Hi Shamed, I did as you suggested and contacted the MDHC they said they can't help me. It seems like every politician I talk to they want to kick the can down the street. I contacted both presidents Trump and Biden. They said they would get back to me. I contacted the governor. He said to contact the states attorney general. That response was their office doesn't sue upon individuals. I contacted Hawley he said he would get back to me , again no return call. I contacted Ann Wagner she had someone call me and apologize and said they weren't aware anyone was having a problem anymore. I contacted the Mayor of St. Louis she said it wasn't her it was a judge. I contacted my alderwoman she said I was rude. I can't believe everyone gets help except landlords. Whats the prejudice. Please help!

Hi Barbara, I thank you for getting back to me. The website you refereed me to won't help me. These people work, they just refuse to pay me. I have lost a lot of money from people not paying rent, destroying my property and the fact I can't evict I can't rent. I am looking for help. I and other landlords have been taken advantage of by federal, state and local governments. Your asking me to fill out a form and see if the tenant will fill out a form to get me paid. That's not working. I need a form to fill out with the information on who and how much I have not been paid. I only ask what prejudice does the government have toward landlords. Why does the government refuse to help landlords. There are 500,000 federal employees that get a check from the VA and social security every week like they earned it and don't have to do work at a office or at home. Any private business would of had to lay them all off. If government can pay 500,000 people for not working. The least they can do is pay landlords for being forced to house people. As usual government does it wrong. I get excited when I lose $50,000.00 Please help me.

Subject: Landlord reimbursement

Hi Shamed, I have a large problem, and no one wants to help!!! I have written every politician possible and no one will help me. I have rental property in St. Louis City and I live in Fenton. When someone in the city finds out I don't vote in the city they explain they can't help me. My problem is in how I and all landlords have been taken advantage of. I have lost more than $50,000.00 With the government forcing me to house people for free. I have checked into it and have found nowhere where I can be forced to house people for free. I expect to be reimbursed. I have had people there for up to a year. I have three tenants still in place I will hope I can get out soon. The units I have recovered I refuse to rent out if I am unable to evict. More loss of income. I can't rent if I can't evict.The government has section eight for those who can not afford to pay their rent, providing a win win for landlord and tenant. I don't understand why government could not come up with something similar. As usual government has a good intention and a poor way of making something happen. All kinds of money is just sitting there not getting in to the hands of the landlord. The system was set up that a tenant needed to fill out a form to get their landlord paid. As I have witnessed it did not go that way. The tenant gave me the finger as they drove to work telling me THE MAN SAID YOU CAN'T EVICT ME I'M NOT FILLING OUT NO FORM. The system should have been where the landlord sent a invoice in with the names addresses and social security numbers of the tenants. Government would let me know who was working and allow me to evict. For those who were not working government could have sent me a check! Why am I being taken advantage of and how do I get reimbursed. I can forward invoices and amounts for lost income because I can't rent.

PLEASE HELP

Colleagues –

Join us as we peel back the layers of where we really stand on social, economic, racial and human justice. Are we innocent bystanders waiting for someone else to take a stand for what should be … or are we the catalysts for the change we want to see? If there were no limitations, what would your contribution to the Three Cs be? Alan Beane, Equity Consultant and CEO of GeoGrade Constructors, leads this revealing introspective. We will BE THE DIFFERENCE.

Dear Chairman Eggleston and members of the Committee,

I would also encourage you to watch the news story from Kansas City at the link below. If you do, you will find that 72% of the 103 fatal crashes (a large increase over past years) that occurred in Kansas City last year were impairment related. Typically, KCPD utilizes more sobriety checkpoints than any other agency in Missouri to fight impaired driving. They had more DWI arrests last year, even during a pandemic, than any previous year.

Missouri's fatal crashes also increased from 881 in 2019 to 990 in 2020. A 12% increase.

Eliminating checkpoints will take a valuable tool away from them and all law enforcement in Missouri to fight impaired driving.

Thanks for your service and considering all aspects of this issue.

Dear Chairman Eggleston and House Rules-Administrative Oversight Committee Members,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) urges you to oppose HJR 11, which would permanently take away the option for law enforcement to utilize sobriety checkpoints to stop drunk and drugged driving.

According to preliminary data from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration for the first nine months of 2020, traffic fatalities increased by 5 percent even though the number of vehicle miles traveled decreased by 15 percent. (NHTSA, 2020) This increase in carnage on our roadways is one the biggest hikes in a generation. Now is not the time to decrease traffic safety enforcement by banning a tool that is proven to stop drugged and drunk driving.

HJR 11 bans sobriety checkpoints, which are protected by the Constitution and used by law enforcement in 37 states. Since 2017, the Missouri General Assembly has prohibited the use of federal traffic safety dollars for sobriety checkpoints. HJR 11 goes one step further by banning checkpoints altogether.

Sobriety checkpoints are a valuable tool for law enforcement. Checkpoints not only catch drunk and drugged drivers, but also deter impaired driving. Sobriety checkpoints can help law enforcement find and charge those endangering public safety.

As a result, people who have been or plan to drink may choose not to drive because the enhanced enforcement increases their fear of arrest. In a comprehensive study, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) found that well-publicized sobriety checkpoints decrease alcohol-related crashes and fatalities by more than 20 percent. The CDC looked at a variety of cities, counties and states in both urban and rural areas and found conclusively that sobriety checkpoints work in reducing alcohol-related fatalities.

Sobriety checkpoints do not inconvenience drivers and only require the amount of time it takes at a stop light for law-abiding people. More importantly, checkpoints save lives.

MADD urges you to oppose HJR 11 and allow law enforcement to conduct sobriety checkpoints. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact MADD Director of Field of Operations Meghan Carter at Meghan.Carter@madd.org or 314-426-1595. Enclosed is more information on sobriety checkpoints. Thank you in advance for your consideration of this request.

Sincerely,

Alex Otte
MADD National President

Subject: MO Commission on Human Rights Commission Meeting

Dear Colleagues:

I would like to invite you to watch the quarterly meeting of the MHRC this Thursday, Sept. 23, 2021, at 1:00 p.m. by the Zoom link below.

For several years, I have been uncovering massive waste of State resources within this agency under the Dept. of Labor. I have been working with our liaison Ben Terrell, who has been keeping Director Anna Hui informed.

I feel it is important for us to do our due diligence to making sure that our State Departments are running efficiently and effectively, and this one is not. They have some very, good Commission members who have been made aware of my concerns and my goal is to help them improve service to the citizens of Missouri.

If you are able to listen in, you do not have to say anything but may be asked to identify yourself. Thank you in advance for anyone who can take the time to listen in.

Subject: Re: Pseudoephedrine and chronic allergies

I fully agree with you. This system is yesterday's system chasing yesterday's problem. Home cooked meth has virtually disappeared from the state and has been replaced by high powered Mexican crank laced with fentanyl or whatever. I will try to help modify the current pseudoephedrine regulations but just be aware, as I am sure you are, once these regulations get in place they become deeply entrenched. The argument will be that the eradication of home labs was a direct result of the restrictions you have encountered and the system to enforce them.

Hello,
I am writing to you this morning because of Title XII Health and Welfare Chapter 195 effective August 28, 2020.
I would like to tell you a little about me, my name is Brian Wise, and I have taught at Herndon Career Center for the Raytown C-2 School District for 27 years. I have been a lifelong allergy sufferer and take Zyrtec-D twice daily.
This Missouri law only allows a person to purchase seven and two-tenths grams of pseudoephedrine in a 30 day period and now limits the amount you can purchase in any 12 month period to 43.2 grams.
The problem with these new laws is that as a chronic allergy sufferer I use 7.2 grams per month, which means in a twelve month period I require 86.4 grams of pseudoephedrine in the form of Zyrtec-D. Missouri now only allows me to purchase half that amount.
I have a couple of issues with Missouri's limitations on allergy medicines.
First, when you go to purchase and you are "over the limit" a notification comes up from NPLEx (National Precursor Log Exchange). The problem with that is that every time NPLEx gives notification it also alerts law enforcement, as if it isn't embarrassing enough that you cannot buy medicine you need from the pharmacist, now law enforcement may be looking at you.
Next the federal limit for purchasing pseudoephedrine in a 30 day period is 9 grams with no 12 month limit, although 12 months at 9 grams is 108 grams. Kansas follows the federal limits so today I'm going to go to Kansas to purchase the allergy medicine I need daily. Now I will have to go to Kansas to buy my medicine every 12 days, because according to the new Missouri law I will not be able to purchase my allergy medicine for 6 months. So it may be easier to just move to Kansas instead of continuing to support Raytown and the state of Missouri.
What happens to the thousands of allergy sufferers mid state that cannot go to another state to buy their medicine?
I am absolutely appalled that I cannot purchase the medicine I need at my Walgreens here in Raytown. And that now law enforcement has received at least 6 notifications in the last three weeks because I did not know that the law had changed until I went to the NPLEx website to see what the problem was with purchasing my medicine.
I am asking that you and all your fellow Representatives, and the Governor please reconsider the limitations that are stricter than federal guidelines.
Sincerely,

Brian Wise - Instructor Welding & Metal Fabrication

RE: PUBLIC RECORDS REQUEST, Reference # R005141-050521

Dear Robert,

Thank you for your request received by the Commission Secretary on 5/5/2021 4:58:13 PM for records regarding:

https://www.modot.org/sites/default/files/documents/communications/newsandinfo/reports/documents/2016accountabilityreportandcitizensguide.pdf

https://www.modot.org/sites/default/files/documents/communications/newsandinfo/reports/documents/2017accountabilityreport.pdf

58 PROJECTS --CARBON COPY OF 2017 SO NUMBERS ARE OFF $13,162,371 FOR THE START OF FISCAL YEAR 2018.

I REQUEST THE CORRECT RAILROAD CROSSING RECORDS FOR 2017 WHICH ARE OBVIOUSLY WRONG BEING A CARBON COPY OF THE 2016 RECORDS.

Program Estimates Compared to Costs of Projects Completed in SFY 2017 RSMo 21.795.25(6)
(6) The reasons for cost increases or decreases exceeding five million dollars or ten percent relative to cost estimates and final completed costs for projects in the state highway and bridge construction program or any other projects relating to other modes of transportation completed in the preceding state fiscal year. Cost increases or decreases shall be determined by comparing the cost estimate at the time the project was placed on the most recent five-year highway and bridge construction plan and the final completed cost by project. The reasons shall include the amounts resulting from inflation, department-wide design changes, changes in project scope, federal mandates, or other factors; the information you seek regarding your request for:

AND INFORMATION ON WHO WRONGFULLY CHANGED THE LAW THAT WOULD BE A GIVEN TO THE TAX-PAYERS WHERE-WHEN-WHY-HOW MUCH WE ARE PAYING THE RAILROAD THIEVES BY RAILROAD CROSSING NUMBER WHICH NO TWO ARE THE SAME.

IREQUEST THE CORRECT RAILROAD CROSSING RECORDS FOR 2017 WHICH ARE OBVIOUSLY WRONG BEING A CARBON COPY OF THE2016 RECORDS

In processing requests for documents that involve little staff research time (less than one hour), research fees are waived but on larger, more complex requests, we charge a $30.00 per hour professional research fee, a $15.00 per hour clerical fee, a $2.00 fee for each CD of data; and $0.10 per 8 ½" x 11" page copy fee. Copy charges will be eliminated by emailing a copy of the documents to you. If the estimated fees exceed the actual time incurred in the search, we will issue a refund of the unused amount. If the actual research fees exceed the estimate, we will issue a request for the additional fees prior to the release of the documents.

Please send a check payable to "Director of Revenue-Credit State Road Fund", with "ORR No. R005141-050521" written in the memo section and mail to:

Financial Services Division-Accounts Receivable

Subject: Request to Governor Parson

Good afternoon Representatives,

Attached please find a letter to Governor Parson to immediately address the teaching of curriculum based on the affirmation that one human race or sex is inherently superior to another; that an individual by virtue of their race or sex is inherently racist, sexist, or oppressive; that an individual should be discriminated against or receive adverse treatment solely or in part because of his or her race. These teachings assert even more but I will not list them all here. This would also include some of the recent rewriting of American history. These teachings or curriculums are often referred to as Critical Race Theory and/or the 1619 Project.

Please join me in signing the letter asking Governor Parson to take action to stop this before the beginning of the 2021-22 school year here in Missouri's public schools.

I am asking that you please sign via electronic signature on the attached signature page and email back prior to Friday, June 25th, 2021. Or if you are in town and prefer to sign the hard copy please let Sherry know.

Thank you.

Subject: Research on Ethical Global Leadership

Hello,

I am conducting a study on the topic of ethical global leadership. For the study, I am talking with political leaders across the globe.

The study aims to produce an ethical global leadership framework to understand distinctive opportunities and challenges in creating ethical leadership in the context of global politics. Your participation in the study may help speed up the transition from the traditional view of global leadership to one, which is based on ethics and trust. The research findings will be published in academic journals.

I was wondering if we could talk for a few minutes via Microsoft Teams or by phone at a time suitable for you to share your valuable experience.

Please find the indicative research questionnaire and a recent research publication (published in the Journal of Business Ethics, a Financial Times Top 50 Journal) attached.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Subject: Re: Senate Bill 26 Harms Crime Victims

> My name is Mark Sharp and I offered this provision to SB 26 to help juveniles who were overcharged to give them a second chance at being successful members of society. This provision was in no way intended to help people like Bustamante. I'm very aware of what she did and I don't know why she wasn't charged with Murder 1 given the fact that it was premeditated. I'm no apologist for violent criminals, I've had to bury a sister and best friend to domestic violence and gun violence and I understand how families of violent crimes feel. This language was offered up to help people like Bobby Bostic who was overcharged as a juvenile. To my understanding as it relates to Bustamante, the parole board should make up for what the court system didn't do and keep her where she is currently-I don't see why the parole board would grant someone parole who committed such a viscous act. Just because she is eligible doesn't mean she would ever be released. I agree someone like this could very well be a threat to society still and I would never support Bustamante being released. No piece of legislation is perfect, but I do believe my colleagues and I supported this legislation to help those juveniles who deserve a second chance while giving the parole board the ability to grant parole to those who have earned it.

board. This argument completely ignores the devastating impact parole hearings have on victims. Even if an offender is not released by the parole board, the parole process is still extremely traumatic for victims. During the parole process, we relive the crimes, which causes PTSD, depression, anxiety, and other conditions to flare up and makes us suffer flashbacks, nightmares, panic attacks, and other horrors. Statements such as "don't worry, someone like Bustamante won't be paroled" and "it's just a parole hearing, it's not a big deal" ignore the impact of parole hearings on victims. Maybe for some people, parole hearings are "just reviews." But to victims, they are traumatic nightmares. Elizabeth Olten's family and other victims are not responsible for any overly harsh prison terms that may have been given to other offenders. We should not sacrifice them and re-traumatize them so that a handful of offenders who deserve to get out of prison can be paroled.

People say that victims can just skip parole hearings--but we can't. We feel compelled to prevent an unjust early release and, for murder victims' families, to be a voice for dead family members who cannot speak for themselves. We also feel compelled to partake in the parole process due to fears for our own safety and the safety of others. Many of us, particularly those who testified against the criminals or who were threatened by them, fear retaliation against us and our families. Also, we are in a unique position to understand the danger these violent offenders pose and we are obligated to protect other potential victims from them. Just the possibility of the offender being released, even if small, is terrible and frightening for us.

SB 26 forces us to live with the fear of our victimizers being released. Maybe the parole board now is reluctant to release severely violent criminals. But parole boards can change. In the future, we may have a parole board that is more open to releasing violent felons. There is no way to guarantee that someone like Bustamante won't be released under this law.

Crime victims do not lose our value or our right to justice because our victimizers were under 18. We are begging the Missouri General Assembly to amend this law to make it more considerate of victims.

Thank you for reading our letter.

Sincerely,

NOVJM

Subject: Re: Senate Bill 26 Harms Crime Victims

Dear Representative Sharp,

Thank you for your response. We understand that there were good intentions behind the juvenile parole provision of SB 26. However, the bill is still having a devastating impact on victims like Elizabeth's family. We hope that something can be worked out.

Representative Sharp, you say that the bill was not meant to help offenders like Bustamante. But that is exactly what SB 26 does. SB 26 takes 20 years off Bustamante's sentence and gives her multiple chances to be paroled starting after only 15 years. The law does help Bustamante and even if that was not the intention, it is the result.

We appreciate your opposition to Bustamante's release. However, SB 26 does allow her to be released early starting in 2024. Bustamate's release is a very real possibility due to this law. Unfortunately, parole boards do sometimes release criminals who commit horrific crimes. For example, the Missouri Parole Board is releasing Christopher Simmons, who kidnapped a woman, gagged and bound her, and threw her in a river, all for thrill. We can't ensure that the parole board won't release Bustamante.

Even if Bustamante is never released, the parole hearings will still inflict significant pain onto Elizabeth's family. Elizabeth's family is not responsible for the juveniles who were overcharged. This bill basically punishes her family in order to free other criminals.

The law needs to be amended so that offenders like Bustamante can receive longer, more appropriate sentences. NOVJM will work towards this goal. We will be glad to compromise on legislation that addresses all of our concerns

Thank you for your attention,

NOVJM

Dear Missouri General Assembly:

Thank you for reading our letter.
We are the National Organization of Victims of Juvenile Murderers. We represent about 400 victims around the country. Several of our members are impacted by Missouri Senate Bill 26, which mandates parole eligibility for juvenile offenders after only 15 years. We are respectfully requesting that the law be amended to be more considerate of us and other victims of violent juvenile felons.

There is an argument that SB 26 was only meant to release offenders who had been overcharged. Advocates of SB 26 claim that other offenders who receive parole hearings under the law who had committed more serious crimes--such as Alyssa Bustamante-- will not be released by the parole board.
This argument completely ignores the devastating impact parole hearings have on victims. Even if an offender is not released by the parole board, the parole process is still extremely traumatic for victims. During the parole process, we relive the crimes, which causes PTSD, depression, anxiety, and other conditions to flare up and makes us suffer flashbacks, nightmares, panic attacks, and other horrors.
Statements such as “don't worry, someone like Bustamante won’t be paroled” and “it’s just a parole hearing, it's not a big deal” ignore the impact of parole hearings on victims. Maybe for some people, parole hearings are “just reviews.”
But to victims, they are traumatic nightmares.
Elizabeth Olten's family and other victims are not responsible for any overly harsh prison terms that may have been given to other offenders. We should not sacrifice them and re-traumatize them so that a handful of offenders who deserve to get out of prison can be paroled.

People say that victims can just skip parole hearings--but we can’t. We feel compelled to prevent an unjust early release and, for murder victims’ families, to be a voice for dead family members who cannot speak for themselves. We also feel compelled to partake in the parole process due to fears for our own safety and the safety of others.
Many of us, particularly those who testified against the criminals or who were threatened by them, fear retaliation against us and our families. Also, we are in a unique position to understand the danger these violent offenders pose and we are obligated to protect other potential victims from them. Just the possibility of the offender being released, even if small, is terrible and frightening for us.

SB 26 forces us to live with the fear

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

of our victimizers being released. Maybe the parole board now is reluctant to release severely violent criminals. But parole boards can change. In the future, we may have a parole board that is more open to releasing violent felons. There is no way to guarantee that someone like Bustamante won't be released under this law.

Crime victims do not lose our value or our right to justice because our victimizers were under 18. We are begging the Missouri General Assembly to amend this law to make it more considerate of victims.

Thank you for reading our letter.

Sincerely,

NOVJM

Subject: RE: Senate Bill 26

Good evening Ms. Hardwick,

My name is Mark Sharp and I offered this provision to SB 26 to help juveniles who were overcharged to give them a second chance at being successful members of society. This provision was in no way intended to help people like Bustamante. I'm very aware of what she did and I don't know why she wasn't charged with Murder 1 given the fact that it was premeditated. I'm no apologist for violent criminals, I've had to bury a sister and best friend to domestic violence and gun violence and I understand how families of violent crimes feel. This language was offered up to help people like Bobby Bostic who was overcharged as a juvenile. To my understanding as it relates to Bustamante, the parole board should make up for what the court system didn't do and keep her where she is currently-I don't see why the parole board would grant someone parole who committed such a viscous act. Just because she is eligible doesn't mean she would ever be released. I agree someone like this could very well be a threat to society still and I would never support Bustamante being released. No piece of legislation is perfect, but I do believe my colleagues and I supported this legislation to help those juveniles who deserve a second chance while giving the parole board the ability to grant parole to those who have earned it.

Subject: Senate Bill 26

Dear Missouri Legislature:

My name is Jaylynn Hardwick. I am from Jefferson City, Missouri. I am writing to express outrage about Senate Bill 26, which recently went into effect, and mandates parole eligibility for some of Missouri's most violent offenders, including Alyssa Bustamante.

Alyssa Bustamante murdered 9-year-old Elizabeth Olten for fun in 2009. Bustamante had previously told a friend, “I just wonder what it would be like just to kill someone, see the life just drain out of someone. I wonder what it would feel like, that type of power, to take that away from someone.” Bustamante lured Elizabeth into the woods, strangled her, stabbed her, slit her throat, and buried her in a pre-dug grave.

Bustamante was sentenced to life with parole eligibility after 35 years--but because of SB26, Bustamante is eligible for parole in 2024, after serving only 15 years. Making Bustamante eligible for parole after only 15 years demeans her crime and endangers society. The law needs to be amended to keep society safe from violent predators like Bustamante.

Subject: Support for Representative Schroer's Amendment to HB 1411

Dear Chairman Bayse, Vice Chairman Haffner and members of the House Elementary and Secondary Education Committee:

I am writing to ask for your support of Representative Nick Schroer’s amendment to HB 1141 prohibiting the teaching of Critical Race Theory and “The 1619 Project” in Missouri’s education institutions.

I am asking for your support because Missouri taxpayers should not be funding hate. Missouri’s educational institutions should be teaching reading, math, and science, not teaching revisionist history and racist ideology. The teaching of Critical Race Theory and “The 1619 Project” is a Marxists-based theory and presents a racist and divisive view of America. Critical Race Theory and “The 1619 Project” removes individualism and teaches students to hate their country and believe their fellow students are somehow either superior or inferior based on their race or gender. Teaching this harmful and racist theory and revisionist history to our children is teaching systemic racism.

The story of the American founding and the subsequent stories of the Civil War and the Civil Rights movement of the 1960's are the real stories of the spirit of America - how our young nation wrestled with the amoral institution of slavery and defeated it and how a century later Americans continued to advance the idea that ALL Americans are equal in the eyes of God.

Children in our state should be taught that their hard work, their character, and their deeds matter more than the color of their skin or the economic situation they have been born into. This is the real American way, and it is available to all. It is for this reason that I urge you to Representative Schroer’s amendment to HB1141.

Sincerely,

Byron Keelin

Estimated Mortality Increases During The COVID-19 Pandemic By Socioeconomic Status, Race, And Ethnicity

Sarah Miller, Laura R. Wherry, and Bhashkar Mazumder

Abstract

This article estimates changes in all-cause mortality due to the COVID-19 pandemic by socioeconomic characteristics and occupation for nonelderly adults in the US, using large-scale, national survey data linked to administrative mortality records. Mortality increases were largest for adults living in correctional facilities or in health care–related group quarters, those without health insurance coverage, those with family incomes below the federal poverty level, and those in occupations with limited work-from-home options. For almost all subgroups, mortality increases were higher among non-Hispanic Black respondents than among non-Hispanic White respondents. Hispanic respondents with health insurance, those not living in group quarters, those with work-from-home options, and those in essential industries also experienced larger increases in mortality during the COVID-19 crisis compared with non-Hispanic Whites in those categories. Occupations that experienced the largest mortality increases were related to installation, maintenance, and repair and production. This research highlights the relevance of individual economic, social, and demographic characteristics during the COVID-19 crisis.

Socioeconomic factors such as poverty, insurance coverage, and occupational characteristics have all been posited to play important roles in mortality risk during the COVID-19 crisis in the US. Furthermore, although existing research has robustly documented mortality disparities across racial and ethnic groups,1–5 it remains unclear how these disparities interact with markers of disadvantage such as poverty or lack of insurance. Previous work examining mortality risk by socioeconomic status has either analyzed aggregated statistics (for example, at the county level) or has relied on small or nonrepresentative samples that might not capture how socioeconomic characteristics predict mortality risk in the US overall.6–9 With more detailed information, policy makers can design better policies to alleviate COVID-19-related burdens and more finely target interventions to the populations most likely to be affected by the pandemic.

TOPICS

MORTALITY * MORTALITY RATES * COVID-19 * PANDEMICS * HEALTH DISPARITIES * RACISM * SOCIOECONOMIC STATUS * RACIAL DISPARITIES * ETHNIC DISPARITIES * CORONAVIRUS * INSURANCE STATUS

In this article we provide new information on how mortality during the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic in the US varied by individual socioeconomic characteristics and how the mortality risk associated with these characteristics interacted with race and ethnicity. Our study took advantage of large-scale, nationally representative federal survey data from the 2015–18 waves of the American Community Survey (ACS) linked at the individual level to longitudinal administrative data on mortality from the Social Security Administration. These data allowed us to observe socioeconomic and demographic characteristics for more than 10.9 million nonelderly adult ACS respondents and whether they survived through the second quarter of 2020. Using these linked data, we analyzed how trends in mortality varied by group residence status, health insurance status, income, and occupation. In contrast to race, ethnicity, age, and education,1–3 these data elements are not typically available in US mortality records and have not been previously studied using nationally representative, individual-level data. We found significant increases in all-cause mortality among all subgroups, with particularly large increases seen among those living in correctional facilities or in health care–related group quarters, without health insurance coverage, with family incomes at or below the federal poverty level, and in occupations with limited work-from-home options. When we examined specific occupations, those related to installation, maintenance, and repair and production exhibited the largest increases in all-cause mortality, with the smallest increases found in military-related and architecture and engineering occupations.

We also observed dramatic disparities in mortality changes across groups defined by race and ethnicity. Across essentially all socioeconomic groups, we observed that non-Hispanic Black people experienced significantly higher increases in mortality relative to non-Hispanic White people (hereafter, our use of "Black" or "White" implies "non-Hispanic"). Indeed, Black people in the least disadvantaged socioeconomic groups tended to have larger mortality increases than White people in the most disadvantaged subgroups; for example, Black people in the highest income group (household income exceeding 400 percent of poverty) experienced an increase of mortality more than 3.5 times larger than the increase in mortality experienced by the poorest (up to 100 percent of poverty) White people. We also found larger mortality increases for Hispanic people compared with White people within many socioeconomic subgroups. In multivariate analyses that included socioeconomic characteristics in addition to indicators for racial/ethnic groups, we continued to find significantly higher increases in mortality among Black and Hispanic people compared with White people.

Our findings add to the body of literature documenting the stark racial disparities observed in COVID-19 death rates in the US. Although our research did not directly address the role of structural racism, it is known that large racial inequities in health existed before the COVID-19 crisis and arose as a result of factors such as racial segregation, living in poor neighborhoods, environmental exposures, lack of access to high-quality health care, and chronic exposure to racial discrimination.10–13 The pandemic has magnified these inequities, and our analysis provides new information on how racial and ethnic disparities both interact with and can transcend measures of socioeconomic status.

Study Data And Methods

Data

We constructed our study sample from the 2015–18 restricted versions of the ACS. The ACS is a large, nationally representative survey administered by the Census Bureau that collects data on approximately 4.5 million Americans each year. It contains detailed information on socioeconomic characteristics, including place of residence, health insurance status, family income, occupation, and industry, which we used to define subgroups of interest. We excluded people older than age sixty-five because many are retired with no current occupation or earnings, and nearly all have insurance coverage under Medicare. We also excluded children ages eighteen and younger.

We linked the ACS sample to mortality records from the Census Numerical Identification file (Numident). The Census Numident is constructed by the Census Bureau from Social Security Administration records containing the reported date of death for all people with a Social Security number, including deaths that occur abroad.[14] People without a Social Security number were therefore excluded from our analyses. We used mortality records from the period January 2018–June 2020.

To assess the quality of our mortality data, we compared total weekly death counts from the Census Numident data and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) for the period spanning from February 1, 2020, through the week ending June 27, 2020.[15] Death counts from the two sources are not expected to be identical because of differences in the underlying populations and in the universe of deaths included. Unlike the CDC data, the Census Numident is limited to deaths among Social Security number holders but includes deaths that occur outside the US. However, prior work has found that the two sources track closely.[4,14] Our own analysis confirmed this, with a correlation between the death counts from the two sources of 0.998 (see online appendix figure 1).[16]

Statistical Analysis

We examined quarterly trends in US mortality rates between Q1 2018 and Q2 2020 for subgroups defined using individual socioeconomic characteristics in the ACS data. We selected characteristics that have been either hypothesized to predict vulnerability to COVID-19[3,4] or shown to be relevant for mortality in other data.[17–19]

We considered the following subgroups defined by residence: adult correctional facilities, nursing homes and other health-related group quarters (such as psychiatric hospitals, residential schools for people with disabilities, and patients in hospitals with no usual home elsewhere), other group quarters (such as college dormitories, emergency and transitional shelters, group homes, and residential treatment centers), and not group quarters. We also formed subgroups based on health insurance status (insured or uninsured) and family income (up to 100 percent of poverty, 101–400 percent of poverty, and more than 400 percent of poverty). For employment characteristics, we classified respondents' occupations as having a possible "work from home" option following the designation outlined by Jonathan Dingel and Brent Neiman.[20] We followed the methods of Melissa Kearney and Luke Pardue[21] to classify workers as belonging to essential or nonessential industries (see the appendix for more information).[16] Finally, we defined subgroups based on Census Bureau occupational categories for people who were currently employed or had been employed in the past five years and who reported an occupation. For each subgroup we adjusted for seasonal trends in mortality based on changes during the pre-COVID-19 period. Additional details are in the appendix.[16]

We calculated the change in death rates for each subgroup between Q2 2019 and Q2 2020. We expressed mortality in terms of deaths per 100,000 people per quarter. We focused on absolute differences in mortality in this period to emphasize the number of lives lost; the pre-COVID-19 means are provided in appendix table 1 so that percentage changes can be easily calculated.[16] We estimated robust standard errors clustered at the state level to test whether the change in mortality was significantly different than zero. We also compared the change in death rates for each subgroup with the change experienced by a reference group and present the p value associated with the null hypothesis that the change was the same across the two groups. In additional analyses reported in the appendix,[16] we implemented age-adjusted versions of these analyses that reweighted each subgroup to match the age distribution of those ages 19–64 and disability-adjusted versions that reweighted each subgroup to the distribution in the number of disabilities reported among those ages 19–64 in the 2018 ACS. For comparison, we also produced analogous subgroup estimates before the pandemic, between Q2 2018 and Q2 2019.

We further examined whether the within-subgroup mortality changes varied by race and ethnicity. Specifically, we tested whether the increases in mortality experienced by respondents who report being Black, Hispanic, or a non-Hispanic member of another race group ("other," including Asian or Pacific Islander, American Indian or Alaska Native, and multiracial) were significantly different than those experienced by White respondents.

Finally, we used individual-level data to estimate a multivariable regression to explore associations between mortality and racial, ethnic, and socioeconomic characteristics. The dependent variable was quarterly mortality during either the COVID-19 era (Q2 2020) or the pre-COVID-19 era (Q2 2019). Independent variables were indicators for each category examined and the interaction of these indicators with an indicator for the COVID-19 era. We also included indicators for each single year of age and indicators for the number of disabilities reported by the respondent, as well as the interaction of these indicators with the indicator for the COVID-19 era. Additional details are in the appendix.[16]
All estimates used ACS survey weights. Output was reviewed by the Census Bureau to avoid the unauthorized disclosure of confidential information. Estimates and sample sizes were rounded in accordance with Census Bureau disclosure avoidance rules.

Limitations

This study had several limitations. First, the Census Numident does not collect information on the specific cause of death, so we did not know which deaths were due to COVID-19. Second, we did not have information on other morbidity-related changes to physical or mental health during the pandemic. Third, the sample was necessarily limited to ACS respondents with a Social Security number who were successfully linked to the mortality data by the Census Bureau. The changes in mortality presented here might not necessarily be representative of the experiences of people who were excluded from our analysis.
Fourth, our analysis used individual characteristics that were collected during the 2015–18 ACS. Some characteristics may have changed before or during the COVID-19 pandemic. Fifth, because of Census Bureau disclosure rules, we were unable to examine race categories within the "other" group. Therefore, we grouped people who may have had vastly different experiences related to their race and ethnicity within this broader category. Sixth, we did not adjust our analysis to account for the fact that we tested several hypotheses; this may have led us to reject some true null hypotheses because of chance. Finally, we observed mortality through June 2020 only and were unable to document total excess mortality past this date.

Study Results

Trends In Mortality By Socioeconomic Groups

Exhibit 1 presents quarterly US mortality rates by whether a respondent's occupation is classified as having a "work from home" option available. Graphs by other characteristics are in appendix figures 2 and 3.[16] For all groups, we observed relatively flat rates of all-cause mortality between Q1 2018 and Q1 2020. However, mortality rates increased sharply in Q2 2020 with the onset of the COVID-19 crisis.

Changes In Mortality During The COVID-19 Crisis

Exhibit 2 presents changes in quarterly mortality rates from Q2 2019 to Q2 2020 (the COVID-19 era) with 95% confidence intervals by individual insurance status, family income, and employment characteristics. Asterisks indicate whether the change in mortality is significantly different from the change experienced in the reference group. These results are also reported in appendix table 1,[16] along with sample sizes and the baseline mortality rate for each group. Estimates by place of residence, which are not included in exhibit 2, are also in appendix table 1.[16]

We found that people residing in correctional facilities experienced an increase in mortality of 83.29 deaths per 100,000 people during the COVID-19 era. Those in nursing facilities or other health care–related group quarters experienced an increase in mortality of 1,619 deaths per 100,000 people. The increases in mortality among these two groups were significantly higher than the change experienced by residents in non–group quarters (p=0.002 and p<0.001, respectively), who experienced an increase in mortality of 16.11 deaths per 100,000 people. People living in other group quarters did not experience a statistically significant increase in all-cause mortality during the COVID-19 era, although our confidence interval does not rule out similar-size changes for this group (appendix table 1).[16]

Uninsured people experienced an increase in mortality of 27.57 deaths per 100,000 people during the COVID-19 era, whereas people with insurance experienced an increase of 15.50 deaths per 100,000 people (p value of difference = 0.06). People with family income up to 100 percent of poverty experienced an increase in mortality of 27.08 deaths per 100,000 people, those with family incomes of 101–400 percent of poverty experienced an increase in mortality of 15.57 deaths per 100,000 people, and those with incomes above 400 percent of poverty experienced an increase of 13.34 deaths per 100,000 people. However, we cannot reject the null hypotheses that the increases in mortality in the lower and middle income groups were of a similar magnitude to the change experienced in the higher income group (appendix table 1).[16]

Mortality rates increased by 19.14 deaths per 100,000 people among people working in occupations without work-from-home options. This increase was significantly larger (p value of difference = 0.017) than the increase in mortality of 10.90 per 100,000 people that was experienced among those working in occupations that have the option to work from home. The increase in mortality rates among workers in essential industries was 16.44 deaths per 100,000 people, and that in nonessential industries was 14.73 deaths per 100,000 people. The difference across essential/nonessential industry classification was not statistically significant (appendix table 1).[16]

Appendix table 1[16] also shows changes in mortality using data from Q2 2018–Q2 2019 (the pre-COVID-19 era) as a placebo test. We observed no statistically significant increases in all-cause mortality for any group during the year before the COVID-19 crisis.

Exhibit 3 presents results for insurance status, family income, and employment subgroups by race and ethnicity; estimates for place-of-residence subgroups are reported in appendix table 2.[16] We found that for all subgroups, with the exception of those living in correctional facilities, nursing facilities, or other group quarters, Black respondents had significantly larger mortality increases than White respondents. Among people with insurance, those not living in group quarters, lower-income families (101–400 percent of poverty), those with work-from-home options, and those in essential industries, Hispanic respondents experienced significantly higher mortality increases than White respondents in those subgroups. We did not find statistically significant differences in mortality changes across other respondents and White respondents.

Finally, exhibit 4 presents results by occupation, ordered from largest to smallest increases in all-cause mortality (additional detail is in appendix table 3).[16] Increases in mortality were highest among workers in installation, maintenance, and repair (38.17 deaths per 100,000 people); production (35.10 deaths per 100,000 people); legal professions (34.39 deaths per 100,000 people); and transportation professions (29.49 deaths per 100,000 people). We do not report changes for two professions (management and business and financial operations) for which we detected significant changes in mortality during the pre-COVID-19 era. Results for these occupations are reported in the appendix,[16] along with the estimated changes in mortality for the pre-COVID-19 era.

Appendix tables 5–7 report estimates from analyses using age-adjusted or disability-adjusted mortality rates.[16] We observed similar patterns of results across socioeconomic, race/ethnicity, and occupation subgroups, although the estimates for deaths in nursing or health facilities were noticeably smaller when we accounted for either age or disability.

Multivariable Analysis

Appendix table 8 reports the results of an individual-level, multivariable regression.[16] We found that when all covariates, age, and disability status were examined simultaneously, we continued to find statistically significant associations between mortality and health-related group quarters and occupations with work-from-home availability during the COVID-19 era. We also found that Black and Hispanic respondents continued to experience larger increases in mortality during the COVID-19 era even when we accounted for these socioeconomic characteristics.

It is important to note that the absence of a significant independent association of, for example, insurance status with higher COVID-19-era mortality changes does not indicate that insured and uninsured people were similarly affected by the pandemic, given that we were conditioning on a large number of mediators. For instance, insurance status was strongly related to both family income and characteristics of employment.

We also note that many additional individual-level factors were relevant to mortality during the COVID-19 pandemic, including underlying health status, housing conditions and crowding, the quality of the air or environment, and neighborhood characteristics, that we did not consider here. In addition, we did not control for geographic factors, such as state or local government policies, or other important societal-level factors, including structural racism, that can lead to individual differences in the characteristics described above and disparities in COVID-19 outcomes.

Discussion

Groups that are exposed to greater economic or social disadvantage experienced large increases in all-cause mortality during the COVID-19 crisis in the US. These patterns provide a rationale for targeting COVID-19-related relief efforts to the most disadvantaged. The dramatic increases in mortality that we documented among people living in adult correctional facilities and health-related group quarters mirror other research results that relied on different data sources on these populations and also found large increases in mortality during the COVID-19 crisis.[17,22,23] Notably, groups that experienced the largest increases in mortality during the COVID-19 crisis also had higher quarterly mortality rates in the pre-COVID-19 era, reflecting well-known existing health disparities.[18,19,24] Across groups defined by residence, income, insurance status, and employment characteristics, we found no similar increases in all-cause mortality when we analyzed changes during a pre-COVID-19 period, suggesting that our analysis captures increased mortality risk associated with the COVID-19 crisis rather than unrelated trends in mortality.

We also found sharp disparities in mortality changes by race and ethnicity. Black people experienced by far the highest increases in mortality across all socioeconomic characteristics examined. It is particularly striking that Black respondents in the least disadvantaged socioeconomic groups tended to have higher mortality increases than White respondents in the most disadvantaged subgroups. Not only does this confirm previous work finding that Black respondents faced much higher COVID-19 mortality risk,[1–4] but it also demonstrates that having higher socioeconomic status as defined by these measures did not insulate Black people from these cross-race differences in mortality. This finding is consistent with other research showing that racial inequality in health is not fully explained by socioeconomic characteristics such as poverty.[11] Also, as we examine disparities within the socioeconomic groups defined in our analysis, our results suggest that Black people did not experience higher COVID-19 mortality risk because of their higher likelihood of being in a lower socioeconomic group. Still, our subgroups were broadly defined and may have masked correlations between socioeconomic status and race within these groups. Therefore, it is possible that racial differences in mortality during COVID-19 may have been due to unobserved differences in socioeconomic status.

We also found significantly higher increases in mortality for Hispanic adults compared with White adults across several subgroups, consistent with other research.[5] These subgroups include low-income families, adults with work-from-home options, essential workers, and adults with health insurance coverage. We did not observe statistically significant differences across respondents in the other (non-White and non-Black) race category. However, our confidence intervals did not allow us to rule out that meaningful differences may exist.

We found that occupations related to installation, repair, and maintenance, such as automotive service technicians and mechanics or general maintenance and repair workers; production occupations, such as assemblers and fabricators or other production workers; legal occupations; and transportation occupations exhibited the largest increases in mortality, with the smallest increases found in military-related, architecture and engineering, and educational instruction and library occupations. The large mortality increases in production- and transportation-related categories mirror findings from a recent study of occupations with the highest excess mortality during the COVID-19 pandemic in California.[25]

We did not find particularly high mortality rates among health care practitioners. This stands in contrast with a study based on UK Biobank data that found a higher risk for severe COVID-19 among such workers.[26] Nor did we find evidence of particularly high mortality among food service workers, as was documented in the California study by Yea-Hung Chen and colleagues.[25] There are several possible reasons for these differences. First, we examined different settings; Chen and colleagues examined California, and Miriam Mutambudzi and colleagues examined the UK, whereas our analysis used a nationally representative sample in the US. We also examined different periods; March–November 2020 in the case of Chen and colleagues, or March–July 2020 in the case of Mutambudzi and colleagues, versus June 2019–June 2020 in our analysis.[25,26] There are also differences in how occupation was measured relative to the work of Chen and colleagues, who use data derived from free text recorded on the death certificate describing “type of work done during most of working life,” which is typically provided by the next of kin.[25] In contrast, we relied on the self-reported occupation of those who were or had been employed in the past five years, based on survey data from the ACS.

Finally, it is also important to note that our evidence shows associations rather than the causal impacts of occupations or socioeconomic characteristics on mortality. For example, people in certain occupations may exhibit high mortality rates because they are concentrated in geographic areas with more exposure to SARS-CoV-2. It might not be the nature of the work itself that is putting workers at higher risk.

In the coming years, policy makers will grapple with designing policies to lower rates of SARS-CoV-2 transmission and mitigate the damage done by COVID-19. Using survey data linked to administrative mortality data, we document important patterns between individual characteristics and mortality during the COVID-19 crisis in the US. Our results suggest that although policy makers should be cognizant of important socioeconomic factors that predict mortality risk, reducing socioeconomic disparities will not be sufficient to ameliorate mortality differences across racial and ethnic groups. Policy makers must reckon with the unique disadvantages that racial/ethnic minorities, and Black Americans in particular, face, given the history and continued existence of racism in the United States.[10,13] Given limited resources, policy makers should target the communities with the greatest exposures to COVID-19-related mortality—taking into account socioeconomic factors, racial and ethnic disparities, and, importantly, the interaction of these characteristics—if they wish to craft policies that improve health equity more broadly.

ABSTRACT This article estimates changes in all-cause mortality due to the COVID-19 pandemic by socioeconomic characteristics and occupation for nonelderly adults in the US, using large-scale, national survey data linked to administrative mortality records. Mortality increases were largest for adults living in correctional facilities or in health care–related group quarters, those without health insurance coverage, those with family incomes below the federal poverty level, and those in occupations with limited work-from-home options. For almost all subgroups, mortality increases were higher among non-Hispanic Black respondents than among non-Hispanic White respondents. Hispanic respondents with health insurance, those not living in group quarters, those with work-from-home options, and those in essential industries also experienced larger increases in mortality during the COVID-19 crisis compared with non-Hispanic Whites in those categories. Occupations that experienced the largest mortality increases were related to installation, maintenance, and repair and production. This research highlights the relevance of individual economic, social, and demographic characteristics during the COVID-19 crisis.

Socioeconomic factors such as poverty, insurance coverage, and occupational characteristics have all been posited to play important roles in mortality risk during the COVID-19 crisis in the US. Furthermore, although existing research has robustly documented mortality disparities across racial and ethnic groups,[1–5] it remains unclear how these disparities interact with markers of disadvantage such as poverty or lack of insurance. Previous work examining mortality risk by socioeconomic status has either analyzed aggregated statistics (for example, at the county level) or has relied on small or nonrepresentative samples that might not capture how socioeconomic characteristics predict mortality risk in the US overall.[6–9] With more detailed information, policy makers can design better policies to alleviate COVID-19-related burdens and more finely target interventions to the populations most likely to be affected by the pandemic.

In this article we provide new information on how mortality during the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic in the US varied by individual socioeconomic characteristics and how the mortality risk associated with these characteristics interacted with race and ethnicity. Our study took advantage of large-scale, nationally representative federal survey data from the 2015–18 waves of the American Community Survey (ACS) linked at the individual level to longitudinal administrative data on mortality from the Social Security Administration. These data allowed us to observe socioeconomic and demographic characteristics for more than 10.9 million nonelderly adult ACS respondents and whether they survived through the second quarter of 2020.

Using these linked data, we analyzed how trends in mortality varied by group residence status, health insurance status, income, and occupation. In contrast to race, ethnicity, age, and education,[1–3] these data elements are not typically available in US mortality records and have not been previously studied using nationally representative, individual-level data. We found significant increases in all-cause mortality among all subgroups, with particularly large increases seen among those living in correctional facilities or in health care–related group quarters, without health insurance coverage, with family incomes at or below the federal poverty level, and in occupations with limited work-from-home options. When we examined specific occupations, those related to installation, maintenance, and repair and production exhibited the largest increases in all-cause mortality, with the smallest increases found in military-related and architecture and engineering occupations.

We also observed dramatic disparities in mortality changes across groups defined by race and ethnicity. Across essentially all socioeconomic groups, we observed that non-Hispanic Black people experienced significantly higher increases in mortality relative to non-Hispanic White people (hereafter, our use of "Black" or "White" implies "non-Hispanic"). Indeed, Black people in the least disadvantaged socioeconomic groups tended to have larger mortality increases than White people in the most disadvantaged subgroups; for example, Black people in the highest income group (household income exceeding 400 percent of poverty) experienced an increase of mortality more than 3.5 times larger than the increase in mortality experienced by the poorest (up to 100 percent of poverty) White people. We also found larger mortality increases for Hispanic people compared with White people within many socioeconomic subgroups. In multivariate analyses that included socioeconomic characteristics in addition to indicators for racial/ethnic groups, we continued to find significantly higher increases in mortality among Black and Hispanic people compared with White people.

Our findings add to the body of literature documenting the stark racial disparities observed in COVID-19 death rates in the US. Although our research did not directly address the role of structural racism, it is known that large racial inequities in health existed before the COVID-19 crisis and arose as a result of factors such as racial segregation, living in poor neighborhoods, environmental exposures, lack of access to high-quality health care, and chronic exposure to racial discrimination.[10–13] The pandemic has magnified these inequities, and our analysis provides new information on how racial and ethnic disparities both interact with and can transcend measures of socioeconomic status.

Study Data And Methods

DATA We constructed our study sample from the 2015–18 restricted versions of the ACS. The ACS is a large, nationally representative survey administered by the Census Bureau that collects data on approximately 4.5 million Americans each year. It contains detailed information on socioeconomic characteristics, including place of residence, health insurance status, family income, occupation, and industry, which we used to define subgroups of interest. We excluded people older than age sixty-five because many are retired with no current occupation or earnings, and nearly all have insurance coverage under Medicare. We also excluded children ages eighteen and younger.

We linked the ACS sample to mortality records from the Census Numerical Identification file (Numident). The Census Numident is constructed by the Census Bureau from Social Security Administration records containing the reported date of death for all people with a Social Security number, including deaths that occur abroad.[14] People without a Social Security number were therefore excluded from our analyses. We used mortality records from the period January 2018–June 2020.

To assess the quality of our mortality data, we compared total weekly death counts from the Census Numident data and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) for the period spanning from February 1, 2020, through the week ending June 27, 2020.[15] Death counts from the two sources are not expected to be identical because of differences in the underlying populations and in the universe of deaths included. Unlike the CDC data, the Census Numident is limited to deaths among Social Security number holders but includes deaths that occur outside the US. However, prior work has found that the two sources track closely.[4,14] Our own analysis confirmed this, with a correlation between the death counts from the two sources of 0.998 (see online appendix figure 1).[16]

STATISTICAL ANALYSIS We examined quarterly trends in US mortality rates between Q1 2018 and Q2 2020 for subgroups defined using individual socioeconomic characteristics in the ACS data. We selected characteristics that have been either hypothesized to predict vulnerability to COVID-19[3,4] or shown to be relevant for mortality in other data.[17–19]

We considered the following subgroups defined by residence: adult correctional facilities, nursing homes and other health-related group quarters (such as psychiatric hospitals, residential schools for people with disabilities, and patients in hospitals with no usual home elsewhere), other group quarters (such as college dormitories, emergency and transitional shelters, group homes, and residential treatment centers), and not group quarters. We also formed subgroups based on health insurance status (insured or uninsured) and family income (up to 100 percent of poverty, 101–400 percent of poverty, and more than 400 percent of poverty). For employment characteristics, we classified respondents' occupations as having a possible "work from home" option following the designation outlined by Jonathan Dingel and Brent Neiman.[20] We followed the methods of Melissa Kearney and Luke Pardue[21] to classify workers as belonging to essential or nonessential industries (see the appendix for more information).[16] Finally, we defined subgroups based on Census Bureau occupational categories for people who were currently employed or had been employed in the past five years and who reported an occupation. For each subgroup we adjusted for seasonal trends in mortality based on changes during the pre-COVID-19 period. Additional details are in the appendix.[16]

We calculated the change in death rates for each subgroup between Q2 2019 and Q2 2020. We expressed mortality in terms of deaths per 100,000 people per quarter. We focused on absolute differences in mortality in this period to emphasize the number of lives lost; the pre-COVID-19 means are provided in appendix table 1 so that percentage changes can be easily calculated.[16] We estimated robust standard errors clustered at the state level to test whether the change in mortality was significantly different than zero. We also compared the change in death rates for each subgroup with the change experienced by a reference group and present the p value associated with the null hypothesis that the change was the same across the two groups. In additional analyses reported in the appendix,[16] we implemented age-adjusted versions of these analyses that reweighted each subgroup to match the age distribution of those ages 19–64 and disability-adjusted versions that reweighted each subgroup to the distribution in the number of disabilities reported among those ages 19–64 in the 2018 ACS. For comparison, we also produced analogous subgroup estimates before the pandemic, between Q2 2018 and Q2 2019.

We further examined whether the within-subgroup mortality changes varied by race and ethnicity. Specifically, we tested whether the increases in mortality experienced by respondents who report being Black, Hispanic, or a non-Hispanic member of another race group ("other," including Asian or Pacific Islander, American Indian or Alaska Native, and multiracial) were significantly different than those experienced by White respondents.

Finally, we used individual-level data to estimate a multivariable regression to explore associations between mortality and racial, ethnic, and socioeconomic characteristics. The dependent variable was quarterly mortality during either the COVID-19 era (Q2 2020) or the pre-COVID-19 era (Q2 2019). Independent variables were indicators for each category examined and the interaction of these indicators with an indicator for the COVID-19 era. We also included indicators for each single year of age and indicators for the number of disabilities reported by the respondent, as well as the interaction of these indicators with the indicator for the COVID-19 era. Additional details are in the appendix.[16]

All estimates used ACS survey weights. Output was reviewed by the Census Bureau to avoid the unauthorized disclosure of confidential information. Estimates and sample sizes were rounded in accordance with Census Bureau disclosure avoidance rules.

LIMITATIONS This study had several limitations. First, the Census Numident does not collect information on the specific cause of death, so we did not know which deaths were due to COVID-19. Second, we did not have information on other morbidity-related changes to physical or mental health during the pandemic. Third, the sample was necessarily limited to ACS respondents with a Social Security number who were successfully linked to the mortality data by the Census Bureau. The changes in mortality presented here might not necessarily be representative of the experiences of people who were excluded from our analysis.

Fourth, our analysis used individual characteristics that were collected during the 2015–18 ACS. Some characteristics may have changed before or during the COVID-19 pandemic. Fifth, because of Census Bureau disclosure rules, we were unable to examine race categories within the "other" group. Therefore, we grouped people who may have had vastly different experiences related to their race and ethnicity within this broader category. Sixth, we did not adjust our analysis to account for the fact that we tested several hypotheses; this may have led us to reject some true null hypotheses because of chance. Finally, we observed mortality through June 2020 only and were unable to document total excess mortality past this date.

Study Results

TRENDS IN MORTALITY BY SOCIOECONOMIC GROUPS Exhibit 1 presents quarterly US mortality rates by whether a respondent's occupation is classified as having a "work from home" option available. Graphs by other characteristics are in appendix figures 2 and 3.[16] For all groups, we observed relatively flat rates of all-cause mortality between Q1 2018 and Q1 2020. However, mortality rates increased sharply in Q2 2020 with the onset of the COVID-19 crisis.

CHANGES IN MORTALITY DURING THE COVID-19 CRISIS Exhibit 2 presents changes in quarterly mortality rates from Q2 2019 to Q2 2020 (the COVID-19 era) with 95% confidence intervals by individual insurance status, family income, and employment characteristics. Asterisks indicate whether the change in mortality is significantly different from the change experienced in the reference group. These results are also reported in appendix table 1,[16] along with sample sizes and the baseline mortality rate for each group. Estimates by place of residence, which are not included in exhibit 2, are also in appendix table 1.[16]

We found that people residing in correctional facilities experienced an increase in mortality of 83.29 deaths per 100,000 people during the COVID-19 era. Those in nursing facilities or other health care–related group quarters experienced an increase in mortality of 1,619 deaths per 100,000 people. The increases in mortality among these two groups were significantly higher than the change experienced by residents in non–group quarters ($p = 0.002$ and $p < 0.001$, respectively), who experienced an increase in mortality of 16.11 deaths per 100,000 people. People living in other group quarters did not experience a statistically significant increase in all-cause mortality during the COVID-19 era, although our confidence interval does not rule out similar-size changes for this group (appendix table 1).[16]

Uninsured people experienced an increase in mortality of 27.57 deaths per 100,000 people during the COVID-19 era, whereas people with insurance experienced an increase of 15.50 deaths per 100,000 people (p value of difference = 0.06). People with family income up to 100 percent of poverty experienced an increase in mortality of 27.08 deaths per 100,000 people, those with family incomes of 101–400 percent of poverty experienced an increase in mortality of 15.57 deaths per 100,000 people, and those with incomes above 400 percent of poverty experienced an increase of 13.34 deaths per 100,000 people. However, we cannot reject the null hypotheses that the increases in mortality in the lower and middle income groups were of a similar magnitude to the change experienced in the higher income group (appendix table 1).[16]

Mortality rates increased by 19.14 deaths per 100,000 people among people working in occupations without work-from-home options. This increase was significantly larger (p value of difference = 0.017) than the increase in mortality of 10.90 per 100,000 people that was experienced among those working in occupations that have the option to work from home. The increase in mortality rates among workers in essential industries was 16.44 deaths per 100,000 people, and that in nonessential industries was 14.73 deaths per 100,000 people. The difference across essential/nonessential industry classification was not statistically significant (appendix table 1).[16]

Appendix table 1[16] also shows changes in mortality using data from Q2 2018–Q2 2019 (the pre-COVID-19 era) as a placebo test. We observed no statistically significant increases in all-cause mortality for any group during the year before the COVID-19 crisis.

Exhibit 3 presents results for insurance status, family income, and employment subgroups by race and ethnicity; estimates for place-of-residence subgroups are reported in appendix table 2.[16] We found that for all subgroups, with the exception of those living in correctional facilities, nursing facilities, or other group quarters, Black respondents had significantly larger mortality increases than White respondents. Among people with insurance, those not living in group quarters, lower-income families (101–400 percent of poverty), those with work-from-home options, and those in essential industries, Hispanic respondents experienced significantly higher mortality increases than White respondents in those subgroups. We did not find statistically significant differences in mortality changes across other respondents and White respondents.

Finally, exhibit 4 presents results by occupation, ordered from largest to smallest increases in all-cause mortality (additional detail is in appendix table 3).[16] Increases in mortality were highest among workers in installation, maintenance, and repair (38.17 deaths per 100,000 people); production (35.10 deaths per 100,000 people); legal professions (34.39 deaths per 100,000 people); and transportation professions (29.49 deaths per 100,000 people). We do not report changes for two professions (management and business and financial operations) for which we detected significant changes in mortality during the pre-COVID-19 era. Results for these occupations are reported in the appendix,[16] along with the estimated changes in mortality for the pre-COVID-19 era.

Appendix tables 5–7 report estimates from analyses using age-adjusted or disability-adjusted mortality rates.[16] We observed similar patterns of results across socioeconomic, race/ethnicity, and occupation subgroups, although the estimates for deaths in nursing or health facilities were noticeably smaller when we accounted for either age or disability.

MULTIVARIABLE ANALYSIS Appendix table 8 reports the results of an individual-level, multivariable regression.[16] We found that when all covariates, age, and disability status were examined simultaneously, we continued to find statistically significant associations between mortality and health-related group quarters and occupations with work-from-home availability during the COVID-19 era. We also found that Black and Hispanic respondents continued to experience larger increases in mortality during the COVID-19 era even when we accounted for these socioeconomic characteristics.

It is important to note that the absence of a significant independent association of, for example, insurance status with higher COVID-19-era mortality changes does not indicate that insured and uninsured people were similarly affected by the pandemic, given that we were conditioning on a large number of mediators. For instance, insurance status was strongly related to both family income and characteristics of employment.

We also note that many additional individual-level factors were relevant to mortality during the COVID-19 pandemic, including underlying health status, housing conditions and crowding, the quality of the air or environment, and neighborhood characteristics, that we did not consider here. In addition, we did not control for geographic factors, such as state or local government policies, or other important societal-level factors, including structural racism, that can lead to individual differences in the characteristics described above and disparities in COVID-19 outcomes.

Discussion

Groups that are exposed to greater economic or social disadvantage experienced large increases in all-cause mortality during the COVID-19 crisis in the US. These patterns provide a rationale for targeting COVID-19-related relief efforts to the most disadvantaged. The dramatic increases in mortality that we documented among people living in adult correctional facilities and health-related group quarters mirror other research results that relied on different data sources on these populations and also found large increases in mortality during the COVID-19 crisis.[17,22,23] Notably, groups that experienced the largest increases in mortality during the COVID-19 crisis also had higher quarterly mortality rates in the pre-COVID-19 era, reflecting well-known existing health disparities.[18,19,24] Across groups defined by residence, income, insurance status, and employment characteristics, we found no similar increases in all-cause mortality when we analyzed changes during a pre-COVID-19 period, suggesting that our analysis captures increased mortality risk associated with the COVID-19 crisis rather than unrelated trends in mortality.

We also found sharp disparities in mortality changes by race and ethnicity. Black people experienced by far the highest increases in mortality across all socioeconomic characteristics examined. It is particularly striking that Black respondents in the least disadvantaged socioeconomic groups tended to have higher mortality increases than White respondents in the most disadvantaged subgroups. Not only does this confirm previous work finding that Black respondents faced much higher COVID-19 mortality risk,[1–4] but it also demonstrates that having higher socioeconomic status as defined by these measures did not insulate Black people from these cross-race differences in mortality. This finding is consistent with other research showing that racial inequality in health is not fully explained by socioeconomic characteristics such as poverty.[11] Also, as we examine disparities within the socioeconomic groups defined in our analysis, our results suggest that Black people did not experience higher COVID-19 mortality risk because of their higher likelihood of being in a lower socioeconomic group. Still, our subgroups were broadly defined and may have masked correlations between socioeconomic status and race within these groups. Therefore, it is possible that racial differences in mortality during COVID-19 may have been due to unobserved differences in socioeconomic status.

We also found significantly higher increases in mortality for Hispanic adults compared with White adults across several subgroups, consistent with other research.[5] These subgroups include low-income families, adults with work-from-home options, essential workers, and adults with health insurance coverage. We did not observe statistically significant differences across respondents in the other (non-White and non-Black) race category. However, our confidence intervals did not allow us to rule out that meaningful differences may exist.

We found that occupations related to installation, repair, and maintenance, such as automotive service technicians and mechanics or general maintenance and repair workers; production occupations, such as assemblers and fabricators or other production workers; legal occupations; and transportation occupations exhibited the largest increases in mortality, with the smallest increases found in military-related, architecture and engineering, and educational instruction and library occupations. The large mortality increases in production- and transportation-related categories mirror findings from a recent study of occupations with the highest excess mortality during the COVID-19 pandemic in California.[25]

We did not find particularly high mortality rates among health care practitioners. This stands in contrast with a study based on UK Biobank data that found a higher risk for severe COVID-19 among such workers.[26] Nor did we find evidence of particularly high mortality among food service workers, as was documented in the California study by Yea-Hung Chen and colleagues.[25] There are several possible reasons for these differences. First, we examined different settings; Chen and colleagues examined California, and Miriam Mutambudzi and colleagues examined the UK, whereas our analysis used a nationally representative sample in the US. We also examined different periods; March–November 2020 in the case of Chen and colleagues, or March–July 2020 in the case of Mutambudzi and colleagues, versus June 2019–June 2020 in our analysis.[25,26] There are also differences in how occupation was measured relative to the work of Chen and colleagues, who use data derived from free text recorded on the death certificate describing "type of work done during most of working life," which is typically provided by the next of kin.[25] In contrast, we relied on the self-reported occupation of those who were or had been employed in the past five years, based on survey data from the ACS.

Finally, it is also important to note that our evidence shows associations rather than the causal impacts of occupations or socioeconomic characteristics on mortality. For example, people in certain occupations may exhibit high mortality rates because they are concentrated in geographic areas with more exposure to SARS-CoV-2. It might not be the nature of the work itself that is putting workers at higher risk.

In the coming years, policy makers will grapple with designing policies to lower rates of SARS-CoV-2 transmission and mitigate the damage done by COVID-19. Using survey data linked to administrative mortality data, we document important patterns between individual characteristics and mortality during the COVID-19 crisis in the US. Our results suggest that although policy makers should be cognizant of important socioeconomic factors that predict mortality risk, reducing socioeconomic disparities will not be sufficient to ameliorate mortality differences across racial and ethnic groups. Policy makers must reckon with the unique disadvantages that racial/ethnic minorities, and Black Americans in particular, face, given the history and continued existence of racism in the United States.[10,13] Given limited resources, policy makers should target the communities with the greatest exposures to COVID-19-related mortality—taking into account socioeconomic factors, racial and ethnic disparities, and, importantly, the interaction of these characteristics—if they wish to craft policies that improve health equity more broadly. ■

ECONOMIC REGULATION AND RURAL AMERICA

Abstract

Rural America today is at a crossroads. Widespread socioeconomic decline outside cities has fueled the idea that rural communities have been "left behind." The question is whether these "left behind" localities should be allowed to dwindle out of existence, or whether intervention to attempt rural revitalization is warranted. Many advocate non-intervention because rural lifestyles are inefficient to sustain. Others argue that, even if the nation wanted to help, it lacks the law and policy tools to redirect rural America's course effectively.

This Article argues that we do have the law and policy tools necessary to address rural socioeconomic marginalization and that we neglect to use those tools to our own collective detriment. The Article focuses specifically on the tool of economic regulation, meaning government oversight of entry, exit, and participation parameters for service providers in certain markets. Robust historical precedents establish that strategic economic regulation is uniquely capable of sustaining rural communities, and that using it to do so is in fact critical to national resilience.

Rural diseconomies of scale--the problem of higher costs per capita and lower demand for resources in population-sparse regions--must be understood as a keystone question concerning whether and how rural communities can gain access to the amenities they need to survive. The pre-1970s regulatory regime governing infrastructure industries helped overcome the problem of diseconomies of scale by safeguarding rural access to services that precede economic growth. Infrastructure industries' subsequent abandonment of rural America during the deregulatory era amounts to a market failure because the nation remains dependent on rural communities for food and energy production, environmental stewardship, political stability, and retreat from urbanism. Thus, for the benefit of all, a broader conception of infrastructure and corrective interventions into 738 infrastructure markets must help connect rural America to community-sustaining systems like broadband internet and national grocery store chains. Ultimately, this discussion also offers an answer to the problem of the so-called "urban/rural divide": enhancing "urban/rural connection," both literally and symbolically.

739 Introduction

Throughout the country, communities outside major urban centers are no longer sustained by livelihoods in agriculture, natural resource extraction, and manufacturing.[1] Many of these communities are instead weakening by attrition as population and wealth flow toward regions with growing modern industries.[2] After the Great Recession of 2008, rural America fell below zero population growth for the first time in the country's history.[3] This and other trends--high rates of rural "deaths of despair" by suicide and opioids, high rates of rural unemployment, and high approval rates among rural voters of President Trump's isolationist rhetoric--have prompted 740 commentators to deem these regions as increasingly "left behind" in the calculus of national economic development.[4]

The question before the country is whether these trends should be left to run their course. Should these "left behind" localities be allowed to dwindle out of existence? Or is some form of intervention warranted to stop or reverse large-scale patterns of rural socioeconomic decline?[5] Many advocate non-intervention, insisting that the rural way of life is simply too inefficient to sustain and that rural populations--still about one seventh of the national population[6]--should instead be incentivized or helped to relocate en masse to cities.[7] Proponents of this view tend to insist both that nothing should be done to address rural decline, but also that nothing can be done--namely, no set of tools in law and policy is positioned to counteract the worldwide tidal waves of globalization, automation, and urbanization that drive these patterns.[8]

741 As a threshold matter, this Article insists that intervention is indeed warranted and that in fact, we fail to nurture rural livelihoods to our own collective detriment. Rural communities remain essential to a functioning, resilient nation.[9] The full spectrum of rural communities' worth and potential is outside the Article's scope. But the current and possible contributions of the small towns and remote counties characterized by greater expanses of land and sparser populations are not insignificant.[10] Rural communities and workers produce the bulk of the nation's food and energy and steward eighty percent of the country's land mass and its associated ecosystem services.[11] They are an integral part of the national political community.[12] In the face of the COVID-19 crisis, they have offered an alternative to urban lifestyles that have become newly stressed, where skyrocketing housing costs were already prohibitive for many.[13] The need to intervene stems not from nostalgia for a mythologized, antiquated rural idyll, but more from the urgency of envisioning a healthy and modernized rural future as a necessary part of an interdependent national system.[14]

742 More centrally, the Article argues that the idea that we lack the law and policy tools to counteract rural socioeconomic decline overlooks important historical precedents that are critical to informing a more fruitful and equitable path forward.[15] This discussion focuses on the tool of economic regulation, or government oversight of entry, exit, and participation parameters for service providers in certain industries.[16] In particular, the regulatory apparatus governing infrastructure industries for the century from the 1880s to the 1970s reveals the unique power of economic regulation to support and sustain rural communities.[17]

This argument about the import of economic regulation to rural communities has four components. First, rural diseconomies of scale--the higher costs per capita and lower returns on investment associated with rural service provision due to lower population density--must be understood as a keystone question as to whether and how rural communities can gain access to the services and resources they need to survive.[18] Rural communities' struggle to achieve economies of scale means they are naturally disadvantaged in attracting most types of resources, ranging from public education funding to hospitals to private housing developers.[19] Limited access to fundamental amenities, such as affordable transportation and broadband internet, plays a substantial role in today's rural 743 socioeconomic challenges.[20] The question of whether to maintain or extend such amenities to under-served communities largely drives the conversation on whether rural populations can or should be sustained at all.[21] A common instinct is to direct scarce resources to population centers that offer greater returns on investment for more recipients, raising the question of whether, how, and why rural communities can be adequately served despite appearing not to offer the "best" use of resources.

Second, the regime regulating infrastructure industries from the 1880s to the late twentieth century showed that measures to ensure rural access to the services that precede economic growth were key to protecting and cultivating rural communities.[22] In other words, this regime helped overcome the natural barrier rural diseconomies of scale pose to accessing the infrastructure that any community needs to thrive.[23] The term, "infrastructure," can describe "a wide range of goods and services"; throughout U.S. history, the infrastructure concept has encompassed at one time even the provision of milk.[24] But much of the discussion of this regulatory genre focuses on what were once known as the regulated industries, including common carriers (trains, trucks, buses, and airlines) and utilities (telecommunications, electricity, and natural gas).[25]

Until relatively recently, economic regulatory policies embraced the idea that rural communities, in light of their remoteness and smaller populations, needed protection from service providers' unilateral, profit-driven decision-making, which would tend to motivate those providers either not to serve 744 rural communities or to charge them substantially higher prices.[26] Under the germinal 1887 Interstate Commerce Act (ICA) and subsequent regimes enacted for a variety of industries, common carriers and public utilities were bound by a principle of non-discrimination among localities and mandates to provide universal service at "just and reasonable" rates.[27] Cross-subsidization and resource bundling helped to finance entry into less-profitable places.[28] These protections were understood at the time as anticipating and preventing the potential for markets to fail to provide sufficient services to small and remote communities; failing to serve such communities was seen as both unfair and contrary to national interests.[29] Equitable rural access to infrastructure services in turn promoted the growth of local and regional economies and connected rural communities, literally and symbolically, to the rest of the country.[30]

Third, the deregulatory era then served to prune small and remote localities off the national systems on which they depended. Following a "vigorous and sustained critique" of existing regulations, reforms such as the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978, the Staggers Rail Act and Motor Carrier Act of 1980, and other developments in transportation and telecommunications in particular replaced principles of non-discrimination and universal service with regimes favoring competition.[31] Proponents of deregulation insisted--arguably unrealistically--that market-driven regimes would still serve the aim of providing universal service.[32] Yet, with the elimination of strong mandates to serve rural communities, markets largely redirected services to more populated areas that wielded providers more profits.[33] After widespread and abrupt departures by common carriers, for instance, this transformation left rural communities to "wither on the vine" or die "like a human limb or organ starved of oxygen by an artery 745 made impassable by a tenacious blood clot."[34] In light of continued rural importance to national interests, these infrastructure industries' abandonment of rural communities during this era should be viewed as a series of market failures that now warrant correction.[35]

Fourth and finally, embracing a new conception of infrastructure can help reconnect rural communities to the national systems that they need to survive through corrective interventions into infrastructure markets. This Article focuses on the rural relationship to transportation and telecommunications markets in particular as prominent historic instances of economic regulation and subsequent deregulation.[36] This discussion can in turn illuminate the role for economic regulation of markets allocating other important resources, such as energy, healthcare, and even access to grocery stores.[37] In order for policymakers to fully understand and meet the needs of rural communities, the concept of "infrastructure" should be broadened. Strategic interventions to correct infrastructure markets that exclude or disadvantage rural communities will in turn serve the dual goal of counteracting the cycle of rural socioeconomic decline while furthering national resilience.[38]

Two overarching points contextualize these arguments. First, the effects of deregulation are a missing piece of today's dominant narrative about rural decline. Many attribute rural decline to organic operations of markets or 746 other faceless culprits, such as globalization and automation.[39] This discussion shows that rural decline was undoubtedly in part a foreseeable consequence of a large-scale movement to favor consumer choice and service providers' profits over measures designed to actively sustain rural communities and the positive externalities that they generate.[40] It seems almost disingenuous for a country to facilitate a mass exit of the infrastructure services necessary for economic stability and growth from entire regions, and then to lament those regions' isolation and lack of economic viability.[41]

Second, this discussion is also central to questions surrounding the "urban/rural divide" that stymies commentators today.[42] The need to reconnect rural America to national systems is discussed here in a literal sense as to actual, physical systems--rural communities are disproportionately cut off from services like broadband internet infrastructure, a utility which most agree today is what electricity was a century ago.[43] But the need to reconnect rural communities to national systems is also meant in a more allegorical sense. Rural communities are isolated not just physically, but also culturally, politically, and 747 rhetorically.[44] It seems natural, in fact, that a response to the "urban/rural divide" should involve "urban/rural reconnection."[45]

These proposals raise several important questions, in addition to ever-present political obstacles to reform. What about unfairness to urban communities and the environmental problems associated with directing scarce resources to sparser populations?[46] What about critiques of economic regulation, ranging from promoting inefficiency and consumer costs to problems with the accountability and effectiveness of the administrative apparatus that enforces them?[47] Does it matter that rural voters tend to disfavor government intervention, and that this Article's proposals would likely not be embraced by a majority of rural residents?[48] Even if interventions were pursued, how would policymakers make difficult choices about where to intervene, given that not all rural communities could be salvaged or revitalized?

These concerns are addressed throughout the Article. Significantly, these proposals are not presented as mere altruism for potentially skeptical rural communities, but as an important part of a collective problem. This 748 discussion is also not merely a call to turn back the clock on regulation.[49] Varied means may accomplish the ends this discussion insists are necessary; if means other than regulation could accomplish those ends, those means should be considered too.[50] The discussion draws upon K. Sabeel Rahman's formula for conceptualizing modernized regulatory interventions in this era of "the new utilities."[51] Of course, any intervention will not be a panacea for widespread rural decline. Complementary policy efforts--such as increased anti-poverty initiatives, assistance for local governments, and planning for economic diversification--would need to be pursued in tandem with the proposals presented here if large-scale rural revitalization were to be achieved.[52]

In sum, this Article reveals that the need for legal intervention to ensure better service provision to rural communities is not merely a question of sentimentality, or even morality. We isolate and neglect rural communities to our own collective detriment. Infrastructure markets that exclude or disadvantage rural communities are not markets functioning optimally. The persistent challenge of limited rural economies of scale is a central, yet underappreciated keystone of this puzzle. It is past time to contemplate more robust, modernized interventions into infrastructure markets to counter rural communities' natural disadvantages, reconnect rural communities to the rest of the country, and help pursue a more resilient future in an era of poignant interdependence.

The Article proceeds in three parts. Part I defines "rural," describes modern rural conditions associated with widespread rural socioeconomic decline, and argues that diseconomies of scale are central to understanding today's rural challenges. Part II illustrates the unique power of economic regulation to sustain rural communities, tracing rural America's development from the late nineteenth century to the present and focusing on the role of regulation and deregulation of the transportation and telecommunications sectors in shaping rural welfare. This Part argues that 749 infrastructure industries' abandonment of rural communities in the deregulatory era amounts to a series of market failures because of how this abandonment undermined the many important positive externalities associated with rural development. Part III argues that in light of ongoing rural importance to national interests, more robust consideration of modernized market-correcting mechanisms is warranted for nurturing rural communities' economic growth and well-being, not just for transportation and telecommunications, but also for other markets that exclude and disadvantage rural communities. This Part proposes a broader conception of the idea of "infrastructure" and offers a normative assessment of how such interventions might be pursued.

I. Rural Conditions and the Challenge of Diseconomies of Scale

A. Rural Socioeconomic Decline

The question of the costs and benefits associated with a rural way of life has taken on some increased urgency of late. Rural communities' dramatic, consistent declines in population and increases in socioeconomic problems such as suicide, opioid addiction, and unemployment have all contributed to a desire to understand what factors drive these phenomena and whether they can or should be reversed or mitigated.[53] After the 2016 election of President Trump, commentary sought to understand his popularity with white rural voters, bringing more attention to the "urban/rural divide" associated with a wide set of issues ranging from racial polarization to disparate access to technology.[54]

Although rural localities are diverse and variable--and it is important not to fall into the trap of characterizing rural America as "a monolith in a perpetual state of decline"[55]--certain trends can be seen across rural places. The annual report of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Economic Research Service, Rural America at a Glance, describes today's rural socioeconomic challenges.[56] The Report first defines rural as "nonmetropolitan," (nonmetro) a designation estimated to encompass 46.1 750 million residents as of 2018, or 14.1 percent of the national population.[57] This designation applies to places that have "some combination of: 1. open countryside, 2. rural towns (places with fewer than 2,500 people), and 3. urban areas with populations ranging from 2,500 to 49,999 that are not part of larger labor market areas (metropolitan areas)."[58] Counties designated nonmetro can therefore contain substantial urban populations or be adjacent to urban centers.[59] From 2010 to 2018, populations grew in metropolitan (metro) counties and in nonmetro counties containing urban populations, while population declined in nonmetro counties without urban populations.[60] Everywhere saw employment growth except for nonmetro counties that lacked urban populations and were not adjacent to metro areas.[61] Growth was substantially slower in nonmetro counties generally. The Report continues:

> In addition to slower population growth, lower rates of labor force participation in nonmetro areas--due to an older, less educated population that is more likely to be disabled--also contributed to slower employment growth in nonmetro than in metro areas. Poverty rates are highest in the most rural, isolated settings, and the gap between poverty rates in these and other settings has grown ....
> Real personal income per person (PIPP) was significantly higher and grew faster in metro counties than in nonmetro counties during 2010-17.[62]

In an effort to capture how these trends are distributed with more nuance, sociologists Lawrence Hamilton et al. have suggested that today there are "four rural Americas," only one of which is prosperous. Those categories include (1) amenity-rich rural America; (2) chronically poor rural America; (3) resource-dependent, declining rural America; and (4) mixed amenity/decline rural America.[63] Underlying all of these categories is the question of whether and how rural communities have economic activity to sustain them. Amenity-rich rural America--which includes communities that enjoy "natural splendor," tourism activity, relative proximity to urban centers, and higher property values--is in a better position to sustain 751 regional economic activity than its counterparts, while challenges with sustainable economic activity characterize the other three categories.[64]

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
WESTLAW © 2021 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

The second and third categories--declining resource-dependent communities and communities suffering from chronic poverty--are arguably the most distressed and in need of attention today. These types of communities share some overlapping characteristics and some important differences. Resource-dependent communities in decline would include the timbering communities of the Pacific Northwest and deindustrializing regions of the Midwest. These communities have mostly conservative, white populations whose families have resided locally for multiple generations.[65] Communities struggling with chronic poverty, by contrast, mostly include populations of color. These populations are concentrated in African-American communities in the South, Native American reservations in the West, and fast-growing Latinx communities throughout the country, in addition to the majority-white populations of Appalachia.[66]

Although these categories of distressed rural localities may seem fundamentally different in some ways, two points are worth noting. First, white rural residents receive the lion's share of attention in the public discourse about "rural America."[67] But rural populations of color dealing with chronic poverty quite literally experience some of the worst living conditions in the developed world.[68] Second, resource-dependent rural communities may seem relatively privileged; they, at least, had something to lose in the first place by way of robust economic activity, unlike the chronically impoverished communities. But the logical conclusion of declining to intervene to mitigate or counteract these trends is that communities in decline are on track to become chronically impoverished if nothing is done. Across both categories, these populations are struggling with substance abuse and mental health crises, high rates of unemployment, and difficulty accessing services necessary to meet basic needs ranging from healthcare to clean drinking water to libraries to building code enforcement.[69]

The town of Cairo, Illinois, provides an illustrative example of what rural distress can look like today. Cairo's population was once 15,000, and it grew and was constructed as a home for 15,000 people living at a hub of river commerce.[70] Cairo suffered as a result of competition from railway and highway traffic and the loss of its largest employer, the Burkart Foam 752 Company.[71] Today, Cairo's population hovers just above 2,000. The majority-Black residents have had to deal with a proliferation of empty and dilapidated buildings, the closure of the town's last grocery store in 2015, and the condemnation of the town's last public housing complex in 2017.[72] Meanwhile, the prospect of local residents attracting new services and amenities, like a new public housing complex, seems grim in light of the lack of incentives for providers and developers.

A common proposal to address these problems is that, instead of pursuing place-based policies, rural residents should relocate to regions with more resources.[73] Where barriers to mobility exist, our focus should, it is argued, be on removing those barriers, rather than on efforts to revitalize distressed places. Of course, removing barriers to mobility would keep those seeking to relocate from being tethered to localities where they do not want to be.[74] But failing to acknowledge rural marginalization as a problem, and a structural one that should be addressed, raises troubling ethical, political, and logistical implications.[75] It is not clear, for instance, that a better life awaits residents relocating to cities, where housing costs and other challenges--most recently including the pandemic-related dangers associated with population density--may simply bring new forms of suffering.[76] Although the prospect of attempting wholesale rural 753 revitalization may be both daunting and complicated, it is also problematic to treat rural marginalization as nature simply running its course.[77]

At the broadest level, the discourse on rural communities today, in light of their increasingly distressed conditions, seeks to understand how these conditions came to be and what could be done to address them. The next sections seek to illuminate those questions by linking today's rural conditions to the fundamental question of rural economies of scale. Critically, this discourse has neglected the country's past efforts to account for rural diseconomies of scale and prevent the very form of rural stagnancy that we see today; in turn, then, the solution to rural marginalization must involve the question of rural diseconomies of scale.

B. Rural Diseconomies of Scale

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT WESTLAW © 2021 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

The discussion in this section focuses on two important characteristics of rurality: remoteness from an urban center and relatively low population density.[78] Although definitions vary, the commonly understood characteristic of rural communities is that they have relatively few people living in a place that is relatively far from a population center and its associated amenities.[79] For example, consistent with the Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Census Bureau defines "rural" as anything that is not "urban," with "urbanized areas" defined as having a population of 50,000 or more, and "urban clusters" as having a population of between 2,500 and 50,000.[80] Of course, small urban centers and urban clusters, including towns with just a few thousand residents, may face issues similar to communities officially designated as rural. The proportion of people living in places designated as rural has dropped dramatically over the course of the past hundred years; the rural population was approximately sixty percent of the national population as of 1900, and today it is about fourteen percent.[81]

754 Nonetheless, rural communities have faced consistent tensions in the context of their economic development, whether the community in question existed a century ago or today. Namely, by their nature, it is more difficult to form economies of scale in rural communities due to their low population density and remoteness from other economic activity.[82] This in turn means that it is more difficult for rural communities to attract resources because they offer less in exchange, whether in the form of profits or other forms of return on investment.[83] Rural diseconomies of scale catalyze the socioeconomic problems described above because residents have more limited access to services that could help address that distress.[84] The rural opioid crisis, for example, is exacerbated by more limited rural access to doctors.[85] In turn, the idea that rural America is too expensive to sustain shapes arguments that it is not worth intervening to counteract today's rural socioeconomic challenges.[86]

Commentators often refer to rural diseconomies of scale as an obstacle to rural development or service provision, but few have sought to explore this issue in more depth.[87] "Economies of scale" literature gained traction in the mid-twentieth century and originally focused on optimizing production levels within private enterprises.[88] Put simply, the idea is that the smaller the level of production is for a particular good or service, the more costs per unit the production will entail.[89] Producing a higher volume, up to a point, 755 means a more efficient use of resources.[90] Thus, businesses "must operate at the optimum size" in order to "obtain maximum economies of scale."[91] A simple example of this might be the labor and expenses a baker would put into making a single cookie--still having to buy and measure all of the ingredients in bulk, mix them, shape the cookie, and bake the cookie--versus making an entire batch of cookies with only the slightly heightened proportionate amount of labor, mostly directed to shaping additional cookies.

A "diseconomy of scale," by contrast, exists when the average cost of production increases with increased output.[92] Rural population scarcity builds additional costs into the provision of virtually any product or service because of the costs associated with distance, such as needing to traverse the distance and increased uncertainty associated with that distance.[93] On the other side of that coin, because rural populations are more limited, there are fewer consumers to offset those higher costs, meaning rural diseconomies of scale will be more likely in most types of economic activity.[94] Drawing upon the cookie example, it would be as if the baker making the cookies had thirty customers for dozens of cookies within one mile, but then had to drive a small amount of cookies ten miles away for two customers; those latter customers do not necessarily seem worth the additional costs due to their diseconomies of scale for the cookies.

Thus, in the private sector, most companies would prefer to direct their services to urban centers because they can offer their products at a higher volume with lower relative costs.[95] Of course, urban communities, simply by having more people, also offer more demand for products. So, for example, a private internet service provider would want to establish itself to serve an urban community not just because the urban community would offer more consumers, but also because the provider would make a more 756 efficient use of its own resources in yielding higher returns per capita.[96] Once a provider achieves a level of production and consumption that can be sustained, that threshold is considered to be "at scale." When it comes to industries with high fixed costs, such as the installation of permanent infrastructure fixtures, the prospect of rural investments seems all the less appealing.[97]

The aspiration to achieve economies of scale also arises in the context of public and quasi-public amenities, such as schools and hospitals.[98] Although schools and hospitals do not produce the goods initially contemplated by this theory, they do have outputs and operating costs.[99] The idea here, too, is that more output will tend to make for more efficient use of costs. Thus, a rural school or hospital that serves three people would likely be considered not "at scale."[100] The principle of the economy of scale favors consolidation, at least to an extent.[101]

When the question of "economies of scale" is applied to rural communities as a whole, their very existence--and the question of whether the broader community should support them--seems called into question.[102] Those who emphasize the primacy of economies of scale tend to suggest that declining rural communities are not self-sustaining enough to justify the public expenditures that they need to function.[103] A particular municipality's entire economic activity--local wages earned, property 757 taxes collected, and developers attracted, for example--may still be lower than the local and external public inputs that would be needed to meet residents' needs. Those inputs would also need to be disproportionately high on a per resident basis than they would for urban communities.

This tension raises the question of whether higher rural costs per capita mean that rural communities' existence cannot be justified, to the extent that their survival depends on disproportionately high public support and intervention.[104] Such diseconomies of scale are a constant concern underlying the question of whether and how public services should be provided to rural communities.[105] Rural communities are seen as a relatively inefficient use of resources; city-dwellers may resent the idea of having to "subsidize" rural life.[106] Diseconomies of scale also explain private enterprises' reluctance to locate in rural communities due to the more limited returns on their investments.

Proposals to pursue revitalization policies for rural communities need to account for the ever-present question of supposed rural inefficiency when measured on the basis of costs per capita. In later sections, this Article moves the discussion beyond what are ultimately relatively narrow questions of costs and return on investment. A community's worth and contributions to society, it is argued, cannot necessarily be summed up on an accounting sheet, a perspective that past regulatory policy seemed to embrace more readily.

II. Rural America's Relationship with Regulation

This Part provides a limited legal history of rural America and its relationship with economic regulation. Section IIA discusses late nineteenth-and early twentieth-century legal regimes that sought to protect rural communities and nurture their economic growth by regulating common carriers and public utilities. Section II.B moves to the mid- to late-century era of deregulation and its often-fatal effects for rural communities. Section II.C argues that the phenomena highlighted in II.B are an underappreciated part of the story of rural decline, and that the infrastructure industries' abandonment of rural communities during the deregulatory era should be recognized as a series of market failures that warrant correction.

758 A. The Old Regime, 1870s-l970s: Ensuring Rural Access to Services

In the century prior to about 1970, federal economic regulatory policy embraced the idea that rural communities needed unique forms of protection if they were going to be able to survive. Indeed, there was more recognition generally that public intervention is a necessary precursor to private growth.[107] The 1887 Interstate Commerce Act (ICA), which introduced new regulations overseeing the railroad industry, reflected Congress's first significant intervention to control a major economic sector.[108] The ICA laid the groundwork for the next several decades of economic regulation of infrastructure industries by introducing the mandate for service providers not to discriminate among localities, to charge "reasonable and just rates," and to publish tariffs in the interest of transparency.[109]

The ICA's provisions "appl[ied] to any common carrier or carriers engaged in the transportation of passengers or property wholly by railroad, or partly by railroad and partly by water when both are used, under a common control, management, or arrangement," in interstate or international travel.[110] A common carrier was understood to be engaged in transportation of products or passengers for the benefit of the public, as opposed to those who typically engaged in ad hoc contractual arrangements.[111] The ICA also created the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) in order to implement and oversee the new regulatory regime.[112]

In the 1886 debates over the ICA, legislators consistently returned to the vulnerability of small and remote towns, as well as the "interior" of the country, to high rates and exploitation by unscrupulous railroad operators seeking to maximize their profits.[113] Common concerns included the risks 759 of the countryside depopulating, businesses having to close, and allowing or facilitating the concentrated growth of a few commercial centers if the railroads' ability to discriminate among localities remained unchecked.[114] For instance, Senator Camden of West Virginia commented that manufacturers and shippers in parts of the country with disadvantaged access to transportation "may be either forced into bankruptcy or compelled to remove their business to the cities or competitive railroad centers."[115] He observed that this would have "the effect of driving population and business enterprise from the country and the towns to the cities and centers of railroad competition, and of creating for one section over another section commercial advantages which no power ought to be permitted to exercise."[116]

Senator Miller of New York expressed a similar concern about commercial disadvantages to remote places and problems associated with compelling residents and businesses to move to cities. He proposed that "diversified industries should be spread all over the country and not brought together in a few great centers."[117] Miller argued that inequitable rail rates, by coercing relocation to urban centers for access to cheap transportation, were "making a few great centers rich--rich not out of newly created wealth, but rich simply because you transfer wealth from other portions of our country to those great centers."[118] Miller referred to "[t]he abnormal 760 growth of our great cities," attributing it "almost entirely to the discriminations of railroad companies."[119] He argued that, but for this discrimination, "instead of a few great and overgrown centers where wealth is accumulated enormously ... there would now be scattered all over this broad country in every little village and hamlet the great industries which collect around a few great competing points."[120]

Legislators were not merely concerned with fairness to small and remote places and their residents, but also with the public benefits of having widespread, equitable access to affordable transportation, at least for shipping purposes.[121] Senator Cullom of Illinois remarked upon the benefits to consumers, arguing, "[e]very portion of this country ... is alike interested in having the products of different sections of the country moved long distances at cheap rates, which benefit the people who require these products as well as the people who raise them."[122] He emphasized further that it was in "the interest of the whole country" that domestic products find a market somewhere, making this "not simply a question of whether Tom Jones can get his corn to market in Springfield," but rather, "what the general policy shall be in order to encourage commerce all over this land."[123]

Like today, the prospect of protecting remote and sparsely populated places had detractors. For instance, New York Senator Platt criticized the possibility of all localities along railroad branches receiving comparable rates regardless of distance traveled. Raising concerns mirroring the efficiency considerations outlined above, he questioned the wisdom of charging the same rates for near and remote places "without reference to the cost of construction or the amount of business which is to be upon those branches" for branches that ran "through a sparsely populated country ... and where there is very little business and over a road which it has cost no 761 less to build."[124] Much commentary seemed to agree that an overly strict rule could cause harm, and exceptions were built into the legislation based upon potential hardships to railroad operators.[125] The bill passed the Senate with 47 votes in favor, four votes against, and 25 absences on May 12, 1886, and it passed the House with 219 votes in favor, 41 votes against, and 58 absences on January 21, 1887.[126]

This discussion is not meant to suggest that the post-ICA railroad system was perfect; the evolution of the industry was always plagued by controversy, exploitative practices, and financial complexities.[127] The ICC was also not necessarily the most potent administrator, at least initially.[128] Nonetheless, the ICA's intervention was largely effective in enabling small, remote, and rural places to access rail lines. In 1917, the national core rail network for freight and passenger service had 254,000 miles, compared to 140,000 today.[129] A passenger during that era could travel from Maine to Florida without changing trains.[130] By 1929, "[a]lmost every town and village in the nation enjoyed rail passenger service."[131]

Rural access to the rail lines in turn yielded the positive, or at least insulating, effects for economic development in remote communities that the ICA's drafters anticipated. In the early twentieth century, "thanks to the railroads, corporations now saw the whole country as a unified market, encouraging businesses to expand beyond the borders of a particular state or region. America was now a national economy, rather than a series of 762 regional ones[.]"[132] As an example, historian Richard Orsi argues that the Southern Pacific Railroad played an integral, even intentional role, in Western "regional economic development, small-farm settlement, agricultural change, and environmental policy."[133] These relationships make sense, ultimately; a functioning, affordable transportation sector is a necessary precursor to economic growth, just as the absence of transportation will necessarily stifle commerce.[134]

Congress amended the ICA with the Motor Carrier Act of 1935 (MCA) to bring trucks and buses under the ICC's purview alongside railroads, in significant part due to the railroads' insistence that it was unfair for them to be the sole transportation industry impeded by strict regulation.[135] Similar strains in public sentiment also drove the MCA's passage: competition among truckers during the Great Depression had reached extreme levels, and "[s]ome feared that continuation of such unrestrained market forces might lead to a loss of service or higher prices for small shippers and communities, leaving the surviving carriers to concentrate on high-revenue traffic."[136]

Rural priorities seemed more mixed during debates over the MCA as compared to the ICA.[137] During the 1934 debates over the bill in the House of Representatives, one congressman submitted telegrams from constituents pointing out that rural communities who still lacked rail access depended disproportionately on the trucking industry. Federal regulation of trucks, they argued, would increase the costs associated with trucking and have an adverse impact on small and independent carriers.[138] A representative of the 763 Eastern Apple Growers' Council testified before the House of Representatives:

> [W]ith the passage of this bill and the ultimate carrying out of all of the provisions ... you are going to eliminate the small independent truck owner and turn the truck transportation over to large transportation companies ...
> You take, for instance, now we have common carrier lines running out of the smaller cities in Virginia and all over the country, supplying storekeepers and merchants throughout the country that have no railroad facilities. Those trucks run regularly, on regular routes, and haul the goods out and the produce out under intrastate regulations.
> Now, if you put them under Federal regulation it will finally raise the cost of transportation .... You are going to affect the price level of the purchases and the sales of every farmer in every rural community in the entire United States.

> ... I am a champion of the small and independent carrier, because he is the salvation of the rural section, so far as transportation costs are concerned. If we can keep him independent and unregulated, our transportation costs will be kept down.[139]

On the other hand, a representative of the Oneonta Chamber of Commerce and other Upstate New York organizations argued in favor of increased regulation. His region's economic activity largely depended on rail, and he argued that "communities where railroads and railroad employees are important factors ... are all interested in overcoming the handicaps put on railroad transportation by unregulated carriers by water and motor trucks."[140] He insisted that this was a "vital" question for "agricultural sections of the country."[141] Similarly, a representative for southern grain shippers argued that "our business is in jeopardy on account of unregulated" transportation, and that the ICA was a success "because we do not have to worry about giving a big dinner party, or having a poker 764 party, or something of that sort, in order to get a rate" in rail transportation.[142]

The MCA ultimately seemed to attempt to reconcile competing rural interests. It provided that common carriers by motor vehicle needed to secure a certificate of public convenience and necessity from the ICC in order to operate, and that such providers could not engage in unjust discrimination among localities.[143] But it automatically grandfathered in carriers operating before June 1, 1935.[144] The Act also excluded "motor vehicles controlled and operated by any farmer, and used in the transportation of his agricultural commodities and products thereof, or in the transportation of supplies to his farm" and "motor vehicles used exclusively in carrying livestock, fish (including shell fish), or agricultural commodities [.]"[145]

According to Paul Stephen Dempsey, the MCA, like the ICA, succeeded in providing equitable rural access to these transportation services. After the MCA's passage:

> Destructive competition abated, and during the half century which followed, motor carrier service was ubiquitously available throughout the nation at a price which was "just and reasonable." Service was safe and dependable to large and small communities throughout the nation .... [T]here was some measure of "cross subsidization" performed under the regulatory umbrella of the ICC ... with more lucrative, denser traffic lanes paying a premium above marginal costs to subsidize rural and small community service.[146]

Congress continued its pattern of intervention with the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938 (CAA).[147] In advocating the legislation's passage, aviator Colonel Edgar Gorrell, one of the law's most ardent advocates, argued in testimony before Congress that smaller airlines required protection against stronger, larger lines.[148] He contended that by "reaching out into the regions of light-density traffic and developing smaller communities, the small lines 765 have performed an incalculable service to the country."[149] To keep providing that service, they needed assurance through "an opportunity to protect themselves against even the possibility of oppressive competition."[150] The CAA was passed, and "entry regulation was imposed upon the infant airline industry, in part, so that small communities would have access to this emerging mode of transport."[151]

Congress once again continued on the path of intervention with the Transportation Act of 1940.[152] This was the first federal effort to craft a comprehensive national transportation policy,[153] and the first time "a national transportation policy governing all agencies subject to the Interstate Commerce act [sic] ha[d] been enacted."[154] Its "chief feature" was "further extension of unified and centralized control of domestic transportation," including adding water carriers to the ICC's purview, setting additional rates and permit requirements, and establishing a Board of Investigation and Research to study each mode of transportation.[155] Overall, transportation policies culminating with the 1940 act "reflect[ed] a strong congressional policy that the public in rural areas be protected against pricing and service discrimination."[156]

As with transportation, regulatory policy of the era embraced the idea that geographically equitable access to telecommunications services was necessary. After the advent of the telephone in 1876, Alexander Graham Bell's use of his patented technology helped him establish the American Telephone and Telegraph Company (AT&T) in 1895, which initially had a monopoly.[157] With the expiration of the patents just after 1900, AT&T encountered competition from independent companies.[158] Theodore Vail, then-president of AT&T, "pressed for universal service and government regulation to curb what he saw as wasteful competition."[159] AT&T was then brought under the jurisdiction of the ICC with the Mann-Elkins Act of 1910, which amended the ICA.[160] The Act applied "to telegraph, telephone, and 766 cable companies (whether wired or wireless) engaged in sending messages from one State, Territory, or District of the United States, to any other ... who shall be considered and held to be common carriers."[161] It excluded from the Act "the transmission of messages by telephone, telegraph, or cable wholly within one State."[162] It provided that all charges made for "the transmission of messages by telegraph, telephone, or cable ... shall be just and reasonable"[163] and that rates and charges for telegraph and telephone transmissions could not be "unjust or unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory."[164]

The Radio Acts of 1912 and 1927 also held major implications for rural access to telecommunications. The former placed radio communications under the jurisdiction of the ICC.[165] The latter created the Federal Radio Commission and established the standard that radio stations, in order to receive a license, needed to show that the "public interest, convenience, or necessity would be served by the granting" of the license.[166] In advocating passage of the Radio Act of 1927, Congressman Johnson of Texas commented that his rural constituents had requested that Congress intervene with anti-monopoly, anti-discrimination measures:

> The people of Texas are interested in legislation on this subject .... I want to quote from [a letter] which I received ... from a farmer who lives in an inland rural community in my home country .... [T]he writer says:
> ["]Please use your influence in keeping corporations from getting control of the air by a series of chain stations, high-power stations, purchase of wave lengths, or any other monopoly that would create further disturbances which will interfere with our listening in on other closer-in stations. The combination of the eight large stations in the northeast[] ... are very annoying to people in Texas.["][167]

Congress subsequently enacted the Communications Act of 1934 and modeled it after the ICA.[168] As with the Transportation Act of the same period, rural interests were mixed, with some advocating protections and universal service and others arguing that small, independent rural service 767 providers and their constituents would be better off left alone.[169] Many rural communities were served by small, independent phone companies with just a few dozen to a few hundred customers.[170] Their representatives insisted that complying with additional federal regulations would impose costs on companies that were already struggling to survive and serve their constituents.[171] On the other hand, some remained concerned about rural access to quality radio communications, particularly since rural communities were disproportionately dependent on radio.[172] Texas Congressman Thomas Blanton, in advocating for protecting rural access to radio communications, argued, "every congressional district of the United States is entitled to a small local station, and I want to see every Congressman here have at least a small local station in his home town. The people are entitled to this."[173]

The Communications Act of 1934 created the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and tasked it with ensuring "so far as possible, to all the people of the United States a rapid, efficient, Nation-wide, and world-wide wire and radio communication service with adequate facilities at reasonable charges."[174] Like the MCA, it seemed to try to reconcile competing rural interests. The Act specifically excluded from its purview any intrastate communications or any wire communications already regulated by a state commission.[175] This would have excluded small, independent, locally focused telephone companies. But the Act's mandate for universal service was broad, meaning that those rural communities without service would be able to receive it under the Act, which provided:

> It shall be the duty of every common carrier engaged in interstate or foreign communication by wire or radio to furnish such 768 communication service upon reasonable request therefor; and, in accordance with the orders of the Commission, in cases where the Commission, after opportunity for hearing, finds such action necessary or desirable in the public interest, to establish physical connections with other carriers, to establish through routes and charges applicable thereto and the divisions of such charges, and to establish and provide facilities and regulations for operating such through routes.[176]

The Act required that charges for services be "just and reasonable" and prohibited common carriers from making "any unjust or unreasonable discrimination."[177] Its goal of achieving universal service meant that "subscribers in rural, isolated and high-cost areas ... should have access to services at comparable rates to those available in urban areas."[178]

The tensions surrounding telecommunications service provision, access, and pricing mirrored those surrounding transportation.[179] In the 1950s, telephone companies requested rate increases, but were denied by the Public Utility Commissions that oversaw them in part due to the public policy objective of universal service.[180] Instead of increasing rates, agencies developed a policy of subsidizing local rates by making long-distance rates more expensive, thereby making local rates more affordable for average users.[181] This meant that "the generous profits earned on heavily trafficked, densely populated (urban) routes subsidized less profitable, thin (rural) markets."[182] This substantial revenue-shifting system persisted for several 769 decades. As late as 1983, "the average monthly price charged for local residential service was about $11, while the average monthly cost of providing the service was approximately $26."[183]

Although perhaps less profitable for the service providers, these approaches were effective. Telephone access went from forty percent of U.S. households in 1930 to more than ninety percent in 1970.[184] Rural access to radio, alongside rural electrification pursued in the same era, is credited with modernizing the American countryside. Like transportation, affordable access to telecommunications is an essential part of economic vitality.[185] Specifically, "the availability of telecommunication services reduces isolation, increases business viability, improves farming productivity, and improves access to educational and medical services."[186] The availability of quality telecommunications infrastructure can help rural communities attract other resources and thrive, while on the flip side, the absence of effective telecommunications may doom a region to economic stagnation.[187]

In general, the regulatory approach for public utilities in this era sought to reduce competition for several reasons. Certain service providers were deemed to have natural monopolies, or markets where high costs of entry would result in "economic waste" if competition were allowed by making customers pay multiple times for fixed costs of infrastructure, such as stringing telephone wires.[188] Thus, policymakers actively advocated barriers to entry and unification of services in order to allow the service provider in question to achieve an economy of scale.[189] But the question of rural access also revealed that competition needed to be curtailed for another reason: if small, independent rural service providers--like telephone companies, radio stations, and truck companies--were forced to compete with large corporate companies, the rural service providers were going to lose, which would likely also mean a drop in quality of service to rural communities. Further, if competition remained unfettered, more rural communities risked not being served at all.

From the passage of the ICA through the 1940s, the regulatory frameworks that governed the transportation and telecommunications 770 industries served the goal of securing, enhancing, or protecting rural service in four main ways. First, those frameworks removed barriers to rural access to services by forcing companies to be responsive to rural service requests through principles of non-discrimination.[190] Second, they protected existing rural services by excluding or protecting small, independent intrastate service providers from regulation, and by protecting existing providers from competition so they could achieve economies of scale.[191] Third, they limited service providers' ability to abandon rural service by requiring administrative justifications to do so and refusing requests if those justifications did not comport with public interest standards.[192] And fourth, they helped make rural services affordable through measures such as subsidizing rural rates with profits from less-expensive regions and by imposing the "just and reasonable" standard for rates.[193]

Altogether, these protections created a framework that had a substantial impact in helping rural communities overcome the handicap of the diseconomies of scale that naturally arise with distance and population sparseness. As Ganesh Sitaraman, Morgan Ricks, and Christopher Serkin observe, this regulatory order "promoted geographic dispersion in economic activity ... [and] helped construct an era of geographic convergence in the mid-twentieth century."[194] While regional wealth today tends to be concentrated in a handful of megacities, during this regulatory period, more 771 wealth moved across geographic boundaries. This distributional geographic equity was in large part due to the role of the regulatory apparatus in evening the playing field for disadvantaged localities that would otherwise be what they are seen as today-- "left behind."[195]

Of course, regulated industries mandated to provide non-discriminatory access and fair rates to rural communities did not create rural Utopias. Rural America was already transforming in the early twentieth century.[196] Agricultural economics were changing; populations fluctuated.[197] Economic regulation of infrastructure industries is not the only policy affecting rural communities. But as the next section shows, the transition to deregulating certain common carriers and public utilities inflicted a deep wound on rural communities--one that was easy to overlook from the vantage of the city, and one that made it all the harder for rural communities to recover from other shocks they would experience in the coming decades.

B. The New Regime, 1970s - the Present

The national rail system was not doing well by the 1950s and 60s.[198] Increasingly disgruntled rail companies used freight profits to subsidize struggling passenger lines.[199] With the Transportation Act of 1958, Congress limited state PUCs' jurisdiction over passenger train discontinuances and expanded the ICC's powers to allow discontinuances, pushing train service further down a path to decline.[200] By the late 1960s, train passengers experienced "poor service, schedules, and abrasive treatment" by railroads.[201] Rail companies supposedly had "deliberately downgraded standards and discouraged patronage" because of their desire to discontinue service on unprofitable lines.[202]

772 The Supreme Court set the stage for increased rates of discontinuing common carrier services with its 1964 decision in Southern Railway Co. v. North Carolina,[203] which tilted the scale in the decision-making process more heavily in favor of carrier profits over potential impacts of loss of service on local populations. Southern Railway and the ICC's evolving standards paved the way for railways to discontinue common carrier service. While 1929 saw a peak of 20,000 passenger trains, "the number of passenger trains fell by 60 percent between 1958 and 1970. By 1970, only 360 intercity trains were left."[204]

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT WESTLAW © 2021 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

Demand grew for Congress to address the "national disgrace" of the railroads.[205] The Rail Passenger Service Act of 1970 reflected Congress's effort to save passenger rail service with the creation of Amtrak.[206] However, this law would usher in a new era of transportation deregulation that would deeply exacerbate rural isolation.[207] Nevertheless, some advocates of rural interests saw themselves as having no other choice. Senator Frank Church of Idaho explained why he reluctantly planned to vote in favor of the law:

> I have no confidence that this legislation will really solve the problems of providing clean, comfortable, and salable railroad passenger service ....
> ... The theory seems to be that the Union Pacific can improve its railroad passenger service by removing it altogether. Many passengers who have suffered the poor service, schedules, and abrasive treatment of the railroad may feel that way also.
> Yet there are other people in rural areas who still must rely on train transportation ....
> ....
> ... I will support the legislation. I hope that ... it will result in some measure of assistance to the people of my State of Idaho.[208]

Perhaps most significantly, the Act created the National Railroad Passenger Corporation, which superseded the ICC as the overseer of 773 passenger rail service and continued the trend of chipping away at the ICC as protector of geographic equity.[209] As private rail gave way to Amtrak, 500 additional communities lost intercity passenger train service.[210] As of the late 1980s, commentators observed that "with the exception of the heavily traveled Boston-Washington corridor, service levels on American passenger trains are the worst in the world."[211] Meanwhile, throughout these developments, "thousands of small communities" were "pruned from the system."[212]

Legislators debating the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 recognized the grave risks deregulation posed to rural communities in light of the blow loss of airline service would inflict. Some insisted that the law included adequate protective measures. Kansas Republican Senator James Pearson explained that he:

> had some reservations ... related more to the problems of local air service in those rural parts of our country where rail passenger transportation no longer exists, where bus service is inadequate, and where in many instances the commuter service or local air service is really one of the last means of people achieving a sense of communication and doing their commerce and business as is necessary.

> ... I think [a change made to address that concern] adequately fills the needs of the local air carriers in a new and abbreviated certified manner with a new subsidy program.
> ... It is a phased deregulation. It is not total deregulation ....
> ... [M]y concern was for the small and isolated communities across the country. Communities that depend upon subsidized air service for economic growth and stability. But I now believe that the bill adequately protects such communities.[213]

In a similar vein, New Mexico Republican Senator Harrison Schmitt said during debates that his primary concern was "what would happen to the small communities of our country."[214] He said he believed that "small communities will be treated most fairly" because they would have a guarantee of air service for the first time.[215] He outlined the bill's provisions 774 that would protect small communities, including direct subsidies, a guarantee of air service for ten years, a requirement for an airline wishing to abandon a small community to be replaced, and a new certification for local air carriers with more liberal regulations.[216]

Others were less optimistic. South Dakota Democratic Senator George McGovern characterized airline deregulation as a "grim scenario" with virtually immeasurable downstream effects on municipal airport investments and airline industry employees with specialized skills.[217] But "[t]he focal point" of his concern was "the air service for smaller communities."[218] He anticipated a mass exit of rural service providers and a deterioration of service where it still existed, emphasizing that policymakers should look to what would happen after the ten-year phaseout.[219] Advocates for small communities also testified before Congress, "provid[ing] example after example of the discriminatory fares and deteriorating service resulting from deregulation," trends which would fall disproportionately on small, remote localities across the country.[220]

As McGovern predicted, the airline industry followed in step with the rail industry in curtailing service to rural communities. The Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 allowed "[a]ll but the last carrier in a market" to be free to discontinue service at will.[221] Congress did establish a ten-year program of federal subsidies to provide air service to impacted small communities, although it was generally "alleged that small communities had little to fear from deregulation" because of some policymakers' insistence that regional markets would adjust to meet needs.[222] Yet, 40% of small communities experienced a loss of air service after deregulation.[223] Meanwhile, ticket prices increased disproportionately for those communities, in addition to a rise in other convenience and safety concerns.[224]

Common carrier exits contributed to a demonstrable downward cycle for these communities, and many of these trends came before the ten-year 775 federal subsidy to ensure service to small communities ran out.[225] Regional access to commerce is in large part dependent on regional access to affordable transportation; the vast majority of major businesses at the time indicated in a survey that they would not locate in an area without access to air transportation.[226] With a national shift away from manufacturing in the 1980s toward the service sector, large employers began to require sophisticated communications and information systems, including high-quality air service, which had come to be viewed as a comparable necessity to electricity and telephones--prompting some to argue that air service should be treated as a public utility.[227] Just as Western ghost towns proliferated as a result of discontinued rail service, a bankrupt airline could create a ghost town. While some praised these deregulatory efforts as laudable moves toward efficiency, other commentary at the time lamented the retreat of critical public protections.[228]

Finally, "[w]ith the passenger trains having vanished from rural America, and with commercial aircraft no longer landing at many small town airports, the only means of public intercity transport left was the bus."[229] But, following in step, the Bus Regulatory Reform Act of 1982 expanded carriers' ability to abandon or discontinue service and raise fares. Local residents could attempt to forestall abandonment by proving that a closure would leave them without alternative means of public transport. Yet, the ICC consistently sided with companies, prompting the New York Department of Transportation to claim that the ICC showed "a total disregard and lack of concern for the welfare of the riding public."[230] A mere eleven months after deregulation, 1,294 locations in forty states lost or were proposed to lose service, 776 of whom lost intercity service entirely.[231] Most 776 of those communities had populations of less than 10,000.[232] In short, "[i]n less than [one] year, almost [one] million people lost their bus service."[233]

In 1991, Congress passed the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA), which formally devolved highway planning to the states.[234] In 1998, the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century mandated statewide transportation planning, which included some of the first planning initiatives for rural areas.[235] Yet, today, rural communities remain isolated from national transportation networks. Anyone who has sought to take a bus, train, or plane to a remote or small town has experienced the expense and inconvenience associated with modern rural transportation access.[236]

As the regulation of rural telecommunications mirrored the regulation of rural transportation, so did deregulation, although the legal pathway was a bit different. In the 1940s, AT&T's size and dominance drew the attention of the U.S. Department of Justice, which argued as early as a 1949 lawsuit that AT&T was in violation of the Sherman Act and that its lack of competition undermined the goals of public regulation.[237] AT&T agreed in a 1956 consent decree that it would limit its activities to the telecommunications sector, license its technologies to competitors, and subject itself to competition from other firms.[238] It jostled for power with competitors injudicial and agency processes for the next twenty years when the political tides were turning even further away from the natural monopoly model. 1984 then saw the largest corporate dismantling in the history of antitrust, when AT&T was forced to divest itself of Bell operating companies.[239]

Like with transportation, deregulation of the telecommunications sector was disproportionately hard on rural communities. Specifically, Dempsey wrote in 1989:

> 777 Deregulation ... affected rural telephone bills as telephone companies passed on more of the actual service cost to their customers. In the past, federal regulation supported rural subsidies. Under rate-averaging requirements, the FCC required telephone companies to charge urban and rural customers the same for service, despite the fact that fewer customers were available to cover fixed costs .... Adequate telecommunications services at a reasonable price are essential for economic growth ....
> [R]ural telephone bills have increased. The process of deregulation could hasten depopulation of rural areas and further the congestion of urban areas because of the greater availability and lower costs of essential services in urban areas.[240]

Universal service is still a legal mandate for phone service providers today, both wired and cellular.[241] Yet, rural communities have been left behind in this sector as well. Dempsey observed in his writing thirty years ago that rural communities were being left out of the "technology revolution"; that rural communities might "never be strung to the national fiber optics system"; and that generally, "whatever benefits urban regions of the nation may enjoy in terms of new technology and increased competition, these benefits appear not to be trickling down to the rural regions of the nation."[242]

Replacing the Telecommunications Act of 1934, the Telecommunications Act of 1996 brought "[t]he cornerstone of telecommunications deregulation in the United States."[243] Ironically, then, the telecommunications sector was turned loose just as the seeds were planted for the internet to grow into one of the most important fundamental services of modern society. The "public interest" standard, once encompassing only the needs of "subscribers," "broadened to include private business and the market. Thus, the public interest morphed into a competitive economic environment."[244] In reducing the role for the FCC's oversight, the Act broke up traditional regulated phone monopolies and gave state public utility commissions responsibility for ensuring universal service and for overseeing pricing.

The 1996 Act mandated funding for rural schools, libraries, and healthcare facilities' telecommunications technology. But it "left out low- 778 income households and high cost regions, including rural areas."[245] As a result of relaxed regulations, some rural regions were left "with antiquated telephone technology" that technically meets modern federal requirements for universal service, but still "provides a menu of services far below those available in urban areas."[246] Again perhaps ironically, the current framework does use the old tool of cross-subsidization to enhance rural access to broadband internet, but most commentators agree that this tool alone, particularly as it is implemented, does not do nearly enough to ensure universal, equitable service to this critical amenity that serves as the gateway for access to many important downstream uses.[247]

C. Rural Abandonment as a Series of Market Failures

Many of today's challenging rural conditions can be traced back to deregulation. Rural communities other than those considered amenity-rich have experienced deterioration as populations have migrated to cities, regional employers have shuttered, local governments have lost tax revenue critical to providing basic services, and infrastructure has aged. This downward cycle of economic non-development is precisely what policymakers and rural advocates have feared since the debates over the ICA: when necessary infrastructure services are not required to provide service to less profitable places, they do not. The move toward service providers' discretionary service provision has contributed to the concentration of services in smaller geographic areas, regional economic turmoil, the depopulation of the countryside, and exacerbated geographic wealth inequality.

Commentary on rural communities today has some consistent themes. Rural communities have been "abandoned," "left behind," made "strangers in their own land."[248] White rural residents are portrayed as resentful, enraged, and alienated. In searching for the causes of this alienation, commentary often points to two factors. The first is the disproportionate economic growth that has benefited cities, associated with the loss of traditional livelihoods that have contributed to rural obsolescence.[249] The second is increasing demographic diversity and cultural progressivism, 779 much of which is seen in cities, making disproportionately older, white rural residents feel culturally estranged and angry.[250]

As to the first factor, ample commentary points to globalization and automation as drivers of rural obsolescence, a narrative which prior work has challenged.[251] Critically, deregulation remains an under-examined player lurking in the background of both the economic and cultural marginalization factors. Deregulating the transportation and telecommunications industries literally isolated rural communities, cutting them off from the rest of the country and exacerbating regional financial burdens.[252] This not only excluded them from national and regional economic activity, but also excised them from the broader cultural ecosystem. What was to be expected after rural communities were cut off from trains, planes, buses, and their access to communications systems made more expensive, other than economic stagnation and cultural estrangement?

Yet, the need to cultivate rural America remains. As Laurie Ristino has observed in Surviving Climate Change in America: Toward a Rural Resilience Framework, "[r]ural America has a key role to play in our national resilience because it is the locus of our nation's ecosystem services, including food and fiber provisioning."[253] Others have observed that transitions to renewable energy will require drawing more upon rural land and workers in light of the substantial footprint such installations often require.[254] In addition to the provision of food, energy, and fibers, as mentioned in this Article's introduction, rural communities have important potential as better-supported stewards of eighty percent of the country's land mass, such as in the management of forestland to prevent or mitigate devastating wildfires.[255] Other important roles for rural communities 780 include maintaining outdoor recreation opportunities, safeguarding priceless heritage sites, and helping conserve or manage wildlife.[256]

In light of deregulation's role in undercutting the important services rural America is uniquely positioned to provide--and few would suggest that our current food and energy systems are acceptable as is--infrastructure industries' abandonment of rural communities should be viewed as a series of market failures. Despite developments attempting to maintain rural service provision even after deregulation, rural communities today are relatively isolated both from national transportation networks and national telecommunications networks. Where they are connected, the services they receive may be less robust or more expensive.[257]

This isolation and its associated harms to rural communities' contributions to society could be categorized under two different versions of "market failure." Generally, "[e]conomists use the term market failure to describe less than optimally functioning markets."[258] Markets are only allowed to operate based on the understanding that markets "enhance overall well-being" by moving toward optimal allocations of resources.[259]

The failure of markets to furnish rural communities with adequate infrastructure services could be considered as either or both of two different types of market failure. First, consumers may fall victim to market failures in a variety of conditions, including a "lack of choice due to a paucity of alternative sellers."[260] That is, if consumers demand a good or service but that good or service is in low supply, a market failure is present.[261] Rural communities certainly exemplify this today; if one simply attempts to purchase a plane ticket for a remote locality or nearby, the likely high price of the ticket illustrates how rural communities bear this burden.

A second version of market failure is the phenomenon known as the tragedy of the commons, or a failure to protect public goods.[262] The tragedy 781 of the commons arises when markets fail to protect or sustain goods or services that are important to everyone.[263] In light of rural communities' ongoing importance to the nation--and their close relationship with the classic example of the common good, the natural environment--markets' failures to sustain rural communities in and of themselves should be considered a tragedy of the commons. In other words, rural socioeconomic decline in and of itself reflects a tragedy of the commons--the classic market failure.

This argument does raise a fundamental question about rural revitalization: what about those communities that may never have served some form of national interest, or do not seem like they are well-positioned to? Should the approaches discussed in the next section still apply to them, or do we draw the line at some point in terms of a particular community's worthiness? For instance, former coal mining communities in Central Appalachia once contributed to the national energy grid; perhaps infrastructure markets' abandonment of them was a market failure during that era, but it is not necessarily clear now that this particular region warrants intervention, at least based on this rationale.[264]

This question implicates several important issues. First, greater recognition of the deep problems with the ways food and energy are produced could inform a substantially different vision of a possible rural future.[265] Both sectors require substantial restructuring. If food production is to be sustainable from an environmental and public health standpoint, it cannot continue to rely so fundamentally on monoculture cash crops, concentrated animal feeding operations, and other forms of hazardous industrialized agriculture.[266] Similarly, the need for low-carbon energy production is urgent, and will require a substantial land use footprint.[267] Enhanced wildlife and ecosystem conservation is also a pressing national 782 need.[268] Rural communities, by their nature being population-sparse and proximal to more land, will need to be a central part of these solutions.

Thus, for any given community, the question should not be, "do they contribute to national interests?," but rather, "could they contribute to national interests?"[269] Again, this raises the point made earlier that these proposals are not seeking to recreate the rural America of the past, but to envision its role for the future. This question would in turn raise questions about how rural community economic development should be pursued more generally. Although prior work has argued that a vision for any given region's economic future must involve input from residents affected,[270] there is of course an important role for state and federal actors to contemplate and incentivize rural activities that contribute to national welfare.

Mobility, political stability, sovereignty, and ethical concerns are four additional considerations that factor into the question of intervention, regardless of a given region's contributions to national interests. Perhaps an existing community has nothing to offer--it would be difficult for a policymaker or other decisionmaker to conclude as much, but maybe it could be true.

In that case, asking four additional questions could help inform a path forward. First, are there barriers to mobility that keep the residents of this place from relocating to another region with a higher quality of life?[271] Second, does non-intervention nevertheless pose a threat to political stability that comes with destabilized socioeconomic welfare, as was arguably illustrated with high rates of rural support for President Trump?[272] Third, in the context of Native American reservations, which are mostly rural, is the given community imbued with sovereignty as an independent nation such that coercing relocation by neglect would be tantamount to 783 destroying a country?[273] And, fourth, could some other deep attachment to place also warrant against letting the community die, even if it does not benefit collective welfare?[274] One would be hard-pressed to find a locality where at least one of the answers to these questions is not in the affirmative. But to the extent a particular locality could be deemed beyond help, the straggles of the residents there would still implicate broader questions of non-place-specific problems with deep socioeconomic inequality.

In short, while this discussion does insist upon the import of ongoing rural contributions to society, it is not necessarily the case that rural communities should be mandated to earn their keep, so to speak, in order to merit access to infrastructure and other basic necessities. The next section examines what type of steps could be taken to counteract the trends of rural infrastructure abandonment, both through the lens of concern for the rural consumer and because of concern for common goods and services associated with rural livelihoods.

III. Correcting Rural Infrastructure Markets in the Modern Era

One would be hard-pressed to argue that that the regulatory apparatus of the past--relying fundamentally on mechanisms such as universal service mandates, cross-subsidization, tariffs, and service bundling--can simply be revived as a part of a reform effort to help overcome the barrier of rural diseconomies of scale.[275] Cross-subsidizing telephone rates, for example, may have worked a century ago, but would be less feasible in today's political climate.[276] The approach has been used in the context of broadband, but is largely viewed as not going far enough to achieve the aim of universal service.[277] This suggests that creative, novel thinking about market interventions in the modern context are warranted. This Part argues that if we are truly to understand and meet the needs of rural communities-- 784 which we should do not just for their sake, but for everyone's--our understanding of infrastructure will need to be broadened, which will also require a recalibration of the balance between public and private interests.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A new scholarly movement has sought to revitalize the idea of the public utility and to examine what a modernized version of infrastructural regulation could and should look like.[278] K. Sabeel Rahman has developed a framework for conceptualizing "the new utilities"--that is, contemplating where the balance between public and private interests should stand today and what today's version of interventions into markets, particularly for those markets affecting services thought of as "infrastructure," ought to be.[279] Rahman argues that the 1870s-1970s regulatory toolkit can actually be seen as broader than it is often characterized. It involved "a range of interventions aimed at addressing the problem of power over infrastructure," but did not necessarily insist on any particular approach.[280] Thus, even initially, the concept of regulatory interventions "was essentially fluid" and could change alongside changes in technological and economic conditions.[281] Rahman therefore argues that the old vision of regulation does not need to be resurrected by way of rote mimicry in the post-deregulatory era. Rather, there is a need to build upon the original approaches and contemplate "a more modern and flexible way of adapting public utility traditions to contemporary infrastructure."[282]

Rahman's framework has unique applicability to the rural question because it offers guidance as to when and how policymakers should seek to overcome the natural rural handicap of diseconomies of scale by intervening into markets.[283] This Part draws upon Rahman's framework to articulate possible pathways that could be used to help redirect markets to rural communities and when such intervention is warranted.[284] In laying the foundation for his proposed framework for regulating infrastructure, Rahman explains that "a variety of tools" including "oversight, structuralist regulations, and public options" should be considered in the arsenal of 785 approaches for regulating infrastructure today.[285] These tools should then be applied to sectors with certain infrastructure-like characteristics.

Rahman's framework includes three analytical steps to determine the optimal approach to a given question about whether and how to regulate a sector as "infrastructure." The first step is to diagnose what counts as "infrastructure." He defines infrastructural goods and services as having three defining characteristics. The first is that "infrastructure arises where there might be some form of economies of scale in production."[286] The second factor "is the degree to which the good or service unlocks a wide range of downstream uses."[287] And the third is "the risk of vulnerability to private power or domination."[288]

Once a good or service is categorized as infrastructure, the second step is to draw from "a flexible range of tools" in order to assure fair and equal access to that good or service.[289] These tools do include the regulatory oversight typically associated with the old regulatory regime. Describing this approach as among the "central legacies" of utilities regulation, Rahman characterizes it as imposing "affirmative obligations to provide services to marginalized or overlooked constituencies, or to comply with legal standards of nondiscrimination."[290] But other tools should be considered as well. Rahman proposes "structuralist regulation" as one option, meaning "attempts to transform the corporate structures of the firms themselves providing these infrastructural goods as a way to preempt exploitative or exclusionary treatment by reducing potential conflicts of interest."[291] A third main tool Rahman highlights is the possibility of public options, in which "public actors themselves directly provide the good or service in question."[292]

The third and final step is to "develop a governance regime that assures that such utility-style regulation is itself administered in an accountable and public-interested manner."[293] Rahman proposes that policymakers today should design regulatory bodies and public utility agencies "in ways that institutionalize more systematic--and flexible--internal checks and balances."[294] In other words, a modern reconceptualization of infrastructure governance should seek to overcome the issues of the old regime that 786 undermined its accountability and legitimacy with constituents and detractors.

Rahman's framework reveals a few important points for considering the rural relationship to infrastructure. The first is that a good or service that might not be considered "infrastructure" in an urban setting might count as infrastructure in a rural one. Take, for example, a remote town's last grocery store, perhaps a Walmart or a Dollar Store. In an urban setting, such a store would be unlikely to meet the conditions under Rahman's first step characterizing infrastructure. The Walmart's "scale" would be of little significance. Although food deserts certainly exist in urban settings, local consumers would have alternative options within some municipal geographic range for buying their necessities if the Walmart left. This means the Walmart's departure would have finite effects on downstream uses, although it could of course create substantial problems for people. And because of local residents' alternative options, even if inconvenient, their vulnerability to the abuse of private power by the Walmart would also be finite.

But in a rural setting, it is possible that a single remaining Walmart in a town otherwise devoid of grocery stores should in fact be considered infrastructure. The scale of the Walmart does matter in a rural context: are there enough local residents and consumers to justify the expenses associated with operating the Walmart? In a sense, the Walmart does need to be "at scale" or it will consider leaving. Second, in a rural setting, the Walmart unlocks downstream uses just as much as a more traditional form of infrastructure such as clean water or electricity; if there is no reasonably close alternative way to procure food, people will be unable to live in the rural locality at all. Finally, the risk of vulnerability to private domination in this context is heightened due to the imbalance of power between the Walmart and the residents. The Walmart can leave and incur relatively minimal losses in the spectrum of considerations for the Walmart corporation. The rural town losing its Walmart, by contrast, stands to unravel completely with the Walmart's closure, as was the case when this happened in the former coal-mining community of McDowell County, West Virginia, in 2016.[295]

As this example illustrates, policymakers seeking to address the problem of rural infrastructure and diseconomies of scale may need to expand their understanding of what constitutes infrastructure. That is, infrastructure does 787 not necessarily need to involve multimillion-dollar projects that will take years to complete. State or federal legislatures could intervene in this particular infrastractural sector by making it harder for a resource like a Walmart to abandon its constituents, so to speak. This idea is not as novel and radical as it may sound. Social scientists have recently argued, consistent with Rahman's framework and this analysis, that state-ran grocery stores should be considered an option for meeting national food needs.[296] The authors point to state-ran alcohol stores as an illustration of the fact that our legal-economic traditions do already account for such an approach.[297] The authors also acknowledge that such an initiative would require a thicker conception of the role for policy to intervene into markets and recalibrate the balance between private interests and public ones, shifting the scale more towards the latter.[298]

Thus, an initial step for understanding the role for economic regulation in rural America is that rural diseconomies of scale mean that the concept of "infrastructure" may need to take up more space than it would in a place with higher population density, depending upon how one wants to define whether a particular sector needs to operate "at scale"--which, in a sense, any profit-making enterprise does. Other examples of goods and services that should be considered infrastructure in a rural setting may include access to primary care physicians and lawyers, access to a gas station within a reasonable distance, and access to a pharmacy. Of course, rural communities are already challenged to access the goods and services widely accepted as traditional infrastructure, including building code enforcement, police protection, schools, libraries, and clean water.[299] These conditions alone suggest the need for more robust intervention into these sectors in order to ensure that residents' basic needs are met. Some today would argue that policy does not have a role to play in meeting basic needs anymore. But this Article's discussion highlights the fact that such a view is in fact the novel and radical one, while economic regulation with a view to the public interest has far deeper and more longstanding roots in the U.S. legal tradition.[300]

How might we apply Rahman's framework to the more traditional, national-network sectors of telecommunications and transportation as they concern rural communities today? Both clearly meet the conditions to 788 constitute "infrastructure": both require scale; both are fundamental gateways to almost unquantifiable downstream uses; and both may be influenced by private caprice or domination.[301] Thus, in this context, the trickier question lies in the choices among the tools: what role is there for regulatory oversight, structural regulation, or a public option--or perhaps other approaches--for addressing the urban/rural digital divide and the gap in access to affordable, reliable transportation?

Far more attention of late has focused on the question of deploying broadband internet to rural areas than the question of rural transportation access. The legal framework today is still based on the Telecommunications Act of 1996, which established the general mandate to "promote competition and reduce regulation in order to secure lower prices and higher quality services" and "encourage the rapid deployment of new telecommunications technologies."[302] Under the Act, the FCC regulates two types of entity: (1) telecommunications carriers and (2) information-service providers. This distinction is quite important; telecommunications services are still bound by the Communications Act of 1934's regulations for common carriers, involving more stringent obligations to strive for universal service at just and reasonable rates.[303] Although the FCC categorized broadband as an information service in a controversial 2000 decision, it reversed course in 2015, a decision which broadband service providers unsuccessfully challenged.[304]

These developments may have seemed like they were going in the right direction for rural access. But in 2018, the Trump administration's FCC published its rule repealing net neutrality and recategorizing broadband as an information service.[305] Significantly for rural communities, this repeal reversing broadband's status as a public utility minimized its importance to the public.[306] Advocates of rural development emphasized rural 789 communities' particular vulnerability to higher rates dictated by "a cash-driven internet."[307] This change placed rural small businesses at a competitive disadvantaged and made it more likely for local, independent service providers to be priced out of competition.[308]

Thus, the obvious choice in the context of broadband infrastructure is that broadband must be considered just that: infrastructure, or in other words, a public utility. But it is not clear that arguably outdated common carrier standards would go far enough to ensure adequate rural access. The most ambitious legislative proposal to date arguably embodies Rahman's third tool, or placing more of infrastructure provision directly into public hands. The proposed Rural Broadband Improvement Act of 2007 would have amended the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 to create an Office of Rural Broadband Initiatives within the U.S. Department of Agriculture, established an Undersecretary for Rural Broadband Initiatives, and conducted nationwide outreach to rural areas with a view to marshaling federal resources to achieve deployment.[309] This, perhaps is what a modernized vision for rural infrastructure looks like, drawing on past models based on today's needs and resources.

In the transportation context, Lisa Pruitt has consistently argued that inequitable access to transportation is a critical, underappreciated aspect of rural marginalization.[310] But few have examined the legal structures shaping today's rural transportation networks. This may be because modern transportation law is relatively esoteric and technical. Legislation passed in recent, post-deregulation decades--including the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act, the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century, and the Wendell H. Ford Aviation Investment and Reform Act for the 21st Century--established frameworks for statewide planning for the first time in the history of national transportation law.[311] The most recent development in this area is the U.S. Department of Transportation's rule on Statewide and Nonmetropolitan Transportation Planning and Metropolitan Transportation Planning, finalized and published in May 2016, which provided guidance to Rural Transportation Planning Organizations.[312] 790 Overall, the modern trend has been toward devolved, coordinated planning at the regional, state, and local level. One federal report described the rural transportation system as "really a system of disparate parts" and "very decentralized," with "actual operations ... primarily a local responsibility."[313]

On its face, this seems problematic from the perspective of national infrastructure. Although avenues for local input are certainly desirable,[314] national networks such as highways, airlines, and trains are unlikely to be managed well or with a view to equitable access if they are navigating (literally) differing patchworks of laws across jurisdictions.[315] This need for uniformity, consistency, and contemplation of transportation infrastructure beyond local and regional transit speaks to the need for heavier federal involvement. It seems, therefore, as if Rahman's first tool--the legacy approach of increased regulatory oversight--would be the appropriate approach in the transportation context.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
WESTLAW © 2021 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

Interestingly, at least two of Rahman's tools start to emerge as steps in a decision-making flowchart: where private markets or devolved decision-making are failing, as in the transportation context, increased federal regulatory oversight is a natural first step. Where regulatory oversight has been failing, as in the telecommunications context, increased direct public involvement in service provision seems like a natural second step. Both reveal points on a spectrum of beginning to tilt the scale, as it becomes clear that such tilting is needed, in the direction of the public interest over private interests.

In any case, these three examples--telecommunications, transportation, and grocery stores--illustrate some of the many forms of infrastructure that rural communities need but cannot necessarily access organically through market operations. Service providers would, of course, bear additional costs associated with increased service provision for rural communities, which would likely be less profitable than urban operations. The political tensions of the prior regulatory era would be revived if attempts to rein in private power were pursued, or if public providers increased competition with private ones, as has been shown with modern litigation over broadband standards. The question of how to approach rural diseconomies of scale thus raises fundamental questions about the role of government and policy in shaping daily life; these questions are ultimately questions about what our 791 collective priorities are. In light of the widespread suffering outside the country's urban centers today, the answer simply cannot be that the balance that has been struck today is the correct one, either morally or pragmatically.

Conclusion

The past several decades have revealed that rural communities are not self-sustaining. But the natural handicap posed by rural diseconomies of scale does not necessitate that rural communities are unsustainable. Rural communities are unique. They are at the forefront of most livelihoods that deal in large stretches of land and engage with natural resources. Many of those livelihoods are in the business of producing or protecting public necessities, including food, fibers, energy, wildlife, and ecosystem management. Rural communities are also part of a national political ecosystem with an interconnected fate. Thus, we neglect, isolate, and unravel rural communities to our own collective detriment.

The prior regulatory era showed that market interventions to overcome the challenge posed by diseconomies of scale bore fruit in the form of better-served, more prosperous rural communities. Rural communities today are not necessarily under-served by all markets providing services that would fall under the label of "infrastructure." But rural isolation from national transportation and telecommunications networks today, in light of ongoing rural importance and harm to rural consumers, should be considered a series of market failures. Rural isolation can go even deeper than this, too; abandonment by a grocery store can be the nail in the coffin of a particular community's fate. Thus, a broader conception of infrastructure and the role for economic regulation is warranted if we are to understand and meet the needs of rural America. While reviving the exact models of the past may be unrealistic or undesirable, this analysis establishes that modernized interventions must be considered in order to weave rural communities back into the national fabric of the networks that connect us.

[They stand] in the very 'gateway of commerce,' and take toll from all who pass."); Note, National Transportation Policy and the Regulation of Motor Carriers, 71 Yale L.J. 307, 307 (1961) ("A common carrier may be defined as one who holds himself out as willing to carry any or specified commodities for all who may choose to employ him; upon making this offer he becomes legally obligated to serve all shippers at reasonable rates and without discrimination. A contract carrier, on the other hand, is one who does not hold himself out to serve the public; he incurs no special legal obligations.").

113 Congress's attention was brought to this topic by "a pre-Populist agrarian political movement" of farmers who "object[ed] to the excessively high rates being charged them by the monopoly railroads for grain movements to eastern markets." Dempsey, The Dark Side, supra note 23, at 448.

Rec. 4,186-87 (1886) (Senator Camden, criticizing draft language limiting the non-discrimination principle, said, "In my judgment there can be no reason given for it except the reason to legislate in favor of the cities and the large competitive shipping points, to build them up and to depopulate the towns and the distribution of manufactories throughout the country .... I want to see cities grow, but they ought not to grow at the expense of the country at large."); 18 Cong. Rec. 857 (1887) (Congressman Henderson argued, "Their coming builds up towns and enriches communities; so, too, their unjust management has often destroyed cities and towns and torn down hard-earned fortunes. Railroad owners must learn the new lesson that is coming to us all in this country, and that is to be content with a reasonable profit on investments, and that labor, small capital, and small shippers have their rights just as well as stock-owners and powerful shippers."); 17 Cong. Rec. 7,281 (1886) (Congressman Reagan argued that allowing service providers to discriminate "enables the transportation companies to control the manufacturing interests of the country and to drive them from non-competitive points and from the rural parts of the country, where living is cheaper and health better, to the great commercial centers ... This is a power which no government of a free people would dare to exercise, and which no wisely administered government would think of exercising, and yet the railroad companies demand and insist on the right to exercise this vast and dangerous power. And under it they are impoverishing some cities, towns, and communities, without any fault of theirs, and enriching others having no other merit to this favor than the arbitrary power of the transportation companies.").

Corruption breeds in cities."); 17 Cong. Rec. 3,877 (1886) ("There are a great many people in the cities. They sow not, neither do they spin.").

121 Indeed, the entire reason railroads were able to expand involved "the economic incentives of generous federal and state land grants, loans, bonds, purchases of stock, and remission of taxes" based on the recognition "that the economic development of the interior of the North American continent required that a transportation infrastructure be built." 179 FCC Commissioner Craven gave a particularly passionate argument in favor of increased protections for rural access to radio in a 1942 House hearing to consider amendments in the Communications Act of 1934: "the proposed bill suggests correctly that the distribution of radio broadcasting facilities remains a problem .... [I]t is unthinkable that any section of the Nation's population should be deprived of radio service or that we should willingly permit a degradation of existing service to any area .... [T]he forcing of unsound competition in the field of radio will nullify the directions of Congress to distribute radio broadcasting facilities fairly and equitably among the various States and communities. Moreover, the forced application of the doctrine of unlimited economic competition will result in a further concentration of competitive stations in the large cities and a dearth of facilities in the smaller communities throughout the Nation. Likewise, if too many stations are forced into the large cities, the net result will be impaired program service to the entire Nation .... with the consequence that rural radio listeners may be sacrificed for a regulatory theory in which the commercial aspects of radio broadcasting are overemphasized and the public service aspects are neglected .... The population residing in rural areas is entitled to receive as much improved radio service as people in cities. There should be no discrimination." Proposed Changes in the Communications Act of 1934: Hearing on H.R. 5497 Before the H. Comm. on Interstate & Foreign Com., 77th Cong. 981-83 (1942).

Subject: Redistricting Data Hub Online Resources

Dear Missouri State House Special Committee on Redistricting,

I hope this email finds you well. I am a Distributed Training Specialist with the Redistricting Data Hub and I wanted to reach out to the committee regarding the resources offered on our website (redistrictingdatahub.org).

The Redistricting Data Hub is a nonpartisan organization. Our mission is to foster participation that will result in more fair and equitable representation, which we aim to do by providing access to the resources necessary to participate in the redistricting process. This includes hosting data on our website, running various training sessions on how to use mapping tools, and having a Support Team that can assist by answering questions or pointing individuals to the right places.

If any committee members are interested in learning more about this, I am happy to provide a half hour presentation walking through the datasets and other resources available on the website.

Please feel free to reach out with any questions or concerns, thank you!

Best,
Angel Chen

Subject: Request for update of Congressional Offices Contact list and for a focus group volunteer

Good evening,

I am updating the St. Louis VA Regional Office (VARO) (331) Congressional Offices Contact list. Please advise if new contacts are available.

Also, I am planning a focus group with the Congressional Liaisons the week after the 3rd Quarterly Congressional Director's meeting. I am looking for insight on training curriculum and delivery which would benefit Congressional Liaisons. The focus group would be conducted virtually.

Would you be willing to attend, or could you suggest someone from your office?

I should have a date by mid next week.

Respectfully,

Shaun Chelgreen

Attachment(s): "Parson - Education - CRT - Executive Order 2021.doc","Signature pages for 113 House.docx"

Good afternoon Representatives,
Attached please find a letter to Governor Parson to immediately address the teaching of curriculum based on the affirmation that one human race or sex is inherently superior to another; that an individual by virtue of their race or sex is inherently racist, sexist, or oppressive; that an individual should be discriminated against or receive adverse treatment solely or in part because of his or her race. These teachings assert even more but I will not list them all here. This would also include some of the recent rewriting of American history. These teachings or curriculums are often referred to as Critical Race Theory and/or the 1619 Project.
Please join me in signing the letter asking Governor Parson to take action to stop this before the beginning of the 2021-22 school year here in Missouri's public schools.
I am asking that you please sign via electronic signature on the attached signature page and email back prior to Friday, June 25th, 2021. Or if you are in town and prefer to sign the hard copy please let Sherry know.
Thank you.

On behalf of Senator Moon.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

June 18, 2021

Governor Mike Parson
Missouri Capitol – Office 216
201 W. Capitol Avenue
Jefferson City, MO 65101

EXECUTIVE ORDER: PUBLIC SCHOOL CURRICULUM

Abraham Lincoln once said, "A house divided against itself, cannot stand."

Mr. Lincoln also stated, “America will never be destroyed from the outside. If we falter and lose our freedoms, it will be because we destroyed ourselves.” For some time now, we can see that we are in a destructive mode. Whether due to skin color, family origin, riches, neighborhoods, or politics, we are divided on many fronts. However, when truth is revealed, we can overcome these differences.

The key is truth. Our rich American history has been rewritten. This retelling of our roots is lacking truth. We are now subjecting our children and our future to an indoctrination of lies. These lies tug at the emotions of our young people, causing them to believe that the United States of America, the greatest nation in history, is somehow the perpetrator of the greatest evils ever committed. We are allowing, through our public schools, our children to be taught and convinced that America is bad. The result: our children are “learning” to hate America.

Specifically, Missouri schools are teaching our children concepts related to or taken from the Critical Race Theory (CRT) and/or the “1619 Project.” These are ideas that pit people against one another. These curriculums are divisive and harmful to our children. Added to existing conflicts among Americans, CRT and the “1619 Project” is certain to cause additional harm to our state and our country.

This warped re-writing and teaching of our nation’s history must not be allowed!

In addition, social justice, a term used by many to imply that the inequities existing between people groups must somehow be addressed by the government in order to make each one equal to the other is being promoted in our public schools. This idea is equally divisive and dangerous.

Martin Luther King stated, "I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character." There is no doubt that Dr. King wished this for all Americans. We will not achieve this “dream” by teaching our children to hate one another (and using the tax dollars of Missourians to pay for it).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

There are two ways in which to address this problem: the legislature could pass a law prohibiting the teaching of Critical Race Theory (CRT) and/or the "1619 Project" or an executive order prohibiting the teaching of CRT and/or the "1619 Project" could be issued.

Since the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education is within the Executive Branch of Missouri government, you properly have power to exercise authority over the department. Due to the destructive nature of CRT, it is imperative that immediate action be taken (until the legislature can pass a law supporting your executive action.)

Other states have taken action to prohibit the teaching of the Critical Race Theory (CRT) in public schools. Florida, Arkansas, Idaho, Montana, Iowa, Tennessee, and Oklahoma have passed laws banning the teaching of CRT. Michigan, Maine, Texas, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, South Dakota, Arizona, Kentucky, Utah, Rhode Island, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania are debating bans on CRT.

New Hampshire has a line item in the state budget which addresses CRT.

Although several bills were filed, our state did not pass a bill addressing CRT during our Regular Session. However, because you have authority over the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education and since these two issues are of the utmost importance, we urge you to issue an Executive Order to address these two matters before the start of the next school year!

Subject: Research on Ethical Global Leadership
Attachment(s): "Ethical Public Leadership.pdf","Research Questionnaire.pdf"

Hello,

I am conducting a study on the topic of ethical global leadership. For the study, I am talking with political leaders across the globe.

The study aims to produce an ethical global leadership framework to understand distinctive opportunities and challenges in creating ethical leadership in the context of global politics. Your participation in the study may help speed up the transition from the traditional view of global leadership to one, which is based on ethics and trust. The research findings will be published in academic journals.

I was wondering if we could talk for a few minutes via Microsoft Teams or by phone at a time suitable for you to share your valuable experience.

Please find the indicative research questionnaire and a recent research publication (published in the Journal of Business Ethics, a Financial Times Top 50 Journal) attached.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

A Multilevel Trust-based Model of Ethical Public Leadership

Abstract I develop and test a multilevel trust-based model of ethical public leadership, which links ethical leadership, trust and leadership outcomes both within and across organizational levels. I examine how both ethical leadership and trust relate to employee well-being and satisfaction, group organizational citizenship behaviour and perceived organizational performance. The findings, based on data collected from an online quantitative survey conducted in three local councils of the north east of England, provide evidence in support of positive relationships between ethical leadership and employees' trust in leaders at multiple levels. This trust is in turn shown to influence employees' attitudes, behaviours and cognitions.

In our 2011 assessment of Corruption in the UK, we found a considerable degree of public concern about corruption in local government… Paradoxically, there seemed to be little evidence of widespread corruption taking place, other than these high-profile cases. There might be many explanations for this, such as under-reporting, a prevalence of low-level corruption that is not investigated and poor scrutiny mechanisms – or, indeed, that there is relatively little corruption in UK local government.

Introduction

Local government, a collective term used for all local councils, spends about a quarter of public spending in the UK (Transparency International UK 2013, p. 12), delivering a range of services such as education and social welfare, either by their own staff or by contracting out to private companies. Many local council politicians and officials have responsibilities in areas with potential conflicts of interest between those private companies and the electorates and are thus inherently exposed to the risk of involvement in corrupt practices. Recent scandals in local government (see Transparency International UK 2013, p. 16) have raised concerns to maintain and improve ethical standards in public institutions.

Regardless of the current degree and the extent of unethical behaviour in the UK local government, the key questions are as follows: How important is the concept of ethical leadership in finding a solution to the problem? How can ethical leadership make positive contributions towards public servants' attitudes, behaviours and cognitions? In order to address these questions I developed and tested a multilevel trust-based model of ethical leadership, linking ethical leadership with trust in leaders both within and across organizational levels. I examined how both ethical leadership and trust in leaders contribute to employee well-being and satisfaction, group organizational citizenship behaviour (OCB) and perceived organizational performance in three local councils in north east England.

The ethical public leadership model that I propose in this study considers leadership effects across organizational levels through direct, indirect and bypass mechanisms. The direct leadership effect occurs through the horizontal (lateral) linkages of ethical leadership, trust and leadership outcomes at the same level. The indirect effect involves the effects of ethical leadership and/or trust on adjacent lower levels. The higher-level ethical leadership influence may skip (bypass) levels and directly affect lower-level leaders'/followers' trust and behaviour as a result of direct interactions.

The model is based on three assumptions. First, the context of the study is managerial ethical leadership in public organizations. Political leaders are excluded because they operate in a different context (see Morrell and Hartley 2006). Local politicians have little contact with the majority of employees since they do not manage local councils on a day-to-day basis. Employees are more likely to develop trusting relationships with their supervisors and in turn with the full-time managers up the hierarchy. In organizational settings, it is possible to be a manager and leader at the same time, and there is considerable overlap between the two functions. So, following Yukl (1989), the terms manager and leader are used interchangeably. Second, considering the typically large hierarchical structures of English local government and following DeChurch et al. (2010), Chun et al. (2009) and Yammarino and Dansereau (2008), I argue that leadership in organizations is a multilevel phenomenon, and that organizational effectiveness depends on the coordinated efforts of leaders within and across multiple hierarchical levels. There are plenty of recent empirical research (Schaubroeck et al. 2012; Yang et al. 2010; Mayer et al. 2009) that suggest that hierarchy matters, necessitating the study of leadership across different level of administrative hierarchies to understand the complex public leadership phenomenon (Chapman et al. 2016; Getha-Taylor et al. 2011). Finally, drawing on social learning theory (Bandura 1977, 1986) and social exchange theory (Blau 1964), this study is based on the premise that the organizational leadership process cascades or trickles-down from top management to middle management and supervisory leadership.

Consistent with Yang (2014), Beeri et al. (2013) and Schaubroeck et al. (2012), this study provides evidence to support a positive relationship, mediated through multilevel trust-based mechanisms, between ethical leadership and employee well-being and satisfaction, group OCB and perceived organizational performance. The study upholds the contention that all levels of ethical leadership matter, but the evidence in support of the trickle-down and trickle-up effects of ethical leadership on and from middle management show that the development of mid-level ethical leadership may be the most efficient way forward for building trusting relationships and influencing leadership outcomes in public organizations.

Over the last decade, a growing body of research (Eisenbeiss et al. 2015; Mayer et al. 2009; Brown et al. 2005) has examined the direct effects of ethical leadership on its outcomes, including employee well-being, job satisfaction, organizational identification, organizational commitment, OCB, task performance and organizational performance. Despite the rapid growth of ethical leadership research, three gaps appear to exist in the relevant literature.

First, while ethical leadership has been directly related to leadership outcomes in a number of studies, the exact psychological process through which ethical leadership elicits these effects still remains unaddressed, in public organizations at least (Ng and Feldman 2015). To fill this void and gain a better understanding of the psychological processes by which ethical leadership affects employees' attitudes, behaviours and cognitions, I examine trust in the leader as a mediator of the relationships between ethical leadership and its outcomes. It is important to consider the mediating effect of trust in the leader because it is consistent with the theoretical frameworks of the study—social learning and social exchange theory—as discussed later.

Second, there is the question of how ethical leadership relates to trust in leaders and to outcomes within and across levels (Mayer et al. 2009). Proponents of the tone at the top approach (Shin et al. 2015) argue that top management has the strongest influence on work outcomes since it inspires employees to act ethically. An opposite perspective is that lower-level management is more likely to act as an ethical role model due to its proximity to employees and its ability to reward and punish them (Mayer et al. 2009). In this study, following Schaubroeck et al. (2012) and Mayer et al. (2009) I do not take an either/or approach to resolving this apparent controversy; instead I take a balanced approach, premised on the notion that all (top, middle and lower) levels of leadership are important and play different roles at different levels.

Third, leadership scholars such as Osborn et al. (2002) have argued that organizational context is a major factor of leadership processes and outcomes. Yet a void appears to exist in the relevant literature with respect to ethical leadership in the UK local government. There is a lack of empirical research here: Ng and Feldman's (2015) meta-analysis of 101 papers on ethical leadership over the last 15 years shows that most of the studies have been conducted in the USA and Chinese settings, with no study in the UK context. The contextualized ethical public leadership model that I propose in this study represents a first attempt to fill this void by advancing our knowledge about the role of ethical leadership in the UK local government.

This article is structured as follows. After the introduction, the next two sections elaborate on the theoretical background by defining the key components of ethical leadership and trust and developing the model and hypotheses of the study. The research methodology is discussed in the following section. The next section tests hypotheses and presents findings, addressing the research questions. Finally, concluding remarks are offered, pointing to profitable extensions for further research.

Theoretical Background

Conceptualizing Ethical Leadership

Leadership has been conceptualized from different perspectives based on the purpose of the study, organizational contexts and the underlying process. Most definitions of leadership involve the influence process; there is little else in common among the definitions of leadership (Yukl 1989). Morality, integrity, trustworthiness, fairness, concern for others are at the heart of many of the emerging approaches including authentic (Luthans and Avolio 2003), spiritual (Fry 2003) and ethical (Brown et al. 2005) leadership. Following the social learning and social exchange perspectives, most research into ethical leadership (Liu et al. 2013; Mayer et al. 2012; Schaubroeck et al. 2012) is based on Brown et al.'s (2005) definition of ethical leadership as "the demonstration of normatively appropriate conduct through personal actions and interpersonal relationships, and the promotion of such conduct to followers through two-way communication, reinforcement, and decision-making" (p. 120).

In this study, my decision to adopt this definition of ethical leadership has raised three questions. The first question is how does ethical leadership, as conceptualized by Brown et al. (2005), differ from other forms of ethical leadership such as authentic leadership? Mayer et al. (2009) argues that although other forms of leadership include attributes such as integrity, trustworthiness and behaving ethically (characteristics that Brown and his colleagues refer to as the moral person aspect of ethical leadership), these attributes represent only a part of ethical leadership; a second important part, termed by Brown and his colleagues as the moral manager, emphasizes the social exchange process as a means of influencing followers' behaviour.

The second question is what standards should be used to measure normatively appropriate behaviour? Brown et al. (2005) deliberately left the term normatively appropriate vague because appropriate conducts are to some extent context dependent. Recent studies (van Gils et al. 2015; Eisenbeiss 2012; Giessner and van Quaquebeke 2010) have addressed the question of the normative appropriateness of employee behaviour by suggesting that leaders' behaviour is likely to be perceived as normatively appropriate when it aligns with the followers' perceptions of ethical leadership, taking into account contextual perspectives on ethical standards.

The third and most important question is how can ethical leaders influence the normatively appropriate conducts of their followers? Social learning theory suggests that leaders often act as role models, demonstrating ethically appropriate behaviour in the organization; by observing their leaders' behaviour, employees are induced to appreciate what is expected of them. Ethical leaders may also influence employees through social exchange processes based on the norm of reciprocity; the process implies that employees feel obligation to reciprocate helpful, ethical and fair treatments. A social exchange may be transactional, such as promotion or pay; however, socio-emotional exchanges based on trust and fairness are most likely to influence the employees when leaders are perceived as fair and trustworthy. Leaders may also influence employees' behaviour by employing organizational incentive systems such as rewards and punishments; for example, subordinates are likely to behave ethically by observing that ethical behaviour are rewarded, whereas unethical conducts are punished (Brown et al. 2005).

Given the importance of the moral manger aspect of ethical leadership, public leadership scholars (Downe et al. 2016; Thaler and Helmig 2016; Hassan 2015; Newman et al. 2015a, b; Hassan et al. 2014; Yang 2014; Rayner et al. 2012) have examined the prevalence of different value-based leadership practices and codes of conduct and their effects on public sector employees' attitudes, behaviours and cognitions. Ethical codes of conduct for public organizations do not basically differ from those for private organizations as they cover general ethical values such as integrity, honesty, accountability, fairness and trust (Thaler and Helmig 2016). Public leadership studies have begun to find a connection between ethical leadership and improvement-centred voice behaviour (Hassan 2015), organizational commitment (Hassan et al. 2014), organizational citizenship behaviour (Rayner et al. 2012) and employee well-being and life satisfaction (Yang 2014).

Conceptualizing Trust

Trust is conceptualized and widely accepted as the "psychological state comprising the intention to accept vulnerability based upon positive expectations of the intentions or behaviour of another" (Rousseau et al. 1998, p. 395). This definition raises at least three issues with respect to the form, level and outcomes of trust in leaders.

First, whereas the affective or relational-based perspective, referred to as an exchange deepening mechanism, describes trust as a social exchange process that goes beyond the standard economic exchange, the cognitive or rational-based perspective, referred to as an uncertainty reducing mechanism, is based on the followers' evaluation of the characteristics of their leaders such as integrity, fairness and other abilities likely to affect the outcomes of their trust (Colquitt et al. 2012). The rational and emotional ties between leaders and followers in trust relationships result from the mutual exhibition of care and concern, nurturing a sense of reciprocal obligation (Dirks and Ferrin 2002). The initial challenge for the leader is to be trustworthy; over time reciprocation reinforces trust, the axis upon which social exchange revolves (Aryee et al. 2002).

Second, trust not only varies in its form (state and process) but also differs within and across organizational levels in relation to team members, team leaders and the organization as a whole (Burke et al. 2007). Employees are likely to develop attitudes of trust towards the organization through their interpretations of the organization's policies and procedures as well as their interactions with associates and managers, reflecting trust in vertical leadership as well as horizontal leadership. The challenge for the management is to influence employees across levels to believe in the organization's vision and objectives.

Third, several studies conducted in organizational settings (Li and Tan 2013; Park 2012; Aryee et al. 2002) have shown positive relationships between trust and individual/organizational outcomes. These outcomes are divided into three categories: job attitude, group behaviour and organizational performance. The evidence that trust affects OCB and organizational performance appears to be clearer than the evidence that trust affects in-role performance (Dirks and Ferrin 2002). The ultimate challenge for the leadership is to influence employees' attitudes and behaviour, thus promoting employees' satisfaction and improving their perception of organizational performance.

Previous studies (Zhu and Akhtar 2014; Li and Tan 2013; Park 2012) linking leadership–trust–outcomes have overlooked the multifaceted nature of the trust construct, failing to clarify how trust in leaders exerts its influence on subordinates within and across organizational levels. This seems to be problematic because trust perceptions of individuals within different hierarchical relationships may vary according to their experiences, expectations and interpretation of contexts. In response to the need to examine trust relationships at multiple levels I go beyond earlier research by measuring and examining trust-based direct, indirect and bypass mechanisms for leadership effects across organizational levels.

Ethical Leadership, Trust and Leadership Outcomes in Local Government

In the UK, the regulatory environment for ethical conduct in local government has been shifting from a centralized approach under the Local Government Act 2000, which emerged as a response to incidents of high-profile unethical behaviour in local councils in the 1990s (Doig and Skelcher 2001), to a localized approach under the Localism Act 2011, intending to address public distrust in public leaders by relying on the participation of local citizens in the policy making and implementation of standards of conduct for public servants (Lawton and Macaulay 2013). The changing historical, economic, social, political and legal contexts for the UK local government require a new meaning of leadership that is based on public values and trust (van Wart 2013). Therefore, this is a particularly appropriate time to study ethical leadership in the UK local government.

Principles of public values such as selflessness, integrity, objectivity, accountability, openness, honesty and leadership have been recommended in a number of policy documents, such as the report from the Committee on Standards in Public Life (CSPL) (Andersen et al. 2013). People are likely to internalize social values and feel satisfied when they can contribute to realizing these values, resulting in a commitment to the public interest that has been recently labeled as value-based motives (Pandey et al. 2016; Kim and Vandenabeele 2010). People may internalize the notions of right and wrong through a self-regulatory mechanism embedded in their personal identification with a value-based leader, who evokes followers' desire to emulate the leader's behaviour, moral traits and qualities by showing role-modeling behaviour. Mayer et al. (2012) argues that internalization of the values and beliefs of a value-based leader may alter followers' mindsets and induce them to adopt similar behaviour patterns consistent with these public values.

In public organizations, trust is increasingly being recognized as a key factor in developing interpersonal relationships and sustaining organizational success and employee well-being, especially when the future is uncertain (Park 2012). Recent studies such as Kim (2015), Miao et al. (2014), Yang (2014), Downe et al. (2013), Park (2012), Schaubroeck et al. (2012), Cowell et al. (2011), Yang et al. (2010), Mayer et al. (2009) and Halvorsen (2003) have found evidence of significant relationships between value-based leadership, trust and leadership outcomes in public organizations. Cowell et al. (2011) argue that levels of trust have a direct correlation with the ethical performance of the UK local government. Their findings are consistent with those of Halvorsen (2003), who also found a significant association between the quality of participation and the perception of organizational performance.

Miao et al. (2014) shows that practice of the philosophy of servant leadership in the Chinese public sector induces higher levels of organizational commitment through the mechanism of affective trust. Yang (2014) finds that ethical leadership indirectly influences both employee well-being and life satisfaction of Chinese public employees. Yang et al. (2010) offers significant evidence that adoption of the practice of transformational leadership by middle management is positively related to frontline employees' job performance. In Chinese settings, the Confucian ideology and emphasis on guanxi seem to influence organizational behaviour, which is shaped into close hierarchical relationships, with collectivism conceptually associated with value-based leadership (Yang 2014). The effect of collectivism provides support for the social identity mechanism.

In US settings, Park (2012) shows that shared leadership behaviour directly or indirectly fosters organizational trust. Mayer et al. (2009) provides evidence in support of positive relationships between top management and supervisory ethical leadership and group OCB. Schaubroeck et al. (2012) also shows that the influence of ethical leadership occurs both within and across hierarchical levels through the trickle-down effect of higher-level leaders' influence on lower-level leaders' behaviour. Previous studies have shown that ethical leadership contributes significantly to leadership effectiveness but that the degree of support varies across organizational, societal and regional clusters.

Ng and Feldman (2015) and Eisenbeiss (2012) point out that studies conducted in western settings are supportive of stronger relationships of ethical leadership to the use of contingent rewards than studies conducted in Asia, providing support for the social exchange mechanism. However, the reasons for this difference are not clear. This further justifies the need to examine the role of trust in the relationship between ethical leadership and its outcomes in the context of the UK local government. As with studies conducted in other low power distance societies such as the USA, in the UK context we may expect the moderating effect of low power distance to provide support for the social learning mechanism. This implies that the distribution of powers and responsibilities across organizational levels would be extensive and that everyone would expect to be listened to regardless of rank or background.

Model and Hypothesis Development

I propose a multilevel trust-based model of ethical public leadership as a tool for understanding how ethical leadership and trust in leaders can influence employees' attitudes, behaviours and cognitions. I explain the direct, indirect and bypass mechanisms for ethical leadership effects across organizational levels, as illustrated in Fig. 1. First, I describe the trickle-down effects of ethical leadership and trust in leaders across top and middle management and supervisory level, as well as the trickle-up effects of leadership outcomes across individual, group and organizational levels. These effects are explained using social learning and social exchange theories. Second, the effect of ethical leadership on trust in leaders within and across organizational levels is described through direct, indirect and bypass mechanisms. The direct effect of ethical leadership may occur through the horizontal (lateral) linkages shown in Fig. 1. The indirect effects may occur through mediation at different levels, for example, through ethical leadership and/or trust in leaders at an adjacent lower level. The influence of higher-level ethical leadership and/or trust in higher-level leaders may skip levels and directly affect trust in lower-level leaders and leadership outcomes through direct interactions. Third, the effect of ethical leadership on employee well-being and satisfaction, group OCB and perceived organizational performance through trust in leaders is described using direct, indirect and bypass mechanisms as explained above and shown in Fig. 1.

Hierarchical Levels

Level of Leadership

Leadership scholars (Dionne et al. 2014; Chun et al. 2009; Yammarino and Dansereau 2008) are increasingly understanding leadership as a multilevel concept. A successful organization comprises effective leadership at three levels: top management setting objectives and strategies, middle management coordinating and integrating, and supervisors engaging and inspiring their immediate work groups (DeChurch et al. 2010). Social learning theory suggests that the organizational leadership process cascades from higher-level management to lower-level management as employees tend to model their supervisors' behaviour through observational learning (Mayer et al. 2009; Brown et al. 2005). Normative and informational influences further explain this cascading replication of leaders' behaviour—lower-level managers tend to conform their behaviour to the expectations of higher-level managers: for example, in aiming to be liked or respected or in being accurate or correct (Schaubroeck et al. 2012). Thus:

Hypothesis 1 Ethical leadership at higher hierarchical levels is positively related to ethical leadership at lower hierarchical levels.

Level of Trust

Trust, like ethical leadership, has both global and local properties that may vary across organizational hierarchies. For example, the nature of trust may vary due to differences in relationships, interactions and contexts within which the leadership exists (Park 2012; Yang and Mossholder 2010; Burke et al. 2007). Social learning and social exchange theories suggest that employees are likely to develop attitudes of trust towards top management through their interpretations of the organization's policies and procedures as well as their evaluation of top management's integrity, fairness and ability. These attitudes may affect whether employees buy into an organization's objectives and fully engage in management initiatives. The employees' level of cooperation is in turn likely to influence the decisions and actions of middle managers and supervisors, as well as their trusting relationships with the employees. Thus:

Hypothesis 2 Trust in leaders at higher hierarchical levels is positively related to trust in leaders at lower hierarchical levels.

Level of Outcomes

Leadership studies (Eisenbeiss 2012; DeChurch et al. 2010; Chun et al. 2009) have recognized that the science of leadership should ideally study the effects of leadership on individual, group and organizational outcomes. Yet most previous leadership studies have examined either how leadership affects individuals' performances and job attitudes or how leaders' attributes affect organizational outcomes. There is hardly any study that explains how individual outcomes can be collectively harnessed to achieve positive organizational performance. Following DeChurch et al. (2010), I hypothesize:

Hypothesis 3 The effects of ethical leadership on outcomes at the individual level will have a positive effect on the group, which will eventually have a positive effect on organizational performance.

Ethical Leadership and Trust

Direct Effect

Leadership scholars (Miao et al. 2014; Eisenbeiss 2012; Park 2012) have provided evidence in support of the claim that value-based leadership is directly and positively related to followers' trust. Social exchange theory offers a framework for understanding the mechanism of this relationship. The theory suggests that ethical leadership behaviour, such as making fair and balanced decisions about issues that are important to subordinates, creates incentives for the subordinates to reciprocate by showing greater trust in their leaders (Dirks and Ferrin 2002).

Ethical leaders can induce followers' trust in both affective and cognitive areas. Affective trust can be evoked by establishing a socio-emotional exchange relationship. For example, a leader's benevolent behaviour develops subordinates' feelings of being valued; the reciprocal socio-emotional attachment generates followers' affective trust in their leader (Colquitt et al. 2012). Ethical leadership behaviour also sends signals to followers about their leaders' characteristics such as integrity and ability, creating followers' cognitive trust in their leader.

Dirks and Ferrin (2002) observes that employees, in order to reduce perceived uncertainty and risk, tend to make attributions about a leader's characteristics; this will influence their sense of vulnerability in the relationship. Ethical leaders are trusted because their perceived ability, benevolence and integrity mean that there is less risk associated with being dependent upon them. Furthermore, trusting relationships between leaders and followers may be influenced by the norms of reciprocity (Blau 1964). Thus:

MO-REP-21-1608-F-002830

Author's personal copy

Hypothesis 4 Ethical leadership is positively associated with followers' trust in leaders within the same organizational level.

Indirect Effect

We have seen that ethical leadership is expected to be positively associated with trust in leaders within the same hierarchical level (Hypothesis 4) and that trust in higher-level leaders is expected to trickle-down to trust in lower-level leaders (Hypothesis 3). Thus higher-level ethical leadership can influence trust in lower-level leaders by inducing trust in leaders at the same level, which will then cascade to the lower level. The indirect effects of ethical leadership on followers' trust in leaders at an adjacent lower level may also mediate through common ethical leadership practices across levels. The cascading effect of ethical leadership across a hierarchy provides the mechanism through which higher-level leaders may indirectly influence trust in lower-level leaders. Thus:

Hypothesis 5 Ethical leadership at a higher level is positively associated with followers' trust in leaders at a lower level, mediated through ethical leadership at a lower level and/or trust in leaders at the same (higher) level.

Bypass Effect

The effects of ethical leadership exercised by top and middle management may also have a direct influence on trust in supervisors, labeled as bypass effects (Yammarino 1994), through direct interactions with supervisors. According to Schaubroeck et al. (2012) and Detert and Treviño (2010), who have provided evidence in support of such bypass effects, higher-level leaders' expectations may be communicated to the whole organization through formal communications, policies and stories that may reinforce the leaders' reputations among followers, thereby influencing their cognitions and actions in a way that is distinct from the influence of their immediate leader. Thus:

Hypothesis 6 Higher-level ethical leadership is positively associated with followers' trust in lower-level leaders.

Ethical Leadership, Trust and Outcomes

Direct Effect

Trust is specified as an outcome of ethical leadership that is in turn related to other important leadership outcomes, thus placing trust at the centre of the ethical public leadership model, as posited in the study (Fig. 1). Previous studies have shown that trust in the leader is an outcome, rather than an antecedent, of ethical leadership. It is also implied that a cultural climate that fosters strong ethical norms/behaviour and achieves a high level of trust in public organizations may strengthen ethical leadership influence through greater employee satisfaction, enhanced public service motivation and better customer service.

Recent studies have found positive relationships between ethical leadership and employee well-being and satisfaction (Yang 2014), organizational citizenship behaviour (Hassan and Hatmaker 2015) and organizational performance (Eisenbeiss et al. 2015). The measurement of organizational performance, which is a multidimensional concept, is difficult in the public sector. While acknowledging the importance of financial performance, this study relies on performance measures such as community satisfaction, quality of services and development of new services; these measures are based on the perceptions of council employees. Numerous studies (Shin et al. 2015; Chun et al. 2009) show that ethical organizational practices improve organizational performance, challenging the traditional belief that organizational ethics and performance are mutually exclusive. The core of the argument is that people are vital to good organizational performance and that organizations can be successful when they view their employees as an asset. People-oriented practices increase employee satisfaction and commitment, which motivates them to work harder to improve performance (Shin et al. 2015).

Trust in leaders is an important mechanism through which ethical leadership influences outcomes at individual, group and organizational levels (Ng and Feldman 2015; Eisenbeiss 2012). Trustworthiness is more than just managerial competence; competence (the ability to achieve results) and integrity (the fair way of achieving those results) are both important factors in the perception of trustworthiness. Burke et al. (2007) shows that, when leaders are perceived as lacking integrity and competence, followers are unlikely to be motivated and committed to achieving those leaders' organizational objectives, because of their fears of vulnerability. Followers' trust in ethical leaders is, in turn, positively related to their job attitudes and job performance. Shin et al. (2015) and Chun et al. (2009) demonstrate that the ethical practices of an organization contribute to achieving organizational performance by boosting the engagement, motivation, collective organizational commitment and OCB among employees.

Although the leadership literature has shown a number of mechanisms through which ethical leaders influence outcomes, these may vary depending on the level of leadership involved. For example, top management is most likely to influence organizational outcomes through the decision-making process and organizational reward systems (Yang and Mossholder 2010), whereas middle management is most likely to be associated with group-level outcomes such as OCB, which may be explained by the social exchange mechanism. Employees' perceptions of supervisors' ethical leadership are found to be positively associated with employees' subjective well-being and satisfaction (Ilies et al. 2005), which may be explained by employees' affective and cognitive trust in their direct supervisors. Thus:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-002831

Author's personal copy

Hypothesis 7 Ethical leadership at the organizational level will have the strongest influence on organizational performance, while middle management and direct supervisory ethical leadership will have more influence on group- and individual-level outcomes.

Indirect Effect

The effects of trust in higher-level ethical leadership on distant followers' attitudes, behaviours and cognitions may mediate through trust in adjacent lower-level leaders, which may be explained by using both social learning and social exchange theories (Schaubroeck et al. 2012; Mayer et al. 2009; Brown et al. 2005). Recent studies (Yang and Mossholder 2010) have also confirmed that trust in top management channels through supervisors' ethical leadership, which then affects followers' job satisfaction and citizenship behaviour. Thus:

Hypothesis 8 Trust in top management influences trust in middle management and supervisors, who in turn influence the attitudes and behaviour of the employees they manage or supervise.

Bypass Effect

Employees' perceptions of ethical leadership of top management may exert a cross-level effect on employees' satisfaction and behaviour. Higher-level leaders develop and communicate a persuasive vision in order to motivate and inspire followers (Chun et al. 2009). The scope of ethics initiatives in an organization depends on its top executives' commitment to ethics (Weaver et al. 1999). Committed executives are more likely to function as ethical role models who can influence employee attitude and behaviour more directly (Weaver et al. 2005). Employees are likely to reciprocate ethical leaders' fair treatments by showing positive attitudes and demonstrating positive OCB. Thus:

Hypothesis 9 Trust in higher-level leaders will have a direct (bypass) effect on followers' satisfaction and behaviour.

Hypotheses 1–4 and 6–9 were subdivided into a, b, c whereas hypothesis 5 was subdivided into 5a, 5b, 5c, 5d, 5e and 5f as shown in Table 4.

Methods

Sample

All twelve local authorities in the north east of England were requested to take part in the survey, and three of them agreed to participate. It is not the aim of the study to be statistically representative of local government of the North East or of England as a whole, as each authority is to some extent distinctive in its social, economic, political and organizational contexts. Nonetheless, besides the close geographical proximity of the three councils, there are other contextual factors that are common to each. For example, all three are large metropolitan borough councils, each with around 10,000 employees serving an economically, ethnically and culturally diverse population of approximately 200,000. These similarities serve as a basis for the aggregation of data for analytical purposes. The anonymity of these councils was promised in order to encourage their participation, and this anonymity is preserved here.

Data were collected between June and September 2015 using an online quantitative survey conducted in three departments, each with around 100 employees, from each council. Each department was purposely selected after consultation with the council management. During the data collection process, the participants were assured that their participation was voluntary and that the researcher would not share identifying information with anyone inside or outside the council. This study shows only aggregate results and respects all assurances of anonymity.

The questionnaire was pre-tested with a small group of participants to obtain feedback on the questionnaire as well as to test and refine the online survey distribution tools. The participants were given three weeks to complete the survey, and they had the option to complete the survey at different times. Up to three e-mail reminders were sent to the participants to boost the response rate. Table 1 shows the demographics of the study sample, which are self-descriptive. The sample is a highly educated group with almost 50 % having an undergraduate degree or higher and the majority of them are female.

Measures

Ethical leadership of top management, head of the department and immediate supervisor was measured with five items adapted from the ethical leadership scale developed by Brown et al. (2005) using top management, head of the department/service and supervisor/immediate line manager as the referents. Respondents were asked to rate the extent to which they agreed with the questionnaire items using a five-point Likert-style response format (1 = strongly disagree, 5 = strongly agree). Sample items include 'My supervisor sets an example of how to do things the right way in terms of the seven principles of public life (e.g., selflessness, integrity, objectivity, accountability, openness, honesty and leadership).' The internal reliability of the ethical leadership measure is high (Cronbach's $\alpha = .96$). I aggregated the mean scores of individuals to generate indices of top management, middle management and supervisory ethical leadership. Following Hox (2002), I examined the fit of the three-factor model to ensure that top, middle management and supervisory ethical leadership measures are distinct. The three-factor model indicates an adequate fit with the data (Chi squared test (χ^2) = 125; comparative fit index (CFI) = .92; incremental fit index (IFI) = .95; Tucker-Lewis index (TLI) = .94; adjusted goodness of fit index (AGFI) = .91; root mean square error of approximation (RMSEA) = .07; standardized root mean square residual (SRMR) = .03).

Trust in top management, middle management and supervisors was self-reported by employees using four items adapted from McAllister's (1995) affect- and cognition-based trust scales. A sample item of affective trust includes 'I feel secure with top management because of their integrity.' A sample item of cognitive trust includes 'I can depend on top management to meet their responsibilities.' These items have coefficient alphas of .93 and .88, respectively. The intra-class correlation coefficients [ICC(1)] for both affective and cognitive trust are .05, well below the recommended values, indicating that data interdependence is not an issue in this study (Bliese 2000).

Job satisfaction and subjective well-being was self-reported (1 = never, 5 = all the time) by respondents using five items adapted from Hackman and Oldham (1975) and Warr (1990). A sample item includes 'Thinking of the past few months, how much of the time has your job made you feel relaxed, enthusiastic and optimistic?' The items have a coefficient alpha of .89.

Group OCB is measured using four items adapted from Smith et al. (1983). Respondents rated the extent to which they agreed with statements such as 'People in my department are always ready to lend a helping hand to others around them.' Cronbach's alphas for the items are .91.

Perceived organizational performance was self-rated (1 = much worse, 5 = much better) by respondents using three items (quality of services, development of new services and overall community satisfaction) adapted from Delaney and Huselid (1996). Research such as Dollinger and Golden (1992) has provided evidence in support of strong to moderate correlation between perceived and objective measure of organizational performance. A sample item includes the question 'How would you compare the organization's performance over the past year to that of other organizations that do the same kind of work in terms of the quality of services, or programs?' The items have a coefficient alpha of .89.

Since individual differences might affect employees' perceptions, the study was controlled for the effects of variables in Table 1.

Analysis

Following Braun et al. (2013), Schaubroeck et al. (2012) and Bryk and Raudenbush (1987), hierarchical linear modeling (HLM) is used to test the hypothesized relationships among the multilevel variables. The justification for using HLM is that it provides benefits that cannot be achieved using ordinary least squares regression for analyzing multilevel data. As pointed out by Bryk and Raudenbush (1987), hierarchical linear modeling explains the nested nature of data and allows simultaneous estimation of the impact of factors at different levels on individual-level outcomes, while maintaining appropriate levels of analysis for predictors. HLM suits the purposes of examining the cross-level direct effect, cross-level indirect effect and cross-level mediation effect.

The methods used by previous studies in gathering subjective questionnaire data have been problematic because of the issue of common method variance due to self-reported measures. Following Podsakoff et al. (2003), I conducted the Harman's one-factor test for all items in our study in order to address this potential flaw. The results indicate that common method bias may not be an issue in the study. Following Bliese (2000), I also conducted the intra-class correlations (ICCs) to determine the reliability of measures of both ethical leadership and trust in leaders. All the ICC(1) values are statistically significant; therefore data aggregation is justified.

Prior to testing the research hypotheses, confirmatory factor analysis (CFA) was conducted on the survey measures. The purpose of this analysis was to verify the factor structure and provide evidence in support of the construct validity. Following Hassan (2015) and Hu and Bentler (1999), Chi squared test (χ^2), comparative fit index (CFI), incremental fit index (IFI), Tucker-Lewis index (TLI), adjusted goodness of fit index (AGFI), root mean square error of approximation (RMSEA) and standardized root mean square residual (SRMR) were conducted to assess the fit of the measurement model.

Results

Descriptive Statistics

The means, standard deviations and intercorrelations among the key study variables are reported in Table 2. The standard deviations for all study variables are relatively high, ranging from .43 to 1.01, indicating that there is sufficient variability in the data to justify the need for further analysis. As anticipated, there are some significant correlations between individual-level factors: for example, significant correlations between ethical leadership of supervisor and employee satisfaction and well-being ($r = .67$, $p < .01$), ethical leadership of middle management and group OCB ($r = .45$, $p < .01$), and ethical leadership of top management and perceived organizational performance ($r = .43$, $p < .01$). These results show preliminary evidence in support of the research hypotheses.

Confirmatory Factor Analysis

The CFA results for the hypothesized five-factor measurement model provide adequate fit to the data ($\chi^2 = 38$; CFI = .93; IFI = .96, TLI = .95, AGFI = .93, RMSEA = .06; SRMR = .05). All scale items have statistically significant factor loading, ranging from .72 to .92. The average variance extracted (AVE) for each latent factor exceeds the conventional criterion of .50, ranging from .61 to .83, with a mean of .75. The AVE for each construct is greater than the square of any correlation between the constructs. Furthermore, alternative models by specifying the indicators of two or more of the constructs as loading onto the same latent variable are tested. None of the alternative models fit the data as well as the hypothesized model. For example, the alternative four-factor model in which the correlation between ethical leadership and trust in leaders was set to one fitted the data much worse ($\chi^2 = 1136$; CFI = .70; IFI = .68; TLI = .65; AGFI = .83; RMSEA = .11; SRMR = .15) than the proposed five-factor measurement model. Overall, the CFA results indicate that all measures have sufficient convergent and discriminant validity.

Hypothesis Testing

The results of the HLM are reported in Table 3. As summarized in Table 4 and shown in Fig. 2, the study provides evidence in support of all research hypotheses. For example, Hypothesis 7 proposes that ethical leadership at the organizational level would have the strongest influence on perceived organizational performance, while middle management and direct supervisory ethical leadership would have more influence on group- and individual-level outcomes. As predicted, ethical leadership of top management, middle management and supervisors were found to have strong positive associations with organizational performance, group OCB and employee well-being and satisfaction, respectively ($\beta = .56$, $p < .01$, $\beta = .51$, $p < .01$, and $\beta = .72$, $p < .01$, respectively), which supports the hypothesis.

Comparing the standardized coefficients of key variables in order to examine their relative importance, it can be seen that both ethical leadership and trust in leaders at all levels have statistically significant effects on individual employee well-being and satisfaction, group OCB and organizational performance outcomes. However, ethical leadership of supervisors was found to be the most powerful predictor of employee satisfaction and well-being ($\beta = .72$, $p < .01$ for employee satisfaction and well-being, $\beta = .67$, $p < .01$ for group OCB, $\beta = .12$, $p < .01$ for organizational performance), which is consistent with the findings of Braun et al. (2013) that individual perceptions of supervisors' transformational leadership is positively related to individual followers' job satisfaction ($\beta = .73$, $p < .01$) in German public organizations.

Ethical leadership of middle management was the strongest predictor of group OCB ($\beta = .51$, $p < .01$ for group OCB, $\beta = .31$, $p < .01$ for employee satisfaction and well-being, $\beta = .22$, $p < .01$ for organizational performance). In Chinese public organizations, Miao et al. (2014) also found strong positive relationship between servant leadership and both affective ($\beta = .36$, $p < .01$) and normative commitment ($\beta = .38$, $p < .01$).

Ethical leadership of top management was the strongest predictor of organizational performance ($\beta = .56$, $p < .01$

(2015) also showed a significant indirect (mediated by ethical culture) effect of CEO ethical leadership on the performance of firms ($\beta = .51$, $p < .01$) in the German private sector.

Discussion

These findings balance the conflicting perspectives of whether it is top management, as evidenced by Shin et al. (2015), middle management, as shown by Yang et al. (2010), or supervisors, as demonstrated by Posner and Schmidt (1984), who have a more direct influence on employee behaviour and organizational performance. The cascading of ethical leadership behaviour from top management to middle management and then to immediate line managers or supervisors, whose ethical leadership then boosts employees' satisfaction, behaviour and performance, suggests that ethical leadership of middle management has important implications for both employee and organizational performance. Consistent with Yang et al. (2010) the trickle-down and trickle-up effects of middle managers' ethical leadership behaviour shown in this study underlines both their downward and upward roles, suggesting that the development of mid-level ethical leadership may be the single most efficient policy for organizations to adopt.

I have found evidence of significant direct effects of ethical leadership on its outcomes as a result of trust in leaders at each of the three levels. Like ethical leadership, trust in leaders is also found to cascade across hierarchical levels, providing evidence in support of the mediating role of trust in transmitting the influence of ethical leadership on its outcomes at all organizational levels. The direct, indirect and cross-level effects of ethical leadership shown in this study imply that a more holistic view of both proximal and distal leadership processes is required to fully appreciate the transmission of leadership influence in a complex organization. Although leadership is widely considered as vital for linking organizational systems together, leadership researchers have failed to study it from an integrated system perspective (Yammarino and Dansereau 2008). I argue that such a research approach is essential for understanding how system cohesion functions as a fundamental structure of effective organizational leadership.

These findings are also significant in private organizational context, as already been discussed in the conceptualizing ethical leadership section that ethical leadership practices for public organizations do not basically differ from those for private organizations (Thaler and Helmig 2016). Therefore, the study makes meaningful contributions to the literature of business ethics and trust. In pursuit of business ethics, managers at all levels should serve as role models by demonstrating ethical leadership. The findings also demonstrate that ethics and organizational performance are not mutually exclusive. Ethical leadership is not only a virtue but also has a positive effect on organizational performance in the long run at least. Thus, managers need to recognize that people are the important cause of good organizational performance and they should exert effort in promoting ethical climates as a way to harness individual outcomes to achieve positive organizational performance.

Theoretical and Practical Implications

The findings of the study have both theoretical and practical implications. From a theoretical perspective, the findings are consistent with the central tenets of social learning and social exchange theory, which serve as theoretical lenses to comprehend how ethical leadership relates to trust in leaders and to outcomes within and across levels. Followers' attitudes, behaviours and cognitions are influenced through both a role modeling process in which employees imitate the behaviour of their leaders and a socio-emotional exchange based on trust, fairness and the norm of reciprocity. The processes imply that employees feel obligated to reciprocate ethical treatments.

From a practical perspective, the findings support the notion of trust as the axis on which socio-emotional relationships revolve in organizations. The challenge for the management is to effectively manage trusting relationships within and across levels. The initial challenge for the leader is to be trustworthy, which is more than just managerial competence. Competence and integrity are both important factors in the perception of trustworthiness. When leaders are perceived as having integrity and competence, followers are likely to be inspired to achieving organizational objectives.

Given that ethical leadership influences its outcomes through a trust-based mechanism, hiring and training more ethical leaders at multiple levels might be effective for building trusting relationships in organizations. This study recommends three measures that organizations can adopt in order to promote ethical leadership. First, organizations may use ethics tests, focusing specifically on ethical problems, to select management at multiple levels. Second, organizations may organize ethics training programmes focusing especially on middle management and emphasizing the importance of serving as ethical role models. Third, organizations may also develop and implement incentive systems that reward and support employees' ethical behaviour.

Limitations and Suggestions for Future Research

Some of the potential issues relating to sample, measures and analysis have already been discussed in the methods section. However, some additional points are worth mentioning. While the ethical public leadership model predicts that ethical leadership is associated with its outcomes both within and across organizational levels, it is hard to make definitive conclusions regarding the causality. Future research could adopt a longitudinal study design in which data on leadership, trust and outcomes were collected at different times in order to assess causal effects of ethical leadership and trust in leaders on employee attitudes, behaviours and cognitions within and across levels.

Another limitation is that there might be some response and recall bias although I sought to address this potential limitation by aggregating data collected from multiple sources. Respondents might have limited opportunity to observe ethical leadership behaviour of top management. Additionally, the fact that the study only included perceived organizational performance have provided us with opportunities to compare employees' subjective perceptions of organizational performance with objective performance indicators to determine whether subjective measurement is a valid measurement of objective performance in public organizations.

Future research may examine whether there are other cultural difference moderators; for example, as suggested by Schminke et al. (2005), employees with high moral awareness might be more influenced by their ethical leaders than those with low moral awareness. This study only examines selected English local councils, but points to profitable opportunities to examine whether there may be different patterns of relationships in different councils or whether its results would hold in other local and international contexts.

Conclusions

I began this study by wondering whether the notion of ethical leadership was important for local government and how ethical leadership could contribute to public servants' attitudes, behaviours and cognitions. I conclude that ethical leadership in local government is very important for building trusting relationships among the management and employees at multiple levels, leading to employee well-being and satisfaction, group OCB and organizational performance. As to the question of how, I have shown evidence in support of direct (horizontal), indirect (trickle-down) and cross-level (bypass) effects of ethical leadership on its outcomes through trusting relationships across levels. This is consistent with social learning and social exchange theory and suggests that all levels of ethical leadership (top, middle and supervisory) contribute to individual, group and organizational performance of local government. Supervisory ethical leadership was the strongest predictor of employee satisfaction and well-being, while top and mid-level ethical leadership were the strongest predictors of organizational performance and group OCB, respectively.

Good afternoon members,

Please see the attached list of the Caucus' social media.

I would encourage members to follow other caucus members' social media. As we develop specific caucus messages in the coming weeks, our goal is to support fellow members by tweeting and sharing those message/posts.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact our office.

Have a great weekend,

Subject: Safe re-opening of Missouri schools

Dear Missouri leader,

As you are aware, teachers and school leaders are encouraged to make educational decisions based on data and expertise. Data show that there is no clear end to the coronavirus pandemic in sight. In fact, cases continue rising in many states. In Missouri, recent numbers show that overall cases are declining, but the decline is slow and may be short lived. With this information, an in-person reopening of schools is not advisable and an online-only start to the school year is in the best interest of all stakeholders: parents, students, teachers, and communities.

On July 22, Dr. Deborah Birx, the leader of the White House Coronavirus Task Force, privately contacted St. Louis officials to warn them of increasing COVID-19 infections and urged them to take aggressive action to mitigate the spread of the virus. Opening Missouri schools as planned is in direct conflict with these advised measures and will result in immense suffering and casualties.

I am asking for your help advocating for a safe return to school in Missouri through an online-only start to the school year followed by phased return as COVID-19 cases and spread in our area decline. Per the American Academy of Pediatrics, as of August 9, 97,000 children have tested positive for COVID-19 in just the last 2 weeks of July. Please take special notice of the 80% increase in child cases in the state of Missouri. Reopening schools will only increase those cases further.

Dr. Mark Bedell, the superintendent of Kansas City Public Schools, has announced that all reentry will be subject to the guidance of the Kansas City Health Department. KCPS is starting virtually for students on September 8. Teachers have already started professional development and preparation for the upcoming school year virtually. Several other school districts in our region with a variety of demographics have decided to start the school virtually: Ritenour School District, Hazelwood School District and Ferguson-Florissant School District. Additionally, the East St. Louis School District, Maplewood Richmond Heights District, and Affton School District are committing to a similar re-entry plan. All of these districts' plans start school with all or nearly-all virtual learning with phased in re-entry benchmarks based on data.

On July 30, Missouri NEA released the results from its survey of more than 24,000 Missouri educators from MNEA, MSTA, AFT, and non-union members here. Few of the educators surveyed indicated comfort with existing reopening plans, and shared concerns ranging from opening on an arbitrary date, lack of staff voice, unclear plans, and both the ongoing lack and personal cost of PPE and cleaning supplies.

Making a decision to pivot to a primarily-virtual instruction model will give teachers time to train and prepare their online instruction — a luxury that we simply did not have in the spring.

A coalition of Missouri educators and stakeholders collaborated on a plan we believe is a great starting point for keeping everyone safe while meeting urgent needs and meaningful academic experiences. Our plan is published here.

For the health and safety of all district stakeholders — students, teachers, administrators, instructional aides, cafeteria workers, bus drivers, custodians, third-party vendors, parents and grandparents — and ultimately the community at large, I implore you to REJECT any plans for reopening schools for full face-to-face instruction and insist on a better, safer, data-driven plan.

Respectfully,

Brian Tussey

Subject: Safe Virtual Reopening for Missouri Schools

Dear Missouri leader,

As you are aware, school decisions are data-driven, and cases of COVID-19 in our community are continuously rising with no expectation for a decline in sight.

On July 22, Dr. Deborah Birx, leader of the White House Coronavirus Task Force, privately contacted St. Louis officials to warn them of increasing COVID-19 infections and urge them to take aggressive action to mitigate the spread of the virus. Please take special notice of the 80% increase in child cases in the state of Missouri.

Several school districts in our region with a variety of demographics have decided to start the school in the same fashion: Ritenour School District, Hazelwood School District and Ferguson-Florissant School District. Additionally, the East St. Louis School District, Maplewood Richmond Heights District, and Affton School District are committing to a similar re-entry plan and the superintendent of Kansas City Public Schools has announced that under the guidance of their city's health department, they will roll out a new plan for virtual re-entry throughout the next week. I have provided links to several of these re-entry plans for you to view at your convenience. All of these plans start school with all or nearly-all virtual learning with phased in re-entry benchmarks based on data.

On July 30, Missouri NEA released the results from its survey of more than 24,000 Missouri educators from MNEA, MSTA, AFT, and non-union members here. Ladies and Gentlemen

Our Missouri Second Amendment Preservation Act is (again) stalled in the Senate by a select group of individuals, that (as Clint Eastwood said in Dirty Harry) are "Legends in their own mind".

There are a variety of perspectives possible on the 2nd Amendment, but the following short video is one that I find very important to consider: Black conservative leaders discuss how the NRA was created to protect freed slaves and gun control, and is an effort to control people. The Center for Urban Renewal and Education (CURE) hosted a group of prominent figures from the African American community at 9:45A.M. on Friday, February 22nd at the National Press Club to speak out against gun control legislation currently being considered on Capitol Hill. CURE is the largest black conservative think tank in the nation and is headquartered in Washington, D.C.

In 2002 I retired from Saudi Arabia and brought my wife to the USA (after an incredible amount of paperwork, police background checks and fees), and the first thing I did was teach her gun safety and how to shoot. When she became a citizen the first thing I did was enroll her in a CCW class and then take her to the Sheriff's office for her very own CCW permit. Two points are to be made: 1) the ladies at the local Sheriff's office, and indeed our Lawrence County Sheriff himself, are very supportive of a woman's right to self defense, and 2) multiple Sheriff's around the State are on record as supporting the 2nd Amendment and a woman's right to self defense …. Do not let the media convince you otherwise! My wife's CCW pistol is like her credit card ……. She does not leave home without it!! We should never need fear that the self defense capability of any law abiding citizen (any color of the rainbow) could be infringed.

Finally, the following photos were taken just last week, when 2nd Amendment supporters rallied in the State Capitol: honest, hard-working and law-abiding citizens all, who ask only the right to defend themselves and those they care for. Look at the photos and ask yourself if you see anything that would suggest otherwise.

How to talk about guns, safety, and protecting the civil rights of all Americans

CONVERSATION NOT DEBATE
- Find common ground: We all want to be safe in our homes and communities.
- Find shared values: We love our families and want to protect them.
- Stay calm. Be sincere, respectful and empathetic.
- Listen and acknowledge other views. We all want to be heard.

SPEAK FROM THE HEART
- Don't reference the Constitution.
- Share your values, your desire to be your own first responder, your desire to save lives, and your desire NOT to be a victim.
- Be emotional about your children, your home, and your desire to protect yourself and family.
- Share your journey to gun ownership. Self-defense, defend your family/home, etc.
- Civil unrest creates additional fears and threats to lives.
- Guns rights are women's rights.
- I am my own first responder. I don't want to rely on another person or police for my protection.
- Share survivor stories.

SELF DEFENSE
- Self-defense is a natural human right!
- We all are horrified and saddened by mass murders. Gun control is not the moral high ground.
- Respect the rights of others to choose not to own a firearm.
- Firearms are the great equalizer.

EDUCATION NOT LEGISLATION
- Promote firearms education and training in schools.
- Enforce the thousands of existing laws on the books.
- Highlight failed experiments in gun control: Detroit, Chicago, Baltimore, and DC should be the safest cities.
- Existing laws already include emergency order of detention for people who are a risk to themselves or others.
- Support existing programs for firearms training, child education, and suicide prevention.

GUNS SAVE LIVES
- In the U.S., firearms are used to save a life between 500,000 to 3 million times per year (CDC).
- Gun control is racist. Nearly all restrictions were to prevent minorities from lawful possession.

UNIVERSAL BACKGROUND CHECKS
- Oppose because creates a national registry.
- Registries historically have led to a mass confiscation.
- Restrict a family's ability to share firearms or lend and teach.
- Make it more expensive/difficult for good citizens to get guns, while criminals circumvent the system.

RED FLAG LAWS
- Oppose because it is too easy to maliciously use and deprive gun owners of due process.
- Veterans with PTSD may not seek care out of fear they will be targeted by red flag laws.

SAFE STORAGE LAWS
- Oppose government mandates on how and where I can keep a firearm in my home.
- Each family's situation and safety needs are different.
- Enforcement is invasion of privacy and taxpayer expense.

ENVIRONMENT & ECONOMY
- Gun owners give $119 billion per year to the U.S. economy, supporting 1.6+ million jobs.
- Pittman-Robertson Act taxes gun, archery, and ammo purchases for conservation.
- Wildlife management ensures the survival of species.
- Living Green and harvesting one's own food is environmentally conscious.

CONCLUSION
- Let's work together to achieve a safe community, to end violence, and to protect our civil rights.
- Speak to groups and invite others to the range.
- Tone, style, and words MATTER.
  Be sincrere, be real, be relatable!

I am completely mortified that I am having to take the time to address this. In a year of everyone yelling to follow the science, why are we picking in choosing when to follow the science.

I come from an athletic family that sports was are go to. Bi-racial living in a mostly white community. Raised by a single mother. Oldest sister learned basketball playing on a boys team and another played football. They didn't stop playing with the opposite sex because they didn't love the game or because they didn't let them, they stopped because it became physically challenging.

I will have two daughter's that enjoy sports. My daughter's will potentially be fairly tall and built with a large physique. I still do not want to see them play against someone who was born a male. I do not think scientifically that matches up. Remember my sister's stopped playing with boys because it became physically impossible.

Do not let the voices that scream the loudest determine everything you do. Find an alternative. Start their own league. I am not saying to exclude or not let people do what they live. I just don't think it is following science to let males that identify as women to play in girls sports.

Thank you,

Chairman Bayse and members of the House Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education:

HB 267 is obviously an attempt to promote Christianity in Missouri schoolrooms, under color of law. In many cases it will turn public schools into Sunday Schools, as has happened in other states. It is Christian Supremacy, and must not stand.

As I have outlined at greater length in the first attachment, many Christians may not realize that this bill threatens them as well. In order to pass constitutional muster, any Bible course in the public schools must treat the Bible not as the infallible Word of God but as a human document, subject to bias, error, falsehood, and textual corruption. Such an academic approach may undermine the faith of many conservative Christians.

The second attachment cites complaints of exactly this type from Christians who have reviewed a leading Bible textbook designed to withstand First Amendment scrutiny.

The third attachment refutes the idea that Bible classes will boost academic achievement in other subjects. There is zero evidence for that assertion -- it's just a smokescreen for Christian Supremacy.

The Gospel According to William Jeynes

Proponents of Bible courses in the public schools have sometimes pointed to academic publications by William Jeynes. Based on Jeynes' work, they claim that Bible instruction will boost students' performance in other academic subjects, and may even improve their behavior.

Jeynes' papers provide zero evidence for these conclusions.

His work looks for correlations among such things as Biblical literacy and academic performance more generally. His main finding (at least of any relevance here) is that students who perform well in tests of Bible knowledge tend also to perform well in other academic subjects. They may also be better behaved, whatever that may mean to school administrators.

These findings are both completely unsurprising and completely trivial. From our own experience in school, we all know that students who perform well in one academic subject typically perform well in other subjects as well. They're the smart kids. They also tend to be well behaved kids. At least, the kids who are always getting into trouble usually aren't very good students.

In one of his studies, Jeynes looked only at students at a Christian school. Presumably all of those kids had received Bible instruction somewhere, either at church, at home, or at school. In consequence, the design of this study doesn't even permit a comparison between students who received Bible instruction and those who didn't. However, such a homogeneous sample minimizes extraneous variations that might otherwise cloud the picture, making the expected correlations stand out more clearly.

Jeynes has also done a number of meta-analyses of various papers from the literature, including both his own publications and those of other people. These meta-analyses use tricky, specialized statistical techniques to combine different data sets that weren't designed to be compatible. Two years ago, one of these meta-analyses was being enthusiastically touted by a proponent of Bible courses in the public schools. I couldn't critically evaluate it because I didn't have advanced training in statistics.

James Croft does. He has a Doctorate in Education, and is currently Leader at the St. Louis Ethical Society. He knows all about meta-analyses. He published a withering blog post dismissing not only the Jeynes paper but also its misuse by politicians.

What is completely absent from Jeynes' papers is any evidence of causality. There's no indication whatsoever that studying the Bible causes kids to perform better in other subjects. The smart kids do better at Bible study just as they do better at Algebra or American History. No doubt they would do well in school even if they never opened the Good Book.

Without evidence for causality, the case for state-sponsored Bible classes collapses.

For proponents, that doesn't matter, because the ostensible reason for these Bible classes is not the real reason. The real reason is to hijack the resources and the authority of the public schools in order to inculcate children with Christianity.

They don't dare say so, of course. Don't be fooled.

Case Study: The Bible and Its Influence

I searched the Internet for reviews of a prominent Bible textbook, The Bible and its Influence, published by the Bible Literacy Project. One of the editors is Chuck Stetson, founder of the Bible Literacy Project; in previous years he testified in favor of bills similar to SB 323.

The Bible and its Influence is advertised as "the only First-Amendment-safe textbook that supports academic study of the Bible from Genesis to Revelation."[1] It is a slick and professional piece of work, lavishly illustrated with beautiful works of art related to the subject matter. There is also a companion teacher's edition with suggested exercises, classroom activities, and the like. The publisher claims that the textbook is used in over 625 public high schools in 43 states.

I don't have my own copy of The Bible and Its Influence, so I must rely on the publisher's promotional material, and on reviews by others. From what I can tell it may be best-of-breed. It seems to make a reasonable effort to avoid proselytizing, promoting any particular religious point of view, or otherwise offending the Establishment Clause.

But has it succeeded?

Complaints from the Right

State-sponsored Bible instruction is not just a threat to non-Christians. It is a threat to Christians whose beliefs are contradicted or undermined by the state.

You don't have to take my word for it. Listen to the Christians themselves.

The first review I'll cite here is by David C. Grabbe[2] on the website of Church of the Great God, which appears to have split off from the Worldwide Church of God. Grabbe notes the claim that the Bible is being taught as a textbook and as a document – apparently a very bad thing:

> And there is the rub—the Bible is not being taught as true, but as a "document" that has influenced politics, art, music, and literature. It is not the Word of God, studied for instruction about how to live and come to know the Creator, but an "influential book" to be dissected and deconstructed to further the aims of secular humanists everywhere.

Grabbe then quotes passages from the textbook that he deems insufficiently reverential, and concludes:

> This sampling demonstrates the goals of the authors and the tactics used: to subvert high school students by causing them to question God, the authenticity of the Bible, and the supremacy of Christianity. The Bible and Its Influence is nothing more than a Trojan horse - a gift to placate those who insist on having a biblical worldview taught, but one that will steadily erode any vestige of confidence in the Bible within the next generation.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In a review[3] for WorldNetDaily, Scott Beason exposes the "public-school program that undermines Scripture." Beason was at the time a Republican state senator in Alabama. He complains that The Bible and Its Influence "outlines the Bible but undermines its authority." He then offers a bullet list of complaints (for brevity I have included only the bolded headings, not the explanatory text):

- Redefines biblical terms and demeans God
- Denies the moral value of Old Testament illustrations
- Debases the character of God
- Demeans God by making Him accountable to man
- Diminishes the value of Old Testament texts
- Undermines Scripture
- Suggests a link between the Bible and communist philosophy (amoral totalitarianism)

He quotes Dr. D. James Kennedy as saying "It would be a tremendous mistake to impose such very anti-biblical material upon our children in public schools." He also quotes Dr. John Hagee: ""My overview of The Bible and Its Influence is that this is a masterful work of deception, distortion and outright falsehoods." (The links supporting these quotes are both dead, so I can't confirm them or provide context, but I have seen the same quotes elsewhere.)

In another review,[4] Berit Kjos provides another list of complaints (again I include only the headers for brevity). Among other things, the textbook:

- Begins with a wrong perspective
- Prompts students to question God's sovereignty, wisdom and justice
- Blends pagan images with Biblical references (an unholy synthesis)
- Welcomes a universal or pagan view of God
- Undermines the authority of Scripture
- Distorts the nature of God

I have also seen complaints about various factual errors and other missteps of the sort that are inevitable in any project of comparable scope. Reportedly many of these flaws have since been corrected in a later edition.

More importantly, the reviewers summarized above are clearly distressed that the textbook is not altogether compatible with their own personal religious views. Grabbe, for example, evidently wants to insist that the Bible be taught not just as interesting or important but as true, as the Word of God, as an authoritative spiritual guide for living. Such a nakedly sectarian approach may be feasible for a Sunday School, or a Christian academy, or a Catholic parochial school, or a home schooler – but clearly not for a public school, which under the law cannot favor one religious viewpoint over another, or religion generally over non-religion.

It would be easy to dismiss these reviewers as extremists on the fringe. However even people on the fringe are entitled to religious freedom. By their own report, if their children were to be taught from

The Bible and Its Influence in a public school, they would find their parents' faith denigrated and refuted by an organ of the state.
In a recent article in The Atlantic, Jonathan Merritt raised similar concerns[5], though not addressing this textbook in particular:

> If conservative Christians don't trust public schools to teach their children about sex or science, though, why would they want to outsource instruction about sacred scripture to government employees?

I don't want to leave the impression that The Bible and Its Influence is some kind of liberal screed, as some of the reviewers above have implied. Chuck Stetson, the founder of the Bible Literacy Project, has a long history of involvement with conservative Republican politics, evangelical Christianity, and advocacy against same-sex marriage. He was trained by Chuck Colson. It would be ludicrous to paint him as the leader of a sinister cabal of secular humanists. I'm sure that he would agree.

So let's look at reviews from the other end of the spectrum.

The first[6] is by Grant Steves, writing on the website of Minnesota Atheists. He makes a number of points. I have rearranged them, and expanded on them a bit, in the following summary:

- The contributors appear to be conservative social commentators, not Bible scholars.
- Despite its claims of religious neutrality, the textbook routinely provides ready-made theological commentary. For example, it turns the account of the Garden of Eden into a religious argument against same-sex marriage.
- It fails to acknowledge even the diversity within Christianity. For example, it refers to the Christology of the Council of Nicaea as foundational to the Christian community. However not all forms of Christianity follow the Nicene formulation. In fact the Council was held in the first place precisely to stamp out the competition.
- It doesn't address the issues raised by scholarship. For example, it acknowledges the multiple endings of the Gospel of Mark, and it notes that some of the Pauline epistles may not have been written by him, but without addressing the obvious implication that the Scriptures in these cases (and in many others) have been tampered with.
- In dating the Gospels, the textbook endorses the early dates touted by fundamentalists and Christian apologists, not the later dates favored by mainstream scholars.
- It doesn't always reflect even well-established scholarship. For example, the famous scene about throwing out the first stone, where Jesus forgives the adulteress (John 7:53 -8:11), is widely regarded as a late addition by another hand – but you wouldn't know that from The Bible and Its Influence.

Next up: a review[7] by Steven L. McKenzie, writing for the Society of Biblical Literature – certainly no foe of Biblical literacy. After admiring the textbook for its admitted virtues, he turns to the downside:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

> ...this textbook does not engage in what most SBL members would consider academic study of the Bible. There is no real critical analysis concerning such matters as authorship, date, and historicity of biblical books. The treatment of the biblical material is essentially a superficial summary of content. Statements in the text are, for the most part, accepted at face value without the recognition that such acceptance is in itself an interpretation.

The arguably slipshod scholarship is perhaps no surprise:

> None of the actual authors or "content contributors"—Joanne McPortland, Marjorie Haney Schafer, Ph.D., Marc Stern, J.D., and Eve Tushnet—is listed in the SBL directory or appears to be a biblical scholar by profession.

Furthermore, the layout is heavily tilted toward Christianity at the expense of Judaism. The Old Testament contains much more material than the New Testament, but accounts for only half the textbook. Thus the books of Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel share a single chapter between them; another chapter covers Hosea, Amos, Jonah, Micah, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi. On the other hand the book of Acts gets three chapters all to itself, and another three are devoted to Revelation.

Finally, let's look at a review[8] from Americans United for Separation of Church and State. The name of the reviewer is not given.

The reviewer begins with misgivings about the provenance of this textbook:

> In the first place, there is something troubling about allowing a well-funded religious pressure group to initiate Bible classes in our public schools. Public schools exist to serve the widest possible range of students from many faith perspectives and none. While the courts have never ruled against objective study about religion, involvement in that sensitive subject is always controversial. Red flags should go up when religious groups seek special classes for their holy scriptures.

He or she also remarks that "The advisory board of Stetson's BLP also has a distinctly rightward tilt." However he or she then goes on:

> The book was apparently compiled by a committee, and the ideological tilt varies. Readers will find it an interesting mix of conservative and liberal concepts. Stetson was apparently willing to include progressive voices in the volume as the price he had to pay to get endorsements from the moderate end of the civil liberties spectrum.

This reviewer leaves issues of Biblical scholarship for others to address, focusing rather on the textbook's breathless praise for the Bible as an overwhelmingly positive influence on the world. While touting the Bible's role in the anti-slavery, civil rights, and other progressive movements, it fails equally to acknowledge that the Bible has also been recruited in defense of slavery, racial segregation, and misogyny, to say nothing of anti-LGBTQ bigotry.

The review also focuses on the textbook's treatment of church and state:

8 https://www.au.org/church-state/january-2006-church-state/books-ideas/the-bible-literacy-project

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Church-state separationists will be especially appalled at the book's concluding "unit feature" on "Faith and Freedom in America." The two pages are a wholly inadequate treatment of this important issue.

Conclusions

Despite appearances, my purpose is not to bash this particular textbook. The bashing has been done by others. I'm not even trying to make the trivial point that you can't please everybody.

Rather, my point is that the religious neutrality claimed for The Bible and Its Influence is a sham and a delusion. That's not a criticism of the publisher's well-meaning efforts. The problem is not that the book fails to achieve its goal, but that its goal is unachievable.

In Bible instruction, religious neutrality is not an option. To some, even the attempt at neutrality is an impermissible provocation, because it acknowledges the legitimacy of beliefs other than their own.

Inevitably, defenders of this textbook (or any such textbook) will say: "Well, we must be doing something right if we're catching flak from both sides."

That's the wrong response. In the first place, there's no guarantee that the truth always lies somewhere in the middle.

More importantly: it's no job of the government to decide where the truth lies.

Testimony Against Missouri SB 323

I write in opposition to SB 323, and in opposition to every other attempt to harness the resources and the authority of the public schools to teach religion.

Despite the obligatory disclaimers in the bill and on the lips of its supporters, the teaching of religious scripture in the public schools will inescapably promote some religious beliefs at the expense of others, violating the spirit if not the letter of the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment. Such instruction will lead local school districts into a legal, doctrinal, and political minefield that they are ill equipped to negotiate.

As a member of a religious minority, I am ever sensitive to any attempt by the state to impose a faith contrary to my own.

You belong to a religious minority as well, even if you are a Christian.

If you are a Catholic, you don't want Protestants to teach your children about the Bible. That's why Catholics established their own schools in the nineteenth century.

If you're a Protestant -- what sort of Protestant? In Jefferson's day, the Danbury Baptists were concerned about the Congregationalists. If you're a Congregationalist, you're concerned about the Methodists. If you're a Methodist, you're concerned about the Presbyterians. If you're a Presbyterian, you're concerned about other Presbyterians.

I was brought up as a Presbyterian. I knew from an early age that some Presbyterians favored a literal interpretation of Adam and Eve, and other Presbyterians didn't. Neither faction would have wanted the other to teach their children the book of Genesis.

Whether they realize it or not, Christians are as threatened by this bill as any Muslim, atheist, or secular humanist; in fact more so, since they are more likely to enroll their children in these courses. If Bible courses in public schools are to pass legal muster, they must avoid endorsing any religious doctrines, such as the doctrine of Biblical inerrancy that is central to the faith of many conservative Christians. The resulting instruction may undermine or subvert that faith.

This concern is not just hypothetical. Some Christians have already complained, for precisely this sort of reason, about a leading textbook designed for Bible instruction in public schools. I have discussed these views in some detail in an attached case study.

Religious Neutrality

According to a persistent myth, a school could teach the Bible in a religiously neutral manner. In practice, though, such neutrality is unlikely at best and impossible at worst.

With rare exceptions, Bible teachers at the high school level will not be scholars or historians. They will be former seminarians, graduates of Bible colleges, and others whose approach to the Bible is suffused with their own Christian faith. Many will eagerly turn their classes into publicly funded

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Sunday Schools. That's what happened in Texas[1] and Kentucky[2] when those states began offering Bible classes in their public schools. There's no reason to expect a different result in Missouri.

Such classes will attract secularist organizations like bears to honey: American Atheists, Americans United for Separation of Church and State, the Freedom From Religion Foundation, and the ACLU. They will sue. And they will win. And they will be awarded their legal expenses from the public purse.

The net result will be the transfer of money, easily mounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, out of the budgets of school boards and into the pockets of lawyers -- to the detriment of education.

Even with the best of intentions, however, religious neutrality in a Bible course is all but unattainable.

Any honest attempt to teach the Bible in a strictly academic fashion will quickly encounter concepts and findings that are commonplace among mainstream scholars, and uncontroversial or at least respectable in academia – but that will be anathema to many Christians of a more conservative bent:

- Moses and the patriarchs probably never existed.
- The Exodus from Egypt, and the conquest of Canaan under Joshua, almost certainly never happened.
- Outside of the Bible there is essentially no evidence for the storied kingdoms of David and Solomon.
- The Book of Daniel was written hundreds of years after it claims to have been written, and many of its prophecies predicted things that had already happened.
- A number of the New Testament epistles are forgeries, i.e. they weren't written by their purported authors.
- The four Gospels disagree with each other in all sorts of matters great and small.
- The ending of the Gospel of Mark, as printed in most Bibles, is not the original ending. It was added by another hand, probably decades later. In fact there are several competing endings in different manuscripts.

In a series of appendices I have discussed three additional such issues in more detail: the dating of the Gospel of Mark, the discrepancies between the nativity accounts in Matthew and Luke, and the authorship of some of the so-called "Pauline" epistles.

It is not my intent here to take sides in any of these scholarly debates. I have no credentials to do so in any case. My point is simply that such issues exist, where the conclusions of many scholars are at odds with the beliefs of many Christians in the pews. If a gormless layman like me can quickly rattle off a list of such controversies, surely an actual scholar could fill pages with them.

There are several possible ways for a Bible course to treat such a controversial issue.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The simplest approach is to treat the Bible as literally and infallibly true, notwithstanding any evidence to the contrary. This approach may satisfy conservative Christians, but it won't satisfy the courts, being an explicit endorsement of the religious doctrine of Biblical inerrancy.

A "see no evil" approach would simply ignore the issue without even acknowledging it. This approach would be a less honest variant of the first approach, leaving its assumption of Biblical inerrancy implicit rather then explicit.

A more scholarly approach would be to acknowledge the issues and discuss the evidence on the merits. If the result accurately reflects the state of mainstream scholarship, fundamentalist Christians will often see their religious tenets undermined. They might well file a complaint under the Establishment Clause, the Free Exercise Clause, or both, and they might well win.

A more even-handed policy would point out that "some people think this, and some people think that," without taking sides. In that case no one will be happy. Each side will be resentful, if not outraged, that the other side is represented at all. The attached case study shows examples of this kind of reaction.

Finally, one might adopt a purely literary approach. Treat the Bible as a big block of interesting and influential text, without regard for its history, its accuracy, or its religious content. Reduce it to a trove of quotable quotes and bedtime stories, to be mined for cultural references.

This last option is probably the worst of all. The Bible is an inherently religious book from start to finish. To rob it of all religious meaning, however controversial that meaning may be, would be to demean the work, insult the faithful, and cheat the student. You can no more teach the Bible without the religion part than you can teach calculus without the math part.

Appendix A: Dating the Gospel of Mark

When was the Gospel of Mark written?

That's a question you would ask of pretty much any work of literature in order to understand it better. In the case of Mark, fundamentalists and Christian apologists generally favor dates as early as possible. Mainstream scholars generally favor a date in the 70s CE, or even later.

That question may seem dry and academic, of interest only to specialists. However the answer has profound implications in the world of faith.

According to Mark, Jesus predicted the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem:

> And as he came out of the temple, one of his disciples said to him, "Look, Teacher, what wonderful stones and what wonderful buildings!" And Jesus said to him, "Do you see these great buildings? There will not be left here one stone upon another that will not be thrown down." (Mark 13:1-2, ESV)

Sure enough, that's exactly what happened. In 70 CE, after taking Jerusalem at the climax of the first Jewish War, Roman legions under Titus burned the Temple and dismantled it stone by stone.

If Mark was written much before 70 CE, then the destruction of the Temple was the fulfillment of a true prophecy on the part of Jesus, or at least of whoever came up with the story. On the other hand if Mark was written after 70 CE, then the prediction was of something that had already happened; no prophetic powers were needed. In fact this Gospel is seen by some as largely a reaction to the destruction of the Temple and of the Temple cult that went with it, vindicating the Pauline narrative of a new covenant superseding the old covenant of Abraham and Moses.

You cannot date the Gospel of Mark without taking sides in theological questions. One of the reasons (though not the only one) for assigning a late date is a reluctance to rely on supernatural explanations when a naturalistic one is available. On the other hand, one of the reasons to insist on an early date is to demonstrate Jesus' status as a prophet; a late date makes the purported prophecy look a wee bit fraudulent.

Since Mark is almost universally regarded as the first of the canonical Gospels to be written, how you date it affects how you date the other three as well.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Appendix B: Nativity Accounts

What were the circumstances of Jesus' birth?

More to the point: which Gospel do you believe? Mark and John don't provide nativity narratives. Matthew and Luke do, but their stories are completely incompatible.

In Matthew, Joseph and Mary were apparently living in Bethlehem when she became pregnant. After the birth, they stayed there long enough for the Magi to visit, maybe two or three weeks. Then they fled to Egypt, and later moved to Nazareth.

In Luke, Joseph and Mary were already living in Nazareth when she became pregnant. They went to Bethlehem only for the census, and for the birth. After a visit from some local shepherds they returned to Nazareth.

So what do you want, Magi or shepherds?

Well, maybe you can have both. Maybe Matthew just didn't mention the shepherds, and Luke just didn't mention the Magi.

It's not so easy to reconcile the timing. When was Jesus born?

According to Matthew, Jesus was born during the reign of Herod the Great, who died in 4 BCE. According to Luke, he was born at the time of the census of Quirinius, who became governor of Syria in 6 CE. That's a gap of at least ten years. Both accounts can't possibly be right.

Desperate to shore up biblical inerrancy, apologists have resorted to ingenious and convoluted arguments to explain away the discrepancy. None of them make any sense.[3]

A Bible course can address this issue in three different ways:

- Endorse the convoluted excuses of the apologists, thereby promoting a religiously motivated falsification of history.
- Acknowledge the discrepancy, with its implication that at least one of the Gospel accounts is factually wrong. This approach would contradict a widely held doctrine of biblical inerrancy.
- Ignore the problem and hope nobody notices.

The first two approaches are legally inadmissible because they involve taking sides in a question of religious doctrine. The last one is not likely to work if any of the students is paying attention.

Appendix C: The Pauline Epistles

Who wrote the epistles of Paul?

Paul, right? Duh. Except that some of them he almost certainly didn't write.

Thirteen of the epistles in the New Testament claim to have been written by Paul – i.e. each begins with a salutation from the author, who identifies himself as Paul:

- Romans
- 1 Corinthians
- 2 Corinthians
- Galatians
- Ephesians
- Philippians
- Colossians
- 1 Thessalonians
- 2 Thessalonians
- 1 Timothy
- 2 Timothy
- Titus
- Philemon

(Traditionally the Epistle to the Hebrews was also thought to have been written by Paul, but unlike the other "Pauline" epistles, it makes no claim about its authorship. As early as the third century Origen expressed doubt about its authorship. Few modern scholars attribute it to Paul.)

Of the thirteen epistles listed above, many scholars believe that six are forgeries: Ephesians, Colossians, 2 Thessalonians, 1 and 2 Timothy, and Titus. In other words, Paul didn't write them. Other people wrote them under his name, hijacking his authority and prestige in order to promote their own ideas.

The accusation of forgery is based partly on style and partly on substance. Stylistic considerations include such things as vocabulary, sentence length, and characteristic use of language. Considerations of substance involve evident differences in theology between the supposed forgeries and the supposedly authentic epistles.

I shall not elaborate on these considerations further here, nor even take sides in the debate. Others have addressed these issues elsewhere[4]. Suffice it to say that the consensus of mainstream scholars, i.e. non-fundamentalists, is that Paul wrote only some of the so-called "Pauline" epistles, and nobody knows who wrote the others. Even the "authentic" epistles seem to have been subjected to edits and additions from a later hand, but those issues need not concern us here.

4 See for example: Ehrman, Bart, Forged, HarperOne, New York, NY (2011).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A Bible course can address these issues in three different ways.

- Treat all the "Pauline" epistles as authentic. After all, they're in the Bible, and the Bible is true, so if the epistles say Paul wrote them, then Paul wrote them.
- Accept the scholarly consensus that some of the epistles are forgeries.
- Ignore the issue altogether.

In a public school none of these approaches is permissible. The first asserts a religious doctrine; the second denies that doctrine; the third is just a less honest version of the first.

Similar issues arise for the epistles 1 and 2 Peter. These epistles are so different in style that it's unlikely that the same person wrote both of them. At least one of them is almost certainly a forgery, and quite possibly both of them.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Honorable Senator Karla May
Missouri House of Representatives
Jefferson City, Missouri

To the Chair and Committee, Missouri House of Representative for Senate Bill 323,

Thank you for the opportunity to share my support for Senate Bill 323,

I am Dr. Chester Z. McIntyre, a 27-year pastor and 29 year Public School Teacher,
Without question, literature is used for many reasons; some individuals use it for direction in life, some for comfort, and others for the simple joy and finding joy in what it implies and directs. The Bible's ability to be a source of study in public schools was censored in 1948; from that point until now, our country's issues have turned for the worse. There is no literature like the Bible for direction in life, comfort, and joy. All the ills of our society cannot be blamed on the government's censorship of the Bible, which many believe is a source of direction, comfort, and joy. However, the influence of the government cannot be understated. Public schools are the most powerful entity of influence, and mandate in the United States for our children who will be tomorrow's adults who need direction, comfort, and joy. Public Schools, in many ways, parent and train our children to believe or disbelieve in many of life's positions.

In 1947 most parents believed that the Bible was a source of direction in life, comfort in life, and joy in life for them and their children. One agnostic/atheist or confused person was embarrassed because of their son's disbelief or refusal to be a part of a "pull out program to study the Bible and its presence in schools. The Bible was placed on trial in the Supreme Court and censored from America's public schools. Stopping proselyting is one thing but prohibiting the Bible from the microcosm of our public schools is another. In my opinion, the influence of government on religion began that day in 1948; it showed its partiality towards secularism and began its prohibition on religion, due to its ban and influence. IN 1971 it solidified its stand with Lemon vs. Krantz; its partiality to secularism shows it's not neutral towards religion. It prohibited the source that had already been a part of schools. Its prohibition goes against the 1st amendment.
Allowing the Bible to be taught as an elective in the public schools of Missouri will stand as a source for all who want its direction, for comfort, the simple joy of reading and studying ancient literature. Harvard University, our first school, understood the value of the Bible; I hope that we will allow it again to be a part of our school system in this literary way.

Re: Oppose SB 323—Bible Classes Create Serious Constitutional Risks

Dear Chair Basye and Vice-Chair Haffner:

On behalf of the Missouri chapter, members, and supporters of Americans United for Separation of Church and State, I write to express our opposition to SB 323, which would allow school districts to offer a course on the Hebrew Scriptures/Old Testament, the New Testament, or a combination of both.

Any public school class dedicated solely to the Bible presents serious constitutional risks. In theory the classes can meet constitutional demands, but in practice such classes frequently violate the law and lead to costly litigation. Furthermore, this bill is part of a coordinated effort by Project Blitz to pass Bible class bills across the country as one step in their larger plan to enshrine Christian nationalism into state laws. This bill, therefore, should be rejected.

The Constitution Imposes Strict Requirements on Bible Courses

A long line of court decisions makes clear that it is difficult—and public schools often fail—to meet the constitutional requirements that apply to public school Bible courses.[1]

In accordance with the Constitution, public schools may teach about religion but they may not teach religion. Public school Bible courses must be taught from a secular, non-devotional, and objective perspective—public schools may not teach that the Bible is a true and literal historical record.[2] The courses may not teach a particular religious doctrine or a sectarian

Dist.*, 933 F. Supp. 582, 596–97 (N.D. Miss. 1996) (prohibiting school district from offering classes teaching "the Bible not as a work of fiction, but as a historic record, i.e., as a record of what actually occurred in the past"); *Doe v. interpretation of the Bible and should expose students to critical perspectives on the Bible and a diversity of biblical interpretations. [3]

Despite these constitutional guidelines, many public school Bible courses still become nothing more than Sunday school lessons masquerading as legitimate instruction about religion.[4] For example, in 2017, Kentucky passed a Bible course bill. Although it included some of these constitutional requirements, an examination of courses across the state found that many violated the Constitution: students were required to watch religious videos promoting Christianity and to memorize Bible verses, and classroom materials were taken from Sunday school websites.[5]

These experiences should serve as a warning. Public schools find it difficult to avoid teaching the Bible from a religious perspective, and families whose religious freedom has been violated often have no choice but to challenge them in court. This litigation can be costly to school districts, public schools, and taxpayers.

The Real Intent of Bible Courses Is to Endorse Religion in Public Schools

Project Blitz is a nationwide campaign to impose far-right evangelical Christian views on everyone, including our public school students.[6] That these bills are a part of Project Blitz makes clear that their real purpose is to endorse religion.[7] The Project Blitz playbook initially focuses on public school students with Bible class bills and then escalates to promote bills that would misuse religious freedom to allow discrimination. This includes bills that allow taxpayer-funded agencies to turn away couples seeking to foster or adopt children in need of stable and loving homes because they are same-sex or the "wrong" religion.[8] Ultimately, Project Blitz aims to transform religious freedom from a shield that protects to a sword that harms others. I have enclosed with this letter a statement from 43 national organizations, including 24 religious and denominational organizations, that oppose the Project Blitz playbook.

Freedom of religion means that parents—not school officials or state legislatures—have the right to direct their children's religious education and should be able to trust that their children will not be taught someone else's religious beliefs. Public schools, which educate the vast majority of students in the state, should ensure that every student feels welcomed and

Bible Classes in Public Schools

Any public school class dedicated solely to the Bible presents serious constitutional risks: In theory, the classes can meet constitutional demands, but in practice such classes frequently violate the Constitution and lead to costly litigation. Yet, state legislatures are increasingly debating bills that would require public schools to offer classes that teach the Bible. This uptick is not a surprise: these bills are one step in a coordinated effort across the country to impose Christianity on our public schools, known as Project Blitz.

Our public schools are open to all students regardless of religion and should not promote any one religion over others.

Public schools are a unifying force in our society, and they educate the vast majority of students across the country. They are open to all students regardless of religion. Public schools must ensure that no student feels excluded in their own school because they are members of a minority faith or nonreligious.

The U.S. Constitution imposes strict requirements on public school Bible classes.

Public schools may teach about religion, but they may not engage in religious instruction. The Constitution requires that Bible classes be taught from a secular, non-devotional, and objective perspective. For example, these classes cannot teach a particular religion's interpretation of the Bible or that the Bible is true. Public schools, however, struggle to meet the demands of the Constitution.

Many public school Bible classes become nothing more than Sunday school lessons.

A long line of court decisions make it clear that public school Bible classes often promote Christianity. For example, an examination of Bible classes across Kentucky found that students were required to watch religious videos promoting Christianity and to memorize Bible verses, and classroom materials were taken from Sunday school websites.

AMERICANS UNITED FOR SEPARATION OF CHURCH AND STATE

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Statement from 43 National Organizations United in Opposition to Project Blitz and Similar Legislative Efforts

Religious freedom is a fundamental American value. It is a shield that protects everyone—the religious and nonreligious alike. Yet, an alarming effort is underway to harness the power of the government to impose the faith of some onto everyone else, including our public school students. This effort seeks to transform religious freedom into a sword that can be used to harm others, undermining important civil rights protections and healthcare access, especially for women, LGBTQ people, those of minority faiths, and the nonreligious.

We are united against these efforts.

In particular, we oppose "Project Blitz," a new and coordinated national effort to enshrine Christian nationalism in state laws across the country. Project Blitz promotes a three-tiered framework of state bills meant to incrementally redefine religious freedom and tear down the separation of church and state, with each tier laying the groundwork for the next. This framework starts by pushing what its authors believe will be less controversial measures, such as requiring "In God We Trust" to be posted in public schools. Using those bills as a foothold, it then seeks to pass more dangerous legislation, like bills that allow taxpayer-funded agencies to turn away couples seeking to foster or adopt children in need of stable and loving homes because they are same-sex or the "wrong" religion.

The separation of church and state, however, is the linchpin of religious freedom and a hallmark of our democracy. It ensures that each person has the right to choose whether to practice a religion or be nonreligious without pressure from the government. It safeguards houses of worship from intrusion by the government and, at the same time, prevents religious institutions from harnessing the power of government to impose their religion on others. It protects parents who want to send their children to public schools without fear that they will be proselytized or forced to pray according to someone else's faith tradition. And, it prohibits the government from allowing the use of religion to evade laws that protect civil rights and access to healthcare, including reproductive healthcare.

Therefore, we urge legislators across the country to oppose Project Blitz and similar legislative efforts. America—and religious freedom—are stronger when the government gives no religion or set of beliefs more power or preference than any other and when everyone is welcome and treated equally under the law.

Subject: SB9 Amendment

Respected Representatives,

Hello, hope you all are doing well. My name is Faarina Khan, and I am a Missouri licensed assistant physician who serves as the president of the National Association of Assistant/Associate Physicians (NAAP). NAAP is a non-profit organization comprised of about 150 licensed assistant physicians that is focused on refining the Missouri assistant physician program and expanding variations of the concept nationally.

I am writing to you today in regards to the proposed amendments in Senate Bill No. 9 that would modify the existing Missouri assistant physician program in two significant ways. One would be to restrict future licensure to specifically Missouri medical school graduates who remain unmatched to medical residency training programs. The second change would limit these new licensees to only three years of being able to practice as an assistant physician, as well as also imposing a three-year expiration date from the passage of this bill on the 400+ currently licensed assistant physicians.

The fallacies to consider with these amendments are several-fold. First, the overwhelming majority of the currently licensed assistant physicians are US citizen or permanent legal resident medical school graduates who chose to study medicine abroad; of the minority who are US medical school graduates, almost none (if any) of them are medical school graduates of Missouri medical schools. Keeping historical residency match data in mind, an average of only 6% of US medical graduates nation-wide fail to match into residency training programs on their first application cycle (meaning only a literal handful if even that would be eligible to apply if the scope is hypothetically limited to just unmatched Missouri medical school graduates moving forward.) By comparison, only 50-60% of medical school graduates with foreign medical training successfully match into residency training on their first application cycle; until and unless they can afford to undertake the associated thousands of dollars in expense, they have to apply repeatedly before potentially succeeding with no guarantees of securing a single residency interview. Regardless of where medical graduates obtain their medical training, the root of the problem that encouraged the origin of the assistant physician program in the first place and still exists now more than ever is the continued quantitative issue of insufficient residency positions for the number of residency applicants. For example, in this cycle alone, 2021 NRMP data reveals that 40,000+ applicants applied for a little over 30,000 positions. The assistant physician program therefore allows licensees to ameliorate the existing healthcare provider shortage throughout the state while aiding them to maintain a distinctive edge as residency applicants.

The next facet to consider is the specific benefit that the current assistant physician program has had on Missouri's healthcare. Since January 2017, both collaborating physicians and patients themselves can attest to the fact that thousands of patients across the state have benefited from assistant physicians in medically underserved primary care and urgent care outpatient settings. More specifically, in context of the current pandemic, assistant physicians have actively worked on Missouri's disaster medical assistance team (MO-1 DMAT) over the past year to provide COVID-19 relief efforts in the form of COVID-19 screening, testing, augmenting staffing at affected medical facilities and most recently COVID-19 vaccinations. Focusing on vaccinations alone, upwards of 18,000 vaccinations have been administered by DMAT personnel to date and are continuing to be given. As one of those assistant physicians myself, nothing parallels this experience and I'm proud to have had the honor to serve Missouri in this capacity and round out my almost three years of assistant physician licensure before starting my residency training this summer. To offer some perspective, I matched after five years of consecutive applying for residency, submitting almost 1200 residency program applications and spending about $30,000 just in application fees (not including any of the costs associated with residency interviews.)

The leadership team of NAAP would be more than willing to work in tandem with legislators and involved organizations to come up with solutions that will more effectively address all stakeholders' concerns and move Missouri's healthcare in the right direction. Therefore, with all due respect, I strongly urge to avoid supporting SB9's amendments related to time limitations on how long assistant physicians can serve the state of Missouri and limiting it to just Missouri medical school graduates. As was highlighted above, the residency match process is daunting with limited spots and many other factors that are unfortunately outside of the hands of those applying for them. It also does not make sense logically when assistant physicians will only become better at their jobs and gain additional clinical experience towards residency applications the longer they can serve. No other midlevel provider in Missouri has such limitations on licensure after three years of valuable work experience. Please feel free to follow up with me if you have any questions or concerns.

Faarina Khan

Subject: School Start Date Bill - 4 -Day week Schools

Honorable Representatives,

My name is Louis Carrasquillo, School Board President for Verona R-7 school District in Verona, MO. Due to financial concerns and staff retention we recently instituted a 4-day school week. As a result we have minimized overhead and seen an improvement in teacher retention and recruitment. Our staff, student body and community has embraced the 4-day week and we have seen a unpredicted reduction in student and teacher absence as well. I would ask that you please take a vote on house bill 1636 to exempt small four day week districts due to the fact that we would have to eliminate many out of school days around Thanksgiving, Christmas , additional holidays such as Martin Luther King Jr. Day as well as have less days to make up due to inclement weather. This bill would not only allow school districts with a four day week to set their own start date for school, but give each district the continued option to adjust their calendar to fit their community and it needs. I am confident that you all will do what is right for your constituents and vote on this bill.

Thank you in advance.

Louis Carrasquillo
School Board President
Verona, R-7 Schools

Subject: Senate Bill 26 Harms Crime Victims

Dear Missouri General Assembly:

Thank you for reading our letter. We are the National Organization of Victims of Juvenile Murderers. We represent about 400 victims around the country. Several of our members are impacted by Missouri Senate Bill 26, which mandates parole eligibility for juvenile offenders after only 15 years. We are respectfully requesting that the law be amended to be more considerate of us and other victims of violent juvenile felons.

There is an argument that SB 26 was only meant to release offenders who had been overcharged. Advocates of SB 26 claim that other offenders who receive parole hearings under the law who had committed more serious crimes--such as Alyssa Bustamante-- will not be released by the parole board. This argument completely ignores the devastating impact parole hearings have on victims.
Even if an offender is not released by the parole board, the parole process is still extremely traumatic for victims. During the parole process, we relive the crimes, which causes PTSD, depression, anxiety, and other conditions to flare up and makes us suffer flashbacks, nightmares, panic attacks, and other horrors. Statements such as “don't worry, someone like Bustamante won’t be paroled” and “it’s just a parole hearing, it's not a big deal” ignore the impact of parole hearings on victims. Maybe for some people, parole hearings are “just reviews.” But to victims, they are traumatic nightmares. Elizabeth Olten's family and other victims are not responsible for any overly harsh prison terms that may have been given to other offenders. We should not sacrifice them and re-traumatize them so that a handful of offenders who deserve to get out of prison can be paroled.

People say that victims can just skip parole hearings--but we can’t. We feel compelled to prevent an unjust early release and, for murder victims’ families, to be a voice for dead family members who cannot speak for themselves. We also feel compelled to partake in the parole process due to fears for our own safety and the safety of others. Many of us, particularly those who testified against the criminals or who were threatened by them, fear retaliation against us and our families. Also, we are in a unique position to understand the danger these violent offenders pose and we are obligated to protect other potential victims from them. Just the possibility of the offender being released, even if small, is terrible and frightening for us.

SB 26 forces us to live with the fear of our victimizers being released. Maybe the parole board now is reluctant to release severely violent criminals. But parole boards can change. In the future, we may have a parole board that is more open to releasing violent felons. There is no way to guarantee that someone like Bustamante won't be released under this law.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Crime victims do not lose our value or our right to justice because our victimizers were under 18. We are begging the Missouri General Assembly to amend this law to make it more considerate of victims.

Thank you for reading our letter.

Sincerely,

NOVJM

Subject: Senate Bill 26

Dear Missouri Legislature:

My name is Jaylynn Hardwick. I am from Jefferson City, Missouri. I am writing to express outrage about Senate Bill 26, which recently went into effect, and mandates parole eligibility for some of Missouri's most violent offenders, including Alyssa Bustamante.

Alyssa Bustamante murdered 9-year-old Elizabeth Olten for fun in 2009. Bustamante had previously told a friend, “I just wonder what it would be like just to kill someone, see the life just drain out of someone. I wonder what it would feel like, that type of power, to take that away from someone.” Bustamante lured Elizabeth into the woods, strangled her, stabbed her, slit her throat, and buried her in a pre-dug grave.

Bustamante was sentenced to life with parole eligibility after 35 years--but because of SB26, Bustamante is eligible for parole in 2024, after serving only 15 years. Making Bustamante eligible for parole after only 15 years demeans her crime and endangers society. The law needs to be amended to keep society safe from violent predators like Bustamante.

Thanks for your time
Jaylynn Hardwick

SECOND REGULAR SESSION

HOUSE BILL NO. _____

101ST GENERAL ASSEMBLY

INTRODUCED BY REPRESENTATIVE _____

DANA RADEMAN MILLER, Chief Clerk

AN ACT

To repeal Section 217.692 RSMo, by replacing subsection 1 relating to parole or release of certain offenders.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Missouri, as follows:

1. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law to the contrary, any offender incarcerated in a correctional institution serving sentence of life with no parole for fifty years or life without parole, and or consecutive terms of imprisonment exceeding thirty years and who:

(1) Pleaded guilty to or was found guilty of a homicide of a spouse or domestic partner;

(2) Has no prior violent felony convictions;

(3) No longer has a cognizable legal claim or legal recourse;

(4) Has a history of being a victim of continual and substantial physical or sexual domestic violence that was not presented as an affirmative defense at trial or sentencing and such history can be corroborated with evidence of facts or circumstances which existed at the time of the alleged physical or sexual domestic violence of the offender, including but not limited to witness statements, hospital records, social services records, and law enforcement records;

Shall be eligible for parole after having served fifteen years of such sentence when the board determines by using the guidelines established by this section that there is a strong and reasonable probability that the person will not thereafter violate the law.

2. The board of probation and parole shall give a thorough review of the case history and prison record of any offender described in subsection 1 of this section. At the end of the board's review, the board shall provide the offender with a copy of a statement of reasons for its parole decision.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

3. Any offender released under the provisions this section shall be under the supervision of the parole board for an amount of time to be determined by the board.

4. The parole board shall consider, but not limited to the following criteria when making its parole decision:

(1) Length of time served;

(2) Prison record and self-rehabilitation efforts;

(3) Whether the history of thecase included corroborative material of physical, sexual, mental, or emotional abuse of the offender, including but not limited to witness statements, hospital records, social services records, and law enforcement records;

(4) If an offer of a plea bargain was made and if so, why the offender rejected or accepted the offer;

(5) Any victim information outlined in subsection 7 of section 217.690 and section 595.209;

(6) The Offender's continued claim of innocence;

(7) The age and maturity of the offender at the time of the board's decision;

(8) The age and maturity of the offender at the time of the crime and any contributing influence affecting the offender's judgment;

(9) the presence of a workable parole plan; and

(10) Community and family support.

5. Nothing in this section shall limit the review of any offender's case who is eligible for parole prior to fifteen years, nor shall it limit in any way the parole board's power to grant parole prior to fifteen years.

6. Noting in this section shall limit the review of any offender's case who has applied for executive clemency, nor shall it limit in any was the governor's power to grant clemency. (It shall be the responsibility of the offender to petition the board for a hearing under this section shall be a class C felony.

9. In cases where witness statements alleging physical or sexual domestic violence are in conflict as to whether such violence occurred or was continual and substantial in nature, the history of such alleged violence shall be established by other corroborative evidence in addition to witness statements, as provided by subsection 1 of this section. A contradictory statement of the victim shall not be deemed a conflicting statement for purposes of this section.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

"The greatest tragedy in life is not death, but rather living without purpose. Without a purpose a life has no meaning, no significance, no hope."

The reasons I am reaching out to you is due to the fact that there is Senate Bill Number 529 which helps certain offenders who have pleaded guilty to or been found guilty of homicide of a spouse or domestic partner and are serving a life without parole sentence and shall be eligible for parole after having served fifteen years if the board of probation and parole determines that there is a strong possibility that the person will not violate the law again. My case fit the criteria of this Bill, the only thing which doesn't make me eligible is the Bill Statute. It states...."This bills helps anybody who case happened prior to December 31, 1990. My problem is that my case took place in 2008. The goal that I am trying to achieve with you is if you could assist me with any help that God allows you to give. I need you to help me get the legislator in Missouri to amend this law so it will allow certain offenders who case happened after 1990 to be eligible for parole after serving 15 years on a life without parole sentence. Please try to help me get this done. I pray that you will ponder on this before making your decision.

Thank you,

Honorable Representative of the State of Missouri

Jefferson City, MO 65101

Dear Representative,

The 2021 Missouri State Fair is just around the corner, and the Missouri Farm Bureau and I invite you to participate in the tenth annual Agriculture Advisory Council Meeting.

Agriculture Advisory Council Meeting
Co-hosted by U.S. Senator Roy Blunt and Missouri Farm Bureau
Thursday, August 19, 2021
12:30 pm
VIP Tent Across from Gerken Dairy Center (new location)
Missouri State Fairgrounds, Sedalia, MO

Each year, Congress considers a variety of important issues that directly impact Missouri's farmers, ranchers, and rural communities. Whether it's debating policy changes for the next Farm Bill, reducing costly and onerous regulatory burdens impacting a producer's bottom-line, discussing implications of tax reform on family businesses, or reviewing the impact of international trade policies, the Missouri Farm Bureau and I would very much appreciate to hear your perspective on these important issues. As a representative of the largest industry that contributes to our state's economy, your experience on the ground offers the opportunity to hear common sense approaches to how federal and state governments can continue to support Missouri's agriculture sector.

The tenth annual meeting of the Agriculture Advisory Council will take place on Thursday, August 19th at 12:30 p.m. on the Missouri State Fairgrounds in Sedalia. A complimentary lunch will be provided courtesy of Missouri Farm Bureau.

The Missouri agricultural sector can look forward to extraordinary new opportunities both domestically and abroad if our federal and state partners make the sound policy decisions and investments. I hope you can join us for this conversation about the important issues facing the agriculture and rural communities in our state.

Please R.S.V.P. before August 13th by calling my Columbia office at 573-442-8151. I look forward to visiting with you at the State Fair!

Sincere regards,

Roy Blunt

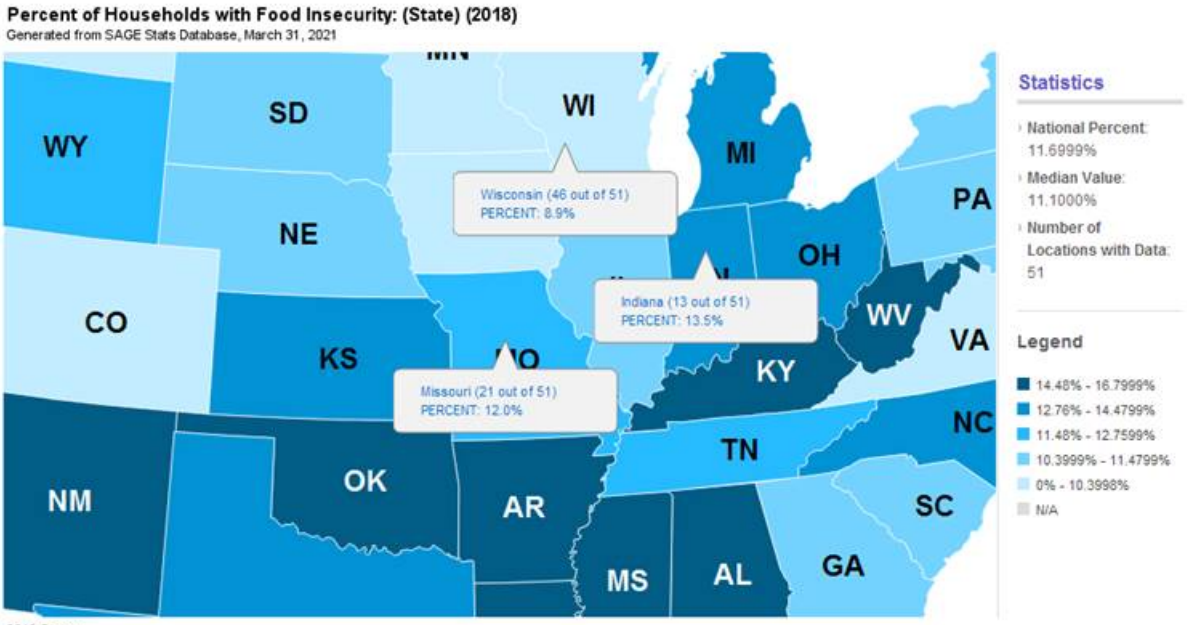
DID YOU KNOW?

Did you know that in Missouri, roughly 12% of households were determined to be food-insecure in 2018 by the USDA?



This means that access to enough food is limited by a lack of money and other resources. About one-third of food-insecure households have very low food security, meaning that at times the food intake of some household members is reduced and their normal eating patterns are disrupted.

Many of these households are part of a low-income population that is more than 1 mile from a supermarket in urban or suburban areas, or more than 10 miles from a supermarket in rural areas. This is known as a “food desert.”

According to the USDA, roughly 463,476 people in Missouri met these criteria in 2015. Of the four states with a population closest to our own, Missouri ranked second-highest for the number of low-income people living in food deserts.

According to the USDA, many of these food deserts are in urban areas particularly, with the highest concentrations in Missouri in Jackson and St. Louis County:

Hunger in America

Should the government spend more on food aid?

More than 40 million Americans need government help to keep from going hungry, and some 6 million households lack adequate food or nutrition at least occasionally. While hunger has abated since the 2007-09 recession, advocates for the poor say the federal government still needs to do much more to provide food aid and access to healthy food for the needy. But many conservatives say food-aid programs are rife with waste and fraud and need major reforms. They want to stiffen work requirements for able-bodied recipients, and some conservatives and liberals argue that food stamps should not be used to buy junk foods lacking in nutritional value. President Trump wants to slash federal spending on food aid and scientific research into nutrition. But some of his budget proposals — described as draconian by critics — face an uphill battle in Congress. Advocates for the poor, meanwhile, are expanding innovative programs that bring healthy foods to low-income areas, and celebrity chefs are joining the fight against hunger.

Demonstrators in New York on May 24, 2017, urge Mayor Bill de Blasio to increase the city's food aid to compensate for President Trump's proposed food stamp cuts. Advocates for the poor say the cuts would worsen the nation's hunger problem. Many conservatives say food-aid programs are rife with waste and fraud and need reform.

Hunger in America

BY TOM PRICE

THE ISSUES

Johnnie Lindsey, a 72-year-old grandmother, said she never turned to welfare while working and raising a family in Alabama. Now, she lives on Social Security, food-pantry donations and $66 a month in food stamps.

"I can eat for a month on $66, as long as my grandkids don't come over," she said jokingly. But she worries how she will eat if her benefits are reduced. "It's a struggle, for real," she said. "You've got to be penny-pinching to survive, and it's still hard to survive. I would hate for them to cut mine off." [1]

Lindsey is unlikely to see her food stamps totally disappear. But President Trump has proposed slashing federal food stamp spending by $193 billion over 10 years, and advocates for the poor say such a deep cut would worsen a serious problem: hunger in America.

AP Photo/The Southern/Byron Hetzler

The food pantry at the Victory Dream Center, a church in Carbondale, Ill., serves some 200 families each week. More than 40 million Americans a year fend off hunger with federal assistance. The president has proposed cutting the federal food stamp program by $193 billion over 10 years, but experts say Congress is unlikely to approve the cuts.

At stake is the well-being of more than 11 million Americans who live in households that experience hunger from time to time, and the more than 40 million who fend off hunger with federal assistance. Also at stake is the health of some half-million children who occasionally go hungry — a crisis that experts warn is a demographic time bomb because today's hungry youths could become tomorrow's poor and hungry adults. [2]

The bipartisan National Commission on Hunger, appointed by Congress in 2014, defines two categories of hunger in America:

• "Very low food security" — households that had to eat less at times during the previous year because they didn't have enough food.

• "Low-food-security" — households that sometimes face a diet of reduced quality, variety or desirability but don't have to reduce their eating. Thirty-one million people, including nearly 6 million children, are in this category. [3]

American hunger is dropping because of an improving economy, according to the Agriculture Department, but it is still higher than before the severe 2007-09 recession because of the uneven economic recovery and other factors.

Most of the hungry are non-elderly adults, although the National Foundation to End Senior Hunger, an anti-hunger group in Alexandria, Va., reported that the number of elderly facing the threat of hunger exceeded 10 million last year for the first time. Households below the poverty line are more than three times as likely to experience very low food security than average households. Other groups with higher-than-average hunger are single parents, women living alone, blacks, Hispanics and people living outside metropolitan areas. The South and Midwest had slightly higher levels of hunger than the Northeast and West because of regional economic differences. [4] (See map, p. 560.)

Besides cutting food stamp spending by $193 billion over 10 years, Trump's 2018 budget proposes enacting stricter work requirements for able-bodied food-aid recipients, cutting federal programs that help finance Meals on Wheels and implementing tougher rules about who qualifies for food assistance and how long they can receive the help.

The cuts would be "cataclysmic," said James Weill, president of the Food Research and Action Center, a research and advocacy organization in Washington, although congressional observers say Trump's budget cuts face stiff opposition. [5] Many anti-hunger activists say federal spending on food aid already is too low. Mariana Chilton, a professor of health management at Drexel University and co-chair of the National Commission on Hunger, proposes a 30 percent increase in food stamp benefits. Many food stamp recipients "just can't make it" on existing benefits, she says.

White House Management and Budget Director Mick Mulvaney, however, said the proposed cuts are necessary because some spending is going to people who don't need help, and some of the programs don't work. [6]

"You're only focusing on half of the equation, right?" Mulvaney said to re-

Food Insecurity Is Highest in South

Households in 12 states, mainly in the South, have above average "food insecurity," which means they sometimes go hungry. Mississippi has the nation's highest rate, at 21 percent, and North Dakota the lowest, at 8.5 percent. According to the U.S. Agriculture Department, 16 million U.S. households are food insecure.

porters as he unveiled the budget in March. "You're focusing on recipients of the money. We're trying to focus on both the recipients of the money and the folks who give us the money in the first place. And I think it's fairly compassionate to go to them and say, 'Look, we're not going to ask you for your hard-earned money anymore, unless we can guarantee to you that that money is actually going to be used in a proper function." [7]

Robert Rector, a senior research fellow in domestic policy at the conservative Heritage Foundation think tank, says it is important that capable recipients work for their benefits. "Food assistance for able-bodied adults should not be a one-way handout," Rector says. "It's reasonable to expect recipients to engage in constructive activities for the aid."

Chilton disagrees, calling food "a basic human right" and saying food stamps should not contain work requirements. Current federal rules require able-bodied adults between the ages of 18 and 49 with no dependents to work at least 80 hours per month, participate in an educational or training activity or comply with a workfare program. [8]

Conservatives want to give states more responsibility for anti-hunger programs, while liberals fear that states' pockets are not deep enough to handle activities funded by the federal government.

Many food-aid recipients worry about potential cuts.

Barbara Makris, 94, said "the only way I can stay in my home" is with the six Meals on Wheels deliveries she receives weekly. The Georgia retiree is blind and can't cook, and "if you can't cook, you can't stay at home" without help, she said. [9]

Tim Keefe, a 49-year-old Navy veteran, lost his job at a plow factory in Rockland, Maine, after a wrist injury left him unable to lift more than 25 pounds. When Maine toughened its work requirements in 2015, Keefe also lost his food stamps and turned to catching, skinning and roasting squirrels over an open fire beside his tent in Augusta. "I hope they understand that people fall through the cracks," he said of government policymakers. [10]

A study published this year by the University of Wisconsin found surprisingly high levels of hunger among community college students, and there were anecdotal reports of student hunger at Ivy League schools. The Wisconsin HOPE Lab, a research organization that focuses on reducing inequality in education, surveyed 33,000 students at 70 community colleges in 24 states and said a third had experienced very low food security. [11]

While the proportion of hungry students may seem high, many community college students come from lower-income families, says Sara Goldrick-Rab, who founded the lab and now teaches in the Temple University College of Education in Philadelphia. "Adding in college tuition and housing prices, it is possible they run out of money for food at a higher rate" than the general population, she says.

Many studies have found that hunger, particularly in childhood, leads to physical, mental, behavioral and financial problems.

Experts of all political persuasions agree that poverty is the top cause of hunger and that an improving economy can reduce it. Federal food aid has declined steadily in recent years because of the economic rebound. In 2013, 47.6 million people received food stamps at a cost of $76 billion. Those figures dropped in March to 42 million people at an annualized cost of about $63 billion. [12]

"A good-paying job is the best anti-hunger program," says Rebecca Middleton, executive director of the Alliance to End Hunger, an association of more than 90 service and advocacy organizations that work for food security in the United States and abroad.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Other factors contributing to hunger include lack of access to healthful food, ignorance of good nutrition practices and unwise behavior. Malnutrition — not consuming the proper amount of nutrients — is widespread in the United States, usually the result of individuals eating too much or eating the wrong things rather than eating too little. More than two-thirds of American adults and nearly one-third of children are overweight or obese. About 85 percent of Americans' diets do not meet U.S. Food and Drug Administration recommendations for the most important vitamins and minerals. [13]

Obesity among the poor, which can lead to diabetes and other ailments, stems from "famine-or-feast" eating practices, unhealthy diets and the stresses of poverty and food scarcity, experts say.

Noting that the poor often live in areas that lack well-stocked grocery stores, Middleton says that "if an individual cannot get somewhere to buy fresh produce, it makes it impossible to provide a healthy balanced diet." (See sidebar, p. 568.)

Many poor people don't understand the components of a nutritious diet and don't know how to shop efficiently, Rector says. Adults with very low food security drink an average of nearly two cans of soda each day, and more than 40 percent of them smoke 19 packs of cigarettes a month, which threatens their health and wastes money that could go toward more and better food, says Rector, who got his data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. [14]

Cultural heritage also can steer people to unhealthy diets.

"Cultural tradition and the preferences of family members influence food stamp participants to continue serving high-fat meat products and other traditional foods," according to an Agriculture Department survey of food stamp recipients that was published last year. [15]

44 Million Americans Used Food Stamps in 2016

The number of people using food stamps dropped about 10 percent since 2013, to 44 million, but that figure remains far higher than in the years before the 2007-09 recession because of the slow recovery. In 2007, 26 million Americans were relying on food stamps.

As government officials debate making changes to America's anti-hunger programs, here are some of the questions they are considering:

Should the federal government spend more on anti-hunger programs?

Health care providers, educators and grocers have noticed trends among beneficiaries of the food stamp program, formally known as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP): Life seems better shortly after recipients receive their monthly allowance than it does near the end of the monthly cycle when their benefits may have run out. [16]

Comparing the last week of the month with the first week, California hospitals reported that 27 percent more poor people sought treatment for hypoglycemia, a low-blood-sugar condition related to diabetes that can be caused by lack of food, according to research at the University of California, San Francisco. [17]

Third- through eighth-grade students in North Carolina whose parents received food stamps scored best on math and English tests between the 15th and 24th day of the monthly food stamp cycle, when they likely would have benefited from having the most food in the home, Duke University researchers reported. And grocers in poor neighborhoods commonly report higher sales when food stamps are distributed than at the end of the cycle. [18]

For advocates of the poor, this is prima facie evidence that food aid is inadequate. Others, however, say recipients don't manage their benefits wisely.

The formula used to calculate food-stamp benefits — called the Thrifty Food Plan — is "wildly insufficient and outdated," says Drexel's Chilton, and fails to account for regional differences in food, housing and other costs.

Last revised in 2006, the plan is based on the Agriculture Department's dietary guidelines and federal surveys of what low-income families pay for the food they purchase. The plan follows a benefit level established in 1999 for "a nutritious, minimal-cost diet" and is adjusted for inflation. It assumes all food is prepared at home. [19]

Diane Whitmore Schanzenbach, a professor of human development and social policy at Northwestern University who studies the long-term effects of child poverty, notes the formula assumes a family can spend 15 hours a week preparing meals from scratch. While food prepared this way tends to be healthier and less costly, "no one spends that kind of time cooking anymore," Schanzenbach says, "and I don't think it's reasonable to expect low-income families to spend that amount of time cooking while they're also working."

Far more mothers work outside the home — and thus have less time to cook — than when the Agriculture Department devised the formula in 1999, said economist James Ziliak, director of the Center for Poverty Research and of the Kentucky Research Data Center, both at the University of Kentucky. Time pressures are heavier for food-stamp families because they are more likely to be headed by a single mother, he said. Elderly recipients also face difficulty preparing meals from scratch.

The formula doesn't consider advances in nutrition research, Ziliak said. And it doesn't recognize that teenagers need more food than younger children. [20] A family with two teenage boys would need $50 a month more than the current benefit, the Agriculture Department calculated, he said. [21]

Schanzenbach says the federal government could improve recipients' well-being by basing the SNAP formula on the Agriculture Department's Low Cost Food Plan, which would be about 25 percent more expensive. While a Thrifty Plan dinner might include baked beans and hotdogs, the Low Cost dinner could allow for roast beef.

SNAP is not meant to cover a family's total food costs, says Robert Doar, who studies poverty at the American Enterprise Institute (AEI), a conservative think tank in Washington, D.C., and was co-chair of the hunger commission. "It's always been intended to be a supplement to other forms of income," he says. "Viewed that way, I think the benefit amounts are adequate."

Angela Rachidi, an AEI research fellow in poverty studies, says recipients may run out of benefits before the end of the month because of "short-term impatience" rather than inadequate benefits. They might spend their allotment when they get it, rather than parcel it out throughout the month, she says. She and Doar suggest SNAP distribute the benefits more frequently rather than raising them. [22]

Rachidi says federal food aid is meeting most people's needs. She pointed to a 2015 study that looked at regional variations in food prices and found that 70 percent of SNAP households received sufficient benefits to provide a diet determined adequate by the Agriculture Department.

Some conservatives also argue that eliminating fraud and waste could cut food-aid costs.

Ohio state auditor David Yost released a report last year that concluded "there are likely millions of dollars in fraud" in his state's $2.5 billion SNAP program. "I do not believe fraud is rampant in Ohio," Yost said, "but it does exist and it is significant." [23]

Yost said he found 1,800 instances of dead people receiving benefits, including 36 who died before 2014 and remained on the rolls in 2015. Suspicious transactions during the first six months of 2015 included more than 96,000 instances of the entire monthly benefit spent at once and more than $28.5 million in even-dollar sales, which he said are uncommon for food purchases. [24]

Nationally, the U.S. Agriculture Department reported the program had a fraud rate of 1.3 percent in 2014, down from 4 percent 15 years earlier when paper food stamps were still used. In contrast, the Government Accountability Office estimated Medicare and Medicaid programs have a fraud rate at nearly 10 percent. [25]

Would better nutrition education decrease hunger?

Tammy Whitmire of Rabun Gap, Ga., described herself as "a good Southern girl" whose family diet was limited because "the only way we knew how to eat vegetables was fried." Since taking cooking classes at the Food Bank of Northeast George in Clayton, however, she has learned how to prepare a variety of foods and has lost 84 pounds. She also has changed her husband's habits "from everything fried to, 'Oh, this [non-fried food] is really pretty good,' " she said. [26]

Education plays an important part in reducing hunger and malnutrition by helping low-income families learn how to "maximize their food budget and make healthier food choices," said Billy Shore, founder and chief executive officer of Share Our Strength, a Washington-based anti-hunger organization that sponsors cooking classes nationwide. [27]

David Ludwig, director of the New Balance Foundation Obesity Prevention Center at Boston Children's Hospital, says lack of knowledge has created "a generation that for the first time in human history has largely not learned how to cook and has become dependent on the food industry, not just to provide the food but to cook it for us. One can't get the same nutritional quality [from processed foods]," says Ludwig, who also teaches at Harvard Medical School and its School of Public Health.

Since 1993, Share Our Strength has provided cooking, nutrition and shopping education to more than 265,000 low-income families. Typically the program, "Cooking Matters," is staffed by volunteers, including chefs, and offers one-day-a-week cooking classes for six weeks, a field trip to a grocery store to learn effective shopping techniques and nutrition education.

The shopping trip teaches such skills as reading nutrition labels, comparing unit prices and identifying whole grains. Participants take home groceries after each class to practice at home. After the last class, they receive a booklet with recipes and shopping tips, a reusable grocery bag and $10 worth of grocery coupons. [28]

"Instead of just heating up pizzas and Hot Pockets," Cara-Lee Langston, who teaches Cooking Matters classes in

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Georgia, "helped the guys understand what goes into preparing a meal, how to eat on a budget and how to eat nutritious food," said Shane Pauley, ministry facilitator at Pilgrim Ministries, a faith-based organization in Georgia that works with troubled men. "All guys like meat and potatoes, but she made us throw some greens and yellows and oranges in there." [29]

But given the many challenges facing the poor, others say, education can't make a significant dent in hunger.

"No amount of nutrition education by itself is going to help anybody," Drexel's Chilton says. "You can have a family who knows that white bread is bad. But when the cost of white bread is half that of whole grain, they're going to go for the white bread. From my perspective, that's not an unwise choice given your economic situation."

Northwestern's Schanzenbach says of SNAP's education component: "There's not a lot of evidence that it works," but it may be possible to make it work better.

An evaluation of Cooking Matters found real but modest improvements in participants' behavior. Six months after completing the course, according to a survey by the Altarum Institute, a nonprofit health research and consulting organization in Ann Arbor, Mich., participants were 8 to 11 percent more likely to reduce salt consumption and to increase consumption of low-fat dairy products, lean protein and whole grains. [30]

In a paper last year for the Heritage Foundation, Rector said evaluations have found that federal programs are as effective as Cooking Matters. One evaluation compared low-income women who participated in the Agriculture Department's Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program with a control group who did not participate. The program participants reduced their food spending by $10 to $20 a month while improving the quality of their diet, he wrote. A study of the Food Stamp Nutrition Education Program in Indiana found "modest but significant reductions in food insecurity among participants," he said. [31]

Rector said the government could improve its education programs by using interactive computer technology where people apply for food stamps. All recipients should be required to complete a course covering such topics as the cost-effectiveness of different kinds of food and the importance of buying nonperishable staples in bulk, he said. Educational materials — including recipes for preparing food quickly — should be distributed to recipients and made available at food banks, he said. [32]

According to Washington Post food columnist Tamar Haspel, peanut butter, whole-grain pasta, whole-wheat flour, eggs, pearled barley, corn flour, brown rice and dried black beans are among cheap, nutritious foods that can be turned into healthy meals.

A person can "eat pretty well for under $4 per day (about the average food stamp benefit) by combining those foods with somewhat more expensive chicken thighs, sweet potatoes, carrots, frozen corn, walnuts, yogurt or frozen broccoli, Haspel said. But, she said, that requires time and skill, which many food stamp recipients don't have. [33]

Some experts suggest that physicians should play a bigger role in nutrition education for the poor. New treatment guidelines from the American Diabetes Association, for instance, urge clinicians to ask patients about food insecurity. And doctors began setting up tables at the Houston Food Bank and offered blood-sugar tests, enrollment in a blood-sugar reduction program and bags of healthy food.

A study of such programs in Texas, California and Ohio found modest improvements in participants with the worst blood sugar readings. But behavior of some participants also illustrated the hurdles education efforts can face.

Hunger Falling in U.S.

Food insecurity among U.S. households has been declining since 2011 after jumping in 2008 during the height of the 2007-09 recession. In 2015, 12.5 percent of the nation's households suffered from food insecurity, or went hungry at times, and 5 percent had very low food security, or reduced food intake at times during the year.

Cook enrolled in the anti-diabetes program and picked up his bag of healthy vegetables. The next day, however, he returned to pick up a dozen chocolate-chip-and-M&M cookies. "I know what I'm supposed to eat and not supposed to eat,' " he said. "'But I still eat what I want." [34]

Should federal aid programs stop paying for junk food?

Running late for a medical checkup, the Salas family scoured their kitchen for a quick breakfast. The 9-year-old picked sweetened cereal and chocolate milk, the 4-year-old cheddar potato chips and a granola bar. For the 40-year-old single mother, it was an insulin injection to treat her diabetes.

Living on food stamps in southernmost Texas, Blanca Salas was feeding her children the way she herself ate, and she was passing on the expected health consequences, her doctor said. A 13-year-old-daughter showed the symptoms of early-onset diabetes, while the 9-year-old was taking cholesterol medicine.

Their doctor gave them a stark warning about the need to change their diets: "Either you address this now or it will be too late. I can give you medicine, but that's not the permanent solution." [35]

The Salas family's eating habits mirror those of many other food stamp recipients. Overall, recipients spend 20 percent of their food budgets on junk, according to a 2016 Agriculture Department study of purchases at a nationwide grocery chain. Soft drinks alone account for 5 percent of their purchases. Another 5 percent goes for other sweetened beverages, such as energy drinks, sweetened teas and fruit juice, which health experts say is not a healthy alternative to the other sweet drinks. The remaining 10 percent buys desserts, salty snacks and candy. [36]

Another study, published last year in the Journal of the American Medical Association, found that 61 percent of low-income Americans had unhealthy diets during 2012-13, compared with 36 percent of affluent Americans. Americans are eating more whole grains, fruits, nuts and seeds, while consuming fewer white potatoes and sugary beverages, the researchers said. But the improvement is greater among the affluent than among those living in or near poverty. [37]

Health advocates say such findings demonstrate that food stamps, the nation's largest nutrition program, support unhealthy eating by the nation's poor, which contributes to obesity, diabetes and other diet-related illnesses among low-income Americans. Those advocates want to restrict food stamps, school lunches and other federally funded food aid to healthy foods.

Nutrition standards already apply in the $17.8 billion-a-year school feeding programs and the $6 billion Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children, which is known as WIC. But the Trump administration has delayed the implementation of stricter school-meal standards, and food stamps can buy anything that can be consumed except alcoholic beverages, nonfood items and food prepared in restaurants and other businesses. [38]

Opponents of tougher restrictions say the poor should be able to purchase whatever foods they want. Besides, some opponents say, restrictions wouldn't prevent the poor from continuing unhealthy eating habits.

"As an economist I can tell you that, if I say you can't purchase sugar-sweetened beverages with your food stamp money, people still will likely purchase sugar-sweetened beverages with their own cash," Schanzenbach says. "We should focus on policies that are likely to change behavior, not on symbolic actions that are not likely to change behavior."

The debate has spawned unlikely alliances, with liberals and conservatives found on both sides of the dispute.

The food and beverage industries, not surprisingly, have spent millions of dollars to lobby against restrictions. But the Obama administration's Agriculture Department also opposed food stamp standards, insisting that states and cities prove that nutrition requirements would work before imposing them. (No state has done so to the department's satisfaction.) Department officials have said the proposed restrictions would be unfair to food stamp recipients by limiting their choices and would be too complex to administer.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

At the same time, though, the Obama administration imposed requirements on school meal programs, which feed more than 31 million children, and proposed raising the number of healthy foods that stores accepting food stamps must carry. [39]

Among those who have called for food stamp standards are mayors of 18 major cities, members of at least 14 state legislatures, the American Medical Association and the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a liberal consumer organization in Washington that focuses on nutrition and health. Two U.S. senators — conservative Republican Tom Coburn of Oklahoma and liberal Democrat Tom Harkin of Iowa — offered an unsuccessful amendment to the 2013 farm bill that would have allowed states to test junk-food restrictions. [40]

Federal food programs should follow the Agriculture Department's healthy-diet guidelines, which are updated every five years, the Obesity Prevention Center's Ludwig says. Because food stamps can buy unhealthy foods, he says, "the public winds up paying twice — once purchasing sugary beverages and the second time for diet-related diseases and higher Medicare and Medicaid and insurance costs for everybody." If government food programs promoted nutritious eating, he adds, "it would pay back the whole society in a healthier, more productive work force and lower food related diseases."

In addition to opposing SNAP standards and stiffer school-lunch requirements, food industry organizations fought proposed regulations to increase the variety of fruits, vegetables and other healthy food that would have to be stocked by stores that accept food stamps. While supermarkets could have met the requirements proposed by the department early last year, the National Association of Convenience Stores said, more than 90,000 smaller markets would not have enough shelf and refrigeration space to comply. [41]

Small grocers were able to meet WIC's nutrition requirements and could meet new food stamp standards as well, the Center for Science in the Public Interest argued. Foods stamps currently perpetuate "food deserts" — areas without easy access to fresh, healthy, affordable food — by "paying retailers for stocking junk foods," the group said. "A healthier SNAP would help communities overcome the food-desert problem by creating demand for healthy foods." [42]

Congress in 2014 told the administration to promulgate grocery standards, but this year lawmakers said the requirements were too strict. The Agriculture Department then delayed implementing the new standards, which would have required stores to carry 84 healthy-food items, up from the current 12 but half of the 168 the department initially proposed in February 2016. Volunteers deliver Christmas dinner to a home in Westbrook, Maine, as part of a Meals on Wheels program in the state. The Trump administration wants to reduce spending on federal programs that help finance Meals on Wheels, as well as impose tougher eligibility rules for food assistance.

BACKGROUND

Early Aid

When Mabel McFiggan walked into Joseph Mutolo's store in Rochester, N.Y., on May 16, 1939, she became the first person to use a food stamp. At that time, recipients purchased the stamps at a discount. They came in two colors — orange for buying any food, and blue for buying food that the Agriculture Department designated as surplus. The stamps were intended not only to feed the hungry during the Great Depression but also to boost the sale of food that farmers couldn't sell in an economy reeling from 25 percent unemployment, low wages and other problems. [44]

As Milo Perkins, the first food stamp administrator, put it: "We got a picture of a gorge, with farm surpluses on one cliff and undernourished city folks with outstretched hands on the other.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

We set out to find a practical way to build a bridge across that chasm." [45]

While the food stamps of 1939 were the precursor of today's largest food-aid program — renamed the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) in 2008, but still commonly called food stamps — they were far from the earliest American attempts to feed the hungry.

The federal government's first forays into food and nutrition sought to encourage and improve food production.

In 1862, the Agriculture Department was created. The Homestead Act that year gave away 160-acre plots to applicants who agreed to live on and farm the land for five years, and Congress passed the Morrill Act to support land-grant colleges, which would research and teach "agriculture and the mechanic arts."

The land-grant system eventually grew to encompass more than 100 state colleges and universities, as well as the Cooperative State Research, Education and Extension Service, which distributes the findings of agricultural research to farmers and others interested in the topic. The Agriculture Department itself began conducting research in 1883. [46]

Early feeding programs were aimed at children. In 1853, the Children's Aid Society of New York was serving meals to vocational school students. Around the beginning of the 20th century, school meal programs were begun in Philadelphia and Boston, and by 1918 schools were serving lunch in at least 86 cities, according to a survey by the New York Bureau of Municipal Research. [47]

Only five cities aimed the programs at the needy, however. Instead, most of the programs were begun because school executives had concluded that many high school students lived too far from school to go home for lunch. By 1937, 15 states authorized public schools to serve lunch, but just four made special provisions for the poor.

By then, the Depression had drawn the federal government into action. In 1932 it began making loans to pay school lunch employees in a few communities and expanded the lending to 39 states two years later. In 1933, the Federal Surplus Relief Corp. began buying surplus commodities from struggling farmers and distributing the food to hunger relief agencies around the country. In 1936 the corporation began giving surplus food to school lunch programs.

It also used funding from the Works Progress Administration — the federal agency that put the unemployed to work on public works projects — to pay lunch workers in almost every community in the country, and it supplied part-time lunch workers through the National Youth Administration. [48]

To encourage Americans to eat healthy, the Agriculture Department released its first dietary recommendations in 1941. They urged Americans to eat meals that met specific targets for calories, protein, iron, calcium and several major vitamins. The 1940s also saw the birth of the Green Revolution of scientifically based agriculture improvements that greatly increased production and dealt major blows to hunger around the world. [49]

Federal school lunch participation peaked at 6.2 million children in 93,000 schools in the 1941-42 academic year, during which the United States entered World War II and food and money were diverted to the military. The food stamp program ended in 1943, when the government determined that "the conditions that brought the program into being — unmarketable food surpluses and widespread unemployment — no longer existed."

Congress authorized $60 million to feed 1.5 million children in 1943-44, support that grew to a new high of 6.7 million students two years later. Schools participating — more than 45,000 — remained below the 1941-42 rate, however. In 1946, Congress required that the meals meet "minimum nutritional requirements." [50]

Congress authorized creation of a new food stamp program in 1959, but President Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration didn't follow through. Shortly after his inauguration in 1961, President John F. Kennedy announced a pilot program for food stamps that sold the stamps at a discount. These stamps could purchase all items intended for human consumption except alcoholic beverages and imported food.

The Agriculture Department — which recorded Mabel McFiggan's first purchase of the original food stamp program — also recorded Mr. and Mrs. Alderson Muncy's purchase of a can of pork and beans with discounted stamps at Henderson's Supermarket in Paynesville, W.Va., on May 29, 1961. [51]

'Great Society' Era

Just as the Depression spurred creation of food programs in the 1930s, President Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society, which aimed to eliminate racial injustice and poverty, increased government food aid in the 1960s and made food stamps permanent in 1964. "In a land rich in harvest, children just must not go hungry," Johnson said in his 1965 inaugural address. [52]

The actions were inspired in part by journalistic and congressional exposés of significant hunger in impoverished urban and rural areas. Among the most famous was a description of then-Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York crying as he rubbed the distended belly of a hungry child who sat on his lap in the Mississippi Delta region in 1967. Also influential were reports from doctors about "Third World diseases and hunger in the South," according to Weill, of the Food Research and Action Center. [53]

The government began to issue food stamps for free in 1979 to those who qualified. By 2004, all states had replaced stamps with plastic cards similar to debit cards. In addition to being less cumbersome to manage than stamps, they were expected to reduce theft and fraud because they required use of a personal identification number and created a record of all transactions, making it possible to

1995-Present

Republicans and Democrats battle over anti-hunger policies, and major recession worsens the hunger problem.

1995
Republican-controlled Congress begins cutting funds for food stamps, school breakfasts and summer feeding programs for children. Food charities report jump in requests for emergency assistance.

2004
Food stamps replaced with electronic cards.

2007
Deep recession begins; ends in 2009.

2008
Hunger rises sharply. . . . Food-stamp program renamed Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP).

2009
First lady Michelle Obama plants White House garden.

2010
Congress allows high-poverty school districts to serve free meals to all students, requires chain-restaurant menus to list calories by 2017, calls for phase-in of stricter nutrition rules for school meals starting in 2012-13.

2014
President Barack Obama and Republican-led Congress agree to 10-year, $8.7 billion cut in food stamps. . . . Government reports food stamp fraud rate of 1.3 percent, down from 4 percent 15 years earlier.

2015
Hunger declines as nation continues economic recovery.

2016
Pilot program allows Medicaid-eligible children to automatically qualify for school meals. . . . Food and Drug Administration mandates more informative nutrition panels for packaged foods by 2018. . . . Federal study finds food stamp recipients spend one-fifth of their food budgets on junk food. . . . Journal of the American Medical Association reports 61 percent of low-income Americans have unhealthy diets compared with 36 percent of the affluent.

2017
President Trump begins to reverse Obama-era hunger and nutrition initiatives, including postponing implementation of the 2018 nutrition-label mandate, the requirement that restaurant menus show calorie counts and stricter school lunch nutrition rules. Trump also proposes deep cuts in anti-hunger programs, including SNAP, Meals on Wheels and nutrition research. . . . Study shows that one-third of community college students go hungry at times. . . . U.S. counts 60,000 private, nonprofit anti-hunger organizations serving 46 million people.

Offering Fresh Produce to the Poor

Programs bring healthy foods to low-income areas and "food deserts."

The Dollar Fifty Plus convenience store in a low-income neighborhood in Toledo, Ohio, used to be a fresh-produce-free zone. Now the store carries fresh fruits and vegetables, whole grain bread and healthy snacks such as baked chips and nuts.

"It's something new for me and for my customers because we're so used to having unhealthy food," owner Erma Blakely said about a year after she began offering the healthy items in August 2015. "I enjoy it because I've dropped some pounds myself."

Blakely is offering healthy foods with help from the Toledo-Lucas County Healthy Corner Store Initiative, part of a nationwide campaign begun by The Food Trust, a Philadelphia-based organization that works to increase access to nutritious food. The initiative is part of an effort to bring healthy foods to "food deserts," which the Agriculture Department defines as areas without easy access to fresh, healthy, affordable food. Stores in those areas typically do not stock many, if any, healthy groceries.

The department estimates that 23.5 million Americans live in food deserts and that the lack of access to produce contributes to poor diet and higher levels of obesity and other food-related ailments, such as diabetes and heart disease.

When small stores in Lucas County join the initiative, they receive a wooden produce stand, access to a wholesale distributor of fresh foods, free marketing assistance and a kickoff event that includes tastings of fresh-food dishes, recipes and nutritional advice from dietitians of the Toledo-Lucas County Health Department.

Seventeen stores in the Toledo-area have joined the project, [1] and about 700 are participating in New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania, according to Candace Young, the Food Trusts' associate director for research and evaluation. Because the project is decentralized, the trust doesn't know how many stores participate nationwide, but there is "quite a number," says Karen Shore, the organization's director of consulting and technical assistance.

The Food Trust has evaluated the project's effectiveness in the Philadelphia area, finding that produce sales increased more than 60 percent at two stores studied and that produce sales more than doubled at a store on days when cooking classes and other programs were offered.

Shore says the trust has not attempted to determine the projects' impact on customers' health because "we would not look to a healthy corner store program alone to improve diet quality. But we also want to improve access to supermarkets, help farmers' markets flourish, connect our farmers, ranchers, and fishermen with our schools, help food pantries stock delicious fresh foods, and so on."

Studies say poverty and crime make low-income neighborhoods less attractive to supermarket chains. Other studies have shown that small stores are less likely than larger markets to stock healthy foods, in part because of limited space on shelves and in refrigerated compartments.

Low-income families also may eat poorly because they lack knowledge of good nutrition.

Researchers say that families with higher levels of income and education tend to eat healthier. After a 17,000-square-foot supermarket opened in a Bronx, N.Y., food desert in 2011, residents didn't change their diets. Food experts say healthy diets don't have to cost more than unhealthy ones, but low-

Congress created a pilot school-breakfast program in 1966 to help schools with "nutritionally needy" children and permanently authorized it in 1975. Schools with "severe need" received extra aid. [55] The Summer Food Service Program was established in 1968 to feed children when school is not in session.

WIC was created in 1972 to improve the nutrition of pregnant women, new mothers and their young children. The Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program was started in 1981 to distribute surplus commodities to the needy. [56]

Under pressure from health organizations and the Clinton Foundation — founded in 1997 by then-President Bill Clinton — the soft-drink industry in 2005 and 2006 agreed to severely limit the sale of its products in schools, beginning a process that now sees few soft-drink sales there. [57]

Republican Cuts

The robustness of federal food aid rose and fell over the years depending on economic conditions and whether liberals or conservatives held Congress and the White House. After Republicans took control of Congress in 1995, for example, they cut spending on food stamps, school breakfasts and summer feeding programs for children. Food charities subsequently reported a jump in requests for emergency assistance. [58]

Food aid increased significantly during the 2007-09 recession, and SNAP work requirements were waived across the country until last year, when 22 states either lost their waivers due to an improving economy or voluntarily gave them up. [59] income families may not have the knowledge, facilities and time to cook well from scratch.

President Obama sought major reforms of both hunger and nutrition programs during his time in the White House (2009-2017). Much of the effort was led by first lady Michelle Obama, who planted a White House garden to encourage Americans to grow and eat fresh produce, promoted exercise and advocated for healthier school meals.

To address some of these issues, the corner store initiative offers in-store nutrition education, cooking demonstrations and blood-pressure checks. It also teaches nutrition at nearby schools. [2]

To help food stamp recipients prepare healthy meals, the Arlington Food Assistance Center in Virginia demonstrates how to cook foods that are being distributed at the time, says Rebecca Middleton, executive director of the Alliance to End Hunger, an association of more than 90 service and advocacy organizations that work for food security in the United States and abroad. "Folks can taste it and get advice," she says.

The Agriculture Department early next year plans to roll out a two-year pilot project to test using food stamps, formally known as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), to purchase groceries online. The test will occur in urban and rural parts of Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Alabama and Washington state.

"Online purchasing is a potential lifeline for SNAP participants living in urban neighborhoods and rural communities where access to healthy food choices can be limited," outgoing Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack said when announcing the project in January.

The department already has tested online ordering, but payment had to be made in person upon delivery. In the new test, payment can be made when the order is placed. [3]

In the Boston area, "food rescue" organizations get fresh produce to 85 food programs by collecting unsold items from grocery stores, wholesalers and farmers. Regular contributors include Whole Foods, Trader Joe's, Costco and smaller grocers.

The 2,800-square-foot garden — planted where Eleanor Roosevelt tended a Victory Garden during World War II — fed the Obama family, guests at White House dinners and clients of Miriam's Kitchen, which provides food and shelter to the homeless about a mile from the White House. [60]

For his part, the president appointed a national task force on childhood obesity; established pilot programs to provide electronic cards to buy food during the summer for children eligible for free and reduced-price school meals; started an experimental program to streamline eligibility for school meals by allowing states to automatically enroll students for free and reduced price lunches if they qualify for Medicaid; allowed schools in high-poverty areas to provide free meals to all students without collecting eligibility documents from each family; and added a cash benefit to WIC for purchase of fruits and vegetables.

Obama's Food and Drug Administration approved a revised Nutrition Facts panel on packaged foods that would have, among other things, displayed calories more prominently. The agency also required calorie counts on vending machines and chain-restaurant menus by mid-2018. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention increased its promotion of breast feeding to improve the nutrition of young children. [61]

Obama compromised with the Republican-controlled House to pass the 2014 farm bill, which included an $8.7 billion cut in food stamps over the following decade — a reduction that some on the left harshly criticized. [62] But the administration's most controversial action — promoted by the first lady — was strengthening nutrition requirements for food sold in schools.

Initially not contentious, the requirements passed the Senate unanimously in 2010. The provisions doubled the amount of fruits and vegetables that had to be served at lunch, required

Celebrity Chefs Fight Hunger

"We feed the few, but we need to be taking care of feeding the many."

Early in his working life, Michael Babin was a congressional aide and a lobbyist. Later, after he entered the restaurant business, he maintained his interest in public policy. Still later as a business success — 2014 "Restaurateur of the Year" and owner of 11 Washington-area restaurants, a wine shop, a bakery, a butcher shop and a catering service — Babin found himself able to act on that interest.

In 2010, he founded the Arcadia Center for Sustainable Food and Agriculture, which delivers fresh food to low-income neighborhoods and operates a farm. The effort is one of the many ways American restaurateurs are fighting hunger, from raising money for food charities to running food-service operations in low-income schools. [1]

"Every responsible business tries to do something positive in its community," Babin says. "We decided we could have the biggest impact in the food system. You just open your eyes, and you see all of the issues and problems."

Arcadia is based at Woodlawn Plantation in Alexandria, Va., once part of George Washington's Mount Vernon estate, where Martha Washington's granddaughter Nelly and her husband, Lawrence Lewis, built a Georgian/Federal-style house. In 1952 the house became the first site operated by the National Trust for Historic Preservation. [2]

On the plantation, Arcadia tends a garden that doubles as a teaching tool for children. It also runs a farm at Woodlawn that demonstrates sustainable agricultural techniques and produces food for two "mobile markets" — converted buses that sell affordable food in low-income areas.

At mobile market stops and in schools, Arcadia teaches people how to prepare the food in inexpensive and nutritious ways.

Another restaurateur from the Washington area, chef Daniel Giusti, is trying to improve school lunches, beginning in New London, Conn., where 91 percent of the students qualify for free and reduced-price meals. Giusti said he went to New London because of the district's small size, which would make it easier to implement change, and the partnership he could forge with schools Superintendent Manuel Rivera. [3]

Giusti, who was executive chef at 1789, one of Washington's most prominent restaurants, had been the No. 2 chef at Noma in Copenhagen, a two-star Michelin awardee that is listed as one of the top dining spots in the world and where a couple can drop $1,000 on food and drink. [4]

"I got into cooking because I come from a big Italian family," Giusti said. "I like the idea of feeding people," but he became weary of the high-pressure world of fine dining. [5]

Giusti and two other chefs prepared the meals at New London High School and a local elementary school in the just-completed academic year. He is planning to run the kitchens at four other schools in the fall.

Students have been treated to chicken curry; roasted sweet potatoes; spiced chicken tacos; pizza with barbecue chicken; and apples or pears poached in green tea for dessert.

The challenge is to make healthy food that children will eat, Giusti said. He tells his chefs that "it's not about you, it's about the kids. . . . You need to just make food that they like."

The kids give most of Giusti's meals a thumbs-up.

"The food didn't taste this good last year," 11-year-old Fortune Adekoya said. "The old cheese was like plastic," seventh-grader Mallory Suprenant said of the pizza. "Now it tastes real." [6]

Not all of Giusti's offerings hit the spot, however. Of his butternut squash soup, he said: "They hated it — thought it was revolting," so it's not on the menu anymore.

use of whole grains and cut the amount of salt, sugar and fat that could be offered. The new rules covered not just lunches but all food offered at schools, including in vending machines.

The School Nutrition Association, which represents school food managers and vendors, initially supported but then turned against the legislation, complaining that it was unpopular with students and cost too much. The association asked the Agriculture Department to allow more salt and less whole grains, saying students would find that tastier. [63]

When the regulations began to take effect during the 2012-13 academic year, some schools said some students — especially those who pay for their food — were not buying school meals. Some schools reported significant revenue declines because of lower consumption.

Missouri reported that the number of lunches served statewide dropped 11 percent from 2009-10 to 2013-14. In Georgia, the Gwinnett County school district reported the percentage of students eating lunch regularly fell from 81 percent in 2010 to 69 percent in 2016. [64]

Some students started posting online photos of food they didn't like with the hashtag "ThanksMichelleObama." The first lady dismissed the students' complaints, saying, "You know what? Kids don't like math either. What are we gonna do, stop teaching math?" [65]

The rules came under ideological attack as well, with Daren Bakst, a research fellow at the conservative Heritage Foundation, declaring that "it's not up to the government to dictate the personal dietary choices of individuals." [66]

There were signs, however, that time might change the students' tastes.

"The little guys are eating more fruits and vegetables than they were three years ago," Marlene Pfeiffer, director of food services for Missouri's Parkway School District, west of St. Louis, said

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Because cooking from scratch is more labor-intensive and can use more-expensive ingredients than cooking with canned or processed food, Giusti and Rivera need private donations. So far, Target has kicked in $100,000.

Giusti's newly formed company Brigaid has a $130,000-a-year contract to feed the students. In addition, each chef costs the district about $60,000 annually. [7]

Superstar chef José Andrés — with 26 restaurants from South Beach, Fla., to Hollywood, Calif., to Mexico City — has been a leader in the chefs-against-hunger movement, raising funds for local food programs and heading anti-hunger efforts in Haiti and other poor nations.

"We feed the few, but we need to be taking care of feeding the many," he said. [8]

Andrés began his anti-hunger work with DC Central Kitchen, which prepares 3 million meals a year for homeless shelters, public and private schools that serve low-income children and other nonprofit organizations. The kitchen also trains homeless and low-income people for careers in the food industry. [9] Andrés said he was drawn to the organization because "it does more than feed people — it employs and trains people to put them on a new path in life." [10]

Andrés founded World Central Kitchen, a global network of 60 chefs who promote health, education, employment, food safety and healthy school meals, as well as distribute clean cookstoves to replace indoor cooking fires, and train low-income people for jobs in the hospitality industry. They are active in Brazil, Cambodia, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Nicaragua, Zambia and the United States. [11]

CURRENT SITUATION

Rules Delayed

Critics of the Obama nutrition requirements are encouraged by the steps the Trump administration is taking to reverse those rules.

Earlier this year, the administration delayed the menu rules until next May and the new Nutrition Facts label indefinitely.

Nutrition and consumer advocates condemned the delays, while industry groups gave mixed reactions to the labels decisions.

"We're very pleased that our voices have been heard" on the menu rules, said Tim McIntyre, chairman of the American Pizza Community trade group. But Cicely Simpson, executive vice president of the National Restaurant Association, said the delays leave the industry under a "patchwork" of state and local regulations that is "even more burdensome for restaurants to implement." [68]

"To ease the regulatory burden on the economy," a coalition of 17 food industry organizations had asked the administration to postpone implementation of the new Nutrition Facts panel. But some companies — including Mars Inc., known for its candies — had begun producing the new label and said the delay would harm them. [69]

"The fact that we'll have the added-sugar declaration and the percent daily value, but our competitors won't? That just ends up confusing consumers," said Brad Figel, vice president of public affairs for Mars in North America. [70]

Jim O'Hara, director of health promotion policy at the Center for Science in the Public Interest, noted the industry divisions over nutrition reforms. "Just like with the menu-labeling delay, this [Trump] administration is denying consumers critical information they need to make decisions, and [delaying the new Nutrition Facts panel] is throwing the food industry into disarray." [71]

First lady Michelle Obama tends the White House garden with Florida fifth-grader Emilo Vega in 2013. President Obama sought to reform food programs during his eight years in office, including improving nutrition for schoolchildren and offering more free and reduced-price school meals. Many of the president's efforts were led by the first lady, who first planted the garden in 2009.

Schools can request exemption from the whole-grain requirements and can wait until 2020 to resume implementing the rules on salt.

School Nutrition Association Chief Executive Patricia Montague praised the administration for giving schools needed flexibility. But Margo Wootan, director of nutrition policy at the Center for Science in the Public Interest, said the postponement will be "locking in dangerously high sodium levels" in school meals. Wootan also worried that Trump might turn school-meals programs into block grants to the states with little federal regulation, further weakening them. [72]

Budget Cuts

The president has not moved to create block grants, but his proposed 2018 budget seeks cuts to food-related programs, with some conservatives joining liberals in supporting the programs. Because food aid is in the same legislation that funds farm subsidies, Congress is unlikely to make big reductions, Doar of the American Enterprise Institute says. "By being combined, it buys off urban support for expensive subsidies for the agriculture industry and it gets rural, conservative support for a very expensive safety net."

The biggest proposed cut in federal food stamp spending would come from requiring states to cover a quarter of the costs by 2023. Other reductions would come from decreasing the time unemployed able-bodied adults without minor children can collect benefits; prohibiting states from providing federal food aid to families earning more than 130 percent of the federal poverty threshold, which for a family of four is $32,319; charging fees to stores that accept food stamps; capping aid to large families at the level received by a family of six; and slashing funding for scientific research. [73]

"Requiring states to have "skin in the game" will improve efficiency because "red states and blue states manage their own money better than they do federal money," the Heritage Foundation's Rector says of shifting food-stamp costs.

Budget Director Mulvaney said Meals on Wheels is among "programs that don't work." "Meals on Wheels sounds great," he said, but "we're not going to spend on programs that cannot show that they actually deliver the promises that we've made to people." [74]

Mulvaney said the administration proposes cutting research funding at the National Institutes of Health [NIH] because "we think there's been mission creep. We think they do things that are outside their core functions." [75]

Noting that food stamp rolls remain substantially above prerecession levels, Mulvaney asked whether "there [are] folks on SNAP who shouldn't be." [76]

Some say this is because the recovery has been slow. Those who say "yes" point to Maine, where a tougher work requirement in 2015 led 80 percent of those affected by the requirement to drop out of the program. Rector says that indicates a significant number of able-bodied adult recipients "had an off-the-books job" or "other resources the government doesn't know about."

Among those arguing against the proposed cuts is the Obesity Prevention Center's Ludwig. The NIH budget should not be reduced, he says, because it is "the main sponsor of nutrition and obesity research," and obesity is "the No. 1 nutritional problem and the most important medical problem in the United States, now exceeding tobacco as a cause of death and disability."

RESEARCH FELLOW, AGRICULTURAL POLICY, HERITAGE FOUNDATION

WRITTEN FOR CQ RESEARCHER, JULY 2017

The federal welfare system is being turned on its head. American taxpayers are now being forced to provide welfare to wealthy families.

Through the Community Eligibility Provision of the Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010, students from middle-class and wealthy families can receive free school meals courtesy of taxpayers, as long as 40 percent of students within a school, group of schools or school district are deemed eligible for free meals.

The system is so extreme that it is possible that a school could provide free meals to all its students without having a single low-income student enrolled. In fact, all the students could come from wealthy families.

Congress needs to eliminate the Community Eligibility Provision immediately.

There's really only one critical point for policymakers and the public to remember: eliminating the Community Eligibility Provision wouldn't change the fact that all students who are eligible for free or reduced-priced meals would remain eligible.

Admittedly, such a change would mean free meals wouldn't go to those who aren't in need, but that's the entire point. Usually, when welfare benefits are going to those who are not in need, this draws serious concern over mismanagement of taxpayer dollars. Just because the federal government has given its blessing to handing out free meals regardless of need doesn't change the fact that this is still waste and abuse, and it undermines the legitimacy of the school meal programs.

Proponents of the Community Eligibility Provision claim it will reduce the administrative burden on schools. This is a worthy goal. However, it's amusing that these proponents are generally the same individuals who want to maintain the biggest school meal-related burden on schools: the federal school meal standards.

Further, while reducing administrative burden is important, it doesn't justify ignoring the necessary requirements of operating a means-tested welfare system. For any such system, the government must determine the means of potential welfare recipients.

Congress is taking taxpayer dollars from lower-income households to funnel welfare benefits to higher-income households, creating a "reverse Robin Hood" policy. This inexcusable wealth transfer is creating even greater dependence on government.

The federal school meal program, which is designed to help those in need, should help only those in need. It's sad that such an obvious and common-sense point even has to be made.

All of us, in good conscience, know that everyone deserves to have adequate nutrition. So this question is a little problematic: It implies a judgment of who is "deserving," especially when not everyone agrees on who is "poor."

Food hardships go far beyond the federal poverty line, which is just $24,600 for a family of four. Poverty is not a static condition. Income volatility among low-wage earners living close to the poverty line can lead to food insecurity. Almost half of food-insecure households have incomes between 130 and 200 percent of the poverty line. Food insecurity accounts for poor health, truncated child development, poor school performance and suicidal ideation among teenagers. On top of that, school breakfasts and lunches reduce absenteeism and improve cognitive performance, grades and standardized-test scores.

At the core is the Community Eligibility Provision. It allows schools with more than 40 percent of students eligible for other public assistance programs to apply to provide free meals to all students. The provision reduces administrative costs and helps buoy communities with concentrated poverty through hard times.

Children in high-poverty areas are hit hard by exposure to violence, stress and environmental hazards that affect everyone who lives there, not just those classified as poor. Remember, a few hungry kids can disrupt an entire classroom.

Because of Philadelphia's high concentrated poverty, categorical eligibility was in place years before the Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010 implemented a more efficient way of funding school meals. The Agriculture Department found that before 2010, when the Philadelphia School District was piloting community eligibility, the district had saved 20,480 hours of staff time, an average 19 cents per meal, in a single year. That's a great return on investment: more-effective administrators, less red tape, less hunger, smarter kids.

The provision has been adopted in every state, with high take-up rates in Kentucky, Georgia, Tennessee, North Dakota and Wisconsin. Across America, school districts are taking more control over how they choose to nourish their kids; they are investing in America's brain trust.

Still can't see the wisdom? Go to a high-poverty area and stand in the cafeteria. Stare down those hungry kids whose parents are doing their best — often working multiple jobs — but can't get ahead and otherwise wouldn't qualify for a free lunch. Pulling their meals away from them would be shortsighted.

Drexel's Chilton says she is especially worried about making states shoulder more of the food stamp burden because "I'm not sure state legislators are protective of the most vulnerable people."

"The federal nutrition programs are set up to be countercyclical," said Duke Storen, senior director for research, advocacy and partnership development at Share Our Strength. "They expand to meet increased need during down times and contract when the economy and the economic profile of Americans improves." States — most of which are constitutionally required to balance their budgets every year — can't run deficits when their tax revenues decline. [77]

"If you look at what happened during the Great Recession, SNAP responded to meet the need and TANF didn't," Middleton of the Alliance to End Hunger says, referring to Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, a block-grant program that provides aid to needy pregnant women and to families with one or more dependent children.

Capping aid to large families is "totally inconsistent with the goals of SNAP as an anti-hunger program," said Craig Gundersen, an agricultural economist at the University of Illinois who studies food stamps. "This all derives from that old canard that people have more children to get more welfare benefits." [78]

Weill at the Food Research and Action Center said he worries that participation fees would cause small retailers in poor communities to stop accepting food stamps. [79]

Among the conservative Republicans opposing some of the cuts is Agriculture Secretary Sonny Perdue, the former Georgia governor. Perdue told the House Agriculture Committee that SNAP is "a very important, effective program" and that "you don't try to fix things that aren't broken." [80] He reaffirmed that position after the White House released the budget, which was prepared before he assumed his administration post. [81]

Rep. Mark Meadows, R-N.C., chairman of the conservative House Freedom Caucus, defended Meals on Wheels, saying "I've delivered meals to a lot of people [for whom] perhaps it's their only hot meal of the day." [82]

The federal government provides 35 percent of the funding for locally operated Meals on Wheels programs. Other support comes from private contributions and state and local governments. Some of the local organizations get all of their money from Washington; some get none. The program serves 2.4 million seniors a year, and the volunteer visits provide social interaction as well as nutrition. [83]

"With volunteers going to the senior's house several times a week, this means someone is putting eyes on them," said Jason Tucker, director of meal services for the program in Atlanta. "They can tell if there's a decline in their health or if something else is wrong." [84]

Many private organizations provide food aid that supplements federal assistance. And some are applying new tactics to increase the amount of aid they give, to improve the quality of the food they deliver or to serve new kinds of clients. Examples include efforts to make more fresh produce available in poor neighborhoods in cities and isolated rural communities, tapping the expertise of professional chefs and turning college campuses into sources of aid for the nearby poor and for needy college students themselves. (See sidebar, p. 568.)

Move for Hunger, a nonprofit based in New Jersey, has enlisted 750 moving companies throughout the United States and Canada to retrieve nonperishable foods that their clients otherwise would throw away. Facebook, Google, Hewlett-Packard, Bridgestone and Sodexo have agreed to incorporate Move for Hunger into their employee-relocation processes. The organization has delivered more than 8 million pounds of food to food banks and other programs since 2009. [85]

The Campus Kitchen Project — an offspring of the DC Central Kitchen food program in Washington — retrieves unused food from college and high school dining halls on more than 60 campuses, prepares meals and distributes them to the needy near campus. Some of the student volunteers also garden and teach nutrition in the community around their campus. During the last academic year, nearly 29,000 volunteers salvaged 1.3 million pounds of food and prepared 350,000 meals. Students at one secondary school in the coalition — Gonzaga College High School in Washington — volunteer at a homeless shelter on campus. [86]

Swipe Out Hunger, another campus-based program, collects unused meals from dining-hall cards and converts them into groceries for nearby food programs or into free meals for needy students. The College and University Food Bank Alliance has members serving hungry students on more than 450 campuses. [87] In Massachusetts, 25 of the 29 public college campuses have a food assistance program for students. In Ohio, eight colleges and four community colleges host food pantries. [88] ■

Continued Decline?

Both liberals and conservatives agree that hunger will continue to diminish if the economy keeps strengthening. Many on both sides of the political spectrum also see employment as the key to reducing hunger. As a family's income increases, so does its ability to purchase food.

"Ultimately, I think we're going to revamp the welfare system to make it much more supportive of work and marriage, and that will be an effective policy for increasing income," which will cause hunger to fall, the Heritage Foundation's Rector says.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MO-REP-21-1608-F-003036

In addition to holding jobs, people need their workplace to pay a living wage, Drexel's Chilton says. "I'm deeply concerned that wages will not increase and living costs will continue to increase and people will not keep up with that, and we will see more homeless and more suffering," she says. For that reason, the poor need "a really good safety net that focuses on their health and well-being."

Schanzenbach, of Northwestern University, says she is "gravely worried about the future of the safety net in this country" because of President Trump's proposed cuts. On the other hand, she says, Congress did a reasonable job of passing food-stamp legislation for the current budget year, although "I would argue it's underfunded."

Like Rector, Doar of the American Enterprise Institute expects "a little more focus on work" in federal food programs, and "that will lead to reductions in food insecurity and poverty. I think people will still use food stamps as a supplement to their earnings to make work pay more, and I think that will be good."

Calling herself "an eternal optimist," Middleton of the Alliance to End Hunger expects that as Americans "become more aware that food fuels people's potential — that children learn more on a full stomach, that seniors stay healthy longer when they have access to good meals — we're going to make this a national priority and we're going to hold our elected officials accountable."

Similarly, Goldrick-Rab of Temple University says awareness probably will lead to extension of school meals to community college students.

"I harbor no illusion that this is going to happen in this [Trump] administration," she says. "But I think the move to making community college free is going to help establish it as the next level of schooling" and that it logically should be the next level of school meals. "The college-affordability challenge is getting greater and it will become more visible and it is clear to me that when confronted with these challenges there's more likely to be action."

Michael Babin, a Washington-area restaurateur, also doesn't expect the Trump administration to increase federal anti-hunger efforts. But he is optimistic about broader society.

"If the forces that have animated Trump's rise are in ascendance, I don't see the political will to deal with these issues," he says. But, he adds, "I don't think those forces are ascendant. There are so many people activated on these issues — so much more awareness now — I don't think you can put that genie back in the bottle." ■

It was good talking with you about Sickle Cell Awareness Month last week. We have a Sickle Cell expert who would be more than happy to do a Zoom/ be part of a Zoom panel on scientific advancements in Sickle Cell treatments. I'm just waiting to hear back on their availability.

I've also put together the attached resources that I hope will be helpful for people to raise awareness by tweeting about Sickle Cell Disease during the month of September. It includes information, links, and sample tweets about SCD across four categories: Sickle Cell Disease overview, Sickle Cell data and numbers, patient stories and experiences, and the importance of blood donations for SCD patients. If you like this approach, we hope you'll share this with your colleagues. Of course, I'm happy to make any additions or changes. We'll also be sharing this information with other Legislators in the House and Senate to encourage as much participation in raising awareness as possible.

If you want to talk any more about this, my cell is 618-520-7645. I hope you enjoy the long weekend.

Thanks,
Jessica

Sickle Cell Awareness Month

September is National Sickle Cell Awareness Month. One simple but effective way to build awareness is tweeting/posting about Sickle Cell Disease (SCD) over the next month. Below is information about Sickle Cell Disease across four categories that we hope will be informative and helpful for crafting social media messaging around Sickle Cell Disease.

Weeks of September 1 and 6 - Sickle Cell Disease Overview:

- Sickle Cell Disease is a genetic condition in which some red blood cells are shaped like crescents, or sickles. There is no universal cure for SCD.
- Sickle-shaped red blood cells do not last as long as healthy ones, which leads to shortages of red blood cells. The sickle-shaped cells may get stuck travelling through the blood vessels, which can lead to extreme pain.
- SCD can result in anemia, meaning there are too few healthy red blood cells, so the body cannot get enough oxygen. People living with SCD may experience infections, ulcers, eye problems, and issues with joint movement.
- President Biden issued a Proclamation declaring September 2021 as National Sickle Cell Awareness Month.

Week of September 13 – Sickle Cell Disease by the Numbers:

- Approximately 100,000 Americans are living with Sickle Cell Disease.
- SCD occurs in approximately 1 out of every 365 Black or African American births and 1 out of every 16,300 Hispanic American births.
- Approximately 1 in 13 Black or African American babies is born with the Sickle Cell trait.
- If both parents have the Sickle Cell trait, there is a 50% chance their child will also have the trait and a 25% chance their child will be born with Sickle Cell Disease.
- The life expectancy for individuals with Sickle Cell Disease has improved dramatically in the past few decades, but it remains about 30 years shorter than the general population.

DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS
"Improving Lives for Safer Communities"

August 17, 2021

Members of the Missouri General Assembly:

I am writing this letter to provide an update on the current status of several local government reimbursements administered by the Missouri Department of Corrections.

First, the County Jail Reimbursement program authorized under Section 221.105 RSMo. As I am sure you recall, for the last several years the funding appropriated for the payment of these reimbursements has not been sufficient to pay all requests for reimbursement received. This resulted in the accumulation of a significant arrearage owed to counties for the costs of holding offenders in county jails.

I am pleased to let you know that thanks to the additional funding provided for these reimbursements recommended by the Governor and appropriated by the General Assembly over the past three fiscal years, the accumulated arrearage has been paid off. All requests for reimbursement received as of 6/30/2021 have been paid.

I am also pleased to let you know that our transition to an electronic filing system for the counties to use to file reimbursement requests is proceeding well. With the assistance of four counties, the system is completing the final steps of the pilot phase and I anticipate full implementation this fall.

Now that the department has processed the payments for the Section 221.105 RSMo. payments, we will begin processing the reimbursement requests authorized under Section 548.243 RSMo. (extradition costs) and Section 57.290 RSMo (transportation costs). I anticipate that after processing and payment that those arrearages will also eliminated.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

And finally, I would like to let you know that the funding for counties appropriated in Section 9.267 (HB 9, 2021) for the provision of appropriate feminine hygiene products to female offenders held in county jails pursuant to SB 53 (2021) has also been processed and disbursed to the counties.

I certainly appreciate the commitment and support provided by the Governor and General Assembly to resolve these long standing issues. If you have any questions please feel to reach out to me anytime.

Sincerely,

Anne L. Precythe, Director
Missouri Department of Corrections

HOUSE SUBSTITUTE FOR SENATE SUBSTITUTE FOR SENATE COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE FOR SENATE BILL 27

Section	Original Bill	Status As of 4/29/2021	Description
49.310, 476.083, RSMo49	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	This bill provides that a presiding circuit judge may establish rules for courtrooms, jury rooms, and chambers or offices of the court in any courthouse that contains both a county office and a courtroom, while the county commission shall have authority over all other areas. Currently, a circuit court marshal appointed by a presiding circuit judge oversees the physical security of a courthouse. This bill provides that the circuit court marshal oversees the physical security of courtrooms, jury rooms, and chambers of offices of the court.
50.166,	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	Under current law, a county clerk may transmit in the form of a warrant the amount due for a grant, salary, pay, and expenses to the county treasurer. This bill provides that, upon request, the county treasurer shall have access to any financially relevant document in the possession of any county official for the purposes of processing a warrant. If the warrant is received in the absence of a check, then the county treasurer shall have access to the information necessary to process the warrant. Additionally, no official of any county shall refuse a request from the county treasurer for access to or a copy of any document in the possession of a county office that is financially relevant to the salaries of county officers and assistants; however, a county official may redact, remove, or delete any personal identifying information before submission to the county treasurer. Finally, no county treasurer shall refuse to release funds for the payment of any properly approved expenditure.
50.327	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	Under current law, the compensation for non-charter county coroners is based on salary schedules established by law. This bill specifies that upon majority approval of the salary commission, the annual compensation of a county coroner may be increased up to $14,000 greater than the compensation provided by the salary schedule established by law.
50.530	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	This amendment repeals the provision that in Cass County the presiding commissioner shall be the budget officer unless the county commission designates the county clerk as the budget officer.
59.021 and 59.100	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	This bill provides that each candidate for county recorder shall provide to the election authority a copy of an affidavit from a surety company authorized to do business in this state that indicates the candidate is about to satisfy the bond requirements of the office. Additionally, under current law, all recorders of deeds elected in first, second, and third classification counties shall enter into bond with the state for an amount set by the county commission. However, this amount shall not be less than $1000 with sufficient sureties. Under this bill, these provisions shall only apply to recorders of deeds elected prior to January 1, 2022. This bill provides that all recorders of deeds elected after December 31, 2021, in first, second, and third classification counties shall enter into bond with the state for an amount set by the county commission of not be less than $5000 with sufficient sureties.

115.127	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	Under current law, the period for filing a declaration of candidacy in certain political subdivisions and special districts is from 8:00 a.m. on the 16th Tuesday prior to the election until 5:00 p.m. on the 11th Tuesday prior to the election. Additionally, the opening date for filing a declaration of candidacy in Kansas City, and any political subdivision or special district within Kansas City, is 8:00 a.m. on the 15th Tuesday prior to the election until 5:00 p.m. on the 11th Tuesday prior to the election. This bill makes the filing period for declarations of candidacy in all political subdivisions and special districts that have not otherwise required a filing period by law or charter to be 8:00 a.m. on the 17th Tuesday prior to the election until 5:00 p.m. on the 14th Tuesday prior to the election.
221.105	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	Under current law, the Department of Corrections shall issue a reimbursement to a county for the actual cost of incarceration of a prisoner not to exceed certain amounts as provided in the bill. However, the amount shall not be less than the amount appropriated in the previous fiscal year. This bill repeals the provision that the amount reimbursed to counties shall not be less than the amount appropriated in the previous fiscal year.
451.040	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	This bill provides that applicants for a marriage license may present an application for the license to the recorder of deeds in person or electronically through an online process. Additionally, in the event a recorder of deeds utilizes an online process to accept applications for a marriage license or to issue a marriage license and the applicants' identity has not been verified in person, the recorder shall have a two-step identity verification process or other process that verifies the identity of the applicants. Finally, the recorder shall not accept applications for or issue marriage licenses through an online process unless at least one of the applicants is a resident of the county in which the application was submitted.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

50.332	SCA 8252S21.01S		Allows for county officers to contract with municipalities in their county to perform similar duties for the municipalities, including collector treasurer and assessor duties. The HCS removes this section.
27.010, 51.050, 55.060, 58.030, 60.010, 77.230, 79.080, 105.035, 162.291, 190.050, 204.610, 247.060, 249.140, 321.130, 483.010	HB 685 (Perfected)	Referred to the Senate	This bill lowers the minimum age requirement to 21 years for holding various county offices and special district board memberships. Included in the offices and districts affected are: county clerk; county auditor; county coroner; county surveyor; seven- director school board; ambulance district board; sewer district trustee; public water supply district board; emergency telephone services board; hospital district board; public water supply district board; fire protection district board; court clerk; and mayor for third or fourth class cities. The bill also requires a person appointed to elective public office not be delinquent in the payment of state income tax, personal property tax, municipal tax or real property tax. A residency requirement for the Office of Attorney General is also repealed.
478.240, 483.240, 483.241, 483.245	HCS HB 807	Passed out of Rules	This bill authorizes elected circuit clerks to have general administrative authority over judicial personnel including deputy circuit clerks, division clerks, and other court personnel, but excluding court officials. An elected circuit clerk may appoint and remove deputy clerks and division clerks and establish salaries for such positions based upon salary ranges established by Missouri Supreme Court Administrative Rules. The assignment of clerks to particular judges and specified record keeping functions will also be under the purview of the circuit clerk. The bill repeals various provisions authorizing the presiding judge or the entire circuit court to regulate court clerks and associated functions.
192.027	HCS HB 1358	Referred to Rules	The bill creates the "True COVID Liability Act" and contains declarative statements regarding epidemiology, public policy relating to contagious diseases including COVID-19, susceptibility to contagious diseases, personal accountability, legal liability and government-mandated responses as outlined. The bill prohibits the state or any political subdivision thereof from, as a response to a contagious disease, quarantining an individual in any way; limiting the use of otherwise lawful activities in any private property or premises in which extraordinary prevalence of a contagious disease has not been proven; revoking any business license based on an individual's or entity's decision regarding recommendations from a government or scientific entity. No individual, owner, or entity shall be subject to criminal or civil liability in any action alleging exposure to a contagious disease on premises controlled by such person unless they knowingly and purposely, exposed an individual to a contagious disease where such exposure caused the exposed individual to suffer from a clinical disease. This section contains an emergency clause.

49.266,	HB 351	Passed out of Rules	This bill authorizes the county commission in all noncharter counties to promulgate reasonable regulations concerning the use of county property. Currently, the county commissions in all first, second, and fourth counties are authorized to promulgate the regulations.
140.981	HB 563	Referred to the Senate	This bill adds certain cities to the provisions in law that authorize home rule cities to establish land bank agencies.
115.044, 115.075	HCA 0469S03.04H		Prohibits any person from contributing gifts to election officials or state employees These provisions contain an emergency clause.
130.011, 130.021, 130.031, 130.036, 130.041	HCS 104	Referred to Admin Oversight	This bill allows the use of electronic payment systems, such as credit and debit cards by specified committees provided that expenditures are paid through the official depository account. Credit card statements and records which provide a written record of all transactions shall be maintained by the treasurer or person responsible for record keeping for the committee. Records are available for inspection by the Missouri ethics commission. Expenditure reports under Section 130.041 shall include the total of expenditures made by electronic methods.
67.2680	1018H02.15H	Adopted in HB 554	Prohibits the state or any other political subdivision from imposing any new tax, license, or fee in addition to any tax, license, or fee already authorized on or before August 28, 2021, upon the provision of satellite or streaming video service.
77.680	Similar to SB 384		If a statute or ordinance authorizes the mayor of a city of a third classification appoint a member of a board or commission, any requirement that the appointed person be a resident of the city shall be deemed satisfied if the person owns real property or a business in the city. Similar residency requirements for Board members appointed for the purpose of managing a city's municipal utilities.
447.541	0831S01.03H		Provides that the State Treasurer can provide required notices regarding abandoned property by any other method that the Treasurer deems appropriate and consistent with the intent of the existing notice requirements
475.120	Similar to HB 978		Currently, the general powers and duties of a guardian of an incapacitated person are, among others, to take charge of the person of the ward and to provide for the ward's care, treatment, habilitation, education, support, and maintenance. This bill repeals the specified duties but allows a guardian to exercise authority only as necessitated by the adult ward's limitations and, to the extent possible, encourage the adult ward to participate in decisions, act on the adult ward's own behalf, and develop or regain the capacity to manage the adult ward's personal affairs.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

50.815 50.820	HB 381 Perfected	Perfected in the House 4/26	This bill requires all non-charter counties, by the first Monday in March, to prepare and publish in a qualified newspaper a financial statement for the previous year. The financial statement shall include the name, office, and current gross annual salary of each elected or appointed county official whose salary is set by the County Salary Commission. The County Clerk or other officer responsible for the preparation of the financial statement shall preserve the documents relied upon in the making of the financial statements and shall provide an electronic copy free of charge to any newspaper requesting a copy of the data. Currently, these requirements only apply to counties of the first classification.
196.298	HCS 357	Referred to the Senate	Currently, cottage food production operations must have an annual gross income of $50,000 or less and are prohibited from selling food through the Internet. This bill removes the cap on annual gross income and the prohibition on online sales, provided that the cottage food production operation and purchaser are both located in Missouri.

The bill adds a third alternative choice for a county for the collection and administration of the tax charged for all sleeping rooms and transient guests of hotels and motels situated in the county. This alternative authorizes the county to enter into an agreement with the authority for the authority to collect the tax and perform all functions incident to the administration, collection, enforcement, and operation of the tax. If the county collects the authorized tax, the tax for each calendar quarter is due on the first day of the next calendar quarter. The entity collecting the tax must collect a penalty of 1% per month and must collect interest of 2% per month on taxes that are not paid within 30 days of the last day of the quarter. Any penalty or interest will be calculated beginning on the original due date. The authority, in its discretion, may abate a portion of the penalty to facilitate the voluntary payment of the tax. Lawsuits to enforce the collection and payment of the tax will be filed and prosecuted by the

SB 36 -- CAPITOL COMPLEX TAX CREDIT ACT

SPONSOR: Bernskoetter (Griffith)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 11 to 0.

This bill creates the Capitol Complex Tax Credit Act. The Capitol Complex Fund is authorized to receive any eligible monetary donation, as defined in the bill, and shall be segregated into two accounts: a rehabilitation and renovation account, and a maintenance account. Of the revenues deposited into the Fund, 90% shall be placed in the rehabilitation and renovation account and 7.5% of revenues deposited in the Fund shall be placed in the maintenance account. The remaining 2.5% of the funds may be used for the purposes of fundraising, advertising, and administrative costs.

The choice of projects for which money is to be used, as well as the determination of the methods of carrying out the project and the procurement of goods and services, shall be made by the Commissioner of Administration. No moneys shall be released from the Fund for any expense without the approval of the Commissioner of Administration.

For all taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2021, any qualified donor, as defined in the bill, shall be allowed a credit against any state income tax (except employer withheld taxes) or state taxes imposed on financial institutions for an amount equal to 50% of the monetary donation amount. Any amount of tax credit that exceeds the qualified donor's state income tax liability may be refunded or carried forward for the following four years.

For all taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2021, a qualified donor shall be allowed a credit against any state income tax (except employer withheld taxes) or state taxes imposed on financial institutions for an amount equal to 30% of the value of the eligible artifact donation, as defined in the bill. Any amount of tax credit that exceeds the donor's tax liability shall not be refunded for artifacts, but the credit may be carried forward for four subsequent years.

The Department of Economic Development shall not issue tax credits for donations to the Capitol Complex Fund in excess of $10 million per year in the aggregate. Donations received in excess of the cap shall be placed in line for tax credits the following year. Alternatively, a donor may donate without receiving the credit or may request that their donation is returned.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Tax credits issued for donations under this bill are not subject to any fee. Tax credits issued under this bill may be assigned, transferred, sold, or otherwise conveyed.
This act shall sunset August 28, 2027, unless reauthorized by the General Assembly.

This act is the same as SCS SB 586 and HCS HB 1713, and to a provision contained in HCS SS SCS SB 570, HCS SCS SB 616, and HCS SS#2 SB 704 (2020), and is similar to SB 255 (2019).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill will help pay for improvements to the Capitol Complex.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Bernskoetter; and the Historic Revitalization for Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Written opposition was submitted online by Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SS SB 44 -- Utilities

SPONSOR: White (Wallingford)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Utilities by a vote of 7 to 2.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 44.

This bill changes the provisions related to utilities.

RESTRICTING UTILITY SERVICE (Section 67.309, RSMo)

The bill prohibits any political subdivision of the state from adopting an ordinance, resolution, regulation, code, or policy

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

that prohibits or has the effect of prohibiting the connection or reconnection of a utility service based on the type or source of energy to be delivered to an individual customer. A political subdivision may choose utility services for properties owned by the political subdivision and may protect public safety.

SERVICE TERRITORIES OF RETAIL ELECTRIC SERVICE PROVIDERS (Sections 91.025, 386.800, 393.106, 394.020, & 394.315)

The bill changes the provisions relating to service territories of retail electric service providers. In the event that a retail electric supplier is providing service to a structure located within a municipality that has ceased to be a rural area, and the structure is demolished and replaced by a new structure, the retail electric service supplier may provide permanent service to the new structure upon the request of the owner of the new structure.

Additionally, in the absence of an approved territorial agreement, the municipally owned utility must apply to the Public Service Commission for an order assigning nonexclusive service territories and concurrently shall provide written notice of the application to other electric service suppliers with electric facilities located within a mile outside of the boundaries of the proposed expanded service territory. In granting the applicant's request, the Commission must give due regard to territories previously served by the other electric service suppliers and the wasteful duplication of electric service facilities.

Any municipally owned electric utility may extend its electric service territory to include areas where another electric supplier currently is not providing permanent service to a structure. If a rural electric cooperative has existing electric service facilities in the area proposed to be annexed, the majority of the existing developers, landowners, or prospective electric customers may submit a written request to the governing body of the annexing municipality to invoke mandatory good faith negotiations. These provisions also apply in the event an electrical corporation rather than a municipally owned electric utility is providing electric service in the municipality.

The bill also changes the term "fair and reasonable compensation" to be 200%, rather than 400%, of gross revenues less gross receipts taxes received by the affected electric service supplier from the 12 month period preceding the approval of the municipality's governing body. Additionally, this bill changes the definition of the population of a "rural area" to be increased by 6% every 10 years after each census beginning in 2030.

At the time that a municipally owned utility applies to the Public Service Commission for an order assigning nonexclusive service territories, the utility must concurrently provide written notice of the application to other electric service suppliers with electric facilities located within a mile outside of the boundaries of the proposed expanded service territory. In granting the applicant's request, the Commission must consider territories previously granted to or served by other electric service suppliers and the duplication of electric service facilities.

Any municipally owned electric utility may extend its electric service territory to include areas where another electric service supplier is not currently serving a structure but has existing electric service facilities located in or within a mile outside the boundaries of the area proposed to be annexed, provided it first notifies in writing the affected electric service supplier within 60 days prior to the effective date of the proposed annexation. If the affected electric service supplier objects, it must follow procedures specified in the bill.

Responsibility for payment of fees set by the Commission to carry out its duties related to determining service territories are on the parties to the proceeding as ordered by the Commission in each case.

If an electrical corporation is providing electric service within a municipality and the corporation has previously received a certificate of convenience and necessity from the Commission to provide electric service in the annexed area or the area proposed to be annexed, certain provisions of the bill apply equally to the electrical corporation as if it were a municipally owned utility.

A municipality is not precluded from having a population of at least 1,500 inhabitants as of August 28, 2021, from requiring a rural electric cooperative to obtain a franchise to provide electric service, or to impose a sales tax, within the boundaries of the municipality.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ENERGY PROPERTY TAXATION (sections 153.030, 153.034 RSMo)

Beginning January 1, 2022, the bill also provides that any real and personal property of any public utility that was constructed using financing under Chapter 100 will be valued and taxed upon the county assessor's local tax rolls. The property constructed using financing under Chapter 100 will be assessed using the methodology set forth in the bill.

COMMON SEWER DISTRICTS (Section 204.569)

Currently, when an unincorporated sewer subdistrict of a common sewer district has been formed, the board of trustees of the common sewer district has the power to issue bonds with assent of 4/7 of the voters of the subdistrict on the question. The bill states that as an alternative to such vote, if the subdistrict is a part of a common sewer district located in whole or in part in certain counties, bonds may be issued for the subdistrict if the question receives the written assent of 3/4 of the customers of the subdistrict.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION ASSESSMENT (Section 386.370)

Currently, the Public Service Commission can assess no more than 0.25% of the total gross intrastate operating revenues against all utilities under the jurisdiction of the Commission for the cost of regulating such utilities. The bill changes the assessment rate to no more than 0.38% of the total gross intrastate operating revenues.

WATER AND SEWER INFRASTRUCTURE (Sections 393.1500 to 393.1509)

Currently, water corporations with more than 1,000 customers are required to use a competitive bidding process for no less than 10% of the corporation's external expenditures for planned infrastructure projects on the water corporation's distribution system. This bill requires a competitive bidding process be used for 20% of the corporation's external expenditures for such projects.

The bill also establishes the "Missouri Water and Sewer Infrastructure Act", which specifies that a water or sewer company may file a petition and proposed rate schedules with the Public Service Commission to create or change an infrastructure rate adjustment (WSIRA) that provides for the recovery of pretax revenues associated with eligible infrastructure projects. The WSIRA and any future changes must meet specific requirements.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Commission cannot approve a WSIRA for a water or sewer corporation that has not had a general rate proceeding decided or dismissed within the past three years of the filing of a WSIRA petition unless the corporation has filed for or is the subject of a pending general rate proceeding. A corporation cannot collect a WSIRA for more than three years unless the corporation had filed for or is the subject of a new rate proceeding. In such case, the WSIRA can be collected until the effective date of the new rate schedules.

At the time the corporation files a petition to establish or change a WSIRA, it must submit proposed WSIRA rate schedules and supporting documentation, and it must also serve the Office of Public Counsel with a copy of the petition, rate schedules, and documentation. Upon filing, the Commission must publish a notice of the filing, and conduct an examination of the proposed WSIRA, as specified in the bill. The Commission may hold a hearing on the petition and any associated WSIRA rate schedules. If the Commission finds that a petition complies with the requirements, the Commission must enter an order authorizing the corporation to implement the WSIRA. A corporation may effectuate a change in its WSIRA no more than twice in every 12-month period.

The bill specifies information the Commission may consider in determining the appropriate pretax revenues and how the WSIRA is calculated. If this information is unavailable and the Commission has not provided it on an agreed-upon basis, the Commission must use the last authorized overall pretax weighted average cost of capital for a WSIRA or the last authorized overall pretax weighted average cost of capital in a general rate proceeding for the corporation. At the end of each 12-month period that the WSIRA is in effect, the corporation must reconcile the differences between the revenues from a WSIRA and the appropriate pretax revenues found by the Commission for that period and submit the reconciliation and proposed WSIRA to the Commission for approval to recover or credit the difference.

A corporation that has a WSIRA must file revised WSIRA schedules when new base rates and charges become effective following a general rate proceeding that includes the WSIRA eligible costs in the base rates. Once the eligible costs are included in corporation's base rates, the corporation must reconcile any previously unreconciled WSIRA revenues to ensure that revenues resulting from the WSIRA match as closely as possible the appropriate pretax revenues.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A corporation's filing of a petition to establish or change a WSIRA is not considered a request for a general increase in the corporation's base rates and charges. Nothing in this bill impairs the authority of the Commission to review the prudence or eligibility of specific projects in the proposed WSIRA. The commission may take into account any change in business risk to the water or sewer corporation resulting from the WSIRA when setting the allowed return in a general rate proceeding.

The provisions of the Missouri Water and Sewer Infrastructure Act expire on December 31, 2031.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill would promote proactive replacement of water infrastructure. It can cost up to 10 times more to replace a water main in an emergency than replacing the main in coordination with other public works projects. Maintaining the water and wastewater infrastructure is important to the economy of the state because affordable, reliable utilities help attract and retain business in the state.

Testifying for the bill were Senator White; Greater St Louis Inc; Missouri American Water; Construction Employers Coalition; Missouri Chamber of Commerce and Industry; and the Association of Missouri Electric Cooperatives. Additional written testimony was submitted in support of the bill.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that this would increase water and sewer rates for customers without consumer protection provisions such as a rate increase cap and a sunset date. The bill also limits what expenditures the commission can look at during a prudence review. Testifying against the bill was Midwest Energy Consumers Group.Additional written testimony was submitted in opposition of the bill.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say that the bill limits a political subdivision's ability to regulate propane tanks as it relates to public safety. Also the provisions relating to the assessment of petroleum pipes is concerning since for gas service stations, the property currently is not assessed separate from rest of the service station.

SS SB 45 -- FIREFIGHTERS

SPONSOR: Hough (Wiemann)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 13 to 0.

This bill allows for the creation of a Voluntary Firefighter Cancer Benefits Pool by three or more political subdivisions. The bill specifes that, any political subdivision may make contributions to a Voluntary Firefighter Cancer Benefits Pool. The board of trustees of any pool created for the purposes of this bill is subject to the Sunshine Law. The Pool is allowed to make payments to covered individuals based upon the type of cancer with which the covered individual was diagnosed. Benefits may be reduced by 25% if the covered individual used a tobacco product within the 5 years immediately preceding the cancer diagnosis.

If any individual that receives benefits under this bill thereafter receives Workers' Compensation Benefits for the same injury, then the Workers' Compensation Benefits or death benefits shall be reduced 100% by any benefits received from the Pool under this bill.

Furthermore, the employer in any Workers' Compensation claim shall be subrogated to the right of the employee or to the dependent or domestic partner to receive benefits from the Pool and such employer may recover any amounts which such employee or the dependent or domestic partner would have been entitled to recover from the Pool under this bill. Any receipt of benefits from the Pool under this bill shall be treated as an advance payment by the employer, on account of any future installments of Workers' Compensation Benefits.

Any Pool created for the purposes of this bill may accept or apply for grants or donations from any private or public source. Furthermore, any such Pool may apply for grants from the State

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Fire Marshal. This provision expires June 30, 2023.

The bill also amends a provision of law relating to disbursement of grants to volunteer fire protection association workers' compensation insurance premiums for volunteer firefighters. Current law requires the State Fire Marshal to disburse such grants to any applying association. This bill permits such disbursement.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that firefighters are contracting certain kinds of cancer at a higher rate than the general public. We need to support these heroes. We to help them get treatment early and support them in the care they need.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Hough; Arnie C. Dienoff; Greg Brown, Missouri Fire Service Alliance; Cory Hogan, Missouri State Council of Firefighters.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

SS SCS SB 57 -- FUNDING TO DETER CRIMINAL ACTIVITY

SPONSOR: May (Roberts)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 8 to 1.

This bill establishes the "Critical Incident Stress Management Program" within the Department of Public Safety. The program shall provide services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. A "critical incident" is any event outside the usual realm of human experience that is markedly distressing or evokes reactions of intense fear, helplessness, or horror and involves the perceived threat to a person's physical integrity or the physical integrity of someone else.

The bill provides that all peace officers shall be required to meet with a program service provider once every three to five years for a mental health check-in. The program service provider shall send a notification to the peace officer's commanding officer that he or she completed such check-in. Any information disclosed by a peace officer shall be privileged and shall not be used as evidence in criminal, administrative, or civil proceedings against the peace officer, except as in certain instances as provided in the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Additionally, the bill creates the "988 Public Safety Fund" within the State Treasury, which shall be used by the Department of Public Safety for the purposes of providing services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. Such services may include consultation, risk assessment, education, intervention, and other crisis intervention services.

The bill creates the "Economic Distress Zone Fund", which shall be a fund used solely by the Department of Public Safety to provide funding to organizations registered with the IRS as a 501(c)(3) corporation that provide services to residents of the state in areas of high incidents of crime and deteriorating infrastructure, as defined in the bill, for the purpose of deterring criminal behavior in such areas. If money appropriated to the Fund exceeds $3 million, excluding any money made available by gift or otherwise, such money shall revert to general revenue.

This provision shall sunset on August 28, 2024.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this provides education and other crisis intervention services to our licensed peace officers and they can talk to people without the stigma of mental health issues. They can deal with things they carry the burden for daily. This bill seeks to help that. The "988 Fund" is what would help law enforcement. Some sort of emergency zone fund to provide funding and services and infrastructure in high areas of crime. Law enforcement has its own funding mechanism. There is no mandatory reporting requirement in the peer support unless the person is threating to cause harm to him or herself or someone else. There is no punishment for not doing this, but most officers want this service. More officers die by suicide than in the line of duty.

Testifying for the bill were Senator May; Jewish Community Relations Council of St. Louis; Missouri Fraternal Order of Police; St. Louis Police Officers Association; Kansas City Fraternal Order of Police; and Missouri Sheriffs United.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

HCS SCS SB 91 -- JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS

SPONSOR: Riddle (Fitzwater)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 11 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 91.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY WITNESSES (Sections 21.403, 21.405, 575.040, 575.050, 575.160, 575.270, 575.280, 575.330, and 576.030 RSMo)

This bill specifies that, when a person is subpoenaed to testify or provide information at a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly, a court must issue, upon request from the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the body that subpoenaed the person, an order requiring the person to testify or provide information if the person refuses to do so on the basis of the person's privilege against self-incrimination. Before issuing such an order, a court must find that the request for the order has been approved by a vote of a three-fifths majority of the members of the body requesting the order. If a witness refuses, on the basis of the privilege against self-incrimination, to testify or provide information and the person presiding over the proceeding informs the witness that an order requiring the testimony or production of information was issued, the witness must not refuse to comply with the order on the basis of the asserted privilege. However, no testimony or information compelled under the order may be used against the witness in any criminal proceeding other than perjury, giving a false statement, or otherwise failing to comply with the order.

If a witness summoned by a body of the General Assembly willfully fails to appear, refuses to answer any pertinent questions, or fails to produce required documents, a statement of facts regarding such failure may be reported to and filed with the President Pro Tem of the Senate or the Speaker of the House. Either the President Pro Tem or the Speaker may certify the statement of facts to the prosecuting or other attorney having jurisdiction to prosecute. The Attorney General will have concurrent original jurisdiction to commence a criminal action throughout the state. Upon request by the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the originating body, the court must, within 15 days of the request, appoint independent counsel, who will have jurisdiction to prosecute under Section 575.330, RSMo. If independent counsel is appointed, such independent counsel will have sole jurisdiction to prosecute under such section.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The bill also specifies that:

(1) The offense of perjury is a class D felony if it is committed in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(2) The offense of making a false affidavit is a class A misdemeanor when it is done in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(3) The offense of tampering with a witness or victim is a class E felony when the witness is a witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(4) The offense of acceding to corruption when the person is a witness or prospective witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly is a class D felony;

(5) A person commits the offense of obstructing government operations if he or she purposely obstructs, impairs, hinders, or perverts the performance of a governmental function by the use or threat of harm, intimidation, or coercion. The offense of obstructing government operations is a class A misdemeanor. However, if committed against a body of the General Assembly, it is a class E felony.

COURT FACILITIES (Sections 46.266, 49.310, and 476.083)

The bill provides that, in absence of a local agreement otherwise, in any courthouse that contains both county offices and court facilities, the presiding circuit of the circuit may establish rules and procedures for court facilities and areas necessary for court-related ingress and egress, and other reasonable court-related usage, but the county commission will have authority over all other areas of the courthouse.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The bill also authorizes the county commission in all noncharter counties to promulgate reasonable regulations concerning the use of county property. Currently, the county commissions in all first, second, and fourth counties are authorized to promulgate the regulations.

Currently the presiding judge in specified court circuits may appoint a circuit court marshal to aid the presiding judge by overseeing the physical security of the courthouse. This bill changes courthouse to court facilities, including courtrooms, jury rooms and chambers or offices of the court.

11TH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT (Section 478.600)
Beginning January 1, 2023, there will be seven circuit judges in the 11th Judicial Circuit, and these judges will sit in divisions numbered one, two, three, four, five, seven, and 15.

The circuit judge in division 15 will be elected in 2022.

The duties and responsibilities for a specified Associate Circuit Judge position in the 11th Judicial Circuit are modified by stating that treatment court activities may be retained as duties and responsibilities.

JUVENILE JUSTICE (211.012, 211.181, and 211.435)

This bill specifies that, for the purposes of Chapter 211, RSMo, Section 221.044, and the original jurisdiction of the juvenile court, if a person was considered an adult when the alleged offense or violation was committed, he or she will not later be considered a child. Additionally, under current law, no court will require a child to remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services past the child's 18th birthday. This bill changes that provision so that a child can remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services until the child's 19th birthday.

There is currently a state "Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund", which exists in the State Treasury. This bill changes that so there is a Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund in each county's circuit court, and the purpose of this fund is to implement and maintain the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction to 18 years of age. The surcharge collected under the section will be payable to the county circuit court rather than to the State

MO-REP-21-1608-F-003076

Treasury. Funds currently held by the State Treasurer in the Fund must be payable and revert to the circuit court's fund in the county of origination. Expenditures from the individual county juvenile justice funds will be made at the discretion of the juvenile office for the circuit court and must be used for the sole purpose of implementing and maintaining the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction.

The bill states that, to further promote the best interests of the children of Missouri, money in the fund will not be used to replace or reduce the responsibilities of either the counties or the state to provide funding for existing and new juvenile treatment services.

COURT REPORTERS (Section 485.060)

The bill specifies that, starting January 1, 2022, each court reporter for a circuit judge will receive an annual salary based upon his or her cumulative years of service as a court reporter with a circuit court of this state, based upon a schedule provided in the bill.

COMMUNITY-BASED TREATMENT (Section 217.777 and 599.120)

The bill specifies that a court must consider the option to order certain offenders to participate in community-based treatment programs as a sentencing alternative if the offender is the primary caregiver of one or more dependent children and the offender meets certain other specified requirements. The Department of Corrections currently administers a community corrections program to encourage the establishment of such local sentencing alternatives. This bill adds promoting opportunities for nonviolent primary caregivers to care for their dependent children as one of the goals of that program.

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY (Section 447.541)

The bill modifies the notice requirements required to be made by the State Treasurer for purposes of disposing of unclaimed property. Specifically, current law requires the Treasurer to give notice of property that is presumed to be abandoned as follows:

(1) Notice must be published in a newspaper of general circulation once a week for two successive weeks within 240 days of receiving notice of property that is presumed to be abandoned; and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(2) Notice must be mailed to each person having an address listed who appears to be entitled to presumed abandoned property valued at $50 or more.

The bill allows the State Treasurer to use any other method, in addition to the above methods, deemed appropriate and consistent with the intent to notify the owners of the property.

ELECTRONIC MARRIAGE LICENSE APPLICATION (Section 451.040)

The bill allows the Recorder of Deeds to accept electronic applications for marriage licenses through an online process. If a recorder uses an online process to accept applications for or to issue marriage licenses and the applicants' identity has not been verified in person, the Recorder must have a two-step verification process or a process that independently verifies the identity of the applicants. It is the Recorder's responsibility to ensure that any verification process adopted as part of the electronic system verifies the identities of both applicants. The Recorder must not accept applications for or issue licenses through this online process unless at least one of the applicants is a resident of the county or city not within a county in which the application was submitted.

CUSTODY ORDERS (Section 452.410)

The bill limits the sections of statute under which custody orders may be modified.

ORDERS OF PROTECTION (Section 455.010)

The bill changes the definition of "course of conduct" in the definition of "stalking", as it relates to orders of protection.

GUARDIANSHIP (Section 475.050)

The bill modifies language related to exemptions for individuals seeking appointment as a guardian or conservator from a background screening. The bill adds a ward's grandparents to the current list of relatives exempt from the screening, unless a background report is requested by a party to the proceeding or ordered by the court.

COURT COSTS AND FEES (Section 479.162 and 488.016)

The bill specifies that in a proceeding for a municipal ordinance violation or any other proceeding before a municipal court if the charge carries the possibility of 15 days or more in jail or confinement, a defendant must not be charged any fee for obtaining a police report or probable cause statement. Such police report or probable cause statement must be provided by the prosecutor upon written request for discovery by the defendant.

The bill provides that court costs will be fully waived for any person who is an honorably discharged veteran of any branch of the Armed Forces and who successfully completes a veterans treatment court.

WITNESS STATEMENTS (Section 491.016)

The bill specifies that an otherwise inadmissible witness statement is admissible in evidence in a criminal proceeding as substantive evidence if the court, after a hearing, finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant engaged in or acquiesced to wrongdoing with the purpose of causing the unavailability of the witness, such wrongdoing caused or substantially contributed to the unavailability of the witness, the prosecution exercised due diligence to secure by subpoena or other means the attendance of the witness, and the witness failed to appear.

JUROR COMPENSATION (Section 494.455)

This bill specifies that, except in Greene County, the County Commission in any county may vote to restructure juror compensation so that grand and petit jurors do not get paid for the first two days of service but thereafter will receive $50 per day, as well as $0.07 per mile for necessary travel from the juror's residence to the courthouse and back, to be paid by the county. A county commission may authorize compensation to a grand or petit juror for the first two days of service, but the compensation cannot exceed $10.

In Greene County, this pay structure is set by current law.

CHANGE OF VENUE FOR CAPITAL CASES FUND (Section 550.125)

This bill creates the "Change of Venue for Capital Cases Fund", which will consist of money appropriated by the General Assembly. Money in the fund is to be used solely for reimbursement to a county that receives a capital case from another county. At the conclusion of a capital case for which the venue was changed from one county to another, the county that sent the case may apply to the Office of State Courts Administrator (OSCA) for reimbursement to the county that received the case of any costs associated with sequestering jurors. If a county is eligible for reimbursement, OSCA shall disburse the money to the county. If OSCA determines that a county is not eligible for reimbursement or the actual costs are more then the amount dispersed, the county in which the capital case originated shall be responsible for all or the remaining reimbursement.

Applications for reimbursement must be submitted by May 1 of the current fiscal year, and reimbursements must be made by June 30 of the current fiscal year. Reimbursements for applications submitted after May 1 of the current fiscal year will be made in the following fiscal year. If there is not enough money in the fund at the end of the fiscal year when reimbursements are made, reimbursements will be made on a pro rata basis.

SEX OFFENDERS (Section 566.150)

The bill provides that persons guilty of certain sex crimes cannot be present or loiter within 500 feet of athletic complexes or athletic fields that exist primarily for use and recreation of children or within 500 feet of Missouri Department of Conservation Nature or Education Center properties, unless the registered sex offender is the parent of a child participating in an educational program of the Department of Conservation and has permission to be on the property.

This bill has an emergency clause for the provisions related to juvenile justice.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on SCS SB 91.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that persons guilty of certain sex crimes can't be within so many feet of athletic complexes or fields used primary for the recreation of children. They are having a problem with certain offenders loitering near these fields and complexes. They have been asked to leave but refuse and there is currently no recourse for the community. Additional prohibited locations were added in committee. They are just loitering, have no reason to be there and know they are not wanted. Nature centers can be child based facilities and there have been issues in the past with child sex offenders showing up. Displays in nature centers are often tailored for kids 12 or younger.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Riddle; Missouri Department of Conservation; Arnie C. Dienoff; and Conservation Federation of Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that this would place more restrictions on her husband, according to one witness. They have kids and they are very involved; this would prohibit their dad from attending their games. He made a bad decision that resulted in a non violent misdemeanor.He regrets that decision and he has paid for his mistake. This is just continuing to punish those who have already paid their debt. There should be an exception for parents. He was charged under Section 573.040. The law should take into account the fact that someone is a parent or spouse. If a person on the registry and is with their families at these events that should be ok.

Testifying against the bill were Chad Mayes; Angie James; Josh James; Sean James; Briana Downing; Lisa Stevens; Brent A Barnhill; and Michael James.

SCS SB 272 -- LOTTERY WINNERS

SPONSOR: Mosley (Mosley)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 13 to 0.

This bill prohibits the State Lottery Commission, any employee of the State Lottery, and any organization contracted with the State Lottery from publishing identifying information of any person who wins the state lottery. A lottery winner may authorize in writing, on a form to be provided by the Lottery Commission, the public disclosure of his or her identifying information. Such form shall clearly state in at least a 14-point bolded font at the top of the form that a lottery winner is not required to sign such public disclosure form in order to claim his or her lottery winnings.

37.710, 37.717			This bill requires the office of the child advocate to create a safety reporting system in which employees of children's division can report information regarding the safety of those served by the Division and the safety of Division employees.
160.261, 210.152	Similar in part to HCS HB 673 Coleman	Perfection Calendar Informal	The bill repeals language related to the Children's Division's jurisdiction over or ability to investigate reports of alleged child abuse by personnel of a school district, a teacher, or other school employee. It also repeals language related to how a school and school district are to handle reports of alleged child abuse. This bill allows the Office of Child Advocate to release findings for members of a multidisciplinary team relating to their professional performance.
160.263	HB 387 Bailey	Voted Do Pass out of Senate Education	This bill defines "restraint" and "seclusion" and requires school districts, charter schools, or publicly contracted private providers to include in policy a prohibition on the use of restraint and seclusion, including "prone restraint" as defined by the bill, for any purpose other then situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others. Any incident requiring restraint or seclusion shall be monitored by school personnel with written observation. The bill requires that before July 1, 2022 each school district, and charter school, or publicly contracted private providers policy shall include: (1) When to remove a child from restraint, seclusion, or isolation; (2) Requirement for annual mandatory training; (3) Reporting requirements for any occurrence of restraint, seclusion or isolation as outlined in the bill, including the reporting requirements for parental notification and providing a copy of each report to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE); (4) Notification requirement for each occurrence of a restraint, seclusion, or isolation incident to parents or guardians within one hour after the end of school on the day the incident occurs. (5) Protections for individuals that report or provide information about violations of policy under this section.

210.115, 210.121	HCS HB 1276 Pike	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill modifies mandated reporting for unaccompanied and homeless youth seeking supportive services so that the youth's status alone is not sufficient basis for reporting child abuse or neglect. The bill defines "supportive services" to include interventions, services, or resources necessary to assist unaccompanied youth, including food and shelter, counseling, case management, and legal services among other services outlined in the bill. The bill allows an unaccompanied youth to access supportive services as long as they are documented by a licensed mental health, counselor, or social worker as provided by the bill. The bill exempts persons who in good faith provided supportive services from civil and criminal action without permission from the youth's parent.
210.127, 210.305, 210.565			This bill modifies provisions relating to the duty of Children's Division to identify and locate biological parents, grandparents, or other relatives of children in the division's custody.

These include: fire and safety inspections, local health department inspections, background checks, medical records for all residents, and information about schools serving the children. The bill provides courts the power to expand on orders to produce children in a facility if there is suspicion of abuse or neglect. This bill creates a process for DSS to provide background checks for licensed residential care facilities or child placing agencies and for residential care facilities subject to the notification requirements of 210.1250 to 210.1286 RSMo. Fingerprints are valid for 5 years and DSS will provide results to the applicant and to the facility or agency. The bill outlines what will make an applicant ineligible and provides applicants the right to appeal. When there are allegations of abuse or neglect in the residential facility, the bill outlines how the Department can petition a court for an order for a home to present a child that is the subject of a child abuse investigation. The bill specifies that any case in which a referral is made to a juvenile officer for removal of a child, a referral may also be made to the Attorney General. The bill further details that failure to comply with these provisions may result in fines, misdemeanor charges for failure to conduct background checks, and potential removal of children. The bill specifies that the Department may promulgate necessary rules that include a fee to cover the cost of the notification process. However, it is not permitted to regulate any religious program, curriculum, or ministry.
210.489	HB 1335 Sauls	Reported Do Pass out of Rules Administrative Oversight	This bill allows the Division of Children Services within the Department of Social Services to permit children to voluntarily reenter foster care if due to the child's age the child left care during the COVID-19 pandemic. The Division will provide children with notice of this option, facilitate the return to care, and conduct a public awareness campaign for children under 22 years of age, until September 30, 2021 or while there is a state of emergency due to the pandemic, whichever is later.

HCS SB 377 -- Landowner Liability

SPONSOR: Eslinger (Haden)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 16 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 377.

This bill prohibits an owner, employee, or officer of a private campground from being liable for acts related to camping at a private campground if the injury or damage occurred as a result of an inherent risk of camping, as described within the bill.

This bill does not apply to actions arising under Missouri Workers' Compensation Law. Additionally, this bill does not prevent or limit liability of an owner, employee, or officer who intentionally causes injury, death, or damage, who acts with a willful or wanton disregard for the safety of the person or property damaged, who fails to use the degree of care that an ordinarily careful and prudent person would use under the circumstances, or who fails to conspicuously post warning signs of known dangerous conditions on the property. Warning signs are required to appear in black letters of at least one inch in height on a white background. Warning signs and written contracts entered into by an owner, employee, or officer shall contain a warning notice, as specified in the bill.

The bill also specifies that a landowner is not liable for injuries a trespasser receives while on the landowner's residential area, if such area is adjacent to a park or trail and that is how the trespasser entered the owner's property.

Currently, a landowner who invites or permits a person to enter his land for recreational use in compliance with a state-administerd recreational access program does not assume certain liabilities or responsibilities. The bill also extends the limited liability to landowners who invite or permit a person to enter his land for recreational use in compliance with a state-administerd wildlife management program.

The bill also repeals a certain paragraph of landowner liability law that states that nothing in its provisions creates or limits liability that otherwise would be incurred by owners of land for injuries occurring on or in any land within the corporate boundaries of any city, municipality, town, or village in this state.

The bill also creates the "Prescribed Burning Act", which specifies that any landowner or agent of a landowner will not be liable for damage, injury, or loss caused by a prescribed burn, as defined in the bill, or the resulting smoke of a prescribed burn unless the landowner is proven to be negligent. Additionally, no certified burn manager will be liable if the burn is conducted in accordance with a written prescribed burn plan unless the burn manager is found to be negligent.

The provisions of the bill do not apply to damage, injury, or loss to property, lands, rights-of-way, or easements of certain utilities and railroad companies.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that some landowners are reluctant to participate in certain wildlife management program due to their liability related to letting others hunt on their property. This bill would give landowners protection if someone is injured on their property.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Eslinger; Missouri Department of Conservation; Conservation Federation of Missouri; and Missouri Farm Bureau.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

HOUSE SUBSTITUTE FOR SENATE SUBSTITUTE FOR SENATE COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE FOR SENATE BILL 27

Section	Original Bill	Status As of 4/29/2021	Description
49.310, 476.083, RSMo49	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	This bill provides that a presiding circuit judge may establish rules for courtrooms, jury rooms, and chambers or offices of the court in any courthouse that contains both a county office and a courtroom, while the county commission shall have authority over all other areas. Currently, a circuit court marshal appointed by a presiding circuit judge oversees the physical security of a courthouse. This bill provides that the circuit court marshal oversees the physical security of courtrooms, jury rooms, and chambers of offices of the court.
50.166,	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	Under current law, a county clerk may transmit in the form of a warrant the amount due for a grant, salary, pay, and expenses to the county treasurer. This bill provides that, upon request, the county treasurer shall have access to any financially relevant document in the possession of any county official for the purposes of processing a warrant. If the warrant is received in the absence of a check, then the county treasurer shall have access to the information necessary to process the warrant. Additionally, no official of any county shall refuse a request from the county treasurer for access to or a copy of any document in the possession of a county office that is financially relevant to the salaries of county officers and assistants; however, a county official may redact, remove, or delete any personal identifying information before submission to the county treasurer. Finally, no county treasurer shall refuse to release funds for the payment of any properly approved expenditure.
50.327	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	Under current law, the compensation for non-charter county coroners is based on salary schedules established by law. This bill specifies that upon majority approval of the salary commission, the annual compensation of a county coroner may be increased up to $14,000 greater than the compensation provided by the salary schedule established by law.
50.530	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	This amendment repeals the provision that in Cass County the presiding commissioner shall be the budget officer unless the county commission designates the county clerk as the budget officer.
59.021 and 59.100	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	This bill provides that each candidate for county recorder shall provide to the election authority a copy of an affidavit from a surety company authorized to do business in this state that indicates the candidate is about to satisfy the bond requirements of the office. Additionally, under current law, all recorders of deeds elected in first, second, and third classification counties shall enter into bond with the state for an amount set by the county commission. However, this amount shall not be less than $1000 with sufficient sureties. Under this bill, these provisions shall only apply to recorders of deeds elected prior to January 1, 2022. This bill provides that all recorders of deeds elected after December 31, 2021, in first, second, and third classification counties shall enter into bond with the state for an amount set by the county commission of not be less than $5000 with sufficient sureties.

115.127	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	Under current law, the period for filing a declaration of candidacy in certain political subdivisions and special districts is from 8:00 a.m. on the 16th Tuesday prior to the election until 5:00 p.m. on the 11th Tuesday prior to the election. Additionally, the opening date for filing a declaration of candidacy in Kansas City, and any political subdivision or special district within Kansas City, is 8:00 a.m. on the 15th Tuesday prior to the election until 5:00 p.m. on the 11th Tuesday prior to the election. This bill makes the filing period for declarations of candidacy in all political subdivisions and special districts that have not otherwise required a filing period by law or charter to be 8:00 a.m. on the 17th Tuesday prior to the election until 5:00 p.m. on the 14th Tuesday prior to the election.
221.105	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	Under current law, the Department of Corrections shall issue a reimbursement to a county for the actual cost of incarceration of a prisoner not to exceed certain amounts as provided in the bill. However, the amount shall not be less than the amount appropriated in the previous fiscal year. This bill repeals the provision that the amount reimbursed to counties shall not be less than the amount appropriated in the previous fiscal year.
451.040	SS SCS SB 27	Referred to Downsizing Government	This bill provides that applicants for a marriage license may present an application for the license to the recorder of deeds in person or electronically through an online process. Additionally, in the event a recorder of deeds utilizes an online process to accept applications for a marriage license or to issue a marriage license and the applicants' identity has not been verified in person, the recorder shall have a two-step identity verification process or other process that verifies the identity of the applicants. Finally, the recorder shall not accept applications for or issue marriage licenses through an online process unless at least one of the applicants is a resident of the county in which the application was submitted.

Included in the offices and districts affected are: county clerk; county auditor; county coroner; county surveyor; seven-director school board; ambulance district board; sewer district trustee; public water supply district board; emergency telephone services board; hospital district board; public water supply district board; fire protection district board; court clerk; and mayor for third or fourth class cities. The bill also requires a person appointed to elective public office not be delinquent in the payment of state income tax, personal property tax, municipal tax or real property tax. A residency requirement for the Office of Attorney General is also repealed.
478.240, 483.240, 483.241, 483.245	HCS HB 807	Passed out of Rules	This bill authorizes elected circuit clerks to have general administrative authority over judicial personnel including deputy circuit clerks, division clerks, and other court personnel, but excluding court officials. An elected circuit clerk may appoint and remove deputy clerks and division clerks and establish salaries for such positions based upon salary ranges established by Missouri Supreme Court Administrative Rules. The assignment of clerks to particular judges and specified record keeping functions will also be under the purview of the circuit clerk. The bill repeals various provisions authorizing the presiding judge or the entire circuit court to regulate court clerks and associated functions.
192.027	HCS HB 1358	Referred to Rules	The bill creates the "True COVID Liability Act" and contains declarative statements regarding epidemiology, public policy relating to contagious diseases including COVID-19, susceptibility to contagious diseases, personal accountability, legal liability and government-mandated responses as outlined. The bill prohibits the state or any political subdivision thereof from, as a response to a contagious disease, quarantining an individual in any way; limiting the use of otherwise lawful activities in any private property or premises in which extraordinary prevalence of a contagious disease has not been proven; revoking any business license based on an individual's or entity's decision regarding recommendations from a government or scientific entity. No individual, owner, or entity shall be subject to criminal or civil liability in any action alleging exposure to a contagious disease on premises controlled by such person unless they

The bill adds a third alternative choice for a county for the collection and administration of the tax charged for all sleeping rooms and transient guests of hotels and motels situated in the county. This alternative authorizes the county to enter into an agreement with the authority for the authority to collect the tax and perform all functions incident to the administration, collection, enforcement, and operation of the tax. If the county collects the authorized tax, the tax for each calendar quarter is due on the first day of the next calendar quarter. The entity collecting the tax must collect a penalty of 1% per month and must collect interest of 2% per month on taxes that are not paid within 30 days of the last day of the quarter. Any penalty or interest will be calculated beginning on the original due date. The authority, in its discretion, may abate a portion of the penalty to facilitate the voluntary payment of the tax. Lawsuits to enforce the collection and payment of the tax will be filed and prosecuted by the Currently, a county that has adopted the Alternative County Highway Commission under Sections 230.200 to 230.260, RSMo, may only abolish it by a vote of the people. This bill adds by a vote of the Governing Body as an additional method. Currently, once abolished, or in counties that did not adopt the Alternative County Highway Commission, the county shall retain the County Highway Commission under Sections 230.010 to 230.110. This bill allows the county to adopt the County Highway Commission or the county road overseers provided under Sections 231.010 to 231.130.

SB 36 -- CAPITOL COMPLEX TAX CREDIT ACT

SPONSOR: Bernskoetter (Griffith)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 11 to 0.

This bill creates the Capitol Complex Tax Credit Act. The Capitol Complex Fund is authorized to receive any eligible monetary donation, as defined in the bill, and shall be segregated into two accounts: a rehabilitation and renovation account, and a maintenance account. Of the revenues deposited into the Fund, 90% shall be placed in the rehabilitation and renovation account and 7.5% of revenues deposited in the Fund shall be placed in the maintenance account. The remaining 2.5% of the funds may be used for the purposes of fundraising, advertising, and administrative costs.

The choice of projects for which money is to be used, as well as the determination of the methods of carrying out the project and the procurement of goods and services, shall be made by the Commissioner of Administration. No moneys shall be released from the Fund for any expense without the approval of the Commissioner of Administration.

For all taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2021, any qualified donor, as defined in the bill, shall be allowed a credit against any state income tax (except employer withheld taxes) or state taxes imposed on financial institutions for an amount equal to 50% of the monetary donation amount. Any amount of tax credit that exceeds the qualified donor's state income tax liability may be refunded or carried forward for the following four years.

For all taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2021, a qualified donor shall be allowed a credit against any state income tax (except employer withheld taxes) or state taxes imposed on financial institutions for an amount equal to 30% of the value of the eligible artifact donation, as defined in the bill. Any amount of tax credit that exceeds the donor's tax liability shall not be refunded for artifacts, but the credit may be carried forward for four subsequent years.

The Department of Economic Development shall not issue tax credits for donations to the Capitol Complex Fund in excess of $10 million per year in the aggregate. Donations received in excess of the cap shall be placed in line for tax credits the following year. Alternatively, a donor may donate without receiving the credit or may request that their donation is returned.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Tax credits issued for donations under this bill are not subject to any fee. Tax credits issued under this bill may be assigned, transferred, sold, or otherwise conveyed.
This act shall sunset August 28, 2027, unless reauthorized by the General Assembly.

This act is the same as SCS SB 586 and HCS HB 1713, and to a provision contained in HCS SS SCS SB 570, HCS SCS SB 616, and HCS SS#2 SB 704 (2020), and is similar to SB 255 (2019).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill will help pay for improvements to the Capitol Complex.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Bernskoetter; and the Historic Revitalization for Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Written opposition was submitted online by Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SS SB 44 -- Utilities

SPONSOR: White (Wallingford)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Utilities by a vote of 7 to 2.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 44.

This bill changes the provisions related to utilities.

RESTRICTING UTILITY SERVICE (Section 67.309, RSMo)

The bill prohibits any political subdivision of the state from adopting an ordinance, resolution, regulation, code, or policy

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

that prohibits or has the effect of prohibiting the connection or reconnection of a utility service based on the type or source of energy to be delivered to an individual customer. A political subdivision may choose utility services for properties owned by the political subdivision and may protect public safety.

SERVICE TERRITORIES OF RETAIL ELECTRIC SERVICE PROVIDERS (Sections 91.025, 386.800, 393.106, 394.020, & 394.315)

The bill changes the provisions relating to service territories of retail electric service providers. In the event that a retail electric supplier is providing service to a structure located within a municipality that has ceased to be a rural area, and the structure is demolished and replaced by a new structure, the retail electric service supplier may provide permanent service to the new structure upon the request of the owner of the new structure.

Additionally, in the absence of an approved territorial agreement, the municipally owned utility must apply to the Public Service Commission for an order assigning nonexclusive service territories and concurrently shall provide written notice of the application to other electric service suppliers with electric facilities located within a mile outside of the boundaries of the proposed expanded service territory. In granting the applicant's request, the Commission must give due regard to territories previously served by the other electric service suppliers and the wasteful duplication of electric service facilities.

Any municipally owned electric utility may extend its electric service territory to include areas where another electric supplier currently is not providing permanent service to a structure. If a rural electric cooperative has existing electric service facilities in the area proposed to be annexed, the majority of the existing developers, landowners, or prospective electric customers may submit a written request to the governing body of the annexing municipality to invoke mandatory good faith negotiations. These provisions also apply in the event an electrical corporation rather than a municipally owned electric utility is providing electric service in the municipality.

The bill also changes the term "fair and reasonable compensation" to be 200%, rather than 400%, of gross revenues less gross receipts taxes received by the affected electric service supplier from the 12 month period preceding the approval of the municipality's governing body. Additionally, this bill changes the definition of the population of a "rural area" to be increased by 6% every 10 years after each census beginning in 2030.

At the time that a municipally owned utility applies to the Public Service Commission for an order assigning nonexclusive service territories, the utility must concurrently provide written notice of the application to other electric service suppliers with electric facilities located within a mile outside of the boundaries of the proposed expanded service territory. In granting the applicant's request, the Commission must consider territories previously granted to or served by other electric service suppliers and the duplication of electric service facilities.

Any municipally owned electric utility may extend its electric service territory to include areas where another electric service supplier is not currently serving a structure but has existing electric service facilities located in or within a mile outside the boundaries of the area proposed to be annexed, provided it first notifies in writing the affected electric service supplier within 60 days prior to the effective date of the proposed annexation. If the affected electric service supplier objects, it must follow procedures specified in the bill.

Responsibility for payment of fees set by the Commission to carry out its duties related to determining service territories are on the parties to the proceeding as ordered by the Commission in each case.

If an electrical corporation is providing electric service within a municipality and the corporation has previously received a certificate of convenience and necessity from the Commission to provide electric service in the annexed area or the area proposed to be annexed, certain provisions of the bill apply equally to the electrical corporation as if it were a municipally owned utility.

A municipality is not precluded from having a population of at least 1,500 inhabitants as of August 28, 2021, from requiring a rural electric cooperative to obtain a franchise to provide electric service, or to impose a sales tax, within the boundaries of the municipality.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

ENERGY PROPERTY TAXATION (sections 153.030, 153.034 RSMo)

Beginning January 1, 2022, the bill also provides that any real and personal property of any public utility that was constructed using financing under Chapter 100 will be valued and taxed upon the county assessor's local tax rolls. The property constructed using financing under Chapter 100 will be assessed using the methodology set forth in the bill.

COMMON SEWER DISTRICTS (Section 204.569)

Currently, when an unincorporated sewer subdistrict of a common sewer district has been formed, the board of trustees of the common sewer district has the power to issue bonds with assent of 4/7 of the voters of the subdistrict on the question. The bill states that as an alternative to such vote, if the subdistrict is a part of a common sewer district located in whole or in part in certain counties, bonds may be issued for the subdistrict if the question receives the written assent of 3/4 of the customers of the subdistrict.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION ASSESSMENT (Section 386.370)

Currently, the Public Service Commission can assess no more than 0.25% of the total gross intrastate operating revenues against all utilities under the jurisdiction of the Commission for the cost of regulating such utilities. The bill changes the assessment rate to no more than 0.38% of the total gross intrastate operating revenues.

WATER AND SEWER INFRASTRUCTURE (Sections 393.1500 to 393.1509)

Currently, water corporations with more than 1,000 customers are required to use a competitive bidding process for no less than 10% of the corporation's external expenditures for planned infrastructure projects on the water corporation's distribution system. This bill requires a competitive bidding process be used for 20% of the corporation's external expenditures for such projects.

The bill also establishes the "Missouri Water and Sewer Infrastructure Act", which specifies that a water or sewer company may file a petition and proposed rate schedules with the Public Service Commission to create or change an infrastructure rate adjustment (WSIRA) that provides for the recovery of pretax revenues associated with eligible infrastructure projects. The WSIRA and any future changes must meet specific requirements.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Commission cannot approve a WSIRA for a water or sewer corporation that has not had a general rate proceeding decided or dismissed within the past three years of the filing of a WSIRA petition unless the corporation has filed for or is the subject of a pending general rate proceeding. A corporation cannot collect a WSIRA for more than three years unless the corporation had filed for or is the subject of a new rate proceeding. In such case, the WSIRA can be collected until the effective date of the new rate schedules.

At the time the corporation files a petition to establish or change a WSIRA, it must submit proposed WSIRA rate schedules and supporting documentation, and it must also serve the Office of Public Counsel with a copy of the petition, rate schedules, and documentation. Upon filing, the Commission must publish a notice of the filing, and conduct an examination of the proposed WSIRA, as specified in the bill. The Commission may hold a hearing on the petition and any associated WSIRA rate schedules. If the Commission finds that a petition complies with the requirements, the Commission must enter an order authorizing the corporation to implement the WSIRA. A corporation may effectuate a change in its WSIRA no more than twice in every 12-month period.

The bill specifies information the Commission may consider in determining the appropriate pretax revenues and how the WSIRA is calculated. If this information is unavailable and the Commission has not provided it on an agreed-upon basis, the Commission must use the last authorized overall pretax weighted average cost of capital for a WSIRA or the last authorized overall pretax weighted average cost of capital in a general rate proceeding for the corporation. At the end of each 12-month period that the WSIRA is in effect, the corporation must reconcile the differences between the revenues from a WSIRA and the appropriate pretax revenues found by the Commission for that period and submit the reconciliation and proposed WSIRA to the Commission for approval to recover or credit the difference.

A corporation that has a WSIRA must file revised WSIRA schedules when new base rates and charges become effective following a general rate proceeding that includes the WSIRA eligible costs in the base rates. Once the eligible costs are included in corporation's base rates, the corporation must reconcile any previously unreconciled WSIRA revenues to ensure that revenues resulting from the WSIRA match as closely as possible the appropriate pretax revenues.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A corporation's filing of a petition to establish or change a WSIRA is not considered a request for a general increase in the corporation's base rates and charges. Nothing in this bill impairs the authority of the Commission to review the prudence or eligibility of specific projects in the proposed WSIRA. The commission may take into account any change in business risk to the water or sewer corporation resulting from the WSIRA when setting the allowed return in a general rate proceeding.

The provisions of the Missouri Water and Sewer Infrastructure Act expire on December 31, 2031.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill would promote proactive replacement of water infrastructure. It can cost up to 10 times more to replace a water main in an emergency than replacing the main in coordination with other public works projects. Maintaining the water and wastewater infrastructure is important to the economy of the state because affordable, reliable utilities help attract and retain business in the state.

Testifying for the bill were Senator White; Greater St Louis Inc; Missouri American Water; Construction Employers Coalition; Missouri Chamber of Commerce and Industry; and the Association of Missouri Electric Cooperatives. Additional written testimony was submitted in support of the bill.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that this would increase water and sewer rates for customers without consumer protection provisions such as a rate increase cap and a sunset date. The bill also limits what expenditures the commission can look at during a prudence review. Testifying against the bill was Midwest Energy Consumers Group. Additional written testimony was submitted in opposition of the bill.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say that the bill limits a political subdivision's ability to regulate propane tanks as it relates to public safety. Also the provisions relating to the assessment of petroleum pipes is concerning since for gas service stations, the property currently is not assessed separate from rest of the service station.

SS SB 45 -- FIREFIGHTERS

SPONSOR: Hough (Wiemann)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 13 to 0.

This bill allows for the creation of a Voluntary Firefighter Cancer Benefits Pool by three or more political subdivisions. The bill specifes that, any political subdivision may make contributions to a Voluntary Firefighter Cancer Benefits Pool. The board of trustees of any pool created for the purposes of this bill is subject to the Sunshine Law. The Pool is allowed to make payments to covered individuals based upon the type of cancer with which the covered individual was diagnosed. Benefits may be reduced by 25% if the covered individual used a tobacco product within the 5 years immediately preceding the cancer diagnosis.

If any individual that receives benefits under this bill thereafter receives Workers' Compensation Benefits for the same injury, then the Workers' Compensation Benefits or death benefits shall be reduced 100% by any benefits received from the Pool under this bill.

Furthermore, the employer in any Workers' Compensation claim shall be subrogated to the right of the employee or to the dependent or domestic partner to receive benefits from the Pool and such employer may recover any amounts which such employee or the dependent or domestic partner would have been entitled to recover from the Pool under this bill. Any receipt of benefits from the Pool under this bill shall be treated as an advance payment by the employer, on account of any future installments of Workers' Compensation Benefits.

Any Pool created for the purposes of this bill may accept or apply for grants or donations from any private or public source. Furthermore, any such Pool may apply for grants from the State

Fire Marshal. This provision expires June 30, 2023.

The bill also amends a provision of law relating to disbursement of grants to volunteer fire protection association workers' compensation insurance premiums for volunteer firefighters. Current law requires the State Fire Marshal to disburse such grants to any applying association. This bill permits such disbursement.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that firefighters are contracting certain kinds of cancer at a higher rate than the general public. We need to support these heroes. We to help them get treatment early and support them in the care they need.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Hough; Arnie C. Dienoff; Greg Brown, Missouri Fire Service Alliance; Cory Hogan, Missouri State Council of Firefighters.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

SS SCS SB 57 -- FUNDING TO DETER CRIMINAL ACTIVITY

SPONSOR: May (Roberts)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 8 to 1.

This bill establishes the "Critical Incident Stress Management Program" within the Department of Public Safety. The program shall provide services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. A "critical incident" is any event outside the usual realm of human experience that is markedly distressing or evokes reactions of intense fear, helplessness, or horror and involves the perceived threat to a person's physical integrity or the physical integrity of someone else.

The bill provides that all peace officers shall be required to meet with a program service provider once every three to five years for a mental health check-in. The program service provider shall send a notification to the peace officer's commanding officer that he or she completed such check-in. Any information disclosed by a peace officer shall be privileged and shall not be used as evidence in criminal, administrative, or civil proceedings against the peace officer, except as in certain instances as provided in the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Additionally, the bill creates the "988 Public Safety Fund" within the State Treasury, which shall be used by the Department of Public Safety for the purposes of providing services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. Such services may include consultation, risk assessment, education, intervention, and other crisis intervention services.

The bill creates the "Economic Distress Zone Fund", which shall be a fund used solely by the Department of Public Safety to provide funding to organizations registered with the IRS as a 501(c)(3) corporation that provide services to residents of the state in areas of high incidents of crime and deteriorating infrastructure, as defined in the bill, for the purpose of deterring criminal behavior in such areas. If money appropriated to the Fund exceeds $3 million, excluding any money made available by gift or otherwise, such money shall revert to general revenue.

This provision shall sunset on August 28, 2024.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this provides education and other crisis intervention services to our licensed peace officers and they can talk to people without the stigma of mental health issues. They can deal with things they carry the burden for daily. This bill seeks to help that. The "988 Fund" is what would help law enforcement. Some sort of emergency zone fund to provide funding and services and infrastructure in high areas of crime. Law enforcement has its own funding mechanism. There is no mandatory reporting requirement in the peer support unless the person is threating to cause harm to him or herself or someone else. There is no punishment for not doing this, but most officers want this service. More officers die by suicide than in the line of duty.

Testifying for the bill were Senator May; Jewish Community Relations Council of St. Louis; Missouri Fraternal Order of Police; St. Louis Police Officers Association; Kansas City Fraternal Order of Police; and Missouri Sheriffs United.

HCS SCS SB 91 -- JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS

SPONSOR: Riddle (Fitzwater)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 11 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 91.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY WITNESSES (Sections 21.403, 21.405, 575.040, 575.050, 575.160, 575.270, 575.280, 575.330, and 576.030 RSMo)

This bill specifies that, when a person is subpoenaed to testify or provide information at a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly, a court must issue, upon request from the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the body that subpoenaed the person, an order requiring the person to testify or provide information if the person refuses to do so on the basis of the person's privilege against self-incrimination. Before issuing such an order, a court must find that the request for the order has been approved by a vote of a three-fifths majority of the members of the body requesting the order. If a witness refuses, on the basis of the privilege against self-incrimination, to testify or provide information and the person presiding over the proceeding informs the witness that an order requiring the testimony or production of information was issued, the witness must not refuse to comply with the order on the basis of the asserted privilege. However, no testimony or information compelled under the order may be used against the witness in any criminal proceeding other than perjury, giving a false statement, or otherwise failing to comply with the order.

If a witness summoned by a body of the General Assembly willfully fails to appear, refuses to answer any pertinent questions, or fails to produce required documents, a statement of facts regarding such failure may be reported to and filed with the President Pro Tem of the Senate or the Speaker of the House. Either the President Pro Tem or the Speaker may certify the statement of facts to the prosecuting or other attorney having jurisdiction to prosecute. The Attorney General will have concurrent original jurisdiction to commence a criminal action throughout the state. Upon request by the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the originating body, the court must, within 15 days of the request, appoint independent counsel, who will have jurisdiction to prosecute under Section 575.330, RSMo. If independent counsel is appointed, such independent counsel will have sole jurisdiction to prosecute under such section.

The bill also specifies that:

(1) The offense of perjury is a class D felony if it is committed in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(2) The offense of making a false affidavit is a class A misdemeanor when it is done in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(3) The offense of tampering with a witness or victim is a class E felony when the witness is a witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(4) The offense of acceding to corruption when the person is a witness or prospective witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly is a class D felony;

(5) A person commits the offense of obstructing government operations if he or she purposely obstructs, impairs, hinders, or perverts the performance of a governmental function by the use or threat of harm, intimidation, or coercion. The offense of obstructing government operations is a class A misdemeanor. However, if committed against a body of the General Assembly, it is a class E felony.

COURT FACILITIES (Sections 46.266, 49.310, and 476.083)

The bill provides that, in absence of a local agreement otherwise, in any courthouse that contains both county offices and court facilities, the presiding circuit of the circuit may establish rules and procedures for court facilities and areas necessary for court-related ingress and egress, and other reasonable court-related usage, but the county commission will have authority over all other areas of the courthouse.

The bill also authorizes the county commission in all noncharter counties to promulgate reasonable regulations concerning the use of county property. Currently, the county commissions in all first, second, and fourth counties are authorized to promulgate the regulations.

Currently the presiding judge in specified court circuits may appoint a circuit court marshal to aid the presiding judge by overseeing the physical security of the courthouse. This bill changes courthouse to court facilities, including courtrooms, jury rooms and chambers or offices of the court.

11TH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT (Section 478.600)
Beginning January 1, 2023, there will be seven circuit judges in the 11th Judicial Circuit, and these judges will sit in divisions numbered one, two, three, four, five, seven, and 15.

The circuit judge in division 15 will be elected in 2022.

The duties and responsibilities for a specified Associate Circuit Judge position in the 11th Judicial Circuit are modified by stating that treatment court activities may be retained as duties and responsibilities.

JUVENILE JUSTICE (211.012, 211.181, and 211.435)

This bill specifies that, for the purposes of Chapter 211, RSMo, Section 221.044, and the original jurisdiction of the juvenile court, if a person was considered an adult when the alleged offense or violation was committed, he or she will not later be considered a child. Additionally, under current law, no court will require a child to remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services past the child's 18th birthday. This bill changes that provision so that a child can remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services until the child's 19th birthday.

There is currently a state "Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund", which exists in the State Treasury. This bill changes that so there is a Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund in each county's circuit court, and the purpose of this fund is to implement and maintain the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction to 18 years of age. The surcharge collected under the section will be payable to the county circuit court rather than to the State

Treasury. Funds currently held by the State Treasurer in the Fund must be payable and revert to the circuit court's fund in the county of origination. Expenditures from the individual county juvenile justice funds will be made at the discretion of the juvenile office for the circuit court and must be used for the sole purpose of implementing and maintaining the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction.

The bill states that, to further promote the best interests of the children of Missouri, money in the fund will not be used to replace or reduce the responsibilities of either the counties or the state to provide funding for existing and new juvenile treatment services.

COURT REPORTERS (Section 485.060)

The bill specifies that, starting January 1, 2022, each court reporter for a circuit judge will receive an annual salary based upon his or her cumulative years of service as a court reporter with a circuit court of this state, based upon a schedule provided in the bill.

COMMUNITY-BASED TREATMENT (Section 217.777 and 599.120)

The bill specifies that a court must consider the option to order certain offenders to participate in community-based treatment programs as a sentencing alternative if the offender is the primary caregiver of one or more dependent children and the offender meets certain other specified requirements. The Department of Corrections currently administers a community corrections program to encourage the establishment of such local sentencing alternatives. This bill adds promoting opportunities for nonviolent primary caregivers to care for their dependent children as one of the goals of that program.

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY (Section 447.541)

The bill modifies the notice requirements required to be made by the State Treasurer for purposes of disposing of unclaimed property. Specifically, current law requires the Treasurer to give notice of property that is presumed to be abandoned as follows:

(1) Notice must be published in a newspaper of general circulation once a week for two successive weeks within 240 days of receiving notice of property that is presumed to be abandoned; and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(2) Notice must be mailed to each person having an address listed who appears to be entitled to presumed abandoned property valued at $50 or more.

The bill allows the State Treasurer to use any other method, in addition to the above methods, deemed appropriate and consistent with the intent to notify the owners of the property.

ELECTRONIC MARRIAGE LICENSE APPLICATION (Section 451.040)

The bill allows the Recorder of Deeds to accept electronic applications for marriage licenses through an online process. If a recorder uses an online process to accept applications for or to issue marriage licenses and the applicants' identity has not been verified in person, the Recorder must have a two-step verification process or a process that independently verifies the identity of the applicants. It is the Recorder's responsibility to ensure that any verification process adopted as part of the electronic system verifies the identities of both applicants. The Recorder must not accept applications for or issue licenses through this online process unless at least one of the applicants is a resident of the county or city not within a county in which the application was submitted.

CUSTODY ORDERS (Section 452.410)

The bill limits the sections of statute under which custody orders may be modified.

ORDERS OF PROTECTION (Section 455.010)

The bill changes the definition of "course of conduct" in the definition of "stalking", as it relates to orders of protection.

GUARDIANSHIP (Section 475.050)

The bill modifies language related to exemptions for individuals seeking appointment as a guardian or conservator from a background screening. The bill adds a ward's grandparents to the current list of relatives exempt from the screening, unless a background report is requested by a party to the proceeding or ordered by the court.

COURT COSTS AND FEES (Section 479.162 and 488.016)

The bill specifies that in a proceeding for a municipal ordinance violation or any other proceeding before a municipal court if the charge carries the possibility of 15 days or more in jail or confinement, a defendant must not be charged any fee for obtaining a police report or probable cause statement. Such police report or probable cause statement must be provided by the prosecutor upon written request for discovery by the defendant.

The bill provides that court costs will be fully waived for any person who is an honorably discharged veteran of any branch of the Armed Forces and who successfully completes a veterans treatment court.

WITNESS STATEMENTS (Section 491.016)

The bill specifies that an otherwise inadmissible witness statement is admissible in evidence in a criminal proceeding as substantive evidence if the court, after a hearing, finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant engaged in or acquiesced to wrongdoing with the purpose of causing the unavailability of the witness, such wrongdoing caused or substantially contributed to the unavailability of the witness, the prosecution exercised due diligence to secure by subpoena or other means the attendance of the witness, and the witness failed to appear.

JUROR COMPENSATION (Section 494.455)

This bill specifies that, except in Greene County, the County Commission in any county may vote to restructure juror compensation so that grand and petit jurors do not get paid for the first two days of service but thereafter will receive $50 per day, as well as $0.07 per mile for necessary travel from the juror's residence to the courthouse and back, to be paid by the county. A county commission may authorize compensation to a grand or petit juror for the first two days of service, but the compensation cannot exceed $10.

In Greene County, this pay structure is set by current law.

CHANGE OF VENUE FOR CAPITAL CASES FUND (Section 550.125)

This bill creates the "Change of Venue for Capital Cases Fund", which will consist of money appropriated by the General Assembly. Money in the fund is to be used solely for reimbursement to a county that receives a capital case from another county. At the conclusion of a capital case for which the venue was changed from one county to another, the county that sent the case may apply to the Office of State Courts Administrator (OSCA) for reimbursement to the county that received the case of any costs associated with sequestering jurors. If a county is eligible for reimbursement, OSCA shall disburse the money to the county. If OSCA determines that a county is not eligible for reimbursement or the actual costs are more then the amount dispersed, the county in which the capital case originated shall be responsible for all or the remaining reimbursement.

Applications for reimbursement must be submitted by May 1 of the current fiscal year, and reimbursements must be made by June 30 of the current fiscal year. Reimbursements for applications submitted after May 1 of the current fiscal year will be made in the following fiscal year. If there is not enough money in the fund at the end of the fiscal year when reimbursements are made, reimbursements will be made on a pro rata basis.

SEX OFFENDERS (Section 566.150)

The bill provides that persons guilty of certain sex crimes cannot be present or loiter within 500 feet of athletic complexes or athletic fields that exist primarily for use and recreation of children or within 500 feet of Missouri Department of Conservation Nature or Education Center properties, unless the registered sex offender is the parent of a child participating in an educational program of the Department of Conservation and has permission to be on the property.

This bill has an emergency clause for the provisions related to juvenile justice.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on SCS SB 91.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that persons guilty of certain sex crimes can't be within so many feet of athletic complexes or fields used primary for the recreation of children. They are having a problem with certain offenders loitering near these fields and complexes. They have been asked to leave but refuse and there is currently no recourse for the community. Additional prohibited locations were added in committee. They are just loitering, have no reason to be there and know they are not wanted. Nature centers can be child based facilities and there have been issues in the past with child sex offenders showing up. Displays in nature centers are often tailored for kids 12 or younger.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Riddle; Missouri Department of Conservation; Arnie C. Dienoff; and Conservation Federation of Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that this would place more restrictions on her husband, according to one witness. They have kids and they are very involved; this would prohibit their dad from attending their games. He made a bad decision that resulted in a non violent misdemeanor. He regrets that decision and he has paid for his mistake. This is just continuing to punish those who have already paid their debt. There should be an exception for parents. He was charged under Section 573.040. The law should take into account the fact that someone is a parent or spouse. If a person on the registry and is with their families at these events that should be ok.

Testifying against the bill were Chad Mayes; Angie James; Josh James; Sean James; Briana Downing; Lisa Stevens; Brent A Barnhill; and Michael James.

SCS SB 272 -- LOTTERY WINNERS

SPONSOR: Mosley (Mosley)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 13 to 0.

This bill prohibits the State Lottery Commission, any employee of the State Lottery, and any organization contracted with the State Lottery from publishing identifying information of any person who wins the state lottery. A lottery winner may authorize in writing, on a form to be provided by the Lottery Commission, the public disclosure of his or her identifying information. Such form shall clearly state in at least a 14-point bolded font at the top of the form that a lottery winner is not required to sign such public disclosure form in order to claim his or her lottery winnings.

37.710, 37.717			This bill requires the office of the child advocate to create a safety reporting system in which employees of children's division can report information regarding the safety of those served by the Division and the safety of Division employees.
160.261, 210.152	Similar in part to HCS HB 673 Coleman	Perfection Calendar Informal	The bill repeals language related to the Children's Division's jurisdiction over or ability to investigate reports of alleged child abuse by personnel of a school district, a teacher, or other school employee. It also repeals language related to how a school and school district are to handle reports of alleged child abuse. This bill allows the Office of Child Advocate to release findings for members of a multidisciplinary team relating to their professional performance.
160.263	HB 387 Bailey	Voted Do Pass out of Senate Education	This bill defines "restraint" and "seclusion" and requires school districts, charter schools, or publicly contracted private providers to include in policy a prohibition on the use of restraint and seclusion, including "prone restraint" as defined by the bill, for any purpose other then situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others. Any incident requiring restraint or seclusion shall be monitored by school personnel with written observation. The bill requires that before July 1, 2022 each school district, and charter school, or publicly contracted private providers policy shall include: (1) When to remove a child from restraint, seclusion, or isolation; (2) Requirement for annual mandatory training; (3) Reporting requirements for any occurrence of restraint, seclusion or isolation as outlined in the bill, including the reporting requirements for parental notification and providing a copy of each report to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE); (4) Notification requirement for each occurrence of a restraint, seclusion, or isolation incident to parents or guardians within one hour after the end of school on the day the incident occurs. (5) Protections for individuals that report or provide information about violations of policy under this section.

210.115, 210.121	HCS HB 1276 Pike	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill modifies mandated reporting for unaccompanied and homeless youth seeking supportive services so that the youth's status alone is not sufficient basis for reporting child abuse or neglect. The bill defines "supportive services" to include interventions, services, or resources necessary to assist unaccompanied youth, including food and shelter, counseling, case management, and legal services among other services outlined in the bill. The bill allows an unaccompanied youth to access supportive services as long as they are documented by a licensed mental health, counselor, or social worker as provided by the bill. The bill exempts persons who in good faith provided supportive services from civil and criminal action without permission from the youth's parent.
210.127, 210.305, 210.565			This bill modifies provisions relating to the duty of Children's Division to identify and locate biological parents, grandparents, or other relatives of children in the division's custody.
210.143, 210.493, 210.1250, 210.1253, 210.1256, 210.1259, 210.1262, 210.1263, 210.1264, 210.1265, 210.1268, 210.1271, 210.1274, 210.1280, 210.1283, 210.1286,	HB 557 Perfected Veit	Reported Do Pass out of Senate Seniors, Families, Veterans and Military Affairs	This bill adds a process by which an "exempt-from-licensure residential care facility", as defined in the bill, is required to notify the Department of Social Services (DSS) of their existence and compliance with provisions that protect the safety of the children in the residence. These include: fire and safety inspections, local health department inspections, background checks, medical records for all residents, and information about schools serving the children. The bill provides courts the power to expand on orders to produce children in a facility if there is suspicion of abuse or neglect. This bill creates a process for DSS to provide background checks for licensed residential care facilities or child placing agencies and for residential care facilities subject to the notification requirements of 210.1250 to 210.1286 RSMo. Fingerprints are valid for 5 years and DSS will provide results to the applicant and to the facility or agency. The bill outlines what will make an applicant ineligible and provides applicants the right to appeal. When there are allegations of abuse or neglect in the residential facility, the bill outlines how the Department can petition a court for an order for a home to present a child that is the subject of a child abuse investigation. The bill specifies that any case in which a referral is made to a juvenile officer for removal of a child, a referral may also be made to the Attorney General. The bill further details that failure to comply with these provisions may result in fines, misdemeanor charges for failure to conduct background checks, and potential removal of children. The bill specifies that the Department may promulgate necessary rules that include a fee to cover the cost of the notification process. However, it is not permitted to regulate any religious program, curriculum, or ministry.
210.489	HB 1335 Sauls	Reported Do Pass out of Rules Administrative Oversight	This bill allows the Division of Children Services within the Department of Social Services to permit children to voluntarily reenter foster care if due to the child's age the child left care during the COVID-19 pandemic. The Division will provide children with notice of this option, facilitate the return to care, and conduct a public awareness campaign for children under 22 years of age, until September 30, 2021 or while there is a state of emergency due to the pandemic, whichever is later.

HCS SB 377 -- Landowner Liability

SPONSOR: Eslinger (Haden)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 16 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 377.

This bill prohibits an owner, employee, or officer of a private campground from being liable for acts related to camping at a private campground if the injury or damage occurred as a result of an inherent risk of camping, as described within the bill.

This bill does not apply to actions arising under Missouri Workers' Compensation Law. Additionally, this bill does not prevent or limit liability of an owner, employee, or officer who intentionally causes injury, death, or damage, who acts with a willful or wanton disregard for the safety of the person or property damaged, who fails to use the degree of care that an ordinarily careful and prudent person would use under the circumstances, or who fails to conspicuously post warning signs of known dangerous conditions on the property. Warning signs are required to appear in black letters of at least one inch in height on a white background. Warning signs and written contracts entered into by an owner, employee, or officer shall contain a warning notice, as specified in the bill.

The bill also specifies that a landowner is not liable for injuries a trespasser receives while on the landowner's residential area, if such area is adjacent to a park or trail and that is how the trespasser entered the owner's property.

Currently, a landowner who invites or permits a person to enter his land for recreational use in compliance with a state-administerd recreational access program does not assume certain liabilities or responsibilities. The bill also extends the limited liability to landowners who invite or permit a person to enter his land for recreational use in compliance with a state-administerd wildlife management program.

The bill also repeals a certain paragraph of landowner liability law that states that nothing in its provisions creates or limits liability that otherwise would be incurred by owners of land for injuries occurring on or in any land within the corporate boundaries of any city, municipality, town, or village in this state.

The bill also creates the "Prescribed Burning Act", which specifies that any landowner or agent of a landowner will not be liable for damage, injury, or loss caused by a prescribed burn, as defined in the bill, or the resulting smoke of a prescribed burn unless the landowner is proven to be negligent. Additionally, no certified burn manager will be liable if the burn is conducted in accordance with a written prescribed burn plan unless the burn manager is found to be negligent.

The provisions of the bill do not apply to damage, injury, or loss to property, lands, rights-of-way, or easements of certain utilities and railroad companies.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that some landowners are reluctant to participate in certain wildlife management program due to their liability related to letting others hunt on their property. This bill would give landowners protection if someone is injured on their property.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Eslinger; Missouri Department of Conservation; Conservation Federation of Missouri; and Missouri Farm Bureau.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 162 -- LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANIES

SPONSOR: Veit

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 11 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 162.

This bill specifies that a real estate broker may pay compensation directly to a business entity owned by a licensee that has been formed for the purpose of receiving compensation earned by the licensee. The bill specifies requirements for such a business entity.

The bill also establishes requirements for every limited liability company (LLC) organized or registered in this state, specifically related to the information statement that must be filed with the Secretary of State by each LLC. The bill allows for fees to file information statements, and the fees vary depending on whether the statements are filed in person or online. Currently, the Secretary of State charges and collects $100 for filing original articles of organization and $45 for filing original articles of organization online. This bill reduces those amounts to $95 and $35, respectively. The bill also allows for a $10 fee to amend and reinstate articles of organization online or to file articles of termination or a notice of winding up online. The bill establishes provisions for when there is power to administratively cancel articles of organization for an LLC or the registration of a foreign LLC, as well as recourse for a foreign LLC that had its registration canceled.

The bill allows the court to decree dissolution of a limited liability company if the court determines:

(1) Dissolution is reasonably necessary for the protection of the rights or interests of the complaining members;

(2) The business of the limited liability company has been abandoned;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003126

(3) The management of the limited liability company is deadlocked or subject to internal dissension; or

(4) Those in control of the limited liability company have been found guilty of, or have knowingly countenanced, persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, or abuse of authority.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this would cut down on attorneys' fees. This changes the process to be more like an S Corporation by making the process less arduous.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Veit; and Arnie Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HBs 165 & 196 -- RECALL OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

SPONSOR: Richey

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 8 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 165.

This bill establishes a petition procedure for recalling county commissioners or presiding county commissioners in counties of the first classification. The commissioner to be recalled must have held office for at least six months and cannot be a candidate to succeed himself or herself at the election to fill the vacancy. Recall elections must also be held at least nine months before the end of a commissioner's term.

The petition is required to have a number of signatures equal to at least 10% of the total number of registered voters in the county voting in the last election at which the commissioner was elected, and must state the reason for which the recall is sought: misconduct in office; incompetence; or failure to perform duties prescribed by law. Additional procedural requirements are set out in the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

At lease 60% of the qualified voters voting on the question must vote for removal, otherwise the commissioner shall continue to serve for the remainder of the term.

This bill is similar to HB 2133 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that a removal mechanism is necessary in some cases and that the recall process is a democratic method often allowed for other offices by state law. The bill has safeguards to prevent abuse by small minorities of voters or interest groups.

Testifying for the bill was Representative Richey.

OPPONENTS: Written testimony only.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff who provided written testimony.

This bill is similar to HB 2133 2020.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 218 -- CHILD'S RIGHT TO COUNSEL

SPONSOR: Burnett

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 11 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 218.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003128

This bill specifies that if a child waives his or her right to counsel, such waiver shall be made in open court and be recorded and in writing. In determining whether a child has knowingly, intelligently, and voluntarily waived his or her right to counsel, the court shall look to the totality of the circumstances, as specified in the bill. If a child waives his or her right to counsel, the waiver shall only apply to that particular proceeding. The bill also specifies certain proceedings in which a child's right to counsel cannot be waived unless the child has had the opportunity to meaningfully consult with counsel and the court has conducted a hearing on the record.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that they want children and their families to know their options before they make decisions that could change the rest of their lives. They want to make sure the children are receiving their due process.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Burnett; Cathy S Rauch; and Christine Woody, Empower Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie Dienoff.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say that the Public Defender's Office does not defend children in some of the instances specified in the bill because they are not reasons children need counsel. If every juvenile case went to the Public Defender's Office, the office would need significantly more staff to address those cases.

Testifying on the bill was the Missouri State Public Defender's Office.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 521 -- ABANDONED MOTOR VEHICLE

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

SPONSOR: Windham

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Special Committee on Criminal Justice by a vote of 9 to 0.

Currently, when an individual is operating a motor vehicle and arrested, he or she must arrange for the vehicle to be removed in a timely manner. This bill specifies that the vehicle must be removed with 48 hours of his or her arrest.

This bill is the same as HB 1940 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this is important because, currently, it is in the officer's discretion how long a person has to make arrangements for his or her vehicle, but it could leave a lot of people in a dire situation if the car is towed quickly. For example, a teenager who is using his or her mother's car and who makes a mistake could leave his or her mother without a vehicle if not given the opportunity to make arrangements for the vehicle with sufficient time.

Testifying for the bill was Representative Windham.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 563 -- LAND BANKS

SPONSOR: Owen

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Local Government by a vote of 11 to 0.

This bill adds certain cities to the provisions in law that authorize home rule cities to establish land bank agencies.

Upon enactment, the bill will apply to the city of Springfield.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003130

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that land banks have worked particularly well in Missouri, so the city of Springfield would like to utilize them.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Owen; City of Springfield; and Richard Ollis, City of Springfield.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the private market should be allowed to work.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 682 -- STUDENT LODGING

SPONSOR: Chipman

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Higher Education by a vote of 6 to 2 with 1 present.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 682.

Beginning July 1, 2022, this bill prohibits any public institution of higher education in this state from requiring students to live in campus housing except for first-time freshman. First-time freshman may be required to live in campus housing the first year of his or her attendance. The bill allows the University of Central Missouri, the University of Southeast Missouri State, and the Missouri University of Science and Technology to continue to have policies that require upperclassman to live on campus until after June 30, 2034.

This bill is similar to HB 1790 (2020) and HB 435 (2019).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that it is not clear that requiring students to live on campus is beneficial to their mental wellbeing or to their grades. This bill is about freedom of choice which should be extended to those young adults in regards to where they chose to live. This bill will level the playing field and allow the market to determine the proper rate for housing rather than forcing individuals to pay for something that they may not want.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying for the bill were Representative Chipman; Associated Students of the University of Missouri; and Ashley Schmid.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that this bill will have a negative impact on student success rates. Each university currently establishes their own policy and these are not one size fits all policies. Statistics and current studies indicate that requiring students to stay on campus increases graduation rates.

Testifying against the bill were David Pearce, University of Central Missouri; University of Missouri System; Southwest Missouri State University; and the Council on Public Higher Education.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 764 -- NEWSPAPERS

SPONSOR: Andrews

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 12 to 0.

Currently, in order to qualify as a newspaper legally acceptable to run public notices and advertisements, a newspaper must have been published regularly for a period of three years; or must be the successor newspaper to a defunct newspaper and begin publication no later than 30 days after the termination of the prior newspaper.

This bill reduces the time period of regular publication from three years to one year, and increases the time period from 30 days to 90 days within which a successor newspaper must begin publication. The bill also allows a newspaper that has been purchased or newly established by another newspaper that satisfies these conditions to qualify.

This bill is the same as HB 2567 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill provides news to rural communities who do not readily have internet access. They also say that local newspapers help communities and this bill puts Missouri in line with other states.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Andrews and Missouri Press Association.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

HCS HB 1242 -- JUVENILE COURT PROCEEDINGS

SPONSOR: Evans

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 9 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1242.

This bill specifies that, for the purposes of Chapter 211, RSMo, Section 221.044, and the original jurisdiction of the juvenile court, if a person was considered an adult when the alleged offense or violation was committed, he or she will not later be considered a child. Additionally, under current law, no court will require a child to remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services past the child's 18th birthday. This bill changes that provision so that a child can remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services until the child's 19th birthday.

There is currently a state "Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund", which exists in the State Treasury. This bill changes that so there is a Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund in each county's circuit court, and the purpose of this fund is to implement and maintain the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction to 18 years of age. The surcharge collected under the section will be payable to the county circuit court rather than to the State Treasury. Funds currently held by the State Treasurer in the Fund must be payable and revert to the circuit court's fund in the county of origination. Expenditures from the individual county juvenile justice funds will be made at the discretion of the juvenile office for the circuit court and must be used for the sole purpose of implementing and maintaining the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction.

Lastly, the bill states that, to further promote the best interests of the children of Missouri, money in the fund will not be used to replace or reduce the responsibilities of either the counties or the state to provide funding for existing and new juvenile treatment services.

This bill has an emergency clause.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that there is an outstanding question about whether the "raise the age" legislation has gone into effect and this is an effort to clear it up, as far as funding is concerned because there is a lot of confusion around the state. There was a fund that was created when the bill originally passed and it was not clear how it was supposed to be distributed and people can't get to it. So this helps that, too. It is yet to be determined by the Missouri Supreme Court, but this bill clarifies regardless that this raise in age is not retroactive. It also increases Division of Youth Services' (DYS) jurisdiction to 19 years old. It needs to happen because if they go into DYS at 17.5 years old, you want to be able to extend services for extra time rather than just having them there for six months. It takes more than lip service to provide services. You are meant to treat juveniles as if you are treating your own child. Budget priorities suffered because of COVID last year, so it is hopeful that it will get done this year. We want to see raise the age implemented in an efficient and effective manner. 17-year-olds can still be going to DYS for abuse and neglect reasons, but this would change that to have more kids. The juvenile offices and juvenile court will be the ones providing most of the services for kids who are in there for delinquency and status offenses; so they would probably see the most increase in cost. This will reduce recidivism and will reduce law enforcement engagement beyond that. This will help communities and citizens. The courts will probably be the ones deciding what happens between January 1 and when they decide it has gone into effect. Supporters are glad this bill addresses retroactivity because it seems like it should be simple but it turned out to be complicated.

HCS HBs 420 & 1066 -- DISCRIMINATORY PRACTICES

SPONSOR: Proudie

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Special Committee on Urban Issues by a vote of 9 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 420.

This bill establishes the "Missouri Creating a Respectful and Open World for Natural Hair (Missouri CROWN) Act".

The bill prohibits discrimination on the basis of hair texture and protective hairstyles in educational institutions that receive or benefit from state financial assistance or state student financial aid. The bill authorizes educational institutions to require hair nets and hair coverings for safety purposes in career and technical training courses.

This bill is similar to HB 2356 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that many students across the country have been placed in humiliating discriminatory situations due to their hairstyles and Missouri should do better. Witnesses gave examples of their own experiences and others of people they know.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Proudie; Arnie Dienoff; Cheryl Adelstein, Jewish Community Relations Council; American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri; National Association of Social Workers-Missouri Chapter; and Dominique Thurman.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that they are against expanding the definition of "race" for purposes of the Missouri

Human Rights Act to include hairstyles.

Testifying against the bill was the Associated Industries of Missouri.

HB 427 -- PROTECTIVE ORDERS

SPONSOR: Proudie

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 8 to 0.

This bill adds definitions for "coercive control" and "disturbing the peace of the petitioner" to the Chapter on shelters and protective orders related to child and adult abuse.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this puts a couple of definitions in the statutes for protective orders. It clarifies what "coercive control" is, and it adds this to the reasons a petitioner can seek a protective order. Approximately 80% of domestic abuse calls are missed if violence is a requirement. Often, domestic abuse involves coercive control, which does not always involve violence. A lot of times, people do not even realize they are being abused because the abuse is coercive control without violence.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Proudie; Missouri Coalition Against Domestic And Sexual Violence; and Arnie Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 439 -- TEACHING PERMITS

SPONSOR: Davidson

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003138

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 8 to 5.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 439.

The bill adds district teaching permits, described below, to a manner in which a teacher may receive a certificate of license from the State Board of Education (SBE).

This bill will allow school districts to issue a district teaching permit to any individual who does not currently hold a SBE issued teaching certificate. The district teaching permit allows the holder to teach only in the issuing school district unless another school district also issues permits and recognizes permits issued in this manner as part of their policy.

The bill requires districts to develop a policy listing the qualifications an individual shall meet to be eligible for the teaching permit, which include, at a minimum, an associates degree and background check. The number of teachers issued a teaching permit must not exceed 25% of the total number of teachers employed in the district. If an individual is issued a teaching permit and teaches for four years, the SBE may issue a teaching certificate as specified in the bill alternatively to receiving a certificate due to the permit alone.

Any individual who obtains a teaching permit as described within the bill shall be deemed a teacher for purposes of determining minimum salary, tenure, and retirement.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill helps immediately address teacher shortages by allowing individuals who may have knowledge and experience in an area to teach. The bill allows local school districts to determine how best to manage their teachers. This system benefits smaller school districts who may have higher turnover rate and who cannot readily fill positions.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Davidson; and Matt Teeter, Willard Public Schools.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003139

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that it lowers the standards for educators and therefore hurts students. Opponents do not think the solution to fewer teachers is to change the standards required to teach, but the state should address other issues. This bill could also further distance districts who may have varying standards for teachers under the bill. Teacher certification encompasses more than just knowledge and ability to teach, but an understanding of the student personally, life circumstances, and other factors that may affect education.

Testifying against the bill were Dr. Jennice McCafferty-Wright; Elizabeth King; Jim Kreider, Missouri Retired Teachers Association; Missouri State University; Arnie C. Dienoff; Missouri State Teachers Association; Public School Retirement System; Public Education Employee Retirement System ; and the Missouri National Education Association.

HCS HB 499 -- LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER DISCIPLINARY ACTIONS

SPONSOR: Schroer

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 7 to 1, with 2 voting present.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 499.

This bill establishes the "Law Enforcement Officers' Bill of Rights".

The bill defines a "law enforcement officer" as any sworn peace officer, except the highest ranking officer in the law enforcement agency, who is employed by any unit of the state or any county, charter county, city, charter city, municipality, district, college, university, or any other political subdivision or by the Board of Police Commissioners, who possesses the power to arrest for violations of the criminal code.

The bill specifies certain rights a law enforcement officer has when he or she is the subject of an administrative investigation or is being questioned or interviewed. These rights include being informed of the violation, requiring the complaint to be supported by a sworn affidavit, and allowing the officer to have an attorney or any duly authorized representative.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The bill provides that any law enforcement officer who is suspended without pay, demoted, terminated, transferred, or placed on a status resulting in economic loss is entitled to a full due process hearing. The hearing requirements are specified in the bill.

The bill also establishes the "Police Use of Force Transparency Act of 2021", which provides that all law enforcement agencies must, at least annually, collect and report local data to the National Use of Force Data Collection through the Law Enforcement Enterprise portal administered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on use-of-force incidents involving peace officers. Law enforcement agencies must also report such data to the Department of Public Safety. Information collected and reported must not include personally identifying information of individual officers. By June 30, 2022, the Department must develop standards and procedures governing the collecting and reporting of the data. The Department must publish the data reported by law enforcement agencies, and the data will be considered a public record, consistent with state law. The Department must analyze trends and disparities in the data and report the findings and make the report available to the public no later than January 1, 2025.

The provisions of this bill have a delayed effective date of January 1, 2022.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that we should all agree that every Missourian should be entitled to the same basic level of Constitutional rights, and that should include law enforcement officers. Some blue states and some red states have passed legislation like this. The 90-day time-frame is important for the completion of the investigation. While the records of an investigation are closed, if there was an issue and it resulted in a civil or criminal complaint, that would be transparent and the public would find out about that. The intent is to maintain full transparency between agencies and departments. Law enforcement officers are compelled, up to and including termination, to make statements, whereas civilian defendants have a right to remain silent. Officers do not have that right. They do not have a right to remain silent, and they do not have a fundamental right to an attorney. This bill came about because some officers are being abused and bullied into complying with these investigations, and they are kind of held in limbo and cannot work anywhere else, even secondary employment, on which a lot of officers in rural departments rely, so they can't do anything and this is adversely affecting officers across the state. The Fifth Amendment should apply to officers, too, especially since the government is the employer. They can be compelled during the internal investigation and face termination if they do not comply, but they cannot be subject to additional charges.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Schroer; Arnie C. Dienoff; Brian Millikan , Millikan Law Office, LLC; Stephen "Jay" Schroeder, St. Louis Police Officers Association/Missouri Fraternal Order of Police; and Joseph A. Patterson, St. Louis County Police Association.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying against the bill were Amy Axtell; JCRC; Elle Hollrah; Gail Wechsler; Gerald B Axelbaum; John Steffen; Jonathan Lindberg; Randee Steffen; Susan Gibson; Tara Bennett; Karen Rogers; American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri; Richard A. Egan; and Kristin Bowen.

HCS HB 712 -- DISCOVERY IN MUNICIPAL COURTS

SPONSOR: Ellebracht

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 10 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 712.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003142

This bill specifies that in a proceeding for a municipal ordinance violation or any other proceeding before a municipal court if the charge carries the possibility of 15 days or more in jail or confinement, a defendant must not be charged any fee for obtaining a police report or probable cause statement. Such police report or probable cause statement must be provided by the prosecutor upon written request for discovery by the defendant.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that, often, in municipal court, the burden of discovery is shifted to the defendant or defendant's counsel, and defendant is required to produce evidence against him or her, and that is unconstitutional. Defendants should also not have to pay to purchase police reports so they can adequately defend themselves.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Ellebracht; Arnie Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

SPONSOR: Rowland

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Local Government by a vote of 10 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 718.

This bill requires a County Board of Equalization to promptly issue a notification to a person lodging an appeal of a property assessment confirming that the appeal has been received. If the appeal is lodged in person, the notification must be issued immediately. If the appeal is lodged via mail or

HCS HB 804 -- COMMON SEWER DISTRICTS

SPONSOR: Hovis

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Local Government by a vote of 12 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 804.

Currently, the trustees of a common sewer district may be paid a reasonable compensation for their services, if approved by a resolution of the board of trustees; and the trustees of a 10-member board of trustees cannot receive any compensation. This bill allows the trustees to be paid up to $100 per meeting, but not more than two meetings per calendar month, by the district for their service.

Currently, the trustees of a Reorganized Common Sewer District receive no compensation for their services. This bill allows the trustees to be paid up to $100 per meeting, but not more than two meetings per calendar month, by the district for their service, plus the trustees will be reimbursed for their actual expenses.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that there needs to be some incentive to get people to serve on these boards.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Hovis; Joe Tousignant, Cape Girardeau County Reorganized Common Sewer District; Jefferson County Public Sewer District; and Stephen A. Bubanovich.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that true and real community service and giving back to the community should be free of charge.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

This bill is the same as HB 2549 (2020).

HCS HB 842 -- ELECTIONS

SPONSOR: Hill

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 8 to 2.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 842.

Beginning on January 1, 2022 this bill requires the use of paper ballots marked by hand. Electronic touch screen machines may be used to assist disabled voters until January 1, 2024, and ballot marking devices may be used to assist disabled voters at any time.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that bill will allow audit of ballots to ensure election integrity. There may only be one or two counties lacking the technology to implement the bill. Hand marked ballots provide a reliable record to guard against fraud and machine reading errors. All computer systems are subject to error or hacking and so it is important to maintain a physical record of votes. There is overwhelming public support for physical ballots and the bill would ensure public confidence in Missouri elections.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Hill; Arnie C. OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say that replacement of voting machines can be expensive and result in a large fiscal note. There may be three counties without such machines which are currently exempt from the federal Help America Vote Act requirements. Two of those counties are moving towards compliant machines, however. All voters should probably be allowed to use ballot marking devices so that disabled voters

HCS HB 849 -- HISTORIC BUILDINGS

SPONSOR: Griffith

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Ways and Means by a vote of 11 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 849.

This bill creates the "Capitol Complex Tax Credit Act" and the "Capitol Complex Fund". The Capitol Complex Fund is authorized to receive any eligible monetary donation, as defined in the bill, and will be segregated into two accounts consisting of a rehabilitation and renovation account and a maintenance account. Of the revenues deposited into the Fund, 90% will be placed in the rehabilitation and renovation account and 7.5% of revenues deposited in the Fund will be placed in the maintenance account. The remaining 2.5% of the funds may be used for the purposes of fundraising, advertising, and administrative costs.

The choice of projects for which money is to be used, as well as the determination of the methods of carrying out the project and the procurement of goods and services, will be made by the Commissioner of Administration. No moneys will be released from the Fund for any expense without the approval of the Commissioner of Administration.

For all taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2021, any qualified donor, as defined in the bill, will be allowed a credit against any state income tax (except employer withheld taxes) or state taxes imposed on financial institutions for an amount equal to 50% of the monetary donation amount. Any amount of tax credit that exceeds the qualified donor's state income tax liability may be refunded or carried forward for the following four years.

For all taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2021, a qualified donor will be allowed a credit against any state income tax (except employer withheld taxes) or state taxes imposed on financial institutions for an amount equal to 30% of the value of the eligible artifact donation, as defined in the bill. Any amount of tax credit that exceeds the donor's tax liability will not be refunded for artifacts, but the credit may be carried forward for four subsequent years.

The Department of Economic Development will not issue tax credits for donations to the Capitol Complex Fund in excess of $10 million per year in the aggregate. Donations received in excess of the cap will be placed in line for tax credits the following year. Alternatively, a donor may donate without receiving the credit or may request that their donation is returned.

Tax credits issued for donations under this bill are not subject to any fee. Tax credits issued under this bill may be assigned, transferred, sold, or otherwise conveyed.

This bill will sunsets six years from the effective date.

This bill allows the Department to charge a fee in an amount not to exceed 1% of any tax credit issued to a recipient for the rehabilitation of historic structures under Chapter 253, RSMo. Any revenues generated by such a fee will be deposited in the Capitol Complex Fund.

This bill is similar to HB 1713 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that there are projects that need to be completed within the Capitol Complex. Some of these projects include mold removal and making buildings in the Capitol Complex accessible to handicapped individuals.

These projects could cost anywhere between $250 million and $300 million. Current funding for these projects are provided by bonds. With this bill, the state would possibly reduce the cost of projects within the Capitol Complex by 50% since that amount could come from donors.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying for the bill were Representative Griffith; Dana Rademan Miller, Missouri State Capitol Commission; and Randy Scherr.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted online written testimony.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 1139 -- INCOME TAX

SPONSOR: Eggleston

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Ways and Means by a vote of 7 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1139.

Currently, the top rate of income tax may be reduced over a period of years if certain triggers are met.

This bill replaces the current rates of tax on income based upon different levels of income of Missouri taxable income with a tax rate of 5.4%, or the top rate of tax as in effect on January 1, 2022, whichever is less, on all Missouri taxable income and has the current income tax cuts applied to this rate (Section 143.011, RSMo).

Currently, the Missouri combined taxable income on a combined return must include all of the income and deductions of the husband and wife, and Missouri taxable income of each spouse is an amount that is the same proportion of their Missouri combined taxable income as the Missouri adjusted gross income of that spouse bears to their Missouri combined adjusted gross income.

Beginning, January 1, 2022, the Missouri combined taxable income on a combined return must include all of the income and deductions of the husband and wife (Section 143.031).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003150

Beginning January 1, 2022, this bill increases the Missouri standard deduction to the allowable federal standard deduction plus $4000 if filing single or married and filing separately, or plus $8000 if married and filing jointly (Section 143.131).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill replaces the current income tax rate structure which has ten brackets with a simple, single, tax rate. Additionally, this bill increases the Missouri standard deduction in order to offset tax increases to lower income earners.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Eggleston; and Arnie Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 1363 -- DAVID DORN MEMORIAL HIGHWAY

SPONSOR: Dogan

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Special Committee on Criminal Justice by a vote of 9 to 0.

This bill designates that portion of Interstate 70 from Shreve Road continuing to Kingshighway Boulevard as the "David Dorn Memorial Highway". The Department of Transportation will erect and maintain the signs, with the costs to be paid by private donations.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this names a section of highway after the late Captain David Dorn, who was murdered on June 2, 2020, while protecting his friend's pawn shop in St. Louis. They want to show him and his family that his decades of service are appreciated. He was a mentor and a role model to everyone he met. They want his legacy remembered, because he died doing what he loved and he died a hero. He built bridges culturally and he built bridges between law enforcement and the community.

HB 1416 -- FUNDAMENTAL FREEDOM

SPONSOR: Black (137)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 8 to 4.

The bill creates the "Fundamental Freedom From Government Act".

Under the provisions of this bill, at all times, including during declared emergencies, religious services or activities are to be considered essential services. Neither the state nor any political subdivision shall treat any religious organization less favorably or more strictly than any other similarly situated organization in terms of function, service, assembly, size, or conduct as outlined in the bill. The state or any political subdivision must obtain a declaratory court order establishing by clear and convincing evidence that the intended action does not unnecessarily violate any citizen's fundamental individual rights and is necessary to protect public safety before ordering or requiring any citizen or religious organization to cease, limit, or suspend any religious services, assembly, or function or imposing a fine or penalty for failure to comply with such an order.

Any restriction by the state or any political subdivision thereof to the right of personal privacy to use sex-specific restrooms, spas, baths, showers, dressing rooms, locker rooms, or other intimate facilities or settings and the fundamental right to the free exercise of religious beliefs by any person, business, religious organization, or other organization in establishing sex-specific standards or policies shall be subject to strict scrutiny. This shall not prevent the establishment of gender-neutral facilities that respect the fundamental rights of personal privacy and free exercise of religious beliefs. The state or any political subdivision must obtain a declaratory court order establishing by clear and convincing evidence that the intended action does not unnecessarily violate such fundamental rights before ordering or requiring any person, business, organization, or religious organization to provide gender-neutral access to restrooms, spas, baths, showers, dressing rooms, locker rooms, or other intimate facilities or settings.

The bill further states that no law enforcement officer can be ordered to take any action that he or she reasonably believes to be in violation of law protecting the fundamental right of any citizen to keep and bear arms, ammunition, and accessories absent a declaratory court order establishing by clear and convincing evidence that the intended action does not unnecessarily violate any fundamental rights.

Any suits brought under the provisions of the bill shall be advanced on the court docket and heard and decided by the court as quickly as possible.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that Congress is limited by the Bill of Rights, and this bill is consistent with the concept that government is established in three branches, and this bill respects those branches. It identifies certain rights that are protected and subject to strict scrutiny. It respects the right of the judiciary to play its role in the three-part government process. It specifies that religious organizations are considered essential and a church shall be considered no differently than another organization in similar size and purpose. The right to have sex-specific restrooms is also under the standard of strict scrutiny. It also applies to the second amendment. This statutorily implements procedures to protect fundamental rights but it also respects the court's ability to make decisions on the matter if it sees fit.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Black; and Arnie C. Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

HCS HB 1295 -- TIME-CRITICAL DIAGNOSIS

SPONSOR: Andrews

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Health and Mental Health Policy by a vote of 13 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1295.

The bill establishes the "Time-Critical Diagnosis Advisory Committee" whose members are appointed by the Department of Health and Senior Services as outlined in the bill for the purpose of improvement of public and professional education related to time-critical diagnosis, research endeavors, policies and recommendations for changes.

The bill also establishes a "State Advisory Council on Emergency Medical Services" whose members are appointed by the Governor to make recommendations to the Governor, the General Assembly, and the Department on policies, plans, procedures and proposed regulations on how to improve the statewide emergency medical services system.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this improved on the current response strategy for emergency medical services and helps front line workers know the best place to take a patient.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Andrews; Christine M. Hoag-Apel RN, TNS; Christy S. Warren; Truman Medical Centers; Reesa Vanhooser, Pike County Memorial Hospital; Arnie Dienoff; Jason White, Mid-America Regional Council; University of Missouri Health Care; Saint Luke's Health System; and the Missouri Hospital Association.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003156

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say it servers hospital-related interests and the patient is not the primary focus. Those opposed also say this creates a barrier in communication between Emergency Medical Services and hospitals.

Testifying against the bill were Jeffrey Coughenour MD, Missouri Chapter, American College of Surgeons' Committee on Trauma; Matthew Brandt; Sabina Braithwaite, MD, MPH; and Katherine Probst, Missouri Ambulance Association.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 1362 -- ELECTIONS

SPONSOR: Billington

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 7 to 3.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1362.

This bill prohibits individuals or organizations, including election authorities and boards of election, from distributing unsolicited applications for absentee ballots by mail, email, or other means. A violation of the bill's provisions will be a class four election offense.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill will help prevent some types of election fraud and give the general public confidence in the security of the election system. Many individuals prefer not to be randomly solicited about their voting intentions.

Testifying for the bill was Representative Billington.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that it is unnecessary to prevent election fraud and that many people or organizations

SS SCS SB 106 -- FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

SPONSOR: Crawford (Francis)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Financial Institutions by a vote of 13 to 0.

This bill modifies various provisions relating to financial institutions.

STATE BANKING AND SAVINGS AND LOAN BOARD (Section 361.097, RSMo)

This bill requires at least three members of the State Banking and Savings to have at least 5 years of active bank or association management experience at an institution chartered under state law.

ELECTRONIC POSTINGS (Section 361.110)

Currently, the Director of the Division of Finance is required to keep a bulletin board in his or her office containing various statements of information concerning corporations and persons doing business in the state. This bill modifies that requirement by requiring such statements to be posted on the Division of Finance website instead, to be updated each Monday.

This section is similar to a provision in SB 362 (2021).

BANKING REGULATIONS (Sections 362.044 - 362.765)

The bill permits electronic notification of annual or special stockholders' meetings (Section 362.044).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003158

This bill permits directors of a bank or trust company to attend board meetings by telephonic conference call or video conferencing, and such directors may be counted as part of the quorum, provided the bank or trust company has a composite rating of 1 or 2 under the Uniform Financial Institutions Rating System of the Federal Financial Institution Examination Counsel.

The bill permits the Director of the Division of Finance to promulgate additional regulations to provide for the integrity of the board of directors' operations when directors attend board meetings remotely and for the safety and soundness of the bank and trust company's operation.

This bill repeals a provision providing a remedy for when a bank, trust company, or director fails to follow the procedures for directors who are not physically present and counted toward the board's quorum (Section 362.247).

The bill repeals a requirement for every elected director of a bank or trust company to take an oath and be immediately transmitted to the Director of Finance.

This bill requires the inclusion of the relevant information relative to the amount or penal sum of the bonds or policies and the sureties or underwriters thereon on a form provided by the Division of Finance and retained and preserved by the bank or trust company. The Director of Finance shall publish an annual tiered schedule of minimum levels of coverages (Section 362.340).

The bill permits a bank or trust company to merge with one or more of its nonbank subsidiaries or affiliates pursuant to an agreement of merger as specified in the bill. The Director of Finance must be presented the agreement of merger and approve or decline the agreement within 30 days. If the agreement is declined, the bank or trust company may appeal the decision to the State Banking and Savings and Loan Board (Section 362.765).

RETAIL INSTALLMENT CONTRACTS - MOTOR VEHICLES (Sections 365.100 and 365.140)

The bill allows the holder of a retail installment contract to charge, finance, and collect a reasonable service fee not to exceed $25 for each check, draft, order, or like instrument returned unpaid by a financial institution, plus an amount equal to the actual charge for the return of each check, draft, order, or like instrument returned unpaid (Section 365.100).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003159

If a retail installment contract is paid in full, the holder shall provide the buyer proof of payment in full which may be by a letter referencing the contract which shall include information identifying the contract such as the original loan date, account number or other identifying number or code, or by returning the original contract or a copy thereof that is marked as paid in full by the holder, or by returning the original contract or a copy thereof marked by the holder as paid in full (Section 365.140).

These sections are substantially similar to provisions in SB 385 (2021).

SAVINGS AND LOAN REGULATIONS (Sections 369.049 - 369.705)

This bill removes the requirement that every savings and loan association to include either the words "Savings Association" or "Savings and Loan Association" and instead permits it. The bill further repeals the prohibition on using the following words in an association name: "National", "Federal", "United States", "Insured", "Guaranteed", "Government", and "Official."

The bill permits a savings and loan institution or savings bank to merge with one or more of its subsidiaries or affiliates pursuant to an agreement of merger as specified in the bill. The Director of Finance must be presented the agreement of merger and approve or decline the agreement within 30 days. If the agreement is declined, the savings and loan institution or savings bank may appeal the decision to the State Banking and Savings and Loan Board.

UNIFORM COMMERCIAL CODE (Section 400.3-309)

This bill modifies the process for how a person not in possession of an instrument can enforce an instrument under the Uniform Commercial Code. Specifically, a person can enforce such an instrument if, in addition to meeting criteria required under current law, the person either was entitled to enforce the instrument when the loss of possession occurred or the person has directly or indirectly acquired ownership of the instrument from a person who was entitled to enforce the instrument when loss of possession occurred.

This section is the same as HB 518 (2021) and similar to SB 359 (2021).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003160

RATES OF INTEREST IN BUSINESS, COMMERCIAL, AND AGRICULTURAL LOANS (Sections 408.035 and 408.100)

This bill allows parties to agree in writing to extensions of credit primarily for business, commercial, or agricultural purposes (Section 408.035).

The bill additionally repeals an exemption from a provision allowing any person, firm, or corporation to charge, contract for and receive interest on the unpaid principal balance at rates agreed to by the parties such that it applies to loans which are secured by a lien on nonprocessed farm products, livestock, farm machinery or crops or to loans to corporations.

This sections is similar to provisions in SB 385 (2021).

PERMISSIBLE FEES INCIDENT TO EXTENSIONS OF CREDIT (Section 408.140)

This bill allows a lender to:

(1) Charge reasonable and bona fide third-party fees paid out by the lender to any public officer for remote or electronic filing in any public office; and

(2) Charge a reasonable service fee not to exceed $25 for any check, draft, order, or like instrument returned unpaid by a financial institution, plus an amount equal to the actual charge for the return of each check, draft, order, or like instrument returned unpaid.

The bill repeals a provision allowing a lender to collect a fee in advance for allowing the debtor to defer up to three monthly loan payments.

This section is similar to provisions in SB 385 (2021).

DEFERMENT OF MONTHLY LOAN PAYMENTS (Section 408.178)

Currently, a lender is allowed to collect a fee in advance for allowing a debtor to defer monthly loan payments on loans with an original amount of $600 or more. This bill repeals the loan amount threshold for this provision such that a lender may collect such a fee on a loan of any amount.

This section is the same as a provision in SB 385 (2021).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

SECOND MORTGAGES (Sections 408.233 and 408.234)

The bill allows the charge of a reasonable and bona fide third-party fee incurred for the remote or electronic filing of the perfection, release, or satisfaction of a security interest related to a second mortgage loan (Section 408.233).

This bill repeals a prohibition on the issuance of a second mortgage loan in an initial principal amount of less than $2,500 (Section 408.234).

This section is similar to provisions in SB 385 (2021).

RETAIL TIME CONTRACTS (Section 408.250)

The bill allows reasonable and bona fide third-party fees incurred for remote or electronic filing in connection with any retail time contract.

This section is similar to provisions in SB 385 (2021).

LENDER RECOVERY UPON DEFAULT (Section 408.553)

The bill modifies the amount that a lender may collect from a borrower upon default. Specifically, a lender is entitled to recover the amount due and accrued under the agreement, including interest and penalties through the date of payment in full or to the date of final judgment. Following a judgment, the lender may additionally recover the simple interest equivalent of the rate provided in the contract as applied to the amount of the judgment until the date the judgment is paid and satisfied.

These provisions are similar to provisions in SB 385 (2021).

NOTICE OF DEFAULT(Section 408.554)

This bill repeals the requirement for a default notice issued in the case of a second default on the same loan or transaction or a third default on the same second mortgage to contain a provision notifying the borrower that in case of further default the borrower will have no right to cure.

This section is similar to provisions in SB 385 (2021).

LENDERS OF CONSUMER CREDIT LOANS (Section 367.150)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The bill repeals a law requiring lenders of consumer credit loans to file a report with the Director of the Division of Finance detailing, among other things, the financial condition of the lender and the total aggregate number and principal amount of loans made by the lender.

This section is the same as a provision in SB 362 (2021).

This bill is similar to HCS HBs 928 & 927 (2021).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this updates state banking codes and allows banks to operate more efficiently using new technology.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Crawford; Andrew Arnold, Missouri Independent Bankers Association; Mick Campbell, Division Of Finance; David Kent, Missouri Bankers Association.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SS SCS SBs 153 & 97 -- TAXATION

SPONSOR: Koenig

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Ways and Means by a vote of 8 to 2.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 153.

This bill modifies several provisions relating to taxation.

USE TAX MAPPING (Section 32.310, RSMo)

Currently, the Department of Revenue has created and must maintain a mapping feature on its website that displays various sales tax information. This bill requires the mapping feature to include use tax information. Political subdivisions collecting a use tax must send such data to the Department of Revenue by January 1, 2022, and the Department will implement update the mapping feature using the use tax data by July 1, 2022.

By July 1, 2022, the Department will update the mapping feature

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003163

to include the total sales tax rate for combined rates of overlapping sales taxes levied and the total use tax rate for combined rates of overlapping use taxes levied.

If the boundaries of a political subdivision in which a sales or use tax has been imposed are changed or altered, the political subdivision must forward such changes to the Department, as described in the bill.

This provision is similar to a provision contained in HB 554 (2021), SB 872, HB 2172, SS#2 SCS SB 648, SB 805, SCS HB 1700, and HB 1895 (2020).

VIDEO SERVICE PROVIDER FEES (Sections 67.2677 to 67.2720)

This bill modifies provisions relating to communications services offered in political subdivisions.

The bill modifies the definition of "gross revenues" for provisions of law relating to video service providers.

This bill prohibits the state and political subdivisions from imposing a new tax, license, or fee upon the provision of satellite or streaming video services.

This bill specifies that, a franchise entity may collect a video service provider fee equal to not more than 5% of the gross revenues of a video service provider providing service in the geographic area of such franchise entity. The fee will be phased out as follows:

1) Beginning August 28, 2023, 4.5% of gross revenues;

2) Beginning August 28, 2024, 4% of gross revenues;

3) Beginning August 28, 2025, 3.5% of gross revenues;

4) Beginning August 28, 2026, 3% of gross revenues; and

5) Beginning August 28, 2027, and continuing thereafter, 2.5% of gross revenues.

Currently, video service providers may identify and collect the amount of the video service provider fee as a separate line item on subscriber bills. Under this bill, the fee shall be identified and collected as a separate line item.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The bill creates the "Task Force on the Future of Right-of-Way Management and Taxation" consisting of 16 members, including two members of the Senate appointed of by the President Pro Tem of the Senate and two members of the House of Representatives appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The remaining members are specified in the bill. The purpose of the Task Force is to study best methods for right-of-way management, taxation of video services, and the future revenue needs of municipalities and political subdivisions as such revenue relates to video services.

The Task Force shall compile a report of its activities for submission to the General Assembly. The report shall be submitted no later than December 31, 2023, and shall include any recommendations which the Task Force may have for legislative action. The Task Force shall expire on December 31, 2023.

This provision is the same as SB 163 (2021) and is similar to HB 386 (2021), SCS SB 526, and HB 2091 (2020).

INDIVIDUAL INCOME TAX (Sections 143.011, 143.031, and 143.131)

Currently, a reduction in the top rate of income tax of 0.5% phased-in over a period of years in 0.1% increments, with each cut becoming effective if net general revenue collections meet a certain trigger. This bill adds two additional 0.1% reductions for a total reduction in the top rate of tax of 0.7%.

Currently, the rate of tax on individual income is dependent on the amount of Missouri taxable income a taxpayer earns, as described in the bill. Beginning January 1, 2023, this bill ends the current rate structure and a tax is imposed for every tax year on the Missouri taxable income of every resident at a rate equivalent to the top tax rate in effect as of December 31, 2022, minus .01%, or if a rate reduction is scheduled to occur on January 1, 2023, at a rate equivalent to the top tax rate in effect as of December 31, 2022, minus .02%. This new tax rate structure will be subject to the rate reductions in current law.

Additionally, the Department of Revenue is required to annually adjust the income tax brackets by the percent increase in inflation. This bill repeals such provision and beginning with the 2023 calendar year, repeals all income tax brackets applies the top rate of tax to all Missouri taxable income (Section 143.011).

For combined tax returns, current law defines the taxable income of each spouse as the proportion of such person's Missouri adjusted gross income bears to the combined adjusted gross income. For all tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2023, this bill repeals such provision.

Current law provides that the Missouri standard deduction shall be the allowable federal standard deduction. For all tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2023, this bill replaces the Missouri standard deduction with the "Missouri Working Family Tax Deduction". Such deduction will be the allowable federal standard deduction plus, if filing single or married and filing separately, $4000, or plus, if married and filing jointly, $8000.

Currently, the Missouri combined taxable income on a combined return must include all of the income and deductions of the husband and wife, and Missouri taxable income of each spouse is an amount that is the same proportion of their Missouri combined taxable income as the Missouri adjusted gross income of that spouse bears to their Missouri combined adjusted gross income.

Beginning, January 1, 2023, the Missouri combined taxable income on a combined return must include all of the income and deductions of the husband and wife.

These provisions are similar to HCS HB 1139 (2021) and similar to provisions in HCS HB 555 (2021).

SALES TAX ADMINISTRATION (Sections 144.049 and 144.526)

The school and Show Me Green sales tax holidays are modified by repealing the ability for political subdivisions to opt out of the sales tax holidays, and by defining how the sales tax exemption applies to the purchase or return of certain items.

These provisions are similar to provisions contained in SB 659, HB 2238, HB 1967 (2020), and SS SCS SBs 46 & 50 (2019).

Monetary allowances from taxes collected shall be provided to certain sellers and certified service providers for collecting and remitting state and local taxes, as described in the bill (Section 144.140).

This bill authorizes the Department of Revenue to consult, contract, and work jointly with the Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement's Governing Board to allow sellers to use the Governing Board's certified service providers and central registration system services, or to consult, contract, and work with certified service providers independently. The Department may determine the method and amount of compensation to be provided to certified service providers. The bill also authorizes the Department to independently take such actions as may be reasonably necessary to secure the payment of and account for the tax collected and remitted by retailers and vendors under the bill.

This provision sunsets on January 1, 2028, unless reauthorized by the General Assembly (Section 144.608).

This provision is similar to a provision contained in SCS HB 1700 (2020).

The Director shall provide and maintain downloadable electronic databases at no cost to the user of the databases for taxing jurisdiction boundary changes, tax rates, and a taxability matrix detailing taxable property and services. Sellers and certified service providers (CSP) will be relieved from liability if they fail to properly collect tax based upon information provided by the Department. Certified service providers, sellers, and marketplace facilitators may utilize proprietary data, provided the Director certifies that such data meets the standards provided in the bill.

This bill relieves a purchaser from any penalties for failure to pay the proper amount of sales tax if the error was a result of erroneous information provided by the Director of Revenue (Sections 144.637 and 144.638).

This provision is similar to a provision contained in SCS SB 529, SB 659, SB 805, SB 872, SCS HB 1700, HB 1895, HCS#2 HB 1957, and HB 2172 (2020).

USE TAX ECONOMIC NEXUS (Section 144.605)

This bill modifies the definition of "engaging in business activities within this state" to include vendors that had cumulative gross receipts from taxable sales of at least $100,000 from the sale of tangible personal property for the purpose of storage, use, or consumption in this state in the previous 12 month period, as described in the bill. Vendors meeting such criteria shall be required to collect and remit the use tax as provided under current law.

Under this bill, any department that has the Constitutional

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

authority to collect sales or use tax under Article IV of the Constitution of Missouri may remit any moneys collected under the new nexus to the Department of Revenue, and such moneys shall be deposited into the state's General Revenue Fund.

Any vendor meeting the definition of "engaging in business activities within this state" shall not be required to collect and remit any local use tax that was enacted prior to January 1, 2023, unless the vendor was or would have been required to collect and remit such tax prior to the effective date of the bill, or if a majority of voters in the political subdivision have approved an expansion of the local use tax after January 1, 2023. A vendor meeting the definition of "engaging in business activities within this state" shall be subject to any local use tax enacted on or after January 1, 2023.

This provision is similar to a provision contained in HB 554 (2021).

MARKETPLACE FACILITATORS (Section 144.752)

Beginning January 1, 2023, marketplace facilitators, as defined in the bill, that engages in business activities within the state shall register with the Department to collect and remit use tax on sales delivered into the state through the marketplace facilitator's marketplace by or on behalf of a marketplace seller, as defined in the bill. Such retail sales shall include those made directly by the marketplace facilitator as well as those made by marketplace sellers through the marketplace facilitator's marketplace.

Marketplace facilitators shall report and remit use tax collected under these provisions as determined by the Department. Marketplace facilitators properly collecting and remitting use tax in a timely manner shall be eligible for any discount provided for under current law.

Marketplace facilitators shall provide purchasers with a statement or invoice showing that the use tax was collected and shall be remitted on the marketplace seller's behalf.

No class action shall be brought against a marketplace facilitator in any court in this state on behalf of purchasers arising from or in any way related to an overpayment of sales or use tax collected on retail sales facilitated by a marketplace facilitator, regardless of whether that claim is characterized as a tax refund claim.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This provision is similar to a provision contained in HB 554 (2021), SS#2 SCS SB 648, SCS SB 529, SB 659, SB 805, SB 872, SCS HB 1700, HCS#2 HB 1957, HB 2172, and HB 2238, (2020), and SCS SBs 46 & 50 (2019).

LOCAL USE TAXES (Section 144.757 and 144.759)

This bill modifies ballot language required for the submission of a local use tax to voters by repealing ballot language specific to St. Louis County and its municipalities and the City of St. Louis, and making requiring the ballot language in all municipalities identical.

The bill allows any county or municipality with an existing local use tax enacted prior to January 1, 2023, to keep such existing local use tax. If any such county or municipality subsequently places a use tax measure on the ballot and the measure fails to pass, the use tax enacted prior to January 1, 2023, shall remain in effect until it expires or is repealed, reduced, or raised by a future ballot measure. If any such county or municipality places the use tax measure of this section and the measure passes, the use tax authorized by the bill shall replace the previously enacted use tax.

This bill prohibits a local use tax from being described as a new tax, described as not being a new tax, and being advertised or promoted in a manner in violation of current law.

This provision is similar to a provision contained in HB 554, HB 555 (2021), and HCS#2 HB 1957 (2020).

This bill provides that the portion of the local use tax imposed by St. Louis County shall be distributed to the cities, towns, villages, and unincorporated areas of the county on the ratio of the population that each such city, town, village, and unincorporated area bears to the total population of the county.

This provision is the same as a provision contained in SCS HB 1700 (2020).

VOLUNTARY FIREFIGHTERS (Sections 135.445, 287.245, 320.300, and 320.400)

For all tax years beginning on or after January 1, 2022, a taxpayer making a contribution to a voluntary firefighter cancer benefits trust, created under the bill, shall be allowed a tax credit equal to 50% of the amount of the contribution. Such tax credits shall not be refundable or transferred, sold, or assigned, but may be carried forward to the taxpayer's subsequent tax years. Each trust shall provide the Department of Revenue with the identity of each taxpayer making a contribution to a trust. The total amount of tax credits authorized under the bill shall not exceed $4 million in any year.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This bill allows for the creation of a Voluntary Firefighter Cancer Benefits Trust for the payment of benefits to certain firefighters. This bill allows any municipality, association, fire protection district, or special district that employs one or more firefighters who meet certain qualifications to make contributions to a Voluntary Firefighter Cancer Benefits Trust. The board of trustees of any trust created for the purposes of this bill is subject to the Sunshine Law. The trust is then required to make payments to covered individuals, as defined in the bill, based upon the type of cancer with which the covered individual was diagnosed. The maximum amount that may be paid out from the trust for a particular cancer diagnosis in a covered individual is $249,000. Benefits may be reduced by 25% if the covered individual used a tobacco product within the 5 years immediately preceding the cancer diagnosis.

Any trust created for the purposes of these provisions may accept or apply for grants or donations from any private or public source. Furthermore, any such trust may apply for grants from the State Fire Marshal.

These provisions are similar to HCS HB 760 and SB 45 (2021).

Additionally, this bill changes the phrase "volunteer fire protection association" to include fire protection districts supported by local tax revenues, or which have contracted with a political subdivision to respond to fires within the area of the association's boundaries.

This provision is similar to a provision in HCS HB 760 (2021).

SIMPLIFIED SALES AND USE TAX ADMINISTRATION ACT (Sections 144.1000-144.1015)

This bill repeals the Simplified Sales and Use Tax Administration Act.

The repeal of these sections are similar to the repeal of sections in HB 554 and HB 555 (2021).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003170

EFFECTIVE DATE

The provisions of this act relating to sales tax administration, use taxes, and income taxes shall become effective January 1, 2023.

The remaining provisions shall become effective August 28, 2021.

NONSEVERABILITY

The provisions of this act relating to sales tax administration, use taxes, and income taxes have a nonseverability clause.

This act is similar to HB 554, and HB 555 (2021); SS#2 SCS SB 648, and HCS 2 HB 1957 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this is needed to level the playing field between stores physically present in Missouri stores and online retailers since this allows Missouri to be able to collect use taxes from online purchases and is compliant under the United States Supreme Court's "Wayfair" Decision. Missouri needs to pass this since every state surrounding Missouri now taxes online purchases and not passing a bill simply hurts Missouri businesses since they have to pay other state's taxes.

This bill allows the Department of Revenue (DOR) to use Certified Service Providers (CSPs) or Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement's Governing Board in order for an efficient collection of taxes and in order to lower the burden for vendors. Additionally, this bill makes changes to the law in order to simplify the collection of this tax from businesses not physically present in Missouri.

SCR 7 -- NORTH CENTRAL MISSOURI REGIONAL WATER COMMISSION

SPONSOR: Hegeman (Griesheimer)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 11 to 0.

This resolution states that the Senate and the House of Representatives support funding of the North Central Missouri Regional Water Commission project by the state entering into a long-term commitment of money in the Multipurpose Water Resource Program Fund, subject to appropriations, provided that the total annual cost does not exceed $1.5 million, and the total cost over the life of the contract does not exceed $24 million.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill is important for providing potable water to Northwest and North Central Missouri by allowing the state to make agreements with the federal government. This bill provides economic development in the affected areas.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Hegeman; Arnie C. Dienoff; North Central Missouri Regional Water Commission; and Rich Germander, Missouri Department of Natural Resources.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

SB 37 -- ANHYDROUS AMMONIA

SPONSOR: Bernskoetter

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 17 to 0.

This bill repeals provisions of law that give the Department of Agriculture oversight over standards relating to anhydrous ammonia and authorizes the Air Conservation Commission to adopt, promulgate, amend, and repeal rules and regulations for covered processes at agricultural stationary sources that use, store, or sell anhydrous ammonia, and regulations necessary to implement and enforce the risk management plans under the federal Clean Air Act.

Each retail agricultural facility that uses, stores, or sells anhydrous ammonia that is an air contaminant source subject to a risk management plan under the federal Clean Air Act must pay an annual registration of $200. The bill also establishes an annual tonnage fee for anhydrous ammonia of $1.25 per ton used or sold.

Each distributor or terminal agricultural facility that uses, stores, or sells anhydrous ammonia that is an air contaminant source subject to a Risk Management Plan Program 3 under federal regulations relating to chemical accident prevention must pay an annual registration of $5,000 and does not pay a tonnage fee.

The bill creates the "Anhydrous Ammonia Risk Management Plan Subaccount" within the Natural Resources Protection Fund which shall consist of fees required in these provisions.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill would reduce regulations on retailers of anhydrous ammonia by consolidating all regulations within the Department of Natural Resources, the agency with expertise to implement the new program.

HJR 51 -- HEALTH INSURANCE PROTECTIONS

SPONSOR: Shields

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Health and Mental Health Policy by a vote of 13 to 2.

This proposed Constitutional amendment, if approved by the voters, provides that no health benefit plan providing coverage to a resident of this state shall limit or exclude benefits relating to any condition based on the fact that the condition is a preexisting condition or charge a different premium rate or impose different out-of-pocket costs for the same coverage based on the fact that a person covered under the plan has a preexisting condition. Health benefit plans providing coverage for dependent children shall continue to make the coverage available until the child turns 26. This amendment does not apply to plans precluded by federal law, or to excepted benefit plans, as defined in the amendment.

This bill is similar to SJR 26 (2021).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that it is important for insurance companies to cover preexisting conditions. This bill would also make people more likely to do preventative care which will lower costs in the long run. Supporters say it is important that this be voted on by the citizens of Missouri.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Shields; Dennis

HB 36 -- TRESPASS IN THE FIRST DEGREE

SPONSOR: Pollock (123)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Downsizing State Government by a vote of 10 to 1.

A person commits the offense of trespass in the first degree if he or she knowingly or intentionally enters and refuses to leave the real property of another after having been prohibited from entering or asked to leave the real property by a law enforcement officer if the real property is vacant or a vacant structure. "Vacant real property" and "vacant structure" are defined in the bill.

A law enforcement officer shall not be held liable for acts or omissions made in good faith under this bill.

This bill is similar to HCS HB 1413 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill will prohibit squatters from taking advantage of property owners. It should not be difficult to remove trespassers off your property.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Pollock; Arnie Dienoff; Lisa; and Rick Bryant, Bryant Auction.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

HCS HB 157 -- CHANGE OF VENUE FOR CAPITAL CASES

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003177

SPONSOR: Veit

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 10 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 157.

This bill creates the "Change of Venue for Capital Cases Fund", which will consist of money appropriated by the General Assembly. Money in the fund is to be used solely for reimbursement to a county that receives a capital case from another county. At the conclusion of a capital case for which the venue was changed from one county to another, the county that sent the case may apply to the Office of State Courts Administrator (OSCA) for reimbursement to the county that received the case of any costs associated with sequestering jurors. If a county is eligible for reimbursement, OSCA shall disburse the money to the county. If OSCA determines that a county is not eligible for reimbursement or the actual costs are more then the amount dispersed, the county in which the capital case originated shall be responsible for all or the remaining reimbursement.

Applications for reimbursement must be submitted by May 1 of the current fiscal year, and reimbursements must be made by June 30 of the current fiscal year. Reimbursements for applications submitted after May 1 of the current fiscal year will be made in the following fiscal year. If there is not enough money in the fund at the end of the fiscal year when reimbursements are made, reimbursements will be made on a pro rata basis.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that, in a capital murder case, many of the rural counties do not have the facilities or do not have the ability to get a qualified jury, or they do not have a hotel to sequester a jury, so they ask to move to a larger county. But the county does not usually have the money so the larger counties to which the cases are transferred to end up paying for the jury sequestration. It is unfair for the receiving counties to carry the burden. Everyone likes to try cases in Cole County, but each capital case is about $100,000 and $50,000 of it is sequestration cost. It is so much more expensive to do a capital case because it takes a week to pick the jury and then you have to rent a couple floors of a hotel and you are feeding them and entertaining them on Sunday when you don't have court. The issue is the jury budget of a small county is about $5,000, so they cannot afford capital cases. And the Jefferson City jails have to take the offenders, but they are getting reimbursed for those costs. The sending county should be the one asking for the reimbursement, not the receiving county.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying for the bill were Representative Veit; Arnie Dienoff; and Jon Beetem.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the cost of the death penalty is an important conversation to have in Missouri. The issue with talking about the cost of sequestration only does not solve the issue of the arbitrary way this is handled. It does not solve the issue that smaller counties do not have the money to handle capital cases. It rarely happens and we have not had a venue change case since 2013. This is an excellent opportunity to talk about whether this is a bloated government program that should be taking taxpayer dollars to fund it.

Testifying against the bill was Elyse Max, Missourians For Alternatives to the Death Penalty.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 511 -- REGULATION OF PRIVATE PROPERTY

SPONSOR: Lovasco

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Downsizing State Government by a vote of 9 to 4.

This bill prohibits the state and any political subdivision of the state from making or enforcing any statute, ordinance, or rule regarding the parking of an unlicensed motor vehicle on private property if the vehicle is wholly within the property boundaries, is parked on a surface suitable for a driveway or parking area, and is not supported by any device other than its own tires unless it is being repaired for a period not to exceed 72 hours.

The bill also prohibits the state and any political subdivision from making or enforcing any statute, ordinance, or rule, except for a statute, ordinance, or rule restricting air pollution or noise pollution, that would prohibit or penalize a noncorporate owner or renter of a private, single family residence from using the residence in a way that does not pose a clear and present danger to the health or safety of the neighbors, or would require a noncorporate owner or renter of a private residence to use the property in a way contrary to the wishes of the owner or renter.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This bill is similar to HB 2668 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the government should not be prohibiting people from using their single-family property as they see fit nor forcing them to use their property a certain way, unless the individual's use of the property currently causes harm to others or they are contractually obligated to through easements. The bill will place the burden on the government as to why it should restrict someone's property.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Lovasco; and Arnie Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 665 -- CANDIDATE QUALIFICATIONS

SPONSOR: Baringer

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 9 to 0.

This bill requires a person who files as a candidate for election to a public office that performs county functions in St. Louis City to provide appropriate copies of paid tax receipts or no tax due statements. This bill authorizes election authorities in the City of St. Louis who discover noncompliance with tax payments during their candidate qualification screening under Section 115.306, RSMo, to file a complaint with the Department of Revenue if a delinquency is discovered and to not allow the candidate's name to be placed on a ballot within the city until any ethics complaint has been resolved.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003180

This bill is the same as HCS HB 1932 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill will ensure that both county and city offices within the City of St. Louis follow the same candidate qualification rules. Should help make elections uniform and intelligible to the general public.

Testifying for the bill was Representative Baringer.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill provided written testimony.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 308 -- HOUSES OF WORSHIP

SPONSOR: Kelley (127)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Special Committee on Government Accountability by a vote of 10 to 4.

This bill says houses of worship will be exempt from any social distancing requirements contained in any order relating to the prevention of the spread of infectious diseases issued by the Department of Health and Senior Services. Social distancing requirements includes any limitation on the number of people who can gather in a single space or any requirement to maintain a certain amount of space between individuals.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill will give the authority to the church to decide what they should do during an emergency. The bill will protect churches' ability to stay open for Missourians if they believe they should.

Testifying for the bill was Representative Kelley.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the bill violates the establishment clause as the language in the bill takes a

HCS HB 700 -- INHALATION OF SUBSTANCES

SPONSOR: Black (7)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 8 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 700.

This bill make changes to existing statute prohibiting a person from intentionally smelling or inhaling the fumes of a solvent for the purposes of inducing certain symptoms. The bill makes the same changes to the offense of possession of a solvent with the purpose of inducing or aiding a person to inhale the solvent.

The bill adds "inhaling the gases or vapors of a solvent" to the statute. The bill also adds "inhaling a chemical, reagent, refrigerant, or other substance to the statute". The bill adds "inhaling the fumes of a solvent for the purposes of causing hallucination".

The bill also amends the penalties for violations of these sections. Currently, the offense is a class B misdemeanor for a first violation and a class E felony for any subsequent violations. Under this bill, the first offense is a class D misdemeanor and a requirement that the person participate in a drug treatment program, if allowed by law, it is a class A misdemeanor for a second violation, and it is a class D felony for any subsequent violations.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this makes "sniffing/huffing" for hallucination an offense. Oftentimes, this is a gateway drug, so the intent is to get people the help they need before they progress to more serious drugs. The ultimate goal is to get to kids, whom this usually affects more frequently, and get them some help and off the street, even if it is only temporarily. It is not currently illegal to sniff or huff "Dust Off" or spray paint.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Black; Michael R. Leamer; and Arnie C. Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 734 -- MO ELECTRICITY BILL REDUCTION ACT

SPONSOR: O'Donnell

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Financial Institutions by a vote of 13 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 734.

This bill defines "securitized utility tariff bonds" as "bonds, debentures, notes, certificates of participation, certificates of beneficial interest, certificates of ownership, or other evidence of indebtedness or ownership that are issued by an electrical corporation or an assignee pursuant to a financing order, the proceeds of which are used directly or indirectly to recover, finance, or refinance commission-approved energy transition costs and financing costs, and that are secured by or payable from energy transition property". Electrical corporations may apply to the Public Service Commission for a financing order authorizing the:

(1) Issuance of bonds;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003183

(2) Collection of securitized utility tariff charges on customer bills (which are separate from the electrical corporation's base rates) to finance costs related to the retirement of an electric generating facility; and

(3) Creation of securitized utility tariff property following the retirement of an electric generating facility.

The Commission may issue a financing order, following notice and a hearing, if the Commission finds that such order meets certain conditions outlined in the bill. The pricing of securitized utility tariff bonds must lower present costs to customers. Simultaneously with the imposition of securitized utility tariff charges, a financing order must require the electrical corporation to reduce its rates through a reduction in base rates or a negative rider on customer bills in an amount equal to the revenue requirement associated with the electrical corporation's assets being financed by securitized utility tariff bonds.

Financing orders must remain in effect until the securitized utility tariff bonds and associated financing costs have been paid in full, notwithstanding any bankruptcy, reorganization, or insolvency of an electrical corporation. The Commission may also commence a proceeding and issue a subsequent financing order that provides for the refinancing, retiring, or refunding of securitized utility tariff bonds issued under the original financing order if the subsequent financing order meets all of the same criteria as the original financing order, and does not modify the covenants and terms of the securitized utility tariff bonds to be refinanced, retired, or refunded.

The Commission will have the authority to apply or modify any billing mechanism designed to recover security utility tariff charges, investigate compliance with the financing order, or impose regulatory sanctions against an electrical corporation for failing to comply with the terms of a financing order. Further, the Commission may not refuse to allow the recovery of costs associated with the retirement of electric generating facilities solely because such costs have been financed through a mechanism other than securitized utility tariff bonds. The bill authorizes the Commission to have powers and duties in addition to those already specified under law.

Further, a financing order is a final order of the Commission. Any party aggrieved by the issuance of a financing order may petition for suspension and review of the order only in the court of appeals with jurisdiction coextensive with the Commission's location. The court must hear and determine the action as expeditiously as practicable.

The electric bills of electrical corporation customers must explicitly reflect that a portion of the charges on the bill that represent securitized utility tariff charges, and must be included as a separate line-item. In an annual filing, the electrical corporation must explain to customers the rate impact that financing of retired electric generating facilities, transition assistance to Missouri communities and workers, and capital investment in renewable facilities and services has had on customer rates. In the annual filing, the electrical corporation must also demonstrate that securitized utility tariff revenues have been applied solely to the repayment of securitized utility tariff bonds and other financing costs.

Electrical corporations can petition the Public Service Commission for a financing order to securitized qualified extraordinary costs. These costs would be a result from an extraordinary situation such as a tornado. The criteria required for the petition is outlined in the bill.

The electric corporation must have a financial advisor and bond counsel. The Commission can engage the financial advisor and counsel as it sees fit. All expenses associated incurred for the services of the financial advisor and counsel shall be included in the securitized utility tariff charge.

Securitized utility tariff property must exist until all securitized utility tariff bonds are paid in full and financing costs have been recovered. Securitized utility tariff property may be transferred, sold, conveyed, or assigned to certain successors or assignees specified in the bill. A successor to an electrical corporation must perform and satisfy all obligations of, and have the same duties and rights under a financing order as the electrical corporation to which the financing order applies.

Banks, trust companies, savings and loan associations, insurance companies, executors, administrators, guardians, trustees, and other fiduciaries, including political subdivisions, may invest in securitized utility tariff bonds; however, securitized utility tariff bonds must not be considered the debt of the State, any county, municipality, or political subdivision. The State, or any political subdivision, may not take any action that impairs the value of securitized utility tariff property or reduce or alter securitized utility tariff charges until all securitized utility tariff bonds and financing costs are paid in full. An assignee or financing party that is not regulated by the Commission may not become subject to commission regulation as a result of engaging in any transaction under this act.

If any provision of this section is held invalid or is invalidated, superseded, replaced, repealed, or expires for any reason, that occurrence does not affect the validity of any action allowed under this section which is taken by an electrical corporation, an assignee, a financing party, a collection agent, or a party to an ancillary agreement and any such action remains in full force and effect with respect to all securitized utility tariff bonds issued or authorized in a financing order issued under this section before the date that such provision is held invalid or is invalidated, superseded, replaced, or repealed or expires for any reason.

The bill also specifies requirements for any security interest in securitized utility tariff property. A sale, assignment, or transfer of securitized utility tariff property is an absolute transfer, and may be created only when certain actions occur, as specified in the bill.

This bill is similar to HB 1703 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say this bill creates a new type of bond. It allows bigger public utilities in the state to borrow money to maintain, repair or replace aging equipment. This bill helps incentivize utilities to move over to efficient power plants and other facilities rather than operate aging systems. This is a financial tool that helps save consumers money.

Testifying for the bill were Representative O'Donnell; Nancy Ylvisaker, The Nature Conservancy in Missouri; Renew Missouri; Missouri Chamber of Commerce and Industry; Ameren Missouri; David Jackson, Natural Resources Defense Council; and Evergy.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the utility company should have to get a loan to pay for the expenses.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003186

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say securitization would allow utilities to recover costs on assets and potentially save money for ratepayers. This is similar to a mortgage refinance. Securitization is already used in multiple states as a cost-effective way to replace coal plants.

Testifying on the bill were Jennifer Bratburd, Most Policy Initiative; and the Midwest Energy Consumers Group.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 758 -- TRUST INTERPRETATION AND DECANTING

SPONSOR: Hardwick

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 10 to 0.

This bill establishes a provision regarding interpretation of familial relationships described in trusts and modifies a provision regarding distributions of income or principal from one trust to another trust.

FAMILIAL RELATIONSHIPS (Section 456.1-114 RSMo)

For the purposes of interpreting a term of familial relationship in a trust, a child conceived or born during a marriage is presumed to be a child of the married persons unless a judicial proceeding is commenced before the death of the presumed parent and it is determined that the presumed parent is not the parent of the child.

Additionally, this bill provides that a child who is not conceived or born in a marriage is presumed to not be a child of a person who did not give birth to such child unless a judicial proceeding determines such parentage or the person openly recognized the child as his or her child and such person has not refused to voluntarily support the child. A trustee shall not be liable to any person for exercising discretion in regards to the sufficiency of recognition and support of a child unless the trustee acted in bad faith or with a reckless indifference to the purposes of the trust or the interests of the beneficiaries. The rights afforded to the child shall not be retroactive but shall apply from the time the relationship is established.

Under this bill, a child adopted prior to 18 years of age is a child of the adopting parent and not of the natural parents, except that adoption by a spouse of a natural parent shall have no effect on the relationship between the child and the natural parent. Additionally, the terms of a trust shall prevail over this provision of the bill.

TRUST DECANTING (Section 456.4-419)

Under this bill, a trustee, other than a settlor, who has discretionary power to make a distribution may exercise such power by distributing all or part of the income or principal to a trustee of a second trust. The power may be exercised by distributing property from the first trust to one or more second trusts or by modifying the first trust instrument to become one or more second trusts.

This bill provides requirements regarding permissible distributees of second trusts, including that at least one permissible distributee of the first trust shall be a permissible distributee of the second trust immediately after the distribution and that only a beneficiary of the first trust may be a beneficiary of the second trust. In addition, this bill modifies the use of powers of appointment in the second trust. The second trust instrument may retain, modify, or omit a power of appointment granted by the first trust and the second trust instrument may create a general or nongeneral power of appointment if the powerholder is a beneficiary of the second trust. Furthermore, this bill provides that a special-needs fiduciary may exercise the authority to make a distribution to a second trust if the second trust is a special-needs trust that has a beneficiary with a disability and if the fiduciary determines that the exercise of authority will further the purposes of the trust.

The bill repeals the current provisions regarding a second trust's beneficiaries, the limitations on a trustee's authority to make distributions from the first trust in certain circumstances, trust contributions treated as gifts, and the exercise of the discretionary power to reduce the income interest of any income beneficiary in certain trusts. The bill provides that if the exercise of the distribution authority is limited by an ascertainable standard, under which the trustee exercising such authority is a permissible distributee of the first trust, then the discretionary power shall be subject to at least the same standard as the first trust and the trust instrument for the second trust shall not modify powers of appointment nor grant a power of appointment to a trustee who did not exist in the first trust.

A second trust shall not include or omit terms that would prevent the first trust property from qualifying as a marital deduction, as a charitable deduction, for exclusion from the gift tax, as a qualified subchapter-S trust, or for a zero inclusion ratio for purposes of the generation skipping transfer tax under the Internal Revenue Code. Additionally, if the first trust property includes shares of a S-corporation's stock and the first trust is a permitted shareholder, then the trustee of the first trust may exercise the authority with respect to the S-corporation stock if the second trust is a permitted shareholder.

Currently, a notification must be made at least 60 days prior to making a discretionary distribution to the permissible distributees of the second trust or if none then to the qualified beneficiaries of the second trust. This bill requires that the notification be made to the permissible distributees of the first trust and to the permissible distributees of the second trust.

The second trust may have a duration that is the same as the first trust. However, the property of the second trust that is attributable to the first trust is subject to the rules governing maximum perpetuity, accumulation, or suspension of the power of alienation which apply to the property of the first trust. The creation of a general power of appointment in the second trust instrument shall not be precluded by this provision.

In the event that part of the second trust instrument does not comply with this bill, the exercise of the discretionary power is effective and the provisions of the second trust instrument that are not permitted in or are required to be in the trust instrument are deemed void or included to the extent necessary to comply.

This bill is similar to SB 338 (2021) and HB 2533 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill makes provisions in trust law that apply to kids who were adopted or born out of wedlock. There are other things the settlor of a trust can do regarding beneficiaries and does not penalize the trustee using discretion in certain situations. It also addresses adverse tax consequences. The Supreme Court has pointed out that there is no definition of who is a child if a child is adopted or born out of wedlock, but those definitions exist in the probate code so this is putting it in the trust code. The bill does not address adult adoptions. Decanting is not new in Missouri but there is a uniform decanting law now, and the Missouri Bar believes that some of those uniform provisions should be adopted but not all.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying for the bill were Representative Hardwick; Daniel Wheeler, and the Missouri Bar Association.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying on the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 807 -- ELECTED COURT CLERKS

SPONSOR: McGirl

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Local Government by a vote of 12 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 807.

This bill authorizes elected circuit clerks to have general administrative authority over judicial personnel including deputy circuit clerks, division clerks, and other court personnel, but excluding court officials. An elected circuit clerk may appoint and remove deputy clerks and division clerks and establish salaries for such positions based upon salary ranges established by Missouri Supreme Court Administrative Rules. The assignment of clerks to particular judges and specified record keeping functions will also be under the purview of the circuit clerk.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003190

The bill repeals various provisions authorizing the presiding judge or the entire circuit court to regulate court clerks and associated functions.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the circuit clerks, not judges, should have appointing authority over persons who will be working in the circuit clerk's office. The current statutes are out-of-date and need updated. Circuit clerks already are performing these "new" duties because of court consolidation, which was designed to relieve judges from these mundane employment issues.

Testifying for the bill were Representative McGirl; Amber Boley, Missouri Circuit Clerk's Association; Jennifer A. Hotop; Julie Bova, Ste. Genevieve County Circuit Clerk; Melinda Gumm; Patty A. Krueger, President, Missouri Circuit Clerk Association; Eric Stallo, Missouri Circuit Clerks Association Past President; Sue Brown; Ashley Gum, Washington County Circuit Clerk; Ashley Thrasher, Buchanan County Circuit Clerk's Office; Becky Stanturf, Grundy County; Cheryl Crowder, 11th Judicial Circuit Court; Jill Kathleen Peck, Webster County Circuit Court; Christy Blakemore; Jo McElwee, Circuit Clerk, Camden County; Kim Mason; Lori Jones; Mechelee Lebow; Mitzi Shipley; Rebecca Uhlich; Robyn R. HCS HB 835 -- ELECTRIC ENERGY

SPONSOR: Haffner

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Utilities by a vote of 9 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 835.

This bill specifies that axillary power may be purchased on a wholesale basis for use at an electric generation facility located in Cass County which began operating prior to August 28, 2021, and is operated as an independent power producer.

This bill is similar to HB 2540 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that natural gas peaking plants operate during peak power needs and need energy to power up before producing their own power. This bill would allow the plant to purchase power at a rate similar to those other states.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Haffner; Dogwood Energy; and Missouri Association of Municipal Utilities.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the language of the bill is too broad and is too similar to deregulation of the industry.

Testifying against the bill was Evergy.

HCS HB 925 -- ELECTIONS

SPONSOR: Hudson

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 8 to 2.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 925.

Beginning January 1, 2022, this bill requires the use of paper ballots for all elections. Until January 1, 2024, election authorities may continue to use electronic touchscreen machines for disabled voters. Marking devices will also be permissible to assist disabled voters with paper ballot marking.

The bill also authorizes the Missouri Secretary of State to prosecute or defend election laws under Chapter 115, RSMo.

It also requires a person who files as a candidate for election to a public office that performs county functions in St. Louis City to provide appropriate copies of paid tax receipts or no tax due statements. This bill authorizes election authorities in the City of St. Louis who discover noncompliance with tax payments during their candidate qualification screening under Section 115.306, to file a complaint with the Department of Revenue if a delinquency is discovered and to not allow the candidate's name to be placed on a ballot within the city until any ethics complaint has been resolved.

The bill changes filing fees for certain candidates to run for office. The fee to run for statewide office will be $5000, the fee for United States Senator will be $10000, the fee to run for Congress will be $7,500, the fee for Circuit Judge or State Senator will be $300. The fee for presidential candidates will be $12,500.

The bill enacts the "Missouri Sovereign Elections Act" which reserves Missouri's authority over all types of elections to the maximum extent consistent with the Constitution of the United States, and explicitly mentions the State's authority over its own elections and local elections.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that paper ballots will provide an excellent audit trail and secure public confidence in elections.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Hudson; Arnie C. Dienoff; and Laura Hausland.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 1333 -- CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE

SPONSOR: Trent

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 6 to 1 with one voting Present.

This bill modifies the offenses of first-degree arson and manufacture of a controlled substance.

For first-degree arson, the bill adds "any controlled substance" to the provision on fire or explosion while attempting to produce methamphetamine. "Any controlled substance" exempts manufacture of medicinal marijuana or synthetic cannabinoids by licensed facilities under Missouri law (Section 569.040, RSMo).

For manufacture of a controlled substance, the bill adds "any controlled substance" to the provision on serious injury or death while attempting to produce methamphetamine. Manufacture of medicinal marijuana or synthetic cannibinoids by licensed facilities under Missouri law is exempt from this section (Section 579.055).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this extends the existing arson offense to all controlled substances and excludes legal medical marijuana. We do not want to extend criminal penalties to legal businesses.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Trent; Arnie C. Dienoff; and the City of Springfield, Fire Department.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying against the bill was Anita Guess.

This bill designates July 20 of each year as "Farmers and Ranchers Day" and encourages citizens to participate in activities to recognize the positive impact farming and ranching families have on the state.

This bill is the same as HB 2123 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that Missouri is home to 100,000 farms and agriculture is the state's largest industry. It is important to recognize the men and women who work in this sector of the economy.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Morse; Missouri Farm Bureau; and Missouri Corn Growers Association. Additional written testimony was submitted in support of the bill.

SPONSOR: Dinkins

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Pensions by a vote of 11 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 828.

This bill repeals the July 1, 2014 termination date of a provision allowing members of the Public School Retirement System of Missouri who have 31 or more years of creditable service to have their retirement allowance calculated using a multiplier of 2.55%. The also changes the years of service in this provision from 31 to 32 years of service.

The bill contains an emergency clause.

This bill is the same as HB 1298 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill will help with retaining quality teachers keeping them in the class room longer. This multiplier when it was in effect helped to retain approximately 25% of teachers longer.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Dinkins; Arnie Dienoff; Missouri State Teachers Association; Missouri NEA; Marie Walden, Public School and Education Employees Retirement of Missouri.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this resolution will help to increase awareness of substance use disorders. Too many people have been lost to overdoses and this epidemic is getting worse with the onset of COVID. It is important to remember these people struggling with a horrible disease. More awareness and education needs to happen now.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Stevens; Arnie C. Dienoff; and the Missouri Nurses Association.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say that much information relating to this issue is available, please be proactive and communicate with us so that we can get useful information to you.

HCS HB 688 -- EARNINGS TAX

SPONSOR: Murphy

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Ways and Means by a vote of 8 to 3.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 688.

Currently, certain Constitutional Charter Cities may impose an earnings tax on compensation earned by a nonresident of the city for "work done or services performed or rendered in the city".

This bill provides that for all tax returns filed on or after January 1, 2021, "work done or services performed or rendered in the city" will not include any work or services performed or rendered through telecommuting or otherwise performed or rendered remotely unless the location where such remote work or services were performed is located in the city (Section 92.111, RSMo).

Currently, certain Constitutional Charter Cities must have the earnings tax reauthorized once every five years by the qualified voters of such city.

For the St. Louis City earnings tax, this bill changes the qualified voters for the reauthorization to individuals who currently reside in: St. Louis City; St. Louis County; St. Charles County; Jefferson County; and Franklin County.

For the Kansas City earnings tax, this bill changes the qualified voters for the reauthorization to individuals who reside in the counties in which all or part of such city is located. These counties currently are: Jackson County; Clay County; Cass County; Plate County (Section 92.115).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that it is unfair that St. Louis City is currently taxing nonresidents who are physically outside of the city limits and working from home but are telecommuting to their places of work which are in St. Louis City. This is because nonresidents that do not enter the city do not utilize any of the services of the city.

Supporters contend that St. Louis City made the taxability determination as a result of the pandemic in order to collect revenue from nonresidents. This is a change from how the earnings tax was previously implemented considering St. Louis City offered refunds of taxes collected on nonresidents at the end of the year for taxes collected when nonresidents were not physically present in the city, regardless if nonresidents worked remotely or not.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Murphy; and Associated Industries Of Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that nonresidents still work in St. Louis City but are now working from their home computers. While nonresidents may not utilize the services offered by the city, their employers still use those services. Additionally, the city still offers tax refunds at the end of the year to nonresidents that are physically outside of the city limits, but do not offer these refunds to individuals who are telecommuting into the city.

Testifying against the bill were Thomas Vollmer, City of Saint Louis; and Arnie Dienoff.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say that clarifying what "telecommuting" is would be helpful. Additionally, establishing a nexus for earnings tax purposes based upon the location of an employer's server would be incredibly complicated. Finally, how Kansas City collects its earnings tax would not be altered by this bill because Kansas City made a determination not to tax nonresidents who telecommute into the city.

Testifying on the bill were Sam Panettiere; Missouri Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 1125 -- PESTICIDE CERTIFICATION AND TRAINING

SPONSOR: Rone

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 17 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1125.

This bill modifies provisions relating to pesticide certification and training. In its main provisions, the bill:

(1) Repeals the ability of the Director of the Department of Agriculture to provide by regulation for the one-time emergency purchase and use of a restricted use pesticide by a private applicator;

(2) Authorizes the Director to, by regulation, classify licenses, including a license for provisional private applicators and noncertified restricted use pesticide (RUP) applicators;

(3) Specifies that no individual may engage in the business of supervising the determination of the need for the use of any pesticide on the lands of another without a certified commercial applicator's license issued by the Director;

(4) Prohibits a certified commercial applicator from knowingly authorizing, directing, or instructing an individual to engage in determining the need for the use of any restricted pesticide on the land of another unless he or she is licensed as a noncertified RUP applicator while working under the direct supervision of a certified commercial applicator. The certified commercial applicator is liable for any use of a restricted use pesticide by an individual operating under the his or her supervision;

(5) Prohibits a certified noncommercial applicator from knowingly authorizing, directing, or instructing an individual to engage in using any restricted use pesticide on lands or structures owned, leased, or rented by the certified noncommercial applicator or his or her employer unless such individual is licensed as a noncertified RUP applicator while working under the direct supervision of a certified noncommercial applicator. The certified noncommercial applicator is liable for any use of a restricted use pesticide by an individual operating under his or her direct supervision;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(6) Prohibits a pesticide technician from using or determining the need for the use of any pesticide unless there is a certified commercial applicator working from the same physical location as the licensed pesticide technician;

(7) Allows a pesticide technician to complete retraining requirements and renew the his or her license without a certified commercial applicator working from the same physical location;

(8) Prohibits a certified private applicator from knowingly authorizing, directing, or instructing an individual to engage in using any restricted use pesticide on lands or structures owned, leased, or rented by the certified private applicator or his or her employer unless such individual is licensed as a certified private applicator or a certified provisional private applicator;

(9) Requires a private applicator to attend an approved program, complete an approved certification course, or pass a certification examination to qualify for a certified private applicator's license or a certified provisional private applicator's license.

(10) Requires the University of Missouri extension to collect reasonable fees for training and study materials, for enrollment in an in-person or an online certification or recertification training program after certain requirements are met;

(11) Requires a certified private applicator holding a valid license to complete recertification training or pass the required private applicator certification examination in order to renew the license;

(12) Specifies that on the date of the certified provisional private applicator's 18th birthday, his or her license will automatically convert to a certified private applicator license with the original expiration date from issuance;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(13) Prohibits a certified public operator from knowingly authorizing, directing, or instructing an individual to engage in using any restricted use pesticide on lands or structures unless such individual is licensed as a noncertified RUP applicator while working under the direct supervision of a certified public operator. The certified public operator is liable for any use of a restricted used pesticide by an individual operating under his or her direct supervision;

(14) Authorizes a person who volunteers to work for a public agency to use general use pesticides without a license under the supervision of the public agency on lands owned or managed by the agency;

(15) Creates requirements for the application for a noncertified RUP applicator's license;

(16) Requires that a pesticide dealership location or outlet from which restricted use pesticides are distributed, sold, held for sale, or offered for sale at retail or wholesale have at least one individual licensed as a pesticide dealer;

(17) Prohibits an individual from being issued more than one pesticide dealer license and requires each mobile salesperson possessing restricted use pesticides for distribution or sale to be licensed as a pesticide dealer;

(18) Requires each applicant for a pesticide dealer's license to pass a pesticide dealer examination;

(19) Requires licensed certified applicators, licensed noncertified restricted use pesticide applicators, licensed pesticide technicians, and licensed pesticide dealers to notify the Department within 10 days of any conviction of or plea to certain offenses;

(20) Authorizes the Director to issue a pesticide applicator certification on a reciprocal basis with other states without examination to a nonresident who is licensed as a certified applicator in accordance with the reciprocating state's requirements and is a resident of the reciprocating state;

(21) Repeals the requirement that a nonresident applying for certain pesticide licenses to operate in Missouri must designate the Secretary of State as the agent of the nonresident upon whom process may be served unless the nonresident has designated a Missouri resident agent;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(22) Prohibits any person from using or supervising the use of pesticides that are canceled or suspended; and

(23) Specifies that it is unlawful for any person not holding a valid certified applicator license in proper certification categories or a valid pesticide dealer license to purchase or acquire restricted use pesticides and that it is unlawful for any person to steal or attempt to steal pesticide certification examinations or examination materials, cheat on pesticide certification examinations, evade completion of recertification or retraining requirements, or aid and abet any person in an attempt to steal examinations or examination materials, cheat on examinations, or evade recertification or retraining requirements.

The provisions of this bill will become effective July 1, 2024.

This bill is similar to HB 2532 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill was the culmination of a two-year stakeholder process to update the pesticide applicator requirements to bring the state in compliance with new U.S. Environmental Protection Agency rules.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Rone; Missouri Farm Bureau; Missouri Soybean Association; Missouri Department of Agriculture; University of Missouri System; Missouri Agribusiness Association.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say they recognize that Missouri must update its program to come into compliance but would like to set parameters on some of the requirements, such as the in-seat training and the fee for training.

Testifying on the bill was the Missouri Corn Growers Association. Additional written testimony was submitted for information purposes.

HCS HB 1157 -- LAGERS

SPONSOR: Pike

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Pensions by a vote of 11 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1157.

Currently, political subdivisions located in third class counties and Cape Girardeau County may, by majority vote of the governing body, elect to cover certain employee classes as public safety personnel members in the Local Government Employees' Retirement System (LAGERS).

This bill adds political subdivisions located in counties of the second classification and any county of the first classification with more than 65,000 but fewer than 75,000 inhabitants and with a county seat with more than 15,000 but fewer than seventeen thousand inhabitants, allowing St. Francis County to also cover such employee classes.

This bill is the same as SB 255 (2021).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill will allow other counties to be able to cover certain public safety personnel members under LAGERS allowing for retention of good employees.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Pike; Arnie Dienoff; Charles Anderson, Callaway County Ambulance District; Missouri Ambulance Association; and the Missouri Local Government Employees Retirement System .

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

HB 1335 -- CHILDREN IN FOSTER CARE

SPONSOR: Sauls

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 11 to 0.

This bill allows the Division of Children Services within the Department of Social Services to permit children to voluntarily reenter foster care if due to the child's age the child left care during the COVID-19 pandemic. The Division will provide children with notice of this option, facilitate the return to care, and conduct a public awareness campaign for children under 22 years of age, until September 30, 2021 or while there is a state of emergency due to the pandemic whichever is later.

This bill includes an emergency clause.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill puts Missouri in compliance with federal law. The expense created by this bill can also be covered by federal funds, so it will not cost the state any money. The bill protects people who may are already struggling and whose struggle has been magnified in a pandemic. This bill helps provide stability and care for people who aged out during a time when they were not able to receive full care.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Sauls; Claire Terrebonne, Jackson County CASA; Kids Win Missouri; Katherine Rodgers; Arnie C. Dienoff; American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri; Missouri Coalition of Children's Agencies; and Lori Ross, Foster Adopt Connect.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say the state needs to do more for older youth, who were already likely to experience poor outcomes without a pandemic. The Children's Division is not able to keep these children in care, instead, courts should be the ones required to implement this idea.

Testifying on the bill were the Department of Social Services, and the Office of Child Advocate.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full

HCS HB 1415 -- UTILITIES

SPONSOR: Bromley

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 7 to 2.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1415.

This bill provides that the Public Service Commission shall have the authority to adjust the rates of utility corporations that do not have general rate proceedings pending as of the effective date of the bill to reflect the effects of any tax legislation passed by the U.S. Congress or the General Assembly. As an alternative to the rate change, an electrical corporation may make deferrals to a regulatory asset, provided that good cause is shown.

The bill also specifies that, before the Public Service Commission (PSC) issues an approval for a merchant line, an entity, defined in the bill, must provide the PSC with a resolution of support passed by the county commission in each county through which the merchant line will be built. The bill specifies that no entity has the power of eminent domain for the purposes of constructing merchant lines. This restriction will not apply to any rural electric cooperatives or any electrical corporation operating under a cooperative business plan.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this deals with utility rate adjustments for utilities regulated by the Public Service Commission (PSC). If there is a change in tax legislation, utilities can avoid having to file a complete rate case to get the utility relief refund. It allows the utility to submit information and it would be considered by the PSC and the PSC would have to refund the customers. If there is a tax increase, the utility could start accruing money on the books for what the tax liability would do to their overall tax structures. They could put the money on the books to show that the legislation cost them that money. This does nothing to PSC's authority. There can be an adjustment without a full hearing, basically. Full rate cases can even take 11 months, so it would take a long time for utilities to be able to recover from customers or to refund customers, depending on which way the taxes go. The bill is asymmetric toward benefiting customers. Under this bill, the PSC could get money refunded to customers much more quickly because they have to make a decision within 180 days.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying for the bill were Representative Bromley; Liberty Utilities; Evergy; Summit Utilities; and Ameren Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that rate payers will be suffering for this legislation. The only way they make their money is from rate payers. This bill was not presented when tax rates went down, so it is not actually as fair to consumers as they want you to believe. Plant In Service Accounting (PISA) drives rates higher and higher. Ameren filed for a 12% rate increase today. Nothing is being done for customers because it says it is fair to customers because they get a faster refund when rates go down, but no one is talking about tax reductions; the federal government is talking about a tax increase, so it is irrelevant.

Testifying against the bill were Arnie C. Dienoff; and David Woodsmall, Midwest Energy Consumers Group.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 518 -- ENFORCEMENT OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENT

SPONSOR: Shaul

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Financial Institutions by a vote of 10 to 0.

This bill updates our statutes to follow the current UCC code regarding negotiable instruments. Currently, a person who is not in possession of an instrument can enforce the instrument if the loss of possession was not the result of a transfer or lawful seizure and the person cannot reasonably obtain possession. The bill adds the requirement that the person was entitled to enforce the instrument when the loss of possession occurred or the person has directly or indirectly acquired ownership of the instrument from a person who was entitled to enforce the instrument with the loss of possession occurred.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

PROPONENTS: Supporters for the bill say it will help the banking industry be more efficient by going digital and eliminating the need for physical signed instruments. The bill also updates the uniform commercial code to the current uniform standard.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Shaul; Missouri Bankers Association; Arnie C. Dienoff; and Heartland Credit Union Association.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 571 -- CONSUMER LOANS

SPONSOR: Owen

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Financial Institutions by a vote of 12 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 571.

CONTRACTS FOR MOTOR VEHICLE TIME SALES (Sections 365.100 and 365.140 RSMo)

The bill updates a statutory reference for the allowance of a fee for a check with insufficient funds, from repealed Section 408.653 to Section 570.120, which allows a charge of $25 plus the amount actually charged by the bank for the bounced check. The bill states that if a retail installment contract is paid in full, the buyer must be given proof of payment in full.

INTEREST AND FEES FOR LOANS (Sections 408.035, 408.100, 408.140, and 408.178)

Currently, the parties to a loan may agree in writing to the interest rate and fees on a business loan of $5,000 or more.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003211

This bill removes such loans from statute and instead adds loans that are an extension of credit primarily for agricultural, business, or commercial purposes.

Currently, the parties to a small loan may contract for the interest rate as agreed by the parties, except that it excludes loans that are secured by a lien on nonprocessed farm products, livestock, farm machinery, or crops or loans to corporations. This bill removes that exclusion.

This bill allows a small loan to charge the reasonable and bona fide third-party fees incurred in filing or recording an instrument to secure a loan. Currently, the lender of the loan can charge up to $25 for a bounced check. This bill instead allows the charge to be up to $25 plus the amount actually charged by the bank for the bounced check.

Currently, a small loan lender may collect a fee in advance in exchange for deferring up to three loan payments; this bill removes this provision of law.

Currently, a lender may collect certain fees for deferring loan payments on loans that are originally $600 or more. This bill removes the requirement that the loan be $600 or more.

SECOND MORTGAGE LOANS (Sections 408.233 and 408.234)

This bill allows for a charge on the reasonable and bona fide third-party fees for remote or electronic filing on a second mortgage.

This bill removes a prohibition on lenders from making a second mortgage loan in an amount of less than $2,500.

RETAIL CREDIT SALES (Section 408.250)

This bill allows fees for retail credit sales to include fees incurred by the lender or a bona fide third-party for remote electronic filing or recording.

DEFAULTS (Sections 408.553 and 408.554)

Currently, a lender, upon default, may recover the amount the borrower would have been required to pay upon prepayment, with interest. The bill instead allows a lender to collect the amount due and accrued under the agreement, including interest and penalties through the date of payment in full or the date of a final judgment. After a judgment, the bill additionally allows the lender to recover simple interest, as applied to the amount of the judgment until the day the judgment is paid.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The bill removes a provision that in the event of a second default on a small loan or retail credit sale loan or a third default on a second mortgage loan, the borrower will have no right to cure the default.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill streamlines compliance, promotes small business and farm lending, allows for third party recording, clarifies language in the event of defaults, and corrects references in statutes. The goal of this legislation is to provide clarity in the law where vagueness has left the law open to interpretation.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Owen and Missouri Bankers Association.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted online written testimony.

Testifying against the bill were Arnie Dienoff and Marla Marantz.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCB 1 -- PUBLIC EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT SYSTEMS

SPONSOR: Pike

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "To Introduce" by the Committee on Pensions by a vote of 11 to 0.

This bill modifies provisions related to public employee retirement systems.

GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTABILITY PORTAL (Section 37.850, RSMo)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003213

This bill requires all public employee retirement systems and quasi-governmental entities to report such system's or entity's employees' salaries and any incentive pay to the Missouri government accountability portal in the same manner as all state departments and agencies report, excluding any retiree pension information.

This bill is similar to HB 2476 (2020).

LOCAL GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES' RETIREMENT SYSTEM (Section 70.631)

Currently, political subdivisions located in third class counties and Cape Girardeau County may, by majority vote of the governing body, elect to cover certain employee classes as public safety personnel members in the Local Government Employees' Retirement System (LAGERS). This bill allows political subdivisions located in counties of the second classification and St. Francis county to also cover such employee classes.

This bill is the same as SB 255 (2021).

STATE EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT SYSTEMS

The bill proposes cleanup language affecting the Missouri State Employees' Retirement System (MOSERS) and the MoDOT and Patrol Employees' Retirement System (MPERS).

MPERS

The bill makes the following modifications to MPERS:

(1) Allows a terminated vested employee to restore service if they become a member, working for a department, for one day instead of one year (Section 104.035, RSMo);

(2) Removes language requiring the election of the Chair and Vice Chair of the MPERS Board from being by secret ballot (Section 104.170);

(3) Clarifies that the statute of limitations for correcting an error starts upon the member’s annuity starting date or date of error, whichever is later. This change also adds language to exclude cases of fraud from the statute of limitations (Section 104.200); and

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(4) Specifies employees of the State Water Patrol that terminate employment and return to the same position are members of the system in which he or she was a member prior to termination and if the employee returns to any other job he or she is a member of the system that currently covers that position (Section 104.810).

MOSERS

The bill makes the following modifications to MOSERS:

(1) Moves language from Section 104.625 related to division of benefit orders and backdrop payments to Section 104.312 where other division of benefit order language resides (Section 104.312);

(2) Limits the amount of service a member of the General Assembly or statewide elected official can accrue while on long-term disability (Section 104.410);

(3) Removes the requirement that the contributions for unfunded accrued liabilities be determined using the level percent-of-payroll amortization method (Section 104.436);

(4) Clarifies that the statute of limitations for correcting an error starts upon the member's annuity starting date or date of error, whichever is later. This change also adds language to exclude cases of fraud from the statute of limitations (Sections 104.490.1 and 104.1060);

(5) Allows members who terminate employment after reaching normal or early retirement age and become a retiree within 65 days of termination, instead of 60 days, to receive $5,000 of life insurance coverage (Section 104.515);

(6) Removes the option for members to receive the lump sum backdrop payment in three equal installments (Sections 104.625 and 104.1024);

(7) Removes any service of a member accrued during the backdrop period from being considered creditable service when calculating the monthly amount under a division of benefit order pursuant to Section 104.312 (Section 104.625);

(8) Deletes the definition of year as used in the definition of employee. This language should have previously been removed when Section 104.1039 was modified to reflect requirements for

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

reemployed members (Section 104.1003);

(9) Puts terminated non-vested members who become reemployed in a MOSERS covered position in the Year 2000 plan (Section 104.1015);

(10) Clarifies that members who terminate after reaching normal retirement eligibility are eligible to retire under the provisions of Section 104.1024 (Section 104.1018);

(11) Corrects a statutory citation (Section 104.1024);

(12) Clarifies that members who terminate after reaching normal eligibility are eligible to retire under the provisions of Section 104.1024 (Section 104.1024);

(13) Removes any service of a member accrued during the backdrop period from being considered creditable service when calculating the monthly amount under a division of benefit order (Section 104.1024);

(14) Excludes a member's sick leave accruals from the calculation of the monthly benefit amount subject to division under a division of benefit order (Section 104.1051);

(15) Moves language from Section 104.1024 related to division of benefit orders and backdrop payments to Section 104.1051 where other division of benefit order language resides (Section 104.1051):

(16) Removes the requirement that the contributions for unfunded accrued liabilities be determined using the level percent-of-payroll amortization method (Section 104.1066);

(17) Allows members who terminate employment after reaching normal or early retirement age and become a retiree within 65 days of termination, instead of 60 days, to receive $5,000 of life insurance coverage (Section 104.1072);

(18) Limits the amount of service a member of the General Assembly or statewide elected official can accrue while on long-term disability (Section 104.1084);

(19) Clarifies that members who terminate employment after reaching early retirement eligibility remain eligible for early retirement (Section 104.1091);

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(20) Clarifies when a member can receive a refund of their employee contributions after termination (Section 104.1091);

(21) Clarifies that members who terminate after reaching normal retirement eligibility are eligible to retire (Section 104.1091);

(22) Clarifies that members who terminate employment after reaching early retirement eligibility remain eligible for early retirement (Section 104.1091);

(23) Clarifies that the delayed survivor annuity provision applies to members who terminated employment prior to reaching early retirement eligibility (Section 104.1091);

(24) Clarifies that the delayed cost-of-living provision adjustment applies to members who terminated employment prior to reaching early retirement eligibility (Section 104.1091); and

(25) Makes the interest rate credited to a judge's employee contribution balance the 52 week treasury bill rate, instead of 4%. This change brings the Judicial 2011 plan in align with the MSEP 2011 plan (Section 476.521).

This bill is similar to HB 1999 (2020).

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION AND HIGHWAY PATROL EMPLOYEES' RETIREMENT SYSTEM BOARD (Section 104.160)

The bill modifies the Board membership of the Missouri Department of Transportation and Highway Patrol Employees' Retirement System by having the terms of the active employee representatives serving on the Board on August 28, 2022, to continue an additional two years until June 30, 2024 and after such date all terms of elected active employee representatives shall be for four years beginning July 1, 2024 and every four years thereafter.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill puts together four non-controversial bills that were heard in the Pensions committee. The bills are good public policy and need to move through the process. The bills included in the House Committee Bill are HB 29, HB 1157, HB 701 and HB 1418.

Testifying for the bill was Representative Pike.

HCS HCR 48 -- HOLOCAUST REMEMBRANCE DAY

SPONSOR: Dogan

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 13 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HCR 48.

This resolution designates April 8, 2021, as "Holocaust Remembrance Day" in Missouri.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill is important to remember Holocaust victims in order to understand and appreciate their lives and the communities they built.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Dogan; Arnie Dienoff; and the Jewish Federation of St. Louis.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HJR 48 -- VOTING RIGHTS

SPONSOR: Trent

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 7 to 2.

Upon voter approval, this Constitutional amendment specifies that only citizens of the United States who are over the age of 18 and residents of Missouri may vote.

This bill is the same as HJR 75 (2020).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003218

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill clarifies that only citizens of the United States may vote in all types of elections.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Trent; Arnie C. Dienoff; and Donna Ortner.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that it is unnecessary because the law already clearly prohibits non-citizens from voting. The change may be viewed as hostile by immigrants and those desiring to become citizens.

Testifying against the bill were Susan Gibson; and the American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

SCR 2 -- SALES TAX REFUNDS TO CERTAIN TAXPAYERS

SPONSOR: Moon

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Ways and Means by a vote of 9 to 0.

This concurrent resolution calls on the Department of Revenue to issue refunds to businesses and individuals for sales and use taxes paid as a result of an audit conducted by the department between August 28, 2005, and August 28, 2015, when such amounts owed were due to an expansion of the department's interpretation of taxable items for which the taxpayer did not collect the tax.

This concurrent resolution also calls on the Department to issue refunds to businesses and individuals that supplied wedding venues and charged sales tax for such venues as a result of an audit by the Department between January 1, 2018, and October 1, 2019.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the Department of Revenue reinterpreted Missouri's sales tax laws and incorrectly collected sales tax from certain taxpayers. These taxpayers deserve refunds in order to make these taxpayers financially whole.

HB 293 -- OFFENDER REGISTRIES

SPONSOR: Roberts

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 6 to 1.

This bill specifies that the State Highway Patrol must maintain on its website a registry for violent offenders who are on probation or parole for the offense of first or second degree murder in Missouri or for an equivalent offense in any other state. The Division of Probation and Parole of the Department of Corrections must notify the State Highway Patrol if a violent offender is placed on probation or parole, is removed from probation or parole, or relocates to the state under the Interstate Compact for adult offender supervision so the State Highway Patrol can update the Offender Registry accordingly.

This bill is the same as HB 1343 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that there are a number of people who are on parole for murder and Missouri receives some such inmates from across state lines via compact. A conviction of murder in the second degree is often the result of a plea bargain and the underlying offense was murder in the first degree. This would allow people who have concerns about others to search a registry just like they could with the sex offender registry. Registries are not popular things so this would create a new category in the sex offender registry, which is already maintained by the Missouri State Highway Patrol and would not be a new registry. It would just create a category people could search online. It should not be a heavy workload to add, especially because this is not a new registry that has to be created anew. The registry requirements would be the same as what is currently required of people who are on the sex offender registry. One witness testified about her sister who was murdered by a man whom she was renting a room to and she did not know he had already murdered before. This would be a good tool for law enforcement.

HB 440 -- ANHYDROUS AMMONIA

SPONSOR: Knight

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 14 to 0.

This bill repeals provisions of law that give the Department of Agriculture oversight over standards relating to anhydrous ammonia and authorizes the Air Conservation Commission to adopt, promulgate, amend, and repeal rules and regulations for covered processes at agricultural stationary sources that use, store, or sell anhydrous ammonia, and regulations necessary to implement and enforce the risk management plans under the federal Clean Air Act.

Each retail agricultural facility that uses, stores, or sells anhydrous ammonia that is an air contaminant source subject to a risk management plan under the federal Clean Air Act must pay an annual registration of $200. The bill also establishes an annual tonnage fee for anhydrous ammonia of $1.25 per ton used or sold.

Each distributor or terminal agricultural facility that uses, stores, or sells anhydrous ammonia that is an air contaminant source subject to a Risk Management Plan Program 3 under federal regulations relating to chemical accident prevention must pay an annual registration of $5,000 and does not pay a tonnage fee.

The bill creates the "Anhydrous Ammonia Risk Management Plan Subaccount" within the Natural Resources Protection Fund which shall consist of fees required in these provisions.

This bill is similar to HB 2573 (2020).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003223

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill would reduce regulations on retailers of anhydrous ammonia by consolidating all regulations within the Department of Natural Resoruces, the agency with expertise to implement the new program. Those testifying also said that the industry supports the fees included in the bill in order to ensure proper funding for a successful program.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Knight; Missouri Farm Bureau; Missouri Corn Growers Association; Missouri Soybean Association; Liz Hobart, Growmark FS, Incorporated; and Missouri Agribusiness.

Additional written testimony was submitted in support of the bill.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say although the Department of Agriculture currently has authority for safety inspections, but the Department of Natural Resources has the expertise for the risk management plans and will be creating the new Environmental Protection Agency anhydrous ammonia program.

Testifying on the bill were Missouri Department of Agriculture; and Missouri Department of Natural Resources.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 467 -- SEXUAL OFFENDERS

SPONSOR: Dinkins

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 10 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 467.

Currently, Tier I sexual offenses include child molestation in the second degree under Section 566.098, RSMo, as it existed prior to January 1, 2017, if the punishment is less than one year. This bill changes the provision to include the offense if it is a misdemeanor.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this addresses people who have been left off the tier list for the sexual offender registry. This addresses the people who were sentenced to exactly one year because there is nowhere on the tier system to go and that means they automatically go to tier III, which is the tier typically reserved for the worst offenders.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Dinkins; Missouri Association Of Prosecuting Attorneys; Missouri Office Of Prosecution Services; and Arnie C. Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 1003 -- APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIANS

SPONSOR: Evans

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 9 to 0.

This bill modifies language related to exemptions for individuals seeking appointment as a guardian or conservator from a background screening. The bill adds a ward's grandparents to the current list of relatives exempt from the screening, unless a background report is requested by a party to the proceeding or ordered by the court.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this is a grandparent bill, which is the most common form of guardianship in Missouri. The law here gives a preference to grandparents when parents are unable or unwilling to take care of their children. Most of those are uncontested. This bill says that, in uncontested cases, the grandparents should not have to pay extra money to get a full background check. Because it is uncontested; all parties agree that the grandparents should be the guardians.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003225

Testifying for the bill was Representative Evans.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 1135 -- LIENS ON STORED PROPERTY

SPONSOR: Hardwick

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 13 to 0.

Currently, notice to sell defaulted property must be made in the classified section of a newspaper in the jurisdiction. This bill retains that notice, but allows the seller to advertise in any other commercially reasonable manner. The advertisement is commercially reasonable if at least three independent bidders arrive at the sale.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that current notice provisions are outdated and need to be modernized to expand reach. Online notice provides results and is cost efficient. Often, property sales do not generate more money than facilities are owed, so this bill will help recover some money.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Hardwick; Mike Burnam, Self Storage Association.

OPPONENTS: Arnie C. Dienoff provided written oppositional testimony.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 1296 -- FOREIGN OWNERSHIP AGRICULTURAL LAND

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003226

SPONSOR: Andrews

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 17 to 0.

This bill prohibits a nonresident alien who is a citizen of or an entity with majority ownership by citizens of a country that has a policy that prohibits foreign ownership of land by Americans from acquiring any agricultural land in the state. The prohibition does not apply to any person or entity owning agricultural land on August 28, 2021, or their direct descendants.

If the Attorney General determines agricultural land is held in violation of this prohibition, he or she must file a notice of pendency of action with the Recorder of Deeds or each county in which the land is located. If the court finds that the land in question has been acquired in violation of the provisions, it must enter an order declaring so and file a copy with the Recorder of Deeds, and the order the owner to divest his or her interest in the land. Any property not divested within the time set in the order, will be sold by the court at a public sale.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the security of the nation's food supply is extremely important and that this bill helps protect food security by keeping the farmland of the state in control of those who act in the resident's best interest.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Andrews and Missouri Farm Bureau.

Additional written testimony was submitted in support of the bill.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that Missouri has a long history of immigration and this bill would prohibit certain people from being able to own agricultural land. Foreign investment is what built this country and what keeps the country going especially in times of domestic economic downturn. This bill would discourage foreign investment in Missouri.

Testifying against the bill were Missouri Pork Association and Smithfield Foods.

Additional written testimony was submitted in opposition of the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003227

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say there are currently 27.6 million acres in the state that are classified as agricultural land. According to the Department, 0.36% is held in foreign ownership and 0.16% counts toward the current 1% cap on foreign ownership.

Testifying on the bill was Missouri Department of Agriculture.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 1444 -- SHOW ME THE MONEY JOB PROTECTION

SPONSOR: Riggs

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Downsizing State Government by a vote of 8 to 4.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1444.

This bill creates the "Show Me the Money Job Protection Act".

The bill requires the Department of Economic Development to authorize the enforcement of any federal law, rule, or regulation, that could result in job elimination.

The Department shall authorize the enforcement if it determines no jobs would be lost, or if a state agency or political subdivision provides a plan to replace lost jobs or create new jobs that pay at least as much as estimated job losses. The bill applies only to state agencies and political subdivisions which are subject to Department oversight. The Department is authorized to make rules to administer and enforce the bill's requirements.

This section does not apply to federal laws, rules, regulations, or orders:

(1) Applicable to the National Guard or Air National Guard;

(2) Required of the state under Medicaid law, 42 U.S.C. 1396 et seq.;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003228

(3) That are a condition of receiving funding under Medicaid law, 42 U.S.C. 1396 et seq.;

(4) That protect a right that the Supreme Court of the United States has found to be a fundamental right; or

(5) That protect a right that is also protected under state law.

Each department of the state shall review all federal laws, rules, regulations, and orders that affect the Department and shall report any federal law, rule, regulation, or order whose enforcement would eliminate a job in this state to the Director of the Department of Economic Development no later than three months after the effective date of this section.

This bill contains an emergency clause.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill will ensure that any federal laws implemented in Missouri brings new jobs or replace any jobs that are lost because Missouri cannot afford to lose more jobs.

Testifying for the bill was Representative Riggs.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

SCS SCR 3 -- DRED SCOTT

SPONSOR: Roberts

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Special Committee on Urban Issues by a vote of 6 to 0.

This resolution calls upon the General Assembly to condemn the March 22, 1852, Dred Scott decision issued by the Missouri Supreme Court.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this resolution will put on the record that the Dred Scott decision is wrong and that it was based on the "political wind" at the time. That "wind" has shifted.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Roberts; Arnie C. Dienoff; Missouri Catholic Conference; American Civil Liberities Union of Missouri; and Lois Hogan, Dred Scott Heritage Foundation.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

HCS SS SB 176 -- ELECTRONIC DEVICES

SPONSOR: Hough

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 11 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 176.

FOOD DELIVERY PLATFORM (Section 196.276, RSMo)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003231

This bill requires a food delivery platform in Missouri to file a certificate of formation or registration with the Secretary of State prior to delivering or picking up an order from a restaurant. The food delivery platform must have the restaurant's consent and a written agreement that specifies any fee that the restaurant is required to pay prior to picking up or delivering an order.

A food delivery platform is prohibited from appearing to sponsor or endorse a restaurant and the food delivery platform may not alter any pricing or change the fee charged to a restaurant for using the delivery service without a written agreement.

The bill requires a food delivery service to remove a restaurant from their platform upon the restaurants request within 10 days, except as specified in the bill, and a consumer must be provided with a way to express concerns regarding his or her order directly to the food delivery platform.

A restaurant may bring an action to enjoin a violation of these provisions and if the violation is proven the court shall issue an injunction requiring the food delivery platform to pay all profits derived from or damages caused by the wrongful bill and order the wrongful bill to be terminated. If the court finds that the food delivery platform committed a wrongful bill by not having an agreement or written consent with the restaurant then the court may enter a judgment in an amount not to exceed three times the amount of the profits and damages; and award reasonable attorney's fees to the restaurant.

This provision has a delayed effective date of January 1, 2022.

These provisions are similar to SB 574 and HB 1280 (2021).

ELECTRIC BICYCLES (Sections 300.010, 301.010, 302.010, 303.020, 304.001, 307.025, 307.180, 307.188, 307.193, 307.194, 365.020, 407.560, 407.815, 407.1025, and 578.120)

As used in Chapters 300 and 301, RSMo, the bill defines "electric bicycle" as a bicycle with fully operable pedals, a seat for the rider, and an electric motor of less than 750 watts that meets the requirements of one of three classes:

(1) "Class 1 electric bicycle", an electric bicycle equipped with a motor that provides assistance only when the rider is pedaling and that ceases to provide assistance when the bicycle

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

reaches the speed of 20 miles per hour;

(2) "Class 2 electric bicycle", an electric bicycle equipped with a motor that may be used exclusively to propel the bicycle and that is not capable of providing assistance when the bicycle reaches the speed of 20 miles per hour; or

(3) "Class 3 electric bicycle", an electric bicycle equipped with a motor that provides assistance only when the rider is pedaling and that ceases to provide assistance when the bicycle reaches the speed of 28 miles per hour.

Other definitions within those chapters are changed to either specifically include or exclude "electric bicycle".

As used in Chapters 302, 303, 307, 365 and 407 "electric bicycle" is defined in reference to its definition in Chapter 301, and other definitions within those chapters are changed to either specifically include or exclude "electric bicycle".

In Section 578.120, "electric bicycle" is specifically excepted from the prohibition on Sunday sales.

The bill also provides that every person riding an electric bicycle upon a street or highway shall be granted all of the rights and shall be subject to all of the duties applicable to the operator of a bicycle, or the driver of a vehicle as provided by Chapter 304, except as to special regulations in Sections 307.180 to 307.193 and except as to those provisions of Chapter 304 which by their nature can have no application.

Operation of an electric bicycle is not subject to provisions of law that are applicable to motor vehicles, all-terrain vehicles, off-road vehicles, off-highway vehicles, motor vehicle rentals, motor vehicle dealers or franchises, or motorcycle dealers or franchises, including vehicle registration, certificates of title, drivers' licenses, and financial responsibility.

Beginning August 28, 2021, manufacturers and distributors of electric bicycles are required to apply a permanent label to each electric bicycle in a prominent location, which must contain the classification number, top assisted speed, and motor wattage of the electric bicycle. The text on the label must be Arial font and in at least nine-point type. A person is prohibited from tampering with or modifying an electric bicycle in such a way that changes the motor-powered speed capability or engagement of the electric bicycle unless he or she replaces the required label with a new label indicating the new classification.

An electric bicycle must comply with the equipment and manufacturing requirements for bicycles adopted by the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission, 16 CFR 1512. An electric bicycle must be operated so that the electric motor is disengaged or ceases to function when the rider stops pedaling or when the brakes are applied.

Electric bicycles can be ridden where bicycles are permitted, subject to certain provisions set out in the bill. The use of a class 3 electric bicycle is subject to certain provisions set out in the bill, including the operator must be 16 years old, and be equipped with a speedometer.

These provisions are similar to HB 307 and SB 38 (2021).

PERSONAL DELIVERY DEVICES (Section 304.900)

This bill enacts provisions relating to personal delivery devices ("PDDs"), as defined in the bill.

PDDs may operate on sidewalks and crosswalks, and may operate on county or municipal roadways provided they do not unreasonably interfere with motor vehicles or traffic.

PDDs shall not block public rights of way, shall obey traffic and pedestrian control signals, shall not exceed 10 miles per hour on a sidewalk, shall display a unique identification number, shall include a means of identifying the operator of the device, and shall be equipped with a system allowing the device to come to a controlled stop.

PDDs operating on sidewalks shall have the same responsibilities as pedestrians. PDDs shall be exempt from motor vehicle registration requirements, and shall maintain a general liability insurance policy of at least $100,000. PDDs operated at night shall be equipped with lighting as provided in the bill. PDDs shall not be used to transport hazardous materials regulated by federal law as specified in the bill.

Nothing in this bill shall prohibit a political subdivision from regulating the operation of PDDs on highways or pedestrian areas to insure the welfare and safety of its residents. However, political subdivisions shall not regulate the design, manufacture and maintenance of PDDs or the types of property they may transport. No political subdivision shall treat PDDs differently than other similar personal property for assessment or taxation purposes, or for other charges.

The bill prohibits PDD operators from selling or disclosing a personally identifiable likeness, as described in the bill, to a third party in exchange for monetary compensation. Use of personally identifiable likenesses by PDD operators to improve their products or services is specifically allowed under the bill, and information that would otherwise be protected under the bill shall only be provided to a law enforcement entity by subpoena.

These provisions are similar to HCS HB 592 (2021) and similar to HCS HB 2290 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill helps modernize components of daily life. The bill also maintains local control by giving communities the ability to choose how to regulate these devices and how to continually update regulations. There are multiple provisions addressing safety so that technology and people can interact.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Hough; Arnie C. Dienoff; Fedex Corporation and Missouri Retailers Association; Missouri Chamber of Commerce and Industry; and Amazon.com Services.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SB 226 -- SALES TAX

SPONSOR: Koenig

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Ways and Means by a vote of 10 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 226.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003235

This bill modifies provisions relating to sales taxes.

SALES TAX FILING PERIODS (Section 144.080, RSMo)

Current law provides statutory sales tax collection thresholds to determine the frequency at which sellers shall file and remit sales taxes collected, with such periods being quarter-monthly, monthly, quarterly, and annually. Current law also allows the Department of Revenue to increase, but not decrease, such thresholds through rule. This bill modifies the statutory thresholds for the monthly, quarterly, and annual filing periods.

For monthly filing, the threshold is changed from at least $250 in the first or second month of a calendar quarter to at least $500 per calendar month for the prior year.

For quarterly filing, the threshold is changed from at least $45 in a calendar quarter, but not subject to monthly filing to less than $500 per calendar month, but at least $200 in a calendar quarter.

For annual filing, the threshold is changed from less than $45 per calendar quarter to less than $200 per calendar quarter.

This provision is the same as SB 741 (2020) and SB 141 (2019).

SALES TAX RETENTION (Section 144.142)

Beginning August 28, 2021, and ending June 30, 2023, this bill authorizes sellers to deduct and retain 100% of the state portion of sales tax levied on purchases of admission tickets to movies, films, and musical performances, as well as on sales of concessions sold onsite at such seller's place of business.

This provision is similar to HB 1307 and SB 529 (2021).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the current thresholds for filing periods have not been updated in decades and this update needs to happen.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Koenig; Missouri Society of

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

HB 84 -- ADVANCED PRACTICE REGISTERED NURSES

SPONSOR: Stephens (128)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Health and Mental Health Policy by a vote of 13 to 1.

This bill modifies provisions regarding advanced practice registered nurses (APRNs) working in a collaborative practice arrangement.

Under current law, a collaborating physician cannot enter into a collaborative practice arrangement with more than six full-time equivalent assistant physicians, physician assistants, or APRNs, or any combination thereof. This bill removes that limitation for APRNs.

The bill requires an APRN to have a certificate of controlled substance prescriptive authority to administer, dispense, or prescribe certain controlled substances.

This bill removes several collaborative practice requirements, including the requirement to post a notice at every office, the geographic proximity requirement, the requirement that the physician review the APRNs health care services, and the completion of a one-month practice period before practicing without the collaborating physician being continuously present. The bill states that rules promulgated by the State Board of Registration for the Healing Arts, within the Department of Commerce and Insurance, must be limited to delegating authority to prescribe controlled substances and any previously adopted rules that are not so limited are null and void.

This bill is similar to provisions in HB 2226 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say these changes are needed to improve health care quality in rural areas. Supporters also believe that Telehealth is an effective way to operate remotely and the distance restriction currently in place is an outdated rule.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Stephens; Alaina Wyatt-Durk; Amanda Kurtz, Skin Solutions Spa & Boutique, LLC DBA: Revive Medical Aesthetics; Brandon Forester; Dennis Conrow; Elise Schaller; Jennifer Bernstein, National Council of Jewish Women St. Louis; Americans for Prosperity; Missouri Family Health Council, Inc.; Maria Lena Walls; Nicholas Fleming; Rachel Melson; Raymond E. Sisk; Shanna Denae Chapman; Tamara McGuire; Leadingage Missouri; Association of Missouri Nurse Practitioners; and AARP Missouri; Christine Marie Corbett; Susan Klotz; Ashley Carpenter; Missouri Hospital Association; Bruce Fletcher; Elaine Briggs DNP-APRN-FNP-BC; BJC Healthcare, Missouri Association of Rural Health Clinics; Missouri Nurses Association; SSM Health; National Council State Board of Nursing; Laura L. Kuensting; Mary Beck, RN, University of Missouri Health Care; Sarah Thompson, University Missouri Sinclair School Nursing; Nathan Granneman, Big Tree Medical Home; and Carl H Smith.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say you can't do a proper exam via telehealth. Opponents also say the level of training for an Advanced Practice Registered Nurse is not sufficient enough to not be under a doctor's direct supervision.

Testifying against the bill were Wesley Powell; Arnie Dienoff; Missouri Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons; George Hubbell, MD, Missouri State Medical Association; Missouri Dermatological Society; Todd Shaffer, MD, Missouri Academy of Family Physicians.

Testifying on the bill was Heidi B. Miller, MD, St. Louis Regional Health Commission.

HB 213 -- COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENT DISTRICTS

SPONSOR: Hill

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Downsizing State Government by a vote of 11 to 0.

This bill makes changes to the community improvement district laws. In its main provisions, the bill:

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(1) Adds the anticipated source of funds to pay improvement costs, and the anticipated term of the source of funds to the list of items that must be included in the five-year plan that is required to be included in a petition to establish a community improvement district;

(2) Limits the duration of the district to 21 years unless the municipality extends the time pursuant to statute;

(3) Requires a municipal clerk to report in writing the creation of a community improvement district to the state auditor;

(4) Sets out the qualifications for a district director if there are no registered voters in the district;

(5) Provides that even if the board of directors is to be elected pursuant to the petition to establish the district, a least one member must be appointed for a four-year term by the governing body of the municipality.

Contracts for construction or professional services must be submitted to competitive bidding and must be awarded to the lowest or best bidder. Notice of letting of the contract must be given in the manner provided in Section 8.250, RSMo.

Currently, community improvement districts are required, within 120 days after the end of the fiscal year, to submit a report to the municipal clerk and the Department of Economic Development stating the services provided, revenues collected, and expenditures made by the district during the fiscal year. The bill requires that the report include the dates the district adopted its annual budget, submitted its proposed annual budget to the municipality, and submitted its annual report to the municipal clerk.

If a district fails to timely submit a proposed annual budget to the municipality, adopt an annual budget, or submit an annual report to the municipal clerk or the Department, it will be subject to a fine of $100 per day, which will be imposed and collected by the Department and paid into the public school fund of the municipality in which the district is located.

When a district expires or terminates, the real and personal property, machinery, equipment, materials, and supplies of the district must be sold or transferred according to the plan for dissolution approved by ordinance, and all proceeds of the sold property and district funds must be distributed to the public school fund of the municipality in which the district is located.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

If a sales tax is imposed by a district, a sign must be posted outdoors by each customer entry of each retail establishment in the district. The sign cannot be smaller than one foot by two feet, and the writing on the sign must be clearly legible and no smaller than three-quarters inch in height. A sign must also be posted at the point of sale area. The sign must state that the Community Improvement District board of directors charges a sales tax of a given percent, in addition to the state and local sales tax rates.

This bill is the same as HB 2235 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill will create more structure to community improvement district programs. The bill will make it more difficult for these programs from getting taken advantage of.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Hill; and Arnie Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the bill will redistribute funds to school districts which may cause tension with cities and school districts. Also, the 21-year expiration may harm the work getting completed in these programs.

Testifying against the bill were Missouri Municipal League; City of Springfield - Department Of Economic Development.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 445 -- SPECIAL ROAD DISTRICTS

SPONSOR: McGirl

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Local Government by a vote of 10 to 0.

Currently, certain special road districts are restricted to expend not more than one-fourth the district's revenue within the corporate limits of any city within the district.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003242

This bill removes the restriction.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill frees up the money to be used where most needed.

Testifying for the bill were Representative McGirl; Arnie C. Dienoff; Gary W. Boyer, Hillsboro Special Road District; Buddy Russell, Hillsboro Special Road District; and Missouri Municipal League.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 451 -- SNAP BENEFITS

SPONSOR: Bailey

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 10 to 0.

This bill requires a parent, caretaker relative, putative father, or identified noncustodial parent to cooperate with the child support program to be eligible for Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program benefits.

This bill is the same as HB 1597 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this requires a noncustodial parent to pay child support to receive SNAP benefits. The issue the bill is trying to address is with certain parents trying to avoid having to pay child support. This makes voluntary participation mandatory. Because the goal is to lift single parents out of poverty and to use more child support to feed kids rather than food stamps.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Bailey; Opportunity Solutions Project; and Arnie C. Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that they appreciate the intent and supporting kids and resources for kids but the effect would be that kids who are under-resourced because of a noncustodial parent would be further under-resourced because there would be less food available to the child or children. This is probably a motivator for some parents but removing food and help from families leads to higher rates of child abuse. There are many states who have enacted these policies and have repealed them because they found that they are not effective. There would be $3-$5 million worth of food less for the kids. To receive TANF, parents need to cooperate and most people are probably already doing that so it is possible that this legislation is not necessary. The custodial parent has to cooperate and so does the non-custodial parent. There is already a requirement that they cooperate so this is going to cost more money and people might choose to not cooperate.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying against the bill were the Missouri Coalition Against Domestic And Sexual Violence (MCADSV); Valerie Nicholson-Watson, Harvesters--The Community Food Network; KC Healthy Kids; Empower Missouri; Sarah Ritter, Operation Food Search; and Operation Food Search.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 461 -- OFFICER-INVOLVED DEATHS

SPONSOR: Dogan

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 9 to 0.

This bill requires every law enforcement agency to have a written policy regarding the investigation of officer-involved deaths. The written policy specified in the bill requires an investigation to be conducted by at least two investigators in the case of a traffic-related death; the investigation to use a crash reconstruction unit; and allows for an internal investigation.

The investigators conducting an investigation must provide a complete report to the prosecutor of the county or city not within a county in which the officer-involved death occurred.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003244

Compensation for participating in an investigation is determined by a manner consistent with a mutual aid agreement.

This bill is similar to HB 1923 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this requires law enforcement agencies to have independent investigations when there are officer-involved deaths. There is a large fiscal note from the Highway Patrol but that is likely because they are assuming the Patrol will be conducting the investigations, but that is not written in the bill. The investigations can be conducted by any adjoining agency; it just has to be an agency that does not employ the officer or officers involved in the death. It should not be any danger to an officer to release the facts of what happened even when charges are not brought against the officer. It is important that the investigations be conducted by an outside agency because an internal investigation could give the impression of camaraderie and that the agencies are simply "clearing their own." This should also help with recruiting issues because it would bring integrity back to the system and to the profession, and it would help improve the impression the public has of law enforcement.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Dogan; Jewish Community Relations Council; American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri; Arnie Dienoff; Michael Bell; and the Missouri State Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HB 508 -- FERAL SWINE

SPONSOR: Rone

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 14 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 508.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003245

This bill removes sheep from the certain provisions of law relating to restraining and providing notice to the owner of animals running at large and clarifies that the provisions apply to domestic swine.

Currently, any person who knowingly or recklessly releases any swine to live in the wild or possesses or transports certain live wild boar without a permit from the Department of Agriculture is guilty of a class A misdemeanor. This bill changes the penalties to a class E felony.

The bill also changes the term "feral hog" to "feral swine" and specifies that any person who kills a feral swine outside without the consent of the landowner or not in compliance with certain requirements is guilty of a class A misdemeanor.

The bill also repeals the requirements for the Department of Agriculture to promulgate rules relating to fencing and health standards for certain wild boar and swine held on private property.

This bill is similar to HB 1798 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that feral swine are a threat to two of the largest industries in the state, agriculture and outdoor recreation. Feral swine cause destruction to property and crops. In the past people have released hogs either due to economic downturn or for sport. Currently, there is very little to deter a person from releasing hogs into the wild and this bill would increase the penalty, which should deter people from releasing a hog. The bill also reduces regulations by repealing provisions relating to confinement permits within the Department of Agriculture, which were rarely, if ever, used.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Rone; Missouri Department of Conservation; Missouri Corn Growers Association; Missouri Farm Bureau; Missouri Soybean Association; Missouri Department of Agriculture; Eric Fuchs; Jeff Reed, Missouri Cattlemen's Association; Conservation Federation of Missouri; and the Missouri Pork Association.

OPPONENTS: There was written testimony submitted in opposition to the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003246

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say feral hogs cause over $1.5 billion in damage each year in the United States and can spread disease. In Germany, the feral hog population has tested positive for African Swine Flu (ASF) and although it has not spread to the domestic swine population, other countries are no longer accepting swine from Germany. If ASF were to be detected in the feral swine in Missouri, it could devastate the swine industry. Those testifying for information also stated that testing has shown that there are 14 distinct genetic feral swine populations within the state and that there has been intrastate transportation of feral swine.

Testifying on the bill were Abigale Meffert, Food Animal Protection Research Lab (FAPRL); Eleni Bickell, Missouri Science & Technology Initiative; and Travis Guerrant, United States Department of Agriculture.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 750 -- ASSET FORFEITURE

SPONSOR: Lovasco

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Special Committee on Criminal Justice by a vote of 6 to 4.

This bill prohibits law enforcement agencies and prosecuting authorities from referring, transferring, or otherwise relinquishing possession of seized property to a federal agency for the purpose of the property's forfeiture under federal law. Law enforcement agencies that participate in a multijurisdictional collaboration must transfer responsibility for the seized property to the state prosecuting authority. If federal law requires transfer of the property to a federal agency, the transferring law enforcement agency is prohibited from accepting payment of any kind or distribution of forfeiture proceeds from the federal agency.

This bill does not restrict a law enforcement agency from acting alone or collaborating with another agency, including a federal agency, to seize contraband or property a law enforcement agency has probable cause to believe is the proceeds or instrument of an offense.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This bill is the same as HB 1776 (2020) and similar to HCS HB 444 (2019).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that, under civil asset forfeiture, there is a process that allows your property to be charged with a civil lawsuit because it was allegedly used in the commission of a crime. It does not entitle you to due process because the person is not being charged with anything; it is just the property. These laws are designed to fight large drug cartels, theoretically, but when you provide government with overreaching, sweeping powers, a lot of people get hurt. Missouri has a robust process for asset forfeiture. A person has to be charged with a crime first and then the person's property can be charged in a crime. Nationwide, $5 million has been seized. There is an issue with the federal program that allows local agencies to keep assets from turning a case over to the federal government. People are concerned that this would help cartels. This will provide protections under current Missouri law for innocent people. In these federal programs, they are civil proceedings where the burden is on the person, with the help of an attorney, to prove that the property was not used in a crime. The proposed change will close a loophole that will allow law enforcement agencies to go around strong Missouri law and work with the federal government. That is how they get their departments funded so it incentivizes them to forfeit to the feds. Federal law does not have the same robust protections as Missouri law. The value of the forfeiture Missouri law enforcement agencies send to the feds is five times the value of assets seized in Missouri, and they want to do that because the federal asset forfeiture program allows them to keep the money.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Lovasco; Institute for Justice; Susan Gibson; American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri; Nancy J Bates; Jan Schumacher; Arthur Rizer; Americans for Prosperity; Jewish Community Relations Council; Michael Bobzin, Criminal Justice Ministry; and Christine Woody and Mallory Rusch, Empower Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that this is a critical asset in the fight against drugs. There is a lot of traffic going back and forth from St. Charles County. People are not being abused or being stopped for minor traffic offenses. Highway 70 is a major highway for drug trafficking, as is Highway 40.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying against the bill were Arnie C. Dienoff; Kevin Merritt, Missouri Sheriffs United; and St. Charles County.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying on the bill were Mike Wood; and David Edward Roland.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HBs 848, 617 & 822 -- DAYLIGHT SAVING AS NEW STANDARD TIME

SPONSOR: Sander

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Downsizing State Government by a vote of 10 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 848.

This bill establishes the "Daylight Saving as New Standard Time Pact" consisting of this state and any other state desiring to abstain from observation of Daylight Saving Time. The bill exempts all areas of the state from the federal Daylight Saving Time provisions.

In the year in which a majority of states bordering Missouri have passed legislation entering those states into the Pact, each state will switch clocks to Daylight Saving for the last time and Daylight Saving Time will be eliminated.

This bill is similar to HB 1356 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill would allow for Missourians to benefit from extra daylight in the evening. It will also promote more outdoor recreational activities.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying for the bill was Representative Sander.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HJR 49 -- GENERAL ASSEMBLY TERM LIMITS

SPONSOR: Simmons

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 7 to 2.

Upon voter approval, this proposed Constitutional amendment will limit service in the General Assembly to 12 years total in any one house of the General Assembly and 20 years total in both houses of the General Assembly. The current exception for service of less than one year for House offices, or less than two years for Senate offices, in the case of service involving the completion of the term to which another individual was elected is maintained.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the amendment would help retain an experienced staff and retain members with institutional knowledge within the legislature. It will save money on pension plans as well.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Simmons; Matt Morrow, Springfield Area Chamber of Commerce.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill provided written testimony.

Testifying against the bill were Arnie C. Dienoff; and US Term Limits.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say that their membership favors a change in term limits to 16 years in any proportion between the Chambers.

Testifying on the bill was Missouri Farm Bureau.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HJR 53 -- INTERSCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC CONTESTS

SPONSOR: Basye

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 8 to 6.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HJR 53.

Upon voter approval, this proposed Constitutional amendment requires schools to designate athletic teams or sports based as "males," "men", or "boys"; "females", "women", or "girls"; or "coed or "mixed". Students of the male sex cannot participate in athletic teams or sports designated for females. Students who previously participated in female sports cannot participate in female sports if they have begun sex or gender transitioning. Female students can participate in male sports if there is not a comparable female sport. The General Assembly may enact laws to implement the amendment, including protection for schools and creating causes of action for violation.

This bill is similar to HJR 56 (2021) and HJR 82 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the resolution is a matter of fairness, primarily to female athletes who lose opportunities. Supporters also say that this bill protects the privacy of young students. This bill prevents biological, physical differences between sexes from interfering in sports. Hormones and therapy do not fully address these differences that would lead to a disadvantage for women. Supporters believe this bill is constitutional and that most of the harm otherwise would fall to women.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Basye; Ray D. Hacke, Pacific Justice Institute Center for Public Policy; Ginger Yoak;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Jennifer Gore; Joan Rawson; Lorna Ruth Piper; Mary Lopez; Marylou Cawood; Pam Anderson; Robert Schneider, D.O.; Ron Cawood; Susan Schneider; Susan Taylor; Tom Leuther; Vicki Ann Dunn; Vicki Leuther; William H. Urich; Linda Yeager; Carolyn Lilley; Marsha Lilley; Carol Pitzer; Marjie Saiter; Gerald W Moss; Mary Yakel; Jenny Schulze; and Wayne T. Armbrust.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that there is already a rigorous policy in place, that has been in place for almost a decade, for transgender students to participate in sports and this bill stunts opportunities for those transgender students. There is a significant social, cultural, psychological, physical, and personal benefit to competing in sports that transgender students, who already struggle with a sense of belonging and mental health, will not be afforded. This has already happened with numerous students, while teammates of transgender students do not treat them any differently. Opponents are concerned with the mental health outcomes for transgender individuals who have high incidences of suicidal ideation. Opponents also stated that they did not need protection from the state regarding female athletes and that there is no showing that transgender students dominate sports at any level of competition, though MSHSAA, NCAA, and IOC have allowed transgender athletes for years. Hormone blocking is effective in preventing the biological concerns that many individuals have about transgender students competing in sports, and female athletes have shown success in male sports. There are already significant biological and physical differences between people competing in sports regardless of transgender athletes. Further, transgender students do not become transgender rapidly, but work through a long process that is not motivated by excelling in a particular sport. Transgender participation will not harm the legacies of women's athletics. Opponents say that there is a small number of transgender students competing in sports already, and this legislation targets and greatly harms them with no noticeable benefit. Opponents caution that this legislation will have a significant economic impact as it did in other states because organizations will not want to do business with Missouri. Opponents warn that this bill does not survive legal scrutiny as similar legislation has failed legal challenges in other states. These legal challenges will also cost the state significant money in litigation costs. There is no problem for this legislation to address.

Testifying against the bill were Kendall Martinez-Wright; Chase Strangio, American Civil Liberties Union; Daniel S Bogard; Debi Jackson; Giuseppe Piove Hollis Borrelli; Jacqueline Harper-Grubb; Jeff Kessinger; Kelly Storck; Paul H Taghert; Rori Picker Neiss; Sara Schmidt; Jewish Community Relations Council; Erin Gray; Jerald Scott; Kelsey Thurman; Logan Storck; Melina Constantine Miseo; Steven Alagna; Susan Gibson; Chandler Shipp; Alexis Biehl; Gabrielle Stanley; Paul Taghert; Lisa; Isabel Holland; Ashley Quinn; James Alexander Cayley; Jay-Marie Hill; Tom Jackson; Betsy Vanderheyden; Elle Hollrah; Halley Moore; Isaac Gehrke; Justice T. HCS HB 1204 -- MISSOURI CYBERSECURITY ACT

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Special Committee on Homeland Security by a vote of 9 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1204.

This bill establishes within the Department of Public Safety, the "Missouri Cybersecurity Commission", with a purpose of identifying risk and vulnerability from cyber attacks of critical infrastructure in Missouri. The Commission shall consist of 8 members, with specific expertise and criteria outlined in the bill, to be appointed by the Governor, with at least one from each Congressional district and the state chief information officer. Representatives from the State Highway Patrol, National Guard, and the State Emergency Management Agency, will serve as ex-officio members. Details on the Commission's structure and duties are outlined in the bill, and the bill requires state agencies, public institutions of higher education, and public schools, to provide data as requested by the Commission. The Commission will present an annual report to the Governor by December 31st.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say this bill will form a non-partisan commission focused on cyber security within government agencies to improve and adapt to the growing risk of cyber attacks. Cyber security is often something that is seen as out of sight out of mind until it is too late and this bill is a forward thinking way to help mitigate the risk.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Hardwick and Fortinet.

HCS HBs 1222 & 1342 -- CERTIFICATES OF NEED

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003254

SPONSOR: Van Schoiack

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Downsizing State Government by a vote of 7 to 4.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 1222.

This bill repeals the Missouri Certificate of Need Law (Sections 197.300 to 197.367, RSMo).

This bill is similar to HB 1786 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill will downsize government. There are many states that do not have certificates of need. The system does not work and the state should not restrict competition in the marketplace. The bill will open up the marketplace and promote the offering of the best quality care at the lowest price possible.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Van Schoiack; Opportunity Solutions Project; and Wesley Powell.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the bill gets rid of certificate of need but does not replace it with anything. The cost to the state will go up significantly in many areas, especially rural areas. Eliminating Certificates of Need does not remove the state from the market, it will just harm individuals in need as many places will start to cherry pick services so they do not have to provide service to medicaid and medicare patients. That becomes a bigger issue when that happens in rural areas where medical facilities are already scarce.

Testifying against the bill were BJC, Mosaic, Cox Health; Leading Age Missouri; Missouri Healthcare Association/Missouri Assisted Living Association; Center For Diagnostic Imaging; Missouri Hospital Association; Arnie C. Dienoff; Saint Luke's Health Center; NHS Management, L.L.C.; Hospital Corporation of America; and the Associated Industries of Missouri.

This bill is similar to HB 1786 (2020).

HB 1243 -- POLITICAL SUBDIVISION TAX LEVIES

SPONSOR: Murphy

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Downsizing State Government by a vote of 8 to 4.

This bill requires that if the voters in a political subdivision approve an increase to the tax rate ceiling prior to the expiration of a previously approved temporary levy increase, the new tax rate ceiling shall remain in effect only until such time as the temporary levy increase expires under the terms originally approved by a vote of the people, at which time the tax rate ceiling shall be decreased by the amount of the temporary levy increase unless voters of the political subdivision are asked to approve an additional permanent increase and such increase is approved.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill promotes transparency and will allow voters to be fully aware of what they are voting for on ballots.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Murphy and Arnie Dienoff.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SS#2 SB 26 -- PUBLIC SAFETY

SPONSOR: Eigel

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 5 to 4.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003256

SB 26.

SS#2 SB 26 - This bill creates provisions relating to public safety.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT BUDGETS (Section 67.030, RSMo)

Currently, the governing body of each political subdivision may revise, alter, increase, or decrease items in a proposed budget. This bill provides that any taxpayer of a political subdivision may initiate an action for injunctive relief, which the court shall grant, if the governing body of such political subdivision decreases the budget for its law enforcement agency by an amount exceeding more than 12% relative to the proposed budgets of other departments of the political subdivision over a five-year aggregate amount.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS (Section 84.400)

This bill provides that a member of the Kansas City board of police commissioners or any member of such police force may be appointed to serve on any state or federal board, commission, or task force where no compensation for such service is paid, except that such board member may accept a per diem or reimbursement for necessary expenses for attending meetings.

OFFENSES INELIGIBLE FOR PROBATION (Section 557.045)

This bill adds to the offenses ineligible for probation any dangerous felony where the victim is a law enforcement officer, firefighter, or an emergency service provider, while in the performance of his or her duties.

OFFENSE OF UNLAWFUL TRAFFIC INTERFERENCE (Section 574.045)

This bill creates the offense of unlawful traffic interference if, with the intention to impede vehicular traffic, the person walks, stands, sits, kneels, lies, or places an object in a manner that blocks passage by a vehicle on any public street or highway. The offense of unlawful traffic interference on a public street or highway is an infraction for the first violation. Any second violation is a class B misdemeanor. A third or subsequent violation is a class E felony.

The offense is of unlawful traffic interference on a public street, highway, or interstate highway while part of an unlawful assembly is an infraction for the first violation. Any second violation is a class A misdemeanor. Any third or subsequent violation is a class D felony.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

VANDALISM (Section 574.085)

Currently, a person commits the offense of institutional vandalism if he or she knowingly vandalizes certain structures. This bill provides that a person shall be guilty of a class E felony if he or she knowing vandalizes any public monument or structure on public property.

988 PUBLIC SAFETY FUND (Section 590.192)

This bill creates the "988 Public Safety Fund" within the state treasury and shall be used by the Department of Public Safety for the purposes of providing services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. Such services may include consultation, risk assessment, education, intervention, and other crisis intervention services.

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER DISCIPLINARY ACTIONS (Section 590.502)

The bill establishes the "Law Enforcement Officers' Bill of Rights" and defines a "law enforcement officer" as any sworn peace officer, except the highest ranking officer in the law enforcement agency, who is employed by any unit of the state or any county, charter county, city, charter city, municipality, district, college, university, or any other political subdivision or by the Board of Police Commissioners, who possesses the power to arrest for violations of the criminal code.

The bill specifies certain rights a law enforcement officer has when he or she is the subject of an administrative investigation or is being questioned or interviewed. These rights include being informed of the violation, requiring the complaint to be supported by a sworn affidavit, and allowing the officer to have an attorney or any duly authorized representative.

The bill provides that any law enforcement officer who is suspended without pay, demoted, terminated, transferred, or placed on a status resulting in economic loss is entitled to a full due process hearing. The hearing requirements are specified in the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the most pressing provision in the bill is the law enforcement officers' bill of rights. This establishes certain protections for officers who are accused of misconduct in the administrative process. It provides transparency and fairness. The law enforcement bill of rights gives due process to law enforcement officers in the internal investigation process. The bill also provides a minimum level of funding for local law enforcement budgets. There was a provision added about unlawful traffic interference and it has never been about free speech but it does have to do with personal physical safety. There is no right that any person has that can come at the risk of physical safety of other citizens, so it is unclear how this ever became about free speech. There are concerns on public streets and highways for law enforcement officers and how they are going to block streets and protect protesters as well as bystanders.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Eigel; Arnie C. Dienoff; and Stephen (Jay) Schroeder, St. Louis Police Officers Association.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that peaceful assembly as protected in the First Amendment is what has gotten us where we are in this country and it is imperative to keep that. This bill will not deter any crimes. The protests are always planned and law enforcement always knows what events they are doing because their social media accounts are monitored. People have protested for better benefits and better pay as well. This is nothing new. The legislative body was elected to do the will of the people, not the will of one district, so this legislation should not be coming about because of one incident in one county. The penalties to protesting this bill is proposing are un-American. Free assembly supersedes the comfort of other citizens. This bill does not make anything illegal that is not already illegal. The bill also dilutes the right to vote by tying the hands of the prosecutors, whom the people elected. There is no such thing as a protest without social, economic, and civil unrest. This bill is anti-bible, anti-Jesus, anti-protest, and it is not about public safety.

Testifying against the bill were Alan Ayres, Laborers Local

SB 189 -- NEGRO LEAGUES BASEBALL MUSEUM LICENSE PLATE

SPONSOR: Washington

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 13 to 0.

This bill creates a "Negro Leagues Baseball Museum" special license plate. Upon making a $10 contribution to the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum, a vehicle owner may apply for the plates. Applicants shall also pay a $15 fee in addition to regular registration fees, but no additional fee shall be charged for the personalization of the plates.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill will help provide small donations to the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum, which is instrumental to Missouri and baseball history. The license plate will create more awareness about this time in history, even attracting visitors to Missouri.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Washington; Mike Kehoe, Missouri Lieutenant Governor's Office; and the Negro League Baseball Museum.

OPPONENTS: Arnie C. Dienoff provided written oppositional testimony.

HCS#2 SCS SB 91 -- JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS

SPONSOR: Riddle

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS No. 2" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 9 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 91.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY WITNESSES (Sections 21.403, 21.405, 575.040, 575.050, 575.160, 575.270, 575.280, 575.330, and 576.030 RSMo)

This bill specifies that, when a person is subpoenaed to testify or provide information at a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly, a court must issue, upon request from the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the body that subpoenaed the person, an order requiring the person to testify or provide information if the person refuses to do so on the basis of the person's privilege against self-incrimination. Before issuing such an order, a court must find that the request for the order has been approved by a vote of a three-fifths majority of the members of the body requesting the order. If a witness refuses, on the basis of the privilege against self-incrimination, to testify or provide information and the person presiding over the proceeding informs the witness that an order requiring the testimony or production of information was issued, the witness must not refuse to comply with the order on the basis of the asserted privilege. However, no testimony or information compelled under the order may be used against the witness in any criminal proceeding other than perjury, giving a false statement, or otherwise failing to comply with the order.

If a witness summoned by a body of the General Assembly willfully fails to appear, refuses to answer any pertinent questions, or fails to produce required documents, a statement of facts regarding such failure may be reported to and filed with the President Pro Tem of the Senate or the Speaker of the House. Either the President Pro Tem or the Speaker may certify the statement of facts to the prosecuting or other attorney having jurisdiction to prosecute. The Attorney General will have concurrent original jurisdiction to commence a criminal action throughout the state. Upon request by the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the originating body, the court must, within 15 days of the request, appoint independent counsel, who will have jurisdiction to prosecute under Section 575.330, RSMo. If independent counsel is appointed, such independent counsel will have sole jurisdiction to prosecute under such section.

The bill also specifies that:

(1) The offense of perjury is a class D felony if it is committed in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(2) The offense of making a false affidavit is a class A misdemeanor when it is done in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(3) The offense of tampering with a witness or victim is a class E felony when the witness is a witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(4) The offense of acceding to corruption when the person is a witness or prospective witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly is a class D felony;

(5) A person commits the offense of obstructing government operations if he or she purposely obstructs, impairs, hinders, or perverts the performance of a governmental function by the use or threat of harm, intimidation, or coercion. The offense of obstructing government operations is a class A misdemeanor. However, if committed against a body of the General Assembly, it is a class E felony.

CHILD ADVOCATE OFFICE (Sections 37.710 and 210.152)

This bill allows the office of child advocate to release findings for members of a multidisciplinary team relating to their professional performance.

SAFETY REPORTING (Section 37.717)

This bill requires the Office of Child Advocate to create a safety reporting system for the Department of Social Services employees to be able to report information regarding the safety of those served by the office and the safety of the employees. The bill specifies how the identity of the person making the report will be protected.

Any criminal act reported to the reporting system will be disclosed to the Department and to the appropriate law enforcement agency,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

and any investigation conducted as a result of the report must be conducted by an unbiased and disinterested investigator.

SCHOOL REPORTING POLICIES (Section 160.261)

The bill repeals language related to the Children's Division's jurisdiction over or ability to investigate reports of alleged child abuse by personnel of a school district, a teacher, or other school employee. It also repeals language related to how a school and school district are to handle reports of alleged child abuse.

COURT FACILITIES (Sections 46.266, 49.310, and 476.083)

The bill provides that, in absence of a local agreement otherwise, in any courthouse that contains both county offices and court facilities, the presiding circuit of the circuit may establish rules and procedures for court facilities and areas necessary for court-related ingress and egress, and other reasonable court-related usage, but the county commission will have authority over all other areas of the courthouse.

The bill also authorizes the county commission in all noncharter counties to promulgate reasonable regulations concerning the use of county property. Currently, the county commissions in all first, second, and fourth counties are authorized to promulgate the regulations.

Currently the presiding judge in specified court circuits may appoint a circuit court marshal to aid the presiding judge by overseeing the physical security of the courthouse. This bill changes courthouse to court facilities, including courtrooms, jury rooms and chambers or offices of the court.

11TH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT (Section 478.600)

The duties and responsibilities for a specified Associate Circuit Judge position in the 11th Judicial Circuit are modified by stating that treatment court activities may be retained as duties and responsibilities.

CHILD PROTECTION REPORTING AND CASE MANAGEMENT (Sections 210.145 and 210.152)

Currently, the Division is responsible for maintaining an information system capable of receiving and maintaining reports of child abuse or neglect. This bill clarifies that the reports should include the following information, if possible:

(1) The names and addresses of the child and his or her parents or

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003265

persons responsible for his or her care;

(2) The child's age, sex, and race;

(3) The nature and extent of the child's injuries, abuse, or neglect, including any evidence of previous injuries, abuse, or neglect to the child or his or her siblings;

(4) The name, age, and address of the person responsible for the injuries, abuse, or neglect and the family composition;

(5) Specified information regarding the person making the report; and

(6) The actions taken by the reporting source.

JUVENILE JUSTICE (211.012, 211.181, and 211.435)

This bill specifies that, for the purposes of Chapter 211, RSMo, Section 221.044, and the original jurisdiction of the juvenile court, if a person was considered an adult when the alleged offense or violation was committed, he or she will not later be considered a child. Additionally, under current law, no court will require a child to remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services past the child's 18th birthday. This bill changes that provision so that a child can remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services until the child's 19th birthday.

There is currently a state "Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund", which exists in the State Treasury. This bill changes that so there is a Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund in each county's circuit court, and the purpose of this fund is to implement and maintain the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction to 18 years of age. The surcharge collected under the section will be payable to the county circuit court rather than to the State Treasury. Funds currently held by the State Treasurer in the Fund must be payable and revert to the circuit court's fund in the county of origination. Expenditures from the individual county juvenile justice funds will be made at the discretion of the juvenile office for the circuit court and must be used for the sole purpose of implementing and maintaining the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction.

The bill states that, to further promote the best interests of the children of Missouri, money in the fund will not be used to replace or reduce the responsibilities of either the counties or the state to provide funding for existing and new juvenile treatment services.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003266

COURT REPORTERS (Section 485.060)

The bill specifies that, starting January 1, 2022, each court reporter for a circuit judge will receive an annual salary based upon his or her cumulative years of service as a court reporter with a circuit court of this state, based upon a schedule provided in the bill.

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY (Section 447.541)

The bill modifies the notice requirements required to be made by the State Treasurer for purposes of disposing of unclaimed property. Specifically, current law requires the Treasurer to give notice of property that is presumed to be abandoned as follows:

(1) Notice must be published in a newspaper of general circulation once a week for two successive weeks within 240 days of receiving notice of property that is presumed to be abandoned; and

(2) Notice must be mailed to each person having an address listed who appears to be entitled to presumed abandoned property valued at $50 or more.

The bill allows the State Treasurer to use any other method, in addition to the above methods, deemed appropriate and consistent with the intent to notify the owners of the property.

ELECTRONIC MARRIAGE LICENSE APPLICATION (Section 451.040)

The bill allows the Recorder of Deeds to accept electronic applications for marriage licenses through an online process. If a recorder uses an online process to accept applications for or to issue marriage licenses and the applicants' identity has not been verified in person, the Recorder must have a two-step verification process or a process that independently verifies the identity of the applicants. It is the Recorder's responsibility to ensure that any verification process adopted as part of the electronic system verifies the identities of both applicants. The Recorder must not accept applications for or issue licenses through this online process unless both applicants are at least 18 years old and at least one of the applicants is a resident of the county or city not within a county in which the application was submitted.

CUSTODY ORDERS (Section 452.410)

The bill limits the sections of statute under which custody orders may be modified.

ORDERS OF PROTECTION (Section 455.010)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The bill changes the definition of "course of conduct" in the definition of "stalking", as it relates to orders of protection.

GUARDIANSHIP (Section 475.050)

The bill modifies language related to exemptions for individuals seeking appointment as a guardian or conservator from a background screening. The bill adds a ward's grandparents to the current list of relatives exempt from the screening, unless a background report is requested by a party to the proceeding or ordered by the court.

COURT COSTS AND FEES (Section 479.162 and 488.016)

The bill specifies that in a proceeding for a municipal ordinance violation or any other proceeding before a municipal court if the charge carries the possibility of 15 days or more in jail or confinement, a defendant must not be charged any fee for obtaining a police report or probable cause statement. Such police report or probable cause statement must be provided by the prosecutor upon written request for discovery by the defendant.

The bill provides that court costs will be fully waived for any person who is an honorably discharged veteran of any branch of the Armed Forces and who successfully completes a veterans treatment court.

WITNESS STATEMENTS (Section 491.016)

The bill specifies that an otherwise inadmissible witness statement is admissible in evidence in a criminal proceeding as substantive evidence if the court, after a hearing, finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant engaged in or acquiesced to wrongdoing with the purpose of causing the unavailability of the witness, such wrongdoing caused or substantially contributed to the unavailability of the witness, the prosecution exercised due diligence to secure by subpoena or other means the attendance of the witness, and the witness failed to appear.

JUROR COMPENSATION (Section 494.455)

This bill specifies that, except in Greene County, the County Commission in any county may vote to restructure juror compensation so that grand and petit jurors do not get paid for the first two days of service but thereafter will receive $50 per day, as well as $0.07 per mile for necessary travel from the juror's residence to the courthouse and back, to be paid by the county. A county commission may authorize compensation to a grand or petit juror for the first two days of service, but the compensation cannot exceed

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

$10.

In Greene County, this pay structure is set by current law.

CHANGE OF VENUE FOR CAPITAL CASES FUND (Section 550.125)

This bill creates the "Change of Venue for Capital Cases Fund", which will consist of money appropriated by the General Assembly. Money in the fund is to be used solely for reimbursement to a county that receives a capital case from another county. At the conclusion of a capital case for which the venue was changed from one county to another, the county that sent the case may apply to the Office of State Courts Administrator (OSCA) for reimbursement to the county that received the case of any costs associated with sequestering jurors. If a county is eligible for reimbursement, OSCA shall disburse the money to the county. If OSCA determines that a county is not eligible for reimbursement or the actual costs are more then the amount dispersed, the county in which the capital case originated shall be responsible for all or the remaining reimbursement.

Applications for reimbursement must be submitted by May 1 of the current fiscal year, and reimbursements must be made by June 30 of the current fiscal year. Reimbursements for applications submitted after May 1 of the current fiscal year will be made in the following fiscal year. If there is not enough money in the fund at the end of the fiscal year when reimbursements are made, reimbursements will be made on a pro rata basis.

SEX OFFENDERS (Section 566.150)

The bill provides that persons guilty of certain sex crimes cannot be present or loiter within 500 feet of athletic complexes or athletic fields that exist primarily for use and recreation of children or within 500 feet of Missouri Department of Conservation Nature or Education Center properties, unless the registered sex offender is the parent of a child participating in an educational program of the Department of Conservation and has permission to be on the property.

This bill has an emergency clause for the provisions related to juvenile justice.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on SCS SB 91.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that persons guilty of certain sex crimes can't be within so many feet of athletic complexes or fields used primary for the recreation of children. They are having a problem with certain offenders loitering near these fields and complexes. They have been asked to leave but refuse and there is currently no recourse for the community. Additional prohibited locations were added in committee. They are just loitering, have no reason to be there and know they are not wanted. Nature centers can be child based facilities and there have been issues in the past with child sex offenders showing up. Displays in nature centers are often tailored for kids 12 or younger.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying for the bill were Senator Riddle; Missouri Department of Conservation; Arnie C. Dienoff; and Conservation Federation of Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that this would place more restrictions on her husband, according to one witness. They have kids and they are very involved; this would prohibit their dad from attending their games. He made a bad decision that resulted in a non violent misdemeanor. He regrets that decision and he has paid for his mistake. This is just continuing to punish those who have already paid their debt. There should be an exception for parents. He was charged under Section 573.040. The law should take into account the fact that someone is a parent or spouse. If a person on the registry and is with their families at these events that should be ok.

Testifying against the bill were Chad Mayes; Angie James; Josh James; Sean James; Briana Downing; Lisa Stevens; Brent A Barnhill; and Michael James.

It also repeals language related to how a school and school district are to handle reports of alleged child abuse. This bill allows the Office of Child Advocate to release findings for members of a multidisciplinary team relating to their professional performance.
160.263	HB 387 Bailey	Voted Do Pass out of Senate Education	This bill defines "restraint" and "seclusion" and requires school districts, charter schools, or publicly contracted private providers to include in policy a prohibition on the use of restraint and seclusion, including "prone restraint" as defined by the bill, for any purpose other then situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others. Any incident requiring restraint or seclusion shall be monitored by school personnel with written observation. The bill requires that before July 1, 2022 each school district, and charter school, or publicly contracted private providers policy shall include: (1) When to remove a child from restraint, seclusion, or isolation; (2) Requirement for annual mandatory training; (3) Reporting requirements for any occurrence of restraint, seclusion or isolation as outlined in the bill, including the reporting requirements for parental notification and providing a copy of each report to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE); (4) Notification requirement for each occurrence of a restraint, seclusion, or isolation incident to parents or guardians within one hour after the end of school on the day the incident occurs. (5) Protections for individuals that report or provide information about violations of policy under this section.

210.115, 210.121	HCS HB 1276 Pike	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill modifies mandated reporting for unaccompanied and homeless youth seeking supportive services so that the youth's status alone is not sufficient basis for reporting child abuse or neglect. The bill defines "supportive services" to include interventions, services, or resources necessary to assist unaccompanied youth, including food and shelter, counseling, case management, and legal services among other services outlined in the bill. The bill allows an unaccompanied youth to access supportive services as long as they are documented by a licensed mental health, counselor, or social worker as provided by the bill. The bill exempts persons who in good faith provided supportive services from civil and criminal action without permission from the youth's parent.
210.127, 210.305, 210.565			This bill modifies provisions relating to the duty of Children's Division to identify and locate biological parents, grandparents, or other relatives of children in the division's custody.
210.143, 210.493, 210.1250, 210.1253, 210.1256, 210.1259, 210.1262, 210.1263, 210.1264, 210.1265, 210.1268, 210.1271, 210.1274, 210.1280, 210.1283, 210.1286,	HB 557 Perfected Veit	Reported Do Pass out of Senate Seniors, Families, Veterans and Military Affairs	This bill adds a process by which an "exempt-from-licensure residential care facility", as defined in the bill, is required to notify the Department of Social Services (DSS) of their existence and compliance with provisions that protect the safety of the children in the residence. These include: fire and safety inspections, local health department inspections, background checks, medical records for all residents, and information about schools serving the children. The bill provides courts the power to expand on orders to produce children in a facility if there is suspicion of abuse or neglect. This bill creates a process for DSS to provide background checks for licensed residential care facilities or child placing agencies and for residential care facilities subject to the notification requirements of 210.1250 to 210.1286 RSMo. Fingerprints are valid for 5 years and DSS will provide results to the applicant and to the facility or agency. The bill outlines what will make an applicant ineligible and provides applicants the right to appeal. When there are allegations of abuse or neglect in the residential facility, the bill outlines how the Department can petition a court for an order for a home to present a child that is the subject of a child abuse investigation. The bill specifies that any case in which a referral is made to a juvenile officer for removal of a child, a referral may also be made to the Attorney General. The bill further details that failure to comply with these provisions may result in fines, misdemeanor charges for failure to conduct background checks, and potential removal of children. The bill specifies that the Department may promulgate necessary rules that include a fee to cover the cost of the notification process. However, it is not permitted to regulate any religious program, curriculum, or ministry.
210.489	HB 1335 Sauls	Reported Do Pass out of Rules Administrative Oversight	This bill allows the Division of Children Services within the Department of Social Services to permit children to voluntarily reenter foster care if due to the child's age the child left care during the COVID-19 pandemic. The Division will provide children with notice of this option, facilitate the return to care, and conduct a public awareness campaign for children under 22 years of age, until September 30, 2021 or while there is a state of emergency due to the pandemic, whichever is later.

SCR 6 -- UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT

SPONSOR: Moon (Walsh)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 9 to 1.

This concurrent resolution urges the United States Congress to resist any attempt to increase the number of justices on the United States Supreme Court.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the number has gone up and down and it has been nine justices for a very long time. The Constitution does not specify how many justices have to be on the court and, while we may not like decisions that come down from the court, changing the makeup would not necessarily correct that.

Testifying for the bill was Senator Moon.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SS SCS SB 43 -- HEALTH CARE

SPONSOR: White

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Health and Mental Health Policy by a vote of 11 to 3.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 43.

TIME-CRITICAL DIAGNOSIS

The bill establishes the "Time-Critical Diagnosis Advisory Committee" whose members are appointed by the Department of Health and Senior Services as outlined in the bill for the purpose of improvement of public and professional education related to time-critical diagnosis, research endeavors, policies and recommendations for changes (Section 190.100, RSMo).

AMBULANCE AND FIRE DISTRICTS

This bill specifies that, if an ambulance district board member or a fire protection district board member elected after August 28, 2021, fails to attend a training session within 12 months of taking office, regardless of whether that board member received an attendance fee for a training session, the board member will be ineligible to run for reelection for another term of office until the board member satisfies the training requirements (Section 190.053).

FORENSIC EXAMINATIONS

This bill specifies that the coordinator for the statewide telehealth network must regularly consult with Missouri-based stakeholders and clinicians actively engaged in the collection of forensic evidence regarding the training programs offered by the network, as well as about the implementation and operation of the network. No provider will be required to utilize the training offered by the statewide telehealth network regarding the collection of forensic evidence as long as the training utilized is at least equivalent to the training offered by the statewide

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

telehealth network (Section 192.2520).

The bill specifies that, starting January 1, 2023, or no later than six months after the establishment of the statewide telehealth network, whichever is later, hospitals will be required to perform a forensic examination by an appropriate medical provider using an evidentiary collection kit upon the request and consent of the victim of a sexual offense or his or her guardian when the victim is at least 14 years old. Victims between 14 and 17 years old may be referred to a SAFE CARE provider for medical or forensic evaluation and case review (Section 197.135).

PROVISIONS OF HYGIENIC PRODUCTS TO OFFENDERS

This bill specifies that the Director of the Department of Corrections must ensure that tampons and sanitary napkins are available for free to offenders while they are confined in any of the Department's correctional centers. The Director must ensure that the products conform with applicable industry standards (Section 217.199).

Additionally, every sheriff and jailer who holds a person in custody pursuant to a writ or process for a criminal offense must ensure that tampons and sanitary napkins are available for free to such person in custody, in a quantity that is appropriate for the health care needs of the person. The sheriff or jailer must ensure that the products conform with applicable industry standards. The General Assembly may appropriate funds to assist the Director or sheriffs and jailers in fulfilling their duties (Section 221.065).

HIV POST EXPOSURE PROPHYLAXIS

This bill allows a pharmacist to dispense medication for HIV postexposure prophylaxis subject to a written protocol authorized by a licensed physician.

Such prophylaxis shall include drugs approved by the Food and Drug Administration that meet the same clinical eligibility recommendations provided in current HIV guidelines published by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The State Board of Registration for the Healing Arts and the State Board of Pharmacy shall jointly promulgate rules and regulations for the administration of this act and shall not do so separately (Section 338.730).

RX CARES FOR MISSOURI PROGRAM

This bill modifies the expiration date of the RX Cares for Missouri

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003278

Program from August 28, 2019, to August 28, 2026.

MENTAL HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE

This bill requires that each health carrier that issues health benefit plans on or after January 1, 2022, and that provide coverage for a mental health condition shall meet the requirements of the Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008. These provisions do not apply to specified supplemental policies (Section 376.1551).

HEARING AIDS

This bill requires health benefit plans delivered, issued, continued, or renewed on or after January 1, 2022, to provide coverage to children under 18 years of age for those hearing aids which are covered for children receiving benefits under MO HealthNet (Section 376.1228).

CREDENTIALING OF HEALTH CARE PRACTITIONERS

The bill modifies the definition of health carrier to include prepaid dental plans (Section 376.1551).

PROTECTION OF HEALTH CARE WORKERS

This bill provides that any special victim, as defined by law, shall not be required to reveal any current address or place of residence except to the court when in the private chamber of a judge for the purpose of determining jurisdiction and venue. Additionally, any special victim may file a petition with the court alleging assault in any degree by using his or her identifying initials instead of his or her legal name if said petition alleges that he or she would be endangered by such disclosure(Section 565.058).

This bill creates the offense of interference with a health care facility and the offense of interference with an ambulance service. A person commits the offense of interference with a health care facility if the person acts alone or with someone else to willfully or recklessly interfere with access to or from a health care facility or willfully or recklessly commits any of the acts specified in the bill (Section 574.203).

A person commits the offense of interference with an ambulance service if the person acts alone or with someone else to willfully or recklessly interfere with access to or from an ambulance or willfully or recklessly disrupt any ambulance service by committing any of the acts specified in the bill. The offense of interfering with a health care facility or an ambulance service is a class D misdemeanor for a first offense and a class C misdemeanor for a second or subsequent offense (Section 574.204).

DISTRIBUTORS OF HYPODERMIC NEEDLES

This bill specifies that, any entity registered with the Department of Health and Senior Services that possesses, distributes, or delivers hypodermic needles or syringes for the purposes of operating a syringe exchange program or otherwise mitigating health risks associated with unsterile injection drug use shall be exempt from the offense of unlawful distribution, delivery or sale of drug paraphernalia, if such entity is not located within 500 feet of a school building, as well as the offense of unlawful manufacturing with intent to deliver drug paraphernalia (Section 574.204)

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on SS SCS SB 43.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that early years of development are critical and a child needs to be given the ability to hear. Supporters also say this levels the playing field between private insurance and medicaid.

Testifying for the bill were Senator White; Missouri Speech and Hearing Association; Arnie C. Dienoff; Cheryl Abeln; Emily Samuelson; John Peterson, Missouri Commission for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing; Kay Park; Veronica Zieba; Wayne Lee.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say the bill started out too broad but it is now acceptable.

Testifying on the bill were St. Louis Area Business Health Coalition; and America's Health Insurance Plans.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SS SCS SB 289 -- EMPLOYEES

SPONSOR: Brown (Copeland)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Special Committee on Government Accountability by a vote of 13 to 0.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003280

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 289.

This bill amends the definition of an "employer" so that the state of Missouri, its agencies, and political subdivisions are considered employers for the purposes of the Whistleblower's Protection Act.

The bill also amends the definition of "protected person". Currently, employees in supervisory or managerial positions who report unlawful acts or serious misconduct that concerns matters upon which that employee is employed to report on or provide a professional opinion on are not considered protected persons. Neither are employees who report unlawful acts or violations of a clear mandate of public policy to the person the employee claims to have committed the act. This bill removes these exceptions from the definition of "protected person" (Section 285.575. RSMo).

This bill also allows for the creation of a Voluntary Firefighter Cancer Benefits Pool by three or more political subdivisions. Under the bill, any political subdivision may make contributions to a Voluntary Firefighter Cancer Benefits Pool. The board of trustees of any pool created for the purposes of this bill is subject to the Sunshine Law. The pool is allowed to make payments to covered individuals based upon the type of cancer with which the covered individual was diagnosed.

Benefits may be reduced by 25% if the covered individual used a tobacco product within the 5 years immediately preceding the cancer diagnosis.

If any individual that receives benefits under this bill thereafter receives workers' compensation benefits for the same injury, then the workers' compensation benefits or death benefits shall be reduced 100% by any benefits received from the pool under this bill.

Furthermore, the employer in any workers' compensation claim shall be subrogated to the right of the employee or to the dependent or domestic partner to receive benefits from the pool and such employer may recover any amounts which such employee or the dependent or domestic partner would have been entitled to recover from the pool under this bill. Any receipt of benefits from the pool under this bill shall be treated as an advance payment by the employer, on account of any future installments of workers' compensation benefits.

Any pool created for the purposes of this bill may accept or apply for grants or donations from any private or public source. Furthermore, any such pool may apply for grants from the state fire marshal. This provision expires June 30, 2023.

The bill also amends a provision of law relating to disbursement of grants to volunteer fire protection association workers'

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

compensation insurance premiums for volunteer firefighters. Current law requires the State Fire Marshal to disburse such grants to any applying association. This bill permits such disbursement (Section 287.245).

Currently, all licensed peace officers, as a condition of licensure, must obtain continuing law enforcement education and maintain a current address of record on file with the POST (Peace Officer Standards and Training) Commission.

This bill provides that in addition to those requirements for licensure, peace officers must submit to being fingerprinted on or before January 1, 2022, and every six years thereafter and also submit to fingerprinting for the purposes of a criminal history background check and enrollment in the state and federal Rap Back Program.

Additionally, any time a peace officer is commissioned with a different law enforcement agency he or she must submit to being fingerprinted. The criminal history background check shall include the records of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The resulting report shall be forwarded to the peace officer's law enforcement agency. The Rap Back enrollment shall be for the purposes of peace officer disciplinary reports as required by law. Law enforcement officers and law enforcement agencies shall take all necessary steps to maintain officer enrollment in Rap Back for as long as an officer is commissioned with that agency. All law enforcement agencies shall enroll in the state and federal Rap Back programs on or before January 1, 2022 (Section 590.030).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on SS SCS SB 289.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill will support transparency and accountability for police officers the same way we do for teachers and medical professionals.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Brown; Arnie Dienoff; Kevin Merritt, Missouri Sheriffs' Association; Missouri Sheriffs United; Missouri Fraternal Order of Police; St. Louis Police Officers Association; Kansas City Fraternal Order of Police; Tyler Hobbs, State of Missouri Department of Public Safety; NAACP; American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri; and Collin Stosberg, Missouri State Highway Patrol.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

HCS SS SB 141 -- UTILITIES

SPONSOR: Bean

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 8 to 4.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 141.

This bill specifies that, no political subdivision shall adopt an ordinance, resolution, regulation, code or policy that prohibits, or has the effect of prohibiting, the connection or reconnection of a utility service based upon the type or source of energy to be delivered to an individual customer.

The bill requires the Public Service Commission (PSC) to adopt rules for gas corporations to offer a voluntary renewable natural gas program. The Commission shall establish reporting requirements and a process for gas corporations to fully recover incurred costs that are prudent, just, and reasonable associated with a renewable natural gas program. Such recovery shall not be permitted until the project is operational.

Any costs incurred by a gas corporation that are prudent, just, and reasonable shall be recovered by means of an automatic adjustment clause.

An affiliate of a gas corporation shall not be prohibited from making a capital investment in a biogas production project if the affiliate is not a public utility as defined in statute.

The bill specifies that, before the Public Service Commission issues an approval for a merchant line, an entity, defined in the bill, must provide the PSC with a resolution of support passed by the county commission in each county through which the merchant line will be built. The bill specifies that no entity has the power of eminent domain for the purposes of constructing merchant lines. This restriction will not apply to any rural electric cooperatives or any electrical corporation operating under a cooperative business plan.

The bill modifies the definition of "Renewable Energy Resources" for the purposes of the Renewable Energy Standard by removing the requirement that hydropower source has a nameplate rating of 10 megawatts or less.

The bill also creates the "Missouri Nuclear Clean Power Act", which allows clean base load electric generating plants or facilities rated at 200 megawatts or more that utilize renewable sources to produce energy not in commercial operation as of August 28, 2021, to charge for costs associated with construction work in progress before the facility is operational.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The costs recovered by an electrical corporation are subject to inclusion or exclusion in a ratemaking proceeding under the authority of the Public Service Commission. The Commission may also authorize an electrical corporation to charge for additional amortization to maintain the corporations financial ratios that will better allow to cost-effectively construct a clean baseload generating plant or a renewable source generating facility.

The bill specifies that, the board of directors of a rural electric cooperative shall have the power to set the time and place of the annual meeting and also to provide for voting by proxy, electronic means, by mail, or any combination thereof, and to prescribe the conditions under which such voting shall be exercised. The meeting requirement may be satisfied through virtual means.
This provision expires on August 28, 2022.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this requires the PSC to create a renewable natural gas system and capture methane that would otherwise be released into the atmosphere. It is beneficial to farmers, developers and realtors. It has the added benefit of removing odor for the air. It is a Missouri produced energy and a win for the environment and win for Missouri, both urban and rural clean renewable energy.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Bean; Spire Mo; Summit Utilities; Missouri Energy Development Association; Ameren Missouri; Missouri Chamber of Commerce and Industry; Arnie C. Dienoff; and Roeslein Alternative Energy.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that they are against the amendment added by Senator Burlison. It takes away the ability of local governments to set limits in their own community. This was created by gas companies. Local governments aren't even doing this and they are trying to preempt that. Something like this has only been enacted for one year in Berkley (first to do so) so we don't even know if it is working or not yet, and it is premature to prohibit it here in Missouri. This could limit their ability to meet climate goals in their communities.

Testifying against the bill were Abra Spisso; Environment Missouri; Carolyn L Amparan; Nadia Navarrete; Robin Raeder Ganahl, Mothers

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003284

Out Front Kc; Suzanne Jackson; Winifred Colwill; Winifred Colwill; Sierra Club Missouri Chapter; Emily Wolfe, Metropolitan Energy Center; Henry Robertson; Melissa Vatterott; and Heather Navarro.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SCS SB 91 -- JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS

SPONSOR: Riddle (Fitzwater)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 11 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 91.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY WITNESSES (Sections 21.403, 21.405, 575.040, 575.050, 575.160, 575.270, 575.280, 575.330, and 576.030 RSMo)

This bill specifies that, when a person is subpoenaed to testify or provide information at a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly, a court must issue, upon request from the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the body that subpoenaed the person, an order requiring the person to testify or provide information if the person refuses to do so on the basis of the person's privilege against self-incrimination. Before issuing such an order, a court must find that the request for the order has been approved by a vote of a three-fifths majority of the members of the body requesting the order. If a witness refuses, on the basis of the privilege against self-incrimination, to testify or provide information and the person presiding over the proceeding informs the witness that an order requiring the testimony or production of information was issued, the witness must not refuse to comply with the order on the basis of the asserted privilege. However, no testimony or information compelled under the order may be used against the witness in any criminal proceeding other than perjury, giving a false statement, or otherwise failing to comply with the order.

If a witness summoned by a body of the General Assembly willfully fails to appear, refuses to answer any pertinent questions, or fails to produce required documents, a statement of facts regarding such failure may be reported to and filed with the President Pro Tem of the Senate or the Speaker of the House. Either the President Pro Tem or the Speaker may certify the statement of facts to the prosecuting or other attorney having jurisdiction to prosecute. The Attorney General will have concurrent original jurisdiction to commence a criminal action throughout the state. Upon request by the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the originating body, the court must, within 15 days of the request, appoint independent counsel, who will have jurisdiction to prosecute under Section 575.330, RSMo. If independent counsel is appointed, such independent counsel will have sole jurisdiction to prosecute under such section.

The bill also specifies that:

(1) The offense of perjury is a class D felony if it is committed in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(2) The offense of making a false affidavit is a class A misdemeanor when it is done in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(3) The offense of tampering with a witness or victim is a class E felony when the witness is a witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(4) The offense of acceding to corruption when the person is a witness or prospective witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly is a class D felony;

(5) A person commits the offense of obstructing government operations if he or she purposely obstructs, impairs, hinders, or perverts the performance of a governmental function by the use or threat of harm, intimidation, or coercion. The offense of obstructing government operations is a class A misdemeanor. However, if committed against a body of the General Assembly, it is a class E felony.

COURT FACILITIES (Sections 46.266, 49.310, and 476.083)

The bill provides that, in absence of a local agreement otherwise, in any courthouse that contains both county offices and court facilities, the presiding circuit of the circuit may establish rules and procedures for court facilities and areas necessary for court-related ingress and egress, and other reasonable court-related usage, but the county commission will have authority over all other areas of the courthouse.

The bill also authorizes the county commission in all noncharter counties to promulgate reasonable regulations concerning the use of county property. Currently, the county commissions in all first, second, and fourth counties are authorized to promulgate the regulations.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Currently the presiding judge in specified court circuits may appoint a circuit court marshal to aid the presiding judge by overseeing the physical security of the courthouse. This bill changes courthouse to court facilities, including courtrooms, jury rooms and chambers or offices of the court.

11TH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT (Section 478.600)
Beginning January 1, 2023, there will be seven circuit judges in the 11th Judicial Circuit, and these judges will sit in divisions numbered one, two, three, four, five, seven, and 15.

The circuit judge in division 15 will be elected in 2022.

The duties and responsibilities for a specified Associate Circuit Judge position in the 11th Judicial Circuit are modified by stating that treatment court activities may be retained as duties and responsibilities.

JUVENILE JUSTICE (211.012, 211.181, and 211.435)

This bill specifies that, for the purposes of Chapter 211, RSMo, Section 221.044, and the original jurisdiction of the juvenile court, if a person was considered an adult when the alleged offense or violation was committed, he or she will not later be considered a child. Additionally, under current law, no court will require a child to remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services past the child's 18th birthday. This bill changes that provision so that a child can remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services until the child's 19th birthday.

There is currently a state "Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund", which exists in the State Treasury. This bill changes that so there is a Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund in each county's circuit court, and the purpose of this fund is to implement and maintain the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction to 18 years of age. The surcharge collected under the section will be payable to the county circuit court rather than to the State Treasury. Funds currently held by the State Treasurer in the Fund must be payable and revert to the circuit court's fund in the county of origination. Expenditures from the individual county juvenile justice funds will be made at the discretion of the juvenile office for the circuit court and must be used for the sole purpose of implementing and maintaining the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction.

The bill states that, to further promote the best interests of the children of Missouri, money in the fund will not be used to replace or reduce the responsibilities of either the counties or the state to provide funding for existing and new juvenile treatment services.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

COURT REPORTERS (Section 485.060)

The bill specifies that, starting January 1, 2022, each court reporter for a circuit judge will receive an annual salary based upon his or her cumulative years of service as a court reporter with a circuit court of this state, based upon a schedule provided in the bill.

COMMUNITY-BASED TREATMENT (Section 217.777 and 599.120)

The bill specifies that a court must consider the option to order certain offenders to participate in community-based treatment programs as a sentencing alternative if the offender is the primary caregiver of one or more dependent children and the offender meets certain other specified requirements. The Department of Corrections currently administers a community corrections program to encourage the establishment of such local sentencing alternatives. This bill adds promoting opportunities for nonviolent primary caregivers to care for their dependent children as one of the goals of that program.

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY (Section 447.541)

The bill modifies the notice requirements required to be made by the State Treasurer for purposes of disposing of unclaimed property. Specifically, current law requires the Treasurer to give notice of property that is presumed to be abandoned as follows:
(1) Notice must be published in a newspaper of general circulation once a week for two successive weeks within 240 days of receiving notice of property that is presumed to be abandoned; and
(2) Notice must be mailed to each person having an address listed who appears to be entitled to presumed abandoned property valued at $50 or more.
The bill allows the State Treasurer to use any other method, in addition to the above methods, deemed appropriate and consistent with the intent to notify the owners of the property.

ELECTRONIC MARRIAGE LICENSE APPLICATION (Section 451.040)

The bill allows the Recorder of Deeds to accept electronic applications for marriage licenses through an online process. If a recorder uses an online process to accept applications for or to issue marriage licenses and the applicants' identity has not been verified in person, the Recorder must have a two-step verification process or a process that independently verifies the identity of the applicants. It is the Recorder's responsibility to ensure that any verification process adopted as part of the electronic system verifies the identities of both applicants. The Recorder must not accept applications for or issue licenses through this online process unless at least one of the applicants is a resident of the county or city not within a county in which the application was submitted.

CUSTODY ORDERS (Section 452.410)

The bill limits the sections of statute under which custody orders may be modified.

ORDERS OF PROTECTION (Section 455.010)

The bill changes the definition of "course of conduct" in the definition of "stalking", as it relates to orders of protection.

GUARDIANSHIP (Section 475.050)

The bill modifies language related to exemptions for individuals seeking appointment as a guardian or conservator from a background screening. The bill adds a ward's grandparents to the current list of relatives exempt from the screening, unless a background report is requested by a party to the proceeding or ordered by the court.

COURT COSTS AND FEES (Section 479.162 and 488.016)

The bill specifies that in a proceeding for a municipal ordinance violation or any other proceeding before a municipal court if the charge carries the possibility of 15 days or more in jail or confinement, a defendant must not be charged any fee for obtaining a police report or probable cause statement. Such police report or probable cause statement must be provided by the prosecutor upon written request for discovery by the defendant.

The bill provides that court costs will be fully waived for any person who is an honorably discharged veteran of any branch of the Armed Forces and who successfully completes a veterans treatment court.

WITNESS STATEMENTS (Section 491.016)

The bill specifies that an otherwise inadmissible witness statement is admissible in evidence in a criminal proceeding as substantive evidence if the court, after a hearing, finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant engaged in or acquiesced to wrongdoing with the purpose of causing the unavailability of the witness, such wrongdoing caused or substantially contributed to the

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

unavailability of the witness, the prosecution exercised due diligence to secure by subpoena or other means the attendance of the witness, and the witness failed to appear.

JUROR COMPENSATION (Section 494.455)

This bill specifies that, except in Greene County, the County Commission in any county may vote to restructure juror compensation so that grand and petit jurors do not get paid for the first two days of service but thereafter will receive $50 per day, as well as $0.07 per mile for necessary travel from the juror's residence to the courthouse and back, to be paid by the county. A county commission may authorize compensation to a grand or petit juror for the first two days of service, but the compensation cannot exceed $10.

In Greene County, this pay structure is set by current law.

CHANGE OF VENUE FOR CAPITAL CASES FUND (Section 550.125)

This bill creates the "Change of Venue for Capital Cases Fund", which will consist of money appropriated by the General Assembly. Money in the fund is to be used solely for reimbursement to a county that receives a capital case from another county. At the conclusion of a capital case for which the venue was changed from one county to another, the county that sent the case may apply to the Office of State Courts Administrator (OSCA) for reimbursement to the county that received the case of any costs associated with sequestering jurors. If a county is eligible for reimbursement, OSCA shall disburse the money to the county. If OSCA determines that a county is not eligible for reimbursement or the actual costs are more then the amount dispersed, the county in which the capital case originated shall be responsible for all or the remaining reimbursement.

Applications for reimbursement must be submitted by May 1 of the current fiscal year, and reimbursements must be made by June 30 of the current fiscal year. Reimbursements for applications submitted after May 1 of the current fiscal year will be made in the following fiscal year. If there is not enough money in the fund at the end of the fiscal year when reimbursements are made, reimbursements will be made on a pro rata basis.

SEX OFFENDERS (Section 566.150)

The bill provides that persons guilty of certain sex crimes cannot be present or loiter within 500 feet of athletic complexes or athletic fields that exist primarily for use and recreation of children or within 500 feet of Missouri Department of Conservation

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003290

Nature or Education Center properties, unless the registered sex offender is the parent of a child participating in an educational program of the Department of Conservation and has permission to be on the property.

This bill has an emergency clause for the provisions related to juvenile justice.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on SCS SB 91.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that persons guilty of certain sex crimes can't be within so many feet of athletic complexes or fields used primary for the recreation of children. They are having a problem with certain offenders loitering near these fields and complexes. They have been asked to leave but refuse and there is currently no recourse for the community. Additional prohibited locations were added in committee. They are just loitering, have no reason to be there and know they are not wanted. Nature centers can be child based facilities and there have been issues in the past with child sex offenders showing up. Displays in nature centers are often tailored for kids 12 or younger.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Riddle; Missouri Department of Conservation; Arnie C. Dienoff; and Conservation Federation of Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that this would place more restrictions on her husband, according to one witness. They have kids and they are very involved; this would prohibit their dad from attending their games. He made a bad decision that resulted in a non violent misdemeanor. He regrets that decision and he has paid for his mistake. This is just continuing to punish those who have already paid their debt. There should be an exception for parents. He was charged under Section 573.040. The law should take into account the fact that someone is a parent or spouse. If a person on the registry and is with their families at these events that should be ok.

Testifying against the bill were Chad Mayes; Angie James; Josh James; Sean James; Briana Downing; Lisa Stevens; Brent A Barnhill; and Michael James.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

SS SCS SB 57 -- FUNDING TO DETER CRIMINAL ACTIVITY

SPONSOR: May (Roberts)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 8 to 1.

This bill establishes the "Critical Incident Stress Management Program" within the Department of Public Safety. The program shall provide services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. A "critical incident" is any event outside the usual realm of human experience that is markedly distressing or evokes reactions of intense fear, helplessness, or horror and involves the perceived threat to a person's physical integrity or the physical integrity of someone else.

The bill provides that all peace officers shall be required to meet with a program service provider once every three to five years for a mental health check-in. The program service provider shall send a notification to the peace officer's commanding officer that he or she completed such check-in. Any information disclosed by a peace officer shall be privileged and shall not be used as evidence in criminal, administrative, or civil proceedings against the peace officer, except as in certain instances as provided in the bill.

Additionally, the bill creates the "988 Public Safety Fund" within the State Treasury, which shall be used by the Department of Public Safety for the purposes of providing services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. Such services may include consultation, risk assessment, education, intervention, and other crisis intervention services.

The bill creates the "Economic Distress Zone Fund", which shall be a fund used solely by the Department of Public Safety to provide funding to organizations registered with the IRS as a 501(c)(3) corporation that provide services to residents of the state in areas of high incidents of crime and deteriorating infrastructure, as defined in the bill, for the purpose of deterring criminal behavior in such areas. If money appropriated to the Fund exceeds $3 million, excluding any money made available by gift or otherwise, such money shall revert to general revenue.

This provision shall sunset on August 28, 2024.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this provides education and other crisis intervention services to our licensed peace officers and they can talk to people without the stigma of mental health issues. They can deal with things they carry the burden for daily. This bill seeks to help that. The "988 Fund" is what would help law enforcement. Some sort of emergency zone fund to provide funding and services and infrastructure in high areas of crime. Law enforcement has its own funding mechanism. There is no mandatory reporting requirement in the peer support unless the person is threating to cause harm to him or herself or someone else. There is no punishment for not doing this, but most officers want this service. More officers die by suicide than in the line of duty.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying for the bill were Senator May; Jewish Community Relations Council of St. Louis; Missouri Fraternal Order of Police; St. Louis Police Officers Association; Kansas City Fraternal Order of Police; and Missouri Sheriffs United.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

HCS SS SCS SBs 53 & 60 -- THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

SPONSOR: Luetkemeyer (Roberts)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Judiciary by a vote of 11 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 53.

OFFENSES AGAINST A BODY OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY (Sections 21.403, 21.405, 575.040, 575.050, 575.160, 575.270, 575.280, 575.330, and 576.030, RSMo)

This bill specifies that, when a person is subpoenaed to testify or provide information at a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly, a court must issue, upon request from the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the body that subpoenaed the person, an order requiring the person to testify or provide information if the person refuses to do so on the basis of the person's privilege against self-incrimination. Before issuing such an order, a court must find that the request for the order has been approved by a vote of a three-fifths majority of the members of the body requesting the order. If a witness refuses, on the basis of the privilege against self-incrimination, to testify or provide information and the person presiding over the proceeding informs the witness that an order requiring the testimony or production of information was issued, the witness must not refuse to comply with the order on the basis of the asserted privilege. However, no testimony or information compelled under the order may be used against the witness in any criminal proceeding other than perjury, giving a false statement, or otherwise failing to comply with the order.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

If a witness summoned by a body of the General Assembly willfully fails to appear, refuses to answer any pertinent questions, or fails to produce required documents, a statement of facts regarding such failure may be reported to and filed with the President Pro Tem of the Senate or the Speaker of the House. Either the President Pro Tem or the Speaker may certify the statement of facts to the prosecuting or other attorney having jurisdiction to prosecute. The Attorney General will have concurrent original jurisdiction to commence a criminal action throughout the state. Upon request by the President Pro Tem or the Speaker of the originating body, the court must, within 15 days of the request, appoint independent counsel, who will have jurisdiction to prosecute under Section 575.330, RSMo. If independent counsel is appointed, such independent counsel will have sole jurisdiction to prosecute under such section.

The bill also specifies that:

(1) The offense of perjury is a class D felony if it is committed in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(2) The offense of making a false affidavit is a class A misdemeanor when it is done in any proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(3) The offense of tampering with a witness or victim is a class E felony when the witness is a witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly;

(4) The offense of acceding to corruption when the person is a witness or prospective witness in a proceeding before a body of the General Assembly is a class D felony;

(5) A person commits the offense of obstructing government operations if he or she purposely obstructs, impairs, hinders, or perverts the performance of a governmental function by the use or threat of harm, intimidation, or coercion. The offense of obstructing government operations is a class A misdemeanor. However, if committed against a body of the General Assembly, it is a class E felony.

DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS (Sections 56.380, 56.455, 105.950; 149.071, 191.1165, 214.392, 217.010, 217.030, 217.195, 217.199, 217.243, 217.250, 217.270, 217.362, 217.364, 217.455, 217.541, 217.650, 217.655, 217.690, 217.692, 217.695, 217.710, 217.735, 217.829, 217.845, 221.065, 221.105, 549.500, 557.051, 558.011, 558.026, 558.031, 558.046, 559.026, 559.105, 559.106, 559.115, 559.125, 559.600, 559.602, 559.607, 566.145, 571.030, 575.206, 589.042, 650.055, and 650.058)

This bill modifies several provisions relating to the Department of Corrections.

This bill replaces the "Department of Corrections and Human Resources" with "Department of Corrections" and the "Board of Probation and Parole" with the "Division of Probation and Parole" or the "Parole Board".

This bill also adds that the chairperson of the board shall employ employees as is necessary to carry out duties, serve as the appointing authority over such employees, and provide for appropriate training to members and staff.

This bill repeals the provision that the chairperson of the board shall also be the Director of the Division of Probation and Parole. Under this bill, the Department of Corrections and all other state entities responsible for the care of persons detained or incarcerated in jails or prisons shall be required to ensure all such persons are assessed for substance abuse disorders; shall make available certain medication-assisted treatment services, consistent with a treatment plan developed by a physician; and shall not impose any arbitrary limitations on the type of medication or other treatment prescribed or dose or duration of the recommended services.

This bill also modifies the list of covered medications to include formulations of buprenorphine other than tablets and formulations of naltrexone including extended-release injectable formulations. This bill provides that, effective January 1, 2023, any inmate who receives an on-site, non-emergency medical examination or treatment from the correctional center's medical personnel shall be assessed a charge of $0.50 per visit for the medical examination or treatment.

Inmates shall not be charged a co-pay fee for the following:
(1) Staff-approved follow-up treatment for chronic illnesses;
(2) Preventive health care;
(3) Emergency services;
(4) Prenatal care;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003295

(5) Diagnosis or treatment of chronic infectious diseases;
(6) Mental health care; or
(7) Substance abuse treatment.

This bill provides that inmates without funds shall not be charged, provided they are considered to be indigent and unable to pay the health care services fee. Additionally, this bill provides that the Department of Corrections shall deposit all funds collected into General Revenue.

This bill provides that offenders who receive funding from the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) bill shall use such funds to make restitution payments ordered by a court resulting from a conviction of a violation of any local, state, or federal law.

Currently, the chief administrative officer of a correctional center may operate a canteen or commissary for the use and benefit of the offenders with the approval of the Division Director. Each correctional center keeps revenues received from the canteen or commissary to purchase the goods sold and other operating expenses. This bill specifies that, the Director of the Department of Corrections must approve the creation and operation of any canteen or commissary.

This bill also creates the "Inmate Canteen Fund" in the State Treasury which shall consist of funds received from the inmate canteens. Any proceeds generated from this Fund shall be expended solely for the purpose of improving inmate recreational, religious, educational, and reentry services.

This bill repeals the current "Inmate Canteen Fund", which receives the remaining funds from sales of the canteen or commissary. This bill also provides that Director of Corrections and any sheriff or jailer who holds a person in custody shall ensure that an appropriate quantity of feminine hygiene products are available at no cost to female offenders while confined in any correctional center or jail. The General Assembly may appropriate funds to assist with the funding of this requirement.

Currently, the Department of Corrections shall issue a reimbursement to a county for the actual cost of incarceration of a prisoner not to exceed certain amounts as provided in the bill. However, the amount shall not be less than the amount appropriated in the previous fiscal year.

This bill repeals the provision that the amount reimbursed to counties shall not be less than the amount appropriated in the previous fiscal year.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003296

Currently, a person who is serving a term of imprisonment receives credit toward his or her service of a sentence for all the person's time in prison, jail, or custody after the offense occurred. This bill changes that to after conviction. Additionally, the court may, when pronouncing a sentence, award credit for time spent in prison, jail or custody after the offense occurred and before conviction. This applies to offenses occurring on or after August 28, 2021.

COURT COSTS COLLECTED BY SHERIFFS (Section 57.280)

Currently, sheriffs who serve any summons, writ, or other order of the court may collect fees in civil cases. These court fees are collected by the court clerk and held in certain state and local funds.

This bill provides that a charge of up to $50 may be received by a sheriff for service of any summons, writ, or order for an eviction proceeding. All charges shall be collected by the sheriff prior to the service being rendered and paid to the county treasurer. The funds shall be held in a fund established by the county treasurer and may be expended at the discretion of the sheriff for the furtherance of the sheriff's set duties.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS (Section 84.400)

This bill provides that a member of the Kansas City Board of Police Commissioners or any member of such police force may be appointed to serve on any state or federal board, commission, or task force where no compensation for such service is paid, accept that such board member may accept a per diem or reimbursement for necessary expenses for attending meetings.

KANSAS CITY POLICE DEPARTMENT RESIDENCY REQUIREMENTS (Section 84.575)

This bill provides that the Board of Police Commissioners in Kansas City shall not require, as a condition of employment, that any currently employed or prospective law enforcement officer or other employee reside within any jurisdictional limit. Any current residency requirement in effect on or before August 28, 2021, shall not apply and shall not be enforced.

Additionally, the Board of Police Commissioners may impose a residency rule, but the rule or requirement shall be no more restrictive than requiring such personnel to reside within 30 miles from the nearest city limit and within the boundaries of the state of Missouri.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

MEDICAL MARIJUANA-RELATED DISCLOSURE (Section 191.255)

The bill prohibits state agencies from disclosing to the federal government or any unauthorized third party a statewide list or any individual information of persons who have applied for or obtained a medical marijuana card. The penalty for violation is a class E felony.

COMMUNICABLE DISEASES (Sections 191.677, 545.940, 575.155, and 575.157)

This bill modifies the laws regarding Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), and applies the law to all serious infectious or communicable diseases instead of only HIV. A serious infectious or communicable disease is a non-airborne disease spread from person to person that is fatal or causes disabling long-term consequences in the absence of lifelong treatment and management.

It shall be a class D felony for a person knowingly infected with a serious infectious or communicable disease to be a blood, organ, sperm, or tissue donor, except as deemed necessary for medical research or deemed medically appropriate by a licensed physician; or to knowingly expose another person to a serious infectious or communicable disease through an activity that creates a substantial risk of transmission as determined by competent medical or epidemiological evidence. If the victim contracts a serious infectious or communicable disease, it is a class C felony. It shall be a class A misdemeanor for a person knowingly infected with a serious infectious or communicable disease to act in a reckless manner by exposing another person to a serious infectious or communicable disease through an activity that creates a substantial risk of transmission as determined by competent medical or epidemiological evidence.

It is an affirmative defense if the person exposed to the serious infectious or communicable disease knew that the infected person was infected and consented to the exposure with such knowledge.

When alleging a violation of the law against exposing another person to a communicable disease, the prosecuting attorney or grand jury must use a pseudonym to protect the victim of the crime.

This bill makes the crimes of offense of endangering a corrections employee and offense of endangering a Department of Mental Health employee apply to prisoners who are knowingly infected with any serious infectious or communicable disease and exposes another person to the disease. Currently, the law only applies to exposing the victim to HIV, Hepatitis B, or Hepatitis C.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

PROTECTION OF CHILDREN (Sections 210.143, 210.493, 210.1250, 210.1253, 210.1256, 210.1259, 210.1262, 210.1263, 210.1264, 210.1265, 210.1268, 210.1271, 210.1274, 210.1280, 210.1283, and 210.1286)

This bill adds a process by which an "exempt-from-licensure residential care facility", as defined in the bill, is required to notify the Department of Social Services (DSS) of their existence and compliance with provisions that protect the safety of the children in residence. These include: fire and safety inspections, local health department inspections, background checks, medical records for all residents, and information about schools serving the children. The bill provides courts the power to expand on orders to produce children in a facility if there is suspicion of abuse or neglect.

This bill creates a process for DSS to provide background checks for licensed residential care facilities or child placing agencies and for residential care facilities subject to the notification requirements of 210.1250 to 210.1286 RSMo. Fingerprints are valid for 5 years and DSS will provide results to the applicant and to the facility or agency. The bill outlines what will make an applicant ineligible and provides applicants the right to appeal.

When there are allegations of abuse or neglect in the residential facility, the bill outlines how the Department can petition a court for an order for a home to present a child that is the subject of a child abuse investigation. The bill specifies that any case in which a referral is made to a juvenile officer for removal of a child, a referral may also be made to the Attorney General.

The bill further details that failure to comply with these provisions may result in fines, misdemeanor charges for failure to conduct background checks, and potential removal of children.

The bill specifies that the Department may promulgate necessary rules that include a fee to cover the cost of the notification process. However, it is not permitted to regulate any religious program, curriculum, or ministry.

These provisions are subject to an emergency clause for immediate implementation to protect children.

A CHILD'S RIGHT TO COUNSEL (Section 211.211)

This bill specifies that if a child waives his or her right to counsel, such waiver shall be made in open court and be recorded and in writing. In determining whether a child has knowingly, intelligently, and voluntarily waived his or her right to counsel, the court shall look to the totality of the circumstances, as specified in the bill. If a child waives his or her right to counsel, the waiver shall only apply to that particular proceeding. The bill also specifies certain proceedings in which a child's right to counsel cannot be waived unless the child has had the opportunity to meaningfully consult with counsel and the court has conducted a hearing on the record.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

JUVENILE JUSTICE (Sections 211.021, 211.181, and 211.435)

This bill specifies that, for the purposes of Chapter 211, RSMo, Section 221.044, and the original jurisdiction of the juvenile court, if a person was considered an adult when the alleged offense or violation was committed, he or she will not later be considered a child. Additionally, under current law, no court will require a child to remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services past the child's 18th birthday. This bill changes that provision so that a child can remain in the custody of the Division of Youth Services until the child's 19th birthday.

There is currently a state "Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund", which exists in the State Treasury. This bill changes that so there is a Juvenile Justice Preservation Fund in each county's circuit court, and the purpose of this fund is to implement and maintain the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction to 18 years of age. The surcharge collected under the section will be payable to the county circuit court rather than to the State Treasury. Funds currently held by the State Treasurer in the Fund must be payable and revert to the circuit court's fund in the county of origination. Expenditures from the individual county juvenile justice funds will be made at the discretion of the juvenile office for the circuit court and must be used for the sole purpose of implementing and maintaining the expansion of juvenile court jurisdiction.

The bill states that, to further promote the best interests of the children of Missouri, money in the fund will not be used to replace or reduce the responsibilities of either the counties or the state to provide funding for existing and new juvenile treatment services.

These provisions are subject to an emergency clause.

WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTIONS (Section 285.575)

The bill specifies that the term "employer" includes law enforcement agencies for the purpose of whistleblower protections.

HEAD START SCHOOL BUSES (Section 304.050)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This bill provides that a certified Head Start school bus is subject to all provisions that a certified school bus is subject, except for the requirement of a crossing control arm.

CHILD VISITATION (Section 452.410)

THe bill specifies in accordance with which certain sections a joint custody or visitation order may be modified.

ORDERS OF PROTECTION (Sections 455.010, 455.032, 455.040, 455.045, 455.050, 455.513, 455.520, and 455.523)

This bill specifies that, adult protection orders and child protection orders, full or ex parte, may be granted to restrain or enjoin an individual from committing or threatening to commit abuse against a pet. A protection order may include an order of possession of the pet where appropriate, as well as any funds needed to cover the medical costs resulting from abuse of the pet. "Pet" is defined in this bill as a living creature maintained by a household member for companionship and not for commercial purposes.

Currently, a court may issue a full adult order of protection, after a hearing, for at least 180 days and not exceeding one year. This bill specifies that, if the court finds, after an evidentiary hearing, that the respondent poses a serious danger to the physical or mental health of the petitioner or a minor household member, the protective order shall be valid for at least two years and not more than 10 years. The full order may be renewed annually for a period of at least 180 days and not more than one year from the expiration date of the previously issued order; except, in cases where the court finds the respondent poses a serious danger to the petitioner or a minor household member, then the order may be renewed periodically and shall be valid for at least two years and up to the life of the respondent. The court may include a provision that any full order of protection shall be automatically renewed for any term of renewal as set forth in this bill.

If a court finds that the respondent poses a serious risk to the petitioner or a minor household member, the court shall not modify the order until a period of at least two years from the date of the original full order of protection was issued and only after a hearing and making written findings that the respondent has shown proof of treatment and rehabilitation and no longer poses a serious danger.

Currently, the clerk issues a copy of any order of protection to the local law enforcement agency responsible for maintaining the Missouri Uniform Law Enforcement System (MULES) the same day the order is granted and the local law enforcement agency enters the information contained in the order into MULES. This bill specifies that the court shall provide all the necessary information regarding the order of protection for entry into MULES and the National Crime Information Center (NCIC). The sheriff shall enter the information into MULES within 24 hours and MULES shall forward that information to NCIC, thus making the order viewable in the National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS).

GUARDIANS AD LITEM (GALs) (Section 475.120)

The bill specifies that, except where otherwise limited by the court, a guardian ad litem (GAL) will make decisions regarding an adult ward's support, care, education, health, and welfare. A GAL will exercise authority only as necessitated by the adult ward's limitations and, to the extent possible, will encourage the adult ward to participate in decisions, act on the ward's own behalf, and develop or regain the capacity to manage the ward's personal affairs.

MUNICIPAL COURT DISCOVERY (Section 479.162)

This bill specifies that in a proceeding for a municipal ordinance violation or any other proceeding before a municipal court if the charge carries the possibility of 15 days or more in jail or confinement, a defendant must not be charged any fee for obtaining a police report or probable cause statement. Such police report or probable cause statement must be provided by the prosecutor upon written request for discovery by the defendant.

COURT REPORTERS (Section 485.060)

Lastly, the bill specifies that, starting January 1, 2022, each court reporter for a circuit judge will receive an annual salary based upon his or her cumulative years of service as a court reporter with a circuit court of this state, based upon a schedule provided in the bill.

COURT COSTS FOR VETERANS (Section 488.016)

The bill specifies that court costs will be fully waived for any person who is an honorably discharged veteran of any branch of the armed forces of the United States and who successfully completes a veterans' treatment court.

ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE (Section 491.016)

This bill specifies that an otherwise inadmissible witness statement is admissible in evidence in a criminal proceeding as substantive evidence if the court, after a hearing, finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant engaged in or acquiesced to wrongdoing with the purpose of causing the unavailability of the witness, such wrongdoing caused or substantially contributed to the unavailability of the witness, the prosecution exercised due diligence to secure by subpoena or other means the attendance of the witness, and the witness failed to appear.

UNIFORM INTERSTATE DEPOSITIONS AND DISCOVERY ACT (Sections 510.500, 510.503, 510.506, 510.509, 510.512, 510.515, 510.518, 510.521)
The bill creates the "Uniform Interstate Depositions and Discovery Act" and provides procedures and processes for when a subpoena for discovery or deposition is submitted in Missouri by a foreign jurisdiction, which is defined in this bill as a state other than Missouri.

CONFIDENTIALITY OF CRIME STOPPERS ORGANIZATIONS (Section 546.265)
This bill provides that no person shall be required to disclose, by way of testimony or otherwise, a privileged communication between a person who submits a report of alleged criminal activity to a crime stoppers organization and the person who accepts the report on behalf of a crime stoppers organization. Additionally, no such person shall be required to produce, under subpoena, any records, documentary evidence, opinions, or decisions relating to such privileged communication in connection with any criminal proceeding or discovery procedure.
This bill also provides that any person arrested or charged with a criminal offense may petition the court for an in-camera inspection of the records of a privileged communication concerning the report such person made to the crime stoppers organization. If the court determines the person is entitled to all or part of such records, the court may order production and disclosure as the court deems appropriate.
CRIMINAL OFFENSES (Sections 488.029 and 556.046)
This bill specifies that a court shall be obligated to charge the jury with respect to an included offense only if it is established by proof of the same or less than all the elements required to establish the commission of the offense charged, there is a rational basis in the evidence for a verdict acquitting the person of the offense charged and convicting the person of the included offense, and either party requests the court to charge the jury with respect to a specific included offense.

Failure of the defendant or defendant's counsel to request the court to charge the jury with respect to a specific included offense shall not be a basis for plain-error review on direct appeal or post-conviction relief. It shall be the trial court's duty to determine if a rational basis in the evidence for a verdict exists.

SENTENCE REVIEW (Section 558.047)
This bill authorizes sentence review for any person who was under 18 years of age at the time of the commission of the offense and has been sentenced to a term of imprisonment for life with or without eligibility for parole, a term of 15 or more years, or multiple terms when taken together amount to 15 or more years. Such person may submit a petition for a review of his or her sentence to the Parole Board after serving 15 years, and every three years thereafter until a presumption release date has been established by the Parole Board.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

OFFENSE OF UNLAWFUL POSTING OF CERTAIN INFORMATION ONLINE (Section 565.240)

Currently, a person commits the offense of unlawful posting of certain information over the internet if he or she knowingly posts the name, home address, Social Security number, or telephone number of any person on the Internet intending to cause great bodily harm or death, or threatening to cause great bodily harm or death to such person. Such offense is a Class C misdemeanor.

This bill modifies the current offense by adding "any other personally identifiable information" and further provides that if a person knowingly posts on the Internet the name, home address, Social Security number, telephone number, or any other personally identifiable information of any law enforcement officer, corrections officer, parole officer, judge, commissioner, or prosecuting attorney, or the information of an immediate family member of such officer, judge, commissioner, or prosecuting attorney, he or she shall be guilty of a Class E felony.

SEXUAL MISCONDUCT OF POLICE OFFICERS (Section 566.145)

The bill provides that a law enforcement officer who engages in sexual conduct with a detainee or prisoner who is in the custody of such officer shall be guilty of a class E felony. A person also commits the offense if the person is a probation and parole officer or a police officer or an employee of or a person assigned to work in a jail, prison, or correctional facility and the person has sexual conduct on duty and the offense is committed by means of coercion.

UNLAWFUL USE OF A LASER POINTER (Section 574.110)
This bill creates the offense of using a laser pointer, as defined in the bill, by knowingly directing the light from a laser pointer at a uniformed safety officer, including a peace officer as defined in Section 590.010,RSMo, security guard, firefighter, emergency medical worker, or other uniformed municipal, state, or federal officer. Violation of this offense is a class A misdemeanor.

PEACE OFFICER LICENSURE (Sections 590.030)
Currently, all licensed peace officers, as a condition of licensure, must obtain continuing law enforcement education and maintain a current address of record on file with the POST

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Commission.
This bill provides that in addition to those requirements for licensure, peace officers must submit to being fingerprinted on or before January 1, 2022, and every six years thereafter and also submit to fingerprinting for the purposes of a criminal history background check and enrollment in the state and federal Rap Back Program.

Additionally, any time a peace officer is commissioned with a different law enforcement agency he or she must submit to being fingerprinted. The criminal history background check shall include the records of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The resulting report shall be forwarded to the peace officer's law enforcement agency. The Rap Back enrollment shall be for the purposes of peace officer disciplinary reports as required by law. Law enforcement officers and law enforcement agencies shall take all necessary steps to maintain officer enrollment in Rap Back for as long as an officer is commissioned with that agency. All law enforcement agencies shall enroll in the state and federal Rap Back programs on or before January 1, 2022.

COMMISSIONING REQUIREMENTS OF PEACE OFFICERS (Sections 590.070 and 590.075)

Currently, the chief executive officer of each law enforcement agency must notify the Director of the POST Commission the circumstances surrounding a law enforcement officer's departure from the law enforcement agency within 30 days of the departure. This bill provides that the chief executive officer of each law enforcement agency shall, prior to commissioning any peace officer, request a certified copy from the Director of all notifications received regarding such peace officer. All notifications provided to the chief executive officer from the Director shall be received within 3 days of the request.

Finally, this bill provides that the chief executive officer of each law enforcement agency has absolute immunity from suit for complying with such notification requirements to the Director, unless the chief executive officer presented false information to the Director with the intention of causing reputational harm to the peace officer. If the Director receives any additional notifications regarding the candidate for commissioning within 60 days of a chief executive officer's request, a copy of such notifications shall be forwarded by the director to the requesting chief executive officer within 3 business days following receipt.

CRITICAL INCIDENT STRESS MANAGEMENT PROGRAM (Section 590.192)

This bill establishes the "Critical Incident Stress Management

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003305

Program" within the Department of Public Safety. The program shall provide services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. A "critical incident" is any event outside the usual realm of human experience that is markedly distressing or evokes reactions of intense fear, helplessness, or horror and involves the perceived threat to a person's physical integrity or the physical integrity of someone else.

This bill provides that all peace officers shall be required to meet with a program service provider once every three to five years for a mental health check-in. The program service provider shall send a notification to the peace officer's commanding officer that he or she completed such check-in. Any information disclosed by a peace officer shall be privileged and shall not be used as evidence in criminal, administrative, or civil proceedings against the peace officer, except as in certain instances as provided in the bill.

Additionally, this bill creates the "988 Public Safety Fund" within the state treasury and shall be used by the Department of Public Safety for the purposes of providing services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. Such services may include consultation, risk assessment, education, intervention, and other crisis intervention services.

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS' BILL OF RIGHTS (Section 590.500)

The bill establishes the "Law Enforcement Officers' Bill of Rights".

The bill defines a "law enforcement officer" as any sworn peace officer, except the highest ranking officer in the law enforcement agency, who is employed by any unit of the state or any county, charter county, city, charter city, municipality, district, college, university, or any other political subdivision or by the Board of Police Commissioners, who possesses the power to arrest for violations of the criminal code.

The bill specifies certain rights a law enforcement officer has when he or she is the subject of an administrative investigation or is being questioned or interviewed. These rights include being informed of the violation, requiring the complaint to be supported by a sworn affidavit, and allowing the officer to have an attorney or any duly authorized representative.

The bill provides that any law enforcement officer who is suspended

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

without pay, demoted, terminated, transferred, or placed on a status resulting in economic loss is entitled to a full due process hearing. The hearing requirements are specified in the bill.

RESPIRATORY CHOKE HOLDS (Section 590.805)
This bill provides that a law enforcement officer is prohibited from knowingly using a respiratory choke-hold unless it is being used in defense of the officer or another person from serious physical injury or death. A "respiratory choke-hold" includes the use of any body part or object to attempt to control or disable a person by applying pressure to the person's neck with the purpose of controlling or restricting the person's breathing.

RECORDS DISCLOSURE (Sections 590.1210, 610.120, and 610.140)
The bill specifies that no law enforcement agency may adopt a policy that requires the closure or redaction of certain information from a public record unless the record or portion of the record is required to be closed or redacted under Chapter 610 or any other provision of law.

POLICE USE OF FORCE DATABASE (Section 590.1265)

This bill establishes the "Police Use of Force Transparency Act of 2021."

Starting March 1, 2022, each law enforcement agency shall, at least annually, collect and report local data on use-of-force incidents involving peace officers to the National Use of Force Data Collection through the Law Enforcement Enterprise Portal administered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). Use-of-force incidents shall include fatalities and serious physical injuries that are connected to the use of force by an officer.

Additionally, each law enforcement agency shall submit such information to the Department of Public Safety. The personally identifying information of individual peace officers shall not be included in the reports. The Department of Public Safety shall, no later than October 31, 2021, develop standards and procedures governing the collection and reporting of use-of-force data. The standards shall be consistent with the requirements, definitions, and methods of the National Use of Force Data Collection administered by the FBI.

The Department of Public Safety shall publish the data reported by law enforcement agencies in a publicly available report at least annually starting March, 2023. Finally, the Department of Public Safety shall undertake an analysis of any trends and disparities in rates of use of force by all law enforcement agencies, with a report to be released to the public no later than June 30, 2025.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The report shall be updated at least every five years.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that it is hard time to be a police officer. They work long, hot, mentally and physical grueling hours. Makes it hard for our largest cities to retain and hire. During special session, we removed residency requirement for police in St. Louis and this bill does the same for Kansas City. Police Officers want what is best for their families, want them to be safe, to live close to other family members, and want good schools. Some want to live in a more rural area. We need confidentiality of informants who call into tips hotlines. We also need to enhance background checks for law enforcement officers, RAP Back. This establishes a fund for helping law enforcement officers that experience trauma. This is common sense reform that holds law enforcement accountable but also allows them to do their jobs. They want to make sure they can live somewhere they feel safe. Not everyone will need to live outside of the area but there are people with legitimate reasons to live somewhere else: elderly parents that need help, as well as particular position leads to safety concerns. It isn't about not liking Kansas City. Across the country there are very few municipalities that have residency requirements. They will be close to 300 police officers down in KC by this time next year.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Luetkemeyer; Missouri Coalition Against Domestic and Sexual Violence (MCADSV); Missouri State Troopers Association; Missouri Sheriffs United; Missouri Police Chiefs Association; Cicero Institute; Kendall Martinez Wright; and Brad Lemon, Kansas City Fraternal Order of Police.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that in support of criminal justice reform, they just don't think it is in this bill. These are real and perceived injustices in the Missouri justice system. This is supposed to be criminal justice reform and it creates another felony. This just helps police officers. That is ok, police officers need help; they should be paid more. But the doxing provision could mean that when members of the public call attention to specific incidents by police officers and name the officer, if that officer feels intimidated against if could lead to charges against the protesters. We don't want secret police. We need to repair this failing system. This does nothing for the people that it is supposed to be for. KC is opposed to prohibiting residency requirements for their city. It should be up to the board of police commissioners; local control is the best control.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Shortage is not due to the residency requirement, it is that people don't want to be police officers right now. There has been a budget crisis since COVID and they don't have the funds to fully fund all of the officers that they need. They want their officers to live in their community and be part of their community. The taxpayers should have a right to ask that of the officers they are employing. They know coming in that there is a residency requirement and they are compensated accordingly, one of the highest paid police departments. This isn't the reform that people want.

Testifying against the bill were Rod Chapel, Jr., Missouri State Conference of NAACP; City of Kansas City, Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce; Webster Davis, Missouri NAACP; Arnie C. Dienoff; American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri.

Section	Original Bill	Status As of 4/27/21	Description
394.120, 407.475	SS SB 333 Burlison	House Emerging Issues	This bill modifies provisions relating to nonprofit organizations. Under the bill, the board of directors of a rural electric cooperative shall have the power to set the time and place of the annual meeting and also to provide for voting by proxy, electronic means, by mail, or any combination thereof, and to prescribe the conditions under which such voting shall be exercised. The meeting requirement may be satisfied through virtual means. This provision expires on August 28, 2022. Further, under the bill, the state shall not impose any annual filing or reporting requirements on a charitable organization that are more stringent, restrictive, or expansive than the report already required to be submitted to the Attorney General's office unless such filing or report is specifically required by federal law. This provision shall not apply to state grants or contracts, or investigations by the Attorney General of charitable organizations as set forth in state statute. Further, this provision shall not prohibit the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations or the State Board of Mediation from enforcing provisions of law relating to labor organizations.
105.1500	HB 1030 Perfected Taylor	Public Hearing Schedules Senate General Laws	This bill creates provisions relating to the disclosure of personal information to public agencies. This bill establishes the "Personal Privacy Protection Act", prohibiting public agencies from disclosing or requiring the disclosure of personal information, as defined in the bill. The bill prohibits public agencies from; (1) Requiring any individual to provide the public agency with personal information or otherwise compel the release of such personal information; (2) Requiring any entity exempt from federal income taxation under Section 501(c) of the Internal Revenue Code to provide a public agency with personal information or otherwise compel the release of personal information; (3) Releasing, publicizing, or otherwise publicly disclosing personal information in possession of the public agency; or (4) Requiring any current or prospective contractor or grantee with the public agency to provide the public agency with a list of entities exempt from federal income taxation under Section 501(c) of the Internal Revenue Code to which it has provided financial or nonfinancial support. The bill shall not preclude any individual or entity from being required to comply with any of the following: (1) Submitting any report or disclosure required by this chapter or Chapter

			130, RSMo; (2) Responding to any lawful request or subpoena for personal information from the Missouri Ethics Commission as a part of an investigation, or publicly disclosing personal information as a result of an enforcement action from the Missouri Ethics Commission pursuant to its authority in Sections 105.955 to 105.966 (3) Responding to any lawful warrant for personal information issued by a court of competent jurisdiction; (4) Responding to any lawful request for discovery of personal information in litigation as provided in the bill; (5) Admitting any personal information as relevant evidence be fore a court of competent jurisdiction. However, no court shall publicly reveal personal information absent a specific finding of good cause. Any person or entity may bring a civil action for appropriate injunctive relief, damages, or both. Damages may be not less than $2,500 to compensate for injury or loss caused by each violation of this bill and, for an intentional violation, a sum of money not to exceed three times the sum of damages assessed. A court may additionally award all or a portion of the costs of litigation, including reasonable attorney fees and witness fees, to the complainant in the action if the court determines that the award is appropriate. Furthermore, a person who knowingly violates this bill is guilty of a Class B misdemeanor.

It also repeals language related to how a school and school district are to handle reports of alleged child abuse. This bill allows the Office of Child Advocate to release findings for members of a multidisciplinary team relating to their professional performance.
160.263	HB 387 Bailey	Voted Do Pass out of Senate Education	This bill defines "restraint" and "seclusion" and requires school districts, charter schools, or publicly contracted private providers to include in policy a prohibition on the use of restraint and seclusion, including "prone restraint" as defined by the bill, for any purpose other then situations or conditions in which there is imminent danger of physical harm to self or others. Any incident requiring restraint or seclusion shall be monitored by school personnel with written observation. The bill requires that before July 1, 2022 each school district, and charter school, or publicly contracted private providers policy shall include: (1) When to remove a child from restraint, seclusion, or isolation; (2) Requirement for annual mandatory training; (3) Reporting requirements for any occurrence of restraint, seclusion or isolation as outlined in the bill, including the reporting requirements for parental notification and providing a copy of each report to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE); (4) Notification requirement for each occurrence of a restraint, seclusion, or isolation incident to parents or guardians within one hour after the end of school on the day the incident occurs. (5) Protections for individuals that report or provide information about violations of policy under this section.

210.115, 210.121	HCS HB 1276 Pike	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill modifies mandated reporting for unaccompanied and homeless youth seeking supportive services so that the youth's status alone is not sufficient basis for reporting child abuse or neglect. The bill defines "supportive services" to include interventions, services, or resources necessary to assist unaccompanied youth, including food and shelter, counseling, case management, and legal services among other services outlined in the bill. The bill allows an unaccompanied youth to access supportive services as long as they are documented by a licensed mental health, counselor, or social worker as provided by the bill. The bill exempts persons who in good faith provided supportive services from civil and criminal action without permission from the youth's parent.
210.127, 210.305, 210.565			This bill modifies provisions relating to the duty of Children's Division to identify and locate biological parents, grandparents, or other relatives of children in the division's custody.
210.143, 210.493, 210.1250, 210.1253, 210.1256, 210.1259, 210.1262, 210.1263, 210.1264, 210.1265, 210.1268, 210.1271, 210.1274, 210.1280, 210.1283, 210.1286,	HB 557 Perfected Veit	Reported Do Pass out of Senate Seniors, Families, Veterans and Military Affairs	This bill adds a process by which an "exempt-from-licensure residential care facility", as defined in the bill, is required to notify the Department of Social Services (DSS) of their existence and compliance with provisions that protect the safety of the children in the residence. These include: fire and safety inspections, local health department inspections, background checks, medical records for all residents, and information about schools serving the children. The bill provides courts the power to expand on orders to produce children in a facility if there is suspicion of abuse or neglect. This bill creates a process for DSS to provide background checks for licensed residential care facilities or child placing agencies and for residential care facilities subject to the notification requirements of 210.1250 to 210.1286 RSMo. Fingerprints are valid for 5 years and DSS will provide results to the applicant and to the facility or agency. The bill outlines what will make an applicant ineligible and provides applicants the right to appeal. When there are allegations of abuse or neglect in the residential facility, the bill outlines how the Department can petition a court for an order for a home to present a child that is the subject of a child abuse investigation. The bill specifies that any case in which a referral is made to a juvenile officer for removal of a child, a referral may also be made to the Attorney General. The bill further details that failure to comply with these provisions may result in fines, misdemeanor charges for failure to conduct background checks, and potential removal of children. The bill specifies that the Department may promulgate necessary rules that include a fee to cover the cost of the notification process. However, it is not permitted to regulate any religious program, curriculum, or ministry.
210.489	HB 1335 Sauls	Reported Do Pass out of Rules Administrative Oversight	This bill allows the Division of Children Services within the Department of Social Services to permit children to voluntarily reenter foster care if due to the child's age the child left care during the COVID-19 pandemic. The Division will provide children with notice of this option, facilitate the return to care, and conduct a public awareness campaign for children under 22 years of age, until September 30, 2021 or while there is a state of emergency due to the pandemic, whichever is later.

SS SCS SB 57 -- FUNDING TO DETER CRIMINAL ACTIVITY

SPONSOR: May (Roberts)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 8 to 1.

This bill establishes the "Critical Incident Stress Management Program" within the Department of Public Safety. The program shall provide services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. A "critical incident" is any event outside the usual realm of human experience that is markedly distressing or evokes reactions of intense fear, helplessness, or horror and involves the perceived threat to a person's physical integrity or the physical integrity of someone else.

The bill provides that all peace officers shall be required to meet with a program service provider once every three to five years for a mental health check-in. The program service provider shall send a notification to the peace officer's commanding officer that he or she completed such check-in. Any information disclosed by a peace officer shall be privileged and shall not be used as evidence in criminal, administrative, or civil proceedings against the peace officer, except as in certain instances as provided in the bill.

Additionally, the bill creates the "988 Public Safety Fund" within the State Treasury, which shall be used by the Department of Public Safety for the purposes of providing services for peace officers to assist in coping with stress and potential psychological trauma resulting from a response to a critical incident or emotionally difficult event. Such services may include consultation, risk assessment, education, intervention, and other crisis intervention services.

The bill creates the "Economic Distress Zone Fund", which shall be a fund used solely by the Department of Public Safety to provide funding to organizations registered with the IRS as a 501(c)(3) corporation that provide services to residents of the state in areas of high incidents of crime and deteriorating infrastructure, as defined in the bill, for the purpose of deterring criminal behavior in such areas. If money appropriated to the Fund exceeds $3 million, excluding any money made available by gift or otherwise, such money shall revert to general revenue. This provision shall sunset on August 28, 2024.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this provides education and other crisis intervention services to our licensed peace officers and they can talk to people without the stigma of mental health issues. They can deal with things they carry the burden for daily. This bill seeks to help that. The "988 Fund" is what would help law enforcement. Some sort of emergency zone fund to provide funding and services and infrastructure in high areas of crime. Law enforcement has its own funding mechanism. There is no mandatory reporting requirement in the peer support unless the person is threating to cause harm to him or herself or someone else. There is no punishment for not doing this, but most officers want this service. More officers die by suicide than in the line of duty.

Testifying for the bill were Senator May; Jewish Community Relations Council of St. Louis; Missouri Fraternal Order of Police; St. Louis Police Officers Association; Kansas City Fraternal Order of Police; and Missouri Sheriffs United.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony, which can be found online.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SS#2 SCS SB 202 -- PROVISION OF ELECTRICAL SERVICES

SPONSOR: Cierpiot (O'Donnell)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Utilities by a vote of 6 to 2.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 202.

This bill modifies provisions relating to the provision of electrical services.

SERVICE TERRITORIES OF RETAIL ELECTRIC SERVICE PROVIDERS (Sections 91.025, 386.800, 393.106, 394.020, & 394.315, RSMo)

The bill changes the provisions relating to service territories of retail electric service providers. In the event that a retail electric supplier is providing service to a structure located within a municipality that has ceased to be a rural area, and the structure is demolished and replaced by a new structure, the retail electric service supplier may provide permanent service to the new structure upon the request of the owner of the new structure.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Additionally, in the absence of an approved territorial agreement, the municipally owned utility must apply to the Public Service Commission for an order assigning nonexclusive service territories and concurrently must provide written notice of the application to other electric service suppliers with electric facilities located within a mile outside of the boundaries of the proposed expanded service territory. In granting the applicant's request, the Commission must give due regard to territories previously served by the other electric service suppliers and the wasteful duplication of electric service facilities.

Any municipally owned electric utility may extend its electric service territory to include areas where another electric supplier currently is not providing permanent service to a structure. If a rural electric cooperative has existing electric service facilities in the area proposed to be annexed, the majority of the existing developers, landowners, or prospective electric customers may submit a written request to the governing body of the annexing municipality to invoke mandatory good faith negotiations. These provisions also apply in the event an electrical corporation rather than a municipally owned electric utility is providing electric service in the municipality.

The bill also changes the term "fair and reasonable compensation" to be 200%, rather than 400%, of gross revenues less gross receipts taxes received by the affected electric service supplier from the 12 month period preceding the approval of the municipality's governing body. Additionally, this bill changes the definition of the population of a "rural area" to be increased by 6% every 10 years after each census beginning in 2030.

At the time that a municipally owned utility applies to the Public Service Commission for an order assigning nonexclusive service territories, the utility must concurrently provide written notice of the application to other electric service suppliers with electric facilities located within a mile outside of the boundaries of the proposed expanded service territory. In granting the applicant's request, the Commission must consider territories previously granted to or served by other electric service suppliers and the duplication of electric service facilities.

Any municipally owned electric utility may extend its electric service territory to include areas where another electric service supplier is not currently serving a structure but has existing electric service facilities located in or within a mile outside the boundaries of the area proposed to be annexed, provided it first notifies in writing the affected electric service supplier within 60 days prior to the effective date of the proposed annexation. If the affected electric service supplier objects, it must follow procedures specified in the bill.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Responsibility for payment of fees set by the Commission to carry out its duties related to determining service territories are on the parties to the proceeding as ordered by the Commission in each case.

If an electrical corporation is providing electric service within a municipality and the corporation has previously received a certificate of convenience and necessity from the Commission to provide electric service in the annexed area or the area proposed to be annexed, certain provisions of the bill apply equally to the electrical corporation as if it were a municipally owned utility. A municipality is not precluded from having a population of at least 1,500 inhabitants as of August 28, 2021, from requiring a rural electric cooperative to obtain a franchise to provide electric service, or to impose a sales tax, within the boundaries of the municipality.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION ASSESSMENT (Section 386.370)

Currently, the Public Service Commission can assess no more than 0.25% of the total gross intrastate operating revenues against all utilities under the jurisdiction of the Commission for the cost of regulating such utilities. The bill changes the assessment rate to no more than 0.315% of the total gross intrastate operating revenues.

WHOLESALE ELECTRIC ENERGY (Section 393.106)

The bill specifies that auxillary power may be purchased on a wholesale basis for use at an electric generation facility located in any county of the first classification with more than 92,000 but fewer than 101,000 inhabitants which began operating prior to August 28, 2021, and is operated as an independent power producer. Currently, this only applies to Cass County.

CUSTOMER CLASS RATES OF ELECTRICAL CORPORATIONS (Section 393.1620)
When determining the allocation of an electrical corporation's total revenue requirement among the electrical corporation's customer classes for the ultimate purpose of setting base rates for each customer class, the Public Service Commission may only consider class cost of service study results that allocate the electrical corporation's production plant costs from nuclear and fossil generating units using the average and excess method or one of the methods of assignment or allocation contained within the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners 1992 manual or a subsequent manual.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This provision expires on August 28, 2031.

FINANCING ORDERS (Section 393.1700)

An electrical corporation may petition the Public Service Commission for a financing order, which is an order from the Commission that authorizes the issuance of securitized utility tariff bonds; the imposition, collection, and periodic adjustments of a securitized utility tariff charge; the creation of securitized utility tariff property; and the sale, assignment, or transfer of securitized utility tariff property to an assignee. A securitized utility tariff charge must be used to repay, finance, or refinance energy transition costs or qualified extraordinary costs and financing costs that are charges imposed on and part of all retail customer bills.

The bill specifies a time frame for proceedings on a petition for a financing order. Judicial relief may be had as set forth in law for Commission decisions.

A financing order issued by the Commission must include certain elements.

A financing order issued to an electrical corporation may provide that the creation of the electrical corporation's securitized utility tariff property is conditioned upon, and simultaneous with, the sale or other transfer of the securitized utility tariff property to an assignee and the pledge of the securitized utility tariff property to secure securitized utility tariff bonds.

If a financing order is issued, the electrical corporation must file a petition or letter at least annually applying the formula-based true-up mechanism requesting administrative approval to make applicable adjustments. The Commission has 30 days from receiving the petition or letter to approve the request or inform the electrical corporation of any mathematical or clerical errors in its calculation.

Once securitized utility tariff bonds are authorized the Commission may not amend, modify, or terminate the financing order by any subsequent action or make changes to securitized utility tariff charges approved in the financing order.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A financing order remains in effect, and securitized utility tariff property under the financing order continues to exist, until securitized utility tariff bonds issued pursuant to the financing order have been paid in full or defeased and, in each case, all Commission-approved financing costs of such securitized utility tariff bonds have been covered in full.

The securitized utility tariff bonds issued pursuant to a financing order can not be considered to be debt of the electrical corporation other than for federal and state income taxes.

No electrical corporation is required to file a petition for a financing order. A decision not to file for a financing order is not admissible in any Commission proceeding or otherwise utilized or relied on by the Commission in certain proceedings.

Debt reflected by the securitized utility tariff bonds can not be utilized or considered in establishing the electrical corporation's capital structure used to determine any regulatory matter.

The Commission may not, directly or indirectly, consider the existence of securitized utility tariff bonds or the potential use of securitized utility tariff bond financing proceeds in determining the electrical corporation's authorized rate of return used to determine the electrical corporation's revenue requirement used to set rates.

Electric bills of an electrical corporation that has obtained a financing order and caused securitized utility tariff bonds to be issued must include specific information as listed in the bill.

Securitized utility tariff property specified in a financing order exists until securitized utility tariff bonds issued pursuant to the financing order are paid in full and all financing costs and other costs of such securitized utility tariff bonds have been recovered in full.

If an electrical corporation defaults on any required remittance of securitized utility tariff charges arising from securitized utility tariff property specified in a financing order, a court, upon application by an interested party, must order the sequestration and payment of the revenues arising from the securitized utility tariff property to the financing parties or their assignees.

Any successor to an electrical corporation must perform and satisfy all obligations of, and have the same rights under a financing order as, the electrical corporation under the financing order.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The bill contains several provisions related to security interests in securitized utility tariff property.

A security interest in securitized utility tariff property is created, valid, and binding and perfected at the later of the time:

1) The financing order is issued;

2) A security agreement is executed and delivered by the debtor granting such security interest;

3) The debtor has rights in such securitized utility tariff property or the power to transfer rights in such securitized utility tariff property; or

4) Value is received for the securitized utility tariff property. The law governing the validity, enforceability, attachment, perfection, priority, and exercise of remedies with respect to the transfer of an interest or right or the pledge or creation of a security interest in any securitized utility tariff property must be the laws of Missouri.

The bill lists entities that may legally invest any sinking funds, moneys, or other funds in securitized utility tariff bonds.

REPLACEMENT RESOURCES (Section 393.1705)

An electrical corporation may file a petition concurrently with a petition filed for a financing order for investment in replacement resources and the Commission must approve such investment as specified in the bill. Such approval constitutes an affirmative and binding determination by the Commission, to be applied in all subsequent proceedings respecting the rates of the electrical corporation, that such investment is prudent and reasonable, that the replacement resource is necessary for the electrical corporation's provision of electric service to its customers, and that such investment must be reflected in the revenue requirement used to set the electrical corporation's base rates. The approval is subject only to the Commission's authority to determine that the electrical corporation did not manage or execute the project in a reasonable and prudent manner in some respect and the Commission's authority to disallow for ratemaking purposes only that portion of the investment that would not have been incurred had the unreasonable or imprudent management or execution of the project not occurred.

The changes in the electrical corporation's revenue requirement that must be deferred to a regulatory asset or only consist of specified items.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The bill specifies a time frame for proceedings on a petition to have investment in replacement resources approved.

RATEMAKING PRINCIPLES AND TREATMENT (Section 393.1715)

An electrical corporation may petition the Commission for a determination of the ratemaking principles and treatment, as proposed by the corporation, that will apply to the reflection in base rates of the electrical corporation's capital and noncapital costs associated with one or more of the corporation's coal-fired facilities.

If the Commission fails to issue a determination within 215 days that a petition for a determination of ratemaking principles and treatment is filed, the ratemaking principles and treatment proposed by the petitioning electrical corporation msut be deemed to have been approved.

The factors and circumstances to which such principles and treatment apply are specified in the bill. If the electrical corporation determines that one or more major factor or circumstance has changed in a manner that warrants a change in the approved ratemaking principles and treatment, then it must file a notice in the docket within 45 days of such determination.

A party that has concerns about the proposed changes in principles and treatment must file a notice of its concerns within 30 days of the electrical corporation's filing. If a party believes that one or more factor or circumstance warrants a change in the approved principles and treatment and the electrical corporation does not agree, such party must file a notice within 45 days, and such notice must include certain information.

An electrical corporation is permitted to retain coal-fired generating assets in rate base and recover costs associated with operating the coal-fired assets that remain in service to provide greater certainty that generating capacity will be available to provide essential service to customers, including during extreme weather events, and the Commission may allow any portion of such cost recovery on the basis that such coal-fired generating assets operate at a low capacity factor, or are off-line and providing capacity only, during normal operating conditions.

RURAL ELECTRIC COOPERATIVES (Section 394.120)

The bill allows the board of directors of a rural electric cooperative to set the time and place of its annual meeting and to provided for voting by proxy, electronic means, or mail. The annual meeting may also be conducted through virtual means. This provision expires August 28, 2022.

UNIFORM COMMERCIAL CODE (Section 400.9-109)

Article 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code relating to secured transactions does not apply to the creation, perfection, priority, or enforcement of any sale, assignment of, pledge of, security interest in, or other transfer of, any interest or right or portion of any interest or right in any securitized utility tariff property, except as expressly specified.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say this bill allows bigger public utilities in the state to borrow money to maintain, repair or replace aging equipment. This is a financial tool that helps save consumers money. Over 25 states have some form of securitization for utility companies. In addition, the bill allows for electric utilities to maintain part-time coal plants to help with peak baseload demands.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Cierpiot; Renew Missouri Advocates; Evergy; Missouri Chamber of Commerce and Industry; Association of Missouri Electric Cooperatives; The Nature Conservancy; Dogwood Energy; National Resources Defense Council; and Ameren Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Written testimony was submitted in opposition to the bill.

SCS SB 272 -- LOTTERY WINNERS

SPONSOR: Mosley (Mosley)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 13 to 0.

This bill prohibits the State Lottery Commission, any employee of the State Lottery, and any organization contracted with the State Lottery from publishing identifying information of any person who wins the state lottery. A lottery winner may authorize in writing, on a form to be provided by the Lottery Commission, the public disclosure of his or her identifying information. Such form shall clearly state in at least a 14-point bolded font at the top of the form that a lottery winner is not required to sign such public disclosure form in order to claim his or her lottery winnings. A violation of this bill is a Class A misdemeanor.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

This bill is similar to HB 402 (2021) and HB 1563 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill would protect the privacy of lottery winners.

Testifying for the bill was Senator Mosley.

OPPONENTS: Written opposition was submitted by Arnie C. Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS SB 377 -- Landowner Liability

SPONSOR: Eslinger (Haden)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 16 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for SB 377.

This bill prohibits an owner, employee, or officer of a private campground from being liable for acts related to camping at a private campground if the injury or damage occurred as a result of an inherent risk of camping, as described within the bill. This bill does not apply to actions arising under Missouri Workers' Compensation Law. Additionally, this bill does not prevent or limit liability of an owner, employee, or officer who intentionally causes injury, death, or damage, who acts with a willful or wanton disregard for the safety of the person or property damaged, who fails to use the degree of care that an ordinarily careful and prudent person would use under the circumstances, or who fails to conspicuously post warning signs of known dangerous conditions on the property. Warning signs are required to appear in black letters of at least one inch in height on a white background. Warning signs and written contracts entered into by an owner, employee, or officer shall contain a warning notice, as specified in the bill.

The bill also specifies that a landowner is not liable for injuries

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

a trespasser receives while on the landowner's residential area, if such area is adjacent to a park or trail and that is how the trespasser entered the owner's property.

Currently, a landowner who invites or permits a person to enter his land for recreational use in compliance with a state-administerd recreational access program does not assume certain liabilities or responsibilities. The bill also extends the limited liability to landowners who invite or permit a person to enter his land for recreational use in compliance with a state-administerd wildlife management program.

The bill also repeals a certain paragraph of landowner liability law that states that nothing in its provisions creates or limits liability that otherwise would be incurred by owners of land for injuries occurring on or in any land within the corporate boundaries of any city, municipality, town, or village in this state.

The bill also creates the "Prescribed Burning Act", which specifies that any landowner or agent of a landowner will not be liable for damage, injury, or loss caused by a prescribed burn, as defined in the bill, or the resulting smoke of a prescribed burn unless the landowner is proven to be negligent. Additionally, no certified burn manager will be liable if the burn is conducted in accordance with a written prescribed burn plan unless the burn manager is found to be negligent.

The provisions of the bill do not apply to damage, injury, or loss to property, lands, rights-of-way, or easements of certain utilities and railroad companies.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that some landowners are reluctant to participate in certain wildlife management program due to their liability related to letting others hunt on their property. This bill would give landowners protection if someone is injured on their property.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Eslinger; Missouri Department of Conservation; Conservation Federation of Missouri; and Missouri Farm Bureau.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full

HOUSE SUBSTITUTE SENATE BILL 38 (0965H.03C)

Relating to transportation

Section	Original Bill	Status As of 4/27/21	Description
300.010, 301.010, 302.010, 304.001, 307.025, 307.180, 307.188, 307.193, 307.194, 365.020, 407.560, 407.815, 407.1025, RSMo	SB 38 Bernskoetter Language replaced with HB 307 Perfected Language Griesheimer	Emerging Issues	This bill creates a definition for electric bicycles of three classifications, and excludes electric bicycles from definitions for other types of vehicles. The bill exempts electric bicycles from certain vehicle lighting requirements. Electric bicycles operated by a person under the age of 17 may be impounded in the same manner as bicycles and motorized bicycles. Except as otherwise specifically provided by law, electric bicycles shall not be subject to provisions applicable to motor vehicles, all-terrain vehicles, or utility vehicles, including with regard to vehicle registration, certificates of ownership, driver's licenses, the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Law, vehicle rentals, or vehicle dealers or franchises, and electric bicycles shall be subject to state and local laws applicable to conventional bicycles. On and after August 28, 2021, manufacturers or distributors of electric bicycles shall apply to each electric bicycle a label that is permanently affixed in a prominent location, and that bears certain vehicle information as specified in the bill. No person shall modify an electric bicycles' capabilities unless the required label is replaced accordingly. Electric bicycles shall comply with equipment and manufacturing requirements under the federal law applicable to bicycles and shall operate in a manner such that the electric motor does not function when the rider stops pedaling or applies the brakes. Electric bicycles may be operated in any place where bicycles are permitted to travel, provided that political subdivisions may regulate the operation of electric bicycles as provided in the bill, and that these provisions shall not apply to a natural surface trail or other path designated as nonmotorized. The operation of a class 3 electric bicycle, as defined in the bill, shall be limited to persons at least 16 years of age. Persons under the age of 16 may ride as a passenger, provided the electric bicycle is designed to accommodate passengers. Operators and passengers on class 3 electric bicycles under the age of 18 shall wear a helmet meeting standards specified in the bill, and all class 3 electric bicycles shall be equipped with a speedometer. The bill also exempts electric bicycles from the prohibition against licensed vehicle dealers, distributors, and manufacturers operating a place of business for the sale or exchange of vehicles on Sunday.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

9.315	HB 639 Morse	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill designates May 10 of each year as "School Bus Drivers' Appreciation Day" and encourages citizens to recognize the day with events and activities to express appreciation for the dedicated bus drivers who transport children safely to school every day.
32.300	SB 580 Rehder	Referred to Senate Transportation, Infrastructure and Public Safety	This bill authorizes the Department of Revenue or any fee office to design and implement, or to contract with a third-party vendor for, a remote system that can be used through the internet or a self-service terminal for motor vehicle and watercraft transactions such as titling and registration.
68.075	HB 249 Ruth	Reported Do Pass out of Senate Economic Development	Currently, no Advanced Industrial Manufacturing (AIM) Zone may be established after August 28, 2023. This bill extends the date to August 28, 2031.
115.151, 115.160, 115.960, 301.558, 306.030, 307.380,	Similar to SS SB 46 Perfected Hough Includes HB 687	House Emerging Issues	VOTER REGISTRATION THROUGH THE DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE (Sections 115.151, 115.160, and 115.960) This bill requires the use of electronic voter registration application forms by the Director of Revenue. The Director must additionally provide for the secure electronic transfer of voter registration information to election authorities in the manner described in the bill. Election authorities are required to accept and process such records. All voter registration information sent electronically to the election authorities shall be printed out by the election authorities and retained for a period of at least two years. The bill requires the Division of Motor Vehicle and Drivers Licensing to transmit voter registration application forms to the appropriate election authority not later than 3, rather than 5, business days after the form is completed by the applicant. These provisions are the same as SB 587 (2021), and similar to HB 372 (2021) and provisions in HS HCS HB 738 (2021). ADMINISTRATIVE FEES CHARGED BY VEHICLE DEALERS IN CONNECTION WITH THE SALE OR LEASE OF A VEHICLE (Section 301.558) This bill creates the Motor Vehicle Administration Technology Fund, to which 10% of administrative fees charged by motor vehicle dealers shall be remitted for purposes of developing a modernized, integrated system for the titling of vehicles, the issuance and renewal of vehicle registrations, driver's licenses, and identification cards, and the perfection and release of liens and encumbrances on vehicles. Following establishment of the system, the percentage of the fees required to be remitted is reduced to 1%. These provisions shall expire on January 1, 2037 (Section 301.558.3). Additionally, this bill increases, from less than $200 to $500 or less, the maximum administrative fee a motor vehicle, boat, or powersport dealer licensed by the Department of Revenue may charge for document storage or other administrative or clerical services without being deemed to be engaged in the unauthorized practice of law. The maximum administrative fee specified in the bill shall be increased annually by the greater of the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers, or by zero, whichever is greater. (Section 301.558.4). The bill provides that the same administrative fee need not be charged to all retail customers if the dealer's franchise agreement limits the fee to certain classes of customers. (Section 301.558.5). These provisions are similar to SB 195 (2021) and SB 1046 (2020). PERMANENT VESSEL REGISTRATION (Section 306.030) This bill provides that vessels may be issued a permanent certificate of number upon payment of three times the amount required for a three-year certificate of number and three times any processing fee applicable to a three-year certificate of number. Permanent certificates of number shall not be transferred to any other person or vessel, or displayed on any vessel other than the vessel for which it was issued, and shall continue in force and effect until terminated or discontinued as provided by law (Section 306.030.6). These provisions are similar to provisions in the perfected SCS SB 49 (2021). NEW MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY INSPECTIONS (Section 307.380) This bill exempts new motor vehicles from the requirement that motor vehicles receive a safety inspection immediately prior to their sale regardless of any current certificate of inspection and approval.

300.155, 304.281	HB 570 Perfected Basye	Informal Third Reading Calendar	This bill allows drivers, when following certain criteria, to turn left after stopping at a red light on a one-way street.
300.347			Authorizes a bicycle to operate upon any sidewalk or crosswalk of any county or municipality in this state.
301.010	HB 92 Taylor	Perfection Calendar Informal	This bill removes from the definition of "autocycle" the provision that it is designed to be controlled with a steering wheel and pedals.
301.010, 304.240	HCS HB 1270 Copeland	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill modifies the definition of "local log truck" and "local log truck tractor" to specify weight distribution and a total maximum weight for each truck, and updates weight and distance limits. In addition, the bill also sets fines for load-limit violations involving a local log truck or a local log truck tractor.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

301.010, 301.033, 301.192, 301.280, 302.755, 307.128, 407.526, 407.556	HB 661 Perfected Ruth Includes HB 153 & HB 996	Reported Do Pass out of Senate Transportation, Infrastructure and Public Safety	This bill requires the Department of Revenue to establish a system in which persons who own multiple farm vehicles can elect to have the vehicles placed on the same registration renewal schedule. All farm vehicles included in the fleet of a registered farm vehicle fleet owner shall be registered during April or on a prorated basis, as specified in the bill. The bill allows the owner of a farm vehicle fleet to add a farm vehicle or transfer plates to a fleet vehicle. The owner must pay a transfer fee of $2 for each vehicle transferred. Farm vehicles registered under this provision shall be issued a special license plate with the phrase "Farm Fleet Vehicle" and be issued multiyear license plates that do not require a renewal tab. The Director of Revenue shall issue a registration certificate or other proof of payment of the annual or biennial fee that must be carried in the vehicle for which it is issued. This bill disqualifies any person from driving a commercial motor vehicle for life if they are convicted of using a commercial motor vehicle in the commission of a felony involving severe forms of trafficking in persons. The bill also changes various laws in which a motor vehicle odometer reading certification is or is not required. Currently, the first time a certificate of ownership is sought for a vehicle that is at least seven years old at the time of application and the value of which is less than $3,000, the certificate may be issued if the application is accompanied by certain documents, including an odometer reading certification if the vehicle is less than 10 years old. The bill changes the requirement for the odometer reading certification from 10 to 20 years old. Motor vehicle dealers are required to make a monthly report to the Department of Revenue regarding vehicles or trailers sold, taxes collected, etc., which includes an odometer reading for vehicles that are less than 10 years old. This bill changes this provision to require an odometer reading for any vehicle that is less than 20 years old. The crime of odometer fraud in the third degree is changed to occur upon the operation of a motor vehicle less than 20 years old, increased from 10 years old. The provisions of Sections 407.511 to 407.556, RSMo, regarding odometer fraud, currently do not apply to a motor vehicle that is 10 or more years old. The bill now limits that exception to motor vehicles that are 20 or more years old. This bill authorizes the use of any color illumination for auxiliary lighting on a motorcycle. Currently, only amber and white illumination is authorized.
301.144			Currently, there is a prohibition against personalized license plates containing, letters, number or combination of letters and numbers which are obscene, profane, patently offensive or contemptuous of a racial or ethnic group, or offensive to good taste or decency, or would present an unreasonable danger to the health or safety. This repeals that prohibition and replaces it with language that says the director shall not violate the Missouri Constitution or United States Constitution as interpreted by the courts.
301.147, 307.350, 643.315 Section 1	HB 578 Perfected Bromley Similar in part to SCS HB 578	Referred to Senate Government Accountability and Fiscal Oversight	This bill repeals the provision of law which requires that vehicles manufactured as an even-numbered model year must be renewed each even-numbered calendar year and that vehicles manufactured as an odd-numbered model year must be renewed each odd-numbered calendar year. The act accordingly modifies certain vehicle safety and emissions inspection statutes to refer to biennial registration generally. The bill also provides that any motor vehicle not equipped with a front license plate bracket will not be required to display a front license plate. At the time of initial or renewal registration, the owner must surrender the front license plate to the Department of Revenue and notify the Department that the vehicle is not equipped with a front license plate bracket.

301.192, 301.280, 407.526, 407.536, 407.556	Similar to HB 664 Ruth	Referred to Rules Administrative Oversight	This bill changes various laws in which a motor vehicle odometer reading certification is or is not required. Currently, the first time a certificate of ownership is sought for a vehicle that is at least seven years old at the time of application and the value of which is less than $3,000, the certificate may be issued if the application is accompanied by certain documents, including an odometer reading certification if the vehicle is less than 10 years old. The bill changes the requirement for the odometer reading certification from 10 to 20 years old. Motor vehicle dealers are required to make a monthly report to the Department of Revenue regarding vehicles or trailers sold, taxes collected, etc., which includes an odometer reading for vehicles that are less than 10 years old. This bill changes this provision to require an odometer reading for any vehicle that is less than 20 years old. The crime of odometer fraud in the third degree is changed to occur upon the operation of a motor vehicle less than 20 years old, increased from 10 years old. The provisions of Sections 407.511 to 407.556, RSMo, regarding odometer fraud, currently do not apply to a motor vehicle that is 10 or more years old. The bill now limits that exception to motor vehicles that are 20 or more years old.
301.3083	HB 569 Basye	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill allows for the issuance of a "cancer awareness" specialty license plate upon the annual payment of a $25 contribution to support cancer awareness activities conducted by the Department of Health and Senior Services, in addition to the $15 registration fee.
301.3139	HB 660 Perfection O'Donnell	Referred to Senate Transportation, Infrastructure and Public Safety	Currently, an organization is required to send a list of at least 200 potential applicants who plan to purchase a specialty plate before such a specialty plate will be issued. This bill removes this requirement for Boy Scouts of America specialty license plates.
301.3179	HB 100 Perfected Sharp	Senate Third Read Consent Calendar	This bill allows for the issuance of a "Negro Leagues Baseball Museum" specialty license plate upon making a $10 contribution to the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum, and a $15 fee in addition to the regular registration fee.
302.174	HB 1150 West	Reported Do Pass out of Rules Legislative Oversight	Currently, persons who are deaf or hard of hearing can apply for a deaf or hard of hearing notation on their drivers' licenses. This bill would allow those persons to get an optional deaf or hard of hearing license plate sticker for the rear license plate of their motor vehicles.
304.050	HB 257 Perfected Evans	Public Hearing Scheduled Senate Education	This bill provides that a certified Head Start school bus is subject to all provisions that a certified school bus is subject, except for the requirement of a crossing control arm.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

307.175, 304.022	Similar to HB 380 Perfected Walsh Included in HCS HB 307 Perfected	Public Hearing Held Senate Transportation, Infrastructure and Public Safety	This bill adds vehicles and equipment owned, leased, or operated by a coroner, medical examiner, or forensic investigator of the County's Medical Examiner's Office, when responding to a crime scene, motor vehicle accident, workplace accident, or any location at which the services of those professionals have been requested by a law enforcement officer, to the list of vehicles authorized to use or display fixed, flashing, or rotating red or red and blue lights.
307.182			Authorizes a bicycle to operate on any sidewalk or crosswalk of any county or municipality.
407.005			Defines "digital electronic equipment" for the purposes of Chapter 407 as any product that depends for its functioning on digital electronic embedded in or attached to the product. However, it shall not include any motor vehicle manufacturer, manufacturer of motor vehicle equipment, or motor vehicle dealer, or any product or service of a motor vehicle manufacturer, manufacturer of motor vehicle equipment, or motor vehicle dealer acting in that capacity.
407.300, 570.030	HCS HB 1153 Mayhew	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill requires scrap metal dealers and others regulated under Section 407.300, RSMo, to require proof that the seller of a catalytic converter is a bona fide automobile repair shop or sign an affidavit that the converter was lawfully acquired. The make, model, year, and vehicle identification number of the vehicle from which the converter originated will be required and maintained for four years. Records will be submitted to the Department of Public Safety in either a paper or electronic format as specified in the bill. Transactions involving catalytic converters must occur at the primary place of business of the scrap metal dealer or person regulated under Section 407.300. Such individuals must possess the catalytic converter for five days before modifying it in any way. A violation of the bill will be a fine from $5000 for the first violation, $10,000 for the second violation and a business license revocation for the third violation as described under Section 301.218. The bill adds unlawfully acquiring a catalytic converter to the offense of stealing. Anyone unlawfully acquiring a catalytic converter will be charged with a class A misdemeanor unless the person has been found guilty of the same offense within the last 10 years or if the person unlawfully acquired and is in possession of two or more catalytic converters the offense shall be a class E felony.
21.795, 304.153	HCA 4 Hicks Similar to HCS HB 389 and SCS SB 387		This bill requires the Joint Committee on Transportation Oversight ensure towing companies charge fair, equitable, and reasonable rates for services rendered in connection with the towing of commercial motor vehicles, and: (1) Establish a process for complaints against a towing company regarding the towing of a commercial vehicle; (2) Establish factors used in determining whether a rate charged in connection with the towing of a commercial motor vehicle is fair, equitable, and reasonable; (3) Establish a process for suspending or removing a towing company from a tow list with regard to the towing of commercial motor vehicles; and (4) Establish information required to be included on invoices or notices associated with the towing of a commercial motor vehicle. The Committee will meet as necessary for the implementation of these provisions, and the meetings may be held concurrently with existing meetings required of the Committee. If the Committee determines a violation may have occurred, the complaint must be referred to the "Commercial Motor Vehicle Towing Adjudicative Board", established in the bill. If the Board determines a violation has occurred, the towing company that committed the violation will be removed from the Highway Patrol's tow list for six months for a first violation, 12 months for a second violation, and permanently for a third violation. The Committee may make recommendations to the Governor and General Assembly regarding statutes governing the nonconsensual towing of commercial motor vehicles.

304.900	HCA 3 Fitzwater HCS HB 592		This bill sets out the requirements for and prohibitions against the operation and use of a personal delivery device. A "personal delivery device" is defined as a powered device operated primarily on sidewalks and crosswalks and intended primarily for the transport of property on public rights-of-way, and is capable of navigating with or without the active control or monitoring of a natural person. The bill allows a personal delivery device to operate on any county or municipal sidewalk, crosswalk or roadway as long as the device does not interfere with motor vehicles, traffic, or block a public right-of-way. A personal delivery device shall have all of the rights and responsibilities as a pedestrian, must display a unique identifying number, and be equipped to identify the personal delivery device operator. When operating on a sidewalk or crosswalk the device's maximum speed is 10 miles per hour and must be equipped with front and rear lighting. The bill requires each personal delivery device operator to maintain a general liability coverage insurance policy of at least $100,000 for damages arising from the combined operations of personal delivery devices under a personal delivery device operator's control. A personal delivery device shall not transport hazardous material as specified in the bill. The bill does not restrict a local government from regulating the use of personal delivery devices on highways or pedestrian areas. The bill also prevents a personal delivery device operator from selling or disclosing a personally identifiable likeness, as defined in the bill, to a third party for monetary compensation. The operator may use a personally identifiable likeness to improve products or services. The likeness may also be disclosed to law enforcement with a lawful subpoena.
578.120	HCA 1		Amends section 578.120 to clarify that the section does not apply to the sale of electric bicycles.

HCS SCS SB 40 -- NATURAL RESOURCES

SPONSOR: Burlison (Houx)

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Emerging Issues by a vote of 7 to 4.

Please see the Summary Sheet for a detailed list of the House changes to this Senate bill. Summary sheets for Senate Bills are located with the House Substitutes on Senate Bills web page

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the perfected version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill would provide transparency for regulated entities when the Department of Natural Resources issues fines and penalties. The Department would have to provide a explanation of how it reached the penalty or fine assessed on the entity. The bill would also give the General Assembly greater involvement in the setting of the Department's fees, rather than the Department setting its own fees.

Testifying for the bill were Senator Burlison; and Associated Industries of Missouri.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the current stakeholder process for setting fees is a fair process and gives regulated entities and interested parties a say in the fee. This bill would remove opportunity for stakeholder input in the fees that they must pay.

Testifying against the bill were Bryan Meyers; Carter Law; Don Crozier; Erik Luebers; Francine Glass; Harold Johnson; Henry Robertson; Jamie Hasemeier; Jessica File; Joe D Pitts; Kathleen; Kathleen Brown; Kendra Varns Wallis, Missouri Parks Association; Kristin Riott, Bridging The Gap; Lisa Groshong; Mary S Elsea; Mary Slykhous; Melissa Vatterott, Missouri Coalition for The Environment; Michael Honigfort; Michelle L Croyle; Michelle Salois; Molly Brady; Paulette Zimmerman; Rikki Watts; Sarah; Sarah Heyman; Sarah Mayer; Susan Fair; Susan Lammert; Susan Sontag; Vicki K Johnson; Arnie C. Dienoff; D. Matt Bond, KC Water; Judith Zwicker; Nancy Adkins; Frances Klahr, Sierra Club; City Utilities of Springfield; Jay Hoskins, Metropolitain St. Louis Sewer District; Lacey Hirschvogel, Missouri Association of Municipal Utilities;

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

American Council of Engineering Companies-Missouri, and Missouri Society of Professional Engineers.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say that some cemeteries are in the state park system but not those that have active burials or plots.

Testifying on the bill was Rich Germander, Missouri Department Of Natural Resources.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

SENATE COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE SENATE BILL 40 (0155H.12C)

Relating to Natural Resources

Section	Original Bill	Status As of 5/5/21	Description
253.387, 260.373, 260.380, 260.437, 260.475, 260.520, 640.095, 643.079, 643.310, 644.057, 644.079,	SCS SB 40	Emerging Issues	This bill modifies provisions relating to the Department of Natural Resources. This bill authorizes the Department of Natural Resources to acquire by purchase or gift the Antioch Cemetery in Clinton, Missouri, to be operated and maintained by the Division of State Parks within the Department. The Department shall make adequate provisions for the proper care, maintenance, and safekeeping of the property. The Department is required to allow for burials to continue until all plots have been purchased. The Department shall charge no more than $100 per burial to be credited to the "Antioch Cemetery Fund", established in the bill. The Department shall not be liable for additional costs associated with the burial (Section 253.387). Further, under the bill, the Hazardous Waste Management Commission shall not promulgate rules that are stricter than, apply prior to, or apply in any subject area not addressed by, certain federal regulations promulgated pursuant to the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. The bill repeals the Commission's authority to retain, modify, or repeal rules relating to: 1. Thresholds for determining whether a hazardous waste generator is a large quantity generator, small quantity generator, or conditionally exempt small quantity generator; 2. Rules requiring hazardous waste generators to display hazard labels on containers and tanks during the time hazardous waste is stored on-site; 3. The exclusion for hazardous secondary materials used to make zinc fertilizers; and 4. The exclusions for hazardous secondary materials that are burned for fuel or that are recycled. The Commission shall promulgate rules for the reporting of hazardous waste activities to the Department of Natural Resources, effective beginning with the reporting period July 1, 2017-June 30, 2018, that allow for the submittal of reporting data in any format on an annual basis by large quantity generators and treatment storage and disposal facilities. The bill also repeals a requirement that the Department identify certain rules relating to hazardous waste in the Missouri Code of State Regulations that are inconsistent with certain rules promulgated by the Commission. On December 31, 2017, any rule relating to hazardous waste, resource recovery, or used oil contained in the Missouri Code of State Regulations that remains inconsistent with certain rules promulgated by the Commission shall be null and void to the extent that such rule is inconsistent, and the least stringent rule shall control. Any rule that applies in any subject area not addressed by the requirements of certain federal regulations promulgated pursuant to Subtitle C of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, as amended, shall be null and void. The Commission shall not promulgate rules that are stricter than, apply prior to, or apply in any subject area not addressed by the requirements of certain federal regulations promulgated pursuant to the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, as amended. The Commission shall file with the Missouri Secretary of State any amendments necessary to ensure that rules are not inconsistent with the provisions of the bill. Any rule that is inconsistent with provisions of the bill or applies in any subject area not addressed by the federal regulations shall be null and void. The Director of the Department of Natural Resources shall not promulgate rules that are stricter than, apply prior to, or apply in any subject area not addressed by the requirements of certain federal regulations promulgated pursuant to the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, as amended. The Director shall file with the Missouri Secretary of State any amendments necessary to ensure that rules are not inconsistent with the provisions of the bill. Any rule that is inconsistent with provisions of the bill or applies in any subject area not addressed by the federal regulations shall be null and void. (Sections 260.373, 260.437, 260.520) Currently, the authority of the Hazardous Waste Management Commission, the Air Conservation Commission, and the Clean Water Commission to revise certain fee structures set forth in statute expires on August 28, 2024. This bill changes the expiration date to August 28, 2021. (Sections 260.380, 260.475, 643.079, 644.057) In instances where the Department of Natural Resources has authority to issue fines or penalties and determines that a fine or penalty should be levied, the Department is required to provide information as set forth in the bill to the alleged violator in order for the alleged violator to understand the basis for the fine or penalty. Any statement provided by the Department in compliance with this provision shall be treated as confidential information and shall not be disclosed to any party except the alleged violator (Section 640.095). For violations of the Missouri Clean Water Law, any administrative penalty sought to resolve violations through conference, conciliation, and persuasion shall be communicated to the alleged violator in writing together with any penalty calculation prepared in accordance with any Clean Water Commission administrative penalty rule. Rules and regulations promulgated by the Clean Water Commission for the assessment of administrative penalties shall require the Department of Natural Resources to document how any administrative penalty sought to resolve the violations through conference, conciliation, and persuasion was calculated and provide such calculation and justification in writing to the alleged violator. Any statement provided by the Department in compliance with these provisions shall be treated as confidential information and shall not be disclosed to any party except the alleged violator (Section 644.079). The bill exempts St. Charles County, Franklin County, and Jefferson County from the motor vehicle

	HCA 1 Griesheimer		Removed Section from SCS SB 40
643.050, 643.079, 643.245, 266.355	HCA 3 Hicks SB 37 Perfected		This bill repeals provisions of law that give the Department of Agriculture oversight over standards relating to anhydrous ammonia. Additionally, under the bill the Air Conservation Commission shall have the power to adopt, promulgate, amend, and repeal rules and regulations for covered processes at agricultural stationary sources that use, store, or sell anhydrous ammonia, and regulations necessary to implement and enforce the risk management plans under the federal Clean Air Act. Each retail agricultural facility that uses, stores, or sells anhydrous ammonia that is an air contaminant source subject to a risk management plan under the federal Clean Air Act shall pay an annual registration of $200. The bill establishes an annual tonnage fee for anhydrous ammonia of $1.25 per ton used or sold. Each distributor or terminal agricultural facility that uses, stores, or sells anhydrous ammonia that is an air contaminant source subject to a risk management plan program three under federal regulations relating to chemical accident prevention shall pay an annual registration of $5,000 and shall not pay a tonnage fee. Finally, the bill creates the Anhydrous Ammonia Risk Management Plan Subaccount within the Natural Resources Protection Fund which shall consist of fees required under the bill.
204.569	HCA 5 Hicks SB 558		Under current law, when an unincorporated sewer subdistrict of a common sewer district has been formed, the board of trustees of the common sewer district shall have the power to issue bonds, and the issuance of such bonds shall require the assent of 4/7 of the voters of the subdistrict on the question. This bill states that as an alternative to such vote, if the subdistrict is a part of a common sewer district located in whole or in part in certain counties, bonds may be issued for such subdistrict if the question receives the written assent of 3/4 of the customers, as defined in the bill, of the subdistrict.
386.895	HCA 6 Hicks		Relating to gas corporations offering voluntary renewable natural gas programs.
	HCA 7 Hicks		Changed the title to “natural resources”.

HOUSE COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE SS SB 46 (1071H.05C)

Relating to transportation

Section	Original Bill	Status As of 4/27/21	Description
115.151, 115.160, 115.960, 301.558, 306.030, 307.380, Section 2, Section B	SS SB 46 Hough	Emerging Issues	This bill modifies provisions relating to transportation. VOTER REGISTRATION THROUGH THE DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE: This bill requires the use of electronic voter registration application forms by the Director of Revenue. The Director must additionally provide for the secure electronic transfer of voter registration information to election authorities in the manner described in the act. Election authorities are required to accept and process such records. All voter registration information sent electronically to the election authorities shall be printed out by the election authorities and retained for a period of at least two years. The bill requires the Division of Motor Vehicle and Drivers Licensing to transmit voter registration application forms to the appropriate election authority not later than three, rather than five, business days after the form is completed by the applicant. ADMINISTRATIVE FEES CHARGED BY VEHICLE DEALERS IN CONNECTION WITH THE SALE OR LEASE OF A VEHICLE: This bill creates the Motor Vehicle Administration Technology Fund, to which 10% of administrative fees charged by motor vehicle dealers shall be remitted for purposes of developing a modernized, integrated system for the titling of vehicles, the issuance and renewal of vehicle registrations, driver's licenses, and identification cards, and the perfection and release of liens and encumbrances on vehicles. Following establishment of the system, the percentage of the fees required to be remitted is reduced to 1%. These provisions shall expire on January 1, 2037. Additionally, this bill increases, from less than $200 to $500 or less, the maximum administrative fee a motor vehicle, boat, or powersport dealer licensed by the Department of Revenue may charge for document storage or other administrative or clerical services without being deemed to be engaged in the unauthorized practice of law. The maximum administrative fee specified under the bill shall be increased annually by the greater of the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers, or by zero, whichever is greater. The bill provides that the same administrative fee need not be charged to all retail customers if the dealer's franchise agreement limits the fee to certain classes of customers. PERMANENT VESSEL REGISTRATION: This bill provides that vessels may be issued a permanent certificate of number upon payment of three times the amount required for a three-year certificate of number and three times any processing fee applicable to a 3-year certificate of number. Permanent certificates of number shall not be transferred to any other person or vessel, or displayed on any vessel other than the vessel for which it was issued, and shall continue in force and effect until terminated or discontinued as provided by law. NEW MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY INSPECTIONS: This bill exempts new motor vehicles from the requirement that motor vehicles receive a safety inspection immediately prior to their sale

			regardless of any current certificate of inspection and approval. VACCINATION PASSPORTS: This bill prohibits entities in this state from requiring documentation of an individual having received a vaccination against any disease in order to access transportation systems or services, or any public transportation facility.
9.315	HB 639 Morse	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill designates May 10 of each year as "School Bus Drivers' Appreciation Day" and encourages citizens to recognize the day with events and activities to express appreciation for the dedicated bus drivers who transport children safely to school every day.
68.075	HB 249 Ruth	Reported Do Pass out of Senate Economic Development	Currently, no Advanced Industrial Manufacturing (AIM) Zone may be established after August 28, 2023. This bill extends the date to August 28, 2031.
300.010, 300.155, 301.010, 302.010, 304.001, 304.022, 304.240, 304.281, 307.025, 307.175, 307.180, 307.188, 307.193, 307.194, 365.020, 407.560, 407.815, 407.1025, 578.120	HB 307 Perfected Griesheimer (Includes HB 570 & HCS HB 1270)		As used in Chapters 300 and 301, RSMo, the bill defines "electric bicycle" as a bicycle with fully operable pedals, a seat for the rider, and an electric motor of less than 750 watts that meets the requirements of one of three classes: (1) "Class 1 electric bicycle", an electric bicycle equipped with a motor that provides assistance only when the rider is pedaling and that ceases to provide assistance when the bicycle reaches the speed of 20 miles per hour; (2) "Class 2 electric bicycle", an electric bicycle equipped with a motor that may be used exclusively to propel the bicycle and that is not capable of providing assistance when the bicycle reaches the speed of 20 miles per hour; or (3) "Class 3 electric bicycle", an electric bicycle equipped with a motor that provides assistance only when the rider is pedaling and that ceases to provide assistance when the bicycle reaches the speed of 28 miles per hour. Other definitions within those chapters are changed to either specifically include or exclude "electric bicycle". As used in Chapters 302, 303, 307, 365 and 407 "electric bicycle" is defined in reference to its definition in Chapter 301, and other definitions within those chapters are changed to either specifically include or exclude "electric bicycle". In Section 578.120, "electric bicycle" is specifically excepted from the prohibition on Sunday sales. The bill also provides that every person riding an electric bicycle upon a street or highway shall be granted all of the rights and shall be subject to all of the duties applicable to the operator of a bicycle, or the driver of a vehicle as provided by Chapter 304, except as to special regulations in Sections 307.180 to 307.193 and except as to those provisions of Chapter 304 which by their nature can have no application. Operation of an electric bicycle is not subject to provisions of law that are applicable to motor vehicles, all-terrain vehicles, off-road vehicles, off-highway vehicles, motor vehicle rentals, motor vehicle dealers or franchises, or motorcycle dealers or franchises, including vehicle registration, certificates of title, drivers' licenses, and financial responsibility. Beginning August 28, 2021, manufacturers and distributors of electric bicycles are required to apply a permanent label to each electric bicycle in a prominent location, which must contain the classification number, top assisted speed, and motor wattage of the electric bicycle. The text on the label must be Arial font and in at least nine-point type. A person is prohibited from tampering with or modifying an electric bicycle in such a way that changes the motor-powered speed capability or engagement of the electric bicycle unless he or she replaces the required label with a new label indicating the new classification. An electric bicycle must comply with the equipment and manufacturing requirements for bicycles adopted by the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission, 16 CFR 1512. An electric bicycle must be operated so that the electric motor is disengaged or ceases to function when the rider stops pedaling or when the brakes are applied. Electric bicycles can be ridden where bicycles are permitted, subject to certain provisions set out in the bill. The use of a class 3 electric bicycle is subject to certain provisions set out in the bill, including the operator must be 16 years old, and be equipped with a speedometer. LEFT TURNS ON RED LIGHTS (Section 300.155 and 304.281) This bill allows drivers, when following certain criteria, to turn left after stopping at a red light on a one-way street. LOCAL LOG TRUCKS (Sections 301.010 and 304.240) The bill also modifies the definition of "local log truck" and "local log truck tractor" to specify weight distribution and a total maximum weight for each truck, and updates weight and distance limits. In addition, the bill also sets fines for loadlimit violations involving a local log truck or a local log truck tractor. FLASHING LIGHTS ON MOTOR VEHICLES (Sections 307.175) Vehicles and equipment owned, leased, or operated by a coroner, medical examiner, or forensic investigator of the County's Medical Examiner's Office, when responding to a crime scene, motor vehicle accident, workplace accident, or any location at which the services of those professionals have been requested by a law enforcement officer, are added to the list of vehicles authorized to use or display fixed, flashing, or rotating red or red and blue lights.

300.347			Authorizes a bicycle to operate upon any sidewalk or crosswalk of any county or municipality in this state.
301.010	HB 92 Taylor	Perfection Calendar Informal	This bill removes from the definition of "autocycle" the provision that it is designed to be controlled with a steering wheel and pedals.
301.010, 301.033, 301.192, 301.280, 302.755, 307.128, 407.526, 407.556	HB 661 Perfected Ruth (Includes HB 153, HB 996)	Reported Do Pass out of Senate Transportation, Infrastructure and Public Safety	This bill requires the Department of Revenue to establish a system in which persons who own multiple farm vehicles can elect to have the vehicles placed on the same registration renewal schedule. All farm vehicles included in the fleet of a registered farm vehicle fleet owner shall be registered during April or on a prorated basis, as specified in the bill. The bill allows the owner of a farm vehicle fleet to add a farm vehicle or transfer plates to a fleet vehicle. The owner must pay a transfer fee of $2 for each vehicle transferred. Farm vehicles registered under this provision shall be issued a special license plate with the phrase "Farm Fleet Vehicle" and be issued multiyear license plates that do not require a renewal tab. The Director of Revenue shall issue a registration certificate or other proof of payment of the annual or biennial fee that must be carried in the vehicle for which it is issued. This bill disqualifies any person from driving a commercial motor vehicle for life if they are convicted of using a commercial motor vehicle in the commission of a felony involving severe forms of trafficking in persons. The bill also changes various laws in which a motor vehicle odometer reading certification is or is not required. Currently, the first time a certificate of ownership is sought for a vehicle that is at least seven years old at the time of application and the value of which is less than $3,000, the certificate may be issued if the application is accompanied by certain documents, including an odometer reading certification if the vehicle is less than 10 years old. The bill changes the requirement for the odometer reading certification from 10 to 20 years old. Motor vehicle dealers are required to make a monthly report to the Department of Revenue regarding vehicles or trailers sold, taxes collected, etc., which includes an odometer reading for vehicles that are less than 10 years old. This bill changes this provision to require an odometer reading for any vehicle that is less than 20 years old. The crime of odometer fraud in the third degree is changed to occur upon the operation of a motor vehicle less than 20 years old, increased from 10 years old. The provisions of Sections 407.511 to 407.556, RSMo, regarding odometer fraud, currently do not apply to a motor vehicle that is 10 or more years old. The bill now limits that exception to motor vehicles that are 20 or more years old.

301.144			Currently, there is a prohibition against personalized license plates containing, letters, number or combination of letters and numbers which are obscene, profane, patently offensive or contemptuous of a racial or ethnic group, or offensive to good taste or decency, or would present an unreasonable danger to the health or safety. This repeals that prohibition and replaces it with language that says the director shall not violate the Missouri Constitution or United States Constitution as interpreted by the courts.
301.147 Section 1	HB 578 Perfected Bromley	Referred to Senate Government Accountability and Fiscal Oversight	This bill repeals the provision of law which requires that vehicles manufactured as an even-numbered model year must be renewed each even-numbered calendar year and that vehicles manufactured as an odd-numbered model year must be renewed each odd-numbered calendar year. The bill also provides that any motor vehicle not equipped with a front license plate bracket will not be required to display a front license plate. At the time of initial or renewal registration, the owner must surrender the front license plate to the Department of Revenue and notify the Department that the vehicle is not equipped with a front license plate bracket.
301.192, 301.280, 407.526, 407.536, 407.556	Similar to HB 664 Ruth	Referred to Rules Administrative Oversight	This bill changes various laws in which a motor vehicle odometer reading certification is or is not required. Currently, the first time a certificate of ownership is sought for a vehicle that is at least seven years old at the time of application and the value of which is less than $3,000, the certificate may be issued if the application is accompanied by certain documents, including an odometer reading certification if the vehicle is less than 10 years old. The bill changes the requirement for the odometer reading certification from 10 to 20 years old. Motor vehicle dealers are required to make a monthly report to the Department of Revenue regarding vehicles or trailers sold, taxes collected, etc., which includes an odometer reading for vehicles that are less than 10 years old. This bill changes this provision to require an odometer reading for any vehicle that is less than 20 years old. The crime of odometer fraud in the third degree is changed to occur upon the operation of a motor vehicle less than 20 years old, increased from 10 years old. The provisions of Sections 407.511 to 407.556, RSMo, regarding odometer fraud, currently do not apply to a motor vehicle that is 10 or more years old. The bill now limits that exception to motor vehicles that are 20 or more years old.

301.3083	HB 569 Basye	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill allows for the issuance of a "cancer awareness" specialty license plate upon the annual payment of a $25 contribution to support cancer awareness activities conducted by the Department of Health and Senior Services, in addition to the $15 registration fee.
301.3139	HB 660 Perfection O'Donnell	Referred to Senate Transportation, Infrastructure and Public Safety	Currently, an organization is required to send a list of at least 200 potential applicants who plan to purchase a specialty plate before such a specialty plate will be issued. This bill removes this requirement for Boy Scouts of America specialty license plates.
301.3179	HB 100 Perfected Sharp	Senate Third Read Consent Calendar	This bill allows for the issuance of a "Negro Leagues Baseball Museum" specialty license plate upon making a $10 contribution to the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum, and a $15 fee in addition to the regular registration fee.
302.174	HB 1150 West	Reported Do Pass out of Rules Legislative Oversight	Currently, persons who are deaf or hard of hearing can apply for a deaf or hard of hearing notation on their drivers' licenses. This bill would allow those persons to get an optional deaf or hard of hearing license plate sticker for the rear license plate of their motor vehicles.
304.050	HB 257 Perfected Evans	Public Hearing Scheduled Senate Education	This bill provides that a certified Head Start school bus is subject to all provisions that a certified school bus is subject, except for the requirement of a crossing control arm.
307.380	HB 687 Perfected Riley	Reported Do Pass Senate	This bill exempts new motor vehicles from the requirement that motor vehicles receive a safety inspection immediately prior to their sale regardless of any current certificate of inspection and approval.
407.300, 570.030	HCS HB 1153 Mayhew	Referred to Rules Legislative Oversight	This bill requires scrap metal dealers and others regulated under Section 407.300, RSMo, to require proof that the seller of a catalytic converter is a bona fide automobile repair shop or sign an affidavit that the converter was lawfully acquired. The make, model, year, and vehicle identification number of the vehicle from which the converter originated will be required and maintained for four years. Records will be submitted to the Department of Public Safety in either a paper or electronic format as specified in the bill. Transactions involving catalytic converters must occur at the primary place of business of the scrap metal dealer or person regulated under Section 407.300. Such individuals must possess the catalytic converter for five days before modifying it in any way. A violation of the bill will be a fine from $5000 for the first violation, $10,000 for the second violation and a business license revocation for the third violation as described under Section 301.218. The bill adds unlawfully acquiring a catalytic converter to the offense of stealing. Anyone unlawfully acquiring a catalytic converter will be charged with a class A misdemeanor unless the person has been found guilty of the same offense within the last 10 years or if the person unlawfully acquired and is in possession of two or more catalytic converters the offense shall be a class E felony.
578.120	HCA 1 Griesheimer		Amends section 578.120 to clarify that the section does not apply to the sale of electric bicycles.

307.350, 643.315,	HCA 2 Griesheimer		Relates to vehicle inspections.
304.900	HCA 4 Fitzwater HCS HB 592		This bill sets out the requirements for and prohibitions against the operation and use of a personal delivery device. A "personal delivery device" is defined as a powered device operated primarily on sidewalks and crosswalks and intended primarily for the transport of property on public rights-of-way, and is capable of navigating with or without the active control or monitoring of a natural person. The bill allows a personal delivery device to operate on any county or municipal sidewalk, crosswalk or roadway as long as the device does not interfere with motor vehicles, traffic, or block a public right-of-way. A personal delivery device shall have all of the rights and responsibilities as a pedestrian, must display a unique identifying number, and be equipped to identify the personal delivery device operator. When operating on a sidewalk or crosswalk the device's maximum speed is 10 miles per hour and must be equipped with front and rear lighting. The bill requires each personal delivery device operator to maintain a general liability coverage insurance policy of at least $100,000 for damages arising from the combined operations of personal delivery devices under a personal delivery device operator's control. A personal delivery device shall not transport hazardous material as specified in the bill. The bill does not restrict a local government from regulating the use of personal delivery devices on highways or pedestrian areas. The bill also prevents a personal delivery device operator from selling or disclosing a personally identifiable likeness, as defined in the bill, to a third party for monetary compensation. The operator may use a personally identifiable likeness to improve products or services. The likeness may also be disclosed to law enforcement with a lawful subpoena.
302.341	HCA 3 Haffner HB 526		Currently, if a Missouri resident is charged with a moving violation and fails to dispose of the charges as ordered without good cause, the court instructs the resident that it will instruct the Department of Revenue to suspend the defendant's driver's license until charges are properly disposed. The court will, as specified in the bill, inform the defendant that it may instruct the Department of Revenue to suspend the defendant's license. If a Missouri resident is charged only with a minor traffic violation and fails to dispose of the charges as ordered and fails to appear on two return dates without good cause, the court will, within 10 days of the failure to comply, inform the defendant that it may instruct the Department of Revenue to suspend the defendant's driver's license until charges are properly disposed. A person whose license is suspended under these provisions will receive limited driving privileges unless the Director of the Department of Revenue finds that the defendant is ineligible for such privileges.

21.795	HCA 5 Hicks		This bill requires the Joint Committee on Transportation Oversight ensure towing companies charge fair, equitable, and reasonable rates for services rendered in connection with the towing of commercial motor vehicles, and: (1) Establish a process for complaints against a towing company regarding the towing of a commercial vehicle; (2) Establish factors used in determining whether a rate charged in connection with the towing of a commercial motor vehicle is fair, equitable, and reasonable; (3) Establish a process for suspending or removing a towing company from a tow list with regard to the towing of commercial motor vehicles; and (4) Establish information required to be included on invoices or notices associated with the towing of a commercial motor vehicle. The Committee will meet as necessary for the implementation of these provisions, and the meetings may be held concurrently with existing meetings required of the Committee. If the Committee determines a violation may have occurred, the complaint must be referred to the "Commercial Motor Vehicle Towing Adjudicative Board", established in the bill. If the Board determines a violation has occurred, the towing company that committed the violation will be removed from the Highway Patrol's tow list for six months for a first violation, 12 months for a second violation, and permanently for a third violation. The Committee may make recommendations to the Governor and General Assembly regarding statutes governing the nonconsensual towing of commercial motor vehicles.

HCS HCRs 4 & 5 -- DRED SCOTT

SPONSOR: Proudie

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Special Committee on Urban Issues by a vote of 7 to 0.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HCR 4.

This resolution calls upon the General Assembly to condemn the March 22, 1852, Dred Scott decision issued by the Missouri Supreme Court.

This bill is similar to HCR 74 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this resolution will put on the record that the Dred Scott decision is wrong and that it was based on the "political wind" at the time. That "wind" has shifted.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Proudie; Arnie Dienoff; Tyler Mcclay, Missouri Catholic Conference; and Lois Hogan.

OPPONENTS: There was no opposition voiced to the committee.

This bill is the same as SCR 3 (2021); and similar to HCR 74 (2020); and HCR 10 (2019).

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HCS HJRs 20, 2, 9 & 27 -- CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

SPONSOR: Henderson

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 7 to 3.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HJR 20.

Upon voter approval, this proposed Constitutional amendment would require an amendment to the state constitution to achieve a two-thirds supermajority vote for passage. Amendments referred by the General Assembly will take effect 30 days after the election if approved.

The resolution also requires petition signatures to place a measure on the ballot as a constitutional amendment to be collected in each congressional district using a percentage requirement of 10%.

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

This bill is similar to HJR 7 (2019) and similar to HJR (2018).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the constitution is the fundamental law of the state and it should be difficult to change. This substitute sets the same standard for all types of constitutional amendments and modestly increases signature gathering requirements. The two-thirds vote figure is modeled off of the United States Constitution and is typical.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Henderson; Missouri Corn Growers Association; Missouri Cattlemen'S Association; Opportunity Solutions Project; and Missouri Soybean Association.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the initiative process is a fundamental right and should not be changed in such a drastic fashion. Very few, if any, amendments could be adopted with a two-thirds supermajority requirement. Statutory changes are easily changed by the General Assembly sometimes in opposition to the will of the voters. Signature gathering is already very difficult and costs should not be increased for grassroots efforts to amend the state constitution.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Testifying against the bill were Alice Barber; Barbara Beier; United For Missouri; Frances Farah; Missouri AL-CIO; Jahnavi Delmonico; Richard G VonGlahn, Missouri Jobs With Justice Voter Action; Sarah Starnes; Stephen Davey; Susan Gibson; Melissa Vatterott, Missouri Coalition For The Environment; John Saxton; Arnie Dienoff; Padraic Mcgrath; Brian Wingbermuehle; Planned Parenthood Advocates in Missouri; Stephanie A. Clarke; Missouri Budget Project; Carly Langlois; Gene Davison; Jenny; Shelley Swoyer; Susan Keturah Schmalzbauer; Tony Smith; Collins F Chetwin; Lisa Ann Williams; Margie Richcreek; Sierra Club Missouri Chapter; Kevin Fitzgerald; and Jobs With Justice Voter Action.

HCS HJR 22 -- INITIATIVE PETITIONS

SPONSOR: Eggleston

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 7 to 3.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HJR 22.

Upon voter approval, this proposed Constitutional amendment would require the sponsor(s) of initiative petitions proposing Constitutional amendments to collect signatures of 12% of legal voters in every Congressional district and to submit any approved petition to the General Assembly for consideration in a manner similar to a bill. The signature of the Governor is not required.

If the General Assembly approves a petition without change, then the sponsor(s) may submit it to the Secretary of State to be placed on the ballot at the next general election. If the General Assembly amends or does not pass a petition, then the sponsor(s) may decide whether to place the amended version or the original unamended version on the ballot at the next general election. In cases where the General Assembly has approved a petition or when its amended version is submitted, a simple majority vote is required for passage. If a version not approved by the General Assembly is submitted, then a two-thirds majority vote is required. Time limits are specified in the amendment and sponsors will be able to submit petitions during either session of the General Assembly prior to the general election occurring every two years in November.

This resolution is similar to HCS HJR 97 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the state constitution should be limited to fundamental rights. Many states do not allow use of initiatives to amend their constitutions. The Missouri Constituton is approximately 10 times larger than its federal counterpart and is rapidly expanding in length. This resolution allows an indirect process so that the legislature maintains an oversight and vetting role in the process.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Eggleston; Missouri Cattlemen'S Association; Missouri Farm Bureau; Missouri Soybean Association; Opportunity Solutions Project; and James Berberich, Jefferson County Republican Central Committee.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that legislative involvement may inhibit voter participation and prevent the will of the people from being law. Citizens should have the fundamental right to modify both statutes and the Constitution and have held these rights for long periods of time. The initiative process is difficult and should not be made more stringent so that legislation written by the people has little chance to appear on the ballot or be voted into law.

Testifying against the bill were Alice Barber; Barbara Beier; United for Missouri; Frances Farah; Missouri AFL-CIO; Jahnavi Delmonico; Richard G Von Glahn, Missouri Jobs With Justice Voter Action; Sarah Starnes; Stephen Davey; Susan Gibson; Melissa Vatterott, Missouri Coalition for the Environment; John Saxton; Arnie Dienoff; Padraic McGrath; Brian Wingbermuehle; Planned Parenthood Advocates in Missouri; Stephanie A. HB 295 -- OFFICER TUITION REIMBURSEMENT

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Crime Prevention by a vote of 8 to 1.

This bill establishes the "Peace Officer Basic Training Tuition Reimbursement Program", which will be a fund to which Missouri residents who attend a basic law enforcement academy for training required to be a peace officer and who obtain full-time employment with a law enforcement agency, on or after September 1, 2021, may apply to have their tuition reimbursed at a rate of 25% per year of employment, with full tuition reimbursed by the end of four years of employment. Qualifying government entities that pay for a person to attend the academy may submit for tuition reimbursement at the same rate. The POST Commission will be the administrative agency for implementation of the reimbursement program.

The bill also establishes the "Peace Officer Basic Training Tuition Reimbursement Fund", which will consist of money appropriated by the General Assembly, as well as any gifts, bequests, or donations, and the funds are to be used solely for the administration of the reimbursement program.

This bill is similar to HB 2628 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that this bill will help expand the pool of qualified police applicants. Missouri has 11 police academies and most applicants bear the cost personally, which might deter some people from wanting to become peace officers.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003364

There are many who have the aptitude but do not want to bear the cost of attending the academy. This provides a tiered reimbursement scheme such that officers who maintain employment for longer receive more of a reimbursement, and it does not exceed $6,000. There are low income individuals who have the aptitude to become peace officers but do not want to go through the academy without a guarantee of employment, especially considering the significant cost of attending the academy.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Roberts; and Missouri Fraternal Order of Police.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill submitted written testimony online.

Testifying against the bill was Arnie Dienoff.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

HB 333 -- INITIATIVE PETITION REGULATIONS

SPONSOR: Simmons

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass" by the Standing Committee on Elections and Elected Officials by a vote of 7 to 3.

This bill changes the format of signature sheets and requires the Secretary of State to make petition sheets available in an electronic format for printing and circulation.

There is a $500 filing fee for each initiative or referendum petition sample sheet with an additional $25 fee per page of text in excess of two pages. The fee is refundable if the petition is approved for circulation.

This bill changes the maximum number of words that the official summary statement can contain from 50 to 150 words and requires signatures on petitions to be in black or blue ink.

Initiative petitions may not invalidate or modify federal statutes, regulations, executive orders, or court decisions, amend federal or Constitutional provisions, or accomplish any act delegated to the General Assembly under the Constitution of the United States.

This bill changes the "Publications Fund" to the "Secretary of State's Petition Publications Fund".

The deadline for submitting sample sheets to circulate petitions for signatures under Section 116.332, RSMo will be no earlier than 12 weeks following a general election.

The procedure for counting or evaluating signatures are specified in the bill. The bill specifies that any court ordered changes to a ballot title results in the invalidation of signatures collected prior to the order.

This bill is the same as HB 1811 (2020).

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that refundable filing fees should help to reduce volume of submissions to the Missouri Secretary of State's office and allow proper review of ballot measures. Ballot measures should be reviewed for consistency with the state and federal constitutions and federal law. Expansion of word count from 50 to 150 words allows greater detail. The bill will discourage unnecessary ballot title changes by the courts. The bill also clarifies the process and involves standardizing forms.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Simmons; John R. Ashcroft, Missouri Secretary of State; Opportunity Solutions Project; and the Missouri Cattlemen's Association.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that filing fees can be difficult for grassroots organizations and discourage filing of petitions to collect signatures for ballot measures. Court ordered changes in a ballot title may force collection of all new signatures which is a hardship. It is probably not good practice to allow the Attorney General to review the constitutionality and compliance of bills with federal law in lieu of court judgments on such matters.

Testifying against the bill were Alice Barber; Barbara Beier; United for Missouri; Frances Farah; Missouri AFL-CIO; Jahnavi Delmonico; Richard G VonGlahn, Missouri Jobs With Justice Voter Action; Sarah Starnes; Stephen Davey; Susan Gibson; Melissa Vatterott, Missouri Coalition For The Environment; John Saxton; Arnie Dienoff; Padraic Mcgrath; Brian Wingbermuehle; Planned Parenthood Advocates in Missouri; Stephanie A. HCS HB 529 -- MISSOURI MADE FUELS ACT

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 16 to 1.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 529. This bill establishes the "Missouri-Made Fuels Act", which specifies that all diesel fuel sold or offered for sale in Missouri for use in internal combustion engines must contain at least the following stated percentage of biodiesel fuel oil by volume on and after the following dates:

(1) April 1, 2023, until March 31, 2024, 5%; and

(2) Beginning April 1, 2024, 10%.

The minimum content levels shall be in effect during the months of April, May, June, July, August, September, and October, except in certain circumstances. The minimum content levels go into effect when the Director of the Department of Agriculture submits notice in the Missouri Register that certain conditions have been met and the state is prepared to move to the next scheduled minimum content level.

The minimum biodiesel content levels shall not apply to certain equipment and the bill specifies requirements for bills of lading or shipping manifests for diesel fuel and for biodiesel-blended products.

A violation of the provisions of this bill is a class A misdemeanor.

The Missouri-Made Fuels Act will sunset 10 years after its effective date.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT
MO-REP-21-1608-F-003367

This bill is similar to HCS HB 1858 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that biodiesel was invented in Missouri and over 200 million gallons are produced in the state each year, but much of it is exported to other states. Biodiesel is a low emission diesel fuel option that can help Missouri meet the renewable fuels standards. This bill would provide for a roll out of a statewide biodiesel fuel standard that would create jobs and grow the state's agricultural economy, while providing an environmentally friendly fuel option.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Haffner; Missouri Farm Bureau; Missouri Soybean Association; Cliff Smith, Mid-America Biofuels; Missouri Renewable Fuels Association; James Greer, MFA Oil Company; Missouri Corn Growers Association; Scott Fenwick, National Biodiesel Board; and the Cattlemen's' Association. Additional written testimony was submitted in support of the bill.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that the market should mandate what fuels are sold in the state and not the government. Many gas stations are selling biodiesel already but that there are not consumer protections to keep from increasing fuel costs. Also, much of the equipment currently installed at gas stations is not warranted for higher blends of biodiesel.

Testifying against the bill were Casey's General Stores; American Fuel & Petrochemical Manufacturers; Truckstops of Missouri; Delia Meier, Joplin Petro 44 & Oak Grove 70 Truckstops; Missouri Petroleum & Convenience Association (MPCA); Diamond Pet Foods; and the Missouri Trucking Association. Additional written testimony was submitted in opposition to the bill.

OTHERS: Others testifying on the bill say they have concerns about the bill as filed but are working with the sponsor. They want to ensure that the requirements in the bill do not interrupt the flow of fuels through the pipeline.

Testifying on the bill was Magellan Midstream Partners.

HCS HB 589 -- ANIMAL CONFISCATION

SPONSOR: Knight

COMMITTEE ACTION: Voted "Do Pass with HCS" by the Standing Committee on Agriculture Policy by a vote of 12 to 5.

The following is a summary of the House Committee Substitute for HB 589.

This bill changes the laws regarding the confiscation of animals. In its main provisions, the bill:

(1) Specifies that a warrant issued under the bill must be served in the presence of a law enforcement official;

(2) Requires a person acting under the authority of a warrant to appear at a disposition hearing before the court through which the warrant was issued within 10 days of the confiscation, instead of being given a disposition hearing within 30 days of the filing of the request, for the purpose of granting immediate disposition of the animals. An animal cannot be sterilized before the completion of the disposition hearing unless it is necessary to save life or relieve suffering;

(3) Allows a third party approved by the court to care for confiscated animals;

(4) Specifies that the owner of any animal that has been confiscated cannot be responsible for the animal's care and keeping prior to a disposition hearing if at the hearing, there is no finding of abuse by the court and the court orders the animals returned to the owner;

(5) Requires a reasonable bond or security to be posted within 72 hours of the disposition hearing in an amount sufficient to provide for the care of the animal and consistent with the fair market cost of boarding the animal in an appropriate retail boarding facility if the owner, custodian, or any person claiming an interest in an animal that has been confiscated because of neglect or abuse would like to prevent disposition of the animal after the disposition hearing and while the criminal case proceeds. Currently, the owner, custodian, or any person claiming an interest in an animal that has been impounded because of neglect or abuse may prevent disposition of the animal by posting bond or security in an amount sufficient to provide for the animal's care for at least 30 days, inclusive of the date on which the animal was taken into custody;

(6) Specifies that all animals confiscated must receive proper care as determined by state law and regulations. Any facility or organization must be liable to the owner for damages for any negligent act or abuse of the animal which occurs while the animal is in its care, custody, and control;

(7) Specifies that in the event that an animal owner is not liable for the costs incurred while the charges were pending, the costs of care and the liability for the life or death of the animal and medical procedures performed are the responsibility of the confiscating agency;

(8) Allows an owner to demand the return of the animal held in custody if he or she posted a sufficient bond and is acquitted or there is a final discharge without a conviction unless there is a settlement agreement, consent judgment, or a suspended imposition of sentence. Any entity with care, custody, and control of the animal must immediately return it to the owner upon demand and proof of the acquittal or final discharge without conviction. The animal owner must not be liable for any costs incurred relating to the placement or care of the animal while the charges were pending unless there is a settlement agreement, consent judgment, or a suspended imposition of sentence;

(9) Specifies that any person or entity that intentionally euthanizes, other than as permissible under the provisions of the bill, or intentionally sterilizes an animal prior to a disposition hearing or during any period for which a reasonable bond was secured for the animal’s care will be guilty of a class B misdemeanor and is liable to the owner for damages including the actual value of the animal. Each individual animal for which a violation occurs is a separate offense. Any second or subsequent violation is a class A misdemeanor, and any entity licensed under state law must be subject to licensure sanction by its governing body;

(10) Includes dogs confiscated by any member of the State Highway Patrol or other law enforcement officer that were involved in dog fighting to those animals covered under these provisions; and

(11) Requires, in the event that the animal owner is not liable for the costs incurred, the confiscating agency to be responsible for the usual and customary veterinary costs and fair market boarding fees and be liable for the life or death of the animal and for medical procedures performed while the charges were pending.

This bill is similar to HCS HB 2111 (2020).

The following is a summary of the public testimony from the committee hearing. The testimony was based on the introduced version of the bill.

PROPONENTS: Supporters say that the bill requires a speedy disposition hearing to determine if an owner is liable for animal abuse or neglect and will save money. Often animal owners forfeit their rights to the animals because they cannot pay the bond or the costs associated with the legal challenge.

Testifying for the bill were Representative Knight; Missouri Farm Bureau; Missouri Animal Husbandry Association; Missouri Federation of Animal Owners; Missouri Pet Breeders Association. There was also written testimony submitted in support of the bill.

OPPONENTS: Those who oppose the bill say that there is a current appeal process which meets all the standards of due process of law. The expense of posting a bond is only incurred if an animal owner wishes to appeal a finding of abuse or neglect.

Testifying against the bill was the Missouri Alliance for Animal Legislation. There was also written testimony submitted in opposition to the bill.

Written testimony has been submitted for this bill. The full written testimony can be found under Testimony on the bill page on the House website.

Subject: Support for Representative Schroer's Amendment to HB 1411

Dear Chairman Bayse, Vice Chairman Haffner and members of the House Elementary and Secondary Education Committee:

I am writing to ask for your support of Representative Nick Schroer's amendment to HB 1141 prohibiting the teaching of Critical Race Theory and "The 1619 Project" in Missouri's education institutions.

I am asking for your support because Missouri taxpayers should not be funding hate. Missouri's educational institutions should be teaching reading, math, and science, not teaching revisionist history and racist ideology. The teaching of Critical Race Theory and "The 1619 Project" is a Marxists-based theory and presents a racist and divisive view of America. Critical Race Theory and "The 1619 Project" removes individualism and teaches students to hate their country and believe their fellow students are somehow either superior or inferior based on their race or gender. Teaching this harmful and racist theory and revisionist history to our children is teaching systemic racism.

The story of the American founding and the subsequent stories of the Civil War and the Civil Rights movement of the 1960's are the real stories of the spirit of America - how our young nation wrestled with the amoral institution of slavery and defeated it and how a century later Americans continued to advance the idea that ALL Americans are equal in the eyes of God.

Children in our state should be taught that their hard work, their character, and their deeds matter more than the color of their skin or the economic situation they have been born into. This is the real American way, and it is available to all. It is for this reason that I urge you to Representative Schroer's amendment to HB1141.

Sincerely,

Byron Keelin

Please support HB1540 which has been assigned to the Elementary and Secondary Education Committee. It bans schools from creating policies which prohibit parents and guardians from recording IEP and 504 plan meetings.

1 in 5 people are dyslexic which includes my daughter and myself. As a parent with a child with an IEP, it's difficult at times to understand and process all the information asked and/or provided during an IEP meetings. It would be beneficial to have the meetings recorded so I could re-listen to what was discussed and also share the information with my spouse when he is unable to attend the IEP meetings.

Thank you for helping children with disabilities and their families.

Representative Dogan,

As a citizen of Missouri, I have a vested interest in all elections in this state and in this country.

It has become evident that fraudulent activity, by various means, has affected the November 3, 2020 elections in many, if not all, of the states in this country.

Recent discoveries in Arizona, Georgia, and Michigan (to name but a few), indicate that voting fraud occurred in the November 3, 2020 elections.

Recent national polls show that more than 50% of all US citizens believe the November 3, 2020 elections were fraught with fraud that possibly led to the certification of the wrong candidates. This is not a partisan issue. It is an American issue.

Who can say with certainty that substantial fraud did not affect their state's election results? Without free, fair and transparent elections, our beloved country, the beacon of hope for the rest of the world, will not survive.

This is why I urge you to take swift and decisive actions to perform a FULL INDEPENDENT FORENSIC AUDIT in every county in Missouri. I also believe a full independent forensic audit should be performed in every state in the US. We must methodically and scientifically dissect what occurred during the November 3, 2020 elections and make any necessary corrections to ensure all future elections are safe and secure.

If fraudulent activity is discovered in Missouri via a full independent forensic audit, it will:

1. Highlight the need for new election integrity legislation in Missouri. To that end, I support the re-introduction of Missouri Representative Don Rone's bill: 2021-HB738. This bill should be passed in the House and Senate and made into law as quickly as possible. Of utmost importance is banning the use of any 'black box' electronic voting systems and related software. Paper ballots only, or open source election software and hardware systems should be employed in our elections.

2. Lend credence to, and stress the necessity of full independent forensic audits of the November 3, 2020 elections in the remaining 49 states, especially the swing states that so vehemently oppose election transparency and full independent forensic audits.

These audits must be performed up and down ballot. Audit everything once and audit it right.

In addition to initiating a full independent forensic audit in every county in Missouri, I urge you to attend, or send a qualified representative to, the Cyber Symposium being hosted by Mike Lindell in Sioux Falls, SD, August 10 -12. (Event details included below). The information to be presented should be taken into consideration in conjunction with the full independent forensic audit.

I fear a full independent forensic audit in every state will show that our country has been hijacked. This is not the time to sit on your hands and turn a blind eye to potential nefarious activity. You were elected to act for the people you serve. It is your duty to summon the courage, rise to the occasion, and ensure a full independent forensic audit is performed in Missouri. We must verify that the certified results of the November 3, 2020 election are accurate, or make the necessary corrections if they are proven inaccurate.

I have already ceased all donations to the RNC for their lack of attention to this matter. In the future I will only support candidates that truly work for their constituents and push for a full independent forensic audit of the November 3, 2020 elections.

Thank you,

Greg Tate

Testimony of Stacey Preis, Ph.D.

Aligned

April 13, 2021

Chairman Basye, Vice-Chairman Haffner, Ranking Minority Member Brown and Members of the Committee:

Thank you to Senator Hoskins for sponsoring SB 152 and for the opportunity to provide testimony to the Committee regarding this legislation.

Aligned is a not-for-profit organization comprised of business leaders committed to improving Missouri's education system through advocacy, outreach, and investment. Our mission is to amplify the business voice to improve student outcomes and workforce readiness in Missouri. We envision a state where all students receive an education that has prepared them to seek the future of their choice.

SB 152 contains provisions that will improve our education system and create new opportunities for students to be successful. In particular, we want to note the Show Me Success Diploma Program and Competency-Based Education (CBE) Task Force.

The Show Me Success Diploma Program offers an accelerated course of study for students who choose to complete high school ahead of their anticipated graduation date. For students who complete the diploma and continue enrollment in their district or charter school, they are able to maintain their extracurricular eligibility until reaching their original anticipated graduation date. This removes a potential disincentive for students to graduate early. In addition, the Show Me Success Diploma Program appeases any concerns of revenue loss for a district or charter school by continuing the distribution of state aid until the student's original anticipated graduation data.

As an incentive for a student who completes the Show Me Success Diploma and chooses to begin postsecondary education, 90 percent of the state aid attributable to that student will be placed into an account listing the student as the beneficiary until such time as the student's original anticipated graduation date.

The Competency-Based Education (CBE) Task Force is a strong first step to move Missouri toward a more student-centered system of education. Under the current time-based model, students who master content quickly lose learning time that could be used to advance, while students who need additional time to reach proficiency must adhere to the pace determined for students as a whole. Besides learning at different rates, students learn and demonstrate knowledge in different ways, and a competency-based education system can adapt to those differences.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The logistics of implementing CBE may present some challenges but those can be overcome, beginning with the task force described in SB 152. Distribution of state aid, school calendar, length of the school day, teacher contracts, and smooth transitions to postsecondary institutions are just a few of the issues that a CBE task force could review in order to lay the groundwork for CBE implementation.

SB 152 provides students new opportunities and new models under which to learn. We encourage the Missouri General Assembly to support this legislation.

Dear Representative:

I plan on appearing in person on Monday, May 3rd to testify in opposition to SB 323. I look forward to this opportunity to meet with the Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education.

I have attached a copy of the written testimony I have submitted via the House website. I wanted to ensure you would have an opportunity to read this prior to the hearing on Monday.

My testimony will briefly cover the reasons for my opposition to this legislation. I will be more than happy to respond to questions at that time.

Position Statement in Opposition to SB 323

W. B. (Bart) Tichenor, 3710 Shadow Glen Ct., Columbia, MO 65203; tichenorlaw@gmail.com

The following is presented in opposition to the enactment of SB 323.

Senate Bill 323 violates fundamental Federal and State Constitutional provisions against favoring religion and discriminating against religion.

The federal and state constitutional mandate is clear. The government must not endorse or condemn, favor or disfavor, promote or diminish, show approval or hostility toward religion or nonreligious perspectives. Senate Bill 323 runs afoul of the constitutional dictates on several levels. If SB 323 is enacted Missouri will have codified one religious scripture – Protestant Christianity's Bible – as the state sanctioned holy writ. In other words, the enactment of this Bill would violate its own provisions (See, Subsections 4 and 5).

Senate Bill 323 elevates Protestant Christianity and the Protestant Bible above other faiths and their sacred texts.

From both the Title and Text of the Bill it is clear the "Bible" referenced is the Protestant Bible. This is not just an implicit bias against the sacred texts of all the world's major religions, but against any religious, or even nonreligious text which may be followed by any group of individuals in the conduct of their daily lives. The bias of this legislation is explicit. The endorsed, favored, promoted, and approved scripture of the state of Missouri is the Protestant Bible. The condemned, disfavored, disapproved, and diminished scriptures are all those other than the "Holy Bible" of Protestant Christianity.

Senate Bill 323 erroneously assumes the Bible can be taught as a matter of social studies and not address religious issues and faith.

The idea the Bible can be taught in some fashion as social studies without addressing religious issues and religious faith is at the very least naïve. It is more seriously a misguided and misinformed, product of religious ignorance. At its most disturbing, the idea is an intentional attempt to use the government – public education – to advance the Christian Faith.

Senate Bill 323 demonstrates an explicit bias, in its use of the term Old Testament, against Judaism.

The repeated use of the term "Hebrew Scripture" and "Old Testament" instead of the proper name for the Jewish Bible – the Tanakh – demonstrates at the best an implied bias against Judaism and at the worst an explicit bias against that world religion. The language of the Bill relegates the Jewish Scriptures to some level below the scriptures of Christianity.

Senate Bill 323 specifically violates Mo Const. Art 1, § 7 by giving preference to the Protestant Bible and discriminating against all other religious faiths and their sacred texts.

Such an enactment would totally fail to meet the letter and spirit of "no preference shall be given to nor any discrimination made against any church, sect or creed of religion, or any form of religious faith or worship." Mo Const. Art 1, § 7. A preference is given to the Protestant Christian Bible and religious faith. Discrimination is exercised against all non-Protestant Christian faiths and their scriptures.

Senate Bill 323 demeans Christianity by reducing its holy scriptures to a social studies textbook.

On the other hand, SB 323 is demeaning to the Christian faith in that the Christian Scriptures are reduced to nothing more than a social studies textbook. The sacred text for most of the citizens of Missouri is diminished to simply a text to study literature, art, or music. Sacred scriptures which for centuries have been viewed as a revelation of the God of the universe in the Christian Faith is minimized to a supplement to study oratory or public policy. This degrades Christianity. The faith is founded upon its scriptures. Minimizing that faith to a matter of social studies discredits and belittles it.

Senate Bill 323 solves no problem which exists in the curriculum for public education in Missouri.

SB 323 solves no problem in education. It is safe to say there is no area of Missouri that does not have local Christian congregations where one can become educated in the Bible. In addition, there are tens of millions of websites where Bible study can be done. There are numerous books from a multitude of scholarly perspectives which can easily be purchased that permit any individual to study the Bible and its impact on western civilization. Simply stated, any high school student, who wishes to expand their knowledge of the Bible, has a multitude of options to pursue such a course of study.

Conclusion:

For all the foregoing reasons, I hope you will vote to maintain religious liberty and not permit the public schools of Missouri to be used as a tool to advance one faith over all others, by voting "NO" on SB 323.

House Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education
Chairman Basye
HB 349
HHR 7

Dear Honorable Committee members:

Thank you for allowing me to provide written testimony today. On behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri and our approximately 15,000 members statewide, I would like to express our opposition to HB 349. HB 349 would allow for taxpayer dollars to go to private religious schools, blurring the separation of church and state.

The ACLU of Missouri strongly supports the separation of church and state. We believe in the right of all parents and guardians to educate their children in the manner they see fit; however, we have to be skeptical about the potential government subsidization of religious schools. The vagueness of the term "private school" in this legislation lends itself to be used broadly. We believe that religious freedom in the context of education flourishes best when it is privately funded and free of governmental interference, as the foundational separation of church and state principle implies.

This bill would create a tax-credit scholarship program similar to the one heard in a case before the U.S. Supreme Court in 2019. In that case, the ACLU supported the State of Montana which denied the use of tax-credit funding for religious education. We did so on the basis that, "The founders believed that it was critical to protect individuals' freedom of conscience against the coercive extraction of tax funds to support religion. They also thought it vital to shield religion and religious institutions from the deleterious effects of governmental support and interference: dependency of religious institutions on the state, compromise of religious beliefs, and strife among religious denominations."[1] While the Court did not side with the ACLU, it is in the interest of the state of Missouri to strive to protect religious freedom as a bedrock principle by not creating additional relationships between the government and religious institutions that may entangle the two.

[1] Espinoza v. Montana Dept. of Revenue, 140 S. Ct. 2246 (2020).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Separation of church and state provides freedom from governmental funding and is designed to protect the independence of religious groups and their teachings. At the heart of our educational reform legislation should be discussions on how to uplift and provide appropriate resources to the over 500 school districts providing education to the children of taxpaying Missourians. I urge this committee to not vote this bill out. I am available to answer any questions that you might have going forward. Thank you again for your consideration.

Re: OPPOSE MO 37, Testimony from American Atheists regarding nonmedical exemptions to vaccination requirements

Dear Chairperson Basye and Members of the House Elementary and Secondary Education Committee:

American Atheists, on behalf of its more than 1,000 constituents in Missouri, writes in opposition to HB 37, reckless legislation that will needlessly endanger the lives of Missouri's youth. The nonmedical vaccination exemptions created by this bill will harm efforts to control COVID-19 as well as other preventable diseases. HB 37 significantly alters Missouri's vaccination requirements for students throughout the state, from daycares to public universities. It prevents public health officials from adding new vaccination requirements, including for COVID-19 or any future pandemic.

Vaccination is a vital public health issue, and we support vaccination requirements based on public health and medical best practices for the benefit of everyone. We urge you to reject this dangerous bill.

American Atheists is a national civil rights organization that works to achieve religious equality for all Americans by protecting what Thomas Jefferson called the "wall of separation" between government and religion created by the First Amendment. We strive to create an environment where atheism and atheists are accepted as members of our nation's communities and where casual bigotry against our community is seen as abhorrent and unacceptable. We promote understanding of atheists through education, outreach, and community-building and work to end the stigma associated with being an atheist in America. As advocates for the health, safety, and well-being of all Americans, American Atheists objects to efforts to subordinate medical care to the religious beliefs of others.

Through the introduction of "conscientious objections," nonmedical exemptions to vaccination requirements for students, from those attending K-12 schools to those living on campus and attending institutions of higher education, lawmakers are needlessly placing other students, staff, and the public at risk. Moreover, this bill endangers private school students and teachers by eliminating all existing vaccination requirements for those institutions.

Public health experts believe that no exception should be made to neutral immunization requirements intended to protect public health and the well-being of students. Nonmedical exemptions are both unnecessary and dangerous from a medical and public health perspective.

Successful population immunity to disease depends upon a significant level of vaccination, as high as 95% for some diseases.[1] Because some people are unable to receive vaccination for medical reasons, it is therefore irresponsible and dangerous to allow for arbitrary compliance by the rest of the population. This is the reason that every state has laws requiring vaccination to attend public school.

Nonmedical exemptions put individuals at significant risk for contracting debilitating and deadly diseases. Children exempt from immunization requirements are more than 35 times more likely to contract measles[2] and nearly 6 times more likely to contract pertussis,[3] compared to immunized children. History illustrates that outbreaks are often common in communities that are unsupportive of vaccinations. For example, measles is one vaccine-preventable disease that has plagued multiple religious communities known to be either hesitant to vaccinate or completely against vaccination.[4]

Missouri lawmakers have a responsibility to protect all students, regardless of their beliefs. No person should be subject to harm or illness based on the religious or personal beliefs of their teachers or their classmates.

Additionally, we note that the broad religious and philosophical exemptions created by this bill are not required by the US Constitution. A number of states, including California, Maine, Mississippi, and West Virginia do not allow for these types of religious exemptions. As the US

Supreme Court has made clear, "The right to practice religion freely does not include liberty to expose the community or child to communicable disease, or the latter to ill health or death."[5]

Lastly, HB 37 goes even further by striking existing statutory language that allows public health departments to consult with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices when determining which vaccinations should be required. Instead, this bill recklessly replaces this flexible provision with a specific list of required vaccinations: "poliomyelitis, rubella, rubeola, mumps, tetanus, pertussis, 8 diphtheria, and hepatitis B."[6] Therefore, it would require a legislative change for Missouri to adapt to any future vaccination that is developed or to respond appropriately to any future pandemics or outbreaks. This is remarkably bad public policy, as it leaves the state without flexibility to deal with future crises.

Missouri's religious exemptions to vaccination are already dangerously broad. We strongly urge you to reject HB 37, which would further endanger public health by expanding these exemptions. If you should have any questions regarding American Atheists' opposition to this harmful legislation, please contact me at 908.276.7300 x309 or by email at agill@atheists.org.

Subject: The Bane of Democracy

Has Missouri become a Fascist State? The most vicious attack and the bane of Democracy in Missouri is the Republican lead and Republican controlled Legislation. Refusing to even try to hide their contempt they have for the Citizens of Missouri they flaunt their disdain for aiding and helping those among us that are financially strapped and hurt the most by the CoVid Crisis and as if that weren't enough, the first of their attacks denied a fair and honest election by overturning amendment one by duping the electorate into reversing in 2020 what they had just passed in 2018 in an attempt to "Clean Missouri".

Voters approved Amendment 1 in 2018 by a 62.02% which demanded changes to the state's lobbying laws, campaign finance limits for state legislative limits for state legislative candidates and the end to Gerrymandering, or the Redistricting process. Twice now in four years the referendums passed by the majority of voters have been capriciously and arbitrarily been overturned by the Congress in Jefferson City with seemingly impunity. Do we now live in a fascist state, it appears we do and the will of the Citizens of Missouri be Damned. Rural Missouri is the Most impacted by the Current Dictators in Jefferson City and Dictator it must be if the "Will of The People" is Trampled On and capriciously ignored.

COVID Stops Here campaign highlights pro-vaccine message from Sen. Roy Blunt

The Missouri Chamber's COVID Stops Here campaign is collaborating with U.S. Sen. Roy Blunt on a direct appeal to increase vaccination rates in Missouri. In a new advertising campaign launched Sunday, Sen. Blunt asks Missourians to join him and get the COVID-19 vaccine.

"I'm proud to be a part of the COVID Stops Here campaign and I strongly urge every Missourian to get their shot as soon as possible," said Sen. Blunt. "Right now in our state, it's vaccine vs. variant. It's a fight we win by getting the vaccine so we can protect ourselves and the people around us. That is the only way we will get our families and our economy back to normal."

"We greatly appreciate Sen. Roy Blunt for speaking out on the need to get vaccinated. His message to Missourians couldn't come at a better time. While millions of Missourians have already been vaccinated, we need everyone to join in and get vaccinated as we try to stop the spread of the dangerous Delta variant of COVID-19," said Dan Mehan, Missouri Chamber president and CEO.

Employer's guide to encouraging employee vaccination

As a trusted source of information, employers can have a strong influence on their employees' decisions to get the COVID-19 vaccine. It is vital for our state's health and economic recovery that the business community does everything in its power to encourage vaccination — particularly now with the dangerous Delta variant on the rise.

SEE THE UPDATED GUIDE

Is your workplace at least 70% vaccinated?

We're recognizing Missouri workplaces that are leading the fight against COVID-19. OurCOVID Stops Here campaign celebrates employers who have achieved widespread vaccination among their staff members. Organizations with at least a 70% employee vaccination rate are eligible to receive a COVID Stops Here designation. Employers can apply to receive their designation, including signs for business entrances to help customers feel safer and a media kit to help promote their achievement.

Subject: The illuminatis

Greetings my name is Jesus Angel Carreto Odonel the reason for my email to ask him please if you can schedule an appointment with President Joe Biden to speak with him on the subject of the Illuminati I hope your answer soon thank you

IMPORTANT NOTICE THINGS THAT THE ILLUMINATIS CAN DO BUT HAS NOT YET RELEASED
This is a list of things the illuminatis the new world order can do with their new discoveries
Technology such as are: the project H.A.A.R.P, electromagnetic waves
And this using it with people all over the world without your knowledge and permission
(You could be one of their victims pay attention if you sense any of these symptoms or feel it)
Induce: Dream,hungry,bomito,hot, cold, the thirst
Induce the desire to cry
They can control light, water, air, fire
Freeze,burn,cut
Can see through your eyes
Can see through walls
Change the voice
Provocarte: itching in any part of the body including the eyes

Provocarte: Pain in any part of the body including the eyes
Do you get tired and not get bored
Make sudes and not sudes
Control yourself: Do you move any part of the body
Control the climate can make rain create hurricanes, storms and tornadoes
Check any electronic apparatus (and their functions)
Make shake out any part of your body
Make: tosas,estornudes,repeat,bosteses,lagrimes,pestañes and make gestures
Control the temperature of your body
Can Make you burn any part of the body
Make Shimmer anywhere on the planet
Do you agrie any food and drink
Can block the radio signals,television,internet and home phone and Cellular
Can modify any written document or computer
They can download any type of Battery including the Cars
Can operate any appliance that use battery or batteries including battery of carts
Can modify any photo and image
Can make mature fruits and vegetables
Can do it to dry any fruit, vegetables , and any type of meat (chicken pig res)
They can make you faint
They can make you drown with your own saliva and with any drink you drink

The Morning Dispatch: Texas Bans Vaccine Mandates

Plus: An update on the January 6 committee subpoenas to four former Trump advisers.

Happy Wednesday! The Atlanta Braves edged the Milwaukee Brewers last night to punch their ticket to the National League Championship Series, which means the last Morning Dispatch team has been eliminated from the MLB postseason. See you all in April!

Quick Hits: Today's Top Stories

- The House of Representatives voted on Tuesday to raise the national debt ceiling by $480 billion, effectively extending government spending through early December. The House's go-ahead follows Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell's deal with his chamber's Democrats to approve a stopgap measure, preventing the U.S. from defaulting on its loans on the stipulation that Democrats pass the next debt ceiling increase through reconciliation.
- House Speaker Nancy Pelosi warned her chamber of planned cuts to a $3.5 trillion Democratic-led package in her weekly press conference Tuesday, bowing to the reality of continued refusals by moderate Sens. Kyrsten Sinema and Joe Manchin to support a bill with such a high price tag.
- About 4.3 million Americans—about 2.9 percent of the U.S. workforce—left their jobs over the course of August, according to the Labor Department's Job Openings and Labor Turnover Survey on Tuesday. Experts attributed the data point to workers seeking better opportunities in America's hot job market, with job openings continuing to outnumber unemployed workers.
- A memo Tuesday from Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas ordered immigration enforcement officials to cease "mass worksite operations," which often result in the arrests of groups of undocumented workers, for at least 60 days.
- President Joe Biden convened virtually with leaders of G20 countries and guest countries yesterday to discuss Taliban-occupied Afghanistan. According to a readout of the call, the heads of state talked about ongoing safe passage efforts, counterterrorism strategies, women's rights, and humanitarian assistance to the Afghan people.
- Rep. John Yarmuth, a Democrat from Kentucky and chair of the House Budget Committee, announced plans to retire from Congress when his term is up in 2022.

Abbott Bans Vaccine Mandates in Texas

(Photograph by Tamir Kalifa / Getty Images.)

The details of President Biden's forthcoming employer COVID mandate haven't been released yet, but Republicans are already beefing up resistance to it in places where they hold power. Case in point: On Monday, Texas Gov. Greg Abbott issued a sweeping executive order banning all entities in the state from implementing COVID-19 vaccine mandates without including carve-outs for "reasons of personal conscience" or "medical reasons, including prior recovery from COVID-19."

The order includes private businesses and is an expansion of previous action Abbott took to prevent local and state government entities from implementing vaccine mandates. His action also will "supersede any conflicting order" that local entities may have implemented. Under the order, companies who forge ahead with a vaccination requirement for workers face a fine of up to $1,000, the maximum amount allowed under Texas law.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Abbott, who was vaccinated on television earlier this year and has urged his constituents to follow suit, explicitly contrasted his action with Biden's in the order: "In yet another instance of federal overreach, the Biden administration is now bullying many private entities into imposing COVID-19 vaccine mandates, causing workforce disruptions that threaten Texas's continued recovery from the COVID-19 disaster."

Abbott also called on the state legislature to codify a similar order into law, and said he would rescind the executive order once the state had done so. The Texas Legislature is currently in a special legislative session that is set to wrap up October 19.

In one sense, the Texas governor's latest move is simply an intensification of his earlier position: Abbott is doubling down on his previous order, broadening its scope to include private businesses as well as government entities.

But the move also cuts against Abbott's own previous stated reasoning on mandates, which was premised on keeping the government out of the private sector's way when it came to such decisions. "Private businesses don't need government running their business," Abbott spokeswoman Renae Eze said of private vaccine mandates in August.

Abbott's political rivals see the move as an about-face. Former state Sen. Don Huffines, who is challenging Abbott in the 2022 GOP primary, tweeted that Abbott had "reversed his position on the issue, caving to the pressure" brought by his campaign.

The Republican Party of Texas had also pushed Abbott to proactively forbid vaccine mandates. In an open letter, party chairman Matt Rinaldi wrote: "Time is running out to protect vulnerable Texans who are having to choose right now between losing their livelihoods or accepting forced administration of a COVID-19 vaccine."

"Nothing in Gov. Abbott's executive order prohibits or prevents somebody from being vaccinated," Robert Henneke, general counsel at the conservative Texas Public Policy Foundation, told The Dispatch. But added that he didn't believe individuals should have to be vaccinated if they had personal reasons against doing so.

But there is a split among conservatives on the issue, with others arguing that government should neither compel business to push vaccines nor prevent them from doing so.

"My ideal scenario is that politicians broadly should stay out of this and let businesses decide how they want to approach this," John Tamny, director of the Center for Economic Freedom of FreedomWorks, told The Dispatch. He added: "If a failure to mandate results in a lot of sick employees, that too will have a major impact if businesses are going to be shut down and lose workers … If [businesses] decide that going the vaccine route is what's going to enable them to operate more efficiently, they should be able to make that decision."

"Yes, Gov. Abbott can do this, at least statutorily. Texas gives the governor enormous emergency power when a disaster has been declared," Gabriel Malor, a Virginia-based appellate litigator, said in an email to The Dispatch. "In this case he is wielding that power to reduce the incidence of vaccination in his state, but that is within his broad discretion."

"The law is curtailing employers' rights … it removes from them the freedom to set their own workplace policies in accordance with their own beliefs and safety goals," Malor added. "But I don't see a lurking constitutional violation here. There is no fundamental right to run a business with a vaccinated workforce. Since this order says that no entity in Texas can compel the COVID-19 vaccine, the best that businesses who want to protect themselves from the virus' worst effects can do is offer incentives to get vaccinated."

In the meantime, many businesses are caught between Abbott's new mandate and Biden's forthcoming one.

"Violation of Gov. Abbott's order is punishable by a fine," Malor said. "Violation of an OSHA Emergency Temporary Standard is also typically punishable by fines. Assuming that both Abbot's order and the anticipated OSHA ETS are operative (that is, neither has been previously blocked by a court) it is conceivable that a business could be in violation of both, depending on what the ETS looks like. That's a tough spot to be in."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The New York Times reports that both American and Southwest Airlines are set to defy the governor's new order. "We believe the federal vaccine mandate supersedes any conflicting state laws, and this does not change anything for American," a spokesman for American said.

According to a tracker by the Texas Tribune, slightly more than 50 percent of Texans are fully vaccinated. Hospitalizations and reported new cases are on the decline.

January 6 Probe Flexes Subpoena Power

As the Uphill team noted last week, the House select committee investigating the Capitol riot cracked its whip last month by sending subpoenas to four individuals who were in close communication with former President Donald Trump in the days leading up to January 6. That list includes former White House Chief of Staff Mark Meadows, former Defense Department official Kashyap Patel, former White House adviser Steve Bannon, and former White House social media staffer Dan Scavino.

The committee has also issued 11 subpoenas to individuals who organized rallies contesting President Joe Biden's electoral victory—including the Save America Rally that preceded the storming of the Capitol on January 6—and has requested records from social media companies and executive agencies that may offer insight into key White House conversations in the days leading up to the Capitol riot.

Meadows, Patel, Bannon, and Scavino were given an October 7 deadline to hand over any documents related to the events of January 6 and were instructed to sit for depositions the following week. The committee has said that it will consider advancing criminal contempt of Congress referrals to the Justice Department for those who fail to comply with the subpoenas.

Both Meadows and Patel have reportedly been "engaging" with the committee, according to a statement last week from committee Chairman Bennie G. Thompson and Vice Chair Liz Cheney. But Bannon? Not so much. According to Thompson and Cheney, Bannon, who was fired by the Trump administration in 2017 but continued to provide counsel to the former president through January 2020, "has indicated that he will try to hide behind vague references to privileges of the former President." The panel's statement declined to say whether Scavino is cooperating with federal investigators.

Trump has signaled that he will assert executive privilege, the 1974 court-established balancing test that weighs the understanding that a president should be able to consult candidly with his closest advisers with the reality that this privilege does not always exist in cases where there is a demonstrated need to make certain information available to Congress.

Trump has discouraged his former advisers from cooperating with federal investigators. Last week, one of his lawyers sent letters to Meadows, Patel, Bannon, and Scavino instructing them to ignore the House select committee's subpoenas. "President Trump is prepared to defend these fundamental privileges in court," the letter said, per reporting from Politico.

Trump may be on thin legal ice here; many legal scholars argue that privilege authority rests only with the sitting president. "Under our system, the authority attaches to the office, not the human," former Obama White House Counsel Neil Eggleston said in a recent interview with Harvard Law Today. "President Biden has this power because he's president, not because he's Joe Biden. And when President Trump was in office, he had the power because he was President Trump, not because he was Donald Trump."

For his part, President Biden has thus far signaled that he is willing to cooperate with the House select committee. After White House press secretary Jen Psaki initially stated last month that Biden would waive executive privilege completely, she later clarified that the White House will review records on a "case-by-case" basis. The White House waived privilege for the first set of documents requested by the committee last week.

Will Trump's attempts to block records and testimony from Congress be successful? As David and Sarah pointed out on Monday's episode of Advisory Opinions, former presidents and their former advisers do have some executive privilege, but that privilege diminishes over time.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Democratic Rep. Adam Schiff, a member of the House select committee, told The Dispatch on Tuesday that the committee is "not going to tolerate people refusing to cooperate" with the committee's subpoenas.

"As we witnessed with Bannon during the course of the Russia investigation when he was subpoenaed by a Republican chairman, he came prepared with 25 questions that were written out by the White House that was the subject of our investigation," Schiff added. "That kind of stuff is not going to work here."

Worth Your Time

- Matt Labash is back. The former Weekly Standard staff writer, one of the most talented writers working today, announced a new Substack newsletter he's calling Slack Tide. "So what will this thing of ours look like?" Labash writes in his introduction. "Well, not to go too Zen monk/Matthew McConaughey on you, but it is what it is, and will become what it needs to be. There will be a little politics, of course. Though after our last half-decade of binge-drinking political toxins, you probably can't have little enough. So we will also tackle whatever comes (and by 'we,' I mean me and my new editor, Grammarly): life and death and family and music and books and fishing and God. In other words, any and all things, not necessarily in that order. Since all these things are of a piece in my universe. There are no clean lines of demarcation."

- If you liked Labash's introductory post, don't exit the Slack Tide tab you have open on your laptop or phone just yet. In his first post on the site, Labash writes about his love/hate relationship with comments sections. By the end of the piece he seems to come around to the idea of having a comments section after a spontaneous act of kindness occurs in the back-and-forth below his first post. He writes, "God bless my cursed comments section for showing me how wrong I was about comments sections, where unlikely magic can happen. Because magic, when it does happen, tends to happen on its own time, not ours. Maybe I'll keep that comments section around after all. I think it's in good hands."

Presented Without Comment

Toeing the Company Line

- In Tuesday's Uphill, Haley breaks down some of the ongoing negotiations to cut down the $3.5 million trillion spending package and Ryan tackles efforts within Congress to pass war powers reforms. On the latter, the legislation would "curb presidential powers related to national emergencies. There are 39 national emergencies currently on the books. When he was in office, former President Donald Trump used national emergency powers to divert military funds to the construction of a wall along the southern border."

- Dust off your calculators, because the Manhattan Institute's Brian Riedl is back on The Remnant to discuss everything you've ever wanted to know about the federal budget, spending, taxes, and deficits. He also touches on the right's curious lurch toward industrial policy and common good capitalism, and why conservatives and progressives alike can't resist the prospect of a free lunch. Is the Laffer Curve a force for evil? How progressive is the U.S. tax code? And why is Joe Biden so determined to outspend Mack the Knife?

- Joe Biden's struggles have been very apparent in the last few rounds of polling. Almost all of the latest headlines pertaining to polls about the president are dire, but as Chris Stirewalt and Sarah remind us in The Sweep it's very early to be talking about 2024, let alone 2022.

Let Us Know

Pelosi told House Democrats to be ready for cuts to the $3.5 trillion reconciliation bill, which includes two years of free community college, money for universal pre-k, child tax credits, Medicare expansion, paid family leave, and climate measures. If you had a red pen, which provisions would you cut? Any in particular you would keep?

Subject: Third Reading of HB228 Wednesday Morning March 24, 2022

Good Morning Colleagues,

Tomorrow morning when HB228 is third read, many of the Flat MoDE kids will be in attendance along with their parents.

HB228 is on the Consent Calendar. This legislation allows parent to audio record their Individualized Education Program (IEP) with school district officials.

Please bring your Flat MoDE kid to the floor tomorrow to hold up and surprise these children and let us show them they are appreciated by their Missouri House of Representatives.

Thank you so very much!

Subject: This Week at ACU

American Conservative Union

Dear ,

Have you heard the phrase "Get Woke, Go Broke?" More companies are finding that to be true, with a new poll this week showing that 37% percent of Americans are less likely to drink Coca Cola following their recent antics.

Here's some ways you can help remind Corporate America that Americans simply won't stand for it.

Chairman's Corner

Take Action

Image

The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) has caved to woke activists and is actively fighting legislation in states that are trying to protect women athletes.

Please take action now to contact NCAA President Mark Emmert to let him know that you oppose the NCAA's leftward lurch and encourage the organization to protect -- not harm -- women athletes.

ACU Calls on Delta Airlines, Inc. to Correct Their Inaccurate Description of Georgia's Voter ID law

"If you cannot afford us the same respect you show to radical Left groups, we will have to conclude that you and Delta no longer wish to constructively work with your employees and customers who support free and fair elections."

ACU Foundation

ACUF just released the 50th Edition of its annual Ratings of Congress and a comprehensive new platform to help better hold lawmakers accountable to conservative principles.

- Search the votes of 15,000 lawmakers in Congress & all 50 state legislatures.
- Run head-to-head comparisons with 1.4 million votes.
- View 14,500 bills in all 50 state legislatures and 50 years of Congress.

Congrats to these Oklahoma state legislators who received ACU awards.

Nolan Center for Justice

On Thursday, Mississippi Governor Tate Reeves (R) signed a bill reforming the state's parole system. With serious troubles in Mississippi's prisons and the Biden Administration threatening a federal takeover of the state's corrections system, the legislation (SB 2795) was supported by supermajorities in the House and Senate. However, Governor Reeves had been non-committal about the legislation, and indeed, vetoed a similar bill last year.

ACU fully engaged in Jackson this legislative session. Numerous op-eds, grass roots messaging, talk radio, and traditional advocacy by the CJR team took place over the last six months. But the most impactful was Chairman Schlapp speaking directly with Gov. Reeves about the importance of fixing Mississippi's disastrous criminal justice system. Only after that conversation did Gov. Reeves indicate he would sign the bill. This is a huge win for conservative criminal justice reform in general, and for the American Conservative Union in particular.

On Tuesday 4/20, the North Carolina General Assembly introduced 'Dignity for Women who are Incarcerated' (HB608). ACU helped with drafting legislation, to finding sponsors for the bill, to discussing the issues with sheriffs. A press release was held on Tuesday where Rep. Kristen Baker thanked ACU for the help and encouraged all her colleagues to support this effort. Sheriff Terry Johnson also spoke at the press conference where he spoke on behalf of all the NC sheriffs that the standard of accountability should be raised to address the needs of the pregnant woman and her unborn child. Since the press conference the bill has received 79 cosponsors.

As always, ACU is committed to advancing conservative policies, and we thank you for supporting our efforts.

Will you chip in today to support ACU and CPAC programming?

In Freedom,
Dan

Subject: TOKEN Missouri Highways and Transportation Commission

Is it right to have two farmers, a car salesman, a lawyer, a developer, and a plumber to be in charge of billions of dollars of Missouri transportation spending? THREE WITH EXPIRED COMMISSIONS BY THE WAY. It would take weeks to research 638 pages of the Missouri STIP. Especially the cluster banged various projects with no gps.

Subject: U.S Census Bureau Apportionment Data
Attachment(s): "Census Data 2020 and 2010 population.pdf"

Committee Members,

The Census Bureau on April 26, 2021, released the 2020 Census Apportionment Data. The total Unites States population was determined to be 331,108,434. The total apportionment population for Missouri is 6,160,281. Missouri is allocated eight Representatives in Congress (no change from 2010).

The Census Bureau further determined that the overseas population for Missouri is 5,368. This results in a residential population in Missouri of 6,154,913 that is used for redistricting purposes. The Congressional redistricting “target population” for each Missouri district will be calculated as: 6,154,913 ÷ 8 = 769,364 (this means seven of the districts will meet the target population, and one district will need one additional whole person added).

For more information on apportionment and the census data, see:
https://www.census.gov/topics/public-sector/congressional-apportionment/about/faqs.html

The latest information from the Census Bureau is that it “will deliver the Public Law 94-171 redistricting data to all states by Sept. 30, 2021.”

Also attached is a Census table that has 2010 data with the 2020 data for comparison.
