EXTERNAL SENDER

Dear Mr. Evers:

After a diligent search, the Office has located 2.89 MB of records responsive to your request. These records are attached to this response. Some of the attached records contain material that is exempt under KRS 61.878(1)(l), as such material is protected by the attorney-client privilege and work-product doctrine. See Hahn v. Univ. of Louisville, 80 S.W.3d 771, 774 (Ky. App. 2001) (holding that "the protections generally afforded by the attorney-client privilege have been recognized and incorporated into the [Open Records Act] by the Kentucky General Assembly"). Therefore, pursuant to KRS 61.878(4), our office has redacted the exempt material and made the nonexempt material available for examination.

This office has also identified certain records responsive to your request that are exempt from production under KRS 61.878(1)(i) and (l). These records include drafts of court documents and press releases, communications between attorneys, communications between Office employees, and are preliminary in nature and express opinions. and thus exempt under KRS 61.878(1)(i). Additionally, drafts of court documents and communications between attorneys are exempt from production under KRS 61.878(1)(l), as such documents are protected by the attorney-client privilege and work-product doctrine. See Hahn, 80 S.W.3d at 774.

If you wish to appeal this decision, you may do so by filing a complaint with the Attorney General's Office, Open Records/Open Meetings Division, The Capitol, 700 Capital Avenue, Suite 118, Frankfort, KY 40601, pursuant to KRS 61.880(2), or by filing an original civil action in the appropriate circuit court under KRS 61.882. Hi Adam and Crystal,

I saw the story you posted on the election fraud hotline:

<https://spectrumnews1.com/ky/louisville/news/2020/11/05/election-fraud-hotline-stats-kentucky>

I wanted to bring it to your attention that the "election fraud hotline" has gone by that name under several AGs. Examples here: <http://www.columbiamagazine.com/index.php?sid=78496> and <https://www.wbko.com/content/news/Andy-Beshear-speaks-about-Election-Fraud-Hotline-399750351.html>. I think given how the story is written and the fact that it focuses heavily on the name, this is important information to include.

As you can see from our press release on the hotline, we make it clear that the hotline exists to process any complaints/tips related to the election: <https://kentucky.gov/Pages/Activity-stream.aspx?n=AttorneyGeneral&prId=980>

Attorney General Cameron Announces Six Randomly
Selected Kentucky Counties to Undergo Post-General
Election Audits

Fleming, Hickman, Lawrence, Livingston, Anderson, Boone Counties Selected for Audit

FRANKFORT, Ky. (November 18, 2020) – Attorney General Daniel Cameron today announced six randomly selected Kentucky counties to undergo post-general election audits. The Attorney General’s Department of Criminal Investigations (DCI) will conduct inquiries into Fleming, Hickman, Lawrence, Livingston, Anderson, and Boone counties to determine if any irregularities occurred during the 2020 general election.

Kentucky law requires the Office of the Attorney General to administer post-election audits in no fewer than five percent of Kentucky’s counties and to select these counties randomly in a public forum within twenty days of each primary and general election. Because the law prohibits counties from being audited in two consecutive elections, Cumberland, Daviess, Floyd, Monroe, Logan, and Simpson counties could not be selected. Post-election audits performed in these counties following the 2020 primary election did not reveal abnormalities or criminal conduct.

“Together, Kentuckians have faced head-on the difficulties of holding and participating in an election in the midst of a global pandemic,” said Attorney General Cameron. “Despite these challenges, we saw record numbers of Kentuckians vote this year, and we’ve worked hard to protect the integrity of both the primary and general election. This includes conducting post-election audits following the primary and conducting audits in the counties chosen today. I appreciate the work of our team in conducting these audits, and I applaud the county clerks who assist us during our review.”

Upon completion of the audits, DCI and the Attorney General’s Office of Special Prosecutions present their findings to the grand jury and chief circuit judge of each audited county.

An archived video of today’s drawing is available on the Attorney General’s Facebook page.

The Attorney General’s office monitors potential election law violations throughout the year through the Election Fraud Hotline. Hotline complaints related to the November 2020 general election can be viewed by visiting ag.ky.gov/Election-Hotline-Updates. If you suspect election fraud, report the incident to the year-round hotline by calling 1-800-328-VOTE.

I saw the story you posted, and I wanted to reach out and let you know that the calls we received through the Attorney General's Election Fraud Hotline are separate than those received by the Kentucky State Board of Elections. While we do work with the board and share information, when appropriate, the calls are separate.

I also noticed that the headline states we are investigating 376 complaints. While we did receive that number of complaints (as of yesterday), not all of the complaints require an investigation.

In Pennsylvania, the state Supreme Court violated the U.S. Constitution by unilaterally changing the deadline for receipt of absentee ballots without authorization by the state legislature. The Pennsylvania court even went so far as to allow absentee ballots to be counted despite the fact that they were received after the election and contained no legible postmark. That did not occur in Kentucky.

Hi Dan,

That is correct, we are unable to join because of a last-minute scheduling change, but we are still involved.

There are a couple of key differences between what happened in Pennsylvania and here in Kentucky. Chad Meredith is available to talk to you on background, after the press conference, to speak to some of those differences. If you'd like to talk to him, let me know, and I can set it up.

Hey Elizabeth,

I was going to ask this at the presser but I just got an email that AG Cameron can't attend because of a scheduling issue:

Like Pennsylvania, Kentucky was allowed to count mail-in ballots that were postmarked by Election Day. Does AG Cameron have an issue with the way the process worked in Kentucky?

Also, even though he's not attending the press conference, he's still involved in the legal action correct?

Hey Elizabeth, just checking in on this request for comment from Daniel Cameron regarding the Republican Attorneys General Association's brief asking the Supreme Court to hear a challenge to some of the mail-in votes in Pennsylvania.

Specifically, I want him to address the similarities with how Kentucky and Pennsylvania handled mail-ballots; allowing them to be counted if they're received by Friday as long as they were postmarked by Election Day. I know Kentucky's system was set up differently than Pennsylvania's, but the brief also alleges voter fraud is rampant with the system Pennsylvania had in place, so I want to know if he believes Kentucky also has voter fraud.

Ms. Kuhn,

The attorney general's website lists complaints by type, including:

General Election Fraud/Other

Special or Absentee Ballot

Electioneering

Mailer

Procedural Questions

Legal Questions

Campaign Violation

Election Official

Voter Assistance

I realize that you can't discuss specific cases, nor am I asking you to. But if you could provide a bit of general elaboration for at least some of (and, preferably all of) these categories, that would be most helpful.

For example, perhaps you could give an example of what might constitute a campaign violation, or what the allegations regarding "mailer" and "election official" might involve.

Thanks.

Attorney General Cameron Announces Six Randomly
Selected Kentucky Counties to Undergo Post-General
Election Audits

Fleming, Hickman, Lawrence, Livingston, Anderson, Boone Counties Selected for Audit

FRANKFORT, Ky. (November 18, 2020) – Attorney General Daniel Cameron today announced six randomly selected Kentucky counties to undergo post-general election audits. The Attorney General’s Department of Criminal Investigations (DCI) will conduct inquiries into Fleming, Hickman, Lawrence, Livingston, Anderson, and Boone counties to determine if any irregularities occurred during the 2020 general election.

Kentucky law requires the Office of the Attorney General to administer post-election audits in no fewer than five percent of Kentucky’s counties and to select these counties randomly in a public forum within twenty days of each primary and general election. Because the law prohibits counties from being audited in two consecutive elections, Cumberland, Daviess, Floyd, Monroe, Logan, and Simpson counties could not be selected. Post-election audits performed in these counties following the 2020 primary election did not reveal abnormalities or criminal conduct.

“Together, Kentuckians have faced head-on the difficulties of holding and participating in an election in the midst of a global pandemic,” said Attorney General Cameron. “Despite these challenges, we saw record numbers of Kentuckians vote this year, and we’ve worked hard to protect the integrity of both the primary and general election. This includes conducting post-election audits following the primary and conducting audits in the counties chosen today. I appreciate the work of our team in conducting these audits, and I applaud the county clerks who assist us during our review.”

Upon completion of the audits, DCI and the Attorney General’s Office of Special Prosecutions present their findings to the grand jury and chief circuit judge of each audited county.

An archived video of today’s drawing is available on the Attorney General’s Facebook page.

The Attorney General’s office monitors potential election law violations throughout the year through the Election Fraud Hotline. Hotline complaints related to the November 2020 general election can be viewed by visiting ag.ky.gov/Election-Hotline-Updates. If you suspect election fraud, report the incident to the year-round hotline by calling 1-800-328-VOTE.

Hi Sofia,

I saw the story you posted, and I wanted to reach out and let you know that the calls we received through the Attorney General's Election Fraud Hotline are separate than those received by the Kentucky State Board of Elections. While we do work with the board and share information, when appropriate, the calls are separate.

I also noticed that the headline states we are investigating 376 complaints. While we did receive that number of complaints (as of yesterday), not all of the complaints require an investigation.

Thanks,
Elizabeth

Hi Elizabeth,

I hope your week is off to a good start! I wanted to let you know that tomorrow I will be, maybe not surprisingly, 100% devoted to election coverage. I will be working on helping to get messages you'd like out, while answering viewer questions and concerns.

In terms of what you've been hearing, are there any top questions/complaints among voters that have been on your radar? Is there any information you feel would be especially helpful in getting out to the public?

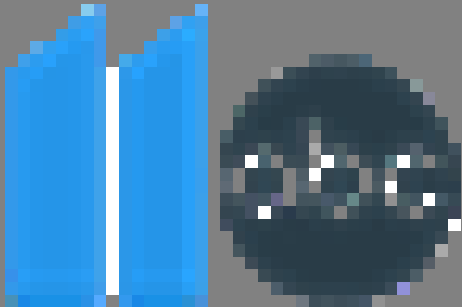

I wanted to check in with you early, just to make sure you know about my plans for today, tomorrow, and likely the rest of the week. I may be checking in with you tomorrow as well, and if there's a specific way or time to check in that may be most convenient, let me know. Please stay in touch!

Best,

Ryland,

In Pennsylvania, the state Supreme Court violated the U.S. Constitution by unilaterally changing the deadline for receipt of absentee ballots without authorization by the state legislature. The Pennsylvania court even went so far as to allow absentee ballots to be counted despite the fact that they were received after the election and contained no legible postmark. Thanks,

Hey Elizabeth,

I was going to ask this at the presser but I just got an email that AG Cameron can't attend because of a scheduling issue:

Like Pennsylvania, Kentucky was allowed to count mail-in ballots that were postmarked by Election Day. Does AG Cameron have an issue with the way the process worked in Kentucky?

Also, even though he's not attending the press conference, he's still involved in the legal action correct?

Ms. Kuhn,

The attorney general's website lists complaints by type, including:

General Election Fraud/Other

Special or Absentee Ballot

Electioneering

Mailer

Procedural Questions

Legal Questions

Campaign Violation

Election Official

Voter Assistance

I realize that you can't discuss specific cases, nor am I asking you to. But if you could provide a bit of general elaboration for at least some of (and, preferably all of) these categories, that would be most helpful.

For example, perhaps you could give an example of what might constitute a campaign violation, or what the allegations regarding "mailer" and "election official" might involve.

Thanks.

Hey Elizabeth, just checking in on this request for comment from Daniel Cameron regarding the Republican Attorneys General Association's brief asking the Supreme Court to hear a challenge to some of the mail-in votes in Pennsylvania.

Specifically, I want him to address the similarities with how Kentucky and Pennsylvania handled mail-ballots; allowing them to be counted if they're received by Friday as long as they were postmarked by Election Day. I know Kentucky's system was set up differently than Pennsylvania's, but the brief also alleges voter fraud is rampant with the system Pennsylvania had in place, so I want to know if he believes Kentucky also has voter fraud.
