Recommendations for Communities in the United States with Transmission of COVID-19- March 8, 2020

Bottom Line Up Front:

Community mitigation is a set of actions that persons and communities can take to help slow the spread of respiratory virus infections. These approaches are used to minimize morbidity and mortality caused by COVID-19 and minimize social and economic impacts of COVID-19. Individuals, communities, businesses, and healthcare organizations are all part of a community mitigation strategy. The following four communities should begin implementing community mitigation strategies: Seattle, Santa Clara, Westchester, and Florida.

Goals:

The goals for using mitigation strategies for communities with local COVID-19 transmission are to protect:

- Individuals at risk for severe illness, including older adults and persons of any age with underlying health conditions (See Appendix A).
- The healthcare workforce and critical infrastructure workforces

Strategy:

- Emphasize individual responsibility for implementation of recommended personal-level actions,
- Empower businesses, schools, and community organizations to implement recommended actions, particularly in ways that protect persons at risk of severe illness
- Focus on settings that provide critical services to implement recommended actions to protect critical infrastructure and individuals at risk of severe disease
- Minimize disruptions to daily life to the extent possible

The attached document outlines a proposed framework for actions which local and state health departments can implement as local spread of COVID-19 continues in the United States. Selection and implementation of these actions should be guided by the local characteristics of disease transmission, demographics, and public health and healthcare system capacity. All communities should be preparing for community mitigation. Additionally, based off these recommendations, the following communities should be taking community mitigation action:

Community	Considerations	Community Mitigation Actions
Seattle, WA	Widespread transmission, impacting public health response and healthcare capacity, focal point in a high-risk setting (long-term care facility) with high mortality rate	Moderate to severe actions
Santa Clara, CA	Widespread transmission, impact on public health response and healthcare capacity, large older adult population	Moderate to severe actions
Westchester, NYS	Sustained transmission with most cases associated with communal exposure	Low to moderate actions
Florida	Limited community transmission, older adult population, reported deaths	Prepare/Low actions

Implementation of Mitigation Strategies for Communities with Local COVID-19 Transmission

Background

When a novel virus with pandemic potential emerges, nonpharmaceutical interventions, which will be called community mitigation strategies in this document, often are the most readily available interventions to help slow transmission of the virus in communities. Community mitigation is a set of actions that persons and communities can take to help slow the spread of respiratory virus infections. Community mitigation is especially important before a vaccine or drug becomes widely available.

The following is a proposed framework for actions which local and state health departments can implement as local spread of COVID-19 continues in the United States. Selection and implementation of these actions should be guided by the local characteristics of disease transmission, demographics, and public health and healthcare system capacity.

Goals

The goals for using mitigation strategies for communities with local COVID-19 transmission are to protect:

- Individuals at risk for severe illness, including older adults and persons of any age with underlying health conditions (See Appendix A).
- The healthcare workforce and critical infrastructure workforces

These approaches are used to minimize morbidity and mortality caused by COVID-19 and minimize social and economic impacts of COVID-19. Individuals, communities, businesses, and healthcare organizations are all part of a community mitigation strategy.

Implementation emphasizes:

- Emphasizing individual responsibility for implementation of recommended personal-level actions,
- Empowering businesses, schools, and community organizations to implement recommended actions, particularly in ways that protect persons at risk of severe illness
- Focusing on settings that provide critical services to implement recommended actions to protect critical infrastructure and individuals at risk of severe disease
- Minimizing disruptions to daily life to the extent possible

Guiding principles

- Each community is unique, and mitigation appropriate strategies will vary based on characteristics of the community and populations at risk of severe disease as well as the local capacity to implement strategies (Table 1).
- Consider all aspects of a community that might be impacted, including vulnerable populations that may be more impacted socially or economically, and select appropriate actions.
- Mitigation strategies can be scaled up or down depending on the evolving situation.
- When developing mitigation plans, communities should identify ways to ensure the safety and social well-being of groups that may be especially impacted by mitigation strategies, including individuals at risk for severe illness

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Activation of community emergency plans is critical for the implementation of mitigation strategies. These plans may provide additional authorities and coordination needed for interventions to be implemented (Table 2).
- The level of activities implemented may vary across settings (i.e.. may be at moderate for one setting and at substantial for another setting at the same time in order to meet community response needs).
- Local and state public health departments may need to implement mitigation strategies for public health functions in the identification and contact tracing of cases depending on level of community spread (Table 3). When applied, community mitigation efforts may help implementation of public health activities like contact tracing.

Table 1. Local Factors to Consider for Determining Mitigation Strategies

Factor	Characteristics
Epidemiology	Level of community transmission Number of outbreaks COVID-19 cases impacting delivery of healthcare or impacting other critical infrastructure or services Epidemiology in surrounding jurisdictions
Community Characteristics	Size of community and population density Level of community engagement/support Size and characteristics of vulnerable populations Access to healthcare Transportation (public, walking) Planned large events
Healthcare capacity	Healthcare workforce Number of healthcare facilities Testing capacity Intensive care capacity PPE availability
Public health capacity	Public health workforce and availability of resources to implement strategies Available support from other state/local government agencies and partner organizations

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Who is at a higher risk to contract COVID-19?

Older adults and people who have serious chronic medical conditions including heart disease, diabetes, and lung disease have a higher risk of contracting COVID-19.

If you are at higher risk for serious illness from COVID-19 because of your age or because you have a serious long-term health problem, it is extra important for you to take actions to reduce your risk of getting sick with the disease.

What should I do if I am an older adult with higher risk of contracting the COVID-19 virus?

If you are at higher risk of getting very sick from COVID-19, you should:

- Stock up on supplies
- Take everyday precautions to keep space between yourself and others
- When you go out in public, keep away from others who are sick, limit close contact and wash your hands often.
- Avoid crowds as much as possible

During a COVID-19 outbreak in your community, stay home as much as possible.

What is COVID-19?

COVID-19 is caused by a previously unrecognized coronavirus, called COVID-19.

For more information about COVID-19 please visit the Center for Disease Control (CDC) website, and the World Health Organization (WHO) website.

What is the status of the COVID-19 outbreak in Florida?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

For the latest situation report in Florida, please visit the Florida Department of Health's website.

How many cases of COVID-19 have been reported to the Florida Department of Health?

To see the latest case count please visit the Florida Department of Health's COVID-19 page.

What is the Florida Department of Health doing to address COVID-19?

The Florida Department of Health (FDOH) is actively educating the community about how to prevent the spread and working with those infected to ensure their safety as well as the safety of those in their community. FDOH Epidemiologists are conducting tests in the three laboratories throughout Florida, in Miami, Jacksonville, and Tampa. They are also monitoring and conducting investigations on suspected cases that meet criteria for COVID-19, and are following up on these cases. Epidemiologic consultation is available 24/7 through the county health departments and Bureau of Epidemiology at 850-245-4401.

The Florida Department of Health will continue to communicate regularly with the public and health care providers with updates on COVID-19 and other respiratory illnesses.

What are the symptoms and signs of COVID-19?

Patients with confirmed COVID-19 infection have reportedly had mild to severe respiratory illness with symptoms of:

- Fever
- Cough
- Difficulty breathing

Read about COVID-19 Symptoms.

How does the virus spread?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

What should I do if I think I (or someone in my family) might have COVID-19?

- Contact your county health department (CHD).
- Consult a health-care provider as soon as possible. Call ahead and tell them before you visit that you think you may have COVID-19 so they can take precautions to prevent exposing other people.
- Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue when coughing or sneezing.
- If you have a surgical mask, wear it during close contact with other people. A mask can reduce the number of droplets coughed into the air.
- Remember, very few respiratory infections will be COVID-19.
- Review your signs, symptoms and travel history thoroughly with your physician.
- 24/7 Consultation is available to physicians through contacting their county health department and the Florida Department of Health Bureau of Epidemiology at (850) 245-4401.

If I were exposed to COVID-19, how long would it take for me to become sick?

The time between exposure to the COVID-19 virus and onset of symptoms is called the "incubation period." The incubation period for COVID-19 is typically 2 to 14 days, although in some cases it may be longer.

Is it safe to take a cruise?

If you are an older adult and therefore have a higher risk of contracting COVID-19, no, it is recommended not to take cruise at this time.

Is it safe to travel to China or other countries where COVID-19 cases have occurred?

No. The CDC has issued its most severe threat-level warning for China, South Korea, Italy, and Iran, and strongly recommending that US citizens avoid traveling to those countries. The CDC has also issued a level 2 warning for Japan. Please visit the CDC website to see the most updated travel notices.

What if I recently traveled to China, or other countries under travel advisory notices, and got sick?

If you were in China, or other countries that have travel advisories, and feel sick with fever, cough, or difficulty breathing within 14 days after you left China, you should:

- Call your local county health department.
- Seek medical care right away. Before you go to a doctor's office or emergency room, call ahead and tell them about your recent travel and your symptoms.
- Avoid contact with others.
- Not travel while sick.
- Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue or your sleeve (not your hands) when coughing or sneezing.
- Wash hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds to avoid spreading the virus to others. Use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer if soap and water are not available.
- CDC does have additional specific guidance for travelers available online.

How can I protect myself?

There are some common-sense precautions that you can take that apply to many infectious diseases.

- The most important precaution is frequent hand washing with soap and water and the use of 60% alcohol-based hand sanitizer.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth with unclean hands.
- Encourage people around you to cover their nose and mouth with a tissue when coughing or sneezing.

Helpful prevention and treatment guidelines can be found on the CDC's website: Prevention and Treatment and Guidelines for Hand Hygiene

Why is the novel coronavirus (2019-nCoV) now being called COVID-19?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The World Health Organization made an announcement Feb. 11 that the official name for the illness caused by the new coronavirus (previously known as 2019 Novel Coronavirus or 2019-nCoV) is now COVID-19.

What are coronaviruses?

Coronaviruses are a group of viruses that have a halo or crown-like (corona) appearance when viewed under a microscope. These viruses are a common cause of mild to moderate upper respiratory illness in humans and are associated with respiratory, gastrointestinal, liver and neurologic disease in animals.

If coronaviruses usually cause mild illness in humans, how could this new coronavirus be responsible for a potentially life-threatening disease such as COVID-19?

There is not enough information about the new virus to determine the full range of illness that it might cause. Coronaviruses have occasionally been linked to pneumonia in humans, especially people with weakened immune systems. The viruses also can cause severe disease in animals, including cats, dogs, pigs, mice, and birds.

How long can COVID-19 survive in the environment?

The length of time that the virus survives likely depends on a number of factors. These factors could include the type of material or body fluid containing the virus and various environmental conditions such as temperature or humidity. Researchers at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and other institutions are designing standardized experiments to measure how long COVID-19 can survive in situations that simulate natural environmental conditions.

Are there disinfectants available that can inactivate (kill) COVID-19?

Right now, there are no disinfectant products registered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for use on environmental surfaces that are specifically listed as having the ability to kill COVID-19. However, related viruses that have similar physical and biochemical properties can be killed with bleach, ammonia or alcohol, or cleaning agents containing any of these disinfectants. Cleaning agents should be used according to the manufacturer's instructions.

Where can I get more information about COVID-19?

For Florida specific information, please visit The Florida Department of Health website.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and World Health Organization are excellent sources of information about this evolving outbreak. You can access their websites here:

CDC COVID-19 Website

World Health Organization (WHO) Website

What should I do if I had close contact with someone who has COVID-19?

If you have come in contact with an individual that has recently traveled internationally, and feel sick with fever, cough, or difficulty breathing, you should:

- Call your local county health department.
- Seek medical care right away. Before you go to a doctor's office or emergency room, call ahead and tell them about your recent travel and your symptoms.
- Avoid contact with others.
- Not travel while sick.
- Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue or your sleeve (not your hands) when coughing or sneezing.
- Wash hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds to avoid spreading the virus to others. Use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer if soap and water are not available.
- CDC does have additional specific guidance for travelers available online.

Is there a vaccine?

Currently, there is no vaccine available to protect against COVID-19.

What are the treatments?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

There is no specific antiviral treatment recommended for COVID-19 infection. People infected with COVID-19 should receive supportive care to help relieve symptoms. Learn more about COVID-19 Treatment.

Should I be tested for COVID-19?

If you develop a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Iran, Italy, Japan or South Korea, you should call your county health department in your area to coordinate testing with a local healthcare provider.

If you have had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from these areas, you should call your county health department to coordinate testing with a local healthcare provider.

Your healthcare provider will work with your county health department, and they will coordinate with the Florida Department of Health and CDC to determine if you need to be tested for COVID-19.

How do you test a person for COVID-19?

Your healthcare professional will work with your county health department to determine if you need to be tested for COVID-19.

A person who is tested will have three specimens taken: oral, nasal, and saliva. The samples will be given to the county health department, who will then either ship or deliver them to the closest state laboratory. If a specimen is tested positive, it will be identified as 'presumptive positive' until the result is confirmed at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

For more information on COVID-19 testing see CDC Tests for COVID-19.

Is COVID-19 the same as the MERS-CoV or SARS virus?

No. Coronaviruses are a large family of viruses, some causing illness in people and others that circulate among animals, including camels, cats and bats. The recently emerged COVID-19 is not the same as the coronavirus that causes Middle East Respiratory Syndrome (MERS) or the coronavirus that caused Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS) in 2003. There are ongoing investigations to learn more. This is a rapidly evolving situation and information will be updated as it becomes available.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Should I be concerned about pets or other animals and COVID-19?

While this virus seems to have emerged from an animal source, it is now spreading from person-to-person. The Florida Department of Health and CDC recommend that people traveling to China avoid animals both alive and dead, but there is no reason to think that any animals or pets in the United States might be a source of infection with this new coronavirus.

What about animals or animal products imported from China?

CDC does not have any evidence to suggest that animals or animal products imported from China pose a risk for spreading COVID-19 in the United States. This is a rapidly evolving situation and information will be updated as it becomes available. The United States Department of Agriculture regulates the importation of animals and animal products, and CDC regulates the importation of animals and animal products capable of spreading human disease.

Subject: Aggressive actions states & cities must take immediately to slow spread of coronavirus
Date: Saturday, March 14, 2020 3:42:06 PM

Today, the Center for American Progress outlined aggressive actions states and cities must take to slow the spread of coronavirus. Many experts have pointed out that the key goal right now is to "flatten the curve" – to slow transmission in the near term so that the hospital system is not overwhelmed. Given the slow and inadequate response from the federal government, state and local governments must lead.

In releasing these steps, CAP analyzed the epidemiology of flattening the curve and reviewed state and local bans as of today. CAP is calling on governors and mayors to implement widespread bans and closures effective immediately that should be put into effect for at least two to four weeks:

- Banning all gatherings of more than 50 people
- Banning all gatherings of more than 10 people for individuals who are at higher risk for severe illness, such as seniors (including gatherings at retirement and assisted living facilities
- Strongly encouraging places of worship to cancel services and other events for groups of more than 25 people, as well as religious leaders to adopt additional social distancing modifications for any small gatherings that continue
- Banning all concerts, conferences, and sporting events
- Closing all schools and public colleges in jurisdictions with community spread
- Closing all gyms, bars, movie theaters, libraries, and community centers in jurisdictions with community spread
- Limiting restaurants to half of their legal capacity in jurisdictions with community spread
- Strongly encouraging employers to require employees to work remotely
- Leading by example by canceling all public events of any size
- Requiring all state and local employees to work remotely to the extent possible

Thank you for all the work your team is doing during these difficult circumstances.

From: Bill Bucknam
To: Strum, Shane
Subject: Bahamas Paradise Cruise Line
Date: Tuesday, March 10, 2020 9:33:34 AM

Dear Shane:

I hope this finds you well. I am writing to you today as a matter of urgency regarding Bahamas Paradise Cruise Line, which is headquartered here in Deerfield Beach, and its CEO, Oneil Khosa, who is a good friend.

Bahamas Paradise Cruise Line operates two ships out of the Port of Palm Beach with daily cruises to the Bahamas. One of their ships is currently in dry dock for a brief period. Their operation is responsible for a $100 million annual economic impact in Palm Beach County and it is impossible to calculate the economic impact they have in the Bahamas. After Hurricane Dorian struck the Bahamas, BPCL was the first to commence humanitarian missions. Oneil Khosa paid $600,000 of his personal funds to finance the first such mission that included doctors, nurses, contractors and ready made meals to feed hundreds of Bahamians in Freeport. This first mission was followed by several more that were supported by many generous people in Palm Beach County.

These humanitarian missions and the subsequent loss of passenger revenue while the Bahamas recovered has put BPCL in a $50 million deficit and that was before the current crisis. Unfortunately, Oneil Khosa was not invited to meet with other cruise line CEO's and Vice President Pence last Saturday at Port Everglades so their voice is not being heard. Separately, I will send you a press release they issued yesterday about this matter as well as an interview Mr. Khosa gave to WPBF Channel 25.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

It is important for Governor DeSantis to be fully aware of the operation of Bahamas Paradise Cruise Line out of the Port of Palm Beach and the next time he is here, Mr. Khosa would like to invite him to take a personal tour of their ship. I can tell you from my own experience that the maintenance level I witnessed was unbelievable and it seemed like the crew was constantly wiping down and cleaning every part of the ship. It is for this reason that none of their passengers have ever suffered from Norovirus which so many other cruise lines experience regularly (due to improper maintenance) and why COVID-19 will also be non-existent on either of their ships.

Bahamas Paradise Cruise Line continues to take passengers to Freeport in the Bahamas daily and they are hopeful that they will be able to continue to do so in order to get out from under their $50 million deficit and once again be profitable. If they were to cease operations at the Port of Palm Beach that would result in an immediate $100 million economic loss to Palm Beach County, the loss of hundreds of jobs and an incalculable financial loss to Freeport with the termination of their sole economic line.

If you wish, I would be happy to put you or someone on your staff directly in touch with Mr. Khosa and we greatly appreciate anything you can do to inform Governor DeSantis of this matter.

Best regards.

Osceola first ran unsuccessfully for a seat on the Board of Directors of the Seminole Tribe of Florida Inc., which manages the tribe's non-gaming business interests, in 2003 and was finally elected in 2009 on his third try. In 2011, he was elected as the Hollywood District representative to the Tribal Council.

Trey Jones, Head Coach & Director of Golf, Florida State University

Top national finishes, All-Americans, professional success and academic achievement have become synonymous with the Florida State men's golf program under Trey Jones. Now in his 17th season as the head men's coach and Director of Golf for the Seminoles' men's and women's golf programs, Jones has lifted the sport of golf at Florida State to new heights.

Under his direction, there is no limit on how high the Seminole programs will go. Florida State Golf will remain in excellent hands in the foreseeable future, as it was announced on June 5, 2015, that Jones' contract was extended through the 2020 season.

Jones is responsible for attracting nationally ranked recruiting classes, upgrading the Seminoles' schedule to where it is ranked among the nation's toughest on an annual basis and creating one of the most functional player development facilities in all of college golf on one of the Seminoles' five home golf courses. Jones continues annually to build on the Seminoles' success in developing the nation's top talent into national contenders and collegiate golf's elite players.

Jones is also playing a key role in securing the redevelopment of the Seminole Golf Course through the services of Nicklaus Design. With golf legend Jack Nicklaus and his son Jack II at the helm of the project, the Nicklaus Legacy Course is expected to be completed in the Fall 2019.

The development of All-American John Pak was an enormous highlight to Jones' 2018-19 season, which also saw the Seminoles grab two tournament wins at the Sea Best Invitational and the Mobile Sports Authority Intercollegiate. Pak re-wrote the record books in his sophomore year at FSU, shooting a program low 69.56 for the year. He was honored as a first-team All-American by both the Golf Coaches Association of America and Golfweek, becoming just the third Seminole to pick up first-team honors from both organizations in the same year. The other two also occurred under Jones' watch (Daniel Berger in 2013 and Jonas Blixt in 2008). FSU also made its 14th consecutive NCAA post-season appearance.

Jones' teams have now finished in the Top 5 of tournaments 73 times in the last 111 tournaments played entering the 2019-20 season.

Florida State Men's Golf achieved three team victories in the 2017-18 year and enjoyed a breakthrough freshman campaign by Pak. FSU won the year-opening Doc Gimmler, the Mobile Sports Authority Intercollegiate and the Seminole Intercollegiate. Four different individual winners emerged in Pak (Seminole Intercollegiate), Harry Ellis (Marquette Intercollegiate, Mobile Sports Authority Intercollegiate), Jamie Li (co-won the Mobile Sports Authority Intercollegiate with Ellis) and Bennett Baker (USA Individual Tournament).

Jones oversaw another solid season in 2016-17, as FSU finished 14th in the NCAA Finals and reached four days of competition at Rich Harvest Farms. Redshirt senior Cristobal Del Solar and redshirt junior Harry Ellis recorded All-America honors while also being named to the All-ACC Team. Ellis' turnaround has been one of the highlights of Jones' career, as the England native recorded career bests in scoring average (71.62), average vs. par (+0.54) and rounds played (39). Ellis would go on to win the British Amateur and participate in the 2017 Open Championship (+12). He also had exemptions to the 2018 Masters and 2018 U.S. Open as an amateur.

FSU's two All-ACC selections in 2018, which included Pak and Ellis, made it 12 straight years the Seminoles have garnered multiple all-conference selections. Their sixth consecutive trip to the NCAA Finals in 2017 was the longest active streak in the ACC and tied for the fifth-longest nationally before falling just shy in 2018.

The top-notch head coach helped FSU Men's Golf achieve more milestones in 2016. For the fifth consecutive year, the Seminoles made the NCAA Tournament. Senior Hank Lebioda became the third Seminole to win ACC Player of the Year honors, while redshirt junior Cristobal Del Solar's career year put him on the All-ACC Team and PING

Southeast All-Region Team alongside Lebioda. Senior leader Lebioda was also a PING All-American.

Jones guided Florida State to one of its most successful seasons in program history in 2015, earning ACC Coach of the Year honors for the second time. FSU ranked No. 1 in the Golf Coaches Association of America Poll for most of the season and entered the NCAA Tournament as the No. 1 overall seed for the first time ever. The Noles set a school record with six tournament victories and established three All-Americans in Jack Maguire (First Team), Hank Lebioda (Second Team) and Rowin Caron (Third Team) – the most in a single year.

Named the 2008 Atlantic Coast Conference Coach of the Year as he led the Seminoles to the first conference championship in the sport of golf in school history, Jones is no stranger to competing with the nation's best in one of the top conferences for college golf.

Building championship teams and elevating those teams onto the national stage is also nothing new to Jones, who has earned five conference coach of the year awards and led 17 of his 22 teams at the Division I level to the NCAA Championship tournament. His teams consistently hold prominent places in the national rankings, are adept at winning conference championships and are annually among the top producers of All-American and all-conference performers.

Jones has become one of the winningest coaches in school history in his first 16 years in Florida State. He is the only coach in school history to lead the Seminoles to 14 NCAA Tournament appearances (no other coach has led Florida State to more than five appearances) and he is ranked first in school history with 25 tournament championships (second is nine by Don Veller). The Seminoles have appeared in a school record 14 consecutive NCAA Tournaments entering the 2019-20 season.

Jones also co-hosts a radio show on SiriusXM PGA Tour Radio called Beyond The Tips, airing on Wednesdays at 9 p.m. ET.

Jones is married to the former Cathy McVeigh, who is the coordinator of financial aid for student-athletes at Florida State. They are the proud parents of a daughter, Jordan (17) and a son, Drew (13). Jones earned his bachelor's degree in health and physical education with a minor in business administration from North Alabama in 1991. Jones is a 28-year veteran of the collegiate coaching ranks. He was the head men's coach and Director of Golf Operations at Georgia State for eight years (1996-2003) before becoming only the fifth coach in the history of the Seminole program in 2004. Prior to his career at Georgia State, Jones was an assistant coach at Wallace State Junior College (1992-95) and his alma mater North Alabama (1991). Jones developed his teaching, coaching and recruiting philosophies as he helped hone those programs into national contenders.

Jack Nicklaus, Jr., Golfer and Golf Course Designer

After a successful collegiate career at the University of North Carolina, Jackie enjoyed competitive success first on the amateur circuit, winning the prestigious North-South Championship in 1985, and later on various professional circuits including the PGA Tour, the Canadian PGA Tour, and the Australian, European and Ben Hogan (now Nike) Tours.

In the late 1980s Jack 11 decided on a career in golf course design. By 1991 he had opened his first solo creation, Hanbury Manor near London, England. In the intervening years Nicklaus has emerged as one of the most gifted golf course designers of his generation. To date Jack 11 has opened seven golf courses in locales as varied as Indonesia, Montana, Japan, Florida and Ohio. He currently has courses under construction in Italy, Vermont, the Philippines, Ecuador and Arizona.

In addition to his own designs, Jack 11 frequently works with his father on codesigns. In recent years father and son have christened three such projects. Golden Bear Golf Club at Hammock Creek in Palm City, Florida, the Golf Club at Indigo Run on Hilton Head Island in South Carolina, and Aspen Glen Golf Club in Carbondale, Colorado. Construction was recently started on the father-son team's first Asian co-design, Olympic Staff Ashikaga.

Jack Nicklaus, Pro-Golfer

Jack William Nicklaus, nicknamed The Golden Bear, is an American retired professional golfer. He is widely considered to be one of the greatest golfers of all time. Over a quarter-century, he won a record 18 major championships, three more than second-placed Tiger Woods. Nicklaus focused on the major championships—Masters Tournament, U.S. Open, Open Championship and PGA Championship—and played a selective schedule of regular PGA Tour events. He competed in 164 major tournaments, more than any other player, and finished with 73 PGA Tour victories, third behind Sam Snead (82) and Woods (82).

Nicklaus won the U.S. Amateur in 1959 and 1961 and finished second in the 1960 U.S. Open, two shots behind Arnold Palmer. Nicklaus turned professional at age 21 toward the end of 1961. He earned his first professional victory at the 1962 U.S. Open, defeating Palmer by three shots in a next-day 18-hole playoff and launching a rivalry between golf superstars. In 1966, Nicklaus became the first player to win the Masters Tournament two years running; he also won The Open Championship, becoming at age 26 the youngest player to win all four golf majors. He won another Open Championship in 1970.

Between 1971 and 1980, he won nine more major championships, overtook Bobby Jones' record of 13 majors, and became the first player to complete double and triple career grand slams. He won the 1986 Masters, his 18th and final major championship at age 46, the tournament's oldest winner. Nicklaus joined the Senior PGA Tour (now known as the PGA Tour Champions) when he became eligible in January 1990, and by April 1996 had won 10 tournaments, including eight major championships despite playing a very limited schedule. He continued to play at least some of the four regular Tour majors until 2005, when he made his final appearances at the Masters Tournament and The Open Championship.

Today Nicklaus heads one of the world's largest golf course design companies. Among his courses is Harbour Town Golf Links. He is a member of the American Society of Golf Course Architects. Nicklaus runs an event on the PGA Tour, the Memorial Tournament.

Nicklaus' books vary from instructional to autobiographical, with his Golf My Way considered one of the best instructional golf books of all time; the video of the same name is the best-selling golf instructional to date.

As a result of these efforts, Mr. Wolf and his staff have implemented policies that protect American communities from transnational criminal organizations and safeguard American workers.

With over 20 years of policy development and management experience in both the public and private sectors, Mr. Wolf is an effective leader and policymaker on a variety of complex issues. During the Trump Administration, he served as the Chief of Staff for the Transportation Security Administration (TSA), Deputy Chief of Staff and Chief of Staff for the Department. Shortly after the terrorist attack on September 11, 2001, Mr. Wolf served as the Assistant Administrator of Transportation Security Policy in which he played a leading role in establishing the Transportation Security Administration.

Therefore, pursuant to Section 2 of Executive Order No. 20-52, I hereby issue the following authorization(s):

Please See Message Below from Kelly Craighead, President & CEO, Cruise Lines International Association

CLIA cruise line members are voluntarily and temporarily suspending operations related to any cruise line departures from the United States for 30 days, effective at 12:00AM EST on 14 March 2020.

Attached, please find our media statement announcing this unprecedented action. We recognize that this decision will have detrimental effects, including on the 1.17 million people who depend on this robust industry, including cruise line employees and crew, tens of thousands of travel agents, ports, destinations and others, the majority of which represent small businesses.

Since the end of January, when the World Health Organization (WHO) first announced the global health emergency, all the way through this week when the WHO declared COVID-19 a pandemic, we have consistently and increasingly strengthened our health policies—always in the interest of public health and safety.

We will use this time during the temporary suspension to continue to focus on our public health protocols and policies by going still further in our efforts—working with the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and other U.S. officials.

Our ocean-going cruise line members are focused now on the safe and smooth return of those currently at sea onboard those ships that will be affected by this decision. For CLIA, our singular focus is to support our community through this difficult time. The best way we can do that is to begin planning for the successful return to normal operations as soon as possible. In the days and weeks ahead, that will be our priority above all. And we will do it together.

We will keep you apprised as we learn more and thank you for your partnership now more than ever.

Very sincerely,
Kelly

Cruise Lines International Association (CLIA) Announces Voluntary Suspension in U.S. Cruise Operations

Washington, DC (13 March 2020)—CLIA ocean-going cruise lines will be voluntarily and temporarily suspending cruise ship operations from and to U.S. ports of call for 30 days as public health officials and the U.S. Government continue to address COVID-19.

"CLIA cruise line members are voluntarily and temporarily suspending operations from the U.S. as we work to address this public health crisis," said Kelly Craighead, President and CEO, CLIA. "This is an unprecedented situation. Our industry has taken responsibility for protecting public health for more than 50 years, working under the guidance of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and prides itself on its ability to deliver exceptional vacation experiences for guests, as well as meaningful employment opportunities for crew. This has been a challenging time, but we hope that this decision will enable us to focus on the future and a return to normal as soon as possible."

The temporary suspension will take effect at 12:00AM EST on 14 March 2020. CLIA ocean-going cruise lines are focused on the safe and smooth return of those currently at sea onboard ships that will be affected by this decision.

"We do not take this decision lightly, and we want the traveling public to know in no uncertain terms the commitment of this industry to putting people first," said Adam Goldstein, CLIA Global Chairman. "During this time, we will continue to work with the CDC and others to prepare for resumption of sailings when it is appropriate. We know the travel industry is a huge economic engine for the United States and when our ships once again sail, our industry will be a significant contributor to fueling the economic recovery."

The cruise industry is a vital artery for the U.S. economy, supporting over 421,000 American jobs, with every 30 cruisers supporting one U.S. job, and annually contributes nearly $53 billion to the U.S. economy. Cruise activity supports travel agencies, airlines, hotels and a broad supply chain of industries that stretches across the United States.

Guests who are booked on cruise itineraries which will be impacted by this decision are encouraged to contact their travel advisors or reach out to their cruise lines directly. For additional information, please contact press@cruising.org.

Dear Stakeholder:

The federal government continues to take proactive steps to address the COVID-19 threat as the health and safety of the American people remain a top priority. Please see below for the latest guidance and releases in response to COVID-19.

CMS Updates FAQs for Medicaid and CHIP: CMS released updated FAQs that address issues raised by states over the prior few days. The document includes answers to questions related to the flexibilities CMS is affording to states in managed care, benefits, financing, 1115 demonstrations, and leveraging "1135" waivers offered as part of the President's declaration of a national emergency. States may submit questions to CMS through their state leads. The FAQs can be found here.

CMS Guidance to Programs of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly (PACE) Organizations: Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries that participate in PACE typically have chronic conditions, are older and therefore at higher risk for COVID-19. The guidance offers clear, actionable information to PACE Organizations on accepted policies and standard procedures with respect to infection control. The guidance outlines that POs can ensure access to Part D drugs by relaxing "refill-too-soon" edits & providing maximum extended day supply & waiving prior authorization requirements at any time that they otherwise would apply to drugs used to treat or prevent COVID-19. More information about the guidance can be found here.

Updated FAQs for Healthcare Professionals: CDC updated their frequently asked questions for healthcare personnel to include information for pregnant healthcare workers. The FAQs generally address symptoms, risks, treatment and waste management issues for healthcare professionals treating patients with COVID-19. The FAQs can be found here.

Key Leaders with Messages: Key leaders have written or taped short videos to explain different roles and responsibilities for individuals as part of community mitigation.

- Vice President Pence Asking for American People's Help to Fight Coronavirus (Op-Ed)
- Dr. Fauci on What is Social Distancing? (Video)
- Surgeon General Message to Millennials (Video)
- CDC's Dr. Jay Butler on What Older Adults Need to Know (Video)
- Ambassador Birx on Who Needs to be Tested for Coronavirus (Video)

Phase 1 of Vaccine Trial: On Monday, the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID) at the National Institutes of Health announced that a Phase 1 clinical trial evaluating an investigational vaccine designed to protect against COVID-19 has begun at Kaiser Permanente Washington Health Research Institute in Seattle, funded by NIH. More information can be found here.

FDA FAQs on Food Safety: FDA provided additional resources to industry members and consumers on COVID-19 and food safety. The FAQs can be found here.

Recommended Preventive Practices and FAQs for Faith-based and Community Leaders: HHS recognizes faith and community leaders are a valuable source of comfort and support for members and communities during times of distress, including the growing presence of COVID-19 in different parts of the U.S. To support these efforts, the HHS Partnership Center released the an FAQ document on COVID-19 for this population.

HHS Expanding Public-Private Partnerships: HHS announced a public-private partnership to create a U.S.-based, high-speed, high-volume emergency drug packaging solution using low-cost prefilled syringes. This partnership will enable the Strategic National Stockpile (SNS) to fill and finish, on a rapid basis, hundreds of millions of prefilled syringes to respond quickly and efficiently to widespread health emergencies, such as the novel coronavirus outbreak. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH ANNOUNCES TWO PRESUMPTIVE POSITIVE COVID-19 CASES IN FLORIDA

Risk to Florida Public Remains Low

Contact:
Communications Office
NewsMedia@flhealth.gov
(850) 245-4111

Tallahassee, Fla. — The Florida Department of Health (Department) has announced there are two presumptive positive cases of 2019 coronavirus disease (COVID-19) in Florida. Both individuals remain in isolation at this time. Despite these cases in Florida, the overall immediate threat to the public remains low.

Governor Ron DeSantis said, "I have been working with federal partners and our Department of Health to ensure that communities are ready to handle the challenges presented by COVID-19. The dedicated professionals at our county health departments, as well as those working at local medical providers, are well equipped to address these and future cases. State Surgeon General Dr. Scott Rivkees has taken appropriate, decisive action to help affect the best possible outcomes, and I will continue directing our state agencies to do whatever is necessary to prioritize the health and well-being of Florida residents."

Lieutenant Governor Jeanette Nuñez said, "Florida is a national leader in public health, and that quickly became evident as soon as we received information regarding presumptive positive cases of COVID-19 in our state. Public health teams from our Department of Health have already begun engaging with the impacted individuals and are quickly working towards identifying and contacting everyone who may be potentially affected by this virus. Thanks to the extensive preparations and tireless work the Department's staff has been undertaking since information regarding COVID-19 became available in early January, our county health departments, medical providers and all other partners in public health are well prepared to prevent the spread of COVID-19."

State Surgeon General Dr. Scott Rivkees said, "This is the scenario that we prepare for every day in public health. The Department is moving forward with the appropriate plans, and we are working directly with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and local medical providers to ensure these individuals receive the proper treatment and that anyone who has come into contact with them is following the necessary protocols, limiting or stopping any further spread. Thanks to Florida's integrated public health system, we have been able to proactively engage and plan with our public health partners at every level, enabling us to take these important steps in a very expeditious manner. Our epidemiological teams are among the best in the nation, and they are right now aggressively pursuing every potential lead during these critical early moments of this outbreak in Florida."

The first patient is an adult Manatee county resident without travel history to countries identified for restricted travel by the CDC. This person did seek health care, is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials. The Florida Department of Health is working closely with the patient, their close contacts and health care providers to isolate and monitor persons who may have been exposed to COVID-19 and implement testing of anyone who may develop COVID-19 symptoms, including fever, cough, or shortness of breath.

The second patient is an adult resident of Hillsborough county with a history of travel to Italy. This person is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials.

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from the COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. As a reminder, the Department always recommends everyday preventive actions to help impede the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;
    - If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and
- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local county health department (CHD) and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the county health department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

Please visit the Department's dedicated COVID-19 webpage at www.FloridaHealth.gov/COVID-19. This remains the best and most up-to-date resource for information and guidance regarding COVID-19 in Florida.

For any other questions related to COVID-19 in Florida, please contact the Department's dedicated COVID-19 Call Center by calling 1-866-779-6121 or emailing COVID-19@flhealth.gov. The Call Center is available Monday through Friday, 8:00am to 5:00pm.

In addition, please visit http://www.floridahealth.gov/all-county-locations.html to locate and obtain contact information for your local CHD.

Background & Additional Information for State & Local Officials

U.S. Department of Health & Human Services (HHS)

- The Department of Health and Human Services is committed to providing as much information as possible to prepare communities for response to COVID-19. The Department, through the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the Food and Drug Administration, and other agencies, continuously provide guidance to healthcare providers, laboratories, communities, and state and local officials for dealing with suspected or confirmed cases of COVID-19. The most up-to-date information can be found at www.coronavirus.gov.
- Wednesday, March 12, CDC announced the imminent release of almost $600 million to support state and local authorities respond to the COVID-19 outbreak. Full funding amounts are here.
- CDC released their "Implementation of Mitigation Strategies for Communities with Local COVID-19 Transmission." This is a guide for communities describing possible coronavirus transmission. Community mitigation strategies are often the most available interventions to help slow the transmission of COVID-19 in communities.
- The CDC has been actively working to address the need for testing across the country. You can find more information about testing here. We encourage review of the Updated Guidance on Evaluating and Testing Persons for Coronavirus Disease 2019, as well as the recently updated the FAQ website for laboratories to determine best practices for testing.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- The U.S. Public Health Service Commissioned Corps has deployed hundreds of officers to help with this response. As America's Health Responders, the Commissioned Corps is currently very involved in assisting the CDC with airport screenings, deploying staff to support hospitals, among other important missions. Find out more about Commissioned Corps activities here.
- Part of preparedness includes a robust blood supply. The current situation around COVID-19 heightens the need for a ready blood supply, please encourage your health community members to keep their appointments to donate blood.
- CDC released updated guidance on infection prevention and control recommendations for healthcare workers. Healthcare workers are fighting this outbreak on the front lines, and this guidance is intended to provide assistance to healthcare settings that are handling suspected or confirmed cases of COVID-19. This guidance is applicable to all U.S. healthcare settings.

U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA)

- The Small Business Administration will work directly with state Governors to provide targeted, low-interest loans to small businesses and non-profits that have been severely impacted by the Coronavirus (COVID-19). The SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loan program provides small businesses with working capital loans of up to $2 million that can provide vital economic support to small businesses to help overcome the temporary loss of revenue they are experiencing.
- The Coronavirus Preparedness and Response Supplemental expanded the disaster definition for the Small Business Administration's Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDL) to include COVID-19. Economic Injury Disaster Loans are SBA loans that are available to eligible Small Businesses, Small agricultural cooperatives, and most non-profits that have experienced substantial economic injury as a result of a disaster.
    - EIDLs are available in areas that are declared a disaster area by the SBA.
    - There has to be an SBA Disaster Declaration in an area for EIDL loans to be made available, which originates from a request made by the Governor.
    - To assist in the efforts, the SBA engages with States' Emergency Response Teams to help them comply with the requirements before a request is made.
- EIDL Loan Details
    - Entities that can apply for EIDL loans are eligible Small Businesses, Small agricultural cooperatives, and most private nonprofit organizations.
    - EIDL Loans are up to $2million and have terms as long as 30 years.
- State and local officials who have been contacted by Small Businesses that may have been affected should share that information with their Governor or the State's Emergency Response Officials. More information on SBA's disaster loans, including eligibility and how to apply for loans, can be found here: www.SBA.gov/disaster

U.S. Department of Education (DoED)

- The Department of Education has established a dedicated Coronavirus webpage, which includes resources for institutions of higher education and for K-12.
    - The website includes guidance for students at institutions of higher education, and covers Coronavirus-related scenarios that could impact students who are enrolled in study abroad programs, students who meet full-time requirements but fall below 12 credit hours, students who are quarantined and miss class, campuses that have temporarily stopped offering ground-based classes to prevent the spread of Coronavirus, and foreign schools that serve Americans who receive Federal financial aid. Also see a letter from the Office for Civil Rights that addresses potential discrimination associated with coronavirus.

- The Department is working on additional information for families and communities including:
  - Information regarding certain flexibilities under the Every Student Succeeds Act, or "ESSA;"
  - Information regarding services to children with disabilities;
  - A fact sheet from our Office for Civil Rights on the risk of Coronavirus in schools while protecting the civil rights of students; and
  - Information on the Family Education Records Privacy Act, or "FERPA," as it pertains to K-12 and higher education students.
- The Department will continue to update its website, ed.gov/coronavirus. Please direct education related questions to COVID-19@ed.gov.

U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT)

- The U.S. Department of Transportation, in its important supporting role, has and will continue to coordinate with transportation stakeholders, foreign counterparts and other federal agencies to manage the risk in the United States.
- DOT continues to ensure: an active air bridge remains in place for the safe return of Americans from affected areas; airlines are funneling passenger flights to one of the eleven designated U.S. airports equipped to health-screen Americans returning from affected areas; continued air and sea cargo traffic between the US and China; health protocols are established to protect the crews of aircraft continuing to fly between the US and foreign locations; and, dissemination of health messages about the virus, for airlines to use to inform their passengers.
- The U.S. government's travel restrictions and advisories have been a remarkably effective 'first layer' of containment. These travel requirements delayed the arrival of the virus to the United States, giving the nation precious time to prepare further measures, and plan for mitigation. This achievement took the cooperation of nearly 200 commercial airlines, a like number of overseas airports, and the Civil Aviation Authority of China.
- External Stakeholder outreach is being actively conducted throughout the modes of transportation in DOT. DOT has already hosted calls with stakeholders for the Federal Aviation Administration, Federal Transit Authority, Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration, and others. Additional calls are scheduled for outreach to additional stakeholders in all surface transportation, maritime, and labor.

U.S. Department of Labor (DOL)

- The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) developed COVID-19 planning guidance for employers to implement engineering, administrative, and work practice controls and personal protective equipment (PPE). The guidance is intended for planning purposes – employers and workers should use the planning guidance to help identify risk levels in workplace settings and to determine any appropriate control measures to implement.
- The U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM), an independent agency that serves as the chief human resources agency and personnel policy manager for the Federal Government, issued guidance for Federal Agencies regarding COVID-19 and human resources policies.
- DOL announced new guidance outlining flexibilities that States have in administering their unemployment (UI) programs to assist Americans affected by the COVID-19 outbreak. Under the guidance, federal law.

U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development (HUD)

- The health and well-being of our country's most vulnerable citizens is Secretary Ben Carson's highest priority. At the direction of Secretary Carson senior HUD, officials have developed an Infectious Disease Toolkit for Continuum of Care homeless shelters (CoC). This includes specific documents addressing preparedness in shelters and encampment settings. More here.
- HUD has sent communication to CoC and Housing Opportunities for Persons With AIDS (HOPWA) grantees, highlighting the importance of infectious disease preparedness and linking to CDC and Healthcare for the Homeless resources: Infectious Disease Preparedness Among Homeless Assistance Providers
- HUD is coordinating with the CDC, Healthcare for the Homeless, United States Interagency Council on Homelessness (USICH) on messaging and cross-promoting resource materials. This will continue on an ongoing basis. Also, the Department is reaching out to Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) and Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) for future coordination.
- HUD has plenty of resources for your communities including:
    - Communities can use their unspent Emergency Solutions Grants and Continuum of Care Program funds to help address needs related to coronavirus. Additionally, a portion of CDBG funds are also available for public services, including health care.
    - Technical Assistance is available for ESG and CoC Program recipients if requested. Additionally, communities that want to amend their CDBG plans, can reach out to their CPD representative if they need assistance.

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA)

- USDA Secretary Sonny Perdue announced proactive flexibilities to allow meal service during school closures to minimize potential exposure to the coronavirus. During an unexpected school closure, schools can leverage their participation in one of USDA's summer meal programs to provide meals at no cost to students. Under normal circumstances, those meals must be served in a group setting. However, in a public health emergency, the law allows USDA the authority to waive the group setting meal requirement, which is vital during a social distancing situation.
- USDA intends to use all available program flexibilities and contingencies to serve program participants across our 15 nutrition programs. USDA has already begun to issue waivers to ease program operations and protect the health of participants. USDA is receiving requests for waivers on an ongoing basis. As of today, USDA has been asked to waive congregate feeding requirements in Washington, California, Maryland, Alaska, Utah, Pennsylvania, Wyoming, Maine, Kansas, New Jersey, New York, South Carolina, South Dakota, and Virginia and USDA has granted those requests.
- For more information about the coronavirus response across USDA, please visit: www.usda.gov/coronavirus.

U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS)

- While the overall risk to the American public remains low, actions by DHS and the administration are decreasing the strain on public health officials by screening incoming travelers, expediting the processing of U.S. citizens returning from China, and ensuring resources are focused on the health and safety of the American people.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

It is important to recognize, that while there is a significant focus on containing and mitigating the spread of COVID-19, all departments and agencies of DHS are continuing to perform their regular duties with no impact on their mission.

- DHS is working to recognize, detect, and assist individuals attempting to enter the U.S. through our, airports, land ports, or waterways who may be carrying the virus: Cruise Lines International Association, CDC, USCG, and CBP. DHS is working with the Department of State, HHS, and the senior public health leadership with the Government of Mexico to prepare for any COVID-19 cases identified along the South West Border. This effort includes coordination with state, and local Public Health Officials to develop reporting and response courses of action.
- FEMA has rostered 56 four-person Incident Management Assistance Teams.
- The Countering Weapons of Mass Destruction Office, which contains the National Biosurveillance Integration Center and the Chief Medical Officer, has maintained close coordination with our Components and U.S. Government partners regarding the status of the outbreak and associated U.S. Government response actions.

COVID-19: Background & Additional Information

Background

Under the leadership of President Trump and Vice President Pence, the full weight of the U.S. Government is working to protect the health and safety of the American people. Since the beginning of the outbreak, President Trump has taken unprecedented steps – including prudent travel restrictions and an early containment strategy – to protect the health of Americans in response to the coronavirus. In January, the President formed a Coronavirus Task Force, led by Vice President Mike Pence and comprised of subject-matter experts, to organize a whole-of-government response (President Donald J. Trump Has Taken Unprecedented Steps to Respond To the Coronavirus and Protect the Health and Safety of Americans). The Coronavirus Task Force and broader Administration have and will continue to work with State-Local-Tribal officials and private sector and non-profit partners in preparing for and responding to the Coronavirus. It is important to note that at this time, the risk to the average American remains low. All agencies are working aggressively to monitor this continuously evolving situation and to keep our partners and the public informed.

Fact Sheet on H.R. 6021 – Families First Coronavirus Response Act

Following extensive negotiations with Congress, President Trump announced his support for legislation to help American workers and families impacted by the coronavirus.

- The President is committed to ensuring American workers and families have the support they need, and this legislation follows through on that.
- The Administration engaged in extensive discussions with Congress to secure key provisions and changes in language.
- As a result of the Administration's efforts, substantial improvements were made from the initial bill.

This delivers on President Trump's plan to help American workers and their families who have been harmed by the coronavirus outbreak.

- The legislation establishes tax credits to provide paid sick and family medical leave for employment interruptions related to coronavirus.
    - This will provide support for employees with coronavirus, under quarantine, caring for someone affected, or with children whose school has closed.
- Eligible employers will receive a dollar-for-dollar tax credit for any paid leave they provide under this program.
- Importantly, employees will be able to receive the paid leave directly from their employer, rather than an inefficient government run program.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- We are partnering with businesses, not imposing an unfunded mandate on them.

- The legislation also incentivizes states to ease access to unemployment benefits, assisting Americans who may be unemployed due to the impact of the virus.

- In order to help families and the most vulnerable, the bill provides funding and flexibility for emergency nutritional aid for senior citizens, women, children, and low-income families.

To protect the health of our citizens, the legislation provides free coronavirus testing for all Americans who need it.

- This includes free testing through commercial insurance, Medicare, Medicaid, CHIP, Indian Health Service, and TRI-CARE.
- Every American who needs a test, should be able to get a test regardless of their financial circumstances.

States and territories are now encouraged to assess their needs and request these available flexibilities, which are outlined in the Medicaid and CHIP Disaster Response Toolkit. Examples of flexibilities available to states under section 1135 waivers include the ability to permit out-of-state providers to render services, temporarily suspend certain provider enrollment and revalidation requirements to promote access to care, allow providers to provide care in alternative settings, waive prior authorization requirements, and temporarily suspend certain pre-admission and annual screenings for nursing home residents. U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA)

- The Small Business Administration will work directly with state Governors to provide targeted, low-interest loans to small businesses and non-profits that have been severely impacted by the Coronavirus (COVID-19). The SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loan program provides small businesses with working capital loans of up to $2 million that can provide vital economic support to small businesses to help overcome the temporary loss of revenue they are experiencing. More here.
- The Coronavirus Preparedness and Response Supplemental expanded the disaster definition for the Small Business Administration's Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDL) to include COVID-19. Economic Injury Disaster Loans are SBA loans that are available to eligible Small Businesses, Small agricultural cooperatives, and most non-profits that have experienced substantial economic injury as a result of a disaster.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

    - EIDLs are available in areas that are declared a disaster area by the SBA.
    - There has to be an SBA Disaster Declaration in an area for EIDL loans to be made available, which originates from a request made by the Governor.
    - To assist in the efforts, the SBA engages with States' Emergency Response Teams to help them comply with the requirements before a request is made.
- EIDL Loan Details
    - Entities that can apply for EIDL loans are eligible Small Businesses, Small agricultural cooperatives, and most private nonprofit organizations.
    - EIDL Loans are up to $2million and have terms as long as 30 years.
- State and local officials who have been contacted by Small Businesses that may have been affected should share that information with their Governor or the State's Emergency Response Officials. More information on SBA's disaster loans, including eligibility and how to apply for loans, can be found here: www.SBA.gov/disaster.

U.S. Department of Education (DoED)

- The Department of Education has established a dedicated Coronavirus webpage, which includes resources for institutions of higher education and for K-12.
    - The website includes guidance for students at institutions of higher education, and covers Coronavirus-related scenarios that could impact students who are enrolled in study abroad programs, students who meet full-time requirements but fall below 12 credit hours, students who are quarantined and miss class, campuses that have temporarily stopped offering ground-based classes to prevent the spread of Coronavirus, and foreign schools that serve Americans who receive Federal financial aid. Also see a letter from the Office for Civil Rights that addresses potential discrimination associated with coronavirus.
- The Department is working on additional information for families and communities including:
    - Information regarding certain flexibilities under the Every Student Succeeds Act, or "ESSA;"
    - Information regarding services to children with disabilities;
    - A fact sheet from our Office for Civil Rights on the risk of Coronavirus in schools while protecting the civil rights of students; and
    - Information on the Family Education Records Privacy Act, or "FERPA," as it pertains to K-12 and higher education students.
- The Department will continue to update its website, ed.gov/coronavirus. Please direct education related questions to COVID-19@ed.gov.

U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT)

- The U.S. Department of Transportation, in its important supporting role, has and will continue to coordinate with transportation stakeholders, foreign counterparts and other federal agencies to manage the risk in the United States.
- DOT continues to ensure: an active air bridge remains in place for the safe return of Americans from affected areas; airlines are funneling passenger flights to one of the eleven designated U.S. airports equipped to health-screen Americans returning from affected areas; continued air and sea cargo traffic between the US and China; health protocols are established to protect the crews of aircraft continuing to fly between the US and foreign locations; and, dissemination of health messages about the virus, for airlines to use to inform their passengers.
- The U.S. government's travel restrictions and advisories have been a remarkably effective 'first layer' of containment. These travel requirements delayed the arrival of the virus to the United States, giving the nation precious time to prepare further measures, and plan for mitigation. This achievement took the cooperation of nearly 200 commercial airlines, a like number of overseas airports, and the Civil Aviation Authority of China.

- External Stakeholder outreach is being actively conducted throughout the modes of transportation in DOT. DOT has already hosted calls with stakeholders for the Federal Aviation Administration, Federal Transit Authority, Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration, and others. Additional calls are scheduled for outreach to additional stakeholders in all surface transportation, maritime, and labor.

U.S. Department of Labor (DOL)

- The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) developed COVID-19 planning guidance for employers to implement engineering, administrative, and work practice controls and personal protective equipment (PPE). The guidance is intended for planning purposes – employers and workers should use the planning guidance to help identify risk levels in workplace settings and to determine any appropriate control measures to implement.
- The U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM), an independent agency that serves as the chief human resources agency and personnel policy manager for the Federal Government, issued guidance for Federal Agencies regarding COVID-19 and human resources policies.
- DOL announced new guidance outlining flexibilities that States have in administering their unemployment (UI) programs to assist Americans affected by the COVID-19 outbreak. Under the guidance, federal law.

U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development (HUD)

- The health and well-being of our country's most vulnerable citizens is Secretary Ben Carson's highest priority. At the direction of Secretary Carson senior HUD, officials have developed an Infectious Disease Toolkit for Continuum of Care homeless shelters (CoC). This includes specific documents addressing preparedness in shelters and encampment settings. More here.
- HUD has sent communication to CoC and Housing Opportunities for Persons With AIDS (HOPWA) grantees, highlighting the importance of infectious disease preparedness and linking to CDC and Healthcare for the Homeless resources: Infectious Disease Preparedness Among Homeless Assistance Providers
- HUD is coordinating with the CDC, Healthcare for the Homeless, United States Interagency Council on Homelessness (USICH) on messaging and cross-promoting resource materials. This will continue on an ongoing basis. Also, the Department is reaching out to Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) and Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) for future coordination.
- HUD has plenty of resources for your communities including:
    - Communities can use their unspent Emergency Solutions Grants and Continuum of Care Program funds to help address needs related to coronavirus. Additionally, a portion of CDBG funds are also available for public services, including health care.
    - Technical Assistance is available for ESG and CoC Program recipients if requested. Additionally, communities that want to amend their CDBG plans, can reach out to their CPD representative if they need assistance.

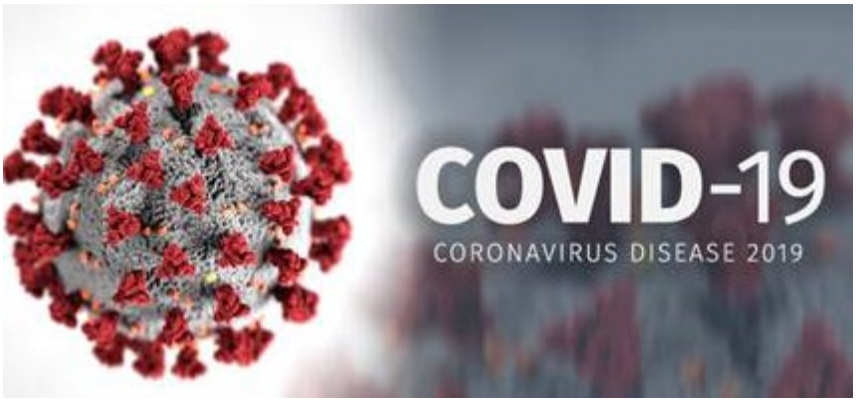
U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA)

- USDA Secretary Sonny Perdue announced proactive flexibilities to allow meal service during school closures to minimize potential exposure to the coronavirus. During an unexpected school closure, schools can leverage their participation in one of USDA's summer meal programs to provide meals at no cost to students. Under normal circumstances, those meals must be served in a group setting. However, in a public health emergency, the law allows USDA the authority to waive the group setting meal requirement, which is vital during a social distancing situation.
- USDA intends to use all available program flexibilities and contingencies to serve program participants across our 15 nutrition programs. USDA has already begun to issue waivers to ease program operations and protect the health of participants. USDA is receiving requests for waivers on an ongoing basis. As of today, USDA has been asked to waive congregate feeding requirements in Washington, California, Maryland, Alaska, Utah, Pennsylvania, Wyoming, Maine, Kansas, New Jersey, New York, South Carolina, South Dakota, and Virginia and USDA has granted those requests.
- For more information about the coronavirus response across USDA, please visit: www.usda.gov/coronavirus.

U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS)



- While the overall risk to the American public remains low, actions by DHS and the administration are decreasing the strain on public health officials by screening incoming travelers, expediting the processing of U.S. citizens returning from China, and ensuring resources are focused on the health and safety of the American people. It is important to recognize, that while there is a significant focus on containing and mitigating the spread of COVID-19, all departments and agencies of DHS are continuing to perform their regular duties with no impact on their mission.
- DHS is working to recognize, detect, and assist individuals attempting to enter the U.S. through our, airports, land ports, or waterways who may be carrying the virus: Cruise Lines International Association, CDC, USCG, and CBP. DHS is working with the Department of State, HHS, and the senior public health leadership with the Government of Mexico to prepare for any COVID-19 cases identified along the South West Border. This effort includes coordination with state, and local Public Health Officials to develop reporting and response courses of action.
- FEMA has rostered 56 four-person Incident Management Assistance Teams.
- The Countering Weapons of Mass Destruction Office, which contains the National Biosurveillance Integration Center and the Chief Medical Officer, has maintained close coordination with our Components and U.S. Government partners regarding the status of the outbreak and associated U.S. Government response actions.
- Presidential Proclamation to Protect the Homeland from Travel-Related Coronavirus Spread: On Thursday, March 12, President Donald J. Trump signed a Presidential Proclamation, which suspends the entry of most foreign nationals who have been in certain European countries at any point during the 14 days prior to their scheduled arrival to the United States. These countries, known as the Schengen Area, include: Austria, Belgium, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland. This does not apply to legal permanent residents, (generally) immediate family members of U.S. citizens, and other individuals who are identified in the proclamation.

COVID-19: Background & Additional Information

Background

Under the leadership of President Trump and Vice President Pence, the full weight of the U.S. Government is working to protect the health and safety of the American people. Since the beginning of the outbreak, President Trump has taken unprecedented steps – including prudent travel restrictions and an early containment strategy – to protect the health of Americans in response to the coronavirus. In January, the President formed a Coronavirus Task Force, led by Vice President Mike Pence and comprised of subject-matter experts, to organize a whole-of-government response (President Donald J. Trump Has Taken Unprecedented Steps to Respond To the Coronavirus and Protect the Health and Safety of Americans). The Coronavirus Task Force and broader Administration have and will continue to work with State-Local-Tribal officials and private sector and non-profit partners in preparing for and responding to the Coronavirus. It is important to note that at this time, the risk to the average American remains low. All agencies are working aggressively to monitor this continuously evolving situation and to keep our partners and the public informed.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH ADVISES INDIVIDUALS WHO TRAVELLED ON NILE CRUISE TO SELF-ISOLATE FOR 14 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF RETURN

Tallahassee, Fla. — The Florida Department of Health is advising all individuals who travelled on a river cruise on the Nile River in Egypt in February 2020 to self-isolate for 14 days following their date of return to the United States. Several passengers in the United States recently developed symptoms and have been confirmed to be infected with coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19).

The Department has been made aware that persons who were on tours in Egypt, Israel and Jordan between Feb 4-18, 2020 may have been exposed to COVID-19. Persons who travelled to these areas and have become sick are advised to stay home and isolated from others for the duration of their illness. Before seeking medical care, individuals who may have been exposed to COVID-19 should contact their nearest county health department.

For self-isolation guidelines, please visit: http://www.floridahealth.gov/diseases-and-conditions/COVID-19/need-to-know/Self-Isolation.html

For more information regarding what travelers need to know, visit:
http://www.floridahealth.gov/diseases-and-conditions/COVID-19/travel-notice.html

In addition, please visit http://www.floridahealth.gov/all-county-locations.html to locate and obtain contact information for your local county health department.

COVID-19 is spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from the COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. As a reminder, the Department always recommends everyday preventive actions to help impede the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;

- If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and

- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local county health department (CHD) and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the county health department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

Please visit the Department's dedicated COVID-19 webpage at www.FloridaHealth.gov/COVID-19. This remains the best and most up-to-date resource for information and guidance regarding COVID-19 in Florida.

For any other questions related to COVID-19 in Florida, please contact the Department's dedicated COVID-19 Call Center by calling 1-866-779-6121 or emailing COVID-19@flhealth.gov. The Call Center is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Shane & Diane,

My name is Wes Robinson with the American Chemistry Council, the primary trade organization for the chemical industry. I know you both must be extremely busy and thanks for all that you are doing. Attached is a letter we are distributing to each Governor and the White House. It outlines the role that the chemical industry plays in fighting this pandemic, the steps we are taking to keep our employees safe, and to ask that when leaders consider directives to close businesses that the chemical sector be regarded as an essential sector since we have such a large role in this fight.

Please let me know if there is any way I can be of service to either of you and I am wishing you both the best as you work to combat this pandemic.

Thank you,

Hon. Wanda Vazquez Garced
Governor

Dear Mr. President and Governors,

We commend your leadership to help limit the spread of the Coronavirus during this uncertain and rapidly-changing time. Members of the American Chemistry Council, the primary trade association representing chemical manufacturers in the United States, have embraced guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and multiple governmental authorities to undertake social distancing, enable telework and practice good hygiene.

The deployment of extraordinary measures is prudent given the risk of widespread infection. In some locations this has included encouragement or directives from government leaders to limit non-essential business activity including the operation of restaurants, service providers and some retail establishments to keep both employees and possible customers safe. While many of these limitations are currently in the best interest of public health, it is essential that key industries and sectors, including the chemical manufacturing sector, are able to maintain operations throughout this challenging time. Many ACC member companies have instituted telework policies to reduce the number of employees traveling to work and interacting with co-workers. However, the operation of manufacturing plants cannot be done remotely and requires the day-to-day presence of highly trained personnel. This also includes ensuring access to critical supplies and transportation systems so our industry can continue to produce and deliver essential products.

The U.S. business of chemical manufacturing is a $553 billion enterprise that touches nearly all aspects of our nation's economy. The chemical industry supports a vast supply chain. In fact 96 percent of all manufactured goods rely on chemistry. Because the business of chemistry is so fundamental to our nation's economy and to the continued operation of multiple other sectors, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security has classified the Chemical Sector as a Critical Infrastructure Sector.

The role of chemistry is particularly important today as chemicals enable countless products that will be needed to support good hygiene and treat those who are infected with the Coronavirus in the weeks and months ahead.

For example, chemical biocides and disinfectants are the active ingredients in cleaning products that eliminate bacterial and viruses on a personal, household and industrial scale. Single use plastic products and packaging help prevent contamination of food, medicine, personal care and medical products and help prevent person-to-person transmission of disease-causing microorganisms. Personal hygiene products including diapers, soaps, detergents, toothpastes and other antiseptics such as isopropyl alcohol and hydrogen peroxide are all reliant on chemicals and chemical production. Chemicals are necessary to fertilize and protect crops that comprise our nation's food supply and chlorine chemistry is essential to protecting our nation's drinking water.

Plastics and chemicals are vital to keeping medical environments and treatments sanitary, safe and effective. For example, polycarbonate is necessary to produce syringes, surgical instruments, and IV components. Biocides and chlorine are needed to disinfect surfaces and keep drinking water clean. Polyvinyl chloride (PVC) is used in medical tubing, blood and IV bags. Polypropylene is a key component of medical-grade personal protective equipment including masks, gowns and goggles. And a range of chemicals serve as ingredients in over-the-counter and prescription medications.

All segments of society have a role to play to help limit the spread of Coronavirus and protect public health, especially those who are most vulnerable. The chemical industry can make a valuable contribution by applying prudent measures to prevent the spread of infection at our sites, while also maintaining production. We would be happy to provide additional information about our efforts to protect the health of our employees and communities while also continuing to produce essential materials to the American medical community and the American public during this trying time.

Sincerely,

Chris Jahn

Dear Governor DeSantis,

The following is my official recommendation to leverage available technology to assist in locating the sick and stopping the virus from spreading. It is currently the exact plan Israel implemented today, 3/16/20.

- The plan calls for use of Clearview and its technology to track infected people and anyone with whom they have come in contact.
- Clearview's image-search tech would dramatically shorten the time-consuming contact-tracing work health investigators conduct with coronavirus victims.
- Clearview's proprietary database of billions of publicly available images would enable us to instantly establish identities of people a victim has been in contact with. It's the only technology in the world that can do this. (FBI & DEA use it & hundreds more LE agencies.)
- For contact-tracing, investigators would be able to search & identify the faces of unidentified individuals who've been in contact with the victim. Images can be downloaded from victim's camera roll or security-camera footage from places victim has visited (restaurants, stores, events, etc.).
- We could have state-wide or regional team up & running in 24-48 hours.

It is vital we use our resources in all areas to combat the spread of this virus. I am confident this approach will save many, many lives. If you have any questions concerning this matter, please do not hesitate to contact my office.

Sincerely,
Joel M. Greenberg,
Seminole County Tax Collector

Good afternoon Shane,

Hope this message finds you well.

As we are all carefully monitoring the corona virus here in Florida, I wanted to ask if the Governor's Office had more details about the couple from Broward County that recently passed away. Do you have details on where they traveled before returning home to Broward County?

There was mention of a cruise down the Nile River in Egypt in 2020 in one news source released this past Saturday.

Any insights would be greatly appreciated.

Thank you!

DIVISION OF EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT

IN RE: SUSPENSION OF STATUTES, RULES, AND ORDERS, PURSUANT TO EXECUTIVE ORDER NUMBER 20-52, MADE NECESSARY BY THE COVID-19 PUBLIC HEALTH EMERGENCY	DEM ORDER NO. 20-006

EMERGENCY ORDER

WHEREAS, the Governor of the State of Florida issued Executive Order No. 20-52 in response to the COVID-19 Public Health Emergency which poses a severe threat to the entire State of Florida and requires that timely precautions are taken to protect the communities, critical infrastructure, and general welfare of this State; and,

NOW THEREFORE, I hereby find that the Division of Emergency Management's timely performance of disaster response functions related to COVID-19 Public Health Emergency is hindered by the application of procedures imposed by statute, rule, and/or order. Attached is the most recent EO after going through it with the Director. The yellow portions are fluid and will need to be updated based upon the data we have at launch. DOH will have to make sure that the CDC guidance we put in the final WHEREAS clauses is still accurate.

Some additional considerations:

1. DOT and DHSMV traditionally get the power to waive license, weight requirements, etc… for the transportation of supplies. To the extent we have isolation camps and mobile hospitals, which appears likely, the transport of them will require the waiver of certain transportation requirements
2. DOE is going to get info regarding teachers and faculty that are calling in sick, do we want to make that a formal aspect of the EO where that report is updated daily to DEM?
3. The EO right now does not reference the prohibition on price gouging for essentials or commodities as defined in sections 252.395(2) or 501.160(1)(a), do we want to initiate that?
    a. The term "essentials" means goods that are consumed or used as a direct result of a declared emergency, or that are consumed or used to preserve, protect, or sustain life, health, safety, or economic well-being and "commodities" means any goods, services, materials, merchandise, supplies, equipment, resources, or other article of commerce, and includes, without limitation, food, water, ice, chemicals, petroleum products, and lumber necessary for consumption or use as a direct result of the emergency.

A. Seek direct assistance and enter into agreements with any and all agencies of the United States Government as may be needed to meet the emergency.

B. Designate additional Deputy State Coordinating Officers, as necessary.

C. Suspend the effect of any statute, rule, or order that would in any way prevent, hinder, or delay any mitigation, response, or recovery action necessary to cope with this emergency.

B. Each State agency may suspend the provisions of any regulatory statute prescribing the procedures for conduct of state business or the orders or rules of that agency, if strict compliance with the provisions of any such statute, order, or rule would in any way prevent, hinder, or delay necessary action in coping with the emergency. This includes, but is not limited to, the authority to suspend any and all statutes, rules, ordinance, or orders which affect leasing, printing, purchasing, travel, and the condition of employment and the compensation of employees. For the purposes of this Executive Order, "necessary action in coping with the emergency" means any emergency mitigation, response, or recovery action: (1) prescribed in the State Comprehensive Emergency Management Plan ("CEMP"); or (2) ordered by the State Coordinating Officer. The requirements of sections 252.46 and 120.54, Florida Statutes, shall not apply to any such suspension issued by a State agency; however, no such suspension shall remain in effect beyond the expiration of this Executive Order, to include any extensions of this Order.

D. In accordance with section 252.38, Florida Statutes, each political subdivision within the State of Florida may waive the procedures and formalities otherwise required of the political subdivision by law pertaining to:

1) Performance of public work and taking whatever prudent action is necessary to ensure the health, safety, and welfare of the community;

2) Entering into contracts; however, political subdivisions are cautioned against entering into time and materials contracts without ceiling as defined by 2 CFR 200.318(j) or cost plus percentage contracts as defined by 2 CFR 200.323(d);

3) Incurring obligations;

4) Employment of permanent and temporary workers;

5) Utilization of volunteer workers;

6) Rental of equipment;

7) Acquisition and distribution, with or without compensation, of supplies, materials, and facilities; and,

8) Appropriation and expenditure of public funds.

E. All State agencies responsible for the use of State buildings and facilities may close such buildings and facilities in those portions of the State affected by this emergency, to the extent to meet this emergency. I direct each State agency to report the closure of any State building or facility to the Secretary of the Department of Management Services. Under the authority contained in section 252.36, Florida Statutes, I direct each County to report the closure of any building or facility operated or maintained by the County or any political subdivision therein to the Secretary of the Department of Management Services. Furthermore, I direct the Secretary of the Department of Management Services to:

1) Maintain an accurate and up-to-date list of all such closures; and,

2) Provide that list daily to the State Coordinating Officer.

Furthermore, I direct the Commissioner of the Department of Education to:

1) Maintain an accurate and up-to-date list of all such closures; and,

2) Provide that list daily to the State Coordinating Officer.

Section 6. I find that the demands placed upon the funds appropriated to the agencies of the State of Florida and to local agencies are unreasonably great and may be inadequate to pay the costs of coping with this disaster. In accordance with section 252.37(2), Florida Statutes, I direct that sufficient funds be made available, as needed, by transferring and expending moneys appropriated for other purposes, moneys from unappropriated surplus funds, or from the Budget Stabilization Fund.

Section 7. All State agencies entering emergency final orders or other final actions in response to this emergency shall advise the State Coordinating Officer contemporaneously or as soon as practicable.

Section 8. Medical professionals and workers, social workers, and counselors with good and valid professional licenses issued by states other than the State of Florida may render such services in Florida during this emergency for persons affected by this emergency with the condition that such services be rendered to such persons free of charge, and with the further condition that such services be rendered under the auspices of the American Red Cross or the Florida Department of Health.

March 18 Update

What is community spread?

- The CDC COVID-19 website states that the term "community spread" means "people have been infected with the virus in an area, including some who are not sure how or where they became infected." Stated another way, an illness qualifies as "community spread" when the source of the infection is unknown.
- Importantly, an infection is not considered "community spread" if epidemiologists can trace the links in the transmission chain. As a result, experts hesitate to qualify a case as "community spread" until the epidemiological investigation is complete.
    - Example 1: Joe tests positive for COVID-19. DOH receives notice from the lab that ran his test and verifies the result with Joe's practitioner. The county health department then initiates its epidemiological investigation. Joe tells the investigation team that he did not travel to an impacted area and that he has no reason to think any of his friends or family members tested positive or encountered a known positive. Although this information suggests Joe's case might qualify as "community spread," epidemiologists will not reach that determination until the epidemiological investigation confirms that the case did not come from a clear transmission chain. Epidemiologists hesitate because the investigation could find, for example, that another student at Joe's university had COVID-19, or that Joe's favorite bartender recently returned from Wuhan.
    - Example 2: A February 26 CDC press release noted that a California COVID-19 case could be the first instance of community spread in the United States. However, the article did not go so far as to make that definitive conclusion because epidemiologists had not yet determined whether "the patient may have been exposed to a returned traveler who was infected."
- As the number of cases in Florida grows, the likelihood of establishing clear transmission chains for each new case diminishes. At a certain point, epidemiologists will no longer be able to determine where a given chain of transmission clearly links to a source outside of the state or country.
    - Cases in nursing homes bolster the case for recognizing "community spread" in the state. Residents have little to no travel, and their points of contact are limited. If an epidemiological investigation does not quickly identify the source of the infection, the odds of ever achieving this goal are minimal.
- Florida's DOH has been recommending mitigation measures for weeks to prepare for the point at which "community spread" is recognized in the state. Recognizing that the infection is now "community spread" does not change DOH's aggressive approach to fighting the illness in Florida.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH ANNOUNCES ADDITIONAL CASES AND TWO DEATHS RELATED TO COVID-19 IN FLORIDA

Contact:
Communications Office
NewsMedia@flhealth.gov
(850) 245-4111

Tallahassee, Fla. — The Florida Department of Health has announced there are three new presumptive positive cases of 2019 coronavirus disease (COVID-19) in Florida. One individual is deceased, the other two individuals remain in isolation at this time. A previously announced COVID-19 patient in Santa Rosa County is also deceased.

The deceased individual associated with a new case was in their seventies in Lee County.

The first patient under investigation is a 75-year old male in Broward County. This person is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials.

The second patient under investigation is a 65-year old male in Broward County. This person is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials.

The Florida Department of Health is working closely with the patients, potential close contacts of each case and health care providers to isolate and monitor persons who may have been exposed to COVID-19 and implement testing of anyone who may develop COVID-19 symptoms, including fever, cough or shortness of breath.

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from the COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

DRAFT
AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. As a reminder, the Department always recommends everyday preventive actions to help impede the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;
    - If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and
- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local county health department (CHD) and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the county health department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

COVID-19 Daily Talking Points
March 12, 2020

Yesterday, March 11, Governor DeSantis directed the Florida Division of Emergency Management, Agency for Healthcare Administration to take action to restrict access to vulnerable populations for those who may have been exposed to COVID-19.

On March 11, Governor DeSantis also directed the Florida Board of Governors to take action to prevent COVID-19 from spreading in Florida's State University System. Campuses remain open and operations will continue, although some adjustments will be made by each university. Actions Governor DeSantis directed State Universities to take include:

- Instructing all universities to make plans to transition to remote instruction as soon as possible;
- State universities with students who have returned from spring break should implement a process to transition to remote instruction immediately after students return from spring break, and encourage students to return home for at least 2 weeks;
- State universities with students who are currently on spring break or about to be on break should direct their students to NOT return to campus for at least 2 weeks following the conclusion of spring break;
- All universities will continue to provide essential services, such as dining, counseling, health services, library services, etc., potentially on a limited basis or remotely. Each university with clinical and other non-classroom based programs will communicate directly with those students.
- While students are encouraged to remain off campus, each university should develop a plan for providing residential accommodations for students who need assistance or must remain in place.

On Monday, March 9, Governor Ron DeSantis issued Executive Order 20-52, declaring a State of Emergency. By declaring a State of Emergency, Governor DeSantis is ensuring that state and local governments have the resources and flexibility they need to prepare and respond.

The Governor and Florida Department of Health's highest priority at this time is slowing the spread of COVID-19 and ensuring anyone who is potentially infected is appropriately identified, cared for and isolated.

If Asked:

"What is the number of patients tested in my county?"

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

-We appreciate the desire to understand how many Floridians in each community have been tested, received a negative test or are under public health monitoring as a result of suspicion they may have COVID-19 or has been in contact with someone who have COVID-19. Balancing the privacy of the individuals being tested and monitored and the confidentiality of the epidemiological investigations with the responsibility to Floridians to disclose information to protect the public is a vital role of the Florida Department of Health (DOH). The DOH strives to protect the identity of individuals tested or affected by COVID-19, while also ensuring information necessary for the public health is available.

As such, in order to protect personally identifiable health information (PHI) of Floridians, the Florida Department of Health is unable to break down the number of individuals who have received a negative test, have pending test results or are under public health monitoring by community.

Floridians can view the aggregate state level information at www.FLHealth.gov/COVID-19. This information is updated daily.

Additionally, the Florida Department of Health is encouraging all Floridians to be aware. Floridians should practice good hand hygiene and wash their hands with soap and water for a minimum of 20 seconds, use a tissue when they sneeze or cough and immediately dispose of it in the trash and stay home if they are sick."

LG: Colleen in legal put together the attached document, which goes over how data gets entered into our COVID reporting system. -M

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3.16 Update

Data Reporting Process

- A specimen delivered to a laboratory for COVID-19 testing must be accompanied by certain identifying information connecting the sample to its source.
- If a private laboratory runs the sample and identifies a positive case, a laboratory employee or automated system enters specific reportable data into the laboratory's electronic data management system.
    - These systems are privately purchased software platforms. The platform varies based on the private laboratory.
        - These software systems are susceptible to user error and data entry errors.
    - Reportable data points include basic demographic elements, such as name, date of birth, social security number, etc.
        - Section 381.0031, Fla. Stat, contains the reporting requirement. The requirement applies to "any practitioner licensed in this state to practice medicine, osteopathic medicine, chiropractic medicine, naturopathy, or veterinary medicine; any hospital licensed under part I of chapter 395; or any laboratory licensed under chapter 483."
        - The diseases that require reports are listed in DOH Rule 64D-3.029. Coronavirus associated with severe acute respiratory disease is among the listed diseases.
- After the laboratory employee adds the information into the platform, the information is electronically relayed to Merlin, the state's repository of reportable disease case reports. The relay occurs via a system, such as Health Level Seven (HL7), an electronic system used to transfer clinical data between software applications.
    - Alternatively, private laboratories may report a positive result to DOH via fax. DOH would then enter the relevant information into Merlin.
- The county health department contacts the healthcare provider that submitted the sample to obtain clinical information about the patient and contact information for the patient. Then, the county health department contacts the positive patient and conducts an interview.
    - The county health department enters the investigation information into Merlin as it collects the data.
    - Based on the information from the healthcare provider and patient, the county health department will determine whether the case qualifies as a COVID-19 case.
    - If the county health department determines that the positive result meets the standardized national case definition, DOH personnel at the central office verify the result.
    - At that point, the positive case is marked in Merlin as confirmed and therefore eligible for posting on the dashboard available at FloridaHealth.gov.

Data Reporting Challenges

- DOH reports cases as soon as DOH determines that the case meets the clinical and laboratory criteria.
    - DOH often can establish that the case qualifies after DOH contacts the medical provider.
    - But DOH may not know what the risk factors were, whether the individual had contact with a COVID-19 patient, or whether the person is a Florida resident.
    - So, DOH must fill in gaps to determine if the case is a travel-related case, a community-spread case, or a close-contact case. DOH likewise must verify whether the person is a resident or non-resident.
    - As DOH obtains this information, the details in Merlin and on the DOH dashboard may change.

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF JUVENILE JUSTICE

Emergency Order _____: COVID-19 Public Health Emergency

Pursuant to sections 120.54(4), 120.569(2)(n), 252.36, and 252.46, Florida Statutes, and upon consideration of Executive Order 20-52 issued by Governor DeSantis on March 9, 2020, declaring a State of Emergency for COVID-19, and the following findings, the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice enters this Emergency Order in response to the imminent danger to the public health, safety, and welfare of the youth in the agency's care and custody and all citizens of the State of Florida resulting from COVID-19.

I HEREBY FIND as follows:

1. On March 12, 2020, in response to the COVID-19 public health emergency the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice began implementing screening protocols for all visitors to juvenile detention centers and residential commitment facilities in the State operated and overseen by the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice and began implementing additional health screening protocols for juveniles presenting to Juvenile Assessment Centers and other detention screening centers in the State.

2. On March 15, 2020, the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice restricted visitors to juvenile detention centers and residential commitment facilities in the State operated and overseen by the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice to exclude volunteers and staff personal visitors.

3. As of March 17, 2020, the Florida Department of Health is reporting 216 confirmed cases of COVID-19 in Florida, which includes residents and non-residents of the State.

4. As of March 17, 2020, the Florida Department of Health is reporting six deaths from COVID-19 in the State.

5. On March 17, 2020, the Florida Commissioner of Education ordered all public and private K-12 schools and technical center campuses in the State to be closed through April 15, 2020, in response to the COVID-19 public health emergency and as a precaution against the spreading of the virus.

6. Executive Order 20-52, Section 4, paragraph B authorizes State agencies to "suspend the provisions of any regulatory statute prescribing the conduct of state business or the orders or rules of that agency, if strict compliance with the provisions of any such statute, order, or rule would in any way prevent, hinder, or delay necessary action in coping with the emergency.

7. The continuing COVID-19 public health emergency, the increase in confirmed COVID-19 cases, as well as expected detention officer, direct care, and health care staff shortages resulting from the public and private K-12 school closures through April 15, 2020, place the health, safety, and welfare of the youth and staff in juvenile detention centers and residential commitment facilities operated and overseen by the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice at significant risk, and hinders the agency's ability to take timely and necessary action in coping with the emergency.

8. It is necessary to further restrict the movement of individuals into juvenile detention centers and residential commitment facilities operated and overseen by the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice.

Based on these findings and under the authority of the statutes and Executive Order cited herein, the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice hereby suspends operation of Rule 63E-7.102 and Rule 63G-2.023 and restricts visitors to its juvenile detention centers and residential commitment facilities through April 15, 2020, to be reevaluated for reinstatement on April 16, 2020. This restriction does not apply to attorneys conducting legal visits with youth, clinical personnel visiting youth for treatment purposes, and law enforcement officers conducting official business. These individuals will continue to be subject to the COVID-19 screening protocols implemented by the Florida Department of Juvenile Justice. Court hearings for youth will be conducted according to directives issued by the Chief Justice of the Florida Supreme Court and/or by the chief judges of the various circuit courts.

orders issued by the State Coordinating Officer; however, no such order shall remain in effect beyond the expiration of this Executive Order, to include any extension.

Section 3. I order the Adjutant General to activate the Florida National Guard, as needed, to deal with this emergency.

Section 4. I find that the special duties and responsibilities resting upon some State, regional, and local agencies and other governmental bodies in responding to the emergency may require them to suspend the application of the statutes, rules, ordinances, and orders they administer. Therefore, I issue the following authorizations:

A. Pursuant to section 252.36(1)(a), Florida Statutes, the Executive Office of the Governor may suspend all statutes and rules affecting budgeting to the extent necessary to provide budget authority for state agencies to cope with this emergency. The requirements of sections 252.46 and 120.54(4), Florida Statutes, do not apply to any such suspension issued by the Executive Office of the Governor; however, no such suspension shall remain in effect beyond the expiration of this Executive Order, to include any extension.

B. Each State agency may suspend the provisions of any regulatory statute prescribing the procedures for conduct of state business or the orders or rules of that agency, if strict compliance with the provisions of any such statute, order, or rule would in any way prevent, hinder, or delay necessary action in coping with the emergency. This includes, but is not limited to, the authority to suspend any and all statutes, rules, ordinances, or orders which affect leasing, printing, purchasing, travel, and the condition of employment and the compensation of employees. For the purposes of this Executive Order, "necessary action in coping with the emergency" means any emergency mitigation, response, or recovery action: (1) prescribed in the State Comprehensive Emergency Management Plan ("CEMP"); or (2) ordered by the State Coordinating Officer. The requirements of sections 252.46 and 120.54, Florida Statutes, shall not apply to any such suspension issued by a State agency; however, no such suspension shall remain in effect beyond the expiration of this Executive Order, to include any extensions.

C. In accordance with section 465.0275, Florida Statutes, pharmacists may dispense up to a 30-day emergency prescription refill of maintenance medication to persons who reside in an area or county covered under this Executive Order and to emergency personnel who have been activated by their state and local agency but who do not reside in an area or county covered by this Executive Order.

D. In accordance with section 252.38, Florida Statutes, each political subdivision within the State of Florida may waive the procedures and formalities otherwise required of the political subdivision by law pertaining to:

1) Performance of public work and taking whatever prudent action is necessary to ensure the health, safety, and welfare of the community;

2) Entering into contracts; however, political subdivisions are cautioned against entering into time and materials contracts without ceiling as defined by 2 CFR 200.318(j) or cost plus percentage contracts as defined by 2 CFR 200.323(d);

3) Incurring obligations;

4) Employment of permanent and temporary workers;

5) Utilization of volunteer workers;

6) Rental of equipment;

7) Acquisition and distribution, with or without compensation, of supplies, materials, and facilities; and,

8) Appropriation and expenditure of public funds.

E. All State agencies responsible for the use of State buildings and facilities may close such buildings and facilities in those portions of the State affected by this emergency, to the extent necessary to meet this emergency. I direct each State agency to report the closure of any State building or facility to the Secretary of the Department of Management Services. Under the authority contained in section 252.36, Florida Statutes, I direct each County to report the closure of any building or facility operated or maintained by the County or any political subdivision therein to the Secretary of the Department of Management Services. Furthermore, I direct the Secretary of the Department of Management Services to:

1) Maintain an accurate and up-to-date list of all such closures; and,

2) Provide that list daily to the State Coordinating Officer.

Section 5. I find that the demands placed upon the funds appropriated to the agencies of the State of Florida and to local agencies are unreasonably great and the funds currently available may be inadequate to pay the costs of coping with this emergency. In accordance with section 252.37(2), Florida Statutes, I direct that sufficient funds be made available, as needed, by transferring and expending moneys appropriated for other purposes, moneys from unappropriated surplus funds, or from the Budget Stabilization Fund.

Section 6. All State agencies entering emergency final orders or other final actions in response to this emergency shall advise the State Coordinating Officer contemporaneously or as soon as practicable.

Section 7. Medical professionals and workers, social workers, and counselors with good and valid professional licenses issued by states other than the State of Florida may render such services in Florida during this emergency for persons affected by this emergency with the condition that such services be rendered to such persons free of charge, and with the further condition that such services be rendered under the auspices of the American Red Cross or the Florida Department of Health.

Section 8. All activities taken by the Director of the Division of Emergency Management and the State Health Officer and Surgeon General with respect to this emergency before the issuance of this Executive Order are ratified. This Executive Order shall expire sixty days from this date unless extended.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Florida to be affixed, at Tallahassee, this XX day of March, 20202.

Implementation of Mitigation Strategies for Communities with Local COVID-19 Transmission

Background

When a novel virus with pandemic potential emerges, nonpharmaceutical interventions, which will be called community mitigation strategies in this document, often are the most readily available interventions to help slow transmission of the virus in communities. Community mitigation is a set of actions that persons and communities can take to help slow the spread of respiratory virus infections. Community mitigation is especially important before a vaccine or drug becomes widely available.

The following is a proposed framework for actions which local and state health departments can implement as local spread of COVID-19 continues in the United States. Selection and implementation of these actions should be guided by the local characteristics of disease transmission, demographics, and public health and healthcare system capacity.

Goals

The goals for using mitigation strategies for communities with local COVID-19 transmission are to protect:

- Individuals at risk for severe illness, including older adults and persons of any age with underlying health conditions (See Appendix A).
- The healthcare workforce and critical infrastructure workforces

These approaches are used to minimize morbidity and mortality caused by COVID-19 and minimize social and economic impacts of COVID-19. Individuals, communities, businesses, and healthcare organizations are all part of a community mitigation strategy.

Implementation emphasizes:

- Emphasizing individual responsibility for implementation of recommended personal-level actions,
- Empowering businesses, schools, and community organizations to implement recommended actions, particularly in ways that protect persons at risk of severe illness
- Focusing on settings that provide critical services to implement recommended actions to protect critical infrastructure and individuals at risk of severe disease
- Minimizing disruptions to daily life to the extent possible

Guiding principles

- Each community is unique, and mitigation appropriate strategies will vary based on characteristics of the community and populations at risk of severe disease as well as the local capacity to implement strategies (Table 1).
- Consider all aspects of a community that might be impacted, including vulnerable populations that may be more impacted socially or economically, and select appropriate actions.
- Mitigation strategies can be scaled up or down depending on the evolving situation.
- When developing mitigation plans, communities should identify ways to ensure the safety and social well-being of groups that may be especially impacted by mitigation strategies, including individuals at risk for severe illness

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Activation of community emergency plans is critical for the implementation of mitigation strategies. These plans may provide additional authorities and coordination needed for interventions to be implemented (Table 2).
- The level of activities implemented may vary across settings (ie. may be at moderate for one setting and at substantial for another setting at the same time in order to meet community response needs).
- Local and state public health departments may need to implement mitigation strategies for public health functions in the identification and contact tracing of cases depending on level of community spread (Table 3). When applied, community mitigation efforts may help implementation of public health activities like contact tracing.

Table 1. Local Factors to Consider for Determining Mitigation Strategies

Factor	Characteristics
Epidemiology	Level of community transmission Number of outbreaks COVID-19 cases impacting delivery of healthcare or impacting other critical infrastructure or services Epidemiology in surrounding jurisdictions
Community Characteristics	Size of community and population density Level of community engagement/support Size and characteristics of vulnerable populations Access to healthcare Transportation (public, walking) Planned large events

GUIDANCE FOR RESTAURANTS, BARS, AND NIGHTCLUBS IMPACTED BY EXECUTIVE ORDER 20-68

The Department of Business and Professional Regulation issues the following guidance for restaurants, bars, pubs, and nightclubs affected by Executive Order 20-68 issued on March 17, 2020.

Do all bars, pubs, and nightclubs need to stop all sales of alcoholic beverages?

Executive Order 20-68 suspends for thirty (30) days the sale of all alcoholic beverages by licensees at any place of business authorized to sell alcoholic beverages for consumption on premises, if that place of business derives more than 50% of its gross revenue from the sale of alcoholic beverages. Many places of business offer food service sales in addition to alcoholic beverage sales.

If a bar, pub, or nightclub is licensed as a public food service establishment under Chapter 509, Florida Statutes, the place of business may continue to operate under Executive Order 20-68 as a restaurant and sell alcoholic beverages, as long as the sale of alcoholic beverages does not exceed 50% of the total gross food and beverage revenue for the place of business. Food service may continue at any public food service establishment, in accordance with Executive Order 20-68, regardless of alcohol sales.

A restaurant licensed to sell alcoholic beverages under a Special Food Service (SFS) license, pursuant to section 561.20(2)(a)4., Florida Statutes, which must already maintain sales of alcoholic beverages below 50% of its gross food and beverage revenue, may continue to sell alcoholic beverages in conformance with the law.

In short, a bar, pub, or nightclub may continue to sell alcoholic beverages as part of its restaurant operations, in compliance with Executive Order 20-68.

What conduct will indicate to the Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco that a location may be selling more than 50% of its gross food and beverage revenue as sales of alcoholic beverages?

1. Patrons standing and drinking. The Division will have reasonable suspicion that a location may be operating as a bar, not a restaurant, if patrons are standing near the bar.
2. Serving drinks to patrons at the bar. The Division advises locations to stop selling drinks directly from the bar but to sell drinks exclusively to patrons seated at tables. Drinks may continue to be prepared at the bar for table service.

Formatted: Normal, No bullets or numbering

What conduct will indicate to the Division of Hotels and Restaurants that a location may not be maintaining a minimum 6-foot separation between any groups of patrons or not limiting parties to 10 or fewer individuals?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1. Patrons seated at a bar or counter. The Division advises that the seating of patrons at bars or counters regularly brings groups of patrons within six feet of each other and within six feet of restaurant employees. For this reason, the Division instructs all restaurants to limit seating of patrons to tables. Drinks may continue to be prepared at the bar for table service.
2. Patrons seated at adjacent or adjoining tables. The Division interprets Executive Order 20-68 to prohibit seating at consecutive tables or booths that abut one another or that have less than six feet of space between the edge of one table or booth and the next. Each establishment is responsible for configuring its dining area, by either removing tables or blocking the seating of patrons at consecutive or close tables, in order to comply with Executive Order 20-68.
3. Patrons waiting in or near the entrance to the restaurant. The Division strongly discourages any waiting areas at restaurants, either for seating availability or for picking up take-out orders. Restaurants should request a patron's cell phone number to inform him or her when either a table is ready or the take-out order is ready, and ask the patron to wait in his or her vehicle or another safe location until called.

The federal government is taking aggressive and proactive steps to address the Coronavirus (COVID-19) threat working closely with state and local partners to protect the public's health and keep the public informed as the situation evolves domestically and globally.

White House Task Force

- On January 29, 2020 President Trump announced the formation of the White House Coronavirus Task Force.

- On February 26, 2020, President Trump announced Vice President Pence would lead the Task Force. Additionally, Ambassador Deborah Birx will serve as the White House Coronavirus Response Coordinator. The Task Force will lead the Administration's efforts to contain the spread and mitigate the effects of the virus, while ensuring that the American people have the most accurate and up-to-date health and travel information.

- The Task Force is composed of subject matter experts from the White House and several United States Government agencies, including the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services whom is serving as the lead federal agency for coronavirus response. Task Force membership can be found on the White House website.

Federal Interagency Coordination

Lead Federal Agency

- Presidential Policy Directive-44: Enhancing Domestic Incident Response designates HHS as the lead federal agency for public health responses utilizing authority established through:
    - Pandemic and All Hazards Preparedness Act (PAHPA)
    - Public Health Service Act
    - National Response Framework (NRF) and associated operational plans.

- The Congress-designated appropriation for this mission is the Public Health Emergency Fund for coordinating and delivering assistance.

- Currently, Congress is considering a supplemental appropriation to support public health preparedness and response efforts.

FEMA

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FEMA Role

FEMA is a supporting agency to HHS currently delivering crisis action planning, situational awareness reporting, interagency coordination, course of action development and logistics supply chain analysis through a Crisis Action Task Force located at the HHS Secretary's Operations Center.

- FEMA began planning and coordination with HHS in late January, including the assessment of the government's Pandemic Crisis Action Plan.
- Additionally, FEMA is readying over fifty teams to respond and support states and territories that may need assistance.

At this time, FEMA is not preparing an emergency declaration in addition to the Public Health Emergency declared by HHS on January 31, 2020.

Emergency Support Functions (ESF)

- The NRF and Response Federal Interagency Operational Plan (FIOP) are always in effect.
- In accordance with the NRF, HHS – under its ESF#8 Primary Authority for Public Health and Medical issues – has sixteen Supporting Agencies to initiate federal interagency coordination in the presence or absence of a Stafford Act declaration.
- Under a Non-Stafford Event, HHS – under the Economy Act – may request specific core capabilities from each (and appropriate) Federal Departments/Agencies through both a Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) and reimbursable Inter Agency Agreement (IAA);
- The Emergency Support Function Leadership Group (ESFLG) is convened at the request of HHS (or any other Lead Federal Agency for a given large-scale incident) at any time. FEMA can facilitate use of ESFLG using the Interagency Video Teleconference (VTC) format used during Stafford incidents
- Currently, HHS develops and provides a daily Senior Leadership Brief (SLB) reflecting interagency actions and lifeline impacts.

Pandemic Crisis Action Plan (PanCAP)

- Represents response to a 2013 avian influenza in China (H7N9) and a coronavirus in the Middle East (MERS-CoV)
- Provides a process that outlines Public Health and emergency management response activities with defined triggers for movement between threat phases.
- Provides a sample coordination structure for each phase, which has been modified for COVID-19 (FEMA, ASPR, CDC).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

State/Territorial/ Tribal/ Local Assistance

The primary form of assistance to States, Territories, Tribes and Localities may come in the form of federal guidance, funding to support enhanced mitigation measures, logistics supply chain analysis, and regulatory relief facilitated through HHS.

Some federal medical team capabilities may be deployed to support specific federal mission requirements (e.g., Incident Management Teams, Disaster Medical Assistance Teams) however these are expected to be limited as the virus becomes more widespread.

Public Health and Medical Assistance

- In a declared Public Health Emergency, the Secretary of HHS can initiate several actions to facilitate SLTT response including waiving certain regulatory requirements and authorizing federal Public Health Grantees to use grant funds towards a response to COVID-19.

- Guidance or assistance, in the form of technical assistance, during a biological incident may occur through the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) under its legislative authorities and is anticipated to be the primary form of requested assistance.

- HHS manages the provision and development of vaccines and medications against this disease.

- The extent of additional HHS assistance to be available for States to manage the COVID-19 response is pending supplemental funding determinations from Congress.

Grant Assistance

FEMA Administrator, through the Grants Program Directorate, may direct emergency management grantees the use of awarded funds towards non-public health and non-medical capabilities to prepare and/or to respond to a biological incident whether directly impacted or not.

On March 3, 2020, the FEMA Grants Program Directorate provided notification to grant recipients and subrecipients to remind them of the cost allowability requirements of the Emergency Management, Homeland Security, and Tribal Homeland Security grant programs. Currently, FEMA is not proposing to expand allowability under any grant program.

- Emergency Management Performance Grant (EMPG): The purpose of the EMPG Program is to provide federal funds to states to assist state, local, territorial, and tribal governments in preparing for all hazards. EMPG funding can be used to support emergency preparedness and response capabilities for COVID-19.

  Allowable activities include, but are not limited to, strengthening public health incident management and emergency operations coordination to enable jurisdictions to provide emergency management response support that exceeds normal capacity; Strengthening information management and sharing; Strengthening community recovery and resilience; Vector control and surveillance; Health surveillance and epidemiological investigation; Laboratory testing and support services; and Blood safety.

- Homeland Security Grant Program (HSGP): The HSGP includes a suite of risk-based grants, including the State Homeland Security Program (SHSP) and Urban Area Security Initiative (UASI), designed to assist SLTT efforts in preventing, preparing for, protecting against, and responding to acts of terrorism.

  For both SHSP and UASI many activities that support the achievement of core capabilities related to terrorism preparedness may simultaneously support enhanced preparedness for hazards unrelated to acts of terrorism. However, all SHSP- and UASI-funded projects must assist recipients and subrecipients in achieving core capabilities related to preventing, preparing for, protecting against, or responding to acts of terrorism. States and high-risk urban areas must justify proposed expenditures of SHSP or UASI funds in their Investment Justification submissions.

- Tribal Homeland Security Grant Program (THSGP): Like HSGP, the THSGP assists directly eligible tribal governments with efforts related to preventing, preparing for, protecting against, and responding to acts of terrorism.

  Activities funded under THSGP that support the achievement of core capabilities related to terrorism preparedness may simultaneously support enhanced preparedness for hazards unrelated to acts of terrorism. However, all THSGP-funded projects must assist recipients in achieving core capabilities related to preventing, preparing for, protecting against, or responding to acts of terrorism. Tribal governments must justify proposed expenditures of THSGP funds in their Investment Justification submissions.

Diane,

I recommend that the Governor approve an exception to the Governor's school closure policy for the Florida Youth Challenge Academy. This school for at-risk 16 to 18-year-olds is located in the middle of Camp Blanding Joint Training Center, Starke, FL and run by the FL National Guard. FLYCA has 157 in-residence students from high risk households around the state sequestered in our on-base facility 24/7/365. It makes sense to allow them to remain there to continue their curriculum rather than shutting down for two weeks since they are no risk of spreading the COVID-19 virus in their current location. In fact, requiring them to have their parents come from all over the state to pick them up by Monday and take them home only to have them return to the school in two weeks and drop them back off is not in the best interest of our students or the goal of containing the spread of the COVID virus.

Please call if you have any questions.

Thanks!

COVID-19 Daily Talking Points
March 8, 2020

At this time, the Florida Department of Health's highest priority is containing the spread of COVID-19 and appropriately identifying, treating and isolating anyone who is likely to spread the virus.

While the risk for infection remains relatively low, with confirmed cases of Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) in Florida, the Department is urging residents to stay informed on how to protect themselves and their communities from COVID-19.

The Department encourages everyone to contact their local health department to facilitate medical attention and diagnosis if they suspect they have contracted COVID-19 or come into contact with someone who has COVID-19.

The Department's dedicated COVID-19 webpage at www.FloridaHealth.gov/COVID-19 is the best and most up-to-date resource for information and guidance regarding COVID-19 in Florida. The Department of Health updates Florida's COVID-19 information page daily.

Governor DeSantis is working closely with state agencies and the Department to monitor, contain and prevent the spread of this virus.

The Florida Department of Health is advising all individuals who traveled on a river cruise on the Nile River in Egypt in February 2020 to self-isolate for 14 days following their date of return to the United States. Several passengers in the United States recently developed symptoms and have been confirmed to be infected with coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19), including two presumptive positive cases in Florida.

Yesterday, the Department announced one new positive Florida COVID-19 case in Broward County. That individual is isolated and being appropriately cared for.

Current Florida residents tested positive for COVID-19:

Florida Residents
	County	Age	Sex	Known History of International Travel
1	Manatee	63	Male	No
2	Hillsborough	29	Female	Yes
3	Santa Rosa	71	Male	Yes
4	Broward	75	Male	No
5	Broward	65	Male	No
6	Lee	77	Female	Yes
7	Lee	77	Male	Yes

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

8	Charlotte	54	Female	Yes
9	Okaloosa	61	Female	Yes
10	Volusia	66	Female	Yes
11	Manatee	81	Female	Yes
12	Broward	67	Male	No

There are additional cases linked to Florida:
- 5 diagnosed and isolated in another state
- 1 confirmed positive non-Florida resident

Here is the full status of COVID-19 here in Florida:

- 108 tests in state results pending
- 118 negatives
- 17 Florida cases (16 Florida residents)
  - 11 diagnosed in Florida
- 1,038 people monitored to date
- 280 of 1,038 are currently being monitored

The Department is actively involved in enhanced surveillance for respiratory illness that may be COVID-19. Epidemiologists are following up on any suspected cases that meet criteria for COVID-19 to arrange for testing when necessary and monitor contacts of any confirmed cases.

The Department will continue regular communication with the public and health care providers with updates on COVID-19 and other respiratory illnesses.

Everyone plays a part in lowering the impact within our communities and workplaces – taking every day preventative actions helps to prevent the spread of respiratory diseases such as COVID-19. Preventative actions include:

- Washing your hands frequently with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, and after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing. If soap and water are not available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol.
- Staying home when you are sick. This message cannot be emphasized enough.
- Employees who have symptoms of acute respiratory illness are recommended to stay home and not come to work until they are free of fever (100.4° F or greater using an oral thermometer), signs of a fever, and any other symptoms for at least 24 hours, without the use of fever-reducing or other symptom-altering medicines (e.g. cough suppressants). Employees should notify their supervisor and stay home if they are sick.
- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick.
- Before traveling, take certain steps:
  - Check CDC's Traveler's Health Notices for the latest guidance and recommendations for each country to which you will travel.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Employees who become sick while traveling should notify their supervisor and should promptly call a healthcare provider for guidance.

The Department has established a dedicated COVID-19 Call Center for questions about this virus. Anyone with questions may call 1-(866) 779-6121 or email COVID-19@flhealth.gov. The Call Center is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

If Asked:

"What is the number of patients tested in my county?"

-We appreciate the desire to understand how many Floridians in each community have been tested, received a negative test or are under public health monitoring as a result of suspicion they may have COVID-19 or has been in contact with someone who have COVID-19. Balancing the privacy of the individuals being tested and monitored and the confidentiality of the epidemiological investigations with the responsibility to Floridians to disclose information to protect the public is a vital role of the Florida Department of Health. Due to the nature of a unique virus, such as COVID-19, to share how many people in each community that have been tested or are under public health monitoring could potentially release identifying information, especially in Florida's smaller communities.

As such, in order to protect personally identifiable health information (PHI) of Floridians, the Florida Department of Health is unable to disclose the number of individuals who have received a negative test, have pending test results or are under public health monitoring by community.

Floridians can view the aggregate, state level information at www.FLHealth.gov/COVID-19. This information is updated daily.

Additionally, the Florida Department of Health is encouraging all Floridians to be aware. Floridians should practice good hand hygiene and wash their hands with soap and water for a minimum of 20 seconds, use a tissue when they sneeze or cough and immediately dispose of it in the trash and stay home if they are sick."

What you Should Know

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to the virus. The Department recommends everyday preventive actions to help stop the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;
- If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and
- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local county health department (CHD) and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the county health department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

Ongoing and Future Initiatives

Clinical Surveillance: Syndromic Surveillance

- Current: The Department of Health actively receives real-time data from specified practitioners and medical facilities around the state. Collected data include hospital discharge information, emergency room information, and deaths.
- COVID-19 Update: The Department employs a smart algorithm that adjusts and refines the data parameters over time to identify potential respiratory and flu-like illnesses. The Department of Health is modifying the current algorithm to identify additional indicators relevant to COVID-19, including travel history, symptoms, and clinical features. The Department is actively working to develop, refine, and implement this updated algorithm.
- Future Expansion: At present, most Florida healthcare facilities that have these type of data participate in the program. The Department of Health aims to achieve 100% participation.

Clinical Surveillance: Expansion of Pediatric Flu-Surveillance Program

- Current: The Department of Health administers a statewide, flu-surveillance program. Through this program, pediatric physicians collect swabs from the first two patients each day who exhibit flu-like symptoms. Participating pediatric physicians submit the samples from the nasal pharyngeal or oral swabs to Department of Health Public Health Laboratories in Tampa, Miami, and Jacksonville. The Department of Health tests the samples using a molecular test for influenza to detect disease prevalence and the flu strain. All information submitted to the Department is de-identified, so the patient identity is not known to the Department.
- COVID-19 Update: The Department of Health is adapting the program to gather information relevant to COVID-19. The Department will test the collected samples for COVID-19. The Department understands that pediatric patients may exhibit milder symptoms or serve as carriers. Data collected through these tests will enable the Department to determine presence of COVID-19 in the tested group.
- Future Expansion: The Department aims to expand the program beyond the pediatric physician community. A letter to general practitioners will encourage voluntary participation in the program. The letter will be sent during the week of March 9, 2020.

University Sample Testing

- COVID-19 Update: Partner universities may have the ability to test for COVID-19. These universities will need to have CDC and FDA approval to test for COVID-19.
- Future: The Department of Health will assist the universities in working with the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Commissioner Hahn to obtain Certified Laboratory Improvement Amendment (CLIA) certification to perform CDC-approved tests and expand participation in testing clinical samples for diagnostic and surveillance purposes.

Community Surveillance

- Future: The Department of Health will work with providers and universities to develop a community surveillance program to enable data collection beyond the clinical setting. This will require Institutional Review Board (IRB) submission to determine research status.

Recommendations for Communities in the United States with Transmission of COVID-19- March 8, 2020

Bottom Line Up Front:

Community mitigation is a set of actions that persons and communities can take to help slow the spread of respiratory virus infections. These approaches are used to minimize morbidity and mortality caused by COVID-19 and minimize social and economic impacts of COVID-19. Individuals, communities, businesses, and healthcare organizations are all part of a community mitigation strategy. The following four communities should begin implementing community mitigation strategies: Seattle, Santa Clara, Westchester, and Florida.

Goals:

The goals for using mitigation strategies for communities with local COVID-19 transmission are to protect:

- Individuals at risk for severe illness, including older adults and persons of any age with underlying health conditions (See Appendix A).
- The healthcare workforce and critical infrastructure workforces

Strategy:

- Emphasize individual responsibility for implementation of recommended personal-level actions,
- Empower businesses, schools, and community organizations to implement recommended actions, particularly in ways that protect persons at risk of severe illness
- Focus on settings that provide critical services to implement recommended actions to protect critical infrastructure and individuals at risk of severe disease
- Minimize disruptions to daily life to the extent possible

The attached document outlines a proposed framework for actions which local and state health departments can implement as local spread of COVID-19 continues in the United States. Selection and implementation of these actions should be guided by the local characteristics of disease transmission, demographics, and public health and healthcare system capacity. All communities should be preparing for community mitigation. Additionally, based off these recommendations, the following communities should be taking community mitigation action:

Community	Considerations	Community Mitigation Actions
Seattle, WA	Widespread transmission, impacting public health response and healthcare capacity, focal point in a high-risk setting (long-term care facility) with high mortality rate	Moderate to severe actions
Santa Clara, CA	Widespread transmission, impact on public health response and healthcare capacity, large older adult population	Moderate to severe actions
Westchester, NYS	Sustained transmission with most cases associated with communal exposure	Low to moderate actions
Florida	Limited community transmission, older adult population, reported deaths	Prepare/Low actions

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Implementation of Mitigation Strategies for Communities with Local COVID-19 Transmission

Background

When a novel virus with pandemic potential emerges, nonpharmaceutical interventions, which will be called community mitigation strategies in this document, often are the most readily available interventions to help slow transmission of the virus in communities. Community mitigation is a set of actions that persons and communities can take to help slow the spread of respiratory virus infections. Community mitigation is especially important before a vaccine or drug becomes widely available.

The following is a proposed framework for actions which local and state health departments can implement as local spread of COVID-19 continues in the United States. Selection and implementation of these actions should be guided by the local characteristics of disease transmission, demographics, and public health and healthcare system capacity.

Goals

The goals for using mitigation strategies for communities with local COVID-19 transmission are to protect:

- Individuals at risk for severe illness, including older adults and persons of any age with underlying health conditions (See Appendix A).
- The healthcare workforce and critical infrastructure workforces

These approaches are used to minimize morbidity and mortality caused by COVID-19 and minimize social and economic impacts of COVID-19. Individuals, communities, businesses, and healthcare organizations are all part of a community mitigation strategy.

Implementation emphasizes:

- Emphasizing individual responsibility for implementation of recommended personal-level actions,
- Empowering businesses, schools, and community organizations to implement recommended actions, particularly in ways that protect persons at risk of severe illness
- Focusing on settings that provide critical services to implement recommended actions to protect critical infrastructure and individuals at risk of severe disease
- Minimizing disruptions to daily life to the extent possible

Guiding principles

- Each community is unique, and mitigation appropriate strategies will vary based on characteristics of the community and populations at risk of severe disease as well as the local capacity to implement strategies (Table 1).
- Consider all aspects of a community that might be impacted, including vulnerable populations that may be more impacted socially or economically, and select appropriate actions.
- Mitigation strategies can be scaled up or down depending on the evolving situation.
- When developing mitigation plans, communities should identify ways to ensure the safety and social well-being of groups that may be especially impacted by mitigation strategies, including individuals at risk for severe illness

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Activation of community emergency plans is critical for the implementation of mitigation strategies. These plans may provide additional authorities and coordination needed for interventions to be implemented (Table 2).
- The level of activities implemented may vary across settings (i.e.. may be at moderate for one setting and at substantial for another setting at the same time in order to meet community response needs).
- Local and state public health departments may need to implement mitigation strategies for public health functions in the identification and contact tracing of cases depending on level of community spread (Table 3). When applied, community mitigation efforts may help implementation of public health activities like contact tracing.

Table 1. Local Factors to Consider for Determining Mitigation Strategies

Factor	Characteristics
Epidemiology	Level of community transmission Number of outbreaks COVID-19 cases impacting delivery of healthcare or impacting other critical infrastructure or services Epidemiology in surrounding jurisdictions
Community Characteristics	Size of community and population density Level of community engagement/support Size and characteristics of vulnerable populations Access to healthcare Transportation (public, walking) Planned large events
Healthcare capacity	Healthcare workforce Number of healthcare facilities Testing capacity Intensive care capacity PPE availability
Public health capacity	Public health workforce and availability of resources to implement strategies Available support from other state/local government agencies and partner organizations

Reduce activities (e.g., religious services, group congregation), especially for organizations with individuals at risk of severe illness. Consider offering video/audio of events. • Determine ways to continue providing support services to individuals at risk of severe disease (services, meals, checking in) while limiting group settings and exposures • Cancel large gatherings (e.g., >500 people) or move to smaller groupings. For organizations that serve high-risk communities, cancel gatherings of more than 10 people.	• Cancel faith-based and community gatherings of any size •
Community and faith-based organizations	• Provide healthcare personnel (HCP, includes staff at nursing homes and long-term care), facilities, and systems with tools and guidance	• Implement changes to visitor policies to further reduce limit exposures to HCP, residents, and patients. Changes could include temperature/symptom	• Restrict all visitors from facility entry to reduce facility-based transmission.

Subject: COVID-19 CDRS UPDATE 11 MAR 2020

Gentlemen,
Please find the CDR's SITREP for 11 MAR 2020 attached. The J5 Planning Products are also attached for review. These will continue to be adjusted, edited and improved as mission dictates.

Update for today follows:
21 FL Residents Currently diagnosed in Florida (17 travel related)

Still no requirements to the NG beyond LOG Branch augmentation (2ea).

- Currently 3ea Soldiers on SAD in support of COVID-19. (LTC Evans, J5 / LTC Knox and one additional in support of DEM LOG Branch)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- NGB internal directive that "first GO is approval authority for TDY" has caused churn across the States regarding conference attendance and GOV travel

- DEM's COVID-19 Situational Update now M/W/F (ESF 13 calls in) at 1115. DOMS will call in for SA and will adjust Battle Rhythm.

- Our contingency planning continues as State discusses ideas of drive thru COVID testing or commodities distribution. Traffic control points were also discussed but law enforcement assets may get initial look for that effort. We remain agile and proactive with regard to any potential mission support.

- DOMS continues to collect National best practices and TTPs (CA, NY, NE, etc) for potential application / planning material for potential missions.

- All Hazards Conference / Workshop (AHCW) is still scheduled to run - J3, J35 and J5 were scheduled to attend. FRI is decision point on final attendees.

Very Respectfully,

Mike

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH ANNOUNCES TWO PRESUMPTIVE POSITIVE COVID-19 CASES IN FLORIDA

Risk to Florida Public Remains Low

TALLAHASSEE— The Florida Department of Health (Department) has announced there are two presumptive positive cases of 2019 coronavirus disease (COVID-19) in Florida. Both individuals remain in isolation at this time. Despite these cases in Florida, the overall immediate threat to the public remains low.

Governor Ron DeSantis said, "I have been working with federal partners and our Department of Health to ensure that communities are ready to handle the challenges presented by COVID-19. The dedicated professionals at our county health departments, as well as those working at local medical providers, are well equipped to address these and future cases. State Surgeon General Dr. Scott Rivkees has taken appropriate, decisive action to help affect the best possible outcomes, and I will continue directing our state agencies to do whatever is necessary to prioritize the health and well-being of Florida residents."

Lieutenant Governor Jeanette Nu*ñ*ez said, "Florida is a national leader in public health, and that quickly became evident as soon as we received information regarding presumptive positive cases of COVID-19 in our state. Public health teams from our Department of Health have already begun engaging with the impacted individuals and are quickly working towards identifying and contacting everyone who may be potentially affected by this virus. Thanks to the extensive preparations and tireless work the Department's staff has been undertaking since information regarding COVID-19 became available in early January, our county health departments, medical providers and all other partners in public health are well prepared to prevent the spread of COVID-19."

State Surgeon General Dr. Scott Rivkees said, "This is the scenario that we prepare for every day in public health. The Department is moving forward with the appropriate plans, and we are working directly with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and local medical providers to ensure these individuals receive the proper treatment and that anyone who has come into contact with them is following the necessary protocols, limiting or stopping any further spread. Thanks to Florida's integrated public health system, we have been able to proactively engage and plan with our public health partners at every level, enabling us to take these important steps in a very expeditious manner. Our epidemiological teams are among the best in the nation, and they are right now aggressively pursuing every potential lead during these critical early moments of this outbreak in Florida."

The first patient is an adult Manatee county resident without travel history to countries identified for restricted travel by the CDC. This person did seek health care, is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials. The Florida Department of Health is working closely with the patient, their close contacts and health care providers to isolate and monitor persons who may have been exposed to COVID-19 and implement testing of anyone who may develop COVID-19 symptoms, including fever, cough, or shortness of breath.

The second patient is an adult resident of Hillsborough county with a history of travel to Italy. This person is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials.

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from the COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. As a reminder, the Department always recommends everyday preventive actions to help impede the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;

- If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and

- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local county health department (CHD) and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the county health department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH ANNOUNCES TWO PRESUMPTIVE POSITIVE COVID-19 CASES IN FLORIDA

Risk to Florida Public Remains Low

(850) 245-4111

Tallahassee, Fla. — The Florida Department of Health (Department) has announced there are two presumptive positive cases of 2019 coronavirus disease (COVID-19) in Florida. Both individuals remain in isolation at this time. Despite these cases in Florida, the overall immediate threat to the public remains low.

Governor Ron DeSantis said, "I have been working with federal partners and our Department of Health to ensure that communities are ready to handle the challenges presented by COVID-19. The dedicated professionals at our county health departments, as well as those working at local medical providers, are well equipped to address these and future cases. State Surgeon General Dr. Scott Rivkees has taken appropriate, decisive action to help affect the best possible outcomes, and I will continue directing our state agencies to do whatever is necessary to prioritize the health and well-being of Florida residents."

Lieutenant Governor Jeanette Nuñez said, "Florida is a national leader in public health, and that quickly became evident as soon as we received information regarding presumptive positive cases of COVID-19 in our state. Public health teams from our Department of Health have already begun engaging with the impacted individuals and are quickly working towards identifying and contacting everyone who may be potentially affected by this virus. Thanks to the extensive preparations and tireless work the Department's staff has been undertaking since information regarding COVID-19 became available in early January, our county health departments, medical providers and all other partners in public health are well prepared to prevent the spread of COVID-19."

State Surgeon General Dr. Scott Rivkees said, "This is the scenario that we prepare for every day in public health. The Department is moving forward with the appropriate plans, and we are working directly with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and local medical providers to ensure these individuals receive the proper treatment and that anyone who has come into contact with them is following the necessary protocols, limiting or stopping any further spread. Thanks to Florida's integrated public health system, we have been able to proactively engage and plan with our public health partners at every level, enabling us to take these important steps in a very expeditious manner. Our epidemiological teams are among the best in the nation, and they are right now aggressively pursuing every potential lead during these critical early moments of this outbreak in Florida."

The first patient is an adult Manatee county resident without travel history to countries identified for restricted travel by the CDC. This person did seek health care, is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials. The Florida Department of Health is working closely with the patient, their close contacts and health care providers to isolate and monitor persons who may have been exposed to COVID-19 and implement testing of anyone who may develop COVID-19 symptoms, including fever, cough, or shortness of breath.

The second patient is an adult resident of Hillsborough county with a history of travel to Italy. This person is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials.

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from the COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. As a reminder, the Department always recommends everyday preventive actions to help impede the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;
    - If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and
- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local county health department (CHD) and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the county health department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

Please visit the Department's dedicated COVID-19 webpage at www.FloridaHealth.gov/COVID-19. This remains the best and most up-to-date resource for information and guidance regarding COVID-19 in Florida.

WHEREAS, two individuals in the State of Florida tested presumptively positive for COVID-19, including a resident of Manatee County and a resident of Hillsborough County; and

WHEREAS, the CDC currently recommends mitigation measures in communities with COVID-19 cases, including staying at home when sick, keeping away from others who are sick and staying at home when a household member is sick with respiratory disease symptoms or if instructed to do so by public health officials or a health care provider; and

WHEREAS, it is necessary and appropriate to take action to ensure that COVID-19 remains controlled and that residents and visitors in Florida remain safe and secure;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RON DESANTIS, as Governor of Florida, by virtue of the authority vested in me by Article IV, Section (1)(a) of the Florida Constitution, and all other applicable laws, promulgate the following Executive Order to take immediate effect:

Section 1. Because of the foregoing conditions, I direct the State Health Officer and Surgeon General, Dr. Scott Rivkees, to declare a public health emergency in the State of Florida, pursuant to his authority in section 381.00315, Florida Statutes. The State Health Officer is authorized and directed to use his judgment as to the duration of this public health emergency.

Section 2. In accordance with section 381.0011(7), Florida Statutes, I direct the State Health Officer to take any action necessary to protect the public health.

Section 3. I direct the State Health Officer to follow the guidelines established by the CDC in establishing protocols to control the spread of COVID-19 and educate the public on prevention.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Section 4. In accordance with section 381.0011(7), Florida Statutes, I designate the Florida Department of Health as the lead state agency to coordinate emergency response activities among the various state agencies and local governments. The State Health Officer, or his designee, shall advise the Executive Office of the Governor on the implementation of these emergency response activities.

Section 5. All actions taken by the State Health Officer with respect to this emergency before the issuance of this Executive Order are ratified.

Section 6. The Florida Department of Health will actively monitor, at a minimum, all persons meeting the definition of a Person Under Investigation ("PUI") as defined by the CDC for COVID-19 for a period of at least 14 days or until the PUI tests negative for COVID-19. Active monitoring by the Florida Department of Health will include at least the following:

A. Risk assessment within 24 hours of learning an individual meets the criteria for a PUI.

B. Twice-daily temperature checks.

Section 7. The Florida Department of Health, pursuant to its authority in section 381.00315, Florida Statutes, will ensure that all individuals meeting the CDC's definition of a PUI are isolated or quarantined for a period of 14 days or until the person tests negative for COVID-19.

Section 8. I hereby direct the Florida Department of Health to make its own determinations as to quarantine, isolation and other necessary public health interventions as permitted under Florida law.

Section 9. I direct all agencies under the direction of the Governor to fully cooperate with the Florida Department of Health, and any representative thereof in furtherance of this Order.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Agencies not under the direction of the Governor are requested to provide such assistance as is required.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Florida to be affixed, at Tallahassee, this 1st day of March, 2020.

Dear Governor DeSantis:

CSX Transportation operates in your state as a critical component of the food, consumer, clean water, and industrial supply chain. We appreciate your continued partnership in safe freight railroad operations in your state during the Covid-19 conditions. As such, we appreciate your specific exemptions from curfews, operational mandates, and other directives to less-critical industries. We wish to continue to be included in such exemptions as further directives may be issued. CSX has, however, imposed strict travel, social distancing, and healthy operational policies consistent with public safety in your state.

Attached is our national industry letter used in times of severe weather or serious disruptions.

Please do not hesitate to call me at 904-366-4245.

In addition, you or your emergency management personnel can call our 24/7 hotline at 1800-232-0144.

Thank you for your continued partnership in a healthy supply chain.

Sincerely,

LETTER OF ACCESS: COVID-19 RESTRICTED AREAS
CONTRACTORS OF CSX TRANSPORTATION

This Letter of Access is prepared, disseminated, and used by the railroad industry in accordance with best practices and recommended preparedness measures for access and re-entry in the Crisis Event Response and Recovery Access (CERRA) Framework, produced in a joint government-industry effort led by the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and the Emergency Services Sector Coordinating Council (SCC) and issued and approved for usage in March 2018.

On matters relating to critical infrastructure protection and resilience, the Association of American Railroads (AAR), as manager of the Rail SCC established pursuant to the National Infrastructure Protection Plan (NIPP), works in concert with DHS and its components, including the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), as well as the Department of Transportation (DOT) and Federal Railroad Administration (FRA), on preparedness for timely and effective protective and response measures.

The rapid spread of coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) in the United States since late January 2020 has necessitated a range of actions by federal, state, and local authorities to contain the virus and mitigate its effects.

- Assessments by medical experts with the Centers for Diseases Control and Prevention (CDC) and the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), briefed to representatives of industries across sectors in recurring teleconferences held by DHS's Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA), project sustained expansion of community spread during the next several months – in scope of geographic areas affected and volumes of confirmed infections.
- On March 13, 2020, President Donald J. Trump declared a national emergency to support containment and mitigation of COVID-19 and address the significant public health and national and economic security implications. This declaration engages the full authorities and resources of FEMA for emergency preparedness and response.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- The virus has spread to all states and the District of Columbia – with governors, mayors, and county executives issuing declarations of emergency as well.
- Among the measures that state and local authorities may implement to contain COVID-19 spread is establishment of "containment areas," "quarantine zones," or other forms of geographically defined restrictions on access and specified activities.

In the event of such restrictions imposed in local areas as part of a containment and mitigation strategy, the potential preclusion of worker access to infrastructure and facilities in the covered zones could impede operations of railroads, freight and passenger. The order for quarantine or containment would likely not be directed at railroad operations or infrastructure – but those activities and sites will be within defined areas of quarantine, containment, or restriction zones.

In the interests of the welfare of residents and businesses in areas affected by such conditions and of maintaining essential supply chains, it is critical to assure continued rail operations – as safe conditions allow. For this purpose, law enforcement officers and emergency management officials, charged with responsibility for oversight and access control at areas affected by restrictions imposed as part of an overall strategy to contain the spread of COVID-19, are respectfully asked to:

- Grant the contractors of CSX Transportation, with proper photographic identification and as safe conditions allow, approval to cross police lines, road blocks, and control points in direct support of activities to maintain safe and efficient train operations, in furtherance of community relief, interstate commerce, and sustained supply chains.

Railroad contractors permitted access will abide by the directives of local authorities on protective measures to maintain while in zones under restrictions.

To support sustained operations, contractors granted access may need to bring railroad equipment into, or use trains, trucks, automobiles, and other vehicles in, the affected area.

This correspondence is valid for the period of March 16 to September 30, 2020.

Hi James,

We received an unfortunate decision from the Second DCA today. They ruled that the $50k cap on attorney's fees following a rule challenge only applies per petition, not per case. They reversed the ALJ's decision holding that the cap applies in the aggregate. Thus, a consolidated case leaves an agency susceptible to much more than 50k in fees, depending on how many cases or petitions have been consolidated. Obviously, a skilled attorney will now file multiple, related petitions to multiply the 50k cap as much as he pleases.

We should probably discuss whether this is worth appealing to the Florida Supreme Court. It has implications across all agencies.

I'm available to discuss at your convenience.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000367

Introduction

This is an appeal of an administrative law judge's final order that awarded a single, collective award of $50,000.00 of attorney's fees and some costs, pursuant to section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, to a group of petitioners. The award did not include costs associated with the preparation of a pre-litigation lower cost regulatory alternative proposal. This final order is an appealable final agency action. See § 120.68(1)(a), Fla. Stat. (2018). The issue addressed in this brief is whether section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00, or permits multiple per-party awards of fees, each capped at $50,000.00.

In this answer brief, citations to the record on appeal are designated "R" followed by the appropriate page number(s), e.g., (R. 100). Citations to the Appellants' initial brief are designated as "IB" followed by the appropriate page number(s), e.g., (IB. 10).

Statement of the Case and Facts

This appeal arises from a final order of an administrative law judge ("ALJ") ordering the Appellee, Department of Business and Professional Regulation, Division of Pari-Mutuel Wagering ("Department"), to pay $50,000.00 in attorney's fees and some costs to petitioners Tampa Bay Downs, Inc., and TBDG Acquisition, LLC, d/b/a TGT Poker & Racebook (the "Appellants"). (See R. 372-384.) This award of attorney's fees and some costs also included petitioners Dania Entertainment Center, LLC, Daytona Beach Kennel Club, Inc., Jacksonville Kennel Club, Inc., Melbourne Greyhound Park, LLC, Bonita-Fort Myers Corporation, Investment Corporation of Palm Beach, and West Flagler Associations, Ltd. (the "other Petitioners"). (See Id.) The other Petitioners have filed a separate appeal of this award. See Notice of Appeal, Dania Entertainment Center, et al. v. Dep't of Bus. and Prof'l Regulation, Div. of Pari-Mutuel Wagering, Case No. 2D18-1967 (Fla. 2nd DCA May 18, 2018).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Appellants' statement of the case and facts is incomplete so the Department offers the following to more fully aid this Court in its review.

The Original Rule Challenge and Order

The Appellants and other Petitioners successfully challenged the Department's proposed repeal of rules 61D-11.001(17) and 61D-11.002(5), Florida Administrative Code, at the Division of Administrative Hearings ("DOAH"). (See R. 257-258.) Afterwards, counsel for the Appellants and counsel for the other Petitioners filed separate motions for attorney's fees on behalf of their clients. (See Id.) The First District Court of Appeal affirmed the ALJ's final order and granted the Appellants' and other Petitioners' motions for attorney's fees. (See R. 258.) The matter was then remanded to DOAH for an ALJ to assess the appropriate amount of fees and costs. (See Id.)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

An ALJ combined the Appellants' and other Petitioners' motions for attorney's fees and costs into one, bifurcated administrative proceeding. (See R. 34-38; 59-64.) The ALJ issued a partial final order which addressed whether section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00, or a per-party award of fees, each capped at $50,000.00. (See R. 253-279.) The ALJ issued a later, separate final order which addressed whether costs associated with the creation of a pre-litigation lower cost regulatory alternative proposal are taxable litigation costs within the meaning of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes. (See R. 372-384.) This issue was not raised by the Appellants in their initial brief, however, so it will not be addressed in this answer brief. In any event, the final order incorporated the findings of fact and conclusions of law from the earlier partial final order. (See R. 378.)

ALJ's Ultimate Findings of Fact

Each of the Appellants had filed nearly identical petitions challenging the Department's proposed repeal of rules 61D-11.001(17) and 61D-11.002(5), Florida Administrative Code, at DOAH. (See R. 260-261.) The Appellants were all represented by the same counsel. (See R. 261.) The other Petitioners filed their own petitions challenging the same rules' proposed repeal which were substantively the same as the Appellants' petitions. (See Id.) The other Petitioners were all represented by the same counsel. (See Id.) The similarities between the two groups' petitions suggested a high degree of coordination between counsel for the Appellants and counsel for the other Petitioners. (See Id.) That being said, there was no indication that either of the two groups attempted to inflate their attorney's fees in any way. (See R. 273.) The Appellants and the other Petitioners relied on the exact same exhibits during the final hearing. (See Id.) The only testimony offered into evidence from a petitioner was from a representative of the other Petitioner Jacksonville Kennel Club, Inc. (See Id.) In other words, no testimony was introduced from representatives of any Appellant or from a representative of any of the other Petitioners besides Jacksonville Kennel Club, Inc.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Summary of the Argument

This Court should affirm the ALJ's final order because section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. The facts of this case are not in dispute. Instead, this appeal turns on the proper interpretation of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes.

By its express terms, section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. The language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, is clear and unambiguous. As such, its plain and ordinary meaning must control. Section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, unequivocally states that "[n]o award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000.00." By its express terms, then, section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. To interpret the section in any other way would stray from the mandated strict interpretation and impermissibly extend or modify the section's express terms or its reasonable and obvious implications.

The legislative history of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees. Nothing contained in the legislative bill analyses demonstrates anything contrary to the express terms of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, which mandate a single, collective award of attorney's fees. But even if this Court is convinced that the Legislature meant otherwise, this Court cannot deviate from the plain language of the statute which mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees.

The purpose behind section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, corresponds with a single, collective award of attorney's fees. Such an award is meant to "level the playing field" between administrative agencies representing state government and those that challenge such an agency's action. It is not meant to reward the well-coordinated and simultaneous efforts of individual entities seeking the exact same relief via nearly identical means as if those same entities brought separate, individualized challenges to the same agency action while relying on separate facts or varying legal theory to support their challenges.

Administrative case law interpreting section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, points to a single, collective award of attorney's fees. Several important factors become apparent in the administrative case law's interpretation of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes. Those factors include a) whether the petitioners had a common goal; b) the level of similarity between the parties' petitions challenging agency action; c) the degree of coordination between the parties; d) if the parties bring different perspectives to the cases; and e) if the parties sought individual redress or damages. Applying these factors to this case leads to a single, collective award of attorney's fees, capped at $50,000.00, to be divided amongst the Appellants and other Petitioners.

Standard of Review

An administrative law judge's conclusions of law are subject to de novo review. See Goodman v. Fla. Dep't of Law Enf't, 238 So. 3d 102, 108 (Fla. 2018) (internal citation omitted).

Argument

I. This Court should affirm the ALJ's final order.

As an initial matter, "an award of attorney's fees is contrary to the common law principle that each party must pay for its own attorneys' fees." See Attorney's Title Ins. Fund., Inc. v. Gorka, 36 So. 3d 646, 649 (Fla. 2010). Accordingly, a statute that awards attorney's fees must be strictly construed. See Diamond Aircraft Indus., Inc. v. Horowitch, 107 So. 3d 362, 367 (Fla. 2013). Section 120.595, Florida Statutes, is no exception. See e.g. Dep't of Ins. v. Fla. Bankers Ass'n, 764 So. 2d 660 (Fla. 1st DCA 2000) (refusing to award fees to a non-attorney as such an award was not authorized by section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes); Dep't of Health v. Discovery Experimental & Dev., Inc., 767 So. 2d 1244 (Fla. 1st DCA 2000) (reversing portion of ALJ's award of attorney's fees attributable to travel expenses because section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, does not expressly authorize such expenses); see also Agency for Health Care Admin. v. HHCI Ltd. P'ship, 865 So. 2d 593 (Fla. 1st DCA 2004) ("[A]lthough section 120.595(4)[Florida Statutes,] does not specifically foreclose recovery of all legal fees incurred by a party to whom an agency applies an unlawful non-rule policy, it does not on its face allow those fees either.").

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A. The plain language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees.

"The cardinal rule of statutory construction is that a statute should be construed so as to ascertain and give effect to the intention of the Legislature as expressed in the statute." Gaulden v. State, 195 So. 3d 1123, 1125 (Fla. 2016) (internal citation omitted). The plain language of the statute must be examined first. See Kumar v. Patel, 227 So. 3d 557, 559 (Fla. 2017). "When a statute is clear and unambiguous, courts will not look behind the statute's plain language for legislative intent or resort to rules of statutory construction to ascertain intent." Daniels v. Fla. Dep't of Health, 898 So. 2d 61, 64 (Fla. 2005).

Florida's Administrative Procedures Act includes provisions for attorney's fees. For challenges to proposed agency rules, section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, reads:

> If the appellate court or administrative law judge declares a proposed rule or portion of a proposed rule invalid pursuant to [section 120.56(2), Florida Statutes], a judgment or order shall be rendered against the agency for reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees, unless the agency demonstrates that its actions were substantially justified or special circumstances exist which would make the award unjust. An agency's actions are "substantially justified" if there was a reasonable basis in law and fact at the time the actions were taken by the agency. If the agency prevails in the proceedings, the appellate court or administrative law judge shall award reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees against a party if the appellate court or > administrative law judge determines that a party participated in the proceedings for an improper purpose as defined by paragraph (1)(e). No award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000.

(Emphasis added). Similarly, for challenges to existing rules or agency statements defined as unadopted rules, if an agency prevails in such a challenge, it shall be awarded its reasonable attorney's fees "against a party" if certain conditions are satisfied. See §§ 120.595(3) and (4), Fla. Stat. (2018). In both instances, too, no award of attorney's fees can exceed $50,000.00. See Id.

The language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, is clear and unambiguous. "A statute is 'ambiguous' when its language is subject to more than one reasonable interpretation and may permit more than one outcome." Nicarry v. Eslinger, 990 So. 2d 661, 664 (Fla. 5th DCA 2008) (citing Hess v. Walton, 898 So. 2d 1046, 1049 (Fla. 2d DCA 2005)). Section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, unequivocally states that "[n]o award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000.00." By its express terms, then, section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. This portion cannot be reasonably read in any other way and not depart from the mandated strict construction of the clear and unambiguous language.

The Appellants' interpretation extends and modifies the statutory language. This Court, along with the Appellants, "[is] without power to construe an unambiguous statute in a way which would extend, modify, or limit, its express terms or its reasonable and obvious implications." Bennett v. St. Vincent's Med. Ctr., Inc., 71 So. 3d 828, 838 (Fla. 2011) (internal citation omitted). The Appellants interpret section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, to mean that the Appellants should each be awarded their attorney's fees, capped at $50,000.00, and the other Petitioners should receive their own separate reward of attorney's fees, capped at $50,000.00. (See IB. 5.) But in order to reach that conclusion, the Appellants ignore the actual language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, and read it as if it also included something to the effect of "each prevailing party is entitled to an award of its reasonable attorney's fees, up to $50,000." (See Id.) Such phrasing, however, does not appear anywhere in section 120.595, Florida Statutes, let alone section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Appellants' other arguments fail. The Appellants argue that the "only legal basis" for a single, combined award of attorney's fees was the consolidation of the various petitioners' challenges. (See IB. 5-7.) This argument fails because it ignores the express terms of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, which mandate a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. The otherwise missing phrase "each prevailing party" is integral to the Appellants' other arguments which also fail. Even though a petitioner is required to file a motion in order to receive an award of its attorney's fees as the Appellants point out (see IB.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

7), nothing about that fact means that multiple awards are authorized by section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes. The Appellants are adding to the statute and treating it as if it read something to the effect of "each prevailing party must file its own motion in order to receive a separate award of its attorney's fees." Again, such a reading impermissibly strays from the mandated strict construction of the statute's plain language as it is actually written. Finally, whether appellate attorney's fees are handled separately from trial-level attorney's fees has no bearing on this case. That fact does not change the express terms of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, which mandate a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. Accordingly, the Appellants emphasis (see IB. Id.) on this fact is misplaced.

The Appellants' reliance on various canons of construction cannot change the way section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, is actually written. Section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. Contrary to the Appellants' assertion otherwise (see IB. 8), nothing about the section's surrounding words changes that fact. The same can be said about how the Appellants read section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, in conjunction with other statutes (see IB. 9-10) – another statutes' language does not change the clear and unambiguous language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, which mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. Far from adding to the language of section 120.595(2), Florida

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000378

Statutes, as the Appellants argue (see IB. 8-9), the Department simply reads the plain language of the statute as it is written to conclude that a single, collective award of attorney's fees is capped at $50,000.00 – the statute says "[n]o award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000." § 120.595(2), Fla. Stat. Nothing can change the way the statute is actually written, including what the Appellant refers to as the principle of reciprocal attorney's fees. (See IB. 11-12.) Accordingly, this argument fails, too.

B. The legislative history of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees.

When a statute's language is ambiguous, courts may examine the legislative history to aid in its determination regarding legislative intent. See Diamond Aircraft 107 So. 3d at 367. "Staff analyses of legislation should be accorded significant respect in determining legislative intent." State, Dep't of Envtl. Regulation v. SCM Glidco Organics, Corp., 606 So. 2d 722, 725 (Fla. 1st DCA 1992).

Legislative analysis of section 120.595, Florida Statutes, does not point to anything other than a single, collective award of attorney's fees. The Final Bill Analysis and Economic Impact statement for chapter 96-159, Laws of Florida, the law which first created section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, does not state that "each prevailing party is entitled to an award of its reasonable attorney's fees." To the contrary, it mandated a single, collective award. See Final Bill Analysis &

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000379

Economic Impact Statement at 35 ("An award of attorney's fees under these provisions shall not exceed $15,000."). Section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, was amended in 2008 and the $15,000.00 cap was raised to $50,000.00. See Ch. 2008-104, section 13, at 19-20, Laws of Florida. And, again, legislative analysis of the newly amended section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, did not indicate that "each prevailing party is entitled to an award of its reasonable attorney's fees." Instead, it simply reiterated the language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, and explained, in part, that the cap was being raised. See Fla. S. Transportation & Economic Development Appropriations Comm. CS/CS/SB 704 (Reg. Sess. 2008) Staff Analysis, at 16 (Apr. 2008) available at https://archive.flsenate.gov/data/session/2008/Senate/bills/analysis/pdf/2008s0704.ta.pdf. In sum, neither analysis points to anything other than a single, collective award of attorney's fees.

In any event, nothing contained in the legislative analysis can change the plain language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes. "Legislative history cannot be used to change the plain and clear language of a statute." Fla. Dep't of Revenue v. Fla. Mun. Power Agency, 789 So. 2d 320, 324 (Fla. 2001). By its express terms, section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. Therefore, even if the legislative analysis did indicate that the legislature meant to include language such as "each prevailing party is entitled an award of its reasonable attorney's fees," this wholly absent phrase cannot be read into the plain language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes. Accordingly, the Appellants' reliance on what it impermissibly reads into the legislative analysis (see IB. 17-18) cannot change the plain language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes.

C. A single, collective award of attorney's fees comports with the purpose of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes.

The purpose behind section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, corresponds with a single, collective award of attorney's fees. Such an award is meant to "level the playing field" between administrative agencies representing state government and those that challenge such an agency's action. See Johnson v. Dep't of Corrections, 191 So. 3d 965, 968 (Fla. 1st DCA 2016). The award must also be reasonable. See § 120.595(2), Fla. Stat. ("[A] a judgment or order shall be rendered against the agency for reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees.") A "level playing field," however, does not mean that a group of petitioners working together to challenge the same state government action should be awarded as if they were bringing separate, distinct challenges. Aside from not being what the statute expressly permits, that is not reasonable.

In this case, the Appellants brought nearly identical challenges to the Department's proposed repeal of two of its rules. The Appellants were represented by the same law firm. The Appellants relied on the same set of facts to support their consolidated challenges. The Appellants relied on the same identical legal theory to support their consolidated challenges. In other words, the Appellants presented themselves as if they were one, unified petitioner. As such, a "level playing field" would treat them as if they were just one petitioner. Otherwise, any number of challengers could band together while being represented by the same firm, coordinate their efforts, rely on a singular set of facts and theory of law, and be rewarded as if they hired separate counsel or relied on separate circumstances or unique legal theory. Stated another way, a "level playing field" would not reward identical effort more than once. That would not be reasonable.

The same could be said about a single collective award of attorney's fees to the Appellants and other Petitioners. Counsel for the Appellants and counsel for the other Petitioners coordinated their efforts – their petitions challenging agency action were substantially the same. The Appellants and other Petitioners relied on the same set of facts and law and have raised almost identical issues in their briefs. Only one party representative of the other Petitioners provided any testimony during the underlying rule challenge proceedings. The Appellants and other Petitioners did not bring unique perspectives to this case. The so-called "collective action problem" (see IB. 16) is illusory because, again, the statutory language mandates a single, collective award of fees capped at $50,000.00. Likewise, the Appellants' arguments (see IB. 23) about how attorney's fees can be used to encourage settlement in rule challenge litigation are equally unconvincing when compared to what the plain language actually provides. Accordingly, a level playing field would treat the Appellants and other Petitioners as a unified petitioner and reward them accordingly. That would be reasonable.

D. This Court should adopt the legal analyses from administrative case law interpreting section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, as awarding a single, collective award of attorney's fees to multiple petitioners.

This Court should endorse the holdings of Patel, et al. v. Bd. of Pharmacy, Case No. 08-2728 (Fla. DOAH July 30, 2009) (14 consolidated cases) and G.B., et al. v. Agency for Persons with Disabilities, Case No. 14-4173 (Fla. DOAH Mar. 24, 2015) (four consolidated cases). In doing so, this Court would ensure that the $50,000.00 cap on a single, collective award of attorney's fees from section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, is correctly applied in this case. Even if these two cases are solely examined as if they contained nothing more than an analysis of the reasonableness of the attorney's fees as the Appellants' suggest (see IB. 18-19), their analyses are still instructive and lead to the same result.

This case is similar to Patel and should be decided in the same way. Patel and 13 other petitioners each filed separate challenges against a series of policy statements made by the Board of Pharmacy that had not been adopted as rules. See Patel 08-2728 at 6. Patel and the 13 other petitioners were represented by the same law firm. See Id. at 7. Separate challenges were filed so as to increase the amount of attorney's fees. See Id. at 8. Regardless, Patel and the 13 other petitioners had the same identical goal: to be allowed to sit for professional licensure examination. See Id. The individual petitions were nearly identical. See Id. at 9. Patel and the 13 other petitioners did not bring different perspectives to the case. See Id. at 42. In fact, the ALJ determined that Patel and the 13 other petitioners "were all in the same boat." See Id. Ultimately, Patel and the 13 other petitioners were awarded a single, collective award of attorney's fees pursuant to section 120.595(3), Florida Statutes. See Id. at 58.

In this case, the Appellants were unquestionably "all in the same boat" as much as the petitioners in Patel. While each of the Appellants and other Petitioners filed their own separate rule challenge petition, like Patel's and the 13 other petitioners', the Appellant's petitions were nearly identical and sought the exact same relief. Patel and the 13 other petitioners, like the Appellants, were represented by the same firm. Likewise, neither Patel and the 13 other petitioners nor the Appellants and other Petitioners brought different perspectives to the case – each of the Appellants and other Petitioners were going to be impacted by the Department's proposed repeal of its two rules the same way. Accordingly, this Court should also award a single, collective award of attorney's fees in this case. Such an award would be reasonable.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This case is also similar to G.B. and should be decided the same way. G.B. and the other three petitioners prevailed in a challenge against two of the Agency for Persons with Disabilities' proposed rules. See G.B. 14-4173 at 2. The challengers in G.B. were all represented by the same counsel. See Id. at 1. G.B. and the other petitioners had filed one petition challenging the proposed rules and sought identical relief. See Id. at 13. In other words, G.B. and the other petitioners relied on the same facts and same legal theory. G.B. and other petitioners were not seeking "individual redress or damages." See Id. During the underlying administrative hearing, only one of the petitioners provided any testimony. See Id. at 14. The ALJ in G.B. ultimately awarded a single, collective award of attorney's fees, capped at $50,000.00. See Id. at 14. This single, collective award of attorney's fees was affirmed in G.B. v. Agency for Persons with Disabilities, 180 So. 3d 183, 184 (Fla. 1st DCA 2015). Specifically, the First District Court of Appeal rejected all of G.B. and the other petitioner's arguments to the contrary and affirmed the single, collective award. See Id.

Like G.B. and the other petitioners, the Appellants relied on the same law firm to bring an identical challenge to a state agency's proposed rules. The Appellants also relied on the same facts and legal theory as did G.B. and the other petitioners. Also, like G.B. and the other petitioners, the Appellants and other Petitioners were seeking the same, collective result in their challenge: the repeal of two of the Department's proposed rules. Neither set of challengers were seeking individual redress or damages. And like G.B. and other petitioners, only one representative from the other Petitioners provided any testimony in the underlying administrative proceeding. Accordingly, like the First District Court of Appeal in G.B., this Court should affirm the single, collective award of attorney's fees in this case.

This Court should disregard the holdings in Envtl. Trust v. Dept. of Envtl. Prot., Case No. 96-4663 (Fla. DOAH Sept. 8, 1997) rev'd on other grounds Envtl. Trust v. Dept. of Envtl. Protection, 714 So. 2d 493 (Fla. 1st DCA 1998), Fla. Bankers Assoc. v. Dept. of Ins., Case No. 98-4118 (Fla. DOAH Dec. 6, 2000) rev'd on other grounds Dept. of Ins. v. Fla. Bankers Ass'n, 764 So. 2d 660 (Fla 1st DCA 2000) and Anderson Columbia Co., Inc. et al. v. Bd. of Trs., Internal Improvement Trust Fund, Case No. 00-0754 (Fla. DOAH July 18, 2000). These holdings should be ignored because they are distinguishable from the instant appeal and are contrary to the express terms of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, which mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00. These two reasons minimize the importance of Appellants' argument that when section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, was amended in 2008, the Legislature impliedly approved of these cases' construction of the statute. (See IB. 12-13). In other words, too much should not be read into what the Legislature actually approved of in these cases.

This Court should not endorse the holding of Environmental Trust, where six separate petitioners each relied on separate facts to challenge a series of proposed rules. See Case No. 96-4663 at 21. Five separate law firms represented the six petitioners. See Id. Deciding that each petitioner was entitled to a separate award of attorney's fees, the ALJ relied in part on case law interpreting section 925.036, Florida Statutes. See Id. at 32. In other words, the ALJ did not solely rely on the plain language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes. This was a mistake of law since section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandated a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $15,000.00. Finally, the ALJ's overall award was reversed and no fees were awarded. See Envtl. Trust v. Dep't of Envtl. Prot., 714 So. 2d 493, 501 (Fla. 1st DCA 1998). Therefore, this case should have little impact on this appeal.

The holding in Florida Bankers Association has limited value for this appeal. While the ALJ ultimately awarded each petitioner a separate award of attorney's fees pursuant to section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, the parties in that case did not dispute whether each petitioner was entitled to a separate award of attorney's fees. See Florida Bankers Association Case No. 98-4118 at 4-8; R. 270. Additionally, the ALJ ignored the express language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, which mandated a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $15,000.00. Therefore, the Appellants' reliance on this case is misplaced.

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000387

The Appellants' reliance on Anderson Columbia is equally misplaced. The petitioners in Anderson Columbia were unrelated and happened to choose the same counsel. See Case No. 00-0754 at 6. Furthermore, the petitioners did not engage in a "shared venture." See Id. Each petitioner brought a different perspective to the case. See Id. The ALJ relied on these facts when he awarded individual awards of attorney's fees to the separate petitioners. See Id. at 16-17. These same facts are not present in this appeal. To the contrary, the Appellants did not bring a different perspective to the case. While the Appellants argue that each individual petitioner had a unique perspective (see IB. 21-23), the facts remains that each petitioner operated a designated player game. This is not a "unique perspective." Instead, the Appellants engage in a shared venture. The Appellants coordinated amongst themselves and with the other Petitioners. The Appellants were all represented by the same counsel and shared a common goal. Furthermore, the ALJ ignored the express language of section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, which mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $15,000.00. Accordingly, Anderson Columbia is distinguishable from this appeal.

Conclusion

Based on the foregoing argument and citation to authority which demonstrates that section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, mandates a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00, the Appellee, Department of Business and Professional Regulation, Division of Pari-Mutuel Wagering, respectfully requests that this Court affirm the ALJ's order awarding a single, collective award of attorney's fees capped at $50,000.00.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This appeal concerns the application in consolidated cases of the following language in section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes: "No award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000" (the "$50,000 Cap").

After Appellants, with other petitioners, successfully challenged a proposed rule repeal by Appellee, Division of Pari-Mutuel Wagering (the "Division"), they moved for fees pursuant to section 120.595(2). (E.g., R. 22-25). New fee cases were opened for each petitioner, and subsequently each fee case was consolidated. (R. 36, 257). The Division appealed the final order invalidating the rule repeal, and the fee proceedings were stayed. (R. 31). The First DCA affirmed the final order invalidating the Division's rulemaking. (R. 47); Dept. of Bus. & Prof'l Reg., Div. of Pari-Mutuel Wagering v. Dania Entm't Ctr., LLC, 229 So. 3d 1259 (Fla. 1st DCA 2017). The opinion of the First DCA summarizes the basis for the rule challenge and the relevant facts. The First DCA also awarded appellate attorney's fees to all petitioners pursuant to section 120.595(2). (E.g., R. 90, 257).

After remand from the First DCA, Appellants argued below that the $50,000 Cap is to be applied on a per-party or per-award basis. (R. 137-47). Instead, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") applied the $50,000 Cap on an aggregate basis with all parties in the consolidated cases sharing $50,000 for their attorney's fees from the proposed rule challenge. (R. 301, 381). This appeal follows.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FACTS

Appellants, Tampa Bay Downs and TGT Poker & Racebook ("Tampa Petitioners" or "Appellants") are technically two separate petitioners, but share common ownership interests, thus, they filed a combined rule challenge petition and a combined attorney's fees motion. (R. 258). Seven other petitioners from various parts of the state, represented by the Lockwood Law Firm, filed separate rule challenge petitions and each filed their own motion for attorney's fees ("Lockwood Petitioners"). (R. 258). The Lockwood Petitioners are separate, competitive corporate entities from the Tampa Petitioners. The ALJ found that there was "not even a hint that" the separate petitions were split as an artifice for generating more fees. (R. 273).

Several case-specific criteria influenced the ALJ's interpretation of the $50,000 Cap such that he concluded "in cases such as this, in which a group of Petitioners is acting in a concerted and collective manner to achieve a common result, the total award of fees to the Petitioners, and against the agency is limited to $50,000." (R. 276). Thus, the ALJ noted that the original rule challenges were "with few exceptions, identical" as to the Lockwood Petitioners' petitions and the Tampa Petitioners' petition, though "not identical," had "pervasive similarities" "that suggest a high degree of coordination among the Petitioners." (R. 260-61). The ALJ also noted common evidentiary submissions and limited testimony. (R. 261).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

The plain language of the statute requires a cap only as to an individual award of attorney's fees. It does not require petitioners represented by separate counsel in cases consolidated for administrative convenience to share $50,000. Normal practice in both consolidated cases and in attorney's fees awards supports this interpretation of the $50,000 Cap. In addition, established Florida law prevents a derogation of a party's substantive rights on the basis of consolidation. A contrary interpretation requires additional language that the statute does not contain.

The manifest purpose of the attorney's fee provision was to level the playing field for a petitioner challenging an agency's proposed rule and to increase an agency's accountability to the entities it regulates. An aggregate cap undermines both of these purposes and is inconsistent with the legislative history of the reforms that created the attorney's fee provision and broadened it 12 years later.

Finally, the ALJ erred by considering issues such as coordination between the Petitioners and a perceived common purpose. The legislature accounts for unjust fee awards through the statute itself, and the entire body of case law requiring fee awards to be reasonable also protects against unreasonable multiplicity. An interpretation of the $50,000 Cap that aggregates it creates an additional limitation not announced by the legislature and creates perverse incentives in the future for both petitioners and agencies.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ARGUMENT

I. Florida law mandates an award of attorneys' fees to a successful challenger of a proposed rule and specifies that "No award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000." When multiple petitioners' challenges to a proposed rule are consolidated for administrative convenience, did the ALJ err in applying the cap on an aggregate basis for all petitioners?

A. Standard of Review

The ALJ's interpretation of the scope of the $50,000 Cap is a conclusion of law subject to de novo review. See § 120.68(7)(d), Fla. Stat.; see also M.H. v. Dept. of Children & Family Servs., 977 So. 2d 755, 759 (Fla. 2d DCA 2008) ("It follows that an appellate court reviews the agency's conclusions of law de novo.").

B. Statutory Indicia of the $50,000 Cap Applying on a Per-Award or Per-Party Basis

Both the plain, unambiguous language of the statute and the rules of statutory interpretation compel an interpretation that the $50,000 Cap applies on a per-party or per-award basis. The statutory language does not contemplate an aggregate cap in consolidated cases, whereby multiple regulated entities each with their own individual interests are required to share $50,000 in attorneys' fees after their respective rule challenges are consolidated for administrative convenience.

i. Plain Language Analysis

"Legislative intent is the polestar that guides our analysis regarding the construction and application of the statute." Heine v. Lee Cty., 221 So. 3d 1254, 1257 (Fla. 2d DCA 2017) (quoting Diamond Aircraft Indus., Inc. v. Horowitch, 107

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

So. 3d 362, 367 (Fla. 2013)). The actual language of the statute is the best indication of the legislative intent. Heine, 221 So. 3d at 1257 (quoting Raymond James Fin. Servs., Inc. v. Phillips, 126 So. 3d 186, 190 (Fla. 2013)).

Section 120.595(2) reads, in its entirety, as follows:

> CHALLENGES TO PROPOSED AGENCY RULES PURSUANT TO SECTION 120.56(2).—If the appellate court or administrative law judge declares a proposed rule or portion of a proposed rule invalid pursuant to s. 120.56(2), a judgment or order shall be rendered against the agency for reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees, unless the agency demonstrates that its actions were substantially justified or special circumstances exist which would make the award unjust. An agency's actions are "substantially justified" if there was a reasonable basis in law and fact at the time the actions were taken by the agency. If the agency prevails in the proceedings, the appellate court or administrative law judge shall award reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees against a party if the appellate court or administrative law judge determines that a party participated in the proceedings for an improper purpose as defined by paragraph (1)(e). No award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000.

The $50,000 Cap applies to only an award of attorney's fees, singular. Thus, the Tampa Petitioners should be awarded their fees, subject to the $50,000 Cap and the other petitioners should be awarded their separate fees, subject to the $50,000 Cap. The analysis is as simple as that.

The only legal basis of awarding attorney's fees under an aggregate cap is that the cases below were consolidated. However, established Florida law regarding attorney's fees in consolidated cases precludes an interpretation, absent specific statutory authority, that would aggregate the $50,000 Cap on the basis that the rule challenge was consolidated:

> "Consolidation does not merge suits into a single cause or change the rights of the parties, or make those who are parties in one suit parties in another. Rather, each suit maintains its independent status with respect to the rights of the parties involved." The right to attorney's fees . . . is considered a substantive right because it gives a party "the legal right to recover substance (money)."
> Consequently, in a consolidated case, a party who has prevailed under a claim which entitles the party to attorney's fees cannot have that right defeated by a larger award recovered by the opposing party under a counterclaim which has no basis for collecting attorney's fees.

Shores Supply Co. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., Inc., 524 So. 2d 722, 725 (Fla. 3d DCA 1988) (quoting Wagner v. Nova Univ., Inc., 397 So. 2d 375, 377 (Fla. 4th DCA 1981) and L. Ross, Inc. v. R.W. Roberts Constr. Co., 466 So. 2d 1096, 1098 (Fla. 5th DCA 1985)); see also Landmark Am. Ins. Co. v. Pin-Pon Corp., 155 So. 3d 432, 442-43 (Fla. 4th DCA 2015) ("In a consolidated case, a party who has prevailed under a claim which entitles the party to attorney's fees cannot have that right defeated by a larger award recovered by the opposing party on a separate claim.").

Just as in Shores Supply and Landmark, the ALJ's order attempts to abrogate the substantive rights of each of the Petitioners to attorney's fees, by making them share one $50,000 attorney's fees award. Instead of an opposing party prevailing on another claim as the basis for decreasing the fee entitlement, the ALJ assumed the presence of other petitioners lessened the statutory right of the Tampa

Petitioners. Hence, the error is the same, consolidation is undermining an entitlement to an award of attorney's fees.

In addition to the above case law, the fact that a motion is required to obtain an award of attorney's fees supports construing the $50,000 Cap in cases with multiple parties to apply on an individual basis. Had one of the petitioners not moved for attorney's fees in this case, it would not have even been entitled to split the amount that was awarded, thus an individual request for an individual petitioner is awarded attorney's fees on an individual basis and each award is subject to the $50,000 Cap.

Another practice point that supports this analysis is Florida's treatment of an appellate attorney's fees award. Florida law treats an award of appellate attorneys' fees separate from an award of trial-level attorneys' fees. Spencer v. Barrow, 752 So. 2d 135, 138 (Fla. 2d DCA 2000) (finding trial attorneys' fees waived and remanding for determination of appellate attorneys' fees). Because what section 120.595(2) caps is an award, each award is separate, and the statutory cap applies on a per-award or per-party basis. There is no justification for capping awards on an aggregate or global basis without any statutory language to that effect.

In this case, the proposed rule challenges were consolidated solely for administrative convenience. If the cases had remained separate, there would be no legal basis to aggregate the parties for purposes of the $50,000 Cap. The consolidation does not—and cannot by law—affect the analysis of the statutory language.

ii. Canons of Construction

To the extent the Court finds the language ambiguous as it applies to multiple parties in a consolidated case, canons of statutory interpretation support that the $50,000 Cap should be applied on a per-party or per-award basis.

First, it is a common and well-established rule of statutory interpretation that the meaning of a word or phrase is informed by the meaning in the surrounding words. See, e.g., Nehme v. Smithkline Beecham Clinical Labs., Inc., 863 So. 2d 201, 205 (Fla. 2003) ("Under the doctrine of noscitur a sociis (a word is known by the company it keeps), one examines the other words used within a string of concepts to derive the legislature's overall intent."). All of the operative words in the section 120.595(2) are singular. The fee provision only contemplates a single fee award ("No award") for a single attorney ("attorney's fees") against a single agency ("against the agency") for a challenge to a single proposed rule ("a proposed rule"). Because each of the operative words is singular, the $50,000 Cap is logically interpreted as applying on a singular basis, i.e., it caps only a single award. More parties mean more awards—and each is capped.

Another common and well-established rule of statutory interpretation is that words cannot be added to the statute to arrive at an interpretation. See, e.g., Chaffee

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

v. Miami Transfer Co., Inc., 288 So. 2d 209, 215 (Fla. 1974) ("[We may not] add words to the statute not placed there by the Legislature."). To arrive at an aggregate cap, additional language would be required. For example, the following provisions could be interpreted as applying the $50,000 Cap across all petitioners in a consolidated case:

- No award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000 no matter the number of petitioners involved in challenging the proposed rule.
- ~~No~~ All of the awards of attorney~~'~~s' fees as provided by this subsection shall not exceed $50,000.

Obviously, these extra words are not present in section 120.595(2), and thus, it should be interpreted only as capping the amount of attorney's fees to an individual petitioner.

Third, another common and well-established rule of statutory interpretation is that a statute is read in pari materia with the other related statutory provisions. Heine, 221 So. 3d at 1257 ("[S]tatutes which relate to the same or closely related subjects should be read in pari materia.") (quoting State v. Fuchs, 769 So. 2d 1006, 1009 (Fla. 2000)). Administrative remedies regarding rulemaking in Florida's APA are focused on a single petitioner's substantial interests. Thus, a single petitioner's substantial interests can be an exception to rulemaking if "more specific resolution of the matter is impractical outside of an adjudication to determine the substantial interests of a party based on individual circumstances." § 120.54(1)(a)2.b., Fla. Stat. Also, a single petitioner may apply to participate in negotiated rulemaking "who believes that his or her interest is not adequately represented" in the negotiating committee. § 120.54(2)(d)2., Fla. Stat. Also, a single petitioner "regulated by an agency or having substantial interest in an agency rule may" petition to initiate rulemaking. § 120.54(7), Fla. Stat.

Now, imagine similar statutory caps concerning the above rights of a petitioner and ask whether the cap would be fairly construed to act on a global or aggregate basis. Thus, a cap for exceptions to rulemaking might read as follows, borrowing from the language of § 120.595(2): "No [exceptions to rulemaking] as provided by this subsection shall exceed [four]." It is illogical to think that the agency would then be able to disregard the substantial interests of a petitioner who had not filed a prior individual exception to rulemaking on the basis that four other petitioners had so applied. On the other hand, it would make good sense for the agency to not have to respond to five exceptions to rulemaking for the same petitioner. The same analysis holds true for asking to participate in negotiated rulemaking or petitioning to initiate rulemaking. Given the overall structure of the APA, the $50,000 Cap should not be interpreted to apply so that the substantial interests of an individual petitioner are negated or minimized by the fact that another petitioner has exercised its rights to protect its own substantial interests.

Also, along the lines of reading the $50,000 Cap in pari materia with similar provisions, the legislature has expressly adopted the principle of reciprocal attorney's fees in another part of the Florida Statutes. § 57.105(7), Fla. Stat. ("the court may also allow reasonable attorney's fees to the other party"). Applying this reciprocity principle to section 120.595(2) helps inform the proper interpretation of the provision. Section 120.595(2) actually creates two attorney's fees entitlements. The agency can receive a fee-award, which is likewise subject to the $50,000 Cap, and the cap there also applies on a per-party basis. § 120.595(2) ("shall award reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees against a party if . . . that . . . party participated in the proceedings for an improper purpose") (emphasis added).

A hypothetical borrowing from the facts of this case helps illustrate the point. Suppose the Division succeeded in the rule challenge and further succeeded in arguing that the Lower Cost Regulatory Alternative, that each petitioner signed, was submitted for an improper purpose. In that case, the Division would be able to obtain fees against each respective petitioner subject to nine separate statutory caps. Thus, it would be odd if the legislature abandoned the reciprocity principle for the $50,000 Cap in proposed rule challenges, allowing the agency to recover fees up to the $50,000 Cap from multiple parties, while allowing multiple challenging parties only to split a single $50,000 fee. Indeed, such a result would be particularly inexplicable in light of the legislature's obvious intent when enacting section 120.595 to "level the playing field" for private parties challenging an agency's rule. See Johnson v. Dept. of Corr., 191 So. 3d 965, 968 (Fla. 1st DCA 2016).

The ALJ dismissed this argument as having only superficial appeal and noted that the Division would be limited to recovering only its actual reasonable attorney's fees. (R. 263-64). This limiting principle applies with equal force to both sides. To the extent that the attorney's fees by any side were unnecessary or duplicative to work already done, i.e., a fee was not actually earned, then the reasonable fee award necessarily decreases. However, those case-specific criteria are not a reason to interpret the $50,000 Cap one way or the other, as explained in more detail in Part I.D below.

Finally, "the legislature is presumed to know the existing law when a statute is enacted, including judicial decisions on the subject concerning which it subsequently enacts a statute." B.K. v. S.D.C., 122 So. 3d 980, 982 (Fla. 2d DCA 2013) (quoting Seagrave v. State, 802 So. 2d 281, 290 (Fla. 2001)). B.K. interpreted section 742.045 as authorizing appellate attorney's fees in paternity without express statutory language because at the time of its enactment, "Florida Courts interpreted section 61.16 to allow for appellate attorney fees even though it contained no express language.") B.K., 122 So. 3d at 982. A similar analysis applies to the $50,000 Cap.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000407

In 2008, the legislature increased the cap from $15,000 to $50,000. Laws of Fla., Ch. 2008-104 §13, at 20-21. Up to that point, DOAH had uniformly interpreted the statutory cap to apply on a per-party/per-award basis in consolidated cases. See, e.g., Anderson Columbia Co., Inc. et al. v. Bd. of Trs., Internal Improvement Trust Fund, Case No. 00-0754 (Fla. DOAH July 18, 2000); Fla. Bankers Ass'n v. Dept. of Ins., Case No. 98-4118 (Fla. DOAH May 4, 1999) rev'd on other grounds Dept. of Ins. v. Fla. Bankers Ass'n, 764 So. 2d 660 (Fla. 1st DCA 2000); Envtl. Trust v. Dept. of Envtl. Protection, Case No. 96-4663 (Fla. DOAH Sept. 8, 1997) rev'd on other grounds Envtl. Trust v. Dept. of Envtl. Protection, 714 So. 2d 493 (Fla. 1st DCA 1998) (finding rule improperly invalidated).

Not only did the legislature not revisit the application of the cap in consolidated cases, the legislature increased the cap from $15,000 to $50,000. Thus, the legislature granted its implied approval of the construction of the cap as applying on a per-party/per-award basis and deemed more agency accountability and leveling of the playing field was necessary.

C. Legislative History Supports A Per-Award or Per-Party Basis Interpretation

Both the purpose of the reforms that brought about the statutory language at issue in this appeal and the contemporary legislative history support a per-award or per-party interpretation of the $50,000 Cap.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000408

The goals of the 1996 APA reform were clear: (1) increase the accountability of agencies to the public and (2) level the playing field for regulated entities. Lawrence E. Sellers, Jr., The Third Time's the Charm: Florida Finally Enacts Rulemaking Reform, 48 Fla. L. Rev. 93 106, 123-28 (1996); James P. Rhea & Patrick L. "Booter" Imhof, An Overview of the 1996 Administrative Procedure Act, 48 Fla. L. Rev. 1, 20 (1996) (noting a goal of "increasing agency accountability to the Legislature and the general public"). The Governor's state of the State address described the reform as follows:

> I'm also committed to the reform of the Administrative Procedure Act. Thanks to the APA Review Commission, we have a proposal that simplifies the APA, increases flexibility in the application of administrative rules, and increases agency accountability to the legislature and the general public. Let's pass this important legislation.

Fla. S. Jour. 6 (Reg. Sess. 1996).[1]

A per-party or per-award cap achieves these goals while an aggregate cap undermines them. For example, the impetus for upping the cap to $50,000 from $15,000 was a comment in a report studying agency accountability by JAPC regarding unadopted rule challenges. JAPC pointed out a flaw that allowed agencies to avoid attorney's fees in unadopted rule challenges if the agency initiated rulemaking at some point during the challenge:

> The current statute provides little incentive for agencies to adopt policy statements as rules until a rule challenge is filed, as there is no "penalty" for failing to adopt the rule earlier. The current statute also provides no incentive for an affected person to spend time and money challenging an unadopted rule, since the challenged policy can still be applied to the person if the agency subsequently initiates rulemaking. Similarly, attorney's fees and costs are awarded to the petitioner only if a final order is issued, not if the agency initiates rulemaking.

Fla. S. Transportation & Economic Development Appropriations Comm. CS/CS/SB 704 (Reg. Sess. 2008) Staff Analysis, at 7-8 (Apr. 15, 2008).[2] The legislature specifically noted JAPC's report, concurred with the flaw, and broadened the attorney's fee provision. This bit of history shows that the legislature links attorneys' fees to agency accountability. Considering attorneys' fees have been a part both the 2008 and 1996 reform efforts that sought to increase agency accountability, it is clear that a per-party/per-award cap best achieves the legislature's goal.

The facts of this case illustrate the importance of a per-party/per-award cap for leveling the playing field. There are nine petitioners participating, with two sets of active counsel. The consolidated cases have been pending for over two years, and roughly half of that time was spent on the Division's unsuccessful appeal. All of the parties were substantially affected by the untoward agency action, and all faced, individually, significant and unique economic consequences. If the Division has nothing more to risk with nine petitioners as a counterparty than if it were facing just one petitioner, even though the agency action impacts all nine (and perhaps more), the level playing field objective is rendered almost meaningless where the Division intentionally impacts more parties through an invalid exercise of delegated legislative authority.

This example speaks to the real issue of an aggregate cap: a collective action problem. If the Division writes a rule that has statewide effect on numerous parties, fewer people have incentive to challenge the rule under an aggregate cap, because their individual expense will not be offset by the attorney's fee provision in the statute as the legislature intended. Instead, they would have to either: (1) split the fee with any and all other petitioners; or (2) forego bringing a challenge in the hope that that other petitioners' rule challenges sufficiently protect their interests. The legislative intent was plainly not to disincentivize challenges to rules that have broad effects. The $50,000 Cap, when correctly interpreted, does not present such a dilemma or contravene legislative intent, because it applies on a per-party or per-award basis. The legislature intended through the attorney's fee provision to hold agencies accountable and level the playing field between the petitioners and the agency. A per-party/per-award cap achieves both of these objectives.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In addition to the purpose supporting the per-award/per-party interpretation of the $50,000 Cap, the staff analysis from its inception in 1996 and the increase from $15,000 to $50,000 in 2008 supports the per-award/per-party interpretation. The bill analysis from 1996 makes clear that the legislature understood the cap applied on a per-party/per-award basis:

> For challenges to proposed and existing agency rules, the Governor's Commission recommended that if a proposed rule, existing rule, or portion of a rule is declared invalid, the administrative law judge shall award reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the petitioner, . . . An award of attorney fees under these provisions shall not exceed $15,000.

Fla. H.R. Comm. on Streamlining Govtl. Regs., CS/SB's 2290 & 2288 (1996) Staff Analysis, at 34-35 (final June 14, 1996) (emphasis added) (R. 182-83). In other words, if there are multiple petitioners, there would be multiple awards, and each award would be individually capped.

Section 120.595 was broadened in 2008. First, each of the statutory caps were increased from $15,000 to the current limit of $50,000. Second, the agencies were exposed to fees for unadopted rule challenges up to the $50,000 cap, even if they commenced rulemaking while the unadopted rule challenge was pending. Ch. 2008-104 §13, at 20-21. Like the 1996 reform, the bill analysis during the 2008 legislative session again made clear that the cap applied on a per-party/per-award basis: "Current law provides for an award of attorney's fees to a party or agency depending upon who prevails in challenges to proposed or existing agency rules. Such judgments for attorney's fees are capped at $15,000." Fla. S. CS/CS/SB 704 Staff Analysis, supra, at 16 (emphasis added). Similarly, the analysis referred to the changes in the unadopted rule challenge as follows: "[T]he petitioner is entitled to attorney's fees to the point at which the stay was entered provided the agency knew or should have known that the statement was a rule. However, the fees may not exceed the $50,000 cap." Id. (emphasis added). Thus, the legislature clearly interpreted both prior law concerning the cap and the new changes to the cap as applying on a per-party/per-award basis.

D. The ALJ's Order Emphasizes Situational Analysis That Does Not Inform the Proper Interpretation of the Statute

The $50,000 Cap does not apply on an aggregate basis, but there is obviously a duty to find that any fee award is reasonable. The $50,000 Cap is only one limitation on the attorney's fees awards in a rule challenge. The fee must still be reasonable, which is subject to a well-settled body of case law. Fla. Patient's Comp. Fund v. Rowe, 472 So. 2d 1145, 1150 (Fla. 1985) ("In determining reasonable attorney fees, courts of this state should utilize the criteria set forth in Disciplinary Rule 2–106(b)."), holding modified by Standard Guar. Ins. Co. v. Quanstrom, 555 So. 2d 828 (Fla. 1990).

The two DOAH cases relied on by the ALJ and the Division that applied the $50,000 Cap on an aggregate basis (both after the 2008 amendment to section 120.595(2) discussed above) are in reality an implementation of the reasonableness limitation for an award of attorney's fees. See, e.g., Patel v. Bd. of Pharmacy, Case No. 08-2728 (Fla. DOAH July 30, 2009) (firm acknowledged signing up extra petitioners and filing separate cases solely to increase the fee award); G.B., et al. v. Agency for Persons with Disabilities, Case No. 14-4173 (Fla. DOAH Jan. 27, 2016) (only one active participant). The facts of this case are obviously distinguishable: nine separate petitioners, each with different factual scenarios, and two sets of active counsel.

The ALJ found that "G.B. provides the most direct and recent expression of the construction of section 120.595(2) by an appellate court." (R. 276). However, the appellate decision in G.B. was effectively a per curiam affirmance, limited to only one sentence that could possibly touch on the application of section 120.595(2): "We reject all of Appellants' arguments and affirm the administrative order, with the exception of the amount of costs awarded." G.B. v. Agency for Persons with Disabilities, 180 So. 3d 183, 184 (Fla. 1st DCA 2015). There is no analysis as to why the appellate court affirmed the ALJ, nor as to how section 120.595(2) applies in a consolidated case. An affirmance without any analysis does not result in the enshrining of the lower tribunal's analysis as binding case law. See, e.g., Dept. of Legal Affairs v. Dist. Ct. of Appeal, 5th Dist., 434 So. 2d 310, 312 (Fla. 1983) ("[Stare decisis for per curiam affirmance opinions] creates unwarranted confusion and disparity in the orderly presentation of issues. The rationale and basis for the decision without opinion is always subject to speculation."); Goldberg v. Graser, 365 So. 2d 770, 773 (Fla. 1st DCA 1978) ("A per curiam affirmance without opinion does not bind the appellate court in another case to accept the conclusion of law on which the decision of the lower court was based.") Acme Specialty Corp. v. Miami, 292 So. 2d 379, 380 (Fla. 3d DCA 1974) ("As noted before, this was a per curiam opinion with no reasons or authorities given and . . . such per curiam affirmance opinion does not stand for any general pronouncement of principles of law that might have been urged by the parties in their pleadings and briefs."). The ALJ should not have been constrained by the decision in G.B.

Even though the ALJ did not find multiplicity to be a factor in this case, specifically noting that there was "not even a hint that" the petitions were split as an artifice for generating more fees, the ALJ did express concern about "potentially limitless non-recurring economic impact" for an agency (R. 266). However, the protections of what constitutes a reasonable fee award protects against limitless liability. While an agency could increase its economic impact beyond the legislature's anticipated amount by merely enacting more invalid proposed rules, the legislature likely intended for agencies to minimize their fee exposure by following proper rulemaking procedures.

Even so, section 120.595(2) also contains its own built-in limitation. Section 120.595(2) protects an agency with the following language: if "the agency demonstrates that its actions were substantially justified or special circumstances exist which would make the award unjust." Clearly a case can be imagined where just the shear multiplicity of petitioners and attorneys would make an award unjust. The ALJ did not make such a finding here, nor would it be supported by the facts. However, just the presence of this language is yet another indication that the legislature did not intend to apply an aggregate cap, but rather shift the burden to the agency for cases where multiplicity may make a fee award unjust.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Finally, the ALJ's analysis assumes that all involved in challenging a proposed rule have common interests: to prevent the proposed rule from becoming final agency action. Again, even assuming that were true, that is a case-specific criteria that does not inform legislative intent. However, there is obviously a right of each petitioner to retain the counsel of its choice. In this case, the Petitioners assessed the risk of conflicting interests and divided into two separate camps: the Tampa Petitioners and the Lockwood Petitioners. Again, there is no evidence to even suggest that Petitioners chose separate counsel as a mere artifice to increase fees. On the contrary, they so chose to protect their interests. Moreover, the ALJ's assumption of a common purpose among all Petitioners ignores the reality that a rule challenge can be settled. Without filing a petition and participating in the process, a would-be petitioner does not get a seat at the settlement table, and its interests thus go unprotected.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000416

A hypothetical will help explain this point. One of the facts that came out in the rule challenge was that the Division stopped approving certain internal controls. Dania Entm't Ctr, 229 So. 3d at 1262 ("the Division began instructing its employees not to approve internal controls for designated player games"). If the only petitioner who challenged the proposed repeal of the designated player game rule did not have approved internal controls, then the Division could offer to approve its internal controls and grandfather it as an approved operator of designated player games[3] if that petitioner agreed to withdraw its rule challenge. Consequently, if Appellants had sat on the sideline assuming that every cardroom's interests were the same, then they would have lost the ability to challenge the proposed rule.[4] On the other hand, with all petitioners participating, the Division could have easily settled the case by coming up with proposed language that satisfied all of the individual interests. See, e.g., §120.54(2)(d), Fla. Stat. (outlining procedures for negotiated rulemaking and noting that "[t]he agency should consider the use of negotiated rulemaking when complex rules are being drafted or strong opposition to the rules is anticipated.")

[3] This hypothetical settlement would be consistent with the argument pursued by the Division in the rule challenge litigation that its repeal of the designated player game rules was not actually a change in policy.

[4] Of course, existing rules can also be challenged, but the burden of proof regarding the issue of invalid exercise of delegated legislative authority shifts from the agency to the petitioner. Compare §120.56(2)(a), Fla. Stat., with §120.56(3)(a), Fla. Stat. In addition, the proposed rule challenged here was the deletion of certain language, which could not be reasserted after a successful challenge to an existing rule.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(emphasis added). Instead, the Division litigated the case to the end through appeal. The Division should then offset the attorneys' fees of all those affected who sought to protect their substantial interests as provided in section 120.595(2).

It is clear then that an aggregate cap lessens settlement pressure on the Division. If the Division, as was apparent in this case, has a bold face policy change, see, e.g., Dania Entm't Ctr., 229 So. 3d at 1264 ("the Division's actions made clear that the net effect of the repeal was to implement a new policy"), that it is trying to implement while disregarding the appropriate legislative safeguards, id. at 1265 ("the Division failed to follow rulemaking procedures here"), that affects numerous regulated entities across the state, each affected entity ought to be able to challenge and set off its fees with the fee provision as provided in section 120.595(2). If the Division has to only worry about one $50,000 fee award to be shared amongst any and all entities it affects with its new policy, then there is no extra settlement incentive as the number of substantially affected petitioners increases. In other words, an aggregate cap incentives agencies to seek out indefensible policy positions with little repercussions to them and little compensation to those affected. It is particularly troublesome in highly regulated industries like those involved in this case. This is not the level playing field the legislature intended to create with the mandatory attorney's fees provision of section 120.595(2).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000418

In addition to creating a perverse incentive to the agency to pursue indefensible policy choices, an interpretation of an aggregate cap in consolidated cases would incentive petitioners to oppose consolidation of cases. The order of consolidation found that consolidation "would not unduly prejudice the rights of a party." (R. 36). However, if consolidation requires that the petitioners would have to divide a $50,000 attorney's fees award eight to nine (or more) ways, that would unduly prejudice the parties being consolidated. Effectively eliminating any recovery of attorney's fees would thereby incentivize parties to oppose consolidation. See, e.g., Anderson Columbia Co., Case No. 00-0754 (Final Order ¶ 31 ("If the [agency]'s theory were accepted, multiple parties would always oppose consolidation and seek to have their claims tried separately")). If cases were not consolidated only more fees would be incurred as efficiencies would be lost. Again, not the level playing field that the mandatory fee provision is supposed to engender.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000419

CONCLUSION

For the above stated reasons, this Court should reverse the ALJ's determination that the statutory cap language in section 120.595(2) applies on an aggregate basis in consolidated cases and remand for a finding of the appropriate amount of attorney's fees, with instructions that no award to any particular petitioner exceed $50,000 as required by the applicable statute.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ARGUMENT

I. Section 120.595(2) Is Properly Interpreted as Allowing Separate Awards of Attorney's Fees to Each Party, with Each Award Subject to the $50,000 Cap.

A. The Division Misapplies the Facts.

The Division's Answer Brief conflates the separate petitioners in this case and assumes that the petitioners were jointly represented with complete commonality of interests. By doing so, the Division de-emphasizes the fact that there were entirely separate sets of counsel, one set for the Appellants in this case, Tampa Petitioners,[1] and another set of counsel for the appellants in Case No. 2D18-1967, the Lockwood Petitioners.

First, as briefed (IB. at 21), each petitioner must file their own rule challenge to a proposed rule in order to participate in the process, and a petitioner whose substantial interests are affected is not protected by a rule challenge by another petitioner because that rule challenge can be dismissed or settled leaving the proposed rule intact. The legislature did not intend to lessen the protection afforded by the attorney's fee provision if more than one petitioner challenges a proposed rule by making all affected petitioners share in one $50,000 attorney's fee award. Rather, each award to each successful petitioner is subject to the cap individually.

[1] This Reply Brief will use the defined terms and citing conventions of the Initial Brief. The Initial Brief and Answer Brief will be cited to as "IB. at XX" and "AB. at XX" where "XX" denotes the page number.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Second, only one set of petitioners in this case truly had commonality of interests, and that is the Tampa Petitioners due to their common ownership and joint rule challenge petition. The other petitioners all had their separate reasons and separate circumstances for challenging the proposed rule and chose to challenge to protect their rights. The Division and the ALJ's logic of looking at perceived commonality of interests of petitioners in a consolidated case and then using that to construe the legislative intent of the $50,000 Cap is not a proper method of statutory interpretation. The statute's meaning is not affected by the facts of any one case. As noted in the Initial Brief (at 18-22), case-specific criterion does not inform the legislative intent of section 120.595(2) or how to properly interpret section 120.595(2).

Moreover, the Division and the ALJ's logic of looking to commonality of interests is a self-verifying test: some commonality of interests in a consolidated case is expected. The parties are supposed to work together to streamline the litigation. The fact that the Tampa Petitioners and the Lockwood Petitioners filed similar petitions, combined exhibits at the final hearing, and agreed with the Division in ways to streamline the final hearing in order to conserve judicial resources, has no bearing on the proper application of the $50,000 Cap. Again, construing the $50,000 Cap on an aggregate basis would encourage inefficient litigation practices with parties opposing consolidation and then refusing to work together once consolidated in order to prevent waiver of their entitlement of the fees at the end of the case. (IB. at 24).

Instead, cooperation is merely a reason to limit any award of attorney's fees under well-established case law defining what attorney's fee is reasonable under the circumstances. See, e.g., Fla. Patient's Comp. Fund v. Rowe, 472 So. 2d 1145, 1150 (Fla. 1985) (setting forth standards to acheive "objectivity and uniformity in court-determined reasonable attorney fees"). Section 120.595(2) clearly incorporates the case law for determining what is a reasonable attorney's fee because it uses the term "reasonable" two separate times in creating the attorney's fee entitlement: "a judgment or order shall be rendered against the agency for reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees . . . the appellate court or administrative law judge shall award reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees . . . ." § 120.595(2), Fla. Stat. (emphasis added).

Thus, if the court found that work done was "excessive or unnecessary," then it "may result in a reduction in the number of hours." Fla. Patient's Comp. Fund, 472 So. 2d at 1150. That well-established rule resolves any concerns by the Division and the ALJ that the attorneys for the separate petitioners in this case cooperated in the presentation of their case.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Moreover, cooperation in this particular case is not a reason to fashion a catch-all rule that mandates application of an aggregate cap in all consolidated cases. Indeed, the Division seems to agree, concluding at several points that a single $50,000 award is reasonable for this case (AB. at 16, 17) because the petitioners below "coordinated their efforts," "relied on the same set of facts and law," and "raised almost identical issues in their briefs." (AB. at 15). All of this coordination and cooperation could be true, but that does not substitute for an interpretation of the $50,000 Cap. Nor does a loose analysis of coordination among the parties substitute for a proper analysis of reasonableness of the attorney's fees accrued on which to base an award by looking at hours and tasks actually billed.

Finally, cooperation is not even reliable evidence of commonality of interests, to the extent the Court views commonality of interests as a relevant factor in deciding how to apply the $50,000 Cap. The gaming industry is well-known for competing interests. See, e.g., Gulfstream Park Racing Ass'n, Inc. v. Tampa Bay Downs, Inc., 948 So. 2d 599, 601 (Fla. 2006) ("This is a dispute between competing pari-mutuel venues. Florida has an extensive pari-mutuel industry, consisting of a variety of venues, including thoroughbred racetracks, harness racetracks, jai alai frontons, and greyhound tracks."). The pari-mutuels represented below offered different types and numbers of designated player games (some even had none), had different pari-mutuel activities (thoroughbred horse racing, dog racing, etc.), and operated in different parts of the State. Each had to participate in order to protect their individual interests.

B. The Division's Inapposite Case Law.

The Division relies on several cases in advocating a strict construction of attorney's fees statutes. However, these cases lend little support for its position that section 120.595(2) does not permit multiple awards in a consolidated case.

In Department of Insurance v. Florida Bankers Association, the First District Court of Appeal reversed the ALJ's award of attorney's fees because the ALJ did not make sufficient factual findings to support the award. In so doing, the First District also affirmed the ALJ's order denying a non-attorney representative's request for attorney fees. Dept. of Ins. v. Fla. Bankers Ass'n, 764 So. 2d 660, 663 (Fla. 1st DCA 2000). A non-attorney not being entitled to an award of attorney's fees is not surprising, but it also does not help in the construction of section 120.595(2). The bulk of the case stands for an implicit recognition of Appellants' contention that the statutory cap only applies on a per-party/per-award basis. There were three parties in the Florida Bankers case, and the other two were awarded fees based on an individual cap. See id. at 661. The First District did not reject this fee award because the cap applied on an aggregate basis, which would have been the cleanest disposition and one that would not have required additional fact finding on remand.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000430

The Division's second case is inapposite, standing only for the well-established rule that travel expenses are not normally recoverable as part of a reasonable attorney's fee. Dept. of Health v. Discovery Experimental & Dev., Inc., 767 So. 2d 1244 (Fla. 1st DCA 2000). The Division's third case is also inapposite, where the court reversed an award of attorney's fees that included circuit court litigation and lobbying efforts in an award for a successful challenge to an agency's non-rule policy. Agency for Health Care Admin. v. HHCI Ltd. P'ship, 865 So. 2d 593, 596 (Fla. 1st DCA 2004). In sum, the Division has failed to move the needle with its arguments of strict construction of attorney's fees statutes.

C. The Division's Overreliance on One Argument.

The Division repeatedly stakes out its position that the statute only allows "a single, collective award," repeating that line in its brief 45 times. The Division argues "the plain language of the statute" in response to every argument made in the Initial Brief, including to arguments offered if the Court found the relevant language ambiguous. (AB. at 5, 11). Of course, if the Court finds the language ambiguous, it must rule based on what it perceives to be the legislative intent. While Appellants obviously construe the plain language as limiting only an award of attorney's fees and not creating an aggregate cap for consolidated cases, Appellants will at least allow that there may be some ambiguity in the statute and hence the other arguments made construing the purpose, legislative history, and policy implications of the statute. For instance, what an "award" is under section 120.595(2) may be ambiguous. Does it mean award for a case, award for a party, award against the agency? Here, the best interpretation is one that achieves the purpose of leveling the playing field between an agency with rulemaking power and the regulated entities subject to the agency's rules. Likewise, an interpretation that does not create perverse incentives of the agency where there is no additional consequence for wide-ranging rules and of the regulated persons to oppose consolidation is obviously preferred over one that does create perverse incentives. Thus, the proper interpretation is to apply the cap on an individual award basis.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Indeed, the Division's brief does not address the consolidation case law cited in the Initial Brief that consolidation is for administrative convenience only and does not affect the substantive rights of the parties, including the right to attorney's fees. (IB. at 6-7 citing Shores Supply Co. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., Inc., 524 So. 2d 722, 725 (Fla. 3d DCA 1988) (quoting Wagner v. Nova Univ., Inc., 397 So. 2d 375, 377 (Fla. 4th DCA 1981) and L. Ross, Inc. v. R.W. Roberts Constr. Co., 466 So. 2d 1096, 1098 (Fla. 5th DCA 1985)); see also Landmark Am. Ins. Co. v. Pin-Pon Corp., 155 So. 3d 432, 442-43 (Fla. 4th DCA 2015) ("In a consolidated case, a party who has prevailed under a claim which entitles the party to attorney's fees cannot have that right defeated by a larger award recovered by the opposing party on a separate claim.")).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Instead of addressing this point, the Division merely argues repeatedly that the terms of section 120.595(2) "mandate a single, collective award of attorney's fees." (AB. at 10). However, the application of the $50,000 Cap is only an issue because the cases below were consolidated with other petitioners' cases. The case law cited above establishes that the Appellants' substantive right to attorney's fees should not be affected by the consolidation.

Besides repeating a "single, collective award," the Division really only makes one other argument, that the phrase "each prevailing party" "is integral to the Appellants'" arguments that the $50,000 Cap applies on a per award or per party basis. (AB. at 10). However, the Division's argument is a non-sequitur. In fact, that the Division is willing to allow that the additional language leads to Appellants' favored interpretation is in effect a concession that the disputed language "No award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000" is consistent with the Division's proposed language "each prevailing party is entitled to an award of its reasonable attorney's fees up to $50,000." Because the Division believes the two sentences can reside in harmony in the statute without any exception to the words actually present, the Division's proposal seems to agree with the Appellant's interpretation of the actual statutory language is fully consistent with a per-party/per-award cap.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000433

Indeed, the reasoned way to interpret the statutory language is in the context of the entire APA, which is designed to protect a single petitioner's substantial interests. Once the petitioner initiates a challenge to proposed rulemaking, the petitioner has a substantive right to attorney's fees up to the statutory cap if the challenge proves successful. The normal rules for ascertaining what is a reasonable attorney's fee will resolve any potential for duplicative or unnecessary work because multiple rule challenge petitions were consolidated.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000434

CONCLUSION

As argued in the Initial Brief reinforced above, this Court should reverse the ALJ's determination that the statutory cap language in section 120.595(2) applies on an aggregate basis in consolidated cases and remand for a finding of the appropriate amount of attorney's fees, with instructions that no award to any particular petitioner exceed $50,000 as required by the applicable statute.

STATEMENT OF THE ISSUE

The issue to be determined by this Partial Final Order is whether the $50,000 cap on attorneys' fees established in section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes (2017), is to be applied so as to limit the amount of fees to be awarded against an agency in a single rule challenge proceeding to $50,000, or whether an award of attorneys' fees of up to $50,000 may be made to each prevailing party in a rule challenge proceeding with multiple

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Petitioners. Upon entry of this Order, a date will be established to reconvene the hearing for the purpose of taking evidence to establish the amount of reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees to be awarded, after which a final, appealable Order will be entered.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This case is before the undersigned upon the entry of two Orders by the First District Court of Appeal (First DCA) granting motions for attorney's fees and costs and remanding the matter to DOAH to assess the amount pursuant to section 120.595(2).

On September 26, 2016, after entry of a Final Order determining several proposed rules of the Department of Business and Professional Regulation, Division of Pari-mutuel Wagering (DBPR or Respondent), relating to "designated player" card games, Florida Administrative Code Rules 61D-11.001(17) and 61D-11.002(5), to have been invalid exercises of delegated legislative authority, The Lockwood Law Firm filed separate Motions for Attorney's Fees and Costs pursuant to section 120.595(2) with DOAH on behalf its clients in DOAH Case Nos. 15-7010RP (Petitioner Dania Entertainment Center, LLC); 15-7011RP (Petitioner Daytona Beach Kennel Club, Inc.); 15-7012RP (Petitioner Jacksonville Kennel Club, Inc.); 15-7013RP (Petitioner Melbourne Greyhound Park, LLC);

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

15-7014RP (Petitioner Bonita-Fort Myers Corporation); 15-7015RP (Petitioner Investment Corporation of Palm Beach); and 15-7016RP (Petitioner West Flagler Associates, Ltd.)(the "Lockwood Petitioners"). On the same day, the Foley & Lardner law firm filed a Motion for Attorney's Fees and Costs on behalf of its clients in DOAH Case No. 15-7022RP (Petitioners Tampa Bay Downs, Inc. and TBDG Acquisition, LLC, d/b/a TGT Poker and Racetrack)(the "Foley & Lardner Petitioners"). The Lockwood Petitioners and the Foley & Lardner Petitioners shall be collectively referred to as "Petitioners."

On October 7, 2016, the Motions for Attorney's Fees and Costs, by then reassigned as DOAH Case Nos. 16-5682F, 16-5683F, 16-5684F, 16-5685F, 16-5686F, 16-5687F, 16-5688F, and 16-5689F, were consolidated and placed in abeyance pending the resolution of DBPR's appeal of the Final Order.

On November 8, 2017, the court entered its written opinion in Department of Business and Professional Regulation, Division of Pari-mutuel Wagering v. Dania Entertainment Center, LLC, et al., 229 So. 2d 1259 (Fla. 1st DCA 2017), affirming the Final Order. The court also entered two separate Orders granting the motions for attorney's fees and costs filed by the Lockwood Petitioners and the Foley & Lardner Petitioners, and remanded the matters to DOAH to assess the amount.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The case proceeded under the consolidated style. On November 30, 2017, the parties filed a Joint Status Report by which they requested that the final hearing be bifurcated into two phases, with the first phase being a hearing to determine how the $50,000 cap on attorneys' fees established by section 120.595(2) would be applied in the consolidated multi-party litigation, and the second phase being an evidentiary hearing to determine the amount of reasonable costs and attorneys' fees to be awarded. The hearing on the first phase was scheduled for January 16, 2018.

On January 11, 2018, pursuant to the Notice of Hearing, each of the parties filed a memorandum setting forth the facts and law supporting their respective positions, i.e., that each individual Petitioner is entitled to a separate award of up to $50,000, as advanced by the Petitioners, or that $50,000 is the maximum amount that can be awarded against DBPR, as advanced by Respondent.

The parties generally relied upon or distinguished the same five DOAH Final Orders entered between 1997 and 2014. The legislative bill analysis of 1996 Senate Bills 2288 and 2290, which led to the creation of section 120.595(2) with a $15,000 cap, and bill analysis of 2008 Senate Bill 704, which raised the cap to $50,000, were officially recognized, as was, by consent of the parties, the docket in DOAH Case Nos. 15-7010RP, et seq.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000444

The bifurcated hearing was convened on January 16, 2018, as scheduled, with argument taken to supplement the memoranda previously filed. At the conclusion of the argument, the undersigned indicated that the decision was likely to be controlled by Administrative Law Judge R. Bruce McKibben's Final Order in G.B. v. Agency for Persons with Disabilities, Case No. 14-4173FC (DOAH Mar. 24, 2015), aff'd, 180 So. 3d 183 (Fla. 1st DCA 2015). As a result, the parties were allowed to file supplemental memoranda to specifically address the G.B. case.

The parties' memoranda and supplements thereto have been considered in the preparation of this Partial Final Order.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. The Findings of Fact set forth in the Final Order entered in DOAH Case Nos. 15-7010 through 15-7016 and 15-7022 are hereby adopted in this Final Order.

2. Each Petitioner currently holds a permit and license under chapter 550, Florida Statutes, to conduct pari-mutuel wagering and a license under section 849.086, Florida Statutes, to conduct cardroom operations. Petitioners offer designated player games at their respective cardrooms.

3. On December 11, 2015, the Lockwood Petitioners each filed a Petition Challenging the Validity of Proposed Rules 61D-11.001, 61D-11.002, and 61D-11.005(9), Florida Administrative Code. But for paragraphs identifying the specific Petitioners, generally paragraphs 2 and 26 of each Petition, the Petitions and their exhibits were, with few exceptions, identical.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

4. On December 11, 2015, the Foley & Lardner Petitioners jointly filed their Petition Challenging the Validity of Proposed Rules 61D-11.001, 61D-11.002, and 61D-11.005(9), Florida Administrative Code. Though the Petition was not identical to those filed by the Lockwood Petitioners, there were pervasive similarities and frequently identical provisions, including common exhibits and a substantively similar prayer for relief, that suggest a high degree of coordination among the Petitioners.

5. There was no dispute as to the standing of any party.

6. The final hearing was held on a stipulated record, with the hearing itself consisting of oral argument on the legal issues framed by the Joint Prehearing Stipulation.

7. The exhibits constituting the record were filed as Petitioners' exhibits, with no differentiation between the Lockwood Petitioners and the Foley & Lardner Petitioners.

8. The only testimony of any representative of a Petitioner was the deposition of the president of the Jacksonville Kennel Club that was offered in evidence by Respondent.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000446

9. Among the facts stipulated was that "Surveillance videos gathered by the Division during the investigations in late 2015 and early 2016 showing designated player games [at various of Petitioners' facilities] are representative of the style of play for designated player games throughout Florida cardrooms."

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

10. Section 120.595(2) provides:

> (2) CHALLENGES TO PROPOSED AGENCY RULES PURSUANT TO SECTION 120.56(2).—If the appellate court or administrative law judge declares a proposed rule or portion of a proposed rule invalid pursuant to s. 120.56(2), a judgment or order shall be rendered against the agency for reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees, unless the agency demonstrates that its actions were substantially justified or special circumstances exist which would make the award unjust. An agency's actions are "substantially justified" if there was a reasonable basis in law and fact at the time the actions were taken by the agency. If the agency prevails in the proceedings, the appellate court or administrative law judge shall award reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees against a party if the appellate court or administrative law judge determines that a party participated in the proceedings for an improper purpose as defined by paragraph (1)(e). No award of attorney's fees as provided by this subsection shall exceed $50,000.

Plain Meaning

11. Each party initially relies on the "plain meaning" of the statute to support their respective positions. The Lockwood

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Petitioners assert that the first sentence of section 120.595(2) provides that a "judgment or order" is to be rendered against the agency, and does not place a cap on such judgment. The final sentence provides that no "award" of attorney's fees shall exceed $50,000. The Lockwood Petitioners then argue that "construing these sentences together requires that each prevailing party is entitled to an award of its reasonable attorney's fees, up to $50,000, and an order is entered against the agency for the total amount of attorney's fees that are awarded to the prevailing parties." Memorandum of Law Regarding Section 120.595(2)'s Cap on Attorney's Fees, at 6.

12. Similarly, the Foley & Lardner Petitioners argue that the "plain meaning" of "[e]ach of the operative words are singular, meaning the cap applies on a singular basis, i.e., only on a per-party or per-award basis." Brief on the Application of the Attorney's Fees Statutory Cap, at 4. The Foley & Lardner Petitioners also argue that the "improper purpose" provision by which the agency may recover attorney's fees applies to any "party" that has participated in a proceeding for an improper purpose. They argue that under the "reciprocity principle," it would be illogical to allow the agency to recover fees up to $50,000 from multiple parties, while allowing multiple parties only to split a single $50,000 fee. Id. at 7. That argument, though facially appealing, fails to recognize that the multiple "improper purpose" parties would still collectively be responsible for the reasonable and actual fees of a single party, i.e. the agency, while the agency could, under that argument, be responsible for the reasonable and actual fees of potentially countless Petitioners.

13. Respondent also asserts that the "plain meaning" of section 120.595(2) controls, arguing that:

> The underlined language above [i.e. "No award of attorney's fees as provided by this sub-section shall exceed $50,000"] is abundantly clear; any proposed rule challenge proceeding is limited to an aggregate award of $50,000 of attorney's fees. Alternatively put, the judgment or order shall be rendered against the agency for reasonable attorney's fees, but that (singular) order shall not exceed $50,000. Any other result would necessitate inclusion of additional language into the statute.

Memorandum of Law in Support of an Aggregate Method for Awarding Attorney's Fees in Accordance with Section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes, at 8.

14. Despite the assertions of the parties, the undersigned concludes that section 120.595(2) is not so clear as to allow for a definitive determination on its face as to whether the statute allows for multiple awards against an agency up to $50,000 when multiple parties have challenged the same proposed rule.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Bill Analysis

15. The parties have each cited to the Final Bill Analysis & Economic Impact Statement for CS/SB 2290 and 2288 (1996 Bill Analysis), as providing evidence of the intent of the Legislature when it created the fee cap provision. CS/SB 2290 and 2288 is the 1996 legislation that created section 120.595, and was codified as chapter 96-159, Laws of Florida. The 1996 Bill Analysis may be found at http://www.japc.state.fl.us/Documents/Publications/SummariesAnalyses/1996/CSSB2290_2288SGR.pdf.

16. As related to this proceeding, the 1996 Bill Analysis, in the section entitled Attorney Fees, provides that:

> For challenges to proposed and existing agency rules, the Governor's Commission recommended that if a proposed rule, existing rule, or portion of a rule is declared invalid, the administrative law judge shall award reasonable costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the petitioner, unless the agency demonstrates that its actions were substantially justified or that special circumstances exist that would make the award unjust. "Substantially justified" is defined the same as in section 57.111, Florida Statutes, as an action that has "a reasonable basis in law and fact at the time the actions were taken by the agency." An agency may be awarded attorney fees and costs if a party has participated in the proceeding for an improper purpose. An "improper purpose" is defined as "participation in a proceeding primarily to harass or to cause unnecessary delay or for frivolous purpose or to needlessly increase the cost of licensing or > securing the approval of an activity." An award of attorney fees under these provisions shall not exceed $15,000. These provisions are included in subsections (2) and (3) of section 120.595, Florida Statutes.

1996 Bill Analysis, at 32.

17. There is little in the Attorney Fees section of the 1996 Bill Analysis that sheds further light on the issue of whether the statutory cap on fees is to be applied per case or per party.

18. More persuasive information is provided in the Fiscal Analysis & Economic Impact Statement of the 1996 Bill Analysis, section III.A.1., which provides, in pertinent part, that:

> 1. Non-recurring Effects:
> If attorney fees and costs are awarded under this bill, it will add an indeterminate cost to the rulemaking process. The new attorney fee provisions are capped at $15,000.

1996 Bill Analysis, at 37.

19. It is the conclusion of the undersigned that, if the $15,000 cap was to be applied to individual parties in multi-party litigation, thus creating a potentially limitless non-recurring economic impact of the bill on state agencies, there would have been some mention of that by the committee staff.

20. Further insight as to the scope of the statutory cap may be gleaned from the Bill Analysis and Fiscal Impact Statement for CS/CS/SB 704 (2008 Bill Analysis). CS/CS/SB 704 is the 2008 legislation that amended section 120.595 to raise the statutory cap to $50,000, and which was codified as chapter 2008-104, Laws of Florida. The 2008 Bill Analysis may be found at http://www.japc.state.fl.us/Documents/Publications/SummariesAnalyses/2008/SenateStaffAnalysis-CSCSSB704-TA.pdf.

21. In section 13 of the 2008 Bill Analysis, the committee staff, in describing the proposed change, stated that:

> This bill amends s. 120.595, F.S., to clarify that all references to "the court" are references to the appellate court. It raises the cap on attorney's fees that may be awarded against a party in a proceeding in s. 120.595(2) and (3), F.S. to $50,000. (emphasis added).

2008 Bill Analysis, pg. 16.

22. Not only does the 2008 Bill Analysis suggest that the Legislature understood that an award against a party was to be limited to the capped amount but, as indicated previously, if the attorney's fee cap could create an open-ended economic impact on state agencies, it is unlikely that the committee staff would have neglected to perform an analysis of that possibility.

Cases

23. As indicated previously, the parties each relied upon or distinguished the same five Final Orders entered by DOAH. Petitioners rely on The Environmental Trust v. Department of Environmental Protection, Case Nos. 96-4663RP, et al. (Fla. DOAH

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Sept. 8, 1997)(six consolidated cases); Florida Bankers Association v. Department of Insurance, Case Nos. 98-4118F, et al. (Fla. DOAH Dec. 6, 2000)(three consolidated cases); and Anderson Columbia Company, Inc. v. Board of Trustees of the Internal Improvement Trust Fund, Case Nos. 00-0754F, et al., (Fla. DOAH July 18, 2000)(five consolidated cases); whereas Respondent relies on Vipul Patel v. Board of Pharmacy, Case Nos. 08-2728RX, et al. (Fla. DOAH July 30, 2009)(14 consolidated cases); and G.B. v. Agency for Persons with Disabilities, Case No. 14-4173FC (Fla. DOAH Mar. 24, 2015)(four consolidated cases).

Cases Relied Upon by Petitioners

24. Each of the cases relied upon by Petitioners conclude (some more explicitly than others) that attorney's fees up to the statutory cap established in section 120.595(2) (in those cases being $15,000) may be awarded to each party in multi-party litigation.

The Environmental Trust

25. In The Environmental Trust, Judge P. Michael Ruff held that:

> Each of the parties was, due to the Department's attempt to promulgate a rule that was clearly and facially illegal, required to retain counsel in order to effectively represent and protect its interests against the Department's illegal action. As the attorney's fees provisions > of Chapter 120, Florida Statutes, are intended to provide some measure of financial relief in situations in which agencies have acted outside of their authority, the $15,000.00 attorney's fee cap must apply to each party requiring representation.

The Environmental Trust, FO ¶ 33.

26. Based on his construction of the language of section 120.595(2), his review of the 1996 Bill Analysis, and his understanding of the underlying policy of the fee statute to "level the playing field and allow for effective participation by the private sector," Judge Ruff concluded that the fee cap applied individually to each rule challenge proceeding, with the Petitioners to the consolidated proceedings being "each entitled to an award of their attorneys' fees and costs up to the statutory $15,000 limit." The Environmental Trust, FO ¶ 43.

27. The Final Order in The Environmental Trust was appealed to the First DCA, along with three other related cases. Judge Ruff's Final Order was reversed. The opinion also reversed the Order awarding attorney's fees for reasons unrelated to the application of the statutory cap to multi-party litigation, holding that "[w]e need not determine whether the administrative law judge properly applied the 1996 version of the Administrative Procedure Act, because there is no substantive basis for an award of attorneys' fees." The Envtl. Trust v. Dep't of Envtl. Prot., 714 So. 2d at 501.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Florida Bankers Association

28. Petitioners also rely on the Final Order in Florida Bankers Association, in which Judge William F. Quattlebaum awarded attorney's fees and costs after a successful challenge to certain rules promulgated by the Department of Insurance.[1/]

29. In Florida Bankers Association, the fees to the two parties, $15,000 to Florida Bankers Association and $10,290 to Community Bankers Association, were awarded by stipulation of the parties. Thus, the applicability of the statutory cap in multi-party litigation was neither raised by the parties, nor presented to Judge Quattlebaum for disposition.

30. The Florida Bankers Association Final Order on Remand was again appealed to the First DCA, where the court reduced certain expert witness costs. Dep't of Ins. v. Fla. Bankers Ass'n, 799 So. 2d 353 (Fla. 1st DCA 2001). Again, since the fees had been stipulated by the parties, there would have been no mechanism for the section 120.595(2) fee cap issue to have been brought before the court.

Anderson Columbia

31. Finally, Petitioners rely on Judge Donald R. Alexander's Final Order in Anderson Columbia, in which he concluded that:

> [T]he Board does not dispute the fact that each Petitioner . . . incurred reasonable fees in excess of $15,000.00 in challenging > the rule. Moreover, each of these parties came to the case with a different perspective, that is, one had a disclaimer with a reversionary interest, one did not, one was a tenant, and one was a landlord. The parties did not participate in a shared venture, and except for the fact that the cases were consolidated for administrative efficiency, their claims would have been tried separately. Contrary to the Board's suggestion, it would be unfair to now penalize the four parties by forcing them to share a fee simply because they happened to choose the same attorney for representation and their claims were joined for purposes of hearing. If the Board's theory were accepted, multiple parties would always oppose consolidation and seek to have their claims tried separately, or they would be forced to retain separate counsel in order to be made whole under the statute. Such a result is illogical, unfair, and contrary to the very purpose of the statute. Obviously, the process is better served by fewer attorneys and consolidation of multiple cases. Therefore, each of the four Petitioners is entitled to recover $15,000.00 in fees.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Anderson Columbia, FO ¶ 31.

32. As a result, Judge Alexander awarded fees in the amount of $15,000 to each of the Petitioners in four of the cases, and $9,117 to the fifth Petitioner.

33. Judge Alexander's Final Order was affirmed, per curiam, by the First DCA. Bd. of Trs. of the Int. Imp. Trust Fund of Fla. v. Support Terminals Operating P'ship, L.P., 796 So. 2d 1176 (Fla. 1st DCA 2001). Though PCAs have limited precedential value (Department of Legal Affairs v. District Court of Appeal, 434 So. 2d 310 (Fla. 1983)), Anderson Columbia provides the firmest support for Petitioners' position regarding the award of attorney's fees in multi-party rule challenges.

Cases Relied Upon by Respondent

34. Predictably, Respondent relied on the two DOAH Final Orders that concluded the statutory cap established in section 120.595(2) is to be applied as a single award against an agency, with that amount to be divided amongst parties in multi-party litigation.

Vipul Patel

35. In Vipul Patel, Judge Susan B. Harrell determined that the cap would be applied as an aggregate to each of the 14 Petitioners. There were a number of factors -- some of which are applicable to the current Petitioners, and some of which are not -- that appear to have influenced her decision.

36. Factors that were similar to the situation in this case were that "Petitioners had a common goal . . . . The wording of each of the petitions was essentially the same except for the names of the individual Petitioners. Because the issues were the same for all the rule challenges, the rule challenges were consolidated for final hearing." Vipul Patel, FO ¶ 5. In Vipul Patel, the common goal was for each Petitioner to be allowed to sit for the pharmacist professional licensure examination. In this case, the common goal was for each

Petitioner to be allowed to conduct player-banked designated player card games.

37. Factors that shared no similarity between Vipul Patel and the instant case were that "the reason for filing 14 separate petitions was to increase the amount of attorney's fees which could be awarded. The cases were taken on a contingency fee basis, principally because Petitioners could not afford to pay on an hourly basis." It is clear from Judge Harrell's Order that the filing of separate petitions in Vipul Patel was an artifice for generating enough fees to make the case worth the Vipul Patel attorney's time. There is not even a hint that any such circumstance exists here.

38. Judge Harrell noted, citing a factor applied by Judge Alexander in Anderson Columbia, that "the Petitioners are not bringing different perspectives to the cases."

39. Petitioners in this case argue that each Petitioner had a different set of circumstances that they brought to the case. Even though all of the Petitioners sought invalidation of the same proposed rule, and all shared the goal of offering designated player games at their respective facilities, "each [was] impacted differently by the proposed rule repeal because their internal controls and rules governing the games differ, as do the number of tables they offer and the demands of their local markets." Lockwood Petitioners' Supplemental Memorandum of Law Regarding Section 120.595(2)'s Cap on Attorney's Fees at 7.

40. The differences between the Petitioners in terms of the particulars of their games and internal controls are not so distinct as to lead the undersigned to conclude that they brought materially different perspectives. To the contrary, the general "style of play for designated player games" at each facility was consistent, and Petitioners' journeys through the rulemaking and enforcement processes, as well as through the rule challenge proceeding, were substantially similar, and led to a result that would not have varied depending on the circumstances of any individual Petitioner. As stated by Judge Harrell, Petitioners, as with the Vipul Patel Petitioners, "were all in the same boat." Vipul Patel, FO ¶ 93.

G.B.

41. In G.B., Judge R. Bruce McKibben entered a Final Order after the First DCA granted the Petitioners' motion for attorney's fees with the following Order:

> [Petitioners'] motion filed May 12, 2014, for attorney's fees is granted. This case is remanded to the trial court for the determination of the amount thereof if the parties are unable to agree on an amount.

42. In his Final Order on remand, Judge McKibben concluded that the statutory cap on attorney's fees in section 120.595(2) applied as an aggregate, to be divided among the four

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Petitioners. In drawing his conclusion, Judge McKibben determined that:

> [T]he relief sought by each of the Petitioners was the same: invalidation of the proposed rules. It cannot be argued that each Petitioner in his or her own right was seeking individual redress or damages. Collectively, they wanted the proposed rules invalidated so that they could return to the status quo concerning their benefits from the State.

G.B., FO ¶ 18.

43. Judge McKibben noted that, in G.B., there was no dispute as to standing, and only one of the Petitioners testified. Similarly, there was no dispute in this case as to the standing of any party in the underlying rule challenge. The case was tried on a record stipulated by all of the parties. The only testimony of any representative of a Petitioner was the deposition of the president of the Jacksonville Kennel Club. Among the facts stipulated was that "[s]urveillance videos gathered by the Division during the investigations in late 2015 and early 2016 showing designated player games [at various of Petitioners' facilities] are representative of the style of play for designated player games throughout Florida cardrooms." As in G.B., the level of coordination between the Petitioners was substantial.

44. Judge McKibben's Final Order on remand was appealed to the First DCA. In its Opinion and Order on Amended Motion for

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Review of Administrative Order on Appellate Attorneys' Fees, the court held that:

> Appellants seek review pursuant to rule 9.190(d)(3), Florida Rules of Appellate Procedure, of the administrative final order on attorneys' fees entered upon remand in case number 1D13-4903 . . . . That administrative order awarded $50,000.00 in attorneys' fees pursuant to section 120.595(2), Florida Statutes . . . . We reject all of Appellants' arguments and affirm the administrative order."

G.B. v. Agency for Persons with Disabilities, 180 So. 3d 183 (Fla. 1st DCA 2015).

45. G.B. provides the most direct and recent expression of the construction of section 120.595(2) by an appellate court. Thus, it is concluded that in cases such as this, in which a group of Petitioners is acting in a concerted and collective manner to achieve a common result, the total award of fees to the Petitioners, and against the agency, is limited to $50,000.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, the undersigned concludes that the $50,000 cap on attorney's fees established in section 120.595(2) establishes the maximum amount that may be awarded to Petitioners, collectively, in this proceeding.

This Partial Final Order on Effect of Statutory Cap on Fees shall be adopted and incorporated in the Final Order to be

ENDNOTE

[1/] The Final Order on Remand was entered after an appeal of his initial Final Order. The court's opinion focused entirely on the insufficiency of the findings as to whether the Department of Insurance was "substantially justified" in proposing the rule, and on whether Judge Quattlebaum was correct in denying fees to a non-attorney qualified representative. Dep't of Ins. v. Fla. Bankers Ass'n, 764 So. 2d 660 (Fla. 1st DCA 2000). The earlier opinion made no reference to the applicability of the section 120.595(2) statutory cap on fees.

STATE OF FLORIDA

IN RE: SUSPENSION OF STATUTES, RULES, AND ORDERS, PURSUANT TO EXECUTIVE ORDER NUMBER 20-52, MADE NECESSARY BY THE COVID-19 PUBLIC HEALTH EMERGENCY

DEM ORDER NO. 20-002

EMERGENCY ORDER

WHEREAS, the Governor of the State of Florida issued Executive Order No. 20-52 in response to the COVID-19 Public Health Emergency which poses a severe threat to the entire State of Florida and requires that timely precautions are taken to protect the communities, critical infrastructure, and general welfare of this State; and,

WHEREAS, the Governor has designated the Director of the Division of Emergency Management as the State Coordinating Officer for the duration of this emergency and has delegated to the State Coordinating Officer the authority to exercise those powers delineated in sections 252.36(5)-(10), Florida Statutes; and,

NOW THEREFORE, I hereby find that the Division of Emergency Management's timely performance of disaster response functions related to COVID-19 Public Health Emergency is hindered by the application of procedures imposed by statute, rule, and/or order.

Therefore, pursuant to Section 2 of Executive Order No. 20-52, I hereby issue the following authorization(s):

I. Suspend sections 393.13(4), 400.022(1)(b), 429.28(1)(d), 429.85(1)(d) Florida Statutes, for the particular purpose of prohibiting certain individuals from visiting facilities. For purposes of this order, a facility includes nursing homes, assisted living facilities, adult family-care homes, long-term care facilities, and adult group homes. The order applies as follows:

a. Any person infected with COVID-19 who has not had two consecutive negative test results separated by 24 hours is prohibited from visiting a facility; or

b. Any person showing or presenting signs or symptoms of a respiratory infection, including cough, fever, shortness of breath or sore throat is prohibited from visiting a facility; or

c. Any person who has or may have been in close contact with a person(s) infected with COVID-19 who has not tested negative for COVID-19 is prohibited from visiting a facility until 14 days after their interaction with the person(s) who is infected with COVID-19; or

d. Any person who traveled internationally is prohibited from visiting a facility until 14 days after their return to the United States; or

e. Any person who traveled on a cruise ship is prohibited from visiting a facility until 14 days after their return to the United States; or

f. Any person who has been in a community with confirmed community spread of COVID-19, as identified by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention or a state public health agency, is prohibited from visiting a facility within 14 days of their presence in the community with community spread; or

g. Any person who resides in a community with confirmed community spread of COVID-19, as identified by the Centers for Disease Control and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Prevention or a state public health agency, is prohibited from visiting a facility.

Because section 252.36(5)(a), Florida Statutes, allows the Governor to suspend the provisions of "any regulatory statute prescribing the procedures for [the] conduct of state business", and because Executive Order No. 20-52 designates the Director of the Division of Emergency Management as the State Coordinating Officer for this emergency, the requirements of sections 252.46 and 120.54(4), Florida Statutes, do not apply to this Order.

The effective dates of this Order shall correspond with the effective dates of Executive Order No. 20-52.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH ADVISES INDIVIDUALS WHO TRAVELED ON NILE RIVER CRUISE TO SELF-ISOLATE FOR 14 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF RETURN

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Department of Health is advising all individuals who traveled on a river cruise on the Nile River in Egypt in February 2020 to self-isolate for 14 days following their date of return to the United States. Several passengers in the United States recently developed symptoms and have been confirmed to be infected with coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19), including two presumptive positive cases in Florida.

The Department has been made aware that persons who were on tours in Egypt, Israel and Jordan between Feb 4-18, 2020 may have been exposed to COVID-19. Persons who traveled to these areas and have become sick are advised to stay home and isolated from others for the duration of their illness. Before seeking medical care, individuals who may have been exposed to COVID-19 should contact their nearest county health department.

For self-isolation guidelines, please visit: http://www.floridahealth.gov/diseases-and-conditions/COVID-19/need-to-know/Self-Isolation.html

COVID-19 is spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from the COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. As a reminder, the Department always recommends everyday preventive actions to help impede the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;

- If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and

- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local county health department and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the county health department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH ANNOUNCES IMPORTANT UPDATES REGARDING COVID-19 IN FLORIDA -TWO CONFIRMED DEATHS REGARDING COVID-19

TALLAHASSEE— The Florida Department of Health has announced updates regarding the 2019 coronavirus disease (COVID-19) in Florida. Two individuals have died and two new presumptive positive cases have been identified in Broward County.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Deceased Individuals

- A previously announced COVID-19 patient in Santa Rosa County has died, following an international trip.
- A new case of a COVID-19 patient in her seventies in Lee County has died, following an international trip.

New Presumptive Positive Cases

- A 75-year old male in Broward County has been identified as a presumptive positive. This person is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials.
- A new individual in their seventies that tested presumptive positive for COVID-19 in Lee County has died, following an international trip.

The Florida Department of Health is working closely with the patients, potential close contacts of each case and health care providers to isolate and monitor persons who may have been exposed to COVID-19 and implement testing of anyone who may develop COVID-19 symptoms, including fever, cough or shortness of breath.

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH ANNOUNCES ADDITIONAL CASES AND TWO DEATHS RELATED TO COVID-19 IN FLORIDA

Contact:
Communications Office

(850) 245-4111

Tallahassee, Fla. — The Florida Department of Health has announced there are three new presumptive positive cases of 2019 coronavirus disease (COVID-19) in Florida. One individual is deceased, the other two individuals remain in isolation at this time. A previously announced COVID-19 patient in Santa Rosa County is also deceased.

The deceased individual associated with a new case was in their seventies in Lee County.

The first patient under investigation is a 75-year old male in Broward County. This person is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials.

The second patient under investigation is a 65-year old male in Broward County. This person is isolated and will continue to remain isolated until cleared by public health officials.

The Florida Department of Health is working closely with the patients, potential close contacts of each case and health care providers to isolate and monitor persons who may have been exposed to COVID-19 and implement testing of anyone who may develop COVID-19 symptoms, including fever, cough or shortness of breath.

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from the COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

DRAFT
AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. As a reminder, the Department always recommends everyday preventive actions to help impede the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;
    - If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and
- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local county health department (CHD) and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the county health department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

Implementation of Mitigation Strategies for Communities with Local COVID-19 Transmission

Background

When a novel virus with pandemic potential emerges, nonpharmaceutical interventions, which will be called community mitigation strategies in this document, often are the most readily available interventions to help slow transmission of the virus in communities. Community mitigation is a set of actions that persons and communities can take to help slow the spread of respiratory virus infections. Community mitigation is especially important before a vaccine or drug becomes widely available.

The following is a proposed framework for actions which local and state health departments can implement as local spread of COVID-19 continues in the United States. Selection and implementation of these actions should be guided by the local characteristics of disease transmission, demographics, and public health and healthcare system capacity.

Goals

The goals for using mitigation strategies for communities with local COVID-19 transmission are to protect:

- Individuals at risk for severe illness, including older adults and persons of any age with underlying health conditions (See Appendix A).
- The healthcare workforce and critical infrastructure workforces

These approaches are used to minimize morbidity and mortality caused by COVID-19 and minimize social and economic impacts of COVID-19. Individuals, communities, businesses, and healthcare organizations are all part of a community mitigation strategy.

Implementation emphasizes:

- Emphasizing individual responsibility for implementation of recommended personal-level actions,
- Empowering businesses, schools, and community organizations to implement recommended actions, particularly in ways that protect persons at risk of severe illness
- Focusing on settings that provide critical services to implement recommended actions to protect critical infrastructure and individuals at risk of severe disease
- Minimizing disruptions to daily life to the extent possible

Guiding principles

- Each community is unique, and mitigation appropriate strategies will vary based on characteristics of the community and populations at risk of severe disease as well as the local capacity to implement strategies (Table 1).
- Consider all aspects of a community that might be impacted, including vulnerable populations that may be more impacted socially or economically, and select appropriate actions.
- Mitigation strategies can be scaled up or down depending on the evolving situation.
- When developing mitigation plans, communities should identify ways to ensure the safety and social well-being of groups that may be especially impacted by mitigation strategies, including individuals at risk for severe illness

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Activation of community emergency plans is critical for the implementation of mitigation strategies. These plans may provide additional authorities and coordination needed for interventions to be implemented (Table 2).
- The level of activities implemented may vary across settings (ie. may be at moderate for one setting and at substantial for another setting at the same time in order to meet community response needs).
- Local and state public health departments may need to implement mitigation strategies for public health functions in the identification and contact tracing of cases depending on level of community spread (Table 3). When applied, community mitigation efforts may help implementation of public health activities like contact tracing.

Table 1. Local Factors to Consider for Determining Mitigation Strategies

Factor	Characteristics
Epidemiology	Level of community transmission Number of outbreaks COVID-19 cases impacting delivery of healthcare or impacting other critical infrastructure or services Epidemiology in surrounding jurisdictions
Community Characteristics	Size of community and population density Level of community engagement/support Size and characteristics of vulnerable populations Access to healthcare Transportation (public, walking) Planned large events
Healthcare capacity	Healthcare workforce Number of healthcare facilities Testing capacity Intensive care capacity PPE availability
Public health capacity	Public health workforce and availability of resources to implement strategies Available support from other state/local government agencies and partner organizations

Healthcare settings and healthcare provider (includes outpatient, nursing homes/long-term care facilities, inpatient, telehealth) "What healthcare settings including nursing homes/long-term care facilities, can do to prepare for COVID-19, if the facilities has cases of COVID-19, or if the community is experiencing spread of COVID-19)"	• Provide healthcare personnel (HCP, includes staff at nursing homes and long-term care), facilities, and systems with tools and guidance needed to support their decisions to care for patients at home (or in nursing homes/long-term care facility) • Assess facility infection control programs; assess personal protective equipment (PPE) supplies and optimize PPE use. • Assess plans for monitoring of HCP and plans for increasing numbers of HCP if needed. • Assess visitor policies • Assess HCP sick leave policies (healthcare facilities should provide non-punitive sick leave options to allow HCP to stay home when ill). • Encourage HCP to stay home and notify healthcare facility administrators of illness when sick. • In conjunction with local health department, identify exposed HCP, and implement recommended monitoring and work restrictions • Implement triage prior to entering facilities to rapidly identify and isolate patients with respiratory illness (e.g., phone triage before patient arrival, upon arrival)	• Implement changes to visitor policies to further reduce limit exposures to HCP, residents, and patients. Changes could include temperature/symptom checks for visitors, limiting visitor movement in the facility, etc. • Implement triage before entering facilities (e.g. parking lot triage, front door); phone triage and telemedicine; options to limit unnecessary healthcare visits • Actively monitor HCP absenteeism and respiratory illness among HCP and patients • Actively monitor PPE supplies • Establish processes to evaluate and test large numbers of patients and HCP with respiratory symptoms (e.g. designated clinic, surge tent) • Consider allowing asymptomatic exposed HCP to work while wearing a facemask • Begin to cross train HCP for working in other units in anticipation of staffing shortages	• Restrict all visitors from facility entry to reduce facility-based transmission. • Identify areas of operations that may be subject to alternative standards of care and implement necessary changes (e.g., allowing mildly symptomatic HCP to work while wearing a facemask) • Cancel elective and non-urgent procedures • Establish cohort units or facilities for large numbers of patients • Consider requiring all HCP to wear a facemask when in the facility depending on supply

Public health control activities by level of COVID-19 community transmission
None/Low (Evidence of limited community transmission, case investigations underway, no evidence of exposure in large communal setting, e.g., health care facility, school, mass gathering)	Medium (Widespread and/or sustained transmission with high likelihood or confirmed exposure within communal settings with potential for rapid increase in suspected cases)	High (Large scale community transmission, health care staffing significantly impacted, multiple cases within communal settings like healthcare facilities, schools, mass gatherings etc.)
• Continue contact tracing, monitor and observe contacts as advised in guidance to maximize containment around cases • Isolation of confirmed COVID-19 cases until no longer considered infectious according to guidance • For asymptomatic close contacts exposed to a confirmed COVID-19 case, consideration of movement restrictions based on risk level, social distancing • Monitoring close contacts should be done by jurisdictions to the extent feasible based on local priorities and resources • Test symptomatic individuals for COVID-19 • Determine methods to streamline contact tracing through simplified data collection and surge if needed (resources including staffing through colleges, other first responder; technology etc.)	• May reduce contact tracing if needed, prioritizing to those in high-risk settings (e.g., healthcare professionals or high-risk settings based on vulnerable populations or critical infrastructure) infrastructure when necessary • Reduce at risk of spreading infection or exposures in (those with vulnerable populations or critical infrastructure) • Encourage HCP to more strictly implement phone triage and telemedicine practices • Continue routine COVID-19 testing; however, if testing capacity limited, prioritize testing of high-risk individuals	• May reduce or discontinue contact tracing, even in high-risk settings (e.g., healthcare professionals or high-risk settings further based on vulnerable populations or critical infrastructure) resource capacity. • Discontinue routine testing, continue testing of persons at high-risk of serious disease • Reinforce systems for phone triage and telemedicine to reduce unnecessary healthcare visits

CDC's recommendations for implementation of mitigation strategies for Florida, based on current situation with COVID-19 transmission and consideration of the state's large older adult population

Note: Florida has recently implemented many interventions included in the CDC guidance (https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/community/index.html).

http://www.floridahealth.gov/diseases-and-conditions/COVID-19/index.html

Bottom Line Up Front:

Florida has had several COVID-19 confirmed cases and exposures related to ports of entry, including shipping ports and airports. Due to the current level of COVID-19 transmission in the United States, and Florida's large older adult population, CDC recommends certain community mitigation activities to help slow the spread of COVID-19 into the community and to protect vulnerable members of the community. CDC recommends the following interventions be implemented at this time (Table). These recommendations may be updated, if necessary, based on any changes in the current local situation.

Goals

The goals for using mitigation strategies for Florida are to protect:

- Individuals at increased risk for severe illness, including older adults and persons of any age with underlying health conditions (See Appendix A).
- The healthcare workforce and critical infrastructure workforces

These approaches are used to minimize morbidity and mortality caused by COVID-19 and minimize social and economic impacts of COVID-19. Individuals, communities, businesses, and healthcare organizations are all part of a community mitigation strategy.

Implementation emphasizes:

- Emphasizing individual responsibility for implementation of recommended personal-level actions,
- Empowering businesses, schools, and community organizations to implement recommended actions, particularly in ways that protect persons at risk of severe illness such as older adults and persons with serious underlying health conditions (e.g., Dialysis patients, congestive heart failure, emphysema)
- Focusing on settings that provide critical services to implement recommended actions to protect critical infrastructure and individuals at risk of severe disease
- Minimizing disruptions to daily life to the extent possible

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Florida Drive-Through COVID-19 Testing Plan – FINAL

Overview

The state of Florida is responding to over 100 cases of COVID-19. The virus was first detected in China and has been declared a pandemic by the World Health Organization (WHO). In the response to this virus, the Florida Division of Emergency Management has created a plan to implement a COVID-19 drive-through COVID-19 testing center.

Drive-through COVID-19 testing centers are intended to identify individuals who are most likely to contract or spread COVID-19. The screening process will reduce surge at health departments, prevent unnecessary spread of the virus at healthcare facilities, and reduce wait times for individuals with the highest risk of getting very sick from this illness.

The drive-through medical screening process is designed to be hosted in hospital parking lots and other strategic locations across the state. The entity who is in charge at the various sites across the state will be determined on a case- by-case basis and will need to be discussed with those who are working the site. There will also need to be a determination made at each location regarding what entity or agency is responsible for patient documentation and tracking.

Individuals will remain in their vehicles throughout the screening process. This plan is written as a one lane testing drive-through but can be expanded to include multiple lanes depending on the size of the area and the number of participants who need to be tested. For example, in the first drive-through at Memorial Hospital West in Broward County, there will be three lanes as we will be using a parking lot that can accommodate many cars.

The drive through will be staffed from 8:00 am – 8:00 pm with staff working 4-hour shifts. There will be Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) for those health workers and National Guard members who need them. When it comes to the welfare of the staff working the drive-through, there will be coolers with bottled water available at each station for workers and participants who need them, and there will be a cooling area for staff to use while on site.

Drive-Through Components

Stages:

Entrance from the Road -> Pre-Screening Tent -> Queue -> Medical Screening Tent -> Point of Collection Tent -> Discharge Tent -> Exit

Traffic on roadways:

Road traffic will be directed by local law enforcement with support from Florida Highway Patrol and other law enforcement agencies. Florida Department of Transportation will be providing cones, and traffic signs for the entrance and exit of the drive through. The cones will be used throughout the drive-through to help direct cars.

Entrance to drive-through:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Cars will enter the drive through testing center via a designated entrance area. Once on property, all traffic and direction will be conducted by the Florida National Guard.

Pre-Screening Tent:

Cars will enter the property and reach a "Pre-Screening Tent." At this point, civilians will stay in their cars and will be asked a series of questions regarding COVID-19. These questions include, but are not limited to:

- Are you 65 years of age or older?
- Have you or someone you have been in contact with travel internationally in the last 14 days?
- Have you been in contact with someone who has tested positive for COVID-19?
- Have you traveled to highly impacted states in the last 14 days such as California, Washington, Oregon, or New York?
- Have you traveled to t high volume cities in the last 14 days such as Chicago, Washington D.C.?

Generally, pre-screening identifies those who are:

1. Over the age of 65;
2. Recently travelled internationally;
3. Had direct contact with individuals who are sick, or;
4. Exhibit symptoms consistent with COVID-19.

If the civilians answer "no" to the all above questions, then they may be turned away from being tested. There will be an exit pathway with National Guard soldiers directing all cars who need to leave the drive through area at this point.

If the civilians answer "yes" to the questions, then the National Guard soldiers who are operating the booth will hand the civilians a pocketed folder with a medical screening form inside and a red piece of paper, and they may advance to the next stage: "Queue." Folders will be available in languages other than English for those who need it.

Queue:

Cars will enter the queue and line up behind on another. While in the "Queue," participants will fill out their medical screening paperwork. The paperwork will allow health care workers to collect important information from the participants including reported symptoms (if any) and patient contact information. If at any point the participants have questions or need any kind of help, they will place their red piece of paper on the dashboard to signal for a guardsman to come and assist. These instructions will be on the red piece of paper. There will be interpreters available on hand to help those who may need assistance navigating the paperwork as well as the drive-through as a whole. Translation services for other languages with be handled on a case by case basis. Once the participant has completed the paperwork and there is another spot available in the next area, "Medical Screening", then they will proceed. If the participant or the medical professionals feel as though they shouldn't move on to the next station, they will have a way to exit the drive-through.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Medical Screening:

The “Medical Screening” area will be staffed by a nurse and a National Guard medic. These medical professionals will review the responses participants gave on their paperwork to ensure accuracy. They may also record any additional data from participates that they deem necessary including data that may further assist with the tracking of test specimens. Medical screening staff will also answer questions related to COVID-19 and the testing process. If the medical professionals deem testing not necessary or if the participants no longer want to continue through the drive through, there will be an area exit to the road. If testing is deemed necessary, then the participants will continue to the “Specimen Collection” area.

Specimen Collection:

The “Specimen Collection” area will be staffed by a nurse and a National Guard medic. If there is more than one lane, each lane will be staffed by a nurse and a National Guard medic. These medical professionals will administer nasopharyngeal swabs at this station. After the samples are collected, they will be transported to approved labs to test for the presence of COVID-19. Whether a specific hospital or a different entity oversee labeling the specimens will need to be determined on a case-by-case basis. Regardless of who is labeling the specimens, there will need to be quality control done by medical staff to make sure the specimen and the paperwork match. Once the patients have had samples taken by a medical professional, they will then proceed to the “Discharge” area.

There will be two soldiers who will remove specimens from this area and two additional soldiers loading them onto refrigerated trucks. There will be two trucks on site to make sure things can be kept to the right temperature. These trucks will take the specimens to the designated labs in order to be tested.

Discharge:

At this stage, participants will be told final details about the testing process. They will be told what to expect regarding the testing process, who will contact them to provide the results of the test, and what steps to take in order to protect themselves and others from contracting or spreading the virus.

Exit:

Once all the participants questions have been answered, they will be directed toward a road so they can exit the premises. Once they are off the property of the drive-through, they will be directed by law enforcement.

Navigation in between areas:

There are several points in between the different areas of the drive-through. If there is more than one lane then each lane will be coned off as to avoid confusion to the drivers. In between each station, there will be at least one national guard directing drivers. This will help to decrease confusion and will assist drivers in getting to the next area or helping them to exit the drive-through if necessary.

Miscellaneous Information:

We anticipate hundreds of people passing through these drive-through testing centers, so several precautions for participants need to be considered. If there will be more than one lane, the option of having a large vehicle/special needs lane is something sites need to consider. This lane can be used for patients who need extra care or help with the testing process. This includes, but is not limited to, oxygen tanks, limited mobility patients, and developmental disability patients. This lane will also be used for large vehicles such as trucks or vans carrying many patients. In the charts included with this plan, there is a 3-lane option that includes a large vehicle/special needs lane.

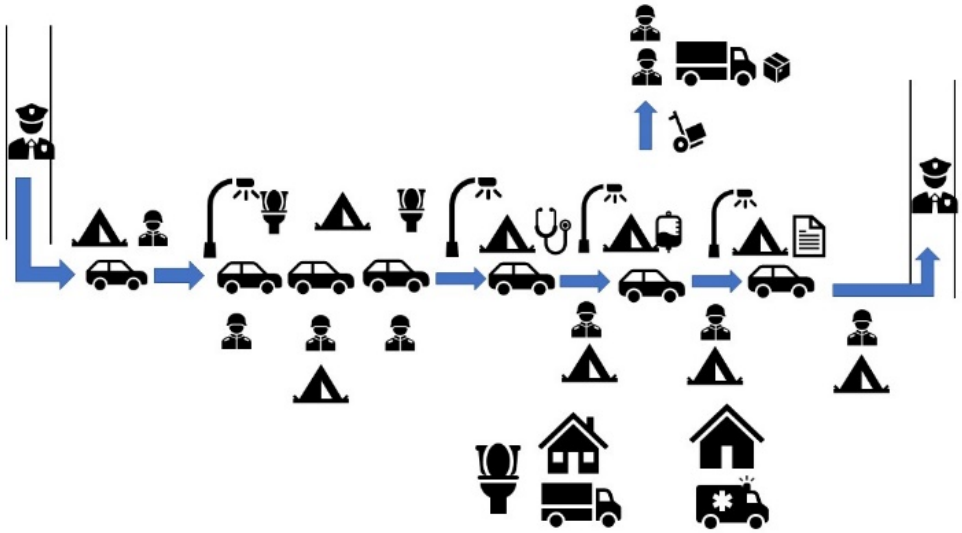
We want to make sure the staff are prepared for their work at the drive-through testing center. Training for PPE and other portions of the site will be done on site prior to the start of the drive through testing center.

In order to make sure that the staff and soldiers can work outside in the heat, several precautions will be made. Sunscreen will be available for those who need it. There will also be coolers and ice in designated covered areas around the drive through lanes. Workers may require breaks during their shift. The Officer in Charge (OIC) will determine the break schedule for staff if needed. There will also be a separate port-a-potty area for staff and for participants to decrease the likelihood of virus spread from participants to staff. National Guard soldiers will ensure there are no participants congregating around port-a-potties.

We will also be having several different entities on stand-by in case of emergencies. We will have a tow-truck company on stand-by in case a car breaks down in the drive-through area. We are also going to have an ambulance on the premises in case of any medical emergencies that happen to participants or staff.

There will also need to be consideration of other people on site that are not being tested. Media may want to enter the site to take video or interviews. We are requesting that there be a PIO on site for the day to address these concerns. These people will also need to be restricted to areas off site from the drive through to prevent spread of the virus.

While it will be expressed through various messaging sites that this will be a drive-through testing area, there is still the possibility that people will walk-up to the site wanting to be tested. There will need to be a plan put in place on site on how to deal with these participants.



When it comes to closing everything down and cleaning up each day, we have requested several things to help with these tasks. Due to the operating hours of the drive-throughs, we are asking for light sets to help with make sure that we can clean after the sun goes down. These light sets will also provide power to the different stations during the day as they come equipped with power capabilities. In order to make sure that the areas are cleaned each day, we are asking that a clean-up crew come through at the end of every day to reduce spread of the virus. We will also have a security team throughout the night to make sure that things do not get taken from the area while not in use.

Subject: EO Issue: Redistribution of Devices

Louise – We have CHDs wanting to move expired (adulterated) PPE (1,000 or more N-95 masks) to an outside entity (County EMS). I have advised that per section 499.006(9), Florida Statutes, a device (which includes face masks and face covers) that is beyond its expiration date is "adulterated." Subsections 499.005(1) and (3), Florida Statutes, prohibits the (re)distribution or delivery of an adulterated device. Did we want to consider addressing this issue in the pending Emergency Order? Amanda Bush is reviewing to confirm the ability to move the PPE within the Department.

Devices:

1. Section 499.006 (9) Florida Statutes is applicable to all devices that are the subject of an approved FDA application. If such a device is beyond its expiration date it is “adulterated” as a matter of law. Such devices include face masks or face covers that are used to prevent or lessen the spread of airborne pathogens such as the coronavirus.

2. Section 499.0051 (10) (a) Florida Statutes criminalizes any violation of section 499.005 involving a device or cosmetic. First offenses are generally second-degree misdemeanors.

3. Subsections 499.005 (1) and (3) Florida Statutes prohibit the distribution or delivery of an adulterated device.

I have had to answer this question (somebody wants us to give them our expired face masks as a donation Can we do it?) At least two times in the past while functioning as counsel for a DOH program I have been seriously presented with this question. Current events indicate there may be a shortage of these products on the way. A paragraph in an emergency order may be the solution.

EMERGENCY ORDER 2020-02

WHEREAS, Novel Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) is a severe acute respiratory illness that can spread among humans through respiratory transmission and presents with symptoms similar to those of influenza; and

WHEREAS, as of March 18, 2020, numerous counties in Florida have positive cases for COVID-19, and COVID-19 poses a risk to the entire state of Florida; and

WHEREAS, the Governor issued Executive Order 20-52 on March 9, 2020, pursuant to the authority vested in him by Article IV, Section 1(a) of the Florida Constitution, the State Emergency Management Act, s. 252.31, Florida Statutes, et al., as amended, and all other applicable laws, and declared a state of emergency for the State of Florida; and

WHEREAS, the Governor, in Executive Order Number 20-52, authorized each State agency to suspend the provisions of any regulatory statute of that agency, if strict compliance with that statute would in any way prevent, hinder, or delay necessary action in coping with this emergency;

WHEREAS, the Secretary of the United States Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) declared on March 2, 2020, that circumstances exist justifying the authorization of emergency use of personal respiratory protective devices during the COVID-19 outbreak;

WHEREAS, the United States Food and Drug Administration thereafter issued an Emergency Use Authorization (EUA) for emergency use of certain disposable filtering facepiece respirators (FFRs) approved by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) that have passed the manufacturers' recommended shelf-life, for use in healthcare settings by healthcare personnel to prevent wearer exposure to pathogenic biological airborne particulates during FFR shortages resulting from the COVID-19 outbreak;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, HALSEY BESHEARS, Secretary of Florida's Department of Business and Professional Regulation, pursuant to the authority granted by Executive Order No. 20-52, find the timely execution of the mitigation, response, and recovery aspects of the State's emergency management plan, as it relates to COVID-19, is negatively impacted by the application of certain regulatory statutes related to the Department of Business and Professional Regulation ("the Department"). Therefore, I order the following:

1. Personal protective equipment (or "PPE") is equipment worn to minimize exposure to hazards that cause serious workplace injuries or illnesses. Such equipment includes FFRs such as N-95 respirators and surgical masks.
2. PPE for which the expiration date has passed is ordinarily considered an adulterated device. § 499.006(9), Fla. Stat. (2019). Such an adulterated device is barred from distribution, sale, or delivery. §§ 499.005(1) & (3), Fla. Stat. (2019).
3. Given the ongoing state of emergency and the dangers posed by the outbreak of COVID-19, it is reasonable to believe that the known and potential benefits of PPE, when used consistently with the EUA issued by the Food and Drug Administration, outweigh the known and potential risks of such a product even when the expiration date has passed.
4. Accordingly, the provisions of section 499.006(9), Florida Statutes, as they relate to PPE are hereby SUSPENDED for the duration of the declaration of a state of emergency as described in Executive Order 20-52.

Appendix B: Authorized Respirators
Updated: March 17, 2020

The Authorized Respirators

FDA will add a respirator from Appendix A to the list of authorized respirators in Appendix B (below) upon submission of request from CDC, the manufacturer, or strategic stockpiler to FDA, as described in the Scope of Authorization Section of the Letter of Authorization (Section II), and based on FDA's review and concurrence, pursuant to the Conditions of Authorization in this EUA.

Respirator models beyond the manufacturer's shelf-life in this Appendix are covered by the EUA if stockpiled generally in accordance with the manufacturer-recommended storage condition and distributed under conditions of this EUA. Check the integrity of the respirator prior to use. For the most current CDC recommendations on optimizing respirator use, please visit CDC's webpage: Strategies for Optimizing the Supply of N95 Respirators.

Robert R. Redfield, MD
Director Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
1600 Clifton Rd., MS D-14
Atlanta, GA 30333

Dear Dr. Redfield:

This letter is in response to your request that the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) issue an Emergency Use Authorization (EUA) for emergency use of, (1) all disposable filtering facepiece respirators (FFRs) approved by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), in accordance with 42 CFR Part 84, as non-powered air-purifying particulate FFRs,[1] and (2) FFRs that were NIOSH-approved but have since passed the manufacturers' recommended shelf-life, for use in healthcare settings by healthcare personnel (HCP)[2] to prevent wearer exposure to pathogenic biological airborne particulates during FFR shortages resulting from the Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19)[3] outbreak.

On February 4, 2020, pursuant to Section 564(b)(1)(C) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (the Act), the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) determined that there is a public health emergency that has a significant potential to affect national security or the health and security of United States citizens living abroad, and that involves the virus that causes COVID-19. Pursuant to Section 564 of the Act, and on the basis

[1] For ease of reference, this letter refers to "(1) all disposable filtering facepiece respirators (FFRs) approved by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), in accordance with 42 CFR Part 84, as non-powered air-purifying particulate FFRs, and (2) FFRs that were NIOSH-approved but have since passed the manufacturers' recommended shelf-life," as "respirators eligible for authorization under this EUA." "Authorized respirators" refers to those respirators eligible for authorization under this EUA that have been included in this EUA after FDA makes a determination that all criteria for issuance have been met. Authorized respirators will be added to this letter of authorization as Appendix B.

[2] Healthcare personnel refers to all paid and unpaid persons serving in healthcare settings who have the potential for direct or indirect exposure to patients or infectious materials, including body substances (e.g., blood, tissue, and specific body fluids); contaminated medical supplies, devices, and equipment; contaminated environmental surfaces; or contaminated air. These healthcare personnel include, but are not limited to, emergency medical service personnel, nurses, nursing assistants, physicians, technicians, therapists, phlebotomists, pharmacists, students and trainees, contractual staff not employed by the healthcare facility, and persons not directly involved in patient care, but who could be exposed to infectious agents that can be transmitted in the healthcare setting (e.g., clerical, dietary, environmental services, laundry, security, engineering and facilities management, administrative, billing, and volunteer personnel.

[3] On February 11, 2020, the virus tentatively named 2019-nCoV was formally designated as severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2). Also on February 11, 2020, the disease caused by SARS-CoV-2 was formally designated as Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19). The new names are used throughout this document.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

of such determination, the Secretary of HHS then declared on March 2, 2020, that circumstances exist justifying the authorization of emergency use of personal respiratory protective devices during the COVID-19 outbreak, subject to the terms of any authorization issued under that section.[4]

Having concluded that the criteria for issuance of this authorization under Section 564(c) of the Act are met, I am providing a list of respirators eligible for authorization under this EUA (Appendix A) and authorizing the emergency use of these respirators, contingent upon submission of a request from CDC, the manufacturer, or strategic stockpiler to FDA, as described in the Scope of Authorization (Section II) and pursuant to the Conditions of Authorization (Section IV) of this letter. Authorized respirators will be added to this letter of authorization as Appendix B for use in healthcare settings by HCP to prevent wearer exposure to pathogenic biological airborne particulates during FFR shortages resulting from the COVID-19 outbreak. This EUA does not permit use of authorized respirators by the general public.

I. Criteria for Issuance of Authorization

I have concluded that the emergency use of authorized respirators listed in Appendix B for use in healthcare settings by HCP to prevent wearer exposure to pathogenic biological airborne particulates during FFR shortages resulting from the COVID-19 outbreak meets the criteria for issuance of an authorization under Section 564(c) of the Act, because I have concluded that:

1. SARS-CoV-2, the virus that causes COVID-19, can cause a serious or life-threatening disease or condition, including severe respiratory illness, to humans infected by this virus;

2. Based on the totality of scientific evidence available to FDA, it is reasonable to believe that the authorized respirators may be effective in preventing HCP exposure to pathogenic biological airborne particulates during FFR shortages, and that the known and potential benefits of the authorized respirators, when used to prevent HCP exposure to such particulates during FFR shortages, outweigh the known and potential risks of such product; and

3. There is no adequate, approved, and available alternative to the emergency use of the respirators described for preventing HCP exposure to such particulates during FFR shortages to prevent disease spread.[5,6]

[4] U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Determination of a Public Health Emergency and Declaration that Circumstances Exist Justifying Authorizations Pursuant to Section 564(b) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C. § 360bbb-3. 85 FR 7316 (February 4, 2020). March 2, 2020.

[5] No other criteria of issuance have been prescribed by regulation under Section 564(c)(4) of the Act.

[6] As the COVID-19 outbreak continues to expand globally, the supply chain for respiratory protective devices (RPDs), such as disposable FFRs (e.g., N95s), that are both NIOSH-approved and meet FDA regulatory requirements has been substantially stressed, with shortages already being observed in United States healthcare institutions, with demand exceeding available supply. This shortage situation has led CDC to make recommendations to healthcare facilities for use of N95 standard respirators that do not meet FDA regulatory requirements, but these too appear to be in a shortage situation with demand exceeding supply. Under the

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

II. Scope of Authorization

I have concluded, pursuant to Section 564(d)(1) of the Act, that the scope of this authorization is limited to the use of authorized respirators listed in Appendix B for use in healthcare settings by HCP to prevent wearer exposure to pathogenic biological airborne particulates during FFR shortages resulting from the COVID-19 outbreak.

The Authorized Respirators

A list of respirators eligible for authorization under this EUA is provided in Appendix A. FDA will add a respirator from Appendix A to the list of authorized respirators in Appendix B upon submission of request from CDC, the manufacturer, or strategic stockpiler to FDA, as described in the Scope of Authorization Section of this letter (Section II) and pursuant to the Conditions of Authorization in this EUA.

For the most current CDC recommendations on optimizing respirator use, please visit CDC's webpage: Strategies for Optimizing the Supply of N95 Respirators.

CDC or the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Preparedness and Response (ASPR)/HHS may request the authorization of additional respirators that were NIOSH-approved that have been held beyond their manufacturer-intended shelf life or expiration date (e.g., N95s in federal Strategic National Stockpile),[7] which may be authorized by FDA in consultation with, and with concurrence of, the Office of Strategic Partnerships and Technology Innovation (OST)/Center for Devices and Radiological Health (CDRH), Division of Infection Control and Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery/CDRH, and the Office of Counterterrorism and Emerging Threats (OCET)/Office of the Chief Scientist (OCS)/Office of the Commissioner (OC).

Manufacturers may request the authorization of additional respirators, upon submission of an attestation from the manufacturer to FDA with a copy to CDC (CVSDBadmin@cdc.gov) specifying the NIOSH-approval number, model number, and place of manufacture. Such requests will be made by the manfucturer in consultation with, and require concurrence of, circumstances of this emergency, nationwide shortages are expected and the CDC and FDA are taking steps to address the observed and anticipated shortages prior to a potential wide-spread outbreak in the United States. These disposable respirators are an integral part of routine patient care. Providing HCP who are on the forefront of the COVID-19 response with RPDs consistent with the CDC's guidance and recommendations is necessary in order to reduce the risk of illness in HCPs and increase their willingness to provide care to affected patients or those suspected of having COVID-19. In conclusion, there are not sufficient quantities of RPDs available that comply with FDA's regulatory authority to meet the needs of the United States healthcare system.

[7] On the date of issuance of this EUA, FFRs were not authorized for use beyond their manufacturer-intended shelf life or expiration date under this EUA. However, FDA is aware of operational needs for the use of such product during the COVID-19 outbreak given reported and estimated supply challenges, especially if the outbreak were to become more severe. CDC may request authorization under this EUA of FFRs that have been held beyond their manufacturer-intended shelf life or expiration date (e.g., in federal strategic stockpiles) at a later time. If FDA authorizes use of such product based on a review of the scientific data, communication about such authorization will be posted on FDA's EUA website at the time of amendment of this EUA (e.g., through a memorandum). https://www.fda.gov/medical-devices/emergency-situations-medical-devices/emergency-use-authorizations

OST/CDRH, Division of Infection Control and Plastic Reconstructive Surgery/CDRH and OCET/OCS/OC.

Strategic stockpilers may request authorization of additional respirators that were NIOSH-approved that have been held beyond their manufacturer-intended shelf life or expiration date (e.g. N95s in state or local strategic stockpiles) for authorized use under this EUA without manufacturer's attestation. The strategic stockpile will submit a request to FDA from the manager of the stockpile, with a copy of the request to CDC (CVSDBadmin@cdc.gov) and specifying the manufacturer, model number, and the product expiry date. Such requests will be made by the strategic stockpiler in consultation with, and require concurrence of, OST/CDRH, Division of Infection Control and Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery/CDRH, and OCET/OCS/OC.

The above described authorized respirators listed in Appendix B, when labeled consistently with the labeling approved by NIOSH, are authorized to be distributed to and used by HCP under this EUA, despite the fact that they do not meet certain requirements otherwise required by applicable federal law.

I have concluded, pursuant to Section 564(d)(2) of the Act, that it is reasonable to believe that the known and potential benefits of the authorized respirators listed in Appendix B, when used consistently with the Scope of Authorization of this letter (Section II), outweigh the known and potential risks of such a product.

I have concluded, pursuant to Section 564(d)(3) of the Act, based on the totality of scientific evidence available to FDA, that it is reasonable to believe that the authorized respirators listed in Appendix B may be effective at preventing HCP exposure to certain particulates to prevent disease spread, when used consistently with the Scope of Authorization of this letter (Section II), pursuant to Section 564(c)(2)(A) of the Act.

FDA has reviewed the scientific information available to FDA, including the information supporting the conclusions described in Section I above, and concludes that the authorized respirators, when used to prevent HCP exposure to certain particulates to prevent disease spread (as described in the Scope of Authorization of this letter (Section II)), meet the criteria set forth in Section 564(c) of the Act concerning safety and potential effectiveness.

The emergency use of the authorized respirators under this EUA must be consistent with, and may not exceed, the terms of this letter, including the Scope of Authorization (Section II) and the Conditions of Authorization (Section IV). Subject to the terms of this EUA and under the circumstances set forth in the Secretary of HHS's determination under Section 564(b)(1)(C) described above and the Secretary of HHS's corresponding declaration under Section 564(b)(1), the authorized respirators described in Appendix B are authorized to be used by HCPs under this EUA. EUA amendments may be requested by CDC in consultation with, and with concurrence of, OST/CDRH, Division of Infection Control and Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery/CDRH, and OCET/OCS/OC.

This EUA will cease to be effective when the HHS declaration that circumstances exist to justify the EUA is terminated under Section 564(b)(2) of the Act or when the EUA is revoked under Section 564(g) of the Act.

III. Waiver of Certain FDA Requirements

I am waiving current good manufacturing practice requirements, including the quality system requirements under 21 CFR Part 820 with respect to the design, manufacture, packaging, labeling, storage, and distribution of the authorized respirators listed in Appendix B that are used in accordance with this EUA. This waiver does not waive any applicable NIOSH requirements.

IV. Conditions of Authorization

Pursuant to Section 564(e) of the Act, I am establishing the following conditions on this authorization:

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)

A. CDC will make available on its website and through other appropriate means, to respirator manufacturers and HCPs, CDC's recommendations to HCPs.[8]

B. CDC will inform relevant stakeholders, such as manufacturers and HCPs, of this EUA, including the terms and conditions herein and any updates.

C. CDC will post on its website the following statement: "For information about the FDA-authorized emergency use of NIOSH-approved FFRs, please see: https://www.fda.gov/medical-devices/emergency-situations-medical-devices/emergency-use-authorizations."

D. CDC will provide FDA any updates to their complete listing of all NIOSH-approved FFR manufacturers, contact information for each manufacturer, and model numbers.

E. CDC or ASPR/HHS may request the authorization of respirators that were NIOSH-approved that have been held beyond their manufacturer-intended shelf life or expiration date (e.g., N95s in federal Strategic National Stockpile) for authorized use under this EUA without manufacturer's attestation. Such requests will be made by CDC or ASPR/HHS in consultation with, and require concurrence of, OST/CDRH, Division of Infection Control and Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery/CDRH, and OCET/OCS/OC.

F. CDC is authorized to issue additional recommendations and instructions related to the emergency use of the authorized respirators listed in Appendix B as described in this letter of authorization, to the extent that additional recommendations and instructions are necessary to meet healthcare needs during the COVID-19 outbreak when they are reasonably consistent with the authorized emergency use of the product.

[8] As of March 2, 2020, CDC also recommended on its Frequently Asked Questions about Personal Protective Equipment Page that if at all possible, respirators with exhalation valves should not be used in situations where a sterile field must be maintained (e.g., during an invasive procedure in an operating or procedure room) because the exhalation valve allows unfiltered exhaled air to escape into the sterile field.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

G. CDC will ensure that any records associated with this EUA are maintained until otherwise notified by FDA. Such records will be made available to FDA for inspection upon request.

Manufacturers of Authorized Respirators, Pursuant to Attestation From the Manufacturer

H. Manufacturers of authorized respirators listed in Appendix B will have a process in place for reporting adverse events of which they become aware to FDA per mandatory reporting requirements under 21 CFR Part 803.

I. Manufacturers may request the addition of any authorized respirators, upon submission of an attestation from the manufacturer to FDA with a copy to CDC (CVSDBadmin@cdc.gov) specifying the NIOSH-approval number, model number, and place of manufacture. Such requests will be made by the manfucturer in consultation with, and require concurrence of, OST/CDRH, Division of Infection Control and Plastic Reconstructive Surgery/CDRH and OCET/OCS/OC.

J. Adverse events of which the manufacturer becomes aware will be reported to FDA.

K. All descriptive printed matter relating to the use of the authorized respirators listed in Appendix B shall be consistent with labeling approved by NIOSH and/or applicable CDC recommendations for use during the COVID-19 outbreak, as well as the terms set forth in this EUA and the applicable requirements set forth in the Act and FDA regulations.

L. No descriptive printed matter relating to the use of the authorized respirators listed in Appendix B may represent or suggest that this product is safe or effective for the prevention of COVID-19.

M. Manufacturers of authorized respirators listed in Appendix B will ensure that any records associated with this EUA are maintained until otherwise notified by FDA. Such records will be made available to FDA for inspection upon request.

Strategic Stockpilers

N. To the extent feasible given the emergency circumstances, strategic stockpilers will maintain reports of adverse events they receive from healthcare personnel and facilities to which the authorized respirators were distributed.

O. Adverse events of which the strategic stockpiler becomes aware will be reported to FDA via Medwatch Forms for FDA Safety Reporting.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

P. Strategic stockpilers may request the addition of authorized respirators that were NIOSH-approved that have been held beyond their manufacturer-intended shelf life or expiration date (e.g. N95s in state or local strategic stockpiles) for authorized use under this EUA without manufacturer's attestation. The strategic stockpile will submit a request to FDA from the manager of the stockpile, with a copy of the request to CDC (CVSDBadmin@cdc.gov) and specifying the manufacturer, model number, and the product expiry date. Such requests will be made by the strategic stockpiler in consultation with, and require concurrence of, OST/CDRH, Division of Infection Control and Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery/CDRH, and OCET/OCS/OC.

Q. Strategic stockpilers of authorized respirators will ensure that any records associated with this EUA are maintained until otherwise notified by FDA. Such records will be made available to FDA for inspection upon request.

The emergency use of the authorized respirators listed in Appendix B as described in this letter of authorization must comply with the conditions and all other terms of this authorization.

V. Duration of Authorization

This EUA will be effective until the declaration that circumstances exist justifying the authorization of the emergency use of personal respiratory protective devices during the COVID-19 outbreak is terminated under Section 564(b)(2) of the Act or the EUA is revoked under Section 564(g) of the Act.

Sincerely,

/S/

It's 'Gov. DeSantis,' not 'Dr. DeSantis,' right? Don't dispute coronavirus experts | Editorial
Miami Herald
Editorial Board
March 11, 2020

We mean no disrespect, but when the world renown guru of infectious diseases, who's also received the Presidential Medal of Freedom and who opened our eyes to the scourge of HIV/AIDs in the 1980s says that there has been community spread of the coronavirus in Florida, whom should we believe -- Dr. Anthony Fauci, said guru, or Gov. Ron DeSantis, who says, Nope, there's no community spread of the virus in the state?

In fact, the DeSantis administration has gone into a Trump-like denial of the coronavirus' spread, surprising and disappointing for a governor who has been fairly transparent about the disease.

Why not confirm it first, Governor? This knee-jerk, nothing-to-see-here response is dangerous.

Fauci, a leading infectious disease expert on the federal Coronavirus Task Force, said on Tuesday that Florida is one of four states with "community spread" of the disease. In other words, some people with confirmed cases have not traveled to countries where the virus is rampant, nor do they meet other high-risk factors. How they contracted the disease, then, is not yet obvious.

DeSantis spokeswoman Helen Aguirre Ferré said, "In Broward County, the three workers at the port work for the same company, in the same location, and tested positive for COVID-19." She says this means there's no random spread. OK, but there's also no indication yet as to how they contracted the disease. In the greater community, perhaps, then one infected the two others?

In a case of confirmed coronavirus in Manatee County, the state has not said publicly how the man might have contracted it.

Fauci cautions: "When you have community spread you're obviously going to ratchet up the kinds of mitigations that you have."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

At least it should be obvious to Florida's governor.

But this has been the perilous problem in fighting the disease: politicians pushing back against science, against the experts, against medical professionals who actually know what we must confront. That puts Floridians in even more danger, despite their still-low risk of getting the coronavirus.

Unfortunately, it appears the lab coat DeSantis donned for a recent coronavirus photo-op has gone to his head.

Colleen:

The State of Florida is taking part in a large price fixing case against generic drug manufacturers. I met with Joe and John MacIver in the summer and briefed them on it and provided them with a copy of the complaint. I am happy to brief you or have one of the litigators involved brief you on the background of the case. It is now in discovery phase and it would be helpful for my folks to meet with certain agencies and gather documents. Attached to this email is an agency list (I think you are the Deputy for all or at least most of the listed agencies) and get their help with discovery. If I am wrong about who in your office is assigned to any of these agencies, please let me know and I will reach out separately. I have also attached the pending discovery and the case management order. I did not attach another copy the complaint (which is a massive file and is more than 500 pages long), but again am happy to separately provide it. Please let the agency general counsels know that it is ok to discuss and cooperate on this matter with my attorneys. I will have them copy you (and Joe if he wants to be copied) on any communications and will have them coordinate with you any discussions. This is a request pursuant to Florida Statutes 542.29. I look forward to working with you as always.

Sincerely,
John

EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN RE: GENERIC PHARMACEUTICALS PRICING ANTITRUST LITIGATION	MDL NO. 2724 16-MD-2724
	HON. CYNTHIA M. RUFE
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: State Attorneys General Litigation	Civil Action No. 17-3768 19-2407

DEFENDANTS' FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES
PROPOUNDED TO THE PLAINTIFF STATES

Pursuant to Rules 26 and 33 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Defendants hereby propound the following interrogatories ("Interrogatories") on the Plaintiff States. Each Plaintiff State must answer each Interrogatory, fully and separately, in writing and under oath, within thirty (30) days in accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the Definitions and Instructions set forth below, and supplement such answers as required by Rule 26(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

DEFINITIONS

The definitions used herein are chosen for clarification and the convenience of the parties, and should not be construed as admissions.

1. "Action" means the above-captioned action, In re Generic Pharmaceuticals Pricing Antitrust Litig., No. 16-md-2724 (CMR) (E.D. Pa.).

2. "Complaints" means all operative complaints filed by Plaintiff State, which seek damages in this Action including, but not limited to, any operative complaint filed by Plaintiff State after these Interrogatories are served.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3. "Damages" means the sum of money being sought as the result of any loss, harm or injury alleged in the Complaints to have been caused by the direct or indirect acts and/or omissions of one or more Defendants.

4. "Defendants" means the defendants named in the Complaints in this Action.

5. "Entity" means any public or private organization, or subdivision thereof, located or operating within any Plaintiff State.

6. "Identify" shall mean to state the Entity's full name, current or last known business address, and telephone number, as well as the Entity's current address for the receipt of service of legal process, if different than the foregoing.

7. "You," "Your" or "Yours" means the state government and the Attorney General's office of the States of Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming; the Commonwealths of Kentucky, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Puerto Rico, Virginia; and the District of Columbia; and their officials, employees, representatives, agents, and attorneys (collectively, "Plaintiff States," and individually, "Plaintiff State").

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Each Interrogatory shall be answered as completely as possible based upon Your knowledge from all sources, including information that is known by You, available to You, or in Your possession.

2. These Interrogatories should be construed as broadly as possible with all doubts resolved in favor of providing full and complete answers to these Interrogatories. The words

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

"all," "any," "each," "and," and "or" shall be construed conjunctively or disjunctively as necessary to make these Interrogatories inclusive rather than exclusive. Except as specifically provided in these Interrogatories, words imparting the singular shall include the plural and vice versa, where appropriate.

3. Unless otherwise specified or agreed among Plaintiff State and Defendants and/or ordered by the Court, the "Relevant Time Period" is January 1, 2006 to the present. The use of this relevant time period does not constitute an admission that it is the relevant time period for all discovery in the Action. Moreover, if the Court orders Defendants to respond to any discovery request by Plaintiff State for any time period outside of the time period specified herein, Plaintiff State also shall respond to these Interrogatories for the time period so specified by the Court.

4. Plaintiff State's answers to these Interrogatories must comply with all requirements set forth by Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 33.

5. Each Interrogatory shall be deemed continuing, so as to require supplemental answers when You learn or acquire information responsive to these Interrogatories that has not been previously provided, as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(e). Such supplemental answers are to be served as soon as reasonably possible after the information is obtained. The date such additional information came into Your possession shall be specified, as well as the identity of the individuals providing such additional information to the person preparing the answer. Additionally, in the event Plaintiff State further amends the Complaints and/or files new Complaints in this Action, Plaintiff State shall promptly supplement its responses as appropriate.

6. If an objection is made to any part of the Interrogatory, the answer shall state that there is an objection to the Interrogatory, provide the legal and factual basis for such objection with specificity, and answer the Interrogatory to the extent it is not objectionable. No part of an Interrogatory shall be left unanswered merely because an objection is made to another part of the Interrogatory.

7. If in any answer, information covered by these Interrogatories, or sub-part thereof, is withheld by reason of a claim of privilege, the person asserting the privilege shall, in the objection to the Interrogatory, or sub-part thereof, set forth in writing all information required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(5) or such information as otherwise agreed by the parties. If any portion of any answer to these Interrogatories is withheld under the claim of privilege, any non-privileged portion of such answer must be provided.

8. If You cannot answer any Interrogatory fully and completely after exercising due diligence to secure the full information to do so, please so state and answer such Interrogatory to the extent possible. Specify Your inability to answer the remainder, stating whatever information or knowledge You have concerning the unanswered portion and describing all efforts made by You to obtain the information necessary to answer the Interrogatory.

9. If You conclude that any Interrogatory, Definition, or Instruction is ambiguous, then state in Your answer to the matter deemed ambiguous and the construction You employed in answering the Interrogatory.

10. These Definitions, Instructions, and Interrogatories are submitted for the purposes of discovery; they shall not be construed (i) as a waiver or abridgment of any argument or defense, any objection to discovery requests, or any objections that may be made at trial to the introduction of evidence on subjects covered by these Interrogatories; (ii) as an admission at trial of the relevance or materiality of any of the matters covered by these Interrogatories; or (iii) as any admission of fact.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN RE: GENERIC PHARMACEUTICALS PRICING ANTITRUST LITIGATION	MDL NO. 2724 16-MD-2724 HON. CYNTHIA M. RUFE
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: State Attorneys General Litigation	Civil Action Nos. 17-3768 19-2407

PROPOUNDED TO THE STATE OF FLORIDA

Pursuant to Rules 26 and 33 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Defendants hereby propound the following interrogatories ("Interrogatories") on the State of Florida. The State of Florida must answer each Interrogatory, fully and separately, in writing and under oath, within thirty (30) days in accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the Definitions and Instructions set forth below, and supplement such answers as required by Rule 26(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

DEFINITIONS

The definitions used herein are chosen for clarification and the convenience of the parties, and should not be construed as admissions.

1. "Action" means the above-captioned action, In re Generic Pharmaceuticals Pricing Antitrust Litig., No. 16-md-2724 (CMR) (E.D. Pa.).

2. "Complaint" means all operative complaints filed by Plaintiff State, which seek damages in this Action including, but not limited to, any operative complaint filed by Plaintiff State after these Interrogatories are served.

3. "Damages" means the sum of money being sought as the result of any loss, harm or injury alleged in the Complaints to have been caused by the direct or indirect acts and/or omissions of one or more Defendants.

4. "Defendants" means the defendants named in the Complaints in this Action.

5. "Identify" when used in conjunction with a State Agency shall mean the State Agency's full name, current or last known business address, and telephone number, as well as the State Agency's current address for the receipt of service of legal process, if different than the foregoing.

6. "Plaintiff State" means the State of Florida.

7. "State Agency" means You and any agency, healthcare plan, branch, institution, department, board, commission, agency, program, service, bureau, trust fund, medical care facility, state Medicaid plan, state Medicare plan, state department of corrections, state university hospital, state mental hospital, dispensary, pharmacy, pharmacy benefits manager, institute, or body of Plaintiff State of any and all types.

8. "You," "Your" or "Yours" means Plaintiff State and the Attorney General's office of the State of Florida and its officials, employees, representatives, agents, and attorneys.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Each Interrogatory shall be answered as completely as possible based upon Your knowledge from all sources, including information that is known by You, available to You, or in Your possession.

2. These Interrogatories should be construed as broadly as possible with all doubts resolved in favor of providing full and complete answers to these Interrogatories. The words "all," "any," "each," "and," and "or" shall be construed conjunctively or disjunctively as necessary to make these Interrogatories inclusive rather than exclusive. Except as specifically provided in these Interrogatories, words imparting the singular shall include the plural and vice versa, where appropriate.

3. Unless otherwise specified or agreed among Plaintiff State and Defendants and/or ordered by the Court, the "Relevant Time Period" is January 1, 2006 to the present. The use of this relevant time period does not constitute an admission that it is the relevant time period for all discovery in the Action. Moreover, if the Court orders Defendants to respond to any discovery request by Plaintiff State for any time period outside of the time period specified herein, Plaintiff State also shall respond to these Interrogatories for the time period so specified by the Court.

4. Plaintiff State's answers to these Interrogatories must comply with all requirements set forth by Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 33.

5. Each Interrogatory shall be deemed continuing, so as to require supplemental answers when You learn or acquire information responsive to these Interrogatories that has not been previously provided, as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(e). Such supplemental answers are to be served as soon as reasonably possible after the information is obtained. The date such additional information came into Your possession shall be specified, as well as the identity of the individuals providing such additional information to the person preparing the answer. Additionally, in the event Plaintiff State further amends its Complaint and/or files new Complaints in this Action, Plaintiff State shall promptly supplement its responses as appropriate.

6. If an objection is made to any part of the Interrogatory, the answer shall state that there is an objection to the Interrogatory, provide the legal and factual basis for such objection with specificity, and answer the Interrogatory to the extent it is not objectionable. No part of an Interrogatory shall be left unanswered merely because an objection is made to another part of the Interrogatory.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

7. If in any answer, information covered by these Interrogatories, or sub-part thereof, is withheld by reason of a claim of privilege, the person asserting the privilege shall, in the objection to the Interrogatory, or sub-part thereof, set forth in writing all information required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(5) or such information as otherwise agreed by the parties. If any portion of any answer to these Interrogatories is withheld under the claim of privilege, any non-privileged portion of such answer must be provided.

8. If You cannot answer any Interrogatory fully and completely after exercising due diligence to secure the full information to do so, please so state and answer such Interrogatory to the extent possible. Specify Your inability to answer the remainder, stating whatever information or knowledge You have concerning the unanswered portion and describing all efforts made by You to obtain the information necessary to answer the Interrogatory.

9. If You conclude that any Interrogatory, Definition, or Instruction is ambiguous, then state in Your answer the matter deemed ambiguous and the construction You employed in answering the Interrogatory.

10. These Definitions, Instructions, and Interrogatories are submitted for the purposes of discovery; they shall not be construed (i) as a waiver or abridgment of any argument or defense, any objection to discovery requests, or any objections that may be made at trial to the introduction of evidence on subjects covered by these Interrogatories; (ii) as an admission at trial of the relevance or materiality of any of the matters covered by these Interrogatories; or (iii) as any admission of fact.

INTERROGATORY ADDRESSED TO PLAINTIFF STATE

THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: State Attorneys General Litigation	Civil Action No. 17-3768

CERTAIN DEFENDANTS' SECOND SET OF REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS TO PLAINTIFF STATES

Pursuant to Rules 26 and 34 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, undersigned Defendants hereby request that the Plaintiff States each individually respond to the following requests for production and produce the documents and things identified below for examination, inspection, and copying, within thirty (30) days after the date of service of these requests.

DEFINITIONS

1. "You," "Your" or "Yours" means any entities, departments, subdivisions, officials, employees, representatives, or agents of the States of Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming; the Commonwealths of Kentucky, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Puerto Rico, Virginia; and the District of Columbia, as well as any other public or private entity on whose behalf You purport to assert a claim, whether direct or assigned (collectively, "Plaintiff States," and individually, "Plaintiff State"), including but not limited to the following entities and their respective officials, employees, representatives, agents or attorneys:

(a) Any Plaintiff State-owned or operated hospital, clinic, and/or outpatient care center;

(b) Any Plaintiff State health and human services commission;

(c) Any other Plaintiff State governmental department or entity, including all past and present elected officials, employees, and representatives; and

(d) Any other state agency, contractor, or intermediary that administers, oversees, or implements state or federally funded health care programs providing coverage, assistance, or subsidies, in each Plaintiff State.

2. "Action" means the above-captioned action, In re Generic Pharmaceuticals Pricing Antitrust Litig., No. 16-md-2724 (CMR) (E.D. Pa.).

3. The terms "all," "any," and "each" shall be construed as encompassing any and all; "every" means each and every. The connectives "and" and "or" shall be construed either disjunctively or conjunctively as necessary to bring within the scope of the discovery request all responses that might otherwise be construed to be outside of its scope. The use of the singular form of any word includes the plural and vice versa.

4. "Communication(s)" means any transmission or transfer of information of any kind, whether orally, electronically, in writing, or in any other manner, at any time or place, and under any circumstance whatsoever.

5. "Complaint" means the operative complaint(s) filed by You or on Your behalf in this Action including, but not limited to, any operative complaint filed by You or on Your behalf after these Requests are served.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

6. The terms "concerning," "refer," "relate," "referring" and "relating" mean to comprise, reflect, record, memorialize, embody, discuss, contradict, evaluate, consider, review or report on the subject matter of the Request or to have been created, generated or maintained in connection with or as a result of the subject matter of the Request.

7. "Defendants" means any Defendant named in any operative complaint in this Action, together with any present or former directors, officers, employees, agents, or other persons acting or purporting to act on behalf of any Defendant.

8. "Document(s)" is used in its broadest sense and is meant to include all items encompassed by Rule 34 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure including, without limitation, electronically stored information ("ESI") and electronic or computerized databases and compilations, and voice or data recordings, no matter how any such Documents are stored. As used herein, this term shall include all forms of electronic communication, including email (from any email accounts, including any work or personal email accounts), instant messages, and text messages. A draft or non-identical copy is a separate Document within the meaning of this term. "Document" shall be construed as a Document and all attachments thereto.

9. "Drugs at Issue" refers to all drugs or pharmaceuticals that are the subject of claims asserted in any operative Complaint filed by You or on Your Behalf in this Action.

10. "Person(s)" means any natural person or any business, legal or governmental entity or association.

11. The terms "prices" and "pricing" shall be construed to mean "prices," "rebates," "discounts," "chargebacks," "fees," "price and/or unit adjustments," or any other adjustment to price.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

12. "Phone Record" means a telephone carrier production, telephone bill or statement, call or text message log, or similar document that memorializes the occurrence of phone calls or text messages.

13. "Supplemental Rebate Agreement" means any agreement, contract, or understanding that You have with any pharmaceutical manufacturer that results in the payment of any rebates, reimbursement, or other funding to You.

14. "Preferred Drug List" means any list of medications that You have approved or recommended for reimbursement.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Defendants seek production of the Documents set forth in the numbered Requests below that are in each Plaintiff State's possession, custody, or control, or in the possession, custody, or control of any entity acting on Your behalf or subject to its control regardless of location, and include, unless otherwise specifically indicated, its employees, partners, agents, representatives, commissions, boards, divisions, departments, agencies, instrumentalities, administrators, attorneys, expert witnesses and other Personnel thereof. A Document is to be deemed in Your possession, custody, or control if You (a) own such document in whole or in part; (b) have a right, by contract, statute, or otherwise, to use, inspect, examine, or copy such document on any terms; (c) have an understanding, express or implied, that You may use, inspect, examine, or copy such document on any terms; or (d) have, as a practical matter, been able to use, inspect, examine or copy such document when You sought to do so.

2. These Requests are directed to each Plaintiff State and require a separate response from each individual Plaintiff State, separately for each entity on whose behalf that State and/or its Attorney General purports to bring claims.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3. The production of a Document by one Plaintiff State does not relieve another Plaintiff State from the obligation to produce its own copy of that Document, even if the two Documents are otherwise identical.

4. All ESI shall be produced in a format mutually agreed upon by the parties or ordered by the Court.

5. Any alteration of a responsive Document, including any marginal notes, handwritten notes, underlining, date stamps, received stamps, endorsed or filed stamps, drafts, revisions, modifications, and other versions of a final Document is a separate and distinct Document and it must be produced.

6. If any responsive Document is believed to have existed but no longer exists or is otherwise unavailable, describe the Document, the reason for its loss, destruction, or unavailability, and provide the name of each Person believed by You to have present possession, custody, or control of the original and any copy thereof (if applicable).

a. In the event that any Document called for by any Request herein has been destroyed or discarded, that Document is to be identified by stating: (i) any addressor and addressee; (ii) any indicated or blind copy recipients; (iii) the Document's date, subject matter, number of pages, and attachments or appendices; (iv) all Persons to whom the Document was distributed, shown, or explained; (v) the Document's date of destruction or discard; and (vi) the Persons authorizing and carrying out such destruction or discard.

7. If production is requested of a Document that is no longer in Your possession, custody, or control, Your response should state when the Document was most recently in Your possession, custody, or control, how the Document was disposed of, and the identity of the Person or entity, if any, that is presently in possession, custody, or control of such Document.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

8. If no Document responsive to a request exists, please so state in Your response.

9. Each Document should be produced in the manner, form and position in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business, as required by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including, where applicable, any index tabs, file dividers, designations, or other information as to the location of the Documents.

10. Whenever necessary to bring within the scope of the Requests responses that might be otherwise construed to be outside the scope, construe:

a. "include," "includes," and "including" to mean "without limitation;"

b. the use of the present tense as including the past tense and vice versa; and

c. the use of the feminine, masculine, or neuter genders as including all genders.

11. For each Document requested, produce the entire original Document, along with all attachments, appendices, enclosures and exhibits, and any copies that are not identical to the original (whether because of notes made on, or attached to, such copy or otherwise), regardless of whether You consider the attachments, appendices, enclosures and exhibits to be relevant or responsive to these Requests.

12. No part of a Request may be left unanswered, or Documents not produced, merely because an objection is interposed as to any other part of a Request. Where an objection is made to any Request, or subpart thereof, the objection must state with specificity all grounds. All objections to the production of Documents requested herein must be made in writing and delivered to counsel of record for Defendants. If objection is made to any Request, the response shall state whether Documents are being withheld from inspection and production on the basis of such objection, or whether inspection and production of the responsive Documents will occur notwithstanding such objection.

13. For any Document withheld or redacted, in whole or in part, based on a claim of privilege or work product protection, the responding Plaintiff States shall comply with Rule 26 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Any privilege log shall be produced in a format and according to a schedule mutually agreed upon by the parties or ordered by the Court.

14. If a portion of any Document responsive to any Request is withheld under claim of privilege pursuant to Instruction 13, any non-privileged portion of such Document must be produced with the portion claimed to be privileged redacted.

15. Each Request should be construed independently and is not to be referenced to any other Request herein for purposes of limitation, unless one Request specifically refers to another Request.

16. If, in responding to a Request, You claim any ambiguity in interpreting either the Document Requests, or an applicable definition or instruction, such claim shall not be used as a basis for refusing to respond, but You should set forth as part of Your response the language deemed to be ambiguous and the interpretation chosen or used in responding to the Document Requests.

17. Unless otherwise specified in a specific Request, the "Relevant Time Period" applicable to these Requests is January 1, 2006 through the present or any other time period for which You seek relief, unless otherwise agreed by the parties and/or ordered by the Court or Special Master. The use of this relevant time period does not constitute an admission that it is the relevant time period for all discovery in the Action. Moreover, if the Court orders Defendants to respond to any discovery request by Plaintiff States for any time period outside of the time period specified herein, Plaintiff States also shall respond to these Requests for the time period so specified by the Court. Each request shall be interpreted to include all Documents that relate to the Relevant Time Period, even if such Documents were prepared or published outside of the Relevant Time Period. If a Document prepared before or after this period is necessary for a correct or complete understanding of any Document covered by a request, You must produce the earlier or later Document as well. If a Document is undated and the date of its preparation cannot be determined, the Document shall be produced if otherwise responsive to the request.

18. Each Plaintiff State's production shall be submitted with a transmittal letter that includes the production volume name, encryption method/software used, and passwords for any password protected files.

19. These Document Requests are continuing in nature. Any Documents or things created, discovered, obtained, or formulated by You, subsequent to Your production in response to these Requests and up to and including the time of trial, must be produced promptly to Defendants pursuant to Rule 26 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Additionally, in the event Plaintiff States further amend their Complaint and/or file new Complaints in this Action, Plaintiff States shall promptly supplement their productions as appropriate.

A Document is to be deemed in Your possession, custody, or control if You (a) own such document in whole or in part; (b) have a right, by contract, statute, or otherwise, to use, inspect, examine, or copy such document on any terms; (c) have an understanding, express or implied, that You may use, inspect, examine, or copy such document on any terms; or (d) have, as a practical matter, been able to use, inspect, examine or copy such document when You sought to do so. AMERICAN OVERSIGHT obtained by You pursuant to state authorized investigations are specifically excluded from this instruction.

2. These Requests are directed to each Plaintiff State and require a separate response from each individual Plaintiff State, separately for each entity on whose behalf that State and/or its Attorney General purports to bring claims.

3. The production of a Document by one Plaintiff State does not relieve another Plaintiff State from the obligation to produce its own copy of that Document, even if the two Documents are otherwise identical.

4. All electronically stored information shall be produced in a format mutually agreed upon by the parties or ordered by the Court.

5. Any alteration of a responsive Document, including any marginal notes, handwritten notes, underlining, date stamps, received stamps, endorsed or filed stamps, drafts, revisions, modifications, and other versions of a final Document is a separate and distinct Document and it must be produced.

6. If any responsive Document is believed to have existed but no longer exists or is otherwise unavailable, describe the Document, the reason for its loss, destruction, or unavailability, and provide the name of each Person believed by You to have present possession, custody, or control of the original and any copy thereof (if applicable).

a. In the event that any Document called for by any Request herein has been destroyed or discarded, that Document is to be identified by stating: (i) any addressor and addressee; (ii) any indicated or blind copy recipients; (iii) the Document's date, subject matter, number of pages, and attachments or appendices; (iv) all Persons to whom the Document was distributed, shown, or explained; (v) the Document's date of destruction or discard; and (vi) the Persons authorizing and carrying out such destruction or discard.

7. If production is requested of a Document that is no longer in Your possession, custody, or control, Your response should state when the Document was most recently in Your possession, custody, or control, how the Document was disposed of, and the identity of the person or entity, if any, that is presently in possession, custody, or control of such Document.

8. If no Document responsive to a request exists, please so state in Your response.

9. Each Document should be produced in the manner, form and position in which they are kept in the ordinary course of business, as required by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including, where applicable, any index tabs, file dividers, designations, or other information as to the location of the Documents.

10. Whenever necessary to bring within the scope of the Requests responses that might be otherwise construed to be outside the scope, construe:

a. "include," "includes," and "including" to mean "without limitation;"

b. the use of the present tense as including the past tense and vice versa; and

c. the use of the feminine, masculine, or neuter genders as including all genders.

11. For each Document requested, produce the entire original Document, along with all attachments, appendices, enclosures and exhibits, and any copies that are not identical to the original (whether because of notes made on, or attached to, such copy or otherwise), regardless of whether You consider the attachments, appendices, enclosures and exhibits to be relevant or responsive to these Requests.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

12. No part of a Request may be left unanswered, or Documents not produced, merely because an objection is interposed as to any other part of a Request. Where an objection is made to any Request, or subpart thereof, the objection must state with specificity all grounds. All objections to the production of Documents requested herein must be made in writing and delivered to counsel of record for Defendants. If objection is made to any Request, the response shall state whether Documents are being withheld from inspection and production on the basis of such objection, or whether inspection and production of the responsive Documents will occur notwithstanding such objection.

13. For any Document withheld or redacted, in whole or in part, based on a claim of privilege or work product protection, the responding Plaintiff States shall comply with Rule 26 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Any privilege log shall be produced in a format and according to a schedule mutually agreed upon by the parties or ordered by the Court.

14. During the pendency of the stay ordered in Pretrial Order No. 44, You may redact or withhold Documents pursuant to paragraphs 3 and 4 of that Order.

15. If a portion of any Document responsive to any Request is withheld under claim of privilege pursuant to Instruction 12, any non-privileged portion of such Document must be produced with the portion claimed to be privileged redacted.

16. Each Request should be construed independently and is not to be referenced to any other Request herein for purposes of limitation, unless one Request specifically refers to another Request.

17. If, in responding to a Request, You claim any ambiguity in interpreting either the Document Requests, or an applicable definition or instruction, such claim shall not be used as a basis for refusing to respond, but You should set forth as part of Your response the language deemed to be ambiguous and the interpretation chosen or used in responding to the Document Requests.

18. Unless otherwise specified in a specific Request, the "Relevant Time Period" applicable to these Requests is January 1, 2012 through March 2, 2016, unless otherwise agreed by the parties and/or ordered by the Court or Special Master. Each request shall be interpreted to include all Documents that relate to the Relevant Time Period, even if such Documents were prepared or published outside of the Relevant Time Period. If a Document prepared before or after this period is necessary for a correct or complete understanding of any Document covered by a request, You must produce the earlier or later Document as well. If a Document is undated and the date of its preparation cannot be determined, the Document shall be produced if otherwise responsive to the request.

19. Each Plaintiff State's production shall be submitted with a transmittal letter that includes the production volume name, encryption method/software used, and passwords for any password protected files.

20. These Document Requests are continuing in nature. Any Documents or things created, discovered, obtained, or formulated by You, subsequent to Your production in response to these Requests and up to and including the time of trial, must be produced promptly to Defendants pursuant to Rule 26 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Additionally, in the event Plaintiff States further amend their Complaint and/or file new Complaints in this Action, Plaintiff States shall promptly supplement their productions as appropriate.

IN RE: GENERIC PHARMACEUTICALS PRICING ANTITRUST LITIGATION	MDL 2724 16-MD-2724 HON. CYNTHIA M. RUFE
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: State Attorneys General Litigation	Civil Action No. 17-3768

PLAINTIFF STATE OF FLORIDA'S RESPONSES AND OBJECTIONS TO DEFENDANTS' FIRST SET OF REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS TO PLAINTIFF STATES

The State of Florida, by its Attorney General (the "Attorney General" or "Plaintiff State"), pursuant to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the Local Rules of this Court, submits these responses and objections to Defendants' First Set of Requests for Production of Documents to Plaintiff States, dated August 31, 2018 (the "Requests").

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. These responses and objections are based on information presently available to the Attorney General, and are made without prejudice to, and are not a waiver of, the Attorney General's rights to rely on other facts or documents at trial.

2. The Attorney General will produce responsive documents only to the extent that such documents are in its possession, custody, or control. This action was brought by the Attorney General pursuant to the Attorney General's statutory authority to enforce state and federal antitrust laws. This action was not brought by any other public officials, state agencies, or governmental entities; such persons are not parties to this litigation. The Attorney General is seeking relief on behalf of certain entities in its proprietary capacity. To the extent Defendants want discovery from any non-parties, Defendants must seek such discovery pursuant to Rule 45 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

3. The Attorney General reserves the right to supplement, clarify, revise, or correct any or all of its responses and objections, and to assert additional objections or privileges, in subsequent supplemental response(s). Where privileged documents are protected by applicable state laws or rules, the fact that the Attorney General's response does not specifically delineate a state law or rule shall not be deemed to be a waiver of that privilege.

4. Any response or objection by the Attorney General to a document request is not a representation that documents exist, but only that documents will be produced if any documents: 1) exist, 2) can be located during a reasonable search, 3) can be searched and indexed in accordance with a Court order, and 4) are not privileged or otherwise protected from disclosure.

5. No response or objection should be construed as an admission or acknowledgment that a document request: calls for information that is relevant to the subject matter of this litigation, is proportional to the needs of the case, or that any responsive documents would be admissible at any trial.

6. Instruction 1, through which "Defendants seek production of the Documents set forth in the numbered Requests below," also states: "The Documents obtained by You pursuant to state authorized investigations are specifically excluded from this instruction." Consistent with that instruction, to the extent that potentially responsive documents in the possession, custody or control of the Attorney General were obtained pursuant to investigations that are authorized by state statute, any such documents will not be reviewed for potential production.

7. For any response where the Attorney General does not make an offer of production and does not state whether it is withholding documents based on its objections, then pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 34(b)(2)(C), the Attorney General will meet and confer with Defendants regarding the request and the parameters of a search of reasonable scope and will, at an appropriate time, amend these responses and objections to state whether any responsive materials are being withheld.

8. Subject to the above statements, and the general and specific objections set forth below, the Attorney General will produce responsive, non-privileged documents following a meet and confer process in accordance with the schedule set forth by the Court or as agreed among the parties and pursuant to a reasonable search protocol, protective order, and agreement on production of electronically stored information.

GENERAL OBJECTIONS

9. The Attorney General objects to Defendants' Requests, including the Instructions and Definitions to the extent that they attempt to impose any obligation on the Attorney General State greater than those imposed or authorized by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Local Civil Rules of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, or any applicable order of the Court.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

10. The Attorney General objects to the Requests, including the Instructions and Definitions, to the extent they seek documents that are not relevant to this litigation. The Attorney General alleges a market allocation and price-fixing conspiracy that increased prices for generic drugs, thereby increasing the cost of generic drugs paid for by state agencies and Florida consumers represented by the Attorney General.

11. The Attorney General objects to Defendants' Instruction to the extent that they request premature production of expert materials, or production of expert materials not subject to discovery under any applicable order of the Court or Rule 26 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

12. The Attorney General objects to Defendants' Instructions to the extent they request production of documents that are protected from disclosure by the attorney-client privilege, the attorney work-product doctrine, the common interest privilege, or any other applicable privilege or any statute governing confidentiality of information.

13. The Attorney General objects to the Instructions to the extent that they request production of personally identifiable information or information subject to confidentiality by federal or state law.

14. The Attorney General objects to Instruction 2 to the extent it seeks a separate response for each entity on whose behalf the Attorney General purports to bring claims. This action was brought by the Attorney General pursuant to the Attorney General's statutory authority to enforce state and federal antitrust laws. The Attorney General is seeking relief on behalf of certain entities in its proprietary capacity and will respond once on their behalf.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

15. The Attorney General objects to Definition 1 ("You," "Your" or "Yours") as factually incorrect, overbroad and unduly burdensome, and to the extent it purports to enlarge, expand, or in any way alter the plain meaning and scope of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The Attorney General is the entity that brought this action and is responding to this request, and is not comprised of "any entities, departments, subdivisions, officials, employees, representatives, or agents" other than the Attorney General. Subject to and without waiving the above objections and general objections, the Attorney General will meet and confer with Defendants regarding the appropriate definition of "You," "Your" or "Yours."

16. The Attorney General objects to Definition 15 ("Document") as overbroad and unduly burdensome, and to the extent it purports to enlarge, expand, or in any way alter the plain meaning and scope of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

17. The Attorney General objects to Instruction 1 to the extent that documents are "deemed" to be in its possession, custody or control as factually incorrect, overbroad and unduly burdensome, and to the extent it purports to enlarge, expand, or in any way alter the plain meaning and scope of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

18. The Attorney General objects to the Requests to the extent they seek documents and data concerning pharmaceutical products other than the Drugs at Issue as defined in the Requests. Requests calling for the production of documents relating to brand name or therapeutic equivalents of a Drug at Issue are not relevant, not proportional to the needs of the case, overbroad, more burdensome than beneficial to collect and produce, and available to Defendants from a source that is more convenient, less burdensome, and less expensive to collect and produce.

19. The Attorney General objects to Defendants' Requests for such "other drug" information and, in particular, Defendants' requests concerning relevant market and brand product(s) are overly broad, unduly burdensome, and not proportional to the needs of the case.

20. The Attorney General objects to the definition of "Relevant Time Period" to the extent that it seeks to limit the Attorney General's relief to the time period January 1, 2012 through March 2, 2016.

21. The Attorney General expressly incorporates these General Objections into each response below. A response may repeat any of the aforementioned Objections for emphasis or otherwise. The failure to repeat any of the aforementioned Objections in a particular response does not waive any objection of those general objections.

22. The Attorney General objects to the Requests, including the Instructions and Definitions to the extent they call for legal conclusions.

23. The Attorney General objects to the Requests to the extent that they impermissibly seek the premature and non-reciprocal disclosure of trial experts and expert information, or that require the Attorney General to set forth factual analyses or theories that may be subject to expert testimony. In accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and applicable Court orders, the Attorney General reserves the right to introduce evidence not yet identified herein supporting the allegations. The Attorney General will disclose trial experts and produce expert information at a time agreed to by the parties or ordered by the Court.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

24. The Attorney General objects to the Requests to the extent that it seeks rebate information that is confidential pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 1396R-8. The Attorney General will withhold any documents that are confidential pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 1396R-8.

25. The Attorney General objects to the Requests, including the Instructions and Definitions, to the extent that they seek information related to third-party vendors, wholesalers, or manufacturers with which a state agency has contracts which provide that such information is confidential and/or proprietary.

COVID-19 & HIPAA Bulletin
Limited Waiver of HIPAA Sanctions and Penalties During a Nationwide Public Health Emergency

The Novel Coronavirus Disease (COVID-19) outbreak imposes additional challenges on health care providers. Often questions arise about the ability of entities covered by the HIPAA regulations to share information, including with friends and family, public health officials, and emergency personnel. As summarized in more detail below, the HIPAA Privacy Rule allows patient information to be shared to assist in nationwide public health emergencies, and to assist patients in receiving the care they need. In addition, while the HIPAA Privacy Rule is not suspended during a public health or other emergency, the Secretary of HHS may waive certain provisions of the Privacy Rule under the Project Bioshield Act of 2004 (PL 108-276) and section 1135(b)(7) of the Social Security Act.

In response to President Donald J. Trump's declaration of a nationwide emergency concerning COVID-19, and Secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) Alex M. Azar's earlier declaration of a public health emergency on January 31, 2020, Secretary Azar has exercised the authority to waive sanctions and penalties against a covered hospital that does not comply with the following provisions of the HIPAA Privacy Rule:

- the requirements to obtain a patient's agreement to speak with family members or friends involved in the patient's care. See 45 CFR 164.510(b).
- the requirement to honor a request to opt out of the facility directory. See 45 CFR 164.510(a).
- the requirement to distribute a notice of privacy practices. See 45 CFR 164.520.
- the patient's right to request privacy restrictions. See 45 CFR 164.522(a).
- the patient's right to request confidential communications. See 45 CFR 164.522(b).

The waiver became effective on March 15, 2020. When the Secretary issues such a waiver, it only applies: (1) in the emergency area identified in the public health emergency declaration; (2) to hospitals that have instituted a disaster protocol; and (3) for up to 72 hours from the time the hospital implements its disaster protocol. When the Presidential or Secretarial declaration terminates, a hospital must then comply with all the requirements of the Privacy Rule for any patient still under its care, even if 72 hours have not elapsed since implementation of its disaster protocol.

More on HIPAA Privacy and Disclosures in Emergency Situations

Even without a waiver, the HIPAA Privacy Rule always allows patient information to be shared for the following purposes and under the following conditions.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Treatment Under the Privacy Rule, covered entities may disclose, without a patient's authorization, protected health information about the patient as necessary to treat the patient or to treat a different patient. Treatment includes the coordination or management of health care and related services by one or more health care providers and others, consultation between providers, and the referral of patients for treatment. See 45 CFR §§ 164.502(a)(1)(ii), 164.506(c), and the definition of "treatment" at 164.501.

Public Health Activities The HIPAA Privacy Rule recognizes the legitimate need for public health authorities and others responsible for ensuring public health and safety to have access to protected health information that is necessary to carry out their public health mission. Therefore, the Privacy Rule permits covered entities to disclose needed protected health information without individual authorization:

- To a public health authority, such as the CDC or a state or local health department, that is authorized by law to collect or receive such information for the purpose of preventing or controlling disease, injury or disability. This would include, for example, the reporting of disease or injury; reporting vital events, such as births or deaths; and conducting public health surveillance, investigations, or interventions. A "public health authority" is an agency or authority of the United States government, a State, a territory, a political subdivision of a State or territory, or Indian tribe that is responsible for public health matters as part of its official mandate, as well as a person or entity acting under a grant of authority from, or under a contract with, a public health agency. See 45 CFR §§ 164.501 and 164.512(b)(1)(i). For example, a covered entity may disclose to the CDC protected health information on an ongoing basis as needed to report all prior and prospective cases of patients exposed to or suspected or confirmed to have COVID-19.

- At the direction of a public health authority, to a foreign government agency that is acting in collaboration with the public health authority. See 45 CFR 164.512(b)(1)(i).

- To persons at risk of contracting or spreading a disease or condition if other law, such as state law, authorizes the covered entity to notify such persons as necessary to prevent or control the spread of the disease or otherwise to carry out public health interventions or investigations. See 45 CFR 164.512(b)(1)(iv).

Disclosures to Family, Friends, and Others Involved in an Individual's Care and for Notification A covered entity may share protected health information with a patient's family members, relatives, friends, or other persons identified by the patient as involved in the patient's care. A covered entity also may share information about a patient as necessary to identify, locate, and notify family members, guardians, or anyone else responsible for the patient's care, of the patient's location, general condition, or death. This may include, where necessary to notify family members and others, the police, the press, or the public at large. See 45 CFR 164.510(b).

- The covered entity should get verbal permission from individuals or otherwise be able to reasonably infer that the patient does not object, when possible; if the individual is incapacitated or not available, covered entities may share information for these purposes if, in their professional judgment, doing so is in the patient's best interest.

- For patients who are unconscious or incapacitated: A health care provider may share relevant information about the patient with family, friends, or others involved in the patient's care or payment for care, if the health care provider determines, based on professional judgment, that doing so is in the best interests of the patient. For example, a provider may determine that it is in the best interests of an elderly patient to share relevant information with the patient's adult child, but generally could not share unrelated information about the patient's medical history without permission.
- In addition, a covered entity may share protected health information with disaster relief organizations that, like the American Red Cross, are authorized by law or by their charters to assist in disaster relief efforts, for the purpose of coordinating the notification of family members or other persons involved in the patient's care, of the patient's location, general condition, or death. It is unnecessary to obtain a patient's permission to share the information in this situation if doing so would interfere with the organization's ability to respond to the emergency.

Disclosures to Prevent or Lessen a Serious and Imminent Threat Health care providers may share patient information with anyone as necessary to prevent or lessen a serious and imminent threat to the health and safety of a person or the public – consistent with applicable law (such as state statutes, regulations, or case law) and the provider's standards of ethical conduct. See 45 CFR 164.512(j). Thus, providers may disclose a patient's health information to anyone who is in a position to prevent or lesson the serious and imminent threat, including family, friends, caregivers, and law enforcement without a patient's permission. HIPAA expressly defers to the professional judgment of health professionals in making determinations about the nature and severity of the threat to health and safety. See 45 CFR 164.512(j).

Disclosures to the Media or Others Not Involved in the Care of the Patient/Notification In general, except in the limited circumstances described elsewhere in this Bulletin, affirmative reporting to the media or the public at large about an identifiable patient, or the disclosure to the public or media of specific information about treatment of an identifiable patient, such as specific tests, test results or details of a patient's illness, may not be done without the patient's written authorization (or the written authorization of a personal representative who is a person legally authorized to make health care decisions for the patient). See 45 CFR 164.508 for the requirements for a HIPAA authorization. Where a patient has not objected to or restricted the release of protected health information, a covered hospital or other health care facility may, upon a request to disclose information about a particular patient asked for by name, release limited facility directory information to acknowledge an individual is a patient at the facility, and may provide basic information about the patient's condition in general terms (e.g., critical or stable, deceased, or treated and released). Covered entities may also disclose information when the patient is incapacitated, if the disclosure is believed to be in the best interest of the patient and is consistent with any prior expressed preferences of the patient. See 45 CFR 164.510(a).

Minimum Necessary For most disclosures, a covered entity must make reasonable efforts to limit the information disclosed to that which is the "minimum necessary" to accomplish the purpose. (Minimum necessary requirements do not apply to disclosures to health care providers for treatment purposes.) Covered entities may rely on representations from a public health authority or other public official that the requested information is the minimum necessary for the purpose, when that reliance is reasonable under the circumstances. For example, a covered entity may rely on representations from the CDC that the protected health information requested by the CDC about all patients exposed to or suspected or confirmed to have COVID-19 is the minimum necessary for the public health purpose. In addition, internally, covered entities should continue to apply their role-based access policies to limit access to protected health information to only those workforce members who need it to carry out their duties. See 45 CFR §§ 164.502(b), 164.514(d).

Safeguarding Patient Information

In an emergency situation, covered entities must continue to implement reasonable safeguards to protect patient information against intentional or unintentional impermissible uses and disclosures. Further, covered entities (and their business associates) must apply the administrative, physical, and technical safeguards of the HIPAA Security Rule to electronic protected health information.

HIPAA Applies Only to Covered Entities and Business Associates

The HIPAA Privacy Rule applies to disclosures made by employees, volunteers, and other members of a covered entity's or business associate's workforce. Covered entities are health plans, health care clearinghouses, and those health care providers that conduct one or more covered health care transactions electronically, such as transmitting health care claims to a health plan. Business associates generally are persons or entities (other than members of the workforce of a covered entity) that perform functions or activities on behalf of, or provide certain services to, a covered entity that involve creating, receiving, maintaining, or transmitting protected health information. Business associates also include subcontractors that create, receive, maintain, or transmit protected health information on behalf of another business associate. The Privacy Rule does not apply to disclosures made by entities or other persons who are not covered entities or business associates (although such persons or entities are free to follow the standards on a voluntary basis if desired). There may be other state or federal rules that apply.

Business Associates

A business associate of a covered entity (including a business associate that is a subcontractor) may make disclosures permitted by the Privacy Rule, such as to a public health authority, on behalf of a covered entity or another business associate to the extent authorized by its business associate agreement.

Hi James,
Attached is a draft brief of an emergency order for DBPR. The Secretary's Office decided to make it as broad as possible, for both business and professional licenses, so we omitted the details on which particular licenses are coming up for renewal. Please advise.

Team –

At the Governor's press conference re: COVID-19 response this afternoon, the Governor announced he is directing all agencies to suspend the state license and registration renewal requirements for all existing professional licenses for a period of 30 days. The Governor also gave specific direction to other agencies on similar license matters that do not impact DBPR.

DS Page and DS Johnston – will you please identify through your divisions any license renewal deadline that would occur in March or April and provide those for reference in a potential agency order and related planning/communications about the suspension?

GC Treadwell – will you please coordinate with your team on a draft agency order that would incorporate this action formally under authority of EO 20-52?

Thank you.

What you Should Know

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from the COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

Prevention There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. As a reminder, the Department always recommends everyday preventive actions to help impede the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;
- If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local county health department (CHD) and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the county health department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

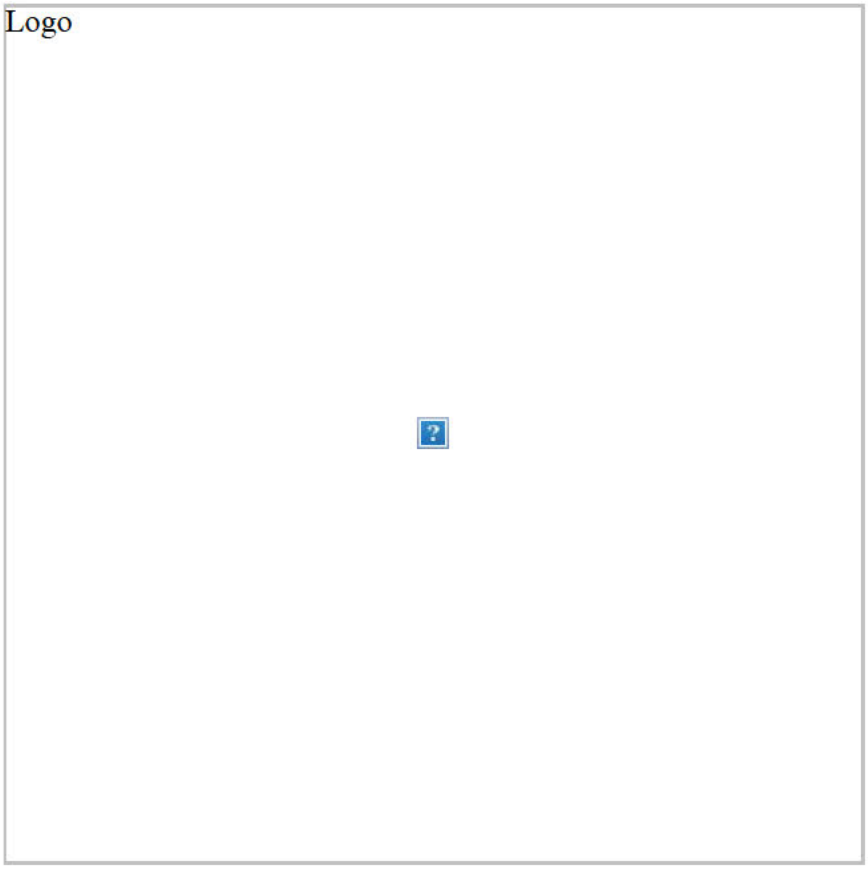
local governing bodies to meet virtually if they are prevented from having an in-person meeting of a quorum due to quarantines, bans on public gatherings, or elected official illnesses. As our municipal attorneys discussed the many impacts the Coronavirus may have on cities, this seemed like one that was not yet getting attention.



We invited the Governor to use us as a resource in addressing the issue, and we will let you know if we receive a response to this request. Hopefully, we will not need such measures, but better to be safe than sorry. And with the cases identified in Miami today and the potentially long-lasting nature of this threat, it appears that at least some of our cities may be facing this illness.

The Honorable Governor Ron DeSantis
Executive Office of Governor Ron DeSantis

RE: Emergency Response Recommendation to Address Coronavirus Disease 2019 ("COVID-19") – Section 286.011, Florida Statutes: Local Government Meeting Requirements in the Event of Quarantines, Isolation Directives, or Further Community Spread.

Dear Governor DeSantis:

Our law firm has the honor of serving as the City Attorney for nineteen municipalities, and as outside counsel for dozens of other local governments, throughout the State of Florida. We write to request your issuance of a limited emergency exemption from Section 286.011(1), Florida Statutes, which may serve as an obstacle to the proper and effective functioning and emergency response of local governments in the event of quarantines, isolation directives, and further community spread of COVID-19.

As of the writing of this letter, the CDC has reported community spread of the virus within the United States and the Florida Department of Health has announced there are three presumptive positive cases within Florida. The CDC's website currently states that "more cases of COVID-19 are likely to be identified in the coming days…It's also likely that person-to-person spread will continue to occur…and that at some point, widespread transmission of COVID-19 in the United States will occur."

On March 1, 2020, you issued Executive Order Number 20-51 designating the Florida Department of Health as the lead state agency to coordinate emergency response activities among the various state agencies and local governments, and directed the State Health Officer to take any actions necessary to protect the public health. The Executive Order states in Section 8:

> "I hereby direct the Florida Department of Health to make its own determinations as to quarantine, isolation and other public health interventions as permitted under Florida law."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000706

Section 286.011, Florida Statutes, requires that all meetings of the governing boards of local governments at which official acts are to be taken be open to the public. The Florida Attorney General's Office (the "AGO") has consistently interpreted this statute to require the physical presence of a quorum of the local governing board in order to hold a local governing board meeting at which official acts are to be taken.[1] Specifically, the AGO has also opined that the participation of an absent member in a meeting by telephone conference should be permitted only in extraordinary circumstances and when a quorum of the board members is physically present at the meeting.[2] Further, the AGO has opined that local governments may not alter the quorum requirements to allow members who are participating through electronic means and not physically present to be counted toward the quorum,[3] and they are not authorized to provide that participation by a member of the board by electronic media technology constitutes his or her physical presence for purposes of establishing a quorum.[4]

We are concerned that future directives from Federal and State health officials declaring quarantines may prevent local governments from holding board meetings at which the physical attendance of local elected officials is required to conform with Section 286.011. Encouraging the public to attend such meetings may also conflict with such quarantines and could potentially promote further community spread. During this health emergency, permitting elected officials to participate telephonically or through electronic means, such as a webinar type meeting (with the public being able to either call or log in to listen and/or watch) would best serve the public interest and protect the health, safety and welfare of the citizens and residents of Florida.

In light of the expected spread of COVID-19 and the CDC's anticipation of possible widespread transmission, we respectfully urge you to order an emergency exemption for communities where community spread is occurring, a quarantine has been imposed, or health authorities are recommending isolation or the avoidance of public gatherings. We would request that these communities be exempt from Section 286.011(1), Florida Statutes, so that official acts may be taken during meetings where a quorum of the governing board is only telephonically or electronically present. This exemption will enable these local governments to continue to effectively operate and to timely address emergency situations affecting the public health, welfare or safety. Such an exemption is similar to the existing exemption in Section 286.0114, Fla. Stat., related to the public's opportunity to be heard. It would enable Florida's local governments to continue to hold governing body meetings in the event physically present public gatherings in their respective jurisdictions are banned by Federal, State or County directives to address COVID-19.

AT THE CROSSROADS OF BUSINESS, GOVERNMENT & THE LAW

MEMORANDUM

To: Clients, Colleagues and Friends

From: Local Government Practice Group
Weiss Serota Helfman Cole & Bierman, P.L.

Date: March 13, 2020

Re: Update on Sunshine Law Issues and Public Meetings

In light of the current public health emergency due to COVID-19, government and health officials are recommending that the public avoid any large public gatherings. It is possible that officials may recommend cancellation of all public gatherings. Notwithstanding the recommendation to restrict or cancel public gatherings, a local government's governing body may still need to hold public meetings to address essential public business.

In anticipation of this possible scenario, and to avoid any uncertainty, on March 3, 2020, our firm requested that Governor DeSantis grant an exemption from Section 286.011, Fla. Stat., so that official acts may be taken during meetings where a quorum of the governing body is only telephonically or electronically present. As of the date of this memorandum, Governor DeSantis has not responded to our request; however, discussions with his office and other state officials regarding this important issue are ongoing. This memo may be updated or revised if we receive further guidance from the state, or based on other developments. At this time, the Florida Legislature continues to meet in person.

In light of the uncertainty regarding a governing body's ability to meet at a public meeting, we are providing the following guidance to our municipal clients regarding the ability of a governing body to hold public meetings telephonically or electronically ("virtual public meetings"):

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Sunshine Law Requirements.

The Florida Constitution requires that public meetings be "open and noticed to the public." See Article I, Section 24(b) (the "Sunshine Law"). The Florida Legislature is empowered to provide by general law for an exemption of meetings from these requirements, if the law "states with specificity the public necessity justifying the exemption" and "is no broader than necessary to accomplish the stated purpose of the law." See Article I, Section 24(c).

The Florida Legislature adopted Section 286.011, Fla. Stat., echoing the requirements of the Florida Constitution and requiring meetings to be "open to the public at all times" following the provision of reasonable notice, and requiring the keeping of minutes of such meetings. It has created limited exemptions from the Sunshine Law for meetings related to litigation, security, and collective bargaining. It has not adopted any law addressing meetings during emergencies. Virtual public meetings are not specifically authorized or prohibited by the Florida Constitution or the Florida Statutes, and no caselaw has addressed this issue.

However, the Florida Attorney General has repeatedly opined that in order to comply with Section 286.011, Fla. Stat., a local governing body must have a physical quorum present in order to hold a public meeting at which action may be taken. See, e.g., Attorney General Opinion 2010-34, August 25, 2010. These opinions, however, have been in a non-emergency context.

Restrictions on Public Gatherings.

The recommendation to limit public gatherings was issued in response to a public health emergency and state of emergency declared by Governor DeSantis for the State of Florida (Executive Orders 20-51 and 20-52), as well as an emergency declared by both Miami-Dade and Broward Counties during the week of March 9, 2020. The Governor's Executive Order 20-52 acknowledges that special duties and responsibilities placed on state, regional and local agencies in responding to the emergency may require them to suspend the application of the statutes, rules, ordinances and orders they administer. Section 4(D) of Executive Order 20-52 provides for political subdivisions within the State to "waive the procedures and formalities otherwise required . . . by law pertaining to:

1) Performance of public work and taking whatever prudent action is necessary to ensure the health, safety and welfare of the community;
2) Entering into contracts . . .;
3) Incurring obligations;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000710

4) Employment of permanent and temporary workers;
5) Utilization of volunteer workers;
6) Rental of equipment;
7) Acquisition and distribution, with or without compensation, of supplies, materials and facilities; and
8) Appropriation and expenditure of public funds."

The Executive Order thus authorizes a local government to take prudent action to ensure the health, safety, and welfare of the community, which could include holding virtual public meetings.

During this declared health emergency, compliance with the physical quorum and public attendance requirements could jeopardize the health of the governing body members and the general public. The declared emergency therefore impedes a governing body's ability to meet the Attorney General's guidance under the Sunshine Law. Literal compliance with both the health recommendations and the Attorney General Opinions could prevent the governing body from performing essential public business.

Recommendations For Substantial Compliance with the Sunshine Law During This Emergency.

Local governments vary greatly in their population and scope, and a meeting of a small city commission might involve the gathering of only a few dozen persons while a meeting of a larger government might routinely draw more than 100 persons together. The circumstances of these governments will also vary; some governments may have active and documented cases of COVID-19 in or near their jurisdiction while others may not. Technological abilities vary as well. In short, different cities may make different choices in this emergency.

Some cities may desire to hold virtual public meetings in this emergency. In light of the Attorney General opinions and the purpose of the Sunshine Law, in order to conduct essential public business and meet the conflicting demands of this emergency, we believe that a governing body should be allowed to hold a virtual public meeting (with no members physically present) by: (1) properly noticing the meeting, (2) taking minutes, and (3) making the meeting open to the public through technological means that are made available to the public, such as by teleconference or online video-conference.

Matters to be discussed or decided at such a meeting should be limited to essential matters that are related to the public health, safety and welfare. Findings and a record should be made of the specific public necessity justifying the virtual public meeting.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
FL-GOV-20-0899-A-000711

The agenda items should be limited to those public necessities so that the meeting is, as indicated by Section 24(b) of the Florida Constitution, "no broader than necessary to accomplish the stated purpose" of having it as a virtual public meeting. At this time, we would also recommend that no land use or zoning matters requiring public hearings or quasi-judicial hearings should be handled in this manner. These recommended restrictions result in a narrowly tailored virtual public meeting that meets the intent of the Sunshine Law as fully as possible under the circumstances.

The governing body's steps to substantially comply with the Sunshine Law's requirements as stated above would allow for the public's essential business to continue, and provide the public with reasonable, safe access to such a public meeting in conformance with the recommendation to avoid public gatherings.

What you Should Know

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes are more likely to develop serious illness.

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to the virus. The Department recommends everyday preventive actions to help stop the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;
- If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and
- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

The CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider and local CHD and mention their recent travel or close contact.

If a person has had close contact wi h someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from this area or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the CHD. The health care provider will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

Subject: TALKING POINTS NEEDED MON (tomorrow) MORNING for Dr. Alonso in DOH-Palm Beach

Alberto and DOH CO Team,

I assume you are all aware of this situation, but if you are not, in short, a women in Pennsylvania, confirmed with COVID-19, was displaying symptoms when she attended the ACTRIMS Conference (Americas Committee for Treatment and Research in Multiple Sclerosis) on 2/28 at the West Palm Beach Convention Center in Palm Beach County.

Obviously this is going to cause a great deal of panic, and a huge amount of media attention as everyone is going to want to know details about this woman, who she interacted with at the conference, what hotel she stayed at, what restaurants she ate at, etc, etc. Who should be concerned, what should people do, etc, etc.

Dr. Alonso is having a closed meeting with Discovery of the Palm Beaches & ACTRIMS tomorrow (Monday 3/9) at 1:30pm. She expects the media could be waiting for her after this meeting, and she wants to know what she should be allowed to say / talking points. I also would like to be as prepared as possible for any answers we need to give about this.

Because this now makes the situation more of a community spread, she would like to say that this is not a concern for the general population, and that the Department of Health is only focused on people who this woman may have interacted with at the convention center on 2/28, and that what people should do to monitor for symptoms etc, until the contagious period has passed, etc, and be prepared to say why we are not concerned with anywhere else she was, etc, etc.

Please see below for more info.

Dr. Alonso and I will both have our cells nearby today if you need to speak with me or her. Otherwise, please get back to me by sometime tomorrow morning.

Thanks

Alex

COVID-19 Daily Talking Points
March 8, 2020

The Florida Department of Health's highest priority at this time is controlling the spread of COVID-19 and ensuring anyone who is likely to spread it is appropriately identified, treated and isolated.

While the risk for infection remains relatively low, with confirmed cases of Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) in Florida, the Department is urging residents to stay informed on how to protect themselves and their communities from COVID-19.

The Department encourages everyone to seek medical attention and diagnosis if they suspect they have contracted COVID-19 or come into contact with someone who has COVID-19.

The Department's dedicated COVID-19 webpage at www.FloridaHealth.gov/COVID-19 remains the best and most up-to-date resource for information and guidance regarding COVID-19 in Florida.

Governor DeSantis is working closely with state agencies and the Department to monitor, prepare and prevent the spread of this virus.

The Department of Health updates Florida's COVID-19 information page daily. Please visit FloridaHealth.gov/ COVID-19/ for the latest information.

Yesterday and today, March 7, the Department announced 4 new presumptive positive Florida COVID-19 cases. The individuals are isolated and being appropriately cared for.

To date, the Department has released the following information on COVID-19 cases and testing:

- 108 tests in state results pending
- 118 negatives
- 17 Florida cases (16 Florida residents)
    - 11 diagnosed in Florida
    - 5 diagnosed and isolated in another state
    - 1 confirmed positive (non-Florida resident)
- 1038 people monitored to date
- 280 of that 1038 are currently being monitored

The Florida Department of Health is actively involved in enhanced surveillance for respiratory illness that may be COVID-19. Epidemiologists will follow up on any suspected cases that meet criteria for COVID-19 to arrange for testing when needed and monitor contacts of any confirmed cases, if they occur.

The Florida Department of Health will communicate regularly with the public and health care providers with updates on COVID-19 and other respiratory illnesses.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Everyone plays a part in lowering the impact within our communities and workplaces – taking every day preventative actions helps to impede the spread of respiratory diseases such as COVID-19. Preventative actions include:

- Washing your hands frequently with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, and after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing. If soap and water are not available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol.
- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick.
- Staying home when you are sick. This message cannot be emphasized enough.
- Employees who have symptoms of acute respiratory illness are recommended to stay home and not come to work until they are free of fever (100.4° F or greater using an oral thermometer), signs of a fever, and any other symptoms for at least 24 hours, without the use of fever-reducing or other symptom-altering medicines (e.g. cough suppressants). Employees should notify their supervisor and stay home if they are sick.
- Before traveling take certain steps:
    - Check the CDC's Traveler's Health Notices for the latest guidance and recommendations for each country to which you will travel.
    - Employees who become sick while traveling must understand that they should notify their supervisor and should promptly call a healthcare provider for advice if needed.

The Department of Health's has set up a dedicated COVID-19 Call Center for questions about this virus. Anyone with questions may call 1-(866) 779-6121 or email COVID-19@flhealth.gov. The Call Center is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

If Asked:

"What is the number of patients tested in my county?"

-We appreciate the desire to understand how many Floridians in each community have been tested, received a negative test or are under public health monitoring as a result of suspicion they may have COVID-19 or has been in contact with someone who have COVID-19. Balancing the privacy of the individuals being tested and monitored and the confidentiality of the epidemiological investigations with the responsibility to Floridians to disclose information to protect the public is a vital role of the Florida Department of Health. Due to the nature of a unique virus, such as COVID-19, to share how many people in each community that have been tested or are under public health monitoring could potentially release identifying information, especially in Florida's smaller communities.

As such, in order to protect personally identifiable health information (PHI) of Floridians, the Florida Department of Health is unable to break down the number of individuals who have received a negative test, have pending test results or are under public health monitoring by community.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Floridians can view the aggregate state level information at www.FLHealth.gov/COVID-19. This information is updated daily.

Additionally, the Florida Department of Health is encouraging all Floridians to be aware. Floridians should practice good hand hygiene and wash their hands with soap and water for a minimum of 20 seconds, use a tissue when they sneeze or cough and immediately dispose of it in the trash and stay home if they are sick."

Port Everglades Advisory

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

On March 10th, the Department announced a new positive case of COVID-19 in Broward County. The Department, through an extensive epidemiological investigation, identified this new case as the third positive case of COVID-19 associated with Port Everglades in Broward County, Florida. All three cases are connected to or employed by Metro Cruise Services – a company that operates at Port Everglades.

- The Florida Department of Health recommends that all individuals experiencing symptoms who have recently traveled through Port Everglades immediately contact their County Health Department or health care provider and self-isolate for 14 days.
- The Department also recommends employees of Metro Cruise Services at Port Everglades with any association to these cases self-isolate at home.

- The Department is working in close consultation with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) on this investigation.
- CDC recommends that individuals with recent travel history on a cruise monitor their health for 14 days and, if they develop symptoms, immediately self-isolate and contact their County Health Department or health care provider.

International Travel Advisory

The Florida Department of Health is advising all individuals who have traveled internationally to follow CDC guidelines, summarized below:

- Level 3: CDC recommends 14-day self-isolation and social distancing upon return to the United States. Social distancing includes avoiding going out in public and close personal interactions. If you become symptomatic, immediately self-isolate and contact your County Health Department or health care provider.
- Level 2 and Cruises: Travelers should monitor their health and limit interactions with others for 14 days after returning to the United States. If you become symptomatic, immediately self-isolate and contact your county health department or health care provider.
- For more information regarding current CDC travel advisories related to COVID-19, visit: https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/travelers/index.html

A person that experiences a fever and symptoms of respiratory illness, such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, within 14 days after travel from China, Italy, Iran, South Korea, Japan and any other destination under CDC travel advisory should call ahead to their health care provider or local County Health Department (CHD) and mention their recent travel or close contact.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

If a person has had close contact with someone showing these symptoms who has recently traveled from areas or been in contact with a person with laboratory-confirmed COVID-19, they should call ahead to a health care professional and the County Health Department. The health care professional will work with the Department to determine if the person should be tested for COVID-19.

What you Should Know

COVID-19 can spread from person to person through small droplets from the nose or mouth, including when an individual coughs or sneezes. These droplets may land on objects and surfaces. Other people may contract COVID-19 by touching these objects or surfaces, then touching their eyes, nose or mouth.

Symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. Symptoms may appear in as few as two days or as many as 14 days following exposure. Most people recover from COVID-19 without needing special treatment. The elderly and those with underlying medical problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and diabetes, are more likely to develop serious illness.

There is currently no vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to the virus. The Department recommends everyday preventive actions to help stop the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoiding close contact with people who are sick;
- Staying home when you are sick and avoiding contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Covering your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Washing your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;
- If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and
- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

CDC does not recommend that asymptomatic, healthy people wear a facemask to protect themselves from respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. Facemasks should be used by people who show symptoms of COVID-19 to help prevent the spread of the disease to others. The use of facemasks is also crucial for health workers and people who are taking care of someone in close settings (at home or in a health care facility).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Forum Club of Southwest Florida, Inc.

Speaking Order

1. Governor DeSantis

Talking Points

[Introduction]

- Thank you for inviting me to speak at the Forum Club today.

- This organization provides a great service to the community by bringing in speakers from a wide range of backgrounds: Supreme Court justices, business leaders, former governors—the list is long and distinguished.

- As Governor, I am excited to share with you the great things we are doing in Florida to that will bring about a brighter future for all Floridians.

[COVID-19]

- Before I get into some of my initiatives and policy priorities, I will briefly address the state's response to COVID-19.

- On the first of this month, I issued an Executive Order directing the Department of Health to declare a public health emergency to better equip our state with the resources needed to handle this threat.

- I also asked the state legislature and federal government for additional funds to ensure the state has the means to test for COVID-19 as quickly as possible and ability to effectively communicate with the public about how to stay healthy.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Our state Surgeon General, Dr. Scott Rivkees and his public health team have been working with our local County Health Departments and the CDC to ensure we are doing all we can to mitigate any spread of the virus.

- I've also met with Vice President Pence and he has assured me that we have the full support of the federal government.

- While we're doing everything we can to prepare, the public should know that the virus still poses a low threat to the United States.

[Economy]

- Aside from the COVID-19 distraction, Florida is a state on the ascent.

- Florida's recent job reports give us a snapshot of a strong economy:

    - Our unemployment rate recently dropped to 3.0 percent – the lowest recorded unemployment in Florida's history; and

    - The state's annual private-sector job growth rate of 2.5 percent continues to outpace the national job growth rate of 1.5 percent.

[Business Recruitment]

- Florida is attracting people and companies from around the country and world.

- And my administration is assisting companies with their move.

- In particular, we are selling Florida to major companies dealing with the inhospitable politics and high taxes. So far, I've made three economic development trips--two to New York and one to Chicago—and look forward to more in the near future.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- For me, the sales pitch for Florida is easy, and for companies, the decision to relocate is even easier:
    - Low taxes vs high taxes;
    - Low cost of living vs high cost of living;
    - Good weather vs bad weather;
    - An education system focused on the student vs an education system focused on the administrator;
    - A healthy environment vs. a polluted environment.
- And they're taking us up on it. It seems like every day I am announcing a new company is relocating to or expanding in Florida.
- Two industries in particular are worth highlighting for their recent growth.

[Commercial Space]

- The first is the commercial space industry.
- Just recently, I announced that a company called "Made In Space," which is on the cutting edge of aerospace manufacturing and innovation, decided to relocate their corporate headquarters and satellite manufacturing operations from the highly-taxed, highly-regulated state of California, to the business friendly environment of Florida.
- Made In Space's move just builds on other exciting announcements in the aerospace industry I've been able to make since taking office.
- Last year:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Firefly Aerospace Inc. announced a multi-year, $52 million launch and development project that is expected to generate over 200 jobs;

- Boeing announced that it is moving its Space and Launch Headquarters from Arlington, Va. to Titusville;

- Lockheed Martin announced the establishment of its new Fleet Ballistic Missile Program Headquarters on the Space Coast; and

- One Web Satellites opened the doors to its new 105,500 square foot production facility, which has two production lines capable of producing two satellites a day, creating 250 new high-tech jobs and 3,000 indirect jobs through the supply chain.

- And mega companies like Space X and Blue Origin continue to grow their footprints in Florida.

- To assist the industry, I am constantly looking for areas to make infrastructure and workforce investments though my Job Growth Grant Fund. So far:

    - I made significant infrastructure investments in both the Melbourne Airport and Pensacola Airport.

    - Both airports will now be able to attract and support major new developments. The Pensacola airport will be the site of one of the biggest maintenance overhaul and repair operations in the world.

- I will continue to look for ways to support commercial space; I think Florida is just beginning to scratch the surface of our potential in this very exciting industry.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

[Financial Industry and FinTech]

- The second industry I'd like to highlight is the financial services industry.

- Banks and private equity funds, hedge funds and venture capital firms are all moving to Florida in droves to escape the high taxes and political demagoguery of the northeast.

- My administration has placed a priority on supporting the financial industry because it offers high paying jobs, fuels innovation and attracts growth.

- To that end, in 2019, I announced my initiative to grow and recruit the future of financial technology in Florida by creating a FinTech regulatory sandbox.

- In the past, state regulatory structures have impeded transformative and innovative technology development.

- The "regulatory sandbox" will ease regulatory burdens for innovators in the financial services technology sector in ways that are not contemplated in our current regulations and provide them with the ability to test a product's market viability without extensive regulatory hurdles.

- To complement that initiative, I also announced my objective to create "FinTech" academies at our state colleges and technical centers through the award of grants from the Florida Job Growth Grant Fund.

- FinTech academies will offer students the ability to grow with the continuously evolving world of technology and its intersection with finance.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- I was proud to announce the first Fin Tech academy in Jacksonville just a few weeks ago.

[Legislative session: Budget, Environment, Education]

- Beyond diversifying our economy and supporting new and exciting industries, we are nearing the end of our Legislative Session, where I think we will be able to put a lot of wins on the board for Floridians.

- Three areas in particular are worth noting.

[Budget]

- First, Florida is constitutionally required to pass a balanced budget. My Bolder, Brighter, Better Future budget called on the Legislature to place $5.6 billion be in reserves and provide Floridians with $300 million in tax relief.

- I'm confident the Legislature will deliver a fiscally sound product, but I look forward to closely reviewing each line with my veto pen to make sure of it.

[Environment]

- Second, I am hoping to build on my administration's efforts to protect and preserve Florida's environment.

- In my first year as Governor, with the help of the Florida Legislature, we were able to make significant progress for the environment.

    - In my first budget as Governor I secured well over $625 million for Everglades restoration and the protection of our water resources.

    - This $625 million not only gave us an encouraging start to achieve our goal of $2.5 billion over four years, it also included the largest investment in the Everglades in a single year in Florida's history.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

  - This session, I'm asking the Legislature to make the $625 million recurring for the next three years to ensure we meet the $2.5 billion goal.

- Additionally, I appointed the state's first Chief Science Officer, Dr. Thomas Frazer, to help ensure the state adheres to science when determining how to best utilize the state's limited resources on water quality and other initiatives.

- I created the Blue Green Algae Task Force and re-established the Red Tide Task Force to help address the terrible algal blooms that plagued communities around the state in 2017 and 2018, including the Indian River Lagoon.

- We also recently reached an agreement to purchase 20,000 acres of critical wetlands in the heart of the Everglades.

  - The purchase will permanently save the land from oil drilling, which was the landowner's plan. The purchase will also be the largest wetland acquisition in a decade.

- Further, we continue to work closely with the Army Corps of Engineers to limit harmful discharges from Lake Okeechobee to the east and west.

- So far, the Corps has significantly limited discharges compared to previous years, and estuaries are largely algae-free.

- I also worked with President Trump to confirm he would include $250 million for South Florida Ecosystem Restoration in his 2021 budget – one of the biggest requests for Everglades funding by any president.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- The $250 million follows his previous request of $200 million and would fulfill the Army Corps' maximum capacity for restoration projects.

- To complement all of these efforts, we're spending the last days of session pushing for two more major pieces of legislation in addition to my ask for continued funding:

    - comprehensive water quality legislation that incorporates recommendations from the Blue-Green Algae Task force;

    - and a bill that will increase fines associated with environmental penalties by 50 percent across the board.

- I feel confident on both fronts and hope to have them on my desk soon.

[Education]

- Lastly, like last session, I am pursuing a bold education agenda.

- In 2019 for K-12, my administration secured the highest ever per pupil spending at $7,672, and by creating the Family Empowerment Scholarship and securing $147 million for the Gardiner Scholarship, we accomplished more for school choice than has been accomplished in decades.

- This year on K-12:

    - We're seeking to increase the minimum salary for public school teachers to $47,500, bringing Florida from the bottom half to number 2 in the nation;

    - We're continuing record investments in educational choice programs so parents, particularly low-income parents, can place their child in a good school;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- We're measuring results through accountability by replacing Common Core with the B.E.S.T. Standards; and

- We're placing a renewed emphasis on American Civics education.

- On the higher education front, U.S. News and World Report has-- for the third year in the row-- ranked Florida as having the best public higher education system in the country:

  - UF is ranked 7th, heading for the top 5;

  - FSU is ranked 18th, heading for the top 15; and

  - USF is ranked 44th, heading for the top 25.

- I will continue to support our universities, but I am also leaning in on career and technical education.

- A four-year degree from a brick and ivy university is not for everyone. Some students are far better off learning a trade than incurring insurmountable debt for a useless degree.

- We are pursuing additional funds for workforce development to continue on our path to making Florida the number one state in the nation for career and technical training programs by 2030.

- There is a large and growing demand for jobs in education, health services, trade, transportation and technology, and Florida's education options should be able to match it.

[Close]

- From COVID-19 to education and everything in between, my administration will continue moving aggressively to serve the people of this great state.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Thank you all for having me here at the Forum Club.
- I look forward to returning to see you all again soon.
- Thank you.

WHEREAS, Novel Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) is a severe acute respiratory illness that can spread among humans through respiratory transmission and presents with symptoms similar to those of influenza; and

WHEREAS, in late 2019, a new and significant outbreak of COVID-19 emerged in China; and

WHEREAS, the World Health Organization previously declared COVID-19 a Public Health Emergency of International Concern; and

WHEREAS, in response to the recent COVID-19 outbreak in China, Iran, Italy, Japan and South Korea, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention ("CDC") has deemed it necessary to prohibit or restrict non-essential travel to or from those countries; and

WHEREAS, on March 1, 2020, I issued Executive Order number 20-51 directing the Florida Department of Health to issue a Public Health Emergency; and

WHEREAS, on March 1, 2020, the State Surgeon General and State Health Officer declared a Public Health Emergency exists in the State of Florida as a result of COVID-19; and

WHEREAS, on March 7, 2020, I directed the Director of the Division of Emergency Management to activate the State Emergency Operations Center to Level 2 to provide coordination and response to the COVID-19 emergency; and

WHEREAS, as of March 9, 2020, eight counties in Florida have positive cases for COVID-19, and COVID-19 poses a risk to the entire state of Florida; and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

WHEREAS, the CDC currently recommends community preparedness and everyday prevention measures be taken by all individuals and families in the United States, including voluntary home isolation when individuals are sick with respiratory symptoms, covering coughs and sneezes with a tissue and disposal of the tissue immediately thereafter, washing hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, using of alcohol-based hand sanitizers with 60%-95% alcohol if soap and water are not readily available and routinely cleaning frequently touched surfaces and objects to increase community resilience and readiness for responding to an outbreak; and

WHEREAS, the CDC currently recommends mitigation measures for communities experiencing an outbreak including staying at home when sick, keeping away from others who are sick, limiting face-to-face contact with others as much as possible, consulting with your healthcare provider if individuals or members of a household are at high risk for COVID-19 complications, wearing a facemask if advised to do so by a healthcare provider or by a public health official, staying home when a household member is sick with respiratory disease symptoms if instructed to do so by public health officials or a health care provider; and

WHEREAS, as Governor, I am responsible for meeting the dangers presented to this state and its people by this emergency.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RON DESANTIS, as Governor of Florida, by virtue of the authority vested in me by Article IV, Section (1)(a) of the Florida Constitution, Chapter 252, Florida Statutes, and all other applicable laws, promulgate the following Executive Order to take immediate effect:

Section 1. Because of the foregoing conditions, I declare a state of emergency exists in the State of Florida.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Section 2. I designate the Director of the Division of Emergency Management ("Director") as the State Coordinating Officer for the duration of this emergency and direct him to execute the State's Comprehensive Emergency Management Plan and other response, recovery, and mitigation plans necessary to cope with the emergency. Additionally, I designate the State Health Officer and Surgeon General as a Deputy State Coordinating Officer and State Incident Commander.

Pursuant to section 252.36(1)(a), Florida Statutes, I delegate to the State Coordinating Officer the authority to exercise those powers delineated in sections 252.36(5)-(10), Florida Statutes, which he shall exercise as needed to meet this emergency, subject to the limitations of section 252.33, Florida Statutes. In exercising the powers delegated by this Order, the State Coordinating Officer shall confer with the Governor to the fullest extent practicable. The State Coordinating Officer shall also have the authority to:

A. Seek direct assistance and enter into agreements with any and all agencies of the United States Government as may be needed to meet the emergency.

B. Designate additional Deputy State Coordinating Officers, as necessary.

C. Suspend the effect of any statute, rule, or order that would in any way prevent, hinder, or delay any mitigation, response, or recovery action necessary to cope with this emergency.

D. Enter orders as may be needed to implement any of the foregoing powers; however, the requirements of sections 252.46 and 120.54(4), Florida Statutes, do not apply to any such orders issued by the State Coordinating Officer; however, no such order shall remain in effect beyond the expiration of this Executive Order, to include any extension.

Section 3. I order the Adjutant General to activate the Florida National Guard, as needed, to deal with this emergency.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Section 4. I find that the special duties and responsibilities resting upon some State, regional, and local agencies and other governmental bodies in responding to the emergency may require them to suspend the application of the statutes, rules, ordinances, and orders they administer. Therefore, I issue the following authorizations:

A. Pursuant to section 252.36(1)(a), Florida Statutes, the Executive Office of the Governor may suspend all statutes and rules affecting budgeting to the extent necessary to provide budget authority for state agencies to cope with this emergency. The requirements of sections 252.46 and 120.54(4), Florida Statutes, do not apply to any such suspension issued by the Executive Office of the Governor; however, no such suspension shall remain in effect beyond the expiration of this Executive Order, to include any extension.

B. Each State agency may suspend the provisions of any regulatory statute prescribing the procedures for conduct of state business or the orders or rules of that agency, if strict compliance with the provisions of any such statute, order, or rule would in any way prevent, hinder, or delay necessary action in coping with the emergency. This includes, but is not limited to, the authority to suspend any and all statutes, rules, ordinances, or orders which affect leasing, printing, purchasing, travel, and the condition of employment and the compensation of employees. For the purposes of this Executive Order, "necessary action in coping with the emergency" means any emergency mitigation, response, or recovery action: (1) prescribed in the State Comprehensive Emergency Management Plan ("CEMP"); or (2) ordered by the State Coordinating Officer. The requirements of sections 252.46 and 120.54, Florida Statutes, shall not apply to any such suspension issued by a State agency; however, no such suspension shall remain in effect beyond the expiration of this Executive Order, to include any extensions.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

C. In accordance with section 465.0275, Florida Statutes, pharmacists may dispense up to a 30-day emergency prescription refill of maintenance medication to persons who reside in an area or county covered under this Executive Order and to emergency personnel who have been activated by their state and local agency but who do not reside in an area or county covered by this Executive Order.

D. In accordance with section 252.38, Florida Statutes, each political subdivision within the State of Florida may waive the procedures and formalities otherwise required of the political subdivision by law pertaining to:

1) Performance of public work and taking whatever prudent action is necessary to ensure the health, safety, and welfare of the community;

2) Entering into contracts; however, political subdivisions are cautioned against entering into time and materials contracts without ceiling as defined by 2 CFR 200.318(j) or cost plus percentage contracts as defined by 2 CFR 200.323(d);

3) Incurring obligations;

4) Employment of permanent and temporary workers;

5) Utilization of volunteer workers;

6) Rental of equipment;

7) Acquisition and distribution, with or without compensation, of supplies, materials, and facilities; and,

8) Appropriation and expenditure of public funds.

E. All State agencies responsible for the use of State buildings and facilities may close such buildings and facilities in those portions of the State affected by this emergency, to the extent necessary to meet this emergency. I direct each State agency to report the closure of any State building or facility to the Secretary of the Department of Management Services. Under the authority contained in section 252.36, Florida Statutes, I direct each County to report the closure of any building or facility operated or maintained by the County or any political subdivision therein to the Secretary of the Department of Management Services. Furthermore, I direct the Secretary of the Department of Management Services to:

1) Maintain an accurate and up-to-date list of all such closures; and,

2) Provide that list daily to the State Coordinating Officer.

Section 5. I find that the demands placed upon the funds appropriated to the agencies of the State of Florida and to local agencies are unreasonably great and the funds currently available may be inadequate to pay the costs of coping with this emergency. In accordance with section 252.37(2), Florida Statutes, I direct that sufficient funds be made available, as needed, by transferring and expending moneys appropriated for other purposes, moneys from unappropriated surplus funds, or from the Budget Stabilization Fund.

Section 6. All State agencies entering emergency final orders or other final actions in response to this emergency shall advise the State Coordinating Officer contemporaneously or as soon as practicable.

Section 7. Medical professionals and workers, social workers, and counselors with good and valid professional licenses issued by states other than the State of Florida may render such services in Florida during this emergency for persons affected by this emergency with the condition that such services be rendered to such persons free of charge, and with the further condition that such services be rendered under the auspices of the American Red Cross or the Florida Department of Health.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Section 8. All activities taken by the Director of the Division of Emergency Management and the State Health Officer and Surgeon General with respect to this emergency before the issuance of this Executive Order are ratified. This Executive Order shall expire sixty days from this date unless extended.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Florida to be affixed, at Tallahassee, this 9th day of March, 2020.

Hackers are jumping on the COVID-19 pandemic to spread malware

Zack Whittaker@zackwhittaker / 5:41 pm EDT • March 12, 2020

Comment

If there's one thing certain during a pandemic, it's that hackers will use it for their own gain.

Don't be too surprised. Every time there's a major news story, a world event or even regular national events like tax preparation season, hackers jump at the chance to take advantage of the uptick in chatter to launch attacks against unsuspecting victims.

As it turns out, the COVID-19 pandemic isn't any different.

Several cybersecurity firms are reporting an uptick in attacks against a range of targets, all using the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic as a hook to hoodwink their victims into running malware. It comes as large portions of the globe are on lockdown amid the outbreak of the coronavirus strain. The World Health Organization said as of Thursday's situation report that the coronavirus has resulted in 125,000 confirmed cases and 4,613 deaths.

FireEye said it has seen an uptick in targeted spearphishing campaigns from hackers in China, North Korea and Russia, to deliver malware. Ben Read, a senior manager in FireEye's intelligence analysis unit, said all of the campaigns it has witnessed have leveraged the coronavirus as a lure to compromise their victims' computers.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Recorded Future has also observed a number of cybercriminals using the coronavirus to spread a number of different types of malware against targets in the U.S., Europe and and Iran — three areas most affected by the COVID-19 outbreak outside of China, where the new coronavirus strain first emerged. The researchers found that some of these campaigns imitate "trusted" organizations like the World Health Organization and the U.S Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to infect their victims.

And Check Point, which last month found a number of coronavirus-themed disinformation campaigns, now says it has found a new malware campaign leveraging the fear of the outbreak to surreptitiously install a powerful remote access trojan designed to take full control of a victim's computer.

But researchers say that attackers aren't just using the coronavirus as a cover for spreading malware.

Email security firm Agari told TechCrunch that it has evidence of what appears to be the first case of a coronavirus-themed business email compromise attack, designed to trick businesses into turning over money.

While Agari said it has seen several coronavirus-related emails used to deliver spam, steal credentials and infect victims with malware, the company said it has seen a threat group it calls Ancient Tortoise using spoofed emails in an effort to trick a victim company's customers to pay an outstanding balance but to a different bank than usual, "due to the coronavirus outbreak." The different bank is a mule account based in Hong Kong, said Agari researchers.

As governments and companies scramble to contain the pandemic, security researchers are trying to better understand and detect the current spike in malware. And as long as the threat from the coronavirus remains, so will the risk from hackers.

Field Report

Silvia Castellanos
3/2-3/7

Events Attended on behalf of the EOG:

- Miami-Dade County Board of Commissioners Meeting
  - Spoke to some of the Commissioners, staffers and the Deputy Mayor. There were a lot of people in this meeting, they were discussing the building of a new jail near a residential area. Chair Edmonson recognized me at the meeting. They spoke about the coronavirus and had DOH available for questions, however they decided to have a special meeting this upcoming Tuesday to thoroughly address this issue.

- Mid-Beach Neighborhood Association Meeting
  - I met Commissioner Meiner and Commissioner Richardson from Miami Beach. I was recognized at the meeting. The President of the Association addressed two major issues that they believe the State can help with. They're having an issue with a street that has the highest mortality rate on Miami Beach. They have reached out to FDOT to try and solve the issue, which to my understanding is a matter of moving the crosswalk over. Commissioner Higgins office is currently working with FDOT on this issue. A study has already been conducted but FDOT has informed them that they will have to do another study. They want help prioritizing this issue. I am waiting to obtain more information from Commissioner Higgins office. They are also upset about the seaweed issue throughout the coastline. Residents are claiming that the excess seaweed is posing a health issue to residents and tourists. Last year when the issue became really bad they claimed to have reached out to the local DOH office so they would investigate health issues caused by the seaweed and they refused and referred them to Tallahassee. They spoke about a possible lawsuit against DOH for negligence.

- Meeting with Miami-Dade Mayor and municipalities
  - The Mayor called for a meeting with all the municipalities regarding Coronavirus. The messaging from the Mayor was to continue life as usual just be aware of surroundings and be cautious. The municipalities are concerned about finding out information through the media. They would like to be made aware from the authorities before information is released to the media. Mayor of Bal Harbour and Surfside expressed concerns over the one case that flew in from New York.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Meetings taken on behalf of the EOG:

- Meeting with Chris Hudtwalker, Commissioner Higgins office
    - The Commission is concerned about language in the tax package in the House that puts a sunset date to the half-penny sales tax in Miami-Dade County. They are currently seeking federal funds to build out corridors of their Smart Plan project and this can hinder their plans. They recently received a high rating from the federal government to receive funds. Having a sunset date 20 years out will hinder their ability to take bonds out, being that most bonds are taken out for at least 30 years. They would like to see this language removed or at the minimum push the sunset date back.

State Events managed:

- Miami Press Conference and roundtable for Coronavirus
- Meeting with VPOTUS

Requests for the EOG:

- Deacon Gazitua is requesting that the Governor meet with Archbishop Thomas Wenski in Miami. He's going to try and identify some events down here that they can invite the Governor too.

Upcoming Meetings & Events:

- Miami-Dade Commission Special meeting on Coronavirus
- Meeting with Chief of Staff to Mayor Dan Gelber (Miami Beach)

Framework Mitigation Strategies for Communities with Local COVID-19 Transmission

Protect yourself and your community from getting and spreading respiratory illnesses like coronavirus disease 2019. Everyone has a role to play in getting ready and staying healthy. CDC is aggressively responding to the global outbreak of COVID-19 and community spread in the United States. CDC's all of community approach is focused to slow the transmission of COVID-19, reduce illness and death, while minimizing social and economic impacts.

- A Framework for Mitigation: Implementation of Mitigation Strategies for Communities with Local COVID-19 Transmission (more here*; 10-page frame work for States, localities, and communities).*
- CDC mitigation strategies for Santa Clara (CA), Seattle (WA), New Rochelle (NY), Florida, and Massachusetts.

Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) Resources for States

On Friday, the Trump Administration announced aggressive actions and regulatory flexibilities to help healthcare providers and states respond to and contain the spread of 2019 Novel Coronavirus Disease (COVID-19). CMS is taking several actions following President Trump's declaration of a national emergency due to COVID-19. A press release outlining CMS announcement can be found here. A fact sheet outlining these actions can be found here.

- Flexibility and Relief for State Medicaid Agencies: The national emergency declaration also enables CMS to grant state and territorial Medicaid agencies a wider range of flexibilities under section 1135 waivers. States and territories are now encouraged to assess their needs and request these available flexibilities, which are outlined in the Medicaid and CHIP Disaster Response Toolkit. Examples of flexibilities available to states under section 1135 waivers include the ability to permit out-of-state providers to render services, temporarily suspend certain provider enrollment and revalidation requirements to promote access to care, allow providers to provide care in alternative settings, waive prior authorization requirements, and temporarily suspend certain pre-admission and annual screenings for nursing home residents. For more information and to access the toolkit, visit here.
- Waivers and Flexibilities for Hospitals and other Healthcare Facilities: CMS will temporarily waive or modify certain Medicare, Medicaid, and CHIP requirements. CMS will also issue several blanket waivers, listed on the website below, and the CMS Regional Offices will review other provider-specific requests. These waivers provide continued access to care for beneficiaries. For more information on the waivers CMS has granted, visit here.
- Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) Nursing Home Guidance: As you know, nursing homes and their residents are vulnerable populations for COVID-19. This week, CMS released updated guidance for infection control and prevention of COVID-19 in Nursing Homes which can be found here (3/9). The Press Release can be found here and all CMS guidance related to COVID-19 can be found here.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The President's Coronavirus Guidelines for America
15 Days to Slow the Spread

1. Listen to and follow the directions of your state and local authorities.
2. If you feel sick, stay home. Do not go to work. Contact your medical provider.
3. If your children are sick, keep them at home. Do not send them to school. Contact your medical provider.
4. If someone in your household has tested positive for the coronavirus, keep the entire household at home. Do not go to work. Do not go to school. Contact your medical provider.
5. If you are an older person, stay home and away from other people.
6. If you are a person with a serious underlying health condition that can put you at increased risk (for example, a condition that impairs your lung or heart function or weakens your immune system), stay home and away from other people.
7. Even if you are young, or otherwise healthy, you are at risk and your activities can increase the risk for others. It is critical that you do your part to stop the spread of the coronavirus:
   - Work or engage in schooling from home whenever possible.
   - If you work in a critical infrastructure industry, as defined by the Department of Homeland Security, such as healthcare services and pharmaceutical and food supply, you have a special responsibility to maintain your normal work schedule. You and your employers should follow CDC guidance to protect your health at work.
   - Avoid social gatherings in groups of more than 10 people.
   - Avoid eating or drinking in bars, restaurants, and food courts – use drive-thru, pickup, or delivery options.
   - Avoid discretionary travel, shopping trips, and social visits.
   - Do not visit nursing homes or retirement or long-term care facilities unless to provide critical assistance.
   - Practice good hygiene:
     - Wash your hands, especially after touching any frequently used item or surface.
     - Avoid touching your face.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- Sneeze or cough into a tissue, or the inside of your elbow.
- Disinfect frequently used items and surfaces as much as possible.

* School operations can accelerate the spread of the coronavirus. Governors of states with evidence of community transmission should close schools in affected and surrounding areas. Governors should close schools in communities that are near areas of community transmission, even if those areas are in neighboring states. In addition, state and local officials should close schools where coronavirus has been identified in the population associated with the school. States and localities that close schools need to address childcare needs of critical responders, as well as the nutritional needs of children.

 Older people are particularly at risk from the coronavirus. All states should follow Federal guidance and halt social visits to nursing homes and retirement and long-term care facilities.

 In states with evidence of community transmission, bars, restaurants, food courts, gyms, and other indoor and outdoor venues where groups of people congregate should be closed.

Three suggestions:

1. In reference to Governor authority to declare state of emergency, I would add s. 252.36(Emergency management powers of the Governor)
2. 4th bullet point should cite to 381.00315(1)(c) [not (5)] for the SGs authority to issue advisories and PHEs
3. Under that same bullet point, under the isolation and quarantine portion it says "now-repealed DOH regulations." Rule 64D-3.038(4) cited at the end of that bullet has not been repealed.

Quarantine Authority under State and Federal Law

- As a general matter, state and local governments have the primary authority to control the spread of dangerous diseases within their jurisdictions, and the federal government has authority to quarantine and impose other health measures to prevent the spread of diseases from foreign countries and between states.

State Authorities

- The Governor has authority to declare a state of emergency in response to any occurrence, or threat thereof, which results or may result in substantial injury or harm to the population. §§ 252.34, 252.35 Fla. Stat. Such a declaration activates the emergency mitigation, response, and recovery aspects of state and local emergency management plans in the affected area and serves as authority for the deployment and use of any forces or materials to which the plan applies.

- The Governor also has the power to direct DOH to address possible pandemics.
  - In 2014, Governor Scott issued an Executive Order establishing the Ebola Virus Disease Response Protocol. The order directed DOH to monitor all asymptomatic travelers identified by the CDC who were present in Florida after leaving an EVD-affected country.
  - The order also directed DOH to "quarantine all high-risk travelers from EVD-affected countries in West Africa who are identified by the CDC as being located in Florida for a period of 21 days following last known EVD exposure."

- Under Florida law, DOH may exercise quarantine authority "for controlling communicable diseases or providing protection from unsafe conditions that pose a threat to public health." § 381.00315(4), Fla. Stat.
  - Quarantine orders must be in writing and be issued by the State Health Officer (Florida's Surgeon General) or the person to whom the Surgeon General delegates such authority. Fla. Admin. Code R. 64D-3.038.
  - A quarantine order may encompass actions "consistent with the protection of public health and accepted health practices." Such actions include isolation, closure of premises, testing, destruction, disinfection, treatment, and preventive treatment, including immunization. Fla. Admin. Code R. 64D-3.038.
  - Orders must include an expiration date or specify condition(s) for ending of quarantine.

- Florida law also allows the Surgeon General to issue a public health advisory or, after consultation with the Governor and FDLE, to declare a public health emergency. § 381.00315(5), Fla. Stat.
  - A public health advisory is a "warning of a potential public health threat." Prior to issuance, the Surgeon general must notify each county health department within the infected area.
  - A declaration of emergency is proper if the Surgeon General identifies a threat that may result in substantial injury or harm to the public health.
  - Any declaration shall continue until the threat or danger is contained to the extent that the emergency conditions no longer exists. A declaration may not continue for longer than 60 days unless the Governor concurs in the renewal of the declaration.
  - In an emergency, the Surgeon General may order:
    - Examination, testing, vaccination, or treatment performed by any qualified person authorized by the Surgeon General.
      - County health departments carry out these functions.
    - Isolation or quarantine if the individual poses a danger to the public health.
      - The quarantine location must have food, clothing, and shelter as necessary, and it must isolate the person from contact with people who have not been infected with the disease or immunized against that infection.
      - In line with the principle of "least restrictive alternative," now-repealed DOH regulations state that where quarantine is used following a declaration of public health emergency, individuals may choose isolation in their home unless DOH determines it is not a practical method. Fla. Admin. Code R. 64D-3.038(4).
  - Orders issued under a declaration of emergency are "immediately enforceable by a law enforcement officer." § 381.00315, Fla. Stat.

Commented [BA1]: I would add s. 252 36, F.S. (Emergency management powers of the Governor)

Commented [BA2]: (5) says that the department shall adopt rules. This should be (1).

Commented [BA3]: 64D-3.038 has not been repealed

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- DOH has delegated to the county health department director (a physician) or county health department administrator (a nonphysician), or their designated representative, the same power, within his or her county, to give public notice of isolation and quarantine and to initiate and terminate conditions of isolation and quarantine as the Surgeon General. Fla. Admin. Code R. 64D-3.037 and 3.038.

- Recent precedent for quarantine shows it is typically cooperative, not involuntary.
    - A 2007 report from DOH indicates that Florida has not ordered an involuntary human quarantine since 1947. All recent instances of quarantine involved cooperative agreements.
        - In April 2003, the Okaloosa County Health Department oversaw the voluntary home isolation of 6-year-old child suspected of contracting SARS.
        - That same month, the Miami-Dade County Health Department persuaded a suspected SARS patient to voluntarily sequester himself for 10 days.
        - Finally, the Miami-Dade County Health Department convinced a homeless person suspected of SARS to confine himself to a motel for 10 days during April 2003.
    - In 2014, Maine involuntarily quarantined a nurse exposed to Ebola despite CDC's determination that no quarantine was necessary. The state settled the case.
        - Most states are reluctant to exercise involuntary quarantines.

- Section 311 of the federal Public Health Service Act (PHS Act) provides for federal-state cooperative activities to enforce quarantines. The federal government may assist states and localities in enforcing their quarantines and other health regulations and, in turn, may accept state and local assistance in enforcing federal quarantines.

Federal Authorities

- When necessary, the Secretary of HHS may declare a public health emergency and take such action as may be necessary or appropriate to respond. An emergency declaration triggers grants and the implementation of plans allowing the use of federal health resources to assist the states in coping with the emergency. 42 U.S.C. §§ 243, 247d(a).

- Based on the federal government's Commerce Clause authority, the PHS Act authorizes the apprehension and examination of any individual reasonably believed to be infected with a communicable disease in a qualifying stage who is (A) moving or about to move from a State to another State; or (B) a probable source of infection to individuals who, while infected with such disease in a qualifying stage, will be moving from a State to another State. 42 U.S.C. § 264.
    - The CDC may conduct non-invasive, public health prevention measures (e.g., inspection, fumigation, disinfection, sanitation, pest extermination, etc.) to detect the presence of communicable diseases at United States airports, seaports, railway stations, bus terminals, and other locations used to gather people for interstate travel.
    - The CDC may require travelers to provide contact information such as United States and foreign addresses, telephone numbers, email addresses, information about a person's intended destination, health status, known or possible exposure history, and travel history.
    - Section 322(a) of the PHS Act authorizes the PHS to care for and treat persons under quarantine. Such persons may also receive care and treatment at the expense of the PHS from public or private medical facilities when authorized by the officer in charge of the PHS station at which the application is made.

- In the immigration context, the Secretary of HHS, with approval from the President, may bar the entry of persons or cargo from foreign countries where the "existence of any communicable disease" poses a "serious danger" of entering the United States such that "a suspension of the right to introduce such persons and property is required in the interest of public health." 42 U.S.C. § 265.
    - DHS may screen applicants for admission to the United States for any communicable disease of public health significance (which is a ground for inadmissibility under immigration law). 8 U.S.C. § 1222.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Colleen M. Ernst

- To prevent the spread of disease, CBP may funnel international flights to select airports in the United States. 19 U.S.C. § 1433.
    - An announcement that CDC will exercise this authority is pending.
    - The five target airports are those currently conducting coronavirus screening: San Francisco, New York (JFK International), Los Angeles (LAX), Atlanta, and Chicago (O'Hare International).

- In addition, TSA may impose requirements on air carriers entering the United States. For example, TSA may require airlines to ask passengers certain questions related to exposure. TSA also may cancel flights to address safety threats to passengers and crew. 49 U.S.C. § 44905.
    - Air carriers likewise may refuse to board passengers who pose a direct threat to health and safety of others. 14 C.F.R. § 382.21.
    - Pilots of both interstate flights and flights to the United States are required to report certain illnesses they encounter during flight in advance of their arrival to the CDC Quarantine Station closest to their destination airport. 42 C.F R. §§ 70.4, 71.21(b).
