My preference would be for us to have one representative from DHHS. Do we know if this is a statutory requirement that DOH and DHS have a representative? If it's statutory, we need to let Marc Watterson (cc'd) know so that we can have the code changed to only specify the DHHS ED or designee. I don't think we need two representatives. Craig can represent the department as my designee. However, if the code requires one from DOH and one from DHS, Craig can serve as well as Al.

Since this overlaps with the Healthcare Administration Section, I cc'd Nate.

Please let me know what we find out and how I can support. I think someone needs to get in touch with USBE as soon as possible to let them know that we are comfortable with Craig serving while we try to sort out the legal requirements.

Craig PoVey, who manages the SHARP survey, has agreed to attend to represent DHS when we were previously split. I would recommend Leah Colburn from the OSUMH also attend as she supports youth and parents substance abuse programs. I'm happy to respond, but wanted to forward this along. I'm not sure if deputy directors wanted to attend, or if you wanted to keep it at the program level.

Thanks!

Hi Brook -

I am reaching out to you for help because we have been attempting to contact someone from DOH to be a part of the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council as described in 53G-10-406(5). The statute requires USBE to include "the executive director of the Department of Health or the executive director's designee" as a part of the council. I am wondering if you can help us identify who at DHHS may be able to fulfill this requirement for us and help us contact them.

By way of background and context, the Botvin LifeSkills Training program was selected as the approved Underage Drinking and Substance Abuse Prevention program, and since that five-year contract will end June 30, 2023, the Utah State Board of Education is getting ready to put out another Request for Proposals (RFP). In preparation for the RFP process, we would like to bring the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council together this summer so we can gather their input for the RFP.

USBE's Substance Use Prevention Specialist, Clarissa Stebbing (who is cc'd on this email), has reached out several times to different people in DOH trying to contact someone to fulfill this requirement and has not received any responses. She is trying to get the council put together so that she can get a summer meeting on the council members' schedules and move forward with the new RFP. We would like to be able to identify who is going to be on the council by the end of the week, if possible.

We are also wondering, now that UDOH and DHS have merged, do you think we still need to have someone who was part of UDOH as a participant on the council or can Craig Povey (who has already agreed to participate) serve as the representative for both roles?

Feel free to contact us with any questions or forward this email to someone who may be more appropriate to help us with this. I am just not sure who else to reach out to at this point. I would generally reach out to the DHS Education Liaison, but I have heard that the person that was formerly in that position has since left. Thanks in advance for any help you can provide.

It appears that the statute ((5)(a-g)) purposefully created the Advisory Council in a way that had a majority of the members with expertise in Underage Drinking and Substance Abuse Prevention. If we were to consolidate these four into just one, it would disrupt the make-up of the body and leave Superintendents and State School Board members without the full scope of subject matter experts statute tries to create.

I have added David and Heather to this thread to get their thoughts. It seems like Al's group has focused specifically on preventing maternal alcohol consumption. I'm not sure if that is the best fit as the aim of this Advisory Council is to help give input as the Program is taught to kids three different times:

- 4th or 5th grade
- 7th or 8th grade
- 9th or 10th grade

I'll let David and Heather chime in to see if Al or another staff from the "health prevention" side might be a best fit as the Executive Director's designee.

SUBJECT: Fwd: Abortion Education Module
FROM: "David Litvack (DHHS)" <davidlitvack@utah.gov>

Good Morning Tracy & Nate -

I followed-up with Laurie Baksh regarding the clarifying information the Lt. Governor requested regarding the informed consent module if Utah's trigger law goes into effect. Based on guidance from the AG's office, there will be no changes to what sections of the Abortion Education Module individuals will review. As I understand it in reviewing the current statute -- which is not changed by the trigger law -- the physician's office or abortion clinic is the responsible party to inform their patient about the informed consent module. Under current statute, as described in Laurie's e-mail, a physician is "not guilty" of violating the informed consent requirement (including the education module) under certain conditions involving rape, incest, and endangerment of the life or physical health of the mother.

It does raise a really interesting question. If state law already recognizes that the informed consent process and education module may be unnecessary in situations of rape, incest, and endangerment of the life/physical health of the mother -- the only scenarios in which an abortion would be allowed under the trigger law -- is there a need to continue to provide the education module? Of course, this question is not for us to decide; however, I think there is value in providing the Lt. Governor this clarifying information and presenting her with this question.

Thoughts?

Hi David -

We don't have a clear answer to this question. There is no language in the current code that specifically provides direction on who and who is not required to view the module, the language is about what the physician is required to provide and document. SB174 does not repeal any of the requirements related to the informed consent module.

In 76-7-305, Informed Consent Requirements (https://le.utah.gov/xcode/Title76/Chapter7/76-7-S305.html), subsection 8 states:
(8) A physician is not guilty of violating this section for failure to furnish any of the information described in Subsection (2) (information module) or (3) (face to face consultation), or for failing to comply with Subsection (5) (ultrasound), if:
(a) the physician can demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence that the physician reasonably believed that furnishing the information would have resulted in a severely adverse effect on the physical or mental health of the pregnant woman;
(b) in the physician's professional judgment, the abortion was necessary to avert: (i) the death of the woman on whom the abortion is performed; or (ii) a serious risk of substantial and irreversible impairment of a major bodily function of the woman on whom the abortion is performed;
(c) the pregnancy was the result of rape or rape of a child, as described in Sections 76-5-402 and 76-5-402.1;
(d) the pregnancy was the result of incest, as defined in Subsection 76-5-406(2)(j) and Section 76-7-102; or
(e) at the time of the abortion, the pregnant woman was 14 years old or younger.

Section 76-7-305.5 of the Utah Code (https://le.utah.gov/xcode/Title76/Chapter7/76-7-S305.5.html) outlines the requirements of the informed consent module. This section of the statute notes that the Department may develop a version of the module that omits the information about the responsibility of the father and child support (2)(j) and (2)(k) if the pregnancy is the result of rape. The rest of the module components are left for viewing. We did incorporate this into the development. The module asks the viewer if the pregnancy is a result of rape and if they respond "yes", they skip these sections as they progress through to the completion certificate. There is no reference to incest in this section of the code.

Good Morning Laurie -

I hope you are doing well. I have a clarifying question regarding the Abortion Education Module post-SB 174. If the new law goes into effect, will individuals seeking an abortion due to rape or incest be required to complete the Abortion Education Module as it is currently or will the individual be required to review only certain sections of the module? If only certain sections will be required to be completed, do you know which sections they are?

As context, this question came-up in a recent meeting with the Lt. Governor and she would appreciate clarification on the Abortion Education Module for victims of rape and incest if the new law takes effect.

I hope my question makes sense. When I look at the FAQs it does not sound like there will be any changes to what sections of the education module will be required, but I do want to clarify and provide that information to the Lt. Governor.

I am just reviewing this now.

Based on the statute and the DHHS organizational chart, I would recommend that we designate Craig Povey as your designee (since prevention is a part of the Office of Health Prevention & Promotion) and request that Brent Kelsey participate or designate someone from the Office of Substance Abuse & Mental Health (perhaps, Leah Coburn as Brook recommended). What I like about Brook's suggestion is it can help ensure a connection between prevention of substance use and treatment.

Hi Brook -

I am reaching out to you for help because we have been attempting to contact someone from DOH to be a part of the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council as described in 53G-10-406(5). The statute requires USBE to include "the executive director of the Department of Health or the executive director's designee" as a part of the council. I am wondering if you can help us identify who at DHHS may be able to fulfill this requirement for us and help us contact them.

By way of background and context, the Botvin LifeSkills Training program was selected as the approved Underage Drinking and Substance Abuse Prevention program, and since that five-year contract will end June 30, 2023, the Utah State Board of Education is getting ready to put out another Request for Proposals (RFP). In preparation for the RFP process, we would like to bring the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council together this summer so we can gather their input for the RFP.

USBE's Substance Use Prevention Specialist, Clarissa Stebbing (who is cc'd on this email), has reached out several times to different people in DOH trying to contact someone to fulfill this requirement and has not received any responses. She is trying to get the council put together so that she can get a summer meeting on the council members' schedules and move forward with the new RFP. We would like to be able to identify who is going to be on the council by the end of the week, if possible.

We are also wondering, now that UDOH and DHS have merged, do you think we still need to have someone who was part of UDOH as a participant on the council or can Craig Povey (who has already agreed to participate) serve as the representative for both roles?

Feel free to contact us with any questions or forward this email to someone who may be more appropriate to help us with this. I am just not sure who else to reach out to at this point. I would generally reach out to the DHS Education Liaison, but I have heard that the person that was formerly in that position has since left. Thanks in advance for any help you can provide.

Good Morning Tracy & Nate -

I followed-up with Laurie Baksh regarding the clarifying information the Lt. Governor requested regarding the informed consent module if Utah's trigger law goes into effect. Based on guidance from the AG's office, there will be no changes to what sections of the Abortion Education Module individuals will review. As I understand it in reviewing the current statute -- which is not changed by the trigger law -- the physician's office or abortion clinic is the responsible party to inform their patient about the informed consent module. Under current statute, as described in Laurie's e-mail, a physician is "not guilty" of violating the informed consent requirement (including the education module) under certain conditions involving rape, incest, and endangerment of the life or physical health of the mother.

It does raise a really interesting question. If state law already recognizes that the informed consent process and education module may be unnecessary in situations of rape, incest, and endangerment of the life/physical health of the mother -- the only scenarios in which an abortion would be allowed under the trigger law -- is there a need to continue to provide the education module? Of course, this question is not for us to decide; however, I think there is value in providing the Lt. Governor this clarifying information and presenting her with this question.

Thoughts?

Hi Brook -

I am reaching out to you for help because we have been attempting to contact someone from DOH to be a part of the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council as described in 53G-10-406(5). The statute requires USBE to include "the executive director of the Department of Health or the executive director's designee" as a part of the council. I am wondering if you can help us identify who at DHHS may be able to fulfill this requirement for us and help us contact them.

By way of background and context, the Botvin LifeSkills Training program was selected as the approved Underage Drinking and Substance Abuse Prevention program, and since that five-year contract will end June 30, 2023, the Utah State Board of Education is getting ready to put out another Request for Proposals (RFP). In preparation for the RFP process, we would like to bring the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council together this summer so we can gather their input for the RFP.

USBE's Substance Use Prevention Specialist, Clarissa Stebbing (who is cc'd on this email), has reached out several times to different people in DOH trying to contact someone to fulfill this requirement and has not received any responses. She is trying to get the council put together so that she can get a summer meeting on the council members' schedules and move forward with the new RFP. We would like to be able to identify who is going to be on the council by the end of the week, if possible.

We are also wondering, now that UDOH and DHS have merged, do you think we still need to have someone who was part of UDOH as a participant on the council or can Craig Povey (who has already agreed to participate) serve as the representative for both roles?

Feel free to contact us with any questions or forward this email to someone who may be more appropriate to help us with this. I am just not sure who else to reach out to at this point. I would generally reach out to the DHS Education Liaison, but I have heard that the person that was formerly in that position has since left. Thanks in advance for any help you can provide.

I am just reviewing this now.

Based on the statute and the DHHS organizational chart, I would recommend that we designate Craig Povey as your designee (since prevention is a part of the Office of Health Prevention & Promotion) and request that Brent Kelsey participate or designate someone from the Office of Substance Abuse & Mental Health (perhaps, Leah Coburn as Brook recommended). What I like about Brook's suggestion is it can help ensure a connection between prevention of substance use and treatment.

Just my immediate thoughts.

Statue actually requires that we have four representatives on the Council:

(d)the director of the Division of Child and Family Services or the director's designee;
(e)the director of the Division of Juvenile Justice Services or the director's designee;

It appears that the statute ((5)(a-g)) purposefully created the Advisory Council in a way that had a majority of the members with expertise in Underage Drinking and Substance Abuse Prevention. If we were to consolidate these four into just one, it would disrupt the make-up of the body and leave Superintendents and State School Board members without the full scope of subject matter experts statute tries to create.

I have added David and Heather to this thread to get their thoughts. It seems like Al's group has focused specifically on preventing maternal alcohol consumption. I'm not sure if that is the best fit as the aim of this Advisory Council is to help give input as the Program is taught to kids three different times:

- 4th or 5th grade
- 7th or 8th grade
- 9th or 10th grade

I'll let David and Heather chime in to see if Al or another staff from the "health prevention" side might be a best fit as the Executive Director's designee.

My preference would be for us to have one representative from DHHS. Do we know if this is a statutory requirement that DOH and DHS have a representative? If it's statutory, we need to let Marc Watterson (cc'd) know so that we can have the code changed to only specify the DHHS ED or designee. I don't think we need two representatives. Craig can represent the department as my designee. However, if the code requires one from DOH and one from DHS, Craig can serve as well as Al.

Since this overlaps with the Healthcare Administration Section, I cc'd Nate.

Please let me know what we find out and how I can support. I think someone needs to get in touch with USBE as soon as possible to let them know that we are comfortable with Craig serving while we try to sort out the legal requirements.

This was the last email about the HB2 funds, we still don't know if the report in HB2 Item 80 is to guide the RFP or not. Here is the language
The Legislature intends that the Department of Human Services report back to the Social Services Appropriation Subcommittee no later than August 10, 2022 on how much it would cost to implement a statewide support program, that would qualify for expenditures from the Opioid Litigation Settlement Restricted Account, for pregnant women with substance use disorder to receive the following services:
(1) a licensed social worker to help connect women with state services they are determined to need and are eligible to receive;
(2) a peer support program; and
(3) home visitation services through the child's first birthday.
The Legislature further intends that the performance measures by which the program would be measured would include the following:
(1) the rate of a diagnosis of neonatal abstinence syndrome at the time of delivery in the areas where the program has been implemented; and
(2) the number of NICU days related to any substance use disorder in the areas where the program has been implemented.

Hi Sean,

Just wanted some clarification on some intent language. In HB 2 Item 84, there is an appropriation from the Opioid Restricted Fund of $2.8M. It is our understanding that the intent is that this is for supporting pregnant moms with substance use disorders. In HB 3 Item 245, there is intent language for this directing a competitive process for disbursing the funds. I'm wanting to make sure that intent language in the Bill of Bills is intended for this funding as we are reading it.

This was the last email about the HB2 funds, we still don't know if the report in HB2 Item 80 is to guide the RFP or not. Here is the language
The Legislature intends that the Department of Human Services report back to the Social Services Appropriation Subcommittee no later than August 10, 2022 on how much it would cost to implement a statewide support program, that would qualify for expenditures from the Opioid Litigation Settlement Restricted Account, for pregnant women with substance use disorder to receive the following services:
(1) a licensed social worker to help connect women with state services they are determined to need and are eligible to receive;
(2) a peer support program; and
(3) home visitation services through the child's first birthday.

The Legislature further intends that the performance measures by which the program would be measured would include the following:
(1) the rate of a diagnosis of neonatal abstinence syndrome at the time of delivery in the areas where the program has been implemented; and
(2) the number of NICU days related to any substance use disorder in the areas where the program has been implemented.

We can't spend the money over multiple years without intent language. We could set it up as a signer year contract with an option to extend and ask for the language next session. It sounds like there is a willing sponsor already.

Hi Sean,

Just wanted some clarification on some intent language. In HB 2 Item 84, there is an appropriation from the Opioid Restricted Fund of $2.8M. It is our understanding that the intent is that this is for supporting pregnant moms with substance use disorders. In HB 3 Item 245, there is intent language for this directing a competitive process for disbursing the funds. I'm wanting to make sure that intent language in the Bill of Bills is intended for this funding as we are reading it.

Thanks,

Nate

I have added David and Heather to this thread to get their thoughts. It seems like Al's group has focused specifically on preventing maternal alcohol consumption. I'm not sure if that is the best fit as the aim of this Advisory Council is to help give input as the Program is taught to kids three different times:

Hi Brook -

I am reaching out to you for help because we have been attempting to contact someone from DOH to be a part of the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council as described in 53G-10-406(5). The statute requires USBE to include "the executive director of the Department of Health or the executive director's designee" as a part of the council. I am wondering if you can help us identify who at DHHS may be able to fulfill this requirement for us and help us contact them.

By way of background and context, the Botvin LifeSkills Training program was selected as the approved Underage Drinking and Substance Abuse Prevention program, and since that five-year contract will end June 30, 2023, the Utah State Board of Education is getting ready to put out another Request for Proposals (RFP). In preparation for the RFP process, we would like to bring the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council together this summer so we can gather their input for the RFP.

USBE's Substance Use Prevention Specialist, Clarissa Stebbing (who is cc'd on this email), has reached out several times to different people in DOH trying to contact someone to fulfill this requirement and has not received any responses. She is trying to get the council put together so that she can get a summer meeting on the council members' schedules and move forward with the new RFP. We would like to be able to identify who is going to be on the council by the end of the week, if possible.

We are also wondering, now that UDOH and DHS have merged, do you think we still need to have someone who was part of UDOH as a participant on the council or can Craig Povey (who has already agreed to participate) serve as the representative for both roles?

Feel free to contact us with any questions or forward this email to someone who may be more appropriate to help us with this. I am just not sure who else to reach out to at this point. I would generally reach out to the DHS Education Liaison, but I have heard that the person that was formerly in that position has since left. Thanks in advance for any help you can provide.

Hi Brook -

I am reaching out to you for help because we have been attempting to contact someone from DOH to be a part of the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council as described in 53G-10-406(5). The statute requires USBE to include "the executive director of the Department of Health or the executive director's designee" as a part of the council. I am wondering if you can help us identify who at DHHS may be able to fulfill this requirement for us and help us contact them.

By way of background and context, the Botvin LifeSkills Training program was selected as the approved Underage Drinking and Substance Abuse Prevention program, and since that five-year contract will end June 30, 2023, the Utah State Board of Education is getting ready to put out another Request for Proposals (RFP). In preparation for the RFP process, we would like to bring the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council together this summer so we can gather their input for the RFP.

USBE's Substance Use Prevention Specialist, Clarissa Stebbing (who is cc'd on this email), has reached out several times to different people in DOH trying to contact someone to fulfill this requirement and has not received any responses. She is trying to get the council put together so that she can get a summer meeting on the council members' schedules and move forward with the new RFP. We would like to be able to identify who is going to be on the council by the end of the week, if possible.

We are also wondering, now that UDOH and DHS have merged, do you think we still need to have someone who was part of UDOH as a participant on the council or can Craig Povey (who has already agreed to participate) serve as the representative for both roles?

Feel free to contact us with any questions or forward this email to someone who may be more appropriate to help us with this. I am just not sure who else to reach out to at this point. I would generally reach out to the DHS Education Liaison, but I have heard that the person that was formerly in that position has since left. Thanks in advance for any help you can provide.

Looking back at the original email request from USBE, it looks like they were looking to get the name/contact info specifically for the individual listed as the "DOH Director or Designee". It sounds like that person is going to be Craig PoVey.

I would assume since USBE only inquired about that one position that they already have others identified to fill the other three roles from DHHS? Jenny, I think you are good to go with reaching out to USBE and letting them know that Craig PoVey will be the DOH designee.

(b)the executive director of the Department of Health or the executive director's designee; (Craig PoVey)
(c)the director of the Division of Substance Abuse and Mental Health or the director's designee; (Leah Colburn?)
(d)the director of the Division of Child and Family Services or the director's designee; **(?)
(e)the director of the Division of Juvenile Justice Services or the director's designee; **(?)

Based on the statute and the DHHS organizational chart, I would recommend that we designate Craig Povey as your designee (since prevention is a part of the Office of Health Prevention & Promotion) and request that Brent Kelsey participate or designate someone from the Office of Substance Abuse & Mental Health (perhaps, Leah Coburn as Brook recommended). What I like about Brook's suggestion is it can help ensure a connection between prevention of substance use and treatment.

It appears that the statute ((5)(a-g)) purposefully created the Advisory Council in a way that had a majority of the members with expertise in Underage Drinking and Substance Abuse Prevention. If we were to consolidate these four into just one, it would disrupt the make-up of the body and leave Superintendents and State School Board members without the full scope of subject matter experts statute tries to create.

I have added David and Heather to this thread to get their thoughts. It seems like Al's group has focused specifically on preventing maternal alcohol consumption. I'm not sure if that is the best fit as the aim of this Advisory Council is to help give input as the Program is taught to kids three different times:

Craig PoVey, who manages the SHARP survey, has agreed to attend to represent DHS when we were previously split. I'm not sure if deputy directors wanted to attend, or if you wanted to keep it at the program level.

I received this request from USBE. The executive director of the UDOH needs to either attend or designate someone to attend.

Craig PoVey, who manages the SHARP survey, has agreed to attend to represent DHS when we were previously split. I would recommend Leah Colburn from the OSUMH also attend as she supports youth and parents substance abuse programs. I'm happy to respond, but wanted to forward this along. I'm not sure if deputy directors wanted to attend, or if you wanted to keep it at the program level.

Thanks!

Hi Brook -

I am reaching out to you for help because we have been attempting to contact someone from DOH to be a part of the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council as described in 53G-10-406(5). The statute requires USBE to include "the executive director of the Department of Health or the executive director's designee" as a part of the council. I am wondering if you can help us identify who at DHHS may be able to fulfill this requirement for us and help us contact them.

By way of background and context, the Botvin LifeSkills Training program was selected as the approved Underage Drinking and Substance Abuse Prevention program, and since that five-year contract will end June 30, 2023, the Utah State Board of Education is getting ready to put out another Request for Proposals (RFP). In preparation for the RFP process, we would like to bring the Underage Drinking Prevention Program Advisory Council together this summer so we can gather their input for the RFP.

USBE's Substance Use Prevention Specialist, Clarissa Stebbing (who is cc'd on this email), has reached out several times to different people in DOH trying to contact someone to fulfill this requirement and has not received any responses. She is trying to get the council put together so that she can get a summer meeting on the council members' schedules and move forward with the new RFP. We would like to be able to identify who is going to be on the council by the end of the week, if possible.

We are also wondering, now that UDOH and DHS have merged, do you think we still need to have someone who was part of UDOH as a participant on the council or can Craig Povey (who has already agreed to participate) serve as the representative for both roles?

Feel free to contact us with any questions or forward this email to someone who may be more appropriate to help us with this. I am just not sure who else to reach out to at this point. I would generally reach out to the DHS Education Liaison, but I have heard that the person that was formerly in that position has since left. Thanks in advance for any help you can provide.

You might have already heard about this, but CMS did release a statement a few weeks ago regarding trigger laws in states surrounding abortion. ASTHO shared this with me today:

https://www.cms.gov/newsroom/press-releases/statement-cms-administrator-chiquita-brooks-lasure-access-reproductive-health-care

It sounds like ASTHO is also talking about bringing states together with trigger laws to discuss a number of different issues (i.e. Medicaid, medications, etc.). Hopefully you are also hearing from ASTHO staff that may be working with State Medicaid Directors.

Update for Clinicians on Monkeypox in People with HIV, Children and Adolescents, and People who are Pregnant or Breastfeeding

Summary
As of July 29, 2022, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and state and local public health partners are reporting 5,189 cases of Monkeypox virus infections in the U States across 47 states, Washington, D.C., and Puerto Rico. CDC is also reporting multiple outbreaks of monkeypox have also been reported globally in 72 countries that do not norma report monkeypox activity. On Friday, July 22, CDC reported the first two cases of monkeypox in children in the United States during the current outbreak.

This Health Alert Network (HAN) Health Update serves to alert clinicians to clinical considerations for preventing, diagnosing, and managing monkeypox in people with HIV, children, adolescents, and people who are pregnant or breastfeeding.

Background
Since May 2022, CDC has been urging healthcare providers in the United States to be on alert for patients who have rash illnesses consistent with monkeypox. People with HIV, indivi who are immunocompromised, children, adolescents, and people who are pregnant or breastfeeding may be at risk for increased disease severity and adverse health outcomes assoc with monkeypox infection. Clinicians should be familiar with unique clinical considerations for monkeypox in these patient populations. A broad diagnostic approach is encouraged to distinguish Monkeypox virus infection from other causes of fever and rash illness. Testing should be performed on persons for whom monkeypox is suspected based on clinical presen or epidemiologic criteria. Clinicians should consult their state or territorial health department (State Contacts) or CDC through the CDC Emergency Operations Center (770-488-7100) soon as monkeypox is suspected.
CDC has issued clinical considerations for monkeypox infection in multiple populations including: people with HIV, children and adolescents, and people who are pregnant or breastfee These newly released clinical considerations complement existing clinical guidance for managing monkeypox and provide information on signs and symptoms of Monkeypox virus infe pre- and post-exposure prophylaxis; treatment; and infection control in these populations.

Recommendations and Information for Healthcare Providers on Monkeypox in People with HIV
In the current outbreak, available international summary surveillance data in the CDC-issued clinical considerations for people with HIV indicate 30-51% HIV prevalence among perso with monkeypox for whom HIV status was known. It is currently unknown whether HIV infection affects a person's risk of acquiring Monkeypox virus infection and developing disease a exposure.

Persons with advanced and uncontrolled HIV might be at higher risk for severe or prolonged monkeypox disease. Therefore, prophylaxis (e.g., vaccination), medical treatment and close monitoring are a priority for this population. Compared with other persons with monkeypox, case reports among persons with inadequately treated HIV who have CD4 counts ≤35 per mm^3 reported higher rates of secondary bacterial infection, more prolonged illness (and thereby also longer period of infectiousness), as well as a higher likelihood of a confluent o partially confluent rash, rather than discrete lesions. In contrast, recent reports of patients with HIV infection and monkeypox who are on effective antiretroviral therapy (ART) have note deaths or evident excess hospitalizations to date. Providers should consider both viral suppression and CD4 count in weighing the risk of severe outcomes from monkeypox for any pa with HIV.

The rash of monkeypox can be confused with other rash illnesses that are considered in people with HIV, including herpes zoster (shingles), scabies, molluscum contagiosum, herpes, syphilis, chancroid, lymphogranuloma venereum, allergic skin rashes, and drug eruptions. Immunocompromised persons, including persons with advanced, untreated or inadequately suppressed HIV, may present with an atypical rash, including a disseminated rash that may make diagnosis more challenging.

Prevention of monkeypox and infection control practices in the home or healthcare setting are the same regardless of peoples' HIV status. Post-exposure prophylaxis (PEP) and antivi treatments, including tecovirimat, are available for persons exposed to monkeypox or with Monkeypox virus infection. The safety and immunogenicity of JYNNEOS, a live, non-replicat viral vaccine, has been specifically established in people with HIV; however, immunogenicity among persons with HIV who have CD4 counts below 100 cells/mm^3 or who are not virologically suppressed remains unknown. ACAM2000, a replicating viral vaccine, should not be given to people with HIV (regardless of immune status). Antiviral treatments for monkeypox have few interactions with antiretroviral therapy. ART and opportunistic infection prophylaxis should be continued in all people with HIV who develop monkeypox.

Recommendations and Information for Healthcare Providers on Monkeypox in Children and Adolescents
Limited pediatric data on infection with the Congo Basin clade of Monkeypox virus suggest increased risk of severe disease in children younger than 8 years of age. Rare complication monkeypox include abscess, airway obstruction due to severe lymphadenopathy, cellulitis, corneal scarring, encephalitis, keratitis, pneumonia, and sepsis. The West African clade of Monkeypox virus involved in the current outbreak typically causes less severe disease than the Congo Basin clade.
Monkeypox virus can spread to children through contact with infectious body fluids (e.g., lesion exudates and respiratory secretions) of people or animals or through contact with fomite may occur in households and other close contact settings. The number of monkeypox cases among children in the United States is currently low; however, CDC acknowledges that the expanding U.S. outbreak and the possible risk for transmission in households and other settings may result in additional pediatric cases. Pediatric providers should be familiar with prevention, recognition, and testing considerations for monkeypox in children and adolescents.
Families should be counseled about preventing the spread of Monkeypox virus between children, caregivers, and household members in the home, including avoidance of contact with persons who have monkeypox, the body fluids of an infected person, and fomites (e.g., clothing, towels, bedding); wearing a well-fitting mask or respirator by the person with monkeyp and the contact (for children over 2 years of age) when interaction is unavoidable; and minimizing the number of caregivers for children with monkeypox. Particular attention should be made to keep children with monkeypox from scratching lesions or touching their eyes to prevent auto-inoculation and more severe illness. Caregivers should cover areas of broken ski with bandages to the extent possible and avoid direct skin-to-skin contact with the rash.
Children and adolescents who are close contacts of a person with monkeypox (e.g., household contact, other family member, caregiver, or friend) should be evaluated for illness and offered post-exposure prophylaxis with JYNNEOS or ACAM2000 (for children older than 12 months) or treatment when indicated. Monkeypox should be considered when children or adolescents present with signs or symptoms that could be consistent with the disease, especially if epidemiologic criteria are present. The rash of monkeypox can be confused with oth rash illnesses that are commonly considered in children including varicella (chickenpox); hand, foot, and mouth disease; measles; scabies; molluscum contagiosum; herpes; allergic sk rashes and syphilis (including congenital syphilis); and drug eruptions.
Data are limited on the effectiveness of PEP for children who have been exposed to monkeypox or treatment for children with illness, and no vaccines or other products are currently licensed for monkeypox prevention or treatment in children or adolescents. However, PEP should not be withheld from children or adolescents who are otherwise eligible. Decisions ab whether to offer PEP should take into account the patient's degree of exposure and the patient's individual risk of severe disease.

Prophylactic therapeutics that can be administered include vaccination, Vaccinia immune globulin, and antiviral medication. For almost all children and adolescents, vaccination is the preventive treatment that should be administered. Immune globulin or antivirals may also be considered for infants under 6 months of age, given their immature immune systems and possible decreased responses to vaccination.

Tecovirimat is currently being used as the first-line treatment for infection with Monkeypox virus, including for children and adolescents with severe disease or underlying medical condi that may increase risk for severe disease and those with complications from monkeypox. Individual risks and benefits must be considered prior to initiating tecovirimat. Other treatment such as Vaccinia immune globulin may be considered in unusual circumstances.

In pediatric inpatient care settings, infection control procedures for children with monkeypox infection should also consider the child's age and caregiving needs; family and caregiver preferences; the extent, severity, and course of the child's illness; and risks for severe monkeypox disease in exposed caregivers (e.g., pregnancy or immunocompromising conditions)

Recommendations and Information for Healthcare Providers on Monkeypox in People who are Pregnant or Breastfeeding Data regarding Monkeypox virus infection during pregnancy are limited. It is unknown if pregnant people are more susceptible to acquiring Monkeypox virus infection or if illness is mo severe during pregnancy. Other poxviruses cause more severe infection during pregnancy. Monkeypox virus can be transmitted to the fetus during pregnancy and to the newborn by cl contact during and after birth. There are few case reports of spontaneous pregnancy loss and stillbirth, preterm delivery, and neonatal monkeypox infection; the frequency and circumstances for these outcomes are unknown. Whether Monkeypox virus is present in breast milk is unknown; however, it may be transmitted through close contact during breastfee Prevention measures for monkeypox infection are similar for pregnant and non-pregnant people. Pre- or post-exposure prophylaxis should be offered to people who are pregnant or should not be used in people who are pregnant or breastfeeding.

During pregnancy, the cause of fever may be difficult to differentiate from other infections, such as intraamniotic infection (chorioamnionitis), until the monkeypox rash appears. Pregna patients with rashes initially considered characteristic of dermatoses of pregnancy (e.g., polymorphic eruption of pregnancy) or of more common infections (e.g., varicella zoster or sex transmitted infections) should be carefully evaluated for a monkeypox rash, and submission of specimens of lesions for monkeypox diagnosis should be considered, especially if the pe has any epidemiologic risk factors for monkeypox infection.
While most adults with Monkeypox virus infection experience self-limiting infection and recover within 2–4 weeks, pregnant and breastfeeding people should be prioritized for medical treatment, if needed, due to the probable increased risk of severe disease during pregnancy, risk of transmission to the fetus during pregnancy or to the newborn by close contact durin and after birth, and risk of severe infection in newborns. Treatment for Monkeypox virus infection should be offered to people who are pregnant or breastfeeding. The risks and benefits treatment options should be discussed with the patient.
Recommendations for infection prevention and control of monkeypox in healthcare settings are the same for pregnant and non-pregnant patients. Newborns born to people with monke should be placed in isolation, and healthcare personnel should follow infection prevention and control recommendations. Patients with monkeypox should be counseled about measure prevent risk of transmission of Monkeypox virus to their newborn from close contact and breastfeeding.

Eric -

Just checking in on the status of the following legislative required report. I have down in our records (DHHS Legislative Items Due_2022) that Brent asked you to take the lead on this specific report.

As a reminder, EDO would like at least one week prior to the due date to review the report and provide feedback. Please share the report with me and Shari when it is ready for EDO review.

Thanks!

Hi Brent,
One additional thing that came up after Nate jumped off the August SSA interim planning meeting call today was related to an item listed on the SSA August Afternoon tab of this document: Interim Committee - Detailed Agenda, line 53, shows "Services for Pregnant Women with Substance Use Disorder" the time slated for this item is 20 minutes and the thinking was that DHHS should be prepared to present on this report, so just wanted to confirm you are planning to present on this Brent, or someone in SUMH?

Friends - Today, President Biden will issue an Executive Order on Securing Access to Reproductive and Other Healthcare Services, building on actions that the Biden-Harris Administration has taken to protect access to reproductive healthcare services and defend women's fundamental rights. See this fact sheet for more information. Today at 2:00 pm ET, the President and the Vice President will deliver remarks at the first meeting of the interagency Task Force on Reproductive Healthcare Access, which will be livestreamed at whitehouse.gov/live.

Tomorrow, Thursday, 8/4 at 12:30pm ET, join Senior White House Officials for a briefing on additional steps President Biden is taking to protect access to reproductive rights and care for all Americans. You can RSVP here. Note: this call is closed to press and off the record.

Last night, President Biden issued a statement on Kansans' overwhelming rejection of a ballot initiative to remove the right to abortion from the state constitution. Yesterday, the Justice Department filed a lawsuit challenging Idaho's near-total abortion ban, arguing that the state law conflicts with, and is preempted by, the Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act (EMTALA).

SUBJECT: Family Friendly Policies - Need to Meet
FROM: "Krisann Humphreys Bacon (DHHS)" <krisannbacon@utah.gov>
DATE: 04/08/2022 07:25

Good morning,

Yesterday Marc and I met to discuss the ask of utilizing its comprehensive list of policies that are family friendly to develop a proposal for a package of policies. Yesterday afternoon Tracy informed me that the plan is for her and some of the senior leadership to meet with the LG on 8/15 (Tracy is that right?) to review the list so the timeline for getting this done is a bit more accelerated than I thought. Marc and I had discussed having a draft ready in a few weeks.

Tracy you also mentioned we need to touch base and understand what the LG's Office is working on. I'm looking for a time tomorrow, would 3-3:30 work for everyone or maybe 4:30-5:30? I can't see everyone's calendars.

I was planning on creating a templated document for us to work on together (I'll do that today) based on an outline we brainstormed yesterday. Here's the outline, would love feedback:

Thinking about families throughout the continuum starting with pregnancy and working through the family timeline. Each broader theme will have a desired result attached and the following elements:

1. What is the desired result?
2. What currently exists?
3. What needs to be fixed? What barriers exist? What policies need to change?
4. Statistical data

The broader themes:

1. Preventing unwanted pregnancies
2. Improving access to efficient adoption services (Marc I added this to the list I don't think we discussed yesterday)
3. Supporting pregnant women
4. Increasing economic supports for families
5. Increasing access to parenting support for families

Within each of the broader themes we'd focus on 1-2 policy recommendations, here's some examples we brainstormed yesterday (there are a lot of other areas we can focus on but these are some ideas):

1. Preventing unwanted pregnancies
    1. Focus on contraceptive access
        1. Understanding and removing barriers with regards to the standing order (Marc and I looked briefly at the standing order requirements and it seems obvious now why pharmacies don't want to engage but I'll do a bit more digging, turns out the standing order requires quite a bit of monitoring and evaluation from pharmacists including administering a self-assessment tool, and continued reviews at 3 months, 12 months, 24 months, 36 months, and 48 months). Here's a link to the standing order https://health.utah.gov/wp-content/uploads/ContraceptiveStandingOrderFINAL.pdf and here's a link to the approved self-assessment tool from DOPL https://dopl.utah.gov/pharm/hormonal_contraception_questionnaire.pdf. Apparently pharmacies can create their own but it has to be approved by us and I'm not sure what the mechanism/process in place is for pharmacies to get that approval?
2. Improving access to efficient adoption services
    1. Need to do more research on this issue but possibly providing more financial assistance

[redacted]

3. Supporting pregnant women
    1. Extending Medicaid postpartum coverage to pregnant women between 138% and 200% FPL to 12 months (this has been proposed in the past and there's lots of information out there from us and other states, I suggested we bring in Nate and Jen to talk this through)
4. Increasing economic supports for families
    1. Increasing incentives for child support compliance
    2. There are a lot of other policies to review and choose from
5. Increasing access to parenting support for families
    1. Expanding outreach and education on programs that exist such as parenting classes, home visiting opportunities, early childhood development programs, etc. . .

The Medicaid travel provision is an interesting requirement since Medicaid abortion coverage is so limited. I don't see an issue for us on this one because our exceptions are similar to the Hyde Amendment exceptions.

Thanks,

Nate

I was thinking the same thing, interesting proposal, doesn't our trigger law still allow for the Hyde Amendment exceptions anyway? I think our trigger law requires 'verification' on rape and incest meaning the person would've had to file a police report so that'll be an interesting thing to figure out if it goes into effect. Has there been guidance on that piece from CMS or the White House?

At a high level, we believe the Hyde Amendment language preempts the trigger law language and so Medicaid is planning to stay with its current coverage requirements.

Hi Nate and Brian,
Thank you so much for joining me in the presentation for extending care for more Utah women. I'm attaching a thorough overview of the status of Medicaid coverage for pregnancy coverage. On p 18 of the doc is the reference to the 4 states that have created a separate enrollment period because of pregnancy. This paper from CO discussed their experience with churn:
https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/abs/pii/S1049386722000780
That experience is mirrored by reports from several other states in the second attachment.
I would also like your thoughts about funding this through the Medicaid expansion fund. I certainly would have no objection to appropriating this through the General fund. It seems that the decision to approve these two bills should not hinge on the funding mechanism. However, I would want to present it in the way that would allow for greater chance of passage.
I look forward to our ongoing collaboration.

I received this response from my contact at Krogers, I can tell you that I've known people personally who've contacted some Smith's in the past year and were told that they must have an initial prescription first before Smith's will refill. It sounds like that might be due to some internal communication issues.

Hi Krisann,

Here you go:

1. Does Krogers participate in this program? Yes
2. Why or why not? We recognize the importance of access to contraception for our patients. Our general stance is to support our pharmacists in practicing at the top of their license wherever possible and appreciate the fact that pharmacists are allowed in the state of Utah to provide this service.
3. Are there barriers that the State could help address? There are a few significant barriers to our ability to offer this service. I am not sure how the state may be able to assist, but the main barriers are listed here:
    a. Payment for the consultation. Patients must pay for the service out of pocket since insurance companies don't recognize pharmacists as providers. This particularly becomes an issue when pharmacists assess a patient and identify that the patient must be referred. Then either the pharmacist has provided the service up to that point for free or the patient pays for the assessment only to leave without a prescription, having to go to a different provider.
    b. Due to other priorities, our organization has not really promoted the service through our normal marketing channels. To be honest, pharmacy usually gets limited marketing support in general and it's usually focused on more established services like vaccines. We rely on word of mouth to spread awareness that the service is available, which is not very effective.
    c. As with many industries and especially in healthcare, our pharmacies are suffering from staffing shortages and high turnover. Mostly pharmacy technicians but also pharmacists. This, coupled with the COVID vaccine demand, and looking ahead to flu vaccine season/COVID boosters, capacity is a concern.

I hope this helps. I'd be happy to discuss further.
Thanks,
Jaime

Hello Krisann,
Thank you for the outreach. We are live with pharmacist based prescribing of hormonal contraceptives in many states and our teams have a roadmap to expansion. We are currently not live in Utah since we cannot leverage our universal digital tool for the patient assessment.

Other states permit our clinical teams to create a digital assessment form that incorporates all of the questions that would be part of the state form and transfers them over to our digital tool. We understand that this action is not allowed in Utah, which has impeded our ability to provide this service.

I am out-of-office this week as well, and I would happily wish to connect and see if we can rectify this matter upon my return.
Sincerely,
John

Hi Marc, my understanding is that since the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund is a payor of last resort, primary instances when cost-sharing occurs in Utah:

1. Medicaid / Medicare (as a result of job loss / insurance due to the injury)
2. Out-of-pocket

Typically participants of the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund exhaust all cost-sharing options prior to application for the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Funds. As a result, the data elements weren't historically tracked so it is difficult to determine the net impact of these cost-sharing efforts. If the subcommittee intends to look at the impact of the cost-sharing efforts over time, rather than the one-year provided, the program will study the issue more.

Cc'ed Teresa and Traci for additional input.

Hi Krisann,

Here you go:

1. Does Krogers participate in this program? Yes
2. Why or why not? We recognize the importance of access to contraception for our patients. Our general stance is to support our pharmacists in practicing at the top of their license wherever possible and appreciate the fact that pharmacists are allowed in the state of Utah to provide this service.
3. Are there barriers that the State could help address? There are a few significant barriers to our ability to offer this service. I am not sure how the state may be able to assist, but the main barriers are listed here:
    a. Payment for the consultation. Patients must pay for the service out of pocket since insurance companies don't recognize pharmacists as providers. This particularly becomes an issue when pharmacists assess a patient and identify that the patient must be referred. Then either the pharmacist has provided the service up to that point for free or the patient pays for the assessment only to leave without a prescription, having to go to a different provider.
    b. Due to other priorities, our organization has not really promoted the service through our normal marketing channels. To be honest, pharmacy usually gets limited marketing support in general and it's usually focused on more established services like vaccines. We rely on word of mouth to spread awareness that the service is available, which is not very effective.
    c. As with many industries and especially in healthcare, our pharmacies are suffering from staffing shortages and high turnover. Mostly pharmacy technicians but also pharmacists. This, coupled with the COVID vaccine demand, and looking ahead to flu vaccine season/COVID boosters, capacity is a concern.

I hope this helps. I'd be happy to discuss further.
Thanks,
Jaime

Hi Jaime,

I hope all is well with you, I am working on a project for Department leadership unrelated to COVID and I'm wondering if you could provide me some insight for Krogers regarding a particular issue.

It's related to the Utah Statewide Standing Order Pharmacist Dispensing of Hormonal Contraception and Utah Hormonal Contraceptive Self-Screening Questionnaire. I have just a few questions I'm hoping you can respond to:

1. Does Krogers participate in this program?
2. Why or why not?
3. Are there barriers that the State could help address?

Any other information or perspectives you have related to this issue would be greatly appreciated! I'm hoping you can respond by early next week if possible?

Hello Nate,

[redacted]

thanks for passing along the question.
A couple of items:
1. Medicaid does not reimburse for pharmacist consultative services.
2. Medicaid does reimburse for MTM (medication therapy management) services as of July 2022. A pharmacist could do an MTM consult on an individual receiving OCP's and be reimbursed for a consult.
3. As part of HB178 where pharmacists could consult (no reimbursement) and prescribe with HB178, there are 3 pharmacists registered with Medicaid as providers now.

Hope this helps. I can supply more info if needed.
Thanks

Hi Marc, my understanding is that since the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund is a payor of last resort, primary instances when cost-sharing occurs in Utah:

1. Medicaid / Medicare (as a result of job loss / insurance due to the injury)

Typically participants of the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund exhaust all cost-sharing options prior to application for the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Funds. DATE: 08/08/2022 17:30

Taking responses from Janae and Anna (as well as IM's) I've put together the following proposed response. OFO has typically taken the lead on responses to LFA Staff so perhaps this is a bit more pointed than a normal response (especially the last paragraph), so you all might want to weigh in on this before we send our official response back...

It is the Department's understanding that cost sharing means:

- "The share of costs covered by your insurance that you pay out of your own pocket. This term generally includes deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments, or similar charges, but it doesn't include premiums, balance billing amounts for non-network providers, or the cost of non-covered services." (Glossary, HealthCare.gov)

With that understanding, because the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund in Utah is a payor of last resort, we view the State as already participating in a cost-sharing program. Participants of the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund exhaust all cost-sharing options prior to application for the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Funds. As a result, the data elements (unsure what we are referring to here) weren't historically tracked so it is difficult to determine the net impact of these cost-sharing efforts. If the subcommittee intends to look at the impact of the cost-sharing efforts over time, rather than the one-year provided, we will study the issue more. We have built in more measures to look at this over time, so a few years of collecting data would be helpful.

To make sure we are on the same page, could you share with us what the legislature considers to be Cost Sharing? It will be helpful for us all to work from the same definition and understanding of what would or would not constitute cost-sharing under this specific circumstance (SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund). Is the legislature suggesting that the account be changed to start allowing people who can pay to have preference to the Fund as a potential means of allowing more insured persons to receive rehabilitation services? What effect would this have on those who are least able to pay into the system? Would this not preclude many of them from receiving services as more funds are used to help those with some ability to pay (i.e "cost sharing")?

Overall, the response looks good to me. Adding how we are defining cost-sharing is very helpful context and, hindsight being 20/20, would have been good to add to the report, itself.

I do have a couple of minor edits & thoughts on the last paragraph for your thoughts:

I do have a couple of minor edits & thoughts on the last paragraph for your thoughts:

Taking responses from Janae and Anna (as well as IM's) I've put together the following proposed response. OFO has typically taken the lead on responses to LFA Staff so perhaps this is a bit more pointed than a normal response (especially the last paragraph), so you all might want to weigh in on this before we send our official response back...

It is the Department's understanding that cost sharing means:

- "The share of costs covered by your insurance that you pay out of your own pocket. This term generally includes deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments, or similar charges, but it doesn't include premiums, balance billing amounts for non-network providers, or the cost of non-covered services." (Glossary, HealthCare.gov)

With that understanding, because the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund in Utah is a payor of last resort, we view the State as already participating in a cost-sharing program. Participants of the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund exhaust all cost-sharing options prior to application for the SCI / BI Rehabilitation Funds. As a result, the data elements (unsure what we are referring to here) weren't historically tracked so it is difficult to determine the net impact of these cost-sharing efforts. If the subcommittee intends to look at the impact of the cost-sharing efforts over time, rather than the one-year provided, we will study the issue more. We have built in more measures to look at this over time, so a few years of collecting data would be helpful.

To make sure we are on the same page, could you share with us what the legislature considers to be Cost Sharing? It will be helpful for us all to work from the same definition and understanding of what would or would not constitute cost-sharing under this specific circumstance (SCI / BI Rehabilitation Fund). Is the legislature suggesting that the account be changed to start allowing people who can pay to have preference to the Fund as a potential means of allowing more insured persons to receive rehabilitation services? What effect would this have on those who are least able to pay into the system? Would this not preclude many of them from receiving services as more funds are used to help those with some ability to pay (i.e "cost sharing")?

Hi Krisann,
We do not prescribe birth control at any of our locations in Utah. The main reason for this is that we do not currently have the capability to do medical billing for payment. I believe we are doing a pilot project on it in Idaho in order to determine if it makes sense for us to invest in new software to bill for these services. However, we do not have plans to extend the pilot anytime in the near future.

Hi Sally,

I hope all is well with you, I am working on a project for Department leadership unrelated to COVID and I'm wondering if you could provide me some insight for Walgreens regarding a particular issue.

It's related to the Utah Statewide Standing Order Pharmacist Dispensing of Hormonal Contraception and Utah Hormonal Contraceptive Self-Screening Questionnaire. I have just a few questions I'm hoping you can respond to:

1. Does Walgreens participate in this program?
2. Why or why not?

Hi Nate- I'm not familiar with the CVS tool however the issue that does come to mind is whether the tool is available to minors such that it would provide contraceptives to minors without parent consent. See Utah Code 76-7-322. Public funds for provision of contraceptive or abortion services restricted.

Hello Krisann,
Thank you for the outreach. We are live with pharmacist based prescribing of hormonal contraceptives in many states and our teams have a roadmap to expansion. We are currently not live in Utah since we cannot leverage our universal digital tool for the patient assessment.

Other states permit our clinical teams to create a digital assessment form that incorporates all of the questions that would be part of the state form and transfers them over to our digital tool. We understand that this action is not allowed in Utah, which has impeded our ability to provide this service.

I am out-of-office this week as well, and I would happily wish to connect and see if we can rectify this matter upon my return.
Sincerely,
John

Hi Theresa,

I don't know if we've met yet, I've worked with Larry in the past related to COVID-19. I hope all is well with you, I am working on a project for Department leadership unrelated to COVID and I'm wondering if you could provide me some insight for CVS regarding a particular issue.

It's related to the Utah Statewide Standing Order Pharmacist Dispensing of Hormonal Contraception and Utah Hormonal Contraceptive Self-Screening Questionnaire. I have just a few questions I'm hoping you can respond to:

1. Does CVS participate in this program?
2. Why or why not?
3. Are there barriers that the State could help address?

Any other information or perspectives you have related to this issue would be greatly appreciated! I'm hoping you can respond by early next week if possible?

Hi Marc,
I realized I responded to Russell directly on the AP email but thought I'd share my responses with you and others on this one so you could weigh in on my response, if desired.

1. 2022 had 1,609 Medicaid clients taking both opioids and benzodiazepines. Statistically speaking how many of these clients will have adverse effects (hospital visits and death)?

Response:
Below are two citations which address rates of harm/death from concurrent opioid and benzodiazepine use.
This data is presented in addition to the statistic presented in the report that showed the death rate from combined opioid and benzodiazepine use was 10 times higher than that with opioids alone. (See: https://academic.oup.com/painmedicine/article/17/1/85/1752837

-The CDC published a report on opioid/benzo hospitalizations and death. From this, "Benzodiazepines were involved in 6,982 (16.8%) of 41,496 overdose deaths during January 2019 - June 2020 reported by 23 states, with opioids involved in 6,384 (91.4%) benzodiazepine deaths."
See: https://www.cdc.gov/mmwr/volumes/70/wr/mm7034a2.htm#:~:text=Benzodiazepines%20were%20involved%20in%206%2C982,6%2C384%20%2891.4

-A study published in the British Medical Journal found the following among 315,428 privately insured people aged 18-64 who filled at least one prescription for an opioid. Findings: Compared with opioid users who did not use benzodiazepines, concurrent use of both drugs was associated w/ an increased risk of ER visit or inpatient admission for opioid overdose...elimination of concurrent opioid and benzodiazepine use would reduce ER visits and inpatient admissions for opioid overdose by 15%. (see: https://www.bmj.com/content/356/bmj.j760)

2. Does the Department feel like there is nothing more that should be done to reduce the concurrent prescribing rate of opioids and benzodiazepines?

Response: The Department does believe that state mandated prescriber requirements when co-prescribing opioids and benzodiazepines would have a great impact, statewide, on reducing rates of opioid and benzodiazepine related harm. These provider requirements may include: checking the controlled substance database, documentation of counseling for risks of respiratory depression, prescribing of naloxone, coordinating with other prescribers, and documented attempts at deescalation / deprescribing of either the opioid or benzodiazepine. These are not Medicaid driven recommendations, but must be implemented statewide to change the provider responsibility when prescribing and managing individuals who receive both opioids and benzodiazepines.

3. Some of the text in the table on page four is cut off as shown in the picture below. Could you please update and resubmit? See the updated attached report.

Thank you Jen! I have a follow up question based on my conversation with Walgreens, when billing MTM would the pharmacy have to have the ability for medical billing through a claim or can they bill that through normal pharmacy billing procedures? That has also been cited as a barrier by two of the major chain pharmacies.

Hi Krisann,

Here you go:

1. Does Krogers participate in this program? Yes
2. Why or why not? We recognize the importance of access to contraception for our patients. Our general stance is to support our pharmacists in practicing at the top of their license wherever possible and appreciate the fact that pharmacists are allowed in the state of Utah to provide this service.
3. Are there barriers that the State could help address? There are a few significant barriers to our ability to offer this service. I am not sure how the state may be able to assist, but the main barriers are listed here:
    a. Payment for the consultation. Patients must pay for the service out of pocket since insurance companies don't recognize pharmacists as providers. This particularly becomes an issue when pharmacists assess a patient and identify that the patient must be referred. Then either the pharmacist has provided the service up to that point for free or the patient pays for the assessment only to leave without a prescription, having to go to a different provider.
    b. Due to other priorities, our organization has not really promoted the service through our normal marketing channels. To be honest, pharmacy usually gets limited marketing support in general and it's usually focused on more established services like vaccines. We rely on word of mouth to spread awareness that the service is available, which is not very effective.
    c. As with many industries and especially in healthcare, our pharmacies are suffering from staffing shortages and high turnover. Mostly pharmacy technicians but also pharmacists. This, coupled with the COVID vaccine demand, and looking ahead to flu vaccine season/COVID boosters, capacity is a concern.

I hope this helps. I'd be happy to discuss further.
Thanks,
Jaime

A Grassroots Leader's Vision for the Future Community Health Workforce

Community Health Workers (CHWs) have played an integral role in educating, connecting, and assisting vulnerable individuals throughout the COVID-19 pandemic.

ASTHO spoke with Denise Ortega-Smith, executive director of the National Association of Community Health Workers, about the critical work of CHWs. She discusses their roles in marginalized communities, and how public health can partner with and support CHWs.

A Not-So-Sleepy Summer: Q&A with ASTHO Federal Government Affairs

The Congressional summer session has come to a close, and several key issues are left hanging on the table. Whether public health will receive supplemental funding for the monkeypox and COVID-19 responses remains uncertain, and the FY23 appropriations bill faces a long road before it can be passed.

Sounds good, thanks! Just for context when we met last night (you might be able to tell from the document) we decided we should have three approaches, 1) An all-in comprehensive cover everything 2) A more moderate but still aggressive approach (this includes all the items that Paul, Marc, and I reviewed and think could be politically/legislatively viable), and 3) A moderate approach that includes a subset of option 2 but likely far less expensive.

Expanded access to contraception has proved to be a very deep rabbit hole, as described in the document despite past legislative efforts to encourage easier access through pharmacies there are a lot of barriers we've identified, some of which may be easier fixes such as the bureaucratic requirements the State has imposed. However, we will need our SMEs like Jen S., Dr. Hofmann, folks at DOPL, and others to weigh in on what the rationale was/is behind all of them.

The reimbursement issue for pharmacies/pharmacists for the evaluation and monitoring pieces are a big issue and not easily solved. It's not only that many insurers don't cover the evaluation cost (although Medicaid will for pharmacist prescriptions) it's also that pharmacy billing systems are not set up to bill for medical claims (which these are) and there seems to be a serious lack of understanding and awareness of these options overall. We're not sure what the fixes are or should be, and evaluating the total cost to the state may be tricky since I doubt we'll directly pay pharmacies to update their systems, although we could look at something like a tax incentive to encourage pharmacies to participate and update their billing systems. At any rate, we definitely need more time to study this, consult with the SMEs, and come up with solid proposals.

Thank you!

This Week in Health Policy News

On Friday, the House returned to Washington from its August recess andpassed the Inflation Reduction Act, sending the measure to President Biden's desk. While the Congressional Budget Office said it "expects that it will take a few weeks to fully analyze and estimate the act's budgetary effects," this week it did provide additional information with respect to the budgetary effects of the legislation. After the vote, the House resumed its recess until the beginning of September.

Health Care Policy and Politics

On August 5, CMS released new information as states prepare for when the COVID-19 Public Health Emergency ends, specifically outlining the approved section 1902 (e)(14) waiver flexibilities from CMS. These waiver flexibilities support states' efforts to pursue strategies that facilitate the renewal process and ensure due process protections during the unwinding period following the end of the COVID-19 public health emergency. Staffing shortages and high-volume eligibility caseload work could cause many states to face substantial operational and system challenges.

On September 29, the National Biodefense Science Board (NBSB) will hold a public meeting. NBSB is responsible for advising HHS on present and upcoming chemical, biological, radiological, and nuclear threats. It also guides HHS in its disaster preparedness and response planning and work, including related to COVID-19. The meeting will be held virtually, and registration will be available on the Assistant Secretary for Preparedness and Response's website two weeks prior to the event.

On August 8, HRSA announced nearly $60 million of investments to grow the health care workforce and increase access to quality health care in rural communities. The funding includes $46 million from the American Rescue Plan. The investments will be dispersed by four programs within HRSA and support the following initiatives:

- The Rural Public Health Workforce Training Network Program is awarding nearly $46 million to 31 community-based organizations to expand public health clinical and operational capacity through workforce development. Additionally, a technical assistance provider was awarded $500,000 to develop formal training and certification programs.
- The Rural Residency Planning and Development Program is awarding $9.7 million to 13 organizations to establish new rural residency programs in rural communities to train resident physicians in rural clinical settings.

- The Small Health Care Provider Quality Improvement Program is awarding $2.9 million to 15 community-based organizations to improve patient health outcomes and quality and delivery of care throughout rural counties.
- The Rural Veterans Health Access Program is awarding nearly $1 million to 3 organizations to improve access to health care services for veterans living in rural areas. This program is a collaboration between the Federal Office of Rural Health Policy and the Veterans Health Administration to strengthen partnerships between rural health providers and the VA system.

Innovation and Technology

Health IT vendor Cerner struck a settlement deal with the U.S Department of Labor to resolve claims that the company engaged in discriminatory hiring practices against qualified Black and Asian job applicants. Cerner agreed to pay $1.86 million in back pay and interest as part of a deal with federal regulators. Federal regulators claim they found statistically significant differences in the hiring rates for Black and Asian applicants compared to similarly qualified White applicants in their review of Cerner's hiring practices. Kaiser Permanente reported a thinned operating margin and nearly $1.3 billion net loss during its second quarter. The massive integrated nonprofit health system notched $23.47 billion in total operating revenues, representing a minor 0.9% dip from the second quarter of last year. A recent Kaufman Hall industrywide report also showed only marginal relief from expenses and middle non-COVID volume recovery through June. A Fitch Ratings update on nonprofit hospitals from mid-July warned that these challenges and broader inflation pressures will likely weigh down the sector through 2022. (Article here)

Health solutions firm, Availty, will acquire Diameter Health, a clinical data organization. Executives from both organizations highlight the ability to integrate and share data effectively between providers as the impetus for the deal. Availty will combine its real-time data sharing capabilities with the Diameter's data cleaning technology, which the organization refers to as "Upcycling". Both organizations cite the ability for the improved platform to transform the provision of value-based care. (Article here)

Intel's investment arm has made a $20 million investment into Biofourmis, a virtual care management company. The funds are an extension of Biofourmis' Series D capital raise which was announced earlier this year and brought the organization to unicorn status. This represents Intel's first digital health investment of the year following similar investments into AI medial imaging and surgical data analytics companies in the 2020 and 2021 respectively. Biofourmis intends to use the funding to expand its presence in the hospital system market in addition to expending on its current biomarkers and analytics services. (Article here)

A recent report from IBM found that data breaches for healthcare systems could cost in excess of $10 million, leading all other industry sectors. This figure is an increase of nearly $1 million from the previous year and is partly attributable to the increasing interconnectedness of healthcare technology. Healthcare has been one of the hardest hit industries in terms of data breaches and has seen the cost of such incidents increase by more than 41% since 2020. (Report here)

Coverage & Incentives

A new report from Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and Urban Institute Report analyzes CMS Marketplace 2022 enrollment data and HHS 2019 Medicaid enrollment data to demonstrate that if the 12 remaining non-expansion states implemented Medicaid expansion enrollment would increase by 3.7 million. The report details that this change may be most beneficial to Black women of reproductive age, a possible 53.7 percent drop in the uninsured rate of this group could be seen. (Article here, Report here)

Insuretech company Clover announced Monday that it's founder and CEO Vivek Garipalli will move on from his role at the end of the year. Current president and co-founder Andrew Toy will take Garipalli's place as CEO on January 1. Toy will oversee the recent growth of Clover which saw an increase in Medicare Advantage enrollment of 25% over last year and expects to enter 13 new counties in 2023. (Article here)

A new OIG report estimated that some Part D plans did not offer beneficiaries access to generic versions of hepatitis C drugs. The structure of Part D, including manufacturer rebates, may be incentivizing plans to steer customers to higher-cost drugs. The findings come as Part D plans could be in line for greater liability of drug costs under a landmark reform bill. OIG used prescription drug event data to calculate the proportion of Part D beneficiaries using the authorized generics in 2019 and 2020. In the first quarter of availability, less than 10% of Medicare patients and under 25% of Medicaid beneficiaries got the cheaper versions. (Article here)

United Healthcare is rebranding one of its fastest-growing health plan designs. Surest plans, first launched in 2016 as Bind, are available nationwide for self-funded employers and in 11 states for full insured plans. The plans offer several key features that offer employers greater visibility into the affordability of care, including no deductibles and coinsurance as well as upfront pricing. More than 150 employers use Surest at present, with more planning to sign on with the program ahead of 2023 open enrollment. (Article here)

Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan launched in partnership with Maven Clinic, will allow members to access a personalized app that guides them through the family planning process including pregnancy, postpartum and pediatrics. The goal is to address gaps in care and improve outcomes for both parents and babies. The solution is designed to serve as an extension to existing fertility and maternity benefits, offering supplemental support and education between scheduled prenatal and postpartum visits to a physician. (Article here)

Medicare Part D plans can expect to take a greater liability in 2024 for catastrophic costs under a newly passed Senate bill. The package's landmark policy to give Medicare drug price negotiating powers could help lower costs depending on what drugs the federal government chooses for negotiation. The overall impact financially for health insurers will reside in implementation of healthcare provisions in the Inflation Reduction Act. (Article here)

Payment and Delivery Transformation

A study assessing the impact of the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services' (CMS's) End-Stage Renal Disease Treatment Choices (ETC) model found that participating facilities differed from non-participating facilities along patient demographic and facility ownership lines. Participating facilities also had a lower prevalence of living-donor transplantation, transplantation wait-listing, and peritoneal dialysis. The ETC model is mandatory for facilities located in selected geographies comprising about 30% of hospital referral regions. The authors express concern that this geographic randomization, rather than a patient- or facility-level randomization, will do a poorer job at creating comparable control and treatment groups and might lead CMS to underestimate the model's impact. (Article here)

In light of a recent CMS proposed rule relating to health equity and social determinants of health (SDOH), hospital stakeholders are increasing their efforts to incorporate SDOH into their core operations. Cal Hospital Compare, a consumer-facing hospital information collaborative, is helping advance this effort by exploring the use of geographic social needs indices and hospital patient origin information to compare and rank hospital-level social needs. Understanding that hospitals are uniquely positioned to identify and address SDOH challenges faced by their patient populations, Cal Hospital Compare expects this effort will help identify which hospital quality measures correlate with social needs, provide policy insights into SDOH assistance, recognize best practices, and develop collaborative interventions. Earlier this week, CVS Health revealed its plans to bid for home health-focused, value-based care (VBC) company Signify Health. Signify Health's focus on home-based care, along with its recent acquisition of Caravan Health, an accountable care organization with a large network of primary care practitioners, would help CVS Health achieve its aim of "establish[ing] a network of physician-led primary care centers with integrated virtual and home assets." This news comes a month after CVS Health reportedly bid for One Medical, which was recently acquired by Amazon. (Articles here and here)

As employers increasingly involve themselves more directly in managing the cost of employees' healthcare and driving health equity, patient-reported outcome measures (PROMs), which allow a provider to capture information directly from patients about their health and encourage a better understanding of the health status of an employee population, are getting attention from leading employers. These employers are encouraging their health system partners to adopt PROMs in their care delivery models by promoting the integration of patient-reported data into the electronic health record (EHR). Employers see opportunity for PROMs to 1) assess pretreatment differences, 2) strengthen patient-provider interactions, 3) allow for shared decision making, 4) demonstrate accountability for equitable health outcomes, and 5) ensure accurate representation of patients during clinical trials and research. As monkeypox cases increase across the United States, some communities are taking lessons from tracking the COVID-19 pandemic and applying it to monkeypox surveillance. A research team by the name of SCAN (Sewer Coronavirus Alert Network) comprised of scientists from universities across the United States including Stanford University, University of Michigan, and Emory University is now the leading entity in utilizing wastewater monitoring to detect monkeypox. Though California is attempting to gather wastewater data from all partners and public health agencies across the state it is not available for all regions, highlighting some shortcomings with this emerging public health tool. Last week U.S health officials announced a new strategy to stretch the supply of monkeypox vaccine by decreasing the dosage contained within each shot. While the vaccine will continue to be administered in two doses four weeks apart, the vaccine will be approximately 1/5 of the original dosage. This dose-sparing approach comes after research suggests this lowered amount is nearly as effective. Currently, there are 1.7 million Americans who are considered to be at the highest risk for contracting monkeypox, and vaccinating this group would require over 3.2 million shots. At the same time, the U.S currently only has 440,000 total doses available. (Article here)

After the 988 Suicide & Crise Lifeline launched in July, many mental health providers, researchers, and advocates celebrated. However, some individuals who had experiences with the mental health system and advocates took to social media to voice concerns. Research shows that suicide rates increase drastically in the months after people are discharged from psychiatric hospitals. Officials from 988 recognize the risks of having law enforcement involved in mental health emergencies, but they also argue that dispatching police is the last resort to ensure safety from harm. But the question remains whether calling 988 provides alternative options. The U.S. doesn't have a national, government-run mental health hotline that pledges not to call the police, though there are several alternatives that aim to decrease law enforcement involvement. Greetings, Tracy has asked me to develop a policy recommendation to increase pharmacy participation in creating access to contraception for the Lieutenant Governor and Governor. There is some urgency, need to have something in 2-3 weeks. I'm also talking to DOPL so we can get an entire workgroup put together but wanted to get this on your calendars.
Jen, You are booked all week, is this time a possibility for you? Also, Tracy mentioned the new Pharmacy Director, I'm not sure who that is, can we include them as well and anyone else you think might make sense?

Hello (sorry for the length of this but I put snippets of what I found in italics if you're interested),

So I found the project that Tracy mentioned to me today, it was called HER Salt Lake (Highly Effective Reversible Contraceptive Initiative Salt Lake), they provided free birth control to more than 7,400 people (4,400 enrolled in the longitudinal study). http://www.hersaltlake.org/

Conclusions. Early contraceptive method switching and discontinuation are frequent outcomes of contraceptive use. These changes are common even with removal of contraceptive access barriers.

They also established a Reproductive Justice Community Advisory Board (RJ CAB) to advise the University of Utah Family Planning Division regarding contraceptive research, clinical care, and advocacy. There's not much information about it on the website but there is a contact email. Seems like this would be a group to engage with? Should I reach out? http://www.hersaltlake.org/rjcab

I've talked to DOPL and scheduled a series of meetings with internal staff and with DOPL over the next week.

Also, Colorado has seen a lot of success with a free LARC (or IUD) program, but it appears it was funded in the beginning by a private donor and then bridge funding came from foundations. https://cdphe.colorado.gov/fpp/about-us/colorados-success-long-acting-reversible-contraception-larc.

Some snippets from their 2017 report are interesting and could provide somewhat of a roadmap for us:

[redacted]

In 2007, a private funder chose Colorado to invest $27 million in expanding family planning services to reduce unintended pregnancy. Colorado had a national reputation for providing such services, a strong network of Title X family planning clinics, and a demonstrated willingness to expand access and use of LARCs.

During the implementation of the Colorado Family Planning Initiative between 2009 and 2015, the long-term goal was always to find sustainable funding to continue making a positive impact on the health and well-being of Colorado women.

In 2015, CDPHE worked with family planning advocates and legislators to secure sustainable funding to continue the Colorado Family Planning Initiative. While funding legislation was unsuccessful that year, the investment in public awareness paid off. Colorado foundations stepped forward with $2.1 million in bridge funding and the momentum obtained through positive media coverage, improved collaboration and enhanced legislative relationships led to the passage of a $2.5 million increase in funding for the CDPHE Family Planning Program in 2016.

With cost and access no longer an issue, the number of LARCs inserted nearly quadrupled in the first six years, and the percentage of LARC users in Title X clinics increased from 6.4 percent to 30.5 percent.

The Colorado Family Planning Initiative helped cut unintended pregnancy rates by 40 percent among women aged 15-19 and 20 percent for women aged 20-24 between 2009 and 2014.

I think it would be good to tap into their work to see if they would be willing to share their best research and identify outcomes.

Thanks,

Some snippets from their 2017 report are interesting and could provide somewhat of a roadmap for us:

In 2007, a private funder chose Colorado to invest $27 million in expanding family planning services to reduce unintended pregnancy. Colorado had a national reputation for providing such services, a strong network of Title X family planning clinics, and a demonstrated willingness to expand access and use of LARCs.

During the implementation of the Colorado Family Planning Initiative between 2009 and 2015, the long-term goal was always to find sustainable funding to continue making a positive impact on the health and well-being of Colorado women.

In 2015, CDPHE worked with family planning advocates and legislators to secure sustainable funding to continue the Colorado Family Planning Initiative. Colorado foundations stepped forward with $2.1 million in bridge funding and the momentum obtained through positive media coverage, improved collaboration and enhanced legislative relationships led to the passage of a $2.5 million increase in funding for the CDPHE Family Planning Program in 2016.

With cost and access no longer an issue, the number of LARCs inserted nearly quadrupled in the first six years, and the percentage of LARC users in Title X clinics increased from 6.4 percent to 30.5 percent.

The Colorado Family Planning Initiative helped cut unintended pregnancy rates by 40 percent among women aged 15-19 and 20 percent for women aged 20-24 between 2009 and 2014.

HHS Approves 12-month Extension of Postpartum Medicaid and CHIP Coverage in Hawaii, Maryland, and Ohio

An estimated additional 34,000 people are now eligible for essential care for a full year after pregnancy, thanks to the American Rescue Plan and the Biden-Harris Administration's efforts to strengthen maternal health coverage.

Today, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), through the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS), approved the extension of Medicaid and Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) coverage for 12 months after pregnancy in Hawaii, Maryland, and Ohio. As a result, up to an additional 34,000 people annually – including 2,000 in Hawaii; 11,000 in Maryland; and 21,000 in Ohio – will now be eligible for Medicaid or Title XXI-funded Medicaid expansion CHIP coverage for a full year after pregnancy. With today's approval, in combination with previously approved state extensions, an estimated 318,000 Americans annually in 21 states and D.C. are eligible for 12 months of postpartum coverage. If all states adopted this option, as many as 720,000 people across the United States annually would be guaranteed Medicaid and CHIP coverage for 12 months after pregnancy.

The Biden-Harris Administration has made expanding access to high-quality, affordable health care a top priority – and because of the American Rescue Plan (ARP) and other Administration efforts, more people than ever before have health insurance coverage. Extending Medicaid postpartum coverage is an important part of these efforts.

"Thousands of families in Hawaii, Maryland, and Ohio will now be able to access the health care they need for a full year after pregnancy," said HHS Secretary Xavier Becerra. "The Biden-Harris Administration has made strengthening maternal health a top priority – and extending postpartum coverage not only improves health outcomes, but saves lives. Thanks to President Biden's American Rescue Plan, now more than 318,000 families across the country can have the peace of mind that comes with essential health care coverage. We applaud Hawaii, Maryland, and Ohio for joining our efforts to support healthy parents and babies and urge all other states to work with us in expanding access to this critical care."

The Biden-Harris Administration has championed policies to improve maternal health and equity since the President and Vice President first took office. In April 2021, President Biden issued the first-ever Presidential Proclamation marking Black Maternal Health Week. In December 2021, Vice President Harris hosted the first-ever White House Maternal Health Day of Action, where she announced important commitments to address the maternal health crisis. The Vice President also issued a Call to Action to the private and public sector to improve maternal health outcomes, where she urged states to extend Medicaid coverage for postpartum women from 2 months to 12 months and announced guidance for how states can extend their coverage. Additionally, she convened a historic meeting with Cabinet Secretaries and agency leaders to discuss the Administration's whole-of-government approach to addressing maternal mortality and morbidity. Today's announcement is part of HHS' ongoing effort to support safe pregnancies and childbirth, eliminate pregnancy-related health disparities, and improve health outcomes for parents and infants across our country.

In June, the White House released the Biden-Harris Administration's Blueprint for Addressing the Maternal Health Crisis, a whole-of-government approach to combatting maternal mortality and morbidity. For far too many people, complications related to pregnancy, childbirth, and the postpartum period can lead to devastating health outcomes and result in hundreds of deaths each year. This maternal health crisis is particularly devastating for Black and American Indian and Alaska Native people, and those in rural communities, who all experience maternal mortality and morbidity at significantly higher rates than their white and urban counterparts.

In July, CMS released its Maternity Care Action Plan to support the implementation of the Biden-Harris Administration's Blueprint, which includes postpartum coverage extensions through Medicaid and CHIP. The action plan takes a holistic and coordinated approach across CMS to improve health outcomes and reduce disparities for people during pregnancy, childbirth, and the postpartum period. CMS' implementation of the action plan will support the Biden-Harris Administration's broad vision and call to action to improve maternal health.

"Hawaii, Maryland, and Ohio now join an ever-growing cadre of state partners supporting the promise that comes with health care coverage in the critical first year after pregnancy," said CMS Administrator Chiquita Brooks-LaSure. "The American Rescue Plan forms the bedrock for this opportunity, and gives states the foundation to support the health and well-being of postpartum women and families. Now, as part of CMS' Maternity Care Action Plan, we're putting even more gears into motion to make improved maternal health a reality for communities across the country."

This extension of coverage was made possible by a new state plan authority established by the ARP, under which states may extend postpartum coverage in their Medicaid and CHIP programs from the current mandatory 60-day period to 12 months. Hawaii, Maryland, and Ohio are the latest states to extend Medicaid and CHIP coverage for 12 months following pregnancy, joining the following states that received approval under either the ARP state plan option or section 1115 demonstration authority: California; Connecticut; Florida; Illinois; Kansas; Kentucky; Louisiana; Maine; Massachusetts; Michigan; Minnesota; New Jersey; New Mexico; Oregon; South Carolina; Tennessee; Virginia; Washington state; and Washington, D.C. CMS continues to work with states that have proposed adopting the ARP option to extend postpartum coverage to 12 months.

Medicaid covers 42% of all births in the nation. This new option for states to extend Medicaid and CHIP postpartum coverage is part of the ongoing efforts of HHS and the Biden-Harris Administration to address disparities in maternal health outcomes by opening the door to postpartum care for hundreds of thousands of people.

As noted in a report published by the HHS Office of Assistant Secretary for Planning and Evaluation, one in three pregnancy-related deaths occur between one week and one year after childbirth. The postpartum period is critical for recovering from childbirth, addressing complications of delivery, ensuring mental health, managing infant care, and transitioning from obstetric to primary care.

With cost and access no longer an issue, the number of LARCs inserted nearly quadrupled in the first six years, and the percentage of LARC users in Title X clinics increased from 6.4 percent to 30.5 percent.

The Colorado Family Planning Initiative helped cut unintended pregnancy rates by 40 percent among women aged 15-19 and 20 percent for women aged 20-24 between 2009 and 2014.

So far this is the only state program I've found specific to LARCs, I will keep looking. Maryland's program covers everything but it's through a Medicaid waiver similar to what we're proposing (their program goes up to 264% of FPL). Many states have passed laws with respect to state regulated health insurers, and of course there are quite a few states that have opted for the Medicaid option at a higher FPL. I'm compiling all of that now, also some of our staff that have worked on this may know of other states that have programs.

Hello (sorry for the length of this but I put snippets of what I found in italics if you're interested),

So I found the project that Tracy mentioned to me today, it was called HER Salt Lake (Highly Effective Reversible Contraceptive Initiative Salt Lake), they provided free birth control to more than 7,400 people (4,400 enrolled in the longitudinal study). http://www.hersaltlake.org/

Conclusions. Early contraceptive method switching and discontinuation are frequent outcomes of contraceptive use. These changes are common even with removal of contraceptive access barriers.

They also established a Reproductive Justice Community Advisory Board (RJ CAB) to advise the University of Utah Family Planning Division regarding contraceptive research, clinical care, and advocacy. There's not much information about it on the website but there is a contact email. Seems like this would be a group to engage with? Should I reach out? http://www.hersaltlake.org/rjcab

I've talked to DOPL and scheduled a series of meetings with internal staff and with DOPL over the next week.

Also, Colorado has seen a lot of success with a free LARC (or IUD) program, but it appears it was funded in the beginning by a private donor and then bridge funding came from foundations. https://cdphe.colorado.gov/fpp/about-us/colorados-success-long-acting-reversible-contraception-larc.

Some snippets from their 2017 report are interesting and could provide somewhat of a roadmap for us:

In 2007, a private funder chose Colorado to invest $27 million in expanding family planning services to reduce unintended pregnancy. Colorado had a national reputation for providing such services, a strong network of Title X family planning clinics, and a demonstrated willingness to expand access and use of LARCs.

During the implementation of the Colorado Family Planning Initiative between 2009 and 2015, the long-term goal was always to find sustainable funding to continue making a positive impact on the health and well-being of Colorado women.

In 2015, CDPHE worked with family planning advocates and legislators to secure sustainable funding to continue the Colorado Family Planning Initiative. While funding legislation was unsuccessful that year, the investment in public awareness paid off. Colorado foundations stepped forward with $2.1 million in bridge funding and the momentum obtained through positive media coverage, improved collaboration and enhanced legislative relationships led to the passage of a $2.5 million increase in funding for the CDPHE Family Planning Program in 2016.

With cost and access no longer an issue, the number of LARCs inserted nearly quadrupled in the first six years, and the percentage of LARC users in Title X clinics increased from 6.4 percent to 30.5 percent.

The Colorado Family Planning Initiative helped cut unintended pregnancy rates by 40 percent among women aged 15-19 and 20 percent for women aged 20-24 between 2009 and 2014.

Hold for Discussion on Contraception Access Policy Recommendation

Wednesday Aug 17, 2022 · 5pm – 6pm (Mountain Time - Denver)

Greetings, Tracy has asked me to develop a policy recommendation to increase pharmacy participation in creating access to contraception for the Lieutenant Governor and Governor. There is some urgency, need to have something in 2-3 weeks. I'm also talking to DOPL so we can get an entire workgroup put together but wanted to get this on your calendars.
Jen, You are booked all week, is this time a possibility for you? Also, Tracy mentioned the new Pharmacy Director, I'm not sure who that is, can we include them as well and anyone else you think might make sense?

Hi Nate et al,
Over the past year, a professor at the University of Utah had reached out to USDC, asking about sterilization practices, how many people had been sterilized, etc. We worked with Katie and Emily I. on our responses.

There had been sterilizations in the past at USDC but not for many years.

The professor was asking if there should be some kind of plaque or memorial acknowledgment of the practice and its end.

As we work towards equity, diversity, inclusion and access, this is an area where people with disabilities are treated differently from the rest of the population.

We support people to date and have relationships and expect services to match people's needs and respect their rights. We have people in services who have children.

Conversations in our system include not having the right to require a person to use birth control to prevent them from becoming pregnant when they have expressed an interest in becoming pregnant.

While the article is focused on sterilization, it highlights other issues as well. Reports consistently indicate that people with disabilities have a high rate of sexual assault. Accessing support and resources in response to this can be difficult.

Jamie W. works with her team, when we receive incident reports indicating any sexual incident, to reach out to SCEs and offer to help them navigate accessing needed services and any steps needed to address the incident.

They are also developing a training for people with disabilities regarding internet safety and a second one regarding safety and online dating.

Thanks
Angie

Rarely used Utah law still allows sterilization of disabled people

By BECKY JACOBS | The Salt Lake Tribune

In Utah, it is legal to forcibly sterilize a person with a disability. And that fact may surprise some people, a University of Utah professor said.

"I think most people just assumed, 'Hey, this is something that sort of disappeared in the '30s and '40s when people stopped proudly declaring that they were eugenicists,'" said James Tabery, who has studied this topic in the Beehive State. "But it turns out that that's not the case."

The law on Utah's books today looks vastly different, but it "is sort of the descendant" of earlier versions from the state's eugenics history, Tabery said.

And while the U.S. Supreme Court recently struck down the 1973 landmark abortion case Roe v. Wade, the justices have never overturned Buck v. Bell, an earlier case that allows these sterilization laws to still be in place in Utah and 30 other states, plus Washington D.C., according to a report from the National Women's Law Center released earlier this year.

Habitat loss clouds pheasants' future

Deaths of hundreds of hatchlings raise more questions about efforts to maintain a hunting program while the wild population dwindles.

By ERIC PETERSON | Special to the Tribune

The following story was reported by The Utah Investigative Journalism Project in partnership with The Salt Lake Tribune.

Less than two weeks after the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources (DWR) received a shipment of 500 pheasant hatchlings in June, "approximately 470" of the chicks were found dead in their pens.

The dead hatchlings represented more than one-third of the pheasants the agency was planning on releasing for the fall pheasant hunts in Emery and Carbon counties.

The chicks at the arid Desert Lake Waterfowl Management Area in Emery County were young enough they needed to be fed and watered by a DWR employee. When that employee went on vacation, the agency said another employee didn't know which weekends to care for the birds.

"As a result of the miscommunication, the pheasant chicks were not fed or watered for three days, resulting in their deaths," said DWR spokeswoman Faith Jolley in an emailed statement.

Hi everyone, (Again I apologize for the length of this email, I included snippets from one study that I've put in italics and bolded some of the findings)

Tracy, I reached out to you this morning and hopefully we can find time to connect on this either this weekend or early next week. I recommend that we pull the University of Utah's Family Planning Division into our work as soon as possible, Laurie B. already had a brief discussion (no details) with Dr. Jessica Sanders (who works for Dr. Turrok) to get a little more information about where their programs are at and what they're currently working on. They are presently working on policy recommendations for the upcoming legislative session including addressing barriers to access through pharmacies. If I have your permission we will engage with them as soon as possible.

We've already spoken with Carrie Dunford through Jen, she sits on the Utah Board of Pharmacy and currently works for Intermountain. DOPL also recommended including Carrie in our conversations. We have a meeting with DOPL next week and have included Carrie.

As a side note, Intermountain is also presently engaged in developing a directed effort around providing greater access through pharmacist prescribing throughout IHC.

I wanted to give you a bit of context as to why I'm recommending pulling in the University folks.

The HER Salt Lake Initiative was expanded in 2018 and relabeled Family Planning Elevated since it sought to serve a much broader population. This group has been deeply involved in legislative efforts including expanding Medicaid family planning services, the standing order, and HB 178.

In addition to multiple studies and research papers produced through HERSL, FPE released a detailed evaluation of the successes/barriers to the expanded program that was published in the American Journal of Public Health (funding for the program has ended and was largely funded through private foundations). Their findings demonstrated the significant gap between passing a policy and uptake of that policy. Here are a few snippets from the paper I found relevant:

- Family Planning Elevated expands access to contraceptive education, training, and capacity-building for Utah health care centers and providers in an effort to improve equitable, person-centered, comprehensive contraceptive services across the state of Utah. We're helping uninsured, underinsured, and undocumented Utahns get the methods they want, without cost or distance being a barrier.
- While contraceptive initiatives have become common in recent years, details of how these interventions are executed remain underreported, which results in new initiatives "reinventing the wheel" around programmatic development and implementation.
- *FPE designed and utilized a comprehensive monitoring system to identify and respond to challenges implementing our initiative as they arose. Here, we describe the components of our monitoring system, and highlight how FPE's monitoring system successfully identified that Utah's Medicaid expansion was not widely adopted by eligible individuals. We then describe how FPE adapted to this challenge.
- *In response to low utilization of Medicaid reimbursement for family planning services at FPE CAP clinics, we increased discussions about available strategies for linking clients to Medicaid enrollment assistance. We encouraged clinics to use FPE CAP grant funds to staff in-clinic Medicaid navigators. No clinics opted for full-time onsite navigators, however, largely because of the constraints of the COVID-19 pandemic. Documentation of Medicaid applications and enrollment was not specifically part of the FPE evaluation, but based on anecdote; very few individuals successfully navigated Medicaid enrollment at the point of contraceptive care.
- *Despite FPE's efforts to remove Medicaid expansion barriers, utilization of Medicaid was lower in the FPE-eligible population than predicted. The full Medicaid application includes 20 pages of self-reported information and documentation of family assets, employment history, and earnings; engaging in this lengthy process both challenges and stigmatizes people. These burdens highlight the importance of low-barrier approaches to augment coverage with programs like FPE and Title X.
- While policy change, such as Medicaid expansion, can provide potential improvements in access to care, such policies must also include sufficient budgeting and planning for their successful implementation to truly sustain change.

If you or someone you know is struggling with thoughts of suicide, please reach out. Talk to someone you trust, call 988, or use the SafeUT app, a state-funded crisis chat and tip line, which experts say is saving the lives of at least two Utah students per day.

Help is available, and we need you here.

And if you – or someone you know – fear for your safety due to stalking or intimate partner violence, please contact the statewide domestic violence info line at 1-800-897-5465 for help, including counseling, shelter, transportation, and other services.

Honoring a mentor, friend, and leader

It was a great honor to be part of the opening of Utah Valley University's first and only public policy institute which is named for an outstanding mentor, friend, and governor, Gary R. Herbert.

The Herbert Institute will be a center where UVU students can learn about this great leader and what good government looks like.

Congratulations to President Astrid Tuminez for her visionary effort to create a place where the next generation of Utah's policy leaders can gather, hear from diverse thought leaders, and learn about what makes Utah and our country great. And to Gov. Herbert: Congratulations on this monumental achievement. Your legacy of good governance and public service will benefit UVU and the state of Utah for years to come.

Meeting with GoUtah and local business leaders

The Go Utah Board promotes and encourages economic opportunity for all Utahns and the state's commercial, financial, industrial, agricultural, and civic welfare. This week we were happy to join their board on two trips to Utah businesses.

First we met with Entrata, the leading operating system for multifamily communities worldwide. We discussed housing and growth in our state, Entrata's community service, and more. We look forward to visiting again soon!

We also toured the Rio Tinto Kennecott mine, a world-class, integrated copper mining operation and major employer in Utah. We appreciate Rio Tinto Kennecott's commitment to supporting and participating in the state's economic growth, environmental protection, and community support!

Staying focused on families and children in Utah

We're staying focused on families and children in Utah. On Wednesday, Lt. Gov. Deidre Henderson chaired the Governor's Early Childhood Commission with leaders from across state government. We're happy to report the commission is laser-focused on coordinating and streamlining support services and bolstering resources for families with young children, including with the DHHS Office of Early Childhood.

Thanks to the commission for doing such important work for the Beehive State.

We're also re-examining some of the policies and ideas that we think can make Utah an even better place to live and raise a family. Stay tuned!

PBS Utah Monthly News Conference

This week we answered questions at the PBS Monthly News Conference in a live exchange with reporters. Here are a couple topics we discussed:

Q: With school starting, how are we making schools safer?
A: The SafeUT app, while mainly used for helping with students' mental health, can also be used for school safety. It gives kids and parents the ability to anonymously connect with law enforcement to report any type of bullying or suspicious behavior. We've received close to 300 tips over the past year — some of which pointed to potential violence — so we're glad law enforcement could step in and intervene early.

Over the summer, the Utah Department of Public Safety has also been working very closely with school districts, the state superintendent, and the state school board to make sure everyone is implementing safety measures in every one of our schools. They've checked to make sure everyone is using proper training and that the schools' ingress and egress are figured out in a way that will add additional safety. We also have resource officers in many of our schools that are available to help with any issues that may arise in schools.

Q: What's your take on the energy provisions in the Inflation Reduction Act?
A: It's closer to a better approach. We have a unique opportunity in Utah to seek out an all-of-the-above energy approach that will ultimately lead to much better outcomes, and we appreciate the emphasis on both sides of the energy ledger. There's tremendous potential in Utah for solar, wind, geothermal, hydrogen, and more.

However, the most important thing that can come out of this legislation wasn't actually in the legislation — we're told part of the deal to get that legislation passed is permitting reform. The National Environmental Protection Act has unfortunately prevented, slowed down, or increased the cost of big projects that we know would have a good impact on the environment. Here in Utah we've seen NEPA slow down transmission lines. As we're trying to electrify things we do, like driving, we need to be able to transmit electricity, and in Utah it can take seven to 10 years to get these projects off the ground.

We care about the climate and about reducing emissions, but we must find ways to greatly increase the speed at which we're able to build these transmission lines.

You can watch the press conference in its entirety here.

Discussing the Utah way, conservation, and more

We also joined Washington Post reporter Jacqueline Alemany for a live discussion. Here's a look at a few of the questions we answered:

Q: How are you protecting the Great Salt Lake?
A: Historically, the state of Utah had a "use it or lose it" mentality. We changed that mentality in the state and set aside $40 million to purchase water rights from holders which allows farmers and ranchers to keep their water in the streambed. That is going to have a tremendous effect on the Great Salt Lake water levels.

We are using some great nonprofits to help us with preserving waterways and improving animal sanctuaries. We are also doing a significant amount of work to remove invasive species, which will leave more water in the stream and the Great Salt Lake.

We are also working with the federal government. There has been legislation run by members of Congress from the state of Utah with support from leadership in both parties to help us get some resources here as well as the Army Corps of Engineers who will help us understand what is happening with the lake and what we can do to save it.

Q: Why are Utahns able to compromise on such difficult issues?
A: Utahns are great at this. There are so many areas where we are not that far apart, and either side being willing to compromise a little bit would solve 90% of our problems and build bonds that bring Republicans and Democrats together.

Q: How are you addressing systemic issues that are tied in to abortion care?
A: One is trying to prevent unwanted pregnancies as much as possible. Access to contraception is one area that we can do more.

Supporting mothers, especially single mothers, who are living in poverty through access to child care and making health care more available is another aspect we are looking at as a state.

In addition, we are looking at ways to hold men more accountable. We recently passed a policy change that prohibited the procurement of hunting and fishing licenses for those men who are behind in their child support payments and we have seen that be successful.

I am hoping we have several policy proposals passed in the Legislature that will show that we do care about all life — life in the womb but especially life after birth and the women who are far too often bearing the responsibility of caring for these children.

Watch the discussion here.

Addressing drought in the West

We're continuing to share ways in which the state is working to conserve water and plan for a drier future. This week, we're talking about cross-state collaboration.

One-third of Utahns rely on the Colorado River for drinking water, and the river is a major contributor to the state's $189 billion economy. When it comes to resources like the Colorado River, Utah must work with neighboring states to preserve and protect water.

This is especially urgent given that far more Colorado River water is being used, especially by the Lower Basin states, than is available due to the current drought and climate change impacts. Recent estimates based on last year's use show the Lower Basin and Mexico are using about 10 million acre-feet, the Upper Basin states are using about 3.5 million acre-feet and the available flow is only around 6.3 million acre-feet.

We're all going to have to cut back. But Lower Basin states use more than twice the water than Upper Basin states, so it makes sense that the greatest cuts should be shouldered by the Lower Basin.

We support long-term reductions in use over short-term fixes if we are truly going to sustain the system. Utah, along with the other Upper Basin states, will continue to do our part to conserve and bring solutions to the table.

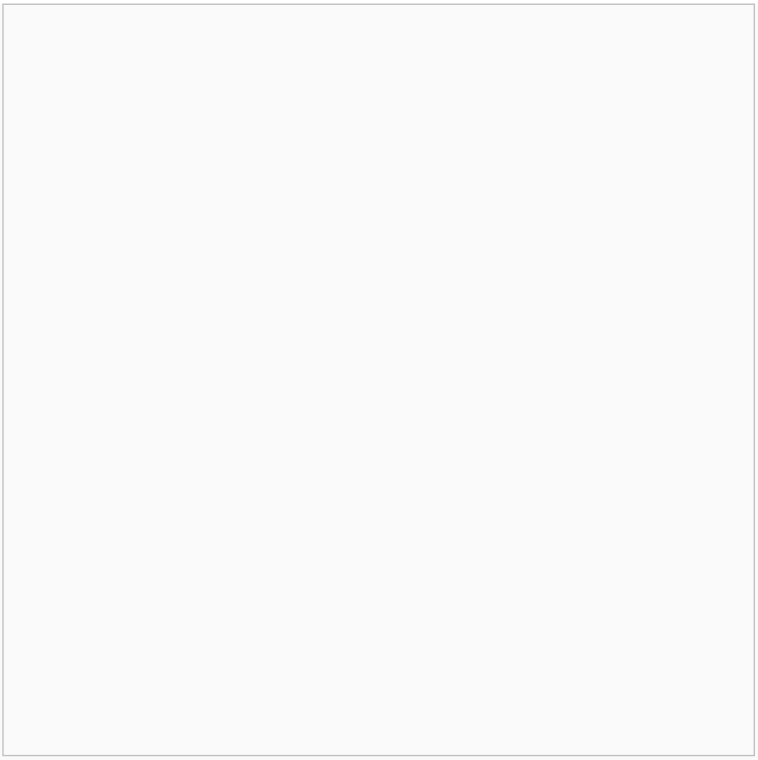
Read more about how we're addressing drought in the West here.

Closing a chapter in Utah history

For 71 years, the Draper prison served the people of Utah as a facility focused on keeping us safe. But over the years, we developed better ways to secure those who were paying their debt to society while at the same time teaching them to rebuild their lives and find a productive future on the outside. The transfer to the new State Correctional Facility in Salt Lake will fulfill this new mission more fully.

This week we were able to recognize those who made the transfer of 2,464 incarcerated individuals possible. We were also able to honor Gov. Gary Herbert for his initiation and support for the prison movement from day one.

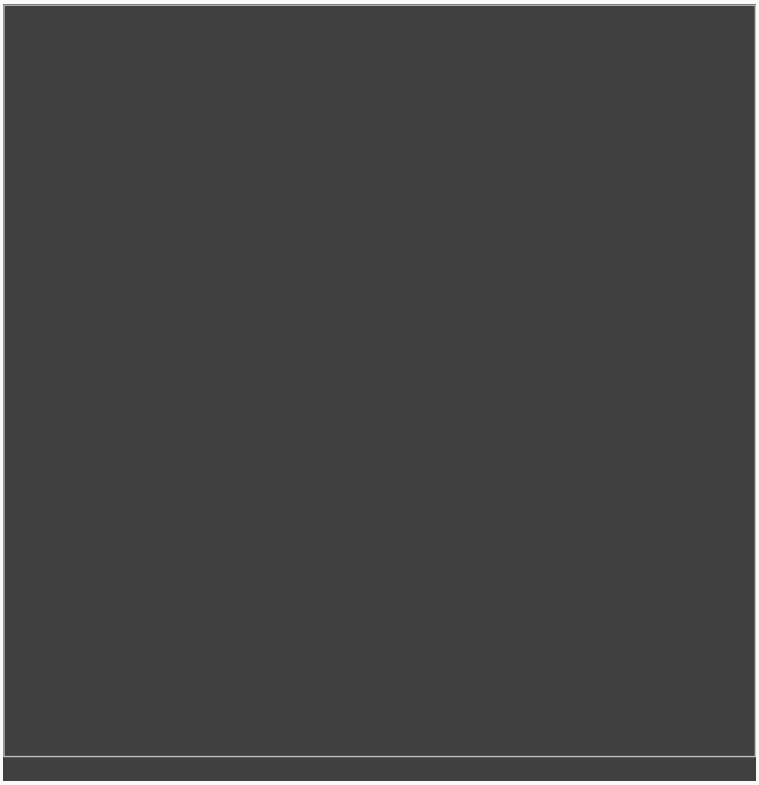
The Draper Prison Chapel will be preserved in recognition of its significance in the lives of many Utahns. As we close this chapter, we acknowledge the former Draper Prison and look forward to the future.



How to visit rock imagery sites safely

Rock imagery sites in Utah preserve important messages of the past. Familiar symbols etched into colorful rock formations communicate messages from early Native Americans intended for their posterity.

These tips will help you appreciate rock imagery locations respectfully and in the interest of preservation.



Spotlighting Utah's 'Spirit of Service'

In our inaugural Governor's Spirit of Service Award Ceremony, we recently recognized the outstanding service that Utahns are doing throughout the state. Each week, we'll highlight one of these unsung heroes. This week, we're highlighting the Ruff Haven Crisis Sheltering Center.

Ruff Haven Crisis Sheltering Center works to prevent individuals from having to surrender their pets by providing shelter when someone is experiencing a crisis, temporary hardships, medical emergencies and more.

Read more about Ruff Haven Crisis Sheltering Center and the other honorees here.

I know you all might not have time but this video presentation really demonstrates how active this group is in lobbying the legislature, it seems they have a very mature lobbying effort keeping in mind the rules of engagement as a quasi-state agency with active engagement with their General Counsel's Office and their Office of Government Affairs. It's about 53 minutes but if you do have any time it's worth the watch, I've already taken notes on it but thought I would share.

Hi everyone, (Again I apologize for the length of this email, I included snippets from one study that I've put in italics and bolded some of the findings)

Tracy, I reached out to you this morning and hopefully we can find time to connect on this either this weekend or early next week. I recommend that we pull the University of Utah's Family Planning Division into our work as soon as possible, Laurie B. already had a brief discussion (no details) with Dr. Jessica Sanders (who works for Dr. Turrok) to get a little more information about where their programs are at and what they're currently working on. They are presently working on policy recommendations for the upcoming legislative session including addressing barriers to access through pharmacies. If I have your permission we will engage with them as soon as possible.

We've already spoken with Carrie Dunford through Jen, she sits on the Utah Board of Pharmacy and currently works for Intermountain. DOPL also recommended including Carrie in our conversations. We have a meeting with DOPL next week and have included Carrie.

As a side note, Intermountain is also presently engaged in developing a directed effort around providing greater access through pharmacist prescribing throughout IHC.

I wanted to give you a bit of context as to why I'm recommending pulling in the University folks.

The HER Salt Lake Initiative was expanded in 2018 and relabeled Family Planning Elevated since it sought to serve a much broader population. This group has been deeply involved in legislative efforts including expanding Medicaid family planning services, the standing order, and HB 178.

In addition to multiple studies and research papers produced through HERSL, FPE released a detailed evaluation of the successes/barriers to the expanded program that was published in the American Journal of Public Health (funding for the program has ended and was largely funded through private foundations). Their findings demonstrated the significant gap between passing a policy and uptake of that policy. Here are a few snippets from the paper I found relevant:

- Family Planning Elevated expands access to contraceptive education, training, and capacity-building for Utah health care centers and providers in an effort to improve equitable, person-centered, comprehensive contraceptive services across the state of Utah. We're helping uninsured, underinsured, and undocumented Utahns get the methods they want, without cost or distance being a barrier.
- While contraceptive initiatives have become common in recent years, details of how these interventions are executed remain underreported, which results in new initiatives "reinventing the wheel" around programmatic development and implementation.
- FPE designed and utilized a comprehensive monitoring system to identify and respond to challenges implementing our initiative as they arose. Here, we describe the components of our monitoring system, and highlight how FPE's monitoring system successfully identified that Utah's Medicaid expansion was not widely adopted by eligible individuals. We then describe how FPE adapted to this challenge.
- In response to low utilization of Medicaid reimbursement for family planning services at FPE CAP clinics, we increased discussions about available strategies for linking clients to Medicaid enrollment assistance. We encouraged clinics to use FPE CAP grant funds to staff in-clinic Medicaid navigators. No clinics opted for full-time onsite navigators, however, largely because of the constraints of the COVID-19 pandemic. Documentation of Medicaid applications and enrollment was not specifically part of the FPE evaluation, but based on anecdote; very few individuals successfully navigated Medicaid enrollment at the point of contraceptive care.
- Despite FPE's efforts to remove Medicaid expansion barriers, utilization of Medicaid was lower in the FPE-eligible population than predicted. The full Medicaid application includes 20 pages of self-reported information and documentation of family assets, employment history, and earnings; engaging in this lengthy process both challenges and stigmatizes people. These burdens highlight the importance of low-barrier approaches to augment coverage with programs like FPE and Title X.
- While policy change, such as Medicaid expansion, can provide potential improvements in access to care, such policies must also include sufficient budgeting and planning for their successful implementation to truly sustain change.

This Week in Health Policy News

On August 14, HHS did not announce that the COVID-19 Public Health Emergency (PHE) would be ending, thus implicitly signaling that the PHE will continue past October 13 and into 2023. HHS has repeatedly promised to notify states at least 60 days before the end of the PHE. The ending of the PHE will signal the beginning of a year-long unwinding of different protections and policies that were put in place at the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Health Care Policy and Politics

On August 16, the FDA issued a final rule to make available over-the-counter certain air-conduction hearing aids intended for people 18 years of age and older who have perceived mild to moderate hearing impairment. Beginning in mid-October, consumers will be able purchase these over-the-counter (OTC) hearing aids directly from stores or online retailers without the need for a medical exam, prescription, or fitting adjustment by an audiologist. The FDA projects that 29 million Americans could benefit from hearing aid use, while also predicting that OTC availability could mean nearly $3,000 in savings per pair. Furthermore, the final rule amends existing rules that apply to prescription hearing aids for consistency with the new OTC category, repeals the conditions for sale for hearing aids, and includes provisions that address some of the effects of the FDA OTC hearing aid regulations on state regulation of hearing aids. The FDA also released final guidance related to "Regulatory Requirements for Hearing Aid Devices and Personal Sound Amplification Products." This guidance document connects to the final rule and clarifies the intended uses, regulatory requirements, and distinctions of hearing aids and personal sound amplification products. The new class of hearing aids created by the regulation do not require medical examination, a prescription, or other specialty evaluations, and are intended for adults with mild to moderate hearing problems. These efforts follow years of pressure from medical experts and consumer advocates; the move could also remove red tape and promote innovation and competition in a historically concentrated marketplace. Over the next several months, the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission (MedPAC) will hold several public meetings to discuss Medicare policy issues and to vote on recommendations to send to Congress. The Medicaid and CHIP Payment and Access Commission (MACPAC) will hold three public meetings from September to December to discuss Medicaid and CHIP policy, reports, and recommendations to Congress. Time will be allotted during each meeting for public comments. Details of the agenda are typically posted one week prior to the meeting.

Coverage & Incentives

J.D. Power's annual study of Medicare Advantage (MA) plans found member's general satisfaction is up from 2021 and is higher than satisfaction reported by people in employer-sponsored plans. While members are happy with access to preventive and routine care, coverage of mental health and substance abuse treatment is lacking. According to an Aon report, U.S. employers will pay 6.5% more on average for employee healthcare coverage in 2023 compared to this year. The last predicted rise, with a jump of 3.7% growth in employer costs between 2021-2022, stilling below the 9.1% Consumer Price Index, resulting from inflation. Inflation hits healthcare costs later than other goods and services due to the multi-year nature of contracts between providers and insurers, but impacts will become more prevalent over the year. Payment and Delivery Transformation

Despite a decade of value-based payment policy working to improve the quality and cost efficiency of care, analysis shows little improvement in reducing health inequities. In fact, many value-based models unintentionally exacerbate inequities for marginalized communities by setting financial incentives that contradict equity goals. Five potential policy/organizational actions that could address such issues include: 1) mandating that certain organizations enroll in payment models to limit selective participation; 2) establishing spending targets that support equity even at the cost of higher spending; 3) decoupling spending for marginalized populations from overall spending calculations; 4) stratifying quality metrics by race, ethnicity, and indicators of socioeconomic status; and 5) reworking performance-based incentives to reward participants serving marginalized populations with larger incentive amounts. Honoring a mentor, friend, and leader

It was a great honor to be part of the opening of Utah Valley University's first and only public policy institute which is named for an outstanding mentor, friend, and governor, Gary R. Herbert.

The Herbert Institute will be a center where UVU students can learn about this great leader and what good government looks like.

Congratulations to President Astrid Tuminez for her visionary effort to create a place where the next generation of Utah's policy leaders can gather, hear from diverse thought leaders, and learn about what makes Utah and our country great. And to Gov. Herbert: Congratulations on this monumental achievement. Your legacy of good governance and public service will benefit UVU and the state of Utah for years to come.

The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) recently published the list of organizations provisionally accepted to participate in the ACO REACH model beginning in 2023, along with the organizations participating in the optional Implementation Period (IP3) between August 1st and December 31st The list includes the ACO Type (Standard, New Entrant, or High Needs) and the risk sharing arrangement (Professional or Global), and for organizations participating in IP3, the states where the ACO operates. Of the 275 applicants, 128 were provisionally accepted, though 18 have already withdrawn their applications; 34 of these provisionally accepted applicants will participate in IP3. Including the 99 organizations that participated in the Global and Professional Direct Contracting model (GPDC) that preceded ACO REACH, and who have the option to transition to the model provided they meet the new requirements, there is potential for up to 209 organizations to participate in 2023. (Article here)

Debate continues in response to a pair of 2021 Health Affairs articles criticizing Medicare Advantage (MA) and the now-canceled GPDC model. Although confirming that MA plans appear to cost more than Traditional Medicare (TM) with little reported quality benefits—as argued in the articles—proponents of MA contend that these arguments are misguided and rejected by both Congress and CMS. For example, MA proponents explain the seemingly unimpressive results in MA by clarifying that capitated MA plans consistently reflect significantly better quality, lower hospital utilization, and lower total cost of care than Traditional Fee-For-Service (FFS) Medicare; these results simply do not stand out because the 18.4 percent of models applying capitation are almost always aggregated with broader FFS model MA plans when assessing MA HMO effectiveness. The CY 2023 Medicare Physician Fee Schedule (PFS) proposed rule changes include changes to the Medicare Shared Savings Program (MSSP) and a conversion factor decrease of $1.53. In reaction to these changes, healthcare attorneys say that while they may offer incentives for provider groups to consider alternative payment models, the policies will likely need more to significantly impact the shift to value-based care. The proposed changes would also introduce advanced shared savings payments to certain new accountable care organizations (ACOs) that focus on rural and underserved populations. The attorneys go on further to state that while these changes may remove perceived barriers to participating in the MSSP, it is still unclear whether they would drive a significant number of new providers to establish ACOs, especially if organizations have not already been considering participation. Recent Q2 earnings point to VBP enablers and Advanced Primary Care companies, including Privia, agilon, ApolloMed, and CareMax, gaining traction in the care delivery sector. Privia's growth continues to be driven by enabling physician partners to take on more risk and entering new markets. agilon's total Q2 revenue of $670 million was an increase of 34% from the previous quarter and its Medicare Advantage (MA) membership grew 44% year-over year (YoY), driven by partnerships with health systems (as evidenced in a recent partnership with MaineHealth) and PCPs. Using tech-powered strategies as a VBP enabler, ApolloMed saw strong growth in capitated revenues, increasing 57% YoY; management continues to execute and pursue strategies to enable independent physicians throughout its geographic footprint and noted the recent formation of ApolloMed Health Choice. Strong financial performance was also seen for CareMax, which grew its MA membership 72% YoY. (Article here)

Meeting with GoUtah and local business leaders

The Go Utah Board promotes and encourages economic opportunity for all Utahns and the state's commercial, financial, industrial, agricultural, and civic welfare. This week we were happy to join their board on two trips to Utah businesses.

First we met with Entrata, the leading operating system for multifamily communities worldwide. We discussed housing and growth in our state, Entrata's community service, and more. We look forward to visiting again soon!

We also toured the Rio Tinto Kennecott mine, a world-class, integrated copper mining operation and major employer in Utah. We appreciate Rio Tinto Kennecott's commitment to supporting and participating in the state's economic growth, environmental protection, and community support!

According to Dr. Ashish Jha the White House Covid coordinator booster shots designed to target both omicron subvariants BA.4 and BA.5 will be available "in a few short weeks". Currently, only adults 50 and older as well as immunocompromised populations are eligible for secondary boosters (four months after their initial booster) however, the dosages currently in circulation are not designed to target the omicron variants specifically. Health officials say whether the new boosters will be made immediately available to all U.S adults or if certain populations such as those at higher risk will be the first to receive the updated version. The anticipation of new boosters has led to some confusion among U.S adults as to when they would be most effective to receive a booster but according to some experts "the best way to time your shot is around the end of October" (Article here)

A recent paper published in JAMA Network Open assessed changes in pregnancy-related complications and obstetric outcomes before and during the COVID-19 pandemic, finding significant increases in pregnancy-related complications and maternal death. The paper analyzed data from over 1.6 million pregnant patients who gave birth in 765 hospitals in the US prior to the pandemic and during the first 14 months of the pandemic. The analysis found that maternal death during delivery hospitalization increased from 5.17 deaths per 100,000 pregnant patients prior to the pandemic and 8.69 deaths per 100,000 pregnant patients during the pandemic. The authors suggest that increases in poor outcomes demonstrates that the COVID-19 pandemic negatively affected obstetric care and pregnancy-related outcomes, adding that outpatient prenatal care experienced extensive disruptions. Additionally, the paper found that people of color were more likely to experience disrespectful care and perceived discrimination, which is linked to postpartum stress. (Articles here and here)

A federal judge in Ohio ordered three major pharmacy chains to pay a total of $650.5 million to two Ohio counties for their roles in fueling the opioid epidemic by improperly distributing drugs. The money will be used to fight the opioid crisis in Lake and Trumbull counties outside Cleveland. In the same week, another opioid maker, Endo, filed for bankruptcy after reaching a settlement with 36 states to resolve allegations for falsely marketing opioids, agreeing to pay the states $450 million over 10 years to support treatment and prevention of opioid use problems. Staying focused on families and children in Utah

We're staying focused on families and children in Utah. On Wednesday, Lt. Gov. Deidre Henderson chaired the Governor's Early Childhood Commission with leaders from across state government. We're happy to report the commission is laser-focused on coordinating and streamlining support services and bolstering resources for families with young children, including with the DHHS Office of Early Childhood.

Thanks to the commission for doing such important work for the Beehive State.

We're also re-examining some of the policies and ideas that we think can make Utah an even better place to live and raise a family. Stay tuned!

This week we answered questions at the PBS Monthly News Conference in a live exchange with reporters. Here are a couple topics we discussed:

Q: With school starting, how are we making schools safer?
A: The SafeUT app, while mainly used for helping with students' mental health, can also be used for school safety. It gives kids and parents the ability to anonymously connect with law enforcement to report any type of bullying or suspicious behavior. We've received close to 300 tips over the past year — some of which pointed to potential violence — so we're glad law enforcement could step in and intervene early.

Over the summer, the Utah Department of Public Safety has also been working very closely with school districts, the state superintendent, and the state school board to make sure everyone is implementing safety measures in every one of our schools. They've checked to make sure everyone is using proper training and that the schools' ingress and egress are figured out in a way that will add additional safety. We also have resource officers in many of our schools that are available to help with any issues that may arise in schools.

Q: What's your take on the energy provisions in the Inflation Reduction Act?
A: It's closer to a better approach. We have a unique opportunity in Utah to seek out an all-of-the-above energy approach that will ultimately lead to much better outcomes, and we appreciate the emphasis on both sides of the energy ledger. There's tremendous potential in Utah for solar, wind, geothermal, hydrogen, and more.

However, the most important thing that can come out of this legislation wasn't actually in the legislation — we're told part of the deal to get that legislation passed is permitting reform. The National Environmental Protection Act has unfortunately prevented, slowed down, or increased the cost of big projects that we know would have a good impact on the environment here in Utah. We've seen NEPA slow down transmission lines. As we're trying to electrify things we do, like driving, we need to be able to transmit electricity, and in Utah it can take seven to 10 years to get these projects off the ground.

We care about the climate and about reducing emissions, but we must find ways to greatly increase the speed at which we're able to build these transmission lines.

You can watch the press conference in its entirety here.

Discussing the Utah way, conservation, and more

We also joined Washington Post reporter Jacqueline Alemany for a live discussion. Here's a look at a few of the questions we answered:

Q: How are you protecting the Great Salt Lake?

A: Historically, the state of Utah had a "use it or lose it" mentality. We changed that mentality in the state and set aside $40 million to purchase water rights from holders which allows farmers and ranchers to keep their water in the streambed. That is going to have a tremendous effect on the Great Salt Lake water levels.

We are using some great nonprofits to help us with preserving waterways and improving animal sanctuaries. We are also doing a significant amount of work to remove invasive species, which will leave more water in the stream and the Great Salt Lake.

We are also working with the federal government. There has been legislation run by members of Congress from the state of Utah with support from leadership in both parties to help us get some resources here as well as the Army Corps of Engineers who will help us understand what is happening with the lake and what we can do to save it.

Q: Why are Utahns able to compromise on such difficult issues?

A: Utahns are great at this. There are so many areas where we are not that far apart, and either side being willing to compromise a little bit would solve 90% of our problems and build bonds that bring Republicans and Democrats together.

Q: How are you addressing systemic issues that are tied in to abortion care?

A: One is trying to prevent unwanted pregnancies as much as possible. Access to contraception is one area that we can do more.

Supporting mothers, especially single mothers, who are living in poverty through access to child care and making health care more available is another aspect we are looking at as a state.

In addition, we are looking at ways to hold men more accountable. We recently passed a policy change that prohibited the requirement of hunting and fishing licenses for those men who are behind in their child support payments and we have seen that be successful.

I am hoping we have several policy proposals passed in the Legislature that will show that we do care about all life — life in the womb but especially life after birth and the women who are far too often bearing the responsibility of caring for these children.

Addressing drought in the West

We're continuing to share ways in which the state is working to conserve water and plan for a drier future. This week, we're talking about cross-state collaboration.

One-third of Utahns rely on the Colorado River for drinking water, and the river is a major contributor to the state's $189 billion economy. When it comes to resources like the Colorado River, Utah must work with neighboring states to preserve and protect water.

This is especially urgent given that far more Colorado River water is being used, especially by the Lower Basin states, than is available due to the current drought and climate change impacts. Recent estimates based on last year's use show the Lower Basin and Mexico are using about 10 million acre-feet, the Upper Basin states are using about 3.5 million acre-feet and the available flow is only around 6.3 million acre-feet.

We're all going to have to cut back. But Lower Basin states use more than twice the water than Upper Basin states, so it makes sense that the greatest cuts should be shouldered by the Lower Basin.

We support long-term reductions in use over short-term fixes if we are truly going to sustain the system. Utah, along with the other Upper Basin states, will continue to do our part to conserve and bring solutions to the table.

Read more about how we're addressing drought in the West here.

Closing a chapter in Utah history

For 71 years, the Draper prison served the people of Utah as a facility focused on keeping us safe. But over the years, we developed better ways to secure those who were paying their debt to society while at the same time teaching them to rebuild their lives and find a productive future on the outside. The transfer to the new State Correctional Facility in Salt Lake will fulfill this new mission more fully.

This week we were able to recognize those who made the transfer of 2,464 incarcerated individuals possible. We were also able to honor Gov. Gary Herbert for his initiation and support for the prison movement from day one.

The Draper Prison Chapel will be preserved in recognition of its significance in the lives of many Utahns. As we close this chapter, we acknowledge the former Draper Prison and look forward to the future.

Happy Friday from #OneUtah, a weekly update from the office of Gov. Spencer J. Cox. Here's your recap of what we did this week, what's on the horizon, and more. Reply to this email with any questions or suggestions regarding the newsletter. And thank you for subscribing!

In our inaugural Governor's Spirit of Service Award Ceremony, we recently recognized the outstanding service that Utahns are doing throughout the state. Each week, we'll highlight one of these unsung heroes. This week, we're highlighting the Ruff Haven Crisis Sheltering Center.

Ruff Haven Crisis Sheltering Center works to prevent individuals from having to surrender their pets by providing shelter when someone is experiencing a crisis, temporary hardships, medical emergencies and more.

Honoring a mentor, friend, and leader

It was a great honor to be part of the opening of Utah Valley University's first and only public policy institute which is named for an outstanding mentor, friend, and governor, Gary R. Herbert.

The Herbert Institute will be a center where UVU students can learn about this great leader and what good government looks like.

Congratulations to President Astrid Tuminez for her visionary effort to create a place where the next generation of Utah's policy leaders can gather, hear from diverse thought leaders, and learn about what makes Utah and our country great. And to Gov. Herbert: Congratulations on this monumental achievement. Your legacy of good governance and public service will benefit UVU and the state of Utah for years to come.

The Go Utah Board promotes and encourages economic opportunity for all Utahns and the state's commercial, financial, industrial, agricultural, and civic welfare. This week we were happy to join their board on two trips to Utah businesses.

First we met with Entrata, the leading operating system for multifamily communities worldwide. We discussed housing and growth in our state, Entrata's community service, and more. We look forward to visiting again soon!

We also toured the Rio Tinto Kennecott mine, a world-class, integrated copper mining operation and major employer in Utah. We appreciate Rio Tinto Kennecott's commitment to supporting and participating in the state's economic growth, environmental protection, and community support!

Staying focused on families and children in Utah

We're staying focused on families and children in Utah. On Wednesday, Lt. Gov. Deidre Henderson chaired the Governor's Early Childhood Commission with leaders from across state government. We're happy to report the commission is laser-focused on coordinating and streamlining support services and bolstering resources for families with young children, including with the DHHS Office of Early Childhood.

Thanks to the commission for doing such important work for the Beehive State.

We're also re-examining some of the policies and ideas that we think can make Utah an even better place to live and raise a family. Stay tuned!

Over the summer, the Utah Department of Public Safety has also been working very closely with school districts, the state superintendent, and the state school board to make sure everyone is implementing safety measures in every one of our schools. They've checked to make sure everyone is using proper training and that the schools' ingress and egress are figured out in a way that will add additional safety. We also have resource officers in many of our schools that are available to help with any issues that may arise in schools.

Discussing the Utah way, conservation, and more

We also joined Washington Post reporter Jacqueline Alemany for a live discussion. Here's a look at a few of the questions we answered:

Q: How are you protecting the Great Salt Lake?

A: Historically, the state of Utah had a "use it or lose it" mentality. We changed that mentality in the state and set aside $40 million to purchase water rights from holders which allows farmers and ranchers to keep their water in the streambed. That is going to have a tremendous effect on the Great Salt Lake water levels.

We are using some great nonprofits to help us with preserving waterways and improving animal sanctuaries. We are also doing a significant amount of work to remove invasive species, which will leave more water in the stream and the Great Salt Lake.

We are also working with the federal government. There has been legislation run by members of Congress from the state of Utah with support from leadership in both parties to help us get some resources here as well as the Army Corps of Engineers who will help us understand what is happening with the lake and what we can do to save it.

Q: Why are Utahns able to compromise on such difficult issues?

A: Utahns are great at this. There are so many areas where we are not that far apart, and either side being willing to compromise a little bit would solve 90% of our problems and build bonds that bring Republicans and Democrats together.

Q: How are you addressing systemic issues that are tied in to abortion care?

A: One is trying to prevent unwanted pregnancies as much as possible. Access to contraception is one area that we can do more.

Supporting mothers, especially single mothers, who are living in poverty through access to child care and making health care more available is another aspect we are looking at as a state.

In addition, we are looking at ways to hold men more accountable. We recently passed a policy change that prohibited the procurement of hunting and fishing licenses for those men who are behind in their child support payments and we have seen that be successful.

I am hoping we have several policy proposals passed in the Legislature that will show that we do care about all life — life in the womb but especially life after birth and the women who are far too often bearing the responsibility of caring for these children.

HAC members,

Almost everyone accepted the calendar invite. Is everyone planning to attend in person? Please let Tamara and I know if you are NOT planning to attend in-person, so we can plan accordingly.

Additionally, I have a small reading assignment in preparation for our afternoon discussion. I've attached a brief history of public health in Utah, also available at https://health.utah.gov/wp-content/uploads/A-HISTORY-OF-PUBLIC-HEALTH-IN-UTAH.pdf
I recommend reading the entire document, but at the very least, reading the section titled "THE CHALLENGE - PUBLIC HEALTH VS POLITICS" which starts on page 3 would be beneficial in adding some historical context to our afternoon discussions.

Good morning,

As I'm working on the information for Tracy I was exploring how to link access to contraception to the Governor's One Utah Roadmap 2.0. Under Health Security there is one area that I think this could link to.

The main priority in 2.0 is this:

A. VALUE-BASED CARE AND TRANSPARENCY – Enable Utahns to make informed health care decisions i. Transition to value-based approach for health care by partnering with payers and providers to improve health care cost transparency.

[redacted]

[redacted] Fireworks, spotlighting service, and more

In 2016, the National Quality Forum endorsed three contraceptive care quality measures to assess the degree to which women access effective methods of contraception in a value-based care model.

The contraceptive care quality measures are as follows:

- Post-Partum Women: Most- & Moderately Effective Methods (NQF #2902) — Among women aged 15–44 who had a live birth, the percentage who are provided a most-effective (sterilization, implants, or intrauterine devices or systems (IUD/IUS)) or moderately effective (injectables, oral pills, patch, ring, or diaphragm) contraceptive method within three to 60 days of delivery.
- All Women: Most- & Moderately Effective Methods (NQF #2903) — The percentage of women aged 15–44 at risk of unintended pregnancy who are provided a most-effective (sterilization, implants, or IUD/ IUS) or moderately effective (injectables, oral pills, patch, ring, or diaphragm) contraceptive method.
- All Women: Access to LARC (NQF #2904) — The percentage of women aged 15–44 at risk of unintended pregnancy who are provided a LARC method (implants or IUD/IUS).

I'm not sure if we've adopted these for the ACOs (and honestly my memory of how these are chosen is a bit foggy) but could this be a strategy we include? My thought is could we propose pursuing a VBC model for one or more of these quality measures for the ACOs?

Let me know your thoughts on this. Thank you!

HHS sent this letter to all Governors Friday. It's a little vague but they're clearly trying to figure out how to get past state restrictions on abortion, incluing through the use of EMTALA. It may have less impact on Utah than other states given some of the exceptions in our trigger law, but I'm not sure. I wanted to make sure you all had it in case we get questions. It might be worth having our Medicaid staff take a look at both the letter and the linked report to decipher the meaning for us.

Access to the full range of reproductive health care is essential to individuals' health. In light of the Supreme Court's decision in Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, we write to you to highlight the opportunity for states to partner with us to promote access to critical reproductive health care services and to underscore the importance of federal laws that protect individuals' access to abortion in certain situations, including protections in the Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act (EMTALA).

Attached please find a letter sharing more details on access to care for Medicaid enrollees and emergency medical care. Links to the letter, report and press release can be found below:

This morning we talked to Tracy about the Medicaid Post Partum budget request in context of the potential family policy budget request. We agreed that we would expand this item to include a package of Family Support items:

- Medicaid contraception to 250%
- Contraception education
- Contraception at pharmacy app
- Medicaid 12 months post partum coverage

We will be working with Krisann to come up with a description of what will go in this proposal.

Thanks,

Nate

Greetings,

I am still waiting for Valli's team and DTS to finalize an estimate for creating an interactive web-based screening tool and app, they will have that to me by the end of the week. I've made a note about that in the document. I've embedded the google budget worksheet I have developed with information from the University and from Joe about the public awareness campaign costs (this is very fluid and we could reduce or spend more depending on how much reach we want to have, although I do believe the major healthcare systems, particularly IHC and the University, will also want to partner). I also have a few other comments/questions in the document for your review.

Otherwise, this document is ready for your review. I am technically off tomorrow and Friday but will continue to work on this as needed so it's ready for the meeting if it happens next week.

Let me know if you have any questions/concerns or would like to touch base again this week or early next week.

Dear Colleagues:

I hope that you are well. The dog days of summer are past, and a new season of policy initiatives, state budgeting, and legislative sessions beckons.

One of the most challenging tasks of state service for me was rapidly translating complex federal legislation for the people who are carrying out the work on a day-to-day basis. To support you in that task, this newsletter offers a shorthand of which health provisions were enacted by the Inflation Reduction Act of 2022 (IRA, Public Law 117-169) and which Build Back Better provisions were not included.

Please don't hesitate to be in touch if we can support you with more information on any of this. Happy almost fall!

I wish you all well.

In partnership,

Kate McEvoy
Program Officer
Milbank Memorial Fund

What's In and What's Not

The IRA includes a number of significant health provisions that will have direct and indirect impact on people at the state level. That said, it is also important to note many of the proposals that were originally embedded in the draft Build Back Better legislation were negotiated out of the IRA. See below for an overview.

What's In:

Expanded subsidies for health insurance coverage purchased through the ACA exchange

The IRA extends the expanded subsidies that were enacted by the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA), which would otherwise have sunset at the end of 2022, for an additional three years. See below for a helpful chart from the Kaiser Family Foundation that synopsizes this assistance. These subsidies have improved the affordability of exchange-based plans and demonstrably reduced the national rate of uninsured individuals.

Enhanced Medicare prescription drug coverage

The IRA expands eligibility for the Medicare Part D Low-Income Subsidy (LIS) Program. Depending on an individual's financial situation, LIS covers:

- all or some of the monthly prescription drug premium, up to an annual “benchmark” amount (in 2022, $33.37);
- all or some of the annual deductible (in 2022, $480); and
- all or some of the co-payments for which beneficiaries are responsible.

Want more information on LIS eligibility? While it has not yet been updated to reflect IRA changes, this chart produced by the National Council on Aging is a great resource.

Efforts to control the overall rate of cost growth in Medicare-purchased drugs

The IRA includes two provisions that endeavor to address the high rate of cost growth for Medicare-purchased drugs.

The first permits the federal government to negotiate the cost of a small number of drugs on which Medicare spends the most, as follows:

- 10 Part D drugs in 2026
- 15 Part D drugs in 2027
- 15 Part D and Part B drugs in 2028
- 20 Part D and Part B drugs in 2029 and subsequent years.

The second requires drug manufacturers to make rebates if the cost of their drugs increases at a rate greater than inflation.

Lower Medicare Part D cost-sharing

The IRA significantly defrays the out-of-pocket (OOP) spending that Medicare beneficiaries must make on prescription drugs. This includes:

- reduced cost sharing, in the form of:
  - elimination of the required 5% coinsurance in the catastrophic period, effective in 2024;
  - establishment of an overall $2,000 OOP spending cap in 2025; and
  - limitations on annual increases in the cost of Part D premiums, over the period from 2024–2030;
- a cap of $35 on cost sharing for insulin products; and
- elimination of cost-sharing for adult vaccines.

Medicaid coverage of vaccines

The IRA mandates coverage of and eliminates cost sharing for adult vaccines covered by Medicaid and the Children’s Health Insurance Program (CHIP).

Here is a helpful Kaiser Family Foundation implementation timeline of the prescription drug provisions:

What's Not In:

The IRA does not include these Build Back Better proposals:

Permanent funding for CHIP

This elimination of this proposal leaves CHIP subject to periodic Congressional renewal. CHIP was last reauthorized in 2018 by the Bipartisan Budget Act (P.L. 115–123) for four years through the end of FY 2027 (September 30, 2027).

Eligibility provisions designed to maximize coverage:

- Medicaid "fallback"/look-alike program: This proposal would have created an alternative vehicle through which individuals could qualify for Medicaid-equivalent coverage in states that have not pursued ACA Medicaid expansion.
- Annual Medicaid and CHIP enrollment periods for children: This proposal for 12 continuous months of coverage aimed to minimize migration of children on and off Medicaid and CHIP.
- Extension of pregnancy coverage from 60 days post-partum to one year: Effective April 1, 2022 through March 31, 2027, Sections 9812 and 9822 of the ARPA enabled states to extend Medicaid and CHIP postpartum coverage from 60 days postpartum to one year postpartum. This proposal would have made the option obligatory and permanent.

Permanency for increased resources for Medicaid home- and community-based long-term services and supports

This proposal sought to build on the durationally limited enhanced federal medical assistance percentage (FMAP) for home- and community-based services (HCBS) that was authorized under ARPA. It provides states with planning grants, six additional points of FMAP for implementation of HCBS improvements, and 80% FMAP for the administrative costs of implementing those initiatives.

Hi! I just wanted to check and see if these quality measures were included in the ACO contracts by chance?
Thank you!

Good morning,

As I'm working on the information for Tracy I was exploring how to link access to contraception to the Governor's One Utah Roadmap 2.0. Under Health Security there is one area that I think this could link to.

The main priority in 2.0 is this:

A. VALUE-BASED CARE AND TRANSPARENCY – Enable Utahns to make informed health care decisions i. Transition to value-based approach for health care by partnering with payers and providers to improve health care cost transparency.

In 2016, the National Quality Forum endorsed three contraceptive care quality measures to assess the degree to which women access effective methods of contraception in a value-based care model.

The contraceptive care quality measures are as follows:

- Post-Partum Women: Most- & Moderately Effective Methods (NQF #2902) — Among women aged 15–44 who had a live birth, the percentage who are provided a most-effective (sterilization, implants, or intrauterine devices or systems (IUD/IUS)) or moderately effective (injectables, oral pills, patch, ring, or diaphragm) contraceptive method within three to 60 days of delivery.
- All Women: Most- & Moderately Effective Methods (NQF #2903) — The percentage of women aged 15–44 at risk of unintended pregnancy who are provided a most-effective (sterilization, implants, or IUD/ IUS) or moderately effective (injectables, oral pills, patch, ring, or diaphragm) contraceptive method.
- All Women: Access to LARC (NQF #2904) — The percentage of women aged 15–44 at risk of unintended pregnancy who are provided a LARC method (implants or IUD/IUS).

I'm not sure if we've adopted these for the ACOs (and honestly my memory of how these are chosen is a bit foggy) but could this be a strategy we include? My thought is could we propose pursuing a VBC model for one or more of these quality measures for the ACOs?

Let me know your thoughts on this. Thank you!

Good morning,

If I'm understanding correctly I started an overview sheet in the Legislative Review Template where we can link to all of the policy recommendations, I left some of the information I had for contraception access and linked to both the contraception access legislative review sheet and the Increasing Coverage sheet that Nate linked to but it doesn't have any more detail behind the other proposals yet and I'd need help filling all of that out. Is this what you had in mind Tracy?

I think it's a great idea to have Laurie do a legislative review sheet and we can share it with the LG and Neil on this topic. It seems like we may operate on a dual track with Rep. Maybe we should make a Google Doc with the legislative review sheets so we know what's in play.

It seems like a good idea to add this to the Family Friendly Policy list. I am adding Krisann here as I am a little anxious about which documents to add it to since there seems to be multiple documents and I want to make sure it gets to the right place. I, also, think it's a good idea to discuss this with the LG on the 20th as she was the senate sponsor of the house bill that required parental consent (which may or may not be indicative of strong feelings about parental consent).

Do we want to ask Laurie to complete a legislative review sheet for the idea of amending state law?

It is my understanding that the Lt. Governor sponsored the legislation to require parent consent. If we take the suggestion to amend state Code to not require consent if doing so prevents the state from receiving family planning funds, we should discuss this with the LG when we meet with her on 9/20. The landscape has changed since this language was added to state code. She may be supportive of this adjustment.

Good Morning Tracy & Nate -

Below is information and suggestions from Maternal & Child Health in response to the request from the Office of Congressman Blake Moore regarding changes necessary to allow Utah to receive Title X funds. While MCH did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. MCH, also, provided information on changes that could be made in State code to allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized; including some example language from Texas.

As I am still trying to understand the basics of this issue, please let me know how you all would like to proceed in reaching-out to the Congressman's office.

David -

There are two possible approaches to Congressman Moore's request. A federal statute change or a change at the state level. For a federal statute change to be "enacted", as we understand it, would require an actual act of congress. The specific federal code that would need to be addressed, and that applies here, is the Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A (https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). It states:

> § 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

Another part of the federal code states this -

> § 59.10 Confidentiality
> (b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

The Title X philosophy (and in federal code) highly encourages the inclusion of parents/guardians in these important life decisions, but minors will not be turned away at a Title X funded facility.

We do not have specific language to suggest regarding changes to this section of federal statute.

In the August 2020 letter denying Utah's waiver request, from the Deputy Assistant Secretary, Office of Population Affairs to Dr. Joseph Miner, it stated "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." A second idea would be to add language to this section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

For Utah -
There is a way to allow Title X funds into the state without changing the Utah parental consent law. We explored this option when we were tentatively offered Title X funds in 2020, but were not granted the "waiver" we requested, and were not able to receive the funds (Please refer to HB377, legislation passed in 2020).

When notifying leadership of the denial of Utah's waiver request, we put forward another suggestion for the Utah legislature and executive leadership to consider. Other states receiving Title X funds with similar parental notification or consent laws suspend state law for Title X funds only. A thorough example is one from Texas, who created an exemption to their parental notification law.

> (2) HHSC may distribute funds for medical, dental, psychological, or surgical treatment provided to a minor only if consent to treatment is obtained pursuant to Family Code Chapter 32. In the event that compliance with this subsection would result in the loss of Federal Funds to the state, HHSC may modify, or suspend this subsection to the extent necessary to prevent such loss of funds, provided that 45-day prior notification is provided to the Governor and the Legislative Budget Board.

Language such as this would allow for minors to be served without consent if federal funding would be in jeopardy. Guidance given by the Texas Department of Health specifies:

> … providers and their parent organizations may serve clients who are funded through sources outside of the Health and Human Services Commission (HHSC). When requirements differ, policies and procedures concerning services for programs administered by HHSC must be distinguished from those governing family planning services provided through other contracts or funding sources, such as Title X*.*

For Utah this type of approach could be taken. Another approach to consider would be to allow an exemption for Title X funds only.

Please let me know if you have any follow up questions.

Thank you,
Laurie, Lynne and Nickee

State Updates

- Minnesota – The Minnesota Department of Health released its first-ever Minnesota Maternal Mortality Report, which examined maternal deaths during or within one year of pregnancy from 2017 to 2018. While the report shows the state's overall maternal mortality rate is lower than the national average, it also shows stark disparities in mortality—especially among Black and American Indian Minnesotans. Black Minnesotans represent 13% of the birthing population but made up 23% of pregnancy-associated deaths, and American Indian Minnesotans represent 2% of the birthing population, but 8% of pregnancy-associated deaths.
- New Jersey – First Lady Tammy Murphy and Human Services Commissioner Sarah Adelman announced NJ FamilyCare's Perinatal Episode of Care program, a three-year pilot to test a new alternative payment model for prenatal, labor, and postpartum services statewide. The pilot's goal is to improve maternity care by encouraging NJ FamilyCare obstetrical providers to broadly engage in all aspects of their patient's care, from pregnancy through the postpartum period, including emergency room visits and newborn pediatric care. Clinicians who choose to participate in the program are financially incentivized to take on comprehensive responsibility for the quality and cost of their patients' care.
- North Carolina – The North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services released the 2022 North Carolina State Health Improvement Plan (NC SHIP), which includes key strategies for health equity, education and economic stability for all North Carolinians. A major focus of NC SHIP is advancing health equity by reducing disparities in opportunity and outcomes for historically marginalized populations across the state.

Below is information and suggestions from Maternal & Child Health in response to the request from the Office of Congressman Blake Moore regarding changes necessary to allow Utah to receive Title X funds. While MCH did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. MCH, also, provided information on changes that could be made in State code to allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized; including some example language from Texas.

David -

There are two possible approaches to Congressman Moore's request. A federal statute change or a change at the state level. For a federal statute change to be "enacted", as we understand it, would require an actual act of congress. The specific federal code that would need to be addressed, and that applies here, is the Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A (https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). It states:

> § 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

Another part of the federal code states this -

> § 59.10 Confidentiality
> (b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

The Title X philosophy (and in federal code) highly encourages the inclusion of parents/guardians in these important life decisions, but minors will not be turned away at a Title X funded facility.

We do not have specific language to suggest regarding changes to this section of federal statute.

In the August 2020 letter denying Utah's waiver request, from the Deputy Assistant Secretary, Office of Population Affairs to Dr. Joseph Miner, it stated "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." A second idea would be to add language to this section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

For Utah -
There is a way to allow Title X funds into the state without changing the Utah parental consent law. We explored this option when we were tentatively offered Title X funds in 2020, but were not granted the "waiver" we requested, and were not able to receive the funds (Please refer to HB377, legislation passed in 2020).

When notifying leadership of the denial of Utah's waiver request, we put forward another suggestion for the Utah legislature and executive leadership to consider. Other states receiving Title X funds with similar parental notification or consent laws suspend state law for Title X funds only. A thorough example is one from Texas, who created an exemption to their parental notification law. (https://www.lbb.texas.gov/Documents/GAA/General_Appropriations_Act_2020_2021.pdf (see page 190/II-70, section 79(a)(2))

> (2) HHSC may distribute funds for medical, dental, psychological, or surgical treatment provided to a minor only if consent to treatment is obtained pursuant to Family Code Chapter 32. In the event that compliance with this subsection would result in the loss of Federal Funds to the state, HHSC may modify, or suspend this subsection to the extent necessary to prevent such loss of funds, provided that 45-day prior notification is provided to the Governor and the Legislative Budget Board.

Language such as this would allow for minors to be served without consent if federal funding would be in jeopardy. Guidance given by the Texas Department of Health specifies:

> … providers and their parent organizations may serve clients who are funded through sources outside of the Health and Human Services Commission (HHSC). When requirements differ, policies and procedures concerning services for programs administered by HHSC must be distinguished from those governing family planning services provided through other contracts or funding sources, such as Title X*.*

For Utah this type of approach could be taken. Another approach to consider would be to allow an exemption for Title X funds only.

Please let me know if you have any follow up questions.

Thank you,
Laurie, Lynne and Nickee

Marc -

My recollection is that the current draft of the legislative review sheet from Laurie & Lynne recommends that we do not submit a grant application because we are not eligible due to the state's parental consent requirement. Maybe we just need to ask that the legislative review sheet be rewritten to incorporate potential changes to state statute based on what Laurie provided last week in response to Congressman Moore's request.

What do you think?

It seems like a good idea to add this to the Family Friendly Policy list. I am adding Krisann here as I am a little anxious about which documents to add it to since there seems to be multiple documents and I want to make sure it gets to the right place. I, also, think it's a good idea to discuss this with the LG on the 20th as she was the senate sponsor of the house bill that required parental consent (which may or may not be indicative of strong feelings about parental consent).

Do we want to ask Laurie to complete a legislative review sheet for the idea of amending state law?

While MCH did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. MCH, also, provided information on changes that could be made in State code to allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized; including some example language from Texas.

David -

There are two possible approaches to Congressman Moore's request. A federal statute change or a change at the state level. For a federal statute change to be "enacted", as we understand it, would require an actual act of congress. The specific federal code that would need to be addressed, and that applies here, is the Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A (https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). It states:

> § 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

Another part of the federal code states this -

> § 59.10 Confidentiality
> (b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

The Title X philosophy (and in federal code) highly encourages the inclusion of parents/guardians in these important life decisions, but minors will not be turned away at a Title X funded facility.

We do not have specific language to suggest regarding changes to this section of federal statute.

In the August 2020 letter denying Utah's waiver request, from the Deputy Assistant Secretary, Office of Population Affairs to Dr. Joseph Miner, it stated "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." A second idea would be to add language to this section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

For Utah -
There is a way to allow Title X funds into the state without changing the Utah parental consent law. We explored this option when we were tentatively offered Title X funds in 2020, but were not granted the "waiver" we requested, and were not able to receive the funds (Please refer to HB377, legislation passed in 2020).

When notifying leadership of the denial of Utah's waiver request, we put forward another suggestion for the Utah legislature and executive leadership to consider. Other states receiving Title X funds with similar parental notification or consent laws suspend state law for Title X funds only. A thorough example is one from Texas, who created an exemption to their parental notification law. (https://www.lbb.texas.gov/Documents/GAA/General_Appropriations_Act_2020_2021.pdf (see page 190/II-70, section 79(a)(2))

> (2) HHSC may distribute funds for medical, dental, psychological, or surgical treatment provided to a minor only if consent to treatment is obtained pursuant to Family Code Chapter 32. In the event that compliance with this subsection would result in the loss of Federal Funds to the state, HHSC may modify, or suspend this subsection to the extent necessary to prevent such loss of funds, provided that 45-day prior notification is provided to the Governor and the Legislative Budget Board.

Language such as this would allow for minors to be served without consent if federal funding would be in jeopardy. Guidance given by the Texas Department of Health specifies:

> … providers and their parent organizations may serve clients who are funded through sources outside of the Health and Human Services Commission (HHSC). When requirements differ, policies and procedures concerning services for programs administered by HHSC must be distinguished from those governing family planning services provided through other contracts or funding sources, such as Title X.

For Utah this type of approach could be taken. Another approach to consider would be to allow an exemption for Title X funds only.

Please let me know if you have any follow up questions.

Thank you,
Laurie, Lynne and Nickee

There are two possible approaches to Congressman Moore's request. A federal statute change or a change at the state level. For a federal statute change to be "enacted", as we understand it, would require an actual act of congress. The specific federal code that would need to be addressed, and that applies here, is the Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A (https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). It states:

> § 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

Another part of the federal code states this -

> § 59.10 Confidentiality
> (b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

The Title X philosophy (and in federal code) highly encourages the inclusion of parents/guardians in these important life decisions, but minors will not be turned away at a Title X funded facility.

We do not have specific language to suggest regarding changes to this section of federal statute.

In the August 2020 letter denying Utah's waiver request, from the Deputy Assistant Secretary, Office of Population Affairs to Dr. Joseph Miner, it stated "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." A second idea would be to add language to this section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

For Utah -
There is a way to allow Title X funds into the state without changing the Utah parental consent law. We explored this option when we were tentatively offered Title X funds in 2020, but were not granted the "waiver" we requested, and were not able to receive the funds (Please refer to HB377, legislation passed in 2020).

When notifying leadership of the denial of Utah's waiver request, we put forward another suggestion for the Utah legislature and executive leadership to consider. Other states receiving Title X funds with similar parental notification or consent laws suspend state law for Title X funds only. A thorough example is one from Texas, who created an exemption to their parental notification law. (https://www.lbb.texas.gov/Documents/GAA/General_Appropriations_Act_2020_2021.pdf (see page 190/II-70, section 79(a)(2))

> (2) HHSC may distribute funds for medical, dental, psychological, or surgical treatment provided to a minor only if consent to treatment is obtained pursuant to Family Code Chapter 32. In the event that compliance with this subsection would result in the loss of Federal Funds to the state, HHSC may modify, or suspend this subsection to the extent necessary to prevent such loss of funds, provided that 45-day prior notification is provided to the Governor and the Legislative Budget Board.

Language such as this would allow for minors to be served without consent if federal funding would be in jeopardy. Guidance given by the Texas Department of Health specifies:

> … providers and their parent organizations may serve clients who are funded through sources outside of the Health and Human Services Commission (HHSC). When requirements differ, policies and procedures concerning services for programs administered by HHSC must be distinguished from those governing family planning services provided through other contracts or funding sources, such as Title X*.*

For Utah this type of approach could be taken. Another approach to consider would be to allow an exemption for Title X funds only.

Please let me know if you have any follow up questions.

Thank you,
Laurie, Lynne and Nickee

Hello Everyone,

Ok so I cleaned up the naming conventions for ease so the ones I have all start with 'Family Policies - Specific Policy Title', I added an overview document to link to all the other documents so they're easy to find. All it has is the summary with links. I don't have the following links yet:

For the following I have the Family Policy - Increasing Coverage document but not the Legislative Review sheets:

- Continuous Medicaid coverage for 12 months postpartum
- Caregiver Compensation
- Accept and Implement Oral Contraceptive Pharmacist Counseling and Dispensing Proposal --I did include this cost and some verbiage about this one in the 'Improving Access to Contraception' Review sheet
- Expand Medicaid coverage for contraceptives up to 250% Federal Poverty Level (FPL)--I did include this cost and some verbiage about this one in the 'Improving Access to Contraception' Review sheet

Also missing the Title X Funding Legislative Review Sheet.

Here are the links to the legislative review sheets I have:

Please see Will's follow up about Planned Parenthood getting Title X dollars. Is the code relating to parent consent only applicable to the department?

I would appreciate a response as soon as possible. Or, if David or Heather want to directly correspond that would probably be easier than having me in the middle.

Thank you for this, Tracy. I will work to develop some text to amend this issue and run it by your team to see if it would correct this issue.

I did have a quick question. It appears that in 2022, Planned Parenthood of Utah received funding through this grant program. https://opa.hhs.gov/grant-programs/title-x-service-grants/current-title-x-service-grantees/fy2022-title-X-service-grant-awards

How exactly were they able to access Title X funds? Is it just that the state itself is unable to access funds but Planned Parenthood still can?

Will,

I am so sorry for the delay in responding. That is my fault.

While our staff did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. I suspect you are aware of these but they are listed below. Our previous recommendation to amend the confidentiality language to allow states to access the funds at a prorated amount is still a good possible solution. The two regulations relevant are as follows:

Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A
(https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). :

§ 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

§ 59.10 Confidentiality
(b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

It's worth noting the specific objection Utah was provided in 2020 from HHS when it sought a waiver for Title X funds: "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." Our team suggested language be considered to the relevant section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

We also have some changes in state code that we will want to consider and we will plan to discuss those with the Governor's Office. These changes may include an amendment to code that would allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized. Apparently Texas has provided such an allowance.

I hope this is helpful. Again, I apologize for the delay in getting you this information. Between travel and COVID, this response was not as timely as is typical for our department or for me.

The initial thought is that the language could clearly indicate that state's like Utah that require parental consent can still access these funds, even if a prorated amount. The suggestion from one of our deputies is the following: "alter federal law in such a way to allow states which require parental consent to benefit from those federal family planning funds without forcing such states to remove or modify parental consent law."

As noted in previous discussions, we miss out on millions of dollars each year because youth in Utah can't get these services without parental consent.

If you have recommendations on how the grant could be amended to allow for this given the funding stream is currently more narrow, that would be helpful as well.

I think it would be a worthy effort to alter federal law in such a way to allow states like Utah to benefit from those federal family planning funds without forcing us to change our parental consent law. As you know, the HHS leadership under the prior administration was eager to get those funds to us but couldn't find a way to do so without a change in Utah law, something our legislature was understandably wary of doing. I think the first step would be a conversation with the leadership of Utah's Department of Health and Human Services. I've copied Tracy Gruber, the Executive Director of the Department. She may want to pull in Lynne Nilson and others from our Bureau of Maternal and Child Health, who were involved in our Title X application a few years ago and could help us in drafting appropriate language, but I'll defer to Tracy on whom to pull into that meeting.

I am curious if you have thoughts on where to best direct funds to ensure that goal could be achieved, and if you have any general thoughts on this.

Thanks for reaching out, and congratulations on the new job with Rep. Moore. I'd be happy to chat next Tuesday. I'm pretty flexible between 10-12 MT and after 2:30 MT. Do any of those times work for you?

And yes, we went through quite a process over the past several years to apply for the Title X funding, in part based on the strong encouragement of the Trump Administration HHS. However it was always understood that we couldn't get around the statutory requirements surrounding our parental consent requirements, and the legislature had no interest in adjusting or loosening that requirement. So my understanding is that we would not pursue Title X again, but I'll check. If anything has changed then I can connect you with our Department of Health staff who worked on the application.

Good morning,

If I'm understanding correctly I started an overview sheet in the Legislative Review Template where we can link to all of the policy recommendations, I left some of the information I had for contraception access and linked to both the contraception access legislative review sheet and the Increasing Coverage sheet that Nate linked to but it doesn't have any more detail behind the other proposals yet and I'd need help filling all of that out. Is this what you had in mind Tracy?

I think it's a great idea to have Laurie do a legislative review sheet and we can share it with the LG and Neil on this topic. It seems like we may operate on a dual track with Rep. Maybe we should make a Google Doc with the legislative review sheets so we know what's in play.

It seems like a good idea to add this to the Family Friendly Policy list. I am adding Krisann here as I am a little anxious about which documents to add it to since there seems to be multiple documents and I want to make sure it gets to the right place. I, also, think it's a good idea to discuss this with the LG on the 20th as she was the senate sponsor of the house bill that required parental consent (which may or may not be indicative of strong feelings about parental consent).

Do we want to ask Laurie to complete a legislative review sheet for the idea of amending state law?

Should we add this to the proactive legislation list and the list of family policies? If we think we should, please add it to both documents and we can have Marc follow up with Neil. It is my understanding that the Lt. Governor sponsored the legislation to require parent consent. If we take the suggestion to amend state Code to not require consent if doing so prevents the state from receiving family planning funds, we should discuss this with the LG when we meet with her on 9/20. The landscape has changed since this language was added to state code. She may be supportive of this adjustment.

Good Morning Tracy & Nate -

Below is information and suggestions from Maternal & Child Health in response to the request from the Office of Congressman Blake Moore regarding changes necessary to allow Utah to receive Title X funds. While MCH did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. MCH, also, provided information on changes that could be made in State code to allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized; including some example language from Texas.

As I am still trying to understand the basics of this issue, please let me know how you all would like to proceed in reaching-out to the Congressman's office.

David -

There are two possible approaches to Congressman Moore's request. A federal statute change or a change at the state level. For a federal statute change to be "enacted", as we understand it, would require an actual act of congress. The specific federal code that would need to be addressed, and that applies here, is the Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A (https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). It states:

> § 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

> § 59.10 Confidentiality
> (b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

[redacted]

The Title X philosophy (and in federal code) highly encourages the inclusion of parents/guardians in these important life decisions, but minors will not be turned away at a Title X funded facility.

We do not have specific language to suggest regarding changes to this section of federal statute.

In the August 2020 letter denying Utah's waiver request, from the Deputy Assistant Secretary, Office of Population Affairs to Dr. Joseph Miner, it stated "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." A second idea would be to add language to this section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

For Utah -
There is a way to allow Title X funds into the state without changing the Utah parental consent law. We explored this option when we were tentatively offered Title X funds in 2020, but were not granted the "waiver" we requested, and were not able to receive the funds (Please refer to HB377, legislation passed in 2020).

When notifying leadership of the denial of Utah's waiver request, we put forward another suggestion for the Utah legislature and executive leadership to consider. Other states receiving Title X funds with similar parental notification or consent laws suspend state law for Title X funds only. A thorough example is one from Texas, who created an exemption to their parental notification law. (https://www.lbb.texas.gov/Documents/GAA/General_Appropriations_Act_2020_2021.pdf (see page 190/II-70, section 79(a)(2))

> (2) HHSC may distribute funds for medical, dental, psychological, or surgical treatment provided to a minor only if consent to treatment is obtained pursuant to Family Code Chapter 32. In the event that compliance with this subsection would result in the loss of Federal Funds to the state, HHSC may modify, or suspend this subsection to the extent necessary to prevent such loss of funds, provided that 45-day prior notification is provided to the Governor and the Legislative Budget Board.

Language such as this would allow for minors to be served without consent if federal funding would be in jeopardy. Guidance given by the Texas Department of Health specifies:

> … providers and their parent organizations may serve clients who are funded through sources outside of the Health and Human Services Commission (HHSC). When requirements differ, policies and procedures concerning services for programs administered by HHSC must be distinguished from those governing family planning services provided through other contracts or funding sources, such as Title X*.*

For Utah this type of approach could be taken. Another approach to consider would be to allow an exemption for Title X funds only.

Please let me know if you have any follow up questions.

Thank you,
Laurie, Lynne and Nickee

I just sent a text about the RV license. We have a problem with the information sharing with DMV (I forwarded an e-mail from Liesa a few weeks ago) that we would need to figure-out otherwise it would be very labor intensive. I need to circle back with Liesa to see if she has gathered any additional information.

Regarding driver's licenses, I think we wanted to ask the LG if she is interested in pursuing automating the temporary suspension of driver's licenses. ORS already has authority to suspend driver's licenses but it is manual and not utilized. Liesa recommended automating the process at a certain level of arrears. There is an exception to driving for work and children visits. Not sure where to head on this.

I added the links to the budget documents for caregiver compensation and 12 month postpartum coverage to the overview of proposals document. Still missing Title X proposal and if we're going to get one on the suspension of drivers license. I'll send Marc another note and copy all of you, I talked with him today and he was going to reach out to Laurie, I know they're already working on it but we could just throw what they sent over in the email chain into a sheet, I'm not all that familiar with the background but I could give it a shot?

How Can Medicare and Medicaid Providers Utilize CMS' COVID-19 Roadmap?

This week, our In Focus section identifies steps that Medicare and Medicaid plans and providers can undertake to effectively return to normal operations after the end of the COVID-19 public health emergency (PHE) declaration. On August 18, 2022, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) released a roadmap to support healthcare providers with preparing for the eventual end of the PHE. CMS also published a series of fact sheets summarizing the status of Medicare Blanket waivers and flexibilities by provider type as well as flexibilities applicable to the Medicaid providers and stakeholders... I spoke with Laurie and Lynne.

[redacted]

We don't fully know or understand federal statute and pre-emption factors well enough to know how they interact with state law. Planned Parenthood would be better positioned to speak for themselves about their legal authority to accept these funds, but believe the precedence comes from these two cases:
Planned Parenthood Association of Utah v. Matheson
Planned Parenthood Association of Utah v. Dandoy

Thank you for this, Tracy. I will work to develop some text to amend this issue and run it by your team to see if it would correct this issue.

I did have a quick question. It appears that in 2022, Planned Parenthood of Utah received funding through this grant program. https://opa.hhs.gov/grant-programs/title-x-service-grants/current-title-x-service-grantees/fy2022-title-X-service-grant-awards

How exactly were they able to access Title X funds? Is it just that the state itself is unable to access funds but Planned Parenthood still can?

Kindly,

Will,

I am so sorry for the delay in responding. That is my fault.

While our staff did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. I suspect you are aware of these but they are listed below. Our previous recommendation to amend the confidentiality language to allow states to access the funds at a prorated amount is still a good possible solution. The two regulations relevant are as follows:

Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A (https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). :

[redacted]

§ 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

§ 59.10 Confidentiality
(b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

It's worth noting the specific objection Utah was provided in 2020 from HHS when it sought a waiver for Title X funds: "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." Our team suggested language be considered to the relevant section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

We also have some changes in state code that we will want to consider and we will plan to discuss those with the Governor's Office. These changes may include an amendment to code that would allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized. Apparently Texas has provided such an allowance.

I hope this is helpful. Again, I apologize for the delay in getting you this information. Between travel and COVID, this response was not as timely as is typical for our department or for me.

Good to hear from you, and thanks for picking this back up where we left it. As you know, the HHS leadership under the prior administration was eager to get those funds to us but couldn't find a way to do so without a change in Utah law, something our legislature was understandably wary of doing. I think the first step would be a conversation with the leadership of Utah's Department of Health and Human Services. I've copied Tracy Gruber, the Executive Director of the Department. She may want to pull in Lynne Nilson and others from our Bureau of Maternal and Child Health, who were involved in our Title X application a few years ago and could help us in drafting appropriate language, but I'll defer to Tracy on whom to pull into that meeting.

I'm flexible next week, particularly next Tuesday.

And yes, we went through quite a process over the past several years to apply for the Title X funding, in part based on the strong encouragement of the Trump Administration HHS. However it was always understood that we couldn't get around the statutory requirements surrounding our parental consent requirements, and the legislature had no interest in adjusting or loosening that requirement. So my understanding is that we would not pursue Title X again, but I'll check. If anything has changed then I can connect you with our Department of Health staff who worked on the application.

While our staff did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. I suspect you are aware of these but they are listed below. Our previous recommendation to amend the confidentiality language to allow states to access the funds at a prorated amount is still a good possible solution. The two regulations relevant are as follows:

Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A
(https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). :

§ 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

§ 59.10 Confidentiality
(b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

It's worth noting the specific objection Utah was provided in 2020 from HHS when it sought a waiver for Title X funds: "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." Our team suggested language be considered to the relevant section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

We also have some changes in state code that we will want to consider and we will plan to discuss those with the Governor's Office. These changes may include an amendment to code that would allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized. Apparently Texas has provided such an allowance.

I hope this is helpful. Again, I apologize for the delay in getting you this information. Between travel and COVID, this response was not as timely as is typical for our department or for me.

Hey Gordon,

Picking up this convo from last year –

I am looking into developing leg text for a proposal that would loosen statutory requirements so that Utah would be able to access these funds. Additionally, I may want to include a provision that would allow these funds to be used as grants to assist families seeking to adopt, which would expand the definition of "family planning" in a sense. I am curious if you have thoughts on where to best direct funds to ensure that goal could be achieved, and if you have any general thoughts on this.

Hi Will,

Thanks for reaching out, and congratulations on the new job with Rep. Moore. I'd be happy to chat next Tuesday. I'm pretty flexible between 10-12 MT and after 2:30 MT. Do any of those times work for you?

And yes, we went through quite a process over the past several years to apply for the Title X funding, in part based on the strong encouragement of the Trump Administration HHS. However it was always understood that we couldn't get around the statutory requirements surrounding our parental consent requirements, and the legislature had no interest in adjusting or loosening that requirement. So my understanding is that we would not pursue Title X again, but I'll check. If anything has changed then I can connect you with our Department of Health staff who worked on the application.

Planned Parenthood Association of Utah v. Matheson
Planned Parenthood Association of Utah v. Dandoy

Thank you for this, Tracy. I will work to develop some text to amend this issue and run it by your team to see if it would correct this issue.

I did have a quick question. It appears that in 2022, Planned Parenthood of Utah received funding through this grant program. https://opa.hhs.gov/grant-programs/title-x-service-grants/current-title-x-service-grantees/fy2022-title-X-service-grant-awards

How exactly were they able to access Title X funds? Is it just that the state itself is unable to access funds but Planned Parenthood still can?

It seems like 76-7-325 would be the section that could potentially apply outside of state government agencies.

76-7-322 and 76-7-323 apply to the state and its political subdivisions.

Thanks,

Nate

Thank you for this, Tracy. I will work to develop some text to amend this issue and run it by your team to see if it would correct this issue.

I did have a quick question. It appears that in 2022, Planned Parenthood of Utah received funding through this grant program. https://opa.hhs.gov/grant-programs/title-x-service-grants/current-title-x-service-grantees/fy2022-title-X-service-grant-awards

How exactly were they able to access Title X funds? Is it just that the state itself is unable to access funds but Planned Parenthood still can?

Will,

I am so sorry for the delay in responding. That is my fault.

While our staff did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. I suspect you are aware of these but they are listed below. Our previous recommendation to amend the confidentiality language to allow states to access the funds at a prorated amount is still a good possible solution. The two regulations relevant are as follows:

Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A
(https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). :

§ 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

> § 59.10 Confidentiality
> (b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

It's worth noting the specific objection Utah was provided in 2020 from HHS when it sought a waiver for Title X funds: "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." Our team suggested language be considered to the relevant section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

We also have some changes in state code that we will want to consider and we will plan to discuss those with the Governor's Office. These changes may include an amendment to code that would allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized. Apparently Texas has provided such an allowance.

[redacted]

I hope this is helpful. Again, I apologize for the delay in getting you this information. Between travel and COVID, this response was not as timely as is typical for our department or for me.

Hi Will,

Thanks for reaching out, and congratulations on the new job with Rep. Moore. I'd be happy to chat next Tuesday. I'm pretty flexible between 10-12 MT and after 2:30 MT. Do any of those times work for you?

And yes, we went through quite a process over the past several years to apply for the Title X funding, in part based on the strong encouragement of the Trump Administration HHS. However it was always understood that we couldn't get around the statutory requirements surrounding our parental consent requirements, and the legislature had no interest in adjusting or loosening that requirement. So my understanding is that we would not pursue Title X again, but I'll check. If anything has changed then I can connect you with our Department of Health staff who worked on the application.

On a more specific note, my understanding is that the Utah Department of Health may have applied for a Title X Family Planning Grant last year. I know that Utah would have to be granted an exemption to accommodate state law mandating minors have parental consent to access contraceptive services. I was curious if there was a contact at the Utah Department of Health I could connect with to discuss if the Department plans to apply again. Do you know of anyone I could chat with on this topic?

Thank you so much for your help. I hope to connect soon!

Hi Will,

Thanks for reaching out, and congratulations on the new job with Rep. Moore. I'd be happy to chat next Tuesday. I'm pretty flexible between 10-12 MT and after 2:30 MT. Do any of those times work for you?

And yes, we went through quite a process over the past several years to apply for the Title X funding, in part based on the strong encouragement of the Trump Administration HHS. However it was always understood that we couldn't get around the statutory requirements surrounding our parental consent requirements, and the legislature had no interest in adjusting or loosening that requirement. So my understanding is that we would not pursue Title X again, but I'll check. If anything has changed then I can connect you with our Department of Health staff who worked on the application.

Planned Parenthood of Utah has applied for and received this funding for decades---since the 80s.

We don't fully know or understand federal statute and pre-emption factors well enough to know how they interact with state law. Planned Parenthood Association of Utah v. Matheson
Planned Parenthood Association of Utah v. Dandoy

Thank you for this, Tracy. I will work to develop some text to amend this issue and run it by your team to see if it would correct this issue.

I did have a quick question. It appears that in 2022, Planned Parenthood of Utah received funding through this grant program. https://opa.hhs.gov/grant-programs/title-x-service-grants/current-title-x-service-grantees/fy2022-title-X-service-grant-awards

How exactly were they able to access Title X funds? Is it just that the state itself is unable to access funds but Planned Parenthood still can?

Will,

I am so sorry for the delay in responding. That is my fault.

While our staff did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. I suspect you are aware of these but they are listed below. Our previous recommendation to amend the confidentiality language to allow states to access the funds at a prorated amount is still a good possible solution. The two regulations relevant are as follows:

Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A
(https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). :

§ 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

> § 59.10 Confidentiality
> (b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

It's worth noting the specific objection Utah was provided in 2020 from HHS when it sought a waiver for Title X funds: "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." Our team suggested language be considered to the relevant section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

We also have some changes in state code that we will want to consider and we will plan to discuss those with the Governor's Office. These changes may include an amendment to code that would allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized. Apparently Texas has provided such an allowance.

I hope this is helpful. Again, I apologize for the delay in getting you this information. Between travel and COVID, this response was not as timely as is typical for our department or for me.

The initial thought is that the language could clearly indicate that state's like Utah that require parental consent can still access these funds, even if a prorated amount. The suggestion from one of our deputies is the following: "alter federal law in such a way to allow states which require parental consent to benefit from those federal family planning funds without forcing such states to remove or modify parental consent law."

Hey there,

Tracy – if there are any specific changes to the regs in Title X family planning grants that you would suggest that would ameliorate the fact that Utah is ineligible, that would be very helpful. Additionally, I think we may have an interest in expanding Title X grants to allow for adoption costs to be included in what the funds could be used for. If you have recommendations on how the grant could be amended to allow for this given the funding stream is currently more narrow, that would be helpful as well.

I think it would be a worthy effort to alter federal law in such a way to allow states like Utah to benefit from those federal family planning funds without forcing us to change our parental consent law. As you know, the HHS leadership under the prior administration was eager to get those funds to us but couldn't find a way to do so without a change in Utah law, something our legislature was understandably wary of doing. I think the first step would be a conversation with the leadership of Utah's Department of Health and Human Services. I've copied Tracy Gruber, the Executive Director of the Department. She may want to pull in Lynne Nilson and others from our Bureau of Maternal and Child Health, who were involved in our Title X application a few years ago and could help us in drafting appropriate language, but I'll defer to Tracy on whom to pull into that meeting.

Good morning.

There are references to abortion and detox in this rule. Since this is 5-year continuation, I approved it but It had me thinking about whether the time is right to look at the requirements of the rules given changes both legally and socially on these two issues. When was the last time those other requirements were reviewed? Are we still comfortable with the requirements included in those rules?

Good question. I don't see anything immediately problematic in this rule related to those two issues; however, I don't know the last time those issues have been reviewed in policy. I remember Tonya did a thorough review of abortion policy and procedure but that may have been five years or so ago.

Thanks,

Nate

Shari,

This request is being considered as part of the Family Policy item we have on our list. However, I am wondering if we should place it on the internal funding list instead.

Hi Tracy and Nate,
I am really glad you brought up this 5 year renewal.
I had similar thoughts when I reviewed this rule (that i needed a further review).
We will plan to do that and let you know if any changes / updates are needed or not.

Thank you!

When was the last time those other requirements were reviewed? Are we still comfortable with the requirements included in those rules?

Sen. Kennedy,

Thank you for taking the time to chat this morning, I just wanted to follow up with answers to your questions.
1. What is the cost: $2,948,500
2. How many women are in coverage: On an annual basis, we have an average of 3,300 women who have coverage for 60 days. Of that number, 1600 normally qualify to continue coverage and 1,700 would be discontinued. With extension of coverage to 12 months, the remaining 1,700 that would have lost coverage will now maintain that coverage.

I spoke with Rep. Lesser this morning and she would like a vote on this bill. I have attached a copy for your review. She currently has it in Medicaid Expansion, at our request, she plans on amending it to be covered in standard Medicaid coverage with the 70/30 match. The $2.9 million estimate is based on 70/30.

Please let me know if you have any additional questions or concerns.

Thanks,

Paul

The number of women receiving services that Paul shared seems low to me. I thought we were paying for 10-15k births per year. Has that number changed?

Thanks,

Apologies. Some corrections here; I was looking at supporting calculations for the fiscal note and I left out a whole bunch of pregnant women who had no fiscal impact. I also incorrectly applied the wrong multiplier.

First I'll say that the most recent annual births are about 11,300, but we are projecting a 21% decrease in consensus. So our fiscal impact is based on an estimate of 8,900 births. Among those postpartum women:

- 2,000 women would gain new coverage
- 2,000 women would stay on the pregnant woman program instead of moving to adult expansion
- 4,900 women would stay on the pregnant woman program instead of moving to another non-expansion program

Thanks,
Brian

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 12:42:46
Did the ACO group have a recommendation on where the UMIC model would best apply? What counties? What populations?

Eric Grant (DHHS), 2022-09-16 12:45:12
They did not. I'll ask when there is a lull in the conversation.

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 12:46:19
Eric, wasn't that part of the conversation in the first subworkgroup meeting?

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 12:47:30
(I wasn't there, but I thought that was part)

Eric Grant (DHHS), 2022-09-16 12:47:33
Your right. I had to comb back through my notes. Nate, they suggested that it be limited to the 4 mandatory counties.

Eric Grant (DHHS), 2022-09-16 12:47:45
Wasatch front

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 12:49:05

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 12:49:19
All TAM?

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:19:22
What we discussed is that O-track provides this report...but I didn't realize it didn't include jails

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:19:24
Who from this group will be on the Dunnigan call with DWS?

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:19:50
As Emma said, we didn't get funding to connect with jails.

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:20:09
I would like to be on that call.
But yes, I didn't appreciate that during the convo on Monday

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:20:19
We could use some of our one-time to fund the connections.

Good idea.

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:20:53
We should trouble shoot this current comment offline. it's not the way policy works.

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:21:13
We need names after the meeting

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:21:30

Agreed, it's not what's supposed to happen

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:21:42
Is it a priority issue in eREP

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:22:02
One plan taking priority over another

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:22:13
TAM is supposed to be priority

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:22:51
We'll investigate

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:30:16
Ok, clarification from Michelle
TAM coverage will end prior to the 12-month certification period if the individual:
a. Turns age 65;
b. Moves out of state;
c. Fails to apply for other benefits;
d. Becomes institutionalized (See 604 for suspending coverage); or
e. Is determined eligible for another Medicaid program, with the exception of Adult Expansion, Refugee or Medically Needy.

So (e) is the problem here. We'll keep them on TAM if the alternative is those three programs. But if they become eligible for legacy Medicaid (PCR), they would change

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:33:23
It's worth revisiting with Eligibility to see if we want to keep the current priority. Not sure how CMS would respond to a request to make this change.

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:34:25
I like that idea, Nate. If our objective is to achieve stability /continuity and support services for this population, it would be hard....just as they make steps of improvement...to have them transition off

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:35:38
I think CMS would accept that change as long as we pay traditional FMAP for those changes. So a TAM member that becomes pregnant or gets reunified with children would keep the TAM benefits, at the lower match rate

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:44:53
Is the intent that the group vote today on a single recommendation or is DIH receiving the reports and taking them under consideration as it makes it decision?

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:45:18
I was hoping to have the group vote today.... and then we take it back to work on it is everyone else in agreement with that?

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:45:27

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:45:37
(are you in agreement with that?)

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:46:06
Just as long as the vote has the nuance based on geographic area. We may want to take a vote by urban/rural/frontier?

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:46:09
The final decision is our decision not the group's decision.

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:46:38
I was also going to make it clear that state/cms has to approve all of this... and this will be taken into consideration. And that the timeline is to have a recommended model by July..not to have it in place by then

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:47:04
Yes- they are giving a recommendation, not a final decision

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:47:49
Correct, we are directed to collaborate with the working group but the law doesn't give them the decision making authority

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:50:15
Any recommendations from the group to handle things differently in urban vs. rural areas?

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:51:07
My subgroup wanted FFS+Case Management to be a last resort if counties "failed" to select a different model

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:51:21
And they envisioned that would likely only be in frontier areas

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:53:01
Some workgroup members may not be on the call

Brent Kelsey DHS, 2022-09-16 13:54:25
I beleive that ACO in the current footprint makes sense. However, maybe we start with a request for statewide.

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:55:25
To Pat's point... the ACO's are on this call already!?

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:56:53

This is weird to talk about them in the third person and they are here

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:58:14
I agree we should hold off on vote for now

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:58:18
Does it need to stay in the working group for this?

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:58:28
I mean this discussion with the ACO's?

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:58:42
I don't agree with Scott. He is pushing one solution and I don't know if I agree with it.

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 13:58:57
I am just wondering if it needs to be a public meeting

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:59:03
I think it does Jen

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:59:08
I don't know if we need one more party between us and the ACOs

Brian Roach, 2022-09-16 13:59:20
(I'll defer to Nate)

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 13:59:45
I would set up a follow up meeting for the ACOs to present and then another meeting to vote

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 14:00:32
Good idea.

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 14:02:05
oh my

Brent Kelsey DHS, 2022-09-16 14:02:16
nice job jen.

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 14:02:16
Jen, if possible, I would like to join you for your discussion with Dunnigan

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 14:02:27
yes.

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 14:02:48
It got a little bit messy but we ended up ok in the end

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 14:03:05
I'll send him a text and include you

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 14:03:11
We should find a time to coordinate and walk through the next steps for 413

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 14:03:20
Yes.

Nate Checketts (DHHS), 2022-09-16 14:03:23
with this leadership group

Jennifer Strohecker, 2022-09-16 14:04:20
I think we will have to schedule it for Thur/Fri next week. I will find a time. Monday eveyrone is in leadership training and then I am in Denver Tues-Thur afternoon. I will see if we can meet THur before I fly home

Brent Kelsey DHS, 2022-09-16 14:08:45
Nate: I agree. we do not need one more party betwen us and the ACO's. It was an idea that really picked up steam with the providers in my group. I think the important issue for us to address is timely payment. I also think that strengthening our role and oversight of the ACO's could provide this function. The group disagreed.

Thanks for this clarification on the numbers. To restate, although the count is higher and the multiplier different, the initial budget estimate is still the same. Correct?

First I'll say that the most recent annual births are about 11,300, but we are projecting a 21% decrease in consensus. So our fiscal impact is based on an estimate of 8,900 births. Among those postpartum women:

- 2,000 women would gain new coverage
- 2,000 women would stay on the pregnant woman program instead of moving to adult expansion
- 4,900 women would stay on the pregnant woman program instead of moving to another non-expansion program

Sen. Kennedy,

Thank you for taking the time to chat this morning, I just wanted to follow up with answers to your questions.
1. What is the cost: $2,948,500
2. How many women are in coverage: On an annual basis, we have an average of 3,300 women who have coverage for 60 days. Of that number, 1600 normally qualify to continue coverage and 1,700 would be discontinued. With extension of coverage to 12 months, the remaining 1,700 that would have lost coverage will now maintain that coverage.

I spoke with Rep. Lesser this morning and she would like a vote on this bill. I have attached a copy for your review. She currently has it in Medicaid Expansion, at our request, she plans on amending it to be covered in standard Medicaid coverage with the 70/30 match. The $2.9 million estimate is based on 70/30.

Please let me know if you have any additional questions or concerns.

Thanks,

Paul

Sen. Kennedy,

Thank you for taking the time to chat this morning, I just wanted to follow up with answers to your questions.
1. What is the cost: $2,948,500

[redacted]

2. How many women are in coverage: On an annual basis, we have an average of 3,300 women who have coverage for 60 days. Of that number, 1600 normally qualify to continue coverage and 1,700 would be discontinued. With extension of coverage to 12 months, the remaining 1,700 that would have lost coverage will now maintain that coverage.

I spoke with Rep. Lesser this morning and she would like a vote on this bill. I have attached a copy for your review. She currently has it in Medicaid Expansion, at our request, she plans on amending it to be covered in standard Medicaid coverage with the 70/30 match. The $2.9 million estimate is based on 70/30.

Please let me know if you have any additional questions or concerns.

Thanks,

Paul

Senator,

We need to correct the number of women that would be impacted by this proposal. The total estimated cost is still correct; however, our analyst missed a portion of the information when he pulled the estimated number of women impacted by the change.

The correct figures

8,900 women in total per year:

- 2,000 women would gain new coverage
- 2,000 women would stay on the pregnant woman program instead of moving to adult expansion
- 4,900 women would stay on the pregnant woman program instead of moving to another non-expansion program

We wanted to make sure you had the correct numbers and apologize for the error.

Thanks,

Nate

If you are on this email you have either been identified as:

1. Responsible for writing a report; or
2. Responsible for reviewing a report

The following reports are due to the Legislature by October 1, 2022:

- For those reports ready for EDO review, a google doc link has been included.
- For those reports that do not have a google doc included, these reports are due to EDO no later than this FRIDAY, September 23 (to give EDO at least one week for review).

As a reminder, these reports are legislatively required. Some of them are recurring reports that have individual citations in code. Other reports are required as intent language passed in various budget bills this year.

If you feel you were incorrectly identified as being responsible for the report, please send a message to me, your ELT-level supervisor, and the staff member you feel should be responsible.

Please make these a priority so we can meet these legislative deadlines.

State Updates

- California – Governor Gavin Newsom signed the Community Assistance, Recovery, and Empowerment Act to enact CARE Court, a framework which will provide more upstream care to individuals with severe mental health and substance use disorders. This will allow families, clinicians, and first responders to make psychiatric referrals ahead of conservatorships and outside the walls of institutions. The law is bolstered by the state's $15.3 billion in funding to tackle homelessness and $11.6 billion annually in mental health services.
- Oklahoma – A task force created by Oklahoma Governor Kevin Stitt recommended that the state extend Medicaid postpartum coverage to 12 months from 60 days and increase the Medicaid eligibility income limit for pregnant woman to 205% of poverty. The current limit is 138%. Both policy changes will require CMS approval and would extend coverage to 2,500 women in the state.

- Oregon – The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), through CMS, approved the Oregon Health Authority's (OHA) state plan amendment (SPA) to offer Medicaid community-based mobile crisis intervention services for individuals experiencing mental health and substance use crises. This first-in-the-nation SPA was made possible through the American Rescue Plan Act, which became available to states in April 2022. For more on this new option for states to invest in equitable, comprehensive and integrated crisis services, see this SHVS brief.

Marc, I tried to get into and would like to make edits in several of these reports, and they aren't set up to provide edit or comment access---are you able to fix this? (like the SUID report, the first tobacco item (compliance checks), the birth certificate report, and the AI/AN report---there may be others that I didn't try)

Thank you,

Same. Please grant access to these reports so we can do the necessary review as quickly as possible given the timeline.

Have these reports gone through PAE for review for editing? There are several line edits I find myself making. It would be good to have a line editor review these reports. If they don't have that capability, let me know. We may need to find an editor in the department.

My apologies. I thought when I sent the original email that it had a pop-up to give everyone access. I'll go through and do that now.

Tracy, to your question, it is my understanding that the assigned Comms team members should also be part of the OU review process. We will build that into the PowerDMS system once we get that up and going. I'll also emphasize that with ELT.

Just to round back on this, I worked with PIO to get permission to edit the Reports Template. Along with a few minor formatting items, we've added a note to the page to remind staff about font size/line spacing and let them know about the expected workflow of reviews before these get to EDO. Hopefully this clarity with mean less items for us to address during our reviews.

Good morning.

Please have those involved in family planning review this proposed legislation from Rep. Moore as soon as possible.

The idea is to allow Utah access to these funds even though our state has a law on the books requiring parental consent.

Hey Tracy,

We've got some text for you on this. Would your team be able to review? This, implemented, should ameliorate any issues with Utah becoming an award recipient while also reimplementing some pro-life protections from the prior administration.

Let me know if your team has thoughts or any concerns that as written Utah would still not be able to access funds.

Kindly,

Will,

The following is the response we received from DHHS staff:

Planned Parenthood of Utah has applied for and received this funding for decades---since the 80s.

We don't fully know or understand federal statute and pre-emption factors well enough to know how they interact with state law. Planned Parenthood would be better positioned to speak for themselves about their legal authority to accept these funds, but believe the precedence comes from these two cases:
Planned Parenthood Association of Utah v. Matheson
Planned Parenthood Association of Utah v. Dandoy

I did have a quick question. It appears that in 2022, Planned Parenthood of Utah received funding through this grant program. https://opa.hhs.gov/grant-programs/title-x-service-grants/current-title-x-service-grantees/fy2022-title-X-service-grant-awards

How exactly were they able to access Title X funds? Is it just that the state itself is unable to access funds but Planned Parenthood still can?

Will,

I am so sorry for the delay in responding. That is my fault.

While our staff did not offer specific language they did highlight the two areas in federal code that have prohibited Utah from receiving Title X funds that would need to be amended. I suspect you are aware of these but they are listed below. Our previous recommendation to amend the confidentiality language to allow states to access the funds at a prorated amount is still a good possible solution. The two regulations relevant are as follows:

Public Health Service Act, 42 CFR Part 59 Subpart A
(https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-42/chapter-I/subchapter-D/part-59/subpart-A). :

§ 59.5(a) What requirements must be met by a family planning project

§ 59.10 Confidentiality

[redacted]

(b) To the extent practical, Title X projects shall encourage family participation.[3] However, Title X projects may not require consent of parents or guardians for the provision of services to minors, nor can any Title X project staff notify a parent or guardian before or after a minor has requested and/or received Title X family planning services.

It's worth noting the specific objection Utah was provided in 2020 from HHS when it sought a waiver for Title X funds: "The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is unable to grant this request for a waiver. This requirement for provision of confidential contraceptive services is statutory and, thus, HHS does not have the authority to provide such a waiver." Our team suggested language be considered to the relevant section of the Public Health Service Act that would allow the Federal Department of Health and Human Services to grant waivers requested by states.

We also have some changes in state code that we will want to consider and we will plan to discuss those with the Governor's Office. These changes may include an amendment to code that would allow for an exemption to the parental consent law in narrow cases where Title X funding is being utilized. Apparently Texas has provided such an allowance.

I hope this is helpful. Again, I apologize for the delay in getting you this information. Between travel and COVID, this response was not as timely as is typical for our department or for me.

Tracy

The initial thought is that the language could clearly indicate that state's like Utah that require parental consent can still access these funds, even if a prorated amount. The suggestion from one of our deputies is the following: "alter federal law in such a way to allow states which require parental consent to benefit from those federal family planning funds without forcing such states to remove or modify parental consent law."

> Tracy – if there are any specific changes to the regs in Title X family planning grants that you would suggest that would ameliorate the fact that Utah is ineligible, that would be very helpful. Additionally, I think we may have an interest in expanding Title X grants to allow for adoption costs to be included in what the funds could be used for. If you have recommendations on how the grant could be amended to allow for this given the funding stream is currently more narrow, that would be helpful as well.

I think it would be a worthy effort to alter federal law in such a way to allow states like Utah to benefit from those federal family planning funds without forcing us to change our parental consent law. As you know, the HHS leadership under the prior administration was eager to get those funds to us but couldn't find a way to do so without a change in Utah law, something our legislature was understandably wary of doing. I think the first step would be a conversation with the leadership of Utah's Department of Health and Human Services. I've copied Tracy Gruber, the Executive Director of the Department. She may want to pull in Lynne Nilson and others from our Bureau of Maternal and Child Health, who were involved in our Title X application a few years ago and could help us in drafting appropriate language, but I'll defer to Tracy on whom to pull into that meeting.

I'm flexible next week, particularly next Tuesday.

Thanks in advance for your help!

Hi Will,

Thanks for reaching out, and congratulations on the new job with Rep. Moore. I'd be happy to chat next Tuesday. I'm pretty flexible between 10-12 MT and after 2:30 MT. Do any of those times work for you?

And yes, we went through quite a process over the past several years to apply for the Title X funding, in part based on the strong encouragement of the Trump Administration HHS. However it was always understood that we couldn't get around the statutory requirements surrounding our parental consent requirements, and the legislature had no interest in adjusting or loosening that requirement. So my understanding is that we would not pursue Title X again, but I'll check. If anything has changed then I can connect you with our Department of Health staff who worked on the application.

Read APHSA's special statement and our summary of key provisions for human services agencies.

APHSA and Share Our Strength, No Kid Hungry are excited to announce the launch of our Request for Proposals for our second round of Coordinating SNAP & Nutrition Supports (CSNS) grant funding. Proposals will be accepted until December 30. Join us for an informational webinar discussing this funding opportunity on Tuesday, October 18 at 1:00 PM ET.
