get connected with their polling places so they could get trained, hopefully relieving someone who was at greater risk. I tried to volunteer at the polls myself, but was told they were adequately staffed and weren't needed. My husband and I checked with several locations and we always got the same answer. I even called this morning to see if any of them needed anything. This has never been about voter suppression, there are few things more sacred than the right to vote. Thankfully, we are already on track to see turnout that is as high or higher than recent years. There were no easy decisions here, and none of them were made lightly, or with disregard, or with malice. Everyone I work with is doing everything they can to help their districts with the information that they have. There simply was not enough time to move the election safely. You can disagree with that if you want, or I would be happy to elaborate more, but it was not an easy decision. Nothing about any of this has been easy.

I think everyone wishes that COVID-19 was not something that was impacting our lives. Everyone is stuck, many people are unemployed or laid off, and I know pretty much all of us are worried or scared during this unprecedented situation. Understandably, everyone is a little or a lot pissed off about things out of their control, and I can certainly identify. All we can do is the best thing with the information we have at the time. And I 100% agree with you that knowing what we know now should impact how we handle the future.

Thank you,

Mary

Representative Felzkowski,

Fortunately, both my wife and I used the absentee ballot system to vote. Many other Wisconsinites today are faced with what was an avoidable situation, a life and death situation at that. Vote and risk becoming infected with the virus or stay home and don't vote. Watching this terrible situation unfold as it did, one can plainly see another attempt to suppress the right to vote in this once proud state. We have become an embarrassment in the eyes of this nation. Every attempt to come up with a solution was met with inaction – the legislature couldn't even meet for more than the few seconds it took to adjourn! I'm sure it took longer than that for the 40 GOP legislators to request that the governor reopen golf courses. Golf Courses? Are you kidding me? What about this pandemic don't they understand? Walking around a golf course may seem safe enough, but somebody has to sanitize everything (even the poles marking the hole). Certainly there will be the usual messages praising our healthcare people (and rightfully so) from legislative offices, but how does one balance that with putting Wisconsinites at greater risk of infection by being forced to vote in person and clean up golf courses? Somebody will have to take care of those needlessly infected and when they do so, they too will face greater risk.

Nothing can be done to correct today's voting fiasco. Moving forward, however, I urge you and all legislators to prepare for the next election NOW. It can be done with true bipartisan efforts. See how other states have moved to a safer, yet reliable election process and adapt it to fit Wisconsin's needs. Forget the old "We-never-did-it-that-way-before" reasoning. Forward – for a better Wisconsin.

No it's not. Everyone is supposed to be social distancing, and only leaving the house when absolutely necessary. Being a witness for a voter is in that category, and you can still do that while social distancing and not spreading germs. You certainly don't have to do it for anyone if it makes you uncomfortable, but it's not against the order.

Hey John,

No it's not. Everyone is supposed to be social distancing, and only leaving the house when absolutely necessary. Being a witness for a voter is in that category, and you can still do that while social distancing and not spreading germs. You certainly don't have to do it for anyone if it makes you uncomfortable, but it's not against the order.

COVID-19 has not changed anything about how many ballots are needed, just whether they are sent in absentee, or used in person, so local governments should be handling that work load and supply gathering the same they would with any other election.

Mary,

Can’t believe that you would participate in putting voters in harms way when there were several clear and safe solutions to this problem. (absentee mail in ballets and postponing election)

We have been working hard to keep our communities free of this highly communicable disease. This was a very irresponsible act that you and your fellow republicans have forced upon us.

The city of Milwaukee because of the high infection rate and lack of poll workers only has 5 voting sites. In a country where everyone should have the opportunity to vote you have by your actions limited that right!
I believe that is called voter suppression! Not disenfranchisement!

Jim,

I certainly understand your frustration, I know a lot of people are feeling it. I am happy to hear you and your wife were able to vote absentee. I guess I'd have to disagree with you that the only options were to go in person and contract COVID, or to stay home and not vote. Everyone I know and work with has been imploring people to vote absentee for weeks now. There are people who genuinely want to vote in person, and I can't make those people stay home, but I provided information over and over again on how to apply for absentee ballots. We helped people do so over the phone and via email. I reached out to my district to try to help low risk people who wanted to volunteer get connected with their polling places so they could get trained, hopefully relieving someone who was at greater risk. I tried to volunteer at the polls myself, but was told they were adequately staffed and weren't needed. My husband and I checked with several locations and we always got the same answer. I even called this morning to see if any of them needed anything. This has never been about voter suppression, there are few things more sacred than the right to vote. Thankfully, we are already on track to see turnout that is as high or higher than recent years. There were no easy decisions here, and none of them were made lightly, or with disregard, or with malice. Everyone I work with is doing everything they can to help their districts with the information that they have. There simply was not enough time to move the election safely. You can disagree with that if you want, or I would be happy to elaborate more, but it was not an easy decision. Nothing about any of this has been easy.

I think everyone wishes that COVID-19 was not something that was impacting our lives. Everyone is stuck, many people are unemployed or laid off, and I know pretty much all of us are worried or scared during this unprecedented situation. Understandably, everyone is a little or a lot pissed off about things out of their control, and I can certainly identify. All we can do is the best thing with the information we have at the time. And I 100% agree with you that knowing what we know now should impact how we handle the future.

Thank you,

Mary

Representative Felzkowski,

Fortunately, both my wife and I used the absentee ballot system to vote. Many other Wisconsinites today are faced with what was an avoidable situation, a life and death situation at that. Vote and risk becoming infected with the virus or stay home and don't vote. Watching this terrible situation unfold as it did, one can plainly see another attempt to suppress the right to vote in this once proud state. We have become an embarrassment in the eyes of this nation. Every attempt to come up with a solution was met with inaction – the legislature couldn't even meet for more than the few seconds it took to adjourn! I'm sure it took longer than that for the 40 GOP legislators to request that the governor reopen golf courses. Golf Courses? Are you kidding me? What about this pandemic don't they understand? Walking around a golf course may seem safe enough, but somebody has to sanitize everything (even the poles marking the hole). Certainly there will be the usual messages praising our healthcare people (and rightfully so) from legislative offices, but how does one balance that with putting Wisconsinites at greater risk of infection by being forced to vote in person and clean up golf courses? Somebody will have to take care of those needlessly infected and when they do so, they too will face greater risk.

Nothing can be done to correct today's voting fiasco. Moving forward, however, I urge you and all legislators to prepare for the next election NOW. It can be done with true bipartisan efforts. See how other states have moved to a safer, yet reliable election process and adapt it to fit Wisconsin's needs. Forget the old "We-never-did-it-that-way-before" reasoning. Forward – for a better Wisconsin.

Subject: WHA Creates New COVID-19 Dashboard

Good afternoon,

Please see the message below from WHA President/CEO Eric Borgerding regarding the creation of a new WHA COVID-19 dashboard.

Thanks,
Kyle

Good afternoon lawmakers,

Earlier today, the Wisconsin Hospital Association Information Center (WHAIC) released a new dashboard illustrating statewide and regional data related to daily COVID-19 hospitalizations and equipment capacity. As mentioned in WHA's April 7 memo, March 31 memo and an interview this week in Wisconsin Health News, WHA has consistently supported expanding the collection and reporting of COVID-19 data. This includes daily updated information related to COVID-19 positive patients in hospitals and other important, daily update information.

Since this is state, not WHAIC, collected data, WHAIC has been working collaboratively with DHS for the past several days to stand up and offer this daily and relevant COVID-19 data. COVID-19 hospitalization and capacity information continue to be funneled through existing reporting structures at DHS but is now being made available to the WHAIC for publication. This would not be possible without commitment from Wisconsin hospitals to provide and learn from information and the support of and collaboration with DHS.

The WHAIC has served as a public source for health care data for 16 years, receiving commendations for its performance from DHS leadership during both Democratic and Republican Administrations. Its work was furthered by the Legislature in 2016, when WHA worked closely with a bipartisan group of lawmakers (Senator Howard Marklein, then-Representative Dale Kooyenga, Representative Joe Sanfelippo and Representative Daniel Riemer) to enact significant improvements to the hospital discharge data program operated by WHAIC. The legislation was signed into law during WHA's Advocacy Day in 2016, in front of 1,100 of Wisconsin's hospital advocates, many of who are now on the front lines of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Collecting and disseminating health care data and public information transparency is WHAIC's role. WHA and WHAIC have created and operated the PricePoint and Checkpoint web sites, which have provided cost and quality data directly to health care consumers since 2004 and 2005, respectively. These groundbreaking transparency efforts have been frequently cited and lauded by WI lawmakers, and WHAIC's PricePoint website is so well regarded that 10 other states use it to provide price transparency information for their own citizens. Through partnership and collaboration, Wisconsin remains a national leader in hospital and health care transparency, of which today's information is another example.

Again, we encourage you to visit the new dashboard to see this information for yourself. If you have questions about this dashboard or how the state collects COVID-19 related data and the process that has been used to report COVID-19 data, please let us know.

Sincerely,

Dear Wisconsin Lawmaker,

As I wrote to you yesterday, WHA has been focused on gathering and sharing data to inform decisions responding to the global COVID 19 outbreak in Wisconsin. Yesterday, we shared this infographic, describing actions hospitals are taking to assure citizens are cared for during this time. Your hospitals are taking all necessary steps to be there for your constituents and their families.

Many have been calling for more complete information about COVID-19 in Wisconsin, and so has WHA. In addition to the information we've been providing, we are pleased to see the state today begin posting information related to hospitalizations for COVID 19 positive patients. WHA has been encouraging the State Emergency Operations Command (SEOC) to collect and disseminate this information, today is a positive step. The data and analytics need to expand and improve, and we expect to happen very soon. We all need more relevant, daily updated information, the sooner the better.

As I noted yesterday, statewide and regional data is critical to gauge the spread of COVID-19 infection, its impacts and efficacy of mitigation strategies. The more we can do to collect and disseminate daily updated information on infection rate and growth, impact on the health care system, PPE supply and other key indicators of preparedness and impact, the better positioned Wisconsin hospitals, caregivers and policymakers will be to make prudent decisions and choices going forward.

Many of you have taken the time to reach out to us directly and ask good questions. We are grateful for the Q & A, dialogue, and the expressions of support for our state's hospitals and the women and men serving on their front lines – its greatly appreciated!

Sincerely,

Thank you for passing this along, and for your other emails this week. Regarding Dr. Kraig's email, I'm confused because this seems to be a conflicting report from what we are hearing. I just did a quick google search, but based on the articles I'm seeing, insurance companies are covering the cost of testing for free, and some are even covering the treatment for free.

Subject: What We Must Do to Contain COVID-19

Dear Donald,

I want to thank you for all the changes you have made in your life to help protect the whole community during this deadly pandemic. This unprecedented crisis reinforces our shared value that we are all in this together.

As the leading Wisconsin advocates for making health care a right, our team has been working intensively to determine what our federal and state governments must do to contain this coronavirus.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Our research finds that a critical thing our elected leaders must do is guaranteed universal free COVID-19 testing and treatment. This is the only way to identify everyone who has been infected, and interrupt the deadly chains of disease transmission. We need to start by testing and treating everyone with symptoms, and then test community-wide to identify seemingly healthy people spreading the virus.

Here's why we must have free testing and treatment. In a pandemic, the fear of financially crippling health care bills is a grave risk to the entire community because it discourages people from seeking medical care.

A survey of over 1,000 Wisconsinites by Citizen Action and the Healthcare Value Hub found that nearly half of Wisconsinites have gone without needed medical care because of fear of the cost in the last year. A national study found that 68% of Americans consider copays and deductibles important in determining whether or not they will seek COVID 19 treatment.

Congress is now considering an additional Coronavirus relief plan - and we need them to do much more to guarantee free COVID-19 testing and treatment!

The last relief plan passed by Congress included some free testing, but left huge gaps.

The 28 million uninsured Americans are not included in Congress' last bill - and that number is rising rapidly during this crisis. We estimate based on numbers from the Economic Policy Institute that including mass layoffs, there are now nearly 400,000 uninsured Wisconsinites.

Many private health care plans are excluded from free testing. Moreover, all private coverage is still allowed to charge surprise medical bills!

The situation is even worse for COVID-19 treatment. All treatment is still subject to the unaffordable deductibles and copays of private insurance plans. Even under Medicare, which covers the most at risk population, many seniors will face unaffordable copays. The uninsured are left completely on their own.

Congress can solve this problem in its next coronavirus relief plan by guaranteeing free testing and treatment, including all the costs of COVID-19 hospitalization. Congress should:

1. Mandate free testing and treatment in all private health coverage plans.

2. Expand Medicaid (BadgerCare in Wisconsin) to cover every uninsured person in the United States, and guarantee free testing and treatment.

3. Include testing and treatment as a free service for all Medicare beneficiaries, and mandate that all Medicare Advantage plans do so.

4. Prevent price gouging on medications by not giving pharmaceutical companies exclusive patents and manufacturing rights for COVID-19 vaccines, tests, and treatments.

5. To assure adequate supplies of COVID-19 medications, use the Defense Production Act, and, if that is not enough, build publicly-owned drug manufacturing capacity.

We need your immediate help to urge your members of Congress to move and swiftly guarantee free COVID-19 testing and treatment. We have a goal of sending 400 emails to Wisconsin's members of Congress before they reconvene on April 20th to take up this issue.

Will you email your members of Congress?

This also will help us begin to address the horrendous racial disparities in who is dying from COVID-19. This disparity is a moral abomination, and in a pandemic allowing the virus to spread in any community is a threat to all of us.

This unprecedented public health emergency focuses us on the truth that we are all interconnected, and that leaving people out of our healthcare system risks the lives of everyone in our community.

If we pull together and act on this value, we can save tens of thousands of lives!

Sincerely,

Robert Kraig,

Executive Director

P.S. If you want more information, my column in the Wisconsin Examiner makes the full case that free testing and treatment is the missing link in our COVID-19 response.

P.P.S. I know some of you are in financial stress and need to focus on supporting your own family. If you are still in a position to help, Citizen Action will use any donation you can spare to fight for free testing and treatment.

The reason I'm writing is because my mom soon be be 62 received a message from her boss (Dan Sheldon) saying that they are starting to work again on Tuesday 3/31/2020. My mom called back and he said that you cannot do unemployment and must report back to work on Tueday 3/31/2020. They were considered an nonessential business and did not work March 25th-March 30th because of Gov. Evers Safer at home order.

Sheldons fishing tackle, maker of Mepps Fishing lures is not even remotely close to being considered an essential business in my mind which assembles fishing lures for a recreational sport. Not only that but the average age of their work force is about 65 and there is even one worker over 80. They pay very low wages too. My mom worked there her whole life and only makes $12.05 /hr. She will be 62 in May and my dad will be 69 in May. Apparently my mom's boss (Dan Sheldon) said that he contacted Governor Evers and was maybe granted essential business status. I sort of doubt this but would find it more disturbing if he did grant certain businesses essential bussiness opertating status while risking the lives of the workers and their families for non-essential jobs.

It seems in very poor judgement of Sheldon's Fishing Tackle to be operating still. Can you check on if they have some sort of special exception to work and force they workers to work and can't do unemployment because they are open.

Below I listed Sheldons contact information and below that is my contact information. If nothing else can you forward this to Governor Evers.

Mike,

Thank you for the email. https://dwd.wisconsin.gov/covid19/public/er.htm This is a site for FAQs that the Department of Workforce Development is getting. Here is the question that seems to pertain to yours:

Can I stay home if I'm not sick but want to avoid getting sick by not being around others?

- Check with your employer about its policies in this respect. There is no requirement that an employer allow healthy employees to stay home from work, and generally an employee who stays home when not sick has no protection from any adverse employer action taken because that employee stayed home. However, an employer could choose to allow such absences or authorize the use of paid time off for this purpose. Similarly, an employer may allow you to work from home. Check with your employer about work at home options.
- If the employee does not have either a serious health condition, or a family member with a serious health condition whom the employee is caring for, then this type of absence is not protected by state or federal FMLA.

However, we are still receiving information on how the federal stimulus and COVID-19 package impact situations where people at risk feel they need to stay home. I will look into that more and get back to you. I am still waiting to hear back on whether this type of business would be considered essential. I will get back to you once I hear back on that front.

Thank you!

Mary

My mom called back and he said that you cannot do unemployment and must report back to work on Tueday 3/31/2020. They were considered an nonessential business and did not work March 25th-March 30th because of Gov. Evers Safer at home order.

Sheldons fishing tackle, maker of Mepps Fishing lures is not even remotely close to being considered an essential business in my mind which assembles fishing lures for a recreational sport. Not only that but the average age of their work force is about 65 and there is even one worker over 80. They pay very low wages too. My mom worked there her whole life and only makes $12.05 /hr. She will be 62 in May and my dad will be 69 in May. Apparently my mom's boss (Dan Sheldon) said that he contacted Governor Evers and was maybe granted essential business status. I sort of doubt this but would find it more disturbing if he did grant certain businesses essential bussiness opertating status while risking the lives of the workers and their families for non-essential jobs.

It seems in very poor judgement of Sheldon's Fishing Tackle to be operating still. Can you check on if they have some sort of special exception to work and force they workers to work and can't do unemployment because they are open.

Below I listed Sheldons contact information and below that is my contact information. If nothing else can you forward this to Governor Evers.

Hi Marry,
They don't make hardware or pet food they only make fishing lures for fishing. But when talking to my mom they are only making inventory because they're isn't too much for fishing lure orders either. They were shut down on March 25th, 26th and 27th and don't work weekends and also shutdown Monday the 30th. But on Mach 30th he left a message on the phone for my mom to call him back. He told her they we're going to be starting back up at work on March 31th and that he supposedly was told by Governor Evers that they are being considered essential. I think he's just telling a fib myself as I'm even seeing businesses that we're being considered essential businesses close temporary and grocery stores limited people and taking things seriously. One of my mom's coworkers asked if she could do unemployment to care for her 90+ year old mom and he said no. I guess since he said they could work that no-one could do unemployment and would need to use vacation days instead. The problem is my mom said is that roughly 4 different people are touching the same fishing lure and one of the workers and one of the workers has been coughing for over 3 weeks now. The boss's father used to walk through the building regularly but I guess he told him to stay home because it's too dangerous since he's in his 70s about 4 weeks ago. Now all the bosses are also working from home as well to stay away, or possible child care but have all the assembly workers basically forced to work because unemployment isn't allowed and they have no sick leave so if they get sick they are suppose to take vacation. One worker is 70 and is too scared to work and is using all her vacation and another is 84 but still working. My dad called the Antigo Police and they don't really even know how to enforce anything and the chief of police of Antigo is on vacation until April 16th so when the local police is suppose to enforce this they don't even know what to do. I'm may even consider OSHA next as they are suppose to look out to safety and health. It's really just a bad situation all around. I thought small businesses we're to get help to pay workers but perhaps some businesses may say they paid their workers to stay home when in fact in some cases they are basically forcing nonessential workers to work and may pocket any stimulas releif money that may be coming their way which is my fear.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

I don't want my mom to be in trouble or anything so if possible please don't mention my last name. I'm just trying to represent all the workers whos health is being put in jeopardy for low wages ($12.05hr) is what my mom makes dispite spending her whole career there to make what I consider non-essential fishing lures.

Thank you for the email. https://dwd.wisconsin.gov/covid19/public/er.htm This is a site for FAQs that the Department of Workforce Development is getting. Here is the question that seems to pertain to yours:

Can I stay home if I'm not sick but want to avoid getting sick by not being around others?

- Check with your employer about its policies in this respect. There is no requirement that an employer allow healthy employees to stay home from work, and generally an employee who stays home when not sick has no protection from any adverse employer action taken because that employee stayed home. However, an employer could choose to allow such absences or authorize the use of paid time off for this purpose. Similarly, an employer may allow you to work from home. Check with your employer about work at home options.

- If the employee does not have either a serious health condition, or a family member with a serious health condition whom the employee is caring for, then this type of absence is not protected by state or federal FMLA.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

However, we are still receiving information on how the federal stimulus and COVID-19 package impact situations where people at risk feel they need to stay home. I will look into that more and get back to you. I am still waiting to hear back on whether this type of business would be considered essential. I will get back to you once I hear back on that front.

Thank you!

I wanted to check in with you and let you know that I got a lot of really encouraging feedback yesterday about the polling places in our area. Thanks to everyone who decided to vote absentee (currently over 1 million people!), a majority of polling places had a manageable amount of people come through during the day with no lines, certainly not the crowds we normally see on Election Day. I heard from others that their polling place was clean, run well, and had the necessary social distancing in place.

As a grandma, I totally understand where you are coming from, and have been encouraging those who do not feel comfortable to stay home and vote absentee for weeks. It is terrible that you did not receive your ballot in time, and I know the Elections Commission launched an investigation yesterday in what the reasons for that would be. I've heard from a lot of clerks that they sent ballots out to all that requested, so that only leaves the post office. I honestly have no idea why this was such a widespread issue, and I think we absolutely need the answers to that question from the investigation.

Please thank your daughter for everything she is doing on the front lines. She is a hero.

My daughter works at Ascension St. Clare's in Wausau, and my son-in-law works at Lincoln Hills. I did not want to risk any other exposure that might affect my grandchildren.

Subject: Wisconsin Renters Are Worried

Hello!
I was recently added to a Facebook group discussing the recent freeze on evictions and foreclosures. There is a lot of anxiety surrounding what will happen to people who were unable to pay the bills when the freeze is over. Many are worried that the stimulus check will not be enough to cover their basic needs and housing costs if they are forced to come up with backpay.
Many people are calling to "cancel rent" and "give the houses to the tenants". Even as a renter myself, I find this unfeasible and see the potential to create a second blow to the economy as property managers are unable to pay their employees or hire anyone for needed maintenance, property owners unable to pay their property taxes, and so on down the line. I was wondering if you had anything related to this problem in the works, and would like to offer the solution that those of us not prone to socialist delusions and far-left rhetoric had come up with.
Perhaps the state government could work with property owners to cover up to a certain percentage of the backpay if they allow the tenants time to come up with the backpay without a late charge; also, perhaps we could negotiate with banks to tack missed monthly payments onto then expected end of the mortgage.
We know this solution isn't perfect, but we don't want to cripple our local and state economies. We hope this suggestion is the very least helpful in getting a discussion going and a brainstorming started.
Thank you for your time,
Angelica Sack

'Victims' Rights' Proposals Like Marsy's Law Undermine Due Process

By Jeanne Hruska, Political Director, ACLU of New Hampshire
MAY 3, 2018 | 10:00 AM
Since 2008, a national campaign entitled "Marsy's Law" has sought to enshrine in state constitutions a specific and lengthy set of victims' rights. Funded by California billionaire Henry Nicholas, the campaign's goal is to lock its formula into every state constitution and then to amend the U.S. Constitution to include similar victims' rights. Though well intended, the Marsy's Law formula is poorly drafted and is a threat to existing constitutional rights.

Marsy's Law has hit resistance in states in which legislatures must approve a constitutional amendment before it goes to the voters. The New Hampshire House of Representatives recently voted down Marsy's Law by a vote of 284 to 51. The Idaho Legislature voted down similar legislation for the second time this year. However, Marsy's Law will be on the ballot in a handful of states wherein only signatures are needed to put an issue before the voters in November. The potential impact of Marsy's Law, both at the state and national level, warrants national attention and alarm.

Marsy's Law is premised on the notion that victims should have "equal rights" to defendants. This opening salvo is a seductive appeal to one's sense of fairness. However, the notion that victims' rights can be equated to the rights of the accused is a fallacy. It ignores the very different purposes these two sets of rights serve.

The U.S. Constitution and all 50 state constitution's guarantee defendants' rights because they are rights against the state, not because they are valued more by society than victims' rights. Defendants' rights only apply when the state is attempting to deprive the accused – not the victim – of life, liberty, or property. They serve as essential checks against government abuse, preventing the government from arresting and imprisoning anyone, for any reason, at any time. Victims' rights are not rights against the state. Instead, they are rights against another individual. The Marsy's Law formula includes the rights to restitution, to reasonable protection, and to refuse depositions and discovery requests, all of which are enforced against the defendant. Such rights do nothing to check the power of the government. In fact, many of the provisions in Marsy's Law could actually strengthen the state's hand against a defendant, undermining a bedrock principle of our legal system — the presumption of innocence.

This risk further underscores one of the overarching concerns about Marsy's Law: It pits victims' rights against defendants' rights. Creating such a conflict means that defendants' rights may lose in certain circumstances. This result accepts that defendants' rights against the state will be weakened or unenforced in some cases, potentially at a significant cost to constitutional due process. In other words, the chances that an innocent person could be convicted of a crime they did not commit could potentially increase. The proponents of Marsy's Law may not intend for this outcome, but nothing in their formula prevents it.

There are ways of guaranteeing victim's rights without making constitutional mistakes. For instance, in New Hampshire, our comprehensive victims' rights statute preempts conflict between rights by stating that victims' rights shall be enforced "to the extent . . . they are not inconsistent with the constitutional or statutory rights of the accused." This language recognizes that victims' rights may come into conflict with defendants' rights and that our justice system works only if defendants' rights against the state are upheld.

Marsy's Law has no comparable language.

Thirty-five states include some version of victims' rights in their constitutions, but only five states—California, Illinois, Ohio, North Dakota, and South Dakota — currently do so using the problematic Marsy's Law formula. Many states have enshrined language that is unique to their state and that works with their statutes. By contrast, Marsy's Law is in no way tailored to any one state's existing laws. Put simply, the Marsy's Law formula amounts to a constitutional experiment for any state that adopts it.

This experimental "model law" is so expansive and ambiguous, it is impossible to know how courts would interpret it or what its impact would be in any one state. For instance, Marsy's Law includes a constitutional right to privacy for victims, yet it is impossible to know what that right would encompass in practice.

Would it prevent the release of names or crime reports? Would it reduce the amount of information that press outlets are allowed to provide to the public regarding crimes? Could it give a victim and their attorney control over the limits of a victim's testimony at trial?

Too much of the Marsy's Law narrative is abstract, obscuring what the implications would be for our legal system. The multi-million dollar campaign that comes with Marsy's Law focuses on the intent of the law. But, well-meaning intent does not cure bad language. The concern over ambiguous language and unintended consequences are particularly acute because, unlike a statute, if problems arise with a constitutional experiment, legislators' hands are effectively tied. To change even a few words requires another constitutional amendment.

For example, South Dakota passed Marsy's Law as a constitutional amendment in 2016. Now state legislators are going through the cumbersome process of passing another constitutional amendment in order to fix problems with the original language.

To oppose Marsy's Law is not to oppose victims' rights. Rather, it is to oppose the highly problematic formula that is Marsy's Law. There are many ways that states could better support crime victims: additional resources for services, more education about existing victims' rights, and improvements to statutory rights. It is false advertising to suggest that the only or best option is through a one-size-fits-all constitutional amendment.

We should set the highest of bars for constitutional amendments. Once language is added to a state constitution, it is etched in stone. This is all the more so when talking about the U.S. Constitution. Constitutions are not science labs, and states should be leery of experimenting with Marsy's Law.

Wisconsin State Referendum on Victim rights on April 7 ballot

As most of know the wording of state referendums sometimes don't make sense. Below is the wording of the WI State referendum changing the Wisconsin Constitution known as Marsy's Law which is on the April 7th ballot along with an explanation of what this law would change.

At the bottom are listed some cases in which some states felt this referendum/Marsy's Law is vague on defining of the word "victim"
Approximately 11 states have passed this referendum so far.
Also below is a link to the full document describing the history and reasoning behind the referendum.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Introduction

The 2019 Wisconsin Legislature adopted on second consideration a proposal to amend the Wisconsin Constitution. The proposal would amend article I, section 9m, to further distinguish rights of victims of crime, authorize victims to assert those rights in court, and afford remedies to violations of those rights. The proposal was introduced as 2019 Senate Joint Resolution 2, which became 2019 Enrolled Joint Resolution 3, and will be considered by Wisconsin voters on April 7, 2020.[1]

Legislative passage of a constitutional amendment on second consideration is the second step in the multiyear process of amending the constitution. Under article XII, section 1, of the Wisconsin Constitution, amendments to the constitution must be adopted by two successive legislatures and then ratified by the electorate in a statewide election.[2] On first consideration, a proposed change to the constitution is offered as a joint resolution in either the assembly or the senate. A joint resolution, unlike a bill, need not be submitted to the governor for approval, but must pass both houses in identical form. The proposal to provide additional rights to crime victims was introduced on first consideration by the 2017 Wisconsin Legislature as 2017 Senate Joint Resolution 53 and published as 2017 Enrolled Joint Resolution 13.[3]

To proceed with second consideration of the proposal, per the requirements of article XII, section 1, of the Wisconsin Constitution, the 2019 legislature adopted a joint resolution containing the identical proposed changes to the constitution that were approved by the 2017 legislature. A joint resolution offered on second consideration also specifies the wording of the ballot question that will be presented to voters and sets the statewide election date on which the ballot question will be submitted to the people for ratification. The ballot question established under 2019 Enrolled Joint Resolution 3 reads:

> Question 1: Additional rights of crime victims. Shall section 9m of article I of the constitution, which gives certain rights to crime victims, be amended to give crime victims additional rights, to require that the rights of crime victims be protected with equal force to the protections afforded the accused while leaving the federal constitutional rights of the accused intact, and to allow crime victims to enforce their rights in court?

The statewide election date on which the referendum will be presented to the electorate is the first Tuesday in April 2020, or April 7, 2020. If a majority of the electorate votes to ratify the proposal, the constitution will be amended.

1. Both the senate and assembly adopted the proposal on May 15, 2019.

Wisconsin's proposed constitutional amendment

As passed by the Wisconsin Legislature, the current proposed constitutional amendment would amend article I, section 9m, to entitle crime victims to the following rights in Wisconsin:

- To be treated with dignity, respect, courtesy, sensitivity, and fairness.
- To privacy.
- To proceedings free from unreasonable delay.
- To timely disposition of the case, free from unreasonable delay.
- Upon request, to attend all proceedings involving the case.
- To reasonable protection from the accused throughout the criminal and juvenile justice process.
- Upon request, to reasonable and timely notification of proceedings.
- Upon request, to confer with the attorney for the government.
- Upon request, to be heard in any proceeding during which a right of the victim is implicated, including release, plea, sentencing, disposition, parole, revocation, expungement, or pardon.
- To have information pertaining to the economic, physical, and psychological effect upon the victim of the offense submitted to the authority with jurisdiction over the case and to have that information considered by that authority.
- Upon request, to timely notice of any release or escape of the accused or death of the accused if the accused is in custody or on supervision at the time of death.
- To refuse an interview, deposition, or other discovery request made by the accused or any person acting on behalf of the accused.
- To full restitution from any person who has been ordered to pay restitution to the victim and to be provided with assistance collecting restitution.
- To compensation as provided by law.
- Upon request, to reasonable and timely information about the status of the investigation and the outcome of the case.
- To timely notice about all rights granted under this constitutional amendment and all other rights, privileges, or protections of the victim provided by law, including how such rights, privileges, or protections are enforced.

Additionally, the amendment would define "victim,"[14] authorize such a person to enforce his or her rights in any circuit court or before any other authority of competent jurisdiction, and direct the courts to act promptly with respect to such an action and to afford a remedy for the violation of any right of the victim.[15]

At a public hearing in June 2017, groups and individuals who supported the proposed constitutional amendment argued that it provides a better balance between the rights of victims and the rights of defendants. Those opposed to the amendment raised concerns about implementation of victims' rights and possible conflicts with defendants' constitutional rights.[16] Lawmakers revived this debate on the floor of their respective houses on May 15, 2019. For example, Senator Van Wanggaard argued that the amendment would "protect equal, legal rights [of] victims in the criminal justice process." By contrast, Senator Fred Risser remarked that the proposed amendment would be less substantive in practice than statutory changes.[17]

Following the Wisconsin Legislature's adoption of the proposal on second consideration, the Wisconsin Justice Initiative joined others, including Senator Risser, in filing a lawsuit in December 2019 to block the question from appearing on ballots, or, barring that, to prevent votes from being tabulated.[18] However, Circuit Judge Frank Remington denied the plaintiffs' motion in February 2020.[19]

Comparison with other states

Every state enumerates victims' rights in its constitution, statutes, or both. Most states ratified amendments to provide constitutional rights for crime victims during the 1980s and 1990s.[20] Several states moved to ratify additional constitutional amendments relating to victims' rights, or Marsy's Law, in recent years. Prior to 2018, voters approved versions of Marsy's Law in six states: California (2008), Illinois (2014), North Dakota (2016), South Dakota (2016), Montana (2016), and Ohio (2017). In 2018, six additional states approved similar ballot measures: Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Nevada, North Carolina, and Oklahoma.[21]

Generally, partisan politics have not raised barriers to these constitutional amendments; however, court challenges have renewed debates about the amendments' scope and enforcement. In Montana, the state supreme court struck down Marsy's Law as unconstitutional, concluding that it "made substantive and unrelated changes to the Montana Constitution that required the issues to be voted on separately, instead of . . . as a whole."[22] On similar grounds, the Pennsylvania Supreme Court affirmed a lower court decision against the proposed amendment just days before voters cast ballots on the measure in November 2019. (Those ballots remain uncertified as of February 19, 2020, pending further court decisions on the measure's constitutionality.[23]) In Kentucky, plaintiffs challenging Marsy's Law argued that the ballot question was vaguely worded to prompt yes votes from uninformed voters.[24] The state supreme court ruled in their favor and struck down the amendment in June 2019.[25] Elsewhere, courts have faced challenges relating to the definition of victimhood.[26] The North Dakota Supreme Court, for example, heard arguments in a conflict over which party could appropriately claim itself as a victim before the law—a man injured during an assault or the health insurer that covered the injured man's medical costs.[27] In May 2019, the court decided in favor of the health insurer, ordering the man convicted of assault to pay restitution to Blue Cross Blue Shield. That said, the justices did not clarify how future courts should interpret the word "victim."[28]

Hey Liz - I'm not sure we have anything except the recordings of the call, would that be helpful?

Actually, we had 2 calls today. This morning was one with Michael Best and the US Chamber. That one should have ppts from the presenters. The one this afternoon was with the Gov, Missy Hughes, Sec. Frostman, and the deputy sec. of DHS. That one was a call only. Would the audio files or those ppts be helpful?

Dear Community Response Team,
The North Central Wisconsin Workforce Development Board is aware that many businesses are being forced to temporarily lay off workers during this time. We want you to know that NCWWDB and its contracted provider, LETC, is doing its best to respond to layoff notices. At this time, all Rapid Response services are being provided by telephone and/or through email contacts.
The most important message is to get Unemployment Insurance information out to the workers. The attached document has the instructions for anyone needing to file a claim.

NCWWDB is working with the Wisconsin Department of Workforce Development to seek National Emergency Grants to provide Disaster Recovery services. Once these grants become available, we will be providing additional information to the public.

If you have any questions, feel free to contact me.
Thank you,

I spoke with many of my clerks and constituents around our district yesterday, and by all accounts, polling places in our district did a fantastic job of putting in place safety precautions and social distancing measures. Some even had drive through options.

Rep. Felzkowski,

My wife, Lisa Casper is a custodian at Merrill City Hall. She will be working during the vote tomorrow to keep things as safe as possible for the voters. Then she will come home and have to quarantine for at least 14 days away from me and kids. You apparently don’t understand the stress and anxiety you put on the people you are supposed to be protecting! I am a life long resident of Merrill and I pray to God the decisions that the Wisconsin Republican Party has made regarding elections during this pandemic does not have disastrous results and you can smugly say “I told you so” after the fact. Hopefully the political calculations made by the Republican Party is worth all the risk to the citizens of our great state. Right to Life rings pretty hollow.

Kimothy,

That is incorrect. The April 13th date still stands. Clerks have until that date to receive ballots postmarked by April 7th. You are right that I didn't stand in line to vote. I voted absentee, and you are right, everyone across the state, including Governor Evers, had been encouraging everyone to do so. But, I did receive several calls from those who wanted to vote in-person, so they did. My goal was to make sure that everyone who wanted to vote, either in person or via absentee, was able to do so. I also tried to volunteer at the polls, but the polling places in my area told me they were adequately staffed and didn't need me or my husband. Regarding Rep. Vos, he was required by his polling place to wear what he wore, as was everyone else at that polling place. He would have been prevented from volunteering if he did not agree to wear it. Objectively, a poll worker working for 15+ hours at a polling place is at more risk of contracting COVID than someone who is at that polling place to vote for a couple of minutes. That is why all poll workers were encouraged or required to were encouraged to wear protective gear, just in an abundance of caution.

I appreciate that you seem like someone who keeps an open mind. If you want to blame Republicans, I can't stop you. All I can do is tell you the truth. Some have only been interested in expressing their anger, and they have found their outlet in screaming at people like me and my staff. I'm going to keep working as hard as I can for my constituents, as I have been doing throughout the pandemic.

Thanks for your email,

Mary

I voted in Oshkosh. I am 67 years old and have been staying in as much as is possible. I requested an absentee ballot and as of Monday April 6 it hadn't shown up. I called city hall and was told there was a back up of mail, but not to worry because I would have until April 13 to return it. Then Governor Evers postponed it until June, and you and the rest of the republicans went to the supreme (oxymoron) court. And to add insult to injury, you cancelled the April 13 mail in date. So what recourse did I have? Stay home and not vote?, which is what most of you were hoping for. I went and waited in line with a pair of disposable gloves on. No mask, as you can't find one. I'll bet a dog turd to a doughnut that you didn't stand in line to vote. And that dipstick Vos with all his surgical garb on was ever so reassuring. I consider myself an Independent, as I have voted for both Democratic and Republican candidates in the state elections. I read news on a wide cross section of news outlets, and watch ALL the televised news programs. I make my mind up by the person and not the party. I can assure you that I will never ever waste a vote on a republican candidate in Wisconsin again! I hope to god that any of the other voters, or myself don't come down with this virus, but should they, or I, it will be on your hands!

Thank you for reaching out. Unfortunately, the VA loans are a federal program offered by a federal department, which isn't my area. Here is the website: https://www.benefits.va.gov/homeloans/. It would probably be the most efficient and helpful for you to reach out to your federal representative in the Senate, Ron Johnson, who will have contacts he can reach out to at the department. Hello,
My name is Mindy Young, my husband Nick is a U.S. Army Combat Veteran. He has served his country and was deployed overseas for Operation Iraqi Freedom in 2009/2010. I am so proud of him for being so brave and honorable, and to risk sacrificing his life to keep our country safe!
A little background information about us, we got married exactly a year ago, April 5, 2019. We met a little over a year before we were married. One thing we had in common, we each had full placement of a child with autism, so we understood the struggles of that daily and bonded over that, plus my husband had an amazing personality and the most handsome man I had ever seen, I can honestly say I am the luckiest woman in the world to have found Nick to be part of my life.
Nick and I started the VA loan in April 2019 to buy our first home together. With the housing market sales going so quickly we had some ups and downs with our house offers on multiple homes, but we FINALLY found our house just last month! We were so excited, a year later and we were finally getting our house for our family! We had all of our paperwork signed, I had our home insurance options narrowed down to 2 different choices to pick from, we had an inspection of the house, all we needed was the appraisal done and our closing was set for May 1,2020, we were so excited!!!
Last Monday, we received a call from our loan officer that the guidelines changed and we would no longer qualify for our loan! We are so upset! After my husband served his country, and we have everything set in place and approved and signed, and now we are told this can't happen!
I am so confused about our VA loan being cancelled, how could this happen???? We had a conditional approved loan, we had paid for inspections and earnest money, we signed our forms and documents, we complied with what was asked of us, how can we now be told no and that the lender can just change the guidelines after we already have everything in place and paid for and ready to have finalized??? This just doesn't make sense! After everything we have dealt with, and then this is what we get in return??? I feel like I need a better explanation on how we have completed and complied with our end of the deal, and now the lender can just suddenly back out and leave us with nothing! Who is going to pay us back for our inspection and earnest money, and time and suffering over this?? I have cried to my husband about this everyday since, I'm fact I am crying as I try to come up with the words to type in this email.

I beg you, please help us!!! Why can't we be "grandfathered" in for this loan? Why can't we get our house we were promised a loan for? Please help!
Sincerely,
Mindy Young

Hey Roxie,

Thank you for giving me a heads up! I just checked our files, and you are still subscribed! I'm not sure why they wouldn't be going to you anymore, but I've tried to add one thing to your file that may fix it. I plan to be sending out e-updates this week so if you don't receive those and your husband does, please reach back out to me again and let me know!

I apologize for the inconvenience! Have a great week,

Mary

I've appreciated your communication with us in the Northwoods. . . Up until the last couple weeks or so, that is. For some weird reason, I stopped getting them and my husband started getting them! Which is fine for him, but I'd also like to be re-placed back on your email updates list, please.

Thank you for what you do for us and for your help in this matter.

Steve and Margie,

Thank you for your email. I agree with your points, and I think that even though the situation is far from ideal, the election today is open to electors, and has been for weeks through the absentee process. I have done everything I can over the last weeks to help people vote, get connected with their polling places, and connect volunteers with their clerks so that today would as safe and efficient as possible. I can understand that people are scared, people are frustrated. My number one goal has been to help my constituents make it through the unprecedented time to the other side. I in no way have dismissed health risks. I have told everyone I have talked to that if they do not feel comfortable being at the polls, whether as a poll worker or as a voter, then they should absolutely stay home and vote absentee.

It was simply not possible to move the election. I know it's what a lot of people wanted, and I can totally understand why people wanted that, but it just was not possible. I am more than willing to talk with you about why if you want. If you only emailed me to vent, that's okay too.

Have a good day,

Mary

Thank you for your update regarding today's election.

The Republican party has completely failed to conduct this this election in a manner that supports the democratic process.
You have failed the citizens of Wisconsin, and you have failed democracy in action.

Your role as a legislator is to make the voting process as open to the electors as possible – not to place stumbling blocks in their path to the polls. You are listed as being a member of the Committee on Health, yet you have completely disregarded the health of Wisconsin citizens. You have chosen to stand by party lines rather than place the health and safety of our citizens as a top priority. You have placed all of Wisconsin in jeopardy.

It is time to return the job you were elected to do. NOW. It is your job to support the election process, not hinder it. It is your job to place the safety of Wisconsin's citizens as a top priority, not to dismiss the health risks you are fully aware of that exist at this time.

The time is NOW.

DATCP Issues RVP Variance Waiver, Providing Flexibility for Fuel Retailers

Release Date: March 25, 2020

Media Contact: Ti Gauger, Public Information Officer, (608) 224-5007, Ti.Gauger@Wisconsin.gov

MADISON – Governor Tony Evers is allowing the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP) to grant a waiver providing gasoline sellers extra time before they must shift to selling gasoline with low Reid Vapor Pressure (RVP).

RVP measures the volatility of gasoline. High-RVP gasoline is desirable for winter starting and operation, while lower RVP levels are helpful in avoiding vapor lock during summer heat. The federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) regulates the vapor pressure of gasoline sold at retail stations during the summer ozone season to reduce emissions and reduce the effects of ozone-related health problems.

Normally, high-RVP gas (15 psi) cannot be sold after April 1st, when retailers are required to shift to selling low-RVP fuel (13.5 psi). Efforts to slow the spread of COVID-19 have led to fewer vehicles on Wisconsin roads, and less gasoline being purchased to power Wisconsin cars. As a result, the state's fuel infrastructure still contains high-RVP gasoline. The waiver issued today allows fuel up to 15 psi to be sold in the month of April.

The April 1st reduction date is a state requirement of American Society of Testing and Materials (ASTM) fuel quality specification adopted by Chapter ATCP 94 of DATCP's Administrative Code. Any waiver beyond April 30th will need to be requested separately and include a request to the EPA, as the EPA has a mandated RVP reduction effective May 1st. Both conventional automotive gasoline and reformulated (RFG) gasoline are included in the variance. Applicable federal fuel specification requirements continue to apply.

For additional information or to file a weights and measures complaint, visit datcp.wi.gov, send an e-mail to datcpweightsandmeasures@wi.gov or call 608-224-4942.

Good afternoon Rita,

Rep. Felzkowski asked me to send you information on small businesses and unemployment. I'm not quite sure exactly what you are looking for, so I am providing some things, and you can let me know if they don't cover your questions.

1. https://dwd.wisconsin.gov/covid19/public/ui.htm: Here is the DWD website on unemployment. It goes into a lot of different FAQs, so if you can look through this and let me know if you have additional questions, that'd be great!
2. Here is more information on Wisconsin Workers Compensation Rate Relief for Employers Who Pay Furloughed Employees: http://r20.rs6.net/tn.jsp?f=001X1nb6n-pbmSXNnFpa4GuVr4laMFCiUrNTUNumWrtSQY1etywXwAGD9xUyZeNB2FvC7VaskEFYKT0sEB8gkunxPcAFpC6QS_89z24rWFGYHDq0df72yw7ZBbClPjm1D2BhhnV4aKFqaewupNCUkZX1jAfztetPIW8XSSK00xUpr8=&c=E8D0K7yDtYkk2J8IoB6wwDYTQOdTk6cuD624LmTCVbUW61YlAOWaSw==&ch=Cm03bj0fVhpiv8hW_LrZaN34AanYo18R5Yujjt9IVkFZVhfBnE7t-w==
3. https://wedc.org/programs-and-resources/covid-19-response/: Here is the Wisconsin Economic Development Corps (WEDC)'s website which goes into greater detail on Small business loans spearheaded by the Small Business Administration. You can apply for disaster assistance from SBA here: https://www.sba.gov/funding-programs/disaster-assistance

Please let me know if you have any questions at all that I can help you find the answers to!

Subject: Stamena's edits

I really want thank you to each one of you for the feedback. I understand everyone has concerns surrounding COVID-19, and I'm hoping I can help explain why people are hesitant to move the election.

- Moving the date in the middle of voting and especially so close to the election date creates unmanageable chaos.
- Over 1 million absentee ballots have already been sent out, and the deadline to request one is not until tomorrow, so I am sure we will see that number grow even more. The question becomes, what do we do with all of the absentee ballots that have already been sent and already turned in?
- Here are just some of the other questions that come up when discussing moving the election:
    - How long do we extend the election? Some people have mentioned the May 12th special election date and I totally understand wanting to use that date. What if we are still under social distancing, and have to consider moving the date again?
    - What if something happens between now and then and voters demand they be given the chance to change or re-cast their vote?
    - What do we do for the local government positions that are going to be vacant while we wait for the new election date? What if local governments can't respond to this or another crisis because decision makers aren't in place to make those decisions?

Voting in elections is a fundamental right for all our citizens. I totally understand everyone's frustrations that our elections have been impacted by this crisis. Our reality is this: Governor Evers has said the date is not going to move and the legislature cannot move it without him. The Elections Commission has said the date is not going to move, and now the court is signaling today that they are not going to order the date to move.

Knowing this information, my number one goal and my job right now is to help our amazing clerks run their polling places safely and efficiently, so that everyone can get in to vote, and get out quickly.

We have been encouraging anyone and everyone who does not feel safe going out to vote absentee and thankfully so many people are choosing to do that. This means that all of those people are going to stay home on Election Day, making it so much easier to social distance and avoid the spread.

The National Guard will be helping man the polls that day, and the Elections Commission is providing extra supplies to clerks, as well as extra COVID specific training. There is also funding included in the federal stimulus package to help with the increase costs of administering the election. If we all continue to work together, we can make sure that voting on April 7th is done safely.

If you have questions about anything in particular, please continue to reach out. I really appreciate the continued feedback.

Dear Secretary Crim, Deputy Secretary Trammell, and Assistant Deputy Secretary Hereth, Members of the Cosmetology Board, Credential and Licensing team and others,

Subject: Emergency request to approve distance learning for clock hour program

On behalf of the students of The State college of Beauty Culture, we write to urge The Department of Safety and Professional Services approve the use of distance education for cosmetology, esthetics, and nail technology licensure in Wisconsin. State board approval now is critical to ensure students can continue their studies now that school closures are required.

Without Board approval, students will have to stop attending school because they cannot count clock hours learned in a distance modality towards licensure. This will lead to disruption of their education and will set them back in their careers. Additionally, many of our students rely on Federal Student Aid ("FSA") programs to pay tuition and living expenses while they are in school. If the school closes temporarily, then the students will lose access to those funds, including funds used to pay for living expenses. This will create a hardship for students and their families.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control ("CDC"), U.S. Department of Education ("USDE"), the school accreditors--National Accrediting Commission for Career Arts and Sciences ("NACCAS") and the Commission on Occupational Education ("COE")—have all taken steps to encourage flexibility in the delivery of online education, including for clock hour programs. However, all require that the state licensing board accept the hours towards licensure.

We understand that many states have taken action already. For example, Maryland's Board of Cosmetologists acted on March 11, within 24 hours of a request from that state's schools.

We urge the DSPS to act on this request quickly for the protection of our students and their families.

Sincerely,

Andi Burns

School Administrator

Hey Zach!

This email is going to seem like déjà vu, but people in Mary's district are asking her if people are being stopped at the IL border. I haven't been able to find anything to support that this is actually happening, and I know the stance from Governor Evers is they are not stopping anyone, so I'm just double checking. I know we are allowing travel over borders for essential work travel. IL is not stopping Wisconsinites at their border, are they?

Sorry for the redundancy, Rep. Felzkowski just wanted me to double check.

Tuesday, March 17, 2020 — Tony Evers is sticking with Wisconsin's April 7 presidential primary but others push for postponement — Journal Sentinel

Gov. Tony Evers made his strongest case yet Tuesday for keeping the April 7 presidential primary in place, even as others called for postponing the election because of the coronavirus pandemic.

Evers emphasized the difficulty of delaying the election, in part because many other offices are on the ballot — including ones for terms that begin later that month.

"How long do we potentially leave offices unfilled because we're into July or August and we haven't held a general election?" he asked reporters in a conference call.

Friday, March 20, 2020 — Gov. Evers Speaking on a Press Call Briefing w DHS Sec.-designee Andrea Palm

I again want to remind folks that we have an important election coming up.

We have a democracy to participate in. Local and state races are really important.

We can't afford to have any of those positions vacant for any period of time. If we remove the date, that's exactly what would happen.

Moving this date is not going to solve the problem. We could move it to June. It could be worse in June. It could be worse in May.

The bottom line: it is going to be on April 7th.

"The bottom line is it's going to be on April 7th," said Governor Tony Evers Friday afternoon of the Spring Election in response to a question on safety concerns related to the COVID-19 pandemic.

"We could move it to June and it could be worse in June, it could be worse in May," said Evers. "I understand that it's a difficult situation."

Monday, March 23, 2020 — Gov. Evers in a Teleconference as reported by CBS 58 - Milwaukee

"The message still is and will be, stay at home, vote by mail," Gov. Tony Evers said in a teleconference.

Gov. Evers in a Media Briefing:

(https://youtu.be/XmXeGrPuyu0?list=PLrVDlKoVyjBRHeqq9sVg_YGSiovQlj5nk&t=423)

Evers: “Another important date that we want you to know about is voting on april 7th election. I continue to urge all eligible voters to get an absentee ballot at myvote.wi.gov. I encourage that, my wife and I just did that the other day, it’s very easy. If we can do it, you can do it. This will make things safer for all of us, and will give our county clerk’s room and assistance to safely carry out this important privilege that is voting.”

Q: I know that the plan right now is to continue with the election on the 7th. We’ve heard concerns from some poll workers about they’re not being able to have enough to staff those. If that does become the case, or even if an election day shortage like Illinois saw, is there any sort of plan in place for addressing that?
Legal Counsel for Evers: “At the Emergency Operations Center one of the task groups that’s set up is to provide logistical and supply support for the Wisconsin Elections Commission and the clerks around the state. So their task is to make sure there are adequate supplies, including cleaning supplies and hand sanitizer, ballots, envelopes for ballots, and other materials that they need. We’re also looking at everything we can do to make sure that the election can be held in a fair and safe manner. And that’s why, as the governor has mentioned numerous times before, and a record number of people have done this, it’s very important that people today request an absentee ballot. Anyone can do that by going to myvote.wi.gov. It’s the safest way to vote and participate in our democracy.”

(https://youtu.be/XmXeGrPuyu0?list=PLrVDlKoVyjBRHeqq9sVg_YGSiovQlj5nk&t=1843
Q: Are you going to deem polling sites “essential services”?
Evers: “Certainly the issue of having as many absentee ballots and mail ballots as possible is a top priority. Always has been. Understanding this is an emergency that we’re in. What we’re doing now is to make sure that we understand at the state level what needs the local election folks have as it relates to facilities, number of people, and all that, so we’re constantly evaluating that .we’re going to be working with them and WEC to answer your question, we’re in the process of evaluating that. The message still is stay at home, vote by mail.”

(https://youtu.be/XmXeGrPuyu0?list=PLrVDlKoVyjBRHeqq9sVg_YGSiovQlj5nk&t=1924
Q: As we’ve talked about concerns for the election, what about the concerns for safety of poll workers. Is there any coordination to supply any PPE to these poll workers and municipalities and the large number of people in person on election day?
Evers: “The answer is yes, we have in fact just today i talked to mayors about this issue as far as protection devices, whether it’s masks or other things, for our poll workers. Many of them already have that and that’s part of the analysis we’re doing with all municipalities and the Election Commission to make that A) the polling places are safe and B) we feel comfortable that the health needs of the people of that state of Wisconsin are met.”

Tuesday, March 24, 2020 — Gov. Evers during DHS briefing on “Safer At Home” Order

“I can’t say this often enough so I’ll say it one more time. You can early vote right now. You can certainly do an absentee ballot. It’s easy.”

They have worked to loosen regulations if it is reasonable and follow in EPA footsteps during the crisis
Manure spills and toxic spills to the rivers are still tier 1 alerts and the system for those has not changed.
It is important people remember there is an economy that relies on outdoor recreation and we can't let that die
You can stay safe and enjoy WI nature- please encourage hunters and fishermen to carry out from local establishments where they hunt and fish and continue to buy equipment

Answers to Questions from Legislators:
Risser's Question: They are not concerned about crowding and chokepoints at the parks. In more populated areas like the parks near Milwaukee, there is staff on hand to tell people to social distance if they're gathering in large groups. Wardens are still on duty statewide.
Shankland: No, he is not entertaining waiving the fishing license fee for the season. No other state has done this. The parks are already free- MN and MI are still charging people for their parks. My guess is Secretary Cole won't let this proposal move because with the parks gone as a revenue source, they need the license fees coming in more than ever.

I think it was what I was expecting, if not better. Preston performed well.

To: Wisconsin Legislators
From: Badger State Sheriffs' Association
Wisconsin Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs Association
Date: April 7, 2020
RE: Support for Public Safety Retirees to Return to Work

Our organizations collectively represent all 72 Sheriffs and over 1,100 deputies and jailers across the state of Wisconsin. Everyday law enforcement officers across the state work to serve and protect the public's safety. Our members are on front lines of this public health emergency and understand the risks associated with this virus. To do our job, we not only need adequate personal protection equipment (PPE), but also the experienced officers – on the street and in the jails – ready to step in and work.

Therefore, we urge the legislature to pass legislation to allow retired protective occupation participants (including law enforcement officers) and county correctional officers (also called county jailers) to return to WRS-covered employment and continue to collect a retirement annuity. Legislation to permit this allowance is critical and retirees are ready and able to provide the workforce support that currently is and will continue to be required across the state.

We ask the legislation include provisions to significantly reduce (or entirely waive) the current 75-day wait period between the termination of a retiree's employment and the start date of the new position. This will allow newly retired, highly trained officers to rapidly return to work during the public health emergency.

In addition, any provisions to provide staffing relief should also apply to retired officers who are currently working and encountering hourly restrictions. Allowing these individuals to stay on the job, without any suspension of their pensions, will permit them to continue to serve during this critical time.

This important policy change is an essential step to ensure there is back-up, highly trained front line public safety workers. Our organizations urge the legislature to consider this immediate relief and reevaluate the ongoing need for this policy change in the long term.

Thank you for your consideration of this important request.

Dual Credit Task Force

Expanding the positive impact of dual credit programs through credentialing more Wisconsin high school teachers

Growing need for support of dual credit programs

- Demand for dual credit courses is accelerating nationally. The National Alliance of Concurrent Enrollment Partnerships (NACEP) estimates that nearly 18,000 public high schools enroll students in college courses and that students in four out of five high schools in the United States take college courses.
- Total statewide dual enrollment credits earned by high school students at Wisconsin's technical colleges increased from 103,799 in 2013-14 to 190,064 in 2017-18 – an increase of 83 percent in four years. With the WTCS dual enrollment programs, more than 46,000 Wisconsin high school students get a head start on college each year at a savings of over $25,000,000.
- The number of high school students taking UW courses more than doubled over the last decade, from 3,392 in 2008-09 to 8,089 in 2016-17. For comparison, the Wisconsin resident undergraduate population was five percent lower in fall 2016 than in fall 2008. Four institutions in 2016-17 accounted for 91% of high school students enrolled in dual credit courses: UW-Oshkosh (44%), UW Colleges (27%), UW-Green Bay (15%), and UW-Whitewater (5%). Most high school students in 2016-17 took one or two UW course sections (88%) and three to five UW credits (71%).
- The two primary factors contributing to the demand for dual enrollment are: College Savings - The ability to earn college credits at free or reduced prices. In 2015, it is estimated that WTCS dual enrollment programs provided students and families with the opportunity to save between $14.6 and $19.7 million towards the cost of higher education. Student Success - Students in dual credit courses are more likely to complete high school, achieve academic success, enroll at a higher education institution and attain a degree (Institute of Education Sciences, 2017). Additionally, the accelerated time to credential allows individuals to enter the workforce faster as qualified, skilled candidates in the state's highly competitive labor market.
- The Higher Learning Commission (HLC), the accreditation body for public and private colleges and universities, recently announced that it would enforce accreditation standards for teachers delivering dual credit programs. By September 2022, all teachers under HLC guidelines will be required to have a master's degree or higher in their discipline. If teachers have a master's degree not related to the area of instruction or a four-year teaching degree, they must take 18 graduate credits in the specific discipline they are teaching (HLC, 2016). It is estimated that 85 percent of Wisconsin high school teachers who are teaching dual enrollment courses for the technical colleges, don't meet this new HLC requirement (WTCS, 2017).
- A consortium in Northeast Wisconsin comprised of K-12, higher education two-and four-year institutions and Northeast Wisconsin Educational Resource Alliance (NEW ERA) identified 180 teachers that fail to meet the HLC requirements-teachers who have a master's degree, but not in their discipline. Additionally, 65 teachers do not have a master's degree. The assumption is that Northeast Wisconsin represents 25% of the state's needs; thus, the total number of Wisconsin dual credit teachers, currently, who need to earn additional credentials to meet HLC standards is approximately 980 teachers. At the current rate of expansion of dual credit opportunities, it is expected that 1,225 high school teachers will need to meet HLC standards.
- Recognizing the need to support dual credit programs, the State of Wisconsin appropriated $3.5 million in tuition for high school teachers to earn graduate credits. Three million dollars ($3.0M) was made available in the 2018-2019 biennium budget process and is administered through the Department of Workforce Development (DWD) Office of Skills Development as competitive Fast Forward grants to WTCS institutions. The Wisconsin Senate appropriated an additional half-million dollars ($.5M) in 2017 (Wisconsin Senate Bill 711, 2017). The estimated impact of adequately supporting the 1,225 high school teachers who need to earn additional credentials is $12 million (1,225 teachers at $545/credit x 18).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- The cascading effect of this HLC credentialing challenge is that if there are fewer qualified high school teachers, that translates into fewer dual enrollment courses taught at high schools and then fewer dual credits earned by high school students. Thus, the positive momentum of Wisconsin's dual enrollment programs is at risk unless there is additional financial support for high school teachers to earn graduate credits and meet the HLC requirements and additional incentives for these teachers to continue teaching dual credit courses.

Request

- The request for FY20 is $9,000,000 ($6 million to cover tuition, books, materials and fees and $3 million to award incentive grants).
- The request for FY21 is $9,000,000 ($3 million to cover tuition, books, materials and fees and $6 million to award incentive grants).

Benefits to the Request

- Teachers will have a significant economic incentive to earn their graduate credits and meet HLC requirements and to continue to teach dual credit courses. Teachers will also have a clear line of sight on how their pursuit of the master's degree will be funded and supported by the tuition grant program and future incentives. More importantly, it is the recognition by the state of Wisconsin that dual credit teachers are a vital link to workforce readiness and time to the credential.
- The cost to students and families for higher education will continue to decline as more students are able to earn college credits while in high school.
- K-12 districts will have more master's degree teachers and the likelihood of greater retention of dual credit teachers within communities because there is the same stipend standard across small and large districts throughout the state. Specifically, this will assist rural communities to attract, retain, and develop their teachers.
- Higher education institutions will benefit from an increase of students enrolled in dual credit courses that translates to more students enrolled in colleges and universities and greater student degree attainment. Additionally, four-year universities will benefit from providing the graduate credit and master's degree credentials and the opportunity to deliver more online hybrid graduate level courses.
- Employers in the state of Wisconsin will have measurable benefits from this appropriation in that more students graduating from high school will have college credits, thus enabling a higher skilled entry level workforce. The three most prevalent dual credit courses taken by high school students are English, math, and communication.
- Students and their families will experience the economic and social benefits of "being on a pathway toward a goal," consistent with the Academic and Career Planning initiatives in Wisconsin (DPI, 2018). Earning college credit in high school is one of the keys to career success.

Dual Credit Task Force

Expanding the positive impact of dual credit programs through credentialing more Wisconsin high school teachers

Growing need for support of dual credit programs

- Demand for dual credit courses is accelerating nationally. The National Alliance of Concurrent Enrollment Partnerships (NACEP) estimates that nearly 18,000 public high schools enroll students in college courses and that students in four out of five high schools in the United States take college courses.
- Total statewide dual enrollment credits earned by high school students at Wisconsin's technical colleges increased from 103,799 in 2013-14 to 190,064 in 2017-18 – an increase of 83 percent in four years. With the WTCS dual enrollment programs, more than 46,000 Wisconsin high school students get a head start on college each year at a savings of over $25,000,000.
- The number of high school students taking UW courses more than doubled over the last decade, from 3,392 in 2008-09 to 8,089 in 2016-17. For comparison, the Wisconsin resident undergraduate population was five percent lower in fall 2016 than in fall 2008. Four institutions in 2016-17 accounted for 91% of high school students enrolled in dual credit courses: UW-Oshkosh (44%), UW Colleges (27%), UW-Green Bay (15%), and UW-Whitewater (5%). Hey Ann,

Sorry for the déjà vu issue but it's come up again. We have a couple CPAs who have reached out saying that their clients are not getting their refunds like they have in the past. Normally, after submitting it takes about a week, maybe two. Now they are getting messages that it will take 6-12 weeks. I know the tagline is that any refund can take up to 12 weeks, but they wanted me to reach out to see if COVID is causing delays.

Thanks!

Re: Co-sponsorship of LRB-5706/LRB-4551 - relating to: using telehealth in the practice of dentistry and dental hygiene and granting rule-making authority.

Deadline: Friday, February 21st at noon

As medical technology continues to evolve, it opens doors in professions not previously affected. While telemedicine has received much attention in the last several years, using telehealth in dentistry is emerging as a tool for practitioners in rural areas and increasing access to the underserved.

Wisconsin law is currently silent on the use of teledentistry, and we are offering LRB-5706/LRB-4551 in order to ensure providers can take advantage of this technology. The bill simply defines telehealth in the practice of dentistry, gives the Dentistry Examining Board authority to write rules governing protocols for its use, and requires that a patient be given their treating dentist's full name and license number, as any patient in a standard office setting would have access to.

While this technology would not be useful in all practices, it would allow for increased basic care in settings such as nursing homes, where even simple exams and cleanings can be hard to come by. Dental hygienists can practice in these and many other settings without being under the direct supervision of a dentist; their use of intraoral cameras and store-and-forward technology can mean faster diagnoses and referrals, if necessary. In addition, patients not located near a dental office can benefit from a dentist's ability to examine images remotely, thus still enabling them to diagnose, plan treatments, and refer appropriately.

Several stakeholders are working with us on this bill, including the Wisconsin Dental Association, Children's Hospital of Wisconsin, Delta Dental of Wisconsin, and others.

If you are interested in co-sponsoring LRB-5706/LRB-4551, please call Rep. Loudenbeck's office at 266-9967 or Senator Kooyenga's office at 266-2512. Authors will be added to both versions unless otherwise requested.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under this bill, a dentist or dental hygienist who uses telehealth in the practice of dentistry or dental hygiene must provide to a patient his or her full name and license number before treating the patient and must follow protocols established by the Dentistry Examining Board by rule. The bill defines

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

"telehealth" as a practice of dental care delivery, diagnosis, consultation, treatment, or transfer of medical data by means of audio, video, or data communications, including asynchronous telehealth services, interactive telehealth, and remote patient monitoring.

The bill also allows an individual licensed in good standing to practice dentistry in another state to use telehealth to practice dentistry involving a patient in this state without a license granted by the examining board. Current law generally requires a person to hold a license granted by the examining board in order to practice dentistry in this state.

Waiver for States Concerning Third Party CDL Skills Test Examiners in Response to the COVID-19 Emergency

April 9, 2020

AGENCY: Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA), DOT.

ACTION: Grant of waiver.

SUMMARY: FMCSA grants a waiver from certain regulations applicable only to States as defined in 49 CFR 383.5. FMCSA has initiated this action in response to the President's Proclamation Declaring a National Emergency under 42 U.S.C. § 5191(b) (Declaration of National Emergency) concerning the Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19).

DATES: This waiver is effective April 9, 2020 and expires either on June 30, 2020, or upon the revocation of the President's Declaration of National Emergency under 42 U.S.C. § 5191(b) concerning the COVID-19 public health emergency, whichever is sooner.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Ms. Nikki McDavid, Chief of the Commercial Driver's License Division, Office of Safety Programs, 202-366-0831, Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration, 1200 New Jersey Avenue SE, Washington, DC 20590-0001.

Legal Basis

The Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA-21) (Pub. L. 105-178, 112 Stat. 107, June 9, 1998) provides the Secretary of Transportation (the Secretary) authority to grant waivers from any of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations issued under Chapter 313 of Title 49 of the United States Code or 49 U.S.C. § 31136, to a person(s) seeking regulatory relief (49 U.S.C. §§ 31136(e), 31315(a)). The Secretary must make a determination that the waiver is in the public interest and that it is likely to achieve a level of safety that is equivalent to, or greater than, the level of safety that would be obtained in the absence of the waiver. Individual waivers may be granted for unique events for a period up to three months. TEA-21 authorizes the Secretary to grant waivers without requesting public comment, and without providing public notice.

The FMCSA Administrator has been delegated authority under 49 CFR 1.87(e) and (f) to carry out the functions vested in the Secretary by 49 U.S.C. chapter 313, relating to commercial motor vehicle operators, and 49 U.S.C. chapter 311, subchapter I and III, relating to commercial motor vehicle programs and safety regulations.

Background

On March 13, 2020, the President declared a national emergency under 42 U.S.C. § 5191(b) related to the public health emergency caused by COVID-19. This waiver is in response to

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

COVID-19 outbreaks and the immediate risk they present to public health, safety, and welfare. A number of States are experiencing greater than normal employee absences or have closed offices of their State Driver Licensing Agencies (SDLA) in response to the guidance from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to use social distancing to reduce the spread of COVID-19. As a result, some SDLAs may be unable to administer the knowledge tests to commercial learner's permit (CLP) applicants. Given the public health emergency, there is a public need for immediate transportation of essential supplies, equipment, and persons, which requires an adequate and sustained supply of drivers trained to operate a commercial motor vehicle (CMV). This waiver provides needed relief from the specified Federal motor carrier safety regulations (FMCSRs) for States and SDLAs.

FMCSA's Determination and Regulatory Provisions Waived

Consistent with the statutory requirements for waivers, FMCSA has determined that it is in the public interest to issue a waiver, until June 30, 2020, limited in scope and circumstances, that is likely to achieve a level of safety that is equivalent to, or greater than, the level of safety that would be obtained in the absence of the waiver.

The regulation at 49 CFR 384.228(b) sets forth the requirement that CDL knowledge and skills test examiners satisfy specific training requirements. The regulation at 49 CFR 384.228(c) requires that all CDL knowledge testers complete a training course covering three specified units of instruction: Introduction to the CDL Licensing System, Overview of CDL Tests, and Knowledge tests. In response to the COVID-19 public health emergency, FMCSA is waiving the requirements in 49 CFR 384.228(b)-(c), for third party CDL test examiners who previously completed a CDL skills test examiners training course that meets the requirements of 49 CFR 384.228(d) and have maintained a valid CDL test examiner certification. This waiver allows third party CDL test examiners previously authorized by the State to administer the CDL skills test to also administer the CDL knowledge test without completing a CDL knowledge test training course.

States and SDLAs are covered under this waiver without further action.[1] FMCSA will not issue a finding or a determination of substantial noncompliance under 49 CFR part 384 against States for action or inaction consistent with this waiver.

Public Interest

FMCSA finds that granting this waiver is in the public interest because CDL and CLP holders play a critical role in delivering necessary passengers and property, including shipments of essential supplies, in response to the COVID-19 public health emergency. This waiver is in the public interest because it would allow States and SDLAs to use third party CDL test examiners to continue administering CDL knowledge tests while SDLAs remain closed, are unable to [1] FMCSA Guidance Q1 to 49 CFR 383.75 states that a third party may not administer the CDL knowledge test unless an SDLA employee is present. That guidance assumes normal SDLA operating conditions, however, and does not apply under this waiver.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

administer CDL knowledge tests, or are operating at a diminished capacity due to the COVID-19 national emergency. The continued availability of CDL knowledge testing will help maintain an adequate and sustained supply of trained CMV drivers to deliver essential supplies and persons across State lines to address the public health emergency and help prevent a possible shortage of CMV drivers. This waiver will also reduce the administrative burden on States and SDLAs during this public health emergency.

Safety Equivalency

Due to the limited scope of this waiver and the ample precautions that remain in place, FMCSA has determined that the waiver is likely to achieve a level of safety that is equivalent to the level of safety that would be obtained absent the waiver. The waiver of a particular regulation should not be viewed in isolation but rather as part of the whole of all regulations governing the safety of drivers. Waiver determinations are made holistically, taking all relevant factors into account. See International Bhd of Teamsters v. DOT, 724 F.3d 206 (D.C. Cir. 2013).

FMCSA has determined that waiving the CDL knowledge test examiner training requirements for third party CDL skills test examiners who previously completed a CDL skills test examiners training course will not negatively impact safety. Due to an overlap in training topics, such examiners would have already taken a CDL skills test examiner training course that complies with 49 CFR 384.228(d) and would have already received training on two of the three required units of instruction for the CDL knowledge test examiner training. The only unit required under 49 CFR 384.228(c) not covered by that training is the knowledge test unit. To ensure that third party CDL test examiners will receive all the necessary information and training required by 49 CFR 384.228(c) prior to administering a knowledge test, the State must provide them with access to the written training/instructional materials for the knowledge test unit referenced in 49 CFR 384.228(c)(3). States may provide these materials electronically or through other means. Under this waiver, the State is not required to provide third party CDL test examiners with formal in person or online training.

In addition, this waiver will not negatively impact safety because the CDL knowledge tests are easier to administer than the skills tests. The CDL knowledge test examiner has minimal direct involvement in administering the tests. The knowledge tests require the administration of written multiple- choice tests and approximately four hours of CDL test examiner training. In contrast, the CDL skills test examiner has substantial direct involvement in the administration of the tests. The skills tests require the observation and scoring of demonstrated driving maneuvers and several days of examiner training. For these reasons, trained skills test examiners would be capable of administering the knowledge tests without first taking a CDL knowledge test training course.

The measures listed below under Terms, Conditions, and Restrictions, taken collectively, provide the assurance needed to meet the legal standard that granting the waiver is likely to achieve an "equivalent level of safety." Therefore, FMCSA has determined that a waiver from the regulations noted above during the period of the waiver is likely to achieve a level of safety that is equivalent to, or greater than, the level of safety that would be obtained in the absence of the waiver. The remaining requirements for CDL test examiners continue to apply.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Unique Circumstances
COVID-19 outbreaks have led to widespread closures of State and Federal government offices, reduction of government services, and disruption of transportation systems, including possible driver shortages and related interruption of supply chains, which are heavily dependent on continued CMV operations. FMCSA finds that the circumstances surrounding this waiver are unique because such government operations are not providing their usual level of service.

For the reasons above, FMCSA grants a waiver as provided above, subject to the terms, conditions, and restrictions below.

Terms, Conditions, and Restrictions of the Waiver
This waiver covers States and qualifying third party CDL skills testers for the period beginning at 12:01 a.m. (ET) on April 9, 2020, and continuing through 11:59 p.m. on June 30, 2020, or the revocation of the President's Declaration of National Emergency under 42 U.S.C. § 5191(b) concerning the COVID-19 public health emergency, whichever is sooner.

Tips for Parents Using Child Care During COVID-19

The Department of Children and Families (DCF) understands that certain families need continued child care during the COVID-19 pandemic. To ensure the safety of families and child care setting staff, DCF has developed a list of tips for parents to help reduce the spread of COVID-19.

Drop Off and Pick Up
Parents should limit pick up and drop off to one person to reduce the potential spread of COVID-19. Additionally, if you meet one of the below criteria you should not visit a child care center:

- Are older than 60 years old
- Are pregnant
- Have underlying health conditions, including those with compromised immune systems or respiratory conditions like severe asthma
- Are showing symptoms of COVID-19
- Have been in contact with someone confirmed or suspected of having COVID-19 in the last 14 days
- Have returned from travel to areas with community spread of COVID-19 in the last 14 days (updated information on travel restrictions can be found on the CDC website).

Upon entering the facility, parents and children should immediately wash or sanitize their hands before entering the classroom or signing their child in.

Some centers may establish a drop off zone or staggered drop off times. Parents should check with their center for any additional guidance.

Health Screenings
Some child care settings may implement a health screening at entry for both parents and children. This may include a temperature reading and symptom check. It is important that you answer questions honestly and ask for assistance if you do not understand the question or need it translated to another language.

Illnesses
Most child care centers have an illness policy in place; however, guidance may be more stringent to ensure the safety and wellness of children and program staff. Parents are encouraged to check with the provider on any new guidance and keep their children home who have a fever of 100.4 or higher; have had a fever of 100.4 or higher or other potential symptoms of COVID-19, such as shortness of breath or persistent dry cough, within the last 72 hours; or have come in contact with others who have COVID-19.

Contact Information
If your child becomes ill or there is a positive COVID-19 case in the facility, your center may ask that you pick he/she up within one hour. Review your enrollment information to ensure they have your current contact information as well as emergency contact information.

Alternate Care
If there is a case of COVID-19 among children or staff, programs may consider a short-term (less than 1 week) or long-term (two weeks or more) closure to allow for sufficient cleaning and disinfection. Parents are encouraged to find an alternate care option, such as another local child care center or relative, in case this occurs.

Officials fear shortage of protective equipment for healthcare workers

As the number of confirmed COVID-19 cases in the state continues to rise, officials are growing more concerned about the state's supply of masks, gloves and other protective equipment for healthcare workers.

"There are real shortages and it's not focused on one type of supply," Dr. Ryan Westergaard, chief medical officer for communicable diseases at the Wisconsin Department of Health Services, said at a press briefing Tuesday.

At a Wisconsin Medical Society executive committee meeting Tuesday night, members from around the state expressed "significant concern" over the lack of masks and other personal protective equipment, according to CEO Dr. Bud Chumbley.

"This shortage threatens the ability of the healthcare workforce to care for the people of Wisconsin as COVID-19 cases surge," Chumbley said. "A significant reduction in the number of physicians, nurses and allied health professionals available to treat those with COVID-19 would be a catastrophic event."

"Given the anticipated surge in COVID-19 cases we can never have enough equipment or physicians and nurses available to meet our needs," Marshfield Clinic Health System CEO Dr. Sue Turney said. "While we have supplies at the moment there is a statewide and broader concern around [personal protective equipment] and testing supplies in the future."

Dr. Alicia Arnold, an independent physician from Eau Claire, said she's heard of some physicians who are thinking of quitting the workforce, out of fear they will get sick.

"If doctors and nurses are unable to protect themselves, not only are they going to get the virus and spread it to others, but they also, if they are sick, will not be available to care for patients, which is particularly a big deal in rural areas," Arnold said.

Kristin Mueller, a spokeswoman for North Shore Healthcare, which runs more than 60 nursing homes and assisted living centers in Wisconsin, said that supply levels of protective equipment are "absolutely an issue of great concern for all acute and long-term care providers."

"This must be one of the top priorities for state and federal officials to assure that the distribution chain can meet this critical need," she said.

Wisconsin Health Care Association CEO John Vander Meer said his group is working with providers, suppliers and state officials to see what supplies can be flown into Wisconsin.

They are also, in accordance with Centers for Disease Control and Prevention guidance, considering innovative ways to preserve the supply, including re-using certain masks and substituting other clothing for gowns, Vander Meer said.

Wisconsin Hospital Association Chief Medical Officer Dr. Mark Kaufman said the greatest concern, at this point, is the supply of N95 respirator masks. He said DHS is conducting a weekly survey of all protective equipment and sharing the results with hospitals and WHA.

Kaufman said WHA has reached out to the state's construction community for help with masks.

The Department of Workforce Development is also talking with labor unions. Among the responses they have received is from the Wisconsin Laborers' District Council, which is donating 100 masks from their training center.

DHS Secretary-designee Andrea Palm said the department requested supplies from the Strategic National Stockpile, but have received notice they will only receive "a small allotment of a variety of pieces of equipment."

According to a letter from U.S. Sen. Tammy Baldwin, D-Wis., and several members of Wisconsin's congressional delegation, the state has been notified that it's eligible to receive: 54,709 N95 respirators; 130,326 surgical masks; 24,816 face shields; 20,233 surgical gowns; 104 coveralls and 72,044 gloves.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services did not return a request for comment confirming how much the state is slated to get, or when it can expect the shipment.

On Wednesday, President Trump announced he will invoke the Defense Production Act, paving the way for the administration to force American manufacturers to boost production of needed medical supplies.

"It can do a lot of good things if we need it," Trump said Wednesday at a briefing with reporters.

Palm stressed that other states are having similar issues.

"We are currently working through how we prioritize, how we work through the deployment of what we are receiving from the stockpile," she said on a press call this week. "We and states all across the country continue to press the CDC and the federal government for whatever supplies we can get."

Evers, state agencies take steps toward economic relief, announce child care restrictions

Gov. Tony Evers and his administration took steps Wednesday toward economic relief in response to the new coronavirus outbreak.

Late Wednesday, Evers issued an emergency order waiving work search requirements for unemployment insurance benefits. Evers said the order follows federal guidance.

“Many Wisconsin workers are facing financial burden and stress due to the COVID-19 outbreak and this order will help them access some additional support,” Evers said in a statement. “My administration plans to continue to work with state legislators and our federal partners on initiatives to help impacted workers.”

Evers on Tuesday called for legislative action, including repealing a one-week waiting period for the benefits. He talked with state legislative leaders Wednesday.

Speaker Robin Vos, R-Rochester, and Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald, R-Juneau, called it a "productive discussion" and the "first of many in the coming weeks."

"During the call, we agreed to commence daily conversations," the two GOP leaders said in a joint statement. "It’s clear we all want to do what’s best for our citizens and businesses during these unprecedented and demanding times.”

Evers spoke at a webinar hosted by the Wisconsin Manufacturers & Commerce, asking the business community for “ongoing dialogue.”

“This is not the time for one-upmanship or political games,” he said. “We just have to get done what the people in Wisconsin need. And so as we move forward, we’ll need your help to have good conversations so that we get good legislation, so we have good outcomes."

Health Care Lobbying
Legislative, Regulatory & Procurement

On Wednesday, Evers submitted a request to the U.S. Small Business Administration for assistance for small businesses and nonprofits in the state to help with the economic impacts of the outbreak.

Wisconsin Economic Development Corporation CEO Missy Hughes said on the webinar that the long-term loans typically are $2 million or less, have low interest and are available to employers of 500 workers or less. She expects the federal agency to be "inundated" with applications.

At the state level, WEDC created a program to provide grants to small businesses impacted by COVID-19. Its board of directors approved $5 million for the program Tuesday.

The grants will provide a maximum of $20,000 for two months of fixed expenses, like payroll or rent. They'll head to business with no more than 20 employees. Hughes said they hope to provide additional resources.

"We're starting to look to the long-term," she said. "Whether or not the recovery is two weeks or two months or three months, we will have a recovery. We will be working through that. And as a state, we'll come together and work together."

Evers on Wednesday also directed the Department of Health Services to restrict the size of child care settings.

Under the order, centers can't operate with more than 10 staff present at a time and may not operate with more than 50 children present at a time, starting at 8 a.m. Thursday. The order will remain in effect for the duration of the public health emergency.

"Child care is an essential service for many of the folks working on the front lines to provide healthcare and vital services to our communities during the COVID-19 outbreak," Evers said in a statement. "This is another step forward to ensure that service continues, while protecting our child care providers who are going above and beyond their regular duties to support our families, communities and state."

The state asked child care providers to prioritize the families of healthcare and essential service providers. Families that can keep their children at home are encouraged to do so.

The Department of Children and Families and DHS updated guidance to providers.

Evers' administration is also working with healthcare providers, child care providers and the National Guard to explore options to serve healthcare workers through on-site care. More information will be available in the coming days on that effort, his office noted.

The Department of Health Services reported 106 people have tested positive for COVID-19 as of Wednesday afternoon. There have been 1,577 negative tests.

DHS Deputy Secretary Julie Willems Van Dijk said at the WMC webinar that they've documented community spread in Dane, Kenosha and Milwaukee counties. She said that it's likely spreading elsewhere in the state.

"I would encourage you all to consider your community as one that has COVID-19 circulating," she said.

In response to a question about whether the state would move to a shelter-in-place order, Evers said that he believes what is in place now will help.

But he said that such an order is an "option" if current policies don't stop the virus from expanding at a significant level.

He said officials would reach out to the business community before taking such a step, adding that he doesn't believe the state will get to that point.

"At the end of the day, it would be our goal to have economic activity be part of the solution and not part of the problem," he said.

Wisconsin's two U.S. senators split their votes on a bipartisan plan targeted at the spreading new coronavirus that President Donald Trump signed into law Wednesday.

The Senate approved the plan Wednesday on a 90-8 vote. Democrat Tammy Baldwin backed the bill, which provides free COVID-19 testing.

The bill provides small businesses with financial help to provide workers with emergency paid family leave, including paid sick leave. And it provides more federal resources to expand unemployment benefits, support Medicaid programs and increase funding for food security and nutritional programs.

"This coronavirus response legislation is a strong step forward," Baldwin said. "The Senate is going to have to work together across party lines to take additional steps, including an economic stimulus response that is targeted toward helping workers and small businesses get through this crisis."

Ron Johnson joined seven other Republicans in opposing the measure. Johnson said he couldn't back the bill since it required paid leave mandates. He proposed an amendment expanding eligibility for unemployment insurance instead.

"Laid-off workers will get far less from state benefits, and many employers will be forced to shoulder a financial burden they cannot afford," Johnson said in a statement.

Children's Wisconsin reports doctor with COVID-19

A doctor at Children's Wisconsin has tested positive for COVID-19, the provider said Wednesday. The provider has mild symptoms, is quarantined at home and recovering.

The doctor was exposed to a person who tested positive for the virus in connection with travel outside the state before restrictions were in effect.

Children's are giving patient families individualized instructions and support for their needs, as well as instructing staff on next steps, ranging from monitoring symptoms, self-quarantine or testing.

"We have seen this happen at healthcare organizations across the nation, and we knew it was only a matter of time before we had a confirmed case on our team," a statement from the provider noted. "Every COVID-19 case underscores the need for all of us to stay vigilant in the face of the virus, while offering support and care to all those who need it in our community."

Democrats sue to expand access to voting

The Democratic National Committee and Democratic Party of Wisconsin filed suit Wednesday to expand access to voting in response to the spread of new coronavirus.

The lawsuit seeks to extend the electronic and by-mail registration to April 3 and suspend requirements that copies of photo ID and residency documents accompany absentee ballots during the outbreak.

They also want to extend the deadline of when ballots have to be received by local election officials so they can accept ballots postmarked on or before election day if they arrive within 10 days of the election.

The electronic and by-mail registration deadline for Wisconsinites to participate in the April 7 election was Wednesday.

“It's more important than ever that we expand access to voting, and increasing these necessary measures will help protect both public health and Wisconsinites' right to participate in our democracy,” Democratic National Committee Chair Tom Perez said in a statement.

Republican Party of Wisconsin Executive Director Mark Jefferson accused Democrats of “trying to hijack a national health crisis to rig an election in their favor.”

"If they cared about accessibility at the polls, they’d join us in urging clerks across Wisconsin to allow early voting immediately, not just those in their communities of support,” he said in a statement.

RE: Request for Assistance for Wisconsin's Hospitality Industry

As you are well aware, the current COVID-19 pandemic has decimated Wisconsin's restaurants, hotels, other lodging and other tourism industries around the state as one of the first industries to be quickly impacted and universally devastated as travel and tourism ground to almost a complete halt.

The cash flow stoppage has forced the vast majority of hotels & other lodging businesses and restaurants to lay off a significant portion of Wisconsin's treasured hospitality employees, stopping their ability to meet basic costs of doing business.

Recent COVID-19 legislation passed by Congress offer some options for relief, but will not suffice to keep tourism businesses viable, and will take time to implement effectively.

Unfortunately, Business Interruption Insurance, invested in by many businesses assuming they would be protected, does not cover their economic damages from the pandemic, meaning their options for reducing their debt during this crisis have disappeared.

As we do our best to address the overwhelming challenges, we are today asking for your assistance in implementing the following state actions to meet us partway in enabling our industry to someday gradually come back:

1. Waive the one-week waiting period for Unemployment Compensation to help our valued employees to survive. We suggest that this waiver would end when the pandemic recedes.
2. Waive the current minimum of 20 employees for a business to be eligible for the Work-Share program. Small businesses with less than 20 employees face the same, if not worse, hardships during this crisis, and this eligibility would help.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

WI-REP-20-0887-A-003797

3. Provide additional new WEDC interest-free loans to businesses needing help to bridge the time until revenue can once again allow them to meet payroll and pay bills.
4. Provide a 90-day extension for ALL state tax payments along with local property tax payments, and provide for installment payment schedules so that businesses eventually beginning to regain income can meet deadlines for tax payments.
5. Ensure that reimbursements owed by the state for overpayments of estimated taxes are issued immediately.
6. Impose a freeze on Unemployment Rates, so that businesses hardest hit with lay-offs do not face insurmountable rate increases for a crisis beyond their control.
7. Allow packaged alcohol to be delivered when food is delivered. The sale of alcohol is a profit center for hospitality, whereas food sales have much narrower margins. In addition to helping all hospitality businesses with alcohol licenses to survive, this would also meet consumer demand and encourage consumers to stay home. To ensure legal compliance, face-to-face ID checking would be required upon delivery and drivers would need to be at least 21 years old.

We ask for your help in helping to make a way for Wisconsin's valued tourism industry to come back when the crisis subsides.

Thank you.

Hey!

I just got the following info from a constituent:

 Written by Sean, a local trucker ***

In all this craziness I want you take a minute and think about the American truck driver and pray for them as well in all this chaos! Hours of service rules have been lifted to let truck drivers run longer if hauling supplies directly impacted by covid-19. Yet the government is shutting down rest areas, truck stops are closing there bathrooms and showers. These truckers have no where to pull off to get rest, use a bathroom, or shower. Yet they are expected to do their best to deliver these products on time to make sure we have what we need and have our supplies for our bathrooms, showers, refrigerators etc. A truck drivers life on the road has always been hard, but now it is extremely harder! But as long as they're allowed, you can bet that they will still get the job done and keep America running! Please pray! Better yet call your representatives and demand some help for our truckers.

I've reached out to WisDOT to see if the rest areas are closed. If it is, I've asked them what they would recommend truckers do in the meantime. It would seem to make sense to at least keep them open for truckers to park to sleep. I could see closing the actual buildings because of the exposure issue, but to at least let them sleep? I guess I don't know then what they would do for bathrooms. Just wanted to pass this along in case it's something we can "fix."

Thanks!

Good afternoon John,

I hope you are all hanging in there with the increase load! We received a question from a constituent that I feel like I know the answer to but wanted to get a definitive answer from DWD:

Another question came up regarding unemployment; Do you have clarification on unemployment eligibility after April 2nd? Example; if a company is considered an essential company and stays open but an employee chooses not to come to work due to the COVID-19 executive order and they feel that the company is not an essential company, would they be eligible for unemployment under the bill that was passed?

Thank you for your help on this!

Tom,

Thank you for your email. Today has been a really rough day. I've talked to people all over my district, some mad at the Supreme Court ruled Governor Evers' order unconstitutional, some mad at Governor Evers for putting the order in place in the first place, some just scared, or confused, or looking for reassurance. I think a commonality between everyone is fear. I think most people have never seen anything like COVID-19 in their lifetime and they are really terrified of the unknown. I can totally understand that. Some are afraid of losing their rights, losing their way of life, losing their freedoms. I can also totally understand that. Some just want to go back to life four weeks ago, and I am right there with them.

The truth is that there were no easy decisions here. We, both the Legislature and the Governor, have been operating with ever-changing information from all over the place. I've seen a lot of people say that we should have known weeks ago that this was necessary. I looked back to the data we had three weeks ago, and there were 32 positive cases at the time statewide. We didn't yet know what we were dealing with, and I know I was receiving a lot of negative feedback from my area on how things were being restricted unnecessarily and how the government and the universities were overreacting. And yet, at the same time, the Legislature and the Governor were somehow supposed to come together and move an election date, something I think many would see as a total nuclear option. Over the last three weeks, Governor Evers has said publicly over and over that he would not move the election, and legislative leaders tried to work with him and support his decision, as our leader. Fast forward to last Friday, the governor does a complete 180, and asks the Legislature to come into session, with no notice, and with no time or ability to draft anything, agree to anything, or work anything through the legislative process. The Senate and the Assembly have never had to come into session virtually before, so both houses are frantically working to figure out how to do so safely, efficiently, and so that every member can be present or virtually present, to represent their constituents. That infrastructure was not in place for Saturday, which means we would have been calling everyone back to the Capitol, creating more chaos and risk. I had clerks reach out to me immediately asking me not to support Governor Evers' plan because it was simply not possible.

I don't disagree with you that the information we have right now, today, supports moving the Election date. It has not been along the way, and I don't believe the medical advice has been consistent over the last several weeks. The CDC has changed their rulings on whether COVID lives on surfaces, changed what the symptoms are, changed whether or not people should be wearing masks. As the CDC learns more about the virus, so do we as people. It certainly makes moving forward easier, but it definitely doesn't give us the ability to go back and change decisions already made. None of these situations or decisions are or have been easy, and I have to say that the suggestion I don't care about my own family or my constituents' health and well-being is just wrong. At the end of the day, the Governor changed his mind and asked for something when it was too late to the Legislature give it. Regardless of whether or not someone believes the election should be moved (and I totally understand why people are hoping for that outcome), what Governor Evers issued today was unconstitutional. Republicans did not decide that, the Constitution and the Supreme Court did.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This situation has been scary for all involved, and we do the best we can with what we have and know at the time. I hope you can understand that, but if not, then I'm happy to talk to you about it further.

Thank you, have a good night.

Good evening everyone,

I know there has been a lot of confusion today so I wanted to provide all of you with information so you are prepared for tomorrow.

The April 7th Spring Election will be happening tomorrow and polling places will be open.
If you need information about where your polling place is located, please go to the following site, or let me know and I can send you the address. https://myvote.wi.gov/en-US/FindMyPollingPlace.

Municipal and county clerks have been working around the clock to make sure each polling place is safe and adheres to social distancing. I know a lot of polling places are doing drive thru voting, which will allow for you to stay in your car and avoid person-to-person contact. If you feel most comfortable wearing Personal Protective Equipment, like gloves, or a mask, or a scarf, I encourage everyone to do that.

For those of you that received an absentee ballot but have not yet returned them to your clerk, your absentee ballot needs to be postmarked by tomorrow, April 7th.

COVID-19 has been a really trying time for everyone, and I think we can all agree that this is not an optimal situation. Although frustrating, we can all do this. I will be driving around polling places tomorrow in my area just to see if there is any help I can give. If you have thoughts or concerns, I am available tonight, tomorrow, or at any time. Please reach out to me.

Thank you and have a good night,

Thank you for your update regarding today's election.

The Republican party has completely failed to conduct this this election in a manner that supports the democratic process.
You have failed the citizens of Wisconsin, and you have failed democracy in action.

Your role as a legislator is to make the voting process as open to the electors as possible – not to place stumbling blocks in their path to the polls. You are listed as being a member of the Committee on Health, yet you have completely disregarded the health of Wisconsin citizens. You have chosen to stand by party lines rather than place the health and safety of our citizens as a top priority. You have placed all of Wisconsin in jeopardy.

It is time to return the job you were elected to do. NOW. It is your job to support the election process, not hinder it. It is your job to place the safety of Wisconsin's citizens as a top priority, not to dismiss the health risks you are fully aware of that exist at this time.

The time is NOW.

SUBJECT: COVID-19 Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ's) and Guidance on Procedural Changes for Care Facility Absentee Voting and Polling Place Relocation

A. Background. Governor Evers issued Executive Order #72 on March 12, 2020 proclaiming that a public health emergency exists in the State of Wisconsin as a result of the COVID-19 Coronavirus. The Commission held a special meeting on March 12, 2020 and directed that the Special Voting Deputy process to serve residents in care facilities shall not be used for the upcoming Spring Election/Presidential Preference Primary and the Special Election in the 7th Congressional District, and that clerks should instead transmit absentee ballot to those residents by mail. The Commission also determined that the municipal clerk or the executive director of a municipal election commission may relocate polling places located in care facilities to other facilities as determined by the Department of Health Services or local health officials without obtaining prior approval of the local governing body or municipal elections commission.

The Commission also directed staff to provide additional direction to clerks regarding the process changes associated with the Commission's March 12, 2020 directives.

B. Frequently Asked Questions and Commission Staff Guidance

1. What can clerks tell voters about preparations for the April election related to COVID-19?

- The Wisconsin Elections Commission members discussed COVID-19 at their meetings on February 27 and March 12, and since then WEC staff has held meetings to discuss contingency planning for COVID-19. We have also joined multiple calls with the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and Homeland Security to be sure we are up to date on the most current guidance.
- At this point, the WEC is providing clerks with election-specific guidance from the CDC, which considers the risk to the general public to be low and which emphasizes preventive measures. We provided that guidance to local election officials on March 5, 2020 in this memorandum: https://elections.wi.gov/node/6703. We will also provide updated information as it becomes available in the upcoming days.

- We are continuing to monitor the situation and will keep local election officials up to date when there are any other developments or recommendations. We are preparing a series of webinars on Monday, March 16 for local election officials focusing on contingency planning for public health issues.
- For the last several years, the WEC has been developing state elections contingency plans for serving clerks and voters in the event of natural disasters or other disruptions in services. We have also been requiring local election officials to develop their own contingency plans. Many of the practices outlined in these contingency plans, such as relocating polling places, shortage of election inspectors, etc., are transferable to a public health situation.
- All voters are encouraged to participate in the Spring Election either at the polls or by voting an absentee ballot in person or via mail. Local clerks are monitoring guidance from federal and state health officials regarding the status of COVID-19 exposure in our communities and developing contingency plans for the election. Voters who are sick should avoid attending public events and consider requesting an absentee ballot from the municipal clerk The public is also encouraged to consider contacting their municipal clerk to offer to serve as an election inspector at the polls in the event that there is a shortage of available inspectors.

2. What should clerks tell the press about the April election and COVID-19?

Clerks should communicate to the media that they are implementing guidance from federal and state health and election officials, and communicate any alterations in their normal procedures that are being implemented due to COVID-19 precautions, such as the elimination of voting in nursing homes and adult-care facilities as well as changes in any polling places. Clerks should monitor WEC communications and its webpage dedicated to COVID-19 information and updates.

3. How will voting be conducted in nursing homes and care facilities normally served by Special Voting Deputies.?

Under the Governor's emergency order and directives of the Department of Health Services, voting with special voting deputies is prohibited for the Spring Election. Clerks should mail absentee ballots to voters in those facilities with an absentee ballot request on file. Special Voting Deputies and observers will not visit care facilities.

At its meeting of March 12, 2020, the Wisconsin Elections Commission passed the following motion:

In light of Executive Order #72 and directives of the Department of Health Services, the Commission finds that Special Voting Deputies are "non-essential" individuals who are not permitted to enter nursing homes and other care facilities without completing a screening process that is not feasible to implement prior to the Spring Election and Presidential Primary. For that election and the May 12, 2020 Special Election in the 7th Congressional District, the Commission directs that municipalities shall not use the Special Voting Deputy process to serve residents in care facilities and instead shall transmit absentee ballots to those voters by mail.

4. Must absentee ballots sent to care facilities be transmitted by the 21-day deadline of March 17, 2020?

Wisconsin Statutes require that absentee ballots be transmitted to voters with a request on file at least 21 days before an election. Clerks should make their best efforts to comply with this requirement. Given that SVD voting was eliminated less than a week before that deadline, the WEC recognizes that full compliance with this requirement may be impossible.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

5. Can clerks hand deliver absentee ballots to care facilities instead of mailing them?

WEC believes it is permissible for absentee ballots to be hand delivered along with the required certificate envelopes. In that case, the WEC recommends that clerks contact the facility in advance to determine whether the ballots can be delivered in person and confirming the delivery in an email. Absentee ballots must be addressed to individual electors.

6. What, if any, guidance or suggestions do we provide regarding voters at facilities obtaining assistance in completing their ballots? Should clerks proactively request assistance from facility staff?

As with other absentee electors, residents of care facilities may obtain assistance from any individual excluding a candidate, their employer or labor union representative. Due to the directive of the Department of Health Services, there will be a limited pool of potential assistors available to residents of care facilities, including facility staff and family members.

7. How should clerks handle electors in care facilities that need to register or update their registration?

This is an issue which will benefit from greater communication with facility staff to ensure that residents are aware of the deadline for open registration. The open registration deadline remains the same. If a resident has moved from their voting residence within the same municipality, the clerk may update their registration under Wis. Stat. § 6.50(3). The WEC is providing a template letter which clerks can use as a basis for communicating with care facility staff.

8. What about voters in care facilities who do not have an absentee ballot request on file who would have been able to request a ballot from SVD's?

This is another area that would benefit from increased communication with facility staff to ensure residents are aware of the deadline to request an absentee ballot, which is the Thursday before the election. The WEC is providing a template letter which clerks can use as a basis for communicating with care facility staff.

9. How do residents in care facilities, who are not indefinitely confined electors, comply with the photo identification requirement?

Residents who are not indefinitely confined electors may submit a copy of a valid photo identification or may complete the EL-122sp certificate including the signature of facility staff certifying that the voter resides in the facility.

10. How can clerks better prepare for the possible absence of election inspectors?

Consider recruiting extra election inspectors to provide some reserve capacity. Consult with municipal leadership to obtain the assistance of paid staff if available. Consult with your county government to see if it can assist. Consult with local businesses and civic organizations within the municipality or county.

Under Wis. Stat. § 7.33(3) and (6), all non-governmental employers are required to permit employees to serve as an election official without loss of fringe benefits or seniority privileges and may not impose any other penalty on the employee except the employer is not required to pay wages to the employee for the time worked as an election official. The employer must grant any employee who is appointed to serve as an election inspector a leave of absence for the entire 24-hour period of election day if the employee provides at least 7 days' notice of the leave.

Clerks also have the statutory authority to make emergency poll worker appointments under Wis. Stat. § 7.30(2)(b) and should do so if they need additional election inspectors. Contact the WEC to let us know if you are experiencing significant poll worker shortages so we can assist with possible recruitment efforts.

11. Could county, municipal or state employees be assigned to work as election inspectors in the event there are shortages?

Yes, this is a great solution in the event there is an election inspector shortage. Election inspectors only need to be residents of the county in which they serve and receive some training prior to election day. A local governmental unit may permit its employees to serve as election officials without loss of fringe benefits or seniority privileges earned for scheduled work hours while they work as an inspector and without loss of pay and without any other penalty. A local government employee who serves as a paid election inspector must certify to their employer the amount of compensation received as an election inspector and that amount is deducted by the employer from their pay. Wis. Stat. § 7.33(4) and (5). Alternatively, the employee may decline to be paid as an election inspector and not have that amount deducted from their regular pay.

12. Could the county serve as a clearinghouse of available election inspectors in case some municipalities have shortages?

Yes, counties can coordinate a reserve pool of election inspectors for their municipalities, if needed.

13. What if polling places are unavailable due to quarantine or other issues? We are past the 30-day deadline for changing polling places.

Based upon the emergency order of the Governor and directives of the Department of Health Services, the Wisconsin Elections Commission determined that, for the Spring Election as well as the May 12th Special Election, municipal clerks may move polling places within 30 days of the election without obtaining approval of the local governing body. Clerks may certainly seek such approval if time permits. Moving a polling place from a facility with vulnerable populations is recommended by both the WEC and the Wisconsin Department of Health Services, which has issued guidance that only essential personnel are allowed to have access to nursing homes and care facilities. Clerks should consult with their governing bodies regarding these changes, if possible, but in some cases there may not be sufficient time for the governing body to meet to accommodate these changes and notify the public ahead of election day.

Clerks must inform impacted voters regarding any changes to their polling place. Options for contact with these voters include a direct mailing, press release and/or public information campaign.
The WEC recommends that clerks identify and confirm alternate polling places and incorporate them in your Election Day Contingency Plan. Educate election inspectors about the contingency plan and prepare ways to communicate a polling place change in advance. What would you do if a polling place was damaged by a flood, fire or tornado, or unavailable for other reasons?

14. Can a clerk encourage voters with weakened immune systems to request absentee ballots by mail?

A clerk can encourage any voter who may have a weakened immune system to consider voting absentee. Clerks can also encourage all voters to cast an absentee ballot ahead of election day but should also consider if they have the capacity to handle a potential increase in the volume of absentee ballots. Various organizations and public officials are encouraging the use of absentee voting.

15. Can we keep election observers at least six feet away from the voting and registration tables as recommended by the CDC?

Yes, under Wis. Stat. § 7.41((2), the observation area must be within 3 to 8 feet of the table where voters are announcing their name and address or where voters are registering on election day, so it is appropriate to designate an observer area or multiple observer areas that adhere to those CDC guidelines.

16. I was thinking about posting a sign outside the entrance of our polling place which says something to the effect of "If you are feeling ill, and have cold or flu like symptoms, please ring the bell or call (town hall / polling place #) to notify an election inspector for assistance. Then they could curbside vote versus entering the polling place. Would this be acceptable?

Yes, the WEC believes the curbside process is applicable and could be used in these situations.

17. Can voters bring their own marking pens with them to vote on election day?

Yes, with some exceptions. Most marking pens will work well with hand-marked paper ballots, with the exception of gel pens and "sharpie"-type felt tip pens. Gel ink can smear if not dry and felt tips can bleed through the ballot.

Ball-point pens are acceptable to use when marking a ballot that will be inserted into the optical scan tabulator. Red ink should be avoided as it is difficult for some older scanners to read votes marked in red, but more modern equipment should not have problems reading votes marked in red.

18. Are there additional concerns for election inspectors opening and processing absentee ballots on election day?

The CDC states that absentee ballots and absentee ballot envelopes are an unlikely source of transmission. Election inspectors may use letter openers to open ballot envelopes which will lessen any potential contact with the adhesive area of the envelope. All election inspectors should frequently wash their hands with soap and water on election day or regularly use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer and avoid touching their face when possible.

19. How often should we wipe down touchscreen interfaces on voting equipment and e-poll books?

The EAC has organized responses from major voting equipment manufacturers for recommendations on cleaning specific products that can be found at https://www.eac.gov/election-officials/coronavirus-covid-19-resources.

Voting equipment does not need to be cleaned after every voter but should be done once an hour throughout the day. The WEC recommends that every voter use wash their hands with soap and water or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer immediately after finishing the voting process at the polling place.

20. What about other surfaces used by voters on election day, such as poll book tables, voter registration areas, pens, door handles, etc.?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

These surfaces should also be wiped down once an hour throughout election day with disinfectant wipes. The WEC recommends that every voter use wash their hands with soap and water or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer immediately after finishing the voting process at the polling place.

21. Should election inspectors be provided with face masks?

According to the CDC, facemasks should only be worn by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others.

22. Will the WEC provide cleaning supplies to polling places?

The WEC recommends that clerks contact their county health departments for information about cleaning supplies and personal protective equipment (PPE).

23. Is there a health crisis plan in for municipalities the WEC can share?

The WEC Learning Center has an Election Day Contingency Plan template available for use. The WEC will also host multiple contingency planning webinars on March 16 to help clerks prepare or update their contingency plans.

C. Additional Information

The situation concerning COVID-19 and the upcoming elections is fluid and quickly evolving, so guidance changes daily. The WEC is working with federal and state public health officials to determine the most effective guidance to provide to local election officials dealing with this crisis. We will provide additional information to local election officials as it is available.

- For the last several years, the WEC has been developing state elections contingency plans for serving clerks and voters in the event of natural disasters or other disruptions in services. We have also been requiring local election officials to develop their own contingency plans. Many of the practices outlined in these contingency plans, such as relocating polling places, shortage of election inspectors, etc., are transferable to a public health situation.
- All voters are encouraged to participate in the Spring Election either at the polls or by voting an absentee ballot in person or via mail. Local clerks are monitoring guidance from federal and state health officials regarding the status of COVID-19 exposure in our communities and developing contingency plans for the election. Voters who are sick should avoid attending public events and consider requesting an absentee ballot from the municipal clerk The public is also encouraged to consider contacting their municipal clerk to offer to serve as an election inspector at the polls in the event that there is a shortage of available inspectors.

2. What should clerks tell the press about the April election and COVID-19?

Clerks should communicate to the media that they are implementing guidance from federal and state health and election officials, and communicate any alterations in their normal procedures that are being implemented due to COVID-19 precautions, such as the elimination of voting in nursing homes and adult-care facilities as well as changes in any polling places. Clerks should monitor WEC communications and its webpage dedicated to COVID-19 information and updates.

3. How will voting be conducted in nursing homes and care facilities normally served by Special Voting Deputies.?

Under the Governor's emergency order and directives of the Department of Health Services, voting with special voting deputies is prohibited for the Spring Election. Clerks should mail absentee ballots to voters in those facilities with an absentee ballot request on file. Special Voting Deputies and observers will not visit care facilities.

At its meeting of March 12, 2020, the Wisconsin Elections Commission passed the following motion:

In light of Executive Order #72 and directives of the Department of Health Services, the Commission finds that Special Voting Deputies are "non-essential" individuals who are not permitted to enter nursing homes and other care facilities without completing a screening process that is not feasible to implement prior to the Spring Election and Presidential Primary. For that election and the May 12, 2020 Special Election in the 7th Congressional District, the Commission directs that municipalities shall not use the Special Voting Deputy process to serve residents in care facilities and instead shall transmit absentee ballots to those voters by mail.

4. Must absentee ballots sent to care facilities be transmitted by the 21-day deadline of March 17, 2020?

Wisconsin Statutes require that absentee ballots be transmitted to voters with a request on file at least 21 days before an election. Clerks should make their best efforts to comply with this requirement. Given that SVD voting was eliminated less than a week before that deadline, the WEC recognizes that full compliance with this requirement may be impossible.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

5. Can clerks hand deliver absentee ballots to care facilities instead of mailing them?

WEC believes it is permissible for absentee ballots to be hand delivered along with the required certificate envelopes. In that case, the WEC recommends that clerks contact the facility in advance to determine whether the ballots can be delivered in person and confirming the delivery in an email. Absentee ballots must be addressed to individual electors.

6. What, if any, guidance or suggestions do we provide regarding voters at facilities obtaining assistance in completing their ballots? Should clerks proactively request assistance from facility staff?

As with other absentee electors, residents of care facilities may obtain assistance from any individual excluding a candidate, their employer or labor union representative. Due to the directive of the Department of Health Services, there will be a limited pool of potential assistors available to residents of care facilities, including facility staff and family members.

7. How should clerks handle electors in care facilities that need to register or update their registration?

This is an issue which will benefit from greater communication with facility staff to ensure that residents are aware of the deadline for open registration. The open registration deadline remains the same. If a resident has moved from their voting residence within the same municipality, the clerk may update their registration under Wis. Stat. § 6.50(3). The WEC is providing a template letter which clerks can use as a basis for communicating with care facility staff.

8. What about voters in care facilities who do not have an absentee ballot request on file who would have been able to request a ballot from SVD's?

This is another area that would benefit from increased communication with facility staff to ensure residents are aware of the deadline to request an absentee ballot, which is the Thursday before the election. The WEC is providing a template letter which clerks can use as a basis for communicating with care facility staff.

9. How do residents in care facilities, who are not indefinitely confined electors, comply with the photo identification requirement?

Residents who are not indefinitely confined electors may submit a copy of a valid photo identification or may complete the EL-122sp certificate including the signature of facility staff certifying that the voter resides in the facility.

10. How can clerks better prepare for the possible absence of election inspectors?

Consider recruiting extra election inspectors to provide some reserve capacity. Consult with municipal leadership to obtain the assistance of paid staff if available. Consult with your county government to see if it can assist. Consult with local businesses and civic organizations within the municipality or county.

Under Wis. Stat. § 7.33(3) and (6), all non-governmental employers are required to permit employees to serve as an election official without loss of fringe benefits or seniority privileges and may not impose any other penalty on the employee except the employer is not required to pay wages to the employee for the time worked as an election official. The employer must grant any employee who is appointed to serve as an election inspector a leave of absence for the entire 24-hour period of election day if the employee provides at least 7 days' notice of the leave.

Clerks also have the statutory authority to make emergency poll worker appointments under Wis. Stat. § 7.30(2)(b) and should do so if they need additional election inspectors. Contact the WEC to let us know if you are experiencing significant poll worker shortages so we can assist with possible recruitment efforts.

11. Could county, municipal or state employees be assigned to work as election inspectors in the event there are shortages?

Yes, this is a great solution in the event there is an election inspector shortage. Election inspectors only need to be residents of the county in which they serve and receive some training prior to election day. A local governmental unit may permit its employees to serve as election officials without loss of fringe benefits or seniority privileges earned for scheduled work hours while they work as an inspector and without loss of pay and without any other penalty. A local government employee who serves as a paid election inspector must certify to their employer the amount of compensation received as an election inspector and that amount is deducted by the employer from their pay. Wis. Stat. § 7.33(4) and (5). Alternatively, the employee may decline to be paid as an election inspector and not have that amount deducted from their regular pay.

12. Could the county serve as a clearinghouse of available election inspectors in case some municipalities have shortages?

Yes, counties can coordinate a reserve pool of election inspectors for their municipalities, if needed.

13. What if polling places are unavailable due to quarantine or other issues? We are past the 30-day deadline for changing polling places.

Based upon the emergency order of the Governor and directives of the Department of Health Services, the Wisconsin Elections Commission determined that, for the Spring Election as well as the May 12th Special Election, municipal clerks may move polling places within 30 days of the election without obtaining approval of the local governing body. Clerks may certainly seek such approval if time permits. Moving a polling place from a facility with vulnerable populations is recommended by both the WEC and the Wisconsin Department of Health Services, which has issued guidance that only essential personnel are allowed to have access to nursing homes and care facilities. Clerks should consult with their governing bodies regarding these changes, if possible, but in some cases there may not be sufficient time for the governing body to meet to accommodate these changes and notify the public ahead of election day.

Clerks must inform impacted voters regarding any changes to their polling place. Options for contact with these voters include a direct mailing, press release and/or public information campaign.
The WEC recommends that clerks identify and confirm alternate polling places and incorporate them in your Election Day Contingency Plan. Educate election inspectors about the contingency plan and prepare ways to communicate a polling place change in advance. What would you do if a polling place was damaged by a flood, fire or tornado, or unavailable for other reasons?

14. Can a clerk encourage voters with weakened immune systems to request absentee ballots by mail?

A clerk can encourage any voter who may have a weakened immune system to consider voting absentee. Clerks can also encourage all voters to cast an absentee ballot ahead of election day but should also consider if they have the capacity to handle a potential increase in the volume of absentee ballots. Various organizations and public officials are encouraging the use of absentee voting.

15. Can we keep election observers at least six feet away from the voting and registration tables as recommended by the CDC?

Yes, under Wis. Stat. § 7.41((2), the observation area must be within 3 to 8 feet of the table where voters are announcing their name and address or where voters are registering on election day, so it is appropriate to designate an observer area or multiple observer areas that adhere to those CDC guidelines.

16. I was thinking about posting a sign outside the entrance of our polling place which says something to the effect of "If you are feeling ill, and have cold or flu like symptoms, please ring the bell or call (town hall / polling place #) to notify an election inspector for assistance. Then they could curbside vote versus entering the polling place. Would this be acceptable?

Yes, the WEC believes the curbside process is applicable and could be used in these situations.

17. Can voters bring their own marking pens with them to vote on election day?

Yes, with some exceptions. Most marking pens will work well with hand-marked paper ballots, with the exception of gel pens and "sharpie"-type felt tip pens. Gel ink can smear if not dry and felt tips can bleed through the ballot.

Ball-point pens are acceptable to use when marking a ballot that will be inserted into the optical scan tabulator. Red ink should be avoided as it is difficult for some older scanners to read votes marked in red, but more modern equipment should not have problems reading votes marked in red.

18. Are there additional concerns for election inspectors opening and processing absentee ballots on election day?

The CDC states that absentee ballots and absentee ballot envelopes are an unlikely source of transmission. Election inspectors may use letter openers to open ballot envelopes which will lessen any potential contact with the adhesive area of the envelope. All election inspectors should frequently wash their hands with soap and water on election day or regularly use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer and avoid touching their face when possible.

19. How often should we wipe down touchscreen interfaces on voting equipment and e-poll books?

The EAC has organized responses from major voting equipment manufacturers for recommendations on cleaning specific products that can be found at https://www.eac.gov/election-officials/coronavirus-covid-19-resources.

Voting equipment does not need to be cleaned after every voter but should be done once an hour throughout the day. The WEC recommends that every voter use wash their hands with soap and water or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer immediately after finishing the voting process at the polling place.

20. What about other surfaces used by voters on election day, such as poll book tables, voter registration areas, pens, door handles, etc.?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

These surfaces should also be wiped down once an hour throughout election day with disinfectant wipes. The WEC recommends that every voter use wash their hands with soap and water or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer immediately after finishing the voting process at the polling place.

21. Should election inspectors be provided with face masks?

According to the CDC, facemasks should only be worn by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others.

22. Will the WEC provide cleaning supplies to polling places?

The WEC recommends that clerks contact their county health departments for information about cleaning supplies and personal protective equipment (PPE).

23. Is there a health crisis plan in for municipalities the WEC can share?

The WEC Learning Center has an Election Day Contingency Plan template available for use. The WEC will also host multiple contingency planning webinars on March 16 to help clerks prepare or update their contingency plans.

C. Additional Information

The situation concerning COVID-19 and the upcoming elections is fluid and quickly evolving, so guidance changes daily. The WEC is working with federal and state public health officials to determine the most effective guidance to provide to local election officials dealing with this crisis. We will provide additional information to local election officials as it is available.

If you have questions, please contact the WEC Help Desk at (608) 261-2028, or elections@wi.gov.

Assistant Assembly Majority Leader

RE: Assisted Living Providers and COVID-19

Dear Assistant Majority Leader Felzkowski:

The Wisconsin Assisted Living Association (WALA) during this COVID-19 public health crisis has been in communication with and surveying our 1,500 members that provide services to Wisconsin's elderly and individuals with disabilities. Licensed assisted living facilities are comprised of Community-Based Residential Facilities (CBRFs), Residential Care Apartment Complexes (RCACs), and Adult Family Homes (AFHs).

Putting it bluntly, our members are already reporting severe staffing shortages and insufficient funding to provide wages at a level to attract caregivers and staff during the COVID-19 crisis -- regardless of whether a facility census is comprised of Medicaid \Family Care and\or private pay.

Further, while there is a potentially large temporarily displaced workforce from which to recruit, leaders in the assisted living sector believe it will be exceptionally difficult to compete with the new unemployment benefits proposed by the federal government. Our membership believes they will need to pay its workers $20 - $30/hour more than what they are currently paying to recruit and retain employees to work at these assisted living facilities. On average, our members that provide services to the frail elderly population typically pay caregivers approximately $13-$15/hour whereas those that serve individuals with cognitive/behavioral disabilities pay approximately $9.50 - $12/hour (these providers are nearly 100% reliant on the Family Care program).

Exacerbating the caregiver shortage, some counties are implementing orders inconsistent and more restrictive than state and federal guidance. Some local orders explicitly state that long-term care employees are restricted to work in only one facility (not multiple). This means that providers may lose existing caregivers who work at multiple facilities because they are effectively prohibited from contracting with staffing agencies during a facility caregiver shortage to cover shifts.

ARGENTUM | STATE PARTNER

In short, unless there is an infusion of significant funding to long-term care providers to recognize these unprecedented times and increased labor costs, coupled with the recent changes in unemployment benefits - as the COVID-19 infections spread, we know this workforce shortage crisis will worsen and jeopardize the ability of providers to function at delivering basic needs and services.

The Greatest Challenges Affecting Assisted Living

Based on feedback – WALA leadership has identified what we believe are the three highest-priority issues facing the assisted living profession during this COVID-19 crisis:

1) Caregiver and Staffing Shortages

Attracting Employees \ Caregivers. Provide additional funding to assisted living facilities in the Family Care program by way of increased reimbursement to acknowledge the significant increased labor costs now required to attract and retain individuals to work in assisted living facilities during the COVID-19 public health crisis.

Providers Cannot Compete with the recent increased Unemployment Benefits. The profession requests the Governor and Legislature to consider implementing policies to promote unemployment beneficiaries to seek work in sectors experiencing employee shortages during the COVID-19 public health crisis. Further, we are requesting the state of Wisconsin to consider creative flexibilities and solutions that would allow the additional federal unemployment benefit dollars be used instead as temporary wage enhancer incentives for individuals who work at an assisted living facility.

Request Higher Reimbursement and Financial Assistance Regardless of Payor Source. The staffing shortage crisis is affecting all assisted living providers, regardless of whether the population served is comprised of Medicaid \ Family Care or private pay. WALA requests that financial assistance be provided to all assisted living facilities regardless of provider type.

2) Personal Protection Equipment (PPE)

It is important in the effort to contain the spread of COVID-19 in assisted living facilities and in the goal of recruiting caregivers and other staff in assisted living that the state ensure sufficient distribution of appropriate personal protection equipment (PPE) to assisted living and all providers of long-term care services. Doing so will protect the residents and employees along with preventing the spread of COVID-19.

3) Regulatory Flexibility

The COVID-19 public health crisis has caused our members to make use with less while providing increased care and services to their residents. We understand the Department of

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
ARGENTUM EXPANDING SENIOR LIVING | STATE PARTNER
WI-REP-20-0887-A-003840

Health Services (DHS) is currently reviewing waivers to some of the regulations that govern our profession. This includes DHS administrative rules under Chapters 83, 88, and 89. We are requesting waivers where our members are unable to comply with the regulations. For example, we are unable to obtain tuberculosis testing for staff as hospitals and clinics are unable to complete these tests at this time. In addition, many assisted living facilities are facing staffing shortages, additional workloads, and higher staff turnover due to COVID-19. We are requesting a waiver or timeline extensions of rules for required staff training be allowed to acknowledge the situation providers are facing and allow them to focus efforts on providing care and services to their residents as quickly as possible.

Our membership greatly needs assistance in the face of this public health crisis.

Please feel free to contact me at mpochowski@ewala.org or (414) 803-7415.

Sincerely,

Michael S. Pochowski

WDA represents modern regulated dairy farms in Wisconsin and works diligently to preserve Wisconsin's heritage as the Dairy State. Our non-profit organization advocates for the truth by contesting unnecessary regulations that do not protect natural resources. The WDA believes in parity for all dischargers and works to operate under the uniform "zero-discharge" standard applied to WDA members.

Wisconsin Paper & Converting Industries are Essential Partners in Meeting Our Nation's Health & Safety Needs

Papermakers and Converters are Critical Infrastructure Manufacturers Whose Products are Vital in the Fight Against the COVID 19 Pandemic

(MADISON, WI) The Wisconsin Paper Council and Converting industries have joined forces to promote and emphasize the unique strengths and importance of Wisconsin's pulp, paper and converting production necessary to meet COVID-19 challenges.

Paper and forestry products are essential for everyday life and are made from renewable and sustainable resources. Wisconsin leads the nation in paper product production. Papermakers manufacture hundreds of specialty paper products that are used for personal hygiene, medical protective equipment and supplies, food packaging and processing, pressure sensitive liners, industrial and technical papers, high-tech manufacturing, clothing and communications, just to name a few.

The state's converting industry – which takes raw paper and processes it into a finished product – is also the largest in the nation, particularly in the "converting corridor" from Green Bay to Milwaukee where many small to mid-sized producers operate, and are often contracted by large national distributors, medical and brand partners.

Many of these crucial products are in high demand and medical necessities. The production of these essential products cannot be done remotely and must continue to operate. Facilities have taken careful steps to protect both their workforce and their customers from the spread of COVID-19.

As the trade association representing Wisconsin's pulp and paper industry since 1968, the Wisconsin Paper Council has teamed up with members of the converting industry to ensure key policymakers are aware of how critical the contributions are to not only the state of Wisconsin but the country and the world. Paper products play an important role in ongoing health and safety efforts and in supporting essential commerce. Any disruptions in the availability of these goods, including any portion of the supply chain, would cause tremendous difficulties.

"The paper and converting sectors in Wisconsin are absolutely critical to our economy and medical community nationwide," commented United States Senator Tammy Baldwin (D-WI).
"I applaud all of those brave workers in these industries who are working around the clock to provide the essential products that we all need during this worldwide medical crisis. Our Made in Wisconsin work ethic is second none and our workers are proving that and making us all proud."

Wisconsin Governor Tony Evers said, "Wisconsin's paper and converting industries are the best in the nation. They produce products Wisconsinites, and the rest of the country, depend on during the COVID-19 epidemic. Safely keeping up supply of these essential goods will help everyone overcome the challenges currently facing our state."

"Our paper and converting industries produce critical medical and personal hygiene products which our communities depend on, particularly during this pandemic," stated Rep. Scott Krug (R-Nekoosa). "Wisconsin is the number one paper producing state in the nation and these industries need to continue their operations particularly at this difficult time."

Wisconsin's producers use "mill rolls" of paper, films, and nonwovens substrates through many processes that result in medical and other products. These mill rolls can weigh up to 13,000 pounds and are 137 inches wide. There are several steps to create finished, packaged products. They include mill production, automated precision cutting, application of antibacterial agents, coatings, and layering of finely "woven" materials. Paper-Converter-manufacturer jobs are often computer and touch-screen production controlled, meeting all necessary FDA requirements and Good Manufacturing Practices (GMPs).

"Wisconsin's papermakers are key producers and shippers of the products which are critical in the fight against this worldwide pandemic. Our mills are working around the clock to manufacture and distribute personal and medical supplies where needed. We appreciate the Governor exempting our operations from his Safer at Home executive order," stated Scott Suder, President of the Wisconsin Paper Council. "The paper industry, and the converting industries, are working diligently to keep up with consumer demands while keeping our employees and consumers safe."

"The converting industry, which has specialized equipment to target many healthcare products comprises more than 100 companies," according to Masood Akhtar, Founder and President of CleanTech Partners. "Logistics and distribution channels nationwide are longtime strengths of these Midwest companies, many of which have divisions in other states."

Below is a list of essential consumer and medical products produced in Wisconsin by our paper and converting industries:

- Medical Personal Protective Equipment – including the base papers and support materials to produce face masks and gowns
- Patient gowns, lab coats, scrubs, O.R. caps and EMT items
- Disposable bags, sterilizer bags, SWABS and infection control products
- Disposable cleaning wipes and antibacterial wet wipes used for hand and surface cleansing
- Packaging for medication and medical instruments
- Liners used in medical applications
- Medical tapes used to keep IVs in place
- Carryout bags used in fast food facilities
- Food packaging products
- Sterile packaging solutions and packaging fill
- Saturating papers used for residential and commercial building
- Tissue papers, toilet papers, napkins, adult briefs

Note: This list is not comprehensive of the thousands of diverse products produced at both paper manufacturers or paper converting facilities in Wisconsin.

Please provide all responsive records from March 20, 2020, through April 10, 2020.

In an effort to accommodate your office, to ensure the reasonableness of our request, and to reduce the number of potentially responsive records to be processed and produced, American Oversight has limited its request to emails sent by the custodians. To be clear, however, American Oversight still requests that complete email chains be produced, displaying both sent and received messages. This means, for example, that both the Senator's response to an email and the initial received message are responsive to this request and should be produced.

Please note that American Oversight is using the asterisk () to designate the standard use of "wildcards" in the search for responsive records. For example, by searching "infectio," emails that include "infectious," "infection," and "infections" would be returned. American Oversight is requesting emails that contain any of those or other variations of the listed root "infectio."

2. All records reflecting communications (including emails, email attachments, calendar invitations, calendar entries, meeting notices, meeting agendas, informational material, draft legislation, talking points, any handwritten or electronic notes taken during any oral communications, summaries of any oral communications, or other materials) sent or received by (a) the Senator, the Senator's chief of staff, or anyone serving as a health, elections, or coronavirus advisor to the Senator and (b) anyone communicating on behalf of the Republican National Committee (RNC), including but not limited to anyone communicating with an email address ending in "gop.com."

Please provide all responsive records from March 18, 2020, through April 10, 2020.

Fee Waiver Request

In accordance with Wis. Stat. § 19.35(3)(e), American Oversight respectfully requests that the records be produced without charge. Providing American Oversight with a waiver of fees is in the "public interest" because American Oversight will, in accordance with its organizational mission, make the records available to the public without charge. These disclosures will likely contribute to a better understanding of relevant government procedures by the general public.

American Oversight's work is aimed solely at serving the public interest. As a 501(c)(3) nonprofit, American Oversight does not have a commercial purpose and the release of the information requested is not in American Oversight's financial interest. Rather, American Oversight's mission is to serve the public by promoting transparency in government, educating the public about government activities, and ensuring the accountability of government officials. American Oversight uses the information gathered, and its analysis of it, to educate the public through reports, press releases, or other media. American Oversight also makes materials it gathers available on its public website[2] and promotes their availability on social media platforms, such as Facebook and Twitter.[3] American Oversight has demonstrated its commitment to the public disclosure of documents and creation of editorial content through numerous substantive analyses posted to its website.[4]

The public has a significant interest in understanding how elected officials planned for and thought about the state's April 7, 2020 election.[5] Records with the potential to shed light on this matter would contribute significantly to public understanding of operations of the government. American Oversight is committed to transparency and makes the responses agencies provide to public records requests publicly available, and the public's understanding of the government's activities would be enhanced through American Oversight's analysis and publication of these records.

American Oversight asks that if its request for a fee waiver is denied in whole or in part, that you contact us prior to incurring any costs.

Guidance Regarding the Search & Processing of Requested Records

American Oversight seeks all responsive records regardless of format, medium, or physical characteristics. In conducting your search, please understand the term "record" in its broadest sense, to include any written, typed, recorded, graphic, printed, or audio material of any kind. We seek records of any kind, including electronic records, audiotapes, videotapes, and photographs, as well as letters, emails, facsimiles, telephone messages, voice mail messages and transcripts, notes, or minutes of any meetings, telephone conversations or discussions. Our request includes any attachments to these records. No category of material should be omitted from search, collection, and production.

Please search all locations and systems likely to have responsive records regarding official business. You may not exclude searches of files or emails in the personal custody of your officials, such as personal email accounts. Emails conducting government business sent or received on the personal account of the authority's officer or employee constitutes a record for purposes of Wisconsin's public records laws.[6]

In the event some portions of the requested records are properly exempt from disclosure, please disclose any reasonably segregable non-exempt portions of the requested records.[7] If it is your position that a document contains non-exempt segments, but that those non-exempt segments are so dispersed throughout the document as to make segregation impossible, please state what portion of the document is non-exempt, and how the material is dispersed throughout the document. If a request is denied in whole, please state specifically that it is not reasonable to segregate portions of the record for release.

Please take appropriate steps to ensure that records responsive to this request are not deleted by the agency before the completion of processing for this request. If records potentially responsive to this request are likely to be located on systems where they are subject to potential deletion, including on a scheduled basis, please take steps to prevent that deletion, including, as appropriate, by instituting a litigation hold on those records.

Conclusion

If you have any questions regarding how to construe this request for records or believe that further discussions regarding search and processing would facilitate a more efficient production of records of interest to American Oversight, please do not hesitate to contact American Oversight to discuss this request. American Oversight welcomes an opportunity to discuss its request with you before you undertake your search or incur search or duplication costs. By working together at the outset, American Oversight and your agency can decrease the likelihood of costly and time-consuming litigation in the future.

Where possible, please provide responsive material in an electronic format by email. Alternatively, please provide responsive material in native format or in PDF format on a USB drive. Please send any responsive material being sent by mail to American Oversight, 1030 15th Street NW, Suite B255, Washington, DC 20005. BURNING PERMIT RESTRICTIONS: WILDFIRES/COVID-19 TALKING POINTS

Effective March 27, 2020 all DNR burning permits are suspended until further notice

What does this mean?

- All DNR burn permits suspended and will no longer be issued (written or electronically)
- NO burning debris piles in barrels, on the ground, grass or wooded areas
- Small campfires for warming or cooking are ok but, strongly discouraged; burning debris in a campfire ring is NOT considered a campfire (maple sap boiling ok)
- DNR burn permits are not required if ground is snow-covered; burning is allowed any time if snow is adjacent

How will I know when I get a burn permit and/or burn debris again?

- Check website dnr.wi.gov, keyword "fire" and the DNR social media for the up-to-date status
- DNR will continue to remain in compliance with department leadership mandates and recommendations and will evaluate wildfire and pandemic risks as the situation evolves

Why is this being done?

- Spring in Wisconsin has the highest fire risk; debris burning is the #1 cause
  - After snowmelt and before green-up when vegetation is dry (March-May)
- People are traditionally doing yard clean-up and choose to burn to dispose of yard waste, increasing fire risk
- Increase social distancing/decrease person-to-person contact and decrease geographic travel of emergency responders and firefighters
- Teleworking and reduced number of available staff may result in compromised emergency response and can result in rapid wildfire growth
- Reduce smoke impact to those with compromised respiratory functions and firefighters

Are public services still being provided?

- Fire and emergency response personnel are prepared to respond as usual
  - They are operating on more strict standard operating procedures (e.g., one person per vehicle, sanitizing equipment, precautions when interacting with others, etc.)
  - Response time may be slower (see above)
- Fire detection measures include citizen reporting and patrol aircraft; report fires early, dial 911

What if I have a special situation/need?

- Special burning permits may be allowed for time-sensitive reasons and with a site inspection (e.g., agricultural site prep or land clearing development)
  - Contact your local forester to discuss; please allow extra response time
  - You may be asked to video or photo the site and email or text images

RESOLUTION

Expressing the sense of the Wisconsin State Senate that the State of Wisconsin will continue to support China in its effort to stop the spread of the coronavirus.

Whereas the outbreak of the coronavirus, known as "COVID-19", was first detected in Wuhan of Hubei Province, China, and was reported by China to the World Health Organization (WHO) on December 31, 2019; and

Whereas China's action has been critical to the global fight against the epidemic, and China has adopted unprecedented and rigorous measures for disease control and prevention, including locking down Wuhan, a metropolis of 11 million people, house-to-house temperature checks, postponing the return to work after the Lunar New Year break of hundreds of millions of travelers, construction of hospitals of more than two thousand beds on green fields within days, bringing in medical teams from across the country to Hubei Province. These measures have been effective in curbing the virus from spreading to other parts of China and the world. As a result, the daily number of newly confirmed cases in China has dropped sharply to double digits, over 60,000 (to be updated) people have been cured and discharged from hospital, and the case fatality rate has remained lower than SARS, EBOLA and MERS; and

Whereas China has been transparent and quick in sharing key information of the virus with the WHO and the international community, thus creating a window of opportunity for other countries to make timely response; and

Whereas the state and local public health authorities are closely monitoring the outbreak of the COVID-19, and the risk of this novel coronavirus to the general public in the U.S. remains low, there is no need to overreact. Most importantly, the novel coronavirus is a threat to all human beings, not just the people in regions where the virus broke out. It shall not become an excuse for discrimination against epidemic-struck regions and people from Asian communities in the State of Wisconsin; and

Whereas ending the spread of the virus is in the best interest of people at home in the U.S., and our cities and communities have acted to provide assistance to China; and

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Wisconsin State Senate that

(1) it is the sense of the Wisconsin State Senate that...

(A) the State of Wisconsin stands in solidarity with the people of China who are hard hit by the novel coronavirus; and

(B) the State of Wisconsin will continue to support China in its effort to stop the spread of the epidemic; and

(2) the Wisconsin State Senate encourages the United States government to continue to follow the WHO recommendations and work together with the WHO and other countries toward the goal of preventing the virus from taking more lives.

Subject: workload today

Some of the things I worked on today:

- Took some calls and answered emails on COVID. Several were looking for specific answers so I coordinated to help facilitate communication with the relevant departments.
- After we talked, I was going to jump on the WMC webinar, but it had already occurred earlier in the morning. I've reached out to Chris Reader to see if there is anything they have I can look at or watch.
- Watched President Trump's latest info briefing.
- Participated in the DHS Information briefing from 1:30pm-2:30pm.
- I reached out to all of the superintendents to get an update on how they are doing, and what specifically they have planned for school meals for students. With the 10 person gathering ruling, their plans may have changed, so just trying to fact find at this point to figure out if we need to be helping families find alternatives.
- I reached out to all of the Chambers of Commerce in your district to get a list of restaurants so we can start a database of those offering delivery and take out. Waiting on that feedback and hope to compile the full list tomorrow so we can push that out to the district, maybe via a special e-update. Also planning to add a new COVID page to your website where we can include helpful links, as well as the restaurant database.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE March 30, 2020

The Wisconsin Paper Council Thanks ND Paper For Generous Donations to Fight COVID-19 in Wisconsin

Madison, WI -- The Wisconsin Paper Council is applauding ND Paper for making a generous donation to the State of Wisconsin to aid in the fight against the COVID 19 virus. ND Paper which operates a mill in Biron, Wisconsin has donated 1,500 Tyvek suits and 20,000 surgical masks to the State of Wisconsin for distribution to health care providers who are on the front lines of testing and treating citizens for the COVID-19 virus.

"ND Paper is answering the call to help provide much-needed assistance to our state's medical community as they fight the coronavirus pandemic," stated WPC President Scott Suder. "ND Paper's generous donation will help protect Wisconsin medical workers who are working around the clock to keep our communities safe from this devastating virus."

The company's mills in Biron, Wisconsin, and Rumford, Maine, are integrated pulp and paper facilities, and their mill in Biron supports more than 350 working families. The company has 1,200 employees who together produce more than 1.2 million short tons of pulp and paper annually.

Suder stated that papermakers and converters throughout the state are working diligently to produce and often donate critical medical and personal hygiene products for Wisconsinites during this time of international crisis. The Wisconsin Paper Council continues to work with the federal government, Governor Evers Administration and Legislative and local leaders to coordinate logistical manufacturing, supply and donation efforts.

Wisconsinites can go to https://covid19supplies.wi.gov/Donations to either donate or sell large quantities of PPE to the State of Wisconsin. The State Emergency Operations Center (SEOC) will then work with distribute the PPE to communities that need it the most. If organizations or businesses have quantities of fewer than 50 of any of these items, they are encouraged to donate them to local health organizations instead of going through the buyback website.

The Wisconsin Paper Council (WPC) is the premier trade association which advocates for the papermaking industry before regulatory bodies, state and federal legislatures to achieve positive policy outcomes. WPC also works to educate the general public about the social, environmental, and economic importance of paper, pulp, and forestry production in Wisconsin and throughout the Midwest. Lots of emails and constituent cases, per usual. We sent the e-update Monday, so there was a good amount of response to that Tuesday that needed response. People are continuing to have a lot of questions about unemployment. I think the response to your poll worker ask has largely been positive. There are still those who wish we would postpone the election, but we have a good response for why that is not going to happen.

Stamena and I are working on sending COVID letters to all high foot traffic places in your district, so we are currently reaching out to organizations they may have lists for our district, compiling that list, and finalizing the letter. Stamena also put together an ad for newspapers to include that she will approach them with today or tomorrow once finalized. Once all of that is finished, I will go in, print everything, and send it.

Continuing to monitor facebook traffic as well. Lots of conversations about the election.

- Created a webpage for poll worker training information.

- Sent out an e-update asking for poll workers, mentioning the federal stimulus briefly, and reminding people yesterday was the last day to vote absentee.

- Monitoring FB comments on elections.
