Re: 19-cv-2395 (2019-HQFO-00288/2019-HQFO-00290)
American Oversight v. DHS
Second Interim Release

Dear Mr. Evers:

This is our second interim response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), dated January 17, 2019.

For this production, DHS reviewed 253 pages, of which 68 pages are released in full, 181 pages are withheld in part pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(6), two pages are withheld in full pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(6), and two pages are not responsive. The 251 pages for release are bates stamped DHS-001-2395-000371 to DHS-001-2395-000621.

If you have any questions regarding this release, please contact Assistant United States Attorney Benton Peterson by email at Benton.Peterson@usdoj.gov.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Bradley E. White".

Bradley E. White
Senior Director, Litigation, Appeals, and Policy

Enclosure: 251 pages

Dear Robin,

I was just doing some research and came across this proposed legislation on DT:

<https://www.congress.gov/115/bills/hr4918/BILLS-115hr4918ih.pdf>

It doesn't seem to have much chance of passing, but it's worth reviewing their overview of DT and providing a more balanced assessment, if needed.

K.

Socialism versus the Family

Featuring

Dr. Edward Feser

Professor of Philosophy, Pasadena City College

Hosted by

David Burton

Senior Fellow, Economic Policy, Roe Institute for Economic Policy Studies

Socialism is a distortion, in a collectivist direction, of human beings' natural need for familial connection with others. But socialism and the family are incompatible. The family requires independence from governmental interference in order to flourish, and parents know its needs better than government officials can. Meanwhile, the breakdown of the traditional family leads to greater need for state assistance. The ethos of self-gratification that weakens commitment to the family also leads to increased desire for services from the state. Hence it is no accident that, historically, advocacy of socialism has always tended to go hand in hand with hostility to the traditional family structure. Anyone opposed to socialism should defend the traditional family and anyone concerned to defend the traditional family should oppose socialism.

Building an Effective Approach to Terrorism Prevention

Featuring

Elizabeth Neumann

Assistant Secretary for Threat Prevention and Security Policy,
Department of Homeland Security

Seamus Hughes

Deputy Director, George Washington University's Program on Extremism

Hosted by

Robin Simcox

Margaret Thatcher Fellow, The Heritage Foundation

The National Security Strategy of the United States (December 2017) highlighted the need for U.S. intelligence and homeland security experts to work with law enforcement and civic leaders on terrorism prevention. The National Strategy for Counterterrorism (October 2018) further stated that terrorism prevention must be an integral part of our counterterrorism strategy. Given the administration's prioritization of terrorism prevention, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) conducted a comprehensive review of its terrorism prevention programs, both internally and with the assistance of an external review by the RAND Corporation.

Elizabeth Neumann, Assistant Secretary for Threat Prevention and Security Policy, will present the findings of the RAND report, followed by a discussion on how DHS is building an effective approach to terrorism prevention.

Bit Player

My Life with Presidents and Ideas

Featuring author Stephen Hess

The title “Bit Player” perfectly reflects Stephen Hess’s long and distinguished career as a Washington insider. As a 25-year-old, recently discharged Army private in 1958, he suddenly found himself as part of President Dwight D. Eisenhower’s speechwriting team that ultimately helped draft the famed “Farewell Address” warning of the influence of the “military industrial complex.” Then over the next two decades, Hess played bit roles aiding Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter, and Ronald Reagan—along the way observing up-close those presidents and many other senior political leaders. During his subsequent four-and-a-half decades at the Brookings Institution, Hess was well-positioned to monitor and comment on the achievements and failures of successive administrations.

This memoir by a certified member of Washington’s old-guard establishment is rich with insight into contemporary American democracy, poignant in its reflections of avoidable missteps by even the best and most experienced leaders, and consistently good-humored in the author’s self-awareness of his own role behind the scenes of political power.

Stephen Hess is one of the foremost authorities on media and government in the United States, a senior fellow emeritus in Governance Studies at The Brookings Institution. He first joined Brookings in 1972 and was distinguished research professor of media and public affairs at the George Washington University (2004–2009). Hess served on White House staff during the Eisenhower and Nixon presidencies and as advisor to Presidents Ford and Carter.

Hi Katie,

Apparently they had not gone to that committee but I have asked the events team that they do...

Best,
Robin

Dear Robin,

Do you know if the invite for Elizabeth's event went to members of Congress or their staff, especially members of the House Homeland Security Committee. Not that it needs to, we just wanted to know.

Thanks!

Within the framework of “one country, two systems”, Hong Kong people enjoy the privileges of living within a free and open society governed by the rule of law and bound together by common values and respect for human rights.

Join us as Mrs. Anson Chan, who the media has often called the ‘Iron Lady’ of Hong Kong discusses the challenges facing Hong Kong in holding fast to these values, both in the context of the rise of China on the global stage and in an increasingly polarized international community.

Transatlantic Security After the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty

Keynote address

The Honorable Raimundas Karoblis

Minister of National Defense, Republic of Lithuania

Hosted by

James Carafano, Ph.D.

Vice President and E.W. Richardson Fellow, Davis Institute for National Security and Foreign Policy, The Heritage Foundation

Discussion Moderated by

Roger I. Zakheim

Director, Ronald Reagan Institute

You are invited to attend the inaugural session of the Transatlantic Security After the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty event series, presented by the Ronald Reagan Institute and The Heritage Foundation. On December 8, 1987, President Ronald Reagan and General Secretary Michael Gorbachev signed the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces (INF) Treaty, thereby eliminating an entire classification of nuclear and conventional missiles. Walking the Cold War powers back from a potential nuclear conflict remains one of President Reagan's most important accomplishments. For many years after the Cold War, the INF Treaty effectively prevented another arms race between the United States and Russia and stood as a bulwark of transatlantic security.

In response to continuing Russian violations of the treaty, the United States formally suspended its INF obligations and will withdraw from the treaty in August. The U.S. withdrawal, which comes in the context of renewed turbulence in transatlantic security, only highlights the growing need to deter a resurgent Russia. Join us for a keynote address from the Honorable Raimundas Karoblis, the Minister of National Defense of the Republic of Lithuania. Sharing a Lithuanian perspective on the U.S.-European security relationship in a post-INF world, Minister Karoblis will address the challenges posed by the new strategic environment, as well as areas for continued transatlantic security cooperation.

Is America in a cold civil war? Many prominent commentators think so. And not without reason. As the culture wars of the past several decades have intensified, the country now finds itself deeply divided. Americans disagree not just about politics, but also about foundational questions regarding the meaning of equality and very the purpose of our nation. As Americans grow apart in our understanding on these fundamentals, we seem to be becoming two distinct nations living in the same country. What remains unclear is where these growing differences will lead, if they can be resolved, and what principle will unify us in the future. Please join us as our panelists share their analysis of America's divisions.

Europe remains in flux. The implications of populism, political fragmentation, and the upending of traditional political paradigms in many countries are not yet fully understood. The United Kingdom is leaving the European Union, and the continent continues to grapple with the repercussions of large-scale migration and the return of great power competition. Threats from Russia and terrorism remain potent, while Europe has only begun to grapple with rising Chinese assertiveness and economic investments. Upcoming European Parliamentary elections in May could be a defining moment. Join us as our panelists assess how EU elections could affect the future of Europe. How are shifting political dynamics in the EU influencing competing visions for Europe's future? How will the role of the nation state in Europe likely evolve? What do changes to Europe's political makeup mean for transatlantic relations? What areas of synergy should U.S. policymakers focus on for maximum impact?

The Constitution of the United States has endured for over two centuries. However, our constitutional republic is threatened by vulnerabilities in the election process, corruption amongst our elected leaders and representatives, and censorship of political speech that is fundamental to a free society. Our republican form of government is further weakened by misinterpretations of the Constitution that diminish our rights, dilute the separation of powers, and delegate legislative power to the administrative state. The very meaning of what it is to be an American, replete with our exceptional political, economic, and social

Valerie Mayberry comes from the kind of wealthy family that would be royalty in any other country. Obsessive and compulsive, she's also the FBI's counter-intelligence expert on domestic terrorism.

Brett Garrett is a dishonorably discharged ex-Navy SEAL coming off a secret opioid addiction. A brusque, fiercely independent operative who refuses to play by the rules, the seasoned pro is now a gun for hire, working as a security contractor in Eastern Europe.

When a high ranking Kremlin official with knowledge of a plan to attack the US must be smuggled out under the nose of a kleptocratic Putin-like Russian president and a ruthless general, Mayberry and Garret are thrown together to exfiltrate him and preempt a deadly poisonous strike.

As these unlikely partners work to protect their human asset, their mission is threatened by domestic politics: leftist protests, Congressional infighting, and a culture riven by hatred.

Collusion raises many of the most significant issues facing America in real life today. Is Russia our ally, or our enemy? Are American leftist activists susceptible to influence from abroad? How far will our enemies go to disrupt our politics and weaken the nation? Can we trust the media to differentiate between the good guys and the bad guys?

Newt Gingrich is the former House Speaker and 2012 Presidential Candidate. Gettysburg, Pearl Harbor and To Save America: Stopping Obama's Secular-Socialist Machine are three of his 14 New York Times bestsellers. He is a regular guest on national political shows.

Hosted by Ryan T. Anderson, Ph.D.
William E. Simon Senior Research Fellow,
DeVos Center on Religion and Civil Society,
The Heritage Foundation

Antonin Scalia reflected deeply on matters of religion and shared his insights with many audiences over the course of his remarkable career. As a Supreme Court justice for three decades, he vigorously defended the American constitutional tradition of allowing religion a prominent place in the public square. As a man of faith, he recognized the special challenges of living a distinctively religious life in modern America, and he inspired other believers to meet those challenges.

On Faith is an inspiring collection of the late Supreme Court justice Antonin Scalia's reflections on his own faith, on the challenges that religious believers face in modern America, and on the religious freedoms protected by the Constitution. This volume will enrich every reader's understanding of the legendary justice.

Please join us to reflect on the legacy of the late Supreme Court Justice, Antonin Scalia.

Justice vs. Social Justice

Featuring

James R. Otteson

Professor of Economics and Executive Director,
Eudaimonia Institute, Wake Forest University

Hosted by

David R. Burton

Senior Fellow in Economic Policy, The Heritage Foundation

Adam Smith, sometimes considered the founding father of capitalism, offered a 'thin' conception of justice — primarily protection from injury from others. Many critics, however, believe that justice should encompass much more, including positive duties to help those in need. Are there any good reasons to support a Smithian 'thin' conception of justice? Can a system of political economy based on such a conception be considered moral? In other words, do markets and morality mix?

You are invited to attend Visegrad Countries in the Transatlantic Alliance – Common Security, Shared Challenges, a half-day discussion of the Visegrád Group or V4, comprised of the Czech Republic, Hungary, Poland, and Slovakia. The event co-hosted by the Heritage Foundation and the Antall József Knowledge Center in Budapest, Hungary, will explore the diplomatic, economic, military and political importance of the V4. A special focus of the event will be relations between the Visegrád and the United States, how the region can one day develop into an anchor of U.S. engagement in Europe and continue contributing to robust transatlantic cooperation. Please join us as we engage in a robust dialogue on these vital topics.

Liberty in the Things of God

The Christian Origins of Religious Freedom

In a recent Washington Post op-ed, Robert Kagan wrote, “Only with the advent of Enlightenment liberalism did people begin to believe that the individual conscience, as well as the individual’s body, should be inviolate and protected from the intrusions of state and church.” It is widely thought, as Kagan assumes, that religious freedom is the work of the Enlightenment. Only with the decline of religious faith and the end of the religious wars engendered by the Reformation did liberty of conscience gain a foothold in the emerging secular states of Europe. Or so the story goes.

Liberty in the Things of God tells a different story. The origins of modern notions of liberty of conscience and religious freedom are to be found in Christian writers from the early centuries (e.g. Tertullian of Carthage and Lactantius), medieval churchmen and theologians, and Christian thinkers in the 16th and 17th centuries. Three features of this tradition of thinking are distinctive: religious faith cannot be coerced; conscience is a form of spiritual knowledge that mandates action; the realm of statecraft and the realm of religion are distinct and must be kept separate.

Please join us for a conversation with Robert Louis Wilken about the Christian origins of religious freedom.

Hosted and moderated by

Walter Lohman

Director, Asian Studies Center, The Heritage Foundation

In this, the 40th year of the Taiwan Relations Act, it bears evaluating the state of the Taiwan-US relationship. There are many positive signs, arms sales, significant unofficial diplomatic contact, and a peak in Congressional activity. There are also signs of reserve on the part of the US administration, including uncertainty over the sale of F-16 fighter jets that have been under consideration for more than 10 years, a failure to pick up on the idea of a US-Taiwan Free Trade Agreement, and a low key opening of the new American Institute in Taiwan. On the other side of the relationship, Taipei is election season, with a range of possible outcomes. So where are US-Taiwan relations to day and where are they headed in the short to medium term. Please join us for an assessment, led by Deputy Foreign Minister Szu-chien Hsu and a discussion with leading experts on the relationship from both sides of the relationship.

The American Dream is Dying
Where Civil Society is Eroding

Featuring author Tim Carney

The suffering of America's working class is real. Immobility, inequality, a retreat from marriage, and deaths of despair are the symptoms. In short, for much of the country, the American Dream is dead. The root cause is the collapse of local community for the working-class. The institutions of civil society that are still strong in some parts of America, specifically among the elites, are fading away as America secularizes and the classes drift apart. Join Tim Carney as he discusses his new book, Alienated America, documenting these tragic realities, and what we can do to combat them.

Tim Carney is the commentary editor at the Washington Examiner and a visiting fellow at the American Enterprise Institute. He is the author of The Big Ripoff: How Big Business and Big Government Steal Your Money and Obamanomics: How Barack Obama is Bankrupting You and Enriching His Wall Street Friends, Corporate Lobbyists, and Union Bosses.

Dear Robin,

I feel very remiss for not having properly thanked you before now! The event you hosted was really terrific! And Elizabeth was very pleased. So thank you very much. After all the bumps and shutdowns I'm so glad we were finally able to do it, and I very much appreciate your skillful work in making it a success!

Let's brainstorm about more ways to collaborate! We finally seem to be at a critical turning point in talking about terrorism prevention and counter-messaging...let's meet over coffee to discuss...

The Next Steps for Combating Terrorist Travel

Featuring

Ambassador Nathan A. Sales

Coordinator for Counterterrorism, U.S. Department of State

Hosted by

James Carafano, Ph.D.

Vice President, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for National Security and Foreign Policy, and the E. W. Richardson Fellow, The Heritage Foundation

In the past few years, the world has seen the dramatic movement of Islamist terrorists to war zones around the world. While this is not a new phenomenon, the elevated level of terrorist travel to places like Syria and Iraq from many nations in Europe and North America was deeply concerning to many policymakers across the globe. Now as ISIS loses its last stronghold in Syria, similar concerns over returning terrorist fighters must be addressed. The U.S. led the way following 9/11 in its efforts to combat terrorist travel through intelligence sharing programs like the Visa Waiver Program and a revamped vetting system. Other countries are also following suit, with the EU recently implementing passenger name record vetting, but more remains to be done to ensure that terrorists are unable to travel to carry out their violent endeavors.

Please join us for an address and conversation with Ambassador Nathan Sales on the status of the fight against terrorist travel and what needs be done going forward.

No worries. Here's what I was going to talk to you about...

I think I have mentioned to you in the past that DHS commissioned RAND to conduct a major review of CVE programs, with guidance on future actions. We are finally ready to publically release it. My suggestion is that we hold an event with Assistant Secretary Elizabeth Neumann from DHS on a panel with you and Seamus Hughes to discuss the report, and that we hold it at Heritage. Thoughts? This is a very preliminary, but if it works timewise for you this is what I would like to suggest...week of Jan. 7.

Let me know what you think.

Hey Katie,

I'm afraid I've just got back to London for Christmas and am deep into family stuff. Sorry! Is it anything we can talk about over text or WhatsApp?

Did you know that contraception and abortion were not originally part of the women's movement? How did the women's movement, which fought for equal opportunity for women in education and the workplace, and the sexual revolution, which reduced women to ambitious sex objects, become so united?

In the book "Subverted", Sue Ellen Browder documents for the first time how it all happened, in her own life and in the life of an entire country. As a long-time freelance writer for Cosmopolitan magazine, she wrote pieces meant to soft-sell unmarried sex, contraception, and abortion as the single woman's path to personal fulfillment. She did not realize until much later that people higher and more clever than herself were influencing her thinking and her personal choices as they subverted the women's movement.

Many pro-life women now reject the "feminist" label because of its association with radical pro-abortion groups and policies, while maintaining their belief in equality, dignity, and rights to opportunities afforded to men. They reject the notion that a movement or belief system that advocates on behalf of the disadvantaged can simultaneously advocate for the right to destroy vulnerable, innocent human life.

In the age of the Women's March and #MeToo, can we address the needs of both women and unborn children? Or is a movement that claims to support the interests of "all women" forever destined to not include the voices and interests of people who identify as pro-life?

Confusion reigns thanks to the early promises of the feminist movement and its current manifestation. Join us for an illuminating discussion with expert panelists as we explore how we got here and discuss what today's women can do to counter the radical forces that hijacked a worthy cause. Copies of Sue Ellen Browder's book will be available for purchase.

Freedom, The Heritage Foundation

The Index of Economic Freedom (www.heritage.org/index) celebrates its 25th Anniversary in 2019!

The Index evaluates government policies and economic conditions in 186 countries. Since its inception in 1995, the Index, an annual cross-country analysis by The Heritage Foundation, has tracked the progress of economic freedom around the globe and measured the real impact of advancing economic liberty.

The 25th anniversary edition provides compelling evidence of the dynamic benefits for individuals and societies from greater economic freedom. Around the world, governments that respect and promote openness and free markets provide greater opportunities for innovation, progress, and human flourishing.

Join us as we unveil the Index rankings for 2019 and examine the link between economic freedom and prosperity around the globe.

As the first anniversary of the U.S. withdrawal from the Iran nuclear agreement approaches, Iran and the United States remain locked in disputes on nuclear, regional, and terrorism issues. Although Tehran claims to be complying with the terms of the 2015 nuclear agreement, the revelations contained in Iran's exposed nuclear archives have raised disturbing questions about Iran's past nuclear efforts and future plans. A panel of experts examines the policy implications of these and other security issues.

Hi Katie,

Thanks for all this. Jenkins makes a lot of sense.

The way Antifa are treated is reminiscent of Unite Against Fascism in the UK. Just because those carrying out acts of violence and intimidation say they are against fascists, they are given a free pass. It is such a typically left wing failing.

In 2004, the first students began participating in the D.C. Opportunity Scholarship Program – a private school choice program serving low-income families in Washington, D.C. This year marks 15 years of the scholarship program's operation in the nation's capital, with more than 1,650 children currently using D.C. OSP scholarships to pay tuition at participating private schools across the city. School choice programs have increased considerably across the country over the past decade, with more and more students having access to options such as vouchers and education savings accounts. What has been the impact of this consequential school choice measure, what does the future hold for the OSP, and what does it mean for families? Join us during National School Choice Week for a conversation with Secretary of Education Betsy DeVos, led by Heritage Foundation president Kay Coles James, followed by a discussion featuring program stakeholders and scholars.

Thirty years after Tiananmen Square, human rights abuses continue to proliferate in China. Hundreds of thousands, possibly as many as 3 million, Muslim Uighurs are currently held by the Chinese government in political reeducation facilities. Individuals inside these facilities are subject to indoctrination, forced labor, torture, and in some cases, even death. Collectivization of this population was achieved through the Chinese government's rapid deployment of large-scale surveillance technology – technology that poses a severe threat to people inside and outside of China. The crisis in Xinjiang is both a human rights and national security threat that merits a strong response from the U.S. government. While the U.S. and the international community has been quick to condemn the Chinese government's actions, it has been slow to craft a strategy that holds accountable those in China responsible for the abuses.

Congress passed the Congressional Review Act in 1996 to prevent agency rules from going into effect before Congress had the opportunity to expeditiously review and nullify ones that it deemed unwise. None of the three Presidents since then—Bill Clinton, George W. Bush, and Barack Obama—used the CRA to rein in the administrative state. President Donald Trump has. In April 2019, the White House Office of Management and Budget issued a memorandum reading the CRA broadly for executive and independent agencies alike. This panel will discuss the potential effect that the OMB Memorandum might have on the regulatory state.

America's fiscal future is in peril. At $67,000 for every American, the $22 trillion national debt is larger than what the typical American household earns in a year. At the same time that federal debt is growing rapidly, politicians on both sides of the political aisle are making grand promises for new spending. It's as if Washington's elite think that the debt does not matter. A high and rising national debt exposes America to significant dangers and imposes steep costs on families, workers, and businesses. The sooner we act to correct course, the more sensible reform options we have available to avoid severe austerity measures.

Join the Heritage Foundation for an enlightening panel discussion on why you should care about the national debt by discovering how debt impacts America's economy and our financial future.

The Blueprint for Balance: A Federal Budget for Fiscal Year 2020 is The Heritage Foundation's budget proposal to guide Congress in its constitutional exercise of the power of the purse. It presents Heritage's extensive research that, when implemented, can lead to a freer, more prosperous America with opportunity for all. With this Blueprint we demonstrate to the American people and our elected officials an approach to the federal budget that reins in out-of-control spending and debt, ensures that the government is funding its constitutionally mandated duties, and provides an environment where our prosperity as individuals and as a country grows.

The Take Care Act: Removing Restrictions from the President's Removal Power

Keynote Address by
The Honorable Mike Lee (R-UT)
United States Senate

Hosted by
John Malcolm
Vice President, Institute for Constitutional Government
Director of the Meese Center for Legal & Judicial Studies and Senior Legal Fellow
The Heritage Foundation

While the Constitution is silent on the President's removal power, the First Congress concluded that Article II's vesting of executive power necessarily meant that the President must have plenary authority to remove executive branch officers. As James Madison asserted, "If the Constitution has invested all executive power in the President... the Legislature has no right to diminish or modify his executive authority." Unfortunately, the modern administrative state has continued to give rise to a "headless" fourth branch of government that exerts immense control over vast swaths of American life. The power to remove subordinates is the key means by which the President can direct how executive authority is exercised. Without it, he is in many instances powerless to ensure faithful execution of the laws.

A new bill, The Take Care Act, introduced by Senator Mike Lee (R-UT), aims to address this problem. It will eliminate all existing restrictions on the President's power to remove upper-level executive branch officers, and fully restore the original understanding of the President's power to take care that the laws are faithfully executed. Join us for an address by the Senator, as he unveils this important new legislation.

Divine Plan.jpg The Divine Plan

John Paul II, Ronald Reagan, and the Dramatic End of the Cold War

Featuring
authors Paul Kengor and Robert Orlando

Hosted by
Lee Edwards, Ph.D.
Distinguished Fellow in Conservative Thought,
B. Kenneth Simon Center for Principles and Politics,
The Heritage Foundation

In this riveting book, bestselling author Paul Kengor and writer-director Robert Orlando show what it took to end the Cold War: leaders who refused to accept that hundreds of millions must suffer under totalitarian Communism. And no leaders proved more important than the pope and the president.

Two men who seemed to have little in common developed an extraordinary bond—including a spiritual bond between the Catholic pope and Protestant president. And their shared core convictions drove them to confront Communism.

To tell the full story of the dramatic closing act of the Cold War, Kengor and Orlando draw on their exhaustive research and exclusive interviews with more than a dozen experts, including well-known historians Douglas Brinkley, H. W. Brands, Anne Applebaum, Stephen Kotkin, John O'Sullivan, and Craig Shirley; the leading biographer of John Paul II, George Weigel; close Reagan advisers Richard V. Allen and James Rosebush; and Cardinal Timothy Dolan and Bishop Robert Barron.

You can't understand Pope John Paul II and President Ronald Reagan—or how the Cold War came to such a swift and peaceful end—without understanding how much faith they put in the Divine Plan.

Paul Kengor, Ph.D., is the New York Times bestselling author of A Pope and a President, God and Ronald Reagan, 11 Principles of a Reagan Conservative, Dupes, The Communist, and other books. He is professor of political science at Grove City College.

Robert Orlando is an award-winning writer and filmmaker. The founder of Nexus Media, he has been involved in the production, development, or release of more than a dozen film and documentary projects. Sony Pictures released his most recent documentary, Silence Patton. Orlando wrote and directed the companion documentary to be released in conjunction with The Divine Plan.

Multiple, worsening deadly conflicts grip Nigeria. Given the protracted nature of the insecurity, the international community risks becoming complacent about the profound dangers associated with the conflicts that are driven by a toxic mix of ideologies and grievances. It risks too losing sight of the terrible human toll the violence is taking.

Please join The Heritage Foundation, the International Committee on Nigeria, and Save the Persecuted Christians to hear a message from Nigerians directly affected by Boko Haram, Islamic State West Africa Province, and Fulani militia violence: Rebecca Sharibu, mother of Leah Sharibu, a kidnapped schoolgirl held as a slave for life by the Islamic State West Africa Province for refusing to renounce Christianity; Alheri Bawa Magaji and Mercy Maisamari, daughters of the Adara Chieftdom that Fulani radicals brutally attacked earlier this year; and Paul and Folsade Sule, Deborah Jacob, and Napoleon Adamu from Benue State, victims of violence in Nigeria's Middle Belt. These witnesses will shed light on the terrorist violence in the northeast and the conflict in the Middle Belt region that Nigerian leaders—a former Nigerian President, a Nobel laureate, and a national Christian group—say has devolved into a well-armed, well-funded, ethno-religious war that is destabilizing one of Africa's most important countries.

The rise of Wahhabism has had a significant impact on the Middle East and beyond.

This strict interpretation of Islam, which originated with an 18th century preacher based in the Arabian Peninsula named Muhammad ibn Abd al-Wahhab, argued that Islam had strayed from its pure path and a purge of more modern elements was required. Al-Wahhab also considered the Ottoman Caliphate governing Arabia at the time to be corrupt and the creation of an Islamic state which would implement 'pure' sharia law a necessity.

Al-Wahhab's ideas gained traction and were eventually adopted by the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. In turn, Saudi Arabia pumped Wahhabi Islam not only around the Middle East but also into the West via its lavish funding of mosques and schools preaching al-Wahhab's vision.

The Wahhabist belief in a sole, pure version of Islam meant that other strains of Islam - such as the liberal humanist Islam that has at times been associated with Sufism - were opposed. This mindset endures, with Sufi graves destroyed and Sufi traditions sought to be wiped out by extremists to this day.

This event will assess the impact of Wahhabism on the Middle East and South Asia. It will focus on the role of Sufism in potentially undermining Wahhabism, the tradition of inter-faith harmony in South Asian countries and the role of inter-faith dialogue in challenging extremist ideology.

100 Members of Congress just sent letters of support to HAMAS dba CAIR on the occasion of its 2018 National Conference next week at the Crystal Gateway Marriott Hotel - where the program will include how to counter the Trump admin & its policies, among other themes - anyone aware of this?

HAMAS is a designated FTO & CAIR is its US branch....but Members of Congress openly support it, even are featured as keynote speakers at its events....going on mere miles from the US Capitol

And today in Minneapolis, MN, the Muslim American Society (MAS) (which the FBI/DOJ has called 'the Muslim Brotherhood in America') is meeting w/a similar agenda & a line-up of the top Muslim Brotherhood figures in the country, all there to strategize the takedown of our system - Rep. Keith Ellison is a featured speaker - shouldn't this be in DHS' wheelhouse?

We need to understand that this is a domestic insurgency aimed at destruction & replacement of the US Constitution - please let me know how I can help

Thanks,
Clare

Presented by

The Heritage Foundation and The Gloucester Institute

The Heritage Foundation and The Gloucester Institute present the 2nd Annual Jay A. Parker Lecture and Reception in honor of Jay A. Parker, founding father of the emerging black conservative movement. Come engage with prominent leaders about conservative policies and salute emerging leaders who are making significant contributions.

As the leader of the Lincoln Institute for Education and Research, Jay Parker earned the title, founding father of the emerging black conservative movement. He shared his voice with many black conservative intellectuals as editor of The Lincoln Review. As an active member of the American African Affairs Association, he also worked to spread freedom and democracy in newly independent African nations.

The demand to outlaw so-called hate speech continues to grow in America. Too few citizens, however, understand the radical theory behind hate speech criminalization, how our nation will change should it be banned, and the tech world's involvement in ushering in this future. By turning to Europe, which actively criminalizes "hate speech," we see that politicians, priests, political commentators, and private citizens have been censored, fined, arrested, investigated, and prosecuted for violating speech laws, which have had a devastating effect on the capacity of citizens to rule themselves. In America, the tech world is working hard to ensure our nation looks more like Europe. Should "hate speech" be banned in America, the tech world will help bring forth in this revolution. Please join us to discuss the different dimensions of this important debate.

OK, I've just heard back from the events team. The Wednesday, Thursday and Friday are currently looking best from our end (13th – 15th). How would 11-12 suit you on one of those days?

Happy to chat further...just let me know.

Best wishes,
Robin

Robin,

We have the green light...can you proposed 2-3 potential times for that week of Feb 11-15? I will give a preliminary call to Seamus, then perhaps you could follow up.

Supreme Court Review of the 2018-2019 Term

Panel I (11:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.)

Shay Dvoretzky, Jones Day
Andy Pincus, Mayer Brown

Adam Liptak, The New York Times
Richard Wolf, USA Today
Elizabeth Slattery, The Heritage Foundation (Moderator)

The Supreme Court's 2018-2019 term will soon be over, but the need for serious analysis has just begun. Did the High Court get the big cases right? What will the Court's ruling in The American Legion v. American Humanist Association mean for the future of religion in the public square? How will Rucho v. Common Cause and Benisek v. Lamone, the partisan gerrymandering cases, impact the next election cycle? Will the ruling in Kisor v. Wilkie rein in administrative agencies? How have Justice Gorsuch and Justice Kavanaugh changed the balance of the Court, and have any broader themes of the Roberts Court emerged this term?

Please join us as our distinguished panels of practitioners and journalists discuss these cases and more from the 2018-2019 term..

Katie,

Join me in this season of Thanksgiving to honor family, friends, and an America that provides freedom and opportunity for all. Our mission at The Heritage Foundation is to preserve the freedoms that you and I hold so dear and to advance conservative values that create a stronger and safer America.

Today I am especially grateful for you.

As a Heritage member, you are joined by 500,000 Americans who actively work to advance conservative principles and solutions. Your leadership continues to provide the foundation that allows The Heritage Foundation to lead the way.

Your commitment to traditional American values enabled the confirmation of Justice Brett Kavanaugh to the Supreme Court and other like-minded judges to serve on the federal bench. Your unwavering support for free enterprise allowed us to dismantle job-killing regulations. Your leadership debunked the liberal lie that tax cuts are only for the rich. And you helped Heritage prove that tax cuts enable everyday Americans to keep more of their paychecks and provide better opportunities for their families.

When I think about all of the victories we achieved together, I am encouraged to see what next year will bring. Thank you for your patriotism and for laying a robust conservative foundation for our children and grandchildren.

President Ronald Reagan reminds us, "In this spirit, Thanksgiving has become a day when Americans extend a helping hand to the less fortunate. Long before there was a government welfare program, this spirit of voluntary giving as ingrained in the American character. Americans have always understood that, truly, one must give in order to receive. This should be a day of giving as well as a day of thanks."

Thank you for being a Heritage Member, and for being a conservative American. Have a safe and happy Thanksgiving.

All the best,

Kay Coles James
President

Keynote Interview

Hugo Gurdon, Editor-in-Chief, Washington Examiner
The Honorable Elaine Chao, U.S. Secretary of Transportation

The death of an Infrastructure Bill may have been greatly exaggerated. Join Washington Examiner for an exclusive one-on-one sitdown interview with Transportation Secretary Elaine Chao, who will outline her plans to advance infrastructure improvements throughout the nation. In addition to discussing the Department's preferred infrastructure package, Sec. Chao will also be asked about how the Department is working to advance innovation with automated vehicles, drones, and even loop tunnels. This will be an interview you won't want to miss.

Prior to the interview, Washington Examiner and The Heritage Foundation will also host expert panels to analyze the chances of advancing an Infrastructure Bill and what should be in it.

Wednesday, June 26, 2019 - 9:00 a.m. - 11:00 a.m.

Registration and breakfast begins at 8:30 a.m. Program begins at 9:00 a.m.

The Heritage Foundation's Allison Auditorium

COMMENTARY

Gov. Northam, Step Down and Let the Healing Begin

Virginia Gov. Ralph Northam's cavalier attitude toward infanticide and his admitted racist behavior emanate from the same seed: a failure to embrace the core principle of the sanctity of life. This is why Northam must set aside his personal ambition and resign, writes Heritage Foundation President Kay Coles James.

Venezuela at a Tipping Point

A conversation with
The Honorable Marco Rubio (R-FL)
 United States Senator

Hosted by
Kim R. Holmes, Ph.D.
 Executive Vice President, The Heritage Foundation

and moderated by
Daniel Twining, Ph.D.

President, International Republican Institute

Please join The Heritage Foundation and the International Republican Institute for a conversation about Venezuela with Senator Marco Rubio. As Chairman of the Subcommittee on Western Hemisphere, and a member of IRI's Board, the senior senator from Florida has played a critical role in shaping a democratic transition in Venezuela.

Senator Rubio will discuss the political developments in Venezuela, the new government of interim President Juan Guaidó, and next steps for U.S. policy.

Since the first submarine strategic deterrent patrol by USS George Washington (SSBN-598) in 1960, U.S. nuclear ballistic missile submarines (or SSBNs) have provided the most survivable leg of the U.S. Strategic Nuclear Triad. U.S. SSBNs on patrol are virtually undetectable and hold adversary strategic targets constantly at risk. Today's force of 14 Ohio-class SSBNs carry 70 percent of deployed U.S. strategic nuclear warheads, and when they retire after a 42-year service life, they will be the longest serving submarines in U.S. Naval history. The 12 planned Columbia-class submarines will provide an overdue modernization of the U.S. sea-based strategic deterrent force and will possess advanced stealth technologies to ensure they remain survivable against evolving threats into the 2080s. Strategic nuclear modernization critics have questioned the need to modernize the U.S. SSBN force and argued that a smaller number of Columbia-class SSBNs can provide a sufficient deterrent capability. Our panel of experts will explore the importance of a modern SSBN force on deterring adversaries and the impacts of reducing the number of U.S. SSBNs.

Presented by
The Heritage Foundation and The Gloucester Institute

The Heritage Foundation and The Gloucester Institute present the 2nd Annual Jay A. Parker Lecture and Reception in honor of Jay A. Parker, founding father of the emerging black conservative movement. Come engage with prominent leaders about the dangerous decline in civil discourse and salute emerging leaders who are making significant contributions to our nation.

As the leader of the Lincoln Institute for Education and Research, Jay Parker earned the title, founding father of the emerging black conservative movement. He shared his voice with many black conservative intellectuals as editor of The Lincoln Review. As an active member of the American African Affairs Association, he also worked to spread freedom and democracy in newly independent African nations.

Anti-Semitism impacts the lives of our Jewish friends and neighbors here at home and across the globe. It continues to fester on college campuses in the form of calls for Boycotts, Divestments, and Sanctions (BDS) against Israel and numerous instances of ostracization of Jewish students. Within the United Nations, resolutions incessantly malign Israel with outrageously false allegations while other acts seek to deny the historical ties of the Jewish people with the land of Israel. Here in the U.S., some elected officials use anti-Semitic tropes with seeming impunity. This panel will explain the dynamics of contemporary anti-Semitism and how we can work together to defeat it.

Margaret Thatcher Center for Freedom, The Heritage Foundation

The House of Commons has rejected the Withdrawal Agreement between Britain and the European Union proposed by Prime Minister Theresa May no fewer than three times.

Public debate on this Agreement has focused on its inability to deliver the Brexit that

DHS-19-0067-C, 19-0069-B-000225

Britain voted for in the landmark 2016 referendum because of the Agreement's effects on trade, regulations, and the relationship between Ireland and Northern Ireland. However, the Agreement also has important intelligence, defense, and security dimensions. In his presentation, Professor Gwythian Prins, a member of the Chief of the UK Defense Staff's Strategy Advisory Panel and emeritus research professor at the London School of Economics, will review the Agreement's shortcomings in these dimensions and set out the risks it poses to the Anglo-American Special Relationship.

Higher Education (Vedder).jpg Restoring the Promise Higher Education in America

Featuring
author Richard Vedder

Hosted by
Mary Clare Amselem
Policy Analyst in the Center for Education Policy,
The Heritage Foundation

Higher education in America is in crisis. Costs are too high, learning is too little, and the payoff to students and society is increasingly problematic. In Restoring the Promise, Richard Vedder shows how the precarious position of colleges and universities results from a mostly unsuccessful expansion of governmental involvement in the academy, especially at the federal level.

The book examines today's most serious issues in higher education, including free speech and academic freedom; tuition and other costs; culture and curricula; governance; gender, race and diversity; due process; admissions; student loans; and much more. It diagnoses problems and identifies solutions.

Richard Vedder is Senior Fellow at the Independent Institute and Edwin and Ruth Kennedy Distinguished Emeritus Professor of Economics and Faculty Associate, Contemporary History Institute, Ohio University; and he is the Founding Director of the Center for College Affordability and Productivity in Washington, D.C. He is co-author (with Lowell Gallaway) of the Independent Institute book, Out of Work: Unemployment and Government in Twentieth-Century America, the recipient of both the Sir Antony Fisher International Memorial Award and Mencken Award Finalist for Best Book, and the Independent monograph, Can Teachers Own Their Own Schools? New Strategies for Educational Excellence.

The Present Situation and Prospects for Taiwan

Featuring

Dr. Wen-je Ko

Mayor of Taipei City, Taiwan

Hosted by

Walter Lohman

Director, Asian Studies Center, The Heritage Foundation

On November 2014, Dr. Wen-Je Ko, an independent and a political novice, was elected as the mayor of Taipei City, Taiwan. As a surgeon who had served as the head of the Intensive Care Unit at National Taiwan University Hospital for 17 years, Mayor Ko brings a much different set of skills and new thinking to his task than other politicians. Mayor Ko says he aims to overcome the ideological obstacles of being associated with a political party and directly appeals to the needs of the people. What does that mean for how Taiwan addresses its domestic and international challenges? Join us as Mayor Ko shares his experiences in politics, including his governing concepts and values as well as his opinions on Taiwan's domestic and international situations and its future development.

A New Era in El Salvador

Remarks by

The Honorable Nayib Bukele

President-elect of El Salvador

Hosted by

Kim Holmes, Ph.D.

Executive Vice President, The Heritage Foundation

On February 3, 2019 Nayib Bukele was elected president of El Salvador with one of the highest majorities in the Central American nation's history. His election also marks the first time a third party candidate won the presidency since the 1992 Peace Accords. His election takes place at an opportune moment for El Salvador and U.S. Salvadoran relations. DHS-19-0067-C, 19-0069-B-000234 relations.

Come join us to hear the president-elect's reform agenda for El Salvador. In keeping with his campaign slogan "there's enough money when no one steals", Bukele will discuss his plans for fighting corruption. He will also discuss his policies for strengthening the rule of law and creating economic growth. Necessary to his agenda will be deepening and broadening cooperation with the United States.

While Washington focuses on federal policies, the 50 states serve as an example to national lawmakers of policies that help and those that hurt. This year's 11th edition of the Rich States Poor States, the ALEC-Laffer State Competitiveness Index, examines what states have been doing to either grow their populations and economies or to shrink them.

Of particular note in 2018 was how states responded to the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, which brought about both unexpected revenue gains as well as a limit to states' ability to pass their high-taxes onto federal taxpayers through the state and local tax deduction.

In addition to taxes, the report examines states' business environments, labor policies, and growing pension burdens. As the authors find, people are voting with their feet based on which states offer lower costs, fewer regulations, and greater opportunities.

For nearly a century, the Academy Awards have been given to Hollywood's favorite movies and the people who made them—from Casablanca and Titanic to 2018's winner, Green Book. But a large cultural gap has developed between the awards and Middle America. Nominated movies like the pot-boiler Vice and politically-correct speeches by Oscar winners like Spike Lee have sparked questions like: Who are the members of the Academy of Arts and Sciences? What is their political affiliation? What is the process that decides the winners? Are the results skewed by the millions of dollars spent to promote this movie and that actor? And there are larger questions: Why does Hollywood avoid making movies that celebrate America's past? Should cultural conservatives step up and underwrite up-lifting movies like It's a Wonderful Life and Miracle on 34th Street? Do the Academy Awards still matter or is it time for an alternative film festival?

We agree with Andrew Breitbart that politics is downstream from culture and invite you to attend a far-ranging discussion of the recent Academy Awards and whether they reflect the cultural views of most Americans.

The Framers' View of Property

Contemporary Supreme Court jurisprudence treats "property" as far less deserving of judicial protection than "life" or "liberty." The Supreme Court, however, has misread

DHS-19-0067-C, 19-0069-B-000246

American legal history. Anglo-American traditions, customs, and law held that property was an essential ingredient of the liberty that the colonists had come to enjoy and that must be protected against arbitrary governmental interference. The Framers' generation believed that "property" and "liberty" were equally important institutions and that neither one could exist without the other. The Framers venerated property as a means of guaranteeing personal independence because (among other things) the concept of "property" embraced the legal rights to which everyone was entitled, such as the right to governance under "the rule of law." Property was not immune from regulation, but that regulation had to be for the purpose of promoting "the general Welfare," not the interests of specific groups or people. It is time for the Supreme Court to revisit Anglo-American legal history and to re-examine its precedents in light of what that history teaches.

A Budget Conversation with the Secretary of the Air Force

service was too small for what the nation was asking it to do. The reemergence of long-term, strategic competition with China and Russia requires it to field a force with a robust fifth generation capability and a capacity that allows it to compete, deter, and win anytime, anywhere. To do that, the Air Force needs to expand its force to 386 operational squadrons including seven additional fighter, five bomber, and 14 tanker squadrons – an additional force structure that Heritage assesses will cost more than 80 billion dollars to acquire.

And yet, the recently announced budget for 2020 did not accelerate the acquisition rate for the F-35 or the KC-46, and it added $1.1B in funding for eight new fourth-generation F-15Xs.

During this engagement, the secretary will discuss the capacity and capability priorities actualized in the 2020 budget, and how it feeds her service's quest to not just expand the capacity of the Air Force, but to give it the capabilities it needs to win a war against a near peer competitor.

A graduate of the U.S. Air Force Academy, Secretary Wilson was an Air Force officer from 1982 to 1989. She earned her master's and doctorate degrees as a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University.
