Re: F-2019-01079; Civil Action No. 19-cv-02169

Dear Ms. Creighton:

This is a final response to the 29 November 2018 and 22 February 2019 Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests seeking:

- (1) All records reflecting email communications on non-classified email systems (including any email attachments) with any non-governmental email address attributed to former Director Mike Pompeo. The Agency was permitted to limit its search to the following individuals:
 - a) Any person acting in the capacity of chief of staff to Director Pompeo;
 - b) Toni Porter;
 - c) Brian Bulato; and
 - d) Brittany Bramell.
- (2) All emails sent from (a) any non-governmental email address attributed to Director Pompeo to (b) any governmental email address associated with Director Pompeo; to include all messages forwarded to Director Pompeo's governmental email address, or on which Director Pompeo's governmental email address is carbon copied.
- (3) All records reflecting communications (including emails, email attachments, calendar invitations or entries, telephone call logs, text messages, and notes from any meetings or phone calls) between (1) former CIA Director Mike Pompeo or former Chief of Protocol Toni Porter, or anyone serving as Director Pompeo's Chief of Staff, and (2) Senator Tom Cotton or Senator Marco Rubio, or anyone on their staffs including any communications from email addresses ending in cotton.senate.gov, tomcotton.com, rubio.senate.gov, or marcorubio.com. Explicitly, any notes or records created by assistants or aides to Director Pompeo reflecting the fact of or content of such communications with Senators Cotton or Rubio.

We processed the request in accordance with the FOIA, 5 U.S.C. § 552, as amended, and the CIA Information Act, 50 U.S.C. § 3141, as amended.

We completed a thorough search for records responsive to the request and determined that two hundred and one (201) may be released in segregable form with redactions made on the basis of FOIA exemptions (b)(1), (b)(3), (b)(5) and/or (b)(6). We also determined to withhold other documents in their entirety on the basis of FOIA exemptions (b)(1), (b)(3), (b)(5), and/or (b)(6). Exemption (b)(3) pertains to Section 6 of the Central Intelligence Agency Act of 1949, as amended, 50 U.S.C. § 3507 (noted on the enclosed documents as exemption “(b)(3)CIAAct”), and/or Section 102A(i)(1) of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, 50 U.S.C. § 3024(i)(1) (noted on the enclosed documents as exemption “(b)(3)NatSecAct”). There are other documents pending further coordination with other government agencies, and a determination as to their releasability will be provided in a supplemental response.

Sincerely,

Sir,

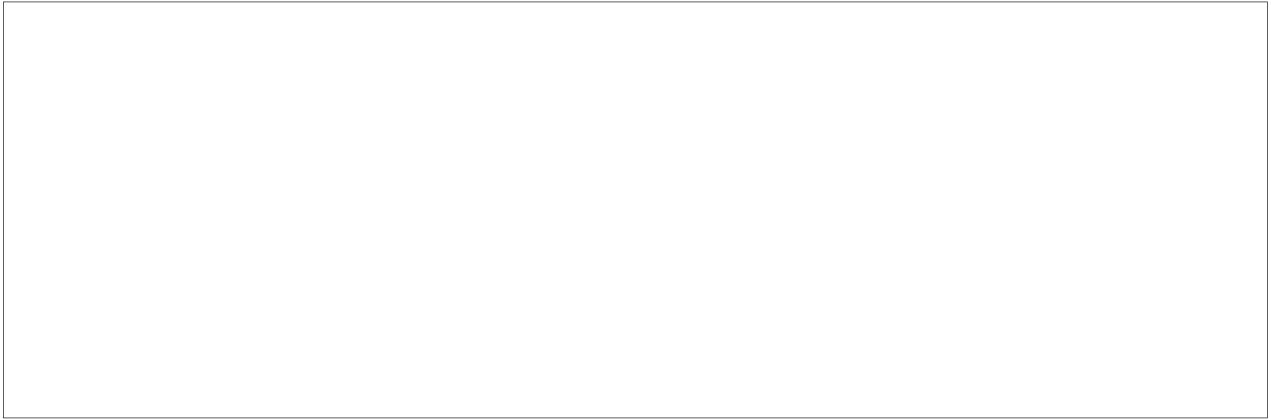

(b)(6) I have two names for you of people I think would be best suited. They are both mid-career folks- (b)(6) brought him over and he stayed there when (b)(6) moved); and (b)(6) previously (b)(6) I know (b)(6) well (he was my intern many years ago); I don't know (b)(6) but he comes highly recommended by someone I trust. I haven't approached either, of course. Brief details follow. Do let me know if you'd like me to sound either of them out--I'm pretty sure (b)(6) at least, would be open to the idea of a move.

I also have at least one more junior candidate if you want to groom someone yourself.

Since I'm not sure you're still monitoring this e-mail, I'll ping your assistant in a while if I don't hear from you.

All the Best,

As for the talk, it depends on what you were trying to do. You certainly got over a vibrant and energetic chief doing good things at an important and vibrant agency—much better than most of your predecessors. And assuming the coverage of the North Korea comments was what you wanted, it came across very clearly and cleanly. The only thing that puzzled me a little, if you'll forgive my cheek, was the way you seemed to define the mission of the organization as stealing secrets. Certainly it does that, and I totally understand the importance of emphasizing that aspect of the mission. But there are a few other missions, including being the chief all-source analytical organization not focused on military affairs, that I don't think the public understands. And then, of course, that other mission that you wouldn't be wanting to talk about that the public thinks it knows a lot more about than it actually does. Just my two cents, worth not even that.

Would it be possible to talk about Syria again some time? Our current planning focus is a global Russia PLANEX, but we continue to watch Syria (and Iraq) minutely and in great pain. It's hard to develop recommendations fast enough to keep pace with the collapse of our position (I was thrilled, by the way, to hear your answer to the question of the importance of a Sunni partner—spot-on and extremely well articulated).

I'll let you know what our prospects say.

All the Best,

 (b)(6)

- * Guest will arrive at 11:30 and will park on the Northside entrance of the complex and have valet parking
- * They will come in, get name tags and be ushered into holding area/lobby where there is a grand staircase etc.
- * We will have drinks there and as soon as we have enough folks hopefully by 11:35-11:40 [REDACTED] will welcome everyone and explain the flow of traffic. (b)(6)
- * Folks will proceed to another hallway where the food will be laid out on a buffet. They will fill their plates and proceed to the round "King Arthur" board room
- (b)(6) * [REDACTED] and or I will meet you guys at the Howell Mill entrance of the building and bring you to the reception area or directly to the buffet line depending on when you get there
- * The round board room is where we will eat...it has room for 30 at the table and is exquisite and will give the intimate discussion format we are looking for
- (b)(6) * Once we are seated [REDACTED] will welcome folks again and introduce you. He will ask the other guests to briefly introduce themselves as well...They will all have name tags. (b)(6)
- * We will then take 15 minutes of so to eat. Once Mike is ready and has eaten [REDACTED] will give a more formal introduction of Mike to kick of the remarks and discussion period (b)(6)
- * I will confirm the above sequence with [REDACTED] tonight...the other alternative would be to have people get their food, eat and then just have one introductory period when everyone has eaten... (b)(6)
- * NLT 1:00 PM when the discussion is finished [REDACTED] will make concluding comments and thank folks for coming. Guests will then exit the door right by the Round Board room and we will head upstairs, out the other side of the building and head to the stadium...

A couple of questions...

- * I said that Mike will have some opening comments and talk about the agency's mission and what you are doing to accomplish it...as well as the challenges that you are dealing with
- * Do you need a screen, computer and projector? I don't suppose so but please let me know if you do...
- * Following Mike's comments he said he wanted to have a dialogue with the guests...the round table will be perfect for that as everyone will be facing each other and we should not need any microphones or anything like that...

(b)(6)

- * Are there any other expectations that [redacted] should set in his comments welcoming folks?
- * The discussion will include Q&A correct?

Let me know if there is anything else that you need to know...in advance...

Well, you're in good company -- here's what he said about Jim Clapper on the announcement of his resignation:

"During Director Clapper's tenure, senior intelligence officials engaged in a deception spree regarding mass surveillance," Wyden said. "Top officials, officials who reported to Director Clapper, repeatedly misled the American people and even lied to them...Regardless of what was going through the director's head when he testified, failing to correct the record was a deliberate decision to lie to the American people about what their government was doing."

At least he's consistent?

Look forward to seeing you in the morning!

It's all good! I'm heading into the office in about an hour anyways so it's easier to get stuff done from home given the wondrous conductivity of our commo systems in the office!

If I was in the office, I would have to be sitting down in my car in the garage to make any of this happen. it really is preposterous....

Director,

The Army Cyber Institute is hosting a Cyber Warfare symposium at the Reagan Building on 7 & 8 November. They would like you to be the closing speaker at 1630 on 8 November (or anytime on the 7th or 8th).

They have a great lineup including Senators Round and Heinrich, GEN Miller and others.

Let me know if that is doable and something you can fit into your packed schedule.

Best

(b)(6)Hi [redacted] - Mrs. P sent the below request and I put a hold on the Director's calendar for the event. But I do not know if they will be able to attend as the WH has called a meeting on Tuesday evening that does not end until 5:30pm. I will attempt to explain it to him. But before I do can you see the note from Mrs. P.

I drafted two documents last night at home. I sent them to my low-side email. Now, today, I came to office to work on them. I can't. They won't open. So, now I'll go home. And then I guess I'll come in and work on them tomorrow night in the middle of a crazy week instead of being able to work on them when my schedule permits me to do uninterruptedly.

I've been here four months now. Can't figure out how my computer system still does perform basic functions.

Dear Mike:

Dave Petraeus and I are co-chairs of the Wilson Center Global Advisory Council*. As you probably know, the Center is a congressionally chartered non-partisan think tank in Washington, DC. and former Congresswoman Jane Harman is the president.

Approximately 35 corporate and policy leaders from around the world will meet at the Center October 25 and 26, in the Reagan Building. Over the course of the meeting we provide them with opportunities for frank and open conversations with a number of our nation's thought leaders and policy makers. As an example, at our last meeting, our group met with John McCain, Mark Warner, and H.R. McMaster. Since that meeting in April, the Wilson Center was honored to interview Vice President Pence.

Our meetings on the 25th and 26th, will intersperse meetings with Wilson Center scholars with closed-door briefings with national U.S. leaders. Marlene and I will host the group for dinner at our home on Wednesday October 25th, and hope you will be our honored guest. The format can be of your choice – perhaps you want to say a few opening words, but it is not necessary – Dave and I aren't shy about asking questions to start the conversation. It is a very elegant and respectful group that enjoys the opportunity for relaxed and discrete conversation.

If the date and time do not work for you, please suggest a different time slot, as I am sure we can move things around to accommodate you. Once we identify a date and time, you and I can discuss the format and topics you prefer.

As you know, I have great admiration for you. It would be a pleasure to introduce you to this group. I will call you to follow up.

Regards,

Frederic Malek
Co-Chair, Wilson Center Global Advisory Council

The Global Advisory Council functions as a brain trust for the presidentially appointed Board of Trustees, and a support system for the Center's groundbreaking initiatives; members of the Council are invited to become more involved in the Center to make it a truly global institution.*

It's been crazy. I would more than consider it. I'd be honored to do it. I know my reply is tardy, but if you still would like me to come down I'd be happy to do so. Can I trade you for one more static line jump?

My only caveat is that I am horribly unreliable // I can get yanked at a moments notice.

Let's chat yet this year and I'll tell you how we've dealt with that before.

Mike,

Hope you are well. Know you are busy.

BL: I am asking if you would consider speaking at a Leadership Forum event here in Columbus, Georgia 27 or 28 August 2018.

BACKGROUND: Mike, I know it is Columbus, Georgia, but it is the most profound Leadership Forum I have witnessed in the Nation. It is fantastic and it is right down your alley. Conservative leadership truths and development. Past speakers have included Bush 43, Laura Bush, Condaleeza Rice, Newt Gingrich, Colin Powell, Peyton Manning, etc.

The culture of the forum, although not codified, typically revolves around relational, character based, ethical, and even faith based leadership principals. The event is sponsored by Columbus State University so it is public funded and not "religious in nature" but definitely a conservative tone and would be a friendly audience.

This particular year, FBGA and Columbus are celebrating the FBGA Centennial ("Columbus - Fort Benning: 100 years of Leadership") so there will be some emphasis on leaders from the military.

I know you have a wild schedule. But might this be something you would be interested in?

I pasted a link here in the event you wanted to peruse the web site: Caution-

CONCORDIA

January 2018

The Honorable Mike Pompeo
Director
Central Intelligence Agency

Dear Director Pompeo,

It is our pleasure to invite you as our honored guest and featured speaker at the 2018 Concordia Annual Summit on September 24-26, 2018 in New York City, where we will build on the success of the 2017 Summit as the largest and most inclusive nonpartisan forum on the sidelines of the U.N. General Assembly.

Concordia remains dedicated to actively fostering and sustaining cross-sector partnerships for social impact. Inclusivity remains at the core of the organization, and our 2018 Summit will strive to elevate voices and perspectives from across all sectors and levels, in order to advance critical conversations and promote the power of partnerships.

A major goal of ours is to promote dialogue and build partnerships that advance peacebuilding efforts while addressing challenges affecting global security. Concordia was founded on the 10th anniversary of 9/11 on the premise that partnerships can play a critical role in combatting extremism. One of our first plenary sessions, at our inaugural 2011 Annual Summit, focused on the importance of the private sector in the fight against extremism. Since then, speakers at our Summits have discussed issues such as nuclear security, open source intelligence, and most recently, potential strategies of major players in the Syrian conflict through a red cell exercise. All of these conversations have been addressed through the lens of public-private partnerships.

With your extensive experience in the private sector as a leader of major manufacturing companies, and in government as a longstanding Congressman and now as Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, you have unparalleled insight into how partnerships can shape and strengthen national security. It is our hope that you will join us on our plenary stage to deliver keynote remarks, or participate in a fireside chat with a distinguished member of our Leadership Council, to share your perspective on open source intelligence or other pressing issues affecting global security.

As the world turns its attention to New York City during the week of the General Debate of the U.N. General Assembly, the Concordia Annual Summit offers an extraordinary opportunity to weigh in on the most relevant issues of our time. Our 2017 Annual Summit welcomed over 2,300 of the world's preeminent thought leaders, influencers and decision makers, and as we progress into the new year, we look to expand and deepen our presence even further.

We would be honored by your participation. For more information or to confirm your participation, please have the appropriate member of your staff contact Concordia's Programming Manager, [redacted] at [redacted] (b)(6) (b)(6)

Dear Mike,

Hope all is well with you and your family, and that you are well settled in your new and important position. (b)(3) NatSecAct

I just returned from [Redacted] and as usual had a number of meetings with political leaders and military commanders. Many asked me about you, and some of our friends send you their warmest regards, particularly [Redacted]. The [Redacted] was briefly brought up in my meetings. (b)(6) (b)(3) NatSecAct

I, and my organization here in the US, would like to help you as much as possible. I thought about a couple of initiatives which I thought might be useful to you and the agency: (b)(3) NatSecAct

- 1) A discussion on the situation in [Redacted], based on my latest meetings and conversations,
- 2) A visit to [Redacted] communities in the US, which I could help arranging. Former CIA directors have done that, but inadequately, I must say. (b)(3) NatSecAct

Kindly awaiting your response.

Cheers,

Mr. Director: I hope you are well. I have a couple of items that I think will be interest to you.

1. Having read the speculation about State, my greatest bit of advice would be to sit down with [REDACTED] (b)(6)
- (b)(6) [REDACTED] is a first-rate operator who is respected in the building as well as a tough, agile diplomat with an impressive command of the issues and a solid global reputation. You have met her over the years, and she
- (b)(6) admires you very much. [REDACTED] would be a great choice as Deputy Secretary (who Tillerson's successor would have right to replace) or undersecretary for Political Affairs [REDACTED] (b)(6)
- I hope you have an opportunity to save U.S. diplomacy, and [REDACTED] is an exceptional leader who could help you do that. (If you're not able to open this file for security reasons, I can have a hard copy delivered ASAP if your staff tells me where to deliver it.)

(b)(6)

(If this is something that interests you, I can deliver a hard copy or email a file; awaiting your staff's instructions.)

Thanks,  (b)(6)

This schedule is ridiculous. For example — when am I going to prep for the Oval Office? We are cancelling the video shoot. (b)(3) CIAAct (b)(3) CIAAct
(b)(6) (b)(6)

Then, new rule: nothing goes on my schedule without my approval. Nothing. [REDACTED] — when you say to me “is it okay if we have an early breakfast” I had no idea that the rest of the morning would prevent me from preparing for oval. Did you? Or when [REDACTED] says “we have to schedule the two calls in the morning” without saying that that was the only minutes available before oval. And do you all really believe the event will end at 9 tomorrow night? Hint: Tonight’s event that calendar said would end at 9 ended in time to get home at 10:34 pm. And I had to somewhat rudely leave the gathering. And then when I got in [REDACTED] and had emails for tomorrow’s breakfast. (Why at the last minute?). Like tomorrow, today’s schedule was totally unrealistic. What happens if something comes up tomorrow — we have zero flexibility. (b)(3) NatSecAct

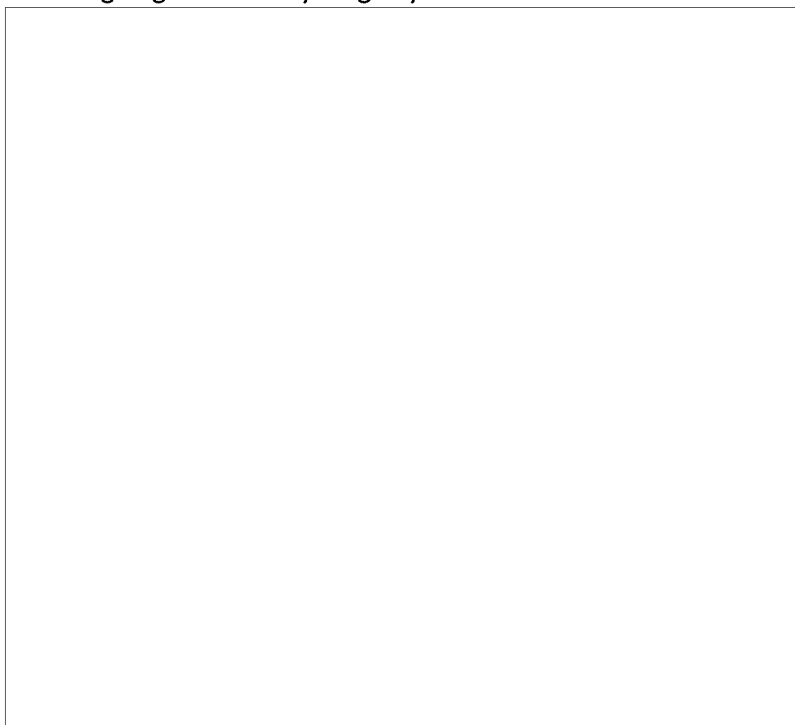

I will now take complete control of every entry. Please have the detailed daily schedules from now to the end of the year printed for my review.

Greetings, Mike. It was good to see you in Sun Valley and great to have a chance to chat a bit. Well done, again, on the interview with George – and on the subsequent one in Aspen

I write because KKR holds a one-day conference every year in Washington, DC for the Chief Investment Officers (CIOs) of 70 of the world's leading public and corporate pension funds, insurance groups, sovereign wealth funds, university endowments, and high net worth family offices. It is very selective; collectively, the CIOs manage approximately $3 trillion, and they are very influential, substantial individuals from around the world. During the gathering, we host a range of high-level discussions about public policy, macroeconomics, and geopolitics - with a focus on their implications for investors. Participants in the past couple of years have included House Speaker Paul Ryan, Tom Donilon, General Keith Alexander, NSA's Mike Rogers, Senate Majority Leader McConnell, and Senator Corey Booker, among others.

We would be delighted if you would consider an interview before the CIO Forum this year for an off-the-record conversation about the state of the world, security threats, etc..

The conference takes place on October 3d. Ideally, we would host you for an hour sometime that morning; we can be flexible on timing, as your appearance would be a priority for us. We could structure this as a fireside chat, with me as your interviewer, so there would be no need for you to prepare any remarks. And the discussion would be strictly off the record (a policy that has been honored for the five years that I have been attending). If the morning of the 3d would not work, we might be able to schedule you for an after-dinner conversation the evening of the 2d of October.

Thanks, as always, for your consideration. We just want to get this to you and your team months in advance so that you can guard the date, if at all possible.

Best/thanks, Dave

Director,

The Army Cyber Institute is hosting a Cyber Warfare symposium at the Reagan Building on 7 & 8 November. They would like you to be the closing speaker at 1630 on 8 November (or anytime on the 7th or 8th).

They have a great lineup including Senators Round and Heinrich, GEN Miller and others.

Let me know if that is doable and something you can fit into your packed schedule.

A very generous grad, [redacted], would like to host a dinner in NYC and invite a very select group of grads to attend. In addition to the Supe, the group will be composed exclusively of Fortune 500 CEOs, retired 4 star general officers and other influential grads. The purpose is to cement the bonds in this group and create a strong network that is capable of having a significant impact on the Academy and the Nation. We would like you to be a member and our initial speaker, and hope you will consider it.

We hope to have the initial dinner this Fall, at a date of your choosing. I have copied [redacted] on this email, and would like to discuss the concept with you both. Please let me know if this is something you will consider. Thank you.

Dear Mike:

Dave Petraeus and I are co-chairs of the Wilson Center Global Advisory Council*. As you probably know, the Wilson Center is a congressionally chartered non-partisan think tank in Washington, DC. and former Congresswoman Jane Harman is the president.

Approximately 35 corporate and policy leaders from around the world will meet at the Center April 27 and 28. Over the course of the meeting we provide them with opportunities for frank and open conversations with a number of our nation's thought leaders and policy makers.

(b)(6)

On the 27th, [REDACTED] and I will host the group at home for dinner. Dave and I invite you to join us for the evening and contribute to the conversation. The format can be of your choice – perhaps you want to say a few opening words, but it is not necessary – Dave and I aren't shy about asking questions to start the conversation. Undoubtedly, some of the guests will be interested in your views on terrorism, national security in times of cyberthreats, foreign policy... and we can spend as much – or as little – time on any of those that you wish. It is a very elegant and respectful group that enjoys the opportunity for relaxed and discrete conversation. Once we have a better sense of attendance, you and I can discuss topics.

As you know, I have great admiration for you. It would be a pleasure to introduce you to this group.

Thanks

Fred

*The Global Advisory Council functions as a brain trust for the presidentially appointed Board of Trustees, and a support system for the Center's groundbreaking initiatives; members of the Council are invited to become more involved in the Center to make it a truly global institution.

Artwork thoughts.

Artwork Goal/Purpose:

#1, Convey mission, i.e.: mission first

#2, Convey something about Mike

#3, Entice/engage reader to participate; disarming enough to encourage open exchange

Proposed art resembles a labor union logo or a resistance movement. Proposed artwork is generic--could be used for anyone, for any type of rally. Is not enticing for an event like "Meet with Mike". Rather than disarming--conveys brute force.

Ideas:

*Use red, white & blue. Stars and/or stripes. Accomplishes #1 & #2 above.

*Steaming cups of coffee IF you'll be having drinks at these. Accomplishes #3 and conveys a co-equal, friendly, unstructured kitchen table visit.

*Utilize Sherman's head as a round logo. Could have different sentences along bottom rounded edge of logo. If clever enough, people would quickly stop to see what Sherman is "saying" on various posters. Could have different photos of Sherman: dirt on his face, toy in his mouth, etc. Use red & blue in Sherman's border; put red/blue scarf on Sherman. Some will remember Sherman from bubble talk. Could use cartoon caricature of Sherm but I think real photo is more appealing.

Things Sherman might say:

"I like meeting with Mike but I mostly listen."

"I may surprise Mike and show up at a few of these meetings myself!"

(Sherman logo with dirt on his face) "Nothing's off limits--except Mom's flowers. Geez!"

(Sherman with a sock in his mouth)

"No need to "put a sock in it!"

Other: Sherman with sunglasses (Be cool. Meet with Mike!"); Sherman with teeth showing (Don't make me hunt you down!); Sherman with eyes closed ("don't miss out!"); Sherman barking ("Speak up! I do!"); Sherman with crazy hat on ("Nothing is off limits!"), etc.

Just a quick note to check in and say hello. I hope things aren't too crazy back at home but one glance at the headlines tells me otherwise.

The seminar is going well and I'm very fortunate that I was able to carve out some time to come out here for a week. Thanks again for giving me the green light for this, it really has been a memorable and productive week.

I fly back Monday night and will be back in the office Tuesday morning.

Mike,

My regrets on the delay, was working late last night / this morning till my computer managed to completely crash at 2AM!

This is great news! Thank you!

BLUF we were shooting to arrive NLT 0830 on Friday September 15th allowing 60 minutes for security. I would then look to you to drive the agenda for how long we stay out there (not sure how much you can show and if there are any particular people besides yourself you would recommend to talk to the group).

That said we can flex this if there are better timings for you. We could flex it to either Thursday the 14th or Saturday the 16th if one of those days would work better for you.

Also would coming midday during lunch be better than coming in the morning?

You tell me what timing works best for you and I can work the rest of the schedule around it.

Somehow I forgot the lesson we learned plebe year of "don't volunteer for nothing" so I am the POC for this.

Thank you again!

Best,

We are planning out the 2017 Firstwave meeting which will be in DC this year.

I know your schedule will likely preclude you from attending the entire event, but I hope you can join for portions.

I wanted to pick your brain on how hard it would be logistically to host the group at the Agency one morning? If it is easier from a security perspective we could limit the attendee to Members and spouses, meaning no other outside, non-grad guest.

I know given people that walk around the building that might not be ideal, but also know I saw events there with outsiders without giving a tour of the building.

The event right now looks to be September 14, 15, 16 and we would likely do this on the 14th or 15th, but if doing it on a Saturday would be logistically easier given the fewer number of people in the building, we could work with that too.

Let me know your thoughts?

Thank you!

Best,

OK. Here is the updated recipe—and edited text that suits this audience better. In the recipe, the typo from our Xmas card (ounces of chocolate bar) is corrected and the sizes are adjusted for today's container sizes of evaporated milk and marshmallow creme. What size is the card? Doesn't really matter to me. I suppose at this point, we should go with whatever is easiest and fastest.

So, front of the card would show the recipe (with maybe some holiday-ish artwork):

Mercer Family Secret* Christmas Fudge Recipe
Originally from Aunt Maxine Mercer via Dorothy (Mercer) Pompeo
(*clearly the Mercer Family had some leakers....)

4 1/2 c. sugar
1 can (12 oz.) evaporated milk
1 stick butter
Dash of salt

Mix above ingredients and let boil for 6 minutes over slow heat, stirring constantly.

1 jar (7 oz.) marshmallow creme
1 large (7oz) Hershey's chocolate bar, broken into pieces
1 12 oz. pkg semi-sweet chocolate chips
1 tsp. vanilla
2 c. chopped nuts, optional

Remove boiling mixture from heat. Add remaining ingredients, stirring vigorously as you add.

Pour into buttered pans. Chill and cut. Makes 4+ pounds.

On the backside of the card, I thought that—if Gina had no recipe—we could print 3 photos, showing us making the fudge. Photos would be layed out “cattn-whompus”, even overlapping on the edges. I'd select two (of the six below) photos of us making the fudge and the third of Sherman. Text at the top would read:

Dorothy Mercer Pompeo was Mike's Mom and a deft fudge maker—who made fudge for all her children's teachers and friends, every year at Christmastime. While Grandma Pompeo made up the fudge herself, you can see below that it takes the entire Pompeo family two cousins—(b)(6)—to get the job done. Sherman just sits in the way, waiting for spills!

PLUS

If you need me to send the three photos that I think we should use in separated files, I can do that. Thanks, Susan

(U) Background on Bay of Pigs Invasion

Excerpts from 17 April 1961: The Bay of Pigs Invasion
by CIA Chief Historian [redacted]

(b)(3) CIAAct

(b)(6)

Preparation

(U) CIA's proxy force of some 1,500 Cuban paramilitary fighters landed at the Bay of Pigs on 17 April 1961. Within two days, however, the Cuban military had repelled the invaders and humiliated the Agency and the Kennedy Administration. The failed assault was CIA's biggest operational failure to date and seriously discredited it in Washington.

(U) After three years of guerrilla warfare, Fidel Castro entered Havana on 1 January 1959 at the head of a ragtag army and forced Dictator Fulgencio Batista to flee the country. In February 1960, Cuba signed an agreement to buy oil from the Soviet Union. When the US-owned refineries in the country refused to process the oil, Castro expropriated the firms, and the United States broke off diplomatic relations with the Cuban regime. Castro established increasingly close ties with the Soviet Union, and he and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev signed a variety of pacts that resulted in large deliveries of economic and military aid in 1960. Within a year, Castro proclaimed himself a communist, formally allied his country with the Soviet Union, and seized remaining American and foreign-owned assets.

(U) At the White House's behest, CIA soon began developing plans to oust Castro based on the successful 1954 Guatemalan operation (PBSUCCESS). The initial plan called for the infiltration of 30 Cuban exiles to form resistance cells. After receiving President Eisenhower's approval for Project JMARC on 17 March 1960, the new Deputy Director for Plans, Richard M. Bissell Jr., greatly expanded the project's scope to include an amphibious assault by 1,500 men supported by B-26 bombers purchased from the US Air Force and piloted by Cuban exiles. CIA's proprietary airlines would loan additional aircraft. Operating with a $13 million budget, CIA began training Cuban fighters in 1960 and 1961 in Guatemala and Nicaragua. The attack force was named Brigade 2506.

(U) Although President Eisenhower had followed the plan's progress, he never ordered that it be carried out. President-elect John F. Kennedy received a briefing on CIA's Cuba project in late November 1960 and an update during presidential transition briefings in January 1961. Yet as the invasion plans neared completion, several changes took place. CIA planners considered air strikes essential to destroy the Cuban air force and to provide close support for the invasion force. In mid-March, planners added a second air strike to the plan, to occur on the day Brigade 2506 landed. The site of the amphibious assault also changed from near Trinidad to the Bay of Pigs (ironically, Castro's favorite fishing ground), ninety miles south of Havana on Cuba's south coast. Near the Bay of Pigs lay the seaside town of Giron with an airstrip that could accommodate B-26, C-46, and C-54 aircraft. This change alone prompted wholesale revisions in the landing and supply timetables and in air and sea dispositions. D-Day was set for 17 April 1961.

(U) Any doubts that President Kennedy may have had in February or March were put to rest by Bissell, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara. As Bissell recalled in his memoirs, Reflections of a Cold Warrior, the "Fear of cancellation became-absorbing....It is possible that we in the Agency were not as frank with the President about deficiencies as we could have been. As an advocate for maintaining the President's authorization, I was very much afraid of what might happen if I said, 'Mr. President, this operation might as well be made open because the role of the United States certainly cannot be hidden.'" In reality, preparations for the invasion were a badly kept secret, considering the involvement of 1,500 Cuban exiles--recruited openly by CIA in Miami, where Cuban agents were plentiful--and Alabama National Guard pilots. Further, on 10 January 1961, the New York Times ran a front-page article revealing the location and function of one of the Cuban brigade's training camps in Guatemala.

The Invasion

(U) Any remaining element of surprise was completely lost on 15 April 1961 when six (reduced from 16) Cuban-piloted B-26 bombers struck two airfields, three military bases, and Antonio Maceo Airport in a failed attempt to destroy the Cuban air force. The air strikes immediately became a matter of concern for the United Nations; and, with the increased attention, President Kennedy canceled the second air strike planned for D-Day and denied last-minute CIA appeals to get US Navy air cover for the invasion. Finally, pre-landing teams at the Bay of Pigs sent in to mark suitable landing spots discovered rocky beaches and coral reefs and then exchanged gunfire in the pre-dawn hours with Cuban militiamen, fully alerting Castro.

(U//~~FOUO~~) When the landing began on 17 April, the Cubans responded in force, and Castro's air force dominated the invasion beaches, disabling or sinking two supply ships. This resulted in the loss of an entire battalion of fighters, critical munitions and supplies, and communications equipment. Once the rebels landed, they quickly found that the expected popular support of the Cuban people never materialized; instead, the small invading force faced a fully mobilized Cuban military. Brigade 2506's pleas for air and naval support were refused at the highest US government levels, although several US Navy aircraft operated over the beaches on 18 April, while American contract pilots dropped munitions and supplies on 19 April (four died as a result). By the afternoon of 19 April, the battle was over. Of 1,500 men in the invading force, 114 were killed, and over 1,100 were captured (the remainder never landed). The Brigade 2506 prisoners were repatriated in late 1962 in return for a ransom of $53 million in food and pharmaceutical products.

UNCLASSIFIED//~~FOUO~~

CIA and the Fallout

(U) The Bay of Pigs proved a major embarrassment for the new Kennedy administration and CIA. During the invasion, DCI Allen Dulles was in Puerto Rico to give a speech, and President Kennedy was at his country estate in Virginia. Both evidently assumed that their absence from Washington would enable them to deny any connection with the operation. Dulles was so completely cut off from events that he did not know the venture had failed until he returned to Washington. On 22 April, the president ordered General Maxwell Taylor to conduct an investigation of the fiasco and the practices and processes for paramilitary operations short of war. Attorney General Robert Kennedy, Admiral Arleigh Burke, and DCI Dulles rounded out the Taylor study group. The Taylor report, delivered to the president in mid-June but not circulated, criticized CIA conceptualization and planning, as well as the Joint Chiefs, who approved the operation after only casual consideration.

(U) Dulles ordered Inspector General Lyman Kirkpatrick to conduct CIA's internal review. Kirkpatrick delivered his 170-page report to the new DCI, John McCone, on 20 November 1961. The internal report was highly critical of the operations group that planned the assault, especially for neglecting to get appraisals of its prospects from other Agency offices with pertinent expertise. The Kirkpatrick Report proved highly controversial within the Agency itself, prompting a rebuttal from senior operations officers and an embargo on its dissemination.

(U) One explanation for the CIA's involvement in this debacle was given by the Agency's general counsel, Lawrence Houston, who cited the air of "cockiness" at CIA after its successes in the Iranian and Guatemalan ventures of 1953 and 1954. R. Jack Smith, a senior analytical manager at the time, stated that operations develop a momentum of their own, and once so many people have invested time and effort in a particular project, they become blind to its faults. Bissell pointed out that the three liaison colonels assigned by the JCS to CIA were privy to the scenario, helped plan the operation, and became emotionally committed to it. The JCS concluded from their report that the operation had a "fair" chance of success. In addition, little guidance was provided on what the brigade should do after landing, and no contingency plan was in place if the invasion went awry.

(U) Militarily, President Kennedy's cancellation of the planned second air strike allowed Cuban aircraft to shoot down two B-26 bombers of the invading force, sink two ships, and chase away the ship carrying the bulk of the exiles' ammunition. The planners also did not seek out data from the Navy or Marines about the presence of reefs at the landing site, which a U-2 had photographed. Lastly, with the exception of one US military officer, the planners of the operation had little or no experience in amphibious warfare.

(U) By November 1961, both Bissell and Dulles had left CIA at the behest of the president, and John McCone had been selected as the new DCI. Kennedy's disenchantment with CIA's handling of the Bay of Pigs operation prompted a significant reorientation of the Agency's anti-Castro activities and a cutback in its paramilitary operations taking place elsewhere in the world, most importantly in South Vietnam. When the Kennedy Administration decided to resume efforts to oust Castro in Operation MONGOOSE, it put the operation under Pentagon management--specifically, counterinsurgency expert Brig. Gen. Edward Lansdale--using CIA assets and infrastructure and with Robert Kennedy as informal overseer.

(U) Background on Bay of Pigs Invasion*Excerpts from 17 April 1961: The Bay of Pigs Invasionby CIA Chief Historian [redacted] (b)(3) CIAAct
(b)(6)Preparation

(U) CIA's proxy force of some 1,500 Cuban paramilitary fighters landed at the Bay of Pigs on 17 April 1961. Within two days, however, the Cuban military had repelled the invaders and humiliated the Agency and the Kennedy Administration. The failed assault was CIA's biggest operational failure to date and seriously discredited it in Washington.

(U) After three years of guerrilla warfare, Fidel Castro entered Havana on 1 January 1959 at the head of a ragtag army and forced Dictator Fulgencio Batista to flee the country. In February 1960, Cuba signed an agreement to buy oil from the Soviet Union. When the US-owned refineries in the country refused to process the oil, Castro expropriated the firms, and the United States broke off diplomatic relations with the Cuban regime. Castro established increasingly close ties with the Soviet Union, and he and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev signed a variety of pacts that resulted in large deliveries of economic and military aid in 1960. Within a year, Castro proclaimed himself a communist, formally allied his country with the Soviet Union, and seized remaining American and foreign-owned assets.

(U) At the White House's behest, CIA soon began developing plans to oust Castro based on the successful 1954 Guatemalan operation (PBSUCCESS). The initial plan called for the infiltration of 30 Cuban exiles to form resistance cells. After receiving President Eisenhower's approval for Project JMARC on 17 March 1960, the new Deputy Director for Plans, Richard M. Bissell Jr., greatly expanded the project's scope to include an amphibious assault by 1,500 men supported by B-26 bombers purchased from the US Air Force and piloted by Cuban exiles. CIA's proprietary airlines would loan additional aircraft. Operating with a $13 million budget, CIA began training Cuban fighters in 1960 and 1961 in Guatemala and Nicaragua. The attack force was named Brigade 2506.

(U) Although President Eisenhower had followed the plan's progress, he never ordered that it be carried out. President-elect John F. Kennedy received a briefing on CIA's Cuba project in late November 1960 and an update during presidential transition briefings in January 1961. Yet as the invasion plans neared completion, several changes took place. CIA planners considered air strikes essential to destroy the Cuban air force and to provide close support for the invasion force. In mid-March, planners added a second air strike to the plan, to occur on the day Brigade 2506 landed. The site of the amphibious assault also changed from near Trinidad to the Bay of Pigs (ironically, Castro's favorite fishing ground), ninety miles south of Havana on Cuba's south coast. Near the Bay of Pigs lay the seaside town of Giron with an airstrip that could accommodate B-26, C-46, and C-54 aircraft. This change alone prompted wholesale revisions in the landing and supply timetables and in air and sea dispositions. D-Day was set for 17 April 1961.

(U) Any doubts that President Kennedy may have had in February or March were put to rest by Bissell, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara. As Bissell recalled in his memoirs, Reflections of a Cold Warrior, the "Fear of cancellation became-absorbing....It is possible that we in the Agency were not as frank with the President about deficiencies as we could have been. As an advocate for maintaining the President's authorization, I was very much afraid of what might happen if I said, 'Mr. President, this operation might as well be made open because the role of the United States certainly cannot be hidden.'" In reality, preparations for the invasion were a badly kept secret, considering the involvement of 1,500 Cuban exiles--recruited openly by CIA in Miami, where Cuban agents were plentiful--and Alabama National Guard pilots. Further, on 10 January 1961, the New York Times ran a front-page article revealing the location and function of one of the Cuban brigade's training camps in Guatemala.

The Invasion

(U) Any remaining element of surprise was completely lost on 15 April 1961 when six (reduced from 16) Cuban-piloted B-26 bombers struck two airfields, three military bases, and Antonio Maceo Airport in a failed attempt to destroy the Cuban air force. The air strikes immediately became a matter of concern for the United Nations; and, with the increased attention, President Kennedy canceled the second air strike planned for D-Day and denied last-minute CIA appeals to get US Navy air cover for the invasion. Finally, pre-landing teams at the Bay of Pigs sent in to mark suitable landing spots discovered rocky beaches and coral reefs and then exchanged gunfire in the pre-dawn hours with Cuban militiamen, fully alerting Castro.

(U//~~FOUO~~) When the landing began on 17 April, the Cubans responded in force, and Castro's air force dominated the invasion beaches, disabling or sinking two supply ships. This resulted in the loss of an entire battalion of fighters, critical munitions and supplies, and communications equipment. Once the rebels landed, they quickly found that the expected popular support of the Cuban people never materialized; instead, the small invading force faced a fully mobilized Cuban military. Brigade 2506's pleas for air and naval support were refused at the highest US government levels, although several US Navy aircraft operated over the beaches on 18 April, while American contract pilots dropped munitions and supplies on 19 April (four died as a result). By the afternoon of 19 April, the battle was over. Of 1,500 men in the invading force, 114 were killed, and over 1,100 were captured (the remainder never landed). The Brigade 2506 prisoners were repatriated in late 1962 in return for a ransom of $53 million in food and pharmaceutical products.

CIA and the Fallout

(U) The Bay of Pigs proved a major embarrassment for the new Kennedy administration and CIA. During the invasion, DCI Allen Dulles was in Puerto Rico to give a speech, and President Kennedy was at his country estate in Virginia. Both evidently assumed that their absence from Washington would enable them to deny any connection with the operation. Dulles was so completely cut off from events that he did not know the venture had failed until he returned to Washington. On 22 April, the president ordered General Maxwell Taylor to conduct an investigation of the fiasco and the practices and processes for paramilitary operations short of war. Attorney General Robert Kennedy, Admiral Arleigh Burke, and DCI Dulles rounded out the Taylor study group. The Taylor report, delivered to the president in mid-June but not circulated, criticized CIA conceptualization and planning, as well as the Joint Chiefs, who approved the operation after only casual consideration.

(U) Dulles ordered Inspector General Lyman Kirkpatrick to conduct CIA's internal review. Kirkpatrick delivered his 170-page report to the new DCI, John McCone, on 20 November 1961. The internal report was highly critical of the operations group that planned the assault, especially for neglecting to get appraisals of its prospects from other Agency offices with pertinent expertise. The Kirkpatrick Report proved highly controversial within the Agency itself, prompting a rebuttal from senior operations officers and an embargo on its dissemination.

(U) One explanation for the CIA's involvement in this debacle was given by the Agency's general counsel, Lawrence Houston, who cited the air of "cockiness" at CIA after its successes in the Iranian and Guatemalan ventures of 1953 and 1954. R. Jack Smith, a senior analytical manager at the time, stated that operations develop a momentum of their own, and once so many people have invested time and effort in a particular project, they become blind to its faults. Bissell pointed out that the three liaison colonels assigned by the JCS to CIA were privy to the scenario, helped plan the operation, and became emotionally committed to it. The JCS concluded from their report that the operation had a "fair" chance of success. In addition, little guidance was provided on what the brigade should do after landing, and no contingency plan was in place if the invasion went awry.

(U) Militarily, President Kennedy's cancellation of the planned second air strike allowed Cuban aircraft to shoot down two B-26 bombers of the invading force, sink two ships, and chase away the ship carrying the bulk of the exiles' ammunition. The planners also did not seek out data from the Navy or Marines about the presence of reefs at the landing site, which a U-2 had photographed. Lastly, with the exception of one US military officer, the planners of the operation had little or no experience in amphibious warfare.

(U) By November 1961, both Bissell and Dulles had left CIA at the behest of the president, and John McCone had been selected as the new DCI. Kennedy's disenchantment with CIA's handling of the Bay of Pigs operation prompted a significant reorientation of the Agency's anti-Castro activities and a cutback in its paramilitary operations taking place elsewhere in the world, most importantly in South Vietnam. When the Kennedy Administration decided to resume efforts to oust Castro in Operation MONGOOSE, it put the operation under Pentagon management--specifically, counterinsurgency expert Brig. Gen. Edward Lansdale--using CIA assets and infrastructure and with Robert Kennedy as informal overseer.

1. Please accept both invitation to speak and graciously accept award.
2. Place on my schedule and on Susan's schedule. We will build out NYC visit around this lunch.

I received this invite from a good friend -- (b)(6) Please make sure that is noted in the outlook entry.

April 19, 2017

Mike Pompeo
Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Office of Public Affairs
Washington, DC 20505

Dear Mr. Pompeo:

In recognition of your service to our nation, we would be honored if you would be the Keynote Speaker and recipient of our National Leadership Award at our Annual Luncheon on Friday, November 3, 2017 at the New York Hilton Midtown in New York. We hope you will join us to celebrate our 30th year of service to America.

Our Annual Luncheon will have approximately 1,300 guests. The attendees are business executives, members of law enforcement and government officials. Some of our previous recipients are President William Clinton, Vice President Richard Cheney, Secretaries of State Henry Kissinger, Supreme Court Justice Sonia Sotomayor, Paul Gigot, Editor, Wall Street Journal and former CIA Director John O. Brennan to mention a few.

The Federal Law Enforcement Foundation, founded in 1988, provides financial support to the law enforcement community in time of tragedy. The Foundation is active in 200 communities and 12 countries. We also fund inner city programs for children, drug reduction initiatives, scholarship programs, and executive education for both members of law enforcement and the private sector. We are an IRS qualified 501(c)(3) charity and operate with zero overhead.

Respectfully, we request a response on or before Friday, June 23, 2017. On behalf of the entire Board, I thank you.

With kindest regards.

Very truly yours,

(b)(6)

Michael Pompeo

The law school applicant identified below is requesting that you provide a letter of recommendation, and has waived the right to view your letter. If you prefer to submit your letter by mail, you must print and include the Letter of Recommendation (LOR) Form attached to this email with your signed letter of recommendation, in order for LSAC to match your letter to the applicant's file. The mailing address is located at the top of LOR Form.

To submit your letter electronically, you must have a password-protected LSAC Applicant References account. Please use this link to login or create an account. When you create your account, you will be asked for identifying information that will be used strictly to maintain the confidentiality and security of the process should you forget your login information. If you get an error message that your username is in use, please call LSAC Technical Support at 215-968-1393, or click the "Forgot your username or password" link to retrieve your login credentials. Letters submitted electronically must be in one of the following formats: DOC, HTM, HTML, TXT, WP, WPD, RTF, WPS, WPT, DOCX, PDF. You may use the electronic certification instead of a signature. Step-by-step instructions will display after you start the upload process.

The purpose for which this confidential letter of recommendation is being obtained is admission to a Credential Assembly Service-participating law school. It will be received and maintained in confidence. If you are admitted and enroll-and if your law school retains letters of recommendation once the admission process is concluded-you may inspect this letter at that school unless you have voluntarily waived this right by electronically signing the following statement:

"I understand that letters of recommendation concerning me will be sent to the Credential Assembly Service-participating law schools to which I apply, and I hereby expressly and voluntarily waive any and all access rights I might have to such letters under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, any state law, or any other laws, regulations, or policies." (Law School Admission Council will not process this form if this statement has been modified or altered in any way.)

This applicant has electronically waived his/her right as noted above.

Letter description: for all law schools

RECOMMENDER: The person whose name appears above is applying to one or more Credential Assembly Service-participating law schools. This applicant has requested a letter of recommendation from you, and it would be very helpful if you submit your signed letter as soon as possible. Law schools value your candid appraisal of the applicant's ability, academic and otherwise, to study law, including qualities of mind and character, dedication, responsibility, and readiness for the rigors of advanced academic study. Evidence of overcoming adversity, rising to challenges, and achieving beyond expectations are helpful in assessing candidates for admission. You may wish to include how well you know the candidate and in what capacity, your assessment of the relative strength of the candidate within the reference group in which she or he is being compared, and how the candidate will add to the diversity of the law school

To submit your letter by postal mail, you must include this form with your signed letter in order for LSAC to match the letter to the applicant's file. Letters received without this completed form or without your signature will be returned to you. Do not send supporting materials (e.g., résumés) with your letter. They will be returned to you. Please complete or correct the lower portion of this form and mail the form and your signed recommendation letter, preferably on letterhead, in a sealed envelope directly to LSAC at the address shown above. If the applicant provides you with an envelope addressed to LSAC and bearing his or her return address, please place your signature across the bottom portion of the envelope flap after sealing. Please do not staple your letter to this form.

To submit your letter electronically, access your Applicant Reference account (or create an account if you don't have one) and enter the following ID number: (Website address: <https://ApplicantReferences.LSAC.org>)

This one is a bit different.

1. Print on letterhead for my signature.
2. Then follow the instructions on the email from LSAC that I will send to you in just a few minutes (I think it requires you to scan it in; go on line and then . . . follow instructions).

Thx.
