Sarah,
Hi. I've been asked to pose this question to you as we are doing some reporting in several Midwest states on this issue.

Does Iowa have any kind of estimate for COVID cases that are potentially due to the Sturgis Motorcycle Rally which ended Aug. 15?

Thank you for considering,
David

Hi. I've been asked to pose this question to you as we are doing some reporting in several Midwest states on this issue.

Does Iowa have any kind of estimate for COVID cases that are potentially due to the Sturgis Motorcycle Rally which ended Aug. 15?

Thank you for considering,
David

STAT STATE & TERRITORY ALLIANCE FOR TESTING | The ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION

Good afternoon STAT members,
Thank you for joining this week's STAT network meetings.

In this week's All States Testing call, we discussed lessons learned from recent major events and planning strategies that states across the country can use to mitigate risk during events. Dr. Tim Southern (South Dakota) and Suzanne Trotter (Virginia) discussed their recent experience preparing for the Sturgis Motorcycle Rally and distributing at-home test kits at Floyd Fest, respectively.

In our K-12 Action Network call, Heather Schwartz from RAND presented the results and implications of the "Will Students Come Back?" study and answered questions from state leaders. This is the second survey of parents' concerns about returning to in-person learning. The original report from earlier this year can be accessed here.

This week's Vaccine Action Network call was driven, in part, by worrying results from Israel about waning vaccine efficacy over time and the necessity of third doses and boosters. Our discussion was led off by Kody Kinsley (North Carolina), Dr. Coleman Cutchins (Alaska), and Heidi Clark (Illinois) who spoke of their states' current planning and challenges for vaccine third-doses. We were also joined by Jennifer Layden from the CDC who provided insight and answered questions about recent and upcoming federal guidance on the boosters. Mr. Kinsley has provided additional data on North Carolina's forecasting and vaccine efforts.

Network Request for Support: We received a request from a network member who is seeking information from any state that has experience with a centralized, state-wide electronic parental consent form for immunizations. If any of our members have experience with such a form (COVID-19 related or otherwise) please reach out to Ryan at (c-rflynn@rockfound.org).

Thank you,

STAT STATE & TERRITORY ALLIANCE FOR TESTING

The ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION

Good afternoon STAT members,

Thank you all again for your continued dedication to the STAT network, especially during this busy period of school reopening and the myriad challenges of the Delta variant. Starting next we will resume the weekly sessions of the K-12 Reopening Action Network with a discussion of the RAND "Will They Come Back" survey of parents' concerns about the return to in-person learning this Fall. The call will feature takeaways from several states, including Utah and Washington. We encourage states to come with questions as we will be joined by Heather Schwartz from RAND.

The survey found that even with rising Covid-19 cases from the Delta variant, 9 out of 10 parents plan to send their child to school for in-person learning this fall. This survey shows that while parents want to send their children to in-person instruction, 1 in 3 parents do not feel informed on their school's Covid-19 safety measures and 6 in 10 parents said they want more information about the specific safety measures in their schools. Read the full report "Will They Come Back" here.

Additionally, the All States Testing call will feature lessons learned from states who utilized testing at mass events, such as music festivals, etc. The Vaccine Action Network will feature CDC experts and a round-robin discussion with states on boosters and revaccination programs.

To help us ensure that the network is providing maximum value to you, please keep us informed of how STAT has helped drive action and decision-making for you, or areas where you need help. Please reach out to Ryan (c-rflynn@rockfound.org) or any of the Rockefeller STAT team members with your suggestions, ideas, and requests.

Thank you,

ref: de Gier B, Andeweg S, Joosten R, et al. Vaccine effectiveness against SARS-CoV-2 transmission and infections among household and other close contacts of confirmed cases, the Netherlands, February to May 2021. Euro Surveill. 2021; 26(31): pii=2100640; https://doi.org/10.2807/1560-7917.ES.2021.26.31.2100640.

Abstract

Several studies report high effectiveness of COVID-19 vaccines against SARS-CoV-2 infection and severe disease; however, an important knowledge gap is the vaccine effectiveness against transmission (VET). We present estimates of the VET to household and other close contacts in the Netherlands, from February to May 2021, using contact monitoring data. The secondary attack rate among household contacts was lower for fully vaccinated than unvaccinated index cases (11% vs 31%), with an adjusted VET of 71% (95% confidence interval: 63-77).

An important question when making prognoses of the pandemic in the near future and of the need on non-pharmaceutical control measures is to what extent the vaccines reduce the likelihood of transmission from infected vaccinees. Based on routine contact monitoring data, we here estimate the vaccine effectiveness against transmission (VET) and the vaccine effectiveness against infection (VE) among household and other close contacts of confirmed cases of severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2) infection in the Netherlands, between 1 Feb and 27 May 2021. The alpha variant (phylogenetic assignment of named global outbreak (Pango) lineage designation B.1.1.7) was the dominant variant in the area at that time.

Discussion

We estimated a VET of 71% among household contacts of fully vaccinated index cases. Harris et al. found a VET of 40-50% for unvaccinated households contacts [5]. That study mostly included partly vaccinated index cases. A study among household contacts of healthcare workers by Shah et al. found a 30% (after the 1st dose) and 64% (after the 2nd dose) reduction in the risk of confirmed SARS-CoV-2 infection among household members of vaccinated healthcare workers; however, these healthcare workers were not confirmed as index cases [6].

Martinez-Baz et al. recently estimated VE among 20 961 close contacts of confirmed cases in Spain [7]. In that study, the VE for 2 doses of Comirnaty was 65% (95% CI: 56 to 73) against infection, which is in agreement with our finding of 65% VE for this vaccine. These estimates are lower than VE from other observational post-marketing studies. Possibly, the VE against infection is lower when there is high and prolonged exposure to SARS-CoV-2, which is likely for household contacts of confirmed cases [8]. Of note, Martinez-Baz et al. showed an aVE for Comirnaty of 94% (95% CI: 60 to 99) against hospitalisation among close contacts of confirmed cases.

As the alpha variant of SARS-CoV-2 dominated during the study period, an important question is to what extent these VET and VE estimates hold in the context of the delta variant (Pango lineage designation B.1.617.2) which is now dominant in the Netherlands. Also, further research is needed to determine whether the observed differences between the different vaccines are due to the small sample size or have real public health relevance. We will prospectively monitor both VET and VE among household contacts over the next months to address these questions.

Conclusion

Our study showed that the COVID-19 vaccines not only protect the vaccinee against SARS-CoV-2 infection, but also offer protection against transmission to close contacts after completing the full schedule. This finding underscores the importance of full vaccination of close contacts of vulnerable persons.

[2] Sturgis motorcycle rally

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Date: Sat 7 Aug 2021
Source: NY Times [abridged, edited] https://www.nytimes.com/2021/08/06/us/politics/sturgis-motorcycle-rally-covid.html

Although most large events shut down last summer [2020] because of the coronavirus pandemic, the Sturgis Motorcycle Rally forged ahead, panicking health experts as nearly a half million motorcycle enthusiasts descended on the Black Hills of South Dakota. This year's [2021] rally, which began on Friday [6 Aug 2021], is expected to draw an even larger crowd, just as the infectious delta variant is producing more new virus cases nationwide than this time last year [2020]. What path the virus will take through Sturgis remains to be seen.

Transmission is more difficult outdoors, vaccines greatly reduce the risk of serious illness, and South Dakota has the fewest new virus cases per capita in the United States. At the same time, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention considers delta as contagious as chickenpox, and people are traveling from across the country -- several southern states are in their worst outbreaks of the pandemic -- to a region with a relatively low vaccination rate.

Hundreds of new cases were linked to last year's [2020] rally, but because infected bikers returned to their home states, it made contact tracing difficult and obscured the true tally. Sturgis officials emphasized that this year's [2021] rally would offer coronavirus tests, free masks, and hand sanitizer stations. For the first time, attendees will be allowed to carry alcoholic drinks outside without fear of being fined, in an effort to limit crowds inside bars. Those precautions are being accompanied with warnings. "We are encouraging people who are in a high-risk category, whether it be age or because of comorbidities, that they come next year [2022]," Dan Ainslie, Sturgis's city manager, said.

On Friday [6 Aug 2021], the steady roar of engines signaled the arrival of thousands of bikers. By midmorning, Main Street was jammed with attendees, walking shoulder to shoulder on sidewalks or congregated near dozens of bikes parked outside of businesses. A parade kicked off the 10-day rally, in its 81st year, with the Budweiser Clydesdale horses leading the way.

Other large outdoor events have returned this summer, in part because of the availability of vaccines. Attendees at the recent Lollapalooza music festival, which packed people into downtown Chicago, had to either provide proof of vaccination or show a negative coronavirus test from the previous 72 hours. The motorcycle rally in Sturgis will not have a similar screening process. Vaccines will be made available at the event, including the one-dose Johnson & Johnson shot, but it takes time for them to strengthen immune systems.

Meade County, which includes Sturgis, has a 37% vaccination rate -- significantly lower than the half of Americans who are fully vaccinated -- and the 6 counties that border it have even lower vaccination rates. "For us, all 100% of the cases have been unvaccinated people," Dr Kurra said of the recent surge. "We want to make sure people have access to testing so that if there's an outbreak, we can catch it early."

About a week before the rally kicked off, bikers from across the country began packing into hotels in Rapid City, said Steven Allender, the city's mayor. Mr Allender said he had been in touch with local health officials about how best to prepare for the influx of visitors, but his office had stopped short of trying to impose any restrictions on the event. "The government tried to help save lives, but it failed because of the political climate and debate" over the use of masks, he said. "I would say today there is no stopping it, that communities across the state have taken an every-man-for-themselves stance."

Late last year [2020], Mr Allender enacted a mask mandate in all city buildings and urged the city council to pass a broader ordinance requiring masks, a measure that ultimately failed. South Dakota was among several states that did not put in place a lockdown or a mandatory mask requirement during the height of the pandemic.

[The country is in better shape to handle SARS CoV-2 infections this year [2021] than last year [2020] when the rally took place, but the potential for a superspreader event is still very high, especially with the low rate of vaccination in Meade County. As crowds go into bars, the chance of such an event increases significantly. - Mod.LK]

[3] Delta variant: urban/rural disparity
Date: Fri 6 Aug 2021
Source: Nature [abridged, edited] https://www.nature.com/articles/d41586-021-02146-w

As the delta variant of SARS-CoV-2 sweeps across Asia, researchers are increasingly concerned about COVID-19 spreading beyond urban centres to rural regions that were largely spared in earlier waves of the pandemic and have less access to testing, health care, and vaccines.

"If the variants of concern, in particular delta, reach far-flung areas, it will really challenge the health care system," says Cynthia Saloma, a molecular biologist at the University of the Philippines Diliman in Quezon City, who heads the Philippine Genome Center. Saloma says so far only a few cases of delta have been sequenced in the Philippines, but the country is preparing for the worst. "The picture that is emerging in our neighbouring countries is really scary. We are all concerned."

Research from India now suggests that during the nation's brutal 2nd wave earlier this year [2021], the virus achieved much greater spread, beyond the urban sprawl, than during the 1st wave of 2020. This year's [2021] surge was largely driven by the delta variant, which first came to scientists' attention in India in December [2020]. "The variant is so much more transmissible, that health systems get overwhelmed with no time to prepare," says Ramanan Laxminarayan, an epidemiologist at Princeton University, New Jersey, who is based in New Delhi. "The 2nd wave has been absolutely devastating in rural India."

Rural impact in India

From Indonesia and Malaysia to Thailand and Bangladesh, countries across Asia have detected delta in their communities, and many are experiencing their largest outbreaks yet. In Indonesia, where confirmed cases hit 50 000 per day in mid-July [2021], daily deaths have now surpassed 1700. But vaccination rates remain perilously low in many of these nations, leaving them highly vulnerable.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Researchers in India are only beginning to grasp the full scale of their 2nd wave, which hit a peak of 391 000 recorded cases a day in early May [2021], but this data could be crucial for understanding the risk the variant poses to neighbouring nations.

In a nationwide survey of about 28 000 people (2/3 of whom were unvaccinated and had therefore acquired immunity from infection) in June and July this year [2021], researchers found that 68% had SARS-CoV-2 antibodies in their blood. This represented a huge increase from the 21% with antibodies, recorded in a similar survey in December 2020 to January 2021, prior to the 2nd wave.

Although the previous survey found higher prevalence in urban areas, the latest estimates saw little difference between the numbers in urban and rural regions, which are home to 65% of India's population. This suggests that infections "have now penetrated very well in rural areas," says Manoj Murhekar, director of the country's National Institute of Epidemiology in Chennai, which co-led the June [2021] survey.

The death toll in India has been immense and is probably much higher than official counts (see 'COVID's true toll in India?'). Studies of excess mortality suggest that up to 4.9 million people could have died in India since the pandemic began [1,2], much higher than 425 000, the official number of recorded deaths due to COVID-19. Half of these deaths probably occurred in just 3 months over the 2nd wave, say researchers.

Border regions

Researchers now fear that a similar scenario could engulf many low-income nations -- in Asia and other regions, such as Africa -- that also have large unvaccinated populations in rural regions with limited access to health care.

In Bangladesh, the 1st cases of delta were identified in travellers from India in Dhaka and rural western districts in late April [2021], and since then it has rapidly overtaken other variants. "It is like everything else has just disappeared," says Senjuti Saha, a molecular geneticist at the Child Health Research Foundation in Dhaka. Daily case numbers in Bangladesh have now hit an average of around 14 000, with daily deaths at a high of more than 230. "The numbers are bonkers," says Saha.

Most surprising to her has been the current outbreak's persistence in rural regions. "This totally new population is getting affected, who have been protected for whatever reason all this time," she says. Previous outbreaks in Bangladesh were largely restricted to cities such as Dhaka and Chittagong, despite people frequently travelling from cities of work to their families in rural regions, says Saha. This could be due to the lower population density outside cities and the outdoor lifestyle in those places, she speculates. But in this latest surge, rural regions appear to be no barrier to delta.

Lack of access to healthcare

The trend will make the pandemic much harder to control in Bangladesh, where health care and testing facilities are concentrated in large cities, says Saha.

In Indonesia, which is experiencing a massive 2nd wave, researchers are worried about the spread of COVID-19 to remote parts of the nation. Bimandra Djaafara, an infectious diseases epidemiologist at Imperial College London who has modelled the pandemic in Indonesia, worries about a "lack of access to healthcare facilities and oxygen, especially in rural areas and areas outside Java with poorer facilities".

Henry Surendra, an epidemiologist at the Eijkman-Oxford Clinical Research Unit in Jakarta, is concerned about the risk of death in children in rural regions of Indonesia. In a study [3] last year [2020], he found that about 10% of young children hospitalized for COVID-19 in Jakarta died of the disease. But even before the pandemic, child-mortality rates were higher in rural areas because of malnutrition and diseases such as malaria and tuberculosis. Children who already had other health problems could be at even higher risk of death from COVID-19, he says.

Charting the spread

Delta has been detected in almost every province in Indonesia and now makes up some 80% of all sequenced samples (see 'Delta's rise in Indonesia'). However, with limited genomic sequencing -- especially in rural areas -- tracking its spread has been challenging, says Safarina Malik, a molecular biologist at the Eijkman Institute for Molecular Biology in Jakarta.

The large majority of Indonesia's 3900 fully sequenced genomes -- a tiny fraction of the confirmed cases -- are from Jakarta and the surrounding island of Java, with only one sample each from the northeastern provinces of Maluku Utara and Papua Barat. Sending samples to Java for sequencing can be tricky, says Malik, as airlines sometimes refuse to carry live virus.

Other nations have even more limited sequencing. In Bangladesh, for example, some 2000 samples have been sequenced. Delta accounted for 89% of the 203 samples collected since June [2021], says Marufur Rahman, a molecular biologist and physician at the Center for Medical Biotechnology in Dhaka. Delta has been isolated in 43 of 64 districts but has likely extended beyond these regions, as samples are not collected from all districts, says Rahman.

The delta variant isn't the only reason for the pandemic's spread beyond urban centres, say researchers. Djaafara found that strict travel restrictions in Indonesia during Ramadan and Eid in 2020 helped to contain the spread of COVID-19 to rural parts of Java [4]. But cases were higher, and movement was much less restricted during this year's Eid holidays in July [2021], he says. In Bangladesh, too, a huge number of people this year [2021] travelled for the Eid holidays despite restrictions, says Rahman.

Vaccine gap

In Bangladesh, close to 6% of the population has received at least one dose of vaccine. In the Philippines, that figure is 11%. Indonesia has vaccinated some 17%, but most doses have gone to the more populated islands of Java and Bali, and getting doses to the nation's thousands of smaller islands will be logistically difficult, say researchers.

Malaysia, where there are more than 16 000 new cases of COVID-19 each day, is in a slightly better position. Yoke-Fun Chan, a virologist at the University of Malaya in Kuala Lumpur, says the country is "aggressively vaccinating": so far, 45% of its population is partially or fully vaccinated. "Rather than looking for the virus, now we are looking for solutions to stop the virus," she says.

Although India serves as a warning to nations with large rural and remote populations, cities remain at risk across the developing world, too. In Indonesia, "the concern is not only that it could reach rural areas, but also what is happening in the big cities", says Malik.

In May [2021], Thailand detected its 1st cases of the delta variant in Bangkok. Numbers have since surged to new heights, spilling to cities nationwide. Part of the reason Thailand was able to maintain relatively low case numbers in previous waves of the pandemic is "because most of the outbreaks were not in Bangkok," says Surakameth Mahasirimongkol, director of the departments of medical life sciences and genomic medicine at Thailand's Ministry of Public Health. But delta has now arrived in the heart of the capital and is proving very difficult to contain, he says.

https://www.dailyherald.com/news/20210807/e-coli-outbreak-possibly-linked-to-portillos-in-glendale-heights-warn-health-officials

A recent outbreak of _Escherichia coli_ [infection] may be linked to a Portillo's in Glendale Heights, the Illinois Department of Public Health said Friday [6 Aug 2021]. Four cases of a toxin producing the bacteria and one case of a resultant blood syndrome stemmed from customers eating at the Portillo's at 235 E North Ave on 16 and 17 Jul [2021], IDPH said in a health alert.

A Portillo's spokeswoman said the company was taking the matter seriously and is cooperating with health authorities. "The health and safety of our team members and guests is our top priority," Sara Wirth said in a statement. "Across Portillo's, we have extensive sanitary and food handling guidelines in place, including daily deep cleanings of all restaurants. ... Once notified (of the outbreak), we moved quickly and began assisting with the investigation and revisiting our food safety best practices with our team members to mitigate potential future risk."

[Given the description, the culprit is likely to be a Shiga-toxin-producing enterohemorrhagic _E. coli_, either the prototypical serotype O157:H7 or another, and the "blood syndrome" is likely hemolytic- uremic syndrome. In Chicago, Portillo's is well known for their sliced beef sandwiches and Chicago-style hotdogs, both Chicago-style "street food", but the chain also serves hamburgers and salads, both more likely vehicles for transmission of this zoonotic infection.

The following has been extracted from Lutwick LI. Enterohemorrhagic _E. coli_ infections. In: Confronting emerging zoonoses: The One Health paradigm. Yamada A, Kahn LH, Kaplan B, et al. (editors). Tokyo, Japan: Springer:

"Risk factors for the subsequent development of HUS after EHEC include children less than 10 years of age, elevated white blood cell counts, persistent low platelet counts without reversal, and the use of either antimicrobial agents or antimotility agents during the diarrhea stage before or after bloody diarrhea develops. Since fever is generally not part of the presentation but significant abdominal pain is, patients with diarrhea, significant abdominal pain, and no fever should be considered to have EHEC infection, and antimicrobial or antimotility agents should be avoided. Additionally, certain strains -- for example, the so-called clade 8 and the chimeric organism _E. coli_ O104:H4 -- can be associated with a higher risk of HUS.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

"HUS itself is a thrombotic illness primarily caused by the effects of the EHEC-produced Shiga toxin acting on the vascular endometrium of organs where the toxin's receptors are expressed, particularly the kidney and brain. The syndrome consists of the combination of prominent low platelet counts (thrombocytopenia), intravascular red blood cell destruction (hemolysis), and diminished kidney function that can require hemodialysis. Neurological involvement occurs mostly in those who develop renal failure, and the central nervous system involvement portends much higher mortality. Indeed, most of the acute mortality relates to neurological disease. Most patients will recover, but some, perhaps 10%, remain with renal failure and require chronic hemodialysis." - Mod.LL

The wheat disease septoria blotch was discovered to be resistant to Group 11 fungicides (strobilurins) in southern South Australia. It was a chance discovery from a trial aimed at another pathogen. Thanks to this, the mutation was found before growers noticed fungicide failures in the paddock, which gives a time advantage to stay on top of it. When selection pressure is high, strobilurin resistance can spread very quickly.

Genetic tests have confirmed the presence of mutation G143A which is associated with resistance to all Group 11 fungicides. No other fungicide groups are affected by this mutation. The timeliness of the discovery has highlighted the importance of disease monitoring. Growers are advised to adopt resistance management that includes fungicides with different modes of action and avoids strobilurins, keeping in mind that not all demethylase inhibitor fungicides (DMI, Group 3) are completely effective any more either.

[Septoria leaf blotch of cereals is caused by fungi in the septoria species complex, which includes _Zymoseptoria tritici_ (previously _Septoria tritici_), _Mycosphaerella graminicola_ and _Phaeosphaeria nodorum_ (previously _Stagonospora nodorum_). They affect mainly wheat, but also barley, oats, occasionally rye, as well as some grass species. Symptoms on wheat and barley are very similar, they may occur at any time during the growth cycle and on any portion of the plant. They include blotches on both leaves and glumes which reduce the photosynthetic ability of the host. Disease development is favoured by humid conditions. Up to 50 percent yield losses have been reported on susceptible varieties.

Spores can be spread by infected plant material, wind, water (rain splash), and mechanical means. The pathogens can overwinter on crop debris and on autumn sown crops or volunteers. Disease management includes fungicide treatments aimed at preventing the disease from becoming established on the upper 3 leaves of the crop canopy (where it would affect the ears most), removal of inoculum sources, and use of resistant varieties. After the cereal rusts, septoria is considered the most important challenge to plant breeders (see ProMED post http://promedmail.org/post/20120831.1274190) and a threat to food security worldwide.

Pathogen strains with high levels of resistance to many fungicides are emerging in different regions (e.g. ProMED posts http://promedmail.org/post/20160516.4225677 and http://promedmail.org/post/20161031.4598540). Furthermore, the number of fungicides available for septoria control has been decreasing due to withdrawal of products for environmental reasons (e.g. in Europe, ProMED post http://promedmail.org/post/20210223.8207530). In addition to fungicide resistant pathogen strains, host resistance breaking strains are being observed in recent years (e.g. ProMED posts http://promedmail.org/post/20210721.8533591 and http://promedmail.org/post/20190218.6322156).

In the region, strobilurin resistant septoria blotch has been reported previously in New Zealand (ProMED post http://promedmail.org/post/20140417.2410219). In Australia, DMI resistant septoria was reported as the 1st wheat pathogen developing fungicide resistance on that continent (ProMED-mail post http://promedmail.org/post/20140313.2329774).

Strobilurins are strongly antifungal agents produced by fungi. Being derived from natural products, they are considered environmentally safe and are used against most major fungal crop diseases. Therefore, pathogen resistance is of major concern to many primary industries worldwide. Demethylase inhibitors (DMI; also called azole or sterol biosynthesis inhibiting fungicides) are the largest class of fungicides. They were introduced in the 1970s and new products continue to be developed. Rotating or mixing chemical classes of fungicides is used to extend the useful life of the compounds.

South Korea's agriculture ministry said on Sunday [8 Aug 2021] that it has confirmed a case of African swine fever (ASF), the first one of the highly contagious and deadly animal disease in about 3 months. According to the Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs, pigs at a farm in Gangwon Province were infected with the deadly animal disease, prompting the authorities to cull animals there.

The country also issued a special 48-hour travel ban on livestock-related facilities in Gangwon Province and Gyeonggi Province. Prime minister Kim Boo-kyum called on health authorities to make utmost efforts to swiftly contain the spread of the disease.

In 2019, ASF swept through pig farms in northern regions covering Gyeonggi and Gangwon provinces, prompting authorities to cull about 400 000 pigs nationwide as part of preventive measures. A total of 14 farms were infected.

Although no new ASF cases had been reported from local farms for the past 3 months, the virus had prevailed among wild boar, which can potentially infect domestic pigs through contact.

ASF does not affect humans but is deadly to pigs. There is currently no vaccine or cure for the disease.

[Since the Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs (MAFRA) confirmed the 1st ASF outbreak in South Korea, on 17 Sep 2019 and as of 5 Aug 2021, ASF was detected in 17 domestic pig farms: Gyeonggi Province (9), Incheon City (5), Gangwon Province (3).

Since 9 Oct 2019 as of 2 Aug 2021, a total of 1505 ASFV infected wild boar were confirmed in 2 of South Korea's provinces, Gyeonggi and Gangwon. The cases in Gangwon-do were found in the following counties: Paju (100), Yeoncheon (416), Pocheon (93), Gapyeong (31). The cases in Gangwon-do were found in the following counties: Cheorwon (36), Hwacheon (422), Chuncheon (173), Yanggu (76), Goseong (7), Inje (103), Yeongwol (14), Yangyang (19), Gangneung (3), Hongcheon (9), and Pyeongchang (3) (http://www.koreapork.or.kr/board/view1?Ncode=issue&number=622, in Korean].

According to MAFRA, as young wild boar born in spring (March to May) have recently started their activities, detection of ASF positive wild boars is currently increasing within the wide-area fences

Alaska Health and Social Services announced via Facebook:

Please be aware that a suspected outbreak of foodborne illness is being investigated in Homer. If anyone is experiencing foodborne illness symptoms (gastrointestinal illness) and has been in the Homer area in the past week, they are encouraged to fill out a DHSS foodborne illness survey via this link: https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/Q2LNKB2.

More than 70 employees working at South Peninsula Hospital have been identified with gastrointestinal illness to date; all ill persons consumed food that had been brought into the hospital for employee meals from several local food establishments. No patients or hospital residents consumed the food. At this time, the source of the outbreak is unknown. The outbreak is being investigated by the Alaska Department of Health and Social Service's Section of Epidemiology in coordination with the Alaska Department of Conservation (DEC) Food Safety & Sanitation Program.

Please contact your health care provider if you have questions or concerns. Foodborne illness symptoms involved in this outbreak so far have primarily been diarrhea and stomach cramps, which have resolved quickly. Fever is not one of the main symptoms reported. Most people experiencing symptoms reported that they began to feel ill yesterday [Sat 7 Aug 2021] evening through this morning.

Beijing on [Mon 9 Aug 2021] reported an anthrax pneumonia patient, who comes from Chengde in North China's Hebei Province and had contact history with cattle and sheep, and products that come from those animals. The patient was transported to Beijing via an ambulance 4 days after showing symptoms, and was later quarantined and put under treatment, the Beijing Center for Disease Control and Prevention (Beijing CDC) announced on [Mon 9 Aug 2021].

Anthrax is highly deadly if not treated properly. _Bacillus anthracis_, the pathogen that causes anthrax, was developed into a biochemical weapon and had been used in 20th century. According to an article published in Science Focus, a journal from Hong Kong University of Science and Technology, Japan used it as a biochemical weapon in World War II.

Anthrax is prevalent among cattle and sheep. Human beings usually get infected after coming in contact with sick animals or contaminated products. The commonest route of infection, accounting for 95% of reported cases, is skin contact, which can cause blisters and skin necrosis, Beijing CDC said. The most dangerous type is anthrax pneumonia, when a patient inhales dust containing _B. anthracis_ and gets infected. People can get intestinal anthrax after eating contaminated food, usually meat, and will develop symptoms such as nausea, vomiting and diarrhea.

Anthrax can be transmitted directly between human beings but it's not [contagious, nor] as infectious as flu or COVID-19. _B. anthracis_ is a bacterium and multiple antibiotics are effective treatments.

[Historically pneumonic anthrax is seen as a result of exposure to spores shed from contaminated wool or hair, and in an occupational setting such as a mill. It is not seen in a rural setting, where the exposure follows from butchering a sick and dead animal, usually a bovine, sometimes sheep and goats, when it results in a cutaneous lesion. Wet spore clumps are too big to be inhaled. If this patient worked in a laboratory that initiates a very different possible source and possible circumstances, for example, a culture vial breaking in a centrifuge. And frankly, anthrax is not a contagious disease, just infectious.

Hebei Province is in north east China. For a description and map of the province, go to https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Hebei. In past decades livestock anthrax was common in this region, but lately, it is largely unobserved and maybe just very sporadic, like the previous outbreak in 2020: see below, 2020 Anthrax - China (02): (HB) human, source uncertain, susp http://promedmail.org/post/20201003.7831748. A bovine outbreak was reported to OIE in 2008 involving 3 cases, and ovine and caprine outbreaks were reported in 2005 (1 outbreak, 1 case) and in 2008 (1 outbreak, 3 cases). - Mod.MHJ

A new report by the Academy of Medical Sciences has warned that the United Kingdom could face exceptionally large outbreaks of respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) and influenza during the autumn and winter of 2021-22. The surge in infections could overlap with the spike in cases of COVID-19 that is expected to follow the lifting of lockdown restrictions across the country. "It is clear that the healthcare system must plan for a high burden of respiratory diseases", wrote the authors of the new report. They urged the government to roll out point-of-care joint testing for influenza, SARS-CoV-2, and RSV, and to ensure that the influenza vaccine is widely taken up by eligible populations.

The warning partly reflects the success of the precautions that have been deployed against SARS-CoV-2. Mask-wearing, social distancing, and sharply constrained population movements have dramatically reduced the transmission of respiratory pathogens such as RSV and influenza. Hospitals in Italy and France reported drops of more than 80% in the number of paediatric patients treated for acute bronchiolitis during the 2020-21 season, compared with previous years. Australia, Chile, and South Africa registered just 51 cases of influenza between them over the entire 2020 southern hemisphere winter. In the USA, the 2020-21 influenza season was the mildest since at least 1997, the earliest year for which records are available.

The vast majority of children contract RSV before the age of 2 years. "We now have a whole bunch of children who have not been exposed to the virus for 18 months to 2 years", points out Charlotte Summers, reader in intensive care medicine at the University of Cambridge, UK, and member of the expert advisory group for the Academy of Medical Sciences report. The larger the susceptible population, the greater the risk of a sizeable outbreak once a virus starts circulating.

England discontinued nearly all of its lockdown restrictions on [19 Jul 2021]. Scotland and Wales are scheduled to do the same by mid-August [2021]. Even though there are several weeks of summer remaining, cases of RSV are on the rise (the USA is also seeing an out-of-season increase in RSV detections). Whether this will translate to increased hospitalisations remains to be seen. The Academy of Medical Sciences report recommended that children's wards and paediatric intensive care units should be ready for a potential influx of patients with RSV, otherwise they could find themselves overwhelmed. Modelling studies undertaken for the report suggested that a reasonable worst-case scenario for RSV would entail an outbreak somewhere in the region of 1·5-2 times greater than during a typical year, assuming the UK stays out of lockdown.

The results for the modelling studies for influenza were similar. "There has probably been a waning of immunity to influenza, plus we have not had enough cases elsewhere in the world to offer a strong idea of what needs to go into the vaccine", said Summers. The mildness of the 2019-20 influenza season in the UK might have further reduced population immunity.

Much is uncertain. "We do not know what the influenza virus is going to look like when it returns", said Rachel Baker, associate research scholar in the department of ecology and evolutionary biology at Princeton University, USA. "How much did the virus evolve during the period of low case numbers? Will we see a strain that people have been exposed to or vaccinated against in the past?" It is unclear how the British will respond to the easing of the lockdown restrictions. "Without national mandates for things like mask-wearing and distancing, a lot will come down to individual behaviour, and no-one really knows how people's behaviour will change", said Summers. Baker suggested that vulnerable populations should continue wearing masks in crowded public places.

Hospitals will have to quickly identify which patients have influenza and which ones have COVID-19, and ensure the 2 sets of patients are kept separate from each other and from vulnerable patients who do not have any respiratory symptoms. No small task, particularly if the viruses are surging at the same time.

At the centre of the response will be the vaccines for COVID-19 and influenza. More than half of the UK population has been fully vaccinated against COVID-19. All adults in the country are now eligible for the 1st dose of the vaccine. In 2020-21, take-up of the influenza vaccine stood at 76.8% for frontline healthcare workers and 80.9% for individuals over the age of 65 years. As it turned out, the healthcare system only had to deal with COVID-19 last winter. This year could be very different. "We could get RSV, influenza, and SARS-CoV-2 circulating at the same time, and we just do not know how that is going to play out", Baker told The Lancet Respiratory Medicine.

[Outbreaks of influenza and SARS vary in size from year to year, but the concern is the lack of immunity generated this past year as everyone was locked down indoors without person to person socializing. Now as events and restaurants and theatres open up, and mask-wearing is inconsistent, there may well be a significant increase in the activity of these 2 respiratory viruses.

As the authors suggest, point-of-care joint testing for influenza, SARS-CoV-2, and RSV, would be very helpful in quickly determining the course of treatment, and encouragement to get vaccinated against influenza would eliminate that virus as a respiratory pathogen. - Mod.LK]

Summary

What is already known about this topic?
The highly transmissible B.1.617.2 (delta) variant of SARS-CoV-2 has become the predominant circulating US strain.

What is added by this report?
During [April-June 2021], COVID-19 cases caused by the delta variant increased rapidly in Mesa County, Colorado. Compared with that in other Colorado counties, incidence, intensive care unit admissions, COVID-19 case fatality ratios, and the proportion of cases in fully vaccinated persons were significantly higher in Mesa County. Crude vaccine effectiveness against symptomatic infection was estimated to be 78% for Mesa County and 89% for other Colorado counties.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

What are the implications for public health practice?
Vaccination is critical for preventing infection, serious illness, and death associated with SARS-CoV-2 infection (including the delta variant). Multicomponent prevention strategies, such as masking in indoor settings irrespective of vaccination status as well as optimal surveillance testing and infection prevention and control, should be considered in areas of high incidence.

On [5 May 2021], the Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment (CDPHE) identified the 1st 5 COVID-19 cases caused by the SARS-CoV-2 B.1.617.2 (delta) variant in Mesa County in western Colorado (population 154 933, less than 3% of the state population). All 5 initial cases were associated with school settings. Through early June [2021], Mesa County experienced a marked increase in the proportion of delta variant cases identified through sequencing: the 7-day proportion of sequenced specimens identified as B.1.617.2 in Mesa County more than doubled, from 43% for the week ending [w/e] [1 May 2021] to 88% for the w/e [5 Jun 2021].

As of [6 Jun 2021], more than one half (51%) of sequenced B.1.617.2 specimens in Colorado were from Mesa County. CDPHE assessed data from surveillance, vaccination, laboratory, and hospital sources to describe the preliminary epidemiology of the delta variant and calculate crude vaccine effectiveness (VE). Vaccination coverage in early May in Mesa County was lower (36% of eligible residents fully vaccinated) than that in the rest of the state (44%). Compared with that in all other Colorado counties, incidence, intensive care unit (ICU) admissions, and COVID-19 case fatality ratios were significantly higher in Mesa County during the analysis period, [27 Apr to 6 Jun 2021].

In addition, during the same time period, the proportion of COVID-19 cases in persons who were fully vaccinated (vaccine breakthrough cases) was significantly higher in Mesa County than in all other Colorado counties. Estimated crude VE against reported symptomatic infection for a 2-week period ending [5 Jun 2021] was 78% (95% confidence interval [CI] = 71%-84%) for Mesa County and 89% (95% CI = 88%-91%) for other Colorado counties. Vaccination is a critical strategy for preventing infection, serious illness, and death from COVID-19. Enhanced mitigation strategies, including masking in indoor settings irrespective of vaccination status, should be considered in areas with substantial or high case rates.

Among 18 475 sequenced specimen results reported in Colorado through [6 Jun 2021], a total of 783 infections with the delta variant were identified; more than one half (400; 51.1%) of these occurred among Mesa County residents, even though the county accounts for less than 3% of the state's population. Symptomatic illness was reported in 304 (76%) of the 400 delta variant infections in Mesa County residents and 251 (65.5%) of 383 delta variant infections in other counties. The 7-day percentage of sequenced sentinel specimens identified as SARS-CoV-2 B.1.617.2 in Mesa County increased from 43% for the week ending [1 May 2021] to 88% for the week ending [5 Jun 2021] (Figure). During the 5-week period, 67% (51 of 76) of sentinel surveillance specimens in Mesa County were identified as B.1.617.2 compared with 15% (248 of 1637) of specimens from all other Colorado counties sequenced over the same time frame.

During [22 Apr to 26 Jun 2021], a total of 37 COVID-19 outbreaks were reported in Mesa County; 13 (35%) in residential care facilities, 11 (30%) in schools, 2 (5%) in correctional facilities, and 11 (30%) in other settings. As many as 12 outbreaks, including seven in residential care facilities, had at least one delta variant case.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Average vaccination coverage in these seven residential facilities was 87% among residents (range = 50% to 97%) and 50% among staff members (range = 6% to 69%); attack rates among residents ranged from 0% to 54.6% (median = 1.2%) and among staff members from 2.2% to 25.5% (median = 10.0%). A total of 5 of these 7 outbreaks involved at least one case in a fully vaccinated resident or staff member.

Discussion

The delta variant is highly transmissible; within 5 weeks of first identification, the delta variant became the dominant SARS-CoV-2 variant in Mesa County, Colorado and is also now the predominant variant in the United States (5). Higher ICU admissions and case fatality ratios in Mesa County compared with those in the rest of the state are consistent with previous reports that infections with the delta variant might result in more severe outcomes (6,7). The slightly lower crude VE estimate against symptomatic infection in Mesa County may lend support to previous findings that COVID-19 vaccines provide a modestly lower protection against symptomatic infection with the delta variant (8). Alternatively, because the delta variant was circulating at higher levels in Mesa County than in other Colorado counties, the lower VE in Mesa County might reflect the much higher exposure to circulating virus among vaccinated persons.

Vaccination is a critical strategy for preventing infection, serious illness, and death associated with SARS-CoV-2 (including the delta variant). Additional targeted prevention strategies (for example, masking in indoor settings irrespective of vaccination status) and adherence to prevention strategies (for example, surveillance testing and infection prevention and control procedures) are prudent in areas with a high circulation of the delta variant and in higher-risk settings, such as residential care facilities.

[3] Rapid diagnosis

ref: de Puig H, Lee R.A., Najjar D, et al. Minimally instrumented SHERLOCK (miSHERLOCK) for CRISPR-based point-of-care diagnosis of SARS-CoV-2 and emerging variants. Science Advances 7(32) eabh2944 DOI: 10.1126/sciadv.abh2944.

Engineers at MIT and Harvard University have designed a small tabletop device that can detect SARS-CoV-2 from a saliva sample in about an hour. In a new study, they showed that the diagnostic is just as accurate as the PCR tests now used. The device can also be used to detect specific viral mutations linked to some of the SARS-CoV-2 variants that are now circulating. This result can also be obtained within an hour, potentially making it much easier to track different variants of the virus, especially in regions that don't have access to genetic sequencing facilities.

"We demonstrated that our platform can be programmed to detect new variants that emerge, and that we could repurpose it quite quickly," says James Collins, the Termeer professor of medical engineering and science in MIT's Institute for Medical Engineering and Science (IMES) and Department of Biological Engineering. "In this study, we targeted the UK, South African, and Brazilian variants, but you could readily adapt the diagnostic platform to address the delta variant and other ones that are emerging."

The new diagnostic, which relies on CRISPR technology, can be assembled for about USD 15, but those costs could come down significantly if the devices were produced at a large scale, the researchers say. The new diagnostic is based on SHERLOCK, a CRISPR-based tool that Collins and others first reported in 2017. Components of the system include an RNA guide strand that allows detection of specific target RNA sequences, and Cas enzymes that cleave those sequences and produce a fluorescent signal. All of these molecular components can be freeze-dried for long-term storage and reactivated upon exposure to water.

The researchers designed the device, which they call minimally instrumented SHERLOCK (miSHERLOCK), so that it can have up to 4 modules that each look for a different target RNA sequence. The original module contains RNA guide strands that detect any strain of SARS-CoV-2. Other modules are specific to mutations associated with some of the variants that have arisen in the past year, including B.1.1.7, P.1, and B.1.351.

[Along with vaccination, an inexpensive rapid diagnosis could be a game-changer. This assay currently costs USD 15 per test, which is too high and takes 1 hour to give a result, which would ideally be shorter. But the test uses a saliva sample that is easily collected and allows individuals to test themselves for multiple variants of the SARS-CoV-2 virus at home. The results can be read and verified by an accompanying smartphone app.

"miSHERLOCK eliminates the need to transport patient samples to a centralized testing location and greatly simplifies the sample preparation steps, giving patients and doctors a faster, more accurate picture of individual and community health, which is critical during an evolving pandemic," said co-first author Helena de Puig, a postdoctoral fellow at the Wyss Institute and MIT.

More about the new device can be found at https://news.harvard.edu/gazette/story/2021/08/new-at-home-test-detects-covid-19-variants-in-your-spit/.
It currently does not test for the delta variant, but that should be easily incorporated into the assay, as can any new variant of concern.

A previous publication reported a similar rapid test (Bo Ning, Tao Yu, Shengwei Zhang, et al. A smartphone-read ultrasensitive and quantitative saliva test for COVID-19. Science Advances. Vol. 7, no. 2, eabe3703 . DOI: 10.1126/sciadv.abe3703. 8 Jan 2021). According to Haartz, Israel is starting to use rapid testing at events. In Dagestan, the 2nd case of transmission of anthrax to a person in the past 10 months was reported by the regional department of the Ministry of Health. This time, the disease was confirmed in a 52 year old resident of the village of Kakashura, the ministry said in a statement. The resident was hospitalized in an infectious diseases hospital. Doctors confirmed that he had a skin form of this disease which is easier to tolerate than the pulmonary and gastrointestinal forms. Currently the condition of the patient is assessed as moderate.

The department noted that the hospitalized man was engaged in butchering cattle after slaughter. Doctors are now monitoring the well-being of those who have been in contact with the patient.

After the incident with the transmission of the disease to humans [was confirmed], an interdepartmental commission was created in the region to investigate the causes and source of infection, as well as to find out the circle of people who else could have been exposed and become infected.

In October last year [2020], transmission of the disease to humans was confirmed in the village of Kakamakhi, Karabudakhkent region, where 5 people were hospitalized with suspicion of anthrax.

Anthrax is a particularly dangerous infectious disease of farm animals caused by the bacterium _Bacillus anthracis_. Anthrax from sick animals can also infect humans. In humans, the disease presents with fever, the formation of red spots, bubbles and ulcers on the skin, and increase in lymph nodes. In the acute course of the disease, a lethal outcome is possible on the 2nd or 3rd day after the initial clinical signs.

The meeting of the sanitary-anti-epidemic commission was chaired by the head of the district, Mahmud Amiraliyev. The event took place yesterday [Thu 5 Aug 2021] in the building of the administration of the village of Kakashura, the press service of the municipality told the news agency.

The meeting was also attended by the head of the service for supervision in the field of consumer rights protection and human well-being of the Republic of Dagestan, Nikolay Pavlov; the deputy head of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Russia for the Karabudakhkent region for the UUP, Ruslan Khalduzov; the chief doctor of the Central Regional Hospital, Rasul Giravov; the head of the Department of Rospotrebnadzor RD for the city of Kaspiysk and the Karabudakhkent region Abacharaev; and the heads of the veterinary department and the Department of Agriculture of the Republic of Moldova.

The meeting participants discussed the issues of taking measures to prevent anthrax. On [31 Jul 2021], a resident of the village of Kakashura went to the surgical department of the Caspian city's Hospital with a complaint about an unhealed wound. He was admitted to hospital with a preliminary diagnosis of anthrax. Currently, the patient is admitted to the infectious diseases department of the Gurbukinsky district hospital. According to the press service "the infection was caused by cutting the carcass of an infected bull".

[Our thanks to Mahmoud, yet again, for this report.

Dagestan is an autonomous republic of Russia. It is small -- 19 400 square miles and 2.9 million people -- on the north west Caspian Sea coast and adjoins Azerbaijan, Chechnya, and Georgia. See https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Dagestan.

Latterly, OIE has reported limited outbreaks in 2005, 2010, and 2012, but nothing since. Because of the civil unrest in the country, we may presume that the disease is underreported, though sporadic. This apparently singular case resulted yet again from the careless butchering of a bull that had died of anthrax. I would not be surprised if there had not been other livestock dead from anthrax in this village at the same time. - Mod.MHJ
