Hi Steve,

I'm wondering if this is allowed.

In the attached open records request, they have a list of items they are looking for. Then it includes anything listed in an old open records request, which includes anything listed in an older open records request, which includes anything listed in an even older open records request. So I have to look back at three old requests and it's getting a little out of control. Are they allowed to do this or do they need to put everything they are looking for in one document?

Thanks,
