(9) One representative from an institution of postsecondary education that offers approved teacher preparation programs;

(10) One representative from an independent private provider or nonprofit organization serving individuals with dyslexia;

(11) One representative from the Missouri branch of the International Dyslexia Association;

(12) One certified academic language therapist recommended by the Academic Language Therapy Association who is a resident of this state;

(13) One professional with experience diagnosing dyslexia, such as a school psychologist or neuropsychologist, who is licensed under chapter 337; and

(14) One dyslexia specialist from the department of elementary and secondary education.

2. The advisory council shall meet biannually to review best practices in literacy instruction and related policies.

3. The advisory council shall periodically provide recommendations to the commissioner and the state board of education regarding any identified improvements to literacy instruction and policy for elementary and secondary students. The recommendations may include recommendations for changes to state law, and the commissioner shall furnish any such recommendations to the joint committee on education.

4. The department of elementary and secondary education, in conjunction with the advisory council, shall identify and create

RE: HCS/HB368 - (0781H.03C)

Enclosed is the legislation you requested. This legislation requires each local school district and charter school to have on file a policy for reading success plans for certain students. The bill is similar to SCS/SB54 (0884S.03C) from 2021, with edits for clarity, consistency, and cohesion with House Drafting guidelines.

Please contact Curtis Cunningham or House Research at (573) 751-2979 if you have any questions or concerns regarding this piece of legislation.

160.263. 1. As used in this section, the following terms mean:

(1) "Mechanical restraint", the use of any device or equipment to restrict a student's freedom of movement. "Mechanical restraint" shall not include devices implemented by trained personnel or used by a student with a prescription for such devices from an appropriate medical or related services professional and that are used for specific and approved purposes for which such devices were designed, such as the following:

(a) Adaptive devices or mechanical supports used to achieve proper body position, balance, or alignment to allow greater freedom of mobility than would be possible without the use of such devices or mechanical supports;

(b) Vehicle safety restraints when used as intended during the transport of a student in a moving vehicle;

(c) Restraints for medical immobilization; or

(d) Orthopedically prescribed devices that permit a student to participate in activities without risk;

(2) "Physical restraint", a personal restriction such as person-to-person physical contact that immobilizes, reduces, or restricts the ability of a student to move the student's torso,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

arms, legs, or head freely. "Physical restraint" shall not include:

(a) A physical escort, which is a temporary touching or holding of the hand, wrist, arm, shoulder, or back for the purpose of inducing a student to walk to a safe location;

(b) Comforting or calming a student;

(c) Holding a student's hand to transport the student for safety purposes;

(d) Intervening in a fight; or

(e) Using an assistive or protective device prescribed by an appropriately trained professional or professional team;

(3) "Prone restraint", using mechanical or physical restraint or both to restrict a student's movement while the student is lying with the student's front or face downward;

(4) "Restraint" includes, but is not limited to, mechanical restraint, physical restraint, and prone restraint;

(5) "Seclusion", the involuntary confinement of a student alone in a room or area that the student is physically prevented from leaving and that complies with the building code in effect in the school district. "Seclusion" shall not include the following:

(a) A timeout, which is a behavior management technique that is part of an approved program, involves the monitored separation of the student in a nonlocked setting, and is implemented for the purpose of calming;

(b) In-school suspension;

(c) Detention; or

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(d) Other appropriate disciplinary measures.

2. The school discipline policy under section 160.261 shall [~~prohibit~~] reserve confining a student in [~~an unattended, locked space except for an emergency situation while awaiting the arrival of law enforcement personnel~~] seclusion for situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others.

3. For all school years beginning on or after July 1, 2022, no school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider shall use any mechanical, physical, or prone restraint technique that:

(1) Obstructs views of the student's face;

(2) Obstructs the student's respiratory airway, impairs the student's breathing or respiratory capacity, or restricts the movement required for normal breathing to cause positional or postural asphyxia;

(3) Places pressure or weight on or causes the compression of the student's chest, lungs, sternum, diaphragm, back, abdomen, or genitals;

(4) Obstructs the student's circulation of blood;

(5) Involves pushing on or into the student's mouth, nose, eyes, or any part of the face or involves covering the face or body with anything including, but not limited to, soft objects such as pillows, blankets, or washcloths;

(6) Endangers the student's life or significantly exacerbates the student's medical condition;

(7) Is purposely designed to inflict pain;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(8) Restricts the student from communicating. If an employee physically restrains a student who uses sign language or an augmentative mode of communication as the student's primary mode of communication, the student shall be permitted to have the student's hands free of restraint for brief periods unless an employee determines that such freedom appears likely to result in harm to self or others.

[~~2.~~] 4. (1) By July 1, 2011, the local board of education of each school district shall adopt a written policy that comprehensively addresses the use of restrictive behavioral interventions as a form of discipline or behavior management technique. The policy shall be consistent with professionally accepted practices and standards of student discipline, behavior management, health and safety, including the safe schools act. The policy shall include but not be limited to:

[~~(1)~~] (a) Definitions of restraint, seclusion, and time-out and any other terminology necessary to describe the continuum of restrictive behavioral interventions available for use or prohibited in the district, consistent with the provisions of this section;

[~~(2)~~] (b) Description of circumstances under which a restrictive behavioral intervention is allowed and prohibited, consistent with the provisions of this section, and any unique application requirements for specific groups of students such as differences based on age, disability, or environment in which the educational services are provided;

[~~(3)~~] (c) Specific implementation requirements associated with a restrictive behavioral intervention such as time limits, facility specifications, training requirements or supervision requirements; and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001742

[~~(4)~~] (d) Documentation, notice and permission requirements associated with use of a restrictive behavioral intervention.

(2) Before July 1, 2022, each written policy adopted under this subsection shall be updated to prohibit the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider from using any restraint that employs any technique listed in subsection 3 of this section.

(3) Before July 1, 2022, each written policy adopted under this subsection shall be updated to state that the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider will reserve restraint or seclusion for situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others.

5. Before July 1, 2022, each school district, charter school, and publicly contracted private provider shall ensure that the policy adopted under subsection 4 of this section requires the following:

(1) Any student placed in seclusion or restraint shall be removed from such seclusion or restraint as soon as the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider determines that the student is no longer an imminent danger of physical harm to self or others;

(2) All school district, charter school, and publicly contracted private provider personnel shall annually review the policy and procedures involving the use of seclusion and restraint. Personnel who use seclusion or restraint shall annually complete mandatory training in the specific seclusion and restraint techniques the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider uses under this section;

(3) (a) Each time seclusion or restraint is used for a student, the incident shall be monitored by a member of the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider personnel, and a report shall be completed by the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider that contains, at a minimum, the following:

a. The date, time of day, location, duration, and description of the incident and interventions;

b. Any event leading to the incident and the reason for using seclusion or restraint;

c. A description of the methods of seclusion or restraint used;

d. The nature and extent of any injury to the student;

e. The names, roles, and certifications of each employee involved in the use of seclusion or restraint;

f. The name, role, and signature of the person who prepared the report;

g. The name of an employee whom the parent or guardian can contact regarding the incident and use of seclusion or restraint;

h. The name of an employee to contact if the parent or guardian wishes to file a complaint; and

i. A statement directing parents and legal guardians to a sociological, emotional, or behavioral support organization and a hotline number to report child abuse and neglect.

(b) The school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider shall maintain the report as an education record of the student, provide a copy to the parent or legal guardian within five school days, and a copy of each incident report shall be given to the department of elementary and secondary education within thirty days of the incident;

(4) The school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider shall attempt to notify the parents or legal guardians as soon as possible but no later than one hour after the end of the school day on which the use of seclusion or restraint occurred. Notification shall be oral or electronic and shall include a statement indicating that the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider will provide the parents or legal guardians a copy of the report described in subdivision (3) of this subsection within five school days;

(5) An officer, administrator, or employee of a public school district or charter school shall not retaliate against any person for having:

(a) Reported a violation of any policy established under this section or failure of a district or charter school to follow any provisions of this section in relation to incidents of seclusion and restraint; or

(b) Provided information regarding a violation of this section by a public school district or charter school or a member of the staff of the public school district or charter school.

6. The department of elementary and secondary education shall compile and maintain all incidents reported under this section in the department's core data system and make such data available on the Missouri comprehensive data system. No personally identifiable data shall be accessible on the database.

[~~3.~~] 7. The department of elementary and secondary education shall, in cooperation with appropriate associations, organizations, agencies and individuals with specialized expertise in behavior management, develop a model policy that satisfies the requirements of subsection 2 of this section as it existed on August 28, 2009, by July 1, 2010, and shall update such model policy to include the requirements of subdivisions (2) and (3) of subsection 4 and subsection 5 of this section by July 1, 2022.

160.560. 1. The department of elementary and secondary education shall establish the "Show Me Success Diploma Program".

2. Under the show me success diploma program, the department of elementary and secondary education shall develop the "Show Me Success Diploma" as an alternative pathway to graduation for high school students that may be earned at any point between the end of a student's tenth grade year and the conclusion of the student's twelfth grade year.

3. By July 1, 2022, the department of elementary and secondary education shall develop detailed requirements for students to become eligible for the show me success diploma that include at least the following:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001746

(1) Demonstrated skills and knowledge in English, science, and mathematical literacy to be successful in college level courses offered by the community colleges in this state that count toward a degree or certificate without taking remedial or developmental course work; and

(2) Satisfactory grades on approved examinations in subjects determined to be necessary to prepare a student to enter postsecondary education without remedial or developmental course work.

4. School districts and charter schools may offer a course of study designed to meet the requirements to obtain a show me success diploma to students entering the ninth grade. Students who elect to pursue a show me success diploma shall participate in a course of study designed by the school district to meet the requirements established under subsection 3 of this section. The show me success diploma shall be available to any such student until the end of that student's twelfth grade year.

5. Students who earn a show me success diploma may remain in high school and participate in programs of study available through the school district or charter school until that student would otherwise have graduated at the end of grade twelve. For purposes of calculation and distribution of state aid, the school district or charter school of a pupil having earned a show me success diploma who remains enrolled in the school district or charter school shall continue to include the pupil in the pupil enrollment of each such school district or charter school and shall continue to receive funding for a pupil who earns a show me success diploma until that pupil would otherwise have graduated at the end of grade twelve. Students who elect to remain in high school under this subsection shall be eligible to participate in extracurricular activities, including interscholastic sports, through the end of grade twelve.

6. Students who pursue but do not meet the eligibility requirements for a show me success diploma at the end of grade ten or eleven shall receive a customized program of assistance during the next school year that addresses areas in which the student demonstrated deficiencies in the course requirements. Students may choose to return to a traditional academic program without completing the show me success diploma.

7. The department of elementary and secondary education shall provide training, guidance, and assistance to teachers and administrators of the schools offering the show me success diploma and shall closely monitor the progress of the schools in the development of the program.

8. Pupils who earn a show me success diploma and do not remain enrolled in the district or charter school and instead enroll, or show proof that they will enroll, in a postsecondary educational institution eligible to participate in a student aid program administered by the U.S. Department of Education shall be included in the district's or charter school's state aid calculation under section 163.031, until such time that the pupil would have completed the pupil's twelfth grade year had the pupil not earned a show me success diploma. The funding assigned to a pupil under this subsection shall be calculated as if the pupil's attendance percentage equaled the district's or charter school's prior year average attendance percentage. For a pupil who, as provided in this subsection, is included in the district's or charter school's state aid calculation but who is not enrolled in the district or charter school, an amount equal to ninety percent of the pupil's proportionate share of the state, local, and federal aid that the district or charter school receives for the pupil under this subsection shall be deposited into an account established under sections 166.400 to 166.455 that lists the pupil as the beneficiary. The state treasurer shall provide guidance and assist school districts, charter schools, pupils, and pupil's parents or guardians with the creation, maintenance, and use of an account that has been established under sections 166.400 to 166.455.

9. The department of elementary and secondary education shall promulgate all necessary rules and regulations for the administration of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

10. The provisions of this section shall expire on August 28, 2028.

160.565. 1. This act shall be known and may be cited as the "Extended Learning Opportunities Act".

2. For the purposes of the provisions of this section, the following terms shall mean:

(1) "Extended learning opportunity", an out-of-classroom learning experience, approved by the state board of education, a local school board, or a charter school, that provides a student with:

(a) Enrichment opportunities;

(b) Career readiness or employability skills opportunities, including internships, pre-apprenticeships, and apprenticeships; or

(c) Any other approved educational opportunity;

(2) "Student", any child attending an elementary or secondary public school or charter school in kindergarten through the twelfth grade.

3. Beginning with the 2022-23 school year, the state board of education and each local school board shall routinely inform students and their parents of the ability to earn credit for participating in extended learning opportunities. Employees of the state board of education, public schools, and charter schools may assist students and their parents in completing enrollment processes required for participating in approved extended learning opportunities. No student or parent shall be required to obtain permission from the student's school district or charter school to enroll in an extended learning opportunity, provided that, prior to participating in any extended learning opportunity, the student and at least one parent shall sign an agreement detailing all program requirements in a form developed by the state board of education.

4. An extended learning opportunity shall count as a credit toward graduation requirements and the achievement of applicable state standards for students. To receive credit, a student shall submit a written request for credit and proof of successful completion of the extended learning opportunity to a designated administrator of the school the student attends.

5. The state board of education shall adopt, and each local school district shall distribute and implement, extended learning opportunities policies that provides all of the following:

(1) An application process for accepting and approving extended learning opportunities offered for credit from outside entities;

(2) A list of entities that are eligible to submit applications to offer extended learning opportunities, including:

(a) Nonprofit organizations;

(b) Businesses with established locations;

(c) Trade associations; and

(d) The Armed Forces of the United States, subject to applicable age requirements;

(3) A process for students of their parents to request credit;

(4) Criteria school districts and charter schools shall use

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

to determine whether a proposed extended learning opportunity shall be approved;

(5) Criteria school districts and charter schools shall use to award a certificate of completion and credit for completing an extended learning opportunity, including allowing a student to demonstrate competencies through performance-based assessments and other methods independent of instructional time and credit hours.

6. An entity approved by the state board of education to offer an extended learning opportunity shall be automatically qualified to offer that extended learning opportunity for all school districts and charter schools.

7. A student who successfully completes an approved extended learning opportunity and satisfies criteria for the award of a certification of completion and credit pursuant to subdivision (5) of subsection 5 of this section shall be considered to have completed all required course work for the particular course. In an extended learning opportunity that satisfies all required course work for a high school course, the student shall also be considered to have satisfied the equivalent number of credits toward the student's graduation requirements.

8. Any policy or procedure adopted by the state board of education, a school board, or a charter school for participating in an extended learning opportunity shall provide every student an equal opportunity to participate and shall satisfy established timelines and requirements for purposes of transcribing credits and state reporting.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

9. The state board of education may promulgate rules to implement the provisions of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

160.3005. 1. Before July 1, 2022, the local board of education of each school district shall adopt a written policy that requires the administration of each public school building within the district to provide accommodations to lactating employees, teachers, and students to express breast milk, breast-feed a child, or address other needs relating to breast-feeding. The policy shall include provisions that require the district to provide a minimum of three opportunities during a school day, at two-hour intervals, to accommodate an employee's, teacher's, or student's need to express breast milk or breast-feed a child. The policy shall include provisions that require such accommodations to be available to each lactating employee, teacher, or student for at least one year following the birth of the employee's, teacher's, or student's child, and that permit such accommodations to be available for longer than one year as determined by each local school board.

2. District policies shall require each school building to contain suitable accommodation in the form of a room, other than a restroom, for the exclusive use of employees, teachers, or students to express breast milk or breast-feed a child. Such accommodation shall be located in close proximity to a sink with running water and a refrigerator for breast milk storage and have, at a minimum, the following features:

(1) Ventilation and a door that may be locked for privacy;

(2) A work surface and a chair; and

(3) Conveniently placed electrical outlets.

3. The department of elementary and secondary education shall develop a model policy that satisfies the requirements of subsections 1 and 2 of this section before January 1, 2022.

4. The department of elementary and secondary education may promulgate all necessary rules and regulations for the administration of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

161.097. 1. The state board of education shall establish standards and procedures by which it will evaluate all teacher training institutions in this state for the approval of teacher education programs. The state board of education shall not require teacher training institutions to meet national or regional accreditation as a part of its standards and procedures in making those evaluations, but it may accept such accreditations in lieu of such approval if standards and procedures set thereby are at least as stringent as those set by the board. The state board of education's standards and procedures for evaluating teacher training institutions shall equal or exceed those of national or regional accrediting associations.

2. There is hereby established within the department of elementary and secondary education the "Missouri Advisory Board for Educator Preparation", hereinafter referred to as "MABEP". The MABEP shall advise the state board of education and the coordinating board for higher education regarding matters of mutual interest in the area of quality educator preparation programs in Missouri.

3. Upon approval by the state board of education of the teacher education program at a particular teacher training institution, any person who graduates from that program, and who meets other requirements [~~which~~] that the state board of education shall prescribe by rule, regulation, and statute shall be granted a certificate or license to teach in the public schools of this state. However, no such rule or regulation shall require that the program from which the person graduates be accredited by any national or regional accreditation association.

4. The state board of education shall require literacy and reading instruction course work for teacher education programs aligned to certification in early childhood education, elementary education, middle school education with subject area certification in language arts, secondary education with subject area certification in English, special reading, and special education to include training in:

(1) The core components of reading, such as phonemic awareness, phonics, fluency, comprehension, morphology, syntax, and vocabulary;

(2) Oral and written language development;

(3) Identification of reading deficiencies, dyslexia, and other language difficulties; and

(4) The administration and interpretation of assessments and how to translate assessment results into effective practice in the classroom specific to the needs of students.

5. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2014, shall be invalid and void.

161.214. 1. As used in this section, the following terms mean:

(1) "Board", the state board of education;

(2) "Department", the department of elementary and secondary education;

(3) "School innovation team", a group of natural persons representing:

(a) A single elementary or secondary school;

(b) A group of two or more elementary or secondary schools within the same school district that share common interests, such as geographical location or educational focus, or that sequentially serve classes of students as they progress through elementary and secondary education;

(c) A group of two or more elementary or secondary schools not within the same school district that share common interests, such as geographical location or educational focus, or that sequentially serve classes of students as they progress through elementary and secondary education;

(d) A single school district; or

(e) A group of two or more school districts that share common interests, such as geographical location or educational focus, or that sequentially serve classes of students as they progress through elementary and secondary education;

(4) "School innovation waiver", a waiver granted by the board to a single school, group of schools, single school district, or group of school districts under this section, in which the school, group of schools, school district, or group of school districts is exempt from a specific requirement imposed by chapter 160, 161, 162, 167, 170, or 171, or any regulations promulgated under such chapters by the board or the department. Any school innovation waiver granted to a school district or group of school districts shall apply to every elementary and secondary school within the school district or group of school districts unless the plan specifically provides otherwise.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. Any school innovation team seeking a school innovation waiver may submit a plan to the board for one or more of the following purposes:

(1) Improving student readiness for employment, higher education, vocational training, technical training, or any other form of career and job training;

(2) Increasing the compensation of teachers; or

(3) Improving the recruitment, retention, training, preparation, or professional development of teachers.

3. Any plan for a school innovation waiver shall:

(1) Identify the specific provision of law for which a waiver is being requested and provide an explanation for why the specific provision of law inhibits the ability of the school or school district to accomplish the goal stated in the plan;

(2) Demonstrate that the intent of the specific provision of law can be addressed in a more effective, efficient, or economical manner and that the waiver or modification is necessary to implement the plan;

(3) Include measurable annual performance targets and goals for the implementation of the plan;

(4) Specify the innovations to be pursued in meeting one or more of the goals listed in subsection 2 of this section;

(5) Demonstrate parental, school employee, and community and business support for, and engagement with, the plan; and

(6) Be approved by at least the minimum number of people required to be on the school innovation team prior to submitting the plan for approval.

4. (1) In evaluating a plan submitted by a school innovation team under subsection 2 of this section, the board shall consider whether the plan will:

(a) Improve the preparation, counseling, and overall readiness of students for postsecondary life;

(b) Increase teacher salaries in a financially sustainable and prudent manner; or

(c) Increase the attractiveness of the teaching profession for prospective teachers and active teachers alike.

(2) The board may approve any plan submitted under subsection 2 of this section if the board determines that:

(a) The plan successfully demonstrates the ability to address the intent of the provision of law to be waived in a more effective, efficient, or economical manner;

(b) The waivers or modifications are demonstrated to be necessary to stimulate or improve student readiness for postsecondary life, increase teacher salaries, or increase the attractiveness of the teaching profession for prospective teachers and active teachers;

(c) The plan has demonstrated sufficient participation from among the teachers, principal, superintendent, faculty, school board, parents, and the community at large; and

(d) The plan is based upon sound educational practices, does not endanger the health and safety of students or staff, and does not compromise equal opportunity for learning.

(3) The board may propose modifications to the plan in cooperation with the school innovation team.

5. Any waiver granted under this section shall be effective for a period of no longer than three school years beginning the school year following the school year in which the waiver is approved. Any waiver may be renewed. No more than one school innovation waiver shall be in effect with respect to any one elementary or secondary school at one time.

6. This section shall not be construed to allow the board to authorize the waiver of any statutory requirements relating to school start date, teacher certification, teacher tenure, or any requirement imposed by federal law.

7. The board may promulgate rules implementing the provisions of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

161.217. 1. The department of elementary and secondary education, in collaboration with the Missouri Head Start State Collaboration Office and the departments of health and senior services, mental health, and social services, shall develop[~~, as a three-year pilot program,~~] a voluntary early learning quality assurance report. The early learning quality assurance report shall be developed based on evidence-based practices.

2. Participation in the early learning quality assurance report [~~pilot~~] program shall be voluntary for any licensed or license-exempt early learning providers that are center-based or home-based and are providing services for children from any ages from birth up to kindergarten.

3. The early learning quality assurance report may include, but is not limited to, information regarding staff qualifications, instructional quality, professional development, health and safety standards, parent engagement, and community engagement.

4. The early learning quality assurance report shall not be used for enforcement of compliance with any law or for any punitive purposes.

5. The department of elementary and secondary education shall promulgate all necessary rules and regulations for the administration of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2016, shall be invalid and void.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

6. Under section 23.253 of the Missouri sunset act:

(1) The provisions of the new program authorized under this section shall [~~automatically sunset three years after August 28, 2019, unless reauthorized by an act of the general assembly; and~~

[~~(3)~~] (2) This section shall terminate on September first of the calendar year immediately following the calendar year in which the program authorized under this section is sunset.

161.229. 1. The department of elementary and secondary education shall maintain and publish on its website any data or report sent to the department from any federal agency within thirty days of receipt of such data or report in an accessible format.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. The department shall maintain and publish on its website in an accessible format the full text of all state administrative rules and regulations related to elementary and secondary education and shall update such information within thirty days of the publication in the Missouri Register of any final order of rulemaking related to such rules and regulations.

3. The information published under subsections 1 and 2 of this section shall be made available to the public and shall be accessible and searchable from various devices including, but not limited to, computers, tablets, and other electronic communication devices.

4. By December thirty-first in every even-numbered year, the state auditor shall review the department's website for compliance with this section.

161.380. 1. Subject to appropriations, the department of elementary and secondary education shall establish the "Competency-Based Education Grant Program".

2. (1) There is hereby created in the state treasury the "Competency-Based Education Grant Program Fund". The fund shall consist of any appropriations to such fund and any gifts, contributions, grants, or bequests received from private or other sources for the purpose of providing competency-based education programs. The state treasurer shall be custodian of the fund. In accordance with sections 30.170 and 30.180, the state treasurer may approve disbursements of public moneys in accordance with distribution requirements and procedures developed by the department of elementary and secondary education. The fund shall be a dedicated fund and, upon appropriation, moneys in the fund shall be used solely for the administration of this section.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 33.080 to the contrary, any moneys remaining in the fund at the end of the biennium shall not revert to the credit of the general revenue fund.

(3) The state treasurer shall invest moneys in the fund in the same manner as other funds are invested. Any interest and moneys earned on such investments shall be credited to the fund.

3. The department of elementary and secondary education shall award grants from the competency-based education grant program fund to eligible school districts for the purpose of providing competency-based education programs. A school district wishing to receive such a grant shall submit an application to the department of elementary and secondary education addressing:

(1) A core mission that competency-based education courses will help achieve;

(2) A plan that outlines competency-based education courses and key metrics that will show success;

(3) Resources available to the school and in the community that will assist in creating successful competency-based outcomes; and

(4) Resources and support needed to help the school succeed in implementing competency-based education courses.

4. The department of elementary and secondary education shall facilitate the creation, sharing, and development of course assessments; curriculum; training and guidance for teachers; and best practices for the school districts that offer competency-based education courses.

5. For purposes of this section, the term "competency-based education program" means an educational program that:

(1) Affords students flexibility to progress and earn course credit upon demonstration of mastery, including through early high school graduation;

(2) Provides individual learning and assessment options, including through experiential and project-based learning, online or blended learning, additional remedial education time, and accelerated-pace curricula;

(3) Assesses student proficiency based on graduate profiles describing meaningful and critical knowledge and skills that students should have upon graduation; or

(4) Assesses student proficiency through tasks developed both locally and at the state level, performance of which demonstrate mastery.

6. The department of elementary and secondary education shall promulgate all necessary rules and regulations for the administration of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

7. The provisions of this section shall expire on August 28, 2028.

161.385. 1. There is hereby established the "Competency-Based Education Task Force" to study and develop competency-based education programs in public schools. Task force members shall be chosen to represent the geographic diversity of the state. All task force members shall be appointed before October 31, 2021. The task force members shall be appointed as follows:

(1) Two members of the house of representatives appointed by the speaker of the house of representatives;

(2) Two members of the senate appointed by the president pro tempore of the senate;

(3) The commissioner of the department of elementary and secondary education or the commissioner's designee; and

(4) Four members appointed by the governor. Two members shall each represent a separate school district that offers competency-based education courses.

2. The members of the task force established under subsection 1 of this section shall elect a chair from among the membership of the task force. The task force shall meet as needed to complete its consideration of its objectives as established in subsections 4 and 5 of this section. Any vacancy on the task force shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment. Members of the task force shall serve without compensation, but shall be entitled to reimbursement for actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of official duties.

3. The department of elementary and secondary education shall provide such legal, research, clerical, and technical services as the task force may require in the performance of official duties.

4. The task force shall:

(1) Work toward implementing competency-based education courses statewide and devising a plan for Missouri to lead the way in competency-based education courses;

(2) Solicit input from individuals and organizations with information or expertise relevant to the task force's objective, including experts and educators with experience related to competency-based education programs;

(3) Hold at least three public hearings to provide an opportunity to receive public testimony including, but not limited to, testimony from educators, local school boards, parents, representatives from business and industry, labor and community leaders, members of the general assembly, and the general public;

(4) Identify promising competency-based education programs, including programs that:

(a) Afford students flexibility to progress and earn course credit upon demonstration of mastery, including through early high school graduation;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001767

(b) Provide individual learning and assessment options, including through experiential and project-based learning, online or blended learning, additional remedial education time, and accelerated-pace curricula;

(c) Assess student proficiency through tasks developed both locally and at the state level, performance of which demonstrate mastery;

(5) Identify obstacles to implementing competency-based education programs in Missouri public schools;

(6) Develop comprehensive graduate profiles that describe meaningful and critical knowledge skills that students should have upon graduation that can be implemented into a diploma designation;

(7) Develop findings and recommendations for implementing competency-based education models and practices in Missouri public schools, including recommending changes to existing legislation, rules, and regulations; and

(8) Develop findings and recommendations for implementing a competency-based performance assessment that:

(a) Is consistent with the most effective competency-based education programs identified by the task force under subdivision (3) of this subsection;

(b) Assesses students based on both locally developed and common statewide performance tasks tied to grade and course competencies aligned with state content standards; and

(c) Complies with all applicable federal law, including 20 U.S.C. Section 6311(b)(1)(B), as amended. To the extent that implementing a competency-based performance assessment would require the department of elementary and secondary education to obtain innovative assessment and accountability demonstration authority under 20 U.S.C. Section 6364, as amended, the task force shall develop findings and recommendations for obtaining such authority.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

5. The task force shall present its findings and recommendations to the speaker of the house of representatives, the president pro tempore of the senate, the joint committee on education, and the state board of education by December first annually.

6. The provisions of this section shall expire on August 28, 2028.

161.625. 1. This section shall be known and may be cited as the "Students' Right to Know Act".

2. Beginning on January 1, 2022, to help each high school student make more informed decisions about the student's future and ensure that the student is adequately aware of the cost of four-year college and other alternative career paths, the department of higher education and workforce development shall collect and compile the following information on an annual basis:

(1) The most in-demand jobs in the state, including starting salary and education level required for such jobs;

(2) The average cost for each public institution of higher education and vocational school in the state;

(3) The average monthly student loan payment of all students in attendance at a public institution of higher education or vocational school in the state, for each public institution of higher education or vocational school in the state;

(4) The average three-year student loan default rate for each public institution of higher education and vocational school in the state;

(5) The average graduation rate for each public institution of higher education and vocational school in the state;

(6) The completion rates for apprenticeship programs, high school credential programs, career and technical education programs, and military first-term enlistments;

(7) The average starting salary for individuals graduating from each public institution of higher education in the state; and

(8) The average starting salary for individuals graduating from each vocational school in the state.

3. Each public institution of higher education and vocational school shall report to the department the information listed in subsection 2 of this section that relates to the particular institution. The department shall collect, compile, and add the information on the department's website. On or before October fifteenth of each year, the link and all relevant instruction material shall be distributed to the department of elementary and secondary education for dissemination to public high schools in the state for public distribution to students by school counselors.

4. The department may execute a memorandum of understanding with any department, agency, or division for information required to be collected by this section.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

5. To comply with the requirements of this section, any public institution of higher education, vocational school and the department may use preexisting databases including, but not limited to, the College Scorecard operated by the United States Department of Education and MoJobs.

161.890. 1. There is hereby established the "School Accountability Board". Board members shall be appointed as follows:

(1) The commissioner of education shall choose two members from among no more than three individuals from each of the following organizations:

(a) The Missouri Association of School Administrators;

(b) The Missouri chapter of the National Education Association;

(c) The Missouri chapter of the Missouri State Teachers Association; and

(d) The Missouri School Board Association;

(2) The commissioner shall choose one member from among no more than four individuals nominated by the Missouri charter public school commission;

(3) The president pro tempore of the senate shall choose four members at large with demonstrated expertise in education policy and school improvement, none of whom shall be employees of a public school district or the immediate family members of such employees within the first degree of consanguinity or affinity, and two of whom shall be researchers with expertise on the impact of education and economic development;

(4) The speaker of the house of representatives shall choose:

(a) Two members from business and industry with demonstrated commitment to education; and

(b) Two members at large with demonstrated expertise in education policy and school improvement, none of whom shall be employees of a public school district or the immediate family members of such employees within the first degree of consanguinity or affinity.

(5) Members appointed under subdivisions (1) and (2) of this subsection shall serve at the pleasure of the commissioner of education. Members appointed under subdivision (3) of this subsection shall serve at the pleasure of the president pro tempore of the senate. Members appointed under subdivision (4) of this subsection shall serve at the pleasure of the the speaker of the house of representatives.

2. The school accountability board shall advise the state board of education and department of elementary and secondary education on matters pertaining to the development and implementation of the state's school improvement program by:

(1) Working with department and state board of education staff to develop all rules and regulations related to school and district accountability and improvement prior to adoption;

(2) Advising the department and state board of education on policies and practices related to school and district

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

accountability and improvement;

(3) Developing and reviewing the results of an annual, department-administered survey of schools and districts receiving technical assistance related to accountability and improvement; and

(4) Presenting findings and recommendations pertaining to school and district accountability and improvement to the state board of education at least two times annually.

161.1050. 1. There is hereby established within the department of elementary and secondary education the "Trauma-Informed Schools Initiative".

2. The department of elementary and secondary education shall consult the department of mental health and the department of social services for assistance in fulfilling the requirements of this section.

3. The department of elementary and secondary education shall:

(1) Provide information regarding the trauma-informed approach to all school districts;

(2) Offer training on the trauma-informed approach to all school districts, which shall include information on how schools can become trauma-informed schools; and

(3) Develop a website about the trauma-informed schools initiative that includes information for schools and parents regarding the trauma-informed approach and a guide for schools on how to become trauma-informed schools.

4. Each school district shall provide the address of the website described under subdivision (3) of subsection 3 of this section to all parents of the students in its district before October first of each school year.

5. For purposes of this section, the following terms mean:

(1) "Trauma-informed approach", an approach that involves understanding and responding to the symptoms of chronic interpersonal trauma and traumatic stress across the lifespan;

(2) "Trauma-informed school", a school that:

(a) Realizes the widespread impact of trauma and understands potential paths for recovery;

(b) Recognizes the signs and symptoms of trauma in students, teachers, and staff;

(c) Responds by fully integrating knowledge about trauma into its policies, procedures, and practices; and

(d) Seeks to actively resist retraumatization.

6. Each school that chooses to participate in, or utilizes the concepts of, the trauma-informed schools initiative shall keep a record of each incident in which a child is removed from or present in a classroom during or following another child's outburst and shall inform the parents or guardians of any child removed from a classroom as described in this subsection within forty-eight hours of the incident by telephone, letter, or email.

162.441. 1. If any school district desires to be attached to a community college district organized under sections 178.770 to 178.890 or to one or more adjacent seven-director school districts for school purposes, upon the receipt of a petition setting forth such fact, signed either by voters of the district

equal in number to ten percent of those voting in the last school election at which school board members were elected or by a majority of the voters of the district, whichever is the lesser, the school board of the district desiring to be so attached shall submit the question to the voters.

2. As an alternative to the procedure in subsection 1 of this section, a seven-director district may, by a majority vote of its board of education, propose a plan to the voters of the district to attach the district to one or more adjacent seven-director districts and call an election upon the question of such plan.

3. As an alternative to the procedures in subsection 1 or 2 of this section, a community college district organized under sections 178.770 to 178.890 may, by a majority vote of its board of trustees, propose a plan to the voters of the school district to attach the school district to the community college district, levy the tax rate applicable to the community college district at the time of the vote of the board of trustees, and call an election upon the question of such plan. The community college proposing the annexation shall appear at a public meeting of the school district to which the annexation is being proposed to present the annexation proposal. The school board shall invite the community college to make such presentation at a regularly scheduled meeting no more than one hundred and twenty days prior and no less than thirty days prior to the election to present the annexation proposal. The tax rate applicable to the community college district shall not be levied as to the school district until the proposal by the board of trustees of the community college district has been approved by a majority vote of the voters of the school district at the election called for that purpose. The question shall be submitted in substantially the following form: "Shall the _____ school district become part of and be annexed to the _____ community college district effective the _____ day of _____, _____?". The question shall be followed on the ballot by information about the effect of the vote in substantially the following form: "If this proposition is approved, the overall tax levy in the school district will increase by the community college tax levy of $_____ per $100 of assessed valuation and all residents of the school district will be eligible for reduced community college tuition at the in-district rate.". The community college district shall be responsible for the costs associated with the election. Any election held under this subsection shall be held as provided by law on the next available general election day as established in section 115.121.

4. A plat of the proposed changes to all affected districts shall be published and posted with the notice of election.

5. [~~The question shall be submitted in substantially the following form:~~

~~Shall the _____ school district be annexed to the _____ school districts effective the _____ day of _____, _____?~~

~~6.~~] If a majority of the votes cast in the district proposing annexation favor annexation, the secretary shall certify the fact, with a copy of the record, to the board of the district and to the boards of the districts to which annexation is proposed; whereupon the boards of the seven-director districts to which annexation is proposed shall meet to consider the advisability of receiving the district or a portion thereof, and if a majority of all the members of each board favor annexation, the boundary lines of the seven-director school districts from the effective date shall be changed to include the district, and the board shall immediately notify the secretary of the district which has been annexed of its action.

[~~7.~~] 6. Upon the effective date of the annexation, all indebtedness, property and money on hand belonging thereto shall immediately pass to the seven-director school district. If the district is annexed to more than one district, the provisions of sections 162.031 and 162.041 shall apply.

162.686. 1. No school district or charter school shall prohibit a parent or legal guardian of a student from recording by audio any meeting held under the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) (20 U.S.C. Section 1400 et seq.), as amended, or Section 504 of the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. Section 794), as amended.

2. Any recording made by a parent or legal guardian under this section shall be the property of the parent or legal guardian creating the recording. No recording made under this section shall be construed to be a public record made by or prepared for any public governmental body under chapter 610.

3. No school district or charter school shall impose pre-meeting notification requirements of recording by a parent or legal guardian of more than twenty-four hours.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

4. No school district or charter school employee who reports any violations under this section shall be subject to discharge, retaliation, or any other adverse employment action for making such report.

162.720. 1. (1) This subdivision shall apply to all school years ending on or before June 30, 2023. Where a sufficient number of children are determined to be gifted and their development requires programs or services beyond the level of those ordinarily provided in regular public school programs, districts may establish special programs for such gifted children.

(2) For all school years beginning on or after July 1, 2023, if three percent or more of students enrolled in a school district or charter school are determined to be gifted and their development requires programs or services beyond the level of those ordinarily provided in regular public school programs, the district or charter school shall establish a state-approved gifted program for gifted children.

2. For all school years beginning on or after July 1, 2023, any teacher providing gifted services to students in districts or charter schools with an average daily attendance of more than three hundred fifty students shall be certificated in gifted education. In districts or charter schools with an average daily attendance of three hundred fifty students or fewer, any teacher providing gifted services shall not be required to be certificated to teach gifted education but such teacher shall annually participate in at least six clock hours of professional development focused on gifted services, which hours shall be paid for by the school district.

3. The state board of education shall determine standards for such gifted programs and gifted services. Approval of [~~such~~] gifted programs shall be made by the state department of elementary and secondary education based upon project applications submitted [~~by July fifteenth of each year~~] at a time and in a form determined by the department of elementary and secondary education.

[~~4.~~] 5. Any district with a gifted education program approved under subsection [~~2~~] 3 of this section shall have a policy, approved by the board of education of the district, that establishes a process that outlines the procedures and conditions under which parents or guardians may request a review of the decision that determined that their child did not qualify to receive services through the district's gifted education program.

[~~5.~~] 6. School districts and school district employees shall be immune from liability for any and all acts or omissions relating to the decision that a child did not qualify to receive services through the district's gifted education program.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

7. The department of elementary and secondary education may promulgate rules to implement the provisions of this section and may develop a process to certify teachers in gifted education. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

162.974. 1. The state department of elementary and secondary education shall reimburse school districts, including special school districts, for the special educational costs of high-need children with an individualized education program exceeding three times the current expenditure per average daily attendance as calculated on the district annual secretary of the board report for the year in which expenditures are claimed. For any school district with an average daily attendance of five hundred students or fewer, the calculation of three times the current expenditure per average daily attendance shall not include any money reimbursed to a school district under this section.

2. A school district shall submit, through timely application, as determined by the state department of elementary and secondary education, the cost of serving any high-needs student with an individualized education program, as provided in subsection 1 of this section.

162.1250. 1. School districts shall receive state school funding under sections 163.031, 163.043, and 163.087 for resident students who are enrolled in the school district and who are taking a virtual course or full-time virtual program offered by the school district. The school district may offer instruction in a virtual setting using technology, intranet, and internet methods of communications that could take place outside of the regular school district facility. The school district may develop a virtual program for any grade level, kindergarten through twelfth grade, with the courses available in accordance with district policy to any resident student of the district who is enrolled in the school district. Nothing in this section shall preclude a private, parochial, or home school student residing within a school district offering virtual courses or virtual programs from enrolling in the school district in accordance with the combined enrollment provisions of section 167.031 for the purposes of participating in the virtual courses or virtual programs.

2. Charter schools shall receive state school funding under section 160.415 for students enrolled in the charter school who are completing a virtual course or full-time virtual program offered by the charter school. Charter schools may offer instruction in a virtual setting using technology, intranet, and internet methods of communications. The charter school may develop a virtual program for any grade level, kindergarten through twelfth grade, with the courses available in accordance with school policy and the charter school's charter to any student enrolled in the charter school.

3. For purposes of calculation and distribution of state school funding, attendance of a student enrolled in a district or charter school virtual class shall equal, upon course completion, [~~ninety-four~~] ninety-five percent of the hours of attendance possible for such class delivered in the nonvirtual program in the student's resident district or charter school. Course completion shall be calculated in two increments, fifty percent completion and one hundred percent completion, based on the student's completion of defined assignments and assessments, with distribution of state funding to a school district or charter school at each increment equal to forty-seven and one-half percent of hours of attendance possible for such course delivered in the nonvirtual program in a student's school district of residence or charter school.

4. When courses are purchased from an outside vendor, the district or charter school shall ensure that they are aligned with the show-me curriculum standards and comply with state requirements for teacher certification. The state board of education reserves the right to request information and materials sufficient to evaluate the online course. Online classes should be considered like any other class offered by the school district or charter school.

5. Any school district or charter school that offers instruction in a virtual setting, develops a virtual course or courses, or develops a virtual program of instruction shall ensure that the following standards are satisfied:

(1) The virtual course or virtual program utilizes appropriate content-specific tools and software;

(2) Orientation training is available for teachers, instructors, and students as needed;

(3) Privacy policies are stated and made available to teachers, instructors, and students;

(4) Academic integrity and internet etiquette expectations regarding lesson activities, discussions, electronic communications, and plagiarism are stated to teachers, instructors, and students prior to the beginning of the virtual course or virtual program;

(5) Computer system requirements, including hardware, web browser, and software, are specified to participants;

(6) The virtual course or virtual program architecture, software, and hardware permit the online teacher or instructor to add content, activities, and assessments to extend learning opportunities;

(7) The virtual course or virtual program makes resources available by alternative means, including but not limited to, video and podcasts;

(8) Resources and notes are available for teachers and instructors in addition to assessment and assignment answers and explanations;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(9) Technical support and course management are available to the virtual course or virtual program teacher and school coordinator;

(10) The virtual course or virtual program includes assignments, projects, and assessments that are aligned with students' different visual, auditory, and hands-on learning styles;

(11) The virtual course or virtual program demonstrates the ability to effectively use and incorporate subject-specific and developmentally appropriate software in an online learning module; and

(12) The virtual course or virtual program arranges media and content to help transfer knowledge most effectively in the online environment.

6. Any special school district shall count any student's completion of a virtual course or program in the same manner as the district counts completion of any other course or program for credit.

7. A school district or charter school may contract with multiple providers of virtual courses or virtual programs, provided they meet the criteria for virtual courses or virtual programs under this section.

(1) "Competency-based credit", credit awarded by school districts and charter schools to high school students upon demonstration of competency as determined by a school district.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001784

Such credit shall be awarded upon receipt of "proficient" or "advanced" on an end-of-course assessment;

(2) "Prior year average attendance percentage", the quotient of the district's or charter school's prior year average daily attendance divided by the district's or charter school's prior year average yearly enrollment.

2. School districts and charter schools shall receive state school funding under sections 163.031, 163.043, 163.044, and 163.087 for resident pupils enrolled in the school district or charter school and taking competency-based courses offered by the school district.

3. For purposes of calculation and distribution of state aid under section 163.031, attendance of a student enrolled in a district's or charter school's competency-based courses shall equal, upon course completion, the product of the district's or charter school's prior year average attendance percentage multiplied by the total number of attendance hours normally allocable to a noncompetency-based course of equal credit value.

4. The provisions of this section shall expire on August 28, 2028.

163.018. 1. (1) (a) Notwithstanding the definition of average daily attendance in subdivision (2) of section 163.011 to the contrary, pupils between the ages of three and five who are eligible for free and reduced price lunch and attend an early childhood education program shall be included in the district's or charter school's calculation of average daily attendance if the program is:

[~~(a) That is~~] a. Operated by and in a district or by a charter school that has declared itself as a local educational agency providing full-day kindergarten and that meets standards established by the state board of education; or

[~~(b) That is~~] b. Under contract with a district or charter school that has declared itself as a local educational agency and that meets standards established by the state board of education[~~,~~

~~shall be included in the district's or charter school's calculation of average daily attendance~~].

(b) The total number of such pupils included in the district's or charter school's calculation of average daily attendance shall not exceed four percent of the total number of pupils who are eligible for free and reduced price lunch between the ages of five and eighteen who are included in the district's or charter school's calculation of average daily attendance.

(2) If a pupil described under subdivision (1) of this subsection leaves an early childhood education program during the school year, a district or charter school shall be allowed to fill the vacant enrollment spot with another pupil between the ages of three and five who is eligible for free and reduced price lunch without affecting the district's or charter school's calculation of average daily attendance.

(3) Notwithstanding the definition of average daily attendance in subdivision (2) of section 163.011 to the contrary, beginning with the 2021-22 school year, the attendance included in the average daily attendance of a district or charter school shall include the attendance hours of pupils who attend a half-day early childhood education program of the district or charter school in the current year. This subdivision shall apply only to a district or charter school that did not offer an early childhood education program during the 2020-21 school year.

2. (1) In establishing standards for any early childhood education program that is under contract with a district or charter school that has declared itself as a local educational agency, the state board of education shall consider:

[~~(1)~~] (a) Whether a program offers full-day and full-year programming;

[~~(2)~~] (b) Whether a program has teacher-to-child ratios consistent with reasonable standards set by early childhood education program accrediting agencies;

[~~(3)~~] (c) Whether a program offers professional development supports for educators and the type of supports offered;

[~~(4)~~] (d) Whether a program uses appropriately credentialed educators;

[~~(5)~~] (e) Whether a program uses an early childhood education curriculum that has been approved by the department of elementary and secondary education and whether the curriculum is developmentally appropriate; and

[~~(6)~~] (f) Any other factor that the state board of education determines to be significant in ensuring that children achieve high levels of kindergarten readiness.

(2) The state board of education shall require that staff members of any early childhood education program that is under contract with a district or charter school that has declared itself as a local educational agency undergo background checks as described in section 168.133.

3. This section shall not require school attendance beyond that mandated under section 167.031 and shall not change or amend the provisions of sections 160.051, 160.053, 160.054, and 160.055 relating to kindergarten attendance.

166.400. Sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 shall be known and may be cited as the "Missouri Education [~~Savings~~] Program".

166.410. [~~Definitions.~~] As used in sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, except where the context clearly requires another interpretation, the following terms mean:

(1) "Beneficiary", any individual designated by a participation agreement to benefit from payments for qualified education expenses at an eligible educational institution;

(2) "Benefits", the payment of qualified education expenses on behalf of a beneficiary from a savings account during the beneficiary's attendance at an eligible educational institution;

(3) "Board", the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program board established in section 166.415;

(4) "Eligible educational institution", an [~~institution of postsecondary education~~] eligible educational institution as defined in Section [~~529(e)(5)~~] 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, [~~and institutions of elementary and secondary education as provided in Sections 529(c)(7) and 529(e)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code,~~] as amended;

(5) "Financial institution", a bank, insurance company or registered investment company;

(6) "Internal Revenue Code", the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended;

(7) "Missouri education [~~savings~~] program" or "[~~savings~~] program", the program created pursuant to sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456;

(8) "Participant", a person who has entered into a participation agreement pursuant to sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 for the advance payment of qualified education expenses on behalf of a beneficiary;

(9) "Participation agreement", an agreement between a participant and the board pursuant to and conforming with the requirements of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456; and

(10) "Qualified higher education expenses" or "qualified education expenses", the qualified costs of tuition and fees and other expenses for attendance at an eligible educational institution, as defined in Section [~~529(e)(3)~~] 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, as amended.

166.415. 1. There is hereby created the "Missouri Education [~~Savings~~] Program". The program shall be administered by the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program board which shall consist of the Missouri state treasurer who shall serve as chairman, the commissioner of the department of higher education and workforce development, the commissioner of education, the commissioner of the office of administration, the director of the department of economic development, two persons having demonstrable experience and knowledge in the areas of finance or the investment and management of public funds, one of whom is selected by the president pro tem of the senate and one of whom is selected by the speaker of the house of representatives, and one person having demonstrable experience and knowledge in the area of banking or deposit rate determination and placement of depository certificates of deposit or other deposit investments. Such member shall be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate. The three appointed members shall be appointed to serve for terms of four years from the date of appointment, or until their successors shall have been appointed and shall have qualified. The members of the board shall be subject to the conflict of interest provisions of section 105.452. Any member who violates the conflict of interest provisions shall be removed from the board. In order to establish and administer the [~~savings~~] program, the board, in addition to its other powers and authority, shall have the power and authority to:

(1) Develop and implement the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program and, notwithstanding any provision of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 to the contrary, the [~~savings~~] programs and services consistent with the purposes and objectives of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456;

(2) Promulgate reasonable rules and regulations and establish policies and procedures to implement sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, to permit the [~~savings~~] program to qualify as a "qualified state tuition program" pursuant to Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code and to ensure the [~~savings~~] program's compliance with all applicable laws;

(3) Develop and implement educational programs and related informational materials for participants, either directly or through a contractual arrangement with a financial institution for investment services, and their families, including special programs and materials to inform families with young children regarding methods for financing education and training;

(4) Enter into agreements with any financial institution, the state or any federal or other agency or entity as required for the operation of the [~~savings~~] program pursuant to sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456;

(5) Enter into participation agreements with participants;

(6) Accept any grants, gifts, legislative appropriations, and other moneys from the state, any unit of federal, state, or local government or any other person, firm, partnership, or corporation for deposit to the account of the [~~savings~~] program;

(7) Invest the funds received from participants in appropriate investment instruments to achieve long-term total return through a combination of capital appreciation and current income;

(8) Make appropriate payments and distributions on behalf of beneficiaries pursuant to participation agreements;

(9) Make refunds to participants upon the termination of participation agreements pursuant to the provisions, limitations, and restrictions set forth in sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 and the rules adopted by the board;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001791

(10) Make provision for the payment of costs of administration and operation of the [~~savings~~] program;

(11) Effectuate and carry out all the powers granted by sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, and have all other powers necessary to carry out and effectuate the purposes, objectives and provisions of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 pertaining to the [~~savings~~] program; and

(12) Procure insurance, guarantees or other protections against any loss in connection with the assets or activities of the [~~savings~~] program.

2. Any member of the board may designate a proxy for that member who will enjoy the full voting privileges of that member for the one meeting so specified by that member. No more than three proxies shall be considered members of the board for the purpose of establishing a quorum.

3. Four members of the board shall constitute a quorum. No vacancy in the membership of the board shall impair the right of a quorum to exercise all the rights and perform all the duties of the board. No action shall be taken by the board except upon the affirmative vote of a majority of the members present.

4. The board shall meet within the state of Missouri at the time set at a previously scheduled meeting or by the request of any four members of the board. Notice of the meeting shall be delivered to all other trustees in person or by depositing notice in a United States post office in a properly stamped and addressed envelope not less than six days prior to the date fixed for the meeting. The board may meet at any time by unanimous mutual consent. There shall be at least one meeting in each quarter.

5. The funds shall be invested only in those investments which a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with these matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims, as provided in section 105.688. For new contracts entered into after August 28, 2012, board members shall study investment plans of other states and contract with or negotiate to provide benefit options the same as or similar to other states' qualified plans for the purpose of offering additional options for members of the plan. The board may delegate to duly appointed investment counselors authority to act in place of the board in the investment and reinvestment of all or part of the moneys and may also delegate to such counselors the authority to act in place of the board in the holding, purchasing, selling, assigning, transferring or disposing of any or all of the securities and investments in which such moneys shall have been invested, as well as the proceeds of such investments and such moneys. Such investment counselors shall be registered as investment advisors with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. In exercising or delegating its investment powers and authority, members of the board shall exercise ordinary business care and prudence under the facts and circumstances prevailing at the time of the action or decision. No member of the board shall be liable for any action taken or omitted with respect to the exercise of, or delegation of, these powers and authority if such member shall have discharged the duties of [~~his or her~~] the member's position in good faith and with that degree of diligence, care and skill which a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with these matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims.

6. No investment transaction authorized by the board shall be handled by any company or firm in which a member of the board has a substantial interest, nor shall any member of the board profit directly or indirectly from any such investment.

7. No trustee or employee of the [~~savings~~] program shall receive any gain or profit from any funds or transaction of the [~~savings~~] program. Any trustee, employee or agent of the [~~savings~~] program accepting any gratuity or compensation for the purpose of influencing such trustee's, employee's or agent's action with respect to the investment or management of the funds of the [~~savings~~] program shall thereby forfeit the office and in addition thereto be subject to the penalties prescribed for bribery.

8. The state treasurer may delegate any duties assigned to the state treasurer under sections 135.712 to 135.719 and 166.700 to 166.720 to the Missouri education program board established under this section.

166.420. 1. The board may enter into [~~savings~~] program participation agreements with participants on behalf of beneficiaries pursuant to the provisions of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, including the following terms and conditions:

(1) A participation agreement shall stipulate the terms and conditions of the [~~savings~~] program in which the participant makes contributions;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(2) A participation agreement shall specify the method for calculating the return on the contribution made by the participant;

(3) The execution of a participation agreement by the board shall not guarantee that the beneficiary named in any participation agreement will be admitted to an eligible educational institution, be allowed to continue to attend an eligible educational institution after having been admitted or will graduate from an eligible educational institution;

(4) A participation agreement shall clearly and prominently disclose to participants the risk associated with depositing moneys with the board;

(5) Participation agreements shall be organized and presented in a way and with language that is easily understandable by the general public; and

(6) A participation agreement shall clearly and prominently disclose to participants the existence of any load charge or similar charge assessed against the accounts of the participants for administration or services.

2. The board shall establish the maximum amount [~~which~~] that may be contributed annually [~~by a participant~~] with respect to a beneficiary.

3. The board shall establish a total contribution limit for savings accounts established under the [~~savings~~] program with respect to a beneficiary to permit the [~~savings~~] program to qualify as a "qualified state tuition program" pursuant to Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code. No contribution may be made to a savings account for a beneficiary if it would cause the balance of all savings accounts of the beneficiary to exceed the total contribution limit established by the board. The board may establish other requirements that it deems appropriate to provide adequate safeguards to prevent contributions on behalf of a beneficiary from exceeding what is necessary to provide for the qualified education expenses of the beneficiary.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

4. The board shall establish the minimum length of time that contributions and earnings must be held by the [~~savings~~] program to qualify pursuant to section 166.435. Any contributions or earnings that are withdrawn or distributed from a savings account prior to the expiration of the minimum length of time, as established by the board, shall be subject to a penalty pursuant to section 166.430.

166.425. All money paid by a participant in connection with participation agreements shall be deposited as received and shall be promptly invested by the board. Contributions and earnings thereon accumulated on behalf of participants in the [~~savings~~] program may be used, as provided in the participation agreement, for qualified education expenses. Such contributions and earnings shall not be considered income for purposes of determining a participant's eligibility for financial assistance under any state student aid program.

166.435. 1. Notwithstanding any law to the contrary, the assets of the [~~savings~~] program held by the board, the assets of any deposit program authorized in section 166.500, and the assets of any qualified tuition [~~savings~~] program established pursuant to Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code and any income therefrom shall be exempt from all taxation by the state or any of its political subdivisions. Income earned or received from the [~~savings~~] program, deposit, or other qualified tuition [~~savings~~] programs established under Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, or refunds of qualified education expenses received by a beneficiary from an eligible educational institution in connection with withdrawal from enrollment at such institution which are contributed within sixty days of withdrawal to a qualified tuition [~~savings~~] program of which such individual is a beneficiary shall not be subject to state income tax imposed pursuant to chapter 143 and shall be eligible for any benefits provided in accordance with Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code. The exemption from taxation pursuant to this section shall apply only to assets and income maintained, accrued, or expended pursuant to the requirements of the [~~savings~~] program established pursuant to sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, the deposit program established pursuant to sections 166.500 to 166.529, and other qualified tuition [~~savings~~] programs established under Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, and no exemption shall apply to assets and income expended for any other purposes. Annual contributions made to the [~~savings~~] program held by the board, the deposit program, and any qualified tuition [~~savings~~] program established under Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code up to and including eight thousand dollars per [~~participating~~] taxpayer, and up to sixteen thousand dollars for married individuals filing a joint tax return, shall be subtracted in determining Missouri adjusted gross income pursuant to section 143.121.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. If any deductible contributions to or earnings from any such program referred to in this section are distributed and not used to pay qualified education expenses, not transferred as allowed by 26 U.S.C. Section 529(c)(3)(C)(i), as amended, and any Internal Revenue Service regulations or guidance issued in relation thereto, or are not held for the minimum length of time established by the appropriate Missouri board, then the amount so distributed shall be included in the Missouri adjusted gross income of the participant, or, if the participant is not living, the beneficiary.

3. The provisions of this section shall apply to tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2008, and the provisions of this section with regard to sections 166.500 to 166.529 shall apply to tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2004.

166.440. The assets of the [~~savings~~] program shall at all times be preserved, invested and expended only for the purposes set forth in this section and in accordance with the participation agreements, and no property rights therein shall exist in favor of the state.

166.456. All personally identifiable information concerning participants and beneficiaries of accounts established within the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program pursuant to sections 166.400 to 166.456 shall be confidential, and any disclosure of such information shall be restricted to purposes directly connected with the administration of the program.

166.502. As used in sections 166.500 to 166.529, except where the context clearly requires another interpretation, the following terms mean:

(1) "Beneficiary", any individual designated by a participation agreement to benefit from payments for qualified higher education expenses at an eligible educational institution;

(2) "Benefits", the payment of qualified higher education expenses on behalf of a beneficiary from a deposit account during the beneficiary's attendance at an eligible educational institution;

(3) "Board", the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program board established in section 166.415;

(4) "Eligible educational institution", an institution of postsecondary education as defined in Section 529(e)(5) of the Internal Revenue Code;

(5) "Financial institution", a depository institution and any intermediary that brokers certificates of deposits;

(6) "Internal Revenue Code", the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended;

(7) "Missouri higher education deposit program" or "deposit program", the program created pursuant to sections 166.500 to 166.529;

(8) "Participant", a person who has entered into a participation agreement pursuant to sections 166.500 to 166.529 for the advance payment of qualified higher education expenses on behalf of a beneficiary;

(9) "Participation agreement", an agreement between a participant and the board pursuant to and conforming with the requirements of sections 166.500 to 166.529;

(10) "Qualified higher education expenses", the qualified costs of tuition and fees and other expenses for attendance at an eligible educational institution, as defined in Section 529(e)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.

167.263. 1. A program to provide teacher assistants in regular classrooms in grades kindergarten through three is established. For the purposes of this section a "teacher assistant" is defined as a qualified person employed by a school district to assist a certificated teacher in classroom instruction and management. No teacher assistant shall be counted as a teacher for the purposes of establishing ratios of teachers to pupils in a classroom, school, or school district. Any public elementary school containing such grades [~~which~~] that meets the criteria pursuant to this section shall be eligible for a state financial supplement to employ teacher assistants. Eligibility criteria are that the school shall have a breakfast program, the school shall serve at least forty percent of its lunches to pupils who are eligible for free or reduced price meals according to federal guidelines, and the school shall have a reading [~~intervention~~] success plan for any student who requires such a plan pursuant to section 167.268.

2. A school district [~~which~~] that contains such eligible schools may apply to the department of elementary and secondary education for a state financial supplement to employ teacher assistants in those schools named in the application and in no other schools of the district. The state full-time equivalent financial supplement shall be three thousand dollars per teacher assistant. No more than one assistant per classroom shall be supplemented by the state pursuant to this section. Teacher assistants thus employed pursuant to this section shall assist teachers in grades kindergarten through three and in no other grades. School districts shall not apply for or assign teacher assistants employed pursuant to this section in classrooms designated as special education or compensatory education classrooms.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3. The state board of education shall promulgate rules and regulations for the implementation of this section. Such rules shall include identifying minimum qualifications for teacher assistants which may include teacher education students, determining the minimum number of pupils per classroom to be eligible for a teacher assistant, establishing application procedures for school districts, and determining a method of awarding state financial supplements in the event that the number of applications exceeds the amounts appropriated therefor. No rule or portion of a rule promulgated under the authority of this chapter shall become effective unless it has been promulgated pursuant to the provisions of section 536.024.

167.268. 1. The state board of education, in collaboration with the coordinating board for higher education and the literacy advisory council established under section 186.080, shall develop

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

a plan to establish a comprehensive system of services for reading instruction.

2. Each local school district and charter school shall have on file a policy for reading [~~intervention~~] success plans for any pupils of the district or charter school in grades kindergarten through [~~three~~] four pursuant to the provisions of this section. Such plans shall identify strategies to be followed by the district or charter school teachers to raise a pupil identified as reading below grade level by recognized methods to reading at grade level by the end of the [~~third~~] fourth grade. Recognized methods of identification may include but need not be limited to the scores of the pupil obtained through any established standardized testing program currently administered by the district or charter school, observations of classroom teachers, and documented classroom performance. The local policy shall be aligned with the guidelines developed by the department of elementary and secondary education for reading success plans.

[~~2.~~] 3. The [~~state board of~~] department of elementary and secondary education shall develop guidelines to assist school districts and charter schools in formulating policies for reading [~~intervention~~] success plans. Such guidelines may include, but are not limited to, measures of reading proficiency, strategies for addressing reading deficiencies and disorders, timelines for measuring pupil improvement in reading, and information on screening for and treatment of [~~auditory dyslexia, and information on the Lindamood Auditory Conceptualization Test and the Auditory Discrimination in Depth Program~~] dyslexia and other

2. As used in this section, the following terms mean:

(1) "Individualized emergency health care plan", a document developed by a school nurse, in consultation with a student's parent and other appropriate medical professionals, that is consistent with the recommendations of the student's health care providers, that describes procedural guidelines that provide specific directions about what to do in a particular emergency situation, and that is signed by the parent and the school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse;

(2) "Individualized health care plan", a document developed by a school nurse, in consultation with a student's parent and other appropriate medical professionals who may be providing epilepsy or seizure disorder care to the student, that is consistent with the recommendations of the student's health care providers, that describes the health services needed by the student at school, and that is signed by the parent and the school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse;

(3) "Parent", a parent, guardian, or other person having charge, control, or custody of a student;

(4) "School", any public elementary or secondary school or charter school;

(5) "School employee", a person employed by a school;

(6) "Student", a student who has epilepsy or a seizure disorder and who attends a school.

3. (1) The parent of a student who seeks epilepsy or seizure disorder care while at school shall inform the school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse. The school nurse shall develop an individualized health care plan and an individualized emergency health care plan for the student. The parent of the student shall annually provide to the school written authorization for the provision of epilepsy or seizure disorder care as described in the individualized plans.

(2) The individualized plans developed under subdivision (1) of this subsection shall be updated by the school nurse before the beginning of each school year and as necessary if there is a change in the health status of the student.

(3) Each individualized health care plan shall, and each individualized emergency health care plan may, include but not be limited to the following information:

(a) A notice about the student's condition for all school employees who interact with the student;

(b) Written orders from the student's physician or advanced practice nurse describing the epilepsy or seizure disorder care;

(c) The symptoms of the epilepsy or seizure disorder for that particular student and recommended care;

(d) Whether the student may fully participate in exercise and sports, and any contraindications to exercise or accommodations that shall be made for that particular student;

(e) Accommodations for school trips, after-school activities, class parties, and other school-related activities;

(f) Information for such school employees about how to recognize and provide care for epilepsy and seizure disorders, epilepsy and seizure disorder first aid training, when to call for assistance, emergency contact information, and parent contact information;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(g) Medical and treatment issues that may affect the educational process of the student;

(h) The student's ability to manage, and the student's level of understanding of, the student's epilepsy or seizure disorder; and

(i) How to maintain communication with the student, the student's parent and health care team, the school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse, and the school employees.

4. (1) The school nurse assigned to a particular school or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse shall coordinate the provision of epilepsy and seizure disorder care at that school and ensure that all school employees are trained every two years in the care of students with epilepsy and seizure disorders including, but not limited to, school employees working with school-sponsored programs outside of the regular school day, as provided in the student's individualized plans.

(2) The training required under subdivision (1) of this subsection shall include an online or in-person course of instruction approved by the department of health and senior services that is provided by a reputable, local, Missouri-based health care or nonprofit organization that supports the welfare of individuals with epilepsy and seizure disorders.

5. The school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse shall obtain a release from a student's parent to authorize the sharing of medical information between the student's physician or advanced practice nurse and other health care providers. The release shall also authorize the school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse to share medical information with other school employees in the school district as necessary. No sharing of information under this subsection shall be construed to be a violation of the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) (Pub. L. 104-191), as amended, if a student's parent has provided a release under this subsection.

6. No school employee including, but not limited to, a school nurse, a school bus driver, a school bus aide, or any other officer or agent of a school shall be held liable for any good faith act or omission consistent with the provisions of this section, nor shall an action before the state board of nursing lie against a school nurse for any such action taken by a school employee trained in good faith by the school nurse under this section. "Good faith" shall not be construed to include willful misconduct, gross negligence, or recklessness.

167.645. 1. For purposes of this section, the following terms mean:

(1) "Dyslexia", the same meaning given to the term in

section 633.420;

(2) "Evidence-based reading instruction", scientific, research-based interventions that have been peer reviewed with substantial evidence of their effectiveness through multiple outcome evaluation;

(3) "Reading assessment", a recognized method of judging a student's reading ability, with results expressed as reading at a particular grade level. The term reading assessment shall include, but is not limited to, standard checklists designed for use as a student reads out loud, paper-and-pencil tests or tests electronically provided via computer or other electronic means and promulgated by nationally recognized organizations and other recognized methods of determining a student's reading accuracy, expression, fluency and comprehension in order to make a determination of the student's grade-level reading ability. Assessments [~~which~~] that do not give a grade-level result may be used in combination with other assessments to reach a grade-level determination. Districts and charter schools are encouraged but not required to select assessment methods identified pursuant to section 167.346. Districts and charter schools are [~~also~~] encouraged to use multiple methods of assessment;

[~~(2)~~] (4) "Structured literacy", an evidence-based reading instruction that addresses phonology, sound-symbol association, syllable instruction, morphology, syntax, and semantics when such instruction is taught through systematic, cumulative, explicit, and diagnostic methods;

(5) "Summer school", for reading instruction purposes, a minimum of forty hours of reading instruction and practice. A school district or charter school may arrange the hours and days of instruction to coordinate with its regular program of summer school.

2. For purposes of this section, methods of reading assessment shall be determined by each school district and charter school. Each school district and charter school shall provide training on the administration of reading assessments to all kindergarten through fifth grade teachers and any other personnel who provide literacy instruction. Unless a student has been determined in the [~~current~~] previous school year to be reading at grade level or above, each school district and charter school shall administer a reading assessment or set of assessments to each student within [~~forty-five days of the end of the third-grade year~~] the first thirty calendar days of school for grades one through four, and by January thirty-first for kindergarten, except that the provisions of this subsection shall not apply to students receiving special education services under an individualized education plan pursuant to sections 162.670 to 162.999, to students receiving services pursuant to Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 whose services plan includes an element addressing reading or to students determined to have limited English proficiency or to students who have been determined, prior to the beginning of any school year, to have a cognitive ability insufficient to meet the reading requirement set out in this section, provided that districts and charter schools shall provide reading [~~improvement~~] success plans for students with an individualized education plan that have a reading deficiency, for students receiving services under Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 whose service plan includes an element addressing reading, and to students determined to have such insufficient cognitive ability. The assessment required by this subsection shall also be required for students who enter a school district or charter school in grades four, five, or six unless such student has been determined in the current school year to be reading at grade level or above.

3. [~~Beginning with school year 2002-03, for each student whose third-grade reading assessment determines that such student is reading below second-grade level, the school district shall design a reading improvement plan for the student's fourth-grade year. Such reading improvement plan shall include, at a minimum, thirty hours of additional reading instruction or practice outside the regular school day during the fourth-grade year.~~] (1) School districts and charter schools shall offer a reading success plan to each student in grades kindergarten through four who exhibits a reading deficiency, has been identified as being at risk for dyslexia in the statewide dyslexia screening requirement, or has a formal diagnosis of dyslexia to ensure students can read at or above grade level by the end of the fourth grade. School districts and charter schools shall consider the input of teachers and other building-level staff when identifying students for reading success plans. The reading success plan shall be provided in addition to core reading instruction that is provided to all students in the general education classroom. The reading success plan shall:

(a) Include, at a minimum, thirty hours of additional reading instruction or practice outside the regular school day during the fourth-grade year;

(b) Be provided to all students in grades kindergarten through four identified with a reading deficiency as determined by the school district or charter school using local or statewide screening assessments administered within the first thirty days of school for grades one through four, and by January thirty-first for kindergarten;

(c) Provide explicit and systematic multisensory instruction in phonological awareness, phonics, fluency, vocabulary, and comprehension as applicable to each student;

(d) Monitor the reading progress of each student's reading skills throughout the school year and adjust instruction according to the student's needs; and

(e) Be implemented during regular school hours.

(2) A structured literacy reading program shall be provided to any student with a formal diagnosis of dyslexia or for a student who was found to be at risk for dyslexia in the statewide dyslexia screening.

(3) If a student who is provided a reading success plan is determined to not be reading at or above grade level by the end of second grade, the student shall receive structured literacy instruction as well as additional support and services including, but not limited to:

(a) Frequent, targeted reading intervention based on the

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

student's needs and provided in a small-group or one-on-one setting;

(b) Frequent monitoring of the student's reading skills throughout the school year; and

(c) Adjustment of the structured literacy instruction and reading interventions according to the student's needs.

(4) For students in grades six through twelve, school districts and charter schools shall continue to address the reading deficiencies of any student for whom the deficiency creates a barrier to success in school.

4. A reading success plan shall be created for a student within forty-five days following the identification of a reading deficiency by such student's teacher and other pertinent school personnel, after consultation with the student's parent or legal guardian, and shall describe the evidence-based reading intervention services the student shall receive to remedy the deficiency. The reading success plan shall specify whether the student was found to be at risk for dyslexia in the local or statewide dyslexia screening requirement or whether the student has a formal diagnosis of dyslexia. Each student shall receive appropriate reading intervention until the student no longer has a deficiency in reading.

5. The school district or charter school shall determine the [~~method of reading instruction~~] specific structured literacy curriculum necessary to enforce this [~~subsection~~] section. The school district or charter school may also require the student to attend summer school for reading instruction as a condition of promotion to fourth grade. The department of elementary and secondary education may, from funds appropriated for the purpose, reimburse school districts and charter schools for additional instructional personnel costs incurred in the implementation and execution of the thirty hours of additional reading instruction minus the revenue generated by the school district or charter school through the foundation formula for the additional reading instruction average daily attendance.

[~~4.~~] 6. Each student for whom a reading [~~improvement~~] success plan has been designed pursuant to subsection 3 of this section shall be given another reading assessment, to be administered within forty-five days of the end of such student's fourth-grade year. If such student is determined to be reading below third-grade level at the end of the third grade, the student shall be [~~required to attend summer school to receive reading instruction. At the end of such summer school instruction, such student shall be given another reading assessment. If such student is determined to be reading below third-grade level, the district shall notify the student's parents or guardians, and the student shall not be promoted to fifth grade. No student shall be denied promotion more than once solely for inability to meet the reading standards set out in this section.~~

~~5. The process described in subsections 3 and 4 of this section shall be repeated as necessary through the end of the sixth grade, with the target grade level rising accordingly. Mandatory retention in grade shall not apply to grades subsequent~~

~~6. The mandatory process of additional reading instruction pursuant to this section shall cease at the end of the sixth grade. The permanent record of students who are determined to be reading below the fifth-grade level at the end of sixth grade shall carry a notation advising that such student has not met minimal reading standards. The notation shall stay on the student's record until such time as the district determines that a student has met minimal reading standards~~] referred for an evaluation for an individualized education plan (IEP) and the district shall provide appropriate intensive structured literacy instruction on a one-to-one individualized basis. If the student does not qualify for an IEP under the state guidelines for qualification, the student shall continue to receive appropriate intensive structured literacy instruction on a one-to-one individualized basis until the student is reading at grade level.

7. Each school district and charter school shall be required to offer summer school reading instruction to any student with a reading [~~improvement~~] success plan. Districts and charter schools may fulfill the requirement of this section through cooperative arrangements with neighboring districts[~~, provided that such districts shall timely make all payments provided pursuant to such cooperative agreements~~].

8. A school district or charter school may adopt a policy that requires retention in grade of any student who has been determined to require summer school instruction in reading and who does not fulfill the summer school attendance requirement.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

9. Nothing in this section shall preclude a school district or charter school from retaining any student in grade when a determination is made in accordance with district or charter school policy that retention is in the best interests of the student.

10. The state board of education shall evaluate and give weight to district and charter school reading interventions and compliance with the provisions of this section within the Missouri school improvement program.

11. The state board of education shall not incorporate information about the number of students receiving additional instruction pursuant to this section into any element of any standard of the Missouri school improvement program or its successor accreditation program; provided, however, each district or charter school shall make available, upon the request of any parent, patron, advocacy group, or media outlet [~~within the district~~], the number and percentage of students receiving remediation pursuant to this section. The information shall be presented in a way that does not permit personal identification of any student or educational personnel.

Such communication may be through electronic or other means; however, effort shall be made to ensure a parent received such communication. The notice shall state that the student has been identified as having a deficiency in reading identified through a screening or other method. The communication shall also note if the student screened positive for the characteristics of dyslexia. Additionally, the communication shall include the following information:

(1) That a reading success plan for the student shall be developed by the teacher and other personnel;

(2) A description of the current services and proposed, evidence-based structured literacy interventions and supplemental services;

(3) That the parent or guardian shall have the opportunity for input regarding the reading success plan;

(4) The timing for periodic updates on student progress, which shall be aligned with other normal interim student progress updates to the extent practicable; and

(5) Suggested strategies for use at home to help the student succeed in reading.

13. The department of elementary and secondary education may promulgate rules to implement the provisions of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

167.903. 1. Each student prior to [~~his or her~~] the student's ninth grade year at a public school, including a charter school, [~~may~~] shall develop with help from the student's parent or guardian and the school's guidance counselors [~~a personal~~] an individual career and academic plan [~~of study~~], which shall be reviewed [~~regularly, as needed~~] annually by school personnel and the student's parent or guardian and updated based upon the needs of the student. Each plan shall present a sequence of courses and experiences that conclude with the student reaching [~~his or her~~] the student's postsecondary goals, with implementation of the plan [~~of study~~] transferring to the program of postsecondary education or training upon the student's high school graduation. The plan shall include, but not be limited to:

(1) Requirements for graduation from the school district or charter school;

(2) Career or postsecondary goals;

(3) Coursework or program of study related to career and postsecondary goals, which shall include, if relevant, opportunities that the district or school may not directly offer;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(4) Grade-appropriate and career-related experiences, as outlined in the grade-level expectations of the Missouri comprehensive guidance program; and

(5) Student assessments, interest inventories, or academic results needed to develop, review, and revise the personal plan of study, which shall include, if relevant, assessments, inventories, or academic results that the school district or charter school may not offer.

2. Each school district shall adopt a policy to permit the waiver of the requirements of this section for any student with a disability if recommended by the student's IEP committee. For purposes of this subsection, "IEP" means individualized education program.

3. Each student prior to the completion of the second semester of the student's twelfth-grade year shall include, as part of the student's individual career and academic plan, a declaration of the student's postsecondary plans including, but not limited to, the following:

(1) Confirmation of employment upon graduation;

(2) Acceptance to an institution of higher education, whether a two-year institution or a four-year institution;

(3) Acceptance to participate in a vocational, technical, or other training program designed to prepare the student for employment; or

(4) Commitment to enlist in the Armed Forces of the United States.

167.907. 1. No pupil shall receive a certificate of graduation from any public school or charter school unless the pupil has completed and submitted the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, as maintained by the United States Department of Education.

2. A student shall be exempt from the requirement to complete or submit the Free Application for Federal Student Aid under subsection 1 of this section if such student submits to the student's school:

(1) Written confirmation of a commitment to enlist in the Armed Forces of the United States; or

(2) A written document or form, signed by the student's parent or guardian, attesting that the student understands what the application is and has chosen not to file such application.

3. A student shall be exempt from the requirement to complete or submit the Free Application for Federal Student Aid under subsection 1 of this section if such student is unable to complete the application because of extenuating circumstances.

4. This section shall become effective on July 1, 2022.

167.908. 1. The department of higher education and workforce development shall, by rule, establish a procedure for providing the means and capability for high school students enrolled in career and technical education programs described in section 170.029 to complete an application for aid through the Employment and Training Administration of the United States Department of Labor under the federal Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act. The department shall work with school districts that deliver career and technical education programs to educate students on the value of the aid that is available to them through the federal Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act.

2. To accomplish the purposes of subsection 1 of this section, the department shall ensure that the following percentages of all department of elementary and secondary education area career centers that deliver career and technical education programs have the means and capability for students at such schools to complete an application for aid through the Employment and Training Administration of the United States Department of Labor under the federal Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act:

(1) For the 2021-22 school year, fifty percent;

(2) For the 2022-23 school year, seventy percent;

(3) For the 2023-24 school year, ninety percent; and

(4) For the 2024-25 school year and every school year thereafter, one hundred percent.

168.021. 1. Certificates of license to teach in the public schools of the state shall be granted as follows:

(1) By the state board, under rules and regulations prescribed by it:

(a) Upon the basis of college credit;

(b) Upon the basis of examination;

(2) By the state board, under rules and regulations prescribed by the state board with advice from the advisory council established by section 168.015 to any individual who presents to the state board a valid doctoral degree from an accredited institution of higher education accredited by a regional accrediting association such as North Central Association. Such certificate shall be limited to the major area of postgraduate study of the holder, shall be issued only after successful completion of the examination required for graduation pursuant to rules adopted by the state board of education, and shall be restricted to those certificates established pursuant to subdivision (2) of subsection 3 of this section;

(3) By the state board, which shall issue the professional certificate classification in both the general and specialized areas most closely aligned with the current areas of certification approved by the state board, commensurate with the years of teaching experience of the applicant, and based upon the following criteria:

(a) Recommendation of a state-approved baccalaureate-level teacher preparation program;

(b) a. Successful attainment of the Missouri qualifying score on the exit assessment for teachers or administrators designated by the state board of education[~~,~~] ;

b. (i) Applicants who have not successfully achieved a qualifying score on the designated examinations will be issued a two-year nonrenewable provisional certificate;

(ii) During the two-year nonrenewable provisional certification, an individual teacher may gain full professional certification by:

i. Achieving a qualifying score on the designated exam; or

ii. Successfully achieving an acceptable score on the state-approved teacher evaluation system from seven walk-through evaluations, two formative evaluations, and one summative evaluation for each of the two probationary years and being offered a third contract by the employing district. For any applicant who has a change in job status because of a reduction in the workforce or a change in life circumstances, the scores required under this item may be scores achieved in any school district during the two-year nonrenewable provisional certification period;

(iii) The employing school district shall recommend to the department of elementary and secondary education that the individual teacher be awarded a full professional certification by the state board under rules prescribed by the state board; and

(c) Upon completion of a background check as prescribed in section 168.133 and possession of a valid teaching certificate in the state from which the applicant's teacher preparation program was completed;

(4) By the state board, under rules prescribed by it, on the basis of a relevant bachelor's degree, or higher degree, and a passing score for the designated exit examination, for individuals whose academic degree and professional experience are suitable to provide a basis for instruction solely in the subject matter of banking or financial responsibility, at the discretion of the state board. Such certificate shall be limited to the major area of study of the holder and shall be restricted to those certificates established under subdivision (2) of subsection 3 of this section. Holders of certificates granted under this subdivision shall be exempt from the teacher tenure act under sections 168.102 to 168.130 and each school district shall have the decision-making authority on whether to hire the holders of such certificates;

(5) By the state board, under rules and regulations prescribed by it, on the basis of certification by the American Board for Certification of Teacher Excellence (ABCTE) and verification of ability to work with children as demonstrated by sixty contact hours in any one of the following areas as validated by the school principal: sixty contact hours in the classroom, of which at least forty-five must be teaching; sixty contact hours as a substitute teacher, with at least thirty consecutive hours in the same classroom; sixty contact hours of teaching in a private school; or sixty contact hours of teaching as a paraprofessional, for an initial four-year ABCTE certificate of license to teach, except that such certificate shall not be granted for the areas of early childhood education, or special education. For certification in the area of elementary education, ninety contact hours in the classroom shall be required, of which at least thirty shall be in an elementary classroom. Upon the completion of the following requirements [~~listed in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), and (d) of this subdivision~~], an applicant shall be eligible to apply for a career continuous professional certificate under subdivision (3) of subsection 3 of this section:

(a) Completion of thirty contact hours of professional development within four years, which may include hours spent in class in an appropriate college curriculum;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001823

(b) Validated completion of two years of the mentoring program of the American Board for Certification of Teacher Excellence or a district mentoring program approved by the state board of education;

(c) Attainment of a successful performance-based teacher evaluation; and

(d) Participation in a beginning teacher assistance program; or

(6) (a) By the state board, under rules and regulations prescribed by [~~it~~] the board, which shall issue an initial visiting scholars certificate at the discretion of the board, based on the following criteria:

[~~(a)~~] a. Verification from the hiring school district that the applicant will be employed [~~as part of a business-education partnership initiative designed~~] to build career pathways systems or employed as part of an initiative designed to fill vacant positions in hard-to-staff public schools or hard-to-fill subject areas for students in a grade or grades not lower than the ninth grade for which the applicant's academic degree or professional experience qualifies [~~him or her~~] the applicant;

[~~(b)~~] b. Appropriate and relevant bachelor's degree or higher, occupational license, or industry-recognized credential;

[~~(c)~~] c. Completion of the application for a one-year visiting scholars certificate; and [~~(d)~~] d. Completion of a background check as prescribed under section 168.133.

(b) The initial visiting scholars certificate shall certify the holder of such certificate to teach for one year. An applicant shall be eligible to renew an initial visiting scholars certificate a maximum of [~~two~~] four times, based upon the completion of the requirements listed under [~~paragraphs (a), (b), and (d)~~] subparagraphs a., b., and d. of paragraph (a) of this subdivision; completion of professional development required by the school district and school; and attainment of a satisfactory performance-based teacher evaluation.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. All valid teaching certificates issued pursuant to law or state board policies and regulations prior to September 1, 1988, shall be exempt from the professional development requirements of this section and shall continue in effect until they expire, are revoked or suspended, as provided by law. When such certificates are required to be renewed, the state board or its designee shall grant to each holder of such a certificate the certificate most nearly equivalent to the one so held. Anyone who holds, as of August 28, 2003, a valid PC-I, PC-II, or continuous professional certificate shall, upon expiration of [~~his or her~~] the person's current certificate, be issued the appropriate level of certificate based upon the classification system established pursuant to subsection 3 of this section.

3. (1) Certificates of license to teach in the public schools of the state shall be based upon minimum requirements prescribed by the state board of education which shall include completion of a background check as prescribed in section 168.133. The state board shall provide for the following levels of professional certification: an initial professional certificate and a career continuous professional certificate.

(2) The initial professional certificate shall be issued upon completion of requirements established by the state board of education and shall be valid based upon verification of actual teaching within a specified time period established by the state board of education. The state board shall require holders of the four-year initial professional certificate to:

(a) Participate in a mentoring program approved and provided by the district for a minimum of two years;

(b) Complete thirty contact hours of professional development, which may include hours spent in class in an appropriate college curriculum, or for holders of a certificate under subdivision (4) of subsection 1 of this section, an amount of professional development in proportion to the certificate holder's hours in the classroom, if the certificate holder is employed less than full time; and

(c) Participate in a beginning teacher assistance program.

(3) (a) The career continuous professional certificate shall be issued upon verification of completion of four years of teaching under the initial professional certificate and upon verification of the completion of the requirements articulated in paragraphs (a)[~~, (b), and~~] to (c) of subdivision (2) of this subsection or paragraphs (a)[~~, (b), (c), and~~] to (d) of subdivision (5) of subsection 1 of this section.

(b) The career continuous professional certificate shall be continuous based upon verification of actual employment in an educational position as provided for in state board guidelines and completion of fifteen contact hours of professional development per year which may include hours spent in class in an appropriate college curriculum. [~~Should~~] If the possessor of a valid career continuous professional certificate [~~fail~~] fails, in any given year, to meet the fifteen-hour professional development requirement, the possessor may, within two years, make up the missing hours. In order to make up for missing hours, the possessor shall first complete the fifteen-hour requirement for the current year and then may count hours in excess of the current year requirement as make-up hours. [~~Should~~] If the possessor [~~fail~~] fails to make up the missing hours within two years, the certificate shall become inactive. In order to reactivate the certificate, the possessor shall complete twenty-four contact hours of professional development which may include hours spent in the classroom in an appropriate college curriculum within the six months prior to or after reactivating [~~his or her~~] the possessor's certificate. The requirements of this paragraph shall be monitored and verified by the local school district [~~which~~] that employs the holder of the career continuous professional certificate.

(c) A holder of a career continuous professional certificate shall be exempt from the professional development contact hour requirements of paragraph (b) of this subdivision if such teacher has a local professional development plan in place within such teacher's school district and meets two of the three following criteria:

a. Has ten years of teaching experience as defined by the state board of education;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001827

b. Possesses a master's degree; or

c. Obtains a rigorous national certification as approved by the state board of education.

4. Policies and procedures shall be established by which a teacher who was not retained due to a reduction in force may retain the current level of certification. There shall also be established policies and procedures allowing a teacher who has not been employed in an educational position for three years or more to reactivate [~~his or her~~] the teacher's last level of certification by completing twenty-four contact hours of professional development which may include hours spent in the classroom in an appropriate college curriculum within the six months prior to or after reactivating [~~his or her~~] the teacher's certificate.

5. The state board shall, upon completion of a background check as prescribed in section 168.133, issue a professional certificate classification in the areas most closely aligned with an applicant's current areas of certification, commensurate with the years of teaching experience of the applicant, to any person who is hired to teach in a public school in this state and who possesses a valid teaching certificate from another state or certification under subdivision (4) of subsection 1 of this section, provided that the certificate holder shall annually complete the state board's requirements for such level of certification, and shall establish policies by which residents of states other than the state of Missouri may be assessed a fee for a certificate of license to teach in the public schools of Missouri. Such fee shall be in an amount sufficient to recover any or all costs associated with the issuing of a certificate of license to teach. The board shall promulgate rules to authorize the issuance of a provisional certificate of license, which shall be valid for three years and shall allow the holder to assume classroom duties pending the completion of a criminal background check under section 168.133, for any applicant who:

(1) Is the spouse of a member of the Armed Forces stationed in Missouri;

(2) Relocated from another state within one year of the date of application;

(3) Underwent a criminal background check in order to be issued a teaching certificate of license from another state; and

(4) Otherwise qualifies under this section.

6. The state board may assess to holders of an initial professional certificate a fee, to be deposited into the excellence in education revolving fund established pursuant to section 160.268, for the issuance of the career continuous professional certificate. However, such fee shall not exceed the combined costs of issuance and any criminal background check required as a condition of issuance. Applicants for the initial ABCTE certificate shall be responsible for any fees associated with the program leading to the issuance of the certificate, but nothing in this section shall prohibit a district from developing a policy that permits fee reimbursement.

7. Any member of the public school retirement system of

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Missouri who entered covered employment with ten or more years of educational experience in another state or states and held a certificate issued by another state and subsequently worked in a school district covered by the public school retirement system of Missouri for ten or more years who later became certificated in Missouri shall have that certificate dated back to [~~his or her~~] the member's original date of employment in a Missouri public school.

8. Within thirty days of receiving an application from a spouse of an active duty member of the Armed Forces of the United States who has been transferred or is scheduled to be transferred to the state of Missouri, or who has been transferred or is scheduled to be transferred to an adjacent state and is or will be domiciled in the state of Missouri, or has moved to the state of Missouri on a permanent change-of-station basis and has successfully completed the background check described under subsection 5 of this section and section 168.133, the state board shall issue to such applicant a full certificate of license to teach, provided that the applicant has paid all necessary fees and has otherwise met all requirements to be issued such a certificate.

168.036. 1. In addition to granting certificates of license to teach in public schools of the state as provided in section 168.021, the state board of education shall grant substitute teacher certificates as provided in this section to any individual seeking to substitute teach in any public school in this state.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. (1) The state board shall not grant a certificate of license to teach under this section to any individual who has not completed a background check as described in section 168.133.

(2) A background check conducted under this subsection shall be valid for four years for purposes of the certificate granted under this section and shall be transferrable from one school district to another district except as provided in subdivision (3) of this subsection.

(3) A school district employing a substitute teacher who has a certificate granted under this section may require the teacher to complete the background check annually. A school district may require the background check required in this section for a newly hired substitute teacher to be conducted at the teacher's expense.

(4) The state board may refuse to issue or renew, suspend, or revoke any certificate sought or issued under this section in the same manner and for the same reasons as provided in section 168.071.

3. The state board may grant a certificate under this section to any individual who has completed the background check required in this section and who has completed:

(1) At least thirty-six semester hours at an accredited institution of higher education; or

(2) The twenty-hour online training program required in this section and who possesses a high school diploma or the equivalent thereof.

4. The state board may grant a certificate under this section to any highly qualified individual with expertise in a technical or business field or with experience in the Armed Forces of the United States who has completed the background check required in this section but does not meet any of the qualifications in subdivision (1) or (2) of subsection 3 of this section if the superintendent of the school district sponsors such individual and the school board of the school district in which the individual seeks to substitute teach votes to approve such individual to substitute teach.

5. (1) An individual to whom the state board grants a certificate under this section may be a substitute teacher in any public school in the state if a school district superintendent, school district assistant superintendent, or public school principal in this state agrees to employ the individual as a substitute teacher.

(2) No individual to whom the state board grants a certificate under this section and who is under twenty years of age shall be a substitute teacher in grades nine to twelve.

6. An individual to whom the state board grants a certificate under this section shall complete an orientation developed and offered by the school district for which the individual originally teaches. The orientation for such individual shall contain at least two hours of subjects appropriate for substitute teachers and shall contain instruction on the school district's best practices for classroom management. Such orientation completed in any school district may be accepted by any subsequent district in which the individual substitute teaches. A subsequent school district may require the individual to complete a separate and distinct local orientation for the particular school district before the individual may substitute teach in the subsequent school district.

7. A certificate granted under this section shall be valid for four years. A certificate granted under this section shall expire at the end of any calendar year in which the individual fails to substitute teach for at least five days or forty hours of in-seat instruction.

8. The department of elementary and secondary education shall develop an online training program for individuals granted a certificate under subdivision (2) of subsection 3 of this section. The training program shall consist of twenty hours of training related to subjects appropriate for substitute teachers as determined by the department. A substitute teacher shall complete an orientation for substitute teachers provided by the school district in which the substitute teacher teaches.

9. Any individual possessing a valid certificate of license to teach granted by the state board shall be deemed to be a substitute teacher under this section if the individual has completed a background check as required in this section.

10. The state board may exercise the board's authority as provided in chapter 161 to promulgate all necessary rules and regulations necessary for the administration of this section.

168.500. 1. For the purpose of providing career pay, which shall be a salary supplement, for public school teachers, which for the purpose of sections 168.500 to 168.515 shall include classroom teachers, librarians, school counselors and certificated teachers who hold positions as school psychological examiners, parents as teachers educators, school psychologists, special education diagnosticians and speech pathologists, and are on the district salary schedule, there is hereby created and established a career advancement program which shall be known as the "Missouri Career Development and Teacher Excellence Plan", hereinafter known as the "career plan or program". Participation by local school districts in the career advancement program established under this section shall be voluntary. The career advancement program is a matching fund program. The general assembly may make an annual appropriation to the excellence in education fund established under section 160.268 for the purpose of providing the state's portion for the career advancement program. The "Career Ladder Forward Funding Fund" is hereby established in the state treasury. Beginning with fiscal year 1998 and until the career ladder forward funding fund is terminated pursuant to this subsection, the general assembly may appropriate funds to the career ladder forward funding fund. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 33.080 to the contrary, moneys in the fund shall not be transferred to the credit of the general revenue fund at the end of the biennium. All interest or other gain received from investment of moneys in the fund shall be credited to the fund. All funds deposited in the fund shall be maintained in the fund until such time as the balance in the fund at the end of the fiscal year is equal to or greater than the appropriation for the career ladder program for the following year, at which time all such revenues shall be used to fund, in advance, the career ladder program for such following year and the career ladder forward funding fund shall thereafter be terminated.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. The department of elementary and secondary education, at the direction of the commissioner of education, shall study and develop model career plans which shall be made available to the local school districts. These state model career plans shall:

(1) Contain three steps or stages of career advancement;

(2) Contain a detailed procedure for the admission of teachers to the career program;

(3) Contain specific criteria for career step qualifications and attainment. These criteria shall clearly describe the minimum number of professional responsibilities required of the teacher at each stage of the plan and shall include reference to classroom performance evaluations performed pursuant to section 168.128. The criteria may include, but shall not be limited to, teacher externships as provided in section 168.025;

(4) Be consistent with the teacher certification process recommended by the Missouri advisory council of certification for educators and adopted by the department of elementary and secondary education;

(5) Provide that public school teachers in Missouri shall become eligible to apply for admission to the career plans adopted under sections 168.500 to 168.515 after [~~five~~] two years of public school teaching in Missouri. All teachers seeking admission to any career plan shall, as a minimum, meet the requirements necessary to obtain the first renewable professional certificate as provided in section 168.021;

(6) Provide procedures for appealing decisions made under career plans established under sections 168.500 to 168.515.

3. School district career plans shall recognize additional responsibilities and volunteer efforts by teachers in formulating criteria for career ladder admission and stage achievement. Such additional responsibilities and volunteer efforts shall be required to occur outside of compensated hours and may include, but shall not be limited to:

(1) Serving as a coach, supervisor, or organizer for any extracurricular activity for which the teacher does not already receive additional compensation;

(2) Serving as a mentor for students, whether in a formal or informal capacity;

(3) Receiving additional teacher training or certification outside of that offered by the school district;

(4) Serving as a tutor or providing additional learning opportunities to students; and

(5) Assisting students with postsecondary education preparation including, but not limited to, teaching an ACT or SAT preparation course or assisting students with completing college or career school admission or financial assistance applications.

4. The commissioner of education shall cause the department of elementary and secondary education to establish guidelines for all career plans established under this section, and criteria that must be met by any school district which seeks funding for its career plan.

[~~4.~~] 5. A participating local school district may have the option of implementing a career plan developed by the department of elementary and secondary education or a local plan which has been developed with advice from teachers employed by the district and which has met with the approval of the department of elementary and secondary education. In approving local career plans, the department of elementary and secondary education may consider provisions in the plan of the local district for recognition of teacher mobility from one district to another within this state.

[~~5.~~] 6. The career plans of local school districts shall not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, religion, national origin, color, creed, or age. Participation in the career plan of a local school district is optional, and any teacher who declines to participate shall not be penalized in any way.

[~~6.~~] 7. In order to receive funds under this section, a school district which is not subject to section 162.920 must have a total levy for operating purposes which is in excess of the amount allowed in Section 11(b) of Article X of the Missouri Constitution; and a school district which is subject to section 162.920 must have a total levy for operating purposes which is equal to or in excess of twenty-five cents on each hundred dollars of assessed valuation.

[~~7.~~] 8. The commissioner of education shall cause the department of elementary and secondary education to regard a speech pathologist who holds both a valid certificate of license to teach and a certificate of clinical competence to have fulfilled the standards required to be placed on stage III of the career program, provided that such speech pathologist has been employed by a public school in Missouri for at least [~~five~~] two years and is approved for placement at such stage III by the local school district.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

[~~8.~~] 9. Beginning in fiscal year 2012, the state portion of career ladder payments shall only be made available to local school districts if the general assembly makes an appropriation for such program. Payments authorized under sections 168.500 to 168.515 shall only be made available in a year for which a state appropriation is made. Any state appropriation shall be made prospectively in relation to the year in which work under the program is performed.

[~~9.~~] 10. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit a local school district from funding the program for its teachers for work performed in years for which no state appropriation is made available.

168.515. 1. Each teacher selected to participate in a career plan established under sections 168.500 to 168.515, who meets the requirements of such plan, may receive a salary supplement, the state's share of which shall be distributed under section 163.031, equal to the following amounts applied to the career ladder entitlement of section 163.031:

(1) Career stage I teachers may receive up to an additional one thousand five hundred dollars per school year;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001838

(2) Career stage II teachers may receive up to an additional three thousand dollars per school year;

(3) Career stage III teachers may receive up to an additional five thousand dollars per school year. All teachers within each stage within the same school district shall receive equal salary supplements.

2. The state may make payments pursuant to section 163.031 to the local school district for the purpose of providing funding to the local school district for the payment of any salary supplements provided for in this section, subject to the availability of funds as appropriated each year and distributed on a matching basis where the percentage of state funding shall be [~~forty~~] sixty percent and the percentage of local funding shall be [~~sixty~~] forty percent.

3. Not less than every fourth year, beginning with calendar year 1988, the general assembly, through the joint committee established under section 160.254, shall review the amount of the career pay provided for in this section to determine if any increases are necessary to reflect the increases in the cost of living which have occurred since the salary supplements were last reviewed or set.

4. To participate in the salary supplement program established under this section, a school district may submit to the voters of the district a proposition to increase taxes for this purpose. If a school district's current tax rate ceiling is at or above the rate from which an increase would require a two-thirds majority, the school board may submit to the voters of the district a proposition to reduce or eliminate the amount of the levy reduction resulting from section 164.013. If a majority of the voters voting thereon vote in favor of the proposition, the board may certify that seventy-five percent of the revenue generated from this source shall be used to implement the salary supplement program established under this section.

5. In no case shall a school district use state funds received under this section nor local revenue generated from a tax established under subsection 4 of this section to comply with the minimum salary requirements for teachers established pursuant to section 163.172.

169.596. 1. Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter to the contrary, a retired certificated teacher receiving a retirement benefit from the retirement system established pursuant to sections 169.010 to 169.141 may, without losing [~~his or her~~] such teacher's retirement benefit, [~~teach~~] be employed full time for up to [~~two~~] four years for a school district covered by such retirement system; provided that the school district has a shortage of certified teachers, as determined by the school district[~~, and provided that no such retired certificated teacher shall be employed as a superintendent. The total number of such retired certificated teachers shall not exceed, at any one time, the lesser of ten percent of the total teacher staff for that school district, or five certificated teachers~~]. A retired certificated teacher receiving a retirement benefit from the retirement system established under sections 169.010 to 169.141 may be employed full time for up to two years as a superintendent under this subsection only if such teacher meets the certification requirements for a superintendent and such teacher has been retired for at least twelve months prior to such employment unless such employment is immediately necessary due to death, disability, or termination for cause of the superintendent who held the position being filled.

2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter to the contrary, a retired certificated teacher with creditable service, as defined in section 169.010, as a superintendent and who is receiving a retirement benefit from the retirement system established under sections 169.010 to 169.141 may, without losing such teacher's retirement benefit, be employed full-time for up to four years for a school district covered by such retirement system if the school district has a shortage of certified teachers as determined by the school district. A retired certificated teacher with creditable service, as defined in section 169.010, as a superintendent and who is receiving a retirement benefit from the retirement system established under sections 169.010 to 169.141 may be employed full-time for up to two years as a superintendent under this subsection only if such teacher has been retired for at least twelve months prior to such employment unless such employment is immediately necessary due to death, disability, or termination for cause of the superintendent who held the position being filled.

3. Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter to the contrary, a person receiving a retirement benefit from the retirement system established pursuant to sections 169.600 to

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

169.715 may, without losing [~~his or her~~] such person's retirement benefit, be employed full time for up to [~~two~~] four years for a school district covered by such retirement system; provided that the school district has a shortage of noncertificated employees, as determined by the school district. [~~The total number of such retired noncertificated employees shall not exceed, at any one time, the lesser of ten percent of the total noncertificated staff for that school district, or five employees.~~]

4. The total number of retired members working for a school district under subsections 1 and 2 of this section shall not exceed, at any one time, the lesser of:

(1) Ten percent of the total number of employees for that district; or

(2) Ten employees.

[~~3.~~] 5. The employer's contribution rate shall be paid by the hiring school district.

[~~4.~~] 6. In order to hire [~~teachers and noncertificated employees pursuant to~~] retired members under the provisions of this section, the school district shall:

(1) Show a good faith effort to fill positions with nonretired certificated teachers or nonretired noncertificated employees;

(2) Post the vacancy for at least one month;

(3) Have not offered early retirement incentives for either of the previous two years;

(4) Solicit applications through the local newspaper, other media, or teacher education programs;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001842

(5) Determine there is an insufficient number of eligible applicants for the advertised position; and

(6) Declare a critical shortage of certificated teachers or noncertificated employees that is active for one year.

[~~5.~~] 7. Any person hired pursuant to this section shall be included in the State Directory of New Hires for purposes of income and eligibility verification pursuant to 42 U.S.C. Section 1320b-7, as amended.

170.025. 1. Each school district shall ensure that:

(1) Its elementary school or schools provide instruction in cursive writing so that students create readable documents through legible cursive handwriting by the end of the fifth grade; and

(2) Each student passes with proficiency a teacher-constructed test demonstrating competency in both reading and writing cursive.

2. The department of elementary and secondary education may promulgate rules to implement the provisions of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

170.029. 1. The state board of education shall develop a statewide plan for career and technical education (CTE) that ensures sustainability, viability, and relevance by matching workforce needs with appropriate educational resources.

2. The state board of education, in consultation with the career and technical education advisory council as established in section 178.550, shall establish minimum requirements for a [~~career and technical education (CTE)~~] CTE certificate that a student can earn in addition to [~~his or her~~] the student's high school graduation diploma. Students entering high school in school year 2017-18 and thereafter shall be eligible to earn a CTE certificate.

[~~2.~~] 3. The [~~state board of education~~] statewide plan shall establish CTE requirements intended to provide students with the necessary technical employability skills to be prepared for an entry-level career in a technical field or additional training in a technical field. The provisions of this section shall not be considered a means for tracking students in order to impel students to particular vocational, career, or college paths. The state board of education shall work with local school districts to ensure that tracking does not occur. For purposes of this section, "tracking" means separating pupils by academic ability into groups for all subjects or certain classes and curriculum.

[~~3.~~] 4. Each local school district shall determine the curriculum, programs of study, and course offerings based on the needs and interests of the students in the district and meeting the requirements of the statewide plan. As required by Missouri's state plan for career education and the Missouri school improvement program, the state board of education shall work in cooperation with individual school districts to stipulate the minimum number of CTE offerings. Each local school district shall strive to offer programs of study that are economically feasible for students in the district. In establishing CTE offerings, the district may rely on standards, technical coursework, and skills assessments developed for industry-recognized certificates or credentials.

5. To enable school districts to offer CTE programs of study that are current with business and industry standards, the department of elementary and secondary education shall as needed convene work groups from each program area to develop and recommend rigorous and relevant performance standards or course competencies for each program of study. The work groups shall include, but not be limited to, educators providing instruction in each CTE program area, advisors from each CTE program area from the department of elementary and secondary education, the department of higher education and workforce development, business and industry, and institutions of higher education. The department of elementary and secondary education shall develop written model curriculum frameworks relating to CTE program areas that may be used by school districts. The requirements of section 160.514 shall not apply to this section.

[~~4.~~] 6. No later than January 1, 2017, the department of elementary and secondary education shall develop a process for recognition of a school district's career and technical education program that offers a career and technical education certificate.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

[~~5.~~] 7. The department of elementary and secondary education shall promulgate all necessary rules and regulations for the administration of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2016, shall be invalid and void.

170.047. 1. Beginning in the 2017-18 school year, any licensed educator may annually complete up to two hours of training or professional development in youth suicide awareness and prevention as part of the professional development hours required for state board of education certification. Beginning in the 2021-22 school year and continuing in subsequent school years, such training or professional development in youth suicide awareness and prevention shall contain at least one unit relating to stress management strategies for students and faculty members.

2. The department of elementary and secondary education shall develop guidelines suitable for training or professional development in youth suicide awareness and prevention. The department shall develop materials that may be used for such training or professional development.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3. For purposes of this section, the term "licensed educator" shall refer to any teacher with a certificate of license to teach issued by the state board of education or any other educator or administrator required to maintain a professional license issued by the state board of education.

4. The department of elementary and secondary education may promulgate rules and regulations to implement this section.

5. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2016, shall be invalid and void.

171.033. 1. "Inclement weather", for purposes of this section, shall be defined as ice, snow, extreme cold, excessive heat, flooding, or a tornado.

2. (1) A district shall be required to make up the first six days of school lost or cancelled due to inclement weather and half the number of days lost or cancelled in excess of six days

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

if the makeup of the days is necessary to ensure that the district's students will attend a minimum of one hundred forty-two days and a minimum of one thousand forty-four hours for the school year except as otherwise provided in this section. Schools with a four-day school week may schedule such make-up days on Fridays.

(2) Notwithstanding subdivision (1) of this subsection, in school year 2019-20 and subsequent years, a district shall be required to make up the first thirty-six hours of school lost or cancelled due to inclement weather and half the number of hours lost or cancelled in excess of thirty-six if the makeup of the hours is necessary to ensure that the district's students attend a minimum of one thousand forty-four hours for the school year, except as otherwise provided under subsections 3 and 4 of this section.

3. (1) In the 2009-10 school year and subsequent years, a school district may be exempt from the requirement to make up days of school lost or cancelled due to inclement weather in the school district when the school district has made up the six days required under subsection 2 of this section and half the number of additional lost or cancelled days up to eight days, resulting in no more than ten total make-up days required by this section.

(2) In school year 2019-20 and subsequent years, a school district may be exempt from the requirement to make up school lost or cancelled due to inclement weather in the school district when the school district has made up the thirty-six hours required under subsection 2 of this section and half the number of additional lost or cancelled hours up to forty-eight, resulting in no more than sixty total make-up hours required by this section.

4. The commissioner of education may provide, for any school district that cannot meet the minimum school calendar requirement of at least one hundred seventy-four days for schools with a five-day school week or one hundred forty-two days for schools with a four-day school week and one thousand forty-four hours of actual pupil attendance or, in school year 2019-20 and subsequent years, one thousand forty-four hours of actual pupil attendance, upon request, a waiver to be excused from such requirement. This waiver shall be requested from the commissioner of education and may be granted if the school was closed due to circumstances beyond school district control, including inclement weather or fire.

5. (1) Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, in school year 2020-21 and subsequent years, a district shall not be required to make up any hours of school lost or cancelled due to exceptional or emergency circumstances during a school year if the district has an alternative methods of instruction plan approved by the department of elementary and secondary education for such school year. Exceptional or emergency circumstances shall include, but not be limited to, inclement weather, a utility outage, or an outbreak of a contagious disease. The department of elementary and secondary education shall not approve any such plan unless the district demonstrates that the plan will not negatively impact teaching and learning in the

(2) If school is closed due to exceptional or emergency circumstances and the district has an approved alternative methods of instruction plan, the district shall notify students and parents on each day of the closure whether the alternative methods of instruction plan is to be implemented for that day. If the plan is to be implemented on any day of the closure, the district shall ensure that each student receives assignments for that day in hard copy form or receives instruction through virtual learning or another method of instruction.

(3) A district with an approved alternative methods of instruction plan shall not use alternative methods of instruction as provided for in the plan for more than thirty-six hours during a school year. A district that has used such alternative methods of instruction for thirty-six hours during a school year shall be required, notwithstanding subsections 2 and 3 of this section, to make up any subsequent hours of school lost or cancelled due to exceptional or emergency circumstances during such school year.

(4) The department of elementary and secondary education shall give districts with approved alternative methods of instruction plans credit for the hours in which they use alternative methods of instruction by considering such hours as hours in which school was actually in session.

(5) Any district wishing to use alternative methods of instruction under this subsection shall submit an application to the department of elementary and secondary education. The application shall describe:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001850

(a) The manner in which the district intends to strengthen and reinforce instructional content while supporting student learning outside the classroom environment;

(b) The process the district intends to use to communicate to students and parents the decision to implement alternative methods of instruction on any day of a closure;

(c) The manner in which the district intends to communicate the purpose and expectations for a day in which alternative methods of instruction will be implemented to students and parents;

(d) The assignments and materials to be used within the district for days in which alternative methods of instruction will be implemented to effectively facilitate teaching and support learning for the benefit of the students;

(e) The manner in which student attendance will be determined for a day in which alternative methods of instruction will be implemented. The method chosen shall be linked to completion of lessons and activities;

(f) The instructional methods, which shall include instruction through electronic means and instruction through other means for students who have no access to internet services or a computer;

(g) Instructional plans for students with individualized education programs; and

(h) The role and responsibility of certified personnel to be available to communicate with students.

6. [~~For the 2018-19 school year, a district shall be exempt~~

~~from the requirements of subsections 2 and 3 of this section, and only be required to make up the first six days of school lost or cancelled due to inclement weather~~] In the 2021-22 school year and subsequent years, a school district's one-half-day education programs shall be subject to the following provisions in proportions appropriate for a one-half-day education program, as applicable:

(1) Requirements in subsection 2 of this section to make up days or hours of school lost or cancelled because of inclement weather;

(2) Exemptions in subsection 3 of this section;

(3) Waiver provisions in subsection 4 of this section; and

(4) Approved alternative methods of instruction provisions in subsection 5 of this section.

173.035. 1. The department of higher education and workforce development shall develop, maintain, and operate a website containing information of public [~~and private~~] institutions of higher education and vocational schools in this state directing students to resources including, but not limited to, academic programs, financial aid, [~~and~~] how academic course credit may be transferred from one institution of higher education to another, and information reported under section 161.625. The department may post information from a private institution of higher education if the private institution desires to report information as provided in this section or the department is authorized by any other state law to post the private institution's information on the website. The information on the website shall be made available to the public and shall be accessible from various devices including, but not limited to, computers, tablets, and other electronic communication devices.

2. [~~Inclusion of institution information on the website is voluntary, and institutions of higher education may elect to have institutional information included on the website by notifying the department of higher education and workforce development~~] Public institutions of higher education and vocational schools shall, and private institutions of higher education may, report all information listed in this section and any other information required by the department for posting on the website.

3. The department of higher education and workforce development may promulgate all necessary rules and regulations for the administration of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2016, shall be invalid and void.

173.1003. 1. Beginning with the 2008-09 academic year, each approved public institution, as such term is defined in section 173.1102, shall submit its percentage change in the amount of tuition from the current academic year compared to the upcoming academic year to the coordinating board for higher education by July first preceding such academic year.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. For institutions whose tuition is greater than the average tuition, the percentage change in tuition shall not exceed the percentage change of the consumer price index plus a percentage of not more than five percent that would produce an increase in net tuition revenue no greater than the dollar amount by which the state operating support was reduced for the prior fiscal year, if applicable.

3. For institutions whose tuition is less than the average tuition, the dollar increase in tuition shall not exceed the product of the percentage change of the consumer price index times the average tuition, plus a percentage of not more than five percent that would produce an increase in net tuition revenue no greater than the dollar amount by which the state operating support was reduced for the prior fiscal year, if applicable.

4. If a tuition increase exceeds the limits set forth in subsection 2 or 3 of this section, then the institution shall be subject to the provisions of subsection 5 of this section.

5. Any institution that exceeds the limits set forth in subsection 2 or 3 of this section shall remit to the board an amount equal to five percent of its current year state operating support amount which shall be deposited into the general revenue fund unless the institution appeals, within thirty days of such notice, to the commissioner of higher education for a waiver of this provision. The commissioner, after meeting with appropriate representatives of the institution, shall determine whether the institution's waiver request is sufficiently warranted, in which case no fund remission shall occur. In making this determination, the factors considered by the commissioner shall include but not be limited to the relationship between state appropriations and the consumer price index and any extraordinary circumstances. If the commissioner determines that an institution's tuition percent increase is not sufficiently warranted and declines the waiver request, the commissioner shall recommend to the full coordinating board that the institution shall remit an amount up to five percent of its current year state operating appropriation to the board, which shall deposit the amount into the general revenue fund. The coordinating board shall have the authority to make a binding and final decision, by means of a majority vote, regarding the matter.

6. The provisions of subsections 2 to 5 of this section shall not apply to any community college unless any such community college's tuition for any Missouri resident is greater than or equal to the average tuition. If the provisions of subsections 2 to 5 of this section apply to a community college, subsections 2 to 5 of this section shall only apply to out-of-district Missouri resident tuition.

7. For purposes of this section, the term "average tuition" shall be the sum of the tuition amounts for the previous academic year for each approved public institution that is not excluded under subsection 6 of this section, divided by the number of such institutions. The term "consumer price index" shall mean the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers (CPI-U), 1982-1984 = 100, not seasonally adjusted, as defined and officially recorded by the United States Department of Labor, or its successor agency, from January first of the current year compared to January first of the preceding year. The term "state appropriation" shall mean the state operating appropriation for the prior year per full-time equivalent student for the prior year compared to state operating appropriation for the current year per full-time equivalent student for the prior year. The term "tuition" shall mean the amount of tuition and required fees, excluding any fee established by the student body of the institution, charged to a Missouri resident undergraduate enrolled in fifteen credit hours at the institution. The term "state operating support" shall mean the funding actually disbursed from state operating appropriations to approved public institutions and shall not include appropriations or disbursement for special initiatives or specific program additions or expansions. The term "net tuition revenue" shall mean the net amount of resident undergraduate tuition and required fees reduced by institutional aid only. "Institutional aid" includes all aid awarded to the student by the student's institution of higher education only from such institution's funds. Institutional aid does not include the following: Pell Grants; state awards such as the Missouri higher education academic scholarship program, the A+ schools program, and the access

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Missouri financial aid program; foundation scholarships; third-party scholarships; employee and dependent fee waivers; and student loans.

8. Nothing in this section shall be construed to usurp or preclude the ability of the governing board of an institution of higher education to establish tuition or required fee rates.

9. Subsections 2 to 6 shall not apply to any approved public institution, as such term is defined in section 173.1102, or to any community college in any academic year beginning on or after July 1, 2022.

10. When an approved public institution, as such term is defined in section 173.1102, utilizes differentiated tuition, the public institution will notify the department of higher education and workforce development of the institution's decision and will, at the point of implementation, no longer utilize required course fees. Course fees may still be utilized by any public institution until such decision is formally announced to the department and implemented.

174.453. 1. Except as provided in section 174.450, the board of governors shall be appointed as follows:

(1) Five voting members shall be selected from the counties comprising the institution's historic statutory service region as described in section 174.010, except that no more than two members shall be appointed from any one county with a population of less than two hundred thousand inhabitants;

(2) Two voting members shall be selected from any of the counties in the state which are outside of the institution's

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001857

historic service region; and

(3) One nonvoting member who is a student shall be selected in the same manner as prescribed in section 174.055.

2. The term of service of the governors shall be as follows:

(1) The voting members shall be appointed for terms of six years; and

(2) The nonvoting student member shall serve a two-year term.

3. Members of any board of governors selected pursuant to this section and in office on May 13, 1999, shall serve the remainder of their unexpired terms.

4. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection 1 of this section, the board of governors of Missouri Southern State University shall be appointed as follows:

(1) Six voting members shall be selected from any of the following counties: Barton, Jasper, Newton, McDonald, Dade, Lawrence, and Barry provided that no more than three of these six members shall be appointed from any one county;

(2) Two voting members shall be selected from any of the counties in the state which are outside of the counties articulated in subdivision (1) of this subsection;

(3) One nonvoting member who is a student shall be selected in the same manner as prescribed in section 174.055; and

(4) The provisions of subdivisions (1) and (2) of this subsection shall only apply to board members first appointed after August 28, 2004.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

5. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection 1 of this section, the board of governors of Missouri Western State University shall be composed of eight members appointed as follows:

(1) Five voting members shall be selected from any of the following counties: Buchanan, Platte, Clinton, Andrew, and DeKalb [~~provided that no more than three of these five members shall be appointed from any one county~~];

(2) [~~Two voting members shall be selected from any of the counties in the state which are outside of the counties articulated in subdivision (1) of this subsection;~~

~~(3)~~] One nonvoting member who is a student shall be selected in the same manner as prescribed in section 174.055; and

[~~(4)~~] (3) The provisions of [~~subdivisions (1) and (2)~~] subdivision (1) of this subsection shall only apply to board members first appointed after August 28, 2005.

186.080. 1. There is hereby established within the department of elementary and secondary education the "Literacy Advisory Council", which shall be composed of at least fifteen and no more than twenty members to be appointed by the commissioner of education. The members of the council shall include at least:

(1) One public school board member;

(2) One charter school representative;

(3) One public school district superintendent;

(4) One elementary or secondary school principal;

(5) Three teachers with expertise in reading instruction,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001859

including at least one teacher selected by each of the three largest statewide teacher organizations, and each of whom shall either be certified by the Center for Effective Reading Instruction or have completed all levels of the Language Essentials for Teachers of Reading and Spelling training program;

(6) One special education teacher;

(7) One parent of an elementary or secondary school student who has been diagnosed with dyslexia;

(8) One representative from Decoding Dyslexia Missouri;

(9) One representative from an institution of postsecondary education that offers approved teacher preparation programs;

(10) One representative from an independent private provider or nonprofit organization serving individuals with dyslexia;

(11) One representative from the Missouri branch of the International Dyslexia Association;

(12) One certified academic language therapist recommended by the Academic Language Therapy Association who is a resident of this state;

(13) One professional with experience diagnosing dyslexia, such as a school psychologist or neuropsychologist, who is licensed under chapter 337; and

(14) One dyslexia specialist from the department of elementary and secondary education.

2. The advisory council shall meet biannually to review best practices in literacy instruction and related policies.

3. The advisory council shall periodically provide recommendations to the commissioner and the state board of education regarding any identified improvements to literacy instruction and policy for elementary and secondary students. The recommendations may include recommendations for changes to state law, and the commissioner shall furnish any such recommendations to the joint committee on education.

4. The department of elementary and secondary education, in conjunction with the advisory council, shall identify and create a list of approved materials, resources, and curriculum programs for public school districts and charter schools. A school district or charter school may use materials, resources, or curriculum programs from such list. However, a school district or charter school may use alternative materials, resources, or curriculum programs, which may not be on the department's list, as long as such materials, resources, or curriculum programs comply with the requirements set forth in sections 167.268 and 167.645.

209.610. 1. The board may enter into ABLE program participation agreements with participants on behalf of designated beneficiaries pursuant to the provisions of sections 209.600 to 209.645, including the following terms and conditions:

(1) A participation agreement shall stipulate the terms and conditions of the ABLE program in which the participant makes contributions;

(2) A participation agreement shall specify the method for calculating the return on the contribution made by the participant;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(3) A participation agreement shall clearly and prominently disclose to participants the risk associated with depositing moneys with the board;

(4) Participation agreements shall be organized and presented in a way and with language that is easily understandable by the general public; and

(5) A participation agreement shall clearly and prominently disclose to participants the existence of any load charge or similar charge assessed against the accounts of the participants for administration or services.

2. The board shall establish the maximum amount of contributions which may be made annually to an ABLE account, which shall be the same as the amount allowed by 26 U.S.C. Section 529A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.

3. The board shall establish a total contribution limit for savings accounts established under the ABLE program with respect to a designated beneficiary which shall in no event be less than the amount established as the contribution limit by the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program board for qualified tuition [~~savings~~] programs established under sections 166.400 to [~~166.450~~] 166.456. No contribution shall be made to an ABLE account for a designated beneficiary if it would cause the balance of the ABLE account of the designated beneficiary to exceed the total contribution limit established by the board. The board may establish other requirements that it deems appropriate to provide adequate safeguards to prevent contributions on behalf of a designated beneficiary from exceeding what is necessary to provide for the qualified disability expenses of the designated beneficiary.

4. The board shall establish the minimum length of time that contributions and earnings must be held by the ABLE program to qualify as tax exempt pursuant to section 209.625. Any contributions or earnings that are withdrawn or distributed from an ABLE account prior to the expiration of the minimum length of time, as established by the board, shall be subject to a penalty pursuant to section 209.620.

210.201. As used in sections 210.201 to 210.257, the following terms mean:

(1) "Child", an individual who is under the age of seventeen;

(2) "Child care", care of a child away from [~~his or her~~] the child's home for any part of the twenty-four-hour day for compensation or otherwise. "Child care" is a voluntary supplement to parental responsibility for the child's protection, development, and supervision;

(3) "Child-care facility" or "child care facility", a house or other place conducted or maintained by any person who advertises or holds [~~himself or herself~~] oneself out as providing child care for any part of the twenty-four-hour day for compensation or otherwise if providing child care to more than:

(a) Six children; or

(b) Three children under two years of age;

(4) "Child care provider" or "provider", the person or persons licensed or required to be licensed under section 210.221 to establish, conduct, or maintain a child care facility;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001863

(5) "Montessori school", a child care program that [~~subscribes to Maria Montessori's educational philosophy and that is accredited by the American Montessori Society or the Association Montessori Internationale~~] is either accredited by, actively seeking accreditation by, or maintains an active school membership with the American Montessori Society, the Association Montessori Internationale, the International Montessori Counsel, or the Montessori Educational Programs International;

(6) "Neighborhood youth development program", as described in section 210.278;

(7) "Nursery school", a program operated by a person or an organization with the primary function of providing an educational program for preschool-age children for no more than four hours per day per child;

(8) "Person", any individual, firm, corporation, partnership, association, agency, or an incorporated or unincorporated organization regardless of the name used;

(9) "Religious organization", a church, synagogue, or mosque; an entity that has or would qualify for federal tax-exempt status as a nonprofit religious organization under Section 501(c) of the Internal Revenue Code; or an entity whose real estate on which the child-care facility is located is exempt from taxation because it is used for religious purposes;

(10) "School system", a program established primarily for education and that meets the following criteria:

(a) Provides education in at least the first to the sixth grade; and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001864

(b) Provides evidence that the school system's records will be accepted by a public or private school for the transfer of any student;

(11) "Summer camp", a program operated from May to September by a person or organization with the primary function of providing a summer recreational program for children five years of age or older and providing no child care for children under five years of age in the same building or in the same outdoor play area.

513.430. 1. The following property shall be exempt from attachment and execution to the extent of any person's interest therein:

(1) Household furnishings, household goods, wearing apparel, appliances, books, animals, crops or musical instruments that are held primarily for personal, family or household use of such person or a dependent of such person, not to exceed three thousand dollars in value in the aggregate;

(2) A wedding ring not to exceed one thousand five hundred dollars in value and other jewelry held primarily for the personal, family or household use of such person or a dependent of such person, not to exceed five hundred dollars in value in the aggregate;

(3) Any other property of any kind, not to exceed in value six hundred dollars in the aggregate;

(4) Any implements or professional books or tools of the trade of such person or the trade of a dependent of such person not to exceed three thousand dollars in value in the aggregate;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(5) Any motor vehicles, not to exceed three thousand dollars in value in the aggregate;

(6) Any mobile home used as the principal residence but not attached to real property in which the debtor has a fee interest, not to exceed five thousand dollars in value;

(7) Any one or more unmatured life insurance contracts owned by such person, other than a credit life insurance contract, and up to fifteen thousand dollars of any matured life insurance proceeds for actual funeral, cremation, or burial expenses where the deceased is the spouse, child, or parent of the beneficiary;

(8) The amount of any accrued dividend or interest under, or loan value of, any one or more unmatured life insurance contracts owned by such person under which the insured is such person or an individual of whom such person is a dependent; provided, however, that if proceedings under Title 11 of the United States Code are commenced by or against such person, the amount exempt in such proceedings shall not exceed in value one hundred fifty thousand dollars in the aggregate less any amount of property of such person transferred by the life insurance company or fraternal benefit society to itself in good faith if such transfer is to pay a premium or to carry out a nonforfeiture insurance option and is required to be so transferred automatically under a life insurance contract with such company or society that was entered into before commencement of such proceedings. No amount of any accrued dividend or interest under, or loan value of, any such life insurance contracts shall be exempt from any claim for child support. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary, no such amount shall be exempt in such proceedings under any such insurance contract which was purchased by such person within one year prior to the commencement of such proceedings;

(9) Professionally prescribed health aids for such person or a dependent of such person;

(10) Such person's right to receive:

(a) A Social Security benefit, unemployment compensation or a public assistance benefit;

(b) A veteran's benefit;

(c) A disability, illness or unemployment benefit;

(d) Alimony, support or separate maintenance, not to exceed seven hundred fifty dollars a month;

(e) a. Any payment under a stock bonus plan, pension plan, disability or death benefit plan, profit-sharing plan, nonpublic retirement plan or any plan described, defined, or established pursuant to section 456.014, the person's right to a participant account in any deferred compensation program offered by the state of Missouri or any of its political subdivisions, or annuity or similar plan or contract on account of illness, disability, death, age or length of service, to the extent reasonably necessary for the support of such person and any dependent of such person unless:

[~~a.~~] (i) Such plan or contract was established by or under the auspices of an insider that employed such person at the time such person's rights under such plan or contract arose;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

[~~b.~~] (ii) Such payment is on account of age or length of service; and [~~c.~~] (iii) Such plan or contract does not qualify under Section 401(a), 403(a), 403(b), 408, 408A or 409 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, (26 U.S.C. Section 401(a), 403(a), 403(b), 408, 408A or 409)[~~;~~] .

[~~except that~~] b. Notwithstanding the exemption provided in subparagraph a. of this paragraph, any such payment to any person shall be subject to attachment or execution pursuant to a qualified domestic relations order, as defined by Section 414(p) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. Section 414(p)), as amended, issued by a court in any proceeding for dissolution of marriage or legal separation or a proceeding for disposition of property following dissolution of marriage by a court which lacked personal jurisdiction over the absent spouse or lacked jurisdiction to dispose of marital property at the time of the original judgment of dissolution;

(f) Any money or assets, payable to a participant or beneficiary from, or any interest of any participant or beneficiary in, a retirement plan, profit-sharing plan, health savings plan, or similar plan, including an inherited account or plan, that is qualified under Section 401(a), 403(a), 403(b), 408, 408A or 409 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. Section 401(a), 403(a), 403(b), 408, 408A, or 409), as amended, whether such participant's or beneficiary's interest arises by inheritance, designation, appointment, or otherwise, except as provided in this paragraph. Any plan or arrangement described in this paragraph shall not be exempt from the claim of an alternate payee under a qualified domestic relations order; however, the interest of any and all alternate payees under a qualified domestic relations order shall be exempt from any and all claims of any creditor, other than the state of Missouri through its department of social services. As used in this paragraph, the terms "alternate payee" and "qualified domestic relations order" have the meaning given to them in Section 414(p) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. Section 414(p)), as amended. If proceedings under Title 11 of the United States Code are commenced by or against such person, no amount of funds shall be exempt in such proceedings under any such plan, contract, or trust which is fraudulent as defined in subsection 2 of section 428.024 and for the period such person participated within three years prior to the commencement of such proceedings. For the purposes of this section, when the fraudulently conveyed funds are recovered and after, such funds shall be deducted and then treated as though the funds had never been contributed to the plan, contract, or trust;

(11) The debtor's right to receive, or property that is traceable to, a payment on account of the wrongful death of an individual of whom the debtor was a dependent, to the extent reasonably necessary for the support of the debtor and any dependent of the debtor;

(12) Firearms, firearm accessories, and ammunition, not to exceed one thousand five hundred dollars in value in the aggregate;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(13) Any moneys accruing to and deposited in individual savings accounts or individual deposit accounts under sections 166.400 to 166.456 or sections 166.500 to 166.529, or ABLE accounts established under sections 209.600 to 209.645 subject to the following provisions:

(a) This subdivision shall apply to any proceeding that:

a. Is filed on or after January 1, 2021; or

b. Was filed before January 1, 2021, and is pending on or on appeal after January 1, 2021;

(b) Except as provided by paragraph (c) of this subdivision, if the designated beneficiary of an individual savings account or individual deposit account established under sections 166.400 to 166.456 or sections 166.500 to 166.529 or of an ABLE account established under sections 209.600 to 209.645 is a lineal descendant of the account owner, all moneys in the account shall be exempt from any claims of creditors of the account owner or designated beneficiary;

(c) The provisions of paragraph (b) of this subdivision shall not apply to:

a. Claims of any creditor of an account owner as to amounts contributed within a two-year period preceding the date of the filing of a bankruptcy petition under 11 U.S.C. Section 101 et seq., as amended; or

b. Claims of any creditor of an account owner as to amounts contributed within a one-year period preceding an execution on judgment for such claims against the account owner.

2. Nothing in this section shall be interpreted to exempt from attachment or execution for a valid judicial or administrative order for the payment of child support or maintenance any money or assets, payable to a participant or beneficiary from, or any interest of any participant or beneficiary in, a retirement plan which is qualified pursuant to Sections 408 and 408A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. Sections 408 and 408A), as amended.

Section B. Because immediate action is necessary to provide individualized care for students with epilepsy or seizure disorders and individualized educational plans for children with special needs who attend public schools and because of the need to preserve safe and adequate access to educational opportunities for Missouri children, the enactment of sections 162.686 and 167.625 and the repeal and reenactment of section 210.201 of this act are deemed necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health, welfare, peace, and safety, and are hereby declared to be an emergency act within the meaning of the constitution, and the enactment of sections 162.686 and 167.625 and the repeal and reenactment of section 210.201 of this act shall be in full force and effect upon its passage and approval.

Section C. The repeal and reenactment of section 169.596 of this act shall become effective on January 1, 2022, and the repeal and reenactment of sections 167.645 and 167.903 of this act shall become effective on July 1, 2022.

SENATE BILL NO. 152

AN ACT

To repeal sections 160.263, 161.217, 162.441, 162.720, 166.400, 166.410, 166.415, 166.420, 166.425, 166.435, 166.440, 166.456, 166.502, 168.133, 174.453, 209.610, and 210.201, RSMo, and to enact in lieu thereof twenty-five new sections relating to education, with an emergency clause for certain sections.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI, AS FOLLOWS:

Section A. Sections 160.263, 161.217, 162.441, 162.720, 166.400, 166.410, 166.415, 166.420, 166.425, 166.435, 166.440, 166.456, 166.502, 168.133, 174.453, 209.610, and 210.201, RSMo, are repealed and twenty-five new sections enacted in lieu thereof, to be known as sections 160.263, 160.560, 161.217, 161.229, 161.380, 161.385, 162.441, 162.686, 162.720, 162.1255, 166.400, 166.410, 166.415, 166.420, 166.425, 166.435, 166.440, 166.456, 166.502, 167.625, 168.036, 168.133, 174.453, 209.610, and 210.201, to read as follows:

160.263. 1. As used in this section, the following terms mean:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(1) "Mechanical restraint", the use of any device or equipment to restrict a student's freedom of movement. "Mechanical restraint" shall not include devices implemented by trained personnel or used by a student with a prescription for such devices from an appropriate medical or related services professional and that are used for specific and approved purposes for which such devices were designed, such as the following:

(a) Adaptive devices or mechanical supports used to achieve proper body position, balance, or alignment to allow greater freedom of mobility than would be possible without the use of such devices or mechanical supports;

(b) Vehicle safety restraints when used as intended during the transport of a student in a moving vehicle;

(c) Restraints for medical immobilization; or

(d) Orthopedically prescribed devices that permit a student to participate in activities without risk;

(2) "Physical restraint", a personal restriction such as person-to-person physical contact that immobilizes, reduces, or restricts the ability of a student to move the student's torso, arms, legs, or head freely. "Physical restraint" shall not include:

(a) A physical escort, which is a temporary touching or holding of the hand, wrist, arm, shoulder, or back for the purpose of inducing a student to walk to a safe location;

(b) Comforting or calming a student;

(c) Holding a student's hand to transport the student for safety purposes;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(d) Intervening in a fight; or

(e) Using an assistive or protective device prescribed by an appropriately trained professional or professional team;

(3) "Prone restraint", using mechanical or physical restraint or both to restrict a student's movement while the student is lying with the student's front or face downward;

(4) "Restraint" includes, but is not limited to, mechanical restraint, physical restraint, and prone restraint;

(5) "Seclusion", the involuntary confinement of a student alone in a room or area that the student is physically prevented from leaving and that complies with the building code in effect in the school district. "Seclusion" shall not include the following:

(a) A timeout, which is a behavior management technique that is part of an approved program, involves the monitored separation of the student in a nonlocked setting, and is implemented for the purpose of calming;

(b) In-school suspension;

(c) Detention; or

(d) Other appropriate disciplinary measures.

2. The school discipline policy under section 160.261 shall [~~prohibit~~] reserve confining a student in [~~an unattended, locked space except for an emergency situation while awaiting the arrival of law enforcement personnel~~] seclusion for situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others.

3. For all school years beginning on or after July 1, 2022, no school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider shall use any mechanical, physical, or prone restraint technique that:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(1) Obstructs views of the student's face;

(2) Obstructs the student's respiratory airway, impairs the student's breathing or respiratory capacity, or restricts the movement required for normal breathing to cause positional or postural asphyxia;

(3) Places pressure or weight on or causes the compression of the student's chest, lungs, sternum, diaphragm, back, abdomen, or genitals;

(4) Obstructs the student's circulation of blood;

(5) Involves pushing on or into the student's mouth, nose, eyes, or any part of the face or involves covering the face or body with anything including, but not limited to, soft objects such as pillows, blankets, or washcloths;

(6) Endangers the student's life or significantly exacerbates the student's medical condition;

(7) Is purposely designed to inflict pain;

(8) Restricts the student from communicating. If an employee physically restrains a student who uses sign language or an augmentative mode of communication as the student's primary mode of communication, the student shall be permitted to have the student's hands free of restraint for brief periods unless an employee determines that such freedom appears likely to result in harm to self or others.

[~~2.~~] 4. (1) By July 1, 2011, the local board of education of each school district shall adopt a written policy that comprehensively addresses the use of restrictive behavioral interventions as a form of discipline or behavior management technique. The policy shall be consistent with professionally accepted practices and standards of student discipline, behavior management, health and safety, including the safe schools act. The policy shall include but not be limited to:

[~~(1)~~] (a) Definitions of restraint, seclusion, and time-out and any other terminology necessary to describe the continuum of restrictive behavioral interventions available for use or prohibited in the district, consistent with the provisions of this section;

[~~(2)~~] (b) Description of circumstances under which a restrictive behavioral intervention is allowed and prohibited, consistent with the provisions of this section, and any unique application requirements for specific groups of students such as differences based on age, disability, or environment in which the educational services are provided;

[~~(3)~~] (c) Specific implementation requirements associated with a restrictive behavioral intervention such as time limits, facility specifications, training requirements or supervision requirements; and

[~~(4)~~] (d) Documentation, notice and permission requirements associated with use of a restrictive behavioral intervention.

(2) Before July 1, 2022, each written policy adopted under this subsection shall be updated to prohibit the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider from using any restraint that employs any technique listed in subsection 3 of this section.

(3) Before July 1, 2022, each written policy adopted under this subsection shall be updated to state that the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider will reserve restraint or seclusion for situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others.

5. Before July 1, 2022, each school district, charter school, and publicly contracted private provider shall ensure that the policy adopted under subsection 4 of this section requires the following:

(2) All school district, charter school, and publicly contracted private provider personnel shall annually review the policy and procedures involving the use of seclusion and restraint. Personnel who use seclusion or restraint shall annually complete mandatory training in the specific seclusion and restraint techniques the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider uses under this section;

(3) (a) Each time seclusion or restraint is used for a student, the incident shall be monitored by a member of the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider personnel, and a report shall be completed by the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider that contains, at a minimum, the following:

a. The date, time of day, location, duration, and description of the incident and interventions;

b. Any event leading to the incident and the reason for using seclusion or restraint;

c. A description of the methods of seclusion or restraint used;

d. The nature and extent of any injury to the student;

e. The names, roles, and certifications of each employee involved in the use of seclusion or restraint;

f. The name, role, and signature of the person who prepared the report;

g. The name of an employee whom the parent or guardian can contact regarding the incident and use of seclusion or restraint;

h. The name of an employee to contact if the parent or guardian wishes to file a complaint; and

i. A statement directing parents and legal guardians to a sociological, emotional, or behavioral support organization and a hotline number to report child abuse and neglect.

(b) The school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider shall maintain the report as an education record of the student, provide a copy to the parent or legal guardian within five school days, and a copy of each incident report shall be given to the department of elementary and secondary education within thirty days of the incident;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(4) The school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider shall attempt to notify the parents or legal guardians as soon as possible but no later than one hour after the end of the school day on which the use of seclusion or restraint occurred. Notification shall be oral or electronic and shall include a statement indicating that the school district, charter school, or publicly contracted private provider will provide the parents or legal guardians a copy of the report described in subdivision (3) of this subsection within five school days;

(5) An officer, administrator, or employee of a public school district or charter school shall not retaliate against any person for having:

(a) Reported a violation of any policy established under this section or failure of a district or charter school to follow any provisions of this section in relation to incidents of seclusion and restraint; or

(b) Provided information regarding a violation of this section by a public school district or charter school or a member of the staff of the public school district or charter school.

6. The department of elementary and secondary education shall compile and maintain all incidents reported under this section in the department's core data system and make such data available on the Missouri comprehensive data system. No personally identifiable data shall be accessible on the database.

[~~3.~~] 7. The department of elementary and secondary education shall, in cooperation with appropriate associations, organizations, agencies and individuals with specialized expertise in behavior management, develop a model policy that satisfies the requirements of subsection 2 of this section as it existed on August 28, 2009, by July 1, 2010, and shall update such model policy to include the requirements of subdivisions (2) and (3) of subsection 4 and subsection 5 of this section by July 1, 2022.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

160.560. 1. The department of elementary and secondary education shall establish the "Show Me Success Diploma Program".

2. Under the show me success diploma program, the department of elementary and secondary education shall develop the "Show Me Success Diploma" as an alternative pathway to graduation for high school students that may be earned at any point between the end of a student's tenth grade year and the conclusion of the student's twelfth grade year.

3. By July 1, 2022, the department of elementary and secondary education shall develop detailed requirements for students to become eligible for the show me success diploma that include at least the following:

(1) Demonstrated skills and knowledge in English, science, and mathematical literacy to be successful in college level courses offered by the community colleges in this state that count toward a degree or certificate without taking remedial or developmental course work; and

4. School districts and charter schools may offer a course of study designed to meet the requirements to obtain a show me success diploma to students entering the ninth grade. Students who elect to pursue a show me success diploma shall participate in a course of study designed by the school district to meet the requirements established under subsection 3 of this section. The show me success diploma shall be available to any such student until the end of that student's twelfth grade year.

5. Students who earn a show me success diploma may remain in high school and participate in programs of study available through the school district or charter school until that student would otherwise have graduated at the end of grade twelve. For purposes of calculation and distribution of state aid, the school district or charter school of a pupil having earned a show me success diploma who remains enrolled in the school district or charter school shall continue to include the pupil in the pupil enrollment of each such school district or charter school and shall continue to receive funding for a pupil who earns a show me success diploma until that pupil would otherwise have graduated at the end of grade twelve. Students who elect to remain in high school under this subsection shall be eligible to participate in extracurricular activities, including interscholastic sports, through the end of grade twelve.

6. Students who pursue but do not meet the eligibility requirements for a show me success diploma at the end of grade ten or eleven shall receive a customized program of assistance during the next school year that addresses areas in which the student demonstrated deficiencies in the course requirements. Students may choose to return to a traditional academic program without completing the show me success diploma.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

7. The department of elementary and secondary education shall provide training, guidance, and assistance to teachers and administrators of the schools offering the show me success diploma and shall closely monitor the progress of the schools in the development of the program.

8. Pupils who earn a show me success diploma and do not remain enrolled in the district or charter school and instead enroll, or show proof that they will enroll, in a postsecondary educational institution eligible to participate in a student aid program administered by the U.S. Department of Education shall be included in the district's or charter school's state aid calculation under section 163.031, until such time that the pupil would have completed the pupil's twelfth grade year had the pupil not earned a show me success diploma. The funding assigned to a pupil under this subsection shall be calculated as if the pupil's attendance percentage equaled the district's or charter school's prior year average attendance percentage. For a pupil who, as provided in this subsection, is included in the district's or charter school's state aid calculation but who is not enrolled in the district or charter school, an amount equal to ninety percent of the pupil's proportionate share of the state, local, and federal aid that the district or charter school receives for the pupil under this subsection shall be deposited into an account established under sections 166.400 to 166.455 that lists the pupil as the beneficiary. The state treasurer shall provide guidance and assist school districts, charter schools, pupils, and pupil's parents or guardians with the creation, maintenance, and use of an account that has been established under sections 166.400 to 166.455.

9. The department of elementary and secondary education shall promulgate all necessary rules and regulations for the administration of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

10. The provisions of this section shall expire on August 28, 2028.

161.217. 1. The department of elementary and secondary education, in collaboration with the Missouri Head Start State Collaboration Office and the departments of health and senior services, mental health, and social services, shall develop[~~, as a three-year pilot program,~~] a voluntary early learning quality assurance report. The early learning quality assurance report shall be developed based on evidence-based practices.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. Participation in the early learning quality assurance report [~~pilot~~] program shall be voluntary for any licensed or license-exempt early learning providers that are center-based or home-based and are providing services for children from any ages from birth up to kindergarten.

3. The early learning quality assurance report may include, but is not limited to, information regarding staff qualifications, instructional quality, professional development, health and safety standards, parent engagement, and community engagement.

4. The early learning quality assurance report shall not be used for enforcement of compliance with any law or for any punitive purposes.

5. The department of elementary and secondary education shall promulgate all necessary rules and regulations for the administration of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2016, shall be invalid and void.

6. Under section 23.253 of the Missouri sunset act:

(1) The provisions of the new program authorized under this section shall [~~automatically sunset three years after August 28, 2019, unless reauthorized by an act of the general assembly; and~~

[~~(3)~~] (2) This section shall terminate on September first of the calendar year immediately following the calendar year in which the program authorized under this section is sunset.

161.229. 1. The department of elementary and secondary education shall maintain and publish on its website any data or report sent to the department from any federal agency within thirty days of receipt of such data or report in an accessible format.

2. The department shall maintain and publish on its website in an accessible format the full text of all state administrative rules and regulations related to elementary and secondary education and shall update such information within thirty days of the publication in the Missouri Register of any final order of rulemaking related to such rules and regulations.

3. The information published under subsections 1 and 2 of this section shall be made available to the public and shall be accessible and searchable from various devices including, but not limited to, computers, tablets, and other electronic communication devices.

4. By December thirty-first in every even-numbered year, the state auditor shall review the department's website for compliance with this section.

161.380. 1. Subject to appropriations, the department of elementary and secondary education shall establish the "Competency-Based Education Grant Program".

2. (1) There is hereby created in the state treasury the "Competency-Based Education Grant Program Fund". The fund shall consist of any appropriations to such fund and any gifts, contributions, grants, or bequests received from private or other sources for the purpose of providing competency-based education programs. The state treasurer shall be custodian of the fund. In accordance with sections 30.170 and 30.180, the state treasurer may approve disbursements of public moneys in accordance with distribution requirements and procedures developed by the department of elementary and secondary education. The fund shall be a dedicated fund and, upon appropriation, moneys in the fund shall be used solely for the administration of this section.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 33.080 to the contrary, any moneys remaining in the fund at the end of the biennium shall not revert to the credit of the general revenue fund.

(3) The state treasurer shall invest moneys in the fund in the same manner as other funds are invested. Any interest and moneys earned on such investments shall be credited to the fund.

3. The department of elementary and secondary education shall award grants from the competency-based education grant program fund to eligible school districts for the purpose of providing competency-based education programs. A school district wishing to receive such a grant shall submit an application to the department of elementary and secondary education addressing:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(1) A core mission that competency-based education courses will help achieve;

(2) A plan that outlines competency-based education courses and key metrics that will show success;

(3) Resources available to the school and in the community that will assist in creating successful competency-based outcomes; and

(4) Resources and support needed to help the school succeed in implementing competency-based education courses.

4. The department of elementary and secondary education shall facilitate the creation, sharing, and development of course assessments; curriculum; training and guidance for teachers; and best practices for the school districts that offer competency-based education courses.

5. For purposes of this section, the term "competency-based education program" means an educational program that:

(1) Affords students flexibility to progress and earn course credit upon demonstration of mastery, including through early high school graduation;

(2) Provides individual learning and assessment options, including through experiential and project-based learning, online or blended learning, additional remedial education time, and accelerated-pace curricula;

(3) Assesses student proficiency based on graduate profiles describing meaningful and critical knowledge and skills that students should have upon graduation; or

(4) Assesses student proficiency through tasks developed both locally and at the state level, performance of which demonstrate mastery.

6. The department of elementary and secondary education shall promulgate all necessary rules and regulations for the administration of this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

7. The provisions of this section shall expire on August 28, 2028.

161.385. 1. There is hereby established the "Competency-Based Education Task Force" to study and develop competency-based education programs in public schools. Task force members shall be chosen to represent the geographic diversity of the state. All task force members shall be appointed before October 31,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2021. The task force members shall be appointed as follows:

(1) Two members of the house of representatives appointed by the speaker of the house of representatives;

(2) Two members of the senate appointed by the president pro tempore of the senate;

(3) The commissioner of the department of elementary and secondary education or the commissioner's designee; and

(4) Four members appointed by the governor. Two members shall each represent a separate school district that offers competency-based education courses.

2. The members of the task force established under subsection 1 of this section shall elect a chair from among the membership of the task force. The task force shall meet as needed to complete its consideration of its objectives as established in subsections 4 and 5 of this section. Any vacancy on the task force shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment. Members of the task force shall serve without compensation, but shall be entitled to reimbursement for actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of official duties.

3. The department of elementary and secondary education shall provide such legal, research, clerical, and technical services as the task force may require in the performance of official duties.

4. The task force shall:

(1) Work toward implementing competency-based education courses statewide and devising a plan for Missouri to lead the

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

way in competency-based education courses;

(2) Solicit input from individuals and organizations with information or expertise relevant to the task force's objective, including experts and educators with experience related to competency-based education programs;

(3) Hold at least three public hearings to provide an opportunity to receive public testimony including, but not limited to, testimony from educators, local school boards, parents, representatives from business and industry, labor and community leaders, members of the general assembly, and the general public;

(4) Identify promising competency-based education programs, including programs that:

(a) Afford students flexibility to progress and earn course credit upon demonstration of mastery, including through early high school graduation;

(b) Provide individual learning and assessment options, including through experiential and project-based learning, online or blended learning, additional remedial education time, and accelerated-pace curricula;

(c) Assess student proficiency through tasks developed both locally and at the state level, performance of which demonstrate mastery;

(5) Identify obstacles to implementing competency-based education programs in Missouri public schools;

(6) Develop comprehensive graduate profiles that describe meaningful and critical knowledge skills that students should

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001891

have upon graduation that can be implemented into a diploma designation;

(7) Develop findings and recommendations for implementing competency-based education models and practices in Missouri public schools, including recommending changes to existing legislation, rules, and regulations; and

(8) Develop findings and recommendations for implementing a competency-based performance assessment that:

(a) Is consistent with the most effective competency-based education programs identified by the task force under subdivision (3) of this subsection;

(b) Assesses students based on both locally developed and common statewide performance tasks tied to grade and course competencies aligned with state content standards; and

(c) Complies with all applicable federal law, including 20 U.S.C. Section 6311(b)(1)(B), as amended. To the extent that implementing a competency-based performance assessment would require the department of elementary and secondary education to obtain innovative assessment and accountability demonstration authority under 20 U.S.C. Section 6364, as amended, the task force shall develop findings and recommendations for obtaining such authority.

5. The task force shall present its findings and recommendations to the speaker of the house of representatives, the president pro tempore of the senate, the joint committee on education, and the state board of education by December first annually.

6. The provisions of this section shall expire on August 28, 2028.

162.441. 1. If any school district desires to be attached to a community college district organized under sections 178.770 to 178.890 or to one or more adjacent seven-director school districts for school purposes, upon the receipt of a petition setting forth such fact, signed either by voters of the district equal in number to ten percent of those voting in the last school election at which school board members were elected or by a majority of the voters of the district, whichever is the lesser, the school board of the district desiring to be so attached shall submit the question to the voters.

2. As an alternative to the procedure in subsection 1 of this section, a seven-director district may, by a majority vote of its board of education, propose a plan to the voters of the district to attach the district to one or more adjacent seven-director districts and call an election upon the question of such plan.

3. As an alternative to the procedures in subsection 1 or 2 of this section, a community college district organized under sections 178.770 to 178.890 may, by a majority vote of its board of trustees, propose a plan to the voters of the school district to attach the school district to the community college district, levy the tax rate applicable to the community college district at the time of the vote of the board of trustees, and call an election upon the question of such plan. The tax rate applicable to the community college district shall not be levied as to the school district until the proposal by the board of trustees of the community college district has been approved by a majority vote of the voters of the school district at the election called for that purpose. The community college district shall be responsible for the costs associated with the election.

4. A plat of the proposed changes to all affected districts shall be published and posted with the notice of election.

5. The question shall be [~~submitted in substantially the following form:~~ ~~Shall the _____ school district be annexed to the _____ school districts effective the _____ day of _____, _____?~~] approved by the county commission in which the school district is located and the ballot language shall include the tax rate and assessed valuation of the school district prior to and after approval of the question.

6. If a majority of the votes cast in the district proposing annexation favor annexation, the secretary shall certify the fact, with a copy of the record, to the board of the district and to the boards of the districts to which annexation is proposed; whereupon the boards of the seven-director districts to which annexation is proposed shall meet to consider the advisability of receiving the district or a portion thereof, and if a majority of all the members of each board favor annexation, the boundary lines of the seven-director school districts from the effective date shall be changed to include the district, and the board shall immediately notify the secretary of the district which has been annexed of its action.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

7. Upon the effective date of the annexation, all indebtedness, property and money on hand belonging thereto shall immediately pass to the seven-director school district. If the district is annexed to more than one district, the provisions of sections 162.031 and 162.041 shall apply.

162.686. 1. No school district or charter school shall prohibit a parent or legal guardian of a student from recording by audio any meeting held under the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) (20 U.S.C. Section 1400 et seq.), as amended, or Section 504 of the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. Section 794), as amended.

2. Any recording made by a parent or legal guardian under this section shall be the property of the parent or legal guardian creating the recording. No recording made under this section shall be construed to be a public record made by or prepared for any public governmental body under chapter 610.

3. No school district or charter school shall impose pre-meeting notification requirements of recording by a parent or legal guardian of more than twenty-four hours.

4. No school district or charter school employee who reports any violations under this section shall be subject to discharge, retaliation, or any other adverse employment action for making such report.

162.720. 1. (1) This subdivision shall apply to all school years ending on or before June 30, 2023. Where a sufficient number of children are determined to be gifted and their development requires programs or services beyond the level of those ordinarily provided in regular public school programs, districts may establish special programs for such gifted children.

(2) For all school years beginning on or after July 1, 2023, if three percent or more of students enrolled in a school district or charter school are determined to be gifted and their development requires programs or services beyond the level of those ordinarily provided in regular public school programs, the district or charter school shall establish a state-approved gifted program for gifted children.

2. For all school years beginning on or after July 1, 2023, any teacher providing gifted services to students in districts or charter schools with an average daily attendance of more than three hundred fifty students shall be certificated in gifted education. In districts or charter schools with an average daily attendance of three hundred fifty students or fewer, any teacher providing gifted services shall not be required to be certificated to teach gifted education but such teacher shall annually participate in at least six clock hours of professional development focused on gifted services, which hours shall be paid for by the school district.

3. The state board of education shall determine standards for such gifted programs and gifted services. Approval of [~~such~~] gifted programs shall be made by the state department of elementary and secondary education based upon project applications submitted [~~by July fifteenth of each year~~] at a time and in a form determined by the department of elementary and secondary education.

[~~3.~~] 4. No district shall make a determination as to whether a child is gifted based on the child's participation in an advanced placement course or international baccalaureate course. Districts shall determine a child is gifted only if the child meets the definition of gifted children as provided in section 162.675.

[~~4.~~] 5. Any district with a gifted education program approved under subsection [~~2~~] 3 of this section shall have a policy, approved by the board of education of the district, that establishes a process that outlines the procedures and conditions under which parents or guardians may request a review of the decision that determined that their child did not qualify to receive services through the district's gifted education program.

[~~5.~~] 6. School districts and school district employees shall be immune from liability for any and all acts or omissions relating to the decision that a child did not qualify to receive services through the district's gifted education program.

7. The department of elementary and secondary education may promulgate rules to implement the provisions of this section and may develop a process to certify teachers in gifted education. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2021, shall be invalid and void.

162.1255. 1. As used in this section, the following terms mean:

(1) "Competency-based credit", credit awarded by school districts and charter schools to high school students upon demonstration of competency as determined by a school district. Such credit shall be awarded upon receipt of "proficient" or "advanced" on an end-of-course assessment;

(2) "Prior year average attendance percentage", the quotient of the district's or charter school's prior year average daily attendance divided by the district's or charter school's prior year average yearly enrollment.

2. School districts and charter schools shall receive state school funding under sections 163.031, 163.043, 163.044, and 163.087 for resident pupils enrolled in the school district or charter school and taking competency-based courses offered by the school district.

3. For purposes of calculation and distribution of state aid under section 163.031, attendance of a student enrolled in a district's or charter school's competency-based courses shall equal, upon course completion, the product of the district's or charter school's prior year average attendance percentage multiplied by the total number of attendance hours normally allocable to a noncompetency-based course of equal credit value.

4. The provisions of this section shall expire on August 28, 2028.

166.400. Sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 shall be known and may be cited as the "Missouri Education [~~Savings~~] Program".

166.410. [~~Definitions.~~] As used in sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, except where the context clearly requires another interpretation, the following terms mean:

(1) "Beneficiary", any individual designated by a participation agreement to benefit from payments for qualified education expenses at an eligible educational institution;

(2) "Benefits", the payment of qualified education expenses on behalf of a beneficiary from a savings account during the beneficiary's attendance at an eligible educational institution;

(3) "Board", the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program board established in section 166.415;

(4) "Eligible educational institution", an [~~institution of postsecondary education~~] eligible educational institution as defined in Section [~~529(e)(5)~~] 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, [~~and institutions of elementary and secondary education as provided in Sections 529(c)(7) and 529(e)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code,~~] as amended;

(5) "Financial institution", a bank, insurance company or registered investment company;

(6) "Internal Revenue Code", the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001899

(7) "Missouri education [~~savings~~] program" or "[~~savings~~] program", the program created pursuant to sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456;

(8) "Participant", a person who has entered into a participation agreement pursuant to sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 for the advance payment of qualified education expenses on behalf of a beneficiary;

(9) "Participation agreement", an agreement between a participant and the board pursuant to and conforming with the requirements of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456; and

(10) "Qualified higher education expenses" or "qualified education expenses", the qualified costs of tuition and fees and other expenses for attendance at an eligible educational institution, as defined in Section [~~529(e)(3)~~] 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, as amended.

166.415. 1. There is hereby created the "Missouri Education [~~Savings~~] Program". The program shall be administered by the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program board which shall consist of the Missouri state treasurer who shall serve as chairman, the commissioner of the department of higher education and workforce development, the commissioner of education, the commissioner of the office of administration, the director of the department of economic development, two persons having demonstrable experience and knowledge in the areas of finance or the investment and management of public funds, one of whom is selected by the president pro tem of the senate and one of whom is selected by the speaker of the house of representatives, and one person having demonstrable experience and knowledge in the area of banking or deposit rate determination and placement of depository certificates of deposit or other deposit investments. Such member shall be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate. The three appointed members shall be appointed to serve for terms of four years from the date of appointment, or until their successors shall have been appointed and shall have qualified. The members of the board shall be subject to the conflict of interest provisions of section 105.452. Any member who violates the conflict of interest provisions shall be removed from the board. In order to establish and administer the [~~savings~~] program, the board, in addition to its other powers and authority, shall have the power and authority to:

(1) Develop and implement the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program and, notwithstanding any provision of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 to the contrary, the [~~savings~~] programs and services consistent with the purposes and objectives of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456;

(2) Promulgate reasonable rules and regulations and establish policies and procedures to implement sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, to permit the [~~savings~~] program to qualify as a "qualified state tuition program" pursuant to Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code and to ensure the [~~savings~~] program's compliance with all applicable laws;

(3) Develop and implement educational programs and related informational materials for participants, either directly or through a contractual arrangement with a financial institution for investment services, and their families, including special programs and materials to inform families with young children regarding methods for financing education and training;

(4) Enter into agreements with any financial institution, the state or any federal or other agency or entity as required for the operation of the [~~savings~~] program pursuant to sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456;

(5) Enter into participation agreements with participants;

(6) Accept any grants, gifts, legislative appropriations, and other moneys from the state, any unit of federal, state, or local government or any other person, firm, partnership, or corporation for deposit to the account of the [~~savings~~] program;

(7) Invest the funds received from participants in appropriate investment instruments to achieve long-term total return through a combination of capital appreciation and current income;

(8) Make appropriate payments and distributions on behalf of beneficiaries pursuant to participation agreements;

(9) Make refunds to participants upon the termination of participation agreements pursuant to the provisions, limitations, and restrictions set forth in sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 and the rules adopted by the board;

(10) Make provision for the payment of costs of administration and operation of the [~~savings~~] program;

(11) Effectuate and carry out all the powers granted by sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, and have all other powers

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

necessary to carry out and effectuate the purposes, objectives and provisions of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456 pertaining to the [~~savings~~] program; and

(12) Procure insurance, guarantees or other protections against any loss in connection with the assets or activities of the [~~savings~~] program.

2. Any member of the board may designate a proxy for that member who will enjoy the full voting privileges of that member for the one meeting so specified by that member. No more than three proxies shall be considered members of the board for the purpose of establishing a quorum.

3. Four members of the board shall constitute a quorum. No vacancy in the membership of the board shall impair the right of a quorum to exercise all the rights and perform all the duties of the board. No action shall be taken by the board except upon the affirmative vote of a majority of the members present.

4. The board shall meet within the state of Missouri at the time set at a previously scheduled meeting or by the request of any four members of the board. Notice of the meeting shall be delivered to all other trustees in person or by depositing notice in a United States post office in a properly stamped and addressed envelope not less than six days prior to the date fixed for the meeting. The board may meet at any time by unanimous mutual consent. There shall be at least one meeting in each quarter.

5. The funds shall be invested only in those investments which a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with these matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims, as provided in section 105.688. For new contracts entered into after August 28, 2012, board members shall study investment plans of other states and contract with or negotiate to provide benefit options the same as or similar to other states' qualified plans for the purpose of offering additional options for members of the plan. The board may delegate to duly appointed investment counselors authority to act in place of the board in the investment and reinvestment of all or part of the moneys and may also delegate to such counselors the authority to act in place of the board in the holding, purchasing, selling, assigning, transferring or disposing of any or all of the securities and investments in which such moneys shall have been invested, as well as the proceeds of such investments and such moneys. Such investment counselors shall be registered as investment advisors with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. In exercising or delegating its investment powers and authority, members of the board shall exercise ordinary business care and prudence under the facts and circumstances prevailing at the time of the action or decision. No member of the board shall be liable for any action taken or omitted with respect to the exercise of, or delegation of, these powers and authority if such member shall have discharged the duties of [~~his or her~~] the member's position in good faith and with that degree of diligence, care and skill which a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with these matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

6. No investment transaction authorized by the board shall be handled by any company or firm in which a member of the board has a substantial interest, nor shall any member of the board profit directly or indirectly from any such investment.

7. No trustee or employee of the [~~savings~~] program shall receive any gain or profit from any funds or transaction of the [~~savings~~] program. Any trustee, employee or agent of the [~~savings~~] program accepting any gratuity or compensation for the purpose of influencing such trustee's, employee's or agent's action with respect to the investment or management of the funds of the [~~savings~~] program shall thereby forfeit the office and in addition thereto be subject to the penalties prescribed for bribery.

8. The state treasurer may delegate any duties assigned to the state treasurer under sections 135.712 to 135.719 and 166.700 to 166.720 to the Missouri education program board established under this section.

166.420. 1. The board may enter into [~~savings~~] program participation agreements with participants on behalf of beneficiaries pursuant to the provisions of sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, including the following terms and conditions:

(1) A participation agreement shall stipulate the terms and conditions of the [~~savings~~] program in which the participant makes contributions;

(2) A participation agreement shall specify the method for calculating the return on the contribution made by the

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

participant;

(3) The execution of a participation agreement by the board shall not guarantee that the beneficiary named in any participation agreement will be admitted to an eligible educational institution, be allowed to continue to attend an eligible educational institution after having been admitted or will graduate from an eligible educational institution;

(4) A participation agreement shall clearly and prominently disclose to participants the risk associated with depositing moneys with the board;

(5) Participation agreements shall be organized and presented in a way and with language that is easily understandable by the general public; and

(6) A participation agreement shall clearly and prominently disclose to participants the existence of any load charge or similar charge assessed against the accounts of the participants for administration or services.

2. The board shall establish the maximum amount [~~which~~] that may be contributed annually [~~by a participant~~] with respect to a beneficiary.

3. The board shall establish a total contribution limit for savings accounts established under the [~~savings~~] program with respect to a beneficiary to permit the [~~savings~~] program to qualify as a "qualified state tuition program" pursuant to Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code. No contribution may be made to a savings account for a beneficiary if it would cause the balance of all savings accounts of the beneficiary to exceed the total contribution limit established by the board. The board may establish other requirements that it deems appropriate to provide adequate safeguards to prevent contributions on behalf of a beneficiary from exceeding what is necessary to provide for the qualified education expenses of the beneficiary.

4. The board shall establish the minimum length of time that contributions and earnings must be held by the [~~savings~~] program to qualify pursuant to section 166.435. Any contributions or earnings that are withdrawn or distributed from a savings account prior to the expiration of the minimum length of time, as established by the board, shall be subject to a penalty pursuant to section 166.430.

166.425. All money paid by a participant in connection with participation agreements shall be deposited as received and shall be promptly invested by the board. Contributions and earnings thereon accumulated on behalf of participants in the [~~savings~~] program may be used, as provided in the participation agreement, for qualified education expenses. Such contributions and earnings shall not be considered income for purposes of determining a participant's eligibility for financial assistance under any state student aid program.

166.435. 1. Notwithstanding any law to the contrary, the assets of the [~~savings~~] program held by the board, the assets of any deposit program authorized in section 166.500, and the assets of any qualified tuition [~~savings~~] program established pursuant to Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code and any income therefrom shall be exempt from all taxation by the state or any of its political subdivisions. Income earned or received from the [~~savings~~] program, deposit, or other qualified tuition [~~savings~~] programs established under Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, or refunds of qualified education expenses received by a beneficiary from an eligible educational institution in connection with withdrawal from enrollment at such institution which are contributed within sixty days of withdrawal to a qualified tuition [~~savings~~] program of which such individual is a beneficiary shall not be subject to state income tax imposed pursuant to chapter 143 and shall be eligible for any benefits provided in accordance with Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code. The exemption from taxation pursuant to this section shall apply only to assets and income maintained, accrued, or expended pursuant to the requirements of the [~~savings~~] program established pursuant to sections 166.400 to [~~166.455~~] 166.456, the deposit program established pursuant to sections 166.500 to 166.529, and other qualified tuition [~~savings~~] programs established under Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, and no exemption shall apply to assets and income expended for any other purposes. Annual contributions made to the [~~savings~~] program held by the board, the deposit program, and any qualified tuition [~~savings~~] program established under Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code up to and including eight thousand dollars per [~~participating~~] taxpayer, and up to sixteen thousand dollars for married individuals filing a joint tax return, shall be subtracted in determining Missouri adjusted gross income pursuant to section 143.121.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. If any deductible contributions to or earnings from any such program referred to in this section are distributed and not used to pay qualified education expenses, not transferred as allowed by 26 U.S.C. Section 529(c)(3)(C)(i), as amended, and any Internal Revenue Service regulations or guidance issued in relation thereto, or are not held for the minimum length of time established by the appropriate Missouri board, then the amount so distributed shall be included in the Missouri adjusted gross income of the participant, or, if the participant is not living, the beneficiary.

3. The provisions of this section shall apply to tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2008, and the provisions of this section with regard to sections 166.500 to 166.529 shall apply to tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2004.

166.440. The assets of the [~~savings~~] program shall at all times be preserved, invested and expended only for the purposes set forth in this section and in accordance with the participation agreements, and no property rights therein shall exist in favor of the state.

166.456. All personally identifiable information concerning participants and beneficiaries of accounts established within the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program pursuant to sections 166.400 to 166.456 shall be confidential, and any disclosure of such information shall be restricted to purposes directly connected with the administration of the program.

166.502. As used in sections 166.500 to 166.529, except where the context clearly requires another interpretation, the following terms mean:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(1) "Beneficiary", any individual designated by a participation agreement to benefit from payments for qualified higher education expenses at an eligible educational institution;

(2) "Benefits", the payment of qualified higher education expenses on behalf of a beneficiary from a deposit account during the beneficiary's attendance at an eligible educational institution;

(3) "Board", the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program board established in section 166.415;

(4) "Eligible educational institution", an institution of postsecondary education as defined in Section 529(e)(5) of the Internal Revenue Code;

(5) "Financial institution", a depository institution and any intermediary that brokers certificates of deposits;

(6) "Internal Revenue Code", the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended;

(7) "Missouri higher education deposit program" or "deposit program", the program created pursuant to sections 166.500 to 166.529;

(8) "Participant", a person who has entered into a participation agreement pursuant to sections 166.500 to 166.529 for the advance payment of qualified higher education expenses on behalf of a beneficiary;

(9) "Participation agreement", an agreement between a participant and the board pursuant to and conforming with the requirements of sections 166.500 to 166.529;

(10) "Qualified higher education expenses", the qualified costs of tuition and fees and other expenses for attendance at an eligible educational institution, as defined in Section 529(e)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.

167.625. 1. This section shall be known and may be cited as "Will's Law".

2. As used in this section, the following terms mean:

(1) "Individualized emergency health care plan", a document developed by a school nurse, in consultation with a student's parent and other appropriate medical professionals, that is consistent with the recommendations of the student's health care providers, that describes procedural guidelines that provide specific directions about what to do in a particular emergency situation, and that is signed by the parent and the school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse;

(2) "Individualized health care plan", a document developed by a school nurse, in consultation with a student's parent and other appropriate medical professionals who may be providing epilepsy or seizure disorder care to the student, that is consistent with the recommendations of the student's health care providers, that describes the health services needed by the student at school, and that is signed by the parent and the school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse;

(3) "Parent", a parent, guardian, or other person having charge, control, or custody of a student;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(4) "School", any public elementary or secondary school or charter school;

(5) "School employee", a person employed by a school;

(6) "Student", a student who has epilepsy or a seizure disorder and who attends a school.

3. (1) The parent of a student who seeks epilepsy or seizure disorder care while at school shall inform the school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse. The school nurse shall develop an individualized health care plan and an individualized emergency health care plan for the student. The parent of the student shall annually provide to the school written authorization for the provision of epilepsy or seizure disorder care as described in the individualized plans.

(2) The individualized plans developed under subdivision (1) of this subsection shall be updated by the school nurse before the beginning of each school year and as necessary if there is a change in the health status of the student.

(3) Each individualized health care plan shall, and each individualized emergency health care plan may, include but not be limited to the following information:

(a) A notice about the student's condition for all school employees who interact with the student;

(b) Written orders from the student's physician or advanced practice nurse describing the epilepsy or seizure disorder care;

(c) The symptoms of the epilepsy or seizure disorder for that particular student and recommended care;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(d) Whether the student may fully participate in exercise and sports, and any contraindications to exercise or accommodations that shall be made for that particular student;

(e) Accommodations for school trips, after-school activities, class parties, and other school-related activities;

(f) Information for such school employees about how to recognize and provide care for epilepsy and seizure disorders, epilepsy and seizure disorder first aid training, when to call for assistance, emergency contact information, and parent contact information;

(g) Medical and treatment issues that may affect the educational process of the student;

(h) The student's ability to manage, and the student's level of understanding of, the student's epilepsy or seizure disorder; and

4. (1) The school nurse assigned to a particular school or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse shall coordinate the provision of epilepsy and seizure disorder care at that school and ensure that all school employees are trained every two years in the care of students with epilepsy and seizure disorders including, but not limited to, school employees working with school-sponsored programs outside of the regular school day, as provided in the student's individualized plans.

(2) The training required under subdivision (1) of this subsection shall include an online or in-person course of instruction approved by the department of health and senior services that is provided by a reputable, local, Missouri-based health care or nonprofit organization that supports the welfare of individuals with epilepsy and seizure disorders.

5. The school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse shall obtain a release from a student's parent to authorize the sharing of medical information between the student's physician or advanced practice nurse and other health care providers. The release shall also authorize the school nurse or the school administrator or the administrator's designee in the absence of the school nurse to share medical information with other school employees in the school district as necessary. No sharing of information under this subsection shall be construed to be a violation of the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) (Pub. L. 104-191), as amended, if a student's parent has provided a release under this subsection.

6. No school employee including, but not limited to, a school nurse, a school bus driver, a school bus aide, or any other officer or agent of a school shall be held liable for any good faith act or omission consistent with the provisions of this section, nor shall an action before the state board of nursing lie against a school nurse for any such action taken by a school employee trained in good faith by the school nurse under this section. "Good faith" shall not be construed to include willful misconduct, gross negligence, or recklessness.

168.036. 1. In addition to granting certificates of license to teach in public schools of the state as provided in section 168.021, the state board of education shall grant substitute teacher certificates as provided in this section to any individual seeking to substitute teach in any public school in this state.

2. (1) The state board shall not grant a certificate of license to teach under this section to any individual who has not completed a background check as described in section 168.133.

(2) A background check conducted under this subsection shall be valid for four years for purposes of the certificate granted under this section and shall be transferrable from one school district to another district except as provided in subdivision (3) of this subsection.

(3) A school district employing a substitute teacher who has a certificate granted under this section may require the teacher to complete the background check annually. A school district may require the background check required in this section for a newly hired substitute teacher to be conducted at the teacher's expense.

(4) The state board may refuse to issue or renew, suspend, or revoke any certificate sought or issued under this section in the same manner and for the same reasons as provided in section 168.071.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3. The state board may grant a certificate under this section to any individual who has completed the background check required in this section and who has completed:

(1) At least thirty-six semester hours at an accredited institution of higher education and the orientation required in subsection 6 of this section; or

(2) The twenty-hour online training program required in this section and who possesses a high school diploma or the equivalent thereof.

4. The state board may grant a certificate under this section to any highly qualified individual with expertise in a technical or business field or with experience in the Armed Forces of the United States who has completed the background check required in this section but does not meet any of the qualifications in subdivision (1) or (2) of subsection 3 of this section if the superintendent of the school district sponsors such individual and the school board of the school district in which the individual seeks to substitute teach votes to approve such individual to substitute teach.

5. (1) An individual to whom the state board grants a certificate under this section may be a substitute teacher in any public school in the state if a school district superintendent, school district assistant superintendent, or public school principal in this state agrees to employ the individual as a substitute teacher.

(2) No individual to whom the state board grants a certificate under this section and who is under twenty years of age shall be a substitute teacher in grades nine to twelve.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

6. An individual to whom the state board grants a certificate under this section shall complete an orientation developed and offered by the school district for which the individual originally teaches. The orientation for such individual shall contain at least two hours of subjects appropriate for substitute teachers and shall contain instruction on the school district's best practices for classroom management. Such orientation completed in any school district may be accepted by any subsequent district in which the individual substitute teaches. A subsequent school district may require the individual to complete a separate and distinct local orientation for the particular school district before the individual may substitute teach in the subsequent school district.

7. A certificate granted under this section shall be valid for four years. A certificate granted under this section shall expire at the end of any calendar year in which the individual fails to substitute teach for at least five days or forty hours of in-seat instruction.

8. The department of elementary and secondary education shall develop an online training program for individuals granted a certificate under subdivision (2) of subsection 3 of this section. The training program shall consist of twenty hours of training related to subjects appropriate for substitute teachers as determined by the department. A substitute teacher shall complete an orientation for substitute teachers provided by the school district in which the substitute teacher teaches.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

9. Any individual possessing a valid certificate of license to teach granted by the state board shall be deemed to be a substitute teacher under this section if the individual has completed a background check as required in this section.

10. The state board may exercise the board's authority as provided in chapter 161 to promulgate all necessary rules and regulations necessary for the administration of this section.

168.133. 1. As used in this section, "screened volunteer" shall mean any person who assists a school by providing uncompensated service and who may periodically be left alone with students. The school district shall ensure that a criminal background check is conducted for all screened volunteers, who shall complete the criminal background check prior to being left alone with a student. Screened volunteers include, but are not limited to, persons who regularly assist in the office or library, mentor or tutor students, coach or supervise a school-sponsored activity before or after school, or chaperone students on an overnight trip. Screened volunteers [~~may only~~] shall access student education records only when necessary to assist the district and while supervised by staff members. Volunteers [~~that~~] who are not screened shall not be left alone with a student or have access to student records.

2. The school district shall ensure that a criminal background check is conducted on any person employed after January 1, 2005, authorized to have contact with pupils and prior to the individual having contact with any pupil. Such persons include, but are not limited to, administrators, teachers, substitute teachers, aides, paraprofessionals, assistants, secretaries, custodians, cooks, screened volunteers, and nurses. The school district shall also ensure that a criminal background check is conducted for school bus drivers. The district may allow such drivers to operate buses pending the result of the criminal background check. For bus drivers, the school district shall be responsible for conducting the criminal background check on drivers employed by the school district. For drivers employed by a pupil transportation company under contract with the school district, the criminal background check shall be conducted pursuant to section 43.540 and conform to the requirements established in the National Child Protection Act of 1993, as amended by the Volunteers for Children Act. Personnel who have successfully undergone a criminal background check and a check of the family care safety registry as part of the professional license application process under section 168.021 and who have received clearance on the checks within one prior year of employment shall be considered to have completed the background check requirement. A criminal background check under this section shall include a search of any information publicly available in an electronic format through a public index or single case display.

3. In order to facilitate the criminal history background check, the applicant shall submit a set of fingerprints collected pursuant to standards determined by the Missouri highway patrol. The fingerprints shall be used by the highway patrol to search the criminal history repository and shall be forwarded to the

Federal Bureau of Investigation for searching the federal criminal history files.

4. The applicant shall pay the fee for the state criminal history record information pursuant to section 43.530 and sections 210.900 to 210.936 and pay the appropriate fee determined by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the federal criminal history record when [~~he or she~~] the applicant applies for a position authorized to have contact with pupils pursuant to this section. The department shall distribute the fees collected for the state and federal criminal histories to the Missouri highway patrol.

5. For each school district that is not enrolled in the Missouri Rap Back program under chapter 43, the department of elementary and secondary education shall facilitate an annual check of employed persons holding current active certificates under [~~section~~] sections 168.021 and 168.036 against criminal history records in the central repository under section 43.530, the sexual offender registry under sections 589.400 to 589.426, and child abuse central registry under sections 210.109 to 210.183. The department of elementary and secondary education shall facilitate procedures for school districts to submit personnel information annually for persons employed by the school districts who do not hold a current valid certificate who are required by subsection 1 of this section to undergo a criminal background check, sexual offender registry check, and child abuse central registry check. The Missouri state highway patrol shall provide ongoing electronic updates to criminal history background checks of those persons previously submitted, both those who have an active certificate and those who do not have an active certificate, by the department of elementary and secondary education. This shall fulfill the annual check against the criminal history records in the central repository under section 43.530.

6. The school district may adopt a policy to provide for reimbursement of expenses incurred by an employee for state and federal criminal history information pursuant to section 43.530.

7. If, as a result of the criminal history background check mandated by this section, it is determined that the holder of a certificate issued pursuant to [~~section~~] sections 168.021 and 168.036 has pled guilty or nolo contendere to, or been found guilty of a crime or offense listed in section 168.071, or a similar crime or offense committed in another state, the United States, or any other country, regardless of imposition of sentence, such information shall be reported to the department of elementary and secondary education.

8. Any school official making a report to the department of elementary and secondary education in conformity with this section shall not be subject to civil liability for such action.

9. For any teacher who is employed by a school district on a substitute or part-time basis within one year of such teacher's retirement from a Missouri school, the state of Missouri shall not require such teacher to be subject to any additional background checks prior to having contact with pupils. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as prohibiting or otherwise restricting a school district from requiring additional background checks for such teachers employed by the school district.

10. A criminal background check and fingerprint collection conducted under subsections 1 to 3 of this section shall be valid for at least a period of one year and transferrable from one school district to another district. A school district may, in its discretion, conduct a new criminal background check and fingerprint collection under subsections 1 to 3 of this section for a newly hired employee at the district's expense. A teacher's change in type of certification shall have no effect on the transferability or validity of such records.

11. Nothing in this section shall be construed to alter the standards for suspension, denial, or revocation of a certificate issued pursuant to this chapter.

12. Beginning on January 1, 2022, any substitute teacher may, at the time such substitute teacher submits the fingerprints and information required for the Missouri criminal record review under subsections 2 and 3 of this section, designate up to five school districts to which the results of the substitute teacher's criminal history background check and fingerprint collection shall be disseminated. The substitute teacher shall pay an additional five-dollar fee for such records to be disseminated to the second and third school districts and an additional five-dollar fee for such records to be disseminated to the fourth and fifth school districts.

13. The state board of education may promulgate rules for criminal history background checks made pursuant to this section. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010, that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable, and if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to review, to delay the effective date, or to disapprove and annul a rule are subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and any rule proposed or adopted after January 1, 2005, shall be invalid and void.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

174.453. 1. Except as provided in section 174.450, the board of governors shall be appointed as follows:

(1) Five voting members shall be selected from the counties comprising the institution's historic statutory service region as described in section 174.010, except that no more than two members shall be appointed from any one county with a population of less than two hundred thousand inhabitants;

(2) Two voting members shall be selected from any of the counties in the state which are outside of the institution's historic service region; and

(3) One nonvoting member who is a student shall be selected in the same manner as prescribed in section 174.055.

2. The term of service of the governors shall be as follows:

(1) The voting members shall be appointed for terms of six years; and

(2) The nonvoting student member shall serve a two-year term.

3. Members of any board of governors selected pursuant to this section and in office on May 13, 1999, shall serve the remainder of their unexpired terms.

4. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection 1 of this section, the board of governors of Missouri Southern State University shall be appointed as follows:

(1) Six voting members shall be selected from any of the following counties: Barton, Jasper, Newton, McDonald, Dade, Lawrence, and Barry provided that no more than three of these six members shall be appointed from any one county;

(2) Two voting members shall be selected from any of the counties in the state which are outside of the counties articulated in subdivision (1) of this subsection;

(3) One nonvoting member who is a student shall be selected in the same manner as prescribed in section 174.055; and

(4) The provisions of subdivisions (1) and (2) of this subsection shall only apply to board members first appointed after August 28, 2004.

5. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection 1 of this section, the board of governors of Missouri Western State University shall be composed of eight members appointed as follows:

(1) Five voting members shall be selected from any of the following counties: Buchanan, Platte, Clinton, Andrew, and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

DeKalb [~~provided that no more than three of these five members shall be appointed from any one county~~];

(2) [~~Two voting members shall be selected from any of the counties in the state which are outside of the counties articulated in subdivision (1) of this subsection;~~

~~(3)~~] One nonvoting member who is a student shall be selected in the same manner as prescribed in section 174.055; and

[~~(4)~~] (3) The provisions of [~~subdivisions (1) and (2)~~] subdivision (1) of this subsection shall only apply to board members first appointed after August 28, 2005.

209.610. 1. The board may enter into ABLE program participation agreements with participants on behalf of designated beneficiaries pursuant to the provisions of sections 209.600 to 209.645, including the following terms and conditions:

(1) A participation agreement shall stipulate the terms and conditions of the ABLE program in which the participant makes contributions;

(2) A participation agreement shall specify the method for calculating the return on the contribution made by the participant;

(3) A participation agreement shall clearly and prominently disclose to participants the risk associated with depositing moneys with the board;

(4) Participation agreements shall be organized and presented in a way and with language that is easily understandable by the general public; and

(5) A participation agreement shall clearly and prominently disclose to participants the existence of any load charge or similar charge assessed against the accounts of the participants for administration or services.

2. The board shall establish the maximum amount of contributions which may be made annually to an ABLE account, which shall be the same as the amount allowed by 26 U.S.C. Section 529A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.

3. The board shall establish a total contribution limit for savings accounts established under the ABLE program with respect to a designated beneficiary which shall in no event be less than the amount established as the contribution limit by the Missouri education [~~savings~~] program board for qualified tuition [~~savings~~] programs established under sections 166.400 to [~~166.450~~] 166.456. No contribution shall be made to an ABLE account for a designated beneficiary if it would cause the balance of the ABLE account of the designated beneficiary to exceed the total contribution limit established by the board. The board may establish other requirements that it deems appropriate to provide adequate safeguards to prevent contributions on behalf of a designated beneficiary from exceeding what is necessary to provide for the qualified disability expenses of the designated beneficiary.

4. The board shall establish the minimum length of time that contributions and earnings must be held by the ABLE program to qualify as tax exempt pursuant to section 209.625. Any contributions or earnings that are withdrawn or distributed from an ABLE account prior to the expiration of the minimum length of time, as established by the board, shall be subject to a penalty

Relating to Education

Section	When Added	Senate Bill/House Bill	Status As of 4/16/21	Description
160.263	HCS	HB 387 Bailey	Senate Hearing	This bill defines "restraint" and "seclusion" and requires school districts, charter schools, or publicly contracted private providers to include in policy a prohibition on the use of restraint and seclusion, including "prone restraint" as defined by the bill, for any purpose other than situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others. Any incident requiring restraint or seclusion shall be monitored by school personnel with written observation The bill requires that before July 1, 2022 each school district, and charter school, or publicly contracted private providers policy shall include: (1) When to remove a child from restraint, seclusion, or isolation; (2) Requirement for annual mandatory training; (3) Reporting requirements for any occurrence of restraint, seclusion or isolation as outlined in the bill, including the reporting requirements for parental notification and providing a copy of each report to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE); (4) Notification requirement for each occurrence of a restraint, seclusion, or isolation incident to parents or guardians within one hour after the end of school on the day the incident occurs. (5) Protections for individuals that report or provide information about violations of policy under this section.
160.560	SA 4	SB 34 Arthur HB 624 Richey	Perfected Public Hearing Senate Education committee	This bill establishes the Show Me Success Diploma Program as an alternative pathway to graduation for high school students. Students may earn the show me success diploma beginning at the end of a student's tenth grade year. By July 1, 2022, DESE shall develop detailed requirements for students to become eligible for the show me success diploma. Students who earn a show me success diploma may elect to remain in high school. Alternatively, a student having earned the diploma may instead enroll in a qualifying postsecondary educational institution. For each student enrolled in such an institution, an amount equal to ninety percent of the pupil's proportionate share of the state, local, and federal aid that the district or charter school receives for such pupil, shall be deposited into an account that lists the pupil as the beneficiary. Provisions will expire 2028
161.217	HCS	HB 1071 Shields	19-0 House Ed Comm	Extends the early learning quality assurance program
161.229	SA 6	SB 55 O'Laughlin	Senate Informal	INFORMATION TO BE PUBLISHED ON DEPARTMENT WEBSITE Within thirty days of receipt or publication, the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education shall maintain and publish on its website any data or report sent to the Department from any federal agency and the full text of all state administrative rules and regulations related to elementary and secondary education. Such information shall be accessible and searchable from various electronic communication devices as described in the act.
161.380-85 162.1255	SA 4	SB 34 & 35 Arthur	Senate Ed Committee	This bill allows school districts and charter schools to receive state school funding under the foundation formula for high school students who are taking competency-based courses offered by their school district or charter school.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

				Attendance of a student enrolled in a competency-based course shall equal the product of the district or charter school's prior year average attendance percentage multiplied by the total number of attendance hours normally allocable to a non-competency-based course of equal credit value.
162.686	HCS	HB 228 Basye	Perfected in House	This bill prevents any public school districts and charter schools from prohibiting a parent or guardian from audio recording any meeting held under (IDEA) or a Section 504 plan meeting.
162.441	SSA1 to SA 3	SB 152 Hoskins	House Public Hearing	ANNEXATION OF SCHOOL DISTRICTS This bill repeals a provision in current law specifying the format in which the question for such annexation shall be submitted to the voters. This act requires that the question be approved by the county commission in which the school district is located and requires the ballot language to include the tax rate and assessed valuation of the school district prior to and after approval.
162.720	SS	SB 151 Hoskins HB 306 Griesheimer	SCS Ed Comm Perfected in House	GIFTED EDUCATION This bill requires that if 3% or more of students enrolled in a school district or charter school are determined to be gifted, the district or charter school is required to establish a state-approved gifted program for gifted children. If a school district or charter school has an average daily attendance of 350 students or fewer, the gifted program shall not be required to provide services by a teacher certified to teach gifted education. Any teacher who provides gifted services through the program and is not certified shall annually participate in at least 6 hours of professional development focused on gifted development. These provisions shall apply to school years beginning on or after July 1, 2023. Approval of such programs shall be made by the Department based upon project applications submitted at a time and in a form determined by the Department.
166.400-166.440 166.456	ORIGINAL SCS	SB 152 HOSKINS HB 478 Christofanelli	Bill combined Informal Senate Informal House	MISSOURI EDUCATION SAVINGS PROGRAM Under this act, the Missouri Education Savings Program is renamed the Missouri Education Program. This act modifies the definition of "eligible educational institution" to include all eligible educational institutions, as defined in Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code, rather than just institutions of postsecondary education.
167.625	SA 7	SB 187 Beck	Introduced	STUDENTS WITH EPILEPSY AND SEIZURE DISORDERS This act establishes "Will's Law," requiring individualized Health care plans to be developed by school district nurses in consultation with a student's parent or guardian and appropriate medical professionals that address procedural guidelines and specific directions for particular emergency situations relating to the student's epilepsy or seizure disorder. Plans are to be updated at the beginning of each school year and as necessary. Notice must be given to any school employee that may interact with the student, including symptoms of the epilepsy or seizure disorder and any medical and treatment issues that may affect the educational process. All school employees must be trained every two years in the care of students with epilepsy and seizure disorders. Training shall include an online or in-person course of instruction approved by the Department of Health and Senior Services. School personnel shall obtain a release from a student's parent to authorizing the sharing of medical information with other school employees as necessary. This act protects school employees from being held liable for any good faith act or omission while performing their duties.

168.036	HCS	HB 608 Lewis	19-0 out of House Ed Comm	This bill provides a new four year certification method for individuals that want to substitute teach. The State Board of Education will issue certificates with a background check and a sponsorship by a public school district. Applicants for certification must also have at least 36 college hours or have completed a 20 hour online training and have a high school diploma or equivalency. Individuals must also complete a two hour orientation containing instruction on classroom management and developed by the district that sponsors them. Certificates will expire if the individual fails to substitute teach for at least five days or 40 hours in a calendar year. The bill also requires the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education to develop an online substitute training program with 20 hours of training related to subjects appropriate for substitute teaching. The bill provides substitute teachers that apply for a fingerprint background check the opportunity to submit the results to up to five different school districts for a specified fee.
174.453	SA 1	SB 219 Luetkemeyer	Voted out of S Ed Comm	MISSOURI WESTERN STATE UNIVERSITY This act repeals provisions of current law setting forth the requirement that two of the eight voting members of the Board of Governors for Missouri Western State University be selected from any of the counties in the state outside of the counties set forth under current law. This act also removes the cap on the number of members that may be appointed from any one county.
210.201	SA 5	SB 457 Rizzo HB 1288	Public Hearing House 14-0 Committee on Small Businesss	MONTESSORI SCHOOLS Under current law, Montessori schools are not required to have a child care facility license to operate in the state. Subject: HIGH PRIORITY - Executive Order 21-07

Ladies & Gentlemen:

The wording the the Executive Order 21-07 does not specifically continue the waiver regarding limits for retired teachers to continue working past 550 hours and exceed half their retirement in compensation. If I clock in tomorrow, I risk losing my entire May retirement paycheck, as the State of Emergency to Assist Continued COVID-19 Recovery Executive Order 21-07 doesn't specifically address this need.

I think the State of Missouri should continue the temporary suspension on limits regarding retired teachers. Prior to the suspension current Missouri retired teachers could only teach 550 hours per year and not exceed 1/2 of their retirement salary.

Let me tell you, the current state of education is tenuous. Students are struggling at an alarming rate. The confusion is made more profound by the different types of instruction: 100% online, online with Zoom sessions each week, hybrid classes, seated classes. Along with these varied instruction models comes virtual assignments & assessments.

I have had to assist numerous students locate their online text books, lectures, assignment weeks after classes had begun. I have also had to assist them in the complicated uploading and cross sharing of documents. Not only are my students trying to get a college degree, they are having to learn to integrate a variety of technological platforms. Sometimes learning how to access an assignment takes just as long as doing the assignment. After completing the assignment they have to figure out how to upload in the correct format so the professor gets the assignment.

I have been tutoring Ozarks Technical Community College Veteran's Upward Bound students online since the middle of March 2020. I have been able to make great strides working individually with students. I cannot risk my monthly retirement paycheck. I will continue my work with them even without compensation due to my dedication. Show your dedication to the students of the state of Missouri by encouraging this action to be specified in the executive order.

We cannot allow our Elementary & Secondary students or our Higher Education students to fall further behind.

I didn't send this to the entire committee, as I got tired of copying and pasting. Forward this to other members as you deem appropriate.

It would put the rights of some of our most vulnerable youth up for a popular vote. Transgender athletes participate in sports for exercise; to learn teamwork, sportsmanship, leadership and self-discipline; and to build a sense of belonging with their peers. Trans girls are girls. Missouri's laws should protect transgender youth, not encourage discrimination against them. This HJR is shameful bullying of children by adults in the legislature.

Deuteronomy 5:16

"Honour thy father and thy mother, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee; that thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee."

King James Version (KJV)

I used to drive for my parents because they could not drive. My dad was born in AD 1896 in Georgia and my mom was born in AD 1900 in North Carolina. I drove for them because they were my parents but also because of the Commandment to honor thy father and thy mother that our lives may be long on earth. It was a promise from the Creator that made the sun and the planets and all the universe to every person on earth. I always kept the Commandment before my mind's eye for I desired long life but I liked to walk close to danger in the Marine Corps. Only God could guarantee long life and the strength to live it.

One day I noticed the attack on the Southern states by our political parties and interstate groups that were killing across the nation with alcohol and abortion made legal by satanic judges violating their pledges to defend the Constitution and our posterity--the children. Weak presidents would not stand in defense of the children in the face of the unfaithful promise breaking judges and unconstitutional interstate groups. Like school boys before a judge in the Court standing mute--statues of ignorance in plaster. Adultery became chief in the White House. Half naked women from Hollywood took over the Vietnam War from weak presidents and surrendered all of Vietnam to communism. The first woman governor of Texas firmly demanded a legal state lottery addicting the children of the state. Men and women of dishonor breaking their pledges to the Constitution and destroying millions of children for the lowest of men. Legal prostitution in Nevada aimed for every girl in the state. All held in the hearts of the men and women condemning the Southern States for things long ended. Using their dishonorable minds to use the Southern States as whipping boys to rise higher in government and gain the praise of foreign nations.

One day while meditating on the situation and activities, it occurred to me their great sin was in forcing the people whose ancestors were from the Southern States to dishonor their parents and grand parents who lived in former times. Then I remembered that my Great Grandfather Sydney Amos was in the North Carolina Cavalry. He drew a pension from the state for his service in the War Between The

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

States. The most sinful men and women in the nation-adulterers, gamblers, drunkards in government killing millions were demanding the people of the Southern states dishonor their fathers and mothers. The foulest and most dishonorable people in the nation ordering people to break a Commandment of God and ignor His promise of long life. Wicked and corrupt people and governments that did not care who lived or died and would destroy lives in all states North and South for money.

Recently while cleaning up a room, I found a Confederate 5 dollar bill . I had bought a pack of Confederate money in a gift shop one day and forgot about it. I remembered my Great Grandfather Sydney Amos, a Confederate veteran, and I thought I would carry it with me in accordance with the Commandment to honor thy father and mother in my mind. Only God in the end can defend the length of a life. With life, you can enjoy all things. Though you have all things, you can not enjoy them without life. Today the federal, state, and local governments are killing their people because evil men and women in our political parties and professions order them.

I feel the 5 dollar Confederate note I shall carry will bring me, not luck, but long life with honor for honoring God and His Commandment when all the world bellowed and neighed and gnashed teeth for me to dishonor my distant family member. God's promise will bring me long life. God Himself will bring me luck.

I recommend to all people who had ancestors in the Southern states in former times to pick up a Confederate dollar of any amount at a gift shop and carry it as a symbol to honor fathers and mothers. Perhaps God who never breaks His promise will bring long life to those who honor His Commandment. I recommend that people from other parts of the nation do the same to show they would never ask any man or woman to dishonor their fathers and mothers. Perhaps God also will bring you long life and the strength to live it.

A Confederate 5 dollar bill AD 1864

Subject: House Bill 365

Earlier this month, I contacted you to voice support for HB 365. I am again reaching out to encourage the Administrative Rule Committee to take up, and vote, on this bill - which has been pending before the committee since February 25.

The bill would eliminate discriminatory breed specific bans in Missouri. This is a good government bill. A 2018 survey showed that more than 62% of Missourians support such a bill. Missourians favor exerting their own liberty and selecting the dog that's best for them - not some selection mandated and narrowed by a municipality. The bill would allow communities to exert local control and pass the dangerous dog ordinance that best suits their needs.

There is a diverse coalition of groups pushing this bill, including: the ASPCA, the Missouri Animal Husbandry Association, Best Friends Animal Society, the Animal Justice League, Stray Dog Policy, the Missouri Veterinary Medical Association, Missouri Federation of Animal Owners, Kansas City Pet Project, Missouri Pet Breeders Association, and the Missouri Farm Bureau. A similar bill was voted out of the House last session 160-3. Please bring this bill up for consideration and a vote at your earliest possible convenience.

Subject: House Bill 368

I am writing today to ask for your support of House Bill 368 that will be heard on Tuesday, March 30th in the Education Committee. This bill will require schools to adopt an appropriate intervention program that is evidence-based to help children with dyslexia and other reading difficulties.

My child, Natalie, has struggled with dyslexia for several years and now is being tutored, outside of school, to teach reading in a systematic, explicit way that her brain will process. Had she had this instruction in kindergarten or first grade our lives would have been so much easier and her journey to reading would have been so much quicker and less expensive for us. Using the current reading approach some kids learn, but some don't. Approximately 1 of 5 kids are dyslexic. Let's teach using an approach that will work for all kids.

That is why I feel that not only my child but every child who struggles with dyslexia would benefit from the passage of House Bill 368.

I respectfully ask for your support of this bill.

Sincerely,

Subject: House Republican Caucus Social Media Information revised 2021
Attachment(s): "House Republican Caucus Social Media Information revised 2021.docx"

Good afternoon members,

Please see the attached list of the Caucus' social media.

I would encourage members to follow other caucus members' social media. As we develop specific caucus messages in the coming weeks, our goal is to support fellow members by tweeting and sharing those message/posts.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact our office.

Have a great weekend,

Kari Hoelscher

Subject: How states are spending ARP funds + new resources this week

The American Rescue Plan (ARP) Act of 2021, a $1.9 trillion economic relief package, was signed by President Joe Biden on March 11. Much of the funding included will have impacts on states, both in their budgets and in the specific policies they enact. The Council of State Governments (CSG) is providing our members with ongoing analyses of the various components of the ARP in this special edition series of The Current State e-newsletter, out each Monday.

This week, CSG provides resources on the American Rescue Plan and its effect on state health — human, as well as economic, fiscal and civic. This newsletter also includes news, updates and resources for states that cover new guidance on state and local recovery funds, funding updates from the U.S. Department of Education, infrastructure and more.

The ARP and Healthy States

CSG held the kick-off meeting for the 2021-22 Healthy States National Task Force on June 14. This task force is a bipartisan working group of state leaders from all three branches of government that provides resources and recommendations for state governments on how to best address current state challenges, including those resulting from and intensified by the COVID-19 pandemic. The kick-off meeting included a robust discussion of the American Rescue Plan Act and how states are investing funds. CSG analysts gave a presentation to the task force members on the design and uses of ARP funding for states as well as current state examples.

NEW FEDERAL LEGISLATION PROPOSALS

U.S. House subcommittee advances drinking water infrastructure bill

The U.S. House of Representatives Subcommittee on the Environment and Climate Change approved a bill that would provide $105 billion over 10 years to improve drinking water infrastructure, including $45 billion to replace lead service pipes across the country. The bill will now move to the full House Committee on Energy and Commerce.

THE CORONAVIRUS STATE AND LOCAL FISCAL RECOVERY FUND

U.S. Department of the Treasury releases guidelines for compliance reporting of State and Local Fiscal Recovery Funds

The U.S. Department of the Treasury has released full compliance and reporting guidelines for the use of State and Local Fiscal Recovery Funds granted through the American Rescue Plan. Guidance includes information on allowable uses and reporting outlines and deadlines.

U.S. Department of the Treasury updates FAQs on State and Local Fiscal Recovery Funds

The U.S. Department of the Treasury has updated the Frequently Asked Questions for State and Local Fiscal Recovery Funds use to include questions regarding broadband provisions and are listed on the first page of the report. The Treasury also has added details to its page on the Emergency Rental Assistance Program, as well as Tribal Affairs information.

EDUCATION

U.S. Department of Education releases report on ARP funding and public safety

The U.S. Department of Education has released a report outlining how American Rescue Plan funding can be used to address public safety concerns and prevent crime among young people. The department urges state and local educational agencies to invest in evidence-based violence prevention and intervention programs at the local level.

U.S. Department of Education posts slides on Maintenance of Equity provisions

The U.S. Department of Education has posted an overview of Maintenance of Equity guidelines for State and Local Fiscal Recovery Funds spending. Maintenance of Equity ensures funds are being used to address the needs of high-need populations, including low-income students, students of color and high-poverty local educational agencies.

U.S. Department of Education posts slides on ESSER funds for school construction

The U.S. Department of Education has posted an Frequently Asked Questions PowerPoint on the use of Elementary and Secondary School Emergency Relief funding for school construction. Per the department, discretion is left to the state educational agencies to determine the procedure for granting funding for minor remodeling, renovation and construction of school facilities.

HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services announce $200 million in ARP funding awards
The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services have announced the availability of $200 million in American Rescue Plan funding to modernize and improve state systems of services. Funds can be used to make improvements to technology and other programs to comply with federal requirements. Applications for funding are due July 20.

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services announces $80 million in ARP funding awards
The Department of Health and Human Services has announced $80 million in American Rescue Plan-funded grants to "strengthen U.S. public health Information Technology (IT), improve COVID-19 data collection, and bolster representation of under-represented communities in the public health IT workforce." The Office of the National Coordinator is encouraging universities, colleges and minority-serving institutions to apply for funding through a consortium that will develop curriculum and oversee the allocation of resources.

CHILDREN AND FAMILIES

Administration for Children and Families releases $994.5 million in Pandemic Emergency Assistance Funds
The Administration for Children and Families has released $994.5 million of Pandemic Emergency Assistance funding to needy families impacted by the pandemic. All but one of the eligible states applied for and received the maximum allocation. Funds can be used for a variety of non-recurrent benefits to low-income families.

AGRICULTURE

U.S. Department of Agriculture Updates COVID-19 Response Fact Sheet
The U.S. Department of Agriculture has released an updated fact sheet detailing programs in place through the Department to combat the impact of COVID-19. This new report includes information on the Pandemic Assistance for Producers Initiative. The Department also has approved Pandemic-Electronic Benefits Transfer benefits for children in several states who no longer have access to summer food programs through their states.

TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE

Federal Communications Commission announces Emergency Connectivity Fund application window to open June 29
The Federal Communications Commission announced that applications for Emergency Connectivity Fund grants will be open June 29. Funds can be used to purchase laptops, hotspots, tablets and broadband connectivity for students, school staff and library patrons. Schools and libraries will have 45 days to apply for funding.

Federal Aviation Administration to award $8 billion in airport rescue grants
The Federal Aviation Administration is set to award $8 billion in American Rescue Plan funding to provide support to commercial service, reliever and general aviation airports. Funding can be used to support employment wages, ongoing construction projects and offset debt service payments.

As state policymakers weigh options on how to maximize the relief from the ARP, state officials have begun to appropriate the stimulus funds.

- The Arkansas legislature approved $31 million in federal relief funding for widespread broadband improvement.
- California Gov. Gavin Newsom announced his plan to pay off all rent owed by low income tenants using pandemic relief funds. The $5.4 billion plan will need approval from the legislature.
- Idaho rural health clinics are set to receive $4.4 million in pandemic relief federal funding to improve access to COVID-19 testing and mitigation. Forty-four rural health clinics will be receiving $100,000 from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
- Iowa will use $20 million in federal relief funding to support the implementation of a school mental health center that will provide resources to Iowa schools for the upcoming year.
- Massachusetts Gov. Charlie Baker announced a proposal to invest $2.8 billion in federal funds in housing, job training, downtown revitalization and infrastructure, with a focus on areas hit hardest by the COVID-19 pandemic and communities of color.
- Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer signed a $2.2 billion spending bill that allocates federal COVID-19 aid for a continued boost in food assistance benefits and rental relief along with new grants to municipalities. That includes $1.5 billion that will go toward a continuation of a 15% increase in food benefits through September while another $378 million will go toward supporting renters making below 80% of the local area's median income.
- New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy signed a package of spending bills that will grant $235 million in federal aid to small businesses. A complete breakdown of allocations can be found here.
- Virginia lawmakers have begun discussions to use a portion of federal funding to support increased staffing and services to the state's nine mental hospitals. Final decisions will not be made until the legislature convenes in August.

Subject: I need your help! Fix the unfair practices being by private/for profit probation/parole and bond supervision companies without disclosure to those they are supervising

My daughter was arrested in court on Tuesday, June 1st for failing a drug screen given to her by a private bond company that is used by the Clinton County Missouri court. She tested at 2.3 ng per ml THCA. The probation offices she goes through for her regular probation all use the federal standard of 50 ng per ml as their fail limit, meaning anything under 50 ng per ml is a negative result. Anything that tests above 50 ng per ml is then sent off for further testing and MUST test below 15 ng per ml THCA. This private/for profit bond supervision company has their limit set to 0.05 ng per ml THCA which is far BELOW federal standards. She was jailed on a $10,000 cash only bond. I see in the local police blotters several people being arrested every single week at this bond supervision company and I wonder how many of them are failing these tests due to these insanely low standards, being separated from their families & jobs, when if they were placed at a different location, they would have never failed the drug screen.

Federal standards for marijuana are 50 ng per ml for the initial screen. This is the standard that drug courts in Missouri follow and if an offender tested above 50 ng per ml, there is further testing by a different method and the limit is 15 ng per ml THCA. Kansas City Mo drug courts use Test Smartly labs for their drug testing. Please call to find out the standards as they do not list them on their website. Their contact info is at the top of the page:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

My daughter is not a perfect person, as most of us are not. She has struggled with a methamphetamine addiction for quite some time and has some legal issues. She has been sober from Methamphetamines for over 10 months and her sobriety should be commended not punished. The Clinton County probation officer told me they follow federal law as far as medical marijuana is concerned and since it is still federally illegal, Missouri probationers cannot apply for medical marijuana cards. If that is the case and they follow federal law, should they also require the private/for profit companies they contract to follow federal drug testing guidelines and not allow them to set their standards to 0.05 ng per ml THCA, far BELOW state and federal standards. It is nothing more than a money grab and to keep people that are trying to recover in the system.

She has two children, has a job for now but they can only hold it so long, is enrolled in college and is now in jail due to these private, for profit companies. She had a moment of weakness and instead of turning to meth, she smoked some marijuana. Her regular probation office did a routine urine drug screen and she failed but they did not violate her, they simply included it in their report because she was so far below the federal standard, she could NOT fail by their standards. Clinton County Court received the report and violated her because they can set any standard they want. They issued a warrant and she was picked up on the warrant and placed in Clinton County jail on $10,000 cash only bond. At our first court appearance, the judge said he would consider treatment options. I arranged for her to go to the Oxford House Sober Living House in Liberty Mo. After much back and forth she was released through this private/for profit bond supervision company but in the meantime she flunked all of her college courses because she was falsely jailed due to inconsistent practices. The sober living house regularly tested her and she soon passed their frequent drug test multiple times because their standards are set to federal standards. It takes quite some time to get marijuana out of your system but she was passing her regular probation and the sober living house. Part of her release was she had to report to the private/for profit bond supervision company every two weeks to get a drug patch and pay $150 for the patch. When she went back two weeks later they changed patch #1, sent it off for testing, put on the new patch#2 which she paid another $150 for. Two weeks later she went back for the 3rd patch, paid another $150 for and the 2nd patch was sent off for testing. When we went to a regular court date on June 1st, the representative from the private/for profit bond company told the judge her 1st drug patch test came back and she tested 1.8 ng per ml for THCA which they expected since the court had violated her. Her second drug patch had also come back and it tested 2.3 ng per ml THCA and that their standards are 0.05 ng per ml. Why the second one was slightly higher can be accounted for several ways, she had worked more hours plus volunteered at a weekend retreat for the regional Oxford house residents so her metabolism was running higher due to increased activity which would release more THCA into her system. It is also possible the results were accidentally switched when noted in her records. Since both are far below federal stands and the standard her county probation offices use, she would not have been violated again by any place other than a private/for profit company. They then did a urine test in court which showed a very faint positive result requiring further testing. The judge ordered the urine test and drug patch #3 that she was currently wearing be sent off for further testing. The prosecuting attorney recommended Lisa be released until the drug patch #3 and the urine test results came back. Her Liberty MO probation office recommended the same thing. The judge instead issued a warrant, had her arrested in court and placed a $10,000 cash only bond. Her next court date is not until Aug 6th. Her attorney immediately filed a motion to be seen as soon as the test results come back but called the private/for profit bond supervision office today to inquire about the test results and no one returned my call and her attorney has not heard from them either. I am reaching out to every single State office I feel is pertinent including the Governor's office, the White House and every single new organization, local and national that I think will listen. State Rep Justin Hill has tried to pass a bill to correct this gross injustice and it needs to be corrected soon.

The Clinton County probation officer told me they follow federal law as far as medical marijuana is concerned and since it is still federally illegal, Missouri probationers cannot apply for medical marijuana cards. If that is the case and they follow federal law, should they also require the private/for profit companies they contract to follow federal drug testing guidelines and not allow them to set their standards to 0.05 ng per ml THCA, far BELOW state and federal standards. It is nothing more than a money grab and to keep people that are trying to recover in the system.

I have also been told by Lisa's Attorney that Caldwell County Mo, where the private/for profit bond supervision company is located, is under investigation for these practices and has been told to stop them. I do not know if this is by court order or merely a directive, but they have not stopped.

In Missouri, private probation/parole and bond supervision companies are allowed to set any limit they want for drug testing of offenders without disclosing this to the people they supervise. How is this legal? All state, city and county run probation/parole offices use federal standards for all drug tests so when a person is placed under supervision at one of these offices, they know the expectations. These private/for profit companies that are not disclosing this information are then failing people and jailing them without them ever being made aware of the far lower limits. The law requires them to do so: " The second requirement, clarity of the condition, means that the offender must know what acts are violative of the condition. In Panko v. McCauley, 473 F.Supp. 325 (D.C. Wis. 1979), the condition forbidding a probationer from "frequenting" establishments selling alcoholic beverages was rejected because there was no evidence that the probationer understood what the term meant. Unclear conditions are unfair in that they can lead to arbitrary decisions to revoke and are therefore violative of a defendant's right to due process. "

https://www.federalregister.gov/documents/2017/01/23/2017-00979/mandatory-guidelines-for-federal-workplace-drug-testing-programs

I challenge you to look into this issue. Please also contact whoever does drug testing for state employees at the capital. Ask them what their testing guidelines are? Then ask them how many state employees would lose their jobs if their standards were set to 0.05 ng per ml? This is happening for all drugs and alcohol tests through these private/for profit companies. Did you have a glass of wine on Sunday after dinner, or a bottle of beer? Maybe you smoked a joint because you have a medical marijuana card? Now, imagine going into work on Tuesday and being fired from your job because you had a random drug test and your place of work has their standards so far below federal standards that you would not be able to pass it two days later. Workplace standards are the same standards that all state, city and county run probation and parole offices use, not the 0.05 ng per ml that this and other private companies are allowed to use. With medical marijuana and recreational marijuana legal all over the country and some major employers are no longer even testing for marijuana, people are being unfairly jailed.Change the law and let's be consistent and fair and stop jailing these people that are doing every single thing asked of them, minus one little mistake, that would be LEGAL if tested anywhere else. How many of your constituents is this affecting?

To the honorable members of the Missouri House of Representatives, the NTLA requests:

Vote NO on language to replace the annual tax sale with wage garnishment.

1. Tax delinquency is uncommon in persons/families with steady disposable income.
2. Garnishment requires steady disposable income to guarantee revenue.
3. Therefore, garnishment is an unworkable method of tax collection.

Wage garnishment won't bring in revenue

- ☐ Most delinquent taxpayers do not have stable employment.
- ☐ Wage garnishment is subject to many exemptions, leaving nothing for local governments.
- ☐ Many people subject to garnishment by government are already garnished by other parties.
- ☐ Many properties that appear to be "single family residences" are not owned by the occupant, have been abandoned by the occupant and owner, or are rented from owners that live out of state.
- ☐ Garnishment is a cumbersome legal process with many variables that require constant vigilance and adaptation (at great expense to the garnishing party).
- ☐ In counties with higher assessed values, the amount of the available garnishment won't even keep up with the interest and penalty on the delinquent tax bill.
- ☐ If garnishment is taking a large portion of a delinquent taxpayer's income, that taxpayer will be less able to pay new taxes that come due every year.

Certainty in the tax foreclosure process is necessary (not unjust or unkind)

- ☐ Tax Foreclosure only occurs after proper noticing, years of delinquency, and an opportunity to redeem.
- ☐ Tax Foreclosure returns the properties to the active government tax rolls—putting it into the hands of those more willing or more able to contribute to the shared costs of citizenship.
- ☐ Tax Foreclosure often shines a light on underlying issues that have led to the tax delinquency, instigating necessary conversations about health, age, or poverty.
- ☐ Tax Foreclosure on a property without a mortgage in Missouri generally results in a large payout to the homeowner, representing the amount of overbid at the sale itself. This payout is "starting over" money for the distressed homeowner. If a property has a mortgage, it most likely is redeemed prior by the lending institution.
- ☐ Tax Foreclosure can occur in homes where an elderly person has died, or an elderly person paid off their mortgage and can no longer personally pay taxes that were previously escrowed, or significant disrepair or degenerating economic conditions have encouraged abandonment. In all of these cases, there will be no one available to garnish.

Thank you for your careful attention to these concerns,

Hello Rep Dogan,

Thank you again for your time yesterday, I appreciate it very much. I am attaching several documents to this follow up email, including the bills that Texas passed (in Article 39.14, the relevant portion is section "h") and the procedure that Tarrant County (Houston) adopted as well. And the ALEC example.

I would appreciate any support in getting other members of your caucus interested in this much needed legislation.

Thank you,
Michelle

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This model provides for greater transparency and disclosure during critical stages of litigation concerning the use of jailhouse informants or incarcerated witnesses. This includes requiring the state to disclose any benefit, such as a reduction of sentence, offered to the witness in exchange for their testimony. It also provides evidentiary standards regarding the admissibility of the testimony of such witnesses.

JAILHOUSE INFORMANT REGULATIONS

Summary:

This model provides for greater transparency and disclosure during critical stages of litigation concerning the use of jailhouse informants or incarcerated witnesses. This includes requiring the state to disclose any benefit, such as a reduction of sentence, offered to the witness in exchange for their testimony. It also provides evidentiary standards regarding the admissibility of the testimony of such witnesses.

Model Policy:

Section 1. Definitions.

- "Benefit" means any plea bargain, bail consideration, reduction or modification of sentence, or any other leniency, immunity, financial payment, reward, or amelioration of current or future conditions of incarceration in return for, or in connection with, the informant's participation in any information-gathering activity, investigation, or operation, or in return for, or in connection with, the informant's testimony in the criminal proceeding in which the prosecutor intends to call him or her as a witness.
- "In-custody informant" means a person, other than a codefendant, percipient witness, accomplice, or coconspirator, who provides testimony or information for use in the investigation or prosecution of a suspect or defendant based upon statements made by the suspect or defendant while both were housed within a correctional institution.

Section 2: An attorney representing the state shall track:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(a) The use of testimony or information provided to the state by an in-custody informant against a suspect or defendant's interest while the in-custody informant was imprisoned or confined in the same correctional facility as the suspect or defendant.

(b) Any benefits offered or provided to an in-custody informant in exchange for testimony or information about a suspect or defendant.

Section 3: An attorney representing the state shall disclose to the defense in a timely manner before any evidentiary hearing or trial any information in the possession, custody, or control of the state that is relevant to the in-custody informant's credibility, including:

- Benefits that the offering party has made or will make in the future to the in-custody informant;
- The substance, time, and place of any statement allegedly given by the suspect or defendant to the in-custody informant, and the substance, time, and place of any statement given by the in-custody informant to law enforcement implicating the suspect or defendant in the crime charged;
- The complete criminal history of the in-custody informant, including any charges that were dismissed or reduced as part of a plea bargain;
- All other cases in which the in-custody informant offered to provide information to or testify for the state in exchange for a benefit, and the specific benefits offered or received in such cases; and
- Whether the informant modified or recanted his or her testimony at any time.

Section 4: An attorney representing the state shall timely disclose its intent to introduce the testimony of an in-custody informant. The same procedures for introducing the testimony of other fact witnesses that are applicable in the jurisdiction shall apply to such testimony.

Section 5: If the in-custody informant testifies, the prosecutor or defense counsel may share the information in Section 3 during direct or cross-examination, respectively. If a written statement from the in-custody informant is admitted for a reason such as them being unavailable under the rules of the state or the Federal Rules of Evidence, this information shall be included with the written statement.

Texas Governor Signs Landmark Comprehensive Legislation to Prevent Wrongful Convictions

Law marks most comprehensive protections in the nation against unreliable jailhouse informants

Contact: Julia Lucivero, jlucivero@innocenceproject.org (mailto:jlucivero@innocenceproject.org), 212-364-5173

(June 15, 2017 – Austin, Texas) Governor Greg Abbott has signed critical legislation into law (House Bill 34) that implements many of the recommendations of the Timothy Cole Exoneration Review Commission- a commission created by the legislature in 2015 to review causes of wrongful convictions and propose suggestions on how the state of Texas can prevent future wrongful convictions. These changes will enhance transparency and accuracy in the criminal justice system by regulating the use of jailhouse informants, requiring police to record all custodial interrogations for suspects in serious felony cases, strengthening the use of eyewitness identification best practices and tasking the Texas Forensic Science Commission to study drug field test kits and crime scene investigations. The bill was sponsored by Rep. John Smithee (R-Amarillo) who chaired the Commission and Senator Charles Perry (R-Lubbock), who represents Lubbock County where Timothy Cole was wrongfully convicted of rape in 1986. The Innocence Project and the Innocence Project of Texas worked together in support of this bill throughout the legislative process.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Texas now has the most comprehensive statute in the nation to regulate the use of jailhouse informants, which played a role in nine wrongful convictions in the state and is a leading contributor to wrongful convictions nationally. Jailhouse informants are detained or incarcerated individuals who provide testimony or information—usually on how a defendant confessed to a crime—in exchange for benefits. The promise of benefits such as money, leniency and special privileges creates a strong incentive to lie, and the secretive nature of the jailhouse informant system makes cross-examination and other legal safeguards against unreliable testimony ineffective.

House Bill 34 will improve transparency and accountability in the jailhouse informant system by requiring county and district attorney offices to track information, including benefits provided to jailhouse informants, in exchange for testimony, previous cases in which they provided testimony and benefits provides in those cases, and their complete criminal history. The information must be disclosed to defense attorneys, which will allow them to raise issues of credibility in court so that judges and juries can more accurately assess jailhouse informant testimony. In addition, the law will ensure that prosecutors have accurate information on jailhouse informants so they can better assess whether to use them as witnesses.

Alexandra Natapoff, Loyola Law School professor and a leading legal scholar on informants in the criminal justice system stated, "This legislation is an important step in pulling back the curtain of secrecy and unreliability that has long surrounded the use of criminal informants. It will help reduce wrongful convictions, and it will strengthen the integrity of the Texas criminal process. Other states should take careful note."

Cory Session, Tim Cole's brother, and Board member of the Innocence Project of Texas, based in Fort Worth, Texas home of Tim Cole's family, enthusiastically supported the bill, "Our entire family is pleased that with the passage and signing of this historic legislation, the State of Texas continues to lead the nation on criminal justice reform in seeking EQUAL JUSTICE UNDER LAW for all"

Michael Morton, who was wrongfully convicted of his wife's murder in Austin, Texas and spent nearly 25 years in prison for a crime he did not commit added, "Thank you, Governor Abbott, for signing HB34 into law. Now, certain serious felony interrogations must be recorded. This protects our citizens, and it protects law enforcement. Requiring the recording of interrogations will remove the burdensome, unfair, and understandable temptation law enforcement may have to bend a rule or cut a corner to get people they believe are guilty convicted. . It will also provide solid evidence to prove all of the times law enforcement has followed the rules during custodial interrogations."

Texas now has the most comprehensive law in the nation when it comes to regulating unreliable jailhouse informant testimony, and has also enacted important safeguards concerning eyewitness misidentification, recording interrogations and more. This new law stemming from the Commission's recommendations includes the following requirements:

Jailhouse Informants

Tracking use of and benefits provided to jailhouse informants: An attorney for the state shall track: (1) the use of testimony of an in-custody informant, regardless of whether the testimony is presented at trial and (2) any benefits offered or provided to a jailhouse informant in exchange for testimony.

Admissibility of prior offenses committed by a jailhouse informant: Evidence of prior offenses committed by jailhouse informant who received a benefit may be admissible for purposes of impeachment, regardless of whether the person was convicted of the offense. Previously only crimes that resulted in convictions were admissible, meaning that previous charges dismissed against a jailhouse informant in exchange for testimony were inadmissible.

Enhanced disclosure of impeaching information: If the state plans to use jailhouse informant testimony, it shall disclose to the defendant any information that is relevant to the person's credibility including: (1) the person's complete criminal history, including any charges that were dismissed or reduced as part of a plea bargain). (2) any grant, promise or offer of immunity from prosecution, reduction of sentence, leniency or special treatment given by the state in exchange for testimony and (3) information concerning other criminal cases in which the person has testified, or offered testimony against a defendant with whom the person was imprisoned or confined.

Recording Interrogations

Electronic recording of custodial interrogations of suspects must be recorded in their entirety for serious felonies, unless good cause is shown. Electronic recording means audiovisual or audio-only if audiovisual is unavailable.

Crime categories range from murder, capital murder, kidnapping, aggravated kidnapping, trafficking of persons, continuous sexual abuse of young child/children, indecency with a child, improper relationship between educator and student, sexual assault, aggravated sexual assault, sexual performance by a child.

Eyewitness Identification

A model policy adopted by a law enforcement agency must include procedures for selecting photograph and live lineup fillers to ensure consistency in appearance with the suspect, instructions given to the witness prior to the procedure must include a statement that the alleged perpetrator may or may not be present; and a confidence statement must be taken from the witness after the procedure.

The Texas Commission on Law Enforcement shall establish a comprehensive education and training program on eyewitness identification including material regarding variables that affect a witness's vision and memory, practices for minimizing contamination and effective eyewitness identification protocols. Each law enforcement agency shall require their peace officer who performs eyewitness identification procedures to complete the program.

Drug Field Test & Crime Scene Investigation Study

The Texas Forensic Science Commission shall conduct a study on the use of drug field test kits by law enforcement agencies and develop legislative recommendations to be submitted to the governor, lieutenant governor and legislature. Additionally, they shall conduct a study on crime scene investigations and shall evaluate the standard procedures used in processing a crime scene and evaluate the quality of crime scene investigations.

The Commission was composed of a broad range of criminal justice stakeholders including lawmakers, judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys and law enforcement officials.

Jailhouse Witness Bill Summary

1) Tracking use and benefits provided to jailhouse witness. The bill requires each circuit attorney's office to maintain a central record that tracks each case in which a jailhouse witness is endorsed by the state to testify against a suspect or defendant's interest. Each circuit attorney's office shall send the information to the Missouri Department of Public Safety, which shall maintain a statewide record of the information.

2) Discovery. A circuit attorney shall disclose all jailhouse witnesses who have been endorsed by the state and specified information pursuant to Rule 25 of the Missouri Criminal Procedures.

3) Pre-Trial Reliability Hearing. In all felony cases in which the state intends to introduce the testimony of a jailhouse witness, and upon motion of the defendant, the court shall conduct a pre-trial hearing to determine whether the testimony of the jailhouse witness is reliable, and unless the circuit attorney shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the jailhouse witness is reliable, the court shall not allow the testimony to be heard at trial.

4) Jury Instruction. If the testimony of the jailhouse witness is admitted into evidence at trial, the court shall instruct the jurors to consider specific facts when assessing the testimony of the jailhouse witness.

5) Victim Notification. If a jailhouse witness receives leniency related to a pending charge, conviction, or sentence for a crime against a victim, in connection with offering or providing testimony against a suspect or defendant, the prosecutor shall notify the victim.

To repeal section 491.050 and 491.060, RSMo., and to enact in lieu thereof six new sections relating to jailhouse witnesses.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI, AS FOLLOWS:

Section A. Section 491.050 and 491.060 RSMo., are repealed and six new sections are enacted in lieu thereof, to be known as section 491.050 and 491.606, to read as follows:

Section 491.050. Definitions. As used in sections 491.060, unless the context otherwise requires:

1. "Benefit" means any plea bargain, bail consideration, reduction or modification of sentence, or any other leniency, immunity, financial payment, reward, or amelioration of current or future conditions of incarceration that has been requested, or that has been or may, in the future, be offered or provided in connection with, or in exchange for, the testimony of a jailhouse witness who was endorsed by the state.

2. "Jailhouse Witness" means a witness who offers or provides testimony concerning statements made to such a person by another person with whom he or she was incarcerated, or an incarcerated person who offers or provides testimony concerning statements made to such a person by another person who is suspected of or charged with committing a criminal offense.

3. Jailhouse witness does not mean a co-defendant or victim in the case.

Section 491.060. A. Tracking Use of and Benefits Provided to Jailhouse Witnesses.

1. Each circuit attorney's office shall maintain a central record that is searchable and tracks:

(a) Each case in which a jailhouse witness has been endorsed by the state to testify against a defendant's interest.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(b) The substance of the testimony; and

(c) Any benefit that has been requested by, or has been offered to, the jailhouse witness, and any benefit that may be provided in the future in connection with such testimony.

2. Each circuit attorney's office shall send the information described in subsection 1, of this section to the Division of Criminal Justice in the Department of Public Safety on a monthly basis to be maintained in a centralized statewide record that is available to circuit attorney's throughout the state.

3. The information described in this section is only accessible by the circuit attorney's and is not subject to the provisions of section 610 RSMo.

B. Discovery.

1. If a circuit attorney endorses a person to testify as a jailhouse witness, the following material and information shall be disclosed within the time frame in Rule 25 of the Missouri Rules of Criminal Procedure.

(a) The complete criminal history of the jailhouse witness, including any charges that are Pending or were reduced or dismissed as part of a plea bargain.

(b) The jailhouse witness cooperation agreement and any deal, promise, inducement, or benefit that has been requested, or that has been or may, in the future, be offered or provided to the jailhouse witness in connection with testimony against the defendant's interest.

(c) The substance, time, and place of any statement allegedly given by the defendant to the jailhouse witness and the substance, time, and place of any statement given by the jailhouse witness to law enforcement implicating the defendant in the crime charged.

(d) Whether at any time, the jailhouse witness recanted that testimony or statement, and, if so, the time and place of the recantation, the nature of the recantation, and the names of the persons who were present at the recantation.

(e) Information concerning other criminal cases in any county in which the jailhouse witness was endorsed by the state to testify against a defendant with whom the jailhouse witness was imprisoned or confined, including:

(i) The case name and number.

(ii) The substance of the testimony.

(iii) Any cooperation agreement, deal, promise, inducement, or benefit that was Requested, offered, or provided to the jailhouse witness in connection with their testimony; and

(iv) Any other information that is requested to be disclosed pursuant to the United States and Missouri Constitutions and the Missouri Rules of Criminal Procedures.

C. Pre-Trial Reliability Hearings.

1. In any criminal prosecution in which the circuit attorney's office intends to introduce the testimony of a jailhouse witness, upon the motion of the defendant, the court shall conduct a pre-trial hearing to determine whether the jailhouse witness testimony is reliable and therefore admissible based upon the material and information disclosed pursuant to section B, as well as the following factors:

(a) The extent to which the jailhouse witness testimony is confirmed by other evidence.

(b) The specificity of the testimony.

(c) The extent to which the testimony contains details known only by the perpetrator.

(d) The extent to which the details of the testimony could be obtained from a source other than the defendant; and

(e) The circumstances under which the jailhouse witness initially provided the information to the police or the prosecutor, including whether the jailhouse witness was responding to leading questions.

2. The circuit attorney must show by a preponderance of the evidence that the jailhouse witness' testimony is reliable in order for the court to allow the testimony to be heard at trial based on the factors in subsection B of this section.

D. Jury Instruction. If a jailhouse witness' testimony is admitted into evidence, the court may instruct jurors to consider the material and information disclosed pursuant to Subsection B, and the factors enumerated in that section when assessing the jailhouse witness' testimony.

E. Victim Notification. If a jailhouse witness receives a benefit related to a pending charge, a conviction, or a sentence for a crime committed by the jailhouse witness that involved a victim, the prosecutor shall notify the victim in accordance with provisions under section 595 RSMo.

Tarrant County Criminal District Attorney's Office
Jailhouse Informant Procedure

Effective June 10, 2016,[1] the Tarrant County Criminal District Attorney's Office implements this Jailhouse Informant Procedure. As part of this procedure, the TCCDA will establish and maintain a central index of jailhouse informants. The central index will track jailhouse informant (JI) testimony as well as JI formal offers to give testimony or other information as required by Article 2.023 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure. The index will be maintained by the designated Informant ACDA who will be responsible for the JI database as well as any associated documents. This index/JI database is the confidential work product of the TCCDA.

For purposes of this procedure, a JI is defined as an incarcerated witness who claims to have been the recipient of an admission made by another inmate and who agrees to testify against that inmate, usually, although not necessarily, in exchange for some benefit.

Prior to using a JI's testimony or information at any stage in a criminal prosecution and regardless of any consideration or lack of consideration given to that JI, an ACDA must 1) request all information known about the JI from the Informant ACDA and 2) consult with his or her court chief about the use of the JI. If an ACDA receives an "Inquiry" from a JI offering to provide testimony or information but the ACDA decides not to contact the JI, the ACDA is not required to investigate the JI as outlined below. The ACDA is, however, still required to report such offer to the Informant ACDA for tracking of such offers and to make any appropriate disclosures to the defense.

As part of the determination whether to use the JI, the ACDA should consider the following non-exhaustive list:

a. The facts of the case in which the testimony is being contemplated for use;
b. The JI's criminal history;

[1] Revised September 1, 2017 to comply with Texas Code of Criminal Procedure articles 2.023, 38.075, and 39.14 (h-1).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001981

c. Relevant information regarding the JI's current case;
d. Any known, or readily available, information about the JI's past cooperation with law enforcement or previous testimony;
e. Any JI information conveyed and maintained by the designated ACDA;
f. Asking the JI detailed questions regarding his previous offers of cooperation or testimony. If the JI is represented by counsel, these inquiries should be made in the presence of JI's counsel, or with counsel's permission;
g. Any known, or readily available, information about the JI's mental health;
h. The specific evidence to be offered by the JI;
i. How evidence corroborates the JI's statement;
j. What verification exists that the JI and the defendant were housed in the same part of the jail, at the same time, or were otherwise capable of communicating with one another while in custody and how the JI came to be in the same location as the defendant and;
k. The strengths and weaknesses of the case if the informant is not used;
l. The proposed offer and benefit being sought by the JI; and
m. How the agreement impacts justice due the victim in the JI's case;
n. Results of any polygraph examination about the JI's statement(s).

Disclosure Requirements:

If the ACDA decides to use the JI, the ACDA must make a written disclosure to the defense attorney in the instant case and must also upload that information into the JI's pending case(s), if any. Disclosure to the defense is mandatory as soon as an agreement in principle is made with the JI.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-001982

That disclosure should include:

2. A summary of the JI's expected testimony or, when available, a copy of the record/transcript made of any sworn proffers or statements;
3. A detailed summary of the JI's complete criminal history (as set forth in Article 39.14(h-1) or a copy of the informant's TCIC/NCIC* (*if disclosed pursuant to a court order);
4. The exact nature of any deal reached with the JI for his/her testimony or, if no benefit has been, or will be conveyed to the witness, a written recitation of that fact;
5. Information regarding any prior testimony given by the JI and any known prior offers to testify in compliance with Article 39.14 (h-1)(2)(3). If a confirmed Tarrant County case exists where the JI testified on behalf of the State, the ACDA should also make reasonable efforts to obtain, and turn over to the defense, a copy of the relevant portion of that transcript;
6. Any discussions with federal or out-of-county prosecutors or the JI's defense attorney and relating to the agreement, when a JI's pending case originates from another county or the federal system.
7. Gang affiliation, if any;
8. Any information regarding the mental health status or history of the JI (only under a protective order);
9. All known information about the JI's current case, including offense reports, digital media, or anything else in the State's possession; and
10. A copy of the JI's Tarrant County Sheriff's Office jail records.

All agreements shall be entered into prior to the JI's testimony. In the unusual event that it may become necessary to deviate from this policy, any agreement reached after the JI testimony must be approved by the Criminal

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-001983

Division Chief. Any post-testimony agreement or deviation must be provided to the defendant's attorney in writing when the agreement or benefit is reached.

If, at any time, the ACDA received information that the JI has or is attempting to fabricate any evidence, the ACDA must fulfill all ethical obligations regarding disclosure of these facts.

JI Index and Database

If the JI testifies, the fact of his testifying along with any other relevant information regarding that testimony should be forwarded to the Informant ACDA responsible for the JI index and database, along with a copy of the disclosure and supporting documents given to defense counsel. Formal offers to testify as well as "Inquiries" should also be forwarded to the Informant ACDA for inclusion in the database regardless of whether the JI ultimately testifies.

Best Practices

ACDA's are encouraged to use the "5 P's" which constitute the best practices in using jailhouse informant testimony:

- Polygraph: Prior to entering into any agreement with a JI have him/her submit to a polygraph examination.
- Produce: Give immediate disclosure of the agreement to the defense counsel.
- Plea: Dispose of the JI's case prior to his or her testimony at trial.
- Proffer: Have the JI make a recorded, sworn proffer at the time of the disposition of the JI's case.
- Provide: Forward the details of the plea and contents of the sworn proffer to defense counsel.

Art. 2.024
Tracking Use of Certain Testimony

(a) In this article:

(1) "Attorney representing the state" means a district attorney, a criminal district attorney, or a county attorney with criminal jurisdiction.

(2) "Correctional facility" has the meaning assigned by Section 1.07 (Definitions), Penal Code.

(b) An attorney representing the state shall track:

(1) the use of testimony of a person to whom a defendant made a statement against the defendant's interest while the person was imprisoned or confined in the same correctional facility as the defendant, if known by the attorney representing the state, regardless of whether the testimony is presented at trial; and

(2) any benefits offered or provided to a person in exchange for testimony described by Subdivision (1).

Corroboration of Certain Testimony Required

(a) A defendant may not be convicted of an offense on the testimony of a person to whom the defendant made a statement against the defendant's interest during a time when the person was imprisoned or confined in the same correctional facility as the defendant unless the testimony is corroborated by other evidence tending to connect the defendant with the offense committed. In this subsection, "correctional facility" has the meaning assigned by Section 1.07 (Definitions), Penal Code.

(b) Corroboration is not sufficient for the purposes of this article if the corroboration only shows that the offense was committed.

(c) Evidence of a prior offense committed by a person who gives testimony described by Subsection (a) may be admitted for the purpose of impeachment if the person received a benefit described by Article 39.14 (Discovery)(h-1)(2) with respect to the offense, regardless of whether the person was convicted of the offense.

Art. 39.14
Discovery

(a) Subject to the restrictions provided by Section 264.408 (Use of Information and Records; Confidentiality and Ownership), Family Code, and Article 39.15 of this code, as soon as practicable after receiving a timely request from the defendant the state shall produce and permit the inspection and the electronic duplication, copying, and photographing, by or on behalf of the defendant, of any offense reports, any designated documents, papers, written or recorded statements of the defendant or a witness, including witness statements of law enforcement officers but not including the work product of counsel for the state in the case and their investigators and their notes or report, or any designated books, accounts, letters, photographs, or objects or other tangible things not otherwise privileged that constitute or contain evidence material to any matter involved in the action and that are in the possession, custody, or control of the state or any person under contract with the state. The state may provide to the defendant electronic duplicates of any documents or other information described by this article. The rights granted to the defendant under this article do not extend to written communications between the state and an agent, representative, or employee of the state. This article does not authorize the removal of the documents, items, or information from the possession of the state, and any inspection shall be in the presence of a representative of the state.

(b) On a party's request made not later than the 30th day before the date that jury selection in the trial is scheduled to begin or, in a trial without a jury, the presentation of evidence is scheduled to begin, the party receiving the request shall disclose to the requesting party the name and address of each person the disclosing party may use at trial to present evidence under Rules 702, 703, and 705, Texas Rules of Evidence. Except as otherwise provided by this subsection, the disclosure must be made in writing in hard copy form or by electronic means not later than the 20th day before the date that jury selection in the trial is scheduled to begin or, in a trial without a jury, the presentation of evidence is scheduled to begin. On motion of a party and on notice to the other parties, the court may order an earlier time at which one or more of the other parties must make the disclosure to the requesting party.

(c) If only a portion of the applicable document, item, or information is subject to discovery under this article, the state is not required to produce or permit the inspection of the remaining portion that is not subject to discovery and may withhold or redact that portion. The state shall inform the defendant that a portion of the document, item, or information has been withheld or redacted. On request of the defendant, the court shall conduct a hearing to determine whether withholding or redaction is justified under this article or other law.

(d) In the case of a pro se defendant, if the court orders the state to produce and permit the inspection of a document, item, or information under this subsection, the state shall permit the pro se defendant to inspect and review the document, item, or information but is not required to allow electronic duplication as described by Subsection (a).

(e) Except as provided by Subsection (f), the defendant, the attorney representing the defendant, or an investigator, expert, consulting legal counsel, or other agent of the attorney representing the defendant may not disclose to a third party any documents, evidence, materials, or witness statements received from the state under this article unless:

(1) a court orders the disclosure upon a showing of good cause after notice and hearing after considering the security and privacy interests of any victim or witness; or

(2) the documents, evidence, materials, or witness statements have already been publicly disclosed.

(f) The attorney representing the defendant, or an investigator, expert, consulting legal counsel, or agent for the attorney representing the defendant, may allow a defendant, witness, or prospective witness to view the information provided under this article, but may not allow that person to have copies of the information provided, other than a copy of the witness's own statement. Before allowing that person to view a document or the witness statement of another under this subsection, the person possessing the information shall redact the address, telephone number, driver's license number, social security number, date of birth, and any bank account or other identifying numbers contained in the document or witness statement. For purposes of this article, the defendant may not be the agent for the attorney representing the defendant.

(g) Nothing in this article shall be interpreted to limit an attorney's ability to communicate regarding his or her case within the Texas Disciplinary Rules of Professional Conduct, except for the communication of information identifying any victim or witness, including name, except as provided in Subsections (e) and (f), address, telephone number, driver's license number, social security number, date of birth, and bank account information or any information that by reference would make it possible to identify a victim or a witness. Nothing in this subsection shall prohibit the disclosure of identifying information to an administrative, law enforcement, regulatory, or licensing agency for the purposes of making a good faith complaint.

(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of this article, the state shall disclose to the defendant any exculpatory, impeachment, or mitigating document, item, or information in the possession, custody, or control of the state that tends to negate the guilt of the defendant or would tend to reduce the punishment for the offense charged.

(h-1) In this subsection, "correctional facility" has the meaning assigned by Section 1.07 (Definitions), Penal Code. Notwithstanding any other provision of this article, if the state intends to use at a defendant's trial testimony of a person to whom the defendant made a statement against the defendant's interest while the person was imprisoned or confined in the same correctional facility as the defendant, the state shall disclose to the defendant any information in the possession, custody, or control of the state that is relevant to the person's credibility, including:

(1) the person's complete criminal history, including any charges that were dismissed or reduced as part of a plea bargain;

(2) any grant, promise, or offer of immunity from prosecution, reduction of sentence, or other leniency or special treatment, given by the state in exchange for the person's testimony; and

(3) information concerning other criminal cases in which the person has testified, or offered to testify, against a defendant with whom the person was imprisoned or confined, including any grant, promise, or offer as described by Subdivision (2) given by the state in exchange for the testimony.

(i) The state shall electronically record or otherwise document any document, item, or other information provided to the defendant under this article.

(j) Before accepting a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, or before trial, each party shall acknowledge in writing or on the record in open court the disclosure, receipt, and list of all documents, items, and information provided to the defendant under this article.

(k) If at any time before, during, or after trial the state discovers any additional document, item, or information required to be disclosed under Subsection (h), the state shall promptly disclose the existence of the document, item, or information to the defendant or the court.

(l) A court may order the defendant to pay costs related to discovery under this article, provided that costs may not exceed the charges prescribed by Subchapter F, Chapter 552 (Public Information), Government Code.

(m) To the extent of any conflict, this article prevails over Chapter 552 (Public Information), Government Code.

Good afternoon,

My name is Michelle Smith, I am a social justice advocate in St. Louis. I am the Racial Justice Coordinator at MADP (Missourians for Alternatives to the Death Penalty), as well as an advocate in other areas of the criminal legal system. One area that I am very passionate about is wrongful convictions, which is a serious issue in Missouri. Recently in the news we have heard about the injustices occurring to Kevin Strickland and Lamar Johnson, though there are so many more wrongfully convicted individuals in our state.

One of the wrongfully convicted in Missouri is Maurice Davis Sr, who is housed in Jefferson City Correctional Center. Maurice has excelled in the study of law and serves as a leader of the other incarcerated men. He has been the President of the prison chapter of the NAACP for several years and before that served as the Vice President and the Chairman of the Legal Redress Committee. Maurice has written several legislative proposals, one of which I am attaching here along with supporting information concerning informant testimony. According to the National Registry of Exonerations, which has tracked exonerations since 1989, there have been 54 total exonerations in Missouri, 50 from State courts and 4 from federal courts. Of these 54 exonerations, 33 of the individuals had Perjury/False Accusations as a primary contributing factor in their convictions. Which is 61% of the exonerations in Missouri, and nationally the figure stands at 60%.

During the past few years, several states have taken steps to reduce these atrocities by studying and implementing new legislation concerning informant testimony. I have attached several documents to his email and I will describe them here:

* This article was written by journalists at ProPublica in March 2020, discussing several egregious cases of wrongful convictions, it includes one case from Missouri, that of David Robinson. In the years since then Ricky Kidd and Johnathan Irons have both been exonerated after over two decades of wrongful incarceration and fighting for their freedoms.

BEYOND UNRELIABLE:

HOW SNITCHES CONTRIBUTE TO WRONGFUL CONVICTIONS

ALEXANDRA NATAPOFF*

INTRODUCTION

Thanks to new DNA technologies and the heroic efforts of innocence advocates, there is increasing public recognition that our criminal justice system often convicts the wrong people. Criminal informants, or "snitches,"[1] play a prominent role in this wrongful conviction phenomenon. According to Northwestern University Law School's Center on Wrongful Convictions, 45.9 percent of documented wrongful capital convictions have been traced to false informant testimony, making "snitches the leading cause of wrongful convictions in U.S. capital cases."[2] Horror stories abound of lying jailhouse

* Associate Professor, Loyola Law School, Los Angeles. This piece is based in part on my earlier article, Snitching: The Institutional and Communal Consequences, 73 U. CIN. L. REV. 645 (2004), which offers a global analysis of the role of snitches in the criminal system and their impact on high crime communities.

[1] By "snitches" I mean criminals who provide information in exchange for lenience for their own crimes or other benefits. The term "informant" therefore does not include law-abiding citizens who provide information to the police with no benefit to themselves.

snitches and paid informants who frame innocent people in pursuit of cash or lenience for their own crimes.[3] In recognition of the dangers of informants who lie, capital reform proposals often contain provisions designed to restrain the use of informant testimony.[4]

But informants do not generate wrongful convictions merely because they lie. After all, lying hardly distinguishes informants from other sorts of witnesses. Rather, it is how and why they lie, and how the government depends on lying informants, that makes snitching a troubling distortion of the truth-seeking process. Informants lie primarily in exchange for lenience for their own crimes, although sometimes they lie for money.[5] In order to obtain the benefit of these lies, informants must persuade the government that their lies are true. Police and prosecutors, in turn, often do not and cannot check these lies because the snitch's information may be all the government has. Additionally, police and prosecutors are heavily invested in using informants to conduct investigations and to make their cases.[6] As a result, they often lack the objectivity and the information that would permit them to discern when informants are lying.[7] This gives rise to a disturbing marriage of convenience: both snitches and the government benefit from inculpatory information while neither has a strong incentive to challenge it.[8] The usual protections against false evidence, particularly prosecutorial ethics and discovery, may thus be unavailing to protect the system from informant falsehoods precisely because prosecutors themselves have limited means and incentives to ferret out the truth.[9]

snitch-generated wrongful convictions.[10] In Part II, it describes in more detail the institutional relationships among snitches, police, and prosecutors that make snitch falsehoods so pervasive and difficult to discern using the traditional tools of the adversarial process.[11] Part III concludes with a litigation suggestion for a judicial check on the use of informant witnesses, namely, a Daubert-style[12] pre-trial reliability hearing.[13] The Appendix in Part IV contains a sample motion requesting and justifying such a hearing.[14]

I. WRONGFUL CONVICTION DATA

In 2000, the groundbreaking book Actual Innocence estimated that twenty-one percent of wrongful capital convictions are influenced by snitch testimony.[15] Four years later, a study by the Center on Wrongful Convictions doubled that number.[16] Another recent report estimates that twenty percent of all California wrongful convictions, capital or otherwise, result from false snitch testimony.[17] The Illinois Commission on Capital Punishment, in reviewing that state's wrongfully convicted capital defendants, identified "a number of cases where it appeared that the prosecution relied unduly on the uncorroborated testimony of a witness with something to gain. In some cases, this was an accomplice, while in other cases it was an in-custody informant."[18] Professor Samuel Gross's study on exonerations likewise reports that nearly fifty percent of wrongful murder convictions involved perjury by someone such as a "jailhouse snitch or another witness who stood to gain from the false testimony."[19]

Behind these general statistics lie numerous stories of informant crime, deceit, secret deals and government duplicity.[20] In Texas, in the so-called "sheetrock scandal," a group of police officers and informants set up dozens of individuals with fake drugs, which were actually gypsum, the main, non-narcotic component of sheetrock.[21] The suspects were typically Mexican workers, and many pleaded guilty or were deported before the scandal was uncovered.[22] In Los Angeles, DEA informant Essam Magid not only avoided jail for his many crimes but earned hundreds of thousands of dollars by serving as an informant.[23] During this time, he framed dozens of innocent people before one person he targeted finally refused to plead guilty and revealed the arrangement.[24] The now-infamous Leslie White, the prototypical jailhouse snitch, sent dozens of suspects to prison by fabricating confessions and evidence, reducing his own sentences by years.[25]

Although such horror stories provoke outcry, little has been done to cabin the law enforcement discretion that makes such informant operations possible, or to impose greater transparency and oversight onto the process in order to curtail such abuses.

II. INEXTRICABLY INTERTWINED: LAW ENFORCEMENT DEPENDENCE ON SNITCHES

Informants have become law enforcement's investigative tool of choice, particularly in the ever-expanding world of drug enforcement.[26] Informants are part of a thriving market for information.[27] In this market, snitches trade information with police and prosecutors in exchange for lenience, the dismissal of charges, reduced sentences, or even the avoidance of arrest.[28] It is a highly informal, robust market that is rarely scrutinized by courts or the public.[29] And it is growing.[30] While data is hard to come by, federal statistics indicate that sixty percent of drug defendants cooperate in some fashion.[31] Informants permeate all aspects of law enforcement, from investigations to plea-bargaining to trial.[32]

The growth in the sheer number of informants reflects the increasing dependence of police and prosecutors on informants.[33] Professor Ellen Yaroshefsky describes prosecutors' own complaints: "These [drug] cases are not very well investigated. . . . [O]ur cases are developed through cooperators and their recitation of the facts. Often, in DEA, you have agents who do little or no follow up so when a cooperator comes and begins to give you information outside of the particular incident, you have no clue if what he says is true."[34] Another prosecutor revealed that "the biggest surprise is the amount of time you spend with criminals. You spend most of your time with cooperators. It's bizarre."[35] Another prosecutor describes the phenomenon of "falling in love with your rat"[36]:

> You are not supposed to, of course. . . . But you spend time with this guy, you get to know him and his family. You like him. . . . [T]he reality is that the cooperator's information often becomes your mind set. . . . > spend much time or energy investigating the case and you don't. Once you become chummy with your cooperator, there is a real danger that you lose your objectivity. . . . [37]

Because investigations and cases rely so heavily on informants, protecting and rewarding informants has become an important part of law enforcement.[38] Police and prosecutors are well known for protecting their snitches: all too often, when defendants or courts seek the identity of informants, cases are dismissed or warrant applications are dropped.[39] More fundamentally, police and prosecutors become invested in their informants' stories, and therefore may lack the objectivity to know when their sources are lying.[40]

Informants are thus punished for silence and rewarded for producing inculpatory information, even when that information is inaccurate. The system protects them from the consequences of their inaccuracies by guarding their identities and making their information the centerpiece of the government's cases. The front line officials who handle informants – police and prosecutors – are ill equipped to screen that information, and once they incorporate it into their cases, they acquire a stake in its validity. This phenomenon explains in part why snitch testimony generates so many wrongful convictions: it permeates the criminal system and there are few safeguards against it.

III. LITIGATING SNITCHES: A DAUBERT-INSPIRED APPROACH

While the impact of informants on the criminal system goes far beyond their role as witnesses, an important part of the wrongful conviction phenomenon turns on the role of snitches at trial. Many wrongful convictions represent instances where an innocent defendant refuses to plead guilty and goes to trial, but is nonetheless convicted because the jury accepts a snitch's testimony as credible and true. When this happens, the integrity of the system is at stake. This section proposes a limited remedy for this problem in the form of pre-trial reliability hearings. Illinois has adopted this procedure for in-custody informants (so-called "jailhouse snitches"), and at least two U.S. jurisdictions as well as Canada have contemplated variations of it.[41]

The theory behind pre-trial reliability hearings mirrors the reasoning in Daubert v. Merrell Dow,[42] in which the Supreme Court established the necessity for reliability hearings for expert witnesses. As Professor George Harris points out, there are many similarities between snitches and expert witnesses.[43] Like experts, informants are "paid" by one party.[44] This makes them more one-sided than typical witnesses.[45] Informants' testimony is coached and prepared by government lawyers, making them challenging to cross-examine.[46] Moreover, informants' stories are hard to corroborate or contradict in cases where their testimony is the central evidence against the defendant.[47] Finally, like experts, informants may have an air of "inside knowledge" about the crime that may sway the jury, an air that is not easily dispelled by cautionary instructions.[48] Indeed, the prevalence of wrongful convictions based on snitch testimony demonstrates that juries often believe informants.[49]

For these types of reasons, the Supreme Court has recognized that discovery, cross-examination and jury instructions – the traditional adversarial protections against false testimony – do not guarantee a rigorous jury evaluation of expert testimony.[50] The court must act as a preliminary "gatekeeper" and evaluate the reliability of experts before the jury hears them.[51] For these same reasons, courts should act as gatekeepers and evaluate the reliability of informants before they can testify at trial. This would permit fuller disclosure of the deals that informants make with the government,[52] allow more thorough testing of the truthfulness of informants, and reduce opportunities for abuse. It would also acknowledge that even well-meaning police and prosecutors may need help in ascertaining the reliability of their criminal sources.

Illinois has enacted a statute that provides a potential blueprint for the type of reliability inquiry that a trial court should conduct in evaluating informant testimony.[53] This statute places the burden on the government to prove reliability by a preponderance of the evidence, and requires the court to consider the following factors:

> (1) the complete criminal history of the informant;
> (2) any deal, promise, inducement, or benefit that the offering party has made or will make in the future to the informant;
> (3) the statements made by the accused;
> (4) the time and place of the statements, the time and place of their disclosure to law enforcement officials, and the names of all persons who were present when the statements were made;
> (5) whether at any time the informant recanted that testimony or statement and, if so, the time and place of the recantation, the nature of the recantation, and the names of the persons who were present at the recantation;
> (6) other cases in which the informant testified, provided that the existence of such testimony can be ascertained through reasonable inquiry and whether the informant received any promise, inducement, or benefit in exchange for or subsequent to that testimony or statement; and
> (7) any other information relevant to the informant's credibility.[54]

In effect, this model permits the court to examine the informant's incentives to lie, his history of escaping punishment through snitching, the existence, or lack, of corroboration, and the government's efforts to check the informant's story.[55] Such reliability determinations will be more efficient and effective in avoiding wrongful convictions because the court can evaluate the informant in the same way that it evaluates all preliminary questions of admissibility, without the constraints of the rules of evidence or the presence of the jury.[56]

Although Illinois limits reliability hearings to in-custody informants, all informant testimony in which a criminal witness receives compensation for inculpating someone else is potentially infected by the same unreliability.[57] Accordingly, reliability hearings should be available in any case, pre-plea as well as pre-trial, in which a compensated informant is the source of inculpatory evidence.[58] Given the prevalence of informant falsehoods in wrongful capital convictions, such hearings should be mandatory in capital cases, even where the defense intends to concede guilt and move directly to the sentencing phase. If the government's information is based on informant testimony, the defense in turn will rely on such testimony in assessing the likelihood of success at trial. Given the stakes, such evaluations should not be left to the vagaries of informant truthfulness.

The Appendix to this Comment contains a motion and memorandum of law in support of the motion, requesting a reliability hearing in a capital case in which the main evidence against the defendant was supplied by three informant-accomplices. While the factual scenario is not universal, the legal analysis could form a basis for similar requests.

* * * * * * * * *

MOTION TO EXCLUDE COOPERATING WITNESS TESTIMONY AND REQUEST FOR A RELIABILITY HEARING

John Doe, by and through his attorneys, respectfully moves, pursuant to Federal Rules of Evidence 104, 403, and 701, to exclude the testimony of cooperating witnesses John Smith, John Jones and John Johnson, because their testimony is unreliable and its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice. Mr. Doe further requests that the Court hold a pre-trial hearing to determine the reliability of these witnesses. In support of this motion Mr. Doe alleges as follows:

1. Mr. Doe has been charged by indictment with use of a handgun in the commission of a crime of violence that results in death, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 924(j), carjacking in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2119, conspiracy in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 371, and related counts.

2. In addition to Mr. Doe, three other men were arrested in connection with this case. Those men are John Smith, John Jones, and John Johnson. Information provided by the government indicates that, shortly after their arrests, these three men gave statements to the police. Eventually each man exonerated himself and implicated Mr. Doe in the victim's murder. The men also portrayed Mr. Doe as the leader in the carjacking. All three are now cooperating with the government against Mr. Doe.

3. In exchange for having incriminated Mr. Doe, the cooperators have all received compensation from the government in the form of charging and sentencing consideration. In particular, as a result of their statements implicating Mr. Doe, they have been permitted to plead guilty in state court to paroleable sentences of forty-five years for Smith and Jones, and thirty-five years for Johnson. Family members of the men have advised counsel that if Mr. Doe is convicted, their sentences may be further reduced. In light of the compensation that the cooperating witnesses have received (and may expect to receive) in exchange for implicating Mr. Doe, their testimony is biased and inherently unreliable.

4. Their testimony also will be extremely difficult to disprove because they are the only witnesses to the crime, and the police have recovered very little physical evidence. Cross-examination may be an insufficient tool to establish the veracity of these unverifiable statements.

5. For these reasons, Mr. Doe moves to exclude the testimony of the three cooperating witnesses based on its unreliability, its lack of probative value, its prejudicial nature, and its imperviousness to cross-examination at trial.

6. Several courts have held that pre-trial reliability hearings are appropriate where unreliable cooperating witnesses are propounded as witnesses. The Illinois Governor's Commission on Capital Punishment recently has recommended that reliability hearings be held whenever an in-custody informant is a potential witness in a capital case. In this case, a hearing is especially important, because the government's entire case for guilt and for the death penalty rests on cooperating informant testimony.

WHEREFORE, Mr. Doe requests that the Court hold a pre-trial reliability hearing at which the cooperators shall be made available for examination by counsel, to permit the Court to decide whether their testimony is sufficiently reliable, and therefore sufficiently probative, to be admissible under Federal Rule of Evidence 403. A separate memorandum of law is submitted in support of this motion.

Respectfully submitted,

* * * * * * * * *

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO EXCLUDE COOPERATING WITNESS TESTIMONY AND REQUEST FOR A RELIABILITY HEARING

SUMMARY

"It is difficult to imagine a greater motivation to lie than the inducement of a reduced sentence . . . ." United States v. Cervantes-Pacheco, 826 F.2d 310, 315 (5th Cir. 1987). In this case, the government's case for Mr. Doe's guilt, and potentially for the death penalty, will be based primarily on the testimony of three compensated, interested, biased witnesses whose eventual freedom depends on their ability to obtain Mr. Doe's conviction. Under the circumstances, their reliability is so compromised that their testimony lacks probative value, thereby failing the test of Federal Rule of Evidence 403. The Fourth and Ninth Circuits have called for increased judicial scrutiny of compensated informant witnesses, and several courts have mandated pre-trial reliability hearings to permit courts to evaluate the reliability of compensated witnesses such as the cooperators in this case. Mr. Doe thus requests that the Court hold a reliability hearing to require the government to establish the reliability of its cooperating witnesses, to exclude some or all of those witnesses if the Court deems it appropriate, and to preserve Mr. Doe's right to a fair trial.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

* * *

ARGUMENT

I. COURTS HAVE DEEMED COMPENSATED WITNESSES UNRELIABLE AND SUBJECT TO ADDITIONAL JUDICIAL SCRUTINY

The Fourth Circuit has recently expressed its deep concern over the use of compensated informant testimony and its reluctance to admit such testimony absent stringent judicial controls. United States v. Levenite, 277 F.3d 454, 459-62 (4th Cir. 2002). Compensated testimony "create[s] fertile fields from which truth-bending or even perjury could grow, threatening the core of a trial's legitimacy." Id. at 462. Such testimony "may be approved only rarely and under the highest scrutiny." Id. [60]

The Fourth Circuit has prescribed additional procedural guarantees that the government must adhere to where the use of compensated informant witnesses is contemplated. Before such testimony will be permitted: (1) the compensation arrangement must be disclosed to the defendant, (2) the defendant must have the opportunity to cross-examine the witness, and (3) the jury must be instructed to engage in heightened scrutiny of the witness. Finally, where the compensation is:

> contingent on the content or nature of the testimony given, the court must ascertain (1) that the government has independent means, such as corroborating evidence, by which to measure the truthfulness of the witness's testimony and (2) that the contingency is expressly linked to the witness testifying truthfully. Moreover, when a witness is testifying under such a contingent payment arrangement, the government has a duty to inform the court and opposing counsel when the witness' testimony is inconsistent with the government's expectation.

[60] Although Levenite concerned a witness who was testifying in exchange for money, the same concerns arise when the compensation consists of reduced criminal sanctions. Indeed, the promise of a reduced sentence or the elimination of the capital sentencing option may be far more valuable to a defendant than cash. See Cervantes-Pacheco, 826 F.2d at 315 (the same analysis is applied by analogy when lenience is provided as compensation for information).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Similarly the Ninth Circuit has called for increased judicial scrutiny of deals between informants and the government, holding that "where the prosecution fails to disclose evidence such as the existence of a leniency deal or promise that would be valuable in impeaching a witness whose testimony is central to the prosecution's case, it violates the due process rights of the accused and undermines confidence in the outcome of the trial," Horton v. Mayle, 408 F.3d 570, 581 (9th Cir. 2005), and calling such lack of disclosure "unscrupulous." Silva v. Brown, 416 F.3d 980, 991 (9th Cir. 2005).

In this case, the three cooperators are being compensated specifically for testimony adverse to Mr. Doe. They have already received the benefit of reduced charges and have been promised low, agreed-upon sentences, and may have their sentences further reduced if Mr. Doe is convicted. Their testimony is thus compensated, contingent testimony precisely of the sort that so troubled the Fourth Circuit in Levenite. The Court therefore has an obligation to ascertain whether the government can corroborate the cooperators' truthfulness, the nature of the contingency arrangement, and the means the government intends to use to assure that the cooperators testify truthfully. Because of the difficulty ascertaining these matters in the heat of trial in the presence of the jury, a pre-trial reliability hearing is warranted.

II. COMPENSATED WITNESSES ARE INHERENTLY UNRELIABLE

A growing body of literature documents the inherent unreliability of compensated witnesses, cooperating co-conspirators, "jailhouse snitches," and other types of informants. Numerous horror stories of wrongful convictions based on perjurious informant testimony have emerged, and they have prompted official review of the practice of permitting compensated informant testimony. The following list contains just a few of the efforts to document and control informant unreliability:

1. The founders of the Innocence Project discovered that twenty-one percent of the innocent defendants on death row

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

were placed there by false informant testimony.[61]

2. The Illinois Governor's Commission on Capital Punishment unanimously concluded that "[t]estimony from in-custody witnesses has often been shown to have been false, and several of the thirteen cases of men released from death row involved, at least in part, testimony from an in-custody informant."[62] The Commission recommended the holding of reliability hearings to mitigate the chances of perjury.

3. In their comprehensive historical study, Bedau and Radelet discovered that one-third of the 350 erroneous convictions they studied were due to "perjury by prosecution witnesses." This was twice as many as the next leading source – erroneous eyewitness identification – and stemmed in large part from the prevalence of co-conspirator testimony.[63]

Courts likewise have recognized the inherent unreliability of compensated informants, going so far as to take judicial notice of their tendency to lie. "The use of informants to investigate and prosecute persons engaged in clandestine criminal activity is fraught with peril. This hazard is a matter 'capable of accurate and ready determination by resort to sources whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned' and thus of which we can take judicial notice." United States v. Bernal-Obeso, 989 F.2d 331, 333 (9th Cir. 1993). "Our judicial history is speckled with cases where informants falsely pointed the finger of guilt at suspects and defendants, creating the risk of sending innocent persons to prison." Id. Another court has noted that "[n]ever has it been more true that a criminal charged with a serious crime understands that a fast and easy way out of trouble with the law is . . . to cut a deal at someone else's expense and to purchase leniency from the government by offering testimony in return for immunity, or in return for reduced incarceration." Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands v. Bowie, 243 F.3d 1109, 1123 (9th Cir. 2001). Indeed, long before snitching became a pervasive aspect of the criminal justice system, the Supreme Court recognized that "[t]he use of informers, accessories, accomplices, false friends, or any of the other betrayals which are 'dirty business' may raise serious questions of credibility." On Lee v. United States, 343 U.S. 747, 755 (1952).

Where the unreliability of a particular type of witness is so well-established, it is appropriate for the court to take protective steps to guarantee the integrity of the process. Cf. Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, 509 U.S. 579, 595 (1993) (court to act as "gatekeeper" to ensure reliability of scientific evidence).

III. CROSS EXAMINATION IS AN INSUFFICIENT GUARANTEE OF RELIABILITY IN THIS CASE

Despite the recognized unreliability of compensated informant witnesses, courts have traditionally permitted them to testify on the assumption that cross-examination will adequately test an informant's truthfulness. See, e.g., Hoffa v. United States, 385 U.S. 293, 311 (1966). In Hoffa, the Supreme Court upheld the use of a compensated informant, holding that his testimony did not violate the defendant's right to due process, in large part because of the availability of cross-examination, reasoning that "[t]he established safeguards of the Anglo-American legal system leave the veracity of a witness to be tested by cross-examination, and the credibility of his testimony to be determined by a properly instructed jury." Id. at 311; see also Cervantes-Pacheco, 826 F.2d at 315 (procedural protections of discovery, cross-examination, and jury instructions regarding informants satisfy due process).

The cooperators' testimony in this case, however, will be nearly impossible for defense counsel to penetrate on cross-examination. The cooperators are the only witnesses to the crime, and their stories can be neither independently confirmed nor disproved. The assertion that Mr. Doe was the shooter–the most important single disputed fact in the entire case–rests entirely upon the self-serving, unverifiable statements of the cooperating witnesses. Their mere ipse dixit, if maintained, could suffice to persuade a jury to impose the death penalty on Mr. Doe.

Cross-examination will be further hampered because the defense lacks pre-trial access to the cooperators. At this stage in the proceedings, the defense has not yet seen the cooperators' plea agreements. The cooperators, on the other hand, have had multiple opportunities to hone their version of events in preparation for court, both in the state proceedings and in connection with this federal case. This combination of one-sided access and government preparation will render these witnesses overly prepared and difficult to examine at trial.

Finally, unlike uncharged lay witnesses, the cooperators have compelling incentives to pin responsibility on Mr. Doe. Their future literally hangs in the balance, based on their ability to maintain a consistent story. For all these reasons, in-trial cross-examination may be insufficient to determine whether the cooperators are being truthful.

Professor George Harris has analyzed the difficulty of cross-examining informants whose compensation depends on their usefulness to the prosecutor. As Professor Harris explains:

> Paradoxically, the more a witness's fate depends on the success of the prosecution, the more resistant the witness will be to cross-examination. A witness whose future depends on currying the government's favor will formulate a consistent and credible story calculated to procure an agreement with the government and will adhere religiously at trial to her prior statements.[64]

In this case, the motivations of the cooperators are precisely those described by Professor Harris. Years of their lives literally depend on the success of this prosecution, and therefore they will be more resistant to cross-examination than the typical witness.

For these reasons, the Court should not rely on defense counsel's eventual cross-examination of these witnesses to establish their truthfulness, but rather should have the opportunity, unfettered by the rules of evidence and the presence of the jury, to determine for itself whether the testimony of these witnesses bears sufficient indicia of reliability to permit its presentation at trial.

IV. THE GOVERNMENT HAS AN OBLIGATION TO ESTABLISH THE RELIABILITY OF ITS COOPERATING WITNESSES

The government has special obligations when it comes to their cooperating informants. Courts have established that a "prosecutor who does not appreciate the perils of using rewarded criminals as witnesses risks compromising the truth-seeking mission of our criminal justice system [and courts] expect prosecutors and investigators to take all reasonable measures to safeguard the system against treachery." Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands v. Bowie, 236 F.3d 1083, 1089 (9th Cir. 2001); see also Levenite, 277 F.3d at 459-62. This obligation stems from two sources: first, the government enlists and controls and rewards its informants and is therefore in a unique position to evaluate their reliability. The second is that the prosecutor, as the representative of the sovereign, has an ethical obligation to ensure that the defendant is given a fair trial. See Bowie, 236 F.3d at 1089 (citing Berger v. United States, 295 U.S. 78, 88 (1935)).

Unfortunately, because of the dynamics of this case, the government is in a weak position to guarantee the reliability of the cooperators' testimony. From the inception of this case, the cooperators have been well aware that any hope of lenience rested on their ability to provide the government with useful information. The government is thus the primary target of the cooperators' efforts to escape punishment, and if the cooperators are lying, they will presumably be particularly careful not to reveal it to the government.

The Ninth Circuit addressed these issues of reliability and government obligations in a case with facts startlingly similar to the instant case. In Bowie, three co-conspirators were charged with murder and kidnapping. There was some evidence that two of the three conspired to pin the murder on the third. The government's failure to fully investigate the possibility of collaborative perjury caused the Court to reverse the conviction. In its decision, the Court noted that when the government makes a deal with an informant, "each contract for testimony is fraught with the real peril that the proffered testimony will not be truthful, but simply factually contrived to 'get' a target of sufficient interest to induce concessions from the government." Bowie, 236 F.3d at 1095. The Court concluded that "rewarded criminals represent a great threat to the mission of the criminal justice system." Id.

Barry Tarlow has likewise documented the significant difficulties that prosecutors experience in holding their criminal informants accountable.[65] Tarlow, a former prosecutor, explains how prosecutors may be drawn in by informants who have strong motivations to pin responsibility on others, and notes the heavy pressures on prosecutors to rely on unreliable compensated witnesses when others are unavailable.

Given the inherent "peril" of rewarded testimony and the government's heavy reliance on it in this case, the government should not be permitted merely to proffer its good faith belief in the reliability of its witnesses. Rather, it is appropriate to hold a hearing to establish the reliability of the witnesses through adversarial questioning and a neutral evaluation by the Court.

V. A PRETRIAL RELIABILITY HEARING IS REQUIRED TO TEST THE INFORMANT'S RELIABILITY OUTSIDE THE PRESENCE OF THE JURY

A. The Court has the Authority and Obligation to Conduct a Reliability Hearing Under the Federal Rules of Evidence

In this case, the interests of justice and a fair trial require a pretrial reliability hearing to permit the Court to ascertain the reliability and probative value of the cooperators' testimony. The Court has clear authority to hold such a hearing pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 104(c), which provides: "Hearings on the admissibility of confessions shall in all cases be conducted out of the hearing of the jury. Hearings on other preliminary matters shall be so conducted when the interests of justice require . . . ."

The rules of evidence likewise obligate the Court to screen out unfairly prejudicial, harmful, confusing or otherwise unhelpful evidence. Federal Rule of Evidence 403 provides that "evidence may be excluded if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice, confusion of the issues, or misleading the jury, or by considerations of undue delay, waste of time, or needless presentation of cumulative evidence." Likewise, Federal Rule of Evidence 701, limits lay witness testimony to testimony that is "helpful" to the trier of fact.

[65] See Barry Tarlow, Perjuring Informants Brought to the Bar, RICO Report, CHAMPION, at 33-40 (July 2000).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

At least two courts and one state legislature have mandated reliability hearings whenever incarcerated informants ("jailhouse snitches") are proposed witnesses. See Dodd v. State, 993 P.2d 778, 784 (Ok. Ct. of Crim. App. Jan. 6, 2000) (Strubhar, J., concurring) (approving lower court imposition of "reliability hearing" comparable to Daubert hearing); D'Agostino v. State, 107 Nev. 1001, 823 P.2d 283 (Nev. 1992) (holding that before "jailhouse incrimination" testimony is admissible the "trial judge [must] first determine[] that the details of the admissions supply a sufficient indicia of reliability"). Illinois mandates such hearings by law. See ILL. COMP. STAT., ch. 725, § 5/115-21(c) (2003). Illinois's statutory requirement is based on the recommendations of the Governor's Commission on Capital Punishment, which concluded that reliability hearings are necessary whenever incarcerated informants are offered as witnesses.[66] Such conclusions apply here with equal force. Jailhouse snitches are incarcerated defendants who provide information to law enforcement in exchange for charging and sentencing benefits. The ability of such snitches to fabricate confessions and other evidence has become infamous.[67] Precisely the same concerns are present where, as here, the informant is in custody, subject to criminal penalties, and is offering unique, unverifiable information in exchange for lenience.

B. The Principles of Daubert Support the Holding of a Reliability Hearing

The law's treatment of expert witnesses further supports the holding of a reliability hearing in this instance. In Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmceuticals Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993), the [66] See ILLINOIS GOVERNOR'S COMMISSION ON CAPITAL PUNISHMENT, at 30, 122.

[67] See id. at 122-123 (detailing the Los Angeles Grand Jury investigation of jailhouse snitch testimony).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Supreme Court determined the need for a special mechanism to evaluate the reliability of expert witnesses because experts pose thorny problems of cross-examination and persuasion. Experts, for example, rely on specialized information that is not directly available to the jury. Daubert, 509 U.S. at 592. The court held that the concerns underlying Rule 403 are preeminent because expert witnesses can have such a potent effect on juries:

> Expert evidence can be both powerful and quite misleading because of the difficulty in evaluating it. Because of this risk, the judge in weighing possible prejudice against probative force under Rule 403 [] exercises more control over experts than over lay witnesses.

Daubert, 509 U.S. at 595. Moreover, as Professor Harris has noted, expert witnesses are compensated, violating the usual presumption against the use of paid testimony.[68] The suitability of compensated expert testimony is thus determined in part by pre-trial judicial examinations of reliability.

Informants pose many of the same special concerns that expert witnesses do. Unlike typical lay witnesses, they are compensated, they have personal interests in the outcome of the case, their testimony is difficult to test on cross-examination, and they are selected and controlled by the propounding party.[69] Like experts, moreover, informant testimony can be "powerful and quite misleading." Daubert, 509 U.S. at 595. At least one court has expressly extended the principles of Daubert to cover informants, imposing a "reliability hearing" requirement whenever the testimony of a so-called "jailhouse snitch" is involved. Dodd v. State, 993 P.2d 778, 784 (Ok. Ct. of Crim. App. Jan. 6, 2000) (Strubhar, J., concurring) (approving lower court imposition of "reliability hearing" comparable to Daubert hearing).

In this case, the cooperators are the sole witnesses to the crime and their version of the story will carry heavy weight with the jury. In the same way that courts act as "gatekeepers" with respect to experts, it is appropriate for this Court to ensure that unreliable informant testimony does not taint the jury.

C. A Reliability Hearing is Warranted on the Facts of this Case

In this case, the cooperators' testimony presents a substantial danger of "unfair prejudice" because it is the government's primary evidence against Mr. Doe, because it is highly unreliable, because the cooperators have overwhelming motivations to lie, and because their testimony cannot be disproved. Their testimony may not be helpful to the trier of fact if it is so biased and unverifiable that no trier of fact can conclusively determine it is truthful or not.

It is particularly important that the cooperators' reliability be tested prior to trial outside the presence of the jury. The cooperators' reliability, their incentives to fabricate, the details of the crime, and their relationship to the defendant are matters which may only be susceptible to penetration through the more informal inquiries permitted under Rule 104, where the rules of evidence do not apply. Moreover, the Court is better suited to recognize reliability and credibility concerns that may elude the jury. The inquiry into such matters also could be highly prejudicial if heard by a jury and incurable by subsequent jury instruction.

Finally, as noted above, the procedural requirements set forth in Levenite can best be met at a preliminary hearing. At such a hearing, the informant will be subject to cross-examination, and the government can provide to the Court and counsel any corroboration it might have and provide assurances that the arrangement with the witnesses indeed protects against perjurious testimony.

For all these reasons, Mr. Doe moves to exclude the testimony of the cooperators, and for a pretrial reliability hearing to evaluate the reliability and probative value of the cooperators' testimony.

Texas Governor Signs Landmark Comprehensive Legislation to Prevent Wrongful Convictions

Law marks most comprehensive protections in the nation against unreliable jailhouse informants

(June 15, 2017 – Austin, Texas) Governor Greg Abbott has signed critical legislation into law (House Bill 34) that implements many of the recommendations of the Timothy Cole Exoneration Review Commission- a commission created by the legislature in 2015 to review causes of wrongful convictions and propose suggestions on how the state of Texas can prevent future wrongful convictions. These changes will enhance transparency and accuracy in the criminal justice system by regulating the use of jailhouse informants, requiring police to record all custodial interrogations for suspects in serious felony cases, strengthening the use of eyewitness identification best practices and tasking the Texas Forensic Science Commission to study drug field test kits and crime scene investigations. The bill was sponsored by Rep. John Smithee (R-Amarillo) who chaired the Commission and Senator Charles Perry (R-Lubbock), who represents Lubbock County where Timothy Cole was wrongfully convicted of rape in 1986. The Innocence Project and the Innocence Project of Texas worked together in support of this bill throughout the legislative process.

Texas now has the most comprehensive statute in the nation to regulate the use of jailhouse informants, which played a role in nine wrongful convictions in the state and is a leading contributor to wrongful convictions nationally. Jailhouse informants are detained or incarcerated individuals who provide testimony or information—usually on how a defendant confessed to a crime—in exchange for benefits. The promise of benefits such as money, leniency and special privileges creates a strong incentive to lie, and the secretive nature of the jailhouse informant system makes cross-examination and other legal safeguards against unreliable testimony ineffective.

House Bill 34 will improve transparency and accountability in the jailhouse informant system by requiring county and district attorney offices to track information, including benefits provided to jailhouse informants, in exchange for testimony, previous cases in which they provided testimony and benefits provides in those cases, and their complete criminal history. The information must be disclosed to defense attorneys, which will allow them to raise issues of credibility in court so that judges and juries can more accurately assess jailhouse informant testimony. In addition, the law will ensure that prosecutors have accurate information on jailhouse informants so they can better assess whether to use them as witnesses.

Alexandra Natapoff, Loyola Law School professor and a leading legal scholar on informants in the criminal justice system stated, "This legislation is an important step in pulling back the curtain of secrecy and unreliability that has long surrounded the use of criminal informants. It will help reduce wrongful convictions, and it will strengthen the integrity of the Texas criminal process. Other states should take careful note."

Cory Session, Tim Cole's brother, and Board member of the Innocence Project of Texas, based in Fort Worth, Texas home of Tim Cole's family, enthusiastically supported the bill, "Our entire family is pleased that with the passage and signing of this historic legislation, the State of Texas continues to lead the nation on criminal justice reform in seeking EQUAL JUSTICE UNDER LAW for all"

Michael Morton, who was wrongfully convicted of his wife's murder in Austin, Texas and spent nearly 25 years in prison for a crime he did not commit added, "Thank you, Governor Abbott, for signing HB34 into law. Now, certain serious felony interrogations must be recorded. This protects our citizens, and it protects law enforcement. Requiring the recording of interrogations will remove the burdensome, unfair, and understandable temptation law enforcement may have to bend a rule or cut a corner to get people they believe are guilty convicted. . It will also provide solid evidence to prove all of the times law enforcement has followed the rules during custodial interrogations."

Texas now has the most comprehensive law in the nation when it comes to regulating unreliable jailhouse informant testimony, and has also enacted important safeguards concerning eyewitness misidentification, recording interrogations and more. This new law stemming from the Commission's recommendations includes the following requirements:

Jailhouse Informants

Tracking use of and benefits provided to jailhouse informants: An attorney for the state shall track: (1) the use of testimony of an in-custody informant, regardless of whether the testimony is presented at trial and (2) any benefits offered or provided to a jailhouse informant in exchange for testimony.

Admissibility of prior offenses committed by a jailhouse informant: Evidence of prior offenses committed by jailhouse informant who received a benefit may be admissible for purposes of impeachment, regardless of whether the person was convicted of the offense. Previously only crimes that resulted in convictions were admissible, meaning that previous charges dismissed against a jailhouse informant in exchange for testimony were inadmissible.

Enhanced disclosure of impeaching information: If the state plans to use jailhouse informant testimony, it shall disclose to the defendant any information that is relevant to the person's credibility including: (1) the person's complete criminal history, including any charges that were dismissed or reduced as part of a plea bargain). (2) any grant, promise or offer of immunity from prosecution, reduction of sentence, leniency or special treatment given by the state in exchange for testimony and (3) information concerning other criminal cases in which the person has testified, or offered testimony against a defendant with whom the person was imprisoned or confined.

Recording Interrogations

Electronic recording of custodial interrogations of suspects must be recorded in their entirety for serious felonies, unless good cause is shown. Electronic recording means audiovisual or audio-only if audiovisual is unavailable.

Crime categories range from murder, capital murder, kidnapping, aggravated kidnapping, trafficking of persons, continuous sexual abuse of young child/children, indecency with a child, improper relationship between educator and student, sexual assault, aggravated sexual assault, sexual performance by a child.

Eyewitness Identification

A model policy adopted by a law enforcement agency must include procedures for selecting photograph and live lineup fillers to ensure consistency in appearance with the suspect, instructions given to the witness prior to the procedure must include a statement that the alleged perpetrator may or may not be present; and a confidence statement must be taken from the witness after the procedure.

The Texas Commission on Law Enforcement shall establish a comprehensive education and training program on eyewitness identification including material regarding variables that affect a witness's vision and memory, practices for minimizing contamination and effective eyewitness identification protocols. Each law enforcement agency shall require their peace officer who performs eyewitness identification procedures to complete the program.

Drug Field Test & Crime Scene Investigation Study

The Texas Forensic Science Commission shall conduct a study on the use of drug field test kits by law enforcement agencies and develop legislative recommendations to be submitted to the governor, lieutenant governor and legislature. Additionally, they shall conduct a study on crime scene investigations and shall evaluate the standard procedures used in processing a crime scene and evaluate the quality of crime scene investigations.

The Commission was composed of a broad range of criminal justice stakeholders including lawmakers, judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys and law enforcement officials.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Section 1: BACKGROUND

Our criminal law authorizes law enforcement to confer leniency and other benefits on criminal suspects in exchange for information. This public policy is an enormously important yet risky and underregulated aspect of the criminal justice system. Informant use can be a valuable tool in prosecuting group crimes, institutional corruption, and other serious offenses that are otherwise difficult for law enforcement to investigate. However, informant use also imposes serious costs on the integrity of the legal system and poses significant risks to the public. The main costs of informant use include (1) unreliable evidence and the risk of wrongful conviction; (2) the tolerance of serious crimes committed by informants themselves and the resulting threat to victims and communities; (3) pressures on vulnerable individuals, including children and students, to become informants at great risk to themselves and without full understanding of their rights; and (4) lack of transparency and accountability. This legislation is designed to mitigate these known costs and risks while permitting law enforcement to continue to deploy informants where appropriate in a fair and accountable way.

Section 2: DEFINITIONS

A. "Informant" means any criminal suspect, whether or not detained or incarcerated, who provides information in exchange for a benefit, the promise of a benefit, or an expectation thereof.

B. "Criminal suspect" means any person under investigation by law enforcement for a crime, any person for whom law enforcement has probable cause that they have committed a crime, arrestee, detainee, defendant, inmate, probationer, parolee, or other individual subject to potential criminal charges or punishment. It does not include victims of the crime being investigated or prosecuted, or experts.

C. "Benefit" means leniency in any criminal case, probation or parole matter, including but not limited to the decision not to arrest for or charge an offense, or to limit the number or severity of charges; sentence reduction of any kind or amount; money; change of immigration status; witness protection; in-kind benefits such as food, rent, or travel; in-custody benefits such as visiting privileges, transfer to better living conditions, enhanced access to food, entertainment, and other amenities; and any of these conferred on a third party.

D. "Serious crime"[1] means:
    a. any serious violent felony as that term is defined in section [];
    b. any serious drug offense as that term is defined in section []; or
    c. an offense consisting of racketeering, bribery, child pornography, obstruction of justice, or perjury;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

d. that an agent or employee of the relevant law enforcement agency, including any prosecutor, has reasonable grounds to believe that an informant has committed.

Section 3: RELIABILITY

A. Reliability Factors[2]

Reliability factors under this section include, but are not limited to:

a. All statements made by the informant that relate to the offense, including inconsistent statements, modifications, and recantations.
b. The informant's complete criminal history.
c. All criminal cases in which the informant provided information, cooperation, or testimony.
d. All benefits the informant received or was promised in connection with cooperation or testimony in any criminal case.
e. Any relationships between the informant and the accused, including personal relationships, gang memberships, or connections in other criminal cases.
f. The extent to which the informant had or could obtain access to information related to the defendant's case, and the nature of that access.
g. Mental health or substance abuse history or diagnoses of the informant.
h. Any other evidence relevant to the informant's reliability or credibility.

B. Discovery

a. The prosecution shall disclose in a timely manner and prior to any evidentiary hearing, guilty plea, or trial, its intent to rely on evidence provided by an informant. The prosecution shall also disclose at that time all information pertaining to the reliability factors in subsection (A).

C. Corroboration[3]

a. Evidence obtained from an informant shall be inadmissible unless it is independently corroborated by strong evidence connecting the defendant to the commission of the crime.[4] Corroboration is not sufficient if it only shows the commission of the offense or if it is provided by another informant.

[4] If informants remain permissible in capital cases, in contravention of section H, then corroboration should also be required to show special circumstances and aggravating factors.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

D. Reliability Hearings[5]

a. Pre-Conviction. Prior to trial or the entry of any guilty or nolo plea, the court shall hold a hearing to assess the reliability of the informant. At the hearing, the court shall evaluate (1) whether strong evidence of corroboration exists as provided in subsection (C), and (2) the overall reliability of the informant in light of all of the reliability factors enumerated in subsection (A). If the government does not demonstrate both corroboration and reliability by a preponderance of the evidence, the court shall exclude all evidence obtained from the informant, including any testimony.

b. Post-Conviction. If after conviction, a defendant produces colorable evidence that an informant provided false information that might have affected the outcome of the plea or trial, the court shall hold a reliability hearing as provided in subsection (a). A recantation by the informant shall presumptively provide sufficient evidence to require a hearing. If the court concludes by a preponderance of the evidence [need to think about standard of proof here] that the informant provided false evidence, the court shall vacate the conviction and order a new trial.

a. At a reliability hearing and at trial, the defendant shall have the opportunity to call an expert witness to testify regarding any of the following subjects, including but not limited to: the general unreliability of informants, the prevalence of informant-generated wrongful convictions, techniques that informants are known to use to generate credible yet false evidence, academic research on the subject, available information regarding practices in that jail and/or jurisdiction, and any other information that might be helpful to the fact finder.

F. Electronic Recordings of Informant Statements[6]

a. The following statements shall be electronically recorded:
   i. All statements made by an informant relating to serious crimes as defined by Section 2(D).
   ii. All statements made by law enforcement or representatives of the state to an informant under subsection (i) in eliciting or receiving those informant statements or in establishing the terms of the informant's cooperation or benefits.

b. If an audio and visual recording is not practicable, an audio recording is an acceptable alternative to audio and visual recording.

c. Every electronic recording of a statement by an informant shall be clearly identified and catalogued by law enforcement personnel.
d. Every electronic recording shall be preserved by law enforcement personnel until all appeals, post-conviction and habeas corpus proceedings connected to that testimony are final and concluded, or the time within which such proceedings must be brought has expired.
e. Upon motion by the defendant, the court may order that a copy of the recording be preserved for any period beyond the expiration of all appeals.
f. Any informant statements not recorded in accordance with this section are per se inadmissible.
g. The government may not use as a witness any informant whose statements were not recorded in accordance with this section.

G. Jury Instructions.

Should the court determine that the informant is admissible pursuant to subsection (D)(a), it shall provide the jury with a cautionary instruction regarding:

a. the general unreliability of informant testimony;
b. that informants may expect, and in practice often receive, benefits that have not been formally promised to them prior to trial;
c. that as an empirical matter juries have had difficulty assessing the reliability of compensated criminal witnesses; and
d. the specific factors that may have influenced the testimony in the present case.

H. Ban in Capital Cases[7]
a. Regardless of whether evidence obtained from an informant satisfies the other provisions of this title, testimony of an informant is not admissible at any stage of a capital case, including the pre-trial, guilt, and sentencing phases.

Section 4: INFORMANT CRIME

A. Serious Crime Reporting Obligations[8]
a. Timing and Contents. Not later than March 1 of each year, the head of each department that contains a law enforcement agency shall, with respect to each law enforcement agency within that Department, fully report to the [appropriate legislative oversight committees]:
i. all serious crimes, authorized and unauthorized, committed by informants maintained by the law enforcement agency; and

ii. all benefits conferred by the law enforcement agency on such informants.

b. Required. Each report under subsection (a) shall include a description of the total number of each type and category of crime; the amount of drugs involved if the crime is a drug crime; the amount of money involved if the crime is a theft or bribery crime; whether the crime was authorized or unauthorized; the zip code in which each crime took place; and all amounts expended on benefits, including from assets seized through forfeiture.

c. Prohibited. The report shall not contain individual informant names, informant control numbers, or other personal identification information that could reveal the identity of an individual informant.

d. Arrest or Charge of Informant Not to Affect Duty to Report. The duty to report crimes under this section exists regardless of whether the informant has or has not been arrested or charged with the reportable crime in any jurisdiction.

e. Disclaimer. Nothing in this section limits the authority and responsibility of the appropriate committees of each legislative house to obtain such information as they may need to carry out their respective functions and duties.

B. Limit on Serious Crime Leniency for Informants[9]

a. No prosecutor shall offer a dismissal of or decline to bring charges against an informant for the crimes of murder, manslaughter, rape, or kidnapping in exchange for the testimony of that informant.

b. If the informant has committed a serious crime not enumerated in subsection (a), law enforcement officers or the prosecutor must receive judicial consent before dismissing or reducing such a charge in a plea bargain in exchange for the informant's testimony. Judicial consent must be obtained whether the plea takes place before or after the testimony occurs.

Section 5: VULNERABLE INFORMANTS

A. Children[10]

a. No law enforcement official shall use a person who is 15 years of age or younger as an informant.

b. No law enforcement official shall use a person under the age of 18 years as an informant, unless that official has obtained an order from the court authorizing the minor's cooperation.

c. Notwithstanding any order issued pursuant to subsection (b), no person under the age of 18 shall participate in a controlled buy or sale of contraband or other such activities.

d. Prior to issuing any order pursuant to subsection (b), the court shall find, after consideration of (1) the age and maturity of the minor, (2) the gravity of the minor's alleged offense, (3) the safety of the public, and (4) the interests of justice, that the agreement to act as an informant is voluntary and is being entered into knowingly and intelligently.
e. Prior to the court making the finding required in subsection (c), all of the following conditions shall be satisfied:
    i. The court has found probable cause that the minor committed the alleged offense. The finding of probable cause shall only be for the purpose of issuing the order pursuant to subsection (b), and shall not prejudice the minor in any future proceedings.
    ii. The court has advised the minor of the mandatory minimum and maximum sentence for the alleged offense.
    iii. The court shall determine on the record what benefits the minor may obtain by cooperating with the law enforcement, the certainty of those benefits, and whether they are substantial in light of the minor's likely punishment for the offense in that jurisdiction.
    iv. The minor's parent or guardian has consented to the agreement by the minor unless the parent or guardian is a suspect in the criminal investigation.
    v. The minor has had the opportunity to consult with appointed counsel, or with private counsel if the minor's family has provided such counsel.
    vi. For purposes of this section, the term "benefit" includes all of the benefits in section 2(C), as well as the reduction or dismissal of a pending or potential juvenile petition against the minor.

B. College Students[11]
    a. No college or university police shall recruit or engage students enrolled on campus to become informants. In addition, no student shall be recruited to participate in a controlled buy or sale of contraband or other such activities, whether or not the student is offered or receives a benefit. Nothing in this section shall preclude a student from providing confidential information to university police.

C. Substance Abuse and Mental Health[12]
    a. No law enforcement official or prosecutor shall authorize or permit an informant to engage in a controlled buy or sale of contraband or other such activities if that informant is receiving in-patient or out-patient treatment administered by a licensed service provider for substance abuse, or is in a treatment-based drug court program, or has experienced a drug overdose within the past year.

b. No law enforcement official or prosecutor shall use an informant who has a mental health diagnosis of [?—need to check with mental health professional on this].

D. Racial Profiling

a. No law enforcement official or prosecutor shall intentionally select an informant based on the informant's race, religion, ethnicity, country of national origin, or immigration status.[13]

Section 6: LAW ENFORCEMENT GUIDELINES

A. Informant Assessment and Selection[14]

a. Law enforcement agencies shall assess the suitability of using a person as an informant by considering the minimum following factors:

i. The person's criminal history, their history of violence, and any indication of unreliability or of furnishing false information;
ii. The person's age and maturity;
iii. Whether the person is a current substance abuser or has a history of substance abuse, or is receiving treatment as described in Section (C);
iv. Whether the person has a mental health disease, diagnosis, or history of mental health disabilities;
v. The risk of harm to the person, his or her immediate family, or close associates as a result of providing information or assistance, or upon the disclosure of the person's assistance to the community;
vi. Whether the magnitude of the person's alleged offense is proportionate to the crimes to be investigated, the risks to be incurred by the informant, and the benefits to be conferred on the informant;
vii. The risk the person poses to adversely affect a present or potential investigation or prosecution;
viii. The effect upon agency efforts that the disclosure of the person's cooperation in the community may have;

[13] Note: With the exception of immigration status, this section does no more than codify the Equal Protection Clause's ban on government action motivated by a person's membership in a suspect class.

ix. Whether this individual has unique or important access to information or can otherwise make a special contribution to the success of an investigation.

B. Warnings[15]

a. Each potential informant shall be provided the following:

i. A warning that only a prosecutor, and not a police officer or investigator, can promise benefits such as a grant of immunity, dropped or reduced charges, or reduced sentences or placement on probation in exchange for serving as an informant.

ii. A written contract enumerating all the activities required of the informant, the promised benefits, and the time period for which the informant is obligated to cooperate.

iii. An opportunity to consult with legal counsel before the person agrees to perform any activities as an informant. If the person cannot afford counsel, the public defender's office or other appointed counsel must be provided.

C. Policies and Procedures[16]

a. General. Each law enforcement agency shall establish policies and procedures addressing the recruitment, control, and use of informants. The policies and procedures must address the following:

i. General guidelines for handling informants, including policies and procedures for implementing and complying with sections (A) and (B);

ii. Designated supervisory or command-level review and oversight in the selection and use of an informant;

iii. Restrictions on off-duty association or social relationships by agency personnel with informants;

iv. Guidelines to deactivate informants, including guidelines for deactivating communications with informants; and

v. Level of enhanced supervisory approval required before a minor is used as an informant, consistent with section 5(A).

vi. Policies and procedures that assign the highest priority in operational decisions and actions to the preservation of the safety of informants, law enforcement personnel, target offenders, and the public.

vii. Ensure that all personnel who are involved in the use or recruitment of informants are trained in the law enforcement agency's policies and procedures. The agency shall keep documentation demonstrating the date and content of such training.

b. Record Keeping. Law enforcement agencies shall establish record-keeping procedures that, at a minimum:
    i. Create a separate file for every informant;
    ii. For every informant, collect and record their name, age, gender, race, ethnicity, and residential zip code;
    iii. For every informant, collect and record all types of information required by Section 4 and Section 7(A), including any leniency-related benefits.
    iv. Provide for the secure maintenance of records related to informants to protect their identities from public disclosure or other inappropriate access;
    v. Provide for the gathering and disclosure of information as required by Section 3(B) (Discovery) and all constitutional disclosure obligations;
    vi. Define the process by which records concerning informants may be lawfully destroyed.

c. Law enforcement agencies shall perform a periodic review of actual agency informant practices to ensure conformity with the agency's policies and procedures and this title.

Section 7: TRANSPARENCY AND ACCOUNTABILITY

A. Informant Data Collection[17]
    a. The Attorney General [or other appropriate law enforcement official] shall collect and publicly disseminate the following annual aggregate data from all state law enforcement agencies:
        i. The number of informants created and used, by age, gender, race, ethnicity, and residential zip code.
        ii. The number of warrants issued based on information from an informant, by zip code of the target search.
        iii. The number of crimes prosecuted based on informant evidence, by name of crime and severity.
        iv. The number of crimes committed by informants, by name of crime and severity.
        v. The total value of all non-leniency-related benefits conferred on informants.

vi. The number of informants injured or killed in connection with their service as informants, by race, gender, age, and zip code.

B. Informant Supervisory Committee[18]
   a. The Attorney General shall constitute an Informant Supervisory Committee to oversee the use of the following types of informants as witnesses:
      i. Informants who are in-custody at the time they provide information to the state;
      ii. Informants who are chargeable with a serious crime as defined in Section 2(D).
   b. Any prosecutor seeking to use such an informant as a trial witness must obtain the prior approval of the Committee by submitting a written request.
   c. A request to use an informant shall contain at least the following:
      i. Analysis of the reliability factors in section 3(A) including any benefits promised in connection with the instant case;
      ii. Existence of strong corroboration pursuant to section 3(C); and
      iii. Names, ages, and current location of any victims of the informant's serious crimes.

C. Defense Informants
   a. The Attorney General's Office shall designate an independent unit to receive petitions regarding potential defense informants.
   b. A criminal suspect who has exculpatory information regarding another criminal suspect may petition the unit for a leniency recommendation in exchange for providing evidence or testimony on behalf of the other criminal suspect. An attorney may also petition on behalf of a criminal suspect who possesses exculpatory information regarding the attorney's client.
   c. The unit shall consider the value of the exculpatory information and the reliability of the defense informant, and make a recommendation for leniency to be conveyed to the appropriate prosecutorial authority. The leniency awarded to a defense informant shall be comparable to the leniency that would be awarded to a government sponsored informant who provides comparable inculpatory evidence to the government.
   d. Defense informants shall be subject to the same regulations, including reliability hearings, as provided in this title for government sponsored informants.

D. Innocence Reporting

a. Law enforcement officials and prosecutors shall have an affirmative duty to report when they have reason to believe, based on information obtained from an informant, that an innocent person has been convicted of a crime. Reports shall include the name and location of the informant, and the nature and substance of the exculpatory evidence. Reports shall be provided within 60 days directly to the defendant, the defense attorney who represented the defendant in that case, and the presiding judge for that case.

§ 2002. Disclosure of evidence--Continuing duty to disclose--Time of discovery--Regulation of discovery--Reasonable cost of copying, duplicating, and videotaping

Effective: November 1, 2020
Currentness

A. Disclosure of Evidence by the State.

1. Upon request of the defense, the state shall disclose the following:

a. the names and addresses of witnesses which the state intends to call at trial, together with their relevant, written or recorded statement, if any, or if none, significant summaries of any oral statement,

b. law enforcement reports made in connection with the particular case,

c. any written or recorded statements and the substance of any oral statements made by the accused or made by a codefendant,

d. any reports or statements made by experts in connection with the particular case, including results of physical or mental examinations and of scientific tests, experiments, or comparisons,

e. any books, papers, documents, photographs, tangible objects, buildings or places which the prosecuting attorney intends to use in the hearing or trial or which were obtained from or belong to the accused,

f. any record of prior criminal convictions of the defendant, or of any codefendant, and

g. Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation (OSBI) rap sheet/records check on any witness listed by the state or the defense as a witness who will testify at trial, as well as any convictions of any witness revealed through additional record checks if the defense has furnished social security numbers or date of birth for their witnesses, except OSBI rap sheet/record checks shall not provide date of birth, social security number, home phone number or address.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2. The state shall provide the defendant any evidence favorable to the defendant if such evidence is material to either guilt or punishment.

3. The prosecuting attorney's obligations under this standard extend to:

a. material and information in the possession or control of members of the prosecutor's staff,

b. any information in the possession of law enforcement agencies that regularly report to the prosecutor of which the prosecutor should reasonably know, and

c. any information in the possession of law enforcement agencies who have reported to the prosecutor with reference to the particular case of which the prosecutor should reasonably know.

4. a. If the state intends to introduce testimony of a jailhouse informant, the state shall disclose at least ten (10) days prior to trial:

(1) the complete criminal history of such informant, including any dismissed charges,

(2) any deal, promise, inducement or benefit that the state or law enforcement agency has made or may make in the future to the jailhouse informant in connection with the testimony of such informant,

(3) the specific statements or recordings made by the suspect or defendant and the time, place and manner of the disclosure to the jailhouse informant,

(4) all other filed cases in which the state intended to introduce the testimony of the jailhouse informant in connection with a deal, promise, inducement or benefit, the nature of the deal, promise, inducement or benefit, and whether the testimony was admitted in the case,

(5) whether at any time the jailhouse informant recanted the testimony or statement, and if so, a transcript or copy of such recantation, if any, and

(6) any other information relevant to the credibility of the informant.

b. Each district attorney's office shall maintain a central record that tracks each case in which the state intended to introduce the testimony of the jailhouse informant against a suspect or defendant in connection with a deal, promise, inducement or benefit, the nature of the deal, promise, inducement or benefit and whether such testimony or statements were admitted in the case. Such record shall be sent to the District Attorneys Council which shall maintain a statewide record of such information. Records maintained pursuant to this paragraph shall only be accessible to prosecutors and shall not be subject to the Oklahoma Open Records Act.[1] By September 15 of each year, the District Attorneys Council shall publish an annual report of aggregate, de-identified data regarding the total number of cases tracked pursuant to this section, and the number of cases added during the previous fiscal year pursuant to this section by each district attorney's office. A copy of the report shall be distributed to the Governor, the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the chairs of the Senate and House Judiciary Committees.

c. For purposes of this paragraph, "jailhouse informant" means a person who provides, or who the prosecutor intends to provide, testimony about admissions or other relevant information made to him or her by the suspect or defendant while both persons were detained or incarcerated in a penal institution.

B. Disclosure of Evidence by the Defendant.

1. Upon request of the state, the defense shall be required to disclose the following:

a. the names and addresses of witnesses which the defense intends to call at trial, together with their relevant, written or recorded statement, if any, or if none, significant summaries of any oral statement,

b. the name and address of any witness, other than the defendant, who will be called to show that the defendant was not present at the time and place specified in the information or indictment, together with the witness' statement to that fact,

c. the names and addresses of any witness the defendant will call, other than himself, for testimony relating to any mental disease, mental defect, or other condition bearing upon his mental state at the time the offense was allegedly committed, together with the witness' statement of that fact, if the statement is redacted by the court to preclude disclosure of privileged communication.

2. A statement filed under subparagraph a, b or c of paragraph 1 of subsection A or B of this section is not admissible in evidence at trial. Information obtained as a result of a statement filed under subsection A or B of this section is not admissible in evidence at trial except to refute the testimony of a witness whose identity subsection A of this section requires to be disclosed.

3. Upon the prosecuting attorney's request after the time set by the court, the defendant shall allow him access at any reasonable times and in any reasonable manner to inspect, photograph, copy, or have reasonable tests made upon any book, paper, document, photograph, or tangible object which is within the defendant's possession or control and which:

a. the defendant intends to offer in evidence, except to the extent that it contains any communication of the defendant, or

b. is a report or statement as to a physical or mental examination or scientific test or experiment made in connection with the particular case prepared by and relating to the anticipated testimony of a person whom the defendant intends to call as a witness, provided the report or statement is redacted by the court to preclude disclosure of privileged communication.

C. Continuing Duty to Disclose.

If, prior to or during trial, a party discovers additional evidence or material previously requested or ordered, which is subject to discovery or inspection under the Oklahoma Criminal Discovery Code, such party shall promptly notify the other party, the attorney of the other party, or the court of the existence of the additional evidence or material.

D. Time of Discovery.

Motions for discovery may be made at the time of the district court arraignment or thereafter; provided that requests for police reports may be made subject to the provisions of Section 258 of this title. However, a request pursuant to Section 258 of this title shall be subject to the discretion of the district attorney. All issues relating to discovery, except as otherwise provided, will be completed at least ten (10) days prior to trial. The court may specify the time, place and manner of making the discovery and may prescribe such terms and conditions as are just.

E. Regulation of Discovery.

1. Protective and Modifying Orders. Upon motion of the state or defendant, the court may at any time order that specified disclosures be restricted, or make any other protective order. If the court enters an order restricting specified disclosures, the entire text of the material restricted shall be sealed and preserved in the records of the court to be made available to the appellate court in the event of an appeal.

2. Failure to Comply with a Request. If at any time during the course of the proceedings it is brought to the attention of the court that a party has failed to comply with this rule, the court may order such party to permit the discovery or inspection, grant continuance, or prohibit the party from introducing evidence not disclosed, or it may enter such other order as it deems just under the circumstances.

3. The discovery order shall not include discovery of legal work product of either attorney which is deemed to include legal research or those portions of records, correspondence, reports, or memoranda which are only the opinions, theories, or conclusions of the attorney or the attorney's legal staff.

F. Reasonable cost of copying, duplicating, videotaping, developing or any other cost associated with this Code for items requested shall be paid by the party so requesting; however, any item which was obtained from the defendant by the state of which copies are requested by the defendant shall be paid by the state. Provided, if the court determines the defendant is indigent and without funds to pay the cost of reproduction of the required items, the cost shall be paid by the Indigent Defender System, unless otherwise provided by law.

H.B. No. 34

relating to measures to prevent wrongful convictions.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

SECTION 1. Chapter 2, Code of Criminal Procedure, is amended by adding Articles 2.023 and 2.32 to read as follows:

Art. 2.023. TRACKING USE OF CERTAIN TESTIMONY. (a) In this article:

(1) "Attorney representing the state" means a district attorney, a criminal district attorney, or a county attorney with criminal jurisdiction.

(2) "Correctional facility" has the meaning assigned by Section 1.07, Penal Code.

(b) An attorney representing the state shall track:

(1) the use of testimony of a person to whom a defendant made a statement against the defendant's interest while the person was imprisoned or confined in the same correctional facility as the defendant, if known by the attorney representing the state, regardless of whether the testimony is presented at trial; and

(2) any benefits offered or provided to a person in exchange for testimony described by Subdivision (1).

Art. 2.32. ELECTRONIC RECORDING OF CUSTODIAL INTERROGATIONS. (a) In this article:

(1) "Electronic recording" means an audiovisual electronic recording, or an audio recording if an audiovisual electronic recording is unavailable, that is authentic, accurate, and unaltered.

(2) "Law enforcement agency" means an agency of the state, or of a county, municipality, or other political subdivision of this state, that employs peace officers who, in the routine performance of the officers' duties, conduct custodial interrogations of persons suspected of committing criminal offenses.

(3) "Place of detention" means a police station or other building that is a place of operation for a law enforcement agency, including a municipal police department or county sheriff's department, and is owned or operated by the law enforcement agency for the purpose of detaining persons in connection with the suspected violation of a penal law. The term does not include a courthouse.

(b) Unless good cause exists that makes electronic recording infeasible, a law enforcement agency shall make a complete and contemporaneous electronic recording of any custodial interrogation that occurs in a place of detention and is of a person suspected of committing or charged with the commission of an offense under:

(1) Section 19.02, Penal Code (murder);

(2) Section 19.03, Penal Code (capital murder);

(3) Section 20.03, Penal Code (kidnapping);

(4) Section 20.04, Penal Code (aggravated kidnapping);

(5) Section 20A.02, Penal Code (trafficking of persons);

(6) Section 20A.03, Penal Code (continuous trafficking of persons);

(7) Section 21.02, Penal Code (continuous sexual abuse of young child or children);

(8) Section 21.11, Penal Code (indecency with a child);

(9) Section 21.12, Penal Code (improper relationship between educator and student);

(10) Section 22.011, Penal Code (sexual assault);

(11) Section 22.021, Penal Code (aggravated sexual assault); or

(12) Section 43.25, Penal Code (sexual performance by a child).

(c) For purposes of Subsection (b), an electronic recording of a custodial interrogation is complete only if the recording:

(1) begins at or before the time the person being interrogated enters the area of the place of detention in which the custodial interrogation will take place or receives a warning described by Section 2(a), Article 38.22, whichever is earlier; and

(2) continues until the time the interrogation ceases.

(d) For purposes of Subsection (b), good cause that makes electronic recording infeasible includes the following:

(1) the person being interrogated refused to respond or cooperate in a custodial interrogation at which an electronic recording was being made, provided that:

(A) a contemporaneous recording of the refusal was made; or

(B) the peace officer or agent of the law enforcement agency conducting the interrogation attempted, in good faith, to record the person's refusal but the person was unwilling to have the refusal recorded, and the peace officer or agent contemporaneously, in writing, documented the refusal;

(2) the statement was not made as the result of a custodial interrogation, including a statement that was made spontaneously by the accused and not in response to a question by a peace officer;

(3) the peace officer or agent of the law enforcement agency conducting the interrogation attempted, in good faith, to record the interrogation but the recording equipment did not function, the officer or agent inadvertently operated the equipment incorrectly, or the equipment malfunctioned or stopped operating without the knowledge of the officer or agent;

(4) exigent public safety concerns prevented or rendered infeasible the making of an electronic recording of the statement; or

(5) the peace officer or agent of the law enforcement agency conducting the interrogation reasonably believed at the time the interrogation commenced that the person being interrogated was not taken into custody for or being interrogated concerning the commission of an offense listed in Subsection (b).

(e) A recording of a custodial interrogation that complies with this article is exempt from public disclosure as provided by Section 552.108, Government Code.

SECTION 2. Chapter 2, Code of Criminal Procedure, is amended by adding Article 2.1386 to read as follows:

Art. 2.1386. EYEWITNESS IDENTIFICATION PROTOCOLS. (a) In this article, "law enforcement agency" means an agency of the state or an agency of a political subdivision of the state authorized by law to employ peace officers.

(b) The Texas Commission on Law Enforcement shall establish a comprehensive education and training program on eyewitness identification, including material regarding variables that affect a witness's vision and memory, practices for minimizing contamination, and effective eyewitness identification protocols.

(c) Each law enforcement agency shall require each peace officer who is employed by the agency and who performs eyewitness identification procedures to complete the education and training described by Subsection (b).

SECTION 3. Article 38.075, Code of Criminal Procedure, is amended by adding Subsection (c) to read as follows:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT MO-REP-21-1608-F-002044

(c) Evidence of a prior offense committed by a person who gives testimony described by Subsection (a) may be admitted for the purpose of impeachment if the person received a benefit described by Article 39.14(h-1)(2) with respect to the offense, regardless of whether the person was convicted of the offense.

SECTION 4. Section 3, Article 38.20, Code of Criminal Procedure, is amended by amending Subsection (c) and adding Subsection (d) to read as follows:

(c) The model policy or any other policy adopted by a law enforcement agency under Subsection (a) must:

(1) be based on:

(A) credible field, academic, or laboratory research on eyewitness memory;

(B) relevant policies, guidelines, and best practices designed to reduce erroneous eyewitness identifications and to enhance the reliability and objectivity of eyewitness identifications; and

(C) other relevant information as appropriate; and

(2) include [~~address~~] the following information regarding evidence-based practices [~~topics~~]:

(A) procedures for selecting [~~the selection of~~] photograph and live lineup filler photographs or participants to ensure that the photographs or participants:

(i) are consistent in appearance with the description of the alleged perpetrator; and

(ii) do not make the suspect noticeably stand out;

(B) instructions given to a witness before conducting a photograph or live lineup identification procedure that must include a statement that the person who committed the offense may or may not be present in the procedure;

(C) procedures for documenting and preserving the [~~documentation and preservation of~~] results of a photograph or live lineup identification procedure, including the documentation of witness statements, regardless of the outcome of the procedure;

(D) procedures for administering a photograph or live lineup identification procedure to an illiterate person or a person with limited English language proficiency;

(E) for a live lineup identification procedure, if practicable, procedures for assigning an administrator who is unaware of which member of the live lineup is the suspect in the case or alternative procedures designed to prevent opportunities to influence the witness;

(F) for a photograph identification procedure, procedures for assigning an administrator who is capable of administering a photograph array in a blind manner or in a manner consistent with other proven or supported best practices designed to prevent opportunities to influence the witness; and

(G) any other procedures or best practices supported by credible research or commonly accepted as a means to reduce erroneous eyewitness identifications and to enhance the objectivity and reliability of eyewitness identifications.

(d) A witness who makes an identification based on a photograph or live lineup identification procedure shall be asked immediately after the procedure to state, in the witness's own words, how confident the witness is in making the identification. A law enforcement agency shall document in accordance with Subsection (c)(2)(C) any statement made under this subsection.

SECTION 5. Section 5, Article 38.20, Code of Criminal Procedure, is amended to read as follows:

Sec. 5. (a) Any evidence or expert testimony presented by the state or the defendant on the subject of eyewitness identification is admissible only subject to compliance with the Texas Rules of Evidence. Except as provided by Subsection (c), evidence [~~Evidence~~] of compliance with the model policy or any other policy adopted under this article [~~or with the minimum requirements of this article~~] is not a condition precedent to the admissibility of an out-of-court eyewitness identification.

(b) Notwithstanding Article 38.23 as that article relates to a violation of a state statute and except as provided by Subsection (c), a failure to conduct a photograph or live lineup identification procedure in substantial compliance with the model policy or any other policy adopted under this article [~~or with the minimum requirements of this article~~] does not bar the admission of eyewitness identification testimony in the courts of this state.

(c) If a witness who has previously made an out-of-court photograph or live lineup identification of the accused makes an in-court identification of the accused, the eyewitness identification is admissible into evidence against the accused only if the evidence is accompanied by the details of each prior photograph or live lineup identification made of the accused by the witness, including the manner in which the identification procedure was conducted.

SECTION 6. Article 38.22, Code of Criminal Procedure, is amended by adding Section 9 to read as follows:

Sec. 9. Notwithstanding any other provision of this article, no oral, sign language, or written statement that is made by a person accused of an offense listed in Article 2.32(b) and made as a result of a custodial interrogation occurring in a place of detention, as that term is defined by Article 2.32, is admissible against the accused in a criminal proceeding unless:

(1) an electronic recording was made of the statement, as required by Article 2.32(b); or

(2) the attorney representing the state offers proof satisfactory to the court that good cause, as described by Article 2.32(d), existed that made electronic recording of the custodial interrogation infeasible.

SECTION 7. Article 39.14, Code of Criminal Procedure, is amended by adding Subsection (h-1) to read as follows:

(h-1) In this subsection, "correctional facility" has the meaning assigned by Section 1.07, Penal Code. Notwithstanding any other provision of this article, if the state intends to use at a defendant's trial testimony of a person to whom the defendant made a statement against the defendant's interest while the person was imprisoned or confined in the same correctional facility as the defendant, the state shall disclose to the defendant any information in the possession, custody, or control of the state that is relevant to the person's credibility, including:

(1) the person's complete criminal history, including any charges that were dismissed or reduced as part of a plea bargain;

(2) any grant, promise, or offer of immunity from prosecution, reduction of sentence, or other leniency or special treatment, given by the state in exchange for the person's testimony; and

(3) information concerning other criminal cases in which the person has testified, or offered to testify, against a defendant with whom the person was imprisoned or confined, including any grant, promise, or offer as described by Subdivision (2) given by the state in exchange for the testimony.

SECTION 8. STUDY REGARDING USE OF DRUG FIELD TEST KITS. (a) The Texas Forensic Science Commission shall conduct a study regarding the use of drug field test kits by law enforcement agencies in this state. The commission shall:

(1) evaluate the quality, accuracy, and reliability of drug field test kits;

(2) identify any common problems with drug field test kits;

(3) evaluate the availability and adequacy of training

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT MO-REP-21-1608-F-002046

for law enforcement officers regarding the use of drug field test kits and the interpretation of the test results; and

(4) develop legislative recommendations regarding the use of drug field test kits by law enforcement agencies and regarding related training for law enforcement officers.

(b) Not later than December 1, 2018, the Texas Forensic Science Commission shall submit to the governor, the lieutenant governor, and each member of the legislature a written report that summarizes the results of the study conducted under this section and includes any legislative recommendations.

SECTION 9. CRIME SCENE INVESTIGATION STUDY. (a) The Texas Forensic Science Commission shall conduct a study regarding the manner in which crime scene investigations are conducted in this state. The commission shall:

(1) evaluate the standard procedures used in processing a crime scene and evaluate the quality of crime scene investigations;

(2) evaluate the availability and adequacy of the training or continuing education provided to crime scene investigators; and

(3) develop legislative recommendations regarding improvements to crime scene investigation procedures and training.

(b) Not later than December 1, 2018, the Texas Forensic Science Commission shall submit to the governor, the lieutenant governor, and each member of the legislature a written report that summarizes the results of the study conducted under this section and includes any legislative recommendations.

SECTION 10. Not later than January 1, 2018, the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement shall adopt the comprehensive education and training program required by Article 2.1386, Code of Criminal Procedure, as added by this Act.

SECTION 11. Article 2.32 and Section 9, Article 38.22, Code of Criminal Procedure, as added by this Act, apply to the use of a statement resulting from a custodial interrogation that occurs on or after March 1, 2018, regardless of whether the criminal offense giving rise to that interrogation is committed before, on, or after that date.

SECTION 12. Article 38.075(c), Code of Criminal Procedure, as added by this Act, applies to the admissibility of evidence in a criminal proceeding that commences on or after the effective date of this Act. The admissibility of evidence in a criminal proceeding that commences before the effective date of this Act is governed by the law in effect on the date the proceeding commenced, and the former law is continued in effect for that purpose.

SECTION 13. (a) Section 3(d), Article 38.20, Code of Criminal Procedure, as added by this Act, applies only to a photograph or live lineup identification procedure conducted on or after the effective date of this Act, regardless of whether the offense to which the procedure is related was committed before, on, or after the effective date of this Act.

(b) Section 5, Article 38.20, Code of Criminal Procedure, as amended by this Act, applies only to the trial of an offense with respect to which a prior photograph or live lineup identification of the accused occurred on or after the effective date of this Act, regardless of whether the offense that is the subject of the trial was committed before, on, or after the effective date of this Act.

SECTION 14. Article 39.14(h-1), Code of Criminal Procedure, as added by this Act, applies to the prosecution of an offense committed on or after the effective date of this Act. The prosecution of an offense committed before the effective date of this Act is governed by the law in effect on the date the offense was committed, and the former law is continued in effect for that purpose. For purposes of this section, an offense is committed before the effective date of this Act if any element of the offense occurs before the effective date.

BRADY AND JAILHOUSE INFORMANTS: RESPONDING TO INJUSTICE

Peter A. Joy[†]

Two well-known mystery writers, Michael Connelly and John Grisham, recently wrote books in which uncorroborated jailhouse informant (snitch) testimony figures prominently. In Connelly's book, The Lincoln Lawyer,[1] an ambitious young prosecutor uses fabricated jailhouse snitch testimony to prosecute a man who is factually guilty. In Grisham's book, The Innocent Man,[2] an ambitious young prosecutor uses fabricated jailhouse snitch testimony to prosecute a man who is factually innocent. The Lincoln Lawyer, in which defense counsel exposes the false snitch testimony at trial and wins acquittal of a guilty man, is a work of fiction. The Innocent Man, in which the false snitch testimony helps to convict an innocent man, is a work of nonfiction. In both books, the prosecutors not only use false snitch testimony, they also conceal exculpatory evidence required to be disclosed to the accused by both Brady v. Maryland[3] and prevailing ethical rules.[4] Both books help to illustrate how jailhouse snitch

Since Brady, the Supreme Court has decided a number of cases that have helped to define the disclosure obligation. Prosecutors must disclose materials that could impeach a witness' credibility, such as plea agreements with witnesses or other incentives to testify. Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150 (1972); United States v. Bagley, 473 U.S. 667 (1985). In addition, a promise made by one prosecutor to a witness is imputed to the trial prosecutor, Giglio 405 U.S. at 154, and the trial prosecutor has an obligation to learn of Brady material known to other prosecutors in the office or to the police. Kyles v. Whitley, 514 U.S. 419, 437 (1995) ("[T]he individual prosecutor has a duty to learn of any favorable evidence known to the others acting on the government's behalf in the case, including the police.").

testimony and Brady violations sidetrack procedural justice, and Grisham's first book of nonfiction demonstrates how snitch testimony and Brady violations can combine to deny substantive justice by convicting the innocent. In this article, I analyze the pervasiveness of false snitch testimony and Brady violations as contributing causes of wrongful convictions and I recommend concrete steps that head prosecutors, defense lawyers, and trial and appellate judges can take to prevent and to respond effectively to these causes of wrongful convictions.

Throughout this article, I use the pejorative term "snitch" rather than "informant" due to the high rate of unreliability of uncorroborated jailhouse informant testimony. The untrustworthiness of such witnesses is well documented, and even some prosecutors who use jailhouse informants refer to them as "snitches." The pernicious effects of snitch testimony, especially when combined with a prosecutor's failure to disclose exculpatory information to the defense as required by Brady, are illustrated in Ron Williamson's case.

Ron Williamson, the subject of Grisham's book The Innocent Man, spent twelve years on Oklahoma's death row for a crime he did not commit before DNA evidence exonerated him. The prosecutor waited until after the death of Williamson's mother, a well respected member of the community and Williamson's alibi witness,[5] before bringing charges against Williamson.[6] The prosecutor then built his RULES]. The ethical rule states:

> The prosecutor in a criminal case shall . . . (d) make timely disclosure to the defense of all evidence or information known to the prosecutor that tends to negate the guilt of the accused or mitigates the offense, and, in connection with sentencing, disclose to the defendant and to the tribunal all unprivileged mitigating information known to the prosecutor, except when the prosecutor is relieved of this responsibility by a protective order of a tribunal; . . . .

The American Bar Association (ABA) adopted the Model Rules in 1983 and has amended them frequently, most recently in 2002. The Model Rules replaced the ABA Model Code of Professional Responsibility (Model Code), which the ABA adopted in 1969. Nearly every state and the District of Columbia have adopted most of the language of the Model Rules for their ethics rules. See STEPHEN GILLERS & ROY D. If Juanita took the witness stand and said Ronnie was home on the night of the murder, the jury would believe her." GRISHAM, supra note 2, at 105. In addition, Juanita Williamson had an entry in her diary stating that Williamson was home with her and a receipt from a video store for the movies that she watched with Williamson the night of the murder "until early the next morning." Id. at 104–05.

case around the uncorroborated testimony of a jailhouse snitch with three prior felony convictions who, while facing more charges, claimed that two years earlier she overheard a jailhouse phone call in which Williamson admitted to committing murder.[7] Next, the prosecutor and police withheld exculpatory evidence, including the video of a polygraph of Williamson, administered shortly after the murder in which Williamson denied any involvement,[8] and a report of a video of an interview with Williamson's mother taken shortly before her death in which Williamson's mother provided evidence that she was with Williamson at her home the night of the murder.[9]

Stories like Williamson's are hard to align with the concept of justice in the United States. Yet, hardly a month goes by when there is not news about some other defendant who, after a lengthy incarceration, is exonerated based on DNA evidence. Since the first post-conviction DNA exoneration in 1989, there have been 194 post-conviction DNA exonerations in the United States, and those wrongfully convicted spent an average of twelve years in prison before being set free.[10] Combined, this represents more than two millennia—2,328 years—of confining the innocent in prison. Not only does this represent the loss of potentially productive lives for those convicted, but it also represents over $52 million in taxpayer money spent on state prison costs for the wrongfully convicted,[11] unknown expenditures for prosecuting, defending and providing trials that convict the wrong people,[12] and an indeterminate amount of tax dollars paid to the wrongfully convicted as reparations either

[7] The witness, Terri Holland, claimed that she heard Williamson make a full confession over the phone in the front office of the jail, even though the jail personnel working the front desk never reported hearing anything inculpatory. See GRISHAM, supra note 2, at 152–53; see also Williamson v. Based on prison costs in 2001, the state prison costs for 2328 years of imprisonment are $52,729,200, using the average cost per year of imprisonment of $22,650. Grisham estimates that the cost to imprison Williamson, excluding extra cost of death row and treatment in state mental hospitals, "was at least $250,000." GRISHAM, supra note 2, at 357.

voluntarily, by statute, or as a result of litigation settlements and judgments.[13]

In addition to the loss of liberty and the costs of convicting the innocent, there are three additional dimensions to wrongful convictions that are sometimes neglected. First, more than half of those exonerated by DNA—112 of 194—are African American,[14] a rate higher than the racial disparities in arrests and convictions.[15] Commentators note that this racial disparity is likely the result of one of the causes of wrongful convictions, cross-racial misidentifications,[16] and "subtle problems of racism and stereotyping on the part of jurors, judges, prosecutors and defense lawyers."[17] Second, while the innocent are convicted and confined in prison, the guilty persons are often free to commit more crimes.[18] Third, the DNA exonerations represent a fraction of the wrongfully convicted because there is no DNA evidence in most cases. For example, one study identified 196 additional persons who had been exonerated by [13] There is no uniform method for compensating the wrongfully convicted. Approximately two thirds of the states do not have compensation or indemnification statutes. See Adele Bernhard, Table: When Justice Fails: Indemnification for Unjust Conviction, 7 U. CHI. L. SCH. ROUNDTABLE 345 (2000). In some instances, private bills are enacted to provide relief in particular cases. See Adele Bernhard, Justice Still Fails: A Review of Recent Efforts to Compensate Individuals Who Have Been Unjustly Convicted and Later Exonerated, 52 DRAKE L. REV. 703, 709 (2004). When successful, law suits can yield generous compensation. For example, the local government that convicted Williamson paid over $500,000 and the total settlement for wrongfully convicting Williamson was "believed to be in the $5 million range." GRISHAM, supra note 2, at 343. However, compensation is difficult to obtain through litigation, because prosecutors and law enforcement officers are usually protected from lawsuits by governmental immunity. See Imbler v. Pachtman, 424 U.S. 409, 410 (1976) (holding that a state prosecutor acting within the scope of prosecutorial duties may not be sued); Hunter v. Bryant, 502 U.S. 224, 229 (holding that law enforcement officers are entitled to immunity). In Williamson's case, he overcame claims of immunity by demonstrating that the prosecutor stepped out of his role as prosecutor to run the criminal investigation, and there was sufficient evidence demonstrating that a genuine question of fact existed as to whether prosecutor and police engaged in fabrication of evidence and withheld exculpatory evidence to convict Williamson. See GRISHAM, supra note 2, at 341–42.

[14] See Innocence Project, supra note 10.

[15] African Americans comprise 57.7 percent of those exonerated by DNA evidence. See id. In 1999, African Americans were approximately 12.9 percent of the population but were 49.4 percent of those in jails and prisons. Karen F. Parker et al., Racial Bias and the Conviction of the Innocent, in WRONGLY CONVICTED: PERSPECTIVES ON FAILED JUSTICE 114, 114–15 (Saundra D. Westervelt & John A. means other than DNA evidence from 1989 through 2003.[19] The authors of this more comprehensive study acknowledge that their list of exonerations is not exhaustive because of the lack of a national registry of exonerations and fragmented record keeping at the local, state, and federal levels.[20] The researchers also exclude from their study mass exonerations, such as the 100 to 150 defendants convicted on the basis of police perjury in Los Angeles as part of the Rampart scandal.[21] After compiling the data on exonerations, the researchers of this more expansive study conclude "that many defendants who are not on this list, no doubt thousands, have been falsely convicted of serious crimes but have not been exonerated."[22]

Although it may not be possible to estimate accurately the number of wrongfully convicted, whatever the number, the most obvious question for anyone interested in justice is: What steps can be taken to address the underlying causes of wrongful convictions? Even those who may view the number of wrongful convictions as insignificant in light of the large number of persons convicted each year should be interested in taking steps to limit wrongful convictions if they care about procedural and substantive justice.[23] As a result of this interest in improving the criminal justice system, there have been a number of books, dozens of law review articles, a host of law school symposia, such as the one held by Case Western Reserve Law Review, and other efforts exploring the issue of wrongful convictions.

In this study, the authors use "exoneration" whenever there "is an official act declaring a defendant not guilty of a crime for which he or she had previously been convicted." Id. at 524. The methods of exoneration included pardons based on evidence of innocence, court dismissal of charges based on new evidence of innocence, acquittals at a retrial on the basis of evidence that the accused had no role in the crimes for which they had been originally convicted, and posthumous acknowledgements of innocence by state governments. See id. Given this broader definition of "exoneration," the authors state that "we are in no position to reach an independent judgment on the factual innocence of each defendant in our data." Id. at 526. Among the efforts considering how to address the causes of wrongful convictions is the work of the Ad Hoc Innocence Committee of the American Bar Association (ABA) Criminal Justice Section. The Ad Hoc Innocence Committee studied many of the causes of wrongful conviction and issued a report directed at systemic reforms—including reforms addressing snitch testimony and prosecutorial practices.[24] Professor Paul Giannelli wrote portions of the report dealing with jailhouse snitches,[25] and the committee recommended a resolution, which the ABA House of Delegates passed, urging federal, state, and local governments to adopt measures so "no prosecution should occur based solely upon the uncorroborated jailhouse informant testimony."[26] With regard to prosecutorial practices directed at Brady disclosures, the committee recommended, and the ABA House of Delegates passed, a resolution that advocates federal, state and local governments to implement procedures so that law enforcement agencies and others working with prosecutors have a better understanding of their obligation to disclose exculpatory and mitigating evidence to prosecutors.[27]

The reforms the Ad Hoc Innocence Committee and ABA House of Delegates recommend are laudable and should be pursued. If implemented, these systemic reforms will go a long way toward ensuring more procedural and substantive justice. But systemic reforms take time and may be less likely to occur than the pragmatic measures I urge local prosecutors, defense lawyers, and individual judges to start taking immediately to respond to the injustice of false snitch testimony and Brady violations that contribute to wrongful convictions.

I begin with a short discussion of the problem of wrongful convictions and the roles that false snitch testimony and prosecutorial misconduct play in convicting the innocent in Part I. In order to shape effective remedies to prevent wrongful convictions, it is necessary to understand the scope of the problem and the nature of causes of wrongful convictions. In Part II, I outline a number of realistic measures that head prosecutors, trial and appellate judges, and defense lawyer should take to prevent false snitch testimony and Brady violations. My goal in outlining these practical, low cost or no-cost recommendations to counter the prejudicial effects of snitch testimony and Brady violations is to generate interest by the countless good prosecutors, defense lawyers, and judges who could prevent wrongful convictions through their daily work.

I. WRONGFUL CONVICTIONS AND THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN SNITCH TESTIMONY AND BRADY VIOLATIONS

Snitch testimony and prosecutorial misconduct, including failure to disclose exculpatory evidence as required by Brady, are major contributing causes to wrongful convictions. Fifty-one of the first 111 death row exonerations involved convictions based upon false snitch testimony.[28] Of the first sixty-two DNA exonerations, fifteen cases involved snitch testimony and twenty-six cases involved prosecutorial misconduct.[29] Of the cases involving prosecutorial misconduct, the suppression of exculpatory evidence—Brady violations—occurred forty-three percent of the time.[30]

Some of the other factors leading to wrongful convictions, such as mistaken identification, are more prevalent,[31] but false snitch testimony and suppression of exculpatory evidence are especially troubling because both serve to derail the truth seeking process of the criminal justice system. Rather than the adversarial process working as intended,[32] the use of false evidence (whether knowingly or unintentionally by prosecutors) and the suppression of exculpatory evidence either lead some innocent defendants to plead guilty or deny the fact finders the ability to reach just verdicts in cases that go to trial.

At the plea stage, efforts to eliminate false snitch testimony and to guarantee the defendant access to exculpatory evidence are necessary in order for there to be confidence in the accuracy of guilty pleas. This is especially true because some innocent defendants plead guilty in order to secure a certain shorter sentence or avoid the possibility of a death sentence. There is no question that this type of risk benefit analysis occurs, and our system of justice acknowledges the right of an individual to maintain innocence while entering a plea of guilty.[33]

The issue of false guilty pleas is accentuated by the extremely high number of criminal cases resolved by guilty pleas. Government studies show that ninety-five percent of state felony cases are resolved through guilty pleas.[34] In the federal system, over ninety percent of those facing felony charges were convicted and ninety-six percent of those convictions rested on guilty pleas.[35] These studies confirm, and in some situations exceed, commentators' estimates of guilty plea rates at approximately eighty to ninety percent.[36]

It is impossible to know how many defendants plead guilty to avoid more serious sentences, but there are examples. Recently, James Ochoa was exonerated by DNA evidence after serving ten months in prison for a crime he did not commit.[37] James Ochoa originally rejected a prosecutor's offer of two years in prison in exchange for pleading guilty because he knew he was innocent. But, after the trial judge threatened to impose a life sentence if convicted, James Ochoa entered a guilty plea during his trial over the advice of his defense lawyer rather than risk conviction.[38] In another case, Christopher Ochoa pled guilty to murder to avoid the possibility of the death penalty; DNA testing exonerated him after he spent twelve years in prison.[39] In the study of exonerations from 1989 to 2003, the researchers found that six percent of the exonerees had pled guilty.[40]

In a more recent study, researchers documented fourteen false guilty pleas out of 125 proven false confessions—eleven percent of their sample.[41]

In these and other instances of false guilty pleas, some innocent defendants plead guilty rather than face a harsher penalty, sometimes the death penalty. Because most felony cases result in guilty verdicts, and nearly all guilty verdicts are the result of defendants pleading guilty, the use of false snitch testimony or withholding exculpatory evidence become powerful levers to convince innocent persons that the trial process is stacked against them. As the James Ochoa case indicates, this can occur even over the advice of defense counsel.[42] These cases illustrate the importance of Brady disclosures to the proper functioning of the guilty plea process.

In addition to guilty pleas where the defendants are insincere and enter pleas to avoid the possibility of harsher punishment, Professor Kevin McMunigal notes that without disclosure of exculpatory information prior to a guilty plea there are problems of factually inaccurate guilty pleas due to faulty assumptions on the part of defendants.[43] McMunigal points out that some defendants enter guilty pleas because of their mistaken belief that they were guilty. A defendant can be mistaken and have imperfect knowledge of events when the prosecutor does not disclose exculpatory statements of witnesses who know critical information that the defendant does not,[44] or when the prosecutor does not disclose investigatory reports, [44] One of the examples Professor McMunigal uses is State v. Gardner, 885 P.2d 1144 (Idaho Ct. App. 1994). Danny Gardner was charged with vehicular manslaughter as the result of a collision when the automobile he was driving crossed the center line into the path of an oncoming pick-up truck, killing the driver of the truck and seriously injuring three passengers in the truck. Gardner tested positive for marijuana and his nephew, a passenger in Gardner's automobile at the time of the accident, gave a statement that Gardner had smoked marijuana right before the accident. See id. at 1147. Tests indicated that Gardner was under the influence of marijuana and was sleep deprived. Gardner pled guilty, stating at the hearing that "he could not remember anything about the accident and believed that he might have fallen asleep while driving because he had not slept the previous night." Id. Unknown to Gardner at the time he entered his plea was that a witness, traveling behind Gardner's vehicle at the time of the accident, gave a written statement to the Idaho State Police that "when the blue car [Gardner's vehicle] was about ten feet in front of the truck I believe the driver's front tire blew. The whole [sic] jumped into the oncoming lane like it was on rails." Id. In a deposition given in a subsequent civil case over the accident, "the witness further explained that he observed the left-front tire blowing out. He saw a puff of dust and rock chunks that appeared to have been caused by the tire blowing, and then the car immediately jerked to the left." Id. The trial court denied Gardner's motion to withdraw his guilty pleas, but the Idaho Court of Appeals vacated such as accident reconstruction reports, that withdraw initial conclusions incorrectly blaming the defendant.[45]

False snitch testimony and Brady violations clash with the generally accepted notion that our criminal justice system protects the innocent and convicts the guilty. The presumption of innocence,[46] the right to remain silent,[47] the right to a public trial by an impartial jury,[48] and the requirement of proof of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt are all procedural safeguards meant to the protect the innocent. These safeguards reinforce the public's belief that our criminal justice system operates on the precautionary principle that "better that ten guilty persons escape than that one innocent suffer."[49] When false testimony is introduced into evidence, or exculpatory evidence is withheld from the defendant for possible use at trial, the justice system is derailed.

In many ways, the prosecutor is the key actor in the criminal justice system with both the overarching duty and the means to [45] In Carroll v. State, 474 S.E.2d 737 (Ga.App. 1996), Jessica Carroll entered a guilty plea based on the incorrect conclusions of an inexperienced investigating officer, who had not completed his first course in accident reconstruction. The investigating officer's conclusions, both about Carroll's speed and the role of road conditions in causing a accident that killed one person, turned out to be unsupported by the evidence collected at the scene of the accident. In preparing for trial, a more experienced accident reconstruction expert working for the state advised the prosecutor that the speed could not be calculated and that "the newly paved highway and the shoulder, which dropped-off, contributed to the accident." Id. at 738. The state did not disclose this new information and Carroll entered a guilty plea. Id. at 739. protect the innocent. As the Supreme Court explained, the prosecutor "is in a peculiar and very definite sense the servant of the law, the twofold aim of which is that guilt shall not escape or innocence suffer."[50] Ethics rules reinforce this notion by requiring a prosecutor to be a "minister of justice" and to seek justice.[51] As a minister of justice, the prosecutor has the responsibility "not simply . . . of an advocate," but to adopt a somewhat neutral stance "to see that the defendant is accorded procedural justice and that guilt is decided upon the basis of sufficient evidence."[52]

The prosecutor's duty to seek justice may conflict with the prevailing norm of zealous representation by lawyers in the United States, however.[53] The norm of zealous representation is deeply rooted in the way that prosecutors approach their work, both historically and ethically. Victims initiated and prosecuted their own cases from colonial times until the mid-1800s in some states,[54] and public prosecutors would sometimes hire private lawyers to assist with prosecutions as late as the 1890s.[55] Even today, many prosecutors in the United States are part-time prosecutors who also engage in private practice, sometimes doing criminal defense.[56]

[53] The concept of zealous representation is perhaps best captured by the words of Henry Brougham in his defense of Queen Caroline before England's House of Lords in 1820. Brougham threatened to take every step necessary to advance his client's interests, even if the defense of Queen Caroline would cause damage to King George IV. He explained:

> [A]n advocate, in the discharge of his duty, knows but one person in all the world, and that person is his client. To save that client by all means and expedients, and at all hazards and costs to other persons, and, among them, to himself, is his first and only duty; and in performing this duty he must not regard the alarm, the torments, the destruction which he may bring upon others. Separating the duty of a patriot from that of an advocate, he must go on reckless of consequences, though it should be his unhappy fate to involve his country in confusion.

Part-time prosecutors may ethically represent defendants provided the same office in which the part-time prosecutor works is not prosecuting the defendant and the charges do not involve the same jurisdiction's laws that the part-time

Prosecutors, whether part-time or full-time, receive the same legal education and are governed by the same ethics rules—with only one ethics rule directed solely to prosecutors—that apply to other lawyers.

In deciding whether to rely on jailhouse snitch testimony, the prosecutor likely feels the possibly conflicting pull of the duty to do justice against the norm of zealous representation. Jailhouse snitch testimony is notoriously unreliable, with inmates often manufacturing supposed confessions from others—such as the snitch in Williamson's case—in return for lenient treatment or other benefit.[57] Court decisions and former prosecutors warn about the danger of jailhouse snitches who "purchase leniency from the government by offering testimony in return for immunity, or in return for reduced incarceration."[58] Yet, as in the Williamson's case, sometimes snitch testimony is the key to prosecuting the person the prosecutor believes is culpable. When the suspect is in fact innocent, either the prosecutor is duped by the snitch or the prosecutor relies on what she may suspect is manufactured testimony because such testimony is the means to what the prosecutor believes is the desired ends of convicting a defendant the prosecutor presumes to be factually guilty.

Similarly, the prosecutor is conflicted when determining what material is exculpatory and must be given to the defendant pursuant to Brady. Under Brady and most state criminal discovery rules, the prosecutor has the discretion to determine what constitutes exculpatory evidence and when to disclose it. This has led to inconsistent decisions with some prosecutors turning over to defendants material other prosecutors fail to disclose, and some prosecutors waiting until the eve of trial or even during trial before turning over material.[59] prosecutor must enforce. See, e.g., ABA Comm. on Ethics and Prof'l Responsibility, Informal Op. 1285, at 160 (1974) (stating that prosecutors who only prosecute violations of municipal ordinances may represent criminal defendants facing violations of state law provided the municipality is not directly or indirectly involved or affected); Supreme Court of Ohio, Bd. of Comm'rs on Grievances & Discipline, Op. 88-008 (1988), available at http://www.sconet.state.oh.us/BOC/Advisory_Opinions/ (stating that a municipal prosecutor may "represent a criminal defendant in cases not involving the city or its ordinances").

[59] The prosecutor's duty to disclose evidence favorable to the defense is triggered when the evidence is material. "[E]vidence is material only if there is a reasonable probability that,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002061

The prosecutor makes these decisions secretly, usually based on personal judgment, and those decisions are not subject to any established oversight mechanisms. The decision making process first requires the prosecutor to determine if the evidence is exculpatory and then if it is "material." Under existing law, the prosecutor knows that a Brady violation will not occur unless "there is a reasonable probability that, had the evidence been disclosed to the defense, the result of the proceeding would have been different."[60] Essentially, this means that the prosecutor who is convinced of the guilt of the accused is placed in the conflicting position of deciding if there is evidence strong enough to prevent a finding of guilt by the jury.

Even when Brady violations are found,[61] the prosecutor knows that there is little fear of professional discipline because, as one commentator researching professional discipline against prosecutors for Brady violations concluded, "punishment is virtually nonexistent."[62]

Until systemic reforms, such as those the ABA Ad Hoc Innocence Committee recommended, occur, the responsibility falls upon the prosecutors, defense lawyers, and judges at the trial and appellate levels to take measures that curtail the use of false snitch testimony and lead to better compliance with Brady disclosures. In the following part of this article, I will briefly outline what can be done.

II. ACTION PLAN FOR PROSECUTORS, DEFENSE ATTORNEYS, AND JUDGES TO COMBAT FALSE SNITCH TESTIMONY AND BRADY VIOLATIONS

Prosecutors, defense attorneys, and judges at the trial and appellate levels can and should do more to combat false snitch testimony and Brady violations. The growing number of exonerations demonstrates how snitch testimony and Brady violations can combine to convict the innocent, and anyone interested in avoiding future wrongful convictions should be interested in exploring what can be done immediately, without waiting for the possible reforms discussed above. Because prosecutors have the most control over snitch testimony and the disclosure of Brady material, I begin by discussing measures that head prosecutors should implement.

A. What Head Prosecutors Can Do

Commentators offer a number of reasons to explain why prosecutors commit errors in judgment, such as failing to make required Brady disclosures. Some commentators attribute fault to prosecutors and contend that prosecutors make these errors to gain advantage in the trial process or because they are overzealous.[63] More recently, other commentators have argued that faulty judgment is more likely due to various unintentional cognitive biases that prosecutors have rather than assessing blame against the prosecutors.[64] I have argued previously that prosecutorial misconduct is likely the result of three institutional conditions: "vague ethics rules that provide ambiguous guidance to prosecutors; vast discretionary authority with little or no transparency; and inadequate remedies for prosecutorial misconduct, which create perverse incentives for prosecutors to engage in, rather than refrain from, prosecutorial misconduct."[65] Whether the use of false snitch testimony and Brady violations are largely the result of conscious actions, unconscious psychological motivations, or institutional conditions, we are left with the results that such conduct always violates the rights of the accused and sometimes contributes to convicting the innocent.

No matter what causes prosecutorial errors, such as the use of false snitch testimony and Brady violations, the head prosecutor in a particular jurisdiction is in the best position to implement policies to prevent these problems. More than the state legislature, the federal government, or the United States Supreme Court, the head of a particular prosecutor's office has the ability to create and, if necessary, enforce polices that every prosecutor in that office must follow. The following policies, some of which already exist in some jurisdictions, are policies head prosecutors should implement to help prevent the use of false snitch testimony and Brady violations.

1. Adopt a Prosecutor's Handbook for the Office

Prosecutors have extensive power, and often exercise discretion in exercising this power, with few controls. Prosecutors decide whom to prosecute, what crimes to charge, how much leniency to give informants in exchange for information and testimony, sentence recommendations for the accused, and the nature of plea-bargains, if any, the accused may be offered. At each step, the individual prosecutors involved make these decisions in secret, subject only to the controls imposed by the head prosecutors in their offices. To provide concrete guidance to prosecutors and to introduce some transparency into how their offices work, head prosecutors should implement the recommendations of well established criminal justice standards and the National District Attorneys Association (NDAA) and follow the example of the U.S. Department of Justice by adopting prosecutor manuals for their offices.

The ABA Criminal Justice Standards on the Prosecution Function (ABA Prosecution Function Standards) recommend that each prosecutor's office adopt a "prosecutor's handbook" containing "a statement of (i) general policies to guide the exercise of prosecutorial discretion and (ii) procedures for the office. The objectives of these policies as to discretion and procedures should be to achieve a fair, efficient, and effective enforcement of the criminal law."[66] The ABA Prosecution Function Standards recommend that the public have access to the handbook "except for subject matters declared 'confidential,' when it is reasonably believed that public access to their contents would adversely affect the prosecution function."[67]

The NDAA, the leading national organization for state prosecutors, similarly recommends the creation of a written policy manual for each office explaining: "The policies and procedures should give guidance in the exercise of prosecutorial discretion and should provide information necessary for the performance of the duties of the staff."[68] Similar to the ABA Criminal Justice Standards' rationale, the NDAA states: "The objectives of these policies and procedures are to establish the office as a place for the fair, efficient, and effective enforcement of the criminal law."[69] The NDAA also recommends that each prosecutor's manual "should be subject to access by the general public and/or law enforcement agencies or the defense bar."[70]

In addition to the recommendations of the ABA Criminal Justice Standards and the NDAA, the U.S. Department of Justice has set a national example by publishing the U.S. Attorney's Manual (USAM),[71] which is available to the public. The USAM sets out the general principles for commencing or recommending federal prosecution,[72] and the USAM lists factors prosecutors should consider in exercising discretion whether to prosecute.[73] The USAM also [72] The USAM states that a prosecutor "should commence or recommend Federal prosecution if he/she believes that the person's conduct constitutes a Federal offense and that the admissible evidence will probably be sufficient to obtain and sustain a conviction" unless the prosecutor believes: "1. No substantial Federal purpose would be served by prosecution; 2. The person is subject to effective prosecution in another jurisdiction; or 3. There exists an adequate non-criminal alternative to prosecution." Id. at § 9-27.220(A).

[73] The USAM lists the following seven factors for federal prosecutors to consider in exercising discretion to pursue a prosecution:

(1) Federal law enforcement priorities;
(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
(3) The deterrent effect of prosecution;
(4) The person's culpability in connection with the offense;

identifies impermissible considerations, which are: "1. The person's race, religion, sex, national origin, or political association, activities, or beliefs; 2. The attorney's own personal feelings concerning the person, the person's associates, or the victim; or 3. The possible affect of the decision on the attorney's own professional or personal circumstances."[74]

Despite the recommendations of the ABA Criminal Justice Standards and the NDAA and the example of the U.S. Department of Justice, relatively few of the more than 2300 prosecutors' offices that pursue felony cases in state courts have manuals or written guidelines for exercising discretion, and whatever manuals or guidelines that may exist do not appear to be available to the public.[75] The lack of written policies for exercising discretion and the lack of transparency in the process are breeding grounds for inconsistency and potential arbitrariness in the way prosecutors in an office approach their work.

The head prosecutor of an office without a written manual or guidelines for exercising discretion could help prevent the use of false snitch testimony and Brady violations by creating written guidelines covering these two areas and making those guidelines available to the public. Such action would establish procedures in the office that are clear and definite, and each prosecutor's actions pursuant to these

In my own experience practicing criminal law in several different cities and counties in two states, I have never found a state or local prosecutor's office with a manual or written guidelines addressing the exercise of discretion made available to the public. Prosecutors in state courts routinely tell me that no such manual or written guidelines exist in their offices. It appears that Minnesota is the only state with a law addressing this issue, and the law requires every prosecutor's office to adopt "written guidelines governing the county attorney's charging and plea negotiation policies and practices." MINN. STAT. § 338.051(3)(a) (1997). Minnesota requires the guidelines to set out "the circumstances under which plea negotiation agreements are permissible," "the factors that are considered in making charging decisions and formulating plea agreements," and "the extent to which input from other persons concerned with a prosecution, such as victims and law enforcement officers, is considered in formulating plea agreements." Id. I have been unable to locate any other information concerning the number of state and local prosecutors' offices that have manuals or written polices outlining the exercise of discretion. More research and data in this area are needed.

written procedures could be subject to internal review and, if necessary, enforcement.

Although no one has done an in depth study into prosecutor integrity, a Department of Justice's National Institute of Justice study of police integrity found that a "culture of integrity, as defined by clearly understood and implemented policies and rules, may be more important in shaping the ethics . . . than hiring the 'right' people."[76] In addition, the study recommended that to enhance integrity two other measures should be taken: "consistently address relatively minor offenses with the appropriate discipline" so that one "may infer that major offenses, too, are likely to be disciplined," and "disclose the disciplinary process and resulting discipline to public scrutiny."[77]

The findings concerning steps to enhance police integrity are consistent with studies of lawyer ethics that demonstrate that the ethical culture in a law office is critical to the ethical behavior of the lawyers in that office.[78] This all points to the need for head prosecutors to implement written policies that describe proper conduct in dealing with informants, especially jailhouse snitches, and Brady material, and to utilize internal discipline procedures when those policies are violated. Without written policies, the prosecutors making these decisions are left to determine, on their own, the proper way of handling a situation, or must rely on the advice of others in their offices who may have widely varying views of what is proper. In the following sections, I will discuss specific policies head prosecutors should consider implementing for dealing with informant, especially snitch, testimony and Brady disclosures.

2. Impose Controls on the Use of Informant (Snitch) Testimony

A head prosecutor could prohibit the use of informant testimony, especially jailhouse snitch testimony, altogether, but many prosecutors might view that approach as too drastic a cure for the problem of potential unreliability of informants. In some instances, the testimony of a jailhouse snitch may appear to be reliable and may be important to prosecuting a defendant successfully. Instead of banning the use of jailhouse informant testimony altogether, a more balanced approach to the problem would consider reasonable measures that could effectively address the reliability issue.

The reliability issue should be approached with clear guidelines because the unreliability of informant testimony has been recognized by courts and prosecutors—anyone remotely associated with the criminal justice system recognizes that there are problems using witnesses who trade testimony for leniency.[79] Nearly one hundred years ago, the United States Supreme Court warned that the testimony of accomplice informants should be viewed "with suspicion, and with the very greatest care and caution,"[80] and more than fifty years ago the Court stated that "informers, accessories, accomplices, false friends, or any of the other betrayals which are 'dirty business' may [79] Judge Stephen Trott, a former prosecutor, used to train federal prosecutors about the problems of using informant testimony, especially jailhouse snitch testimony. He later used his training materials in writing a law review article in which he stated: "The most dangerous informer of all is the jailhouse snitch who claims another prisoner confessed to him." Trott, supra note 58, at 1394. Judge Trott currently sits on the Ninth Circuit, and in a decision he authored he explained:

> Never has it been more true than it is now that a criminal charged with a serious crime understands that a fast and easy way out of trouble with the law is . . . to cut a deal at someone else's expense and to purchase leniency from the government by offering testimony in return for immunity, or in return for reduced incarceration. . . .

Professor Bennett Gershman, a former prosecutor, has warned that a cooperating witness not only has "extraordinary incentives to lie" but also has the "capacity to manipulate, mislead, and deceive his investigative and prosecutorial handlers." Despite these risks, Gershman explains: "For the prosecutor, the cooperating witness provides the most damaging evidence against a defendant, is capable of lying convincingly, and typically is believed by the jury." Id.

The ABA's Ad Hoc Innocence Committee's report also notes that among the official studies documenting "problems associated with the use of jailhouse informants" are "a grand jury report," "two Canadian public inquiries," "numerous books, articles, and news reports." The two major findings of the Los Angeles County Grand Jury were that the "Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office failed to fulfill the ethics responsibilities required of a public prosecutor by its deliberate and informed declination to take the action necessary to curtail the misuse of jailhouse informant testimony," and the "Los Angeles Sheriff's Department failed to establish adequate procedures to control improper placement of inmates with the foreseeable result that false claims of confessions or admissions would be made." raise serious questions of credibility."[81] More recently, Judge Stephen Trott, a former prosecutor sitting on the Ninth Circuit, explained:

> [E]ach contract for testimony is fraught with real peril that the proffered testimony will not be truthful, but simply factually contrived to "get" a target of sufficient interest to induce concessions from the government. Defendants or suspects with nothing to sell sometimes embark on a methodical journey to manufacture evidence and to create something of value, setting up and betraying friends, relatives, and cellmates alike. Frequently, and because they are aware of the low value of their credibility, criminals will even go so far as to create corroboration for their lies by recruiting others into the plot . . . .[82]

Given the problems with credibility, head prosecutors should ensure that their offices have clear guidelines controlling the use of cooperating witnesses, especially jailhouse snitches. Perhaps the single most important policy would be to require the corroboration of jailhouse informant testimony, so that, as the ABA recommends, "no person should lose liberty or life based solely on the testimony of such a [jailhouse informant] witness."[83] Some states currently require corroboration for accomplice testimony,[84] and the same motivation of a lighter sentence or other benefit that motivates an accomplice to testify against the accused motivates jailhouse snitches.

If a head prosecutor is not willing to require corroboration of jailhouse snitch testimony before using it against the accused, at the very least the head prosecutor should put written guidelines in place for how and when to use jailhouse informants. Psychology experiments consistently demonstrate that "as a general rule people are poor lie detectors."[85] For example, one study showed that college students had only a 52.8 percent accuracy rate in detecting true and false stories, federal polygraph examiners were slightly better at 55.7 percent, robbery investigators had a 55.8 percent accuracy rate, trial judges had a 56.7 percent accuracy rate, psychiatrists were at a 57.6 percent accuracy rate, and U.S. Secret Service agents did the best with a 64 percent accuracy rate in detecting true and false stories.[86] With the general human tendency to be only slightly better than chance in sorting out truth from lies, and even trained law enforcement personnel not doing much better, reasonable measures to determine the reliability of jailhouse informants are needed.

A head prosecutor who wants to establish procedures to counterbalance the human inability to be good lie detectors should use the ABA Ad Hoc Innocence Committee's Report list of factors, developed by a Canadian commission report investigating the wrongful conviction of Guy Paul Morin.[87] Among these factors are recommendations that the informant's statements be corroborated by evidence other than the testimony of other informants, that the statement contain "details or leads to the discovery of evidence known only to the perpetrator," that the prosecutor consider the past record of the informant in giving reliable testimony, whether the informant's report of alleged statements made by the accused was given immediately after the statement was made and given to more than one officer, and the techniques used in obtaining the report of the statement such as "use of non-leading questions, thorough report of words spoken by the accused, thorough investigation of the circumstances which might suggest opportunity or lack of opportunity to fabricate a statement."[88]

In addition, police and prosecutors should videotape or audio record all conversations with the jailhouse informant so that there is the ability, after the fact, to determine if the witness has been coached into inculpating the accused, or if the witness has manipulated the police or prosecutor into disclosing details of the crime known only to the victim, the real perpetrator, and involved law enforcement officials.[89] A prosecutor not involved in the case should review these recordings so that there is an internal check on reliability. If the jailhouse informant is going to be used as a prosecution witness at trial, the recordings should be turned over to the defense as part of Brady disclosure for possible impeachment of the witness.[90]

Finally, if an agreement is reached with a jailhouse snitch, all promises and benefits to the witness should be in writing and subject to full disclosure under Brady.[91] The next section will discuss other policies a head prosecutor should create with regard to Brady disclosure obligations.

3. Create Clear Discovery Rules for the Prosecutor's Office

A head prosecutor can help avoid Brady violations by adopting clearer disclosure rules than those required by the courts or state law. As discussed previously, a prosecutor evaluating evidence for disclosure to the defendant may be conflicted when determining what is exculpatory pursuant to Brady.[92] The standard for disclosure under Brady has focused on the "materiality" of the evidence and requires that the "evidence is material only if there is a reasonable probability that, had the evidence been disclosed to the defense, the results of the proceeding would have been different."[93] In exploring this standard, the Supreme Court has ruled that even when the withheld evidence creates a reasonable possibility of a different outcome if the prosecution had turned over the evidence there is not a Brady violation because the defendant fails to meet the burden of establishing a reasonable probability of a different outcome.[94] One commentator explains "what 'material' means; under what circumstances exculpatory evidence must be disclosed—by whom—and when it must be disclosed; have been the subject of much [89] Professor Bennett Gershman discusses the various ways prosecutors engage in witness coaching, and how cooperating witnesses can deceive and manipulate police and prosecutors. See Gershman, supra note 79, at 829–44, 847–50. Gershman notes however, that even with documentation of the encounters with a cooperating witness there are some psychological components such as "a witness's own 'suggestibility,' 'confabulation,' and 'memory hardening,'" that may escape detection and still lead to false or misleading testimony. Id. at 852.

[90] Contemporaneous records of interactions between the government and the jailhouse are necessary "to ascertain the extent to which prosecutors or police may have improperly influenced witnesses overtly, covertly, or even unwittingly to give false or misleading testimony." Id. at 833.

[91] The Supreme Court has held: "When the 'reliability of a given witness may well be determinative of the guilt or innocence,' nondisclosure of evidence affecting credibility falls within this [Brady] rule." Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150, 155 (1963).

confusion, revision, and debate among courts, lawyers, and academics."[95] Rather than letting prosecutors in an office attempt to assess disclosure under a confusing set of rules, a head prosecutor should provide clearer guidance that ensures complete compliance with Brady.

The surest way to meet and exceed Brady disclosure obligations is to adopt an "open file" discovery policy—essentially making available to the defense all of the information in the prosecutor's possession. Many individual prosecutors have open file discovery policies,[96] though this is generally left to the discretion of individual prosecutors and is not an office-wide policy.[97] This means that without a policy requiring open file discovery in a particular office, whether a defendant receives the benefit "of an open file policy may depend on the particular prosecutor, the relationship between defense counsel and the prosecutor, the identity of the defendant, and the nature of the case."[98] Without guidelines on the exercise of discretion in discovery, there is the potential for some prosecutors to use factors such as the race or social standing of the defendant or the defendant's lawyer in determining who receives open file discovery.

An open file discovery policy not only removes the guessing and doubt on whether prosecutors in the office are following Brady, but a head prosecutor who implements an open file discovery policy will eliminate potential grounds for appeal and second guessing of the judgment of prosecutors.[99] An open file discovery policy also removes the problem of a prosecutor trying to evaluate evidence under the vague and indefinite standards of Brady.

[99] Provided the material in the prosecutor's file is complete and contains information compiled by all of the law enforcement personnel related to the case, there cannot be any Brady material not disclosed if the prosecutor has an open file discovery policy. And, a prosecutor with open file discovery has an obligation to ensure that the materials in the file are complete and accurate. See Robinson v. State, 879 S.W.2d 419, 421–22 (Ark. 994). An open file discovery policy could also provide that if there is anything in the file that the prosecutor believes is privileged or would be embarrassing or intrusive into the privacy rights of a witness, the prosecutor would provide notice to the defense attorney that certain material, such as medical records of a potential witness, are being withheld for privacy reasons. Such a claim by the prosecution would shift the burden to the defense to seek a court order to obtain the evidence. In some instances, a trial judge may engage in an ex ante, in camera review to determine if the evidence in question is Brady material rather than in an appellate post hoc evaluation of withheld evidence on appeal.

If a head prosecutor is reluctant to implement an open file discovery for an office, at the very least the head prosecutor could create a policy that all exculpatory evidence be disclosed to the defendant. As a result of a study of wrongful convictions in Illinois, the Illinois Supreme Court adopted a rule that "the State shall disclose to defense counsel any material or information within its possession or control which tends to negate the guilt of the accused as to the offense charged or which would tend to reduce his punishment thereof."[100] By adopting such a policy, a head prosecutor would remove the confusion over the "materiality" component currently present under Brady, and, like implementing an open file discovery policy, should prevent Brady violations in the prosecutor's office.

In addition to whatever policy a head prosecutor implements concerning disclosure obligations, the policy should require timely disclosure of material when it will be most useful to the defense. This means that disclosure of favorable material should take place prior to plea bargains, as Professor McMunigal has argued.[101] For cases going to trial, disclosure should take place weeks or at least days prior to trial, instead of the first day of trial or during trial, as sometimes occurs.

B. What Defense Attorneys Can Do

Defense attorneys also should do more to combat possible false snitch testimony. For example, two former public defenders have created "The Rat Manual," in which they outline steps to take when dealing with informants, including jailhouse snitches.[102] The manual provides an excellent step-by-step approach to all aspects of dealing with informants and it provides case and statutory support for every subject. The issues covered include early discovery of the informant's identity and background, collecting impeachment information from public records and investigation techniques, investigating the prosecutor's conduct with the informant and other informants, filing pretrial motions to exclude the informant as unreliable, implementing a strategy to impeach the informant on cross-examination, using expert witnesses for impeachment, drafting cautionary jury instructions addressing the issue of credibility for snitch testimony, and post conviction motions.[103]

In a similar vein, some public defender offices have offered training on dealing with informants and have made materials available via the internet. The District of Columbia's Public Defender Service (PDS) has posted materials from a program entitled "The ABCs of Cross-Examining 'Cooperating' Witnesses."[104] The PDS training materials contain internet links to materials that include a sample motion to preclude the creation of snitch testimony, a sample motion to exclude cooperating witness testimony and a request for a reliability hearing, and three sample cross-examinations.[105] The Florida Public Defender Conference presented a program entitled "Snitches, Rats and Songbirds,"[106] and the material for the conference, available over the internet, includes suggestions for introducing the issue of informant credibility during jury voir dire, language for describing the snitch during closing, and a sample cautionary letter to send to clients advising them not to speak to anyone about their cases.[107] The materials demonstrate the variety of approaches defense counsel should employ to prevent the creation of and to combat false jailhouse snitch testimony.

If there is jailhouse snitch testimony, defense lawyers who seek to exclude the informant's testimony will face obstacles. The criminal justice system relies primarily on the availability of cross-examination and jury instructions to address issues of reliability when the government uses informants.[108] Yet, jailhouse snitches trading [108] In addressing the use of compensated informants, the Supreme Court reasoned that the government does not violate a defendant's due process rights stating: "The established safeguards of the Anglo-American legal system leave the veracity of a witness to be tested by cross-examination, and the credibility of his testimony to be determined by a properly instructed testimony for leniency have significant incentives to fabricate testimony because their own fate depends upon them presenting credible and consistent testimony against the accused.[109] Once a jailhouse snitch formulates a story, the prosecutor handling the case will very likely coach the informant to be consistent and convincing.[110] This type of practiced testimony is especially resistant to cross-examination, so defense lawyers must press the issue of jailhouse informant unreliability through the types of investigations, pretrial motions and hearings, and trial strategies, discussed in a growing number of resources, to combat false snitch testimony.

Defense attorneys should also push trial courts to require prosecutors to provide early and complete disclosure of exculpatory evidence concerning the informant. In every case in which the prosecutor designates a jailhouse informant as a witness, the defense attorney should file a discovery motion that specifically asks for the following: a complete criminal history of the informant; a list of all cases in which the informant has testified or offered to testify against another; whether the informant has ever recanted testimony or a statement in the past and a copy of such recantation; the specific statements of the defendant that the informant will testify about and the time, place, and manner in which the statements were allegedly made; all written or oral deals, promises, inducements, or benefits made by the government to the informant or planned to be made by the government, and any other information concerning the informant's credibility.[111] If the trial judge requires this type of jury." Hoffa v. United States, 385 U.S. 293, 311 (1966).

[109] As one commentator explains:

> Paradoxically, the more a witness's fate depends on the success of the prosecution, the more resistant the witness will be to cross-examination. A witness whose future depends on currying the government's favor will formulate a consistent and credible story calculated to procure an agreement with the government and will adhere religiously at trial to her prior statements.

[110] See Gershman, supra note 79, at 834–38.

[111] This recommendation is based on the following specific discovery required by the Oklahoma Court of Criminal Appeals whenever the government uses an informant:

> At least ten days before trial, the state is required to disclose in discovery: (1) the complete criminal history of the informant; (2) any deal, promise, inducement, or benefit that the offering party has made or may make in the future to the informant (emphasis added); (3) the specific statements made by the defendant and the time, place, and manner of their disclosure; (4) all other cases in which the informant testified or offered statements against an individual but was not called, whether the statements were admitted in the case, and whether the informant received any deal, promise, inducement, or benefit in exchange for or subsequent to that testimony or statement; (5) whether at any time the informant recanted that testimony or discovery, and if the prosecutor fully complies with such a discovery order, the requirements of Brady will be met.

More detailed discovery motions, practice aids such as "The Rat Manual," and the public defender training materials provide defense attorneys with steps that they can take to preclude the creation of snitch testimony, possibly exclude such testimony when it exists, and creatively attack the testimony if it is introduced at trial. The overarching message of these strategies is that defense lawyers should be more proactive to attempt to combat the use of false snitch testimony and to obtain compliance with Brady.

C. What Trial and Appellate Judges Can Do

Judges at the trial and appellate levels should also do more to guard against the use of false snitch testimony and Brady violations. The adversary system depends on trial judges monitoring the conduct of prosecutors and defense lawyers in discovery, pretrial, and trial proceedings. In reviewing cases, appellate judges should fashion clearer legal rules to govern the disclosure obligations of prosecutors and the conduct of trials.

A trial judge presented with a motion to exclude jailhouse informant testimony should grant a reliability hearing on the matter and appellate judges should approve of such hearings as within the sound discretion of the trial judge. There are grounds for a trial judge exercising such authority to ascertain the reliability and probative value of jailhouse snitch's testimony in both federal and state courts. The Federal Rules of Evidence provide: "Preliminary questions concerning the qualification of a person to be a witness . . . or the admissibility of evidence shall be determined by the court . . . ."[112] In addition, the Federal Rules of Evidence provide: "Hearings on the admissibility of confessions shall in all cases be conducted out of the hearing of the jury. Hearings on other preliminary matters shall be so conducted [out of the hearing of the jury] when the interests of justice require."[113] Most states, including Ohio, have adopted this same or similar language.[114] These evidentiary rules recognize a trial judge's authority and obligation to conduct an admissibility hearing to determine whether jailhouse snitch testimony of an alleged confession by the accused did occur and is sufficiently reliable to be permitted at trial against the accused. Federal Rule of Evidence 403 also provides that "evidence may be excluded if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice, confusion of the issues, or misleading the jury."[115]

As discussed previously, courts have long recognized the unreliability of informants,[116] and at least one court has stated that the use of informant testimony is "creating the risk of sending innocent persons to prison."[117] In Dodd v. State,[118] the Oklahoma Court of Criminal Appeals warned: "Courts should be exceedingly leery of jailhouse informants, especially if there is a hint that the informant received some sort of benefit for his or her testimony."[119]

Given the historical unreliability of jailhouse informants, some judges have recommended or required reliability hearings when a prosecutor plans to use the testimony of a jailhouse informant against the accused. In a concurrence in Dodd v. State, one of the appellate judges stated that "to ensure the utmost reliability in the admission of jailhouse informant testimony, I would also mandate the reliability hearing."[120] In D'Agostino v. State,[121] the Nevada Supreme Court held that in the penalty phase of a capital case the "supposed admissions" by a defendant "may not be heard by the jury unless the trial judge first determines that the details of the admissions supply a sufficient indicia of reliability or there is some credible evidence other than the admission itself to justify the conclusion that the convict committed the crimes which are the subject of the admission."[122]

As the foregoing discussion indicates, both the rules of evidence and case authority provide support for the trial judge to exercise a gate keeping function before admitting jailhouse informant testimony.[123] When the record of a reliability hearing supports a finding of unreliability, the trial judge should exclude the testimony reasoning that the probative value of the testimony is outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice to the accused and that the testimony may mislead the jury. A trial judge's decision on this preliminary matter should be found to be within the judge's sound discretion, and should not be disturbed on appeal unless the record demonstrates an abuse of discretion.[124]

In addition to requiring reliability hearings before permitting jailhouse informants to testify, trial and appellate judges can do more to require more detailed discovery concerning jailhouse informants and timely disclosure. Two models for more extensive discovery when there are jailhouse informants are found in Oklahoma case law[125] and in an Illinois statute.[126] Trial judges should impose such [122] Id. at 285.

[123] Professor George Harris has argued that the law's treatment of expert witnesses also supports holding reliability hearings when a jailhouse informant is used. See Harris, supra note 109, at 1–5. Harris notes that jailhouse informants are compensated by one party, as are expert witnesses, and this makes them more one-sided and violates the usual prohibition on paid testimony. See id. Harris also contends that like experts, informants may appear to have special knowledge of the crime that can sway the jury. See id. 54–56, 59–61. See also Daubert v. Merrell Dow, 509 U.S. 579 (1993) (requiring courts to hold reliability hearings before admitting expert testimony).

[124] See, e.g., Pina v. State, 38 S.W.3d 730, 736 (Tex. App. 2001) (holding that preliminary questions concerning the admissibility of evidence are within the trial court's discretion).

[125] See supra note 111.

[126] Whenever the prosecution intends to use an informant to testify against the accused in a death penalty cases, Illinois law requires the prosecutor to provide the following to the defense:

> (1) the complete criminal history of the informant;
> (2) any deal, promise, inducement, or benefit that the offering party has made or will make in the future to the informant;
> (3) the statements made by the accused;
> (4) the time and place of the statements, the time and place of their disclosure to law enforcement officials, and the names of all persons who were present when the statements were made;
> (5) whether at any time the informant recanted that testimony or statement and, if so, the time and place of the recantation, the nature of the recantation, and the names of the persons who were present at the recantation;

requirements by instituting standing discovery orders in criminal cases that require more detailed discovery concerning the background of informants and possible impeachment material. If a trial judge is reluctant to impose a standing order for more extensive and timely discovery concerning informants, the trial judge should grant a defense motion for more extensive discovery.[127] By enforcing a standing discovery order or by granting a defense motion for more extensive discovery concerning informants, the trial judge would help to ensure complete and timely disclosure of all Brady material to the defense.

Appellate judges can also take a more practical approach by establishing more workable standards for Brady disclosures. Some courts have held that the prosecutor has an obligation to disclose to the defendant all favorable evidence "without regard to whether the failure to disclose it likely would affect the outcome of the upcoming trial."[128] By separating the duty to disclose all favorable evidence from the issues of materiality and the probability of reversal if the material is withheld, these courts are sending a clearer message to prosecutors that Brady disclosures must be complete. Some courts also caution prosecutors that "[w]here doubt exists as to the usefulness of the evidence to the defendant, the government must received any promise, inducement, or benefit in exchange for or subsequent to that testimony or statement; and,

(7) any other information relevant to the informant's credibility.

§ 725 ILL. COMP. STAT. ANN. 5/115-21(c) (2007). The statute defines an informant as "someone who is purporting to testify about admissions made to him or her by the accused while incarcerated in a penal institution contemporaneously." Id. at 5/115-21(a).

In addition, the prosecutor in a death penalty case must disclose to the defense the following for every witness whose testimony the government plans to introduce:

(1) whether the witness has received or been promised anything,including pay, immunity from prosecution, leniency in prosecution, or personal advantage, in exchange for testimony;

(2) any other case in which the witness testified or offered statements against an individual but was not called, and whether the statements were admitted in the case, and whether the witness received any deal, promise, inducement, or benefit in exchange for that testimony or statement; provided that the existence of such testimony can be ascertained through reasonable inquiry;

(3) whether the witness has ever changed his or her testimony;

(4) the criminal history of the witness; and,

(5) any other evidence relevant to the credibility of the witness.

resolve all such doubts in favor of full disclosure."[129] As the District of Columbia Court of Appeals recently held:

> In arguable cases, the prosecutor should provide the potentially exculpatory information to the defense or, at the very least, make it available to the trial court for in camera inspection. Further, when the issue appears to be a close one, the trial court should insist upon reviewing such material, and should direct disclosure to the defense . . . ."[130]

When a defendant demonstrates on appeal that a prosecutor did not turn over Brady material, state appellate courts should also consider shifting the burden to the prosecution to show lack of prejudice to the defendant. This approach was recently adopted by the Minnesota Supreme Court for prosecutorial trial misconduct,[131] and at least two other states require the government to demonstrate that prosecutorial trial misconduct has not affected a defendant's rights.[132] Although these cases apply to trial misconduct, the reasoning is equally applicable to pretrial disclosure obligations calculated to provide the defendant access to favorable evidence for use at trial. As the Minnesota Supreme Court reasoned, "placing the burden on the prosecution to show lack of prejudice will allow for more effective regulation of impermissible practices" and courts "retain the authority in the appropriate case to reverse under our supervisory powers, without regard to whether the defendant was prejudiced."[133] By shifting the burden to the prosecution to prove lack of prejudice when the prosecution does not turn over favorable evidence to the defendant, state appellate courts would encourage greater disclosure and better safeguard the due process rights of the accused.

CONCLUSION

Reducing the incidence of false snitch testimony and Brady violations is a shared responsibility of prosecutors, defense counsel, and the judiciary. Rather than hoping and waiting for systemic change to occur from above in the form of legislation or the possible development of better case law by the United States Supreme Court to

Jailhouse Witness Bill Summary

1) Tracking use and benefits provided to jailhouse witness. The bill requires each circuit attorney's office to maintain a central record that tracks each case in which a jailhouse witness is endorsed by the state to testify against a suspect of defendant's interest. Each circuit attorney's office shall send the information to the Missouri Department of Public Safety, which shall maintain a statewide record of the information.

2) Discovery. A circuit attorney shall disclose all jailhouse witnesses who have been endorsed by the state and specified information pursuant to Rule 25 of the Missouri Criminal Procedures.

3) Pre-Trial Reliability Hearing. In all felony cases in which the state intends to introduce the testimony of a jailhouse witness, and upon motion of the defendant, the court shall conduct a pre-trial hearing to determine whether the testimony of the jailhouse witness is reliable, and unless the circuit attorney shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the jailhouse witness is reliable, the court shall not allow the testimony to be heard at trial.

4) Jury Instruction. If the testimony of the jailhouse witness is admitted into evidence at trial, the court shall instruct the jurors to consider specific facts when assessing the testimony of the jailhouse witness.

5) Victim Notification. If a jailhouse witness receives leniency related to a pending charge, conviction, or sentence for a crime against a victim, in connection with offering or providing testimony against a suspect or defendant, the prosecutor shall notify the victim.

_____ BILL NO. _____
_____ GENERAL ASSEMBLY

INTRODUCED BY _____

AN ACT

To repeal section 491.050 and 491.060, RSMo., and to enact in lieu thereof six new sections relating to jailhouse witnesses.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI, AS FOLLOWS:

Section A. Section 491.050 and 491.060 RSMo., are repealed and six new sections are enacted in lieu thereof, to be known as section 491.050 and 491.606, to read as follows:

491.050. Definitions. As used in sections 491.060, unless the context otherwise requires:

1. "Benefit" means any plea bargain, bail consideration, reduction or modification of sentence, or any other leniency, immunity, financial payment, reward, or amelioration of current or future conditions of incarceration that has been requested, or that has been or may, in the future, be offered or provided in connection with, or in exchange for, the testimony of a jailhouse witness who was endorsed by the state.

2. "Jailhouse Witness" means a witness who offers or provides testimony concerning statements made to such a person by another person with whom he or she was incarcerated, or an incarcerated person who offers or provides testimony concerning statements made to such a person by another person who is suspected of or charged with committing a criminal offense.

3. Jailhouse witness does not mean a co-defendant or victim in the case.

Section 491.060. A. Tracking Use of and Benefits Provided to Jailhouse Witnesses.

1. Each circuit attorney's office shall maintain a central record that is searchable and tracks:

(a) Each case in which a jailhouse witness has been endorsed by the state to testify against a defendant's interest.

(b) The substance of the testimony; and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(c) Any benefit that has been requested by, or has been offered to, the jailhouse witness, and any benefit that may be provided in the future in connection with such testimony.

2. Each circuit attorney's office shall send the information described in subsection 1, of this section to the Division of Criminal Justice in the Department of Public Safety on a monthly basis to be maintained in a centralized statewide record that is available to circuit attorney's throughout the state.

3. The information described in this section is only accessible by the circuit attorney's and is not subject to the provisions of section 610 RSMo.

B. Discovery.

1. If a circuit attorney endorses a person to testify as a jailhouse witness, the following material and information shall be disclosed within the time frame in Rule 25 of the Missouri Rules of Criminal Procedure.

(a) The complete criminal history of the jailhouse witness, including any charges that are Pending or were reduced or dismissed as part of a plea bargain.

(b) The jailhouse witness cooperation agreement and any deal, promise, inducement, or benefit that has been requested, or that has been or may, in the future, be offered or provided to the jailhouse witness in connection with testimony against the defendant's interest.

(c) The substance, time, and place of any statement allegedly given by the defendant to the jailhouse witness and the substance, time, and place of any statement given by the jailhouse witness to law enforcement implicating the defendant in the crime charged.

(d) Whether at any time, the jailhouse witness recanted that testimony or statement, and, if so, the time and place of the recantation, the nature of the recantation, and the names of the persons who were present at the recantation.

(e) Information concerning other criminal cases in any county in which the jailhouse witness was endorsed by the state to testify against a defendant with whom the jailhouse witness was imprisoned or confined, including:

(i) The case name and number.

(ii) The substance of the testimony.

(iii) Any cooperation agreement, deal, promise, inducement, or benefit that was Requested, offered, or provided to the jailhouse witness in connection with their testimony; and

(iv) Any other information that is requested to be disclosed pursuant to the United States and Missouri Constitutions and the Missouri Rules of Criminal Procedures.

C. Pre-Trial Reliability Hearings.

1. In any criminal prosecution in which the circuit attorney's office intends to introduce the testimony of a jailhouse witness, upon the motion of the defendant, the court shall conduct a pre-trial hearing to determine whether the jailhouse witness testimony is reliable and therefore admissible based upon the material and information disclosed pursuant to section B, as well as the following factors:

(a) The extent to which the jailhouse witness testimony is confirmed by other evidence.

(b) The specificity of the testimony.

(c) The extent to which the testimony contains details known only by the perpetrator.

(d) The extent to which the details of the testimony could be obtained from a source Other than the defendant; and

(e) The circumstances under which the jailhouse witness initially provided the information to the police or the prosecutor, including whether the jailhouse witness was responding to leading questions.

2. The circuit attorney must show by a preponderance of the evidence that the jailhouse witness' testimony is reliable in order for the court to allow the testimony to be heard at trial based on the factors in subsection B of this section.

D. Jury Instruction. If a jailhouse witness' testimony is admitted into evidence, the court may instruct jurors to consider the material and information disclosed pursuant to Subsection B, and the factors enumerated in that section when assessing the jailhouse witness' testimony.

E. Victim Notification. If a jailhouse witness receives a benefit related to a pending charge, a conviction, or a sentence for a crime committed by the jailhouse witness that involved a victim, the prosecutor shall notify the victim in accordance with provisions under section 595 RSMo.

COMMISSION RECOMMENDATIONS

The Timothy Cole Exoneration Review Commission recommends that the Legislature consider the following proposals:

ELECTRONIC RECORDING OF INTERROGATIONS

I. Require either audio or audiovisual electronic recording of interrogations by law enforcement agencies when investigating all felony cases.
II. Require recording to begin when the suspect enters the interrogation room.
III. Enforce compliance with new recording requirements by permitting the admission of an unrecorded statement only if the judge finds good cause for the failure to electronically record the statement, and establishing a presumption that an unrecorded statement is inadmissible as evidence if the judge finds that no good cause exception applies.

FALSE ACCUSATION/INFORMANT REGULATION

I. Require prosecutor offices to have written policies on tracking and disclosure of impeaching information on jailhouse informants.
II. Permit the admissibility of jailhouse informants' complete criminal history, including criminal charges that were dismissed or reduced as part of a plea bargain.
III. Require prosecutor offices to establish an internal system to track the use of jailhouse informants including, but not limited to, cases in which the jailhouse informant offered testimony and the benefits provided in those cases.

FAULTY EYEWITNESS IDENTIFICATION

I. Require training for law enforcement officers on eyewitness identification procedures.
II. Require making juries aware of prior identifications of the suspect by the witness when an in-court identification is made.
III. Require law enforcement agencies to adopt the Bill Blackwood Law Enforcement Management Institute of Texas Model Policy.

FORENSIC SCIENCE PRACTICES

I. Encourage the Texas Forensic Science Commission to investigate and consider promulgating policies regarding the use of drug field tests used by law enforcement agencies.
II. Encourage the Texas Forensic Science Commission to investigate and consider promulgating policies regarding the process of crime scene investigations.
III. Recommend that crime labs in all cases moving forward complete testing of substances in all drug cases regardless of the results of a drug field test, and that crime labs go back through previous cases in which the collected substance was not confirmed by lab testing.

LETTER FROM PRESIDING OFFICER

The Timothy Cole Exoneration Review Commission was created by the 84th Texas Legislature to review and consider various matters related to wrongful convictions within the Texas criminal justice system. The Legislation was authored by Representative Ruth Jones McClendon and sponsored by Senator Rodney Ellis, who were instrumental in its passage. Commission members and advisory members understand and appreciate the importance of this issue, and have tried to address the issue with the diligence it deserves. We have attempted to fulfill the responsibilities assigned to us by the Legislature. Pursuant to House Bill 48, we have compiled and now issue this report of our findings and recommendations.

Commission members and advisory members come from broad and diverse backgrounds. The expertise of each was instrumental in developing the findings and recommendations included in this report. Each member dedicated significant time and effort to complete the Commission's important assignment of identifying measures to prevent the causes and occurrence of wrongful convictions.

H.B. 48 requires concurrence of seven of the eleven members to issue a report. The Commission realized from the start that not every member would agree to every proposed finding or recommendation. In fact, few of the findings or recommendations included in this report are supported by all Commission members. However, because of the Commission's determination to submit a report in accordance with H.B. 48, Commission members wish to make clear that, by concurring in the whole of this report, they are not necessarily endorsing any specific finding or recommendation herein. Members have been provided the opportunity to include an explanatory, concurring, or dissenting statement regarding their individual positions on matters within the report.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Commission acknowledges the work of Representative Ruth Jones McClendon and Senator Rodney Ellis in securing passage of H.B. 48 in the 84th Legislature.

Commission members express their appreciation to the staff members who made this endeavor possible – David Slayton, Wesley Shackelford, Alejandra I. Pena, and Terri Peirce. The Commission also acknowledges the important contributions from its advisory members. The Commission expresses gratitude to those men and women previously exonerated, who assisted the Commission by sharing their stories, together with their valuable insights into these critical issues. Finally, the Commission has valued the support and encouragement from the family of Timothy Cole.

TIMOTHY COLE EXONERATION REVIEW COMMISSION

The Timothy Cole Exoneration Review Commission (Commission) was created in 2015 by the 84th Legislature with the passage of House Bill 48. The Commission was created under, but independent from, the Texas Judicial Council and is administratively attached to the Office of Court Administration.

The Commission's charge is to (1) review cases in the State of Texas in which an innocent defendant was convicted of a crime and then, on or after January 1, 2010, was exonerated; (2) to consider potential implementation plans, costs, cost savings, and the impact on the criminal justice system for each potential solution identified through the work of the commission; and (3) to review and update the research, report, and recommendations of the Timothy Cole Advisory Panel (TCAP) on Wrongful Convictions established by the 81st Legislature in 2009.

The Commission's first public meeting was held on October 27, 2015. The Commission held six meetings, all with a quorum of members participating either in person or via teleconference.

TIMOTHY COLE

The Commission is named after Timothy Cole, the first Texan to be posthumously exonerated of a crime through DNA testing.

Timothy Cole was a U.S. Army veteran and student at Texas Tech University. At the age of 26, he was accused of a rape.

On March 24, 1985, a Texas Tech female student was abducted and raped by a perpetrator believed to have been the "Tech Rapist," an unknown serial rapist at that time. The victim reported the crime to the police and provided details about her perpetrator's appearance, which included the fact that he had smoked cigarettes throughout the attack.

Approximately two weeks later, Mr. Cole went to pick up a friend who worked at a pizza restaurant near the location of the victim's abduction. As he was leaving, Mr. Cole interacted with a female undercover officer and offered her a ride. The woman declined the ride and informed her superiors that Mr. Cole resembled the description the victim had provided.

The next day officers arrived at Mr. Cole's apartment and took a picture of him. His picture was provided in a photo lineup along with five others to the victim of the rape. Mr. Cole's photograph was the only Polaroid picture, the rest were mugshots; additionally, Mr. Cole was the only individual facing the camera while the others were facing the side. The victim identified Mr. Cole as her attacker.

Mr. Cole was arrested and tried by a jury in Lubbock. His defense team presented evidence of his severe asthma and the fact that he did not smoke. They also presented alibi evidence for the night of the crime tending to prove that Mr. Cole had been at home studying where his brother had been socializing with some friends. Similar criminal assaults continued to take place after Mr.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Cole's arrest. His attorneys attempted to present this evidence but were denied by the judge. Mr. Cole was ultimately convicted of the crime on September 17, 1986, and sentenced by the jury to 25 years in prison.

While in prison, Mr. Cole was offered parole if he would admit guilt, but he refused to confess to a crime he did not commit. In 1995, Texas prisoner Jerry Wayne Johnson had begun writing letters confessing to the crime for which Mr. Cole had been convicted. At the time, Mr. Johnson was serving life in prison for two other 1985 sexual assault charges. Mr. Cole passed away in 1999 of asthma complications while serving his sentence. In 2007, Mr. Johnson confessed again to the sexual assault. DNA testing of biological evidence collected from the crime scene implicated that Mr. Johnson was the actual perpetrator, and that Mr. Cole was, in fact, innocent.

On April 7, 2009, nearly 10 years after his death, Timothy Cole became the first posthumous DNA exoneration in Texas history. On March 1, 2010, Mr. Cole was pardoned by Texas Governor Rick Perry.

RESEARCH OVERVIEW

For purposes of this report, the Commission defines exoneration as a situation in which a defendant who was convicted of a crime was later relieved of all legal consequences of that conviction through a decision by a prosecutor, a governor, or a court, after new evidence of his or her innocence was discovered.[1] The Commission gathered data and information on Texas exonerations from January 1, 2010, to December 1, 2016, in order to determine the areas within the criminal justice process that were in most need of further research and reform proposals. Through this analysis, the Commission found that Texas has had 204 exonerations during this timeframe. Of the exonerations reviewed, 148 were for drug-related offenses. Fifty-six were for non-drug related offenses. The non-drug related exoneration offenses are detailed by offense in Figure 1.

Following an initial review of exonerations since 2010, the Commission prioritized the review of non-drug related cases given the nature of the crimes and time served for these offenses, followed by drug-related cases which accounted for the majority of the exoneration as shown in Figure 2. The Commission identified the following five research topic areas: (1) electronic recording of interrogations, (2) false accusations, (3) jailhouse informant regulations, (4) faulty eyewitness identification, and (5) forensic practices. The Commission makes recommendations related to each area based on research performed and provided to the Commission. Recommendations that may result in additional costs are noted so that the 85th Legislature may take such costs into consideration.

TIMOTHY COLE ADVISORY PANEL ON WRONGFUL CONVICTIONS (2010)

Pursuant to H.B. 48, the Commission reviewed and updated the research, report, and recommendations of the Timothy Cole Advisory Panel (TCAP) on Wrongful Convictions established by the 81st Legislature in 2009. Table 1 presents the recommendations from the 2010 TCAP report with their implementation status.

TABLE 1: Timothy Cole Advisory Panel Recommendations and Implementation Status Eyewitness Identification Procedures
1. Require the Bill Blackwood Law Enforcement Management Institute of Texas (LEMIT) to work with scientific experts in eyewitness memory research and law enforcement agencies to develop, adopt, disseminate to all law enforcement agencies, and annually review a model policy and training materials regarding the administration of photo and live lineups. The model policy should comport with science in the areas of cautionary instructions, filler selection, double-blind administration, documentation of identification procedures, and other procedures or best practices.	Implemented during the 82nd legislative session via HB 215. The LEMIT model policy was released in December 2011.
2. Require all law enforcement agencies to adopt eyewitness identification procedures that comply with the model policy promulgated by LEMIT.	Implemented during the 82nd legislative session via HB 215. Law enforcement agencies were required to either adopt the LEMIT model policy or one of their own that conformed to certain specified requirements of the bill no later than September 1, 2012.
3. Integrate training on eyewitness procedures into the required curricula of the LEMIT model policy and the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Standards and Education.	Implemented via training curricula changes.
4. Permit evidence of compliance or noncompliance with the LEMIT model policy to be admissible in court.	Implemented during the 82nd legislative session via HB 215.
5. Allow law enforcement agencies discretion on the adoption of sequential procedures.	Implemented during the 82nd legislative session via HB 215. Sequential presentation is recommended in the model policy, but was not required in the statute.
Recording Custodial Interrogations
6. Adopt a mandatory electronic recording policy, from delivery of Miranda warnings to the end of interrogations, for custodial interrogations in certain felony crimes. The policy should include a list of exceptions to recording and the judicial	Not implemented.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

discretion to issue a jury instruction in the case of an unexcused failure to record.
Discovery Procedures
7. Adopt a discovery policy that is mandatory, automatic, and reciprocal, and requires either electronic access to or photocopies of materials subject to discovery.	Partially implemented during the 83rd Legislative session via SB 1611, the Michael Morton Act. The Act requires prosecutors to produce for and permit photocopying by the defense of witness statements, offense reports, and other relevant evidence. Reciprocal discovery, however, was not included in the Act.
Post-Conviction Proceedings
8. Amend the Chapter 64 motion for post-conviction DNA testing to allow testing of any previously untested biological evidence, regardless of the reason the evidence was not previously tested, or evidence previously using older, less accurate methods.	Implemented during the 82nd Legislative session via SB 122 to modify the requirements for granting motions for post-conviction DNA testing by removing certain conditions regarding the reasons why biological evidence was not tested previously, so that testing of any previously untested biological evidence may be granted.
9. Amend the Chapter 11 writs of habeas corpus to include a writ based on changing scientific evidence.	Implemented during the 83rd Legislative session via SB 344 to permit a convicted individual to file an application for a writ of habeas corpus to challenge a conviction based on scientific evidence that is now outdated or discredited by advances since the trial.
Innocence Commission
10. Formalize the current work of the Innocence Projects that receive state funding to provide further detail in the project's annual reports and distribute those reports to the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House, and Chairs of the Senate Jurisprudence, House Corrections, House Criminal Jurisprudence, and Senate Criminal Justice Committees. Report input should be solicited from other innocence projects, interested bar associations, judicial entities, law enforcement agencies, prosecutor associations, and advocacy organizations.	Implemented during the 82nd Legislative session via HB 1754 dealing with requiring exoneration reports.
11. Provide a full-time equivalent staff position for the Task Force using the current appropriation or other grant funding to administer these responsibilities; contracts between the innocence projects and the Task Force on Indigent Defense should be amended to reflect the new administrator and additional responsibilities.	Implemented in 2011 via the Texas Office of Court Administration/Texas Indigent Defense Commission budget rider.

ELECTRONIC RECORDING OF INTERROGATIONS

The sole recommendation of the 2010 Timothy Cole Advisory Panel (TCAP) that was not implemented was the adoption of a statewide policy to record interrogations. The Commission continued the analysis of contributing factors to wrongful convictions in cases where individuals have been exonerated since January 1, 2010. The Commission found that false confessions continue to contribute to wrongful convictions. In cases where false confessions have resulted in wrongful convictions, electronic recording of the interrogation process can assist all interested parties in determining whether or not the interrogation was carried out in an appropriate manner and if it resulted in an accurate statement.

Currently the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure allows written statements of an accused as a result of a custodial interrogation to be admitted as evidence, provided the written statement contains the statutory warnings listed in Article 38.22. The statute also requires that oral and sign language statements be recorded in certain situations. However, audio and/or video recording under the existing statute is only required for a "statement" - not a custodial interrogation. No recording is required of interrogations where the suspect gives a written statement and Article 38.22, Section 3(c), dispenses with the recording requirement altogether if the oral or sign language "statement" contains assertions of facts or circumstances that are found to be true and which conduce to establish the guilt of the accused.

Research Highlights

Twenty-one states, plus the District of Columbia, have either a statute or rule requiring electronic recording of interrogations. Of the states with electronic recording requirements, 14 require recording for felony-related offenses. Figure 3 shows electronic recording requirements in each state.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Information on recording practices in Texas was collected through surveys of law enforcement agencies to collect law enforcement opinions and practices, criminal court judges, prosecutors, and defense attorneys to collect information on opinions and experience with cases in which an electronic recording of an interrogation was introduced as evidence. Appendix 1 provides the surveys and responses.

The majority of survey respondents in all categories responded that electronic recording of interrogations reduces the risk of false confessions. The majority also responded that electronic recordings will lead to better practices by law enforcement departments and provide training opportunities. Figure 4 shows the percentages and actual number ("n" value) of judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys, and law enforcement departments who do not currently record interrogations but responded that electronic recording is beneficial. Additionally, 92 percent of responding law enforcement departments who record reported that they already record interrogations for felony-related offenses.

TCERC Electronic Recording Judicial and Law Enforcement Surveys

The majority of judges, prosecutors, and defense attorneys responded that electronic recording of interrogations allows the defense to provide better client representation, allows the prosecution to build stronger cases, and allows judges and juries to have a better understanding of statements that were made by the individual during the interrogation. Additionally, these respondents agreed that electronic recording can assist in determining if an individual's statement was made freely and voluntarily.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

As shown in Figure 5, sixty-eight percent (n=580) of the 850 law enforcement agencies responding to the survey reported that they electronically record interrogations in some capacity. Of the respondents who indicated that they record, 267 (46%) were from departments with 10 or fewer sworn officers, and 313 (54%) were from departments with 11 or more sworn officers. These survey findings indicate that recording practices are already implemented by many departments of varying sizes in the state.

TCERC Electronic Recording Law Enforcement Survey

The survey responses show that the cost for recording equipment was relatively inexpensive depending on the type of equipment used by the department. The median cost reported by the departments was $5,000, and 79 percent of respondents reported that they were purchased using their department's general funds.

The majority of all respondents, including the departments who do not currently record, agreed that electronically recording custodial interrogations will increase the public's trust in the justice system. Recording interrogations allows for more transparent communication between law enforcement and the public. Furthermore, 64 percent of all respondents indicated they believe that electronically recording interrogations reduces the risk of false confessions and, ultimately, the number of convictions of innocent individuals.

Recommendations

The Commission recommends that the Legislature consider the following proposals regarding electronic recording of interrogations:

I. Require either audio or audiovisual electronic recording of interrogations by law enforcement agencies when investigating all felony cases.
II. Require recording to begin when the suspect enters the interrogation room.
III. Enforce compliance with new recording requirements by permitting the admission of an unrecorded statement only if the judge finds good cause for the failure to electronically record the statement, and establishing a presumption that an unrecorded statement is inadmissible as evidence if the judge finds that no good cause exception applies.

FALSE ACCUSATIONS AND JAILHOUSE INFORMANT REGULATION

In its 2010 report, The Timothy Cole Advisory Panel (TCAP) did not make recommendations on the topic of false accusations; however, it did include specific recommendations for future research pertaining to jailhouse informant testimony. The TCAP emphasized the lack of safeguards for defendants when a jailhouse informant testifies against them. The TCAP also identified a need for more specific guidelines and policies.

Texas became one of the first states to regulate jailhouse informant testimony with the passage of Senate Bill 1681, in 2009, which amended Chapter 38 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure. The law prohibits convicting a defendant based on testimony of an individual incarcerated in the same correctional facility with the defendant unless the testimony is corroborated by other evidence connecting the defendant to the offense. In the seven years that SB 1681 has been in effect, there have not been any reported cases of wrongful convictions based on false jailhouse informant testimony.

Research Highlights

The Commission found that 11 states, including Texas, have reforms in place regulating informant procedures. Figure 6 shows informant regulation reforms by state.

Innocence Project: Informant regulation recommendations & National Landscape and Relevant State Statutes and Rules

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Several states have taken action on pretrial discovery practices related to informants. In addition to the corroboration of an informant's testimony, the State Bar of Texas recently published "Texas Criminal Jury Charges," which is a resource that contains a form jury instruction on the corroboration requirement mandated by Article 38.075. The form jury instruction can be found under Appendix 2. This form instruction tracks the statute by informing the jury that a defendant cannot be convicted solely on the testimony of an in-custody informant. To support a conviction, the jury is instructed that the in-custody informant's testimony must be corroborated with evidence that tends to connect the defendant with commission of the crime. While this instruction calls the jury's attention to the informant's testimony, it does not provide any specific information regarding the circumstances surrounding the informant's situation.

Illinois imposes a special disclosure procedure related to informants that includes: the complete criminal history of the informant; any promise, deal or benefit that has been offered and has been made or will be made in the future; other cases in which the informant has testified and the incentives he/she received in exchange for that testimony (if any); and any other information relevant to the informant's credibility. Oklahoma and Nebraska have enacted similar statutes.

Of the Texas exoneration cases reviewed by the Commission, 33 percent of the 51 non-drug related exonerations had false accusation as a contributing factor to the wrongful conviction of the individual. The majority of these exonerations were child sex abuse and murder cases. Two of the exoneration cases involved jailhouse informant testimony.

Dr. Alexandra Natapoff, Associate Dean for Research at Loyola Law School in Los Angeles, informed the Commission that it is her belief that jailhouse informants are incentivized witnesses, which she believes makes them potentially highly unreliable. To ensure that the judge, jury, and defense have an accurate representation of the jailhouse informant's situation and to properly weigh the credibility of their testimony, Dr. Natapoff stated that it is important for all relevant information pertaining to the informant be shared with the judge, jury, and defense.

Given the nature of jailhouse informants, the Commission finds it important that information about the informant be shared with the judge, jury, and defense, including his or her criminal history as well as criminal charges that were dismissed or reduced as part of a plea bargain. Currently, jurors are not required to be informed about the informant's previous charges that may have been dismissed or modified as part of a plea bargain in unrelated cases. Permitting the admissibility of the informant's complete history would not result in an expense to either party and would likely increase transparency.

Jailhouse Informant Tracking Procedures

According to Dr. Natapoff, the majority of jurisdictions do not have a process to track the number of informants used or the benefits that are offered in exchange for testimony.[2] She stated that this information is important to the proper evaluation of the validity of the testimony being provided. A clear picture of an informant's testimony history would provide information to all parties in the case.

Two district attorney offices with written policies and procedures related to the tracking of jailhouse informant information have been identified: Los Angeles County District Attorney and Tarrant County Criminal District Attorney. The Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office has a legal policies manual that includes a chapter on jailhouse informant procedures, which explains the official process to request to use a jailhouse informant through a written application. See Appendix 3 for the manual's chapter on jailhouse informant information tracking.

The Tarrant County Criminal District Attorney's (TCCDA) Office implemented a jailhouse informant procedure effective June 10, 2016. Tarrant County established a central index of jailhouse informants, which is regularly maintained and stored in an existing case management system. TCCDA's procedure outlines a list of items that the Assistant District Attorney (ADA) should consider as part of the determination of whether or not to use the informant. Disclosure requirements, such as requiring the prosecutor to make a written disclosure to the defense attorney if a jailhouse informant is to be used, are included. Specific disclosures the ADA is mandated to make to the defense include the informant's criminal history and proposed offers and benefits sought by the informant. If the jailhouse informant testifies, this information is to be sent to the ADA responsible for the maintenance of the Jailhouse Informant index and database. See Appendix 4 for the complete TCCDA Jailhouse Informant Procedure.

While Tarrant County uses an existing case management system, an alternative could be the use of a spreadsheet as a tracking system. Depending on the resources available, the procedures and information tracking system used can vary to meet the needs of each prosecutor's office. Additional staff time would be required for the implementation and maintenance of a jailhouse informant database tracking system; however, no extensive cost has been identified to implement this procedure. The goal of implementing a jailhouse informant tracking system would be to provide transparency.

Recommendations

The Commission recommends that the Legislature consider the following proposals regarding false accusations and jailhouse informant regulation:

I. Require prosecutor offices to have written policies on tracking and disclosure of impeaching information on jailhouse informants.
    - This requirement would clarify the types of information that must be disclosed under the Michael Morton Act including: benefits provided in exchange for jailhouse testimony, complete criminal history, other cases in which the jailhouse informant testified, the benefits provided in those cases, and other evidence related to credibility.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

II. Permit the admissibility of jailhouse informants' complete criminal history, including criminal charges that were dismissed or reduced as part of a plea bargain.
    - Currently, only final felony convictions or crimes of moral turpitude are admissible to impeach a jailhouse informant, and jurors do not hear about previous charges that may have been dismissed or modified in as part of a plea bargain.

III. Require prosecutor offices to establish an internal system to track the use of jailhouse informants including, but not limited to, cases in which the jailhouse informant offered testimony and the benefits provided in those cases.

FAULTY EYEWITNESS IDENTIFICATION

The 2010 Timothy Cole Advisory Panel (TCAP) produced five recommendations directly related to eyewitness identification procedures. All five recommendations have since been adopted and implemented to some extent. (Please refer to the TCAP Review section of this report for more detail.) House Bill 215, 82nd Legislature, implemented four of the five recommendations by adding Article 38.20 to the Code of Criminal Procedure. Article 38.20 requires Texas law enforcement agencies to adopt written eyewitness identification policies based on best practices. A law enforcement agency may adopt the model policy developed by the Bill Blackwood Law Enforcement Management Institute of Texas (LEMIT) which was released in December 2011. An overview of the LEMIT model policy can be found in Appendix 5. Although the TCAP made progress in studying faulty eyewitness identification procedure reforms, the Commission believes that additional reforms are necessary.

Research Highlights

The Commission found that 19 states, including Texas, regulate eyewitness identification procedures in some capacity. Figure 7 shows which states currently provide regulation of eyewitness identification procedures.

Innocence Project: States that Achieved Eyewitness Identification Reform, and Relevant State Statutes and Rules

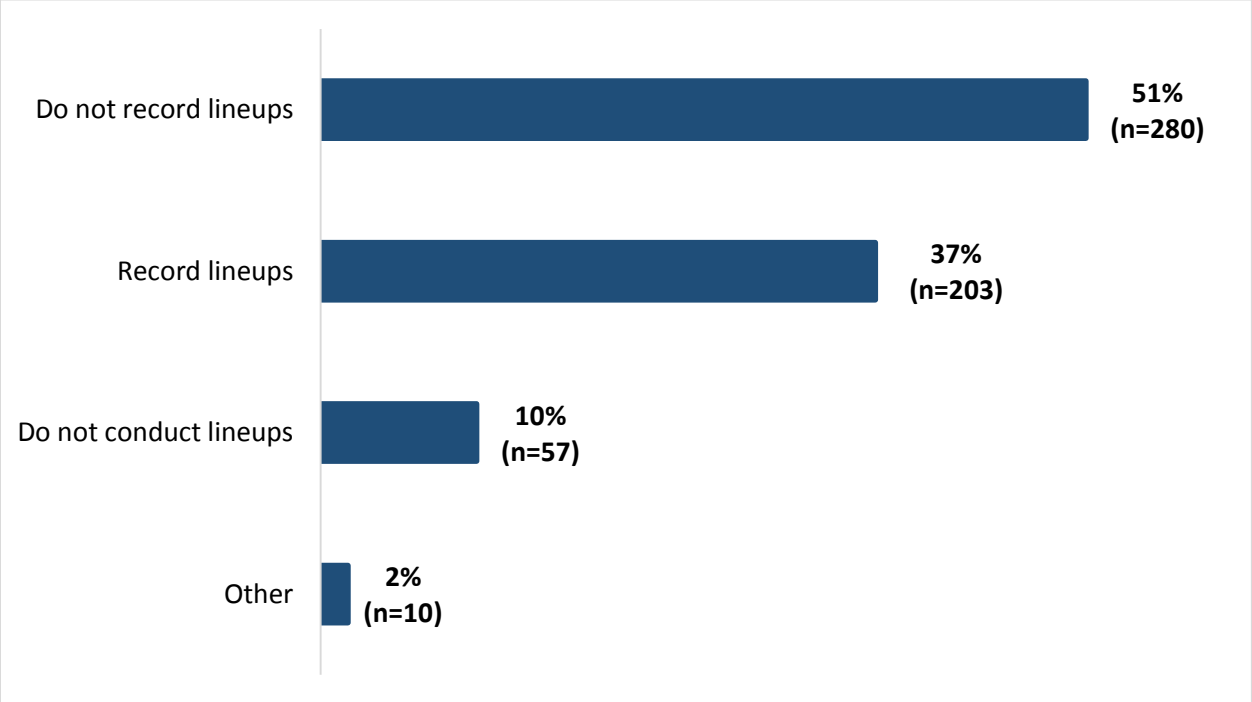
AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Commission's review of Texas exoneration cases found that 39 percent of the 56 non-drug related cases had faulty eyewitness identification as a contributing factor, making it the leading contributing factor for wrongful convictions since January 1, 2010. Robbery and sexual assault are the top two offense types in the exoneration cases for which faulty eyewitness identification is a contributing factor.

Texas law enforcement agencies are required by statute to adopt either the LEMIT model policy or their own policy. The LEMIT model policy recommends that the identification procedure be documented in full. Video documentation is preferred; however, an audio recording is an alternative option. The LEMIT model policy has the benefit of being reviewed and potentially updated annually, which ensures that the policy and related training materials incorporate current best practices and research findings. The Commission does not anticipate that the LEMIT model policy would generate additional expenses to law enforcement and should contribute to the criminal justice system's continuing efforts to provide relevant continuing education and enhanced best practices in the area of eyewitness identification.

The Commission polled Texas law enforcement agencies on their current recording practices of lineups for eyewitness identifications. Of the 550 respondents who record, 37 percent record the lineup identification process. Figure 8 shows the survey responses on law enforcement practices for eyewitness identification lineups.

Figure 8 Law enforcement current recording practices for eyewitness identification lineups



TCERC Electronic Recording Law Enforcement Survey

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The TCAP recommended that training on eyewitness procedures be integrated into the curricula of the LEMIT and the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement (TCOLE). After Texas' law was enacted in 2011, the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) completed a comprehensive review of eyewitness identification research and produced a list of recommendations on how courts and law enforcement can increase the accuracy and utility of eyewitness identifications. The first recommendation of the NAS report is to train all law enforcement officers in eyewitness identification. The recommendation suggests that all law enforcement agencies provide their officers with training that covers the variables that affect vision and memory, practices for minimizing contamination, and effective eyewitness identification protocols.

Given recent findings and the research that helped produce the NAS's report recommendations, the Commission strongly agrees that training for officers on eyewitness identification procedures should be required. Per Texas Occupations Code §1701.351, peace officers are required to complete at least 40 hours of continuing education every 24-month unit of a training cycle. Up to eight hours of continuing education under this section covers recent changes to laws of this state and the United States related to peace officers. Because of the existing training requirement for peace officers, the Commission does not anticipate a substantial cost to implement training for officers on eyewitness identification procedures. Educating officers will not only better prepare them to serve their community, but also positively impact the criminal justice system by continuously improving law enforcement practices.

The NAS report states that the level of confidence at the time the witness makes a selection may be more accurate than at the time the witness makes an identification at trial. The report also indicates that confidence levels articulated after an initial identification is made are subject to bias. Dr. Sandra Guerra Thompson, Alumnae College Professor of Law and Criminal Justice Institute Director at the University of Houston Law Center, informed the Commission of the importance of accurate and precise documentation of the identification of a suspect by the witness at the time the identification happens. This is referred to as the witness' confidence level. Dr. Thompson spoke about how an identification expressed at trial could appear to have been made at a stronger confidence level, because the witness had previously identified the suspect; however, this does not mean that the initial identification was made at a strong confidence level. Therefore, the judge and jury must be informed about the level at which the first identification was articulated.

Documenting a witness's initial confidence level and contemporaneous statements made at the time of the initial identification are already a part of the LEMIT model policy. The LEMIT model policy instructs the officer conducting the photograph or live lineup that if the witness responds that an individual is the person they saw, then the officer should immediately ask the witness to explain in their own words how certain they are.

The Commission agrees it is important to provide jurors with the details of prior identifications made of the suspect by the witness when an in-court identification is made. Jurors should be aware of the manner the procedure was conducted, as well as the witness' confidence level. Documenting this additional information and providing it at trial is not expected to result in extensive additional costs. The disclosure of this information will not only allow for better judgment on the jurors' part, but provide law enforcement officials and our courts with more accurate information regarding eyewitness identification.

Recommendations

The Commission recommends that the Legislature consider the following proposals regarding faulty eyewitness identification:

I. Require training for law enforcement officers on eyewitness identification procedures.
II. Require making juries aware of prior identifications of the suspect by the witness when an in-court identification is made. This includes:
    a. The manner in which the procedure was conducted; and
    b. The witness' confidence level.
III. Require law enforcement agencies to adopt the Bill Blackwood Law Enforcement Management Institute of Texas Model Policy.

FORENSIC SCIENCE PRACTICES

The Commission identified the significant increase in drug-related exonerations from 2014 to 2016 as a topic for research. The Commission worked with the Texas Forensic Science Commission (TFSC) to identify issues and develop recommendations in the area of forensic science practices.

The Texas Legislature created the Texas Forensic Science Commission in May 2005 through Article 38.01 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure to investigate professional negligence and misconduct that would affect the results of a forensic analysis completed by an accredited laboratory. In 2013, the 83rd Legislature clarified the scope of TFSC's jurisdiction by passing Senate Bill 1238, which allowed the TFSC to investigate complaints regarding forensic disciplines that were not subject to accreditation under Texas law. In 2015, the 84th Legislature again expanded the scope of TFSC's responsibilities by transferring the Texas' Crime Laboratory Accreditation Program oversight from the Texas Department of Public Safety through Senate Bill 1287.

Research Highlights

Figure 9 shows the increase in drug-related exonerations since 2010. Of the drug-related exonerations, 89 percent came from Harris County. The primary contributing factor to the wrongful convictions was false and/or misleading forensic evidence.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The National Registry of Exonerations

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In 2014, the Harris County District Attorney's Office's Conviction Integrity Unit identified a problem with drug-related cases. When an individual was detained and suspected of having an alleged illegal substance in their position, officers would test the substance with a drug field test kit. If the result showed that a controlled substance was present, the suspect would be detained and taken into custody. This substance would be collected and handed over to the crime laboratory. Due to the length of time needed for the evidence to be processed, many individuals accepted plea bargains prior to testing of the substance by a crime laboratory. Testing in these cases was a lower priority for the laboratories and further delayed once a guilty plea had been made. Consequently, notifications regarding the inaccurate field test results were sent out after the individual had accepted a plea bargain—often after the sentence had been completed. After the problem was identified, these cases began to be reviewed by a contract attorney for the State, and the Harris County Public Defender's Office began to locate and inform individuals who had been convicted for an offense based on the incorrect field test.

One of the primary issues regarding forensic science practices identified in drug-related exonerations is the inaccuracy of drug field tests. Because of the questionable reliability of these kits and the arrests made based on their results, it is considered a best practice for crime labs to complete testing of substances in all drug cases, regardless of the field test results. Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) crime laboratories report that they already test substances collected for all cases, including those in which the individual entered a plea before the laboratory results were available. The estimated cost of requiring all crime labs to test substances on pled cases is unknown; however, most laboratories reported that the jurisdictions for which they perform testing do not accept pleas for drug cases based on field tests administered by officers. A confirmatory laboratory report is needed. Despite potential additional costs in implementing this practice, requiring laboratory testing of all drug field tests will reduce the risk of wrongfully arresting and convicting an individual of being in possession of a controlled substance.

In addition to testing all substances that come from drug field tests, it is also necessary to determine the reliability of drug field tests. Additionally, any individual involved in the collection and processing of evidence should be properly trained. From law enforcement officers to crime scene investigators, proper collection and testing of evidence procedures should be followed. A review of these practices is needed to assure the reliability of the evidence used in our courts to prosecute individuals. Although the cost of determining the reliability of drug field tests and providing training to law enforcement officers and crime scene investigators is unknown, implementing these practice improvements would reduce the risk for error.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Recommendations

The Commission makes the following recommendations regarding forensic science practices:

I. Encourage the Texas Forensic Science Commission to investigate and consider promulgating policies regarding the use of drug field tests used by law enforcement agencies. This includes the following:
    a. Evaluate the kits' quality, accuracy and reliability.
    b. Identify any problem with the kits.
    c. Investigate if officers are trained on how to use and interpret the kits.
        i. If officers are trained, determine the adequacy of the training.
        ii. If officers are not trained, require training on how to use and interpret the kits.

II. Encourage the Texas Forensic Science Commission to investigate and consider promulgating policies regarding the process of crime scene investigations. This includes the following:
    a. Evaluate standard procedures followed when processing a scene.
    b. Evaluate how crime scenes are processed and the quality of the work.
    c. Investigate what training is provided to crime scene investigators.
    d. Investigate if continuing education is required and/or provided and if so:
        i. Evaluate the capacity of the training; and
        ii. Evaluate the quality of the training.

IV. Recommend that crime labs in all cases moving forward complete testing of substances in all drug cases regardless of the results of a drug field test, and that crime labs go back through previous cases in which the collected substance was not confirmed by lab testing.

CASE STUDY: Christopher Scott and Claude Simmons' Exoneration

The Crime

On the night of April 6, 1997, Alonzo Aguilar and his wife Celia Escobedo were at a duplex in Dallas, Texas. While at the duplex, Escobedo fell asleep watching television. In the early morning hours of April 7, 1997, Escobedo was awakened by a loud noise. When she woke up, Escobedo saw a male intruder she did not know standing in front of her, pointing a gun at her and demanding money. During this encounter, Escobedo moved a pager that was clipped to the collar of her T-shirt to her waistband. In response, the intruder reacted immediately by frisking Escobedo and grabbing her pager. The intruder then began searching other rooms in the duplex.

Meanwhile, another unknown armed man had also entered the duplex and demanded money from Aguilar. This second intruder searched Aguilar's pockets and stole an unknown amount of cash. Shortly thereafter, the first intruder shot and killed Aguilar. Although not originally reported to the police during the initial investigation, Escobedo later claimed that Aguilar was shot and killed when the first intruder became startled while sexually assaulting her.

The Investigation

During the early stages of the investigation, law enforcement obtained descriptions of the suspects from Escobedo, then immediately broadcast the descriptions on the police radio. A short time later, a police officer driving in an unmarked car a couple of blocks away from the crime scene heard the broadcast. That officer then noticed a parked car with two black male occupants who fit the descriptions of the two suspects. The two suspects, later identified as Christopher Scott and Claude Simmons, got out of the car and entered a nearby house. The officer reported this sighting to other investigating officers and requested assistance.

Several backup officers arrived at the house and attempted to contact the people inside. Approximately 45 minutes later, Simmons opened the door and came outside. Eventually, everyone inside the house came out. Police questioned everyone including Scott. Scott and two other suspects were handcuffed and transported to the Dallas Police Department's Crimes Against Persons Division (CAPERS) for additional questioning.

Scott claims that once he was brought to CAPERS, he was told that an eyewitness to the Aguilar murder was being brought to the unit to look at him. Investigative reports conflict with this claim, instead describing the "Escobedo - Scott" encounter at CAPERS as a sheer coincidence. While Scott was sitting in the waiting room, Escobedo entered and immediately identified Scott as the person who shot Aguilar. However, Escobedo never identified Scott in a photo lineup.

Scott was arrested for an outstanding warrant and for the capital murder of Aguilar and transported to jail. On the way to the jail, Scott informed officers that he believed Don Michael Anderson had committed the murder and that he had heard that Anderson had robbed the same place two nights before the murder. This information was included in the officer's investigative report as an admission by Scott as to the identity of his accomplice.

During the arrest, Scott's clothes were confiscated as evidence and his hands were tested for gunshot residue. No blood was discovered and all testing conducted revealed negative results for gunshot residue.

During the three weeks following the murder, Simmons voluntarily went to the police department on three separate occasions and cooperated by answering questions. On his last visit, Simmons agreed to have his photograph taken for inclusion in a photo lineup. Escobedo was shown the photo lineup. When she examined the photo lineup, which included photos of both Simmons and Anderson, Escobedo spent approximately two hours looking at it before she concluded she was unable to identify either individual. Then, Escobedo met with a victim's liaison for approximately 15 minutes; shortly thereafter, she identified Simmons in the photos presented. It was at that time that Escobedo told police officers that Simmons was the man that sexually assaulted her during the murder. Simmons was then arrested.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

During the investigation, several witnesses—including law enforcement agents—identified Anderson and another male, Alonzo Hardy, as the individuals who murdered Aguilar. Police officers attempted to interview Anderson several times. After Anderson refused to cooperate, he was no longer considered a suspect.

The Trial

Scott's jury trial was held first, followed by Simmons' jury trial a week later. The only substantive evidence presented at Scott's trial was Escobedo's eyewitness identification. No mention of Anderson and Hardy was made by the defense. Scott was convicted of capital murder and sentenced to life in prison.

During Simmons' jury trial, the defense requested a continuance based on a recently disclosed hand written note from a police officer that implicated Anderson and Hardy in the crime. The trial court judge—the same judge who presided over Scott's trial—denied the request and proceeded with trial. During the trial, Escobedo provided eyewitness testimony identifying Simmons as the person who sexually assaulted her and killed her husband.

The defense then sought to introduce evidence to prove Anderson and Hardy were the men who killed Aguilar. Among the evidence proffered was testimony from Anderson's ex-girlfriend, Ellen Ellison, regarding inculpatory statements Anderson made to her establishing that he shot and killed Aguilar. According to Ellison, Anderson had tears in his eyes when he confessed to her. He also told her that he never meant to do it—instead he only shot at Aguilar after Aguilar shot his accomplice Hardy in the arm and turned to shoot at Anderson. Finding Ellison's testimony to be inadmissible hearsay, the trial court refused to admit it before the jury. After six minutes of deliberation, the jury found Simmons guilty of capital murder. Since the State did not seek the death penalty, Simmons was sentenced to life in prison.

The Post-Conviction Innocence Investigation

Post-conviction innocence claims for both Simmons and Scott were investigated by students at The University of Texas at Arlington Innocence Network, students at The University of Texas School of Law Actual Innocence Clinic, the Dallas County District Attorney's Office Conviction Integrity Unit, the Dallas County Public Defender's Office, and the Dallas Police Department. While being interviewed by students and attorneys, Hardy confessed to his involvement in Aguilar's murder. Hardy also took a polygraph examination which showed no deception. During a deposition, Hardy corroborated his confession by providing information pertaining to physical evidence found at the crime scene. Meanwhile, both Scott and Simmons agreed to take polygraph examinations; neither result showed deception.

Additional witnesses that supported Scott's and Simmons' claims of innocence included Ellen Ellison, who the trial court judge did not allow to testify during Simmons' trial, and Blanchard (a/k/a "Blinky") Haggerty. Ellison stated that Anderson confessed to her what happened on the night of the murder. Specifically, Anderson told Ellison he went into the duplex and robbed a man and a woman. Anderson also told her that he shot Aguilar with a pistol he had taken from under Escobedo's bed. Finally, Ellison confirmed what Scott originally told the police—that she was in the car with Anderson two nights before Aguilar's murder, when Anderson robbed the people in the duplex where the murder subsequently occurred. "Blinky" Haggerty independently corroborated Anderson's confession. When he was interviewed by Dallas Police detectives, Haggerty admitted that he drove the car for Anderson and Hardy on the night of Aguilar's murder.

On March 3, 2010, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals granted relief to both Scott and Simmons on the grounds of actual innocence. On March 6, 2012, Anderson pled guilty and was sentenced to prison for his role in the crime.

CONCLUSION

Timothy Cole was one of many individuals who have served time in prison for crimes they did not commit. This Commission was comprised of experienced stakeholders devoted to preventing the incarceration of innocent people such as Mr. Cole. The time taken from innocent individuals and their families cannot be returned, but preventing such an event from happening to others is an important goal of our justice system. And it must be acknowledged that, if an innocent person is incarcerated, it means that the actual criminal remains at large, unpunished, and of continuing threat to society.

In this way, the incarceration of an innocent person deeply affects not only the individual, along with his or her family and loved ones, but also Texans and their communities as a whole. It is for this reason that the Timothy Cole Exoneration Review Commission submits these recommendations and urges their consideration by the 85th Legislature.

MEMBERS' ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

Samuel Bassett

Electronic recording of interrogations

Recommendation II: Electronic recording should be required when investigating all felony cases.

- Dissenting statement:
    - All criminal offenses, Class B Misdemeanor or above, should be recorded with audiovisual equipment absent a showing of good cause. The recommendation should not be limited to felonies as some misdemeanors have serious consequences (i.e. DWI, offenses involving findings of family violence).

Recommendation V: Recordings should be either audio or audiovisual formats.

- Dissenting statement:
    - Technology has advanced to a point where the cost differential between audio recordings and audiovisual recordings is negligible; therefore, audiovisual recording equipment should be used when recording all interrogations.

False Accusations and Jailhouse Informant Regulation

Senate bill 1681 has been in effect for seven years. This law requires some corroboration to convict an individual based on the jailhouse informant testimony. Though there have not been any new reported cases of wrongful convictions based on false jailhouse informant testimony since its passage, it should be noted that it takes many years to legally identify and remedy wrongful convictions and that the absence of reported cases at this time is not indicative of whether article 38.075 has sufficiently safeguarded defendants from false testimony from jailhouse informants.

Regarding the recommendations under this section of the report; all recommendations listed should remain as they are. An additional recommendation should be included under this topic area as well.

Concurring statement:

- The testimony of an informant who provides evidence against a defendant must be examined and weighed by the juror with greater caution and care than the testimony of an ordinary witness. Whether the informer's testimony has been affected by interest or prejudice against the defendant is for the juror to determine. Although Texas does not have uniform jury charges, the State Bar of Texas recently published "Texas Criminal Jury Charges," which is a resource that contains a form jury instruction on the corroboration requirement mandated by article 38.075. This instruction, however, does not provide any specific information regarding the circumstances surrounding the informant's situation nor does it provide information regarding how to properly weigh the credibility of the testimony.
- The suggested recommendation is as follows:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- The Commission recommends that all necessary information be provided in an instruction to the jury in order for them to consider the following: (1) whether the witness has received or hopes to receive anything (including pay, immunity from prosecution, leniency in prosecution, personal advantage, or vindication) in exchange for testimony; (2) the extent to which the informant's testimony is corroborated by other evidence; (3) the extent to which the details of the testimony could be obtained from a source other than the defendant; (4) any other case in which the informant testified or offered statements against an individual but was not called, and whether the statements were admitted in the case, and whether the informant received any deal, promise, inducement, or benefit in exchange for that testimony or statement; (5) whether the informant has ever changed his or her testimony; (6) the criminal history of the informant; and (7) any other evidence relevant to the informant's credibility. Reciprocal discovery was not an issue considered by this Commission. However, reciprocal discovery can play an important role in preventing wrongful convictions. According to the Texas Defender Service, 98% of states and the federal government require some form of reciprocal discovery in criminal cases.[4] In its 2010 report, the Timothy Cole Advisory Panel on Wrongful Convictions (TCAP) recommended that, "[t]he State of Texas should adopt a statewide discovery policy that is mandatory, automatic, and reciprocal, and requires either electronic access to or photocopies of materials subject to discovery." This recommendation was partially implemented by the legislature in 2013 with the passage of SB 1611, the Michael Morton Act. The Act, which passed with the support of Texas prosecutors, creates one of the most progressive discovery regimes in the United States. The Act, however, did not mandate reciprocal discovery. Thus, Texas remains the only state in the United States of America without reciprocal discovery.

In 2013, Texas Appleseed and the Texas Defender Service issued a report entitled Improving Discovery in Criminal Cases in Texas. These two non-profit agencies, dedicated to increasing fairness in the Texas criminal justice system, recommended in their report that Texas implement a discovery regime that provides for "reciprocal or mutual discovery obligations for the defense, within the boundaries of the defendant's constitutional rights." The recommendations of TCAP, Texas Appleseed, and Texas Defender Service are in line with the American Bar Association's Standards for Criminal Justice: Discovery and Trial by Jury, which also recommends reciprocal discovery.

Generally, through reciprocal discovery, a defendant is required to provide any books, papers, witness statements, or physical evidence in the defendant's possession that he intends to introduce as evidence at trial. Most jurisdictions also require the defendant to provide a witness list and provide advance notice if the defendant plans to introduce an alibi defense. The significance of this kind of information is obvious. If a prosecutor can verify a defendant's alibi or evidence prior to trial, there may be no need for a trial to take place. Under current Texas law, a defendant can spring evidence or an alibi defense in the middle of trial that the prosecution and law enforcement have no opportunity to verify. If the evidence or alibi is not believed by the jury, an innocent person could be convicted. For this very reason, reciprocal discovery is generally the law of the land throughout the United States.

The goal of the criminal justice system is to find the truth. By implementing a reciprocal discovery system and ending the current system of "trial by ambush," Texas will take a big step forward in preventing wrongful convictions and ensuring justice for all.

Dear Commission Members,

Thank you to my fellow Timothy Cole Exoneration Review Commission members and staff for your hard work during the interim.

Because no innocent person should be incarcerated, the Commission's recommendations deserve further consideration during the 85th Legislative Session. Since it is imperitive that we keep the process moving forward, I support the submission of these recommendations.

As the 85th Legislative Session approaches, I look forward to working with fellow legislators, the public and stakeholders to help end the incarceration of innocent people.

Sincerely,

2. Sample Jury Charge on Jailhouse Informant Testimony

Sample Jury Charge on Jailhouse Informant Testimony

Under Current Texas Law – Art. 38.075 Texas Code of Criminal Procedure

"Correctional facility" means a place designated by law for the confinement of a person arrested for, charged with, or convicted of a criminal offense. The term includes a municipal or county jail; a confinement facility operated by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice; a confinement facility operated under contract with any division of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice; and a community corrections facility operated by a community supervision and corrections department.

You are the exclusive judges of the facts proved, of the credibility of the witnesses and of the weight to be given to the testimony, but you are bound to receive the law from the Court which is herein given to you and be governed thereby.

You are instructed that under our law a conviction cannot be had upon the testimony of a witness to whom the defendant made a statement against the defendant's interest during a time when the defendant was imprisoned or confined in the same correctional facility as the witness unless the jury first believes that the witness's testimony is true and that it shows the defendant is guilty of the offense charged against him, and even then you cannot convict unless the witness's testimony is corroborated by other evidence tending to connect the defendant with the offense charged, and the corroboration is not sufficient if it merely shows the commission of the offense, but it must tend to connect the defendant with its commission.

You are instructed that WITNESS A is a person who was imprisoned or confined in the same correctional facility as the defendant. With this in mind, you are further instructed that you cannot convict the Defendant upon the testimony of WITNESS A, unless you first believe that her testimony is true and shows the guilt of the Defendant as charged in the indictment, and then you cannot convict the Defendant unless WITNESS A's testimony is corroborated by other evidence tending to connect the Defendant with the offense charged. The corroboration is not sufficient if it merely shows the commission of an offense, but it must tend to connect the Defendant with its commission, and then from all the evidence, you must believe beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant is guilty of the offense charged against him.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Now, if you find from the evidence that WITNESS A's testimony is true and shows the guilt of the Defendant as charged in the indictment, and that Witness A's testimony is not corroborated by other evidence tending to connect the Defendant with the offense charged, or that WITNESS A's testimony is untrue and does not show the guilt of the Defendant as charged in the indictment, and that Witness A's testimony is corroborated by other evidence tending to connect the Defendant with the offense charged, then in either case, or if you have a reasonable doubt thereof, you will acquit the Defendant.

You are instructed that one or more witnesses who were imprisoned or confined in the same correctional facility as the defendant cannot corroborate each other. Such corroborative evidence, if any, must be from some source other than said witnesses.

CHAPTER 19

JAILHOUSE INFORMANTS

19.01 INTRODUCTION

There is a critical need for consistency in the handling of jailhouse informants; the integrity of this office and the integrity of our system of justice depends upon it.

It is the policy of this office to strictly control the use of jailhouse informants as witnesses. Before a jailhouse informant may be used as a witness, strong corroborative evidence is required. This corroborating evidence must consist of more than the fact that the informant appears to know details about the crime thought to be known only to law enforcement.

Commentary

It has been the longstanding practice of the deputies in this office to view skeptically and with caution the proposed testimony of any county jail prisoner. No deputy has ever supposed that such testimony springs from the prisoner's sense of good citizenship or moral duty. On the contrary, a deputy district attorney is by virtue of training and experience altogether conscious of the self-interest of the jailhouse informant and actively mindful of the source, his background and his character. Further, since we are unalterably committed to obtaining the truth and seeking justice, the informant's information is viewed through the prism of our ethical mandate.

19.02 OFFICE POLICY

A jailhouse informant is a person in custody who receives a communication from another person in custody about a crime committed by the latter and who chooses to convey this information to authorities.

No jailhouse informant shall be called to testify to a defendant's oral statement, admission or confession unless strong evidence exists which corroborates the truthfulness of the informant.

A deputy wishing to use a jailhouse informant as a prosecution witness must obtain the prior approval of the Jailhouse Informant Committee. The Committee is comprised of the Chief Deputy, the Assistant District Attorneys and Bureau Directors. All requests to use a jailhouse informant must be submitted, in writing, to the Chief Deputy through the chain of command.

A written request to use a jailhouse informant must include:

- A brief description of the crime and the name and criminal history of the informant;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002134

- The evidence being offered by the informant;
- A description of the corroborating evidence;
- An analysis of the strengths and weaknesses of the case if the informant is not used; and
- Any benefit promised to the informant by any member of law enforcement or any employee of the District Attorney's Office for the information offered on the pending case.

The Habeas Corpus Litigation Team maintains a Central Index of jailhouse informants who have offered to be, or who have been used as witnesses. The trial deputy must contact the Deputy-in-Charge of the Habeas Corpus Litigation Team (HABLIT) and determine whether the informant has offered to be a witness in the past or has testified in any prior case. The information shall be included in the deputy's written memorandum.

The Head Deputy will forward the memorandum with his/her recommendation to the appropriate Bureau Director. If the Bureau Director agrees with a recommendation to use a jailhouse informant as a witness, the Bureau Director will forward the request to the Chief Deputy for consideration by the Jailhouse Informant Committee. The trial deputy may be asked to appear before the committee to explain his/her reasons why the request should be approved.

19.02.01 Trial Deputy Responsibilities if Approval is Granted

If the Committee approves the use of a jailhouse informant, the trial deputy must comply with the requirements of Penal Code §§ 1127a, 1191.25, and 4001.1.

If the informant testifies, the trial deputy must notify HABLIT.

Although Penal Code § 4001.1, if strictly applied, pertains only to "in custody informants" held within a "correctional institution," it is office policy that its provisions apply to any custodial setting (i.e., jail or prison).

19.02.02 Prohibition of Monetary Payments

Penal Code § 4001.1 prohibits law enforcement from making monetary payments to in custody informants in excess of $50 in exchange for testimony. This limitation does not apply to funds expended for witness protection, relocation, or travel expenses.

19.03 FABRICATION OF EVIDENCE BY JAILHOUSE INFORMANTS

Should any deputy acquire any information that a jailhouse informant is attempting to fabricate or has fabricated evidence, the deputy shall immediately forward a memorandum setting forth all pertinent details to HABLIT. E-mail or fax transmission is acceptable. This information will be included in the Central Index maintained by HABLIT. It is a continuing responsibility of all deputy district attorneys to ensure that any attempt to falsify evidence is readily known to any of our deputies considering the use of the jailhouse informant involved.

19.04 CRIMINAL CASE INFORMATION SECURITY

The flow of confidential information is critical to operating successfully day to day. Any policy on the disclosure of information must balance the need for security and the need for the efficient exchange of information among the people in this office, from this office to other law enforcement agencies, and to the members of the public. To that end, information on criminal cases being handled by this office shall be disclosed, over the telephone, only as follows:

- If the caller is a deputy district attorney, member of law enforcement, or probation officer personally known to the employee possessing the requested information, and the caller has a need to know the information, the information should be disclosed;
- If the caller is not personally known to the employee possessing the requested information, and claims to be a deputy district attorney, member of law enforcement, or probation officer, the employee possessing the information must request and receive a call-back verification number from the caller. If the number is verified, and there is a need to know the information, the information should be disclosed;
- If the caller is seeking information which is generally available to the public (e.g., time and location of a court appearance), that information should be given;
- Under no circumstances should the names, addresses or telephone numbers of witnesses be disclosed over the telephone; and
- Detailed information or prosecution strategy on a case should never be discussed over the telephone. Only the bare minimum facts, on a verified need-to-know basis, should be disclosed telephonically.

19.04.01 File Notations

Any employee who, in compliance with these guidelines, telephonically discloses information of a non-public nature must make a notation of what was disclosed and to whom it was disclosed. This notation should be placed in the case file or, if the file is not accessible, sent in written form to the deputy district attorney handling the case.

If an employee has any doubt about the identity of the caller, the validity of the call-back number, or whether the caller has a need to know, the employee should immediately contact the Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Investigation.

Commentary

It is essential that we prevent breaches of office security through the inadvertent disclosure of confidential information to persons not authorized to receive such information. Strict compliance with this policy should ensure that such breaches do not occur.

19.05 PRESERVATION OF JAILHOUSE INFORMANT RECORDS

The following Superior Court order, issued on December 16, 1988, remains in effect:

TO [THE] DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY:

You are hereby ordered to preserve all records of jailhouse informants who have been used or consulted by you or your agents while incarcerated from November 1, 1978 to the present until the further order of this court. This order includes, but is not limited to, all notes, memoranda, computer printouts, or any records of promises made, payments made, or rewards given to each such jailhouse informant. The order shall further include all records of the last known location of said informants, all records relating to the cell assignments of such informants within the Los Angeles County jail system and all memoranda describing in whole or in part such informants.

Dated: 12/16/88

Signed:
Judge of the Superior Court

4. Tarrant County Criminal District Attorney's Office Jailhouse Informant Procedures

Tarrant County Criminal District Attorney's Office
Jailhouse Informant Procedure

Effective June 10, 2016, the Tarrant County Criminal District Attorney's Office implements this Jailhouse Informant Procedure. As part of this procedure, the TCCDA will establish and maintain a central index of jailhouse informants. The central index will track jailhouse informant (JI) testimony as well as JI formal offers to give testimony or other information. The index will be maintained by the designated Informant ACDA who will be responsible for the JI database as well as any associated documents. This index/JI database is the confidential work product of the TCCDA.

For purposes of this procedure, a JI is defined as an incarcerated witness who claims to have been the recipient of an admission made by another inmate and who agrees to testify against that inmate, usually, although not necessarily, in exchange for some benefit.

Prior to using a JI's testimony or information at any stage in a criminal prosecution and regardless of any consideration or lack of consideration given to that JI, an ACDA must 1) request all information known about the JI from the designated ACDA and 2) consult with his or her court chief about the use of the JI.

As part of the determination whether to use the JI, the ACDA should consider the following non-exhaustive list:

a. The facts of the case in which the testimony is being contemplated for use;
b. The JI's criminal history;
c. Relevant information regarding the JI's current case;
d. Any known, or readily available, information about the JI's past cooperation with law enforcement or previous testimony;
e. Any JI information conveyed and maintained by the designated ACDA;
f. Asking the JI detailed questions regarding his previous offers of cooperation or testimony. If the JI is represented by counsel,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

these inquiries should be made in the presence of JI's counsel, or with counsel's permission;

g. Any known, or readily available, information about the JI's mental health;
h. The specific evidence to be offered by the JI;
i. How evidence corroborates the JI's statement;
j. What verification exists that the JI and the defendant were housed in the same part of the jail, at the same time, or were otherwise capable of communicating with one another while in custody and how the JI came to be in the same location as the defendant and;
k. The strengths and weaknesses of the case if the informant is not used;
l. The proposed offer and benefit being sought by the JI; and
m. How the agreement impacts justice due the victim in the JI's case;
n. Results of any polygraph examination about the JI's statement(s).

Disclosure Requirements:

If the ACDA decides to use the JI, the ACDA must make a written disclosure to the defense attorney in the instant case and must also upload that information into the JI's pending case(s), if any. Disclosure to the defense is mandatory as soon as an agreement in principle is made with the JI.

That disclosure should include:

2. A summary of the JI's expected testimony or, when available, a copy of the record/transcript made of any sworn proffers or statements;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002139

3. A detailed summary of the JI's criminal history, or a copy of the informant's TCIC/NCIC* (*if disclosed pursuant to a protective order);
4. The exact nature of any deal reached with the JI for his/her testimony or, if no benefit has been, or will be conveyed to the witness, a written recitation of that fact;
5. Information regarding any prior testimony given by the JI on behalf of law enforcement and/or any known prior offers to testify on behalf of law enforcement. If a confirmed Tarrant County case exists where the JI testified on behalf of the State, the ACDA should also make reasonable efforts to obtain, and turn over to the defense, a copy of the relevant portion of that transcript;
6. Any discussions with federal or out-of-county prosecutors or the JI's defense attorney and relating to the agreement, when a JI's pending case originates from another county or the federal system.
7. Gang affiliation, if any;
8. Any information regarding the mental health status or history of the JI (only under a protective order);
9. All known information about the JI's current case, including offense reports, digital media, or anything else in the State's possession; and
10. A copy of the JI's Tarrant County Sheriff's Office jail records.

All agreements shall be entered into prior to the JI's testimony. In the unusual event that it may become necessary to deviate from this policy, any agreement reached after the JI testimony must be approved by the Criminal Division Chief. Any post-testimony agreement or deviation must be provided to the defendant's attorney in writing when the agreement or benefit is reached.

If, at any time, the ACDA received information that the JI has or is attempting to fabricate any evidence, the ACDA must fulfill all ethical obligations regarding disclosure of these facts.

JI Index and Database

If the JI testifies, the fact of his testifying along with any other relevant information regarding that testimony should be forwarded to the Informant ACDA responsible for the JI index and database, along with a copy of the disclosure and supporting documents given to defense counsel. Formal offers to testify should also be forwarded to the Informant ACDA for inclusion in the database regardless of whether the JI ultimately testifies.

Best Practices

ACDA's are encouraged to use the "5 P's" which constitute the best practices in using jailhouse informant testimony:

- Polygraph: Prior to entering into any agreement with a JI have him/her submit to a polygraph examination.
- Produce: Give immediate disclosure of the agreement to the defense counsel.
- Plea: Dispose of the JI's case prior to his or her testimony at trial.
- Proffer: Have the JI make a recorded, sworn proffer at the time of the disposition of the JI's case.
- Provide: Forward the details of the plea and contents of the sworn proffer to defense counsel.

5. Bill Blackwood Law Enforcement Management Institute of Texas (LEMIT) Model Policy

Model Policy on Eyewitness Identification

I. Purpose

The purpose of this model policy is to outline proper protocol for eyewitness identification procedures for photographic, show-up, and live lineup identifications which maximize the reliability of identifications, protect innocent persons, and establish evidence that is reliable and conforms to established legal requirements.

II. Policy

Eyewitness identifications are a significant component of many criminal investigations. The identification process must be carefully administered to minimize the likelihood of misidentifications. Moreover, constitutional safeguards must be observed in the process. The goal of reducing erroneous convictions can be furthered in many ways. Employing the most rigorous eyewitness identification methods is one way of doing this, but there are others. The eyewitness identification process is only one step in the criminal investigative process, albeit an important one. Corroborative evidence, for example, will lessen the impact of an erroneous eyewitness identification. The more other evidence that is available, the less risk there is of conviction based solely on erroneous eyewitness identification. There is no substitute for a competent and thorough criminal investigation.

This model policy was written to provide guidance on eyewitness identification procedures based on credible research on eyewitness memory and best practices designed not only to reduce erroneous eyewitness identification but also to enhance the reliability and objectivity of eyewitness identifications.

Evidence-based and best practices surrounding the collection and preservation of eyewitness evidence are addressed as are procedures to be employed where witnesses or victims are unable to read or write, are non-English speaking, or possess limited English language proficiency.

III. Procedural Guidelines

A. Definitions

1. Blind Procedure – A procedure wherein the person administering the live lineup or photo array does not know who the suspect is.
2. Blinded Photo Array Procedure – A procedure wherein the person who administers the photo array knows who the suspect is, but each photo is presented so that the administrator cannot see or track which photograph is being presented to the witness.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3. Folder Shuffle Method – A method of administering a photo array such that the administrator cannot see or track which photograph is being presented to the witness until after the procedure is completed. This method is employed when a blind procedure is not possible.

4. Fillers – Non-suspect photographs or persons. Fillers are selected to both fit the description of the perpetrator provided by the witness and to ensure that no individual or photo stands out.

5. Illiterate Person – An individual who speaks and understands English but cannot read and write in English.

6. Interpreter – An interpreter is a person who is fluent in English and the language of the witness or victim and who facilitates communication between two parties in two different languages. The term includes persons who facilitate communication with persons who are deaf, hearing impaired, or speaking impaired.

7. Live lineup – An identification procedure in which a group of persons is displayed to the witness or victim in order to identify or exclude the suspect.

8. Person with Limited English Proficiency – An individual who is unable to communicate effectively in English with a level of fluency that is typical of native English speakers. Such a person may have difficulty speaking, reading, or writing in English and includes persons who can comprehend English, but are physically unable to talk or write.

9. Photo Array – An identification procedure in which a series of photographs is displayed to the witness or victim in order to identify or exclude the suspect.

10. Sequential Live Lineup or Photo Array – An identification procedure in which the persons in the live lineup or the photographs in the photo array are displayed one by one (sequentially).

11. Show-up – An identification procedure in which a single suspect is shown to a victim or witness soon after the commission of a crime for the purpose of identifying or eliminating the suspect as the perpetrator.

12. Witness Certification Statement – A written statement that is read out loud to the witness or victim describing the procedures of the identification process.

B. Selecting the Best Identification Method

1. Photo arrays are preferred over other techniques because: (a) they can be controlled better, (b) nervousness can be minimized, and (c) they are easier to manage logistically.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002143

2. Because they involve multiple persons under relatively controlled circumstances, a properly conducted live lineup, like a properly conducted photo array, is preferable to a show-up.

3. Because they are highly suggestive, show-ups are vulnerable to challenges to their validity. Consequently, a show-up should be employed only where other indicia of guilt are present (e.g., suspect located relatively close in time and place to the crime).

4. Because witnesses may be influenced, however unintentionally, by cues from the person administering the procedure, a blind administrator should be used. This can be achieved through the use of a blind procedure or a blinded photo array procedure (e.g. the folder shuffle method).

5. Because research shows the sequential presentation of live lineups and photo arrays is less likely to result in misidentification and carry very little risk of increasing the likelihood of failure to identify the suspect, a sequential presentation should be used.

C. Selecting Fillers

All persons in the photo array or live lineup should be of the same sex and race and should be reasonably similar in age, height, weight, and general appearance. Ideally, the characteristics of the filler should be consistent with the description of the perpetrator provided by the witness(es). Where there is a limited or inadequate description of the perpetrator provided by the witness(es), where the description of the perpetrator differs significantly from the appearance of the suspect, where a witness has provided a highly detailed description, or where the witness's description of the perpetrator or the suspect has a highly distinctive feature, fillers should be chosen so that no person stands out in the live lineup or photo array.

D. Explaining that the Perpetrator May or May Not Be Present

Because witnesses may be under pressure to identify a suspect, they should be informed that the suspect may or may not be present in a live lineup or photo array and that the person presented in a show-up may or may not be the perpetrator.

E. Explaining that the Investigation will Continue

The administrator should also explain to the witness that the investigation will continue, regardless of whether an identification is made, as another way of alleviating pressure on the witness to identify a suspect.

F. Witness Contamination

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002144

Precautions must be taken to ensure that witnesses do not encounter suspects or fillers at any time before or after the identification procedure. Avoid multiple identification procedures in which the same witness views the same suspect more than once. When showing a different suspect to the same witness, do not reuse the same fillers from a previous live lineup or photo array shown to that witness. Witnesses should not be allowed to confer with each other before, during, or after the identification procedure. Ensure that no one who knows the suspect's identity is present during live lineup or photo array procedure. In some live lineups, exceptions must be made to allow for the presence of defense counsel.

G. Documenting the Procedure

In order to strengthen the evidentiary value of the identification procedure, it should be documented in full. Video documentation is the preferred method. Audio recording is the preferred alternative. If neither method is employed, then the reason for not video or audio recording should be documented.

IV. Sample Standard Operating Procedures

The procedures which follow have been designed to: (a) reduce erroneous eyewitness identifications, (b) enhance the reliability and objectivity of eyewitness identifications, (c) collect and preserve eyewitness evidence properly, (d) respect the needs and wishes of victims and witnesses, and (d) address the needs of witnesses with limited English proficiency, where applicable.

In order to choose among the various identification methods, a brief description of each method follows in order of most preferred method to least preferred. Once the appropriate method is selected, the administrator should go directly to the Sample Standard Operating Procedures for that particular method. In any given situation only set of Sample Standard Operating Procedures applies.

A. Descriptions of Eyewitness Identification Methods

1. Sequential, Blind Photo Array – photo arrays where the photographs are presented one at a time to the witness or victim by a person who does not know who the suspect is. This method requires a preparer who may be familiar with the case and an administrator who does not know the identity of the suspect.

2. Sequential, Blinded Photo Array – photo arrays where the photographs are presented one at a time to the witness or victim by a person who knows who the suspect is, but who takes steps (putting the photographs in folders and shuffling them) to avoid knowledge of which person the witness or victim is looking at. This method typically involves an administrator who is familiar with the case and knows who the suspect is.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3. Sequential Live Lineup – live lineups where the persons in the live lineup are presented one at a time to the witness or victim. This method requires a preparer who may be familiar with the case and an administrator who does not know the identity of the suspect.

4. Show-up – procedure where the witness or victim is presented with a single suspect and asked to identify whether that suspect is the perpetrator. This procedure can be carried out by any officer.

Tarrant County Criminal District Attorney's Office
Jailhouse Informant Procedure

Effective June 10, 2016,[1] the Tarrant County Criminal District Attorney's Office implements this Jailhouse Informant Procedure. As part of this procedure, the TCCDA will establish and maintain a central index of jailhouse informants. The central index will track jailhouse informant (JI) testimony as well as JI formal offers to give testimony or other information as required by Article 2.023 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure. The index will be maintained by the designated Informant ACDA who will be responsible for the JI database as well as any associated documents. This index/JI database is the confidential work product of the TCCDA.

For purposes of this procedure, a JI is defined as an incarcerated witness who claims to have been the recipient of an admission made by another inmate and who agrees to testify against that inmate, usually, although not necessarily, in exchange for some benefit.

Prior to using a JI's testimony or information at any stage in a criminal prosecution and regardless of any consideration or lack of consideration given to that JI, an ACDA must 1) request all information known about the JI from the Informant ACDA and 2) consult with his or her court chief about the use of the JI. If an ACDA receives an "Inquiry" from a JI offering to provide testimony or information but the ACDA decides not to contact the JI, the ACDA is not required to investigate the JI as outlined below. The ACDA is, however, still required to report such offer to the Informant ACDA for tracking of such offers and to make any appropriate disclosures to the defense.

As part of the determination whether to use the JI, the ACDA should consider the following non-exhaustive list:

a. The facts of the case in which the testimony is being contemplated for use;
b. The JI's criminal history;

c. Relevant information regarding the JI's current case;
d. Any known, or readily available, information about the JI's past cooperation with law enforcement or previous testimony;
e. Any JI information conveyed and maintained by the designated ACDA;
f. Asking the JI detailed questions regarding his previous offers of cooperation or testimony. If the JI is represented by counsel, these inquiries should be made in the presence of JI's counsel, or with counsel's permission;

m. How the agreement impacts justice due the victim in the JI's case;
n. Results of any polygraph examination about the JI's statement(s).

Disclosure Requirements:

If the ACDA decides to use the JI, the ACDA must make a written disclosure to the defense attorney in the instant case and must also upload that information into the JI's pending case(s), if any. Disclosure to the defense is mandatory as soon as an agreement in principle is made with the JI.

Subject: Information on utility issues surrounding COVID-19

Good afternoon Honorable Legislators,

Given the current situation with COVID-19, you are likely receiving a lot of constituent inquiries and requests related to utility services (e.g., related to shut-offs of services, late fee penalties, etc.). The Missouri Public Service Commission is available to assist with those kinds of issues for investor-owned utilities (e.g., Ameren Missouri, Evergy, Spire, Missouri American Water, Empire, Liberty, etc.). We recommend, however, that the utility be contacted first, to see if a resolution and/or more information can be attained in resolving the request/concern. For assistance from the PSC, constituents can contact the PSC's Consumer Hotline at 1-800-392-4211. Please also feel free to reach out to me directly for assistance, if you prefer.

Please note that the PSC has very limited jurisdiction over municipally-owned utilities, rural electric cooperatives, and other non-profit utilities (e.g., public water/sewer districts). Those utilities are best suited to address those inquiries and concerns directly. In some instances, it may also be helpful to contact their governing board or association (e.g., the city/town council overseeing the utility, the Missouri Public Utility Alliance for municipally-owned utilities, the Missouri Rural Electric Cooperative, etc.). However, again, if there are any questions about what the PSC can assist with please do not hesitate to reach out. We are happy to help however we can.

Finally, the PSC has resources and references for utility issues related to COVID-19 on our website at https://psc.mo.gov/General/PSC_COVID-19_Information_and_Resources. We hope they are helpful to you and your constituents.

I hope you and your families are well.

My best regards,

Jamie

The Bipartisan Infrastructure Deal will create good-paying, union jobs that can't be outsourced – and make a real impact in communities across the country. These jobs will:

- Put pipefitters and plumbers to work replacing lead water pipes so every child and American can drink clean water.
- Transform rail, roads, bridges, public transit and modernize our ports and airports and freight rail.
- Manufacture solar panels, wind farms, batteries, and electric vehicles to grow clean energy supply chains we can export to the world.
- Build out the first-ever national network of charging stations so families can travel coast-to-coast in electric vehicles.
- Make high-speed internet affordable and available for every household in America.
- Clean up brownfields and superfund sites, as well as plug abandoned mine lands and orphaned wells, to stop pollution and protect public health
- Build up our resilience to superstorms, droughts, wildfires, and hurricanes that cost us billions of dollars in damage.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Bipartisan Infrastructure Deal is a blue-collar blue print to rebuild America -- a majority of these jobs don't require a college degree.

While America has risked losing our competitive edge as a nation, we're about to turn it around --- in a big way.

74.06. Relief From Judgment or Order

(a) Clerical Mistakes - Procedure. Clerical mistakes in judgments, orders or other parts of the record and errors therein arising from oversight or omission may be corrected by the court at any time of its own initiative or on the motion of any party and after such notice, if any, as ,the court orders. During the pendency of an appeal, such mistakes may be so corrected with leave of the appellate court.

(b) Excusable Neglect - Fraud - Irregular, Void, or Satisfied Judgment. On motion and upon such terms as are just, the court may relieve a party or his legal representative from a final judgment or order for the following reasons: (1) mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect; (2) fraud (whether heretofore denominated intrinsic or extrinsic), misrepresentation, or other misconduct of an adverse party; (3) the judgment is irregular; (4) the judgment is void; or (5) the judgment has been satisfied, released, or discharged, or a prior judgment upon which it is based has been reversed or otherwise vacated, or it is no longer equitable that the judgment remain in force.

(c) Motion Under Subdivision (b) - Affect on Judgment - Time for Filing - Notice of Hearing - Service. A motion under subdivision (b) does not affect the finality of a judgment or suspend its operation. The motion shall be made within a reasonable time and for reasons (1) and (2) and (3) of subdivision (b) not more than one year after the judgment or order was entered. The motion and a notice of a time and place for hearing on the motion shall be served upon the parties to the judgment pursuant to Rule 54.

(d) Power of Court to Entertain Independent Action - Certain Writs Abolished. This Rule 74.06 does not limit the power of the court to entertain an independent action to relieve a party from a judgment or order or to set aside a judgment for fraud upon the court. Writs of coram nobis, coram vobis, audita querela, and bills of review and bills in the nature of a bill of review are abolished, and the procedure for obtaining any relief from a judgment shall be by motion as prescribed in these Rules or by an independent

Missouri Criminal Statute of Limitations Laws

Bv FindLaw Staff (httos://www. fmdlaw.com/comDanv/our-teamMrnl) / Reviewed by Steve Foley, Esq, (https://www.findlaw.com/comnanv/our-team.html) / Last updated October 08, 2020

Every state has time limits for filing criminal charges, called the statute of limitations s).. Prosecutors have a certain amount of time after a crime has been committed before they must file charges against a suspect, which varies by state (https://www.findlaw.com/criminal/criminal-law-basics/time-limits-for-charaes-state-criminal-statutes-of-limitations.htmO and type of crime. Missouri criminal statutes of limitation are fairly uniform, mostly based on the classification of the crime (i.e. felony, misdemeanor).

The reasoning behind statutes of limitation include the importance of preserving evidence - witness testimony and physical evidence - and the notion that fear of criminal prosecution (except for the most serious charges) shouldn't hang over suspects' heads indefinitely.

Once the clock has run out, the person who committed the crime ¡is essentially off the hook- -But in order for the clock to run, the suspect must be in the state and jivin^^e^HJ^t^^t a fugitive or otherwise evading prosecution. To live openly means t be visible and preferably employed.

Civil law also has statutes of limitations, which also vary by state and type of claim. See lime l imits to Bring a Case: The "Statute of Limitations" (https://www.findlaw.com/iniurv/accident-injury-law/time-limits-to-brina-a-case-the-statute-of-limitations.htijnl) to learn more.

Title XXXV CIVIL PROCEDURE AND LIMITATIONS

Chapter 512

■*“ • Effective-28 Aug 2004 ♦

512.020. Who may appeal. — Any party to a suit aggrieved by any judgment of any trial court in any civil cause from which an appeal is not prohibited by the constitution, nor clearly limited in special statutory proceedings, may take his or her appeal to a court having appellate jurisdiction from any:

(1) Order granting a new trial;

(2) Order refusing to revoke, modify, or change an interlocutory order appointing a receiver or receivers, or dissolving an injunction;

(3) Order granting or denying class action certification provided that:

(a) The court of appeals, in its discretion, permits such an appeal; and

(b) An appeal of such an order shall not stay proceedings in the court unless the judge or the court of appeals so orders;

(4) Interlocutory judgments in actions of partition which determine the rights of the parties; or

(5) Final judgment in the case or from any special order after final judgment in the cause; but a failure to appeal from any action or decision of the court before final judgment shall not prejudice the right of the party so failing to have the action of the trial court reviewed on an appeal taken from the final judgment in the case.

Aggrieved Parties

(1971) Where wife was permitted to amend her motion for change of custody to ask for rights of visitation which she received she was nevertheless an aggrieved party and could appeal since to be an alternative relief it must afford final, full, and complete relief. Eissler v. Eissler (A.), 468 S.W.2d 217.

(1971) Appeal from order, entered in a suit by trustees for construction of testamentary trust, designated as interlocutory and sustaining motion for summary judgment by counterclaimants, who asserted that will provisions creating trust were invalid as violative of rule against perpetuities, and directing delivery of property, accounting and hearing on final distribution, was premature. Proctor v. Jacobs (Mo.), 472 S.W.2d 609.

(1972) After defendant rested his case, the court stated "I'm going to find him guilty and sentence him to six months in the City Workhouse and I'll grant him probation." Defendant immediately filed "motion for a new trial or for outright reversal and acquittal"/ which was overruled. Defendant then filed his notice of appeal. Appellate court held that attempted sentencing before the filing of and ruling on defendant's motion for new trial was premature and void and there was nothing from which appeal could be taken. State v. Summers (A.), 477 S.W.2d 721.

(1972) An order which quashes a writ of garnishment is a final judgment for purposes of an appeal but an order overruling a petition to quash execution of a garnishment is not appealable for the reason that the order does not constitute a final disposition of the cause nor the merits of the garnishment proceeding. (1986) This section grants a right of appeal from an interlocutory judgment in a partition action only where such judgment determines the quantum of party's interest in the property being partitioned. First National Bank of Carrollton V. Eucalyptus, 721 S.W.2d 165 (Mo.App.).

Final Judgments, Generally

(1974) Held, a denial of a motion for new trial is not an appealable judgment, an appeal must be taken from the underlying judgment. Cady v. Kansas City Southern Railway Co. (A.), 512 S.W.2d 882.

(1974) Held, an order denying defendant's motion to bring in a third party defendant is not a final judgment and is not appealable. Nadler v. Continental Insurance Co. (A.), 511 S.W.2d 446.

(1977) Requirement that court make a division of marital property in a dissolution action is mandatory and failure to comply results in no final judgment in the action. The fact that a final judgment has not been rendered bars an appeal under the provisions of § 512.020, RSMo. Corder v. Corder (A.), 546 S.W.2d 798.

(1977) Held, entry of a decree making final an earlier interlocutory decree does not violate rule requiring a single final judgment. Bolin v. Farmers Alliance Mutual Insurance Co. (Mo.), 549 S.W.2d 886.

Supreme Court of Missouri,En Banc.

CITY OF ST. LOUIS, Respondent, v. Joseph HUGHES, Appellant.

No. 79514.

Decided: August 19,1997

Henry W. Cummings, St. Charles, for Appellant. Tyrone A. Taborn, City Counselor, Steven R. Wild, Assistant City Counselor, Patricia A. Hageman, St. Louis, for Respondent.
The Missouri Court of Appeals, Eastern District, has transferred this case to the Supreme Court for ruling pursuant to Rule 83.02.' Hughes admits in his brief that the orders he seeks to appeal are not judgments within the meaning of Rule 74.01 (a). We dismiss the appeal.

I.

The City of St. Louis (the city) sued defendant to enjoin a public nuisance at property known as the Alcorn Hotel located at 4165 Washington in St. Louis, Missouri. The city's petition included allegations that the hotel was being used for prostitution and illegal drug activity. During the litigation of the matter, four documents were signed by the judge. Hughes seeks to appeal from these four documents. The first document, dated March 17,1995, states:

MEMORANDUM FOR CLERK

Plaintiffs Motion for Sanctions is called, heard and granted.
therefore stricken and a default judgment is entered in favor of plaintiff on its Suit to Enjoin a Public Nuisance.

/s/ '

So Ordered

The second document, dated April 28,1995, states:

MEMORANDUM FOR CLERK

The City makes appearance by associate city counselor Steve Kovacs.

Defendant Joe Hughes appears by counsel, Allen I. Harris, defendant not, motion to quash service on her is hereby overruled. Court finds is a proper agent for service of process.

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002170

The court is considering the remedy of forced sale as a proper remedy in this case and hereby appoints Steven Goldman as special commissioner for the purpose of appraising 4165 Washington. Said commissioner should proceed with all due haste and shall report back to this court at the earliest practical time.

The court hereby enjoins all illegal activity, including but not limited to prostitution, drug transaction, and peace disturbance from being conducted at said 4165 Washington.

All parties except permanent residents and employees shall be barred from these premises until further order of this court. Defendant Joe Hughes' attorney Allen 1. Harris shall provide the court with a list of persons? on or before Monday, May 1,1995.

Defendant Joseph Hughes agrees to sale at a fair and equitable price. Said price to be determined at a later time.

Sale to be subject to court approval.

So ordered:

/s/ .

On May 24,1995, the trial court signed the third document which states:

MEMORANDUM FOR CLERK

Motion to set aside default judgment denied. Motion to set aside court order of April 28,1995 is granted except for paragraphs 4 and 5. The injunction orders of such paragraphs to remain in full force and effect. A Remedy Hearing is set for Wed. June 14 at 9:30.

So ordered:

4. Defendants, their officers, agents, employees and all persons having actual notice of this order are permanently énjoined and restrained from operating a house of prostitution or otherwise renting any room to any person for the purpose of prostitution.

5. The Court retains jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter, and plaintiff reserves the right to seek additional relief in the event of any violation of this order.

6. Joseph Hughes consents hereto on his own behalf; judgment by default is entered against defendant Bonnie Hughes. Henry Cummings appears as counsel solely for defendant Joseph Hughes. Costs Against Defendants.

SO ORDERED: ,

In November 1995, plaintiff filed a Motion for Contempt of the June 16,1995, court order. The motion alleged that Hughes was arrested on October 17,1995, for allowing the premises at 4165 Washington to be used for prostitution. A fifth document was signed by the court on November 29,1995, and states:

MEMORANDUM FOR CLERK

Motion for contempt called, heard, and denied. Court order of June 16,1995 is amended to require defendant Hughes to provide to the City every 30 days his'records of his monthly tenants and their social security numbers. Defendant Hughes, his agents, servants and employees are only to rent units on a monthly basis.

So ordered:

/s/ .

Defendant does not challenge this fifth order. Defendant filed his notice of appeal on December 4,1995. In the space provided on that notice designated "Judgment or Order Appealed From:", Hughes states "Attached." He attached only the four documents dated March 17, April 28, May 24, and June 16.

Absent one of the exceptions expressly set out in § 512.020, RSMo 1994, "[a] prerequisite to appellate review is that there be a final judgment. If the order of the trial court was not a final judgment, this Court lacks jurisdiction and the appeal must be dismissed. An appealable judgment disposes of all issues in a case, leaving nothing for future determination." Boley v. Knowles, 905 S.W.2d 86,88 (Mo. banc 1995) (citations omitted). The legislature has defined a "judgment" as "the final determination of the right of the parties in an action." § 511.020, RSMo 1994.

The Constitution of the State of Missouri empowers this Court to "establish rules relating to practice, procedure and pleading for all courts . which shall have the force and effect of law." Mo. Const, art. V, § 5(1945). Pursuant to article V, § 5, this Court has adopted rules of civil procedure. Rule 74.01 (a), which was recently amended in 1995, defines what constitutes a judgment. The new rule states:

"Judgment" as used in these rules includes a decree and any order from which an appeal lies. A judgment is rendered when entered. A judgment is entered when a writing signed by the judge and denominated "judgment" is filed. The judgment may be a separate document or included on the docket sheet of the case.

Rule 74.01(a) (emphasis added).

B.

As a preliminary matter, the city contends that this case should not turn on whether the memoranda are final appealable judgments within the meaning of Rule 74.01 (a) because the Supreme Court rules cannot expand or shrink jurisdiction. Under old Rule 74.01 (a), it was unclear when a pronouncement or judgment was a final judgment for purposes of appeal. The new rule clarifies that ambiguity by imposing an express requirement that the document or docket notation be "denominated 'judgment*Rule 74.01 (a) does not expand or shrink jurisdiction, the right to appeal, or any other substantive right. It merely clarifies what constitutes a "judgment"

C.

The requirement that a trial court must "denominate" its final ruling as a “judgment" is not a mere formality. It establishes a "bright line" test as to when a writing is a judgment. The rule is an attempt to assist the litigants and the appellate courts by clearly distinguishing between when orders and rulings of the trial court are intended to be final and appealable and when the trial court seeks to retain jurisdiction over the issue.

" harm which will befall L. Lloyd Crosby if the reliefsought is grante<TByYaF outweighs the benefits that may accrue therefrom to the plaintiff Stanford Crosby." We reverse.

[1] In 1933 Stanford Crosby was using the name S. Stewart Crosby.

Stanford Crosby and his brother, L. Lloyd Crosby, were indicted by a federal grand jury in 1928 for mail fraud (now 18 U.S.C. § 1341). At trial in 1930, Stanford Crosby was a'cquitted, but the jury disagreed as to Lloyd Crosby. Lloyd Crosby then pleaded guilty and was given a suspended sentence.

In 1932 The Bradstreet Company, now Dun Bradstreet, published a credit report which stated that Stanford and Lloyd Crosby had been found guilty of fraud. At that time the two brothers were in business together. In the same year, Stanford Crosby commenced a libel action in the New York Supreme Court against The Bradstreet Company based on the published credit report, which action was removed to the United States District Court. The specific nature of the allegedly libelous statement and the relief sought is unknown as the complaint is unavailable. We do know, however, that Stanford Crosby was the sole plaintiff and Lloyd Crosby and others with whom the brothers were in business, were not parties to the action. On June 28,1933 Stanford Crosby and Dun Bradstreet entered into a stipulation wherein the action was settled. The defendant agreed to pay $300 and to "refrain from issuing or publishing any report, comment or statement either in writing or otherwise concerning [Stanford] * * * Crosby, the plaintiff herein, L. Lloyd Crosby [and others] * * * or concerning the business activities of any of the foregoing persons * * *; whether present, past or future." On July 8,1933 the district court signed an order on that stipulation which was filed on July 10.

Since 1933 plaintiff and his brother have severed business relati are now in competing businesses in the Pittsburgh area. Stanfo Bradstreet, opposes termination oftEe*order unless its right to make reference to Lloyd Crosby in its statement about Stanford Crosby is protected.

[2] "(b) Mistakes; Inadvertence; Excusable Neglect; Newly Discovered Evidence; Fraud, etc. On motion and upon such terms as are just, the court may relieve a party or his legal representative from a final judgment, order, or proceeding for the following reasons: * * * (5) * * * it is no longer equitable that the judgment should have prospective application; or (6) any other reason justifying relief from the operation of the judgment."

In memorandum orders dated April 10,1962, the district court denied plaintiffs motion. On May 11,1962,31 days later, in an ex parte proceeding, plaintiff received permission in the district court to file a notice of appeal out of time.[3] At the argument before this court, appellee Lloyd Crosby challenged our jurisdiction over the appeal. In an order filed November 14, 1962, we held that, under Rule 6 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, it was "beyond the power of the district court to extend the time of the appellant to file its notice of appeal by ex parte order dated May 11,1962, if the 30-day period had already expired." However, no file date was stamped on the order and we thought it quite possible that the orders had in fact not been entered by the clerk of the district court until April 11. Accordingly, under Rule 75(h), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, we directed "that the 485 district *485 court determine the correct date of the entry of the orders dated April 10, and that a supplemental record including these findings be certified and transmitted to this court." The district court has certified that the orders were deposited for filing and entry on April 11,1962, and accordingly it is clear that the notice of appeal was filed within thirty days. We proceed to the merits.

here m question was not directed solely to aeramatory reports, comments or statements, but to "any" statements. In fact, from all that appears, it would seem that whatever The Bradstreet Company published in 1932 was not libelous as to Lloyd Crosby.

Lloyd Crosby contends that the order was entered on consent and that Bradstreet is bound by contract to refrain from publishing matter about him. We disagree. We are concerned with the power of a court of the United States to enjoin publication of information about a person, without regard to truth, falsity, or defamatory character of that information. Such an injunction, enforceable through the contempt power, constitutes a prior restraint by the United States against the publication of facts which the community has a right to know and which Dun Bradstreet had and has the right to publish. The court was without power to make such an order; that the parties may have agreed to it is immaterial.

The order dated July 8,1.933 was in violation of the First Amendment to the Constitution, see Near v. Minnesota ex rel. Olson, 283 U.S. 697,51 S.Ct. 625, 75 L.Ed. 1357 (1931). Shelley v. Kraemer, 334 U.S. 1,68 S.Ct. 836,92 L.Ed. 1161 (1948) indicates that the First Amendment limits court action. The order was void, and under Rule 60(b)(4) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the parties must be granted relief therefrom.

In any event, there does not seem to be any equity in Lloyd Crosby's position since he requests the continuation of an injunction which should never have been entered in the first place.[4] 4 Appellant contends that Lloycl Crosby, appellee, has no standing to oppose this motion because he was not party to the action in 1933. In view of our disposition of the case we do not reach this question.

We reverse the order of April 10,1962, with directions that the nullify the order of July 1933.

Subject: Kansas City Boat and Sports Show

Hello all,

Just a reminder that the Kansas City Boat and Sports Show opens today at Bartle Hall, 301 W 13th St. As I've mentioned in earlier emails, we would be delighted to welcome you at the show site and help you find constituents that might be exhibiting.

The show runs through this weekend and, of course, showcases an exciting array of the newest models of boats, RVs, off-road vehicles and myriad equipment. Exhibitors also include destination resorts to help you plan memorable family getaways.

The show will be open today until 9 p.m. The weekend schedule is:

Friday: Noon - 9 p.m.
Saturday: 10 a.m. - 9 p.m.
Sunday: 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Please email me if you plan to attend and if you let me know when you will arrive, I'll be sure to have some greet you at the door.

Best regards,

David

Kansas to mandate in-person learning option

Kansas Governor Laura Kelly announced her intention to sign [illegible]

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Kansas Governor Laura Kelly announced her intention to sign the Back-to-School Law, which mandates all schools offer an in-person option by the end of the month. This action only applies for the rest of the school year. Kansas House members rejected an effort to make this option permanent.

According to the Topeka Capital-Journal, "A National Center for Education Statistics survey conducted from Feb. 22 to March 12 found that between 61% and 69% of Kansas fourth- and eighth-grade students were at least offered the chance to return to in-person learning, while between 16% and 22% did not have that opportunity." Read more here.

Kansas is also one of the first states to offer a vaccination to every teacher and Kelly announced today that all persons age 16 and older will be eligible for a COVID-19 vaccine starting March 29th.

In Missouri, workers in construction, financial services, and higher education will be eligible on March 29th and all remaining tiers will be open starting on April 9th.

Last week the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) updated its coronavirus guidelines for K-12 schools and reduced the recommended distance between elementary school students (and middle and high school students where community transmission is low) from six feet to three feet.

Survey says...

The National Institute for Early Education Research released the findings from two nationally representative surveys of parents of children ages 3 to 5 and learned that the pandemic's impact on state budget and preschool enrollment presents a threat to future funding.

According to the report, "The surveys revealed that participation in preschool programs declined sharply from pre-Covid pandemic levels. Prior to the pandemic, 71% of 4-year-old children in the study attended a preschool program, a percentage similar to what other national surveys have found in recent years. At the time of data collection, preschool participation in the fall of 2020 had fallen from 71% to 54%."

The U.S. Department of Education also released the first of a series of school surveys to provide a national look at how learners fared during the pandemic. According to the report, "As of January and early February of this year, 43% of elementary students and 48% of middle school students in the survey remained fully remote. And the survey found large differences by race: 68% of Asian, 58% of Black and 56% of Hispanic fourth graders were learning entirely remotely, while just 27% of White students were."

Bills moving...

Real World Learning

HB 1304 (Henderson) - legislation that ensures students and businesses are protected from liability claims when hosting real world learning opportunities was voted Do Pass 6-1 from the House Special Committee on Litigation.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-002183

Reform this week and referred to Rules-Legislative Oversight.

HB 101 (Pollitt) - legislation that modifies provisions governing workforce development in elementary and secondary education, including provisions to expand the Visiting Scholars program to allow the State Board of Education to grant temporary teaching certificates to subject-matter experts for career education pathway programs in grades 9-12, was heard this week in the House Committee on Elementary and Education.

Early Care and Education

HB 1071 (Shields) - a bill that makes the Quality Assurance Report permanent was passed out of the House Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education remains in the committee on Rules-Legislative Oversight. The committee must approve this bill before moving to the floor for debate.

Innovative Practices

HB 624 (Richey), the Show-Me Success Diploma program, also includes language to establish a competency-based task force was referred to the Senate Committee on Education on March 25th.

SB 152 (Hoskins), an education savings plan bill that includes the competency-based education grant program and task force from SB 33 and SB 34, was second read in the House on March 22nd.

Other education legislation

WORKFORCE DIPLOMA PROGRAM: This week the House took up and perfected HCS HB 733, sponsored by Rep. Jon Patterson (R-Lee's Summit). This bill establishes the "Workforce Diploma Program".

The House adopted the following amendments during perfection:

- Changed the title to Workforce Development
- Removed the requirement of on-site daycare for adult high schools and modified language for innovation waivers
- Added HB 896 regarding career and technical education

We expect this bill will be Third Read and Passed next week.

REWARDING WORKFORCE READINESS ACT: On Monday, the House Committee on Higher Education conducted a public hearing on HB 1346, sponsored by Rep. Mike Henderson (R-Bonne Terre). This bill creates the "Rewarding Workforce Readiness in Institutions of Higher Education Act" which provides a new funding mechanism for public two year and four year colleges and universities based on the calculations of earnings for graduates of these institutions.

MISSOURI EMPOWERMENT SCHOLARSHIP ACCOUNTS PROGRAM: On Tuesday, the Senate Committee on Education conducted a public hearing on HCS HB 349, sponsored by Rep. Phil Christofanelli (R-St. Peters). This bill creates the "Missouri Empowerment Scholarship Accounts Program" and specifies that any taxpayer may claim a tax credit, not to exceed 50% of the taxpayer's state tax liability, for any qualifying contribution to an educational assistance organization.

Legislative News

Here are a few toplines from activity under the dome this week:

- A federal grand jury returned additional charges against a Missouri state representative in a COVID-related fraud scheme totaling nearly $900,000.
- This week former Governor Eric Greitens and Missouri Attorney General Eric Schmitt formally announced their intentions to run to replace U. S. Senator Roy Blunt who is not seeking re-election next year.
- Ameren received regulatory approval Wednesday to build its largest solar energy facility yet. As proposed last year, the utility plans to build a 6-megawatt solar facility in Montgomery County, along Interstate 70 about halfway between St. Louis and Columbia.
- Missouri Senate leadership pulled a bill vital for funding the state's Medicaid program from floor debate Tuesday after adopting an amendment barring the use of public money for common contraceptive treatments.

Read the full update here.

Budget Update

This week, the House Committee on Budget finished crafting its version of the FY2022 budget on Thursday, ending the mark-up process after an eight-hour hearing. In a move that surprised some, the committee rejected HB 20, which contained funding and language for expanding Medicaid, by a party-line vote of 9-20.

Chairman Cody Smith intends to file another bill, HB 21, which will include partial funding for the Medicaid expansion ramp-up but will ultimately use less general revenue. Also contained within HB 21 will be rate increases for Medicaid providers. There has now been clear direction from the federal government regarding the enhanced FMAP (Federal Medical Assistance Percentage) money and the eligible use of CRF (Coronavirus Relief Funds). Beyond the failure to fund Medicaid expansion, the committee did not significantly change the original budget bills. That said, we expect to see some significant modifications during the floor debate.

The full House will begin debating the various budget bills, including the supplemental budget, on Tuesday of next week. Democrats and Republicans each are limited to three hours for a total of six hours allocated for debate.

Kansas News

Legislative Update

Today is the last day for non-exempt committees to meet for the 2021 Kansas Legislative Session. It was a frenzy of a week as committee chairs churned through bills and worked quickly to wrap up their business for the year. Next week, the House and Senate will debate bills on the floor Monday through Wednesday, followed by a five-day weekend and returning for few days of conference committees leading up to first adjournment currently scheduled for April 9. Real World Learning

Aligned has been working to ease the barriers that prevent business and education from forming valuable internship arrangements. HB 2442 provides liability protection for businesses, municipalities and educational institutions that participate in high school work-based learning programs and providing that schools are responsible for injuries to students participating in such programs. To fast track the bill, its contents were inserted into the shell bill SB 91 and now heads to the House floor.

Other Education Bills Moving Forward

This week the Senate amended their version of the Kansas Promise Scholarship Act, which looks to increase student enrollment for high need career fields and work-based learning, was worked in HB 2287. This version is almost identical to what the Governor vetoed last year, but it appears this year's version is more palatable to the minority party. It is expected it will be debated next week by the full Senate next week.

SB32, a bill that authorizes school districts to pay the tuition for a student's dual or concurrent enrollment in a postsecondary educational institution and requiring a tuition waiver for foster children who are dually or concurrently enrolled, was heard on March 17th.

HB 2119 offers a voucher to eligible children's families to access funding equal to the base state aid per pupil to pay for private school tuition and other expenses. This bill incorporated the language from HB 2068, expanding tax credits for students to attend private schools and HB 2067, requiring school districts to allocate funding to ensure all students achieve specific goals. Referred to Committee of the Whole. NO CHANGE.

SB 63, a bill that expands the provision of the ACT college entrance exam and WorkKeys assessments to students enrolled in nonpublic schools, was enrolled and presented to Governor Laura Kelly on March 26th.

HB 2039 - the House approved requiring students to pass a civics test to graduate high school. The Committee on Education recommended the bill be passed on March 25th.

HB 2068 will expand the state's Tax Credit for Low Income Students Scholarship Program. Referred to the House Committee of the Whole on March 10. NO CHANGE.

Subject: Kim Gardner

Good afternoon,

This week, Missouri State Sen. Bob Onder introduced a new Amendment that would allow the Republican Governor to fire any prosecutor—an elected official chosen by the people—and hire his own replacement. The new Amendment to Senate Bill 1 comes in the wake of St. Louis Circuit Attorney Kim Gardner's historic re-election.

That is undemocratic and unacceptable!

We the people will not accept this and it will not be tolerated. Gardner was elected and there is no justifiable evidence for her to be removed from her position.

We demand that the Missouri State Legislature vote against the Amendment to Senate Bill 1, and that Governor Mike Parson, and St. Louis elected officials strongly oppose this un-democratic removal of an elected official today!

Thank you,
Karna Patel

Colleagues –

Join us as we peel back the layers of where we really stand on social, economic, racial and human justice. Are we innocent bystanders waiting for someone else to take a stand for what should be … or are we the catalysts for the change we want to see? If there were no limitations, what would your contribution to the Three Cs be? Alan Beane, Equity Consultant and CEO of GeoGrade Constructors, leads this revealing introspective. We will BE THE DIFFERENCE.

Lunch & Learn

WHEN:
Friday August 27, 2021
11:30am-12:30pm

THE 3 CS:
CHOICE | CHANCE | CHANGE

"There is no path to justice that is only comfortable and convenient. We will not create justice until we're willing to position ourselves in uncomfortable places and be a witness (for change)." Bryan Stevenson, Founder - Equal Justice Initiative

Alan Beane, CEO of GeoGrade, leads this revealing self-assessment of where we really stand on the need for change. If we really want to advocate for justice ... if we want to move toward justice ... if we want to implement action toward justice, we must make a conscious CHOICE to give unadulterated justice a CHANCE.

Otherwise, nothing will ever CHANGE.

LUNCH IS ON US. LEARNING IS ON YOU.
For more lunch details, please contact Melisa Moore at melisa.moore@millstoneweber.com

- WHERE:
  - Zoom Weblink and Call-In from the Innovation Conference Room
- ZOOM INFO IN E-MAIL

about the presenter

ALAN BEANE is the Owner and President of GeoGrade Constructors LLC, a developer, builder and construction management firm with offices in Portland, Oregon and Columbus, Ohio. Alan has over 25 years of experience in the construction industry and has worked in a variety of roles: in the field as a craftsperson and field engineer, in the office as project and construction manager and on the owner's team in design/build contract management. For the past 10 years, Alan has distinguished himself as a developer, contractor and Disadvantaged Business Enterprise (DBE) consultant. Alan regularly presents webinars and training seminars, most notably for the five-state USDOT Central Region Small Business Transportation Resource Center in Little Rock, Arkansas. An alumnus of The Ohio State University, Alan studied surveying and civil engineering and continually upgrades his knowledge of entrepreneurship and business development through advanced training disciplines. A staunch advocate for diversity, equity and inclusion, his passion is to help other businesses grow and to grow with them and the communities they serve.

Dear Chairman Eggleston and House Rules-Administrative Oversight Committee Members,

Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) urges you to oppose HJR 11, which would permanently take away the option for law enforcement to utilize sobriety checkpoints to stop drunk and drugged driving.

According to preliminary data from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration for the first nine months of 2020, traffic fatalities increased by 5 percent even though the number of vehicle miles traveled decreased by 15 percent. (NHTSA, 2020) This increase in carnage on our roadways is one the biggest hikes in a generation. Now is not the time to decrease traffic safety enforcement by banning a tool that is proven to stop drugged and drunk driving.

HJR 11 bans sobriety checkpoints, which are protected by the Constitution and used by law enforcement in 37 states. Since 2017, the Missouri General Assembly has prohibited the use of federal traffic safety dollars for sobriety checkpoints. HJR 11 goes one step further by banning checkpoints altogether.

Sobriety checkpoints are a valuable tool for law enforcement. Checkpoints not only catch drunk and drugged drivers, but also deter impaired driving. Sobriety checkpoints can help law enforcement find and charge those endangering public safety.

As a result, people who have been or plan to drink may choose not to drive because the enhanced enforcement increases their fear of arrest. In a comprehensive study, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) found that well-publicized sobriety checkpoints decrease alcohol-related crashes and fatalities by more than 20 percent. The CDC looked at a variety of cities, counties and states in both urban and rural areas and found conclusively that sobriety checkpoints work in reducing alcohol-related fatalities.

Sobriety checkpoints do not inconvenience drivers and only require the amount of time it takes at a stop light for law-abiding people. More importantly, checkpoints save lives.

MADD urges you to oppose HJR 11 and allow law enforcement to conduct sobriety checkpoints. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact MADD Director of Field of Operations Meghan Carter at Meghan.Carter@madd.org or 314-426-1595. Enclosed is more information on sobriety checkpoints. Thank you in advance for your consideration of this request.

Sobriety Checkpoints

Sobriety Checkpoint Quick Facts

1. Vehicles are stopped in a specific sequence such as every other vehicle or every fourth, fifth or sixth vehicle.
2. Checkpoints are typically publicized in advance and signs are posted at the approaches to the checkpoints warning drivers that a checkpoint is ahead.
3. Police must have a reason to believe the driver stopped at a checkpoint has been drinking before a breath test can be conducted.
4. If the checkpoints are conducted properly, cars are pulled over at random according to their order in the sequence which diminishes the possibility of racial profiling.
5. Law-abiding people are sent on their way within minutes.
6. The average stop time is about the length of a cycle at a stop light.
7. The primary goal of a sobriety checkpoint is not to arrest people, but rather to deter people from committing DUI.
8. Sobriety checkpoints help stop drunk drivers who would likely remain under the radar.
9. The publicity of checkpoints reminds people who drink that drinking and driving don't mix.
10. Research shows that for every dollar invested in checkpoints, communities save between $6 and $23 in costs from alcohol-related crashes.
11. The annual cost of alcohol-related crashes to society is over $132 billion.
12. Research shows that checkpoints, if done correctly, can be effective with as few as three to five officers.

High Visibility Drunk Driving Crackdowns

MADD supports twice-yearly drunk driving crackdowns and heightened law enforcement before high-risk periods – Labor Day and the December holidays.

Saturation Patrols and Sobriety Checkpoints

A saturation patrol is a concentrated enforcement effort that targets impaired drivers by observing moving violations such as reckless driving, speeding and aggressive driving among other things.

A saturation patrol is generally spread over a larger geographic area than a sobriety checkpoint.

Sobriety checkpoints are a technique where law enforcement officials evaluate drivers for signs of alcohol or drug impairment at specific points on the roadway.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Q&A on Sobriety Checkpoints

What are sobriety checkpoints?
Sobriety checkpoints are a law enforcement technique where law enforcement officials evaluate drivers for signs of alcohol or drug impairment. Vehicles are stopped in a specific sequence (e.g., every other vehicle or every fourth vehicle).

Is that legal/constitutional?
The Supreme Court ruled in Michigan v. Sitz that sobriety checkpoints are constitutional because the small inconvenience that drivers face is overwhelmed by a compelling state interest in saving lives.

How effective are sobriety checkpoints?
Right now, only one arrest is made for every 88 episodes of driving over the illegal limit. Thus, having concentrated enforcement can help apprehend drunk drivers and deter those who hear about the checkpoints from driving under the influence. The Centers for Disease Control studied sobriety checkpoints and found numerous studies that show they can reduce alcohol-related crashes and fatalities by 18-24 percent.

Won't this cost state and local governments a lot of money?
Actually, there are significant cost savings from high-visibility enforcement. In addition, most sobriety checkpoints are preformed through the use of federal grant dollars aimed at preventing drunk driving. One study found that there was an average cost savings of $50,000 per checkpoint, including over $3,000 in medical costs. Others have found that checkpoints save between six and 23 dollars for every dollar invested. The annual cost of drunk driving related crashes to society is over $130 billion.

Don't saturation patrols, or roving patrols, get more arrests than sobriety checkpoints?
Sobriety checkpoints have a higher visibility and raise the perceived risk of getting caught more than roving patrols or saturation patrols. This means they deter more people from committing the crime of drunk driving and thus save more lives. Sobriety checkpoints have a strong deterrent effect, which means that they may yield fewer arrests because they are doing what they are supposed to do – prevent people from committing the crime in the first place. Sobriety checkpoints are similar to a security checkpoint at the airport--they are done for the safety of everyone and they don't take much time.

Won't checkpoints cause a backlash against law enforcement?
A 2010 Study published in the USA Today by Center for Excellence in Rural Safety at the University of Minnesota showed 82 percent approval for sobriety checkpoints. Studies have found 90 percent approval ratings for sobriety checkpoints after checkpoints have begun, meaning that support won't trail off – it will grow.

What is the difference between saturation patrols, sobriety checkpoints and roving patrols?

- ► Sobriety checkpoint: law enforcement evaluates drivers for signs of alcohol or drug impairment at certain points on the roadway. Vehicles are stopped in a specific sequence, such as every other vehicle or every fourth, fifth or sixth vehicle. Sobriety checkpoints must display warning signs to motorists. Police must have a reason to believe the driver stopped at a checkpoint has been drinking before a breath test can be conducted.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

► Saturation patrol: concentrated enforcement effort that targets impaired drivers by observing moving violations such as reckless driving, speeding, aggressive driving, and others. A saturation patrol is generally spread over a larger geographic area than a sobriety checkpoint.

► Roving patrol: an enforcement effort that targets impaired drivers by observing moving violations such as reckless driving, speeding, aggressive driving, and others. Not necessarily enhanced.

Aren't roving patrols/saturation patrols more targeted and successful at catching the higher-risk drivers with BAC's twice the illegal limit of .08? Checkpoints are stationary and drunks find their way around them.
The point of a checkpoint is to deter primarily and to enforce the law when required. Sobriety checkpoints are higher visibility and raise the perceived risk of getting caught more than do roving patrols or saturation patrols. This means they deter more people from committing the crime of drunk driving and thus save more lives.

Don't checkpoints target social drinkers?
No. Checkpoints target the general population…anyone driving. If someone is driving impaired, law enforcement will test them and enforce the law. If someone is not driving impaired and has not broken any laws, their stop will be minimal and they will be on their way. Checkpoints reduce alcohol-related traffic crashes when they are frequent, and highly publicized. They deter people from driving impaired.

What States Currently Prohibit Sobriety Checkpoints?

- Idaho
- Iowa
- Michigan
- Minnesota
- Oregon
- Rhode Island
- Texas
- Washington
- Wisconsin
- Wyoming
- Alaska and Montana choose not to conduct sobriety checkpoints.
- Missouri limits allocation of federal funding of sobriety checkpoints to $1.

INDEPENDENT AUDITOR'S REPORT

To the Board of Directors of Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority
Jefferson City, Missouri:

We have audited the accompanying financial statements of the business-type activities of the Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority (the "Authority"), a component unit of the State of Missouri, as of and for the year ended June 30, 2021, and the related notes to the financial statements, which collectively comprise the Authority's basic financial statements as listed in the table of contents.

Management's Responsibility for the Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America; this includes the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor's Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free from material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements.

American Institute of Certified Public Accountants ⁜ Missouri Society of Certified Public Accountants ⁜

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-002215

We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinions.

Opinion

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the business-type activities of the Authority as of June 30, 2021, and the respective changes in financial position and cash flows thereof for the year then ended in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

Other Matters

Required Supplementary Information

Accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America require that the Management's Discussion and Analysis, the Schedule of Authority's Proportionate Share of the Net Pension Liability – MOSERS, the Schedule of Authority Contributions – MOSERS, the Schedule of the Authority's Proportionate Share of the Net OPEB Liability – MCHCP, and the related Notes to Required Supplementary Information, as listed in the table of contents, be presented to supplement the basic financial statements. Such information, although not a part of the basic financial statements, is required by the Governmental Accounting Standards Board, who considers it to be an essential part of financial reporting for placing the basic financial statements in an appropriate operational, economic, or historical context. We have applied certain limited procedures to the Required Supplementary Information in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, which consisted of inquiries of management about the methods of preparing the information and comparing the information for consistency with management's responses to our inquiries, the basic financial statements, and other knowledge we obtained during our audit of the basic financial statements. We do not express an opinion or provide any assurance on the information because the limited procedures do not provide us with sufficient evidence to express an opinion or provide any assurance.

Supplementary Information

Our audit was conducted for the purpose of forming opinions on the financial statements that collectively comprise the Authority's basic financial statements. The Supplementary Information, as listed in the table of contents, is presented for purposes of additional analysis and is not a required part of the basic financial statements.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Statement of Net Position by Program and the Statement of Revenues, Expenses, and Changes in Net Position by Program are the responsibility of management and were derived from and relate directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the basic financial statements. Such information has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the basic financial statements and certain additional procedures, including comparing and reconciling such information directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the basic financial statements or to the basic financial statements themselves, and other additional procedures in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. In our opinion, the Statement of Net Position by Program and the Statement of Revenues, Expenses, and Changes in Net Position by Program are fairly stated, in all material respects, in relation to the basic financial statements as a whole.

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

(Unaudited)

Introduction

This management's discussion and analysis of the financial performance of Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority (the "Authority") provides an overview of the Authority's financial activities for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2021. It should be read in conjunction with the accompanying financial statements of the Authority.

The financial statements of the Authority are being prepared in accordance with the Governmental Standards Board (GASB) Statement of Accounting Standards No. 34, Basic Financial Statements – and Management's Discussion and Analysis – for State and Local Governments

The Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority (MASBDA) purpose is to promote the development of agriculture and small business and to reduce, control, and prevent environmental damage in Missouri by providing additional sources of financing.

Program Highlights

Following is a description of activities for the various programs offered by the authority.

Animal Waste Treatment System Loan Program

Loans can be made to livestock producers for up to 10 years at fixed interest rates (currently at 5.02%). A total of $500,000 has been set aside for the Animal Waste Treatment System Loan Program. There were no loans approved this fiscal year.

Beginning Farmer Loan Program

Beginning farmers can receive loans from commercial lenders with a reduced interest rate through this program. The reduced rates are made possible by tax-exempt bonds issued by MASBDA and sold to commercial lenders. More than $53 million in beginning farmer loans has been approved by MASBDA since its inception. During this past year, $506,292.16 in tax-exempt bonds were issued.

Down Payment Loan Program

The loans assists lenders and qualified borrowers in the purchase of agricultural property by providing down payment financing. The loans can be used in conjunction with other MASBDA programs and non MASBDA programs. The maximum loan amount is 30% of the purchase price or $200,000, whichever is the lesser. The current interest rate is 3.25%. Four (4) loans totaling $306,650 was approved this fiscal year.

Biofuel Infrastructure Program

The Biofuel Infrastructure Program was authorized by the Authority near the end of fiscal year 2020. This program provides cost-share payments of 25% of a participant's required cash match under the USDA HBIIP program, not to exceed $200,000 per entity, with a total program allocation of $2,000,000. Funding for the program came from a transfer from the Agricultural Product Utilization Contributor Tax Credit Program fund. This is a one-time program (maximum allocation of $2,000,000) with activity beginning during the year ended June 30, 2021. Eight (8) grants were awarded this fiscal year totaling $488,529.

Missouri Value-Added Grant Program

The grants help producers fund feasibility studies, business plans, marketing plans and similar activities for projects that add value to agricultural products and will positively impact a rural Missouri community. Twenty-one (21) grants were awarded this fiscal year totaling $1,663,222.50.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Missouri Value-Added "Farm to Table" Grant Program

The grants provide funding to small businesses for resources to access and process locally grown agricultural products for use in institutions within the state. One (1) grant was awarded this fiscal year totaling $115,000.

Missouri Value-Added Loan Guarantee Program

This program provides up to a 50% first-loss guarantee on loans not to exceed $250,000 that lenders make for the purpose of an agricultural business development loan. There were no guarantees approved this fiscal year.

Single-Purpose Animal Facilities Loan Guarantee Program

The guarantee provides banks and other lenders with a 50% first-loss guarantee on loans made to independent livestock producers of up to $250,000 for up to 10 years. There were no guarantees issued this fiscal year.

Agricultural Product Utilization Contributor Tax Credit

The contribution will be used for financial or technical assistance to rural agricultural business concepts as approved by the authority. More than $32.1 million in agricultural product utilization contributor tax credits have been issued by MASBDA since its inception. A total of $6 million is allocated each fiscal year to the New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credit and Agricultural Product Utilization Contributor Tax Credit Programs. Credits not issued by May 1 to an eligible new generation cooperative or processing entity as New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credits may be issued to contributors as Agricultural Product Utilization Contributor Tax Credits. These tax credits will sunset on December 31, 2021. This fiscal year $151,075.46 in contributions were received with thirteen (13) tax credits being issued in the amount of $146,325.46.

New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credit

The purpose of this new tax credit is to induce private investment by farmers in new generation cooperatives, which will process Missouri agricultural commodities and agricultural products into value-added goods, provide substantial benefit to Missouri's agricultural producers, and create jobs for Missourians. A total of $6 million is allocated each fiscal year to the New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credit and Agricultural Product Utilization Contributor Tax Credit Programs. Credits not issued by May 1 to an eligible new generation cooperative or processing entity as New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credits may be issued to contributors as Agricultural Product Utilization Contributor Tax Credits. These tax credits will sunset on December 31, 2021. Five hundred ninety-nine (599) tax credits were issued this fiscal year for a total of $3,406,311.34.

Eligible Facility Borrower Program

This program determines eligibility for the BIG Missouri Linked Deposit Program as an "Eligible facility borrower", which is either a development facility or renewal fuel production facility borrower consisting of not less than twelve producer members in which producer members:

1. Hold a majority of the governance or voting rights of the entity and any governing committees;
2. Control the hiring and firing of management; and
3. Deliver agricultural commodities or products to the entity for processing, unless processing is required by multiple entities;

Family Farm Breeding Livestock Loan Program

The program provides Missouri tax credits to lenders in lieu of the first year interest being paid on breeding livestock loans made to "small farmers" who are Missouri residents and who have less than $250,000 in gross agricultural product sales per year.

Maximum eligible loan cannot exceed 90% of the cost of purchasing breeding livestock. Each small farmer shall be eligible for only one family farm livestock loan per immediate household family and only one type of livestock. Nine (9) farmers have taken advantage of this program this fiscal year, with a total of $24,209.88 in tax credits being issued.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Meat Processing Facility Investment Tax Credit Program

The Meat Processing Facility Investment Tax Credit was enacted to stimulate investment in the meat processing industry in Missouri and to capture more value added agricultural inputs in the state. Meat processing facilities located in Missouri that construct, improve, or acquire buildings, facilities, or equipment used exclusively for meat processing after January 1, 2017 are eligible for a Missouri tax credit equal to 25% of the costs of the project. The total amount of tax credits that any taxpayer may claim shall not exceed $75,000 per year. A total of $2 million in tax credits are available per calendar year, subject to budgetary constraints, for Qualified Beef Tax Credit Program and Meat Processing Facility Investment Tax Credit program combined. This program's expiration date of December 31, 2021 was not extended during the 2021 Legislative Session, so only expenditures incurred up to that date are eligible for a tax credit. Fifteen (15) tax credits were issued this fiscal year totaling $829,675.76.

Qualified Beef Tax Credit Program

The program provides an incentive for Missouri farmers to background and/or finish cattle in the state who add a minimum of 100 pounds of gain past an established baseline weight. The program provides a 10 cents per pound tax credit for each pound of gain for cattle weighting 599 lbs or less; or a 25 cents per pound tax credit for each pound of gain for cattle weighing 600 lbs or more. All cattle must be born and raised in the state of Missouri to receive the tax credit. Maximum amount of tax credit issued per year is $15,000 per farmer. A total of $2 million in tax credits are available per calendar year, subject to budgetary constraints, for Qualified Beef Tax Credit Program and Meat Processing Facility Investment Tax Credit program combined. There were no tax credits issued this fiscal year due to the program is not authorized in FY20. The House Budget Committee on May 18, 2018, stating that no credits are approved for Qualified Beef, pursuant to Section 135.679, RSMo, for any tax year beginning on or after July 1, 2018 and on or before June 30, 2019. This has been extended out to June 30, 2022 and the program will expire on December 31, 2021.

Missouri Dairy Revitalization Act of 2015

The Missouri Dairy Revitalization Act authorizes an annual appropriation from general revenue into the Missouri Dairy Industry Revitalization Fund, created by the passage of House Bill 259 during the 2015 Missouri legislative session. Moneys appropriated from the general revenue fund shall not exceed forty percent (40%) of the estimated sales tax revenue generated in the state from the sale of dairy products during the preceding fiscal year, and shall be expended in the following order of priority:

First, to the Dairy Producer Margin Insurance Premium Assistance Program which $660,000 was appropriated. This program assisted Missouri dairy farmers with the cost of participation in the federal Margin Protection Program created in the federal Farm Bill of 2014. This program allowed Missouri dairy farmers who participated in the federal margin protection program to apply to MASBDA for reimbursement of up to 70 percent of their federal premium. This was a one-time program that was completed prior to fiscal year 2019.

Second, to the Missouri Dairy Scholars Scholarship Program to encourage more young people to pursue careers in agriculture in Missouri. In fiscal year 2019, there was $40,000 appropriated for a total of 8 scholarships in the amount of $5,000 each to be awarded. The recipients had to be an eligible student in an agriculture-related degree program at a two-year or four-year college or university in Missouri who have, or will, complete a dairy-related internship and make a commitment to work in the agriculture industry in Missouri as a condition of receiving such scholarship. No scholarship funds were appropriated in fiscal year 2021, so no scholarships were awarded.

Third, to the Commercial Agriculture Program at the University of Missouri, subject to appropriation, for activities authorized in the Missouri Dairy Revitalization Act. No funds appropriated in FY 2021.

Financial Highlights

- Operating revenue for Fiscal Year 2021 is $ 501,795
- Operating expense for Fiscal Year 2021 is $ 2,273,082

Using This Annual Report
The Authority's financial statements consistent of three statements – a statement of net position; a statement of revenues, expenses and changes in net assets; and a statement of cash flows. These statements provide information about the activities of the Authority.

The Statement of Net Position, Statement of Revenue, Expenses, & Changes in Net Assets
One of the most important questions asked about the Authority's finances is "Is the Authority as a whole better or worse off as a result of the year's activities?" The Statement of Net Position and the Statement of Revenues, Expenses and Changes in Net Assets reports information about the Authority's resources and its activities in a way that helps answer this question. These statements include all restricted and unrestricted assets and all liabilities using the accrual basis of accounting. Using the accrual basis of accounting means that all of the current year's revenues and expenses are taken into account regardless of when cash is received or paid.

These two statements report the Authority's net asset, and changes in them. The Authority's total net assets – the difference between assets and liabilities – are one measure of the Authority's financial health.

The Statement of Cash Flows
The Statement of Cash Flows reports cash receipts, cash payments and net changes in cash and cash equivalents resulting from four defined types of activities. It provides answers to such questions as where did the cash come from, what was the cash used for and what was the change in cash and cash equivalents during the reporting period.

The Authority's Net Assets
The Authority's net assets are the difference between its assets and liabilities and are reported in the Statement of Net Position as shown in Table 1.

Changes in the Authority's Net Assets
In fiscal year 2021, the Authority's net assets decreased by $1,742,004 or (13.38)%, as shown in Table 2. The change was due mainly to the decrease in the amount of Value-Added Grants awarded, the decrease of Agricultural Product tax credit sales caused by the change in federal tax laws in 2018 and the decrease in market value on investments.

NOTE 1 – NATURE OF OPERATIONS AND SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES:

Reporting Entity

The Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority (the "Authority") was created by Missouri State Law in 1981. Its governing body consists of members who are residents of this State and are appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Authority is included as a component unit of the State of Missouri (the "State"). The accompanying financial statements include the transactions of all funds under the management and control of the Board of Directors. The Authority oversees the following programs:

Programs

Beginning Farmer Loan Program

The Authority is authorized to issue bonds to finance agricultural development loans for property acquisitions and renovations throughout the State to qualified beginning farmers.

Animal Waste Treatment System Loan Program

The Authority administers the Animal Waste Treatment System Loan Program ("AWT") as a cooperative venture of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources ("Missouri DNR"), the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the Missouri Clean Water Commission, and the Authority.

It is funded through the Missouri State Revolving Fund from the sale of water pollution control bonds and federal capitalization grants.

The purpose of the AWT is to finance animal waste treatment systems for independent livestock and poultry producers below conventional interest rates.

Qualified Beef Tax Credit

The program provides an incentive for Missouri farmers to background and/or finish cattle in the State who add a minimum of 100 pounds of gain past an established baseline weight. The program provides a 10 cents per pound tax credit for each pound of gain for cattle weighting 599 lbs. or less; or a 25 cents per pound tax credit for each pound of gain for cattle weighing 600 lbs. or more. All cattle must be born and raised in the State to receive the tax credit. Maximum amount of tax credit issued per year is $15,000 per farmer. Pursuant to Section 135.679 RSMo, new Qualified Beef Tax Credits have not been authorized by the House Budget Committee since the Authority's fiscal year ended June 30, 2019. It is uncertain whether these tax credits will be authorized in the future.

Programs (Continued)

New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credit Program

The purpose of this tax credit is to induce private investment by farmers in new generation cooperatives, which will process Missouri agricultural commodities and products into value-added goods, provide substantial benefit to Missouri's agricultural producers, and create jobs for Missourians.

Agricultural Product Utilization Contributor Tax Credit Program

Contributions received for tax credits issued are used for financial and technical assistance to rural agricultural business concepts as approved by the Authority. More than $32.2 million in agricultural product utilization contributor tax credits have been issued by the Authority since the program's inception.

Single-Purpose Animal Facilities Loan Guarantee Program

The Authority also oversees the Single-Purpose Animal Facilities Loan Guarantee Program ("SPAF") by administering the "Single-Purpose Animal Facilities Loan Guarantee Fund," which is a fund established by the state treasury consisting of money appropriated to it by the general assembly to provide a 50% first-loss guarantee on loans up to $250,000, that banks and other lenders may make to independent livestock producers to finance breeding or feeder livestock, land, buildings, facilities, equipment, machinery, and animal waste systems used to produce poultry or other livestock.

Eligible Facility Borrower Program

This program determines eligibility for the Missouri Linked Deposit Program as an "Eligible Facility Borrower," which is either a development facility or renewal fuel production facility borrower consisting of not less than twelve producer members in which the producer members hold a majority of voting rights, control management, and deliver agricultural commodities or products to the entity for processing.

Family Farm Breeding Livestock Loan Program

This program provides Missouri tax credits to lenders in lieu of the first year interest being paid on breeding livestock loans made to "small farmers" who are Missouri residents and who have less than $250,000 in gross agricultural product sales per year.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Missouri Value-Added Grant Program

This program assists producers in adding value to agricultural products and developing projects that will positively impact a rural Missouri community. The Value-Added Grant helps producers fund feasibility studies, business plans, marketing plans, and similar planning activities. The Value-Added Farm to Table Grant provides funding to small businesses for resources to access and process locally grown agricultural products for use in institutions within the State.

Missouri Value-Added Loan Guarantee Program

This program provides up to a 50% first-loss guarantee on loans, not to exceed $250,000 that lenders make for the purpose of an agricultural business development loan.

Missouri Agricultural and Energy Saving Team – A Revolutionary Opportunity (MAESTRO)

This program provides energy audits for the farm home, farm energy management plans ("EMP"), and free technical assistance ("TA"), rebates, implementation grants, and a loan guarantee program.

Meat Processing Facility Investment Tax Credit Program

The Meat Processing Facility Investment Tax Credit was enacted to stimulate investment in the meat processing industry in Missouri and to capture more value added agricultural inputs in the State. Meat processing facilities located in Missouri that construct, improve, or acquire buildings, facilities, or equipment used exclusively for meat processing after January 1, 2017, are eligible for a Missouri tax credit equal to 25% of the costs of the project. The total amount of tax credits that any taxpayer may claim shall not exceed $75,000 per year.

Biofuel Infrastructure Program

The Biofuel Infrastructure Program was authorized by the Authority near the end of fiscal year 2020. This program provides cost-share payments of 25% of a participant's required cash match under the USDA HBIIP program, not to exceed $200,000 per entity, with a total program allocation of $2,000,000. Funding for the program came from a transfer from the Agricultural Product Utilization Contributor Tax Credit Program fund.

This is a one-time program (maximum allocation of $2,000,000) with activity beginning during the year ended June 30, 2021. Grants issued in 2021 totaled $488,529, with $48,853 of Grant Administrative Fees assessed.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Down Payment Loan Program

The Down Payment Loan Program is available to qualifying Missouri producers to assist them in securing a loan from a participating lender, either by providing the full down payment, or supplementing the down payment amount available. A qualified borrower can borrow up to the lesser of 30% of the purchase price, or $200,000, for various agricultural project expenses. This program may be used in conjunction with other Authority programs and non-Authority programs.

Accounting and Reporting Policies

The Authority's financial statements are prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States ("U.S GAAP"). The Governmental Accounting Standards Board ("GASB") is responsible for establishing U.S. GAAP for state and local governments through its pronouncements (Statements and Interpretations).

Property and Equipment

Property and equipment are recorded at cost and depreciated over their estimated useful lives using the straight-line method. When assets are sold or otherwise disposed of, the cost and related depreciation are removed from the accounts, and any resulting gain or loss is included in the Statement of Revenues, Expenses, and Changes in Net Position. Costs of maintenance and repairs that do not improve or extend the useful lives of the respective assets are expensed currently.

Basis of Presentation

The operation of the Authority is considered to be an enterprise fund. Enterprise funds are used to account for operations that are (a) financed and operated in a manner similar to private business enterprises – where the intent of the governing body is that the costs (expenses, including depreciation) of providing goods and services to the general public on a continuing basis be financed or recovered primarily through user charges or (b) where the governing body has decided that periodic determination of revenues earned, expenses incurred, and/or net income is appropriate for capital maintenance, public policy, management control, accountability, or other purposes.

Measurement Focus and Basis of Accounting

The Authority reports its financial statements using the economic resources measurement focus and the accrual basis of accounting. Revenues are recorded when earned and expenses are recorded at the time the liabilities are incurred, regardless of when the cash flows take place.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

NOTE 1 – NATURE OF OPERATIONS AND SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES: (Continued)

Cash and Cash Equivalents

For the purpose of financial reporting, "cash and cash equivalents" includes all demand and savings accounts, and certificates of deposit or short-term investments with an original maturity of three months or less from the date of purchase.

Investment Securities

The Authority reports its investment securities at fair value. Fair value is the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. Interest income is recorded on the accrual basis. Realized gains and losses on the sale of investments are determined using the specific-identification method. Changes in the fair value of investments are reported in the Statement of Revenues, Expenses, and Changes in Net Position.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Net Position

Net position is displayed in the following components:

Restricted Net Position – Consists of net position that is legally restricted externally by creditors, contributors, laws or regulations, or internally by enabling legislation.

Unrestricted Net Position – Consists of net position that does not meet the definition of restricted net position.

Restricted Assets

Certain proceeds of the programs are classified as restricted assets on the Statement of Net Position because their use is limited by applicable program activities.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

NOTE 1 – NATURE OF OPERATIONS AND SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES: (Continued)

Classification of Revenues and Expenses

Revenues and expenses are classified as operating or non-operating. Under the Authority definition:

"Operating Revenues" represent fees for management and marketing services, processing applications, and providing management services.

"Operating Expenses" represent costs that support economic development activities.

All revenues and expenses not meeting these definitions are reported as non-operating revenues (expenses).

Compensated Absences

Under the terms of the Authority's personnel policy, employees are granted annual leave and sick leave in varying amounts, based on length of service. In the event of termination or separation, an employee is generally paid for accumulated annual leave up to 240-336 hours (depending on the length of service). Unused accumulated annual leave totaled $16,508, and is included in Accrued Payroll and Annual Leave as of the year ended.

Unpaid sick leave can be converted to retirement credit upon retirement. Retiring employees receive an additional month of credited service for every twenty-one days of accumulated sick leave on the date of termination. Credited service is used to calculate retirement benefits administered by the Missouri State Employees' Retirement System ("MOSERS"), but is not paid to employees on termination and, accordingly, is not accrued in these financial statements.

Pensions

For purposes of measuring the net pension liability, deferred outflows of resources and deferred inflows of resources related to pensions, and pension expense, information about the fiduciary net position of MOSERS and additions to/deductions from MOSERS' fiduciary net position have been determined on the same basis as they are reported by MOSERS. For this purpose, benefit payments (including refunds of employee contributions) are recognized when due and payable in accordance with the benefit terms. Investments are reported at fair value.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

NOTE 2 – CASH AND CASH EQUIVALENTS:

Cash and cash equivalents include all restricted and unrestricted checking and money market accounts, and certain certificate of deposit accounts meeting the definition of a cash equivalent ("deposits"). Certificates of deposit not meeting the definition of cash and cash equivalents are reported as investments. The carrying amount of deposits totaled $2,394,599, and the bank balance totaled $2,417,609, as of the year ended. Cash held by the State for certain program operations in the amount of $54,871, is also included in cash and cash equivalents for a total financial statement balance of $2,449,670, as of the year ended.

Balances reported above are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation ("FDIC") and/or are covered by pledged securities as of the year ended.

NOTE 3 – DEPOSITS AND INVESTMENTS:

Deposits

Custodial credit risk is the risk that in the event of a bank failure, a government's deposits may not be returned to it. The Authority's deposit policy for custodial credit risk requires compliance with the provisions of Missouri State law.

Missouri State law requires collateralization of all deposits with federal depository insurance, bonds and other obligations of the U.S. Treasury, U.S. agencies, or Missouri municipal securities which qualify as acceptable collateral to secure political subdivision deposits as required by Section 30.270 RSMo.

Investments

The Authority may legally invest in direct obligations of and other obligations guaranteed as to principal by the U.S. Treasury, U.S. agencies, and instrumentalities.

The Authority has adopted GASB Statement No. 72, Fair Value Measurement and Application. The statement establishes a hierarchy of inputs to valuation techniques used to measure fair value:

- Level 1: Quoted market prices in active markets
- Level 2: Inputs other than quoted market prices that are observable either directly or indirectly
- Level 3: Unobservable inputs

Investments (Continued)

The Authority has investments in securities that are measured at fair value on a recurring basis in the financial statements. The Authority uses a three-level hierarchy for determining fair value and a financial asset or liability classification within the hierarchy is determined based on the lowest level of input that is significant to the fair value measurement. The following table presents the financial assets that the Authority measured at fair value:

		Level
	Total	1	2	3
Certificates of Deposit	$ 2,980,415	$ 2,980,415	$ -	$ -
U.S. Agency Securities	6,185,495	6,185,495	-	-
	$ 9,165,910	$ 9,165,910	$ -	$ -

The Authority's cash and investments are subject to several types of risk, which are examined in more detail below.

Interest Rate Risk – Interest rate risk is the risk that the value of investments will decrease as a result of a rise in interest rate. The Authority manages its exposure to declines in fair values by only investing in obligations that return the initial purchase price and earned interest. As of the year ended, the Authority had the following investments and maturities:

		Investment Maturities (in Years)
Type of Investment	Fair Value	Less Than 1	1 – 5	6 – 10	More Than 10
Investments:
U.S. Agency Securities	$ 100,253	$ 100,253	$ -	$ -	$ -

Credit Risk – In accordance with its investment policy, the Authority only invests in those specified securities noted as the following investment types: (a) United States Treasury securities, (b) United States Agency securities, (c) repurchase agreements, (d) collateralized public deposits (certificates of deposit), and (d) commercial paper.

Concentration of Credit Risk – The Authority, in conjunction with their investment advisor or its successor, shall maintain prudent investment strategies, monitor market conditions, and adjust the portfolio within the established investment guidelines to take advantage of market conditions to increase return and/or reduce risk.

Custodial Credit Risk – Investments – The Authority requires all investments be fully secured by pledged collateral held in its name or by the FDIC.

NOTE 4 – RESTRICTED ASSETS:

The Authority is required to maintain a reserve account for the AWT Loan Program in the amount of the lesser of 7.5% of the outstanding principal balance or $100,000. As of the year ended, the Authority held $268,399, as restricted cash and investments for this purpose. The required reserve as of the year ended was $8,114.

Under the MAESTRO Program, a loan guarantee reserve is required to be maintained for the amount of outstanding loan guarantees. The Authority held $50,548 as restricted cash at year end. The required reserve at year end was $0. (See further discussion in NOTE 10).

All proceeds from the Contributor Tax Credit Program are required to be used to award grants to applicants. As of the year ended, the Authority had a combination of cash, investments, and accrued interest receivable totaling $6,780,309, available to provide future program grants.

The Authority transferred $2,000,000 from the Contributor Tax Credit Program to the Down Payment Loan Program during June 30, 2019. The Authority's Down Payment Loan Program assists lenders and qualified borrowers in the purchase of agricultural property, machinery, equipment, livestock, etc. by providing down payment financing. The initial money transferred is restricted for use in program activities. There have been no additional transfers to date.

Interest income, fees and principal repayments are not restricted and are available for administrative and operational costs. As of the year ended, the Authority had a combination of cash, investments, interest receivable, and notes receivable totaling $2,012,064. Accordingly, $1,615,350 is included in Restricted Net Position and $396,714 is included in Unrestricted Net Position.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

NOTE 5 – NOTES RECEIVABLE:

Notes receivable consisted of the following as of the year ended:

	Animal Waste Treatment Loan Program	Down Payment Loan Program
Notes Receivable - Current	$ 21,344	$ 14,774
Notes Receivable - Long Term	76,781	363,967
Subtotal Notes Receivable	98,125	378,741
Less: Allowance for Uncollectible Accounts	-	-
Net Notes Receivable	$ 98,125	$ 378,741

Allowances are reported when it is probable the accounts will be uncollectible. As of the year ended, no allowance for doubtful accounts has been provided, as management has determined such amounts to not be material.

NOTE 6 – LONG-TERM DEBT:

Bonds Payable

The Authority authorized issuance of Industrial Development Revenue Bonds in the amount of $506,292, as of the year ended through the Beginning Farmer Loan Program. Bonds issued by the Authority are non-recourse obligations and do not constitute an indebtedness of the Authority or a charge against its general credit or general fund. In addition, these bonds do not constitute a debt, liability, or obligation of the State. The Authority received a participation fee totaling $7,848, during the year ended, for administration of the bonds issued.

NOTE 6 – LONG-TERM DEBT: (Continued)

Notes Payable – DNR

The Authority is obligated to the Missouri Department of Natural Resources for repayment of loans made through the AWT Loan Program. These loans have varying interest rates and maturity dates.

Debt service requirements subsequent to year end are as follows:

Year Ended	Principal	Interest	Total
2022	$ 10,490	$ 1,489	$ 11,979
2023	10,692	1,340	12,032
2024	10,897	1,189	12,086
2025	11,107	1,034	12,141
Thereafter	65,006	2,793	67,799
Total	$ 108,192	$ 7,845	$ 116,037

Interest expense totaled $1,635, for the year ended.

During the fiscal year ended, the Authority entered into a Loan Program Participation Agreement with the Department of Natural Resources authorizing the Authority to borrow an amount not to exceed $500,000 to fund the Authority's Loan Fund to finance projects. The Authority is required to establish the following funds when they draw on the loan:

- Animal Waste Treatment System Loan Fund
- Animal Waste Treatment System Administrative Fund
- Animal Waste Treatment System Reserve Fund
- Animal Waste Treatment System Debt Service Fund

No amounts have been drawn on this loan as of the year ended, or through the date of this report.

NOTE 7 – SPAF LOAN GUARANTEE FUND:

As described in Note 1, the Authority administers the SPAF Loan Program, which provides a 50% first-loss guarantee on loans to independent livestock producers up to $250,000 each.

The State Treasury has established the SPAF Loan Program consisting of money appropriated by the General Assembly to fund the reserve for the guarantees. The funds come from the State and the State bears all liability for the loans. The Authority is only the administering agent, which earns a .5% annual fee on the outstanding loans on their anniversary date.

As of the year ended, the outstanding loan balance is $246,019, of which the State guarantees $123,009. The Authority earned $1,369 in guarantee fees, and $0 in participation fees during the year ended.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

NOTE 8 – VALUE-ADDED LOAN GUARANTEE PROGRAM:

As described in Note 1, the Authority administers the Value-Added Loan Guarantee Program, which provides a 50% first-loss guarantee on loans up to $250,000.

The State Treasury has established the "Value-Added Fund," consisting of money appropriated by the General Assembly to fund the reserve for the guarantees. The Authority is only the administering agent, which earns a one-time, 1% participation fee on new loans. The Authority earned $0 in participation fees during the year ended.

As of the year ended, the outstanding loan balance was $155,708, of which $77,854, was guaranteed by the State. The Authority earned $779, in guarantee administration fees during the year ended.

NOTE 9 – VALUE-ADDED GRANT PROGRAM:

As described in Note 1, the Authority administers the Value-Added Grant Program, which provides grants for projects that boost local economies by adding value to agricultural products, and the Farm to Table Grant that provides funding to small businesses for resources to access and process locally grown agricultural products for use in schools within the State. Money for these grants is from the sale of Agricultural Product Utilization Contributor Tax Credits and the grants are administered by the Authority. The Authority awarded $1,838,223, in grants and earned $172,011, which is included in grant administration fees as of the year ended.

NOTE 10 – MAESTRO PROGRAM:

As described in Note 1, the Authority administered the MAESTRO Program. Money for this program was derived from Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grant funds received through the Missouri Department of Agriculture (the "MDA").

Included in the MAESTRO program was a loan loss reserve program whereby lenders making an approved eligible energy efficient loan could receive a 75% loan guarantee on loans not to exceed $50,000. This program has been completed. As of the year ended, the outstanding loan balances were $0, which means there is no longer an amount guaranteed by the Authority.

During the year ended, the Authority received approval of a request to repurpose the MAESTRO funds to set up a competitive grant program to benefit school districts with agriculture programs in the State of Missouri, to be administered by the MDA. The Authority plans to transfer the MAESTRO funds to the MDA once the program becomes active. Because of COVID complications, the start date of this new program was delayed beyond June 30, 2021.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

NOTE 11 – RISK MANAGEMENT:

The Authority is exposed to various risks of loss related to torts; theft of, damage to, and destruction of assets; business interruptions; errors and omissions; natural disasters; employee injuries and illnesses; and employee health and accident benefits. Commercial insurance coverage is purchased for claims arising from such matters other than employee health benefits. Settled claims have not exceeded this commercial coverage in any of the three preceding years.

NOTE 12 – CONTINGENCIES:

Grant Audit – The Authority receives federal and state grants and funding for specific purposes that are subject to review and audit. These reviews and audits could lead to requests for reimbursement or to withholding of future funding for expenditures disallowed under or other noncompliance with the terms of the grants and funding. The Authority is not aware of any noncompliance with federal or state provisions that might require the Authority to provide reimbursement.

Litigation – Various claims and lawsuits are possible against the Authority. In the opinion of the Authority's management, the potential loss on all claims and lawsuits will not be significant to the Authority's financial statements.

Tax Credits – New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credit, Agricultural Product Utilization Tax Credit, and Meat Processing Facility Investment Tax Credit Programs all sunset December 31, 2021.

The MASBDA board has contingently approved eight producer-led new generation cooperative projects, with a tax credit allocation of $9,680,705.52. Any contingently approved New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credit Project that does not complete their equity drive by December 31, 2021, has the potential to lose producer investment due to the uncertainty of the program. Meat processors planning expansions based on the Meat Processing Facility Investment Tax Credit program may delay those projects until the tax credits are renewed, impacting Missouri's meat processing capacity.

NOTE 13 – PROPERTY AND EQUIPMENT:

Property and equipment consist of the following for the year ended:

Equipment	$ 7,475
Vehicles	48,177
	55,652
Accumulated depreciation	(28,846)
Total property and equipment	$ 26,806

Depreciation expense was $8,789 for the year ended.

NOTE 14 – PENSION PLANS:

General Information about the Pension Plan

Plan Description. Benefit eligible employees of the Authority are provided with pensions through Missouri State Employees' Retirement System ("MOSERS"). The Missouri State Employees' Plan ("MSEP") is a cost-sharing multiple-employer defined benefit public employee retirement plan administered by MOSERS. The plans are referred to as MOSERS in the notes. Section 104.320 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri grants the authority to establish a defined benefit plan for eligible state and other related agency employees. MOSERS issues an annual Comprehensive Annual Financial Report ("CAFR"), a publicly available financial report that can be obtained at www.mosers.org.

Benefits Provided. MOSERS provides retirement, disability, and life insurance benefits to eligible employees. The base retirement benefits are calculated by multiplying the employee's final average pay by a specific factor multiplied by the years of credited service. The factor is based on the specific plan in which the employee participates, which is based on the employee's hire date. Information on the three plans administered by MOSERS (MSEP, MSEP2000, and MSEP2011 retirement plans) and how eligibility and the benefit amount is determined for each plan may be found in the Notes to the Financial Statements of MOSERS' CAFR starting on page 31.

Contributions. Per Section 104.436 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, contribution requirements of the active employees and the participating employers are established and may be amended by MOSERS' Board of Trustees. Employees in the MSEP2011 Plan are required to contribute 4.0 percent of their annual pay. The Authority's required minimum contribution rate for the year ended, was 21.77 percent of annual payroll, actuarially determined as an amount that, when combined with employee contributions, is expected to finance the costs of benefits earned by employees during the year, with an additional amount to finance any unfunded accrued liability. Contributions to the pension plan from the Authority were $47,921, for the year ended.

Pension Liabilities, Pension Expense, Deferred Outflows of Resources, and Deferred Inflows of Resources Related to Pensions

Net Pension Liability. As of the year ended, the Authority reported a liability of $618,762, for its proportionate share of the net pension liability. The net pension liability was measured as of June 30, 2020, and the total pension liability used to calculate the net pension liability was determined by an actuarial valuation as of that date. The total pension liability was offset by the fiduciary net position obtained from MOSERS' CAFR as of June 30, 2020, to determine the net pension liability.

The Authority's proportionate share of the net pension liability was based on the Authority's actual share of contributions to the pension plan relative to the actual contributions of all participating employers for MOSERS' plan year ended June 30, 2020. At the June 30, 2020 measurement date, the Authority's proportion was 0.0098 percent, an increase from its proportion measured using 0.0095 percent as of the June 30, 2019, measurement date.

Pension Liabilities, Pension Expense, Deferred Outflows of Resources, and Deferred Inflows of Resources Related to Pensions (Continued)

Net Pension Liability (Continued). There were no changes in benefit terms during the MOSERS plan year ended June 30, 2020, that affected the measurement of total pension liability.

Actuarial assumptions. The total pension liability in the June 30, 2020 actuarial valuation, which is also the date of measurement for GASB 68 purposes, was determined using the following actuarial assumptions, applied to all periods included in the measurement:

Inflation	2.25%
Salary Increases	2.75% to 8.25% including inflation
Wage Inflation	2.25%
Investment Rate of Return	6.95%, compounded annually, net after investment expenses, including inflation

The actuarial assumptions used in the June 30, 2020 valuation were based on the results of an actuarial experience study for the period July 1, 2010 to June 30, 2015. In addition, the investment return assumption was reduced from 7.10% to 6.95% for the June 30, 2020 valuation. Other assumption changes were increases in price inflation, payroll and wage growth assumptions and the cost-of-living adjustment assumption.

Mortality. Mortality rates for post-retirement mortality are based on the RP-2014 Healthy Annuitant mortality table, projected from 2006 to 2026 with Scale MP-2015 and scaled by 120%. The pre-retirement mortality table used is the RP-2014 Employee mortality table, projected from 2006 to 2026 with Scale MP-2015 and scaled by 95% for males and 90% for females.

Long-Term Expected Rate of Return. The long-term expected rate of return on pension plan investments was determined using a building-block method in which best-estimates rates of expected future rates of return (expected returns, net of pension plan investment expense and inflation) are developed for each major asset class. These ranges are combined to produce the long-term expected rate of return by weighting the expected future rates of return by the target asset allocation percentage and by adjusting for expected inflation, volatility, and correlations. Best estimates of the real rates of return expected for both the old and new portfolio are summarized by asset class in the tables below.

Discount rate. The discount rate used to measure the total pension liability was 6.95 percent. The projection of cash flows used to determine the discount rate assumed that contributions from participating employers will be made using the actuarially determined rates. Based on those assumptions, MOSERS' fiduciary net position was projected to be available to make all the projected future benefit payments of the current plan members. As a result, the long-term expected rate of return on pension plan investments of 6.95% was applied to all periods of projected benefit payments to determine the total pension liability.

Sensitivity of the Authority's proportionate share of the net pension liability to changes in the discount rate. The table below presents the Authority's proportionate share of the net pension liability calculated using the discount rate of 6.95 percent, as well as what the Authority's proportionate share of the net pension liability would be if it were calculated using a discount rate that is 1-percentage-point lower (5.95 percent) or 1-percentage-point higher (7.95 percent) than the current rate:

	1% Decrease (5.95%)	Current Discount Rate (6.95%)	1% Increase (7.95%)
Authority's Proportionate Share of the Net Pension Liability	$ 774,779	$ 618,762	$ 487,540

Pension plan fiduciary net position. Detailed information about the pension plan's fiduciary net position is available in the separately issued MOSERS financial report.

Pension Expense. As of the year ended, the Authority recognized pension expense of $86,051.

Payables to the pension plan. As of the year ended, the Authority did not report any payables to MOSERS.

NOTE 15 – OTHER POST-EMPLOYMENT BENEFITS:

Plan Description. The Missouri Consolidated Health Care Plan ("MCHCP" or the "Plan") operates a cost-sharing multiple employer, defined benefit Other Post-Employment Benefits Plan ("OPEB"), the State Retiree Welfare Benefit Trust ("SRWBT"). Authority employees may participate at retirement if eligible to receive a monthly retirement benefit from either the Missouri Employees' Retirement System ("MOSERS") or another retirement system whose members are grandfathered for coverage under the Plan by law. The terms and conditions governing postemployment benefits, are vested with the MCHCP Board of Trustees within the authority granted under Section 103 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri (2000) as amended ("RSMo") 103.003 through 103.178. The SRWBT does not issue a separate stand-alone financial report.

Financial activity of the SRWBT is included in MCHCP's comprehensive annual financial report as a fiduciary fund and is intended to present only the financial position of the activities attributable to the SRWBT. Additionally, MCHCP is considered a component unit of the State of Missouri reporting entity and is included in the State's financial report.

The Plan's financial statements are available on MCHCP's website at www.mchcp.org/aboutUs/annualReport.asp

Plan Membership. The SRWBT was established and organized on June 27, 2008, pursuant to the Revised Statutes of Missouri (2000) as amended ("RSMo") 103.003 through 103.178 to provide health and welfare benefits for the exclusive benefit of current and future retired employees of the State and their dependents who meet eligibility requirements, except for those retired members covered by other OPEB plans of the State. MCHCP's three medical plans offer the same, basic coverage such as preventative care, freedom to choose care from a nationwide network of primary care providers, specialists, pharmacies and hospitals, usually at a lower negotiated group discount and the same covered benefits for both medical and pharmacy. Benefits are the same in all three plans, other aspects differ such as premiums, deductible and out of pocket costs. Retiree benefits are the same as for active employees. At the participant census date of July 1, 2020, membership information consisted of the following:

Active employees – 38,895
Participants and Spouses in Payment Status – 21,323
Participants with a deferred benefit – 75
Disabled participants – 76

Summary of Significant Accounting Policies. Employers participating in the Plan are required to report information about OPEB in their financial statements for the fiscal periods beginning on or after June 15, 2017, in accordance with Governmental Accounting Standards Board (GASB) Statement 75, Accounting and Financial Reporting for Post-Employment Benefits Other than Pensions.

Summary of Significant Accounting Policies (Continued). The requirements of GASB Statement 75 incorporate provisions intended to reflect the effects of transactions and events related to OPEB in the measurement of employer liabilities and recognition of expense and deferred outflows of resources and deferred inflows of resources related to OPEB.

Basis of Accounting and Presentation. The SRWBT financial statements are prepared using the accrual basis of accounting, in accordance with GAAP. Employer contributions are recognized as revenue when due and payable. Benefits are recognized when due and payable in accordance with the terms of the Plan.

Allocation Methodology. In determining the proportionate share allocation, GASB Statement 75 requires the basis for each employer's proportionate share be consistent with the determination of the OPEB contributions. Utilizing the required employer OPEB contributions based upon reportable compensation during the fiscal year was determined by management to be an appropriate allocation methodology. Each employer's proportionate share allocation is determined by dividing each employer's required contributions to the SRWBT during the measurement period by the percent of contributions required from all applicable employers during the measurement period.

Contributions. Contribution requirements are established, and may be amended, by the MCHCP Board of Trustees with the authority granted under Section 103 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri (2000) as amended ("RSMo") 103.003 through 103.178. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 2020, the Authority was required to contribute a percentage of gross active payroll toward their required contributions, for the payroll periods ended, as follows:

- 4.40% for the periods July 1, 2019 through December 31, 2019,
- 4.65% for the periods January 15, 2020 through April 1, 2020,
- 4.02% for the periods April 15, 2020, through June 1, 2020,
- 3.41% for the periods June 1, 2020, through June 30, 2020.

Contributions to the Plan from the Authority were $8,547, as of the year ended.

Net OPEB Liability, OPEB Expense, Deferred Outflows of Resources, and Deferred Inflows of Resources Related to OPEB

As of the year ended, the Authority reported a liability of $210,179, for its proportionate share of the net OPEB liability. The net OPEB liability was measured as of June 30, 2020, and the total OPEB liability used to calculate the net OPEB liability was determined by an actuarial valuation as of that date.

The Authority's proportion of the net OPEB liability was based on the Authority's actual share of contributions to OPEB relative to the actual contributions of all participating employers for the Plan year ended June 30, 2020. At the June 30, 2020 measurement date, the Authority's proportion was 0.0118 percent.

There were no changes in benefit terms during the Plan's plan year ended June 30, 2020, that affected the measurement of total OPEB liability.

For the year ended June 30, 2021, the Authority recognized OPEB expense of $14,385. As of the year ended, the Authority reported deferred outflows of resources and deferred inflows of resources related to OPEBs from the following sources:

	Deferred Outflows of Resources	Deferred Inflows of Resources
Differences Between Expected and Actual Experience	$ 8,665	$ 2,109
Changes of Assumptions	-	14,611
Net Difference Between Projected and Actual Earnings on Investments	577	-
Changes in Proportion, and Differences Between Fund Contributions and Proportionate Share of Contributions	7,902	2,796
Authority Contributions Subsequent to the measurement Date of June 30, 2020	8,925	-
Total	$ 26,070	$ 19,516

The $8,925, reported as deferred outflows of resources related to OPEB resulting from the Authority contributions subsequent to the measurement date, will be recognized as a reduction of the net OPEB liability in the year ended June 30, 2021.

Other amounts reported as deferred outflows of resources and deferred inflows of resources related to OPEB will be recognized in future years' OPEB expense in the Authority's fiscal year following the Plan's fiscal year as follows: The components of collective deferred outflows of resources and deferred inflows of resources are amortized into OPEB expense beginning the year in which the difference occurs. Deferred inflows and outflows, except for the change in proportion, are allocated based on each employer's proportionate share of contributions for the fiscal year. The difference between expected and actual investment earnings on OPEB plan investments is amortized as a component of OPEB expense over 5 years on a straight-line basis, while the differences between expected and actual experience and changes in assumptions are amortized as a component of OPEB expense over the expected average remaining service lifetime ("EARSL") of all participants (8.40 years for the measurement period June 30, 2020).

Deferred inflows and outflows related to the change in proportion used for allocation purposes from one fiscal year to the next are estimated by reallocating beginning balances using the ending allocation percentage and amortizing the difference over the EARSL as a component of OPEB expense. The remaining unamortized deferred inflows and outflows are reported in the Schedule of OPEB Amounts by Employer. Each year's layer of deferred inflows and outflows retains its original calculated EARSL. The cumulative amounts of collective net deferred outflows of resources and deferred (inflows) of resources will be recognized in OPEB expense as follows:

Plan Year
2022	$ (905)
2023	(902)
2024	(971)
2025	(997)

Actuarial Assumptions. Actuarial valuations for the Authority involve estimates of the value of reported amounts and assumptions about the probability of occurrence of events far into the future. The valuation to determine the Authority's total OPEB liability is required to be performed at least every two years. The SRWBT valuation is performed annually, but should the valuation not be performed as of the fiscal year end, the total OPEB liability is required to be rolled forward from the actuarial valuation date to the SRWBT plan's fiscal year end. Projections of benefits for financial reporting purposes are based on the substantive plan (the plan as understood by the employer and plan members) and include the types of benefits provided at the time of the valuation and the historical pattern of sharing of benefit costs between the employer and plan members to that point. The actuarial methods and assumptions used include techniques that are designed to reduce the effects of short-term volatility in actuarial liabilities and the actuarial value of assets, consistent with the long-term perspective of the calculations. The collective total OPEB liability for the June 30, 2020 measurement date was determined by an actuarial valuation as of July 1, 2019, with updated procedures used to roll forward the total OPEB liability to June 30, 2020. This actuarial valuation used the following actuarial assumptions:

Valuation Year	July 1, 2019 - June 30, 2020
Actuarial Cost Method	Entry age normal, level percentage of payroll
Asset Valuation Method	Market value
Discount Rate	4.38%
Projected Payroll Growth Rate	4.0%
Inflation Rate	3.0%

Change in Assumptions and Methods since Prior Valuation. The discount rate was changed to 4.38% from 5.24%. The expected return on asset assumption was changed from 5.50% to 4.50%.

Long-Term Expected Rate of Return. The target allocation and best estimates of arithmetic real rate of returns for each major asset class are listed below:

Asset Class	Target Allocation	Expected Real Rate of Return
Large cap stocks	17.0%	8.5%
Mid cap stocks	6.0%	8.8%
Small cap stocks	7.0%	8.8%
International Stocks	4.0%	8.9%
BarCap Aggregate bonds	64.0%	2.4%
Cash equivalents	2.0%	2.1%

Discount rate. A discount rate of 4.38% was used to measure the total OPEB liabilities. The projection of cash flows used to determine the discount rate assumed that contributions from plan members will be made at the current member contribution rates and the contributions from employers will be made at statutorily required rates, actuarially determined. This discount rate was determined as a blend of the best estimate of the expected return on plan assets and, the 20-year high quality municipal bond rate as of the measurement date. For years where expected benefit payments can be covered by projected trust assets, expected returns are used. For years where payments are not expected to be covered by trust assets, the municipal Bond Buyer 20-Bond General Obligation Index rate is utilized.

Sensitivity of the Net OPEB Liability to Changes in the Discount Rate. As required by GASB Statement No. 75, the following table presents Authority's net OPEB liability, calculated using a discount rate of 4.38%, as well as what the net OPEB liability would be if it were calculated using a discount rate that is one percent lower or one percent higher:

	1% Decrease (3.38%)	Current Discount Rate (4.38%)	1% Increase (5.38%)
Authority's Proportionate Share of the Net OPEB Liability	$ 251,915	$ 210,179	$ 177,479

	1% Decrease in Trend Rates	Current Trend Rates	1% Increase in Trend Rates
Authority's Proportionate Share of the Net OPEB Liability	$ 176,882	$ 210,179	$ 252,708

If you're like most companies, you struggle with earning and maintaining customer loyalty in a marketplace where customers' demands are high, but their attention is scarce and choice is abundant. Likewise, consumers increasingly say that they are challenged to find businesses that are worthy of their repeat business, with only 14% identifying as truly loyal to the brands the interact with most often. The answer to both challenges lies in understanding the difference between customer experience – what is happening today --- and loyalty experience, which asks "What is going to happen tomorrow?"

In this session, Chapman & Co. explores this critical shift in perspective – one that is the key to unlocking massive pent up "latent loyalty" -- by exploring:

- Where most customer experience and loyalty strategies fall short
- The number one mistake most companies are making today with their customer data
- What the field of behavioral science has revealed about how to create more sustainable customer connection
- The advantages of shifting your customer conversation from rationale to relational
- Brand new survey data on the untapped connection between your employee culture and your customers' loyalty
- How your internal culture (employee experience) impacts your customer experience and resulting customer loyalty

11:00 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. Open Networking
All guests and new members are accompanied by one of our friendly ambassadors to introduce and connect them with others in the room. We look forward to welcoming you at our luncheon.

Subject: Missouri Bicentennial Activities

Dear Members of the General Assembly,

Missouri Statehood Day marks an important milestone of 200 years since the Missouri Territory became the 24th state to enter the Union. On Tuesday, August 10, 2021, there will be several events hosted by the Missouri Bicentennial Commission to celebrate our state's Bicentennial year.

Tuesday, August 10 – Statehood Day

Official Commemoration Ceremony of the Missouri Bicentennial
When: 9:00 - 10:30 a.m.
Where: State Capitol - South Lawn

Naturalization Ceremony
When: 10:45 - 11:45 a.m.
Where: State Capitol - First Floor Rotunda

Bicentennial Tree Dedication
When: 1:30 - 2:00 p.m.
Where: State Capitol - Southeast Grounds

Bicentennial Ice Cream Social
When: 2:00 p.m.
Where: Central Dairy - Jefferson City, MO

For any questions or concerns regarding Statehood Day events, please contact Donna English with the Bicentennial Commission at donna@capconllc.com.

Following Statehood Day, Governor and First Lady Parson will be holding an additional celebration on Saturday, September 18, 2021.

The Bicentennial Inaugural Parade will celebrate the swearing-in of Missouri's elected officials from this year's Bicentennial Inauguration as well as highlight the history and significance of all 114 counties across the state of Missouri. The Bicentennial Inaugural Ball will be held that evening outside following the parade at the Missouri State Capitol. The Bicentennial Inaugural Parade and Ball will be a historic day to enjoy with friends and families.

We hope that you will be able to join us at the following events:

Saturday, September 18th – Bicentennial Inaugural Parade and Ball

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Bicentennial Inaugural Parade - Showcasing Missouri's past, present, and future

When: 10:00 a.m.
Where: Jefferson City, MO

Legislators are encouraged to represent the history of their respective constituencies by partnering with an existing group or creating their own float. The parade entry form can be found here. All entries are due by August 15, 2021.

Bicentennial Inaugural Ball

When: 6:30 p.m. (Grand March begins)
Information on lineup time and logistics will be provided closer to the event.*
Where: State Capitol - North Portico and Lawn

The Bicentennial Inaugural Ball will take place on the Capitol's North Portico and Lawn. The evening begins at 6:30 p.m. with the Grand March, where all legislators and their immediate family members are invited to participate. Formal invitations from the Bicentennial Inaugural Committee for the Ball will be sent to your home address soon. Knowing elected officials will want to send their own invitations to family, friends, and supporters, the Bicentennial Inaugural Committee has provided a digital copy of the invitation (attached to this email) to assist with the ease and continuity of the ordering process.

All guests who plan to attend the Bicentennial Inaugural Ball are asked to RSVP by September 1, 2021, using the information below. The Bicentennial Inaugural Ball is open to the public and the RSVP process takes less than two minutes to complete at MovingMOForward.com/Ball.

We recognize that legislators may choose to host guests in their offices on the night of the Bicentennial Inaugural Ball. Below is specific information related to the delivery of food and beverage that will be important to share with vendors you contract with for such services. All food and beverage deliveries are asked to be made on Saturday, September 18, 2021 between 4 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. via the East Entrance to the Capitol. Missouri State Highway Patrol and Capitol Police will be on site to assist with the flow of traffic as well as provide security. Please be sure each of your vendors are aware of the office number to which food and beverage should be delivered.

Light hors d'oeuvres and beverages will be available to guests at the Bicentennial Inaugural Ball.

Additional information and the link to RSVP can be found here. For further questions regarding the Bicentennial Inaugural Parade and Ball contact Bicentennial@governor.mo.gov or kelli.jones@governor.mo.gov.

We look forward to seeing you in Jefferson City to help us celebrate 200 years of Missouri history.

Omnibus education bill emerges in Missouri

Lawmakers returned to Jefferson City to work on budget bills ar

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Lawmakers returned to Jefferson City to work on budget bills and a few select priorities this week. However, their agenda quickly expanded into a lengthy list of omnibus bills totaling more than 1,700 pages, along with many smaller pieces of legislation.

Senate Education heard nine bills in committee this week. Aligned offered testimony in support of SB 582, which is Senator Lauren Arthur's bill to allow school districts and charters to receive state formula funding for students who are taking competency-based credits. Arthur testified that with this approach, students are "much more engaged" and says, "every student has an opportunity and expectation of mastery." Chairman Cindy O'Laughlin described the legislation as a "great idea". Senator Ed Emery added, "It's not about how long you are in the seat; it's about what you learn in the seat."

According to the U.S. Department of Education, "By enabling students to master skills at their own pace, competency-based learning systems help to save both time and money. Depending on the strategy pursued, competency-based systems also create multiple pathways to graduation, make better use of technology, support new staffing patterns that utilize teacher skills and interests differently, take advantage of learning opportunities outside of school hours and walls, and help identify opportunities to target interventions to meet the specific learning needs of students."

The House Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education met on Thursday to review SB 528 (Cunningham), which is the education omnibus bill for 2020. The underlying bill directs the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) to transfer any excess foundation formula funds to the school transportation fund. Chairman Chuck Basye offered a house committee substitute that included 12 additional provisions, and committee members added another 11 amendments.

Omnibus bills face several hurdles to become law. Generally lawmakers must remove controversial language to get the consensus needed to survive the conference committee process. Also, putting too many items in one bill increases the risk for a gubernatorial veto and/or a Hammerschmidt challenge in court. This stems from the 1994 court case, Hammerschmidt v. Boone County, which gives courts the power to throw out bills that have more than one subject.

Our team combed through this year's education omnibus and created two tables that provide a breakdown of every priority lawmakers agreed to include. Below you will find the House provisions that were included in the committee substitute for SB 528. We also identify all the House Committee Amendments (HCA) that members voted to adopt. Those provisions were rolled into another committee substitute and approved. The bill will now go to the Committee on Rules for consideration.

Aligned worked to include in this omnibus bill language to expand the visiting scholars program which will give all school districts the ability to hire subject-matter experts to teach in limited capacity positions in high schools. This was is an Aligned priority for 2020.

Conventional wisdom says not to include controversial language in omnibus bills. However, there were a few concerns raised during this week's discussion

However, there were a few concerns raised during this week's discussion.

Republican Representative Phil Christofanelli said, "I think this bill has gotten too big and is trying to do too many things and so I don't know I want to be part of that but insofar my virtual language is part of that I would like it to reflect the most recent version through the legislature."

Alluding to the fact that the scope of session expanded past the budget and a coronavirus response, Democratic Ranking Member Judy Morgan commented, "Nothing in these bills relates to COVID 19."

SB 528 (Cunningham) - The Education Omnibus

In the table below, we identify the original bill number that contains the language added to the omnibus. We also show the votes in the original committee vote, the rules committee vote and the floor vote where applicable.

Lawmakers mark up appropriation bills for FY21

This week the Missouri House passed its version of the state's $34 billion budget for FY21, trimming $700 million in spending from the Governor's recommendations, which is $146 million less than what was included in the FY20 budget.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-002281

The House fully funded the state's foundation formula, which is the aid calculation designed to meet the state adequacy target of $6,375 per-pupil. However, lawmakers did not accept the Governor's recommended formula increases of $10 million to K-12 and $2 million for Pre-K.

Other notable cuts include $7 million from the core transportation funding and a 10 percent overall reduction to higher education. The House also cut $10 million in general revenue funding and $10 million in federal funds ($20 million total) from the state's child care subsidy program.

The Senate Appropriations Committee met today to mark up the House budget bills. The Senate accepted the House position on the foundation formula but restored transportation cuts using funding from the Governor's Emergency Education Relief (GEER) Fund, which comes from the CARES Act.

In the higher education budget, Senator Lauren Arthur moved to restore $800,000 of House cuts to the A+ Schools program, and Senator Dan Hegeman moved to restore $1 million from the $2.5 million in House cuts to the Access Missouri financial assistance program.

And in breaking news, the Senate Appropriations committee restored the House cuts to the Child Care Subsidy program late Friday afternoon.

Will Congress narrow the digital divide?

As Continuous Learning takes place online across Kansas, there are roughly 70,000 students without reliable access. Even with robust continuous learning plans in place, they are worthless without home internet connectivity. Under the coined name, The Homework Gap, advocates have asked Congress to consider a $4 billion bill to support increased availability to broadband service for all public-school students.

Fall school start date in limbo

On Thursday, April 30th, Governor Laura Kelly presented her detailed plan to reopen Kansas via a televised address. Kelly's framework, "Ad Astra: A Plan to Reopen Kansas," which provides details for a phased-in reopening of the state and offers local flexibility to communities. The guidelines to reopen K-12 facilities are subject to the provisions of Executive Order 20-07 regarding school closures.

Highlights include:

Phase 1 - May 4th
K-12 - Fewer than 10 students/instructors/staff
Higher Ed - Fewer than 10
Licensed Childcare - continue operations

Phase 2 - May 18th
K-12 - Fewer than 30 students/instructors/staff
Higher Ed - Fewer than 30
Licensed Childcare - continue operations

Phase 3 - June 1st
K-12 - Fewer than 90 students/instructors/staff
Higher Ed - Fewer than 90
Licensed Childcare - continue operations

Phase Out - June 15th
Social distancing encouraged

During an Axios virtual event last Thursday, Governor Kelly was asked whether students would follow the regularly scheduled school start date in the fall of 2020. She responded that it was "way too early to call."

Teacher Appreciation Month

Do you have a few minutes to make sure teachers know they are appreciated?

The COVID-19 pandemic has been the single most significant disruption to education in generations. Yet, educators across our country are rising to meet these challenges, navigating unexpected obstacles, and persisting to reach and connect with their students.

Each year, Educators for Excellence celebrates May as Teacher Appreciation Month -- an opportunity to recognize excellent educators and the fantastic work they do. This year, honoring teachers is more important than ever. That's why we are launching #SendTeachersLove -- a social media campaign to show educators across our country how much they are appreciated, valued, and loved, especially during this time of crisis.

Participating is simple. Create a post that shares why you appreciate teachers. It can be a teacher you had, one of your kids', or simply just acknowledging all educators. To spice it up, consider recording a video of yourself, posting a photo of a thank you note, or including a picture of the teacher(s) you're celebrating. Then, post it on your social media platforms using the hashtag #SendTeachersLove.

Will you help us #SendTeachersLove by committing to post on your social media platforms between May 1-6, 2020?

Check out our digital toolkit, which has some post examples.

While social media posts aren't enough to celebrate the tremendous and valuable work teachers do - especially right now - your efforts will let them know how much they are appreciated.

Aligned welcomes new board member

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Last week we welcomed Andrea Sellers, a partner at Stinson, LLC, to the Aligned board of directors. Sellers works in the Intellectual Property & Technology practice group, where she co-chairs the Agribusiness and Animal Health & Nutrition industry groups. A registered patent attorney, Andrea counsels clients in the chemical, biosciences, and animal health fields on strategies for developing, protecting, and licensing their intellectual property assets.

Andrea received her B.S. in Agricultural Biochemistry from Iowa State University in 1994 and her J.D. from the University of Iowa College of Law in 1997. Andrea spent three years away from Stinson serving as Associate General Counsel of the Ewing Marion Kauffman Foundation, and General Counsel of the Kauffman Innovation Network, where she was involved with the foundation's efforts to advance university innovation. She also is active in the KCADC Animal Health Corridor, serving on the selection committee and as a coach for the Animal Health Investment Forum.

With a strong commitment to community service, Andrea volunteers her time as a judge with the Greater Kansas City Science & Engineering Fair and as an application reviewer for KC Scholars. She also provides pro bono services for the Midwest Innocence Project, Military Matters, and the non-partisan Election Protection Hotline.

Andrea is a member of the 2019-2020 class of Kansas City Tomorrow.

Reminders

The Missouri legislative session ends on May 15th. We are working hard to follow many moving pieces while maintaining our distance from the Capitol. As always, let us know if you have any questions.

1) OPPOSE House Joint Resolution 57. Why knee-cap such a large number of people you represent by supporting this?
2) DUMP Todd Graves. His background screams of conflict of interest and under the table dealings. Don't you agree?
3) OPPOSE House Bill 26. Once again, Jefferson City GOP politicians are disenfranchising Missouri voters.

Update on HB 126 – "Missouri Stands for the Unborn Act"

Missouri Right to Life Thanks Attorney General Eric Schmitt for Standing for Life as he fights for the right to life of ALL unborn children.

On April 13, the Sixth Circuit Court Upheld Ohio's Law Protecting Unborn Babies with Down Syndrome to protect unborn children with a pre-natal Down Syndrome diagnosis.

On April 14 Missouri Attorney General Eric Schmitt released the following statement and filed a Rule 28(j) letter with the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals citing this decision and seeking to uphold a provision in Missouri's HB 126 which passed in 2019.
https://ago.mo.gov/home/news/2021/04/14/missouri-attorney-general-praises-sixth-circuit-decision-to-uphold-ohio-law-protecting-unborn-babies-with-down-syndrome-diagnosis

Following is a summary of the provisions of HB 126 that Missouri Right to Life fought so hard to put into statute. HB126 as amended has multiple provisions including:

- A "new version" of the heartbeat bill noting stages of development at 8, 14 & 18 weeks gestational age with severability clauses at each step.
- The Pain-Capable Unborn Child Protection Act, which bans abortion at 20 weeks when unborn children are capable of feeling pain. The Pain-Capable Unborn Child Protection Act is in effect in 16 other states.
- The "Right to Life of the Unborn Child Act," a "trigger ban" on all abortions in Missouri contingent upon the overturning of Roe v. Wade.
- A requirement that the second custodial parent be notified when a minor seeks an abortion.
- A ban on abortions for race, gender, or a Down Syndrome diagnosis.
- An increase in the medical malpractice insurance requirements for those performing or inducing abortions, bringing it in line with medical standards for other surgical procedures.
- A requirement that abortion facilities and family planning agencies provide Missouri's printed informed consent information to a woman if they refer her to an out-of-state abortion facility.

The language of HB126 as amended reflects the scientific truth of the humanity of the unborn child. HB126 is life-saving legislation.

Please pray for our Attorney General and his staff of Attorneys as they fight for the innocent baby in the womb and as they fight to defend the life-saving legislation of HB 126.

Ranking Member Luetkemeyer and Rep. Donalds Urge Investigation into Planned Parenthood PPP Loans

On April 16, 2021, House Committee on Small Business Ranking Member Blaine Luetkemeyer (R-MO) and Committee Member Rep. Byron Donalds (R-FL) sent a letter to the Department of the Treasury Secretary Yellen and Small Business Administrator Guzman urging an investigation into the millions of taxpayer dollars Planned Parenthood and its affiliates have received through Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) loans.
The PPP loans were intended for our nation's struggling small businesses, and it is inexcusable that these agencies continue to allow PPP loans for organizations that are unqualified for this funding.

Statement from Sen. Roy Blunt (R, MO): "I wholeheartedly disagree with the administration's removal of the long standing Hyde Amendment. One of the things I've had a chance to do in both House and Senate is count and I don't believe we can get a bill out of this committee without having the Hyde Amendment in that bill. It's been in the appropriation bill for 40 years, every person on this committee has voted -- who has ever voted for a final labor HHS bill has voted for Hyde since it first appeared in 1976."

SENATE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE VOTES OUT MEDICAID REIMBURSEMENT BILL WITH NO PRO-LIFE PROTECTIONS

On Thursday afternoon the Missouri Senate Appropriations Committee voted out the Federal Reimbursement Allowance (FRA) legislation with no pro-life language preventing abortion providers from receiving our public tax dollars.

It is important to note that this vote came after the public testimony of the nation's number one abortion provider, Planned Parenthood, who testified that they receive funding from the Medicaid program. With the Hyde Amendment going away in this Medicaid program, with the MO Supreme Court ruling that the legislators can no longer put pro-life protections in the budget and with the looming Medicaid Expansion court battle, it is imperative to have strong pro-life language in the FRA to prevent our public tax dollars from paying for abortions.

Planned Parenthood testified very clearly that they receive their funding from Medicaid in the larger overall program and NOT from the "Uninsured Women's Health Care Program" of Medicaid. And yet, Senate Republicans voted to push forward with the following useless language:

"A provider shall not be eligible for reimbursement under the uninsured women's health program if such provider is an abortion facility, as defined in section 188.015, or any affiliate or associate thereof."

Missouri Right to Life is asking for simple and effective pro-life language that needs to be added to statute 208.152 that reads: “provided, no funds shall be expended to any abortion facility, as defined in section 188.015 or any affiliate of associate thereof”.

Please read Missouri Right to Life testimony on SB 1, SB 2 and SB 3 before the Senate Appropriations Committee on Thursday, June 24 here: https://www.missourilife.org/wp-content/uploads/2021/06/June24_2021.pdf

Also, Missouri Right to Life has asked our statewide and federal Republican leaders to stand with pro-life Missourians to ask for strong pro-life language to prevent our tax dollars from going to abortion. Read the letter here: https://www.missourilife.org/wp-content/uploads/2021/06/MRLLetter-6-21.pdf

To date the following officials have signed on to stand up for language to prevent our public tax dollars from going for abortion:

- John (Jay) Ashcroft - Missouri's Secretary of State
- Congressman Billy Long - Congressional District 7
- Congressman Jason Smith - Congressional District 8

We will let you know when we hear from the following:

- Governor Mike Parson
- Lt. Governor Mike Kehoe
- Attorney General Eric Schmitt
- State Treasurer Scott Fitzpatrick

- Congresswoman Ann Wagner - Congressional District 2
- Congressman Blaine Luetkemeyer - Congressional District 3
- Congresswoman Vicky Hartzler - Congressional District 4
- Congressman Sam Graves - Congressional District 6

- U. S. Senator Roy Blunt
- U.S. Senator Josh Hawley

The legislature does not have to choose between getting Medicaid dollars and preventing our tax dollars from going to abortion providers, they can do both.

Missouri does not stand alone in our request to the state to prevent our tax dollars from paying for abortion. The GOP state and national platforms say that Republicans agree with Missouri Right to Life in our request to prevent our tax dollars from paying for abortion.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-002293

The Missouri Republican Party supports, "current state law preventing taxpayer money from subsidizing abortions or organizations performing abortions or making abortion referrals."

The National GOP platform says, "We oppose the use of public funds to perform or promote abortion or fund organizations, like Planned Parenthood, so long as they provide or refer for elective abortions…"

If you do not want your tax dollars going to pay for abortion, please call your State Senator and State Representative today and let them know that you stand with Missouri Right to Life (MRL) and ask them to put MRL's protective language on the Medicaid Reimbursement legislation.

Also, please call Governor Parson: 573-751-3222, Lt Governor Kehoe: 573-751-4727, Attorney General Eric Schmitt: 573-751-3321, Secretary of State Jay Ashcroft: 573-751-2379 and State Treasurer Scott Fitzpatrick: 573-751-8533.

Weekly Update

April 2, 2021

We're official!

When Governor Mike Parson signed Executive Order 21-01 in[illegible]

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Which Governor Mike Parson signed Executive Order 21-01 in late January to create an Office of Childhood, a required 60-day "review" period started. This window would allow the General Assembly to reject the order via resolution. This week marked the end of that review period. We are thrilled to announce that plans are officially underway to consolidate programs from various state departments into one centrally-located Office of Childhood, housed in the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education.

The new office will be officially official on August 28th, 2021.

Aligned has worked behind the scenes with the Children's Trust Fund of Missouri and Kids Win Missouri to make recommendations on governance policy for early care and education.

In 2018, the Bipartisan Policy Center (BPC) conducted an in-depth analysis of early care and education systems across the United States.

Both Kansas and Missouri received among the lowest early childhood education integration scores, ranking 45th and 48th, respectively.

BPC developed a scoring methodology to evaluate program organization and integration. Specific factors considered included:

- The number of state agencies involved in administering core early care and education programs;
- Whether funding was centralized or split across state agencies;
- Where states housed child care, state Pre-K, and nutritional services;
- The institutional home of the Head Start Collaboration Office

The scoring system also looked at factors related to quality rating and improvement systems and utilization of federal matching dollars.

In 2019, both Kansas and Missouri received Preschool Development Grant funding for Birth through 5 (PDG B-5) which has allowed the states to conduct needs assessments, develop strategic plans and implement practices to improve professional development and family engagement.

It's an understatement to say that much work remains; however, Aligned is honored to be part of the team working to help advise on how to build a more substantial infrastructure for early care and education.

That said, we paused for a celebratory moment this week to acknowledge the tremendous leadership by Governor Parson and his team for having the wisdom and courage to make the Office of Childhood a reality.

Bills moving...

Real-World Learning

Senate Committee on Education heard HB 265 (Eslinger) this week, which contains many of the provisions in HB 101 (Pollitt). Aligned's Dr. Stacey Preis testified in favor and said, "We like everything included in this bill and are very pleased to see such forward-thinking ideas put together in a very thoughtful bill."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-002297

This legislation includes the following provisions:

- removes the requirement that Visiting Scholars certificate only apply to business-education partnerships and expands that to any career pathway program;
- allows schools to apply for innovation waivers;
- requires students to develop individual career and academic plans;
- requires the completion of the free application for federal student aid as a requirement of graduation;
- requires the Department of Higher Education and Workforce to establish a procedure to ease aid applications for career and technical education students;
- extends benefit protections for retired teachers employed to as a teacher shortage initiative;
- caps the number of retired teachers working for a school district.

Aligned supports expanding Visitings Scholars to apply to hard-to-staff school and hard-to-fill subject areas and will be working to have those provisions added through the amendment process.

The Senate Committee on Education will hear SB 448 (Rowden) next week, a stand-alone Visiting Scholars expansion bill that includes our priority provisions.

Early Care and Education

Three early childhood priority bills are still in the rules committees.

HB 1071 (Shields) - a bill that extends the sunset on the Quality Assurance Report remains in the committee on Rules-Legislative Oversight.

HB 973 (Shields) - a bill that increases the amount of state aid districts and charters can claim for Pre-K remains in the committee on Rules-Administrative Oversight.

HB 865 (Shields) - a bill that gives counties the authority to seek voter-approved property tax increases and establish local early childhood boards for early childhood education remains in the committee on Rules-Legislative Oversight.

Innovative Practices

HB 624 (Richey), the Show-Me Success Diploma program, also includes language to establish a competency-based task force will be heard in Senate Committee on Education on April 6th.

SB 152 (Hoskins), an education savings plan bill that includes the competency-based education grant program and task force from SB 33 and SB 34, is in the House but has not been referred to a committee.

Other education legislation

CHARTER EQUITY FUNDING: On Thursday, the Senate Committee on Education met in executive session to vote "do pass" SB 218, sponsored by Sen. Tony Luetkemeyer (R-Parkville) by a vote of 7-1. This act modifies the calculation of the amount a school district with one or more pupils attending a charter school shall pay to the charter school.

21ST CENTURY MISSOURI EDUCATION TASK FORCE: On Tuesday, the House Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education met in executive session to vote "do pass" HB 581, sponsored by Rep. Louis Riggs (R-Hannibal) by a vote of 18-1. This bill establishes the "21st Century Missouri Education Task Force". The task force's mission includes evaluation of current educational process and funding including the use of technology and artificial intelligence to improve student outcomes.

WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT IN ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION: On Tuesday, the House Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education met in executive session to vote "do pass" HB 101, sponsored by Rep. Bradley Pollitt (R-Sedalia) by a vote of 12-7. This bill provides a definition for a "school innovation team" and for a "school innovation waiver" and allows school innovation teams to submit a plan to the State Board of Education (SBOE) for a state innovation waiver for a variety of purposes as outlined in the bill.

The committee adopted a substitute that better defines the purpose of the Visiting Scholars program. The bill was referred to the House Committee on Rules-Legislative Oversight.

SPECIAL EDUCATION REQUIREMENT: On Monday, the House Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education conducted a public hearing on HB 64, sponsored by Rep. Patricia Pike (R-Adrian). This bill specifies that a school district shall submit the cost of serving any high-needs student with an IEP to DESE.

RECOVERY HIGH SCHOOLS: On Thursday, the Senate Committee on Education met in executive session and voted "do pass" SB 259, sponsored by Sen. Cindy O'Laughlin (R-Shelbina), by a vote of 8-0. Under this act, a recovery charter high school may be operated in an urban school district containing most or all of Kansas City. This act defines a "recovery charter high school" as a charter school for students in grades nine through twelve who are in recovery from substance use disorder or dependency.

Budget Update

This week the House finished crafting their version of the $34.1 billion FY 2022 budget. Below are some of the key points of the House budget.

- Fully funds the foundation formula for elementary and secondary education,
- Restores $67 million to higher education for core funding.
- MO Excels reduced by $19,247,481 as Chairman Smith indicated federal funds will be available to fund the remaining project requests.
- $2 million added to each State Tech and Missouri Southern State University's cores.
- Requires each department to report to the General Assembly if any federal grant uses more than 5% in administrative costs.
- Reduces the cost-share road program by $25 million as it has been indicted additional federal funds may be used.
- Funding to address the arrearages owed to counties for the housing and transportation of prisoners.
- 2% raise for state workers with the possibility of additional raises due to performance funding incentives.
- A rate increase for home based community services.
- A $30 million one-time funding increase for long-term facility services.

Kansas News

Legislative Update

Working at a fevered pace, the House passed 23 bills from their chamber early this week. The Senate stayed an extra day on Wednesday to pass 38 bills. Despite the short week, the legislature acted on several key measures that have dominated much of this year's discussions. This action clears the path for next week's final budget negotiations before First Adjournment (April 9th), and any potential veto overrides that typically close out the legislative session in May during the Veto Session.

Budget Crunch Time

On the last day scheduled for regular floor action, the House debated both base and school finance budgets. Much of the debate centered on more minor budget issues. However, an effort to expand Medicaid was defeated by a vote of 116-78

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REF-21-1608-F-002300

Wichita Democrat Henry Helgerson offered a surprise amendment proposing a 2% across the board cut to the State General Fund. After a short debate, the amendment passed on a voice vote. This move gives the House a stronger position when negotiations with the Senate begin next week.

Sub for House Bill 2119 narrowly passed Tuesday after a 2-hour floor debate by a vote of 65 to 58. Some call this legislation the "Frankenstein bill" because of the way lawmakers stitched the provisions together. The bill includes the following:

- reauthorizes the statewide 20-mill property tax for support of public schools;
- outlines the State Board of Education's role in distributing federal pandemic relief funding for schools;
- includes a $500 bonus for teachers from the federal COVID-19 grants to education;
- Moves the per-pupil dollar amount given to public schools into an education savings account for students to use toward private school tuition;
- limits funding for remote-learning options;
- expands school-choice options, including up to $8,000 in tax credits per student/per year applied in private education circumstances.

The House also approved HB 2397, which would cut the state budget two percent below Governor Laura Kelly's budget plan, including a two percent reduction ($48.8M) in Gannon funding that the legislature approved last year.

Two weeks ago, the Senate approved its budget bill, SB 267. This bill has been a topic of discussion among education groups as it will cut $570 million in state school aid and high-density, at-risk funding, replacing it with federal COVID-19 relief funds. Most federal funds include Title 1 requirements for disbursement, which come with some very hard and fast rules:

- Federal funds must supplement, not supplant state/local funds;
- Maintenance of Effort (MOE) is a requirement that state/local funding levels must be maintained from one year to the next;
- Comparability is to ensure that before adding federal dollars, districts must ensure comparable services across schools.

Having two different House-approved school finance plans makes it unclear how the House will negotiate with the Senate. However, it is likely all these proposals - the policies in HB 2119 and the funding in HB 2119, HB 2397 and SB 267 - will be hashed out in a conference committee and there will be further floor votes in the House and Senate on K-12 education.

Lawmakers tabled more budget items until the end of April for what is known as the Omnibus portion of the budget process. Plenty of work remains.

Bills on the move

HB2039 was voted do pass by the Senate this week, requiring students to pass a civics test before graduating high school. This bill was amended to include a provision that students would also need to take a financial literacy course for graduation. This bill will now go to the House, which previously approved the bill without amendments.

SB 91, the Real-World Learning liability bill, was blessed by leadership this week and is expected to be acted on next week.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-002301

HB 2085, the students' right to know act to provide information on postsecondary education options to better prepare students for the workforce, was passed by the Senate this week.

HB 2287, the Promise Act bill, was not acted upon this week, but it is on General Orders in the Senate next week for action.

SB 32 would allow school districts, at the discretion of the local board of education, to pay all or a portion of the costs of tuition, fees, books, materials, and equipment for any high school student who is concurrently or dually enrolled at a postsecondary educational institution (postsecondary institution). Passed by the Senate in early February, this bill was recommended do pass by the House Committee on Education. This may receive a floor vote later next week.

Aligned's 2021 Policy Priorities

Looking back on 2020

From our 2020 Annual Report...

"With the regular legislative sessions in both Kansas and Missouri cut short, we received a gift of time that allowed us to nurture and grow the relationships that sustain our organization, which is our members. We strengthened vital partnerships that will shape our work in the years to come. And we invested in programs to develop and expand our expertise."

In 2020 we achieved the following:

- Increased our business leader membership by 50 percent
- Established a St. Louis Advisory Board
- Retooled our vision and mission
- Completed a new strategic plan
- Delivered 15 presentations
- Published 21 weekly and 13 special reports
- Earned certificates in education finance from Georgetown University's Edunomics program.

Download our 2020 Annual Report here.

Have a great weekend and please let us know if you have any questions.

Subject: MO. Democracy Fails

Missouri Democracy has failed the under represented and the vulnerable of our State. The People have spoken and yet the Representatives defies the will of the People repeatedly. This is not the first time our Political Leaders have ignored the will of the People. Why even have an initiative on the ballot if politicians overturn the Majority and the Will of The People? It appears more and more obvious that Democracy no longer exist in the State of Missouri. The underserved and poor of Missouri deserve adequate healthcare, yet Missouri Politicians would turn their backs on their Constitutional responsibility to serve the People and to, as the United States Constitution calls for, "....promote the General Welfare....".

Subject: MO Budget Project Statement on Senate Bill 153

For more than two decades, lawmakers and advocates have been fighting for a state earned income tax credit that targets tax relief to low and middle-income families. And for the last 14 years, lawmakers and advocates have been working to collect sales taxes from online purchases just as they are at brick and mortar retail stores. The latest version of SB 153 achieves both of these critical public policy goals, which will make our tax code more fair and improve the lives of Missourians. While it's unfortunate that costly income tax reductions were included in the final package, we recognize the tireless work of lawmakers on both sides of the aisle who came together to create a piece of legislation we believe helps move our state forward. The Missouri Budget Project encourages lawmakers to vote yes on SB 153.

We are deeply grateful for all you do for Missouri,
Amy

Subject: MO Commission on Human Rights Commission Meeting

Dear Colleagues:

I would like to invite you to watch the quarterly meeting of the MHRC this Thursday, Sept. 23, 2021, at 1:00 p.m. by the Zoom link below.

For several years, I have been uncovering massive waste of State resources within this agency under the Dept. of Labor. I have been working with our liaison Ben Terrell, who has been keeping Director Anna Hui informed.

I feel it is important for us to do our due diligence to making sure that our State Departments are running efficiently and effectively, and this one is not. They have some very, good Commission members who have been made aware of my concerns and my goal is to help them improve service to the citizens of Missouri.

If you are able to listen in, you do not have to say anything but may be asked to identify yourself. Thank you in advance for anyone who can take the time to listen in.

Missouri River Container-on-Barge Service receives Marine Highway designation

One of six new Marine Highway Projects named nationally

JEFFERSON CITY - The Missouri Department of Transportation has received one of six Marine Highway Project designations from the U.S. Department of Transportation's Maritime Administration (MARAD) as part of the America's Marine Highway Program (AMHP). The application to initiate a container-on-barge service was developed in partnership with AGRIServices of Brunswick (ASB), the largest multimodal transportation provider on the Missouri River.

This is MoDOT's first designation and only 52 such designations have been approved since the program's inception in 2010. A Missouri Department of Agriculture grant to ASB was used to develop the application with technical support from MoDOT's Multimodal Division.

The AMHP encourages the use of America's navigable waterways for the movement of freight and people as an alternative to land-based transportation. This Container-on-Barge Project will expand options for the transportation of goods on inland waterways beginning with agricultural products at ASB in Central Missouri to international markets in the Gulf of Mexico as early as 2022. The service could then expand to other products along the Missouri River.

"Container on barge has the potential to be transformational for cost effective and efficient movement of freight, broadening the commodities that can be shipped," said Tom Waters, chairman of the Missouri Highways and Transportation Commission. "We are proud of the collaborative public-private partnership to successfully receive this designation. The more freight we can shift to the uncongested rivers, the more capacity we open on the interstates and rail lines in the state."

"It is very exciting to see an idea, which was seeded by a grant from the Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority, bring much needed additional freight capacity to our state," said Missouri Department of Agriculture Director Chris Chinn. "Our farmers and agribusinesses will be more competitive on the global market with this expanded use of the Missouri River."

Dru Buntin, director of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources concurred, "Our core mission involves promoting the use of our resources to benefit all Missourians – this project does that. It provides environmentally sound and efficient use of our waterways, and we are excited to see AGRIServices setting the example with this opportunity."

Products being transported in rail containers into the Midwest is growing rapidly. Services such as container-on-barge can use this supply of available containers to move Missouri produced goods at a low-cost and environmentally friendly method.

"Missouri's greatest competitive advantage is our location," said U.S. Sen. Roy Blunt, R-Mo. "This designation will allow our state to further capitalize on that advantage by expanding freight capacity on the Missouri River – getting more goods to more markets more efficiently."

U.S. Rep. Sam Graves, R-Mo. commented, "By containerizing grain right here in Missouri, we're opening endless opportunities to ship all sorts of consumer products in and out of our state. Congratulations to all who worked hard to secure this important designation."

"The MASBDA grant allowed us to pull together a talented team to develop this plan", said Lucy Fletcher, Business Development Manager at AGRIServices at Brunswick, "The container-on-barge service builds redundancy in the freight supply chain between the Missouri River, Norfolk Southern and highways making sure products get to market in the most cost-effective way. Each mode working together builds capacity needed for the increased freight volume anticipated in the next few years."

Representative Dogan

We are writing to you today as parents of an LGBTQ child. We raised our daughter that the values to cling to in life are those of Faith, Hope, Charity, and Love, with an emphasis on Love for everyone and everything. As our daughter grew into the beautiful, loving, and caring woman she has become, finding and marrying her partner, we witnessed many of her struggles.

My wife and I witnessed her heartbreak when close family members told her they wouldn't be together in heaven and she will burn in hell because God doesn't love homosexuals. When childhood friends and high school team mates turned their backs on her and trolled her on the internet bullying her. We saw as she was passed over for promotions as lesser qualified individuals with less seniority was advanced. We have witnessed as neighbors falsely filed complaints with law enforcement against her and my daughter-in-law, watching as the police questioned them about the false complaints while the neighbor was standing in her yard yelling disgusting, degrading, foul hate filled rhetoric at them.

Today Representative Dogan, my wife and I ask you, not only as parents and grandparents but as citizens of the State of Missouri. Please help us in fighting not just for our daughter and daughter-in-law but the fight to end discrimination of all forms. We ask you sir to please defend not only our daughters right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, but for those rights for ALL minorities so that everyone is finally seen as equals in the eyes of the law. It has been a fight for MONA for over 20 years now. We find it heartbreaking that our home state that we love is still struggling to find equality for all. We also find it disheartening that not only are some elected officials turning a blind eye to the problem of racism and discrimination that exist, but these same officials are also trying to pass laws upholding and promoting these dangerous ideals.

My wife and I ask you today to please stand up for, support, and fight for HB 275 put forth by Rep. Tom Hannegan and SB 81 put forth by Senator Greg Razer. We are also asking you to please take a stand against, and help stop the discriminating, segregating, and damaging legislature of HB 33 proposed by Rep. Suzie Pollock and HJR 53 proposed by Rep. Chuck Basye.

Representative Dogan, my wife Dawn Deaton and myself thank you for your time, your service to this district, and to the State of Missouri.

Sincerely Yours,
Mike and Dawn Deaton

Subject: More Teachers Available

Ladies & Gentlemen:

I think it might be a good idea for the State of Missouri to temporarily suspend the limits that retired teachers can work. Currently Missouri retired teachers may only teach 550 hours and not exceed 1/2 of their retirement salary.

This temporary suspension would allow for a larger pool of qualified substitutes for the public schools. It would also allow retired teachers the opportunity to provide small group or individual tutoring (via Zoom or other platform) to students that are not mastering concepts.

There is also going to be a great need when the pandemic ends (G-d willing) for students to "catch-up" to their grade level.

I have been tutoring Ozarks Technical Community College Veteran's Upward Bound students online since the middle of March 2020. I have been able to make great strides working individually with students on Algebra. I will easily "run out of hours" due to the high need. Running out of hours is not my concern. The high need is my motivation.

We cannot allow our Elementary & Secondary students or our Higher Education students to fall further behind. You could have a "quiet Army" ready to fill in if the PEERS limits were temporarily suspended.

I didn't send this to the entire committee(s), as I got tired of copying and pasting. Share with your neighbor.

Subject: My school's reopening plan IS NOT SAFE

Dear Public Leaders and Policy Makers,

I am a 15-year veteran educator of both high school and middle school students in Missouri. My district's reopening plan, which requires ALL EDUCATORS to be physically present in the classroom, puts me at great personal risk due to underlying, significant health issues. I have both a serious respiratory ailment and have a history of a significant cardiac problem which has previously resulted in hospitalization in the Coronary Care Unit for a week.

Due to my medical condition, my doctor has advised me to not teach in a physical classroom but instead teach virtually. However, due to shortsightedness on the part of my school district's board and administration, TEACHING VIRTUALLY IS NOT AN OPTION IN MY DISTRICT. As such, my school district expects me to RISK MY LIFE DUE TO MY HIGH-RISK HEALTH CONDITIONS to fulfill my teaching duties or seek unpaid leave in the unlikely event I qualify for ADA or FMLA leave. As you undoubtedly know, the latter federal options are not designed to be preventative in nature, and I most likely will not qualify for those provisions.

The result of this is that I will most likely be forced to choose my health over my salary and simultaneously lose my employer-linked health insurance for me and my daughters... in the middle of a global pandemic. Should I be forced into that position, I will seek employment in another field, and in a state where competent public health policies have been enacted.

I IMPLORE YOU to support a safe start of the school year for ALL SCHOOLS via a VIRTUAL START OF THE SCHOOL YEAR so that I need not be forced to choose risking my life for my employment. Please restore my faith in humanity.

With great sincerity,

Scott Wright

Subject: NARAL Missouri's 2021 Legislative Scorecard & an Invitation

Hello Leader,

I hope you are enjoying the post-special session summer hiatus! As you may know, every year NARAL Pro-Choice Missouri publishes a Reproductive Freedom Scorecard that scores lawmakers on their participation in the legislative session on a numerical scale with certain actions decreasing or increasing their score. This scorecard is meant to be a snapshot of the most recent legislative session and does not take into account prior legislative sessions or work.

We are thrilled to let you know that you are one of our highest scoring champions in Jefferson City and have received the grade of Reproductive Freedom Defender - a "B" on the scale.

You can find the scorecard itself attached and linked on our website, including a link to the grading rubric spreadsheet.

Access to abortion and birth control is our core mission, however we know the right to live and raise our families in health and safety takes far more than basic legal protections. During the 2021 legislative session we tracked legislation covering a range of issues that impact individual's reproductive freedom, including: access to basic healthcare, insurance coverage of birth control, protections from discrimintion based on race, gender or other held identities, and efforts to support and protect pregnant people, young people, and families across the state. After filing ended in March we provided you all with the full list of these bills– you can also find it here.

Please join us: We want to extend our sincerest gratitude to you for continuing to fight extremism in the State Capitol with an invitation to NARAL Missouri's annual membership party, this Sunday Jul 25th 1-3PM at Brick River Cider (2000 Washington Ave, St. Louis, MO 63103) in Downtown Saint Louis. Please RSVP here.

I hope you can join us to toast to Reproductive Freedom and the hard fought battles in the #MOLeg this session. If you have any questions regarding the event, the scorecard, or your score, please don't hesitate to reach out to me or NARAL MO's Political Advocacy Associate Brian Wingbermuehle (cc'd).

Hope to see you on Sunday!
Mallory

NARAL PRO-CHOICE MISSOURI

FREEDOM IS FOR EVERYBODY

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2021 LEGISLATIVE SCORECARD

At NARAL Missouri we believe that every person should be able to make personal decisions about when, whether, how, and with whom to start or grow their family, regardless of income or zip code. Reproductive freedom is for everybody. Elected officials in Missouri have a mandate to use their positions of power and leadership to protect and expand this fundamental freedom for every Missourian.

The annual Reproductive Freedom Scorecard uses a grading scale to evaluate and score lawmakers on their participation in the legislative session, with certain actions decreasing or increasing their score. The scorecard is a snapshot of the events in the 2021 session, and this year's includes an important update for the special session.

Advocates rallied in Jefferson City to pass a #CleanFRA

Legislative Update

Two years ago, Governor Mike Parson sign HB 126, a draconian ban on abortion, into law. This obsession with controlling Missourians' bodies and lives continued into the 2021 legislative session. Instead of providing COVID-19 relief, testing, and vaccination to communities struggling during the pandemic, Missouri Republicans prioritized attacking reproductive freedom. Disinformation about reproductive healthcare was perpetuated in bills that targeted trans youth, exacerbated racial disparities, banned abortion, birth control and IVF, and reduced access to healthcare for people working to make ends meet.

In June, the Missouri General Assembly went into a special session, called specifically to pass a #CleanFRA, a critical funding bill supporting nearly one million people who rely on Missouri's Medicaid program every year. NARAL Missouri champions sprung into action to fight back against extremists' efforts to redefine common birth control methods as "abortion drugs" and block people who rely on Medicaid from having access to them. We saw right through the disinformation and defeated their attacks to secure a clean FRA, and it's all thanks to you.

This was a hard-won victory, but it didn't come out of nowhere. THIS is what happens when our army of 70,000 advocates and allies in the legislature show up, speak out, and fight like hell for our fundamental freedom.

Methodology

The scoring formula is simple: Legislators receive points for voting for or sponsoring pro-reproductive freedom legislation. They lose points for voting for or sponsoring anti-reproductive freedom legislation. This year's scorecard includes additional points gained for those who used their platform and power to fight for reproductive freedom in the special session.

Protecting and expanding access to abortion is our core mission, and support for these bills are weighted more heavily on the scorecard, but we know abortion access doesn't exist in a vacuum. Access to abortion is dependent on many more factors than just legality, and the right to live in health and safety takes far more than basic legal protections. As such, we have adopted a Reproductive Justice lens to guide our work, which has become a core component of our evaluation rubric.

Reproductive Justice is the right to maintain personal bodily autonomy, decide when or whether to have children, and parent and live in safe and sustainable communities. Reproductive Justice centers the lived experiences of those who are most impacted by attacks on reproductive healthcare: Black, Indigenous, and people of color, LGBTQ+ people, immigrants, disabled people, and other historically marginalized groups.

During the 2021 legislative session we tracked legislation that goes beyond abortion access to a range of issues that impact individual's reproductive freedom, including access to basic healthcare, insurance coverage of birth control, protections from discrimination based on race, gender or other held identities, and efforts to support and protect pregnant people, young people, and families across the state.

Grading Scale

A

Reproductive Freedom Champions are on the front line of the fight for reproductive freedom. These legislators not only take the right votes, they also promote the advancement of pro-choice legislation by co-sponsoring and advancing it through committee. Champions proactively and publicly utilize their platform to speak up and push to expand reproductive healthcare access.

B

Reproductive Freedom Defenders are strong advocates who vote to protect and expand reproductive freedom. They show up consistently to support legislation for a full range of reproductive healthcare options, and co-sponsor some pro-choice legislation.

C

Uncommitted Legislators may occasionally vote for policies protecting reproductive freedom, but do not prioritize reproductive freedom issues or legislation.

D

Anti-Reproductive Freedom Legislators fail in the fight for reproductive freedom. They actively work against ensuring access to abortion and birth control.

F

Extreme Anti-Reproductive Freedom Legislators fail in the fight for reproductive freedom, and actively work to roll back abortion access. They fervently work to deny Missourians reproductive freedom. They work to increase the barriers and restrictions Missourians face when trying to make personal healthcare decisions.

NEI

Not Enough Information: These legislators did not complete a full term and therefore did not have the opportunity to co-sponsor legislation at the beginning of the session and/or were not present for all votes scored by NARAL Pro-Choice Missouri.

Subject: NBCSL Annual Legislative Conference Scholarship Opportunity

Please see below regarding scholarship opportunities.

Thanks

Good afternoon Caucus Chairs,

This year marks NBCSL's 45th Annual Legislative Conference (ALC) which will be held in Atlanta from November 29 through December 3. Our theme is "Prioritizing Solutions to Challenges Within Our Communities". I believe the conference will be one of the most important meetings we've held in recent years!

There will be sessions on strategies to ensure our constituents benefit from the Administration's Build Back Better Agenda; tactics on how to ensure there is a fair America -- one vote at a time; and a discussion on why closing the digital/educational divide is imperative, are only a few of the topics that will be addressed at the ALC.

To demonstrate our commitment to working and collaborating with Black state legislators, NBCSL WILL OFFER FULL SCHOLARSHIPS TO All Black CAUCUS STATE CHAIRS who want to attend the conference and show proof that they are fully vaccinated. We will also offer FULL SCHOLARSHIPS to NEWLY ELECTED, FIRST TIME ATTENDEES IF THEY SHOW PROOF THAT THEY ARE FULLY VACCINATED -- AND THERE'S MORE!

NBCSL will provide all conference attendees exciting information about the new Public Policy Research Institute (PPRI) that we're creating to enhance legislative process training for legislators and to develop policies. With voting rights under attack across the nation, we believe the PPRI will be a gamechanger and enable Black legislators to hone their research, planning, and policy making skills to better respond to new laws that have recently passed in various state houses that are designed to impede Blacks from exercising their right to vote.

Tell the Senate: Make Corporations Pay Their Fair Share by Investing in Human Needs

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Senate could vote as early as this week on critical legislation which would allocate $3.5 trillion to invest in people, families, and communities.

These investments would be paid for by making the rich and corporations pay their fair share. Some politicians have said we can't afford the investments needed in our communities and our future.

The reality is we can't afford NOT to invest in our future.

Take a moment, and send a letter to your Senators to call on them to advance our shared priorities.

Although the details are not final, agreeing on at least a $3.5 trillion budget assumes room to include critical priorities that committees will work on this month, like universal pre-k for all children aged three and four years old, two years of free community college, continuing the Child Tax Credit to keep millions out of poverty, clean energy requirements for utilities, and lower prescription drug prices. Health benefits would be expanded, evictions and hunger prevented, and green cards would be extended to millions of undocumented immigrants.

Subject: New Susan G. Komen Report Details Why Black Women are Dying More from Breast Cancer; New Initiative Seeks Change
Attachment(s): "AAHEI_St Louis Landscape Analysis Report.pdf"

Good afternoon,

As you are likely aware, we are losing Black women disproportionately to a myriad of diseases including breast cancer. In fact, Black women are about 40 percent more likely to die of breast cancer than white women. In response, Susan G. Komen commissioned an analysis to examine the underlying causes of these disparities.

The reports, entitled Closing the Breast Cancer Gap: A Roadmap to Save the Lives of Black Women in America, detail how Black women face barriers to early diagnosis, often are ignored and receive substandard care, and experience discrimination and the consequences of systemic racism, which is felt by Black women across the country regardless of their income, education or insurance status.

This week, Komen is launching a new initiative to help close the gaps in breast cancer mortality between white and Black women, beginning in the 10 metropolitan areas where the disparities are the greatest – including St. Louis. This initiative, called Stand for H.E.R. – a Health Equity Revolution, is based on the insights and recommendations of these reports.

We know that we cannot solve these problems alone and policy will play a vital role in addressing these issues. While we are leading with specific interventions in each of the 10 metro areas through Stand for H.E.R., we hope the reports inspire action to make the changes needed to save lives. We look forward to working with you to implement policies that will begin to mitigate the disparities we see today.

(JSI), a mission-driven national and international public health research and consulting organization dedicated to advancing the health of individuals and communities. The development of this report was made possible with funding from the Fund II Foundation and Merck.

Komen expresses our deepest gratitude to the resilient and powerful women who shared their journeys, their everyday experiences of racism, their trials and tribulations navigating and negotiating health systems, and the simple pleasures in life from which they draw strength to keep going and care for one another. We hope the findings synthesized in this report will uplift the human stories behind breast cancer inequities and persuade decision makers to take action and lay the foundation for systems that better serve Black women. We write these findings in honor of the Black women who did not survive their cancer journeys, and the countless Black lives lost to pervasive structural racism.

We are grateful to the independent consultants, partners, community-based organizations, and Komen Affiliates around the US for their support in recruitment and outreach. Executive Summary

About Susan G. Komen

Susan G. Komen® (subsequently referred to as "Komen") is the world's leading nonprofit breast cancer organization, working to save lives by meeting the most critical needs in communities and investing in breakthrough research to prevent and cure breast cancer.

Background and Purpose

Breast cancer is the most common cancer diagnosed among U.S. women and is the second leading cause of death among women after lung cancer with women having a one in eight chance of developing breast cancer over the course of their lifetimes. With the increasing availability of screening mammography, earlier detection and improvements in breast cancer treatment, the overall breast cancer mortality rate among women in the United States has declined by 41 percent from 1989 through 2018 (American Cancer Society, 2019a). However, these trends vary by race and ethnicity.

Research shows that despite recent scientific advancements, there are widespread disparities in breast cancer outcomes between Black and white women. Among Black women, breast cancer is the most common type of cancer and the second leading cause of cancer death (American Cancer Society, 2019b). Breast cancer mortality is about 40 percent higher in Black women than in white women. Furthermore, although breast cancer survival in Black women has increased over time, survival rates remain lower than among white women (Howlander et al., 2020)

About This Report

In 2015, in partnership with Fund II Foundation, Komen launched the Black Health Equity Initiative (AAHEI), no known as Stand for H.E.R., a Health Equity Revolution, to improve breast health equity for Blacks. Stand for H.E.R. aims to reduce breast cancer disparities in Blacks starting in the 10 U.S. metropolitan areas (referred to throughout this report as MTAs or metro) where the inequities are greatest: Atlanta, GA; Chicago, IL; Dallas-Fort Worth, TX; Houston, TX; Los Angeles, CA; Memphis, TN; Philadelphia, PA; St. Louis, MO; Virginia Beach, VA.; and Washington, DC.

Komen engaged John Snow, Inc. (JSI), a public health research and consulting organization, to conduct a landscape analysis in each MTA. The main purpose of each landscape analysis was to understand the underlying causes of breast cancer inequities across the care continuum among Black women, with a focus on systemic and social determinants of health.

The methods involved a literature scan, compiling quantitative data, reviewing federal and state policies and collecting qualitative data from community members and providers to prepare a landscape analysis report for each of the 10 MTAs.

This study does not attempt to establish causality between underlying risk factors and breast cancer outcomes. Rather, the analysis aims to:

1) elevate key findings regarding the underlying causes for breast cancer inequities across the care continuum among Black women, and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2) offer insights that can inform strategic discussions about strengths, gaps, challenges, and opportunities to promote breast health equity and create community- and systems-level change.

Key Findings

- Although there is no consistent trend in local incidence rates, comparing Black women to white women across the different counties in the St. Louis MTA, Black women are consistently more likely to die from the disease compared to white women.
- St. Louis County stands out with breast cancer mortality rates among Black women that are almost twice that compared to white women.
- Late-stage diagnoses are higher for Black women versus white women in St. Louis City, MO, yet are not as apparent in other counties in the MTA.
- The rates of screening mammography screening are lower than state rates in Madison County and St. Clair County, Ill. and in Jefferson County, Mo. At the same time, disparities in mortality rates exist in St. Louis City and St. Louis County, Mo., that have similar or higher rates than the state of the percentage of women who get a screening mammogram.
- Decades of discriminatory practices have led to striking segregation in the St. Louis MTA. The St. Louis MTA is segregated across several dimensions, including race and socioeconomic factors, creating stark contrasts by geography. In addition to the entire MTA being racially segregated (with most people of color living predominantly in a few of the counties), many of the counties in the MTA are also internally racially segregated.
- The four counties with the largest Black populations, St. Louis City and County in Missouri as well as St. Clair and Madison County in Illinois, tend to have the greatest percent of those who are medically underserved, below 200 percent federal poverty line (FPL), and food insecure.
- The data suggest breast health inequities among Black women in the St. Louis MTA could be explained by economic vulnerability driven by institutionalized racism and disparities in access and quality of care.

Recommendations

The following strategies, research, and interventions are recommended to better understand and address the complexity of the root causes of breast cancer inequities in the St. Louis MTA (full details provided in the recommendations section of this report). The recommendations follow a systems framework:

- the micro level (the level at which patients and providers interact),
- the mezzo level (the level at which systems interact), and
- the macro level (the policy level).

Micro-Level Strategies

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002340

- Increase access to culturally competent patient navigators and community health workers (CHWs).
- Increase education about family health history in the community to identify high-risk families and offer genetic counseling and testing and breast cancer screening to meet the need.
- Implement a culturally relevant health promotion campaign intended to increase knowledge of current screening guidelines.

Mezzo-Level Strategies

- Increase access to integrated care to improve the breast cancer care experience.
- Support Quality Improvement (QI) initiatives along the breast cancer continuum of care.
- Fund Black-specific support groups across the MTA, particularly those that are taking leadership roles in building collaborations and strengthening advocacy.
- Encourage health institutions (health care systems and payers) to invest in high-need areas.

Macro-Level Strategies

- Implement a health promotion campaign intended to increase awareness of breast cancer inequities among Black women.
- Support expeditious implementation of Medicaid Expansion in Missouri.
- Conduct a root cause analysis relating to delays in breast cancer diagnosis.
- Support financial assistance programs.
- Fund collaborative initiatives at the community level to address root causes of breast cancer disparities.

This landscape analysis report conveys comprehensive issues facing Blacks in this MTA. These recommendations are intended to be a call to action for all community-based organizations, policymakers, hospitals, healthcare providers, faith-based organizations, civic leaders, and citizens. The recommendations are offered as evidence-informed strategies to reduce breast cancer disparities among Black women.

About Susan G. Komen

Susan G. Komen® (subsequently referred to as "Komen") is the world's leading nonprofit breast cancer organization, working to save lives by meeting the most critical needs in communities and investing in breakthrough research to prevent and cure breast cancer. Komen has an unmatched, comprehensive 360-degree approach to fighting this disease across all fronts and supporting millions of people in the U.S. and in countries worldwide. Komen advocates for patients, drives research breakthroughs, improves access to high-quality care, offers direct patient support and empowers people with trustworthy information. Founded by Nancy G. Brinker, who promised her sister, Susan G. Komen, that she would end the disease that claimed Suzy's life, Komen remains committed to supporting those affected by breast cancer today, while tirelessly searching for tomorrow's cures.

Introduction

Breast cancer is the most common cancer diagnosed among US women and is the second leading cause of death among women after lung cancer. Women in the U.S. have a one in eight chance of developing breast cancer over the course of their lifetimes. With the increasing availability of screening mammography screening, earlier detection, and improvements in breast cancer treatment, the overall breast cancer mortality rate among women in the United States (U.S.) declined by 41 percent over the last 30 years (American Cancer Society, 2021).

However, these trends vary by race and ethnicity. Research shows that despite recent scientific advancements, there are widespread racial health disparities in breast cancer comparing Black women to white women.

Black women are, on average, 40 percent more likely to die of the disease as compared to white women (Howlader et al., 2018). The five-year breast cancer survival rate for Black women is 83 percent as compared to 92 percent for white women (Howlader et al., 2020).

However, overall, breast cancer incidence among Black women is lower than among white women. From 2013-2017 for women younger than 40, incidence is higher among non-Hispanic Black women than non-Hispanic white women (Noone et al., 2017). Black women are also more likely than white women to be diagnosed with aggressive breast cancers, such as Triple Negative Breast Cancer (TNBC) and inflammatory breast cancer and are more likely to be diagnosed at a later stage, when treatments are limited, costly and the prognosis is poor (American Cancer Society, 2019; Williams et al., 2016).

Through Stand for H.E.R., Komen seeks to improve breast health equity by reducing late stage diagnosis and mortality for Blacks starting in the 10 U.S. metropolitan areas (referred to throughout this report as MTAs or metro) where Black breast cancer disparities are the greatest. These MTAs include Atlanta, GA; Chicago, IL; Dallas-Fort Worth, TX; Houston, TX; Los Angeles, CA; Memphis, TN; Philadelphia, PA; St. Louis, MO; Virginia Beach, VA.; and Washington, DC.

As part of Stand for H.E.R., Komen engaged JSI, a public health research and consulting organization, to conduct a landscape analysis in each MTA to better understand the underlying causes of breast cancer inequities across the care continuum among Black women. Findings from each landscape analysis report serve to inform the design and implementation of Komen's long-term and cross-sector collaborative efforts as well as serve as a call to action for all community-based organizations, policymakers, hospitals,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

healthcare providers, faith-based organizations, civic leaders, and citizens to engage in evidence-informed strategies to reduce breast cancer disparities among Blacks.

Project Objectives

The specific objectives of the landscape analyses are:

- To understand breast cancer disease burden in each MTA by describing breast cancer measures (incidence, in situ incidence, late-stage diagnosis and mortality) and other key health metrics (such as life expectancy and age-adjusted mortality), comparing Black to white women, per data availability.[1]
- To describe systemic barriers, including adverse social determinants of health (SDOH), and other socioeconomic and contextual factors that may contribute to breast cancer inequities, comparing counties within each MTA.
- To explore community members' perspectives regarding their experiences with breast cancer screening and treatment, and their perceptions regarding barriers/facilitators to obtaining care, factors contributing to breast cancer inequity, and suggestions for advancing breast health equity.
- To explore health care provider perspectives regarding individual, community and health systems factors contributing to breast cancer inequities, along with their recommendations for system-level change.
- To identify policy, systems, and environmental (PSE) level strategies that may help to mitigate breast cancer inequities and achieve Komen's goals of improving breast health equity.

This report summarizes findings from the landscape analysis conducted for the St. Louis. The report details key findings pertaining to the project objectives as stated above. Findings are organized into two sections: Section 1 describes the breast cancer disease burden in the MTA through secondary data and community member perspectives. Section 2 explores the systemic barriers and underlying root causes, including experiences of racism and adverse SDOH that may be driving breast cancer inequities. The final section includes recommendations to reduce breast cancer disparities and advance breast health equity.

Given the goals and methods traditionally used in a landscape analysis project, the intent is not to provide conclusive evidence or to establish causality between particular factors and breast cancer outcomes among Blacks. Rather, the analysis aims to:

1) elevate key findings regarding the underlying causes for breast cancer inequities across the care continuum among Black women, and

2) offer insights that can inform strategic discussions about strengths, gaps, challenges, and opportunities to promote breast health equity and create community- and systems-level change.

[1] As defined in the Abbreviations & Glossary, these terms are defined as follows: Incidence is defined as the number of new cases of a disease that develop in a specific time period; in situ means "in place," and in the context of breast cancer means a condition where abnormal cells are found in the milk ducts or lobules of the breast, but not in the surrounding breast tissue. Late-stage diagnosis indicates that breast cancer has spread beyond the breast to lymph nodes, surrounding tissue or other organs in the body (most often the bones, lungs, liver or brain).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

These recommendations are intended to be a call to action for all community-based organizations, policymakers, hospitals, healthcare providers, faith-based organizations, civic leaders, and citizens. The recommendations are offered as evidence-informed interventions to reduce breast cancer disparities among Blacks.

Methods

The methods include a literature scan, compiled quantitative data, reviewed federal and state policies, and collected qualitative data from community members and healthcare providers to prepare this landscape analysis report.

This study defines the St. Louis MTA in accordance with the US Office of Management and Budget's 2015 definition of the central counties in the St. Louis-St. Charles-Farmington metropolitan statistical area (MSA). This area encompasses the city of St. Louis and comprises St. Louis, St. Charles, and Jefferson counties in Missouri; and Madison, St. Clair, and Monroe counties in Illinois (Office of Management and Budget, 2010; U.S. Census Bureau). Data are generally unavailable at the MSA-level of geographic specificity, so researchers collected and analyzed data at the county-level (a sub-MSA unit) for most indicators. State- and national-level data (both super-MSA units of measure) were collected for measures related to breast cancer disease burden to provide additional points of comparison.

Qualitative Data

In the St. Louis MTA, a total of seven focus groups were conducted with 47 participating community members. Two of the focus groups were with six community health workers and/or patient navigators in St. Clair County, IL, and St. Louis City, IL. In addition, two provider interviews were conducted, and a provider was also among the members of one of the community focus groups.

Table 2 summarizes the demographic characteristics of 47 focus group participants, representing both breast cancer survivors and the undiagnosed. Among breast cancer survivors, the majority were above 55 years of age with Medicare, followed by private insurance or Medicaid and the plurality had been diagnosed with stage 1 breast cancer (42.1%). Undiagnosed women were younger, mostly in the 35-54 age group, with the majority reporting access to private insurance (58.1%). Non-provider participants were Black. Demographics were not collected for CHWs, patient navigators, or clinical providers.

Policy Data

This study involved a review of federal and state policies that affect health care access, cost, and utilization, as well as policies most relevant to the breast cancer clinical continuum of care, including breast cancer screening, diagnosis, and treatment. A searched key policy sources such as Kaiser Family Foundation, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), and the American Cancer Society to identify relevant federal policies was conducted.

At the state level, the study examined whether the state had adopted an expanded Medicaid program, whether the state had adopted a Medicaid waiver (Section 1115 of the Social Security Act) that could restrict access to Medicaid and its services (e.g., work requirements), and any state rules related to the NBCCEDP (e.g., eligibility requirements) and the state Breast and Cervical Cancer Treatment Program (BCCTP). Additionally, the study examined state cancer plans to discern whether relevant actions or recommendations in the state cancer plan may impact breast cancer screening, detection and treatment. The main sources for this type of information included state department of health or state Medicaid resources (e.g., Medicaid eligibility, state NBCCEDP eligibility) and policy-focused organizations or think tank materials (e.g., Kaiser Family Foundation, state-level organizations).

Section 1 Findings: Burden of Breast Cancer

Section 1 describes the breast cancer disease burden in the St. Louis MTA using secondary data, as well as relevant findings from the qualitative data.

Demographics

The St. Louis MTA is a seven-county region in the Mid-Atlantic that is centered around St. Louis, Missouri (MO). The MTA spans two states, Missouri and Illinois, and is home to almost 2.5 million people. Its population is 74 percent white and 20 percent Black (see Table 3). The number of Black women over age 45 is noted for each county in the MTA because this Census-designated delineation best aligns with breast cancer metrics (e.g., percentage of women over age 40 who have received a screening mammogram in the last two years).

About 40 percent of all residents of the St. Louis MTA (1 million people) live in St. Louis County, Mo. (see Table 4). The 315,000 residents of St. Louis City, Mo., represent 13 percent of the MTA's total population. The other 47 percent of the region's population is spread across five other counties in the MTA: Madison County, Ill., Monroe County, Ill., St. Clair County, Ill., Jefferson County, Mo., and St. Charles County, Mo. Refer to Table 4 for demographic information specific to each county within the MTA.

Breast Cancer Disease Burden in the St. Louis MTA

Breast cancer disease burden in the St. Louis MTA is highly dependent on two factors: where a person lives (e.g., the county in which they reside) and their race (e.g., whether they are Black or white). In the St. Louis MTA, the most striking disparity is that the likelihood of death from the disease (mortality) varies along geographic and racial lines, with Blacks having mortality rate that range from 24 percent higher in St. Louis City, Mo., to 86 percent higher in St. Louis County, Mo.

A helpful measure for breast cancer disease burden is prevalence, or the proportion of the population that has the disease at a given time. It is important to note that prevalence is measured in multiple ways depending on the time period of interest, and this report uses age-adjusted complete prevalence, which represents the proportion of people alive on a certain day who have been diagnosed with breast cancer, regardless of when the diagnosis was made (National Cancer Institute, 2020). Prevalence statistics are only available at the state level. In Missouri, where four of the seven counties in the MTA are located, the complete prevalence age-adjusted percent is 1.66 percent. In Illinois, where three counties are located, the complete prevalence age-adjusted percent is 1.70 percent. The prevalence in both Missouri and Illinois is comparable to the national percentage of 1.69 percent.

Breast cancer indicators for other measures are available at the county level. Tables 5-9 describe the breast cancer disease burden in the MTA. Data on breast cancer incidence rates, in situ incidence rates, late-stage incidence rates, and mortality rates are all expressed in terms of number of new cases, or number of deaths per 100,000 individuals per year. Screening mammography rates, shown in Table 9, are represented as the percentage of women over the age of 40 that have had a screening mammogram in the last two years. Some racially disaggregated rates are unavailable for Monroe County, Ill., Jefferson County, Mo., and St. Charles County, Mo., as too few Black women live in these places to calculate the rates.

Breast cancer incidence rates in the MTA range from 125.2 new cases per 100,000 individuals per year in St. Louis City, MO, to 148.3 in St. Louis County, Mo., (see Table 5). There are no significant trends among incidence rates for white women versus Black women, as the incidence rates are higher among white women in some counties and higher for Black women in others. Incidence rates throughout the state of Missouri (129.2) and Illinois (131.9) are higher than national rates (124.2). Both states have higher incidence rates among Black women (133.5 IL, 133.1 MO) than among white women (133.1 IL, 128.7 MO). Nationally, white women tend to have somewhat higher incidence rates (126.1) than Black women (124).

St. Louis County, Mo., and St. Clair County, Ill., both have particularly high in situ incidence rates among women, at 37.2 and 37.6 overall (see Table 6), especially when compared to the state and national rates of 33.8 for Illinois, 28.3 for Missouri, and 30.1 nationally. St. Clair County, Ill., also has a large disparity between Black and white women, with the in situ incidence rate at 41.9 for Black women and 35.1 for white women. Conversely, St. Louis County, MO, has a higher in situ incidence rate for white women, at 38.3, compared to Black women at 33.5 (Table 6).

As shown in Table 7, the age-adjusted, late-stage incidence rate of breast cancer among all women is highest in Monroe County, Ill., at 66.2, with St. Louis County, Mo., coming in a close second at 63.5 (see Table 7), the late-stage incidence rates across most of the counties are comparable to the late-stage incidence rates in Illinois and Missouri (52.7 and 54.3, respectively), but all counties' rates are higher than the national late-stage incidence rate of 42.3. In the five counties where data is available for both Black and white women, late-stage incidence rates are higher for white women than Black women in four of the counties (Madison County, Ill., St. Clair County, Ill., St. Charles County, Mo., and St. Louis Map 1 shows the concentration of women who receive a late-stage breast cancer diagnosis annually in the St. Louis MTA. Observed patterns align with population trends. The density of diagnoses increases closer to the center of the MTA, with the highest concentration in St. Louis City, Mo., where Blacks comprise the majority of late-stage diagnoses (average annual count of 50 among Black vs 32 among white women). The greatest count of late-stage diagnoses cases is in St. Louis County, with average counts of 86 among Black and 239 among white women. St. Charles County has the next highest count at 95, with a greater number among white women who comprise most of that county's population. The remaining counties have lower overall numbers of late-stage diagnoses, the majority of which are white. Data are not available for Black women in Monroe County, Ill. nor Jefferson County, Mo., as too few Black women live in these places to report the number.

The breast cancer mortality rate is higher for Black women than white women in every county in the MTA where data is available for both demographics (see Table 8). Data are unavailable for Black women in Jefferson County, Ill., and St. Charles and Monroe Counties, Mo., potentially due to fewer Blacks living in those counties. The racial disparity in breast cancer mortality rates is most striking in both Madison County, Ill., and St. Louis County, Mo., where the age-adjusted mortality rates for white women are 20.6 and 18.5 compared to 37.8 and 34.4 among Black women. As displayed in Table 8, these two counties, Madison County, Ill., and St. Louis City, Mo., report the highest overall mortality rates at 24.6 and 24.3 deaths respectively per 100,000. The lowest overall mortality rates are in Jefferson County, Ill., and St. Charles and Monroe Counties, Mo.. These rates do not align with the ranking of incidence rates by county.

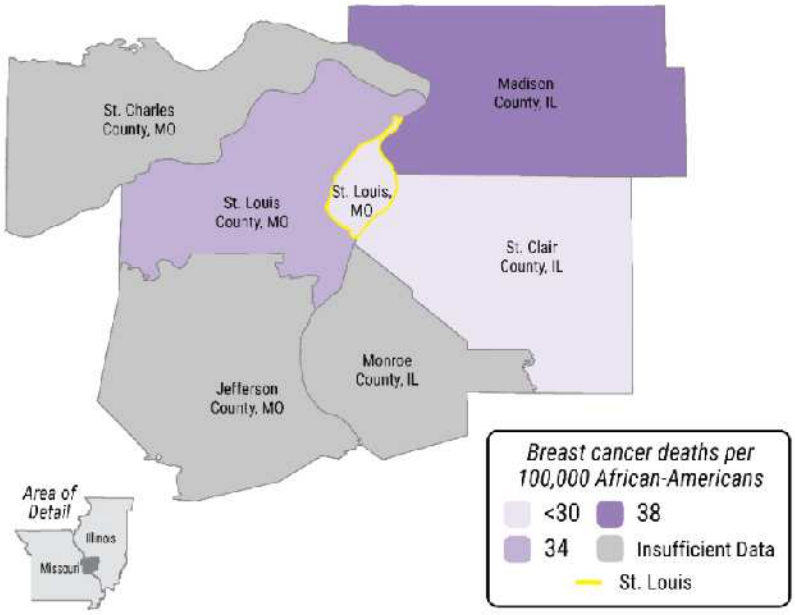
MAP 2. ST. LOUIS METRO AREA BLACK BREAST CANCER MORTALITY RATES



Source: 2012-2016 State Cancer Profiles (US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention; National Institutes of Health)

As seen in Map 2 and Table 8, the number of Black breast cancer deaths is highest in Madison County, Ill., at 37.4 deaths per 100,000 Blacks, followed by St. Louis County at 34.4 per 100,000. St. Louis County has more total deaths among Black women due to breast cancer because they have a higher population of Black women. There is insufficient data for breast cancer deaths among Blacks in St. Charles County, Mo., Jefferson County, Mo., and Monroe County, Ill..

The percentage of women receiving a screening mammogram varies throughout the MTA, from 63 percent of women receiving a screening mammogram in Madison County, Ill., to 76 percent in St. Louis City, Mo. (see Table 9). The screening mammography rates around the MTA are similar to the state and national averages of 73 percent for Illinois, 74 percent for Missouri and 73 percent nationally. Racially disaggregated screening mammography rates are not available at the county level, but these data are available at the state level. In Illinois, where three of the MTA's counties are located, 79.9 percent of Black women over age 40 received a screening mammogram in the last two years compared to 72.6 percent of white women. In Missouri, where four of the MTA's counties are located, 76.9 percent of Black women over age 40 received a screening mammogram in the last two years compared to 70.1 percent of white women.

Overall, the data on breast cancer disease burden compared and contrasted across counties and by race suggest that the disease is most fatal for Black women who live in Madison County, Ill., (37.8; yet with few cases) and St. Louis County, Mo. (34.4) and least fatal for white women living in St. Louis County, Mo. (18.5) and St. Clair County, Ill. (19.5). While breast cancer incidence rates in the MTA are higher for white women in some counties and higher for Black women in other counties, in every county where data are available and disaggregated by race, mortality rates are higher among Black women than white women. The relatively high survival rates for white residents and low survival rates for Black residents of St. Louis County stands out. Availability of screening mammography does not appear to be a factor. At 74 percent, St. Louis County had one of the highest rates of screening mammography screening in the MTA for both race groups. Black women have somewhat lower rates of breast cancer incidence (143.8) compared to white women (149.6) in St. Louis County. At the same time, Black women in St. Louis County, Mo., have consistently higher incidence rates as compared to Black women in all other counties. Higher rates of in situ cancer observed in St. Louis County may indicate greater access to early diagnoses, which would improve survival rates. Yet St. Louis County was also observed to have higher rates of late-stage diagnoses. The data suggest that regardless of screening and diagnoses rates, those Black women who are diagnosed are more likely to die of the disease. This pattern has been noted in the literature. A study in South Carolina, for example, found that while the breast cancer incidence rate was higher for European American or Caucasian women compared to Black women (124 versus 118.5 per 100,000 women), the breast cancer mortality rate was higher for Black women (29.8 versus 21.3 per 100,000 women) (Samson, Porter et al., 2016).

Rates of mammograms, in situ cancer and late-stage diagnoses are all similar for white and Black women in the county. Taken together, these data suggest that the poorer survival among Black women in St. Louis County does not appear to be attributable to general lack of access to screening mammography. More research is needed to determine whether late-stage diagnoses among Blacks could be attributed to early age of onset prior to recommended screening ages. At the same time, premature mortality for all causes among Blacks (565) is roughly twice the rate of whites (287) in St. Louis County. Overall life expectancy is also lower for Blacks (73) than white residents (80).

Research has also explored additional trends in breast cancer and comorbidity outcomes. Tammemagi et al., for example, examined a cohort from a large health system in Detroit, Michigan, for 10 years (n=906, with 264 Black women and 642 white women) (Tammemagi, Nerenz, Neslund-Dudas, Feldkamp, & Nathanson, 2005). The authors found that Black breast cancer patients experienced more recurrence of their cancer, more cancer progression and worse all-cause breast cancer and competing-causes survival. Compared to white women, Black women had shorter overall survival (Hazard Ratio=1.34, 95% CI: 1.11, 1.62). Taken together, these findings suggest effective control of comorbidities could improve life expectancy and decrease disparities in breast cancer survival.

Research from other parts of the country may shed light on why the observed patterns exist. Tammemagi et al, for example, examined a cohort from a large health system in Detroit, Michigan, for 10 years (n=906, with 264 Black women and 642 white women) (Tammemagi et al., 2005). The authors found that Black breast cancer patients experienced more recurrence of their cancer, more cancer progression, and worse all-cause breast cancer and competing-causes survival. Compared to white women, Black women had shorter overall survival (Hazard Ratio=1.34, 95% CI: 1.11, 1.62).

Community Member Perspectives across the Breast Cancer Care Continuum

This section summarizes perspectives from community members and health care providers collected through focus group discussions and interviews, which provide additional insights at each phase of the breast cancer continuum of care in the St. Louis MTA. Based on a review of the quantitative findings, priority counties for qualitative data collection in the St. Louis MTA were identified as: St. Louis City and St. Louis County, Missouri, and St. Clair County, Illinois. These locations have the highest breast cancer disease burden, high SDOH burden and score poorly on other health measures. Further, these locations have the highest proportion of Blacks in the MTA and, as such, have sample availability for qualitative data collection.

Screening

There are different screening guidelines for those at average risk and for those at higher risk. Recommendations for those at higher risk also vary from one organization or professional society to another. There is some inconsistency for screening recommendations among organizations for those at higher risk (Komen 2021a).

Screening mammography rates in the MTA are similar to the national average in all but two counties in the MTA, both of which are in Illinois. Although the data are not disaggregated by race, focus group participants' perspectives gives some indication of the experiences of Black women seeking and obtaining breast cancer screening.

Institutionalized racism. Participants discussed avoiding the health care system due to experiences they, family members, or the Black community have had. The mistrust of the health care system was described by two physicians as still persisting, one tracing it back to the Tuskegee experiments.

> "I did HIV clinical trials. So, I knew how hard it was to get Blacks to trust you, to sign on to a clinical trial [even as an Black clinician recruiting]. They [may be too young to remember but] just have heard of Tuskegee [dangerous experiments on Blacks]." – Provider

Participants referenced both the benefits of Komen support and how a transformation to address racial equity would be welcome, in terms of the evolution of Komen:

> "I mean, discrimination has been around for years and it's always going to be around. It's different levels of discrimination...but even with Susan G. Komen, when she [sic] first started out and I was part of writing a grant for inner city women for breast screening [it existed]. It's just been the last maybe six or seven years that you see more women of color even being involved with Susan G. Komen. So, I don't know what the premise was on why it started out like that, but so many women lost the advantage of getting screenings, getting education about breast health." – Provider

Survivors mentioned finding this effort a positive change in commitment towards women of color by Komen. One mentioned that those she knew were hesitant to participate in focus groups for this Health Equity Initiative, citing, "We've had community members that are reluctant to participate because they feel like Komen has ignored black women for so long."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002361

> "Let me ask you this, because Komen has been around for a long time and I remember years and years ago going to the races [for the cure prior to] having cancer and volunteering. Now they seem to be super interested in women of color, Black women specifically. What you're doing is, as you go about collecting the information and what have you, they're changing. They're changing this." – Survivor
>
> "This is a shift for them [Komen]. Thank you so much." – Survivor

> "But this is exciting because if Komen is going to take a look at breast cancer, we'll start there, and then it might just trickle down. You know what I mean, with all disparities in African American women ended. This could really be big." – Undiagnosed Screening guidelines. Changing guidelines around when to get breast cancer screening were said to feed into misconceptions and add to barriers to proactively screen. Participants observed that there are mixed messages across providers, including how often to get a screening mammogram. The removal of recommendations for breast self-exam were viewed as problematic, preventing women from both keeping breast health a priority and becoming familiar with their breasts to note changes.

> "We in health care are trying to get them to be more observant of doing breast exams, and it doesn't help when you've got the Cancer Society saying, 'don't do breast exams.' So, after you finally get a woman comfortable enough to touch her breasts, because you'd be surprised the ones that don't, they don't want to touch their breast. So now we're saying, 'Don't touch them. Just wait until you [are older]' ... and then they're telling us, 'Well annual breast exam, it's not that important.' So, it's too many mixed messages." – Patient Navigator

Screening guidelines that emphasize starting annual screening mammography at a later age was a potential barrier for the Black women who are diagnosed before the age of 45. A few participants mentioned younger women who do not have a family history not being able to get screened as providers were reticent without falling under the age guidelines and with limited insurance coverage as leading to their late-stage diagnosis. Patient navigators noted that they, along with providers on their teams, just recently learned that younger women, starting at age 35, who are otherwise eligible, may receive screening under The Missouri Show Me Healthy Women program. This program provides breast and cervical cancer screening and diagnostic services to low-income women and women who are uninsured or underinsured.

One young, Black woman's story exemplifies the fortitude and persistence required to obtain screening despite their age.

> "I wasn't offered any [screening] because of my age. I was 28 when I got diagnosed. They just told me. I had a two-year-old; he's three now. They told me maybe it's a clogged milk duct, or maybe it's a cyst. I wasn't offered any screening. They just told me to monitor. That was the first doctor I went to. I went to two other ones after that. The last one is the one that actually offered to do an ultrasound. Even when I went to the radiologist, he said, maybe it's just a fibroadenoma, a benign tumor. Not until I had my surgery to remove it did they find out it was cancer. Even before I had my ultrasound, they said it wasn't." – Survivor

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Genetic testing that may identify high-risk Black women is limited in the St. Louis MTA. Few women participants with family histories mentioned having gotten genetic testing. Genetic counselors were said to be in short supply for all patients, according to a provider interviewed: "That is an absolute need so that not just the person who is recently diagnosed, but their families can have a better understanding of the risk." At the same time, this was not viewed as a high priority for their population which needs insurance and access to basic health care and cancer screening for people.

> "So, when I think about genetic counselors, we do have them, and I would love in a real ideal world that they be a part of almost every consultation that we feel we should do genetic testing on a patient. However, we're just trying to get people screened." – Provider

Community Outreach and Engagement. Participants wanted to see major initiatives that would steep the Black community in awareness of breast cancer inequities, including late-stage diagnoses, aggressive disease progression, and higher mortality among Black women. They also wanted information about risk factors and protective factors for breast cancer.

> "I did not hear about breast cancer until almost the time I had it. It wasn't talked about at my house. It wasn't talked about at church. I didn't hear about it at school, I didn't hear about it in the streets. I did not know anything about breast cancer." – Survivor

The most highly recommended channels of communication were family members, churches, hair salons and bringing mobile health vans into underserved neighborhoods. Family sharing of information was thought to be vital, yet uncommon. A promising local model to promote family-based education was discussed. The Tell Your Mom Campaign, said to have been very successfully launched at a pilot school in North Side St. Louis City, educates high school students about the statistics while encouraging them to "[talk] to your mothers, talk to your sisters, talk to your grandmas." Pervasive, community-wide outreach through mailings, advertisements, media and postings were recommended.

> "It does not just need to be talked about when it's breast cancer month, or breast cancer week, or we fixin' to do this walk for breast cancer. The knowledge of it needs to be out there at all times, just don't bring it about when it's October and we want to wear some pink... [There] should be literature everywhere about it, because that's something that has affected our Black community, with our Black women." – Survivor

Participants noted that Black women also need information on where to go for screening, and if needed, treatment.

> "I see this way, way too much, where there is an extreme delay [in seeking screening and treatment] because people don't know where to go, what to do, and they're very fearful." – Provider

Health providers, in turn, were said to need to learn from Black women about the needs, assets, and strategies that are appropriate to safeguarding Black women's health and wellbeing. The importance of educating and engaging faith-based organizations was frequently raised. There were those who expressed skepticism that churches were willing to do all the outreach that they could for fear of scaring and driving away congregants.

> "You've got to educate the clergy...If somebody bring it [a breast cancer program] to them, then they'll be willing to do it. But if they don't get the information, they thinking

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

> 'What can I do to draw more people in the church?... Stop saying things to make people leave the church that might want to join the church.' " – Survivor

Other participants shared great progress in forging collaborations with churches. Pastors, bishops and clergy from St. Louis City, St. Louis County, Mo., and St. Clair, Ill., were planning to share breast cancer information with their congregation. Religious participants believed that fellow-church members need to be reminded that "God created every man for a purpose, and he put doctors on this earth to help us."

> "Send them to the churches...people go to their church. We don't go to community health groups. If you're going to have the screening mammogram wagon in a certain community, make sure that the community knows [through the Black churches]." – Survivor/Peer Navigator

The Breakfast Club, in partnership with providers, introduced an innovative initiative being planned to hold open houses at diagnostic centers to help women overcome their fear of screening mammography equipment as being dangerous and painful. During these open houses, women will be introduced to the machines, hear from others who have had procedures and learn about the full range of evolving screening and treatment options.

Limited access. Community members, patient navigators and providers discussed that there are portions of each county with limited access to breast cancer screening services. The Illinois Breast and Cervical Cancer Screening Program was described as an important source of information and support resources in St. Clair County, yet one that has diminished over time. St. Clair County has two health departments, an East Side Health District and the St. Clair County Health Department. East Side serves the four townships in St. Clair County that are primarily Black. Participants noted that there used to be a consortium agency for the Illinois Breast and Cervical Program at East Side that offered a Well Woman Program. About three years ago, they stopped offering the program due to inadequate support. The St. Clair County Health Department then took up the responsibility for this program across the entire county, working to maintain the services and access to the trusted Black Patient Navigator program in East County.

Screening mammography vans were seen as an important resource when parked at accessible and culturally familiar sites where women congregate such as work, churches and cultural fairs. Community members from St. Louis County described that such mobile services were too few to cover the entirety of St. Louis North County. Mobile screening mammography vans were said to be even less available in St. Clair County in general and when they are in St. Clair were observed to be more likely to be near expensive neighborhoods rather than in areas of higher need. Across counties, patient navigator and peer navigator participants, echoed by a provider who was interviewed, identified a need to promote these screenings to residents and dedicate a van to serve more broadly defined areas of need, rather than a specific workplace or random site.

> "A dedicated mobile van should hold screenings' not just once or twice a month but on a more frequent basis where we can actually look at what are the best neighborhoods and community organizations and churches to partner with to be available routinely...and not just during the day, but during the evening, knowing many women can't take advantage of the van in the middle of the day, and on weekends... We really have not developed those types of programs that I think would resonate in the community, so we know that people are working, sometimes one to two jobs, can't just be at a church on

Diagnosis

Focus group findings suggest that community members may experience poor-quality care and barriers within the health care system when needing a diagnosis after a positive or abnormal screening or when seeking a diagnosis when presenting with symptoms. Community members reported having to advocate for themselves to get the care that they need. For those able to receive mammograms for free, or at low cost, the insurance barriers and costs of diagnostic procedures such as biopsies and scans present a barrier for some women in the MTA. In addition, many survivors characterized that the care and advice they received at this stage was inappropriate. For example, several being told to wait for long periods and not worry prior to an eventual positive diagnosis. These factors may be associated with delayed diagnosis, influencing the late-stage diagnosis rates documented earlier in the report.

Delays and difficulty getting a diagnosis. State and MTA wide data indicate elevated rates of late-stage breast cancer diagnosis, with racial disparities among Black women vs. white women evident in St. Louis City, Mo. A provider interviewed discussed potential factors involved in North St. Louis County, Mo.:

> "A portion of that risk [of late-stage and triple negative diagnosis in the North St. Louis area] could be driven by a family history/hereditary profile. There's a question about is it related to stress, is it related to poverty, is it related to other drivers that we don't quite understand that are leading to increased risk...I believe people are getting mammograms, [if] there's an abnormality they may get a biopsy and then they have a diagnosis, and... that we have [tremendous] delays in people getting their definitive surgery and delays in chemotherapy, if they get it at all, and delays in starting their radiation. " – Provider/Researcher

Among Black focus group participants, insurance was viewed as a key barrier. Even those with what they described as "good insurance" encountered life-threatening barriers to reimbursement for proper diagnosis. For example, a focus group participant was almost turned away from getting additional testing, despite having symptoms, because since she had already had a negative screening mammogram; her insurance would not cover any more tests. Yet her committed care team fortunately proceeded without insurance.

> "It sounds like [the inequities are] based on insurance, more than racism because I have good insurance, at Grayfield Clinic. But I had a screening mammogram done and the screening mammogram of course was negative, but something was going on with my breast...I told my primary that I was having breast pain and so she wanted to get some more tests run and the insurance said, 'You just had a screening mammogram and the screening mammogram was negative and they didn't see anything.' So, by divine intervention, [the health team] decided to go on and do an ultrasound and biopsy and… the breast had the cancer. [They didn't] see it on the screening mammogram." – Survivor

Other near tragedies were shared by peer patient navigators related to misdiagnosis and lack of adequate follow-up on possible tumors. A survivor shared that, despite yearly mammograms, two tumors were missed that she ended up feeling by hand.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002365

> "I was just laying in the bed and it rolled in position where I could feel it and it scared me. That's when I called the hospital and asked them, could I come right in...They said, it's just a little cyst and it's been there for years. The doctor say, 'Since I got you here,...I'm going to send you down for an ultrasound.' That's when they found the two tumors. I had two of them. It's kind of scary when you think, if you go every year and you get a screening mammogram and then you find out that you've got stage three cancer." – Survivor

Unfortunately, her experience was not unique. Other women who had regular mammograms that found abnormalities were told to wait and not worry, then they were eventually diagnosed with late-stage breast cancer.

> "Every year they have the screening mammogram van [at work]. I was there every year at least for the 11 years that I was there. They always told me something about my left breast. Something was going on but it's nothing to worry about. I would do the screening mammogram. Unfortunately, it didn't pick up on it. They just thought it was a growth and we're just going to watch it to make sure it doesn't get bigger. I moved to Atlanta in 2014 and that's when I was diagnosed with bilateral [breast cancer]... She said I had 10 knots here under my right lymph nodes and three here under the left." – Survivor

Some attributed the lack of strong follow-up of an abnormality found during screening to personally mediated racism.

> "In your mind you wonder, if you had been a white woman and walked in there, it would have been, 'It's just a cyst, but maybe we can do a biopsy on it.'...You become trusting and you shouldn't, because I think more should be done and if you know what the rate [of early onset, late-stage breast cancer is high for] Black women, it should be more than, 'it's just a cyst.' " – Survivor

Participants described having to overcome stereotypes before getting properly diagnosed for a range of health conditions. St. Louis County participants noted that the first issues doctors try to identify are high blood pressure and diabetes and attributed the constant tests for these diseases to racism. These women attributed their high blood pressure, measured during clinical exams, to the anticipation and fear of getting diagnosed with an illness and having to go to the hospital.

> "Once they basically check your vitals and they see that you have hypertension, they ignore what's going on with you and just deal with your hypertension, high blood pressure. Which you can leave the hospital and they done took care of the high blood pressure, but you still have leg pain due to the simple fact of the high blood pressure." – Undiagnosed

Support after diagnosis. Several survivors in St. Louis City responded that they were not offered support services by their hospital, health care organization or community organization. They appeared to have largely found one-another and vital support networks through informal channels. The Breakfast Club is one example of a peer network that operates in St. Louis City and St. Louis County, and was started locally by Black women breast cancer survivors in 1997 with no other form of support group. The Breakfast Club offers extensive networking, advocacy and neighborhood outreach. The Breakfast Club Buddy Program links survivors to those who have been newly diagnosed.

> "The only way I found out is I was not afraid to tell anyone about what was going on with me. I was at church and I was talking to a young lady who used to come to the Breakfast Club. She tells me… 'I'm going to put you in touch with the Breakfast Club'… It was the best thing that could have ever happened because... when I had the lumpectomy and she was able to explain it to myself and my husband. That helped. Other than that… [all you get from doctors is] a little letter in the mail." – Survivor.

> "I found out about this group, believe it or not, my white boss. When they found out, I finally had to break down and tell them I had breast cancer and I was going to be out. He came in my office and he handed me a card from the Breakfast Club." – Survivor

Even for women with their own social capital and support, a peer network offered invaluable information and support as fellow survivors.

> "At the time my mom and my sister and my daughters were around, and I said [when referred to the support group], 'I've got plenty of support.' I did not have the knowledge. I did not have people who had been through that; they could explain things to me, but I had support. That was wonderful. But once I got involved with the Breakfast Club and there was so much knowledge." – Survivor

Treatment

Women raised issues surrounding treatment. During interviews and focus groups, we learned of a number of Black women who experienced long and unnecessary delays in getting treatment, almost to the point of presenting back with metastatic disease because they missed their window of care. Participants discussed the quality of care and their experiences during treatment. Below are the major themes that arose.

Insurance barriers. Overall, focus group participants highlighted that lack of insurance and the poor quality of available and affordable insurance programs were principle contributing factors to treatment inequities. Affordable insurance programs often limit coverage and/or have very high annual deductibles and copays. Focus group participants in St. Louis County noted having to choose between health and covering day-to-day needs. Women noted if you have insurance, you also must pay a copay, and physicians will not see you if you cannot pay for the copay. An interviewed provider concurred that insurance was a primary driver of inequities in breast cancer health outcomes along with Missouri not having expanded Medicaid (at the time) and the closure of the local public hospital. They lamented hundreds of thousands of people who lacked coverage, observing that many of those people are in the same areas with the highest mortality rates.

> "So, there's no confusion that having no insurance or being underinsured is a large contributing factor to the inability of a woman to get screening routinely and in treatment, efficiently, if they have a problem. Some of the highest breast cancer mortality rates that we see are in the inner North County, on our cancer profile. And the inner North County [of St. Louis County] also has many zip codes where one in four households are uninsured. So not having insurance along with the higher poverty index are positively correlated. So, I would say that is a significant factor...I think probably the biggest issue is we need a systemic solution to our uninsured population. Again, you > can't have lack of Medicaid expansion, not embracing The Affordable Care Act, and then also have a weak public health infrastructure with no city hospital." – Provider

Insurance was described as a major factor in stopping treatment. Women may have insurance that affords quality-care access, but if they lose it, they stop receiving quality health care services. One mentioned, for example, having a pool of health care funding via her work that ran out over the course of her illness. Even when insurance is reinstated, treatment was described by patient navigators as taking a long time to start again. We were also told of a woman whose insurance refused to cover chemotherapy after radiation, giving as the only reason that she was already at stage 4 and presumably not treatable.

> "We take them to some of the clinics that are around, and when that happens, case in point, we took one of our community members to [a clinic], of course she couldn't get service...maybe didn't have the $28 for the initial fee...This was in a clinic and we expected them to help but what happened was she was frozen out; told okay you don't have the money we can't see you. ...Our [support] group... provided the funds and she was put back in line, [but] by the time the end of the day came, she had been passed by, passed by other people to be seen. That's all the time she could get was that day. She had a job to do, she had to work. That was the only day, and we were advocating to try and get her in to be seen, but they wouldn't see her." – Peer Navigator

> "I had to have a test done and the test was like $2,000, my copay. So, the lady was like, 'Well, you've got to pay for this now, or you can't have the test done.'...When you have insurance, but it's not the best insurance, you still get treated [poorly] and you keep on being pushed toward Medicaid. 'Well, you need to apply for Medicaid.' But you cannot get Medicaid if you have insurance... So the racist part is when you're sitting there and you're seeing everybody else being told that they owe stuff way better than what you're being told, and they [women who aren't Black] can still do things without having the copays... So, yes. I believe there was a lot of racism, as well." – Survivor

A survivor shared that her mother recently died of cancer and that she suspects the cancer may have progressed more rapidly because her insurance ran out. They moved her mother to an area "in the back" and changed her treatment plan to a less effective chemotherapy option explicitly because of insurance. The family contributed what they could – $2,000– to even afford the medications she did receive. A provider emphasized the need, from the very beginning of their cancer journey, to show people a pathway to getting treated successfully and without financial ruin, while offering them the support of peers to see that they can get through this.

Personally Mediated Racism. While there was some hesitancy to describe experiences as "discrimination" ("I haven't been discriminated. I've just been misjudged"), others called out racist incidents when seeking health care.

> "When you are going through a scare, the last thing you need is someone to be biased towards you, someone who is not going to be there for you, someone who is putting you on a backburner. If you don't want the job, don't take it. People need to know someone is there for them. People are very racist right here in this hospital. I witnessed it." – Survivor

Women emphasized the need to advocate for themselves. Yet, they also acknowledged how racism and other power imbalances stood in their way. This conversation among undiagnosed focus group participants was telling:

> "I feel like people do not have the wherewithal to advocate for themselves, or have the ability to articulate it in such a way to where it grabs hold of someone's attention that is [in] a position that can make things happen. You can be left floundering." – Undiagnosed

> "You cannot advocate for yourself. Matter of fact, you're viewed as a 'problematic patient.' With an attitude. They have coding for that; problematic patient, patient they don't want to see." – Undiagnosed

> "Or they'll use other language, 'not adhering to treatment.' " – Undiagnosed

> "'Non-compliant,' they use all kinds of pretty words to describe you. So that's where the disparity, when it starts." – Undiagnosed

A Black health care professional who participated in an undiagnosed focus group noted that her own experience is poor when she goes for treatment as an Black woman in a health care setting. The treatment she receives is different when she is not wearing her white coat. Doctors don't say hello or acknowledge her presence, aren't cordial and don't follow customary principles of hospital culture in interacting with patients/visitors, etc.

> "I was very ignored until finally the doctor came into the room and started asking me very specific questions. The way that I answered the questions made the doctor stop, and she said to me, 'What is your background?' I said, 'Why does that matter?' She said, 'Do you work in the health care field?' I said, 'More or less.'... She stopped, and she said, 'Oh, so what's your title?' I said, 'It's Dr. XX,' and within 30 minutes I was upstairs in a room. What really ticked me off was, until you knew that I know, you treated me like I was just a common ordinary, so if I get treated this way then what do other people go through? So, I wrote an extremely long letter, a major complaint, and from that moment until I was discharged nurses were on me like white on rice... But prior to that I really felt like I was just another Black face, until you understood that this Black face came with a level of influence and authority." – Undiagnosed Patient navigators varied regarding health care discrimination they have witnessed. For example, one said they had not observed differences along racial lines in the treatment offered by the many private providers contracted by the St. Clair Health Department, while another relayed that they often heard mistrust voiced by patients due to recent treatment they, their families or their acquaintances faced.

> "A lot of people have had some bad blood [with these institutions). Just, it's the truth... they'll say 'I'm not going there because my grandma/somebody went to the emergency room, and my grandmother died. I'm not going to that institution.'... Or [they were] treated like they weren't a part of the human race. You know?" – Patient Navigator

Indeed, participants noted avoiding health care in attempts to avoid discrimination.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

> "I think that's what stopped me for a long time for even going to the doctor because of living out there and thinking that I'm going to be treated differently or not treated at all because I was so used to it happening." – Undiagnosed

Quality of Care. Some participants mentioned very positive experiences with health care providers and patient navigators. For example, a young woman who had a complex history, including multiple cancer experiences, described how her Black female oncologist was a partner on her cancer journey.

> "They've been fantastic. I have had no problems. I always felt like I could ask questions. They spend time with you to explain stuff. I know some doctors you go to and they're rushing you and there's a ton of people sitting out there. They're very busy. But I've never felt that way there." – Survivor

Other survivors described the many challenges and the mental strain entailed when providers did not adopt a respectful, shared decision-making approach. These two women describe being patronized rather than provided with information and consulted on decisions about their own health.

> "When I found out, I felt like just pounding me, pounding me with different things is going on and I wasn't really prepared... At the time I was also planning my wedding and the doctor was like, 'Well, I don't want you to be losing your hair. I don't want you to be looking different on your wedding then what you're going to be looking like in the future or what you look like now?' ...She just stopped giving me options and said, 'We're going to do this, this and that,' and that's how it went. And I was like, 'Okay, then how do I know if this is going to work?'… She didn't really answer all my questions thoroughly until maybe the second treatment...and that's when I had to sit her down and just talk to her and tell her, 'I don't understand what's going on and I need answers.' So, I felt like I was pressured to get started without all the information that I needed. That's what I felt." – Survivor

> "It becomes a lack of education/information for our community, for women of color...We get a little information, because they give us the little tags and tell you what to do, the exam and all like that. That's as far as it goes. They don't like you going to Google stuff...Then it's like, 'Don't worry about that. We're going to take care of that.' Then when they don't take care of it, then they put your life in jeopardy. They put your life in jeopardy." – Survivor

Participants also called out the lack of provider knowledge regarding the best treatment options for Black women. Especially for triple negative breast cancers, a factor being the lack of clinical trials tailored to Black women.

> "We are behind in really understanding the best way to care for triple negative breast cancers, and I think part of the reason is because the major population group with triple negative [breast cancer] is not adequately represented in our clinical trials." – Provider/Researcher

A provider at a Community Health Center discussed tragically losing a patient who had to wait to get care at an area hospital due to the conflict between a patient's desire for privacy and the hospital's admittance policies.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

> "And it took us, I kid you not, eight months just to get her, her first chemo. And the reason being is because we referred her to St. Mary's. She would not give the information for her child support so she couldn't get a medical card. And we kept explaining to her, this is important. St. Mary's gave her a couple rounds of chemo free because they knew how bad her cancer was already stage four. And she ended up I think eight months into her diagnosis, starting her real chemo and radiation. And this was what, two years ago last summer, I called to check on her and her mom told me she had passed. And then I got my report and she had metastasized everywhere. Liver, everywhere." – Provider

Integrated mental health and complementary therapies. Tending to mental health was discussed as being an essential support, rarely offered to Black women. When it was offered, there was stigma needlessly attached due to the assessment and referral process. Participants recommended that mental health services be offered as an integral part of breast cancer treatment from the first point of diagnosis, attention to which can help women get through the stress and facilitate staying in treatment. Focus group participants pointed out that mental health services should be offered to all patients, and not solely based on a mental health assessment. The multiple stressors of daily discriminations on top of financial instability and family responsibilities of Black women, alongside paucity of support, were pointed out to be compounded by the greater likelihood of breast cancer being diagnosed at a later stage, with poorer prognosis.

> "The mental health component should be adapted into the message regarding Black women in breast cancer, period, and dealing with a life changing event, such as cancer." – Patient Navigator

> "Well, your mental health provider should... already be part of your team, because that will absolutely help to get you through that...because we know that Black women, oftentimes... it does tend to be later stage, right... and it definitely becomes scarier... then depending on the type–whether it's very aggressive or not. But mental health should definitely be part of your treatment team, not an afterthought...I think it definitely needs to be as soon as you get that diagnosis, 'Here are ... providers we strongly encourage.' At that point a person may or may not decide to take advantage of it, but at least make it so that... you normalize it so then it doesn't become, now on top of everything they actually think I'm crazy. Like, no, it's just a part of your treatment." – Patient Navigator

Survivorship

Transitioning out of specialty care. Health care policies also affected availability of post-treatment services. One survivor discussed wanting to see an oncologist five years post-diagnosis and being "pushed away" as no longer being considered to be a cancer patient.

> "I went back, even though I've been passed the five years. I was trying to still see if I could get some more of that treatment. But no, after five years it's almost like they let you go... I called the oncologist to see if I could come in and get an appointment [because of not feeling well] and they say, well you be going to the doctor in a year to Dr. ___. So, I said, okay. Can I wait that long? Do I have to wait that long?" – Survivor

Another issue raised by a provider was the lack of awareness of the need for continued breast cancer screening after a double mastectomy.

> "They don't realize. Like I tell them, even if you had double mastectomy, you still have to be screened. And they don't realize that because it's just so many messages out there." – Provider

Ongoing peer support and advocacy across communities. The robust peer support and effective advocacy of groups, such as the Breakfast Club, were described as remaining vital to survivors and, through their advocacy and ability to engage both provider institutions and community members, to helping reduce underlying root causes of breast cancer inequities. While such support groups were mentioned and relied upon in St. Louis City and St. Louis County, there was a greater need that existed. Lack of available support groups and survivorship programs were presented as an issue even more frequently among survivors in St. Clair County and Madison County, Ill. Breast cancer survivors affiliated with the Breakfast Club noted that it expanded to have a branch, Native Circle, run by Native American women that also offers culturally appropriate and tailored support. They explained that Native Americans in the St. Louis MTA are frequently of mixed ancestry, often with Black heritage.

> "We are not medical navigators; we are community members. And that involves medical navigating, but also social work. It also involves teaching. It involves everything from taking someone to dialysis, picking them up from medical treatments, making appointments, going with people to their radiation and chemotherapy sessions, advocating all of that." – Peer Navigator

Section 2 Findings: Systemic and Social Determinants of Health

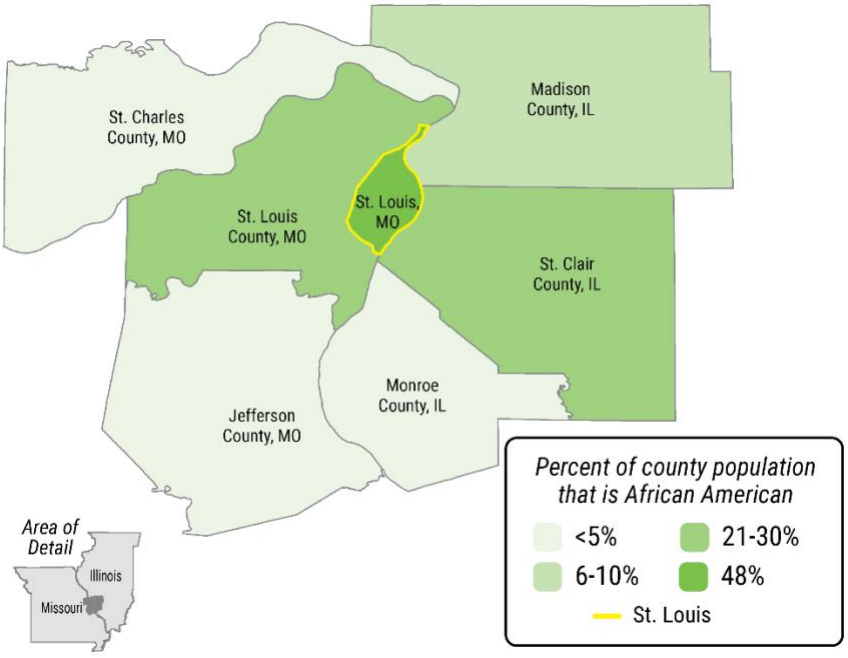
Section 2 explores the systemic and social determinants of health that may be driving breast cancer inequities. The set of factors explored in this section—residential segregation, economic vulnerability, experiences of racism and social determinants of health—were informed by consultations with Komen's Stand for H.E.R. team, academic experts (see Acknowledgements for details), findings from the literature scan and principles in the guiding frameworks.

Residential Segregation

The St. Louis MTA is segregated across a number of dimensions, including race and socioeconomic factors, creating stark contrasts by geography.

In the center of the MTA, St. Louis, Mo., has the highest percentage (48%) of Black residents (see Map 3 and Table 25 in the Appendix). St. Clair County, Ill. and St. Louis County, Mo., have the next highest percentages of Black residents, at 30 percent and 24 percent respectively. The additional counties have populations that are less than 10% Black. In fact, Monroe County, Ill., has a population that is 0 percent Black.

MAP 3. BLACK POPULATION IN THE ST. LOUIS METRO AREA



Source: American Community Survey 2013-2017 5-Year Estimates (US Census Bureau)

In addition to the MTA as a whole being racially segregated with most Blacks living in just a few of the counties, comprising 48 percent of the population in St. Louis City, Mo., 30 percent in St. Clair, Ill., and 24 percent in St. Louis County, Mo., (see Map 3), many of the counties in the MTA are also internally racially segregated. Counties' internal segregation can be measured using the Black/white dissimilarity index to assess the extent to which there may be residential segregation (see Map 4). Index scores range from 0 to 100 and correspond to the percentage of people within a racial group who would need to relocate in order for a county to achieve integration. Zero indicates complete integration of the two races and one hundred indicates complete segregation of the two races. For example, a score of 35 means that 35 percent of whites within a particular county would need to move to a different neighborhood within the county in order to achieve racial integration.

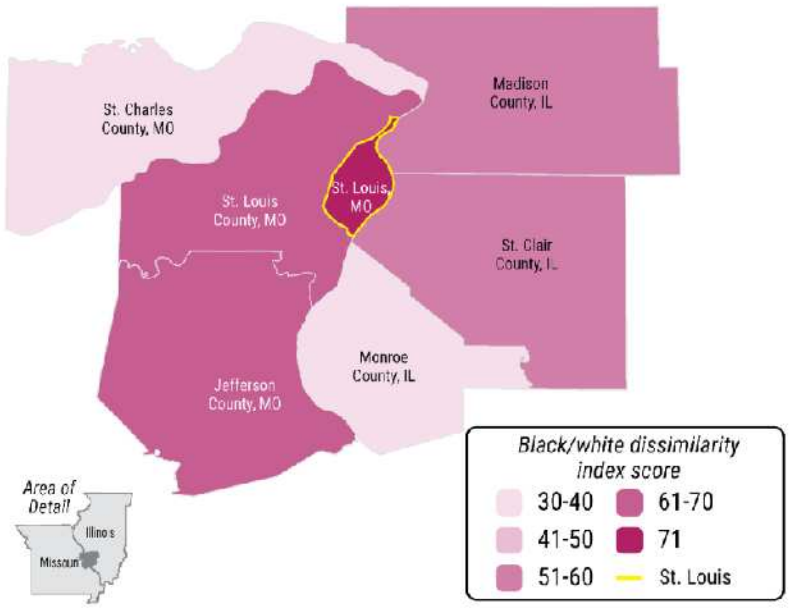
MAP 4. RESIDENTIAL SEGREGATION IN THE ST. LOUIS MTA

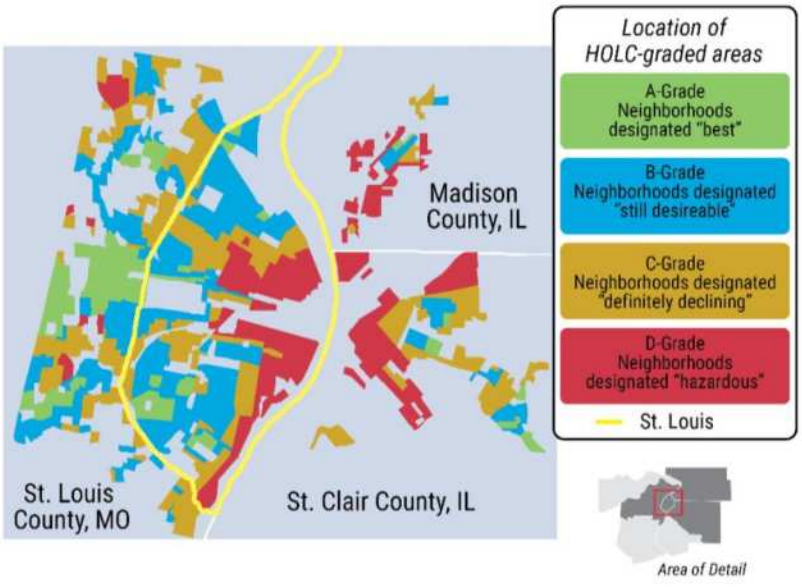


Source: 2019 County Health Rankings (County Health Rankings)

As seen in Map 4, St. Louis City, Mo., has the highest score (71), indicating that it is the most segregated place in the MTA. St. Louis County, MO, and Jefferson County, MO, have the next highest scores at 64 and 67. These data align with findings of Washington University in their report, Segregation in St. Louis-Dismantling the Divide. Counties' scores are significantly lower in St. Charles County, Mo., and Monroe County, I, indicating that the racial distribution of residents in these locations is more even. This is likely due to the limited number of Black people living in these counties.

As defined and discussed at the beginning of this report, racism occurs across three levels: institutionalized or structural (differential access to goods, opportunities, and power), personally mediated (prejudice about others' abilities and motives), and internalized (self-devaluation based upon race). Although measures of racism are limited, some quantitative data that can serve as a proxy for racism are available for the St. Louis MTA.

MAP 5. REDLINING IN THE ST. LOUIS MTA



Source: 2019 Mapping Inequality Project (University of Richmond)

An example of institutionalized racism is redlining – the practice of identifying and systematically discriminating against neighborhoods based on their racial makeup. Between 1933 and 1954, Home Owners' Loan Corporation (HOLC) field agents with the federal government assigned grades to neighborhoods ranging from A to D, best to hazardous respectively. The practice is commonly called redlining because designated hazardous areas assigned a D grade were marked in red. Map 5 shows areas within the St. Louis MTA that were included in the "residential security" maps created by HOLC agents in the first half of the twentieth century. In addition to the city of St. Louis, portions of St. Louis County, Mo., Madison County, Ill., and St. Clair County, Ill., appear on the redlining maps of St. Louis from 1937 and 1940.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Banks and other mortgage lenders used these grades to inform their lending practices and policies throughout the St. Louis MTA. Redlining was widely employed by government agencies in St. Louis, with officials declaring many neighborhoods in the city of St. Louis "hazardous" because of their large Black populations. In so doing, the government excluded these individuals and communities from investment and resources. Areas of advantage (where whites lived) became more advantaged and areas of disadvantage (where people of color lived) became more disadvantaged (Rothstein, 2017). Redlining set up feedback loops, as the more advantaged white population moved into white areas, thereby making them even more advantaged and whiter. For this reason, the high level of segregation that currently exists between Blacks and whites in the city of St. Louis (see racial segregation section above) can be traced-–at least in part--to redlining.

During interviews and focus groups, both providers and residents called out the many ways that neighborhoods segregated by race and income have affected overall health outcomes.

> "You take African American women, put them over there. Just put them over there for a minute. And everybody else is going along with their life. And the mortality rate is different. Okay? No matter what level of education, where they're living, but it's still occurring. Does it have to do with environment? Does it have something to do more genealogically what's inside of us that causes some of those emotional and social determinants? I mean, I know social determinants is something that occurs, but is it something that is offsetting that as well?" – Patient Navigator

> "Those of us who are low income, North Side, African American–Those of us who have been disregarded for so long, and have become aware now...of the pollution that's occurring on that side of the city and the environmental rates and going on, there's a high rate of asthma and bronchial infections...lead poisoning…[T]here has been history of racism in the area that's pretty predominant and overlays a lot of things so that feeling of powerlessness and helplessness is pretty prevalent." – Survivor/Peer Navigator

The survivors who volunteer to help other women navigate their breast cancer journey also discussed hazardous conditions and shifting demographics affecting Northern St. Louis County.

> "One of the things that I noticed [is] the numbers of diagnoses of breast cancer...in North St. Louis, it went up, and a lot of people are going, well, part of it's environmental. We have Cold Water Creek, which is not a healthy place…Radioactive material that they buried in the ground is now permeating the water systems, the air, the entire environment out there…And then further down in North County is a landfill that has radioactive things buried in it, so there are environmental factors there. But the other part of it is that, as people get better and earn more money, they're moving out of the city because, no offense, there's some places there that aren't safe. You don't want your child going to school there. So as these women are moving to North County, that's where they're being diagnosed. They're the same ladies that were in the city that we were missing but now they're in the county." – Survivor/Peer Navigator

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

While some residents found the conditions in their neighborhoods difficult to bear, others described the assets of where they live, feeling strongly connected to their Black communities. Many participants tended to have lived in the area for a long time; particularly in St. Clair County, Ill.. Some had been born there. Several moved there or returned because of the need to support family, their mother or ill siblings, or be near them. What they appreciated was being with family, the people in general and support they give to one another, the Southern lifestyle/pace of living and being in a small, close community that is near city amenities. While a few participants said they would prefer not to live in their county if they had a choice, others expressed a civic pride strengthened by a strong culture of service and bonds, as recounted:

> "I've been in St. Clair County for almost 65 years. And I love it here because somebody in this place has to be the one to not be the hero but be the solution to all the problems. And I feel I can help some because I did accomplish something today in my neighborhood. So, I love it here and I wouldn't tell people to move out because they don't know that St. Clair County is a gold mine. And I can live anywhere. Could have lived anywhere, but I chose to stay right here." – Survivor

Personally Mediated Racism

Data suggest that in addition to institutionalized racism, Blacks in the MTA experience several forms of personally mediated racism (U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, 2019; U.S. Department of Justice Federal Bureau of Investigation, 2017).

As seen in Table 10, St. Louis City, Mo., reports the highest level of racism when compared to the other counties in the MTA, with St. Louis County, Mo., close behind. In 2016 and 2017, police in St. Louis City, Mo., killed 13 Blacks (see Table 10). Further, there were 220 hate crimes committed with a racial bias motivation in 2015, and eight Fair Housing Act cases have been filed with a racial basis since 2006. In St. Louis County, Mo., two Blacks were killed by the police in 2016 and 2017 and 322 hate crimes were committed with a racial bias motivation in 2015. It should also be noted that Ferguson, Mo., a town in St. Louis County, is where Michael Brown, a young Black teenager, was killed by a white police officer in 2014. Brown's death was the impetus for many nationwide protests that called for police abolition.

The history of racism was still felt deeply, permeating the focus group participants' lives.

> "There has been a history of racism in the area that's pretty predominant and overlays a lot of things so that feeling of powerlessness and helplessness is pretty prevalent." – Patient Navigator

> "It's a lot of when you talk about the African American population, it's a lot that we still are affected from back in the slavery times. And I hate saying that because it's not that you use this as a crutch but when you look at other people's attitudes towards you, their attitudes build up on that too." – Survivor

Racism and discrimination in the workplace were among the persistent experiences of racism that participants directly encountered. Many focus group participants in St. Louis County, Mo., shared examples of Blacks having been looked over for positions they have been qualified for but weren't given. Participants mentioned covering the work of white colleagues and then such colleagues spreading rumors about their poor performance to employers. Some hiring managers were said to only share a job within their social networks, greatly reducing the likelihood of Black women being considered for certain positions. In some cases, companies are required to post a job for a certain period of time due to federal mandates, but by the time these jobs are posted, these positions are already filled.

> "When I first came here, I had 10 years of service with Bell Telephone. When I got to St. Louis, I could not get a job. They would not accept my transfer...I tried, and I tried, and I tried, and I went downtown, and I took their little test. I had worked for Southern Bell and South Central Bell. Southern Bell is the way Deep South. I would have thought that I would have had a problem there. I didn't. But then I came here to the Midwest and I could not [get employed]." – Survivor

> "When I told him [a coworker at a 911 dispatch who would not do his share of the work] to take his feet down off of the console and stay in the cube [as required], well he looked at me, he said 'I'm going to get you.' And I smiled. I said, 'Do what you got to do.'...He didn't care because he was a good friend of somebody that got him the job. So, he got me fired." – Survivor

Health Disparities

Data suggest that there are significant disparities in the St. Louis MTA in terms of overall health and wellbeing. In St. Louis City, Mo., nearly one in four adults report that their health is “fair” or “poor” (Table 11). In Monroe County, Ill., only 11 percent of adults report that they have “fair” or “poor” health. Monroe County, Ill., reports that residents have the fewest poor physical health days and poor mental health days per month, at 3.1 days each. St. Louis City, Mo., on the other hand reports that residents have the most poor physical mental health days per month, at 5.0 days each.

Focus group participants discussed multiple health conditions —comorbidities that brought complications, tremendous stress, additional economic hardship, and the need for multiple medications —many with serious side effects. They relied on their own knowledge of their complex conditions, yet were often not listened to when they tried to relay their needs to providers. This was also true in advocating for family members. Patient navigators said not all physicians keep track of comorbidities.

> “The providers sometimes aren't as... proactive as they should be, meaning that you have a physician that might have seen a patient ongoing for 10 years. But [the patient has] diabetes, maybe some other comorbidity situation is going on, and that never reaches the top of their radar until the woman presents with an issue.” – Patient Navigator

The County Health Rankings (CHR) similarly highlight county-level differences in health and wellbeing across the MTA. CHR are derived from over 30 measures of health-related outcomes and factors to give an overall health ranking of a county compared to other counties in the same state (see Figure 2).

The CHR for Monroe County, Ill., is in the top 1 percent of all Illinois counties, of which there are 102. Madison County, Ill., and St. Clair County, Ill., however, are in the 75th and 92nd percentiles, meaning that they have poorer health outcomes than many of the other counties in the state. In Missouri, St. Charles County is in the top 1 percent of all Missouri counties, of which there are 114. St. Louis County, on the other hand, is in the 72nd percentile of all Missouri counties (see Table 11).

There are not significant differences in health behaviors throughout the counties in the St. Louis MTA. The greatest disparity exists between Madison County, Ill., which has an obesity rate of 36 percent, and St. Charles County, Mo., which has an obesity rate of 28 percent (see Table 12). All of the counties have similar rates of adults who drink excessively (between 19 percent in St. Clair County, Ill., and 23 percentin Monroe County, Ill.), as well as adults who are physically inactive (between 19 percent in Jefferson County, Mo., and 26 percent in St. Clair County, Ill.).

Focus group participants described the several measures they took to stay healthy, whether as undiagnosed women or as survivors. Support from patient and peer navigators, area breast cancer organizations, fitness programs such as the YMCA, faith-based organizations and providers were each described as being helpful for fitness and nutrition. Partnerships among these anchor supports were both long-established and expanding.

Peer volunteers engaged in The Breakfast Club peer breast cancer support group described that they partner locally to offer a healthy eating program as well as swimming and exercise programs in partnership with the YMCA. The YMCA (and some insurances) also offers "Silver Sneaker," which is free exercise for women above a certain age.

> "I started eating healthier. I got to a gym, so I'm working out more. We have an instructor. If you have the Silver Sneakers, you got it free. So, I go there as many times that I can a week and make sure that I walk every day. – Survivor

Participants discussed safety as a significant barrier to healthy behaviors.

> "I mean, come on, let's be real. So, when you talk about safety, so you're talking about community safety, can you walk? Do you have paths that you can walk?...Where you can exercise, where you can get out and walk, and you can jog and not be accosted, right?" – Undiagnosed

Life expectancy in the MTA is highest in Monroe County, Ill., at 82 years across demographics (Table 13). Monroe County, Ill., however, does not have enough Black residents to have racially disaggregated data for life expectancy. Every county that does have racially disaggregated data reports having higher life expectancies for white people than Black people. Notably, the disparity in both St. Louis City, Mo., and St. Louis County, Mo., is the greatest, with white people living an average seven years longer than Black people in both countries. Overall life expectancy is lowest in St. Louis City, Mo., at 74 years.

Premature age-adjusted mortality measures the number of deaths per 100,000 among people under age 75. St. Louis City, Mo., has the highest premature age-adjusted mortality rate, at 562 (Table 14). Again, the disparity between white people (423) and Black people (757) is also by far the greatest in St. Louis City, Mo., with a disparity of 334 deaths. The age-adjusted premature mortality rate is lowest in Monroe County, Ill., at 226, but these data are not disaggregated by race as there are too few Blacks who live in Monroe County, Ill. Looking only at counties with disaggregated data available (six total), all counties have higher premature age-adjusted mortality rates for Blacks than for whites.

Access to Health Services

Data suggest that there are significant disparities in the health system in the MTA, including in health care facilities and the proportion of the population that is medically underserved. According to the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA), Medically Underserved Areas/Populations are areas or populations designated by HRSA as having too few primary care providers, high infant mortality, high poverty or a high elderly population. For example, in St. Clair County, Ill., 60 percent of the population is medically underserved, while in Jefferson County, Mo., and St. Louis County, Mo., only 3 percent of the population is medically underserved (Table 15).

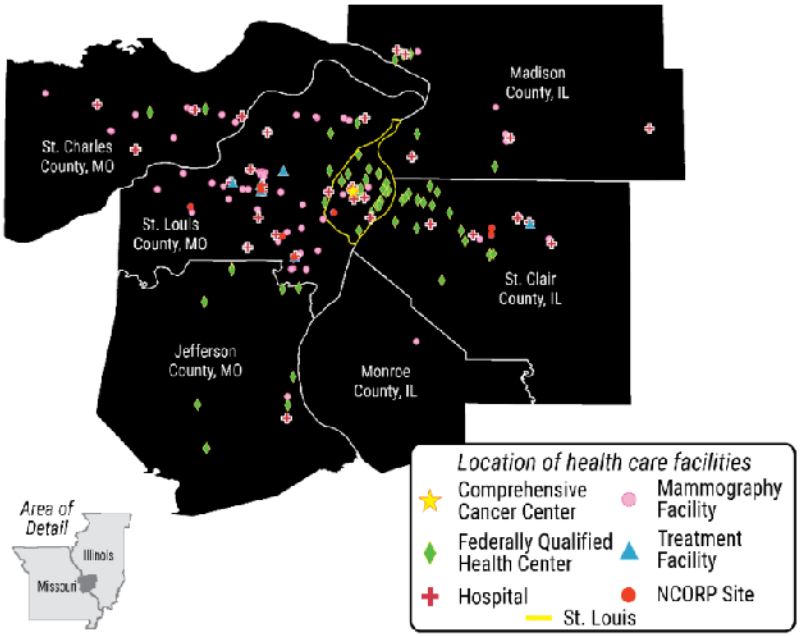
MAP 6. HEALTH SYSTEMS IN THE ST. LOUIS MTA



Source: HRSA Data Warehouse, 2019 dataset (US Department of Health and Human Services, Health Resources & Services Administration); Comprehensive Cancer Centers and NCI National Community Oncology Research Program (NCORP) sites, 2019 dataset (National Cancer Institute); Mammography facilities, 2019 dataset (American College of Radiology); Treatment facilities, 2019 dataset (American College of Surgeons; Association of Community Cancer Centers)

The health systems map (Map 6) shows the concentration of health care facilities across the MTA. Most resources are centered around St. Louis City, Mo.. Specifically, the only comprehensive cancer center is in St. Louis City, Mo., and most of the Federally Qualified Health Centers (FQHCs) are in St. Louis City, Mo., and St. Clair County, Ill. The majority of the screening mammogram facilities and treatment facilities are located nearby in St. Louis County, Mo.

Given the area's high levels of segregation, health care disparities in the St. Louis MTA should be examined through the lens of residential segregation and its systemic and long-term adverse impacts on the breast cancer continuum of care. A research study, using national data, examined whether racial and ethnic health care disparities were associated with residential segregation. The authors concluded that disparities in health care use are related both to a person's racial and ethnic identity and their community's racial and ethnic composition. Thus, the authors suggest that both individual and community-level strategies are required to address health care disparities (Gaskin, Dinwiddie et al., 2012). Other studies have shown how systematic disinvestment in communities makes it harder to attract health care systems, providers and specialists (Andrasfay, Himmelstein et al., 2019; White, Haas et al., 2012). Further, research in other parts of the country have shown how facilities serving racial and ethnic minority populations tend to have poorer quality of care as compared to facilities predominantly serving white women (Ansell et al., 2009; Curtis et al., 2008; Daly & Olopade, 2015; Nurgalieva et al., 2013). This includes having fewer dedicated breast imaging specialists and/or other specialists who are more likely to provide detailed information on risk and risk reductions options, as compared to primary care practitioners. Reduced quality of care also includes facility and staffing limitations that result in Black women receiving inadequate screening mammography screening and delays in initiation of chemotherapy, radiation and surgery.

Focus group participants lamented loss of health care facilities over time. Access to health care in St. Clair County, Ill., was described as problematic for several reasons. The quality and accessibility across hospitals was said by patient navigators to vary dramatically. They elaborated that women with poor insurance are turned away and sent to other hospitals. Grave concern was voiced that several of the major hospitals that Black women depend on, St. Elizabeth's and Memorial Hospital, are moving all of their diagnostic services out of the primarily Black neighborhoods to locations that they worry will be more inaccessible (in Shiloh or O'Fallon). Women often refuse to go to the new hospital because it is hard to reach and/or they perceive it as having poor quality. Participants were said to have to travel back and forth across the river to hospitals where they could receive more comprehensive services than Touchette can offer.

> "Touchette does provide screening mammography services, and they also provide biopsies and things of that nature. But Memorial and St. Elizabeth, both of those organizations have services that Touchette can't provide. For one is they don't have a stereotactic machine, so anybody that have any type of calcifications automatically would have to be referred to either Memorial or St. Elizabeth or the surgeon would then have to do an open biopsy. And you know, that's almost barbaric now, especially since we have all this other modern technology that they can do opposed to getting an open biopsy." – Patient Navigator

> "Centreville to Alorton, we've got more sick people in that area than we have in Belleville, Cahokia, East St. Louis, Fairview Heights, O'Fallon [where there are low-income health care services], but there's nothing down there." – Patient Navigator

North St. Louis was described as a "health care desert; especially for those with inadequate insurance."

> "North County is a big area and that area does not have nearly as many hospitals or federally qualified health centers as they should have, or imaging centers where people can go and get screened. So then, that means that people have to know where they can go to get care when they feel as though they can't afford it, whether that means, again, they're uninsured or underinsured, and there's just no known easy mechanism for people to seize. Oh, this is where we go to get care, to get health care when we don't have insurance.
> So, if you have 300,000 people in a community, and 300,000 people are in North County, but you have one hospital at one end of the county, another hospital at the other end of the county, and maybe two other imaging centers, and that's it. That's truly not enough for that population whereas St. Louis city also has 300,000 people ... access to imaging centers, particularly imaging centers that are also available for people who are uninsured and underinsured, that's just not the case." – Provider

Changes to the health care infrastructure in St. Louis have further marginalized access to quality care. A historically Black-operated hospital, Homer G. Phillips on the North Side, closed in 1979 and the absence remains. Among a trend of closing Black hospitals across the nation, this was described as a major shift that undermined health care access. The network of community health centers intended to fill gaps of hospital closures and to improve access was viewed as insufficient for the many women who need referrals to larger facilities with specialty care services (Wesley, 2010).

> "St. Louis is so racially polarized and even having worked at Homer [G. Phillips in the Ville neighborhood] Hospital, which I'm sure everybody's heard, they closed it, they had the accreditation and gave them accreditation to the other city hospital on the South side. And then... the federally qualified clinics started to come in and they were called the overseers of those people who did not have insurance... [women] had to come to one of the clinics to get referrals [to a hospital, and then had far to travel]. And they may be...on a waiting list because you got to go through the case manager and get the appointment and all of that, and that still exists today. North St. Louis is literally a health > care desert. They have clinics, but they're scattered around. Whereas I come North of the South of Delmar, I can probably find a doctor or clinic on every other corner." – Survivor/Peer Navigator

> "Well also in the past, those doctors came from the community and that's not the case now. You don't have a doctor living down the street from you when you live in North Side St. Louis." – Survivor/Peer Navigator

Many of the breast cancer resources are in St. Louis County, Mo., and St. Louis City, Mo., with five and four mobile screening mammography centers (Table 16). A St. Louis provider described that Mercy Hospital, Missouri Baptist Medical Center (Missouri Baptist) and BJH health care's Siteman Cancer Center (Siteman) operate mobile screenings. They partner with businesses to provide screenings to their employees to make it easy for women. Yet they, and patient navigators, shared that the mobile screening mammography services are not adequate to reach across any of the three counties--St. Clair County, Ill., St. Charles County, Mo. or St. Louis County, Mo.

St. Louis City has the most cancer coalitions, with two. St. Clair County, Ill., St. Charles County, Mo. and St. Louis County, Mo., each have 16 survivor/support groups, which is a significantly greater amount than the other counties.

Social and Economic Vulnerability

Social determinants affect health outcomes such as breast cancer —for individuals and communities. These play out not just across individual lifetimes, but generationally. Disadvantages compound in certain communities, which exacerbate and cement a wide range of negative outcomes and existing burdens, including with regard to[OBJ][OBJ]. The Social Vulnerability Index (SVI) of each county can be seen in

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Map 7. The SVI is calculated by the CDC, and a county's score "refers to the resilience of communities when confronted by external stresses on human health, stresses such as natural or human-caused disasters, or disease outbreaks" (e.g., such as hurricanes, fires, and COVID-19). Scores range from 0.0 to 1.0, with scores closer to 1.0 indicating greater vulnerability. St. Louis City, Mo., has the highest SVI score by a wide margin at 0.81. St. Clair County, Ill., has the next highest SVI score at 0.54. St. Charles County, Mo., and Monroe County, Ill., have the lowest SVI scores, at 0.04 and 0.00 respectively. Individual factors influencing a county's SVI can be parsed by looking at specific indicators.

St. Louis City, Mo., reports the highest percentage of the population below 200 percent FPL in the MTA, at 46 percent, which is about 145,000 people (see Table 17). Jefferson County, Mo., has the highest percentage of Black women over age 45 who live below the FPL, at 29 percent, with St. Louis City, Mo., coming in close behind at 28 percent. Both Jefferson County, Mo., and St. Louis City, Mo., also have the highest percentages of the population that is uninsured, at 9 percent and 13 percent, respectively. Monroe County, Ill., has particularly high economic security: 15 percent of their population falls below the FPL, 3 percent are uninsured and 0 percent of the Black women in the county fall below the FPL. This is likely because there are only 94 Black women over age 45 in the entire county (see Table 3).

Stress arose from economic vulnerabilities. Focus group participants described the need to choose between health and day-to-day needs. Economic factors included the need to overwork to support families and still the inability to obtain or afford necessities, especially health insurance, remains. Work demands were said to put stresses on entire families, even without a breast cancer diagnosis. Inability to be allowed or to afford to take time off from work and the demands of caring for family were among factors attributed to not following up on treatment.

> *"When a physician is telling you, you need surgery, and it'll probably take a couple of days of work, and you also may need chemotherapy, and you need more days off from work, I think all of that is playing into whether people return back or whether they decide to do an alternative therapy or just pray for deliverance from the problem. St. Louis City, Mo., St. Louis County, Mo., and St. Clair County, Ill., have the highest percentages of households that are housing-cost burdened in the MTA. The measure illustrated in Map 8 indicates the percentage of renters and homeowners that spend 30 percent or more of their total income on housing. St. Louis City, Mo., reports 39 percent of households as housing-cost burdened, St. Clair County, Ill., reports 30 percent of households as housing-cost burdened, and St. Louis County, MO, reports 27 percent of households as housing-cost burdened (Map 8).

With regard to food security in the St. Louis MTA, St. Louis City, Mo., has the highest percent of Black households receiving SNAP/EBT at 39 percent (Table 18). St. Louis City, Mo., also has the highest percentage of the population that is food insecure, at 25 percent. However, only 3 percent of the county's total population has limited access to healthy foods.

MAP 9. FOOD DESERTS IN THE ST. LOUIS METRO AREA

Most of the food deserts in the MTA are located in St. Louis County, Mo., Madison County, Ill., St. Clair County, Ill., and Jefferson County, MO. The food deserts in the former three counties are all centered around northeast St. Louis City, Mo. Map 9 defines food deserts as low-income, low access food desert designated by the census tract. There are no food deserts in St. Charles County, Mo., or Monroe County, Ill.

Focus group participants in St. Louis County, Mo., identified the cost of healthy foods as a barrier to eating healthily. Indeed, money to buy groceries and ideal time management were listed as factors that promote healthy eating and exercise. St. Clair County, Ill., was described as having food deserts, and while jobs were said to be available, remaining financial stressors served as barriers to buying fresh vegetables. Some see the lack of safety as a major obstacle to shopping for healthy food. Food quality in stores was described as poor. Liquor stores are prevalent —participants viewed that fact as demonstrating that their health is not a priority.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

> "Well if you live in a place where there are food deserts...there have been issues to where grocery stores in certain neighbors, the quality of meat was poor. Fruits and vegetables were spoiled and rotten... So, one of the risk factors, is to minimize your alcohol consumption, or to stay away from it all, but on every corner is a liquor store, so that's what's being promoted. So, your health is not necessarily ... being promoted depending on where you live. On the other hand, if you live in a certain part of St. Clair County, where all the money is being shipped into, you get all of the messages of health. You have numerous grocery stores that have all kinds of fruits and vegetables, including exotic [produce that is not that expensive]." – Undiagnosed

St. Louis City, Mo., as the most urban place in the MTA, has by far the highest percentage of households without a vehicle (21 percent), as well as the highest percent of the population that commutes to work using public transportation (9 percent) or by foot/bike/other (6 percent) (Table 19). In Monroe County, Ill., Jefferson County, Mo., and St. Charles County, Mo., 0 percent of the population commutes to work using public transit. In those same counties, 0-2 percent of the population commute to work by foot/bike/other. In Jefferson County, Mo., only 4 percent of households do not have a vehicle, but 25 percent of the population commutes more than 45 minutes to work.

Providers, patient navigators and residents in St. Louis County and St. Louis City, Mo., and in St. Clair, Ill., described transportation as challenging in reaching health facilities that are often far from patients' homes or work. St. Louis County focus group participants specifically mentioned the cost of transportation as a barrier to screening, noting that the cost of traveling from St. Louis County to the South side of St. Louis is $10. Patient navigators and a provider in these counties highlighted poor transportation options as being a major barrier to health care access.

> "If you're saying, 'What are some of the reasons that we may see a disparity...' first I would point to is the lack of expansion of Medicaid [means there] are unnecessarily high rates of uninsured men and women in our community. And then, the actual access to readily available health care in people's community coupled with a poor transportation infrastructure." – Provider

However, in the same St. Charles County, Mo., 15 percent of Black women over age 25 do not have a high school degree. Gentrification is another measure connected to educational attainment. The percent change in median household income is greatest in St. Louis City, Mo., at 12 change change (Table 21). It is the lowest in St. Clair County, Ill., where the percent change in median household income is 1 percent. All counties in the MTA have a positive proportional change in the population with a bachelor's degree or higher, with St. Louis City, Mo., having the highest proportional change at 6 percent.

Policy Context

This section examines key policies relating to access and coverage for breast cancer screening, diagnosis and treatment. The main policies and programs relevant are the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA), including Medicaid expansion, the National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program (NBCCEDP) and the Breast and Cervical Cancer Prevention and Treatment Act (BCCPTA).

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA)

The ACA was signed into law in 2010, enacting broad health reforms across the nation, most notably expanding health insurance coverage and enacting consumer protections. The provisions of the law that are most relevant to women seeking breast cancer-related services are the preventive services mandate, the provision that bars insurers from denying coverage based on pre-existing conditions (such as a previous diagnosis of breast cancer) and the state-by-state option to expand eligibility for Medicaid.

- Preventive Services Mandate. The preventive services mandate requires that almost all private health insurance plans cover certain preventive services without patient cost sharing. This mandate does not apply to grandfathered plans or policies, a very minor share of plans in existence prior to the passage of the Affordable Care Act on March 23, 2010, that have not undergone major changes to benefits. These preventive services are determined by guidelines from expert clinical entities, including the US Preventive Services Task Force (USPSTF) and the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA). In accordance with these guidelines, plans must provide coverage for mammograms beginning at age 40 without cost sharing. For women at high risk of breast cancer, plans must also cover genetic screening and preventive medication for breast cancer (The Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation, 2015).
- Pre-Existing Conditions Protections. Per the ACA and effective as of 2014, health insurers cannot deny coverage to an individual or charge more for coverage due to a pre-existing condition. For example, insurers cannot discriminate based on a previous or current breast cancer diagnosis or other health condition. Additionally, health insurers cannot refuse to provide coverage for treatment and other services related to a pre-existing condition (U.S. Department of Health & Human Services, 2017).
- Medicaid Expansion. Under the ACA, states have the option to expand their Medicaid program to individuals with incomes of up to 138% FPL. Missouri has not elected to expand eligibility for its Medicaid program. This leaves people in what is called a "coverage gap" where their incomes are too high to qualify for Medicaid but not high enough to afford health insurance otherwise; thus, they remain uninsured. In Missouri, as of 2018, there are an estimated 113,000 people in the coverage gap, meaning their incomes are below 100% FPL, and another 92,000 people who may have been eligible for coverage on the marketplace, meaning their incomes are between 100-138% FPL, creating an estimated total of 205,000 uninsured people who would have been eligible for insurance under expansion (Garfield, Orgera et al., 2020). In the state's August 2020 election, Missouri voters approved a ballot measure for a constitutional amendment to adopt Medicaid expansion. The constitutional amendment specified that Missouri may not implement additional eligibility or enrollment restrictions for the population eligible for expansion. The ballot specified a timeline of necessary information submitted by the state to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services by March 1, 2021, with coverage expansion to go into effect by July 1, 2021 (The Henry J. Kaiser Foundation, 2020b). At the time of this report publication, the Medicaid expansion is therefore approved but not yet implemented in Missouri. Illinois, the second state in the Komen AAHEI St. Louis MTA, has elected to expand its Medicaid program.

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002392

Recent research indicates that the uninsured rate among non-elderly adults has decreased for all racial/ethnic groups with larger decreases among non- Hispanic Black and Hispanic groups compared to non-Hispanic whites. See Figure 3 below for trends of uninsured rates for the nonelderly in Missouri and Illinois (2013-2018) comparing rates among Black and white residents in each state. There is an overall downward trend of uninsured rates for both Blacks and whites in Missouri and Illinois, but an inequity in uninsured rates remains between the groups.

The coverage disparities have narrowed compared to before the ACA, but disparities in coverage by race and ethnicity remain (Artiga, Orgera et al., 2020). Regarding screening, research suggests that states that expanded their Medicaid program eligibility standards have improved cancer screening rates compared to states that did not, and that early adoption of the Medicaid expansion is associated with greater improvements in screening (Fedewa, Yabroff et al., 2019; Swift, 2019). Some studies suggest it is possible that the racial disparity in mammograms has been closed or reversed (Fazeli Dehkordy et al., 2019).

National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program (NBCCEDP) and Breast and Cervical Cancer Treatment Program (BCCTP)

In Missouri, the NBCCEDP program is known as the Show Me Healthy Women Program (SMHW). Women living in Missouri, who are 50 to 64 years old, and are uninsured are eligible for this program. In Illinois, the NBCCEDP program is known as the Illinois Breast and Cervical Cancer Program. Women living in Illinois, who 35 to 64 years old, and are without insurance are eligible for this program.

From July 2014 to June 2019, 25,771 mammograms were provided in Missouri through the NBCCEDP (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 2020). From July 2014 to June 2019, 51,191 mammograms were provided in Illinois through the NBCCEDP (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 2020).

In Missouri, women who are diagnosed through the SMHW program may be eligible for treatment through the Breast or Cervical Cancer Treatment MO HealthNext Program. In Illinois, women who are diagnosed (either through the ICCBP or through another means) may be eligible for treatment through the ICCBP Medicaid if they meet certain requirements.

The varying levels of eligibility for BCCTP can facilitate women's access to services (e.g., eligible regardless of screening location or provider) or can impede a woman's access to services (e.g., requirements that NBCCEDP fund screening costs). In Missouri, providers are available in 85 counties plus St. Louis and there are 182 provider locations throughout the state, including local public health agencies, FQHCs, hospitals, private physician offices, and not-for-profit health centers. If a woman is diagnosed with breast or cervical cancer, she is then eligible to receive Medicaid services.

Flexibility in the Medicaid Program via Medicaid Waivers

One aspect of flexibility in the Medicaid program is a state's option to apply for Medicaid "waivers" in the state's administration of the program. These waivers allow states to "waive" some of the typical federal requirements in order to pilot new approaches (subject to approval from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services [CMS]) (National Conference of State Legislatures, 2018).

The Trump administration has promoted work requirements through Medicaid waivers which have previously not been approved (Brooks, Roygardner et al., 2019). Several states have applied to enact work requirements, meaning that Medicaid eligible enrollees would have to report working a certain number of hours or involvement in a volunteer role, in school, or in time spent looking for a job. Their Medicaid coverage would be contingent on meeting these requirements. Neither Missouri nor Illinois have implemented any work requirements for their Medicaid programs (The Fund, 2020; the Henry J. Kaiser Foundation, 2020a).

Cancer Plan for Missouri

The Missouri Cancer Action Plan is developed and published every five years by the Missouri Comprehensive Cancer Control Program (CCCP) (Missouri Cancer Consortium, 2016). The CCCP is funded by the CDC and provides leadership for and coordination of Missouri's comprehensive cancer control efforts. The cancer plan is focused around four broad goals:

- Goal #1: Reduce the incidence of cancer by promoting healthy lifestyles and reducing environmental hazards
- Goal #2: Increase the early detection of cancer by promoting the use of evidence-based screening guidelines
- Goal #3: Increase access to evidence-based treatment of cancer
- Goal #4: Assure the highest quality of life possible for cancer survivors and their families, including end-of-life transitions

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002395

Goals 2 and 3 have a particular focus on breast cancer with intentions to increase the percentage of women who receive regular breast cancer screening and increase the percentage of cancer patients (including patients of in situ and invasive breast cancer) who receive evidence-based treatment.

Other goals have created specific targeted intervention for Blacks in Missouri, particularly Goal 1 with objectives to reduce smoking and obesity rates for Blacks. Goal 4 also outlines strategies to make tools and resources available to identified disparate populations, including those of minority race or ethnic status, and to increase information and awareness about the service needs of diverse populations, including diverse racial and ethnic backgrounds. However, the plan makes no specific mention about targeting breast cancer rates in Black women in the state.

Illinois Comprehensive Cancer Control Plan

The Illinois Comprehensive Cancer Control Plan is developed by the Illinois Cancer Partnership (ICP), a partnership involving public sector, private, and nonprofit partners. The most recent plan covers the time period of 2016-2021 (Department of Public Health, 2016).

In the plan, the specific goal related to breast cancer is to increase the proportion of women 40 and older who receive a screening mammogram through promotion of the Illinois BCP and faith-based, community-based partners. Not specific to breast cancer but relevant to breast cancer survivors, the Illinois Comprehensive Cancer Control Plan also includes a strategy to educate health care providers and patients to increase the awareness of issues relevant to cancer survivors (such as a communications campaign on improving survivorship, faith-based survivorship programs, etc.). While the plan describes breast cancer inequities by race, the state plan does not provide specific recommendations to address breast cancer inequities.

State Laws Impacting the Breast Cancer Community

- Diagnostic Imaging. Illinois has passed legislation that eliminates the out-of-pocket costs for medically necessary diagnostic mammograms, breast ultrasound and breast MRI.
- Metastatic Step Therapy. Illinois has passed legislation that prohibits the use of step therapy or "fail-first" protocols for advanced, metastatic cancer patients.
- Oral Parity. Missouri and Illinois have passed legislation that ensures patient cost-sharing for oral chemotherapy treatments are no less favorable than the patient cost-sharing for intravenous chemotherapy treatments.

Discussion and Conclusion

This landscape analysis sought to understand the underlying causes of breast cancer inequities across the care continuum among Black women in the St. Louis MTA, with a focus on systemic racism and SDOH. Examining multiple measures of disease burden together underscores how race is strongly influencing breast cancer disease burden.

Breast Cancer Disease Burden

The review of data presents a compelling story about breast cancer in the St. Louis MTA deserving of further research. As compared to white women in the St. Louis MTA, Black women die from the disease

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

at higher rates, a pattern that may indicate deep and persistent inequities in access to and/or quality of treatment.

Missouri and Illinois are among states in which incidence of breast cancer among Black women has exceeded the incidence among white women. Although there is no consistent trend in incidence rates within the St. Louis MTA, comparing Black women to white women (see Table 5) across the five different counties in the St. Louis MTA that disaggregate data by race, Black women have greater incidence of breast cancer in St. Louis City, Mo., and Madison County, Ill. A strong trend is seen in mortality in the four areas in the St. Louis MTA that disaggregate those statistics by race. Across these counties, Black women are consistently more likely to die from the disease compared to white women (see Table 8), at rates that are from 24 percent higher in St. Louis City, Mo., to 86 percent higher in St. Louis County, Mo. Late-stage diagnoses are elevated for Black women versus white women in the St. Louis City, Mo. area, where it is a striking 18.5 percent higher rate.

Screening mammography rates are not likely to explain all of the reasons for higher mortality among Black residents. State data on screening mammography rates suggest that Black women are likely getting mammograms at similar rates as white women in the St. Louis MTA. The percent of women of any race getting mammograms is reported to be 63 percent(Madison County, Iii.) to 76 percent (St. Louis City, Mo.) within the St. Louis MTA. While the areas on the higher end are comparable to state rates of 74 percent in Missouri and 73 percent in Illinois, rates in Jefferson County, Mo., St. Clair County, Ill., and Madison County, Ill., are 5-10 percent below their respective state average (see Table 9). As approximately a quarter to a third of residents over age 45 have not had a screening mammography, these rates could be improved upon, however are not likely to explain the inequity in mortality.

Quality of Care

It is not clear why the late-stage incidence is higher for Black women in St. Louis City. Inconsistent screening guidance and mistrust of providers and the health system at large could delay health care seeking, ultimately resulting in late diagnosis. Patient navigators observed that this is a common issue for women in the MTA given the shifting and evolving guidelines, particularly as these guidelines relate to patient age and whether to pursue a screening mammogram. Several survivors also shared experiences of annual mammograms having not detected breast cancer that had progressed to a late stage, and there were those whose diagnoses had been delayed after screening found an abnormality when providers told them to just watch and wait. This raises the specter of poor equipment, lack of availability of well-trained technicians, poor adherence to guideline concordant care or other potential issues surrounding quality of care.

Inequities might lie in delays between diagnosis and treatment, access to treatment and the quality of treatment available to Black women versus white women in St. Louis County, Mo. St. Louis County has the lowest percentage of medically underserved populations (3 percent); yet the data are not available by race. During interviews and focus groups, participants shared that Black women experienced long and unnecessary delays in getting treatment, even to the point of presenting back with metastatic disease due to a missed window of care.

Research also shows that race likely plays an important role in poorer outcomes among Black women, as breast cancer disparities for Black women can persist regardless of insurance status. A study by Hoffman et al., for example, showed that both publicly and privately insured Black women experienced a longer duration from the time of first symptoms to diagnostic resolution for breast cancer as compared to white women (Hoffman et al., 2011). Other evidence shows that commercially insured Black breast cancer patients were diagnosed at a later stage and had a higher mortality rate when compared with their white counterparts with the same insurance status (Daly & Olopade, 2015). Also, Black women are likely to encounter health care staff with discriminatory attitudes and behaviors. This can lead to misdiagnosis and delays in treatment and deepens mistrust of providers and the health care system at large.

This was most apparent in the qualitative discussions about the diagnostic phase of the breast cancer continuum of care. While examples of providers offering high quality, respectful services to Black women were abundant, others described presenting with symptoms or even with abnormalities found during screening mammography that were ignored or dismissed. It causes both mental strain and reduces the chances of survival to live with symptoms for a long period before getting a cancer diagnosis. In particular, they reported that women under 40 had a harder time getting screened and/or referred for diagnostic procedures, including one case where the patient had to seek out three different physicians before receiving the appropriate diagnostic tests. Additionally, the qualitative data expose that personally mediated racism leads to a poorer experience for Black women in the MTA. Several survivors reported that they were not listened to when they asked for screening nor included in shared decision making to shape their treatment plans.

Women told of facing such discrimination with grace and resilience. They confronted situations, but focused on their strength, character and self-worth rather than victimhood. They found means of self-advocating and gaining greater strength by joining together.

It is often only in conversations with other survivors, usually at support groups or through peer navigation programs, that they find out they are being treated differently or learn information that is critical. Cancer coalitions and support groups were mentioned and relied upon on St. Louis City and St. Louis County, yet there was a greater need that existed. While St. Clair had a high number of support groups (16) catalogued by the Komen Affiliate in 2015, cuts to the Illinois Breast and Cervical Cancer Program have diminished resources, especially in East St. Clair where more of the Black neighborhoods are located. Monroe County and Madison County, Ill., and Jefferson County, Mo., have the fewest support groups. The longstanding efforts of women of color to operate their own peer networks, including The Breakfast Club, was noteworthy, and participants felt they met the needs of Black women more fully while also helping to create community change through their networking and advocacy.

Given that the research supports the experiences reported in the focus groups and interviews, it is possible that Black women in the St. Louis MTA are provided with a lower quality of care by some providers at some institutions as compared to white women, and that this racial inequity in care provision directly contributes to the breast health disparities in the region.

Inequities might lie in access to treatment, delays between diagnosis and treatment and the quality of treatment available to Black women versus white women in St. Louis County, Mo. St. Louis County has the lowest percentage of medically underserved populations (3 percent), yet we did not have information by race.

Furthermore, there are barriers plaguing access to genetic counseling and testing services in the Black community. These services are valuable for those with a family health history of cancers to determine whether or not genetic mutations known to cause increased risk for breast and other cancers (such as mutations in BRCA1/BRCA2 genes) are present. One of the root causes of the genetic testing disparity is the lack of knowledge and communication of genetic testing in the Black community. Blacks do not participate in genetic testing at the same rate as European Americans (Huang et al. 2014). Implicit racial bias is associated with negative markers of communication among minority patients and may contribute to racial disparities in processes of care related to genetic services (Schaa et al., 2015).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Providers conveyed that quality of care was not equal and that practices rooted in historic and systemic racism, as well as unconscious bias, affected their own training and work experience. They strongly asserted that while the vision was there to end disparities, they were still far from equity. While some were in active coalitions, others found it hard to discuss racial equity among peers.

Tied to disparate care, was disparate research. Only recently has cancer among Black women been researched in clinical trials, which was said to have hampered the state of knowledge regarding incidence and the best treatment options for triple negative breast cancers, their increase and their predilection for recurrence within two years (Jiao et al., 2014). Furthermore, Black women may have less access to improvements in treatments (Yedjou et al., 2017).

Social Determinants of Health

The St. Louis MTA exhibits high rankings of segregation —both within and across areas. Within St. Louis City are clusters of Black households and lower-income neighborhoods interspersed with neighborhoods experiencing gentrification and the concurrent rise in housing prices. Community members spoke of jobs, transportation options, availability of nutritious and affordable foods, exposures to pollutants and walkable streets varying along such lines. Of likely consequence to health inequities, in each of the priority counties within the St. Louis MTA, St. Clair, Ill., and St. Louis City and St. Louis County, Mo., access to health care services, particularly high-quality cancer diagnostic and treatment facilities, tended to be farther away from underserved Black neighborhoods. While FQHCs may be available, with a few exceptions, these were not described as offering the same level of access to high-quality breast cancer services.

The demographic data establish that the areas of the St. Louis MTA with higher proportions of Black residents are St. Louis City, Mo. (48 percent), St. Clair County, Ill. (30 percent) or St. Louis County, Mo. (24 percent, which has a larger actual number of Black women over 45) (see Table 4). These areas show a Black-white racial disparity in overall life expectancy and premature mortality (see Tables 13 and 14).

From a resource standpoint, the two counties in the MTA that have the greatest percentage of medically underserved people are St. Clair County, Ill.(60 percent) and St. Louis City, Mo. (36 percent). These same counties have the greatest proportion of Blacks in the MTA, with Blacks comprising 30 percent of St. Clair County, Ill., and 48 percent St. Louis City, Mo. While each county in the MTA had at least one mobile screening mammography center, participants indicated that mobile vans were not consistently available in the highest need Black neighborhoods. Research shows that the pattern of resources clustered in predominantly white areas impacts a women's cancer journey. Ansell et al. found that in Chicago, facilities that served predominantly "minority" women were less likely to have dedicated breast imaging specialists reading results as compared to those facilities that served predominantly white women (Ansell et al., 2009). Studies have also found racial differences in time to breast cancer diagnosis (Hoffman et al., 2011), time to breast cancer treatment (Halpern & Holden, 2012; Ko, Andreopoulou, & Moo, 2016; Nurgalieva et al., 2013), type of breast cancer treatment (Curtis, Quale, Haggstrom, & Smith-Bindman, 2008) and completion of breast cancer treatment (Green et al., 2018; Ko et al., 2016).

In the St. Louis MTA, areas with large Black populations have some of the highest uninsured rates, suggesting that not having insurance may be among factors contributing to breast cancer inequities. The uninsured rates may, in part, be related to the state not having adopted an expanded Medicaid program. The rates of uninsured tended to be lower in Illinois than in Missouri counties. During the period reflected in Table 17, Illinois had expanded Medicaid, while Missouri had not (Update: Medicaid Expansion in Missouri was recently approved by ballot initiative in August 2020).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002399

Focus group participants explained that the type of insurance they were perceived to have influenced the quality of care received. They reported feeling that those enrolled in Medicaid received poorer quality care and were turned away from services at some facilities. Focus group participants with limited, private insurance with poor coverage had similar, if not worse, experiences. Health professionals who were Black also reported poorer treatment until the health care staff were aware that they were physicians themselves. Along similar lines, the type of health insurance impacts where a patient receives care. Medicaid recipients, or those without insurance, are likely to receive treatment at an FQHC or at hospitals, which were perceived by focus group participants and interviewed providers as providing a lower quality of cancer care.

Across those offering their experiences and perspectives, emphasis was placed on insurance as a key factor. Many Black women in this MTA were described as not having adequate or any insurance to cover needed care. Those without adequate insurance may not be able to access treatment and were claimed to be viewed as undesirable. They are "pushed out" of care. Insurance was also described as a major factor in stopping treatment because of the cost of copays or facilities not accepting all policies. These data are consistent with the literature showing that among Black breast cancer patients, a woman's insurance type was a significant predictor of mistrust of the medical establishment. Women with Medicaid expressed greater mistrust and suspicion compared to women with private insurance or private insurance and Medicare (Sutton, He, Edmonds, & Sheppard, 2019). A qualitative study in Chicago found that Black breast cancer patients often expressed concern that the type of health insurance impacts the quality of breast cancer care received (Masi & Gehlert, 2009).

Data further indicate that Blacks from St. Louis City and County in Missouri as well as St. Clair and Madison County in Illinois, are heavily burdened by SDOH. A high percentage of Black populations in these four locations are medically underserved, below the 200% FPL, and food insecure. These data suggest that even if an Black woman in any of these places is physically proximate to a treatment facility, she may be unable to access care due to economic barriers or other burdens related to SDOH.

St Louis City also reports the highest number of Blacks killed by police, number of hate crimes committed with a race/ethnicity bias and number of housing act cases filed with a race bias within the MTA. There is a strong and growing body of evidence on the negative health effects of such experiences on entire families and communities (Novak, Geronimus, & Martinez-Cardoso, 2017; Parker, Parker, Philbin, & Hirsch, 2018). Participants in St. Louis City and St. Clair mentioned neighborhood safety as a factor that affects healthy behaviors (walking and exercising, accessing food stores) and travel to health care and support programs, including not being able to attend our focus group sessions at night.

Timeliness of care is a key concern. Research on HDHPs and their impact on breast cancer care tend to stratify by income level, but not by race and ethnicity. Overall, HDHPs appear to exacerbate delays across the breast cancer continuum of care for multiple socio-demographic groups with low-income women experiencing the longest delays (Wharam et al., 2019).

Despite these many challenges the landscape analysis also identified innumerable opportunities to advance racial equity. Partnerships that link health care organizations, community-based organizations, and local government were strong. The assets Black women themselves bring are abundant and many have organized themselves into advocacy and peer-support networks. Participants clearly voiced that Komen's leadership and resources could make a pivotal contribution to helping the St. Louis MTA advance community-driven, collaborative initiatives to foster needed change. Breast cancer inequities across the care continuum in the St. Louis MTA persist due to systemic policies and practices, economic vulnerability, incongruence between guidelines and implementation, variation in messaging about screening guidelines and experiences of personally mediated racism. Taken together, these factors severely reduce the timeliness and quality of care that Black women receive across the cancer care continuum. Particular aspects of the breast cancer continuum that warrant further investigation and intervention include the availability of accessible, high-quality screening and diagnostic mechanisms and treatment options for Black women. Opportunities to expand upon growing clinical/community partnerships present themselves. Such collaborations can enhance not only education and outreach for residents and providers, but hold promise in strengthening policies, systems and environments. Resulting improvements in economic, physical and social conditions are among determinants that can lead to healthier Black neighborhoods.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Recommendations

Komen's AAHEI is a substantial undertaking to dismantle the systems that perpetuate growing breast cancer inequities experienced by Black women. Findings from the St Louis MTA landscape analysis suggest that the work ahead requires interventions across multiple levels of the system: the micro level (the level at which patients and providers interact), the mezzo level (the level at which systems interact) and the macro level (the policy level).

This framework reveals that the health system is multidimensional, ever-changing and has the potential to facilitate or impede population health. For most, the lasting impression of the health system begins at the micro level —where providers and patients interact. As Black women progress along the breast cancer continuum of care, they encounter other micro systems and the complexity of their experience increases. Access to and quality of these micro systems vary, and there is a need for these systems to interact and relate in a manner that centers the experiences of Black women. When multiple micro systems intersect, the mezzo system is formed and the health experience becomes more complicated, particularly in the absence of navigation assistance or care coordination. System functionality at the micro and mezzo levels is directed by policies and resources within and beyond the organization – the macro level.

The following recommendations apply this systems framework and address specific changes, strategies, or interventions at the micro, mezzo and macro levels. These recommendations are intended to work in concert and not as discrete changes. Recommendations acknowledge that the systems and their components are relational, non-linear, and dynamic. Thus, suggested strategies and interventions should be coordinated with communities, in keeping with Komen's collaborative approach to advance breast health equity for Blacks. This provides a mechanism for community/stakeholder engagement and recognizes the informal and formal systems and networks of social support that are accessed by Black women. These recommendations represent actionable strategies as the bridge between social determinants of health and the breast cancer care experience of Black women.

Micro-Level Strategies

Increase access to culturally competent patient navigators and community health workers (CHWs). The breast cancer community should consider various ways to support culturally competent, trained patient navigators and CHWs, such as serving on patient navigation and CHW advisory boards, funding culturally competent patient navigator/CHW trainings, and funding patient navigator/CHW services to increase breast cancer patients' access to these invaluable services. This includes increasing the number of navigators and assuring they are geographically accessible. Komen Missouri already engages patient navigators as local partners in supporting women and advancing their local programming. Interventions that expand patient navigators/CHWs and survivors as peer lay navigators into underserved areas have been among the focus areas for these collaborators. Efforts could build upon CHW reimbursement that Missouri HealthNet (the state Medicaid program) piloted in their Primary Care Health Home Program. The pilot was conducted in Southwest MO (2015-2017) and the state found it to be effective at cost-effectively improving health outcomes for clients with complex chronic conditions while addressing the social determinants of health (Missouri Department of Social Services, 2017).

Increase education about family health history to identify high-risk families and offer genetic counseling and testing to meet the need.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Individuals who have first-degree family members with a history of disease may benefit from genetic testing which may lead to early screening and early detection, implementing preventive actions, participating in research trials and even accessing interventions that could slow or prevent disease progression. However, several studies show that Black women are less likely to have genetic testing.

Various studies assessed the reasons why people of diverse ancestry take advantage of genetic testing in such small numbers. For example, a study conducted by Glenn et al. from 2004 to 2006 revealed that among Black, Asian and Latina women, a leading reason why these women did not undergo a BRCA gene test was lack of awareness of the availability of this service (Glenn et al., 2012). In addition, health care providers may not obtain family history information from non-white women at the same rates as white women (Murff et al. 2005). Lower rates of discussing family history of breast cancer with Black women may further translate into reduced rates of referring these women to genetic counseling.

In Georgia, the screening mammography rate for Black women over the age of 40 is 79.4 percent, compared to 72 percent of white women in the same age range. While Black women are getting screened at high rates, the breast cancer mortality rate is higher for Black women than white women in most counties in the MTA where data is available for both demographics (see Table 8). The qualitative findings indicate community uncertainty of the appropriate age for screening with some saying 50-years-old is the appropriate age for a first screening mammogram. Other community members shared concerns about Black women in their 30s receiving breast cancer diagnosis before the recommended screening ages. This underscores the value of genetic counseling and testing for those at increased hereditary risk for breast cancer.

The breast cancer community has an opportunity to support a health promotion campaign that amplifies the need to discuss family health history so that families may make decisions about their healthcare; to educate about the role genetic testing and counseling can play in overall healthcare; and to provide information on accessing trusted providers of testing and counseling services. While these services are often covered by insurance, a program is needed to provide services to the under- and uninsured families.

This campaign should be rigorously evaluated, and if done effectively should demonstrate significant increases in awareness and uptake among Black women and their families around these programs and contribute to the growing body of research evidence about the genetic drivers of breast cancer in Black women.

Implement a culturally relevant health promotion campaign intended to increase knowledge of screening guidelines, especially among the never-screened and those at high-risk.

Although data show that many Black women are being screened, the qualitative data from the focus groups pointed to confusion about the varying screening recommendations (from the American Cancer Society, the American College of Radiology, and the United States Preventative Services Task Force). Quantitative data also showed screening rates below the national average among certain counties, which may be driven by a combination of factors beyond this confusion to include financial barriers, fear, and mistrust of the healthcare system.

The breast cancer community has an opportunity to support a health promotion campaign that clarifies current screening guidelines; educates about the role family health history plays in determining risk of breast cancer and resulting recommended age at screening onset and interval; and to encourage further assessment of suspicious findings through diagnostic exams. In addition, patient education is needed about low- and no-cost options for the uninsured as well as programs to overcome barriers to care (such as vouchers for services, financial assistance for transportation or childcare) to ensure Black women know that mammograms can be accessed.

Community-based organizations can play an integral role in providing education and breast cancer services to the Black community. Partnerships with community-based organizations for community engagement in the Black community can aide in building community trust and providing culturally competent services and resources such as community education on screening and diagnostic services, referrals to screening services, linkages to culturally responsive community navigators and treatment assistance.

This campaign and partnerships should be rigorously evaluated, and if done effectively should demonstrate significant increases in awareness and uptake among never-screened and late-screened Black women around these programs as well as uncover some the root causes of late-stage diagnosis among Black women.

Mezzo-Level Strategies

Increase access to integrated care to improve the breast cancer care experience.

Particular aspects of the breast cancer continuum that warrant further investigation and intervention include the availability of accessible, high-quality screening, low cost or free diagnostic mechanisms and various treatment options for Black women. This can also include exploring partnerships with FQHCs. The integration of oncological, primary care and mental health services is valuable. Overweight and obese women are represented among the increased incidence rate for breast cancer after menopause. Reducing a woman's risk for breast cancer through routine primary care and help improve weight-related risk. Additionally, the breast cancer experience is characterized by an increased toll on mental health. Poor mental health also increases stress, a risk factor for breast cancer. Therefore, the integration of mental health services along the breast cancer care continuum is also important.

Support Quality Improvement (QI) initiatives along the breast cancer continuum of care.

Quality improvement (QI) initiatives employ qualitative and quantitative methods to enhance the effectiveness of interventions, programs, and policies. Institutionalizing a commitment to quality improvement supports continuous learning and refinement in ways that ensure limited resources are used optimally and service delivery objectives (e.g., quality care) are achieved. Stand for H.E.R. may want to support QI initiatives in the major health systems in the MTA, especially in cities that have large Black populations.

To help combat potential system-level discriminatory practices, additional QI measures are warranted to maintain and build upon. This may include monitoring progress relating to treatment adherence, assessing care experiences and reducing time to diagnosis among Black women. Komen and partners may want to support QI initiatives in the major health systems in the Chicago MTA, especially in counties that are largely Black. These efforts have been helping improve the quality of care, often perceived by community residents and confirmed by providers as varying across health systems and of worse quality among institutions that serve under-insured or Medicaid populations. Komen and partners could consider ways to support QI initiatives in non-hospital and non-health system care settings (in addition to hospital and health system settings), such as federally qualified health centers that are more accessible to priority populations.

Fund Black-specific support groups across the MTA, particularly those that are taking leadership roles in building collaborations and strengthening advocacy.

The breast cancer community may want to fund support groups specifically for, and led by, Black women. Support for and expansion of the Breakfast Club is highly recommended. Formed and run by Black breast cancer survivors in St. Louis City and St. Louis County, Mo., this powerful model offers extensive peer networking, a buddy system of support (including at health appointments), advocacy and extensive neighborhood outreach. Promising new initiatives are being driven by the leadership of these Black survivors as partners within clinical/community/faith collaborations. Expansion in Missouri, and replication in St. Clair County, Ill., would build not only needed support, but the advocacy and leadership that can drive effective strategies designed and led by Black women themselves.

Encourage health institutions (health care systems and payers) to invest in high-need areas.

The breast cancer community may favorably influence health systems and payers to 'give back' to historically disenfranchised communities by: 1) incentivizing health systems and payers to invest in Black communities; 2) requiring grantees from major health institutions to invest in community benefits to provide breast health services in community health centers; and 3) partnering with non-profits to fund standalone breast clinics that could replace the breast health services that were previously available at now-closed hospitals. An example is continued expansion of screening mammography services within FQHCs in North St. Louis and ensuring that NCI Community Oncology Research Programs are broadened within the MTA and located in areas of greatest need. Additionally, focus group participants noted the value of free mobile screening mammogram programs and shared that expanding this approach and better targeting their placement and partnerships with CBOs and resident leaders would both increase awareness of and access to mammograms. Eased referral and transportation to specialty care is needed. It is a vital time to assure continuity of services in Belleville and other predominantly Black communities in St. Clair County, Ill., as hospitals and specialty clinics affiliated with them relocate and/or change services. These strategies will help to improve access to high-quality care while ensuring that over time there is commensurate scientific advancement in breast cancer treatment options for Blacks.

Macro-Level Strategies

Implement a health promotion campaign intended to increase awareness of breast cancer inequities among Black women.

The breast cancer community may initiate a campaign that could include outreach to community leaders (e.g., faith leaders and employers) and be integrated with enhanced mobile screening mammography services within the most underserved Black neighborhoods where screening rates are lowest and delays to treatment highest. This campaign should be rigorously evaluated and, if done effectively, should demonstrate significant increases in awareness of these programs among undiagnosed Black women. Furthermore, we recommend that Stand for H.E.R. encourage major treatment centers in both the Missouri and St. Louis counties to provide a free clinical visit so that women can access mammograms, as our findings indicate that sometimes having even a small copay can create a barrier to getting screened. Piloted “open houses” reflect clinical/community efforts in the St. Louis MTA to reduce fear and familiarize women with screening mammography and other screening equipment and treatment practices. These programs should be reviewed, and if found successful, replicated.

Support expeditious implementation of Medicaid Expansion in Missouri.

A significant opportunity presents itself with the recent passage by ballot initiative on August 4, 2020, of Medicaid expansion in Missouri, extending coverage to 217,000 low-income residents. Not strengthening the health finance building though Medicaid expansion has hindered the MTA residents’ ability to seek health care services without the risk of severe financial hardship. Stand for H.E.R. can add their voice in assuring that such expansion is implemented in a timely fashion. There are potential barriers ahead given experiences of other states and considering budget concerns and opposition to expansion expressed by the Governor. Stand for H.E.R. could also foresee and strongly advocate against any potential future proposal to limit access to Medicaid, such as through harmful waivers entailing work requirements. Secondary data indicate that St. Louis City has the lowest percentage of the population that is uninsured, however, at 13 percent the rate of uninsured is 5 percent higher than the national average of 8 percent. The eligibility expansion should ensure that more women receive timely screening and breast cancer care services. Stand for H.E.R. should continue to build on advocacy relationships in the state and examine partnerships to advocate for implementation of Medicaid expansion in the state. To have its greatest reach, advocacy efforts should engage those across all levels of the system: patients, providers, CBOs and policy makers, to clearly illustrate how and who will be positively affected by policy changes.

Participants noted that Susan G. Komen has played an important role in this effort, and renewed support would help maintain such progress. An Illinois survivor noted that her hospital offered her a screening mammogram, and since it was free due to a recent major Komen grant, she accepted. At the same time, a provider in Missouri relayed that Komen funds had been vital but had not been as available.

Conduct a root cause analysis relating to delays in breast cancer diagnosis.

The breast cancer community may invest in a root cause analysis (RCA) process to identify the contributing factors and underlying causes of late-stage incidence, as well as the key leverage points where intervention would have a significant impact on breast cancer inequities, strengths and areas of opportunity. By conducting a RCA, stakeholders, including non-health stakeholders, can begin to understand the complexity of late-stage incidence in their community. Participants of a RCA process should include breast cancer survivors, community-led efforts (e.g., workers' unions, non-profits, food banks, community health centers, women's organizations, housing alliances, etc.) and research centers with long-standing academic-community partnerships. The RCA includes an action planning process to determine how to maximize key leverage points to address root causes. Additionally, the RCA process can spur innovative ideas and strategies guided by best practices for addressing the factors and underlying causes that impact late-stage incidence in the St. Louis MTA. The RCA can build upon analyses conducted by area researchers and their collaborators, such as those within the Program for the Elimination of Cancer Disparities and the St. Louis Integrated Health Network. Once complete, Stand for H.E.R. may want to engage in partnerships with the RCA stakeholders and provide grants to implement the RCA action plan among these organizations' respective members and networks.

Support financial assistance programs.

As indicated in the findings' sections, residents of the St. Louis MTA face economic vulnerability. In St. Louis City, Jefferson County, Mo., and St. Clair County, Ill., where many residents are also uninsured, Black women may still have issues meeting the high out-of-pocket costs for breast cancer diagnosis and treatment. The breast cancer community can prioritize advocating for health system financial assistance programs to meet deductibles for high-deductible health plans or cost sharing for underinsured women. Nonprofit health systems offer such financial assistance programs through grant funding and other mechanisms. These funds could be leveraged for further reach. In addition to working with hospitals, Komen could collaborate with CBOs that offer financial assistance such as Gateway to Hope that supports women ages 15-45 with breast cancer and the Thelma D. Jones Breast Cancer Fund. Yet despite their value, charitable programs in the St. Louis MTA were said to require yearly eligibility applications that are hard to navigate in the midst of cancer care; especially for those with limited literacy and competing demands for their time due to family and work. If bolstered, the application processes should be eased and tailored to more fully relieve the financial burden that women experience.

Fund collaborative initiatives at the community level to address root causes of breast cancer disparities.

Collaborative approaches promise to leverage more of the significant resources needed to attain ambitious goals that lie beyond the capacity of individual institutions or foundations. Such collaborations must extend beyond traditional silos. The intersectional issues that weave together to create the SDOH in any community require full engagement of not only medical and public health sectors, but social services, housing and urban planning, economic development, environmental and occupational protections, educational systems, transportation infrastructure and healthy eating and active living initiatives. Each of these arenas arose as deserving improvement based on county-level data, indicating that Blacks from St. Louis City and County in Missouri and St. Clair and Madison County in Illinois, are heavily burdened by SDOH. A high percentage of Black populations in these four locations are medically underserved, below the 200% FPL, and food insecure. These data suggest that even if an Black woman in any of these places is physically proximate to a treatment facility, she may be unable to access care due to economic barriers or other burdens related to SDOH. Participant observations called out conditions that were particularly distressed in North St Louis City, Mo., the North side of St. Louis County, Mo., and the Black neighborhoods of St. Clair County, Ill. Fostering the requisite conditions that promote health demands collective action. The robust collaborations that exist in the St. Louis MTA are available to build upon. These include the Program for Elimination of Cancer Disparities and the St. Louis Integrated Health Network.

This landscape analysis report conveys comprehensive issues facing Blacks in the metro areas. The recommendations are intended to be a call to action for all community-based organizations, policymakers, hospitals, healthcare providers, faith-based organizations, civic leaders and citizens. The recommendations are offered as evidence-informed strategies to start reducing breast cancer disparities among Blacks.

Appendix B. Abbreviations & Glossary

Age-adjusted rates: A weighted average of the age-specific (crude) rates, where the weights are the proportions of persons in the corresponding age groups of a standard population. The potential confounding effect of age is reduced when comparing age-adjusted rates computed using the same standard population. Rates are expressed as the number per 100,000. The age-adjusted rates that appear in this report were calculated by State Cancer Profiles (SCP) using the National Cancer Institute's Surveillance, Epidemiology, and End Results (SEER) Program data and methods (National Cancer Institute).

Allostatic load: The "wear and tear" on the body and brain that results from chronic or repeated stress.

Black/white dissimilarity index: A measure of residential segregation that illustrates the evenness with which two mutually exclusive groups (in this case, Blacks and whites) are distributed across the geographic units (in this case, census tracts) that make up a larger geographic entity (in this case, counties). Calculated by County Health Rankings (CHR) using the Index of Dissimilarity formula and data from American Community Survey (ACS) 5-year. Scores range from 0-100 and scores closer to 100 indicate greater segregation. CHR only calculates this measure for counties with at least 100 Black residents (County Health Rankings, 2020e).

Breast cancer stage: An approach to classify and describe cancer's spread or growth in the body. There are various approaches to staging. Health care providers commonly use "TNM" to assess the stage, which stands for:

- Tumor: size and location of tumor;
- Node: whether the tumor has spread to the lymph nodes, and;
- Metastasis: whether the cancer has spread to other parts of the body and to what extent.

Clinical breast examination: A physical exam that a provider performs to check the breasts and underarms for any concerns (e.g., lumps).

Collective impact: A cross-sector approach to solving complex issues on a large scale that offers a different way of working wherein whole systems – health departments, government, businesses, CBOs and participants with lived experiences make a unified effort to collectively address the issue from multiple angles (Kania & Kramer, 2011).

Confidence Interval (CI): Statisticians use a confidence interval to express the degree of uncertainty associated with a sample statistic (e.g., mean, median or other measure). It is usually presented with a probability statement.

Continuum of Care: The clinical continuum of care for breast cancer includes all aspects of screening, detection, diagnosis, treatment, and follow-up.

County Heath Rankings (CHR) percentile: A measure calculated using the following formula: CHR (numerator) divided by the number of counties in the state (denominator). CHRs are determined through an intra-state, weighted variable process (County Health Rankings, 2016).

Diagnostic screening mammogram: A screening mammogram used to further examine breast cancer symptoms (e.g., a lump) or an abnormal result from a screening mammogram or clinical breast exam using two or more views of the breast.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002410

Fair Housing Act cases: The Fair Housing Act (Title VIII of the 1968 Civil Rights Act) prohibits most discrimination in housing transactions based on federally recognized bases (race, religion, familial status, etc.) Individuals in the US can bring cases to the Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity (FHEO) within the Department of Housing and Urban Development. If there is cause to believe discrimination occurred, the case will go through a legal adjudication process to be resolved.

Federal poverty level (FPL): A measure of income that the US Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) releases annually. The FPL is used to determine eligibility for some benefits and programs, such as Medicaid, and cost subsidies on the health insurance Marketplace. The 2020 FPL is $26,200 for a family of four, and $12,760 for an individual. The data that appear in this report were calculated by the US Census Bureau and indicate the percentage of the population whose annual income is less than twice the 2017 FPL (i.e. 200% FPL). In 2017, the FPL was $24,600 for a family of four and $12,060 for an individual. (Office of the Assistant Secretary for Planning and Evaluation).

Food deserts: Areas defined by the US Department of Agriculture as urban census tracts that are low income and have low access to fresh food within a one-mile radius (U.S. Department of Agriculture Economic Research Service, 2019).

Gentrification: The process whereby a neighborhood or community's characteristics change as more affluent residents and businesses move into an area and displace less affluent residents, often people of color.

Hate crime with a race/ethnicity/ancestry bias motivation: A criminal offense against a person or property that was motivated in whole or in part by the offender's bias against a person's race/ethnicity/ancestry. The FBI collects this data using self-reported data from municipalities and universities. The data included in this report are from 2017. Crimes committed in municipalities that cross county lines are counted for all of the counties in which the municipality is located (U.S. Department of Justice Federal Bureau of Investigation, 2017).

Hazard ratio: Hazard ratio: A measure of how often a health event occurs over time in one group compared to another group. Cancer research often uses hazard ratios to compare a group of patients receiving a cancer treatment to a control group (receiving another treatment or placebo). A hazard ratio of 1 signifies no difference in survival between the groups; a hazard survival less than one or greater than one signifies that survival in one of the groups was better than the other (National Cancer Institute).

Health equity: Equity is the absence of unjust or avoidable differences among groups of people, whether defined demographically, socially, economically or by some other means. Health equity means that every person has a fair opportunity to attain their highest level of health and that no individual should be disadvantaged from reaching this potential.

Housing-cost burden: A measure to indicate the proportion of renters and homeowners that spend 30% or more of their total income on housing. Calculated by the US Department of Housing and Urban Development using the Consolidated Housing Affordability Strategy dataset and the following formula: number of renters and homeowners who spend 30% or more of their total income on housing (numerator) divided by the total number of households (denominator) (Office of Policy Development and Research (PD&R), 2019).

In situ carcinoma: A condition where abnormal cells are found in the milk ducts or lobules of the breast, but not in the surrounding breast tissue. In situ means "in place" (Susan G. Komen, 2020).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Incidence: The number of new cases of a disease that develop in a specific time period. The breast cancer incidence rates that appear in this report were calculated by SCP using data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and SEER, and the following formula: the number of individuals in an area who were diagnosed with breast cancer during a one-year period (numerator) divided by the total number of individuals living in that area (denominator). Incidence rates are expressed in terms of number of cases per 100,000 individuals per year (National Cancer Institute).

Internalized racism: Refers to when members of the stigmatized race devalue themselves and their race, doubt their abilities, reject their ancestry and culture, and have a sense of hopelessness and resignation to subjugation by other races (Jones, 2000).

Invasive breast cancer: Breast cancer is considered invasive when it has spread from its original location into the surrounding breast tissue, and potentially into other parts of the body, such as the lymph nodes.

Jim Crow: Jim Crow refers to a set of laws enacted by 21 states in the southern U.S. and the District of Columbia to enforce and uphold racial segregation. These laws were in place following the civil war and banned by the US Civil Rights Act in 1964 (Krieger et al., 2017).

Jim Crow effect: In the 2017 paper by Krieger, Jahn, and Waterman, the authors describe the Jim Crow effect on breast cancer as an association with higher odds of estrogen receptor negative breast cancer only among Black women in the study (not white women) with the strongest effect observed for Black women born prior to 1965 (Krieger et al., 2017).

Late-stage diagnosis: Cancer that is diagnosed once it has spread beyond the breast to lymph nodes, surrounding tissue or other organs in the body (most often the bones, lungs, liver or brain). The late-stage diagnosis rates that appear in this report are age-adjusted and calculated by SCP as described above (see “incidence” and “age-adjusted”) (National Cancer Institute).

Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI): An imaging technique that provides detailed pictures of organs or soft tissue (including the breast). A breast MRI tends to be used for higher-risk women and may also be used during diagnosis.

Mammogram or screening mammography: An imaging technique that creates an x-ray image of the breast. Mammograms can be used in a screening phase (e.g., to check for abnormalities in otherwise healthy individuals) or to further examine abnormalities.

Medically underserved: Areas or populations designated by the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) as having too few primary care providers, high infant mortality, high poverty or a high elderly population (Health Resources & Services Administration).

Mortality rate: A measure of death calculated by the National Cancer Institute using SEER and National Vital Statistics System (NVSS) data. Calculated by SCP using the following formula: the number of individuals in an area who died during a one-year period (numerator) divided by the total number of individuals living in that area (denominator). Expressed in terms of number of deaths per 100,000 individuals per year (National Cancer Institute).

Odds Ratio (OR): A measure of association between exposure and an outcome. The OR represents the odds that an outcome will occur given a particular exposure, compared to the odds of the outcome occurring in the absence of that exposure (Gordis, 2000).

Percent of adults who are obese: A self-report measure calculated by CHR using the following formula: number of adults over age 20 whose BMI is greater than or equal to 30 (numerator) divided by the total population (denominator) (County Health Rankings, 2020a).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002412

Percent of population that is food insecure: A measure defined by CHR as the percentage of the population "with a lack of access, at times, to enough food for an active, healthy life, or uncertain availability of nutritionally adequate foods." Calculated by CHR using the Core Food Insecurity Model (County Health Rankings, 2020b).

Percent of population with limited access to healthy foods: A measure calculated by CHR using the following formula: population that is low income and does not live within one mile of a grocery store (numerator) divided by the total population (denominator) (County Health Rankings, 2020c).

Personally mediated racism: Refers to assumptions about others' abilities, motives, and intentions, resulting in intentional and/or unintentional actions taken towards others due to their race. This includes maintaining structural barriers and subscribing to harmful societal norms, and manifests as "everyday avoidance," disrespect, suspicion and dehumanization (e.g., hate crimes, police brutality) (Jones, 2000).

Premature mortality rate: A measure of premature death calculated by CHR using the following formula: the number of deaths that occurred among people under age 75 (numerator) divided by the aggregate population under age 75 (denominator). Expressed as the number of deaths under age 75 per 100,000 people. CHR uses data from the National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS) and the NVSS to calculate this measure (County Health Rankings, 2020d).

Prevalence: A measure of the proportion of the population that has a condition within a particular timeframe. The prevalence data that appear in this report are the SCP's "Complete Prevalence Age-Adjusted Percents" for each state in 2017. These statistics were calculated by SCP using estimates derived from state-specific cancer mortality and survival data using a statistical package called MIAMOD (Mortality-Incidence Analysis MODEL). Cancer survival models are derived from SEER Program data and adjusted to represent state-specific survival (National Cancer Institute).

Redlining: This unethical practice systematically restricts access to resources and services (e.g., mortgages, insurance loans, housing) based on the race or ethnicity of individuals and communities.

Social determinants of health: The conditions in the places where people live, learn, work, and play that affect a wide range of health risks and outcomes. Examples include, but are not limited to, educational attainment, transportation access, housing security, income, wealth and experiences of racism.

Structural racism: The system in which policies, institutional practices, and cultural representations work together, often in reinforcing ways to create and perpetuate racial inequity. Structural racism manifests as differential access to goods, services, conditions, opportunities and access to power.

Social Vulnerability Index (SVI): A measure of the exposure of a population to social vulnerabilities that limit their ability to withstand adverse impacts from multiple stressors to which they are exposed. The SVI is calculated by the CDC using the ACS 5-year report data for 15 social factors (e.g., lack of vehicle access, crowded housing). Scores range from 0.0 to 1.0, with scores closer to 1.0 indicating greater vulnerability (Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, 2018).

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program/Electronic Benefit Transfer (SNAP/EBT): SNAP is a federal benefits program that provides eligible, low-income individuals and families with funds to purchase eligible food in authorized retail food stores via an Electronic Benefits Transfer card.

Triple-negative breast cancer: A type of breast cancer that is estrogen receptor-negative, progesterone receptor-negative, and human epidermal growth factor receptor 2 (HER2)-negative.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002413

Ultrasound (sonogram): A diagnostic test that creates images of tissues and organs. A breast ultrasound is typically used after an abnormal screening mammogram, clinical breast exam or breast MRI result.

White flight: The departure of white people from places (such as neighborhoods or schools) increasingly or predominantly populated by people of color (Merriam-Webster).

African-American Health Equity Initiative: From Education to Impact Landscape Analysis Provider Interview Tool

Step 1: Introduction of project and confidentiality

Thank you for speaking with us today. Before we start, I am going to explain the purpose of the interview and then I can answer any questions you may have and we can start the discussion.

I am_____ and joining me is my colleague_____. We are from JSI, a mission-driven public health research and consulting organization dedicated to advancing the health of individuals and communities in the United States and globally.

JSI is working with Susan G. Komen®, a leading breast cancer foundation, to understand the reasons behind the differences in breast cancer [late-stage] diagnosis and mortality among African-American women across 11 US metropolitan areas. Research has found that African-American women are less likely to be diagnosed early, when breast cancer is more treatable, as compared to white women and other races. African-American women are also less likely than other women with breast cancer to survive the disease. This is true across the country, and the gap is highest in these 11 major metropolitan areas. [insert name of metro] is among them.

Komen wants to work to bridge this gap in access and use of high-quality breast health care for African-American women. They have launched this program to better understand why differences exist and sees this as an opportunity to take action to change these conditions, and to do so they need to learn from you.

Komen has asked JSI to help gather this information from community members and providers to better understand how understand how to reduce late-stage breast cancer diagnosis and mortality in the African-American community. These discussions allow us to gather information from different groups to better understand what steps can be taken to improve conditions in communities so that African-American women have the same ability to get the care and support they need if they do get breast cancer.

Today we hope to learn from you about your knowledge and experiences with breast cancer screening, diagnosis and treatment. We are also interested in learning what you know about the practices of providers in the metropolitan area.

How data will be used, privacy and confidentiality

Your participation in this interview/ focus group is completely voluntary and all information you share will be kept confidential and will not be associated to you by name. At no time should you feel you have to answer a question. We will be taking notes and, with your permission, we will be recording this interview so we can engage in a conversation with you and not miss any of the details. These notes and

Breast Cancer Survivor Focus Group Guide

Step 1: Introduction of project and confidentiality

My name is_____ and this is my colleague_____. We are from JSI, a mission-driven public health research and consulting organization dedicated to advancing the health of individuals and communities in the United States and globally. Before we begin, I am going to explain the purpose of the group discussion. I will then answer any questions you have, and then we will start the discussion. Does that sound ok?

JSI is working with Susan G. Komen, a leading breast cancer foundation, to understand the reasons behind the differences in breast cancer [late-stage] diagnosis and mortality among African-American women across 11 US metropolitan areas. Research has found that African-American women are less likely to be diagnosed early, when breast cancer is more treatable, as compared to white women and other races. African-American women may also be less likely than other women with breast cancer to survive the disease. This is true across the country, and the gap is highest in these 11 major metropolitan areas -- [insert name of metro] is among them.

Komen wants to work to bridge this gap in access and use of high-quality breast health care for African-American women. They have launched this program to understand better why differences exist. They want to hear from you about your experiences and stories from your community.

Komen has asked JSI to help gather this information from community members to help them plan and support the programming needed to change these conditions. This project involves talking with residents and community leaders from [insert name of metro] to understand better how to reduce late-stage breast cancer diagnosis and mortality in the African-American community. These discussions allow us to gather information from different groups to better understand what steps can be taken so that African-American women have the same ability to get the care and support they need if they do get breast cancer.

Today we hope to learn from you about your knowledge and experiences with breast cancer. We recognize that this is a very personal and sensitive topic and that some questions may trigger past experiences that may or may not be pleasant. We will share local support resource and the Komen helpline after the session. We intend to make you feel as comfortable as possible discussing these topics. However, if you decide you no longer want to participate at any point, you may leave at any time.
We will begin with some general questions about your life experience and cancer journey with treatment including from treatment to follow-up care, your experience at your medical facility, the resources that were/are available to you, and any challenges or barriers you may have faced in accessing these resources/services.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

How data will be used, privacy and confidentiality
Your participation in this focus group is completely voluntary, and all information you share will be kept confidential. At no time should you feel you have to answer a question. We will begin with some general questions about your general knowledge of breast cancer. Then we will move to more specific questions. This discussion should last no longer than 90 minutes, about an hour and a half.

We encourage you to share your thoughts and opinions openly and freely. But, please also be respectful of other participants' opinions. There are many women in the room, and we will all have different opinions. We don't all have to agree, but we do want to hear everyone's opinions. We will do our best to make sure everyone gets a turn to voice their opinion.

We will not write down or record names. Nothing you say will be associated with you by name. Your identity will be kept confidential at all times, and your responses will be anonymous. We will be taking notes, and, with your permission, we will be recording this interview so we can engage in a conversation with you and not miss any of the details. These notes and the recording will be kept in a secure location in our offices, and only the project team will have access to these materials.

We also request that you do not disclose another participant's comments and/or identity outside of the focus group. We want to respect each other's privacy and confidentiality.

After the focus groups are complete, we will write up a report summarizing the main ideas and some quotes and share with Komen to support their effort to improve breast cancer prevention and treatment. Our original notes and this recording will then be deleted. No one directly involved in your care (providers, service providers, etc.) will have access to the data.

Does anyone object to being recorded?
At the end of the session, we will provide you with $30 gift cards in appreciation of the time you have taken out of your busy day to be part of this discussion. Are there any questions about what I've just said, why we're here, or what we are going to do today?

Step 3: Answer Questions from Participants

Step 4: Confirm Consent to Participate

Based on what we just shared, we want to confirm that each of you consents or agrees to participate in today's conversation. Please read and sign the consent form that is being distributed to say "YES" if you understand and wish to participate or "No" if you do not wish to participate, and you are free to leave before we begin. Are there any other questions?

Step 5: Answer Questions (if needed)

Step 6: Turn on the Recorder

Step 7: Begin Discussion with Questions Below

1. Let us go around the room. How long have you lived in [insert name of metro], what is one favorite thing about this area?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

As we mentioned earlier, Komen wants to understand the reasons behind the differences in breast cancer diagnosis and mortality among African-American women. An important aspect for us to discuss is your experiences with racism in your community and workplace and how racial discrimination affects the health of African-American women.

2. Please tell me about a time you have been discriminated against because of your race? Think about where you live, work, socialize, and your experiences in seeking health care?

PROBES TO USE AS NECESSARY:

a. Where have you faced discrimination because of your race?
    1. Healthcare system
    2. Transportation
    3. Work
    4. Housing
    5. Education/School
    6. General profiling (e.g., grocery store, mall, police, etc.)

b. Have you ever been prevented from moving into a neighborhood because the landlord/realtor refused to sell or rent you a house or apartment? If yes, please tell me more.

c. Have you ever moved into a neighborhood where neighbors made life difficult for you or your family? If yes, please tell me more.

d. Have you ever been fired from a job because of your race? If yes, please tell me more.

e. Have you ever been denied a promotion because of your race? If yes, please tell me more.

f. Have you ever not been hired for a job because of your race?

g. While seeing a doctor, has there been a time you felt that assumptions were made about you? Tell me more. What made you feel this was happening?

h. Is there anything that happens in the doctor office's that makes you feel different- the doctor or staff's behavior, things they say or do, or how they look at you?

3. How has discrimination or racism affected your health?

PROBES TO USE AS NECESSARY:

a. Prevented you from getting healthcare or treatment?

b. Affected the quality of care you received?

c. Has discrimination affected the timeliness of the care you received?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Thank you for sharing these experiences. Now we will move to the section of the discussion that focuses on breast cancer.

4. Before being diagnosed with breast cancer, had you received clinical breast exams? Screening screening mammography? If yes, what motivated you to get screened?

PROBES TO USE AS NECESSARY

a. Explore factors behind screening (family history, following guidelines, provider's advice, community outreach programs, the experience of other women in their social network) and awareness that early screening can catch breast cancer when it might be easier to treat.

b. Do you feel you were aware of the signs and symptoms that one might have breast cancer? Why or why not? What factors led to this awareness? [Note: there often aren't signs as well as the common signs of unusual discharge or a lump]

5. How was the experience of being screened for breast cancer?

PROBES TO USE AS NECESSARY

a. What options were offered to you?

b. How did you feel throughout the process?
   1. Were there times you felt uncomfortable or unable to access screening?
   2. Did you feel you had enough time to ask questions and/or absorb information?
   3. Did you feel you were treated with less courtesy or respect than other people?
   4. Did you feel you received poorer service than other patients?
   5. Did you feel the provider or the staff acted as if they think you are not smart?
   6. Did you feel the provider or staff acted as if they are afraid of you?
   7. Did you feel threatened or harassed?

c. How old were you the first time you were screened? How often did you go after your first time?

d. Explore the influence of
   1. Providers, staff: temperament, cultural competency, kind, respectful
   2. Process and systems: forms, wait time, referrals, timely, follow-up
   3. Overall environment: location, privacy, welcoming, feels safe
   4. Accessibility: easy to reach, timely

e. Assess comprehensives and quality of care.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

6. What was the process of being diagnosed with cancer like? We would like 1 or 2 volunteers to tell us about their experience of being diagnosed, and then we will have a chance to discuss together.

PROBES TO USE AS NECESSARY

a. How was your breast cancer found?

b. What diagnostic procedures did you have/were you offered?

c. As best you can remember, how long did it take to get a diagnosis? What were the challenges?

d. How did you select a provider/care team?

e. Were you referred to a breast oncologist? Breast surgeon? Who provided your treatment?

f. For those who wanted a second opinion, what was that experience like?

g. Tell us about how a care and treatment plan was developed?
1. To what extent were you offered choices and provided opportunities to discuss these options with your providers?
2. Did you feel comfortable to ask questions?

h. What type of counseling and support was offered? [Include navigation to treatment services]
1. Were the associated costs, insurance coverage, co-pays, etc. discussed with you? Were you offered or referred to a financial assistant? If so, when (at what stage of the process)?

i. How did you feel throughout the process?
1. Did you feel you had enough time to ask questions and/or absorb information?

4. Did you feel the provider or the staff acted as if they think you are not smart?
5. Did you feel the provider or staff acted as if they are afraid of you?
6. Did you feel threatened or harassed?

7. Was hormonal therapy (e.g. Tamoxifen, Arimidex, Femara, Aromasin) part of your treatment?

If so, was five years or ten years prescribed?

a. PROBE: Were you able to stay on hormonal therapy for the recommended length of time? Why or why not? (they may still be on it)

b. PROBE: Did you ever skip a dose or cut the pills in half? If so, why or why not?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

c. PROBE: What were the challenges?

8. Please share some of the factors in the decision to start treatment based on your personal experience or the experience of other African-American women, you know.

Facilitator Note: Collect information on the understanding of the different types of breast cancers, and that treatment may be different for each type.

PROBES TO USE AS NECESSARY

a. Who was involved in the decision to start treatment?
   1. Partner
   2. Family
   3. Friends
   4. Pastor /Clergy

b. Was the decision-making process different for different types of treatment (chemotherapy, surgery, radiation)?

c. What may make it difficult for an African-American woman in your area to start and continue the full course of breast cancer treatment if they need it?

d. What would facilitate the completion of the full course of treatment (for example, a full course of chemotherapy)?
   1. Family considerations: Caretaking responsibilities, spousal support
   2. Personal/life: Scheduling, time off from work, meeting family responsibilities
   3. Fears: Concerns about the procedure, concerns about side effects of treatment

African-American Health Equity Initiative: From Education to Impact Landscape Analysis
Breast Cancer Survivor Focus Group Guide

Step 1: Introduction of project and confidentiality

My name is_____ and this is my colleague_____. We are from JSI, a mission-driven public health research and consulting organization dedicated to advancing the health of individuals and communities in the United States and globally. Before we begin, I am going to explain the purpose of the group discussion. I will then answer any questions you have, and then we will start the discussion. Does that sound ok?

JSI is working with Susan G. Komen, a leading breast cancer foundation, to understand the reasons behind the differences in breast cancer [late-stage] diagnosis and mortality among African-American women across 11 US metropolitan areas. Research has found that African-American women are less likely to be diagnosed early, when breast cancer is more treatable, as compared to white women and other races. African-American women may also be less likely than other women with breast cancer to survive the disease. This is true across the country, and the gap is highest in these 11 major metropolitan areas -- [insert name of metro] is among them.

Komen wants to work to bridge this gap in access and use of high-quality breast health care for African-American women. They have launched this program to understand better why differences exist. They want to hear from you about your experiences and stories from your community.

Komen has asked JSI to help gather this information from community members to help them plan and support the programming needed to change these conditions. This project involves talking with residents and community leaders from [insert name of metro] to understand better how to reduce late-stage breast cancer diagnosis and mortality in the African-American community. These discussions allow us to gather information from different groups to better understand what steps can be taken so that African-American women have the same ability to get the care and support they need if they do get breast cancer.

Today we hope to learn from you about your knowledge and experiences with breast cancer. We recognize that this is a very personal and sensitive topic and that some questions may trigger past experiences that may or may not be pleasant. We will share local support resource and the Komen helpline after the session. We intend to make you feel as comfortable as possible discussing these topics. However, if you decide you no longer want to participate at any point, you may leave at any time.

We will begin with some general questions about your life experience and cancer journey with treatment including from treatment to follow-up care, your experience at your medical facility, the resources that were/are available to you, and any challenges or barriers you may have faced in accessing these resources/services.

How data will be used, privacy and confidentiality

Your participation in this focus group is completely voluntary, and all information you share will be kept confidential. At no time should you feel you have to answer a question. We will begin with some general questions about your general knowledge of breast cancer. Then we will move to more specific questions. This discussion should last no longer than 90 minutes, about an hour and a half.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

We encourage you to share your thoughts and opinions openly and freely. But, please also be respectful of other participants' opinions. There are many women in the room, and we will all have different opinions. We don't all have to agree, but we do want to hear everyone's opinions. We will do our best to make sure everyone gets a turn to voice their opinion.
We will not write down or record names. Nothing you say will be associated with you by name. Your identity will be kept confidential at all times, and your responses will be anonymous. We will be taking notes, and, with your permission, we will be recording this interview so we can engage in a conversation with you and not miss any of the details. These notes and the recording will be kept in a secure location in our offices, and only the project team will have access to these materials.

We also request that you do not disclose another participant's comments and/or identity outside of the focus group. We want to respect each other's privacy and confidentiality.

After the focus groups are complete, we will write up a report summarizing the main ideas and some quotes and share with Komen to support their effort to improve breast cancer prevention and treatment. Our original notes and this recording will then be deleted. No one directly involved in your care (providers, service providers, etc.) will have access to the data.

Does anyone object to being recorded?
At the end of the session, we will provide you with $30 gift cards in appreciation of the time you have taken out of your busy day to be part of this discussion. Are there any questions about what I've just said, why we're here, or what we are going to do today?

Step 3: Answer Questions from Participants

Step 4: Confirm Consent to Participate

Based on what we just shared, we want to confirm that each of you consents or agrees to participate in today's conversation. Please read and sign the consent form that is being distributed to say "YES" if you understand and wish to participate or "No" if you do not wish to participate, and you are free to leave before we begin. Subject: NO on HB 51

Please vote NO on HB51. It relieves business and organizations from COVID liability only IF they follow guidelines... of which are not defined in the Bill. Neither is who defines the guidelines. Do we even need this? Can you name one business that has been sued from someone getting COVID? This is not a path freedom loving Missourian's want to go down.

Also, all you RINOs that voted in favor for the gas tax increase... We're watching you. Especially you Fitzwater and Weimann who voted in favor of this in committee, but voted NO on the floor... you are The Worst type of politician fathomable!

Do the right thing!

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

An Open Letter to all Representatives and Senators and the Governor of the State of Missouri

Dear State Legislators:

I have been a Republican for over 32 years and I am disturbed because of actions within the past 4-5 years by the Republican controlled General Assembly. This is especially the case during this current legislative session. You may not care and that is fine, but I think you need to realize that I am not alone and there are a growing number of us that have serious concerns with the House and Senate leadership on education issues. Many of us also have the ability to share our concerns across a broad spectrum of communities, businesses, and people. I want you to know that I am not a lobbyist, do not listen to lobbyists, and was not urged by the Missouri School Board Association (MSBA) to contact you regarding current educational legislation. As a current school board president, I watch these things closely, and I make sure that I perform a thorough research of all sides of the issues before I form an opinion. This letter is the summary of my thoughts on the current legislation regarding public education in Missouri. Please read it in its entirety as I will provide some context for the concerns as well as offer up some ideas that legislators should be considering for meaningful educational reform.

I have done my homework on many of you and have a good understanding of the source of these education ideas and what you are trying to accomplish. Much of it is donor driven, particularly for the House and Senate leadership. The problem is that you want to push education reform without talking to educators. That is like trying to drive a car without a steering wheel and expecting to get from point A to point B. Instead of trying to appease your donors, why wouldn't you want to make things better for Missouri students within the educational framework that has existed for decades? Why do we need an alternative system to compete with when there is over 30 years of data in other parts of the country that clearly show the alternative system is not better? I would argue that having two competing educational systems (public education and private education/charter schools) is grossly inefficient and costly. Competition in the business world makes sense, but it has never been translated to K-12 education successfully. This has been proven by a number of studies. If you were truly open minded and wanted reform, you would adequately research all sides of the issue of educational reform instead of digging in on an attack of public education because of your support for the latest fad. You may be interested to learn that in over 30 years of having charter schools and educational scholarships in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the educational outcomes are not positively different as compared to public education. You may be interested to learn that the idea of charter schools in Missouri goes back to segregation in St. Louis and Kansas City and is rooted in bigotry. I have read numerous non-partisan and unbiased articles and publications pointing to these facts and can share them with you. These are two facts that I cannot ignore.

The purpose of my letter is an attempt to try to get you to consider the flaws in the legislation being considered right now. I have heard it said, it is better to not pass any legislation than to pass bad legislation. Unfortunately, there is a lot of bad legislation up for consideration right now. If you were truly talking to educators when developing legislation that could drive educational reform, there would not be this much bad legislation out there right now. What is even worse, from the outside looking in, it does not appear that many of you even care what educators think about it. Educators feel slighted by many of you because of your support for ideas that clearly will harm public education. Moreover, you never even bothered to ask them about it before you introduced the legislation or supported it. It is not too late to do the right thing. The motto of the great State of Missouri is Salus Populi Suprema Lex Esto – "Let the welfare of the people be the supreme law." Attacking public education is certainly not looking out for the welfare of the people. Below is a listing of bills currently being considered and some perspective on how they will negatively impact public education.

HB 253 (Fishel) – This bill appears to specifically impact the Springfield Public School District, but I feel it would set a dangerous precedent for the rest of the state. As someone who used to support term limits, I no longer support them for 2 reasons: 1) Term limits affect both good and bad elected representatives. Ones that do their job the way they are supposed to are not allowed to continue to do so, and 2) Term limits undermine the vote of the people by arbitrarily affecting who people can vote on. If you don't like term limits, then why would you seek to expand this practice?

HB 512 (Lovasco) – This bill prohibits district employees or Board members from using district funds to create printed material to educate the public on ballot issues. The law already prohibits district employees from doing this. Board members are elected officials that are volunteers and are not compensated for their Board service (unlike members of the General Assembly). I fail to understand why Board members (who are patrons of their local school districts too) would not be allowed to educate voters. Maybe you want to create a situation where you can make all of the rules in a vacuum and not hear from anyone. Furthermore, you want to make it a crime to educate the public about legislative matters. I would expect these tactics from totalitarian regimes in foreign countries, not Missouri.

HB 137 (Richey) – This bill continues to toy with funding for charter schools but does not make them any more accountable. I cannot support charter schools without the same accountability measures of public schools. It is clear to me that the General Assembly has been infiltrated by the charter school expansion proponents. How do I know this? I have had at least 2 provide me with propaganda from the Opportunity Trust. Recently, I read where the proposed budget contained a $2 million payment to this organization that definitely supports charter schools and schools run by private Boards, not elected Boards of Education. Through my research, I have found that many of you are supported by the Missouri Club for Growth (or its sister/subsidiary groups). You cannot tell me with a straight face that money doesn't talk and doesn't matter. If you were true public servants, you would do the right thing regardless of whether your donors agreed with it or not. You should be less concerned about winning your next election and more concerned about making a positive impact with your time in office.

HB 21 (Smith) – The last time I checked, citizens in the State of Missouri voted to expand Medicaid. It appears our legislators do not agree with the will of the people. While I personally don't support Medicaid expansion, this bill really bothers me for 2 reasons: 1) You all seem to think you can just ignore the voters of Missouri and do whatever you want. I think there are a great number of people in the General Assembly that have forgotten who put them there and who they work for. For those that think this way, I sincerely hope these actions have consequences for you in the next election. 2) Failing to fund Medicaid will not allow millions of federal dollars to come in to the state for Medicaid. The federal government is going to spend this money somewhere and Missouri may as well get its fair share. To me, you are failing at your fiduciary responsibility with this and ignoring the will of the electorate. Both of those offenses should disqualify you for further service in the General Assembly.

HB 368 (Gregory) – This bill appears to be aimed at mandating that reading be taught using phonics. Why is the House of Representatives telling teachers how to do their jobs? Are you all educators? Do you know the best way to teach all students? Do all students learn the same way? I strongly suspect the answer to each of these questions is NO. Would you tell a cardiologist how to perform a heart transplant surgery if you are not a doctor? Would you provide legal advice if you are not a lawyer? I believe that you are stepping into an area that you have no expertise in.

HB 543 (Politt) – This is the open enrollment bill. I live in rural Missouri and open enrollment is a huge concern. Please explain how school districts are supposed to hire the teachers, provide adequate teacher to student ratios, address overcrowding or empty buildings, provide transportation, and prepare budgets if they have no idea how many students will be attending their schools from year to year. I fail to understand the purpose behind this. If you want to promote school choice, please realize that people already have the opportunity to relocate to other school districts if they want to attend a different school. That is their choice. To take students from one district and allow them to go to another without appropriate compensation is absurd.

SB 44 (White) – This bill changes how utilities are assessed from real to personal property. This bill will dramatically decrease assessed valuation in school districts, which will hurt local taxation. At a time, when the General Assembly does not meet its statutory requirement to fully fund the foundation formula or transportation funding, school districts have to rely even more on local taxation to educate kids. You fail to understand school funding if you don't realize that it is a 3-legged stool. If you knock out or cut off any one leg, the stool falls. Costs to educate kids only increase. If you keep cutting state taxes and reduce funding to schools and then change the formula at the local level too, how are schools supposed to raise revenue to educate kids? Please explain. Apparently, a number of county assessors have tried to provide context for how this would impact their counties. I fail to understand why they were not asked about it during the development of this bill rather than having to educate the General Assembly after the bill has already gained momentum. This "shoot first, ask questions later" approach appears to be a troubling trend with legislators.

HB 349 (Christofanelli) – This is the Missouri Empowerment Scholarship Accounts Program bill. See my argument with SB 44 (White). This negatively impacts state funding by reducing general revenue available to fund education. I realize that funding looks "rosy" right now, but schools have had withholdings the past several years due to revenue shortfalls. Adding one more draw to general revenue will only make this problem worse. If you can hold schools harmless by guaranteeing a fully funded foundation formula and fully funded transportation funding before this scholarship program can take effect, I may be OK with this bill.

The amendments by Representative Chuck Basye that have been attached to HB108, HB320 and HB441 to force school boards to put items on the agenda and vote on them if a petition by 5% of the voters in the last school board election is signed, is an ill-conceived attempt to meddle in school board meetings. School boards already post their agendas and allow for the public to request agenda items and speak at school board meetings. There is no limit to the number of agenda items or the nature of the items that can be placed on the agenda through this amendment. Would legislators feel comfortable if 5% of the voters in the last election could place items in legislation for you to vote on? Why do our elected officials want to force partisan politics on school boards? School boards should be completely non-partisan. Furthermore, attempts to approve recall of school board members with thresholds as low as 25% of the voters will cause chaos on school boards. Who would want to run for a school board seat with these types of laws in place? Please understand that school board members are volunteers. It is difficult enough to find good people to run for the school board without you making it more difficult. What if I would pursue an initiative petition to make all legislators subject to recall? If I got enough signatures, I bet it would pass in the referendum. If you don't like this idea, then you should not be proposing school board member recall. I know that the source of this is the frustration of many legislators with the Columbia School District and how they have handled education during the pandemic. Why should the entire state be subject to your "knee jerk" reaction on this issue? This is myopic at best.

SB 55 (O'Laughlin) – I am not going to rant about this one as Senator O'Laughlin has been good to work with and actually appears to want to understand how this bill impacts public school districts. I have to admit that it took a while to get her to that point. I had to organize 26 school boards and their Superintendents from Senate District 18 to get her attention. I am proud to say that she has truly listened, and continues to listen, regarding these issues. I believe she is trying to get other legislators to sit down and realize the impacts that some of the legislative ideas floating around Jefferson City are having on public school districts in Missouri. It is hard for public school districts to find anything to like about SB 55, but through collaboration, we have been offering alternatives and perspective to Senator O'Laughlin, and she is truly trying to work with us. This collaboration is all I can ask of my elected officials. My hope is that all legislators will do something similar.

Let me offer some ideas that would improve education of Missouri students:

1. Take the shackles off of the school calendar and allow public school districts to be innovative in creating a school calendar that results in more educational contact time. There are many that have wondered why the United States has fallen behind its foreign counterparts in the area of education. The answer is simple, they value education differently than we do. This value is demonstrated by requiring more days in attendance at schools and treating teachers as valued and well-paid professionals. One of the top countries on the list is Singapore. They require their students to attend more than 240 days out of the year. In Missouri, we require 175 days based on a calendar that presumably factored in the early 20th century agricultural driven economy. For K-12, that difference is a total of 780 days over 12 years, or about 4.5 years of additional education using a 175-day calendar. This legacy school year calendar is simply out of date and not good enough. Many studies have shown improvement in learning simply due to more time spent in the educational environment. This further allows time in the schedule to focus more on struggling students to get them the help they need. In Missouri, public schools cannot vary the calendar without specific approval from DESE. Presumably, this could be fixed with legislation.

2. The nature of the administration of assessments is not effective. We give standardized testing based on the Missouri standards in April of each year. By the time the results are received in September or October, those students have already moved on to the next grade level. There is no opportunity to address deficiencies real-time. Many school districts already have paid for and use regular assessment tools based on the Missouri standards. This can provide real-time feedback to guide instruction and make sure that the standards are mastered. Growth in all areas can be tracked throughout the year. Unfortunately, school districts have had to develop and pay for this innovative technique on their own but don't get any credit toward APR for demonstrating this growth or mastery on a consistent basis because the only thing that matters is one standardized test. This should be changed.

3. Once upon a time, Missouri had the State Teachers College in Kirksville. This is where there was a driven focus on educating the teachers of tomorrow. This college later became Northeast Missouri State University and subsequently Truman State University. The focus of that university has shifted away from educating teachers in Missouri. We are finding a shortage of teachers in rural areas. Legislators should strongly consider incentivizing high school students to enter the educational field and provide a focus on producing the finest teachers again through post-secondary education. We need the best and the brightest teachers.

4. Workforce development has been a focus of economic developers and legislators for some time now. Does anyone realize that there are a number of established workforce development centers at public school districts? These are area vocational technical schools. These schools provide a variety of valuable skills for students that may not go to college and want to enter the workforce. Investment in these schools should really be occurring first before we consider developing new workforce development training centers, etc. We are already collaborating with multiple school districts in our region as well as community colleges and private industry to provide skills to students before they enter the workforce. More emphasis should be placed in this area.

5. Streamline some of the growing list of what I call special requirements that have been mandated by specific legislation that swamps school districts with unnecessary paperwork and actually takes the focus off of educating children. The answer to reform is not more reporting, it is a more focused and limited reporting. Currently, DESE and school districts suffer from what I term as "analysis paralysis". We need to focus on what is important to measure learning. If you ask educators, they will tell you what is important to grow kids. If the focus can be on doing what is best for kids, then you will find that all of the myriad of reporting requirements does not actually improve the situation. Pick the important metrics and focus on those.

Educational reform cannot be done in a vacuum with a totalitarian approach. Many of you do not know how to educate kids, how public education funding works, or the impacts some of your legislation has had on public education. Ironically, many of the very things you all complain about with DESE and public education were mandated through law by the Missouri General Assembly. That happened because lawmakers were unwilling to have a conversation with educators on how to best help educate kids. I ask that you step back from the current approach and recalibrate the thinking on these issues. There is a better way for all of us to promote educational reform without making matters worse. We need to come together and do what is best for kids. On the Missouri State Seal, it says “United we stand, divided we fall”. Unless we can put away these “all or nothing” ideas and work together for meaningful reform, our educational system in Missouri will fail and you will preside over that failure. Working together requires communication. You should try it sometime.

Sincerely,

Subject: Oppose HB 365: Bad preemption bill that will strip local control

Dear MO House of Representatives,

Please Oppose HB 365 to preserve local control and for public safety. This is a bad preemption bill that will strip local governments of their authority to enact or enforce existing animal control ordinances in their communities. Cities and towns know best how to deal with animal control issues that arise in their own communities. Local governments should have the legal right to make public safety laws that they think best serve their citizens. A legislative approach should not be so comprehensive that a municipality cannot protect its residents. Whether you agree or not on the subject of this bill's preemption, the crux of the matter is that this bill enables a STATE POWER GRAB.

The sponsors of this bill are misusing the word discrimination. Age, race, color, creed, are characteristics. These deserve legal protection because they are something we don't have any control of. But pet ownership is a choice.

I hope you're contacting 86 MO cities that enact breed specific ordinances for their input. Shouldn't it be up to the individual cities and towns to decide if Breed-Specific Legislation works for their jurisdictions?
As a concerned citizen, I urge you to consider thousands of pit bull victims when discussing this bill.

The Missouri Municipal League is against HB 365. The Missouri Alliance for Animal Legislation is against HB 365.

Try contacting the 86 MO cities that enact breed safety laws. Most of them will tell you this: There have been zero level 4-6 dog attacks since they passed their ordinances. The purpose of a breed specific ordinance is not to prevent bites, but to prevent maulings. Bites require band-aids or a few stitches; maulings require amputation, plastic surgery, rehabilitation therapy, and possibly caskets. Supporting breed specific legislation increases public safety, decreases pit bull breeding and decreases the number flowing into and being euthanized at shelters.

Red Flag: MOST insurance companies do not cover pit bulls because they can't afford the risk. Insurance companies have a calculated actuarial risk of pit bulls a lot higher compared with other dog breeds. Pit bulls are more likely to attack their owners. Dog attacks are the third most common claim on homeowner's insurance. More evidence that people who have pit bulls and certain other types of breeds are endangering people and other people's beloved pets in our communities. https://money.com/worst-dogs-for-home-insurance/

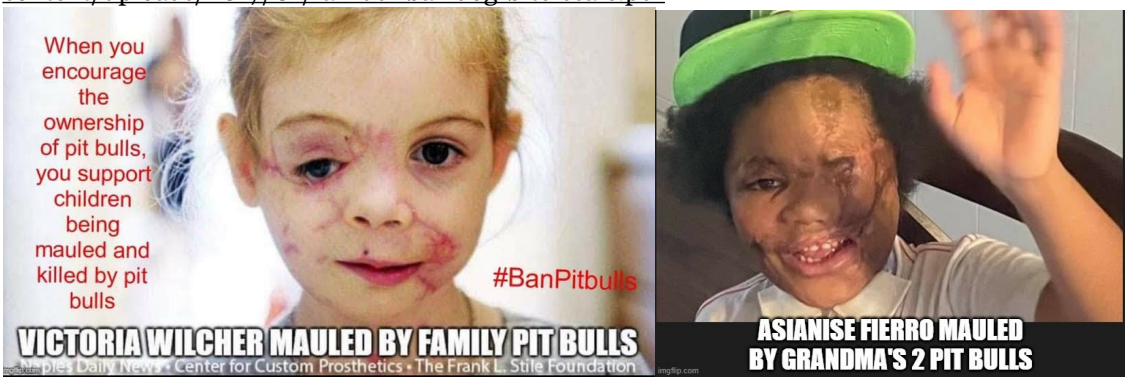
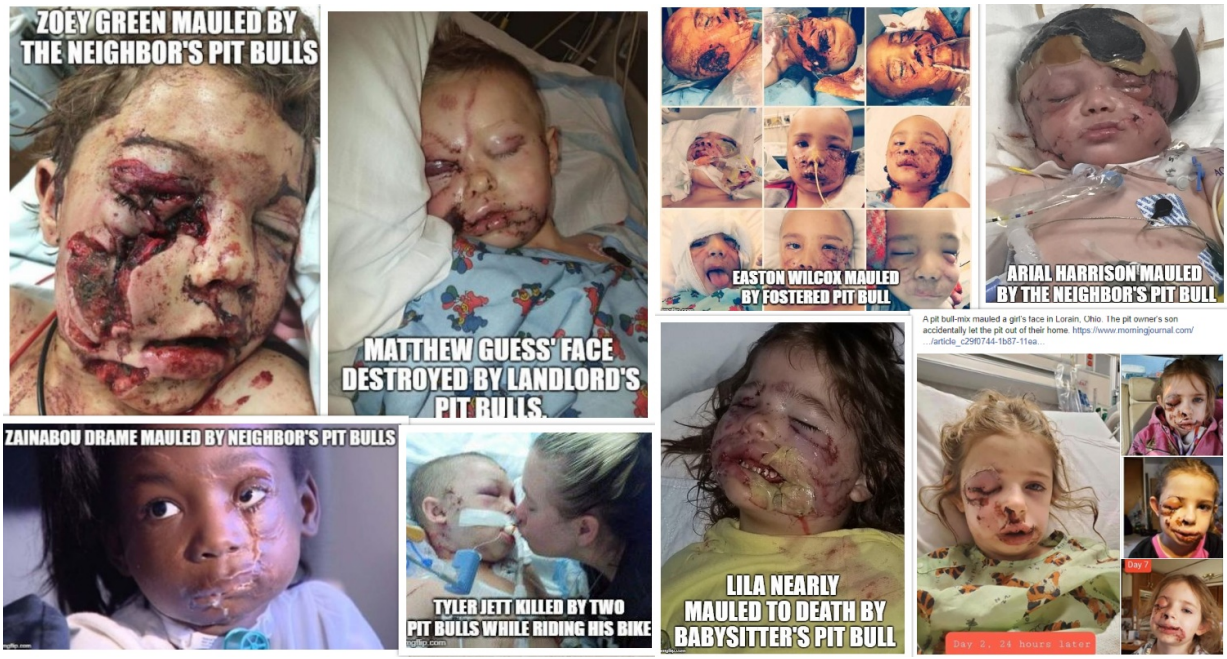
VERY TELLING: An estimated 300 U.S. military bases ban pit bulls. There are 1,200 U.S. cities and 50 countries which enact breed specific ordinances because pit bull type-dogs present an unreasonable risk to health and public safety. Most rental properties don't allow pit bulls. https://blog.dogsbite.org/2021/02/estimated-us-breed-specific-laws-2021.html

My apologies for the graphic photos, but you need to understand what could happen to children by outlawing breed safety ordinances. All these pit bulls were considered family pets Yes, all dogs can bite after which the victim needs a few stitches, but pit bulls permanently disfigure or kill. Can't you see the difference? I just don't understand how anyone can look at my graphic photos of level 5 bites that I have sent of children mauled by pit bulls in breed neutral cities, and don't think pit bulls should be regulated for public safety. I forwarded a link to a dog bite level chart 1-6 for determining the danger level of a dog by the severity of the bite. http://apdt.com/wp-content/uploads/2017/01/ian-dunbar-dog-bite-scale.pdf



Are you going to listen to shelter workers and pit bull advocates who don't follow dangerous dog attacks or the medical experts who witness the aftermath of horrific pit bull attacks? One bite from a pit bull can leave you permanently disfigured, handicapped for life or dead. In my email, I'm going to prove that pit bull type-dogs bite the most and do the most damage when they bite.



2019 DOG BITE MEDICAL STUDY FOR PARENTS: In the study conclusions they recommend that parents keep their children away from pit bulls and dogs that look like/are built like pit. Pit bulls and mixed breed dogs pose the highest risk of biting and cause the most damage per bite, a new study says. https://www.fox19.com/2019/05/22/ohio-state-study-identifies-pit-bulls-mixed-breeds-dogs-most-likely-bite-children/ and https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0165587618305950?via%3Dihub

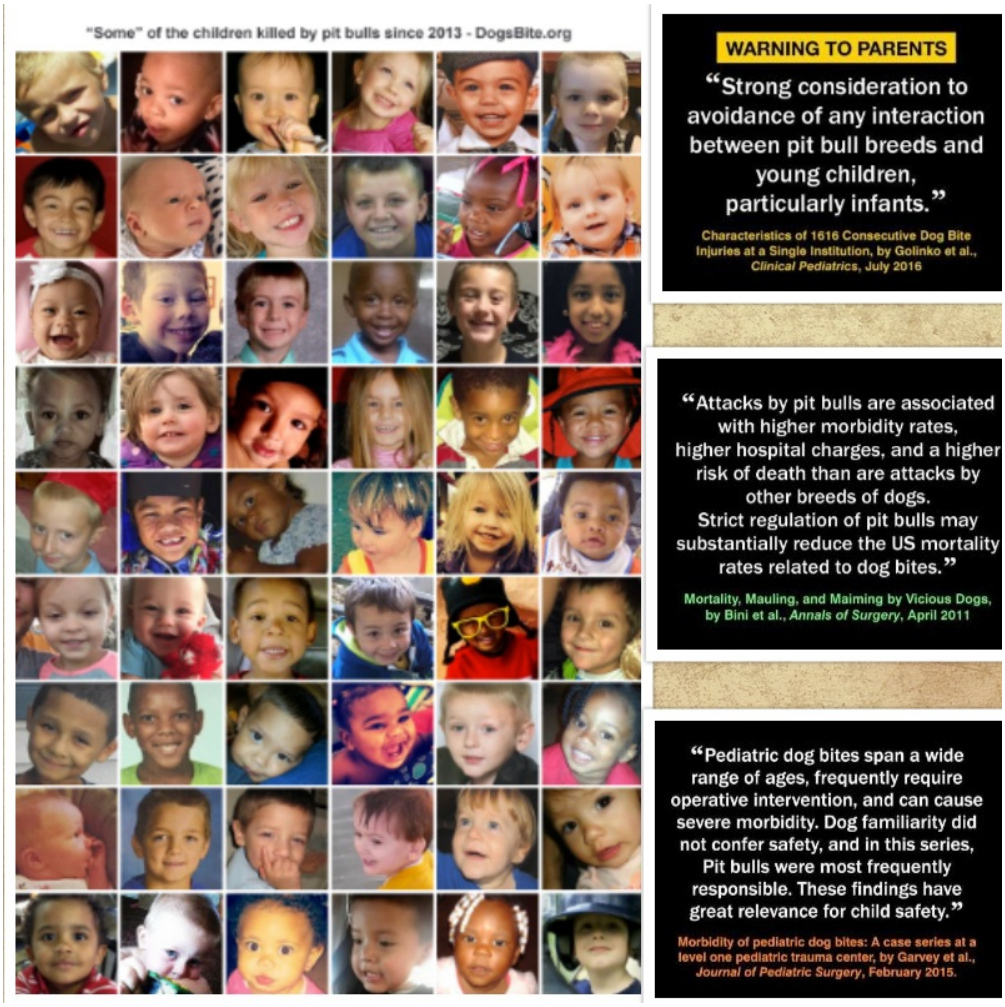
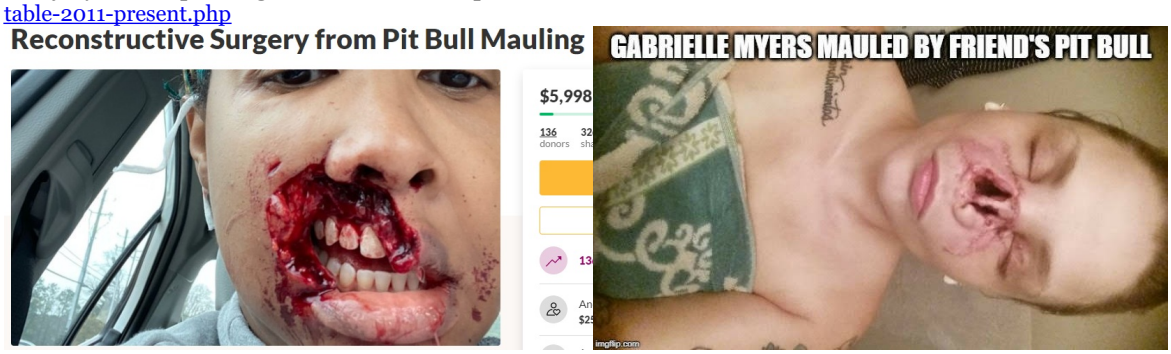
IF a consumer product injures and kills that many children, and generates comparable liability history, that product is taken off the market.



Breed Neutral cities have more severe dog attacks than cities that have breed specific ordinances. All you have to do is read the medical research that proves that assertion.

18 PEER-REVIEWED Medical Studies that prove pit bull type-dogs are dangerous pets. I agree all dogs can bite. The issue with pit bulls is the degree of damage they inflict, and their attacks being more likely to result in fatality. Level 1 trauma center dog bite studies from all geographical regions in the U.S. are reporting a higher prevalence of pit bull type dogs injuries than all other breeds of dogs. In many cases, the studies (2011 to present) also report that pit bull injuries have a higher severity of injury and require a greater number of operative interventions. https://www.dogsbite.org/dog-bite-statistics-studies-level-1-trauma-table-2011-present.php



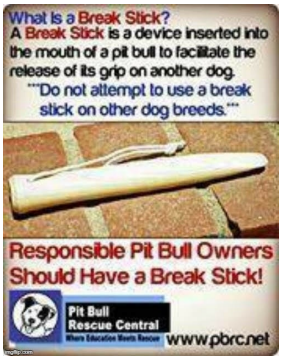
2020, Dog Bite Study. Dog-Bite Injuries to the Craniofacial Region: An Epidemiologic and Pattern-of-Injury Review at a Level 1 Trauma Center

"We reviewed 182 patient records distributed among several breed categories. The results showed a disturbing trend toward more severe injuries, especially in younger children, and a reversal in gender, with girls bitten more than boys. Young children incurred more extensive facial injuries, including fractures. The data showed that compared with other dog breeds, pit bull terriers inflicted more complex wounds, were often unprovoked, and went off property to attack." https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0278239119312595?fbclid=IwAR1dIFoj8H3aKsG4SSR6ZWAA_8Th-YH388QNnw-uE7bcW84taD9_PdttrlM

CONCLUSION: The medical dog bite studies state that pit bull type-dogs are responsible for up to 50% of severe bites on people, when they only make up 7% of the dog population. Pit bulls should only be representing 7% of severe dog bites. Anyone who understands the basics of statistics realizes this proves pit bulls are dangerous.

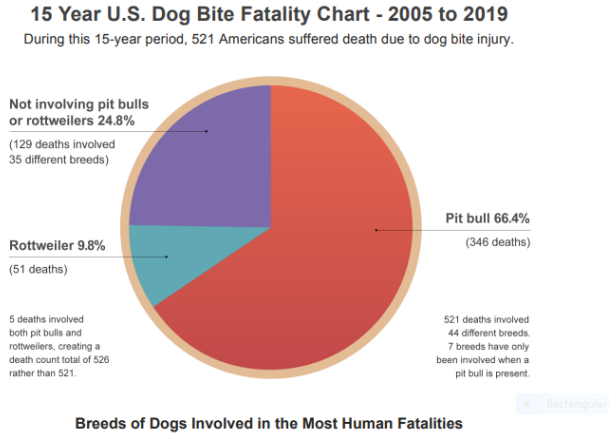
AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Light Bulb Moment: Pit bulls do not lock their jaws, but due to their "gameness" trait, they would rather die than to let go. Every pit bull owner should own a wedge-shaped piece of wood used to pry open a pit bull's jaw during an attack called a break stick. When you need a precautionary tool for your dog, it's not a safe family pet. https://blog.dogsbite.org/2008/09/break-sticks-tool-used-to-pry-open-pit.html



PLEASE WATCH! This person demonstrates how to use a break stick on a pit-bull: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=KfMVH4wY5Pg

Pit bull type-dogs make up 7% of the dog population, so they should be only responsible for 7% dog bite-related human fatalities. Instead they inflict 66.4% of dog bite-related human fatalities. This is enough proof they are dangerous in our neighborhoods.



Please spend some time witnessing the victims of pit bull attacks. Most attacking pit bulls are not due to bad owners but naïve owners who do not understand the dangerous pit bull breed traits. From 2005-2021, 384 people were killed by pit bull type- dogs. http://www.dogsbite.org/dog-bite-statistics-fatalities.php Pit bulls are the number one canine killer of our beloved pets of all dog breeds combined. Pit bulls are specifically bred to kill other dogs. No amount of training can stop that instinct.

Did you know that an estimated 500,000 dogs are killed every year by pit bulls. Our neighborhoods have turned into killing fields for pit bulls. Our pets are getting slaughtered in our neighborhoods. Not only that but many people end up getting hurt trying to save their pet. These devastated people who lose their pets are suffering from PTSD. Absolutely nothing is being done about it by our elected officials. NEW STUDY: https://blog.dogsbite.org/2021/03/study-examines-dog-on-dog-attacks-uk-analyzing-news-media-articles.html

PROOF that shelters/rescues are rehoming dangerous pit bulls back into our communities.
56% of the pit bulls are advertised as recycled dogs. People get pit bulls as cute puppies. By the time they reach maturity at 2-years-old-- the owner can't handle the dog's aggressive behaviors. Then the owner doesn't want the liability. So, either they surrender it to a shelter/rescue or try to rehome it. That's why you see so many unwanted pit bulls advertised as "only pet in household" or "adult home only" and many other restrictions. Many pit bulls are on Trazadone to control their aggressive behaviors. These are zero mistake dogs. Too many pit bull owners have proven they are not reliable for containing their dogs. https://www.animals24-7.org/2017/06/14/rescued-pit-bulls-now-outnumber-pit-puppies/

This is the famous K9 Ninja Warrior, Roo Yori, who is rehoming a pit bull that is a danger to children and other animals. This is unacceptable for public safety! It's not being a good neighbor to adopt high-liability dogs.

Dogs can be great escape artists. When pit bulls get loose it can be dangerous and deadly for everyone in the neighborhood. Pit bulls are the number one type of dog the police shoot in the line of duty. Children could have been playing in the neighborhood. Children do not have any means for protecting themselves from a dog attack. This is unacceptable to public safety. https://www.dogsbite.org/blog-posts-police-shootings-of-pit-bulls.php

This could have been any of us or our loved ones taking a stroll in our neighborhoods. The only way to have stopped this mauling would have been carrying a gun. We all know our children or teenagers are not carrying guns and most of us don't carry guns while walking in our neighborhoods. Nowadays, there is a huge risk of walking in our neighborhoods with all the reckless pit bull owners out there who can't contain their dogs. This pit bull owner got a slap on the wrist with a misdemeanor reckless conduct charge and is still walking around terrorizing the neighborhood with her other pit bull. This pit bull owner should be charged with a felony and sitting in prison for at least 10 years. Don't you agree?

Dear Representative,

Please find attached a letter and enclosures opposing SB 323. This bill would allow school districts to offer Bible classes in public schools. This bill should be rejected because such classes frequently violate the law and its real goal is to promote Christianity in our public schools.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Re: Oppose SB 323—Bible Classes Create Serious Constitutional Risks

Dear Chair Basye and Vice-Chair Haffner:

On behalf of the Missouri chapter, members, and supporters of Americans United for Separation of Church and State, I write to express our opposition to SB 323, which would allow school districts to offer a course on the Hebrew Scriptures/Old Testament, the New Testament, or a combination of both.

Any public school class dedicated solely to the Bible presents serious constitutional risks. In theory the classes can meet constitutional demands, but in practice such classes frequently violate the law and lead to costly litigation. Furthermore, this bill is part of a coordinated effort by Project Blitz to pass Bible class bills across the country as one step in their larger plan to enshrine Christian nationalism into state laws. This bill, therefore, should be rejected.

The Constitution Imposes Strict Requirements on Bible Courses

A long line of court decisions makes clear that it is difficult—and public schools often fail—to meet the constitutional requirements that apply to public school Bible courses.[1]

In accordance with the Constitution, public schools may teach about religion but they may not teach religion. Public school Bible courses must be taught from a secular, non-devotional, and objective perspective—public schools may not teach that the Bible is a true and literal historical record.[2] The courses may not teach a particular religious doctrine or a sectarian Dist.*, 933 F. Supp. 582, 596–97 (N.D. interpretation of the Bible and should expose students to critical perspectives on the Bible and a diversity of biblical interpretations. [3]

Despite these constitutional guidelines, many public school Bible courses still become nothing more than Sunday school lessons masquerading as legitimate instruction about religion.[4] For example, in 2017, Kentucky passed a Bible course bill. Although it included some of these constitutional requirements, an examination of courses across the state found that many violated the Constitution: students were required to watch religious videos promoting Christianity and to memorize Bible verses, and classroom materials were taken from Sunday school websites.[5]

These experiences should serve as a warning. Public schools find it difficult to avoid teaching the Bible from a religious perspective, and families whose religious freedom has been violated often have no choice but to challenge them in court. This litigation can be costly to school districts, public schools, and taxpayers.

The Real Intent of Bible Courses Is to Endorse Religion in Public Schools

Project Blitz is a nationwide campaign to impose far-right evangelical Christian views on everyone, including our public school students.[6] That these bills are a part of Project Blitz makes clear that their real purpose is to endorse religion.[7] The Project Blitz playbook initially focuses on public school students with Bible class bills and then escalates to promote bills that would misuse religious freedom to allow discrimination. This includes bills that allow taxpayer-funded agencies to turn away couples seeking to foster or adopt children in need of stable and loving homes because they are same-sex or the "wrong" religion.[8] Ultimately, Project Blitz aims to transform religious freedom from a shield that protects to a sword that harms others. I have enclosed with this letter a statement from 43 national organizations, including 24 religious and denominational organizations, that oppose the Project Blitz playbook.

Freedom of religion means that parents—not school officials or state legislatures—have the right to direct their children's religious education and should be able to trust that their children will not be taught someone else's religious beliefs. Public schools, which educate the vast majority of students in the state, should ensure that every student feels welcomed and

In order to truly promote religious literacy, we urge you instead to encourage schools to offer comparative religion courses that introduce students to many different religions and the nonreligious without creating the danger that one religion will be taught as truth. SB 323 is the wrong approach to fostering religious literacy and instead could lead to constitutional violations. I have enclosed with this letter a document outlining further the problems with public school Bible classes. Thank you for your consideration on this important matter.

Bible Classes in Public Schools

Any public school class dedicated solely to the Bible presents serious constitutional risks: In theory, the classes can meet constitutional demands, but in practice such classes frequently violate the Constitution and lead to costly litigation. Yet, state legislatures are increasingly debating bills that would require public schools to offer classes that teach the Bible. This uptick is not a surprise: these bills are one step in a coordinated effort across the country to impose Christianity on our public schools, known as Project Blitz.

Our public schools are open to all students regardless of religion and should not promote any one religion over others.

Public schools are a unifying force in our society, and they educate the vast majority of students across the country. They are open to all students regardless of religion. Public schools must ensure that no student feels excluded in their own school because they are members of a minority faith or nonreligious.

The U.S. Constitution imposes strict requirements on public school Bible classes.

Public schools may teach about religion, but they may not engage in religious instruction. The Constitution requires that Bible classes be taught from a secular, non-devotional, and objective perspective. For example, these classes cannot teach a particular religion's interpretation of the Bible or that the Bible is true. Public schools, however, struggle to meet the demands of the Constitution.

Many public school Bible classes become nothing more than Sunday school lessons.

A long line of court decisions make it clear that public school Bible classes often promote Christianity. For example, an examination of Bible classes across Kentucky found that students were required to watch religious videos promoting Christianity and to memorize Bible verses, and classroom materials were taken from Sunday school websites.

AMERICANS UNITED FOR SEPARATION OF CHURCH AND STATE

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Statement from 43 National Organizations United in Opposition to Project Blitz and Similar Legislative Efforts

Religious freedom is a fundamental American value. It is a shield that protects everyone—the religious and nonreligious alike. Yet, an alarming effort is underway to harness the power of the government to impose the faith of some onto everyone else, including our public school students. This effort seeks to transform religious freedom into a sword that can be used to harm others, undermining important civil rights protections and healthcare access, especially for women, LGBTQ people, those of minority faiths, and the nonreligious.

We are united against these efforts.

In particular, we oppose "Project Blitz," a new and coordinated national effort to enshrine Christian nationalism in state laws across the country. Project Blitz promotes a three-tiered framework of state bills meant to incrementally redefine religious freedom and tear down the separation of church and state, with each tier laying the groundwork for the next. This framework starts by pushing what its authors believe will be less controversial measures, such as requiring "In God We Trust" to be posted in public schools. Using those bills as a foothold, it then seeks to pass more dangerous legislation, like bills that allow taxpayer-funded agencies to turn away couples seeking to foster or adopt children in need of stable and loving homes because they are same-sex or the "wrong" religion.

The separation of church and state, however, is the linchpin of religious freedom and a hallmark of our democracy. It ensures that each person has the right to choose whether to practice a religion or be nonreligious without pressure from the government. It safeguards houses of worship from intrusion by the government and, at the same time, prevents religious institutions from harnessing the power of government to impose their religion on others. It protects parents who want to send their children to public schools without fear that they will be proselytized or forced to pray according to someone else's faith tradition. And, it prohibits the government from allowing the use of religion to evade laws that protect civil rights and access to healthcare, including reproductive healthcare.

Therefore, we urge legislators across the country to oppose Project Blitz and similar legislative efforts. America—and religious freedom—are stronger when the government gives no religion or set of beliefs more power or preference than any other and when everyone is welcome and treated equally under the law.

RE: House Bill 368

It is my understanding that the hearing for House Bill 368 is scheduled for tomorrow, March 30, at 8:00 a.m. Unfortunately, I am unable to testify personally due to a previously scheduled obligation at Nixa Public Schools. As Title I Coordinator, reading specialist, and dyslexia therapist I would like to express my opposition to House Bill 368. As you read my rationale below, please be mindful that I have over 23 years of experience working with struggling readers and 16 years training reading specialists. Ensuring the success of all students has been the primary focus of my work. I am opposed to House Bill 368 for the following reasons.

1. This bill removes local control of reading curriculum, assessment, and interventions.
2. This bill mandates specific programs that utilize prescriptive one-size-fits-all approach.
3. This bill does not allow districts to utilize the expertise of our educators and specialists.

As a reading specialist, I absolutely want every child to have the best literacy education possible, however, passage of House Bill 368 would be harmful, not helpful. House Bill 368 is restrictive in methodology and encroaches on local control to utilize the expertise available within the school system. A Reading Success Plan bill should provide for flexibility of locally controlled instruction that utilizes research-based literacy instruction and funding for any mandates.

Thank you for your consideration in opposing House Bill 368.

Educationally,

Dear Members of the Senate Education Committee,

I am writing this letter to urge you to oppose Senate Bill 54 (O'Laughlin) and House Bill 368 (Gregory). I have many concerns regarding the contents of this bill. I support the Missouri School Board Association, Missouri Association of Administrators, Missouri State Teachers Association, and Missouri National Education Association in opposing this bill.

My experience (36 years) ranges from a classroom teacher in an urban district in Kansas City and teaching upper elementary. Since 2001, I have served in Springfield, Missouri as a classroom teacher, reading interventionist, and now a Reading Recovery Teacher Leader. In 2018, I completed coursework (University of Arkansas at Little Rock) in Dyslexia.

Senate Bill 54(O' Laughlin) and House Bill 368 (Gregory) mandates that schools provide a prescriptive reading intervention for students who are reading below grade level, have a reading deficiency, or a dyslexia diagnosis in kindergarten through 4th grade. The term "Structured Literacy" is used. It is an umbrella term designed to describe all of the programs that teach reading in essentially the same way. "Structured Literacy" programs do not have quality research that indicates evidence that is statistically significant (What Works Clearinghouse). Even though some students might need this approach to intervention, reading intervention is not a one size fits all. All struggling readers are not dyslexic even though all dyslexic students are struggling readers. Teaching reading is complex and the methodologies should be varied according to the unique needs of the students. Educators need to develop expertise in a variety of research based interventions and be able to develop an intervention plan for each student based on their strengths and areas of need. School districts and educators need to be the ones to decide how reading is taught and should not be limited to programs that are "the same type" and often sold for profit. Individual school districts should be allowed to decide specific education practices rather than having state-mandated practices. Each district is responsible for the progress of its students and should have the authority to design intervention services for students struggling to learn to read. A Reading Success Plan bill should provide for researched based reading instruction, flexibility in instructional choice, local control, and funding for its mandates.

I respectfully ask that you oppose SB 54 and HB 368. This is an issue that could impact many students and for many students in the future.

Sincerely,

Shelly Shaver, EdS

Dear Shamed,

The past few weeks have been difficult, to say the least. The sharp rise in antisemitic incidents and rhetoric in the United States and online left many feeling isolated, scared, misunderstood, and othered.

We are not alone, though. It was in these dark moments that we received an outpouring of love and support. Our friends in the interfaith community and our elected officials rearranged schedules to stand with us on June 1st as we hosted a press conference condemning antisemitism in all its forms.

Leaders of all backgrounds, religions, and political party affiliations continue to send messages of support.

We are particularly honored to share videos of elected officials who, though unable to stand with us on June 1st, sent recorded messages of support in response to our outreach. We will continue to share them over the coming weeks. We hope they offer some light amid the dark.

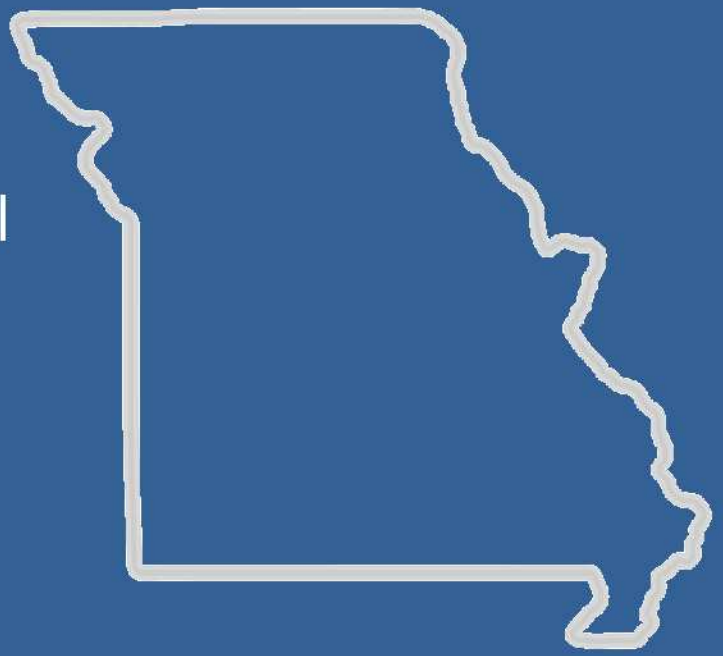
The Current State of Broadband

Presentation to the Missouri General Assembly
May 12, 2021



AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Agenda

1. Introduction
2. What is broadband?
3. State of broadband
4. Pew's research
5. American Rescue Plan
6. Discussion

Introduction

The Pew Charitable Trusts

- Non-profit, non-partisan research institution
- Connect research to policy
- Expertise in governance, fiscal, and environmental issues

Broadband Access Initiative

- Working with lawmakers and other stakeholders to pass policies
  - Increase speed and prioritize fiber
  - Address affordability
  - Improve accountability

- Researching key questions to improve the availability and cost of connections

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

What is broadband?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

What is broadband?

- Broadband is high-speed, reliable internet
- It is further defined by:
  - Technology type (fiber, fixed wireless, DSL, cable, satellite)
  - Speed

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Who delivers broadband?

- Private-sector providers
  - Cable companies (Comcast, Mediacom)
  - Telephone companies (CenturyLink, Socket)
  - Fixed wireless companies
- Cooperatives
  - Telephone cooperatives (NEMR Telecom)
  - Electric cooperatives (Co-Mo Connect)
- Municipal providers
  - Marshall Municipal Utilities

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

State of broadband

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Assessing availability

- The number of Americans without a broadband connection is unclear

- Data suggests lack of connection is overwhelmingly a rural issue; this isn't the whole truth

Missouri by the numbers

18th in population size

21st in geographic size

28th in population density

34th in broadband availability

18% with no broadband

50% with one provider

15% with no subscription

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Barriers to deployment

"Business case"	Funding	Policy and lack of accountability
Inadequate data and misinformation	Limited infrastructure	Capacity and expertise in public sector

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002494

Even with access, not everyone is online

- 80.4 percent of households have a home broadband subscription (American Community Survey)
- Disproportionately impacts communities of color, low-income households, aging Americans

Image: ConnectMaine Authority

Economic impact of broadband

- Availability alone ≠ economic gains
- 2014 study found high adoption = higher incomes and lower unemployment
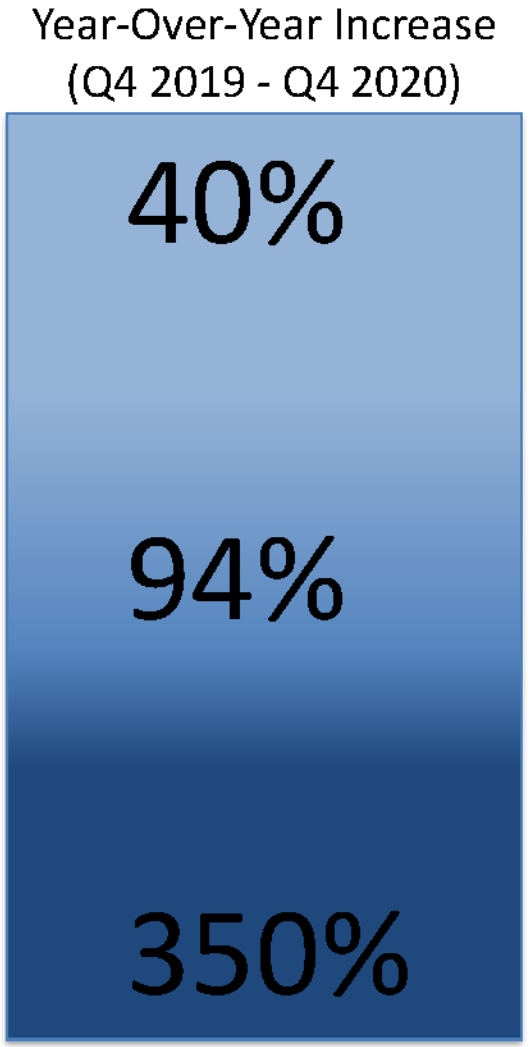
- Barriers to adoption: availability, cost, relevance

National Data Usage

Overall growth in data usage

Increase in the number of power users

Growth in upstream traffic



AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

What speeds do households need?

Activity	Minimum Download Speed (Mbps)
General Usage
General Browsing and Email	1
Streaming Online Radio	Less than 0.5
VoIP Calls	Less than 0.5
Student	5 - 25
Telecommuting	5 - 25
File Downloading	10
Social Media	1
Watching Video
Streaming Standard Definition Video	3 - 4
Streaming High Definition (HD) Video	5 - 8
Streaming Ultra HD 4K Video	25

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002498

More devices and more intensive applications require higher speeds

	Light Use (Basic functions: email, browsing, basic video, VoIP, Internet radio)	Moderate Use (Basic functions plus one high-demand application: streaming HD video, multiparty video conferencing, online gaming, telecommuting)	High Use (Basic functions plus more than one high-demand application running at the same time)
1 user on 1 device	Basic	Basic	Medium
2 users or devices at a time	Basic	Medium	Medium/Advanced
3 users or devices at a time	Medium	Medium	Advanced
4 users or devices at a time	Medium	Advanced	Advanced

Basic Service = 3 to 8 Mbps*

Medium Service = 12 to 25 Mbps

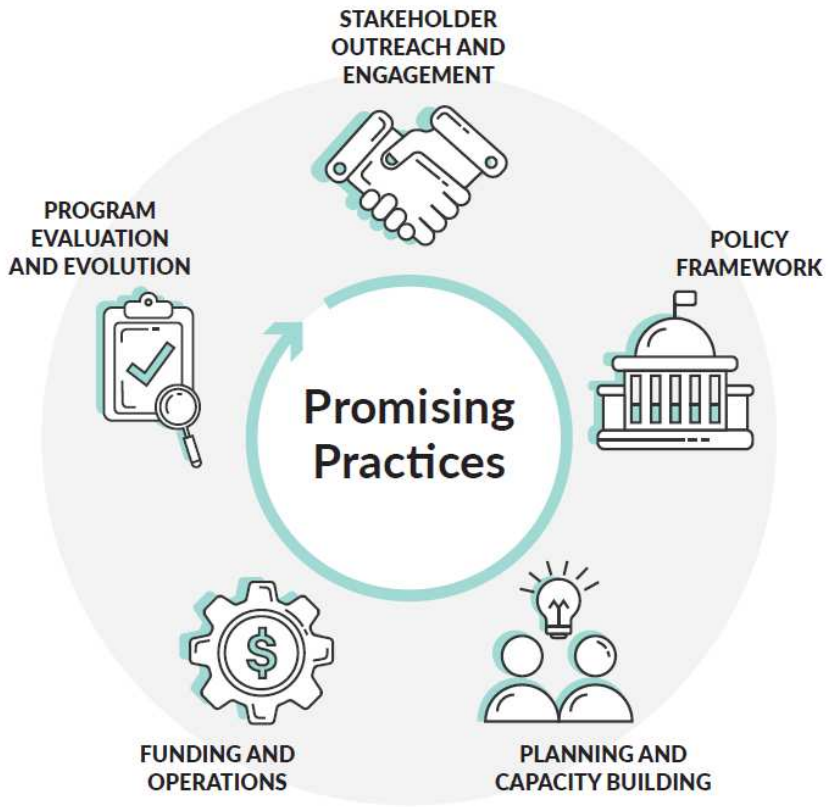
Advanced Service = More than 25 Mbps

Pew's research

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Core tenants of state programs

- Successful state programs use a combination of activities
- Strong leadership from legislative, executive branches
- “Tools in the toolbox”



Legislative leadership

Champions and advocates	• Maintaining focus on broadband • Encouraging vs. requiring
Funding	• Appropriations and additional sources • Programs and offices
Task forces and councils	• WV: Broadband Enhancement Council • MN: Governor's Task Force on Broadband

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Lessons for Missouri

- Increase funding for broadband
  - Tennessee: $100 million (proposed)
  - Indiana: $205 million state funds; $250 million federal
- Speeds
  - Definitions impact funding priorities
  - States are raising definitions of unserved/underserved
- “Fiber first”
  - Higher up-front costs, but fiber has a longer lifespan and lower long-term costs

Lessons for Missouri

- Statewide leadership, localized solutions
  - Setting a goal, developing state plan
  - Task force, council
  - Supporting local and regional planning
- Maximizing the investment
  - What else is needed to achieve the ultimate objectives?

Incoming federal funds

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

NTIA: Tribal grants

Tribal Broadband Connectivity Program

- $1 billion in grant funds for infrastructure, telehealth, distance learning, affordability, and training
- Eligible entities: Tribal entities, Tribal organizations, Tribal Colleges and Universities (TCUs), the Native Hawaiian Community, and Native Corporations
- Applications expected to open early summer

NTIA: CMC Fund

Connecting Minority Communities Fund

- $285 million in grant funds for infrastructure, eligible equipment, and training
- Eligible entities: Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs), Tribal Colleges and Universities (TCUs), and Minority-Serving Institutions (MSIs) or consortium applicants
- Applications expected to open early summer

NTIA: infrastructure grants

Broadband Infrastructure Program

- $300 million in grant funds for infrastructure, particularly in rural areas
- Designed to support partnerships between a State, or one or more political subdivisions of a State, and providers of fixed broadband service
- Applications expected to open early summer

ARP: State and Local Fund

Support public health expenditures

- Address negative economic impacts caused by the public health emergency
- Replace lost public sector revenue
- Provide premium pay for essential workers
- Invest in water, sewer, and broadband infrastructure

States & District of Columbia	$195.3
Counties	$65.1
Metropolitan Cites	$45.6
Tribal Governments	$20.0
Territories	$4.5
Non-Entitlement Units of Local Government	$19.5

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ARP: Broadband

- Eligible locations: areas lacking access to a wireline connection capable of delivering speeds of at least 25 Mbps
- Projects are expected to deliver service that reliably provides 100 Mbps symmetrical
- If impractical due to geography, topography, or cost, projects should provide 100/20 Mbps and scalable to 100 Mbps symmetrical

ARP: Broadband

- Additional recommendations:
  - Incorporating affordability options into design
  - Prioritizing last mile connections
  - Prioritizing support for networks owned, operated by, or affiliated with local gov’ts, non-profits, and co-ops
- Other allowable uses: digital literacy and affordability programs, cybersecurity
- Spending deadlines
  - Obligated: December 31, 2024
  - Completed: December 31, 2026

Managing one-time federal funds

- Research suggests that federal infusions can be used for one-time expenditures
- States can also offset debt or restore programs/FTE that were cut due to revenue loss
- Investing in infrastructure can provide economic return and offer long-term budget relief

Subject: Plea for victims and their families regarding Missouri SB26

Dear Missouri Legislature:

My name is Jenna Cabler. I am from Saint Louis, Missouri. I am writing to express outrage about Senate Bill 26, which recently went into effect, and mandates parole eligibility for some of Missouri's most violent offenders, including Alyssa Bustamante.

Alyssa Bustamante murdered 9-year-old Elizabeth Olten for fun in 2009. Bustamante had previously told a friend, “I just wonder what it would be like just to kill someone, see the life just drain out of someone. I wonder what it would feel like, that type of power, to take that away from someone.” Bustamante lured Elizabeth into the woods, strangled her, stabbed her, slit her throat, and buried her in a pre-dug grave.

Bustamante was sentenced to life with parole eligibility after 35 years--but because of SB26, Bustamante is eligible for parole in 2024, after serving only 15 years. Making Bustamante eligible for parole after only 15 years demeans her crime and endangers society.
This bill also mandates parole eligibility for a danger to society called Christopher Simmons. He took the life of one of my closest friend's mothers for a thrill. The law needs to be amended to keep society safe from violent predators like Bustamante and Simmons. There have already been too many lives lost after an extremely violent offender is released. Please protect victims and their families.

Thank you,
Jenna Cabler

Subject: Please demand a safe re-opening for all MO schools.

Dear Missouri leader,

As you are aware, school decisions are data-driven, and cases of COVID-19 in our community are continuously rising with no expectation for a decline in sight.

On July 22, Dr. Deborah Birx, leader of the White House Coronavirus Task Force, privately contacted St. Louis officials to warn them of increasing COVID-19 infections and urge them to take aggressive action to mitigate the spread of the virus. Opening schools as planned is in direct conflict with these advised measures and will result in suffering and casualties.

I am asking for your help advocating for a safe return to school in Missouri through an online-only start to the school year followed by phased return as COVID-19 cases and spread in our area decline. Per the American Academy of Pediatrics, as of August 9, 97,000 children have tested positive for COVID-19 in just the last 2 weeks of July. Please take special notice of the 80% increase in child cases in the state of Missouri.

Several school districts in our region with a variety of demographics have decided to start the school in the same fashion: Ritenour School District, Hazelwood School District and Ferguson-Florissant School District. Additionally, the East St. Louis School District, Maplewood Richmond Heights District, and Affton School District are committing to a similar re-entry plan and the superintendent of Kansas City Public Schools has announced that under the guidance of their city's health department, they will roll out a new plan for virtual re-entry throughout the next week. I have provided links to several of these re-entry plans for you to view at your convenience. All of these plans start school with all or nearly-all virtual learning with phased in re-entry benchmarks based on data.

On July 30, Missouri NEA released the results from its survey of more than 24,000 Missouri educators from MNEA, MSTA, AFT, and non-union members here. Few of the educators surveyed indicated comfort with existing reopening plans, and shared concerns ranging from opening on an arbitrary date, lack of staff voice, unclear plans, and both the ongoing lack and personal cost of PPE and cleaning supplies.

Making a decision to pivot to a primarily-virtual instruction model will give teachers time to train and prepare their online instruction — a luxury that we simply did not have in the spring.

A coalition of Missouri educators and stakeholders collaborated on a plan we believe is a great starting point for keeping everyone safe while meeting urgent needs and meaningful academic experiences. Our plan is published here.

Subject: Please Support Amendment to HB 1141 to Ban Critical Race Theory

Dear Chairman Basye, Vice Chairman Haffner and Members of the Education Committee:

I am writing to ask for your support of Representative Nick Schroer's amendment to HB 1141 prohibiting the teaching of Critical Race Theory and "The 1619 Project" in Missouri's education institutions and HB 1411.

The legislative session is ending, and we need to take immediate action and stop the implementation of the racist Critical Race Theory and the revisionist history of "The 1619 Project" from Missouri's educational institutions. Missouri taxpayers should not be funding hate.

States, like Arkansas, Idaho, Tennessee, Oklahoma, and Florida have already passed legislation banning this Marxists-based ideology. Critical Race Theory and "The 1619 Project" removes individualism and teaches students to hate their country and believe their fellow students are somehow either superior or inferior based on their race or gender. Teaching this harmful and racist theory and revisionist history to our children is teaching systemic racism.

Missouri should be looking for ways to unite this country and look beyond race or gender. We shouldn't be looking to return the pre-civil rights era of segregated water fountains, bathrooms or college dorms. The story of the American founding and the subsequent stories of the Civil War and the Civil Rights movement of the 1960's are the real stories of the spirit of America - how our young nation wrestled with the amoral institution of slavery and defeated it and how a century later Americans continued to advance the idea that ALL Americans are equal in the eyes of God.

Children in our state should be taught that their hard work, their character, and their deeds matter more than the color of their skin or the economic situation they have been born into. This is the real American way, and it is available to all. It is for this reason that I urge you to Representative Schroer's amendment to HB1141.

I am writing to ask for your support of Representative Nick Schroer's amendment to HB 1141 prohibiting the teaching of Critical Race Theory and "The 1619 Project" in Missouri's education institutions and HB 1411.

Subject: Please Support of Senate Bill 54 (SB54)

Dear Committee Members,

I am writing today to ask for your support of Senate Bill 54 (SB54) that will be heard in your Education Committee March 30th. This bill will require schools to adopt an appropriate intervention program that is evidenced based to help children with dyslexia and other reading difficulties.

Did you know that 65% of Missouri fourth-grade public school students cannot read at a proficient level? And, approximately 80% of prison inmates are functionally illiterate and 48% are dyslexic? Structured literacy would help these students and prevent the "pipeline to prison" from happening!

My granddaughter Hayden who is 8 years old, struggles with dyslexic our public school system has very limited resources available for her. Hayden wants to do well at school but struggles. We want her to like school and feel confident in her abilities. Reading it the foundation to her education which ultimately determines her path in life.

That is why I feel that not only my grandchild but every child who struggles with dyslexia and reading would benefit from the passage of Senate Bill 54 (SB54). I respectfully ask for your support of this bill!

Sincerely,

Nicole Duncan

Subject: Please Vote against Restricting Assistant Physicians- A clause found in SB 9

Dear Respected Members of Office,

Good afternoon. I hope all is well. I am writing out of grief and concern because of a small section in SB 9 pertaining to Assistant Physicians. From what I understand it was quietly added and seeks to restrict the Assistant Physician license to only graduates of in-state schools and worse- to limit its use to 3 years max. I am asking that you please vote against this bill.

I graduated medical school overseas and since then, because of the raw numbers that make getting into a training program competitive, have not gotten a position. Each application cycle adds another 10-20K people who go without a position, & it's not likely graduates in my boat will ever get into a residency program. On average, each position has about 2000 applicants vying for that 1 spot.

This was why Missouri first created the Assistant Physician position. It takes advantage of the fully qualified clinical graduates and brings their knowledge and skill set to Missouri's underserved. I've held this license since 2018 which makes use of my medical education to provide supervised care equal to that of an NP or PA at a charity clinic in Grandview. Many of my colleagues also participated during the Covid pandemic. My medical education, which includes all the multiple rigorous United States licensing exams would have otherwise gone to waste as there are no other fields that would accept or acknowledge my schooling. Nursing or Physician Assistant schools require restarting our education anew in their respective tracts altogether, including taking out new loans and putting life on pause.

Both we APs and Missouri residents benefit greatly. I get to work as a prescriber exactly as I was trained under a supervising physician in the same manner as a PA or NP and the people, especially in areas where there are no other providers for miles around have someone to help with their ailments. As in any practice, including that of full license MDs, also our NP and PA colleagues, we become more knowledgeable with real world experience, providing effective and critical healthcare to those in need. What is the logic of curtaining its practice after 3 years? I hope you might see the practicality, wisdom and justice in allowing our field to continue.

Please strike down the clause involving restrictions on the Assistant Physician license.

Thank you for your time and for your service.

Sincerely,

Shahed Hossain MD
Assistant Physician

Subject: PLEASE VOTE NO TO HB SB9.

Dear Representative,

I received my assistant physician license to practice in Missouri in 2021. This was a lifeline for me having not matched into residency the past two years. The recent amendments made to HB SB9 as they pertain to assistant physician law have been devastating. This has taken away my ability to practice medicine, something I have spent over a decade studying. I have over 300,000 in US federal loans and I am still unable to match. Becoming an assistant physician has given me a chance to utilize my skills without losing this vast knowledge I have attained. With an MD degree, but no residency I struggled to find employment while living in Florida. I am picking up and moving to Missouri to start a new life as an assistant physician. However, this new amendment to the law says I have 3 years to match into residency or I can no longer work. Why put a time limit on how long I can be an assistant physician and serve the community? Please stop this from happening. It will devastate many lives including mine. I am qualified, I have 4 degrees and I am ready to serve the citizens of Missouri. Please do not take my chance away to make a difference as a doctor. Vote NO to HB SB9.

Sincerely,

Dr. Shivana Ramphall, Assistant Physician

Subject: PLEASE! Ban Critical Race Theory in Missouri Schools!

Dear VALUED Missouri Legislator…

Our Republican majority in Missouri is vitally important in holding back the tidal wave of socialism that is washing over America. And YOU are a huge part of this fight!!!

I am writing to express my support of HB # 1141 the A+ Schools bill, and specifically the amendment (2440H03.23H), which seeks to prohibit the teaching of Critical Race Theory and 1619 Project materials in Missouri Schools.

My son is a Freshman at Lafayette High School in the Rockwood School District in St Louis County, Missouri, the state's 3rd largest district. Sadly, we have become acquainted with these divisive teachings in just this year, our first year in public school. We are shocked and dismayed over what we are seeing.

This insidious racist style of teaching is known by many names, such as Critical Race Theory, "white privilege study", "whiteness study", "white fragility", "de-colonization of schools", and the ironically named "anti-racism/racist" teachings, which are actually racist, since they teach judging people based on their race. And even worse, these teachings say that America's founding is evil and our country must be "fundamentally transformed". Sound familiar?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

 Think of these teachings as Marxism without the economics! It is a way to divide our society by race, and destroy the concept of the individual. Classic Marxism!

This teaching assumes that:
_ all white people are inherently racist, and racism is present in every human interaction.
_ white people only help black people when it suits their own selfish needs.
_ It hates free societies.
_ CRT lumps people into identity groups based on race, and erases the individual.
_ It considers that science and math are "white" methods of discovery, but storytelling is "black".
_ This movement also rejects all opposition as racist, allows no arguments and can never, ever be satisfied.
_ CRT is so ridiculous that it even rejects ideas such as "colorblindness" and "equality" as racist ideas.
_ America is evil at her core, from her founding, and must be torn down.

In closing, I want you all to know that these type of racist "anti-racist" teachings go directly against Dr Martin Luther King's desire that all people be judged by the content of their character as opposed to the color of their skin.

If this hasn't come to your smaller school districts, rest assured, it will be coming soon. Please don't let Dr King's dream die in Missouri schools!

Respectfully, and with great appreciation,

Janet Deidrick

Fellow Caucus Members,

Policy Development will be holding another informational presentation on Wednesday night, March 31, in House Hearing Room 2. We will begin at 7:00 p.m.

Our speaker this week will be Dr. Art McCoy, the Jennings School District Superintendent. Under his leadership in Jennings School District, multiple graduating classes achieved 100% graduation, career & college placement. Jennings is the only school district in Missouri to create and operate 2 school-based clinics for all medical and mental health student needs and 2 homeless shelters to reduce homelessness. His district was the only district in all of St. Louis County or City to resume in-person schooling during the peak of COVID-19 successfully with zero cases of student transmission throughout 2020.

He will be presenting on the methods and strategies of success he has developed.

The Policy Development Committee will provide educational opportunities for the Caucus throughout this Session. We will also provide educational material on various policy topics if you are interested. Your ideas for presenters are most welcome.

If you have any questions, please let me know.

Thank you!

Fellow Caucus Members,

Last night Jakob Puckett from the Show Me Institute delivered a presentation on transportation in the state. Topics included condition of roads, funding sources, costs, and the 2021 gas tax bill. The presentation was recorded and can be viewed at this link: https://youtu.be/LXrFW0bVVjg. Attached is the PowerPoint used during the presentation.

Thank you!

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Transportation in Missouri

- Condition of Roads
- Funding Sources
- Costs of Not Maintaining Roads
- 2021 Gas Tax Bill
- Future Challenges

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Road Conditions

- Best estimates: 15% of roads, 10% of bridges in poor condition
- MoDOT maintains it needs an extra $745 million each year

Study	Percentage of Missouri's roads in poor condition	Percentage of Missouri's bridges in poor condition	National ranking	Roads studied
QuoteWizard (2018)[7]	23	12	8th worst	State highway network
TRIP (2018)[8]	24	13	13th worst	Major roads and highways in state's four largest urban areas
American Society of Civil Engineers (2017)[9]	23	12.5	—	State highway network
Bureau of Transportation Statistics (2019)[10]	23.4	8.6	—	Public roads
Reason Foundation (2019)[11]	0.36–7.01	12.6	3rd best	Rural and urban interstate and arterial roads*(hence range)
Missouri House Transportation Committee Task Force (2018)[12]	14	8.5	—	Interstates, major and minor routes
Missouri Department of Transportation (2019)[13]	8.5	8.7	—	Major roads

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

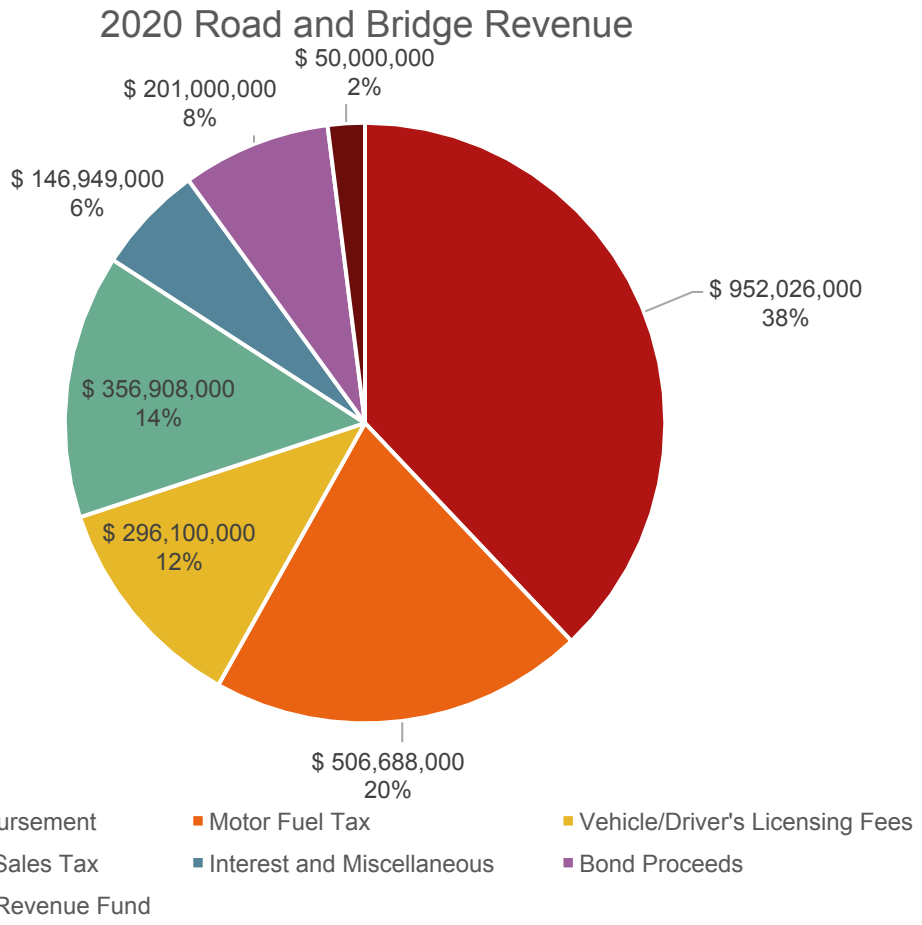
Road Conditions

Major roads in need of repair

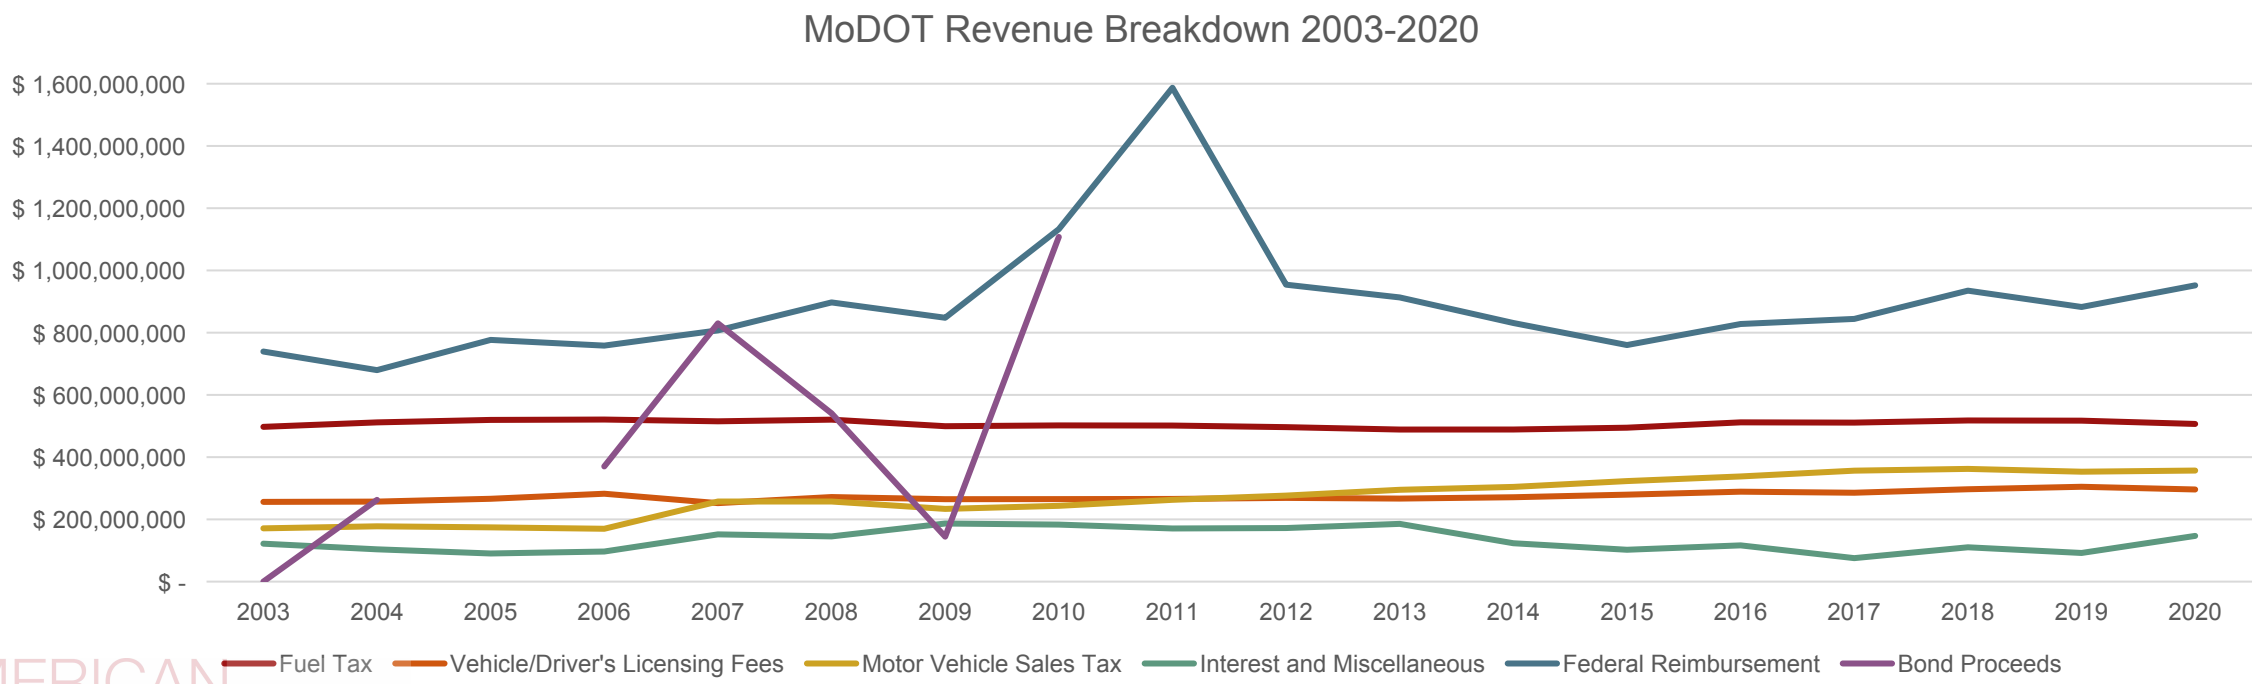
- I-70 – built in 1950s and 1960s with 50-year intended lifespan
- Needs to be rebuilt, not just repaved
- MoDOT estimates this would cost $2-$4 billion
- I-44 and I-55 – not as old as I-70, but will face similar problems soon

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Road and Bridge Funding Sources



Road and Bridge Funding Sources



AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Costs of not maintaining the roads

Costs to Drivers

Rough roads lead to extra:

- Vehicle repair costs
- Fuel costs
- Increased tire wear
- And faster decline in vehicle values

MoDOT estimates these cost each Missourian $59 per month and $3 billion each year statewide

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Costs of not maintaining the roads

Costs to the State

Delaying needed road repair results in higher future repair costs

Cornell University study:

- Each $1 spent to keep roads in good condition saves $4 to $5 in future costs of rehabbing poor roads to good roads

American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials:

- Each $1 spent to keep roads in good condition saves $6 to $14 in future costs of rehabbing a deteriorated road

American Road & Transportation Builders Association:

- Each $1 spent to keep road in good condition saves $5 to $15 in future reconstruction needs

Costs of not maintaining the roads

Costs to the Economy

- Poor roads jeopardize employment and economic opportunities
- Missouri's roads are an asset that support current and future jobs and economic growth
- Over 83,500 Missourians employed in transportation and warehousing industries
- Over $700 billion of goods travel on Missouri's roads
- Expected to increase to $1.2 trillion annually by 2030

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2021 Fuel Tax Bill

- Raise fuel tax from 17 cents per gallon to 29.5 cents per gallon in five years
- Estimated to raise an additional $450 million each year when fully phased in
- Missourians can send in receipts for refunds for increase in gas tax
- Establishes Electric Vehicle Task Force

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Future Challenges
Increasing Fuel Efficiency

- As vehicles become more fuel efficient, fuel tax revenue will erode
- Vehicle miles traveled on Missouri roads increased over 17% since 2008
- Fuel tax revenue declined 0.5%
- MoDOT road and bridge budget declined 15%
- Federal Highway Trust Fund facing funding shortfalls
- Increased construction costs + inflation = each $1 of gas tax raised now is 1/3 of what it was in 1993 (when federal fuel tax last set)
- For every $1 Missouri sends to Highway Trust Fund, it gets $1.20 back

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Future Challenges
Increasing Fuel Efficiency

- Potential solution: Indexing Fuel Tax
- Several states index their fuel tax so it can keep up with the times
- North Carolina:
  - State population and inflation
- Nebraska:
  - State transportation budget and varies with the price of fuel
- Georgia:
  - Average vehicle fuel efficiency
- Several states apply sales tax on top of fuel tax, which varies with the price of fuel

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Future Challenges
Electric Vehicles

- As more vehicles run on fuels other than gasoline, this will also erode fuel tax revenue
- EVs pay $75/year for a special fuel decal instead of a gas tax
- Average gas-powered car pays $250/year in fuel taxes

- Solutions:
- EVs pay a per-kWh tax on electricity needed for fuel
- EVs pay per mile driven
- Not a good solution: raising the special fuel decal price – becomes unfair to EV drivers – same tax no matter how much or little they drive

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Future Challenges
Possibility of Tolling

- Interstates, specifically I-70, need to rebuilt
- MoDOT estimates rebuilding I-70 to cost $2 to $4 billion
- Based on 2019 traffic levels, several options for tolling to raise $2 to $4 billion with rates not exceeding 4 cents per mile for cars and 17.5 cents per mile for trucks
- Many legal challenges

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Future Challenges

Possibility of Tolling – Tolling I-70

Total Raised	Distance	Car Cost Per Mile	Truck Cost Per Mile	Cars Cost for Full Trip	Trucks Cost for Full Trip
$4 billion	St Louis to Kansas City	$ 0.03	$ 0.13	$ 7.50	$ 32.50
$3 billion	Wenzteville to Independence	$ 0.04	$ 0.175	$ 6.96	$ 30.45
$2 billion	Wenzteville to Independence excluding Columbia	$ 0.033	$ 0.135	$ 5.30	$ 22.01

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Future Challenges
Paying by the Mile, not by the Gallon

- Damage caused to roads comes from vehicle miles driven and vehicle weight, not the type of fuel those vehicles use
- Several states have Road Usage Charge programs – pay by mile driven, not by a fuel tax – fuel tax refunded
- Drivers have several options to record mileage:
  - Self-report odometer
  - Plug-in device that reads odometer
  - GPS through third party system
    - Third party reports total miles to state
    - Location data belongs to driver, typically destroyed, not shared with state
- Current programs: Oregon, Utah, I-95 Coalition (several states)

Fellow Caucus Members,

Last night Elias Tsapelas and David Stokes from the Show-Me Institute presented information regarding taxation issues in the state. Attached is the PowerPoint they used. A video of their presentation will be available in the near future.

Attached please find the link to Dr. Art McCoy's presentation before Policy Development on March 31. Dr. McCoy's school district in Jennings was provisionally accredited before he became superintendent. They now graduate 100% of their students and enable them to graduate with an Associate's Degree or Industry Recognized Certifications while still in high school. They also instituted mentoring programs beginning in Kindergarten and provide extensive after school and summer school offerings.

Subject: Policy Development WWT Cloud Presentation Slides
Attachment(s): "SoM Cloud Education 3.24.21.pptx"

Fellow Caucus Members,

Last night World Wide Technology delivered a presentation on cloud technology and how it can change the way the state secures and manages data. Cloud would create efficiencies for data sharing among state departments and provide better service. Rather than have someone start from scratch each time they deal with a different department, their information could be shared across departments, allowing for a more targeted service to the individual and saving them time. In the 21st Century there is no more excuse to be operating off archaic and out of date technology, especially when other states like Maryland have already successfully implemented these kind of systems.

Thank you!

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

WWT can help at any stage in the cloud journey. Here you see some key areas where we can help your organization with cloud services.

As companies progress in their cloud maturity, the types of services needed typically move from left to right, from assessment to applications, but not always. For example, some are more advanced in their cloud infrastructure and need help with only cloud applications.

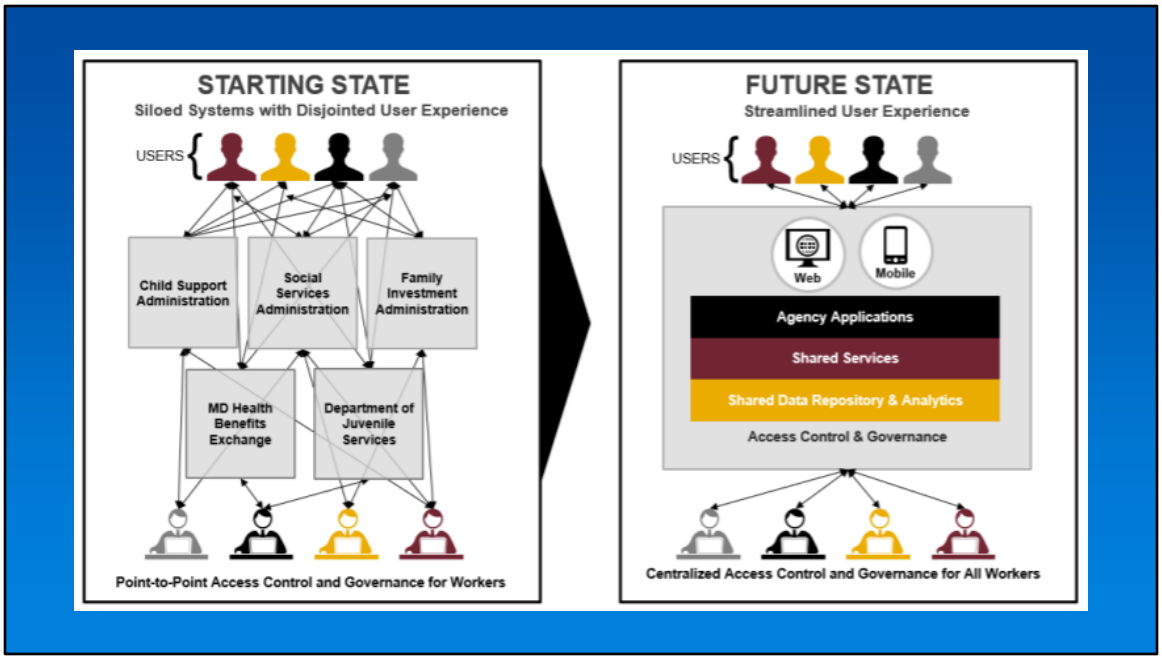
Another area where companies may need help is with cloud data. WWT ensures that data is being utilized optimally by asking the right questions: Where does your data live? Where is it backed up? Is it stored in different areas or platforms? Is it hot or cold data?

The key is to get the data into the right places for the right purposes.

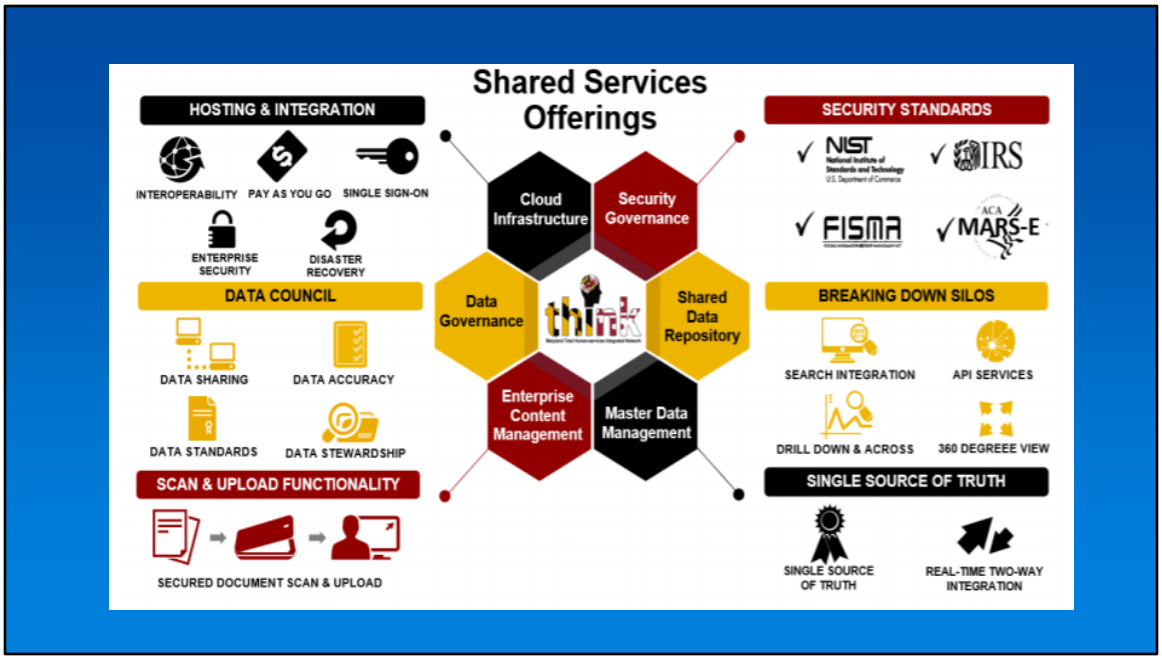
AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Digital transformation is all about becoming a digital enterprise—an organization that uses technology to continuously evolve all aspects of its business or mission (what the organization offers, how the organization interacts with customers and the value the organization provides).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT



AMERICAN OVERSIGHT



AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Refer to the case study: "State Department: Building a Multicloud Architecture https://www.wwt.com/case-study/state-department-multicloud-architecture/)

Situation: Flooding, fire and power issues to its on-premise data centers caused major outages for the department. The agency struggled to deliver services in a timely manner due to siloed infrastructure and a lack of protocols and standards for sharing data. In some cases, critical data held by the department was at risk as a result of some servers operating without a disaster recovery plan.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

With 100 servers, 30 network switches and 90 applications across the state were nearing end of life or end of support, the department gained the opportunity to change data center operations and become a state leader in infrastructure modernization and digital transformation.

WWT helped the department develop a consistent multicloud strategy that would allow it to put new applications into the public cloud while keeping existing applications on premise or off premise as they were refactored for the cloud over time.

SIX STEPS TO SUCCESS

Our six-step cloud journey playbook helped the department implement a multicloud architecture capable of short-term wins and long-term growth.

Step 1: Select a colocated data center

The first order of business was to evaluate an on-premise vs. off-premise model. It became clear that the digital services the department wanted to deliver would require an off-premise facility with superior connectivity based on proximity to public cloud providers. We helped the department select a colocated data center that not only was operating along the internet highway but also had a facility 30 miles away to reconcile disaster recovery issues.

Step 2: Establish a private cloud beachhead

Next, we established a private cloud beachhead within the colocated data center. We advised the department purchase Dell EMC VxBlocks based on its workloads.

For management, we suggested the department implement a VMware virtualized environment to easily direct network traffic to the department's new off-premise environment or the public cloud. Using the WWT Advanced Technology Center (ATC), we were able to demonstrate a fully configured VMware Software-Defined Data Center (SDDC) stack that included VMware vSphere, VMware vSAN and VMware NSX virtualization technologies.

WWT staff trained on VMware NSX and the VMware vRealize suite, then provided necessary configurations for a virtualized private cloud as well as cloud migration services.

Step 3: Extend networking and security

After establishing the department's private cloud

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

beachhead and setting up a data center management platform, we needed to extend networking and security to the public cloud and back to the data center.
For networking, we suggested the department use VMware NSX. Members of our professional services organization trained department staff on NSX management, again using the capabilities of our ATC.
For security, we suggested the department choose Palo Alto and configured security protocols for safe application delivery.

Step 4: Establish a virtual private cloud in a public cloud

We then helped the department explore different public cloud providers. With our ATC connected to the major providers, we were able to show the department how their workloads and management operations would look in Amazon Web Services (AWS), Microsoft Azure and Google Cloud Platform.
The department selected Amazon Web Services (AWS). Our cloud solutions architects examined a well-architected review provided by AWS and made changes to the design. We then re-reviewed to finalize a design that met the department's operational needs and business requirements.

Step 5: Consolidate workloads to a colocated data center and virtual private cloud

In consolidating the department's workloads and moving the department to a multicloud architecture, we immediately were able to put two new enterprise applications into AWS for document management and processing: DocuWare and Kofax. With these applications up and running, the department can reduce the need to store tax returns on paper and automate the filing process.

The department's legacy applications were migrated to its new VMware virtual private cloud running within AWS.

Step 6: Optimize public cloud costs and build digital platforms

Now we will work with the department on the final step in our cloud journey playbook—getting the most out of the public cloud at the best price. In the case of the department, this means helping it move to a database as a service model.

utcomes

Equipped with modernized, resilient infrastructure and a consistent multicloud architecture, the department is already realizing the benefits of its IT and digital transformations.

With IT no longer having to address daily issues with call center operations or major outages, staff have been able to use 10 percent of their time to call residents who haven't filed their taxes in recent years.

The ability to proactively engage with delinquent residents has resulted in a USD 750 million windfall for the department as a result of those contacted by the department's contact center filing overdue taxes.

Additionally, with DocuWare running in AWS, the department can stop storing paper tax returns in warehouses as the application will digitize returns moving forward while chipping away at digitizing past filings. Not only is the department saving costs from having to store paper filings, but customers can now digitally access their returns, a reflection of the state's IT mission of creating customer-centric, digital services for its residents.

Subject: Present day lawmakers in white supremacy - just another day of American white supremacy

Is anti polygyny really about the Females?

American white(European) supremacy is anti all other. Set the people free from unjust marriage laws.
Do present day lawmakers realize America is not all European American people.
Other people include
African Americans
Spanish Americans (Hispanic)
Native Americans

Indian Americans (Asian Indian)
Asian Americans

Middle Eastern Americans and more...Have you looked around yet ?

Is it fair to force all Americans into European marriage customs ? Should all European Americans be forced into African Americans marriage customs ? What about Native Americans marriage customs ?.
While pro polygyny laws would not stop the rights of those who abide by Monogamy views such as the Roman Catholic organization. Forced anti polygyny laws stop the rights of others. Which is biased and discriminating against people outside the Roman Catholic Organization.

Just another day of American white(European) supremacy.
Drowning in bias - white supremacy

Davis v. Beason, 133 U.S. 333 (1890), was a United States Supreme Court case affirming, by a 9–0 vote, that federal laws against polygamy did not conflict with the free exercise clause of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution.

Davis v. Beason Chief Justice & Associate Justices - white European Americans ?
Reynolds v. United States Chief Justice & Associate Justices - white European Americans ?

Late Corp. of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints v. United States Chief Justice & Associate Justices - white European Americans ?

If you added a middle east Arab Muslim or African to the supreme court in that day would the outcome be different. Would they have said polygyny was not moral ?)
If the Supreme Court took a polygyny case today it would have a much different result now that American is more diverse 2021 in other culture besides European.

(Grover Cleveland Born to a Presbyterian minister and his wife)

In President Grover Cleveland's annual address to Congress in December 1885, he emotionally discussed the issue of polygamy in Utah:
The strength, the perpetuity, and the destiny of the nation rest upon our homes, established by the law of God, guarded by parental care, regulated by parental authority, and sanctified by parental love.
These are not the homes of polygamy. . . .
There is no feature of this practice or the system which sanctions it which is not opposed to all that is of value in our institutions.
There should be no relaxation in the firm but just execution of the law now in operation, and I should be glad to approve such further discreet legislation as will rid the country of this blot upon its fair fame.
Since the people upholding polygamy in our Territories are reenforced by immigration from other lands, I recommend that a law be passed to prevent the importation of Mormons into the country.

The Act was passed by the Senate in January 1886 by a vote of 38–7. It was passed by the House via a voice vote in January 1887. President Cleveland refused to sign the bill but did not veto it, which meant that the Act became law on March 3, 1887.

Justice Field, writing for the Court, condemned polygamy, writing that "Few crimes are more pernicious to the best interests of society, and receive more general or more deserved punishment." He went on to echo Reynolds v. United States (1878): "However free the exercise of religion may be, it must be subordinate to the criminal laws of the country, passed with reference to actions regarded by general consent as properly the subjects of punitive legislation." He wrote by way of comparison that if a religious sect advocated fornication or human sacrifice, "swift punishment would follow the carrying into effect of its doctrines, and no heed would be given to the pretense that, as religious beliefs, their supporters could be protected in their exercise by the Constitution of the United States."

2003 U.S. Supreme Court was against U.S. Supreme Court justice — Stephen Johnson Field (November 4, 1816 – April 9, 1899) Lawrence v. Texas, 539 U.S. 558 (2003), was a landmark decision of the U.S. Supreme Court in which the Court ruled that sanctions of criminal punishment for those who commit sodomy are unconstitutional. The Court based its ruling on the notions of personal autonomy to define one's own relationships and of American traditions of non-interference with private sexual decisions between consenting adults.

Interesting is that forced monogamy teaching is of Roman Catholic/Christian - European doctrines. FYI not from the bible - Information in bottom of email.

If you took the Religious Catholic/Christian Anti Polygyny movement out of history would you be pro polygyny today ?

DEARLY beloved, we are gathered together here in the sight of God, and in the face of this congregation, to join together this Man and this Woman in holy Matrimony; which is an honourable estate, instituted of God in the time of man's innocency, signifying unto us the mystical union that is betwixt Christ and his ...

Solemnization of Matrimony -- Book of Common Prayer

START - Roman empire law which banned polygyny
  Under the Romans, polygamy was legal until the Christians gained control in the reign of Constantine. The first Roman law forbidding polygamy was by that emperor made in 320 AD, stating: "No married man may have a concubine during the existence of his marriage." In this law the term "concubine" refers to wife by usus, not to a slave. Usus normally required a written legal contract and the wife was a legal, freeborn wife. In Roman society a usus wife was just as legal as the primary wife. Originally, Romans had several different grades of wife and it was common for wealthy men to have all grades. This gradually devolved into having a primary wife and various usus wives. This does not include sex with slaves who were not considered any kind of wife. Roman law provided for what we now call "common law" wives, meaning automatic usus status even without a contract if the woman slept in the man's house for over one year. The Twelve Tables specifically states the terms of this law as follows:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

"If a wife should sleep for three nights in a year out of her husband's house, she should not be subject to his paternal power."

Thus any woman could escape being an automatic wife by claiming she slept for three nights outside of the house. Note that any usus wife, contract or not, would be considered materfamilias (primary wife) by the law if she was the only wife of a man. https://history.stackexchange.com/questions/23510/when-did-monogamy-become-the-norm-in-ancient-greece

The Roman Catholic Church considers the practice to be an offense against the dignity of marriage and in opposition to the religion’s moral values.

The Council of Trent was held in several sessions from 1545 to 1563

I am responding on behalf of Bishop Soto. Thank you for your email regarding monogamy and polygamy.

Catholic tradition has consistently interpreted Christ's teaching as absolutely forbidding polygamy, and the prohibition was defined by the Council of Trent, pronouncing anathema against anyone who says that "it is lawful for Christians to have several wives at the same time, and that it is not forbidden by any divine law" (Denzinger 1802).

"Although the Court agreed with Reynolds that the free exercise of religion underlay the founding of the United States, it also held that government officials have a right to regulate behavior as part of religious practices that are considered odious and violate basic notions of morality. Until the inception of the Mormon Church, the Court noted, the northern and western nations of Europe and every state had criminalized polygamy. "

Anti Polygyny violate basic notions of morality is just American white supremacy with morality based on Roman Catholic Christians teaching.

The United States and Europe have enacted the Anti polygyny laws steming from the Rome empire/Roman catholic (no separation of church and state). which dominated Europe which the settlers brought to America. Other nations arond the world which enacted Anti Polygyny laws have been influenced by Europe / Roman empire / Catholic views.

Protestantism, Christian religious movement that began in northern Europe in the early 16th century as a reaction to medieval Roman Catholic doctrines and practices. Along with Roman Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy, Protestantism became one of three major forces in Christianity. Still carried for the most part Anti polygyny Catholic views, that is why in most church meetings they are anti polygyny.

In the common case of a prince-bishop, this temporal territory (called a prince-bishopric) frequently overlapped with his often larger ecclesiastical diocese, giving the bishop both civil and ecclesiastical powers. Examples are the prince-archbishoprics of Cologne, Trier, and Mainz."

"Kings often employed bishops in administrative affairs and often determined who would be appointed to ecclesiastical offices"

"The Holy Roman Empire was neither a centralized state nor a nation-state. Instead, it was divided into dozens – eventually hundreds – of individual entities governed by kings, dukes, counts, bishops, abbots, and other rulers, collectively known as princes. There were also some areas ruled directly by the Emperor. At no time could the Emperor simply issue decrees and govern autonomously over the Empire. His power was severely restricted by the various local leaders."

If you insist forced monogamy is not of Catholic origins and that makes it non religious, which "justifies" the non religious anti polygyny stand. The Romans and Greeks had beliefs & gods before Rome making the official religion Catholic. Also FYI Christmas is built around pre Roman Catholic / Christian ideas, December 25 was a pagan god day and Jews place Jesus' birthday on another day. No different than a Nazi using the swastik symbol which did not originate from them.

It should be of no surprise why most of Europe considers monogamy the norm. Catholic / Christian taught anti polygyny views. America is no different.

FYI American miscegenation laws (anti interracial marriage laws) go back before Anti polygyny laws and only stop at 1967. Did any Anti Polygyny lawmakers make a fuss about anti interracial marriage laws ?. 2020 Utah took baby steps to stop American white supremacy anti polygyny laws.

Monogamy and polygyny in Greece, Rome, and world history June 2008

Walter Scheidel Stanford University

: it was not until the sixth century CE, after centuries of Christian influence, that the emperor Justinian claimed that “ancient law” prohibited husbands from keeping wives and concubines at the same time.24 As in Greece, sexual relations of married men with their own slave women were not unlawful, including relationships that resulted in offspring. Formal recognition of the latter was optional but not unknown. Moreover, ease of divorce underwrote a degree of effective polygyny: while men were unable to have more than one wife at a time they could marry several in a row, thereby raising reproductive inequality overall.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Greco-Roman SIUM was preserved and gradually reinforced by the Christian church which labored to suppress polygamy among Germans and Slavs at a time when the Arab conquests lent ideological support to polygamy in parts of the Mediterranean and across the Middle East. The Middle Ages, as SIUM spread as a by-product of Christianization, witnessed the church's struggle against divorce and elite concubinage, practices whose curtailment would render monogamous precepts more effective.26 Ashkenazi Jewry followed this trend, highlighted by Gershom ben Judah's ban of polygamy at a synod around 1000 CE. In western Europe, a brief spell of Anabaptist polygamy in Münster in 1535/6 (and, if true, a decree in Nürnberg in 1650 reacting to the lack of men after the Thirty Years War) was to be the final gasp of this practice, whereas Mormonism subsequently briefly revived it in the United States in 1831.27 In the wake of European overseas colonization, demic diffusion and imitation by non-European populations finally elevated SIUM to a globally dominant principle. The spread of SIUM outside Europe was slow and has yet to be systematically tracked and analyzed. In Japan, legislation against polygyny commenced in 1880. Polygamy was banned in Thailand in 1935, in China in 1953, for Hindus in India in 1955, and in Nepal in 1963. The main exceptions to this global trend have been the least secularized Islamic countries of the Middle East and more generally sub-Saharan Africa. Despite the Quran's tolerance of up to four wives, countries such as Turkey (1926) and Tunisia (1956) have formally outlawed polygamy and others have imposed judicial restrictions on this practice.

In what has been termed the "polygyny belt" from Senegal in the west to Tanzania in the east, 20- 30% of married men tend to be in polygynous unions.28 In the very long run, the trajectory of historical change reaches from habitual resource polygyny at low levels of overall development to formal monogamy coupled with various forms of concubinage in early agrarian states and on to SIUM in parts of the first-millennium BCE Mediterranean that co-existed with de facto polygyny with slave women, a practice that subsequently declined together with the institution of chattel slavery and evolved into churchbacked monogamy accompanied by more casual relations with servants or other subordinates that were gradually curtailed by modernization. At this latest stage, European dominance underwrote the spread of this principle across much of the world.

The true historical significance of Greco-Roman SIUM may well lie in its impact on the Christian tradition. The current (Catholic but generally representative) position that polygamy "is contrary to the equal personal dignity of men and women who in matrimony give themselves with a love that is total and therefore unique and exclusive" betrays modern sensibilities and does not appear to be directly derived from earliest Christian doctrine.71 In the early fifth century CE Augustine called monogamy a "Roman custom."

Was anti polygyny really about the women ?

Female choice The overall incidence of polygyny may be explained as a function of female mate choice. Economists have long argued that polgyny is beneficial to most women if there is substantial inequality among men in terms of resources or other properties that are relevant to reproductive success.29 Simply put, a woman may be better off sharing a resource-rich husband with other women than to monopolize access to a resource-poor husband. In this context, moreover, polygyny not only benefits multiply married women but also monogamously married women in the same population by allowing them to avoid unions with the least desirable males.

The biggest misconception there is about polygamy is that many women don't want it.
Yet, 25 percent of users of Muslim matchmaking site secondwife.com are reportedly women, while interdenominational site polygamy.com reports that 35 percent of its users are of the fairer sex.
"Every single one" of the women users "made the active choice to sign up, choosing this lifestyle and relationship type themselves," commented Azad Chaiwala, founder of both these sites.
Mseleku also pointed out how polygamy works well if it's a choice for both men and women. "Once it becomes a choice, sharing or competition becomes a non-issue."

Human trafficking and other underage crimes already exist and are not exclusive to polygyny. My point is that when teachers have sex with students, the particular teachers are taken care off, and the many thousands of other teachers across the U.S.A. are not banned from work..lets use this same tried and true fair logic when dealing with polygyny. Polygyny around the world existed before so where is the great evil ? What's evil is That being said OLD STATS SHOW a leading cause of family breakups is infidelity (59.6%) due to Roman catholic / American laws not to mention many other problems.

FYI, present day underage marriage was legal in America at some point when polygyny was not legal. Was anti polygyny really about the Females?
"The minimum marriage age was 12 years for females and 14 years for males under English civil law that applied until 1753. By default, these provisions became the minimum marriage ages in colonial America. English common law inherited from the British remained in force in America unless and until a specific state enacted a law to replace it. In the United States, as in most developed countries, age restrictions have been revised upward so that they were, as at August, 2010, between 15 and 21 years"

Utah has made beginning baby steps with decriminalization of polygyny.

Now just think do anti polygyny views come from religious teaching in society and church meetings, a large part do.

All you have is a bunch of white Europeans who grew up in a Catholic taught anti polygyny view..because everyone else aside from the western world is not against it. Middle Eastern..Native Americans..Africans all pro polygyny until the European colonizations efforts spreading Catholic anti polygyny teaching...just look at history.

Now is American still only white European ? No, many other cultures now. So isn't it time in 2021 to say it's not European culture/views/teaching only ??

Anti Polygyny laws...picking on culturally different people. Picking on the Mormons for having a pro polygyny style is the same as picking on other cultures for the same things..Anti Middle East..Anti African..Anti Native Americans and much more..even India and Asia has polygyny. States and cities are banning hair discrimination. Here’s how that’s affecting schools.

“They’re particularly meaningful because black women and girls are being penalized for the way that hair literally grows out of our heads,” said Jade Magnus Ogunnaike, a campaign director at Color Of Change, a nonprofit civil rights group that advocates for these laws.
“If you’re suspended from school because of the way that you wear your hair, how are you supposed to have faith or confidence in your school, and that the staff and the institution cares about you?”
In just the last year, California, New York and New Jersey have passed laws banning discrimination based on hair styles or textures that are commonly associated with a person’s race or nationality.

Furture generations will look at anti polygyny laws as unjust also...its only a matter of time.

God's way in the bible (not anti polygyny Roman catholic doctrine forced over Europe, and continued in American), which is polygyny allowed and monogamy not forced seems the smarter choice. I suggest you legalize polygyny now or go down in history as part of the problem and in the end face GOD concerning this.

While pro polygyny laws would not stop the rights of those who abide by Monogamy views such as the Roman Catholic organization. Forced anti polygyny laws stop the rights of others. Which is biased and discriminating against people outside the Roman Catholic Organization.

Subject: Proposed Bill

Hello, I have attached a pdf for a proposed bill, please review and respond. Thanks.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

SUMMERY

Missouri state congress: My name is Brian Eisenbeis. I am located in Saint Louis. I am proposing a bill for the Missouri House of Representatives to seriously consider. I will be sending a copy of this bill to every member of the Missouri state congress for review.

The purpose of the bill is secure and safeguard basic humanitarian & biological rights for every citizen of the state of Missouri. Time is extremely crucial for this bill. This bill will also counter act the current presidential administrations mandate for all employers with 100 or more employees to be vaccinated. This will protect workers wishing not to be vaccinated. In most cases they must be vaccinated or suffer losing there job. This is unacceptable in America. Workers should not be put under a sense of coercion and risk losing there livelihoods if they do not comply. To summarize the concept of the bill in the most basic way is this: Any entity must provide there workers or members an alternative non-biological option if the member or worker so desires with out repercussion.

The importance of this bill. As America enters the early to mid 21st century it is important that we adapt laws protecting human rights in relation to advanced technology, especially technology relating to bio-technology. The concept of smart factories and smart business' will emerge. Smart factories and smart business' will incorporate the latest biological, physical, and digital interfacing into one to produce maximum efficiency and the ability to stay competitive. A citizens personal medical history and medical decisions must be protected. A citizens must have a right to sovereign choice of the individual bodies. This should not be the decision of any entity other then the individual. Technologies on the rise are very much real like: UBIs (Universal brain interfaces), HMIs (Human machine interfaces), artificial intelligence, biological nanobots, Gene therapy vaccines, facial recognition, cell phone bio matrix tracking, fingerprint and eye gaze cloak-ins, etc. This bill will put a barrier between the worker and any entity that can deploy these new technologies on there workers. This bill just requires any entity to give an additional non biological option to any worker wishing to op out of any new biological measure being instituted without losing there job.

Note: I believe if we allow mandatory vaccines to continue it will set a dangerous precedent in American history.

This letter and bill is designed to be the first draft of many. I encourage anyone to actively discuss and freely edit this bill as you see fit and communicate with me via Email: Century21news@yahoo.com and you may request my personal phone number as well. I welcome your input in this bill. Be seriously advised: If this bill is not considered or accepted I will start a ballot initiative and I will win it.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Bio-Rights Bill

This bill is designed to ensure biological human rights for all men and women.

Under this bill effective immediately upon the State Governors signature into law, will deny any entity, institution, government body, company, or any type of group membership the ability to dictate there members or employees to do anything with there biological bodies with out there consent. This is to include any new biological technologies and biological methodologies.

Such said entities shall provide an additional op out option for new biological measures or protocols.

This bill will not prohibit such said entities from developing new biological technologies and methods for there given bodies.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This bill will enforce such entities to provide there members by law an additional non-biological option for any member not wishing to consent to new biological technologies.

Examples of biological measures would be: Vaccines, finger-print clock in, eye scan clock in, company cell phone bio metric tracking, UBI Universal brain interfaces, etc.

Subject: Proposed State Amendment

Hello Administrators and staff of the Committee of Elementary and Secondary Education;

As a mother of 3 in a rural school district, I want to personally encourage you to PLEASE continue the fight against the 'Social Justice' and 'Critical Race Theory' curriculums that actually TEACH racism to our kids, as well as self-loathing and a skewed version of history.

After approaching our local school district to find out if there has been any proposed 'SJW' or 'CRT' curriculum within our school district, I received a follow-up call today. After my conversation with him a couple of weeks ago, this administrator was letting me know that the changes going on in Rockwood and Webster Groves districts are not affecting Union. Digging in, I found that 'Social Justice' and 'Critical Race Theory' are invading those districts.

Upon further investigation I learned (from the Post-Dispatch, no less) that "such lessons would be illegal under a bill that won preliminary approval in the Missouri House this week. The legislation would ban social studies curriculum that "identifies people, entities, or institutions as inherently, immutably, or systemically sexist, racist, biased, privileged, or oppressed."

Considering the safety of our Second Amendment rights and the (newer) restrictions on abortion, I am adding this to the reasons I am immensely proud to be a life-long Missourian, and I tell everyone I can.

With a grateful heart,

Michelle Sample

Subject: Protecting our Teachers and Communities

Dear Leaders,

I teach the teachers and specialize in education research for democratic citizenship and civic engagement. Many teachers and former students throughout Missouri have come to me, terrified by their districts' unsafe reopening plans.

Most troubling, I have reports of district and school administrators silencing the civic voices of educators who are concerned about the health of their families and communities. We cannot say that we value teaching for citizenship while also allowing districts to coerce teachers into civic silence when they engage in public democratic discourse.

Finally, I am the wife of a 15-year veteran public school teacher and the mother of twin daughters. My husband has comorbidities affecting his heart and lungs. His doctor tells him that he cannot teach face-to-face with transmission rates as high as our community's. Although his school offers an online learning option, they do not offer an online teaching option. He must now choose to risk his life by returning to a brick and mortar school building or walk away from his and our daughters' medical insurance during a pandemic.

Losing my husband's income will likely cost us our family home. Teachers in his position also risk losing their teaching licenses if they break a contract that they signed in spring. Additionally, districts can charge teachers thousands of dollars to break their contracts.

Please protect the civic rights of our educators. Please help Missouri teachers like my husband. Please support a safer, online return to school until our state is more successful at reducing the spread of Covid-19 in our communities.

Sincerely,
Dr. Jennice McCafferty-Wright

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE JUNE 3, 2021

PSC SETS INTERVENTION DEADLINE IN CONFLUENCE RIVERS MERGER CASE

JEFFERSON CITY—Confluence Rivers Utility Operating Company, Inc. (Confluence Rivers); Hillcrest Utility Operating Company, Inc. (Hillcrest); Elm Hills Utility Operating Company, Inc. (Elm Hills); Osage Utility Operating Company, Inc. (Osage); Raccoon Creek Utility Operating Company, Inc. (Raccoon Creek); and Indian Hills Utility Operating Company, Inc. (Indian Hills) have filed a joint application with the Missouri Public Service Commission asking the Commission to approve the merger of Confluence Rivers, Hillcrest, Elm Hills, Osage, Raccoon Creek and Indian Hills. According to the application, Confluence Rivers would be the surviving entity.

The application states customers will see no change in the person or entities providing day-to-day services as a result of the merger. Current water and sewer rates will stay the same until such time as they are modified according to law.

Applications to intervene and participate in this case must be filed no later than July 2, 2021, with the Secretary of the Missouri Public Service Commission, P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102, or by using the Commission's Electronic Filing and Information System (EFIS) at www.psc.mo.gov .

Individual citizens wishing to comment should contact either the Office of the Public Counsel (Governor Office Building, 200 Madison Street, Suite 650, P.O. Box 2230, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102-2230, telephone (866) 922-2959, email opcservice@opc.mo.gov) or the Public Service Commission Staff (P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102, telephone 1-800-392-4211, email pscinfo@psc.mo.gov). The Office of the Public Counsel is a separate state agency that represents the general public in matters before the Commission.

Confluence Rivers serves approximately 2,500 water customers and 2,395 sewer customers in Audrain, Boone, Christian, Cole, Franklin, Greene, Jefferson, Lincoln, Montgomery, Perry, Phelps, Polk, St. Francois, St. Louis and Taney counties. Hillcrest serves approximately 247 water customers and 252 sewer customers in Cape Girardeau County. Elm Hills serves approximately 137 water customers and 680 sewer customers in Pettis, Johnson, Ray, Clay and Clinton counties. Osage serves approximately 372 water customers and 393 sewer customers in Camden County. Raccoon Creek serves approximately 529 sewer customers in Johnson and Pettis counties. Indian Hills provides service to approximately 669 water customers in Crawford County.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE JUNE 14, 2021

MEDIA REMINDER
PSC LOCAL PUBLIC HEARINGS IN SPIRE RATE CASE START ON JUNE 21

JEFFERSON CITY—The Missouri Public Service Commission will hold six local public hearings to receive customer comment in a natural gas rate case filed by Spire Missouri, Inc. (Spire). These local public hearings will be conducted virtually by WebEx and telephone conference. They will also be streamed live on the Commission's website (psc.mo.gov).

To facilitate an orderly presentation that can be preserved for the record, members of the public who wish to participate in the question and answer session or make a comment to the Commission, need to register by sending their first and last name, phone number, email address and the hearing that they wish to attend to pscinfo@psc.mo.gov or by calling 1-800-392-4211 by 5 pm the day before the hearing.

To attend the public hearing by telephone, at the time of the hearing, call toll-free 1-855-718-6621, listen to the prompt and enter the meeting number (access code) set out below, followed by # (pound/hashtag symbol). If prompted for a password, enter 0108.

To participate by video/Internet, visit the website www.webex.com . You can also download the Cisco WebEx meetings application on your mobile device, laptop, desktop or tablet prior to the hearing and join the meeting at the hearing time by entering the corresponding access code and password listed below.

The Commission has scheduled six virtual local public hearings. Any person may comment at any of the hearings, but are encouraged to attend the hearing corresponding to the location nearest their service area for the most relevant information. Comments at the hearing will be limited to five minutes per person.

A PSC Staff conducted question and answer session will be held at the beginning of each local public hearing. The formal local public hearing will begin at the conclusion of the question and answer session. The local public hearing schedule appears below.

At the time of the hearing, call toll-free 1-855-718-6621, listen to the prompt and enter the meeting number (access code), followed by # (pound/hashtag symbol). If prompted for a password, enter 0108.

Individuals wishing to mail comments should send them to the Missouri Public Service Commission, P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102. They can also be sent electronically using the Commission's electronic filing system at https://psc.mo.gov/General/Submit_Comments . When submitting comments, please refer to File No. GR-2021-0108.

On December 11, 2020, Spire filed a natural gas rate case with the Missouri Public Service Commission seeking a net increase in its base distribution rates of approximately $65 million. According to Spire, the effect of the proposed rates on the Company's residential customers would be to raise the bill of a typical heating customer (average natural gas usage of 63 therms a month) by an average of approximately $3.28 per month. Spire also seeks, to the extent possible, to consolidate the rate structures of its two service areas known as Spire East and Spire West.

Spire provides natural gas service to approximately 1.17 million natural gas customers in the City of St. Louis as well as the Missouri counties of Andrew, Barry, Barton, Bates, Buchanan, Butler, Carroll, Cass, Cedar, Christian, Clay, Clinton, Cooper, Crawford, Dade, DeKalb, Franklin, Greene, Henry, Howard, Iron, Jackson, Jasper, Jefferson, Johnson, Lafayette, Lawrence, Madison, McDonald, Moniteau, Newton, Pettis, Platte, Ray, Saline, Stone, St. Charles, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, St. Louis, Vernon and Warren.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE APRIL 2, 2021

PSC Sets Intervention Deadline In Ameren Missouri Electric Fuel And Purchased Power Adjustment Charge Cases

JEFFERSON CITY---Union Electric Company d/b/a Ameren Missouri has filed a request with the Missouri Public Service Commission to adjust the fuel and purchased power adjustment charge (FAC) on the bills of its electric customers.

Ameren Missouri made two filings. In its first filing (Case No. ER-2021-0328), Ameren Missouri proposes to adjust the FAC to reflect changes in its fuel and purchased power costs, net off-system sales revenues and associated transportation experienced during the four month period of October 2020 through January 2021. The second case is Ameren Missouri's true-up filing (Case No. EO-2021-0329).

As a result of these two filings, the FAC for a residential customer using 1,023 kWh (kilowatt-hours) of electricity a month would increase from approximately $0.27 a month to $3.15 a month. The proposed change would take effect on June 1, 2021.

Applications to intervene and participate in these cases must be filed no later than April 23, 2021, with the Secretary of the Missouri Public Service Commission, P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102, or by using the Commission's Electronic Filing and Information System (EFIS) at www.psc.mo.gov .

Individual citizens wishing to comment should contact either the Office of the Public Counsel (Governor Office Building, 200 Madison Street, Suite 650, P.O. Box 2230, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102-2230, telephone 1-866-922-2959, e-mail opcservice@opc.mo.gov) or the Public Service Commission Staff (P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102, telephone 1-800-392-4211, e-mail pscinfo@psc.mo.gov). The Office of the Public Counsel is a separate state agency that represents the general public in matters before the Commission.

Ameren Missouri serves approximately 1.28 million electric customers in Missouri.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE APRIL 5, 2021

PSC SETS INTERVENTION DEADLINE IN AMEREN MISSOURI ELECTRIC RATE CASE

JEFFERSON CITY---The Missouri Public Service Commission has established the deadline for those wishing to intervene and participate in an electric rate case filed by Union Electric Company d/b/a Ameren Missouri.

Applications to intervene and participate in this case must be filed no later than April 30, 2021, with the Secretary of the Missouri Public Service Commission, P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102, or by using the Commission's Electronic Filing and Information System (EFIS) at www.psc.mo.gov .

Individual citizens wishing to comment should contact either the Office of the Public Counsel (Governor Office Building, 200 Madison Street, Suite 650, P.O. Box 2230, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102-2230, telephone (866) 922-2959, email opcservice@opc.mo.gov) or the Public Service Commission Staff (P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102, telephone 1-800-392-4211, email pscinfo@psc.mo.gov). The Office of the Public Counsel is a separate state agency that represents the general public in matters before the Commission.

On March 31, 2021, Ameren Missouri filed an electric rate case with the Missouri Public Service Commission seeking to increase its electric base rate annual revenues by approximately $299 million. According to Ameren Missouri, the adjustment in base rates would mean electric rates for an average residential electric customer (based on approximately 1,029 kilowatt-hours of usage per month) would increase by approximately $12 a month.

Ameren Missouri serves approximately 1.28 million electric customers in Missouri.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE MAY 6, 2021

PSC SETS LOCAL PUBLIC HEARING SCHEDULE IN SPIRE MISSOURI NATURAL GAS RATE CASE

JEFFERSON CITY—The Missouri Public Service Commission will hold six virtual local public hearings in June to receive customer comment in a natural gas rate case filed by Spire Missouri, Inc. (Spire). Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, these local public hearings will be conducted virtually by WebEx and telephone conference. They will be streamed live on the Commission's website (psc.mo.gov).

To facilitate an orderly presentation that can be preserved for the record, members of the public who wish to participate in the question and answer session or make a comment to the Commission, need to register by sending their first and last name, phone number, email address and the hearing that they wish to attend to pscinfo@psc.mo.gov or by calling 1-800-392-4211 by 5 pm the day before the hearing.

To attend the public hearing by telephone, at the time of the hearing, call toll-free 1-855-718-6621, listen to the prompt and enter the meeting number (access code) set out below, followed by # (pound/hashtag symbol). If prompted for a password, enter 0108.

To participate by video/Internet, visit the website www.webex.com . You can also download the Cisco WebEx meetings application on your mobile device, laptop, desktop or tablet prior to the hearing and join the meeting at the hearing time by entering the corresponding access code and password listed below.

The Commission has scheduled six virtual local public hearings. Any person may comment at any of the hearings, but are encouraged to attend the hearing corresponding to the location nearest their service area for the most relevant information. Comments at the hearing will be limited to five minutes per person.

A PSC Staff conducted question and answer session will be held at the beginning of each local public hearing. The formal local public hearing will begin at the conclusion of the question and answer session. The local public hearing schedule appears below.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002638

Any person needing special accommodations to participate in the local public hearings as addressed by the Americans with Disabilities Act should contact the Public Service Commission at least 10 days prior to the hearing at one of the following numbers: PSC Consumer Services Hotline 1-800-392-4211 or TDD Hotline 1-800-829-7541.

Individuals wishing to mail comments should send them to the Missouri Public Service Commission, P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102. They can also be sent electronically using the Commission's electronic filing system at https://psc.mo.gov/General/Submit_Comments . When submitting comments, please refer to File No. GR-2021-0108.

On December 11, 2020, Spire filed a natural gas rate case with the Missouri Public Service Commission seeking a net increase in its base distribution rates of approximately $65 million. According to Spire, the effect of the proposed rates on the Company's residential customers would be to raise the bill of a typical heating customer (average natural gas usage of 63 therms a month) by an average of approximately $3.28 per month.

Spire provides natural gas service to approximately 1.17 million natural gas customers in the City of St. Louis as well as the Missouri counties of Andrew, Barry, Barton, Bates, Buchanan, Butler, Carroll, Cass, Cedar, Christian, Clay, Clinton, Cooper, Crawford, Dade, DeKalb, Franklin, Greene, Henry, Howard, Iron, Jackson, Jasper, Jefferson, Johnson, Lafayette, Lawrence, Madison, McDonald, Moniteau, Newton, Pettis, Platte, Ray, Saline, Stone, St. Charles, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, St. Louis, Vernon and Warren.

Subject: Pseudoephedrine and chronic allergies

Hello,
I am writing to you this morning because of Title XII Health and Welfare Chapter 195 effective August 28, 2020.
I would like to tell you a little about me, my name is Brian Wise, and I have taught at Herndon Career Center for the Raytown C-2 School District for 27 years. I have been a lifelong allergy sufferer and take Zyrtec-D twice daily.
This Missouri law only allows a person to purchase seven and two-tenths grams of pseudoephedrine in a 30 day period and now limits the amount you can purchase in any 12 month period to 43.2 grams.
The problem with these new laws is that as a chronic allergy sufferer I use 7.2 grams per month, which means in a twelve month period I require 86.4 grams of pseudoephedrine in the form of Zyrtec-D. Missouri now only allows me to purchase half that amount.
I have a couple of issues with Missouri's limitations on allergy medicines.
First, when you go to purchase and you are "over the limit" a notification comes up from NPLEx (National Precursor Log Exchange). The problem with that is that every time NPLEx gives notification it also alerts law enforcement, as if it isn't embarrassing enough that you cannot buy medicine you need from the pharmacist, now law enforcement may be looking at you.
Next the federal limit for purchasing pseudoephedrine in a 30 day period is 9 grams with no 12 month limit, although 12 months at 9 grams is 108 grams. Kansas follows the federal limits so today I'm going to go to Kansas to purchase the allergy medicine I need daily. Now I will have to go to Kansas to buy my medicine every 12 days, because according to the new Missouri law I will not be able to purchase my allergy medicine for 6 months. So it may be easier to just move to Kansas instead of continuing to support Raytown and the state of Missouri.
What happens to the thousands of allergy sufferers mid state that cannot go to another state to buy their medicine?
I am absolutely appalled that I cannot purchase the medicine I need at my Walgreens here in Raytown. And that now law enforcement has received at least 6 notifications in the last three weeks because I did not know that the law had changed until I went to the NPLEx website to see what the problem was with purchasing my medicine.
I am asking that you and all your fellow Representatives, and the Governor please reconsider the limitations that are stricter than federal guidelines.
Sincerely,

Brian Wise - Instructor Welding & Metal Fabrication

MISSOURI WORKS
Expanding Business and Creating Jobs

The Missouri Works Program was created to facilitate the creation and retention of high quality jobs by targeted business projects. It went into effect on August 28, 2013. The Program includes nine categories: Zone, Rural, Statewide, Mega 120, Mega 140, Retention Works, Deal Closing Fund, Retention Works-Auto Manufacturing, and Qualified Military Projects. The benefits may include the retaining of state withholding taxes and/or state tax credits. There are both "statutory" and "discretionary" components to the program (see: Missouri Works Summary).

Missouri Works is a "performance-based" incentive, such that the benefits are not provided until the actual new or retained payroll is documented at the end of each year of the company's benefit period. In addition, each company that participates in the program must execute an agreement with Missouri Department of Economic Development (DED) to ensure compliance, record keeping, and minimum job creation/retention, and in certain instances, minimum new capital investment.

Pursuant to section 620.2020.15. RSMo, DED is required to report on the following each quarter to the General Assembly:

1. A list of all approved and disapproved applicants for each tax credit (see: Missouri Works Report for Legislators Total Authorized);

2. A list of the aggregate amount of new or retained jobs that are directly attributable to the tax credits authorized (see: Missouri Works Report for Legislators Total Authorized);

3. A statement of the aggregate amount of new capital investment directly attributable to the tax credits authorized (see: Missouri Works Report for Legislators Total Authorized);

4. Documentation of the estimated net state fiscal benefit for each authorized project and, to the extent available, the actual benefit realized upon completion of such project or activity. The Net General Revenue Benefit Ratio is reported as the ratio for the project as a whole, with all incentives included (see: Missouri Works Report for Legislators Total Authorized and Missouri Works Report for Legislators Total Closed); and

5. The Department's response time for each request for a proposed benefit award under this program (see: Proposal Assignment Tracking).

MISSOURI WORKS

Expanding Business and Creating Jobs

Fiscal Year 2021

Report to the General Assembly

July 1, 2020 - March 31, 2021

Missouri Department of Economic Development

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002654

The Missouri Works Program was created to facilitate the creation and retention of high quality jobs by targeted business projects. It went into effect on August 28, 2013. The Program includes nine categories: Zone, Rural, Statewide, Mega 120, Mega 140, Retention Works, Deal Closing Fund, Retention Works-Auto Manufacturing, and Qualified Military Projects. The benefits may include the retaining of state withholding taxes and/or state tax credits. There are both "statutory" and "discretionary" components to the program (see: Missouri Works Summary).

Missouri Works is a "performance-based" incentive, such that the benefits are not provided until the actual new or retained payroll is documented at the end of each year of the company's benefit period. In addition, each company that participates in the program must execute an agreement with the Missouri Department of Economic Development (DED) to ensure compliance, record keeping, and minimum job creation/retention, and in certain instances, minimum new capital investment.

Pursuant to section 620.2020.15. RSMo, DED is required to report on the following each quarter to the General Assembly:

1. A list of all approved and disapproved applicants for each tax credit (see: Missouri Works Report for Legislators *Total Authorized);

2. A list of the aggregate amount of new or retained jobs that are directly attributable to the tax credits authorized (see: Missouri Works Report for Legislators *Total Authorized);

3. A statement of the aggregate amount of new capital investment directly attributable to the tax credits authorized (see: Missouri Works Report for Legislators *Total Authorized);

4. Documentation of the estimated net state fiscal benefit for each authorized project and, to the extent available, the actual benefit realized upon completion of such project or activity. The Net General Revenue Benefit Ratio is reported as the ratio for the project as a whole, with all incentives included (see: Missouri Works Report for Legislators *Total Authorized and Missouri Works Report for Legislators Total Closed); and

5. The Department's response time for each request for a proposed benefit award under this program (see: Proposal Assignment Tracking).

Subject: Railroads the supply chain problem?

Tracing just one leg of the Springfield BNSF run back to Kansas --Dade--Barton --- a dozen or so trains a day shaved in 2019 all the back into Kansas. Where do the goods sit while these greedy f--- railroads make up the humongous trains to save a labor buck?

Subject: Re: 2nd or 3rd Congressional District?

This is about Gerrymandering the Saint Louis County Line. For the Zip Code 63069-2942. It should be Franklin County.

Other zip codes of concern are 63025-3745, 63025-3811, 63011-1705, and 63304-7032.

Regarding the Terrorist Attacks Eight Years ago in Eureka and Wildwood.

So it concerns State Representative Districts 109 and 119 of Franklin County.
111 of Jefferson County.
102 of Saint Charles County.
110, 101, and 098 of Saint Louis County.

Both current and previous administrations.

And State Senate Districts of 15 and 26.

and 430 Shadowridge Court Wildwood, Missouri 63011-1705 in August/September 2011

Before continuing, I would like to elaborate on the scope and realm of Political Science and the Law of Record Keeping when it comes down to the Government's access to Citizens' (Private or Not) Addresses, and that it should solely come down to only being that 4 digit zip code extension.

My mom, Tammy, helped collect Census information pre-9/11 in 2000

What I mean by when she's “Running For President”

I've briefly included a number of State District Representatives and Senators, and Congressional District Representatives and Senators regarding Gerrymandering the County Line (of St. Louis)

Zip Codes of concern are 63069-2942, 63025-3745, 63025-3811, 63011-1705, and 63304-7032

State Representative Districts of:
109 and 119 of Franklin County
111 of Jefferson County
102 of Saint Charles County
110, 101, and 098 of Saint Louis County

State Senate Districts 15 and 26

Congressional Representative Districts 2 and 3

Both Previous and Current Administrations

I have also been trying to contact the:

Past 3 State Attorney Generals
Past 2 Governors, Secretaries of State

Bleaching and Hammering could technically mean the same thing as “Running For President”

How it could mean One of Three Things
-A Guitaring Technique
-What happens in the privacy of the bedroom
-Pulling the hammer, and pouring the bleach

Who even knows for sure about what really happened in Gerald, Missouri?
I thought people were just talking about that “Elephant and Piggie” Book Series...

Jim,

The United States is not a democracy. We are a constitutional republic.

The voters elect their representatives, and the representatives vote for the values that align with their district.

My district, like nearly all Republican-held house districts in Missouri, overwhelmingly opposed Medicaid expansion.

I care much more about the will of my district than the will of liberal St. Louis and Kansas City.

So no, I will not support putting able-bodied working-age adults on the government dole. I will do everything in my power to oppose funding medicaid expansion, which is what my voters elected me to do.

Best,
Michael Davis

In a democracy that should represent clearly the will of the majority of Missourians who voted on this amendment. Now the Missouri House Budget Committee has taken steps to undermine the vote of the people of Missouri by blocking funds for the enactment of this initiative. If you are on the Budget Committee you have wronged the people of Missouri with this action. If you are not on this committee but will be voting on this issue later you have a chance to honor the will of the people of Missouri in this matter. It is important that you honor Missourians' wishes to extend medical help to the most vulnerable citizens of our state by fully funding what we have voted into law. If you are truly interested in the wellbeing of ALL of your constituents, then you must SHOW US.

You make a valid point. I've been on the phone with board members from all of the gas provider franchisees in the state. To them keeping comprehensive records about each customer is what keeps their organization profitable. In fact, rewards programs is the number one goal of each organization. If they screw up and lose the data then their customers are going somewhere else. For what it's worth.

Wouldn't it be funny if reward programs magically lost purchase data when it comes time to file forms for the tax refund.

Casey's, Bulleye, etc. (All the places that have "rewards") can make this process less complicated. At the end of the year one can print out their gas purchases on one sheet of paper from their rewards program. Rebate sheets will still need to be completed but this would be much easier than trying to manually input each sale individually.

Dear colleagues,

I created the attached spreadsheet to help me keep track of my fuel purchases so I can get my full rebate next year. Some of my constituents were interested in it, so I have distributed it to them as well. Thought you might also find it useful. Feel free to use it for yourself, send it to your constituents, or chuck it in the recycle bin if you're not interested.

Best wishes to you and your family,

Relating to Education

Section(s)	VERSION WHEN ADDED	Bill/Sponser	Status/Vote	Brief Description
160.263	HCS.04	HB 387 Bailey	Senate Hearing	This bill defines "restraint" and "seclusion" and requires school districts, charter schools, or publicly contracted private providers to include in policy a prohibition on the use of restraint and seclusion, including "prone restraint" as defined by the bill, for any purpose other than situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others. Any incident requiring restraint or seclusion shall be monitored by school personnel with written observation The bill requires that before July 1, 2022 each school district, and charter school, or publicly contracted private providers policy shall include: (1) When to remove a child from restraint, seclusion, or isolation; (2) Requirement for annual mandatory training; (3) Reporting requirements for any occurrence of restraint, seclusion or isolation as outlined in the bill, including the reporting requirements for parental notification and providing a copy of each report to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE); (4) Notification requirement for each occurrence of a restraint, seclusion, or isolation incident to parents or guardians within one hour after the end of school on the day the incident occurs. (5) Protections for individuals that report or provide information about violations of policy under this section.
160.560	SA 4	SB 34 Arthur HB 624 Richey	Perfected Public Hearing Senate Education committee	This bill establishes the Show Me Success Diploma Program as an alternative pathway to graduation for high school students. Students may earn the show me success diploma beginning at the end of a student's tenth grade year. By July 1, 2022, DESE shall develop detailed requirements for students to become eligible for the show me success diploma. Students who earn a show me success diploma may elect to remain in high school. Alternatively, a student having earned the diploma may instead enroll in a qualifying postsecondary educational institution. For each student enrolled in such an institution, an amount equal to ninety percent of the pupil's proportionate share of the state, local, and federal aid that the district or charter school receives for such pupil, shall be deposited into an account that lists the pupil as the beneficiary. Provisions will expire 2028

I have been waiting since 7 months for my H4 and H4EAD approvals from Texas service center. With the help of a congresswoman, my case got expedited in October but delay of visa continued as the Texas service center is very backlogged with their cases. Meanwhile, during this period I was renewing my driver's license temporarily. I got it for every 2 months and the last time it was just for 20 days. When I recently visited the DMV office for another renewal, they said according to DMV rules they can renew temporarily only for 3 times and said I should wait until my visa gets approved and retake my driver's test again, which doesn't make any sense. It puts me in a very bad situation as I am the mother of two young girls who are always active with the activities and I couldn't take them anywhere by myself or at least pick up the school homework from their school. I can't even drive if any medical emergency comes.

I understand that the visa delays are due to covid situation but not renewing my driver's license doesn't make any sense. Why is the DMV not considering the covid situation?

Please understand my situation and help me with the drivers license renewal until my visa gets approved.
