EXTERNAL SENDER

Ms. Colombo,

This email is response to the public records request you submitted on November 19, 2021 to State Senator Matt Huffman, Senate Clerk Vincent Keeran, and Senate Chief of Staff John Barron. Your request seeks certain records of State Senator Matt Huffman. As I have noted before, I want to again thank you for your patience with your request. As you know, the past number of months have been extraordinarily busy for everyone in the Ohio General Assembly (and in particular, myself). Thus, I truly appreciate your understanding of that and thank you again for your patience.

That being said, you ask for the following records of Senator Huffman "from July 1, 2021, through the date the request is received by your offices":

1. All email communications (including emails, complete email chains, calendar invitations, and attachments thereto) sent or received by Senate Majority Caucus Budget Director Ray DiRossi regarding Ohio's state or congressional redistricting processes.
2. All email communications (including emails, complete email chains, calendar invitations, and attachments thereto) and text message threads/conversations between (a) Senate Majority Caucus Budget Director Ray DiRossi, and (b) Ohio House Majority Caucus Finance Director Blake Springhetti.
3. All text message threads/conversations between (a) Senate Majority Caucus Budget Director Ray DiRossi, and (b) any of the Ohio Redistricting Commission members listed below:
    a. Matt Huffman, Senate President
    b. Robert Cupp, House Speaker
    c. Vernon Sykes, Senator
    d. Emilia Sykes, House Minority Leader
    e. Mike DeWine, Governor
    f. Keith Faber, State Auditor
    g. Frank LaRose, Secretary of State

Initially, please note, that as drafted, your request fails to identify the records you are specifically and particularly seeking. The Ohio Sunshine Laws: An Open Government Resource Manual explains that "an ambiguous request is one that lacks the clarity a public office needs to ascertain what the requestor is seeking and where to look for records that might be responsive. The wording may be vague or subject to interpretation." Ohio Sunshine Laws: An Open Government Resource Manual 2017 at p. 16. The Ohio

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Supreme Court has held repeatedly, "it is the responsibility of the person who wishes to inspect and/ or copy records to identify with reasonable clarity the records at issue." State ex rel. Glasgow v. Jones, 119 Ohio St.3d 391, 2008 Ohio 4788, at ¶17 (quoting State ex rel. Morgan v. New Lexington, 112 Ohio St.3d 33 (additional citations omitted)). The Glasgow decision also cites to State ex rel. Dillery v. Icsman, 92 Ohio St.3d 312, as precedent for the Court's holding that a request for "all…work-related e-mail messages" was ambiguous. In Dillery, the request was to a police chief for "any and all records generated…containing any reference whatsoever to Kelly Dillery." Your request, like the Dillery case, is similarly ambiguous.

That being said, the Ohio Senate is committed to transparency and providing access to records, and in the spirit of open government, I worked with State Senator Matt Huffman to review any records that could be reasonably found in response to your requests. Please note, however, that the records searched were from July 1, 2021 through November 18, 2021 (i.e. the day prior to the date of your request). See State ex rel. Hogan Lovells U.S., L.L.P. v. Dept. of Rehab. & Correction, 2018-Ohio-5133 (holding that only records that were created or received prior to the date of the request were subject to disclosure); see also State ex rel. Taxpayers Coalition v. Lakewood, 86 Ohio St.3d 385 (holding that there is no duty to provide access to records that did not exist at the time of the record request).

I have gathered and reviewed the responsive records. Because of the size of the PDF files, I had to separate them into 6 separate PDFs/emails. Thus, after this email, you will receive 6 separate emails with a PDF attached to each email, which in sum, provides you with the records that are responsive to your request. If you do not receive any of the 6 separate emails, please let me know and I will try a different way. If I don't hear from you otherwise, I will assume that you successfully received this email and the 6 separate emails/attachments.

Again, thank you for your patience, and I hope this information is helpful.

Regards,

Frank

The state operating budget should be focused on the fiscal stability of the state and its residents, not a vehicle for evading public scrutiny. Any changes to redistricting rules need to be properly deliberated. We deserve transparent mapmaking that focuses on the new rules Ohio voters overwhelmingly approved.

For this reason I urge the removal of SENCD2 from Am. Sub. HB 110 during the conference committee process.

Dear Senate President Matt Huffman,

Ohioans want fair Ohio House, Ohio Senate, and congressional maps and a transparent, participatory redistricting process. We're asking that mapmakers get to work right away so that we can have a clear and transparent process that centers around public participation and redistricting best practices.

On Monday, April 5, 2021, Fair Districts Ohio - a group of veteran redistricting reformers-- sent a letter to you with specific recommendations to ensure transparent and fair mapmaking in light of adjusted delivery date for Census data.

Ohio doesn't have to wait for decennial Census data to start the redistricting process, and the new Census timeline should not be an excuse to limit transparency, reduce public comment, or wait to hear from experts. We call on mapmakers to start the process today by doing the following:
1. Consider a June date for Ohio's 2022 primary that best serves voters;
2. Create a public website for Ohioans to follow and act on the process;
3. Announce legislative appointments for the Ohio Redistricting Commission ;
4. Release already budgeted funds to state legislative caucuses to conduct training and research in preparation for mapmaking, and
5. Invite experts and the public to testify on a wide range of topics including: compliance with federal and state laws, racial representation, the importance of keeping communities together, and more.

Ohio can't wait until the summer or fall to begin this process -- there is simply too much at stake. Voters in all 88 counties overwhelmingly approved redistricting reforms in 2015 and 2018. This is an opportunity to show the people that their voices are heard and their votes matter.

Thank you for your consideration, and for acting now to begin the important process of creating fair maps.

Sincerely,
Judith Hofmann

I am a citizen whom has concerns and ideas about the upcoming redistricting scheduled to occur in Ohio.
Step one in my engagement in this process is to identify the members of the Ohio Redistricting Commission.
XI.01 Ohio Redistricting Commission
(A) The Ohio redistricting commission shall be responsible for the redistricting of this state for the general assembly.
(B) The commission shall consist of the following seven members: (1) The governor (Mike DeWine); (2) The auditor of state (There appear to be seven?); (3) The secretary of state; (Frank LaRose) (4) One person appointed by the speaker of the house of representatives; (5) One person appointed by the legislative leader of the largest political party in the house of representatives of which the speaker of the house of representatives is not a member; (6) One person appointed by the president of the senate; (7) One person appointed by the legislative leader of the largest political party in the senate of which the president of the senate is not a member.
My questions are very straight forward:
1. Who are the actual seven primary contact people on the Ohio Redistricting Commission?
2. What method of communication is available for a citizen, like myself, to provide input to the Ohio Redistricting Commission?
Thank you in advance for providing me with prompt answers to my questions.

I'm writing to urge you to remove four anti-democracy amendments from the state's budget.

I oppose attempts to sneak unrelated language into must-pass legislation without a public debate. Specifically, I urge you to remove the following:

- SOSCD15: Secretary of State Funding and Abolishment of Citizens Education Fund
- LOCCD32: Partisan Designation for Judicial Candidates
- AGOCD37 and SENCD2: Court Settlements and Redistricting Lawsuits

The budget process should be about our state's finances -- not an opportunity to sneak in unrelated last minute provisions that would make our democracy less equitable and accessible for all Ohioans.

I urge you to remove these problematic amendments from the final budget legislation.

The Impacts of Elections, Census and Redistricting

Get up to speed and plan for what's next at NCSL Base Camp.

Elections. Census. Redistricting. A lot has changed in the last few months and these three topics have significant implications for state legislatures. Join us ONLINE Aug. 3-5 for NCSL Base Camp and prepare for what lies ahead.

Here's a Sneak Peek:

#1 Election Perfection: You Be the Judge | Tune in as legislators pitch three different election reform ideas: reining in citizen initiatives, ranked choice voting and open primaries. In a format similar to "Shark Tank," choose any or all of these options, depending on whether you think adopting each legislator's proposed reform is good for American democracy.

#2 What's Up With the Census? | In normal times, the census is an administrative and even sleepy affair. Not this decade! With political power and billions in federal funds on the line, states have a strong interest in ensuring they are counted accurately. Tune in as experts break down the numbers to find out what we know so far from the census about our nation's fiscal and political fates.

#3 Redistricting Maps: You Say Fair, I Say Foul | The people have spoken: They want "fair" maps. But what IS a fair map? Watch the leaders of the parties' main redistricting groups—the National Democratic Redistricting Committee and the National Republican Redistricting Trust—address often-referenced but never-defined perennial points of contention, such as what "fair" really means.

Bonus! Get Ready, Get Set – Redistrict! | With the release of census data just a week away, states are about to redraw maps for Congress and state legislatures—maps that will stand for the next decade. Hear from experts on what's already happened, what's happening now and what will happen in the coming weeks and months—and the role legislators play throughout.

NCSL Base Camp sessions cover this and plenty more including education, infrastructure, law enforcement and state budgets.

Dear Senate President Matt Huffman,

The people of Ohio want fair maps. Ohioans in all 88 counties voted twice to end partisan gerrymandering. Work must begin now to make sure that the redistricting processes for state legislative and US congressional maps live up to the full promise and potential of the 2015 and 2018 redistricting reforms.

Given that this is a once-in-a-decade opportunity for fair, voter-focused districts, transparency and public input should not be limited because of changes to the census timeline. Direct the Legislative Service Commission to establish a website where the public can read up on the process, follow hearings/testimony, access population and geographical data, and submit maps for consideration through a web portal. Provide ample opportunity through public hearings for Ohioans to weigh in about the importance of fair maps, how they define their communities, and why keeping their communities together is important. Commit to providing ample opportunity for public comment after maps are proposed as well.

Ohio deserves fair maps that keep communities together. Voters overwhelmingly supported redistricting reform in 2015 and 2018. We expect fair districts that benefit voters, not either political party. Please commit to a truly transparent map-making process. The public deserves to be able to easily weigh in on any new maps you create. The maps you draw should reflect the spirit of the redistricting reforms in 2015 and 2018.

Sincerely,

Tony D'Ambrosio

State Senator Matt Huffman,

Ohio mapmakers must not wait for decennial Census data to start the redistricting process, nor should the new Census timeline be an excuse to limit transparency, reduce public comment, or wait to hear from experts. We call on you to start the process today by doing the following:

- Consider a later 2022 primary election to allow time for a thorough map-making process;

- Announce legislative appointments for the Ohio Redistricting Commission;

- Release already budgeted funds to state legislative caucuses to conduct training and research in preparation for mapmaking, and

- Invite experts and the public to testify on a wide range of topics including: compliance with federal and state laws, racial representation, the importance of keeping communities together, and more.

With Census data due to be released on August 16, 2021, there is no time to waste. Ohio can't wait any longer to begin this process -- there is simply too much at stake. Voters in all 88 counties overwhelmingly approved redistricting reforms in 2015 and 2018. This is an opportunity to show the people that their voices are heard and their votes matter.

Thank you for your consideration, and for acting now to begin the important process of creating fair maps.

Hello,

I contacted your office originally because I was concerned the redistricting process.

Gov. DeWine vetoed the part of the budget that said that majority party legislators only could intervene in suits regarding redistricting. I read in the Columbus Dispatch that the legislature was considering reinstating that provision.

The 2015 redistricting ballot initiative had more than 70% support from Ohioans of all parties, and the 2017 measure gained hundreds of thousands of signatures before the matter was settled legislatively. Ohioans want a districting process that doesn't benefit one party, whether it is Democrat or Republican.

I would like to see the legislature allow Gov. DeWine's veto of this provision to stand.

Thank you.

Senate President Huffman, I am writing to you to encourage you to finally get the repeal of the corrupt HB6 on to the floor for a COMPLETE repeal. My Senator Matt Dolan will vote for the repeal, as should every member of the House and Senate.

The continued political game which the Republican party, both nationally and in our state, is repulsive. While it may be naive to believe that those that have been voted into office actually represent the best interests of the citizens of Ohio, we have all witnessed the obvious exact opposite to that. The slow response to a totally "bought" legislation's repeal is a case in point. The backward looking legislature makes Ohio and Ohioans look like a bunch of ignorant hicks. The lack of respect for real science is apparent. The continued ignorance of the separation of church and state is abhorrent. The obvious continued attention to the loud but small contingent of Trumpers only shows how shallow the Republican party has become. The redistricting process must be fair and transparent so that we actually have a democracy that represents us.

When will real leadership happen in Columbus? When will our elected men and women look toward the future and be progressive, rather than living in the past? The times are a changing and the longer the Republican party tries to ignore the future, the shorter the future of this failed party will be.

United States® Census 2020

Resources Available to Prepare for the 2020 Census Redistricting Data Release

Written by James Whitehorne, chief, Redistricting Data and Voting Rights Office

In a few weeks, we'll release the 2020 Census redistricting data in our legacy summary file format. And a few weeks after that, we'll release the same data in an easier-to-use format.

We're releasing the same data twice but in different formats at different times to make sure states get the data as quickly as possible. Acting Director Dr. Ron Jarmin explained these two releases in his blog, Redistricting Data: What to Expect and When. In this blog, I provide more detail about the formats and support materials available, particularly for the first release.

Redistricting Data: What to Expect and When?

Written by Dr. Ron Jarmin, U.S. Census Bureau Acting Director

Since releasing the apportionment results in April, we've had several teams working hard on the next set of 2020 Census data — the redistricting data. These data play an important role in our democracy and will begin to illuminate the changes to the local and demographic makeup of our nation over the last decade.

These data include the first sub-state population counts and demographic characteristics from the census, information that states typically use for redistricting — the process of redrawing electoral district boundaries based on where their populations have increased or decreased.

Although redistricting is a state function, the U.S. Census Bureau performs an important role in the process — providing quality data to the states from the census that states may choose to use in redistricting.

Ohio Redistricting Commission Announces Dates for Regional Public Hearings

COLUMBUS - Today, state Senator Vernon Sykes (D-Akron) and Ohio House Speaker Bob Cupp (R-Lima), co-chairs of the Ohio Redistricting Commission ("Commission"), announced the schedule for upcoming regional public hearings. The hearings, which will take place throughout the state from Monday, August 23 through Friday, August 27, will provide Ohioans the opportunity to contribute their ideas on the future of Ohio's state legislative districts by offering public testimony and submitting map proposals.

"The makeup of our state legislative districts will have an impact on Ohio's state and local governments for the next ten years. This is why it's important for Ohioans to have a say in the redistricting process," Sykes said. "Ohioans played a crucial role in increasing transparency when they voted in 2015 and 2018 to reform the way we draw our statewide maps. I look forward to hearing what Ohioans have to say during our hearings and taking their input into consideration when creating maps that best represent voters' preferences."

The hearings will take place on the following days:

- Monday, August 23 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Cleveland
- Monday, August 23 from 2:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.: Youngstown
- Tuesday, August 24 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Dayton
- Tuesday, August 24 from 2:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.: Cincinnati
- Wednesday, August 25 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Zanesville
- Wednesday, August 25 from 2:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.: Rio Grande
- Thursday, August 26 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Lima
- Thursday, August 26 from 2:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.: Toledo
- Friday, August 27 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Akron
- Friday, August 27 from 2:30 - 5:30 p.m.: Mansfield

The full list of dates, times and locations for the hearings can be found here. Hearings will also be broadcast live, and more information will be made available about how the public can tune in closer to the hearing dates.

"Ohio's process to create fair and reasonable state legislative and congressional districts includes the opportunity for the people of Ohio to be heard on the matter," Speaker Cupp said. "As a co-chair of the commission, I believe it's important to open the process for input from Ohio's citizens. The information and ideas gathered will be helpful to our important constitutional task."

These public hearings are just the beginning of the redistricting process for state legislative districts. More hearings will be scheduled once a map has been proposed by the Commission. The Ohio Redistricting Commission is responsible for drawing legislative maps and may also have a role in the drawing of congressional maps. It

Bipartisan Website Goes Live Friday Morning

COLUMBUS—Ohio Senate President Matt Huffman (R-Lima) announced the launch of www.redistricting.ohio.gov. Designed for transparency and easy access, the website reflects the bipartisan cooperation of the seven-member Ohio Redistricting Commission.

“I commend the co-chairs, House Speaker Bob Cupp and Senator Vernon Sykes, for their commitment of bringing this bipartisan website online," said President Huffman. "This platform brings transparency and easy access to the people of Ohio.”

The website encourages public input and provides access to the data used by the commission as it begins the process of drawing new state legislative maps for the Ohio General Assembly.

Ohio Senate Leadership Introduces New Legislative Map Proposal

COLUMBUS— Today, new maps for Ohio's 132 state legislative districts were introduced to the seven-member Ohio Redistricting Commission. Ohio Senate President Matt Huffman (R-Lima), who serves on the Commission, complimented the dedication and long hours that went into completing the proposed maps.

"These new maps for the Ohio General Assembly are constitutional and compliant with Ohio law," said Huffman. "I'm optimistic the Commission will consider these maps as a lawful and reliable path forward for the next decade."

The effort complies with the constitutional amendment, overwhelmingly passed by voters in 2015, that changed how Ohio's 99 House and 33 Senate districts are drawn by the Ohio Redistricting Commission.

The process was complicated by the pandemic which significantly delayed U.S. Census data used for drawing new district maps for both the Ohio House and Ohio Senate.

"This is a difficult assignment to complete during a normal year, but with delayed census data, it became a monumental task," said Huffman. "We look forward to both continued discussions with commission members and ongoing public input, as the deadline to approve the new map proposals approaches."

The Commission voted to accept the maps, as the working documents, and scheduled three public hearings for public comment on the maps before voting on a final version by September 15th. To learn more about the Ohio Redistricting Commission, view the map proposals and hearing dates click here.

Subject:	Strong candidates with great ideas don"t need gerrymandering - please fix these currently gerrymandered maps
Date:	Monday, September 13, 2021 10:03:31 AM

Hi there, I am an Ohio resident, and I am writing to say how disappointed I was in the first draft of redistricting maps. Citizens want competitive districts where a reasonable Republican runs against a reasonable Democrat, not "safe" districts where reasonable candidates either get primaried by extreme fringe candidates, or have to become more extreme against their will in order to avoid being primaried themselves. This is where polarization and gridlock comes from, and what makes regular folks want to give up on politics altogether.

Please respect Ohio's citizens enough to give us real choices. Please draw fair maps that reflect the will of the people, who voted TWICE to eliminate gerrymandering. Strong candidates with great ideas don't need to cheat to win.

Redistricting Commission Approves Four Year Maps for General Assembly

COLUMBUS— Faced with more than a four-month delay in critical U.S. Census data, the Ohio Redistricting Commission moved forward today with a four-year map plan for the Ohio General Assembly's legislative districts.

"These house and senate maps will be in place for the next four years, and represent an important first step towards approving the next map that will complete the decade," said commission member and Senate President Matt Huffman.

Senator Huffman was the primary author of the constitutional amendment voters approved in 2015 which changed the process, establishing strong bipartisan standards designed to keep communities and counties together.

The seven-member commission consists of the Governor, Auditor, Secretary of State and four members of the General Assembly, two from each party. Despite a majority vote of 5-2, both democrats voted against the plan, which under the new rules prevents a ten-year map from becoming law.

"I'm convinced we could've reached a ten-year map," said Huffman, "However, special interests pressured democrats to not support it, asking voters to extend the deadline to accomplish that."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The commission traveled the state, holding more than a dozen hearings for the public to provide input on the proposed maps.

“Make no mistake, special interests want to get what they can’t win at the polls,” said Huffman. “So-called representational fairness is just another way to describe gerrymandering, and these groups need to remember districts are won with quality candidates, issues and campaigns, not on predetermined outcomes based on a false premise of letting special interests from Washington D.C. define what is fair.”

Hi John! Please pass along to the Senators that Ohioans do not support gerrymandering districts 4 and 15 by including large urban populations in the hopes of flipping these congressional seats to democrats.

We are all aware of the large scale fraud in federal and state elections and much closer races in district 4 and 15 make them much easier to steal.

It makes no sense “Republicans” would harm their own in this manner. Look at states like Texas and Florida where Republican majorities are fairly redistricting their states and ensuring this kind of district map making would never occur.

Please let the Republican senators know we voters are closely watching how they vote and many will see their congressional careers end.

In light of that, we would like to see some backbone out of our state Republicans. Our country is on the verge of financial and societal collapse, now is the time for strong leadership.

PRESIDENT MATT HUFFMAN

OHIO SENATE, 12TH DISTRICT | NEWSLETTER ISSUE: NOVEMBER 2021

Hello,

Happy Thanksgiving to you! I trust this update finds you well, and looking forward to the extra time spent with your family and friends.
My family and I have so much to be thankful for again this year. A couple highlights include the birth of our 5th grandchild and witnessing our youngest son marry a wonderful young lady—both incredible additions to the Huffman family. I am truly blessed and I am thankful for the life and the opportunities I have been given.

I want to let you know how grateful I am for the opportunity to represent the incredible, hard-working people of the 12th Senate District. We each have an important role to play in our state and in our community, and I hope you know I am doing my best, as Senate President, to make your priorities my priorities.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

My Senate colleagues and I have been working diligently on legislation to protect your rights, create clear pathways to gainful employment, and uphold the Constitution of Ohio as we have worked through the redistricting processes for both the state legislative and congressional maps. Below you will find an update on this work and more.

Please don't hesitate to reach out to my office if you have ideas or need help accessing state resources. I'm available at Huffman@OhioSenate.gov or by phone at (614) 466-7584.

Look forward to hearing from you,

Matt Huffman

Ohio's new congressional map, recently approved by the General Assembly, followed the requirements of the constitutional amendment approved by voters in 2018.

This is a competitive and compact map, that keeps communities together, and makes it clear that candidates and campaigns matter. You can view the new map here and click below to read additional details on Ohio's new congressional map.

My Senate colleagues and I have worked hard to pass a lot of common-sense legislation for the people of Ohio. Recently, I signed Senate Bill 36 to expand eligibility and remove certain restrictions from compensation paid to victims of certain severe, life-altering crimes and their immediate family members who require counseling.

My hope is that this piece of legislation will have a significant impact on providing much needed relief for victims and their families.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

RE: Failure to Agree on a Fair Map as Demanded and Approved by Ohio Voters

The voters of Ohio have demanded a fairer, and frankly more sensible, method of drawing districts. Our new decision making process must not be played, but rather true efforts must be made to draw districts which make the most sense and allow the votes of every single voter to truly count regardless of political affiliation or independence from same. Fair elections are crucial to the health of our democracy, particularly in this time when we have faced so many challenges to upholding the values of our constitutional republic.

I am appalled to learn that the Republican GOP today revealed a proposed district map that is even more gerrymandered than the last! This map would hand a great advantage, and a disproportionate number of seats, to Republicans in 67 of 99 House seats, and 25 out of 33 Senate seats in the state legislature, once again stacking our legislature in a manner that undermines and dismisses the will of almost half the voters in our state. This is far, far from approximating a fair map in line with the way Ohioans have recently voted, about 54% Republican to 46% Democratic, the same Ohioans who voted to demand fair redistricting this time around! As stated by some, the transparency demanded and voted for is not adequately reflected by cheating slightly more in plain sight rather than totally behind closed doors, does not meet either the spirit or actuality of the voter approved constitutional change to redistricting. We demand that the changes we voted in be protected, we demand that the impact of every vote be protected!

Sincerely

Dear Sen. Huffman,

Before Ohioans voted overwhelmingly to end gerrymandering, I watched you put forward your own supposedly "fair" map, which you tried to ram through the legislature, and which would have allowed gerrymandering to continue into the indefinite future. I also watched you ridicule a citizen who dared speak up against your plan and in favor of fair districts.

I was one of many volunteers who spent hours collecting signatures from citizens of all political persuasions. Ultimately, you worked on a compromise deal with those working on the citizen initiative, and more than 70 percent of Ohio citizens voted to end gerrymandering. Did you ever intend to honor that deal?

Today you proposed yet another map on very short notice and without consulting Democrats on the Commission. Is this how you respect Ohio voters, who believed they had voted for a Commission that would draw maps fairly, not favoring one party over another?

According to the Ohio Senate's website, senators, "whether in the Statehouse or in their communities...work hard to develop sound policies that reflect those things Ohioans value most - creating jobs, providing a quality education for our children, protecting our families and helping the less fortunate." But in order to work on behalf of Ohioans, you must actually listen to them, and you must be accountable to them. Voters must choose their leaders, and not the other way around.

The Redistricting Commission could have begun preparing for its work much earlier than it did, despite the census delay. When the Commission was finally convened, hearings were scheduled on short notice and during the day, when many Ohioans are working. Even so, hundreds of Ohioans attended each hearing and many testified about the importance of fair districts. How many of those hearings did you personally attend? Did you actually listen to or read the testimony of your fellow citizens?

Today, a staffer who drafted the GOP maps said, when questioned by Rep. Sykes, that GOP leadership instructed him NOT to consider either "representational fairness" or the Voting Rights Act. Really?

If Ohio is ever to become a "great state," its leadership must listen to and care about its citizens. Citizens have spoken loudly, clearly and repeatedly for years. They want fair districts, and it is up to you to honor their wishes. Please remember who you work for, and begin acting like the public servant you were hired to be.

Sincerely,
Deborah Cooper

As you know, Ohio's first legislative district map deadline was Wednesday, September 1st.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

I know the minority members of the commission have released a statement demanding that the commission uphold its official duties. It is crucial that the majority members comply.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

Equal Districts Coalition Denounces Republicans' Proposed District Maps as Unconstitutional, Unacceptable

COLUMBUS — Today, the Equal Districts Coalition — a unified group of 30+ Ohio advocacy organizations and unions engaged in the 2021 redistricting process — blasted the Republican members of the redistricting commission for voting to propose blatantly unconstitutional maps drawn behind closed doors.

"For the last decade, Ohioans have lived under some of the most gerrymandered maps in the country, and the Republicans managed to propose new maps that are even worse than the ones we have now," said Katy Shanahan, Ohio State Director of All On The Line. "Our reform in 2015 was a flat rejection of what happened in 2011, when our maps were drawn behind closed doors to gerrymander the Republicans into supermajorities in seats that they just aren't winning in votes at the ballot box. These proposed maps ignore everything we fought for in the reforms."

The Republican-dominated commission voted along party lines to make the Republicans' unconstitutional maps the official maps proposed by the commission. These maps, which were presented eight days past the deadline required by Ohio's Constitution, are far less compact than the maps presented on time by the Ohio Senate Democratic Caucus and the citizen-led Ohio Citizens' Redistricting Commission (OCRC).

"Ohio's Constitution clearly says legislative map drawers must aim for representational fairness based on voters' preferences over the past decade. It's clear the Republicans ignored the Constitution in drafting their maps," said Desiree Tims, President and CEO of Innovation Ohio. "Republicans only win about 55% of Ohio's vote. A constitutional map will not give them more than 55% of government seats."

Based on initial review of the Republicans' maps, they are unconstitutional and/or problematic in the following ways:

- The maps do not attempt representational fairness based on the preferences of Ohio voters over the past decade. Republicans only win about 55% of Ohio's vote — a constitutional map will not give them more than 55% of government seats.
    - The Republicans' proposed maps appear to preserve unearned Republican supermajorities in both chambers.
- The Ohio Constitution and federal law require map drawers to consider whether communities of color have adequate and real pathways to political representation. The Republican commissioners admitted publicly at today's hearing that they did not take this into consideration.
    - The Republicans' proposed maps crack and pack Ohio's communities of color, diluting their political power and denying them adequate representation.
    - For example, Cuyahoga County — a county with a population that is more than 30% Black — would be unlikely to have even one Black state senator under these proposed maps.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

    - Additionally, the state Senate map draws the Black communities in and around Dayton together with white, rural Preble, Drake and Miami counties, rather than connecting them with similar communities in Jefferson Township, Montgomery County.

- The proposed maps crack apart communities of interest, dividing neighborhoods and forcing illogical segments of the state together — clearly intending to drown out Democratic votes.
    - For example, despite their proximity and similar interests, Warren and Youngstown are drawn into separate districts in the Senate and House maps.
    - In Franklin County, a suburban Columbus district wraps around Columbus from Lincoln Village to Huber Ridge, in order to keep a western Franklin County district solidly Republican.
    - In Lucas County, House map drawers drew rural northern Hancock County together with northwestern Toledo suburbs such as Sylvania — while simultaneously combining neighboring suburbs (Holland and Maumee) with Ottawa County rather than with Toledo.
    - Suburbs around major metros are drawn into questionable-looking districts that snake around metros to connect to rural areas. Medium-sized cities and suburbs are wholesale separated from larger cities/metros to dilute with rural areas.

“After months of delaying the process, missing a constitutionally mandated deadline, neglecting their duties to attend public hearings, and refusing to work in a transparent and bipartisan manner, it is no surprise that Republicans have come forward with unacceptable maps that are an insult to the voters,” said Kobie Christian, Communications Director of For Our Future Ohio. “We stand with our partners on the Equal Districts Coalition and people across Ohio in opposing the GOP’s sham maps and demanding truly representative maps that reflect the way Ohioans actually vote and allow voters to choose who represents them at the Statehouse, not the other way around.”

The commission will now hold public hearings to gather testimony on these maps. The hearings will be held this coming Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, with shamefully little advanced notice.

Despite how inaccessible these upcoming hearings are, the Equal Districts Coalition encourages and will continue to organize as many Ohioans as possible to attend the upcoming hearings to testify on various issues with the Republicans' maps.

Here's what Equal Districts Coalition members are saying about the Republican commissioners' maps:

Jeniece Brock, Policy & Advocacy Director of the Ohio Organizing Collaborative and co-chair of the Ohio Citizens' Redistricting Commission:
"Our maps need to reflect the true diversity of Ohio. There are almost 2 million Black and Brown Ohioans who are too often left disaffected and apathetic about the political process because they don't see themselves represented. In Akron, over 30% of the population is Black, and our legislators need to include and uplift their voices when we draw our maps for the next 10 years."

Heather Taylor-Miesle, Executive Director of the Ohio Environmental Council:
"These proposed maps are disrespectful to the supermajority of Ohioans who went to the ballot box twice in the last decade and demanded our leaders stop cheating. Without a fair and truly representative democracy, Ohioans will continue to face environmental injustices from big polluters. The Ohio Redistricting Commission must go back to the drawing board for the health of our environment and our communities."

Deidra Reese, Ohio Unity Coalition:
"District lines must assure the ability for communities of color to truly impact and influence the outcome of elections, and, more importantly, those who will ultimately represent them in Congress and the state legislature. The current levels of underrepresentation in the General Assembly in Congress are out of step with our diversifying population."

Katie Paris, Founder of Red Wine and Blue:
"These maps prove Republicans are afraid of suburban women. They're trying to divide our communities because they know what happens when we band together: they lose."

Pierrette “Petee” Talley, CEO of the Ohio Coalition on Black Civic Participation:
“Now that the commission map has been presented and voted upon, how very disappointing it is that opportunities to consider districts that reflect the true population of the people who live in the districts — and the issues and concerns that bind them together by their experiences — was so foreign to the majority commission members. Race, ethnicity, economic status, and educational attainment are similar enough to require race as a basis for drawing these legislative districts, but such criteria was intentionally never even considered.”

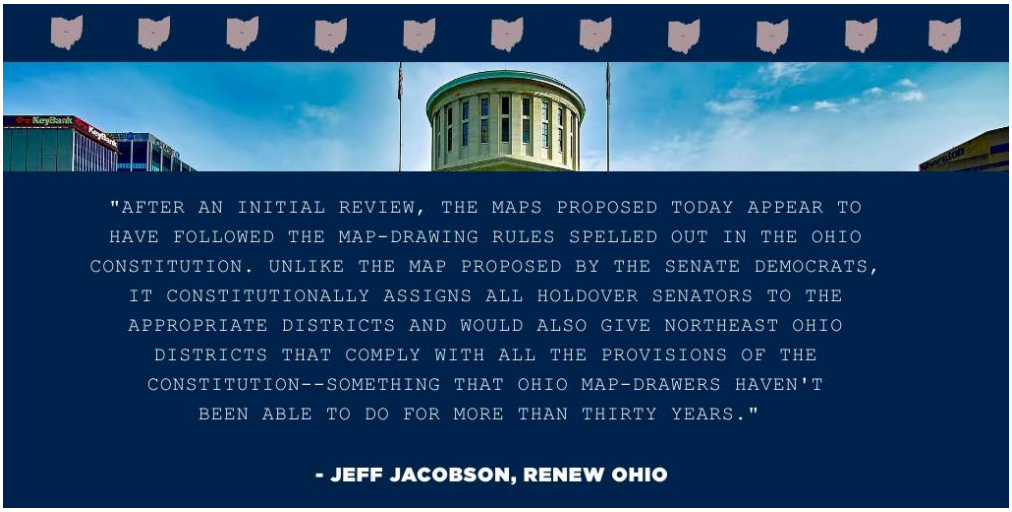
Initial Review Shows Maps Presented Today Meet Constitutional Requirements



For Immediate Release
September 9, 2021

(COLUMBUS) – Renew Ohio, a non-profit organization formed in 2013 to support common-sense policy solutions at the state level, announced today that they have provided an initial review of the maps proposed at today's Ohio Redistricting Commission hearing. That review shows that the maps for the Ohio General Assembly comply with voter-approved Constitutional requirements.

"After an initial review, the maps proposed today appear to have followed the map-drawing rules spelled out in the Ohio Constitution," said Renew Ohio Board Member Jeff Jacobson. "Unlike the map proposed by the Senate Democrats, it constitutionally assigns all holdover Senators to the appropriate districts and would also give Northeast Ohio districts that comply with all the provisions of the Constitution--something that Ohio map-drawers haven't been able to do for more than thirty years."

Note: A detailed review of the maps will be made available in the days ahead. A social media graphic is being made available below for public use.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

I know the minority members of the commission have released a statement demanding that the commission uphold its official duties. It is crucial that the majority members comply.

Political maps that divide states into legislative districts favoring one political party over the other are unfair and run counter to a core democratic principle—that all citizens are entitled to equal representation. Gerrymandering is extreme in Ohio, in violation of the existing criteria for the fair, nonpartisan drawing of legislative districts—specifically, that districts be compact, that they be contiguous, that they contain approximately equal populations, and that they respect the integrity of existing communities.
The legislative districts created in 2012 were drawn in such a way that Republican candidates enjoyed a significant advantage over Democratic candidates. Ohioans voted strongly for fair redistricting in 2015 and 2018.

The extreme gerrymandering in Ohio has led to a regrettable situation in which there is no incentive for the Republican majority to compromise. This may be fine with you IF YOU ARE A REPUBLICAN, but it is blatantly anti-democratic. And it has led to extremist policies that have damaged the state in many ways, not the least of which is the intensification of the divisiveness that grips not only Ohio but the nation.

I also believe that there exists a widespread perception that some “representatives” no longer feel a need to be personally responsive to their constituents. This is reinforced when emails are ignored or answered only with stock responses, some of which fail to address the concerns in question, and by town halls that are avoided. And the grouping of disparate and geographically distant communities into single voting districts makes it all the more difficult for those legislators sincerely wishing to represent their constituents to do so. All of this leads to resentment, voter dissatisfaction, and distrust of government. I find myself wondering just how invested our elected representatives are in our welfare.

I submit that, in failing to produce for the public a proposed legislative map by the September 1st deadline, the Commission has shown arrogant lack of concern for the electorate–the people who put them in office, the people who made their wishes known in 2015 and again in 2018, the people they are sworn to represent. Democrats and Independents alike anticipated and feared this outcome as we watched those in power drag their feet for months. We also anticipated their defense–that the Census Bureau delayed transmitting the necessary data. And we further anticipated that they would conveniently overlook the fact that the Census Bureau delay was caused by a Republican attempt to discount certain segments of the population, segments felt to be unsympathetic to their cause.

And I further submit that the lack of transparency in this process and the unreasonably short notice (24 hours) of this public hearing are evidence of Republicans' lack of good faith and their complete disinterest in producing a fair and unbiased political map.

Ohioans deserve so much better from their elected "representatives."

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

This trampling of public scrutiny and participation is outrageous.

I don't care of the secret Republican map is supposedly "almost identical to the Senate Democrats' version" in some areas. I would not care if it is completely identical. The Redistricting Commission should reject any map which was drawn in secret, by unidentified individuals, and kept under wraps until the day of the vote with only perfunctory sham hearings.

Ramming a map down our throats on Thursday without any proper process is abuse of power and lawlessness.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

Ohio's Constitution now requires that Ohioans be allowed to submit their own draft district maps during the official redistricting process. But there is not currently a way to submit these maps.

Please fulfill your constitutional obligation and pass a quality public submission bill, like HB-313, immediately.

I look forward to your response. This issue is very important to me, so I will be checking back regularly to receive updates on the public submission process.

Thank You,

Dear Rep. Huffman,

Tomorrow morning, the Republican members of Ohio's redistricting commission will finally show us their draft legislative maps.

The commission will then vote on which maps to propose to the public. They will hold public hearings on their proposed maps — likely this Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

This shortened timeline is shameful and unnecessary. The Republican-led commission has violated Ohio's Constitution by waiting this long to propose maps.

But we can't let anything stop us from testifying. Ohioans' voices must be heard.

Are you interested in testifying in-person this Sunday, Monday, or Tuesday? If so, sign up here. We will contact you with additional details.

- Sign up here to attend a testimony workshop training at 6:00 pm tonight (9/8) or tomorrow (9/9).
- Sign up here to attend testimony office hours with All On The Line Ohio at 6:00 pm tonight.

Commit to Testify for Fair Maps

If you cannot testify in person, can you commit to submitting written testimony instead? It's crucial for a broad, diverse range of Ohioans from all over the state to share their thoughts on proposed maps.

Here are the basics of a fair map:

- Over the last decade, Ohio Republicans have only captured about 55% of the statewide vote. A fair map will not give Republicans more than 55% of government seats.
- Based on Ohio's statewide vote for the past decade, state legislative maps must include at least 44 Democratic House seats (out of 99 seats) and 14 Democratic Senate seats (out of 33 seats).

It will take all of us together to fight for fair maps and equal districts.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Over 6 YEARS ago, Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts, in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process. It's time to step up.

The people are tired of gerrymandering. We're tired of squabbling and posturing.
Is fairness and transparency really that difficult? You said you would redistrict fairly. So redistrict fairly. If you can't manage this in a timely fashion, hire a computer programmer not affiliated with one party or the other to write a program that would block out equal squares of people throughout the state. Census data show where everyone lives, more or less.

Please set up a schedule of open hearings so we Ohioans can attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and know when a possible vote is forthcoming. Yes, this is more time consuming and complicated than shutting out everyone else and coming up with a plan among the 7 of you, but you know that is not the process in a democracy.

Thank you,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative district map deadline was Wednesday, September 1st.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

I know the minority members of the commission have released a statement demanding that the commission uphold its official duties. It is crucial that the majority members comply.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Ohioan's voted for fair redistricting.

Set up the portal now so Ohio's citizens can easily be involved in the process of seeing, commenting, and approving the new maps.

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

As a citizen of Ohio, living in West Akron my district has been linked to East Cleveland for how many years? Not that Marcia Fudge wasn't a good Representative for East Cleveland (she was) But by and large I never felt the issues important to me, faced in my community were addressed. West Akron is not East Cleveland.

I want to see the proposed map of my district.

I want to be able to comment on and approve the proposed map of my district.

And yes, as a voting citizen I voted for fair districts. Twice.

So no more funny business to control power from either party. It's past time to restore democracy in Ohio.

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative district map deadline was Wednesday, September 1st.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

I know the minority members of the commission have released a statement demanding that the commission uphold its official duties. It is crucial that the majority members comply.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative district map deadline was Wednesday, September 1st.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

I know the minority members of the commission have released a statement demanding that the commission uphold its official duties. It is crucial that the majority members comply.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

You may think you are representing the majority of Ohioans but you are not. Time to start respecting the law just as citizens are expected to.

Thank You.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

I know the minority members of the commission have released a statement demanding that the commission uphold its official duties. It is crucial that the majority members comply.

Date: Tuesday, September 7, 2021 5:45:33 PM

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Subject: The Ohio Redistricting Commission must establish a schedule immediately
Date: Tuesday, September 7, 2021 4:02:03 PM

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

I attended the hearing in Zanesville OH. The testimony was well-reasoned and civil. It was an encouraging experience until I realized very few of the Republican committee members were in attendance and this was likely an exercise in futility. Republicans in our state, in general, oppose fairness. They also seem to be in favor of government corruption. That is a sad state of affairs.

Re: Redistricting

If you want to be honest and fair and take gerrymandering out of redistricting, it is actually simple.

Create an algorithm that has all of the criteria that is important for fair district creation: population, balance of political party registration, geographical delineation, ... Program the computer and let it determine 3 plans that would meet the criteria. THEN let your commission choose one plan that allows everyone to feel fairly represented.

I know , of course, that the real interest of the majority party is to stay in power, but it would be so refreshing to see political leaders who truly believed that every person's vote should count!

INNOVATION OHIO

Dear Matt,

Ohio's Republican-led redistricting commission is now in direct violation of Ohio's Constitution.

Ohio's Constitution clearly requires the commission to release their proposed legislative district maps AND hold at least three public hearings on the maps by September 1, 2021. To date, the commission has failed to complete either task.

It is inexcusable that the commission is just blatantly ignoring the laws Ohioans voted for.

Take Action

Send an email — tell the commission to #ShowUsTheMaps TODAY.

It will take all of us together to demand fair maps and Equal Districts.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

Subject: Ohio demands equal districts
Date: Tuesday, September 7, 2021 1:37:14 PM

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

I know the minority members of the commission have released a statement demanding that the commission uphold its official duties. It is crucial that the majority members comply.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark - the entire process is currently looking at least questionable to me and no doubt many others. Let's restore/build confidence in our State processes, please.

Present us with an accurate redistrict map that we (citizens) can provide input resulting in real change to the map, helping to ensure citizens have a higher level of trust and support for our government.

Proper districts ensure our right to have representatives that are effective for us in our communities. Politics is necessary, but when politics becomes the focus of an issue and the way to proceed and solely determines the outcome, that makes politics wrong!

No excuse is acceptable for missing a deadline. As a result of missing the Sept 1 deadline, your committee moves one step closer to approving a closed-door state district map.

Do what is right for citizen participation,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative district map deadline was Wednesday, September 1st.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

I am an Ohio voter, and I, along with millions of others, voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the majority of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message that you will honor your oath of office to uphold not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

As a mom of three little ones and a full-time worker outside my home, I need a fair and transparent (and timely) process. I need time to plan my schedule so I can attend Commission meetings, offer my testimony as a citizen and voter for map deliberations. And I think all of us whom you have been elected to represent deserve this right.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

My name is Eve Herold and I live in Worthington, Ohio house district 21, Ohio Senate district 16, and US Congressional District 12. I carried petitions 4 times over a period of 14 years to get redistricting reform on the Ohio ballot. Once citizens understood what redistricting was all about and the disgrace of gerrymandered districts, they approved a constitutional amendment to reform the way Ohio political districts are drawn by an overwhelming margin in 2015. A companion amendment to reform the way Congressional districts are drawn passed in 2018, also by a large margin.
I have confidence that in selecting a map that defines legislative districts on the state and federal level for the next ten years, you will adhere to the rules established by these amendments to the state constitution. These rules ensure that districts are compact and contain constituents who live in proximity to one another and share a community of interests.
Any attempt to approve a map with gerrymandered districts devised to protect partisan interests would be an insult to the voters of Ohio who have clearly spoken that they want fair maps with fair districts.

President Huffman—

I am disappointed by the commission's slow, stealthy, furtive action. And the insincere justification of these, "because the census data was late."

I urge you to take guidance from the Cuyahoga County Redistricting Commission which despite the late data, followed their governing law, conducted clearly scheduled hearings that disclosed the consultants who drew the maps, accepted criticism of these from the public, and maps from the public, and have completed their process.

Why you have ignored the Ohio Constitution and the overwhelming will of the voters, is a mystery to me.

Please change your ways and follow the law.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

I hope you're all enjoying Labor Day weekend with your families.

Secretary LaRose joined the Franklin County Board of Elections on Wednesday for their post-election audit of the Congressional Special Election for Ohio's 15th district that took place in August. The audits that Ohio conducts after every election are based off the voter-verified paper ballot trail and ensure that every vote was counted properly. For the 2020 Presidential Election, the statewide audit revealed a 99.98% accuracy rate. We encourage you to visit your local Board of Elections where the staff can explain the bipartisan nature of our boards and the steps they take to ensure the security and integrity of our elections.

As always, reach out to our office with any questions or concerns.

This week, Secretary of State Frank LaRose held a public event and invited the press to visit the Franklin County Board of Elections to observe their audit of the August Congressional Special Election for Ohio's 15th Congressional District. Director Antone White, Deputy Director David Payne, and Board of Election staff walked the public through the painstaking process, highlighting the many steps they take to ensure the audit is secure, bi-partisan and accurate. Following the 2020 Presidential election, Ohio's post-election audit revealed a 99.98% accuracy rate.

Spotlighting Ohio's Skilled Trades

With Labor Day right around the corner, Secretary LaRose shined a spotlight on the businesses in Ohio whose workers demonstrate the hard work, grit and talent that help our state grow through the skilled trades. The businesses selected represent a wide range of skilled trades including carpentry, plumbing and pipefitting and steelworkers – each playing a critical role in strengthening their communities and in growing Ohio's economy.

Ensuring Fair Legislative Maps

The Ohio Redistricting Commission met this week to adopt rules for the process as required by Article XI of the Ohio Constitution. The Secretary serves as a member of the seven-person commission, which also includes the Governor, State Auditor and Republican and Democrat legislators from both the House and the Senate. During his time in the Ohio Senate, Secretary LaRose was a vocal advocate for reforming the redistricting process. He helped author Ohio's constitutional amendments to improve the process, and continues to advocate for bipartisan collegiality and cooperation as new district lines are created.

Convening of the Ohio Ballot Board

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Secretary LaRose serves as Chairman of the Ohio Ballot Board, which certifies the ballot language for proposed Constitutional amendments, initiatives, and referenda and oversees efforts to inform voters of proposed ballot issues. Among their responsibilities is to vote at a meeting determining if a proposal before them constitutes a single issue. Approval does not signify an endorsement of the initiative. This week, the Ballot Board unanimously agreed the citizen initiative petition entitled "An Act to Control and Regulate Adult Use Cannabis" was a single subject, allowing for its proponents to begin circulating petitions to put the proposal before the Ohio General Assembly. If the proponents obtain the necessary valid petition signatures and the legislature fails to act upon it, the measure could appear on statewide ballots in 2022. Ohio attorneys can once again earn credit as poll workers as part of Lawyers for Liberty

Since taking office in 2019, Ohio Secretary of State Frank LaRose has made poll worker recruitment a priority. Innovative outreach programs were initiated to ensure polling locations were fully staffed each election day. With the impact of COVID-19, recruitment efforts became exponentially more important as a high percentage of poll workers were older Ohioans. On Tuesday, the Ohio Supreme Court announced one of these pioneering programs will continue through the November 2021 election.

In the summer of 2020, Secretary LaRose first won the approval of the Ohio Supreme Court to allow Ohio lawyers to receive required Continuing Legal Education (CLE) credit for serving as a precinct election official (PEO) in the November election. The program, known as Lawyers for Liberty, contributed more than 1,000 new poll workers last fall as Ohio broke the record for trained PEOs. The nation noticed and other states followed Ohio's lead, prompting the National Association of State Election Directors to present Secretary LaRose with the 2021 "Innovators Award."

"Unique challenges require creative solutions, and that's exactly what happened when we created Lawyers for Liberty last year," said LaRose. "We appreciate the Ohio Supreme Court recognizing the high value of this program to both Ohio lawyers and the communities they will serve as poll workers."

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

This email is being sent to all member of the Ohio Redistricting Commission and my state representative, Diane Grendell:

I would like to know what is so difficult for all of you to understand? The citizens of Ohio voted TWICE to come up with a fair system to stop this insane district gerrymandering that we have endured for the past 10 years; and not by small margins.

You are hiding behind the "late" census data when you know damn good and well it hasn't changed all that much since your last brazen maps were drawn. The fact is, you just don't care what the voters think, or say, or want. Eighth graders could draw fair district maps in a couple days. But it eludes our highest elected leaders to be that smart or genuine.

I would like to single out 3 individuals for particular scorn:

1. Mike DeWine. For a total lack of leadership on this issue. Mike, you did so well with the pandemic. Where are you now? Hiding.

2. Robert Cupp. I suspect you are the key to the current impasse and total disregard for the law, citizens' wishes, common sense, and any lack of anything close to good governance. As a former member of the Ohio Supreme Court, this is particularly galling.

3. Matt Huffman. I expect so little when it comes to you, Matt, that I'm shocked when something you are involved in DOESN'T smell of corruption and craven politics. See HB-6

The rest of you are not much better for stonewalling this making it as difficult as possible for Ohio to be represented by districts that reflect how our citizens actually vote.

If you had any shame, it's not showing. You haven't even come up with a date for a public showing of public review. Don't have a 2021 September calendar handy?

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative district map deadline was Wednesday, September 1st.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

I am appalled that no public hearings thus far were held in my home city, Columbus. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

I know the minority members of the commission have released a statement demanding that the commission uphold its official duties. It is crucial that the majority members comply.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Dear Members of the Redistricting Commission:

I will be sending this separately to each of you, since there was no place to send it to the whole commission.

To begin with I have to say Shame on you! I have lived in Ohio nearly my entire life and I am 70. I have voted for Republicans and Democrats based on their policies and how they will benefit Ohio. I am totally appalled by what has been going on with the gerrymandering that the state of Ohio has engaged in. There are 3 of us who all live within 15 miles of each other, all in the same county and guess what? All 3 of us have different Representatives who live more than 100 miles from us. Now does that make sense? We all live in suburban areas and have Representatives in DC who are all rural people, does that make sense? All of our Representatives in DC have no clue about us, our community, our needs, etc. heck, mine doesn't even bother to answer me when I write to him. They do not come to our areas to hold town halls, they do not care about anyone outside their small areas where they live part of the time.

My State Representative has NEVER answered a letter from me, but I have to say my State Senator did at least except it was a there is nothing I can do letter. What is right, moral or correct about having Representatives who never come to our areas, answer our questions, etc. It is so clear that citizens of Ohio are not being represented. And now you are continuing to gerrymander the state to keep yourselves in power. And you wonder why people are leaving Ohio, we are down 2 seats and it will continue if you allow this state to be gerrymandered like it is. The citizens of this state have voted twice to put a stop to it but none of you have bothered to listen. I guess it is because the way the maps are you will stay in power because too many voters only vote for names their recognize.

It is a real shame that you, who are supposed to be voice of the voters of this state, have no regard for the voters of this state. Where is that map which is NOT gerrymandered? You are in violation of the constitution and should be held accountable but I guess you won't be except at the ballot box. But then since we will be continued to be gerrymandered our votes will not even count. This hypocrisy by all of the GOP in this state makes me want to move out of Ohio myself. I am sure that if this is only a 4 year map, you are going to see move people leaving this state because it will be clear that our representatives really don't give a flying fig about the people that they are supposed to serve.

Our government can only work if our elected/appointed officials practice governing equitably. Citizens deserve the ability to trust their leaders. When leaders fail to uphold their responsibilities, citizens lose trust. Providing fair and balanced districts as opposed to Gerrymandering, is one way to ensure all votes are meaningful.

Thank You.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark. And I find it disheartening that we citizens need to continue to remind and push again and again for you folks to follow the law! What examples does this set for our youth? They too are watching and forming their opinions for future political action based on the examples you as a group set.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

Yes you have received this standard letter from others however this in no way means that I do not fully stand behind its message and regard the failure to comply with the Ohio constitution serious. I urge you to heed this entreaty and act post haste.

As you know, Ohio's first legislative district map deadline was Wednesday, September 1st.

It is unacceptable that the commission has not yet released any maps to the public — you are now in violation of Ohio's Constitution.

It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

I know the minority members of the commission have released a statement demanding that the commission uphold its official duties. It is crucial that the majority members comply.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Sir:

I am concerned about the redistricting process taking place in Ohio. There seems to be a question about the transparency of the process.

I am proud of my state. In the last presidential election, Ohio went out of its way to make voting easy and accessible to everyone, when other states did not. I would like to feel the same about our redistricting map.

I really believe it should not be a distribution of voters based not on political interests, but strictly on population. Republicans currently hold the political power in Ohio. I am a Democrat. But if fair redistricting results in a continued Republican majority, so be it. It just means Democrats are not giving Ohioans what they want. We must work harder. That is what it means to live in the democracy which is America.

I am appealing to your patriotism as an American to consider what I have said in making your decisions redistricting decisions.

Sincerely,
Carol Costa, M.D.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

My mail was urging the Redistricting Commission to get on with the job of creating fair districts "in the sunshine" , engaging the Ohio citizen's who worked so hard to obtain both process and structure for creating fair electoral districts. Our democracy is in a very fragile state right now--this Commission can help it to be stronger in the future as it would be accountable voters who share contiguous territory and hold more common interests than those in many of the current districts.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

I was among the millions of Ohioans who voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Subject: Ohio demands equal districts
Date: Thursday, September 2, 2021 6:02:31 PM

President Matt Huffman,

Hello, Senator Vernon Sykes

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

President Huffman—

I'm so frustrated when I listen to the news regarding the Ohio Redistricting Commission, and totally embarrassed to be a Republican when I talk to my neighbors. I don't understand all the secrecy, delay, and most of all the dereliction of duty to the Ohio Constitution. This process should be transparent, and it should solicit, welcome, and incorporate input from the public.

Seeing this, after watching a budget similarly constructed behind closed doors and delivered with no daylight to incorporate public reaction. It's enough to make one believe that EVERY Republican was complicit in the embarrassing HB6 fiasco — so dispiriting to see our government for sale.

Please conduct the remainder of this process with transparency and integrity. Follow the law AND the spirit of the law. Go out of your way to exhibit the appearance of propriety.

Thank you. Feel free to contact me regarding this matter.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Subject: Ohio demands equal districts
Date: Thursday, September 2, 2021 4:38:51 PM

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today. The easiest thing for the ORC to do is to not set a schedule. Then members, who were expected to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and to release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the ORC is complete can be sued for not doing so. . Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Subject: Ohio demands equal districts & fair football
Date: Thursday, September 2, 2021 3:13:36 PM

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,
Ohio loves sports: high school, college, professional. We love all kinds of sports, and we are quick to call foul when someone cheats or when the officials make a bad call. Overall, Ohioans believe in fair play. Why then do we as a state continue to cheat at that most important sport—elections?

According to Pew Research, 42% of Ohio voters are Republicans or lean Republican while 40% are Democrats or lean Democratic. That leaves 18% as independents. When Ohio voters are not trapped in Gerrymandered districts, they elect one Republican and one Democratic senator, which reflects a balanced electorate. Ohio voted for Barack Obama and for Donald Trump—a true purple state. But Gerrymandering sent 12 Republicans and only 4 Democrats as Representatives to Congress. Fair districts might send 8 Republicans and 8 Democrats or 9 and 7 to the House of Representatives.

If this were football, the end zone for the Republicans would start at mid field and the one for the Democrats would be buried at the back of their end zone. And Ohioans would boo and call foul. Fair is fair and Ohioans are fair. Which is why, in 2015 and 2018, voters passed mandates for redistricting to reduce the gerrymandered districts that produces unfair elections.

No “redistricting” that continues to produce districts like “the snake on the lake” and districts 12 and 15 can be called fair. Trust the voters, give us a level playing field, and let the best team win.

I’m emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio’s Statehouse. They’ve only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn’t winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn’t occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we’re counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

This is a moral issue. Every American citizen deserves a vote, and every citizen should get to vote in a fair district, not a district gerrymandered by either party to ensure a favorable election outcome. Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Redistricting Commission members and Interested Parties,

As of 10:20 am today, the Redistricting Commission's website doesn't have the rules that were passed on Tuesday, August 31st at about 1:30 pm that day. Additionally, the maps that were developed by the Senate Democrats and submitted to the Commission that day have not been posted to https://redistricting.ohio.gov .

Of course, the lack of this information is totally unacceptable, but it was not unexpected by Representative Cupp because of his lack of responsiveness to Representative Sykes's inquiries and to the Public in general.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Frank and Governor DeWine,

I cannot tell you how disappointed I am in your lack of leadership and response to fair redistricting. I do not accept the late Census data release as an appropriate excuse for delay. You could have made multiple alternative maps by now. The missed deadline for showing maps just appears to show a lack of transparency until the last moment. Mike and I are just sick of jerrymandering and do not feel well represented by our elected officials in this regard.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect Ohio's partisan makeup and preserve an entirely appropriate Republican majority in the Legislature. They are required by the Ohio Constitution.

Our Constitution, of course, demands not just representational fairness, but community integrity. The days are gone when redistricting allowed splitting communities to pack and crack voting blocs.

Ohioans are watching. While the Census delay formed a transparently thin excuse for your failure to meet beginning early this year and to release maps by yesterday's deadline, there is not even a fictitious impediment to fairness.

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today. I watched the Redistricting Commission Meeting in which Leader Sykes attempted multiple times to get an answer as to when the commission would jointly work on maps and if she would be included in the process as well as when the commission would release an official map for public comment. Speaker Cupp stonewalled Leader Sykes. Not acceptable. The commission has had months to come together and do this work and weeks since the census date has been released. The commission must update the public on the process every step of the way. This is what we voted for. It is our constitutional right and your constitutional obligation.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete while we can make plans to attend. End gerrymandering to benefit politicians or a party now.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

I attended the Ohio Redistricting Commission meeting at the Ohio Statehouse on Tuesday, August 31, at 1 pm. While I gained an appreciation for the complexity of the task at hand, I was dismayed to realize that the members of the Commission are not working together to establish a map but are instead relying on partisan efforts to craft a map.

At this meeting a map was presented by a Democratic caucus. Some members of the Commission gave me the impression that they were not prepared to consider any map until an expected Republican map was available for consideration.

But why are the members of the Commission not themselves working together, cooperating on crafting one map for all Ohioans?

If this were done, the Commission would collectively be in position to control the schedule for completion of the map, and would therefore be able to field important questions about the schedule of public hearings about which the Commission was unable to speak on Tuesday.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

The current embarrassing districting shows why it is important to include more people in the process and inform the public, so that smarter people can be involved to shape fair districts.

The current districts are clearly not fair, so transparency is the only way to hold off the appearance of severe corruption.

While most citizens testified last week in Cincinnati that their vote was diluted because most of the constituents in their district were from more rural areas and did not share their same concerns, my district is packed. My representative does understand and share my concerns as well as others in my district. However, my representative cannot be effective in the Ohio State Assembly because of the process of "packing" all the Democrats in very few districts. The result is the super majority of Republicans to push threw whatever agenda they want.

As one other person stated at the meeting, "We are watching." The final numbers need to reflect the partisan make up of Ohio, 55% Republican leaning and 45% Democrat leaning. That is the only way to get competitive districts where all the House Representatives and State Senators must be responsive to their constituents. That is good government.

Thank you.,

Ohio Redistricting Commission Ignores Constitution, Fails to Meet 9/1 Deadline

COLUMBUS — Today, the Equal Districts Coalition — a unified group of nearly 30 Ohio advocacy organizations and unions engaged in the 2021 redistricting process — condemned the Ohio Redistricting Commission's failure to meet the constitutional deadline of releasing a proposed map and hosting public input hearings by September 1, 2021.

"Ohioans made their voices clear with their votes: they want a bipartisan commission to follow the new laws and implement a fair and transparent redistricting process. September 1st is not just some casual deadline — It's a constitutional requirement. The Republican-dominated commission has no legitimate excuse for ignoring it," said Desiree Tims, President and CEO of Innovation Ohio.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Republican Commission members cite the census delay as reason for not having met their constitutional deadline. However, the fact that the Ohio Senate Democratic Caucus, the citizen-led Ohio Citizens' Redistricting Commission (OCRC), and several Ohioans (using the Commission's public submission portal) were all able to draft and present maps by the deadline illustrates that it was, indeed, possible to have complied.

"For months now the OCRC has modeled an open, transparent, and inclusive process for the state's official redistricting commission to follow. We uplifted the voices of all Ohioans throughout the state, especially Black, brown, and immigrant Ohioans. We could no longer wait for our elected leaders to convene the commission, so we went ahead and did it ourselves. We are proud to present two fair and ideal district maps of Ohio based on collective input submitted by hundreds of everyday Ohioans who felt empowered to participate in the redistricting process," said Jeniece Brock, OCRC vice-chair and Policy and Advocacy Director for the Ohio Organizing Collaborative.

Coalition members also expressed deep concern at the discovery that Republican commission members have been drafting maps in secret. House Minority Leader Emilia Sykes, one of only two Democrats on the Republican-dominated commission, repeatedly asked her fellow commissioners at yesterday's public meeting when she would be permitted to view their maps.

The majority party members acknowledged that maps are being drafted behind closed doors, but would give no timeline as to when the minority party's commissioners — or members of the public — would see them.

"Fair maps come from a fair process — we cannot get one without the other. Unfortunately, the Republicans are dragging their feet and refusing to host the transparent, people-powered redistricting process that Ohioans demanded and that our Constitution requires. It should appall everyone that Republican commissioners openly admitted to drawing maps behind closed doors — just like they did in 2011," said Katy Shanahan, Ohio State Director for All On The Line.

Majority party members drawing maps in secret stands in direct opposition to the intent of the citizen-passed laws surrounding Ohio's new redistricting commission. The Equal Districts Coalition demands that any maps being developed by commission members and/or their staff be made available to all other commission members immediately.

We are watching you! I solicited signatures to get fair districts on the Ohio ballot. The people voted for FAIRER districts. Are you paying attention? Don't make us protest!

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is TODAY! Please stop treating this like it doesn't matter and you'll just do what you want and no one will care. We, the people of Ohio, voted OVERWHELMINGLY in 2018 for an ungerrymandered map of Ohio Districts. We care. Show respect to the people of the state.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

If you can't tell why now after all those public meetings that you or a designee has attended that the people are hot under the collar about the boundaries drawn after the last census, you will be paying at the voting box. If you couldn't see how hard the Democratics worked after the last election, you will pay at the voting box. The best way to get our dander up, is to wake the sleeping Giant. Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Isn't the point of the new districting process to be transparent? It is frustrating to feel like so little information is reaching the people that these plans will affect. We need to know when maps will be ready for our viewing and we need to know what the timeline is. You need a team who is communicating statewide to all voters.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

What has happened to our process? Where is our democracy and fairness? I am frustrated and angry... Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Hello,

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

After attending the Mansfield meeting and hearing "witnesses' " testimony about why ending gerrymandering and creating fair districts within the state of Ohio, it is unconscionable--in my view--for any hold up in sharing new map input with the citizens of the state.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

As an advocate of open government, I request that the Ohio Redistricting Commission co-chairs set a complete schedule for introducing maps and holding public hearings.

The new rule established by the Commission that only provide 24 hours notice for a hearing is simply inadequate. As citizens of Ohio, your constituents, and voters, I need to know when official maps will be introduced, and I need a complete schedule of public hearings so as a citizen advocate I and other Ohioans can fully prepare to participate in a meaningful way.

Ohioans deserve to know when, where, and how many hearings to expect! I call on the Commission members to abide by the spirit and letter of the new redistricting rules and te Ohio Constitution and prioritize keeping the public informed and engaged in the process.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to request a fair district maps. It is your duty to the citizens of this state that we are fairly represented. You have been selected because you have been elected for the good of all citizens in Ohio. Now is your time to act.

If Republicans only make up 55% of the statewide vote why do they hold 75% of state Senate seats? That is unacceptable.It is due to rigged distrcts.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

As an active participant in our States political process, I find it disturbing that our new process for redistricting has already gotten off to a shaky start.

Ohio is thought of throughout the nation as one of the most politically corrupt states. The latest scandal involving former speaker Householder and First Energy does little to dissuade this notion.

Now redistricting has started off with a lack of openness and transparency that is intended and required by our States constitution,

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps. Ohioans overwhelmingly voted to end the distortion of districts resulting from gerrymandering at the last census. Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats. Instead, the GOP drew district maps by which they chose their voters. I live in the city of Columbus yet I am drawn into a district which doesn't reflect my community, my circumstances, my geographical commonalities, or issues important to me as the resident of a large city. Consequently, I am "represented" by someone whose priorities are not my priorities, whose votes are not consistent with my concerns or my needs.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015, the purpose of which was to demand fairness and transparency in the process.

All Ohio citizens deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting process-- i.e. a schedule of hearings and clear advance communication as to the goal of each hearing. It's not truly a public hearing if there is not adequate time given for all Ohio voters so inclined to attend, observe and testify (if appropriate).

Ohio is a state with a 50-50 political split, but with a supermajority stranglehold on all branches of government. A set schedule of hearings and obvious transparency will show a commitment to both the letter and the spirit of the law, and re-establish Ohioans faith in their State government.

Democracy is at risk. Have the integrity to allow it to work as intended, and the personal courage to stand firm. Thank you.

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

Hello, my name is Lloyd Rains

I'm sending this email for you as a state representative to fight for fair state-wide district maps.

Because of previous redistricting, the district lines are so far from a common-sense approach which has taken my vote and lessened its impact when choosing my state representation.

As republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable, unreasonable, and cries for a new way of drawing district lines.

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Thank you Senator Sykes and House Minority Leader Sykes for showing up at Commission hearings and caring to hear from Ohio's voters about gerrymandering concerns!

Speaker Cupp, Secretary Larose, Senators Huffman, Auditor Fabor, and Governor Dewine, It has not escaped voters' notice that 5 of the 7 of the Commission members (all of you Republicans!) have not turned up at community hearings on redistricting, moved forward on scheduling hearings with sufficient advance notice that Ohioans can plan to attend, proposed transparent deliberations on the many submitted map options, or scheduled a vote that exhibits good faith reasoning for making map choices. It appears that you don't care and already plan to sabbotage the intent of Ohio's voters to redistrict the state fairly.

Is maintaining undemocratically-acquired power just the only thing you care about? So it appears - and what sign do we have that this is an unjust conclusion? (none)

Speaker Cupp and Senator Huffman, you are a BIG disappointment, but in fact your behavior exhibits exactly the predictable lack of concern elected officials can freely demonstrate in a state that has been rigged by gerrymandering, i.e. there's no need to care a whit when your gerrymandered seat guarantees you re-election in spite of your dismissal of the whole of Ohio's constituents. Secretary Larose, Auditor Faber, and Governor Dewine, although you are not in gerrymandered seats, your disdain for Ohio's voters exhibits your pure party-affiliation attitudes toward those who may not have voted for you - and, of course, affinity for power rather than democracy.

You may not care, but I'm not the only Ohioan noticing your disdain.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps. There has been a very unfair slant on voting districts in this state since maps were last drawn. No matter the political party in charge, districts should be fair and the voters voices should be heard. To rig the system is to eventually see the failure of the system, something neither side wants. Please put partisanship aside and do the right thing for everyone's future.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

I worked very hard to get these initiatives on the ballot. Hours spent reviewing, scanning, etc petitions at the Fair Districts office. Hours spent at parades, on street corners, farmers' markets, etc. I am tied of being ignored. Tired of being silenced. Ohio and placed their faith in the initiatives and we will not sit idly by and the process be abused. Do the right thing.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

It seems like republican members of the redistricting commission are doing everything they can to delay fair maps for Ohioans to maintain undeserved power. Stop playing games with Ohio's future and take this process and your responsibility to the people of Ohio seriously.

It's almost like the republicans didn't get the message from the crowded rooms of people at the public hearings last week - wait they didn't get the message because they weren't there and have not been listening!

And if you are trying to kick the can down the road as far as you can to only have one hearing - you will not be acting in the spirit of a bipartisan redistricting process like Ohioan voted for. Oh wait - you have already violated the spirit. Get your stuff together.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Fair districts benefit both parties and the people of Ohio on both sides by encouraging a fair exchange of ideas and compromise rather that a race to the extreme on either side in uncontested districts. Both sides should want fair districts that promote new, creative ideas and good governance.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

The country is heading down a slippery slope if the gerrymandering of the last decade is perpetuated or even made worse for the next ten years. This is a matter of saving what's left of the U.S.'s fragile democracy. Please do the right thing and set up districts that give fair representation to EVERY Ohio citizen. And please don't write rules that restrict participation in the redistricting process.

President Matt Huffman,

Respectfully,

I am emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats.
That is unacceptable!

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, it should not occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting. We want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark. Democracy must be served!

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

One party should not be given a distinct advantage to win office. Ten years ago, maps were drawn privately to do just that. It is unacceptable. This has to change. I count on you to implement the change.

The fact is Ohio's first legislative map deadline is Wednesday, September 1st. It is one day prior to the deadline and you have not released draft maps nor scheduled public hearings. Again, this is completely unacceptable.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

Without a schedule, there can be no adequate deliberation and discussion of the officially proposed maps. We need to know when the maps will be introduced, and when we will have a chance to weigh in. The Ohio Constitution specifically mandates no less than three hearings for the public to share their thoughts about proposed maps for Ohio House and Senate districts. There should be at least 72 hours between these meetings.

Do the right thing for the people of Ohio!

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

This is not rocket science. The majority of Ohioans have spoken and our intent is clear. Covering your ears to our pleas or putting you head in the sand so you can ignore them is unacceptable. We know this is about party power but we have voted with a mandate to rise above those motivations and exercise the will of the people. Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

As a concerned Ohio citizen who expects fair redistricting along with 70%+ of my fellow Ohioans, today's Commission meeting did not provide much confidence. Fair redistricting is important to me, so much so that I testified at the Dayton hearing and changed my schedule on short notice to attend the Commission meeting today.

It appears the Ohio Redistricting Commission has not established a process as to how the mapping will occur nor communicated any procedural advances among its members. It was obvious members of the Commission have very different understandings as to how this procedure will take place. This was surprising to me, should have felt awkward for each of you, and did not offer assurance that this Commission realizes that Ohio voters want to know your clear path forward. Saying it is hard work, as offered by Senator Huffman, is not enough. Negating the mapping presented by the Ohio Senate Democrats without an offer by any Republicans rang hollow. When asked by Representative Sykes several times for some guidance on the process and Commission member participation, Co-Chair Cupp stated he provided her an answer three or four times, when in fact he offered no real answer at all.

At the start of the meeting, Co-Chair Cupp stated the September 1st deadline will be missed, but he offered no further reference for any additional dates the Commission will be working toward. While meeting a short-term date with district maps that do not represent the voters of Ohio should not be the goal of this Commission, providing direction with substance in this meeting, as to where the project currently lies with next steps to follow, should have occurred and I, as did others, were expecting much more than the Commission or Speaker Cupp's chairing of the meeting provided. It may not have been Co-Chair Cupp's intent today, but his comments struck a partisan, somewhat uninterested tone.

We, the bipartisan voters of Ohio, informed our state officials we want fair redistricting by ending gerrymandering. We expect this Commission to provide us how you will get there in a constructive, non-partisan manner, demonstrating productive efforts very soon with a complete schedule for the introduction of maps in consideration and dates for public hearings.

Thank you.

Dear Senator Huffman,
At the Redistricting Commission meeting today you brought up an issue about accounting for (and presumably factored into how districts are established) to insure they are preserved in their jobs. While there could be instances where the Senators no longer reside in the new Districts it seems totally inappropriate to make redistricting conform to such a consideration. What requirements are there in Ohio law that such a consideration should be used in redistricting? While it does make the redistricting job harder to deal with that possibility, I believe that savings incumbents should not be included in the decisions about redistricting. If additional compensation would be allowable for an unfinished term that could be considered. I would appreciate knowing your views in more detail than was given at the Redistricting Commission. Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process.

The members of the Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency by releasing a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By doing this, you send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold - not only the letter of the redistricting reform law - but also the spirit of the law.

We, the people of Ohio, deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and - most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio must not be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Honest Ohioans of every political stripe, except those who do not really like our constitutional form of government (democracy!) voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. Subject: Ohio demands equal districts
Date: Tuesday, August 31, 2021 6:14:01 PM

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

I understand that the Ohio Redistricting Commission has failed to establish a timetable for releasing proposed maps. How can that be? Millions of Ohioans have waited more than patiently for fair redistricting since we voted for reform in 2015. Our patience is running out. Where is the transparency that was promised when we voted for reform?

The people of Ohio expect a fair, transparent and professional redistricting process, but more and more it looks like it's politics as usual. So far, no proposed maps or even a date when we can expect to see them, and no schedule of public hearings. You could have at least made schedules or come up with a scheduling plan months ago, even with the census data delay. Are you serious about your jobs or are you just playing the people of Ohio.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

'WE THE PEOPLE' demand to participate in our own interest. A country originally designed for a democratic process in government must not be subjected to any sort of tyranny by small groups that do not represent the majority vote among citizens.

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

I am so tired of feeling invisible to my representatives and senators. Please do as Ohio voters have asked, twice, and draw fair districts. It's time.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission
Part of having a "fair" re-districting process is having a transparent one as well. Citizen input is a vital step. I know the schedule is tighter than originally planned, due to the lateness of the census data, but it can not be an excuse for minimizing input opportunities each step of the way. Please let us know the exact times and dates for all the meetings and give us enough time to arrange to be in attendance.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

I write to ask you to respect the millions of Ohioans from both major political parties who voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process. This can be accomplished by presenting maps to us in a timely fashion and then holding hearings for us to respond and react to those maps. Demonstrate fairness and transparency during this process to bolster good faith in the Ohio electorate.
I request a set schedule of hearings across the state be established quickly and with consideration of the voters' time and work schedules.Demonstrate that you honor Ohio's citizens and the spirit of the law. Build back our belief that democratic process is fundamental and valued in our state.
The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

Dear Senator Huffman,
I am a registered Republican and have submitted testimony and maps in good faith at public hearings to address redistricting issues which affect my City and County. I watched the today's meeting of the Redistricting Commission and was appalled. The Republican caucus in House and Senate need to present map(s) which meet(s) State laws and requirements and in a schedule which allows three public reviews and final maps by September 15th. It is the responsibility and duty of the Ohio legislature and its leadership to do so. Creating a situation which results in only a 4 year solution is unacceptable. I urge you to work toward a proper solution. Thank you.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

Dear Ohio Redistricting Commission Member,

Millions of Ohioans voted to reform the redistricting process for General Assembly districts in 2015. At the core of the constitutional amendment's reforms was a commitment to transparency at all stages of the process, and that is why I write to you today.

The members of Ohio Redistricting Commission need to stand with the millions of Ohioans who voted for fairness and transparency, and release a set schedule of public hearings now - before any more work of the Commission is complete. By releasing a set schedule of hearings, you will send a message to all Ohioans that you will honor your oath of office to uphold, not only the letter of the redistricting reform law, but also the spirit of the law.

The people of Ohio deserve and expect transparency throughout the redistricting processes. That means a set schedule of hearings so Ohioans can adequately plan to attend Commission meetings, deliberate over proposed maps, submit testimony, and most importantly - know when a possible vote is forthcoming.

The people of Ohio cannot be left in the dark.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

Fairness and transparency!
Basic elements!

I'm emailing to ask you to fight for fair district maps.

Because of rigged district lines, Republicans currently hold supermajorities in Ohio's Statehouse. They've only won about 55% of the statewide vote in the last 10 years, but hold 75% of state Senate seats. That is unacceptable.

If a political party isn't winning a supermajority of the vote, they shouldn't occupy a supermajority of the seats.

Through our two reform measures and 10 redistricting hearings last week, Ohioans sent a clear message on redistricting: we want maps that actually represent us. Now we're counting on you to lift up our voices and join us in demanding fair maps.

Fair House maps will include at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats).

Fair Senate maps will include at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats).

These numbers reflect our partisan makeup. Do not settle for less.

Thank you.

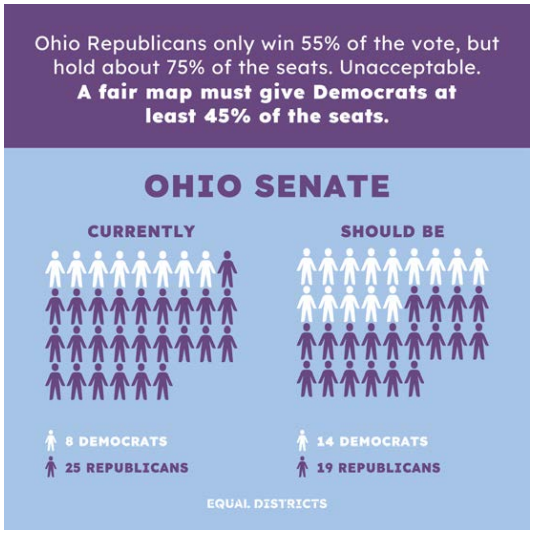
Dear Rep. Huffman,

Ohio Republicans don't win supermajorities of the vote — but they hold supermajorities of our state government seats.

That's not fair or reasonable.



Right now, during the redistricting process, we have a chance to demand fair maps that reflect how Ohioans actually vote.

Take action now

Based on Ohio's statewide vote for the past decade, fair maps will include:

- at least 44 Democratic House seats (maximum 55 Republican seats)
- at least 14 Democratic Senate seats (maximum 19 Republican seats)

Renew Ohio Launches OhioMaps.org to Ensure Constitutionality of Proposed New Districts

For Immediate Release
August 31, 2021

(COLUMBUS) – Renew Ohio, a non-profit organization formed in 2013 to support common-sense policy solutions at the state level, announced today that they have launched a public effort to review, examine, and score the constitutionality of proposed legislative and Congressional maps. At OhioMaps.org, Ohioans will have the ability to review the constitutionality of maps proposed to and by the Ohio Redistricting Commission.

Former Ohio Senator and State Representative Jeff Jacobson, a long-time Renew Ohio board member, was a lead negotiator in the bipartisan discussions that resulted in the passage by the General Assembly in late 2014 of a constitutional amendment to reform the redistricting process, adopted by voters the following year. Jacobson said that as the Ohio Redistricting Commission held hearings around the state this month, some maps presented to the Commission simply do not adhere to constitutional requirements.

“Throughout the process over the past several weeks, we have seen maps proposed by several outside groups that violate one or more requirements of the Ohio Constitution,” Jacobson said. “While many of these groups propose maps that are intended to appear bipartisan, the maps are often not only unconstitutional, but hyper-partisan as well. We intend to review submitted maps in short order to ensure they comply with the letter and spirit of the law."

Additional board members of Renew Ohio include:

- Mike Dittoe, former communications director and chief of staff of the Ohio House, who later served as one of the lead consultants for the 2018 bipartisan Coalition for Redistricting Reform. The Coalition spearheaded the voter-approved ballot initiative to restructure the Congressional redistricting process.
- Mike McGuire, an attorney and former executive director of Renew Ohio who previously served for many years as a majority caucus policy advisor for the Ohio House of Representatives.

Renew Ohio believes that the best public policy decisions are made by legislators who are dedicated to the service of representing their constituents, and that fair districts produce the best legislators in each district. As such, Renew Ohio will be publishing a frequently-updated scorecard of proposed maps on our website, with detailed descriptions of the (un)constitutionality of each.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is this Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

The fact that all five Republican Commission members passed on the meeting made it look like the community meetings were just a sham and that the Republicans have no interest in drawing fair district lines. It will be more than a “bad look” if the bi-partisan Commission fails to develop a bi-partisan plan and falls back to a 4-year plan that is drawn by Republicans only - it would be a clear refusal to respect the will of the voters of Ohio who overwhelmingly voted for fair, non-partisan districts. Date: Sunday, August 29, 2021 3:00:39 PM

Greetings!

As summer winds down, we are looking ahead at several pieces of legislation that we hope to make some progress on this fall.

SB 14, sponsored by Senator Rulli, would establish the Board of Voting Systems Examiners and add an appointed cybersecurity expert to the board. It would also authorize the board to adopt statewide standards for security and integrity of voting systems, which would mitigate any potential security risks by ensuring that every county in Ohio has secure and accurate voter databases. The bill is currently pending in the Senate Local Government and Elections Committee.

HB 93, sponsored by Representatives Abrams and LaRe, would expand Safe at Home, Ohio's address confidentiality program for survivors of domestic violence and other crimes. The bill would increase the Secretary of State's ability to communicate on behalf of program participants and would protect participant information during the home buying process and during child custody cases in court. The bill passed the House unanimously and received numerous proponent testimonies in the Senate.

Finally, SB 105 would streamline Minority Business Enterprise certification in the state. The bill was amended to also include women and veteran owned businesses. This legislation, sponsored by Senator Sykes and Senator Schuring, would cut red tape for small businesses, making it easier for them to operate in our state. The bill passed the Senate unanimously and now awaits a first hearing in the House Economic and Workforce Development Committee.

If you have questions about any of these bills, please reach out to our office.

Best,

Chris

Ohio Secretary of State

Ohio Secretary of State Week in Review

For the Week Ending August 27, 2021

Listening to Ohioans

Every ten years, the district boundaries for Ohio's ninety-nine House districts, thirty-three Senate districts, and U.S. congressional districts must be redrawn to reflect the population changes documented in the most recent U.S. Census. Pursuant to two Ohio Constitutional Amendments overwhelmingly approved by Ohio voters, the newly formed Ohio Redistricting Commission, which includes Ohio Secretary of State Frank LaRose and a bipartisan group of state elected officials, is tasked with redrawing each of those legislative districts.

Throughout the week, the Redistricting Commission hosted regional hearings to hear directly from Ohioans on ways in which Ohio could improve our map making process. Over the course of the week, the Commission listened to more than thirty hours of thoughtful testimony and input from Ohioans in Cleveland, Youngstown, Dayton, Cincinnati, Zanesville, Rio Grande, Lima, Toledo, Akron and Mansfield. The information gathered at these regional meetings will help guide Commission members as they work collegially and collaboratively to develop new legislative districts.

More information, including a link to watch all the regional hearings, can be found at redistricting.ohio.gov.

Women's Equality Day

Just over 100 years ago, women won the right to make their voices heard in elections. The Secretary celebrated that achievement by asking board of election officials from all over the state to discuss what the right to vote means to them, and why they work hard every day to make sure every legal voter in Ohio can honor the suffragists who fought so valiantly for equality and representation.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Don't Mess with Ohio

Voter intimidation is abhorrent, unpatriotic, and illegal — but it unfortunately still exists.

In keeping with the Secretary's mantra that voting must be accessible to every eligible Ohio voter, the Secretary has a history of being proactive to protect that right, and long ago partnered with leaders in diverse minority communities to form the Diversity and Empowerment Council (DEC), to spread truth and report instances of voter intimidation and fraud. In October of 2020, upon receiving a call from Congresswoman Marcia Fudge that there was a voter suppression campaign underway in Cleveland, the Secretary consulted and confirmed it with the DEC and immediately referred the matter to law enforcement. Said Secretary LaRose at the time, "There's a Cleveland grand jury who indicted two bad guys who are going to face justice for it. Our office played a role in helping to make sure that these people face justice. They were trying to confuse and intimidate voters. We won't tolerate it."

FCC seeks $5.1M fine against right-wing robocallers for discouraging Black Ohioans from voting last year

COLUMBUS, Ohio—The Federal Communications Commission has proposed a $5.1 million fine against two right-wing operatives for running a robocall campaign meant to intimidate Black residents in Northeast Ohio and elsewhere into not voting by mail during last year's presidential election.

The proposed fine, announced by the FCC on Tuesday against 22-year-old Jacob Wohl of Irvine, California, and 55-year-old Jack Burkman of Arlington, Virginia, would be the largest fine ever levied under the 30-year-old Telephone Consumer Protection Act, according to an FCC release.

Continuing the Fight Against a Federal Election Takeover

After the failed passage of HR1, the federal takeover of state elections, House

Democrats have tried again by passing similar legislation in HR4.

After touring several of Ohio's board of elections to learn why Ohio is the "gold standard" for how to run elections, Rep. Rodney Davis (IL-13) was right when he said HR 4 is a shameful partisan power-grab, cynically cloaked as a "voting rights" bill. Congressman Davis, who is the Ranking Member of the House Committee on Administration which oversees federal elections, then asked, "If it is easier to vote today than at any time in our history, and more Americans are voting than ever before, then why are Democrats going to such extreme measures to ensure a federal takeover of elections?"

"Something needs to change, and fast."

Many Ohioans have asked the Secretary how he feels about the horrifying situation in Afghanistan, particularly in the wake of thirteen U.S. Service members killed by a suicide bombing at the Kabul airport. He stated, "While I pray for those brave Americans and innocent Afghans hurt in this cowardly attack, I'm angered by the gross incompetence that got us here. [President Biden] needs to step up and lead boldly and decisively before more Americans are harmed."

Focused on New Business Creation

On Thursday, the Secretary spoke with the Miami Township Economic Development Council at a business roundtable discussion to highlight the importance of entrepreneurship, explore ways to improve new business formation, and describe the array of resources available to business startups as they they continue coming in at a record pace.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Important Election Dates & Reminders:

- Underway: Early Voting Began on August 17 for the Toledo and Cleveland Municipal Elections

In Case You Missed It:

For August, the Secretary has highlighted agriculture businesses for the Ohio Business Spotlight. Farms are the backbone of Ohio's economy, and countless small businesses work day in and day out to support farmers and help get food from the farm to the table. The Richland Source shared how one such business garnered its place in the Spotlight.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Knox Pages wrote about the new Knox County Board of Elections office opening from last week, sharing sentiments expressed in the Secretary's keynote address that many other counties would be envious of the new construction, but that we should also be mindful of the professional election officials and poll workers who will work there to maintain Ohio's status as the gold standard of election administration.

Nice one, Mr. Huffman,

YOUR ABSENCE FROM THE FIRST PUBLIC HEARING ON REDISTRICTING IS NOTED, and it speaks more loudly than words about your interest, or lack thereof, in the public's opinion on this matter. Thanks for letting concerned citizens know where you stand. For your future information: THIS SHOULD BE YOUR TOP PRIORITY, and the way in which you address the matter will not go unnoticed.
Such a shame!

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is this Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

Ohio's district maps are drawn in such a way that one party has supermajorities. Because of this, the people who elected you and sent you to Columbus to represent them, are not being represented.

The system is out of balance. Viewpoints not in line with the ruling party are ignored. I have attended hearings at the Statehouse and I know that bills that the supermajorities do not agree with sometimes do not even get hearings past the initial hearing, much less get a chance at a committee vote or a floor vote.

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is this Wednesday, September 1st.

As you know, Ohio's first legislative map deadline is this Wednesday, September 1st.

It's troubling to me that the commission has not yet released any draft maps to the public. It's also concerning that there are no public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private back rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists. Ohio ended up stuck with maps that were rigged to give one party supermajorities it didn't deserve. We can't let that happen again.

Ohioans voted twice for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process. We expect you to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

President Matt Huffman,

Dear Redistricting Commission Members,

Every ten years, our state mandates that legislative district maps be redrawn based on census data to insure fair representation of Ohio voters. Ten years ago, maps were drawn in private rooms by a small number of politicians and lobbyists - gerrymandered so that districts DO NOT fairly represent voters but DO give one party supermajorities.

Ohioans voted TWICE for a fair, open, transparent redistricting process this time.

Yet - although Ohio's first legislative map deadline is this Wednesday, September 1st - the commission has not released any draft maps to the public nor are public hearings scheduled to debate proposed maps.

As citizens of Ohio, it is your responsibility to uphold these laws. Please release draft maps and a hearing schedule immediately.

Thank You.

Dear Sir:

I have submitted a Proposed Plan to Redistrict the State of Ohio to fifteen (15)
US Congressional Districts using the US Census Bureau August 12, 2021 population estimates via e-mail to the Ohio Redistricting Committee.

The submission includes a narrative on the rules, lists the New Districts by county populations, provides an overall summary, a Pictorial Diagram on how the Districts were assigned, and the new District boundaries on a map of the State of Ohio.

The premise was to minimize the number of county splits. This plan splints only the three (3) largest populated counties, and matches each to an adjacent county to form a New District. The present map splits twenty-four (24) counties. Each County is a unique geographical and political subdivision of the State of Ohio and its integrity should be maintained. Many counties remained in their present Districts.

Most counties have irregular boundaries and a smooth demarcation line can not be drawn even between two or more counties and therefore the New District boundaries are non linear and are irregular.

Please keep this information in mind as new Congressional Districts are defined.

Questions or concerns can be address to me at 330-975-4406 or via e-mail at: wdbenditz@yahoo.com.

Sincerely;

Warren Benditz

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

Good morning. I ask that you demonstrate more interest in the work of the Redistricting Commission. I observed on The Ohio Channel most of the CSU hearing, and was quite surprised that, of the Republican representatives, only Auditor Faber was present. When I saw the hearing schedule, I assumed that the daytime hearing hours were chosen for the convenience of the Commission - they certainly were not selected to maximize voter participation. If this is representative of the Commission's approach to fulfill the oath of carrying out the fair maps laws, which were enacted with support of a serious majority of voters across the state, I am quite discouraged. We need to do better. The Commission needs to release more information on the process, hold more hearings in different places, at hours when working people can attend. You had 3 years to plan for this, knowing that you had a seat on the Commission. Late census data is not an excuse for poor planning, particularly when the Commission is not presenting maps anyway. Speaking of maps, when will voters get a chance to comment on proposed maps? What will be the schedule and locations for those hearings, and will Republicans even bother to show up? You squandered the time when better conditions for input could be provided - now you need to play catch up, and quickly.
Thank you.

Dear Senate President Matt Huffman,

Ohioans want fair Ohio House, Ohio Senate, and congressional maps and a transparent, participatory redistricting process. We're asking that mapmakers get to work right away so that we can have a clear and transparent process that centers around public participation and redistricting best practices.

On Monday, April 5, 2021, Fair Districts Ohio - a group of veteran redistricting reformers--sent a letter to you with specific recommendations to ensure transparent and fair mapmaking in light of adjusted delivery date for Census data.

Ohio doesn't have to wait for decennial Census data to start the redistricting process, and the new Census timeline should not be an excuse to limit transparency, reduce public comment, or wait to hear from experts. We call on mapmakers to start the process today by doing the following:
1. Consider a June date for Ohio's 2022 primary that best serves voters;
2. Create a public website for Ohioans to follow and act on the process;
3. Announce legislative appointments for the Ohio Redistricting Commission ;
4. Release already budgeted funds to state legislative caucuses to conduct training and research in preparation for mapmaking, and
5. Invite experts and the public to testify on a wide range of topics including: compliance with federal and state laws, racial representation, the importance of keeping communities together, and more.

Ohio can't wait until the summer or fall to begin this process -- there is simply too much at stake. Voters in all 88 counties overwhelmingly approved redistricting reforms in 2015 and 2018. This is an opportunity to show the people that their voices are heard and their votes matter.

Thank you for your consideration, and for acting now to begin the important process of creating fair maps.

Sincerely,
Annette Hutchison

Subject: Create a public-submission process for citizen-created maps NOW
Date: Sunday, August 22, 2021 9:58:05 PM

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

I am writing to express my excitement over the beginning of the bipartisan Redistricting process. I am troubled by the partisan divisiveness gripping Ohio and the country as a whole, with very little being achieved on a bipartisan basis. So much seems to be addressed with an “us” vs. “them” attitude. It is my belief that much of this a result of the gerrymandered legislative districts. As you know, when districts are gerrymandered, primary elections become more important than general elections, because which party will win is so often predetermined. This leads candidates to position themselves to appeal to the members of their own political party and not to the voters as a whole. The resulting extremism is crippling to our democracy. Please support fairly drawn districts that are acceptable to both parties and that can stay in place for a full ten years.

Huffman Announces Launch of New Redistricting Website

Bipartisan Website Goes Live Friday Morning

COLUMBUS—Ohio Senate President Matt Huffman (R-Lima) announced the launch of www.redistricting.ohio.gov. Designed for transparency and easy access, the website reflects the bipartisan cooperation of the seven-member Ohio Redistricting Commission.

“I commend the co-chairs, House Speaker Bob Cupp and Senator Vernon Sykes, for their commitment of bringing this bipartisan website online," said President Huffman. "This platform brings transparency and easy access to the people of Ohio.”

The website encourages public input and provides access to the data used by the commission as it begins the process of drawing new state legislative maps for the Ohio General Assembly.

More Details for the Toledo Regional Conference

Impact Ohio will hold the Toledo Regional Conference on Friday, September 17, from 8:00 a.m.-1:30 p.m. at Stranahan Theater.

At the Toledo Regional Conference, panelists will dive into three different public policy areas.

Redistricting: What It Means for Ohio and the Toledo Region
A panel of experts will discuss the importance of Ohio's redistricting process. Panelists will focus on how the process is progressing and what it means for Ohio's legislative and congressional districts as well as the Toledo region.

A Conversation with Toledo's Mayoral Candidates
Toledo will have two mayoral candidates emerge from the September 14 primary. In this session, the top two vote getters from the mayoral primary will join us for a moderated discussion to tell us what they see on the horizon for Toledo's future.

H2Ohio: Exploring a Comprehensive Plan for Public Private Partnerships
At our 2019 Toledo Regional Conference, Governor DeWine announced the H2Ohio initiative. This panel will further explore H2Ohio, examining how technology and public private partnerships can create pathways towards cleaner water to ensure the health and wellness of communities dependent on Lake Erie's water supply.

For more details and registration, click here.

In 2017 and 2019, the conference sold out, so be sure to register soon! Register before August 26 to take advantage of the early bird discounted registration rate of $65.

EQUALITY OHIO

Hi Matt,

One of the most important civic processes this decade is currently underway in Columbus and YOU get to have a say in it. Redistricting, the process of redrawing legislative maps for the next ten years, has begun, now that data from the US Census Bureau has been released to the states. Partly due to COVID-19, the window for public engagement with the Commission is narrow, with one week of public hearings taking place next week.

Why is this important to LGBTQ+ Ohioans? Here's what our Public Policy Organizer, Kathryn Poe had to say in a recent press release:

"Redistricting validates representation. Having a fair map is the difference between electing an LGBTQ+ person or an ally to the state legislature, and having someone who will vote against our community."

What you can do:

The Ohio Redistricting Commission is a group of Ohio elected officials who are charged with creating two new maps for our state: a new map of US Congressional districts, and a new map of Ohio Legislative districts. These decisions will have a direct impact on who is eligible to run for office to represent you. It will also inform their likelihood of winning.

Redistricting hearings will take place at universities and community centers across the state. More information about specific locations and COVID-19 safety protocols can be found here.

We recognize that this process is only in person and therefore will be inaccessible to many Ohioans. We encourage you to engage in ways that promote safety for yourself and the community.

The decisions made by the Ohio Redistricting Commission will impact the work of Equality Ohio and countless other advocacy organizations for up to ten years. Now is the time to get involved and demand that the maps they draw are fair for LGBTQ+ and all Ohioans.

Attend A Hearing

If you aren't sure what to say, you can sign up for a testimony workshop with our friends at All on the Line.

This is a once-in-a-decade opportunity for us to hold the legislature accountable to drawing maps that allow constituents to choose our representatives, not that allow representatives to choose their constituents.

Find Your Location

Thanks for your continued support, and I hope that you can join your fellow Ohioans at one or more of the hearings next week.

Onward!

Dear Senate President Huffman,

As someone who voted for redistricting reform, I am deeply concerned about fair maps. Your role on the redistricting commission is critical, so I am contacting you to urge you to create legislative districts that are not gerrymandered to favor one party over the other, but keep communities whole. In 2015 and 2018, Ohioans voted in large majorities across the state for reforms that ensure transparency and bipartisan consensus on the new maps. It is essential to our democracy that our leaders be accountable to the voters and uphold both the letter and spirit of these reforms. Voters need to choose their representatives, not the other way around.

In the interest of transparency, there should be a Public Submissions bill outlining the process for giving testimony. I have contacted your office and spoken to Richard, who said he would look into it but was unaware of what the process was or where I could find it. The legislature has had months to prepare for public hearings, so it is hard to justify waiting until the eve of the hearings to inform the public about how to submit their testimony. That hardly qualifies as transparency!

Please let me know today what the process is and where it is available online. The public hearing is Monday in Cleveland, so I think it is pretty urgent.

You are in a unique position to attempt to redraw the lines in Ohio to avoid excessive gerrymandering and provide citizens with better choices for their candidates. As it is now the congressional districts are mostly "locked in" and it's the primary that is the real fight as whoever wins that race will win hands down. Look at what happened in district 15 where I reside. Once Stivers resigned the Republican candidates lined up (10 or 11 if I'm not mistaken) to fill the vacancy and had scant time to campaign or to even let the voters know there was a primary. And only 3% of the electorate (50,000 people) turned out. And the winner, Mike Carey, backed by former President Trump, will undoubtedly win in November since the district is rated "strongly Republican". Is this fair? Why can't this district, which includes Upper Arlington, where I live, and other suburbs around Columbus, be more competitive? Why were 13 additional counties added to this district rendering it one of the least competitive in the state? Does my town share the same concerns as the mostly rural counties that were added? I think not. What it looks like is a cynical attempt to perpetuate control from the controlling party. And that it is. Please try to make districts competitive, the ones that are not naturally linked together. This is your task. On the plus side less radical politicians (left or right) will be forced to appeal to the middle-grounders. And we all know when there are fewer radicals more good stuff gets done.
Sincerely, Dr. Chris Saunders

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

Hello,
I'm a producer with "All Sides with Ann Fisher," and we're doing a quick turnaround show tomorrow on the redistricting process, and host Ann Fisher would like to have a commission member be a part of the conversation.

Would Sen. Huffman be available to join the discussion?

Interview would be by Zoom.

Date: TOMORROW, Tues., Aug. 17
Time: 10:20-11 a.m. (20-minute slot, to be finalized)

If Sen. Huffman is available to join the show, we'll follow up with a confirmation.

Thanks!

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created.

Hello,

I was very glad to hear that the Ohio Redistricting Commission has announced nine public hearings to gather public input on district maps. However, the first map deadline is coming up soon, and there are not yet any public details for these events.

Ohioans need time to take off work, schedule a babysitter, and prepare what they're going to say at these hearings.

When will you be announcing the dates, times, and locations for the public hearings? Please do so as soon as possible, and let me know.

Ohio Redistricting Commission Announces Dates for Regional Public Hearings

COLUMBUS - Today, state Senator Vernon Sykes (D-Akron) and Ohio House Speaker Bob Cupp (R-Lima), co-chairs of the Ohio Redistricting Commission ("Commission"), announced the schedule for upcoming regional public hearings. The hearings, which will take place throughout the state from Monday, August 23 through Friday, August 27, will provide Ohioans the opportunity to contribute their ideas on the future of Ohio's state legislative districts by offering public testimony and submitting map proposals.

"The makeup of our state legislative districts will have an impact on Ohio's state and local governments for the next ten years. This is why it's important for Ohioans to have a say in the redistricting process," Sykes said. "Ohioans played a crucial role in increasing transparency when they voted in 2015 and 2018 to reform the way we draw our statewide maps. I look forward to hearing what Ohioans have to say during our hearings and taking their input into consideration when creating maps that best represent voters' preferences."

The hearings will take place on the following days:

- Monday, August 23 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Cleveland
- Monday, August 23 from 2:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.: Youngstown
- Tuesday, August 24 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Dayton
- Tuesday, August 24 from 2:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.: Cincinnati
- Wednesday, August 25 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Zanesville
- Wednesday, August 25 from 2:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.: Rio Grande
- Thursday, August 26 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Lima
- Thursday, August 26 from 2:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.: Toledo
- Friday, August 27 from 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: Akron
- Friday, August 27 from 2:30 - 5:30 p.m.: Mansfield

The full list of dates, times and locations for the hearings can be found here. Hearings will also be broadcast live, and more information will be made available about how the public can tune in closer to the hearing dates.

"Ohio's process to create fair and reasonable state legislative and congressional districts includes the opportunity for the people of Ohio to be heard on the matter," Speaker Cupp said. "As a co-chair of the commission, I believe it's important to open the process for input from Ohio's citizens. The information and ideas gathered will be helpful to our important constitutional task."

These public hearings are just the beginning of the redistricting process for state legislative districts. More hearings will be scheduled once a map has been proposed by the Commission. The Ohio Redistricting Commission is responsible for drawing legislative maps and may also have a role in the drawing of congressional maps. It

Senate President Matt Huffman,

As you are certainly aware, the deadline for Ohio's new legislative and congressional districts is rapidly approaching. Meanwhile, you have given the people of Ohio no clear guidance on how to submit maps to the Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

Reforms included in the constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018—each with over 70% support—mandate an opportunity for the public to offer testimony on proposed district maps. Moreover, we must have an opportunity to propose our own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has yet to fulfill this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on listening and responding to our concerns. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created. In addition, you must announce a schedule of public hearing with sufficient notice so that we can testify on any proposed district map plans.

Hello,

I was very glad to hear that the Ohio Redistricting Commission has announced nine public hearings to gather public input on district maps. However, the first map deadline is coming up soon, and there are not yet any public details for these events.

Ohioans need time to take off work, schedule a babysitter, and prepare what they're going to say at these hearings.

When will you be announcing the dates, times, and locations for the public hearings? Please do so as soon as possible, and let me know.

Thank You!

Subject: unbiased redistricting is essential in a government by the people, for the people
Date: Thursday, August 12, 2021 9:20:22 PM

Senate President Matt Huffman,

I understand the temptation to create a redistricting map that increases the chances of re-election for current Ohio politicians, to help those already in power. It's a completely understandable self-preservation instinct. But we do not elect representatives to help themselves. We elect you to serve us, the people of Ohio. And we are best served when the electoral playing field is fair.

If you are serving us well, you and your party will be rewarded with re-election. If not, the honorable approach is to allow genuine competition from others with the desire to serve. More important than your job, and your party's power, is the principle of being accountable to the electorate.

To that end, the process of re-drawing districts must be transparent with strong public input. This is not a time for backroom dealing. It is a time to listen to the Ohio voters who passed the 2015 and 2018 amendments with over 70% support. Every effort must be made to open the redistricting process to voter input.

I work for an upstanding corporation that recognizes that diverse input leads to better results. That's true for the re-districting process, and the consequences of drawing unbiased maps. I'm sure you came to public office with the conviction of making things better for the people of Ohio. This is your chance.

Dear Senate Pres. Matt Huffman,

Ohio voters overwhelmingly supported redistricting reform in 2015 & 2018. Voters passed redistricting reform to get rid of gerrymandering: we won't accept gerrymandered maps. Gerrymandered districts help politicians, not voters. The maps the commission draws should reflect the spirit of the redistricting reforms. Transparent mapmaking is very important to me, and public hearings should be announced well in advance. We need time to consider any proposed maps and are looking forward to the opportunity to weigh in on them. Ohioans demand responsive representation and fair maps that keep communities together. We expect fair districts that benefit voters, not either political party.

Sincerely,

Tony D'Ambrosio

On behalf of the U.S. Census Bureau Acting Director, Dr. Ron Jarmin, I am writing this email to inform you that the 2020 Census State Redistricting Data (Public Law 94-171) Summary Files in the Legacy Format are now available for download on the Census Bureau's File Transfer Protocol (FTP) website. You can access the files directly via the following link: https://www2.census.gov/programs-surveys/decennial/2020/data/01-Redistricting_File--PL_94-171/.

As a reminder, the Census Bureau has produced and released redistricting data in the legacy format for at least the past two decennial census cycles (2000 and 2010). The 2020 Census Legacy Format Summary Files:

- Contain identical data to the files we will deliver in September.
- Have been fully reviewed and subject to the same quality assurance processes.
- Require additional handling and software to properly extract the data of interest.
- Are comprised of four pipe-delimited text files, including a geoheader and three data segment files (featuring the six P.L. 94-171 tables).

We have published support materials, including header record fields and definitions, a Microsoft Access table shell, instructions on how to use the table shells, SAS and R data import scripts, and a video tutorial on how to import and query the data. You can now access the official data, the support materials, and the geographic support products all from the same webpage. To access the data, click on the following link - Decennial Census P.L. 94-171 Redistricting Data Summary Files and scroll down to the "2020" tab."

We will provide the redistricting data on removable media (DVDs and flash drives) with easier-to-use data extraction tools to the official state recipients and release the data on the Census Data Explorer platform (data.census.gov) by September 30, 2021.

Please direct questions on the redistricting data files to the Census Redistricting and Voting Rights Data Office at 301-763-4039 or rdo@census.gov.

Ohioans voted overwhelmingly against gerrymandering and in favor of fair maps in 2015 and 2018. The new redistricting rules that we passed require a transparent process and public participation!

Public participation includes the ability to testify in public hearings about proposed maps, and create and submit our own maps for consideration. The Ohio Redistricting Commission has finally convened, and the important task of drawing new state legislative and congressional district maps is underway. But Ohio's official mapmakers, you, have still not revealed how the public will be able to participate in public hearings or submit their own maps!
We demand that you immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps you have created, and that you announce a schedule of public hearing so that Ohio citizens have sufficient notice and are able to testify before lawmakers on any proposed district map plans.

You work for Us. Act like it.

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created, and to announce a schedule of public hearing so that Ohio citizens have sufficient notice and are able to testify on any proposed district map plans.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

In 2015 and 2018, I was one of the many Ohioans who overwhelmingly supported redistricting reform measures. The new redistricting reform measures that we passed require a transparent process and public participation. Public participation includes the ability to testify in public hearings about proposed maps, and create and submit our own maps for consideration. Therefore, last week, I was happy to see that the Ohio Redistricting Commission announced that there would be nine public hearings to gather public input on district maps.

The release of population data from the U.S. Census Bureau has taken place, so there's no time to spare.

When will you be announcing a schedule of public hearings, including dates, times, and locations? The people of Ohio need sufficient notice so that we are able to provide testimony before lawmakers on any proposed district map plans. Please implement the fair, transparent process that Ohioans demanded in the reforms that we passed in 2015 and 2018.

Thank You!

Hello,

We, the citizens of Ohio, have made it clear that we want redistricting, we want it to be fair, and we want input. The data are being released today and the first deadline for a map is soon. It is past time to schedule public hearings. The absence of transparency is what has infuriated citizens about the process in the past.

I urge you to schedule and immediately announce the dates, times, and locations for the public hearings.

I am writing to encourage you and your colleagues to live up to the letter and spirit of the Constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018 regarding redistricting in Ohio. That time is now upon us, and the necessary data will become available this week.

My state senate district (District 16) is diverse economically and demographically. It should not be a “gimme” for either party, which is to say it represents what an ideal district should be. And the incumbent prevailed in a tough race for reelection just last year. She did not need a safe district to win her seat, and neither does any other legislator of either party.

I wish I could say I was as pleased with my Congressional district as I am with my state senate and house districts. I live in the Franklin County portion of U.S. House District 12, and I can think of no good reason that my community should be part of a district that stretches north to Mansfield and east to Zanesville. I have nothing against those cities or the rural areas that lie between here and there, but I do not consider them part of my community of interest.

The people of Ohio will benefit from competitive elections, which will result from a fair redistricting process that does not render the outcome of most elections a foregone conclusion. Thanks in advance.

Summit needs real representation in Congress

Summit County presents the most critical redistricting challenge in Ohio. 540,000+ citizens have had no recognizable voice in Congress for years. This is the fourth most populous county in the state and it is split into four congressional districts. The result? Of the four congresspeople who nominally represented us in January, none lived in Akron. None even lived in Summit County!

Voters are often confused about which congressional district they live in and have no idea who is supposed to represent them. The result? Low voter turnout for congressional elections and no real representation in Congress. This must change with this redistricting.

I urge every elected official in Summit County and all voters to demand the state legislature stop gerrymandering Summit County out of representation and give us one congressional district. Summit County deserves its own representative in Congress.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I was very glad to hear that the Ohio Redistricting Commission has announced nine public hearings to gather public input on district maps. However, the first map deadline is coming up soon, and there are not yet any public details for these events.

Ohioans need time to take off work, schedule a babysitter, and prepare what they're going to say at these hearings.

When will you be announcing the dates, times, and locations for the public hearings? Please do so as soon as possible, and let me know.

Thank You!

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created, and to announce a schedule of public hearing so that Ohio citizens have sufficient notice and are able to testify on any proposed district map plans.

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I was very glad to hear that the Ohio Redistricting Commission has announced nine public hearings to gather public input on district maps. However, the first map deadline is coming up soon, and there are not yet any public details for these events.

Ohioans need time to take off work, schedule a babysitter, and prepare what they're going to say at these hearings.

When will you be announcing the dates, times, and locations for the public hearings? Please do so as soon as possible, and let me know.

Thank You!

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created, and to announce a schedule of public hearing so that Ohio citizens have sufficient notice and are able to testify on any proposed district map plans.

Senator Huffman, greetings and peace to you,

I write to let you know that I signed and support the intention of the following petition from Fair Districts Ohio.

Here in Ohio, our elections should represent the will of the people, not partisan interests. State lawmakers in the General Assembly and members of the Ohio Redistricting Commission must commit to counting everyone equally, playing by the rules, and having a transparent redistricting process -- so that our government is truly of, by, and for the people. As official mapmakers, we call upon you to abide by the spirit and the letter of the redistricting reforms passed overwhelmingly in 2015 and 2018. Now is the time to deliver the Fair Maps and Fair Districts Ohio needs for a healthy democracy and a flourishing state.

I write as a Marianist religious Brother. I assure you of my prayer that you receive the gifts of wisdom, discernment, courage, and compassion that you need in your work as a senator. Thank you for your service in the Ohio Senate.

Dear Mr Huffman

We were redistricted to Marsha Fudges district through gerrymandering to tie East Cleveland and South Akron during the last redistricting. The thin corridor that ties the 2 areas together runs down I 77 through various middle class and wealthy areas that do not have anything in common to the areas connected by the gerrymandering that took place. The people of this thin corridor have been effectively unrepresented in Congress for the past 10 years. According to what I have researched this is a blatant violation of the Constitution and needs to be corrected during the current process.

Sincerely

Scott Pavlik

President Matt Huffman,

Hello,

I was very glad to hear that the Ohio Redistricting Commission has announced nine public hearings to gather public input on district maps. However, the first map deadline is coming up soon, and there are not yet any public details for these events.

Ohioans need time to take off work, schedule a babysitter, and prepare what they're going to say at these hearings.

When will you be announcing the dates, times, and locations for the public hearings? Please do so as soon as possible, and let me know.

Thank You!

Senate President Matt Huffman,

The deadline for Ohio's new state legislative and congressional districts are rapidly approaching, and the people of Ohio still do not have clear guidance on how they can submit their own maps for consideration to the Ohio Redistricting Commission or the General Assembly.

The constitutional amendments passed in 2015 and 2018, each with over 70% support, clearly state that there must be an opportunity for the people of Ohio to offer testimony on proposed General Assembly and congressional district map plans and have an opportunity to propose their own maps. As of today, the General Assembly has still not fulfilled this constitutional obligation.

The people of Ohio demand a fair, transparent, and accessible redistricting process that focuses on the listening and responding to the voices of all Ohioans. In order to achieve this, there must be a procedure in place for Ohioans to offer their own district maps.

I urge the Ohio Redistricting Commission and the state legislature to immediately work to set up a portal where citizens can submit maps they have created, and to announce a schedule of public hearing so that Ohio citizens have sufficient notice and are able to testify on any proposed district map plans.

As someone who worked very hard on the ballot referendums I am disappointed thus far that the Governor waited so long to convene the commission; that obviously there was discussion before the day the committee was convened as to the number of townhalls, yet nothing disclosed as to locations, dates and times; nothing regarding the formulation of a website to share maps and submission by the public. We will NOT stand for excuses and/or delays to justify gerrymandered maps. We are tired of being ignored and our votes cast off as if they not matter. Enough is enough.

However, the first map deadline is coming up soon, and there are not yet any public details for these events. After the debacle that was the 2011 redistricting process, this year Ohioans desperately want a transparent process and a voice in our democracy. Also after 2011, our great state needs a transparent process in order to start to rebuild the trust in our legislators and legislative process.
